The budget deficit: Talk but few plans

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — When Ronald Reagan entered the White House in 1981, the national debt was less than $1 trillion. Today it has soared to $2.6 trillion, and the interest alone is costing taxpayers $210 billion — more than the nation's elderly receive in Social Security benefits.

So what do Republican George Bush and Democrat Michael Dukakis propose to do about the budget deficit?

Despite Bush's talk of a "flexible freeze" on most government spending and Dukakis' hopes of reaping tens of billions of dollars through vigorous tax collection, economists say neither presidential candidate has put forward a credible plan for mopping up the tidal wave of red ink.

The deficit, however, has not emerged as a major campaign issue despite gloomy prognostications from some economists. Neither Bush nor Dukakis has felt much pressure to fill in the blanks of his deficit-reduction promises.

Bush's oft-repeated vow is, "I will not raise your taxes, period." In 1980, he derided Reagan's promise to balance the budget while cutting taxes and raising military spending as "voodoo economics." Now the vice president is following in Reagan's footsteps by promising more tax cuts and vowing to keep hands off Social Security.

The vice president has offered a "flexible freeze" on government spending except for Social Security and interest payments on the national debt. He would limit the overall growth of other government spending to the rate of inflation, with increases in some areas offset by unspecified cuts elsewhere.

"It's a commitment to slow the growth of government spending to make even better progress in reducing the budget deficit than we have been doing and are projected to do," said Michael J. Boskin, a Stanford University economics professor and senior Bush adviser. "Exactly when it would lead to a balanced budget depends on how well the economy does."

Boskin said the annual deficit, which in 1983 was the equivalent of 6.3 percent of the gross national product, is down to 3.2 percent of GNP and is headed to 1.8 percent of GNP in 1993 even without the flexible freeze, according to a Congressional Budget Office forecast.

To critics who question how Bush will achieve his goal while exempting Social Security, Boskin says, "It leaves most of the budget." He said Bush is committed to negotiating spending restraints with Congress, but "he doesn't think it's appropriate that he lay out a detailed fiscal 1990 budget during the presidential campaign."

Like Reagan, Bush espouses a balanced budget amendment and line-item veto authority. Dukakis opposes both. Says Bush: "The most important action we need to take on the budget deficit is to hold the line on taxing and

Candidates prep for debate, ponder polls

George Bush and Michael Dukakis focused on strategy and studied for their second presidential debate as state polls across the nation indicated that the Republican nominee is solidifying his lead over the Democratic challenger.

The vice president spent several hours at his Washington, D.C., home Sunday morning preparing for the debate before traveling to Illinois where he marched in a Slavic parade and vowed never to forget the Soviet presence in Eastern Europe.

Dukakis was closeted for about six hours with a dozen advisers at the Park Plaza Hotel in Boston where they discussed strategy for the confrontation scheduled for Thursday in Los Angeles.

The Democratic nominee was speaking at a Long Island high school today before marching with New York Gov. Mario Cuomo in the Columbus Day parade in New York City.

Bush was addressing a Knights of Columbus meeting in Trenton, N.J., where aides said he would discuss crime and the rights of victims. The GOP nominee's running mate, Dan Quayle, was campaigning in Detroit and Farmington Hills, Mich., in addition to Akron and Toledo, Ohio.

Democratic vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen was tending to Senate duties in Washington.

Statewide polls in Kansas, Ohio, New Mexico and Missouri showed Bush leading Dukakis while a survey of voters in 15 Southern and border states found the Republican nominee holding a 12-point regional advantage over his Democratic rival.

The poll of 2,102 registered voters, conducted last week by The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, showed Bush leading Dukakis 49-37 percent with 12 percent of those surveyed undecided.

The poll had a margin of error of plus or minus two percentage points. Bush led in every state, including Florida, where he held a 26-point advantage, and Texas, where despite the presence of Lone Star state Sen. Lloyd Bentsen on the Democratic ticket, the GOP nominee enjoys a 14-point lead.

Both are high-stakes Electoral College states. Florida has 21 electoral votes; Texas is the third biggest prize with 29.

The survey also included Alabama, Delaware, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, Kentucky, Arkansas and North Carolina.

With his support strong in the South, Bush turned his attention Sunday to the Midwest and the crucial state of Illinois, which has 24 electoral votes.

The vice president and his wife, Barbara, rode in an old-fashioned fire truck along a two-mile parade route between Cicero and Berwin, in the annual Houbly Day parade, a Czechoslovakian celebration of bountiful mushroom crops.

"This is the day we celebrate family, we celebrate faith and we celebrate freedom," Bush said in brief remarks before the parade began. "And none of us will ever forget there is not freedom in Eastern Europe, and I have pledged, as president, to never forget that."

Earlier, Bush prepared for the nationally broadcast, 90-minute

Three arrested, lab seized

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Three Howard County residents were arrested and a clandestine methamphetamine lab was confiscated at 9:30 p.m. Sunday, according to Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard, at a location nine miles northeast of the city.

Standard said early today that the laboratory equipment and accompanying chemicals, residues and a "token amount of marijuana" had an estimated street value of $500,000.

Ronald Troy Little, 27, and Cherie Mabelle Hitch, 19, both of Route 2 Big Spring, were arrested at the scene along with Daniel Scott Bennet, 25, HC 61. All three were charged with aggravated possession of methamphetamines. Bonds were set at $50,000 each for the two men and $20,000 for the woman, Standard said.

Sheriff's deputies who took part in the raid described the lab as located in an outbuilding of a residence which had once been a farm.

"We expect several more arrests and some followup," Standard said. "We certainly want to give credit to the drug task force and the city police for their assistance."

Standard said two to three more principals were involved in the operation; he said his officers expect further arrests and the recovery of more chemicals as a result of the continuing investigation, and declined to identify officers assisting in the arrest because of that.

A news release from the department names the drug task force, the Ector County Sheriff's Office, Big Spring Police and the Texas Department of Public Safety crime lab as assisting in the raid.

Deputy Bennie Green said four officers from the sheriff's department and three from the city took part in the raid.

Howard County Sheriff's Deputies Jack Howard, left, and George Quintero remove a confiscated "clandestine methamphetamine lab" from a county van early today. The lab, chemicals, residues and products were valued at $500,000, according to County Sheriff A.N. Standard.

The laboratory's equipment, chemicals and other paraphernalia taken in the raid filled a county van's cargo area. Among the confiscated property was an unknown amount of methamphetamine residue contained within the laboratory's glassware.

"It's not the value of the stuff they have here," Deputy George Quintero said in explaining what made the assortment of bottles, jars, hoses, chemicals and flasks valuable. "It's what they can make with it."

Depending upon the recipe used, he said, the lab could make up to half a million dollars' worth of drugs.

"They were using a recipe that calls for ether, acetone, hydrochloric acid and methamine," he said, pointing out the various containers.

Deputy Jack Howard identified substances in a five-gallon plastic water bottle containing half an inch of milky fluid and a glass condensation coil containing reddish-brown, tarry substance as methamphetamine residues.

Standard said an undetermined amount of the finished product had been found in the laboratory.

"These chemical labs seem to be the in thing," Standard said, adding that while occurrences of heroin and cocaine abuse are known in Howard County, the most prevalent drugs are methamphetamine and marijuana. He said the chemical ingredients could be bought legally, separately.

The residues and chemicals in the containers from the laboratory were producing a visible vapor inside the county van, and a nauseating odor accompanied deputies' efforts to remove the lab from the van.

FDIC head: Future brighter

HONOLULU — U.S. commercial bank failures are expected to decline by about 25 percent in 1989 after reaching record levels this year, the head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says.

FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman told a news conference at the American Bankers Association's annual convention Sunday that by the end of 1988 as many as 250 banks will have failed or needed federal assistance to stay afloat.

Last year a record 184 FDIC-insured institutions failed and 19 received federal assistance. Reserves at the end of 1987 totaled $18.3 billion.

But Seidman said the FDIC remained in good shape and is expected to have reserves of between $15 billion and $16 billion at the end of the year despite the mammoth bailout of First Republic Bank Corp. and a recent call for help by MCorp, both in Dallas.

"Right now the '89 outlook looks better to us. It (the failure rate) could go down as much as 25 percent," Seidman said. "But I must caution you I made that same prediction a year ago."

Seidman said the problem-bank list is slowly declining. The farm and energy belts in the Southwest, particularly Texas, were the biggest trouble spots, according to FDIC spokesman Alan J. Whitney.

Among the biggest bailouts was First Republic Bank Corp., the largest bank in Texas. It had $28.6 billion in assets when the FDIC seized all 40 of its subsidiary banks earlier this year before agreeing to sell them to NCNB Corp. of Charlotte, N.C.

And last week, MCorp, the second-largest bank in Texas with assets of about $20.1 billion, said it probably would need federal assistance to survive. The bank said it expected to post the biggest loss in its history, about $25 million, in the third quarter that ended Sept. 30.

Seidman said it was too soon to tell how much assistance, if any, might be needed for MCorp. "We just received their application on Saturday," he said. "It's premature to have any opinion."

Still, Seidman said, "a number of substantial institutions... are interested" in a possible investment in MCorp.

Also Sunday, Seidman and Comptroller of the Currency Robert Clarke reiterated their opposition to a possible merger of the FDIC, which insures deposits of about 14,000 banks and savings institutions, and the troubled Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which insures 3,200 savings and loans. Both organizations cover deposits of up to $100,000.

Seidman and Clarke did agree it was likely to be considered by Congress and the new president.

Minimal oil price changes expected

DALLAS (AP) — Increased petroleum production in Saudi Arabia and some non-OPEC companies have flooded the market and could force Texas' benchmark crude prices into a tailspin, industry spokesmen say.

Members of The Dallas Morning News Energy Board said increased petroleum production in Saudi Arabia could undo months of slow, but steady gains in Texas petroleum prices. Last week, West Texas crude dropped to $12.28 per barrel.

Oil prices have plunged to the lowest level in more than two years, while the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has been pumping more than 20.5 million barrels daily into an already glutted market.

Non-OPEC nations also have increased output, and the International Energy Agency reported last week that non-communist world production reached an eight-year high of 50.6 million barrels a day in the second quarter.

Energy board members say the lower prices have forced domestic producers to abandon exploration and production plans — allowing national crude oil reserves to decline.

"Low oil prices are not good for Texas," said Tom Plaut, a senior economist in the state comptroller's office. Even with more diversified economic bases in most major Texas cities in the last few years, oil and gas operations still make up 15 percent of Texas' output of goods and services. Petroleum operations accounted for 18 percent of Texas' economy in 1985.

A recent study by the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank indicates every $1 per barrel drop in oil prices translates to a loss of 0.33 percent in the state's employment. With a September employment base of about 7.7 million and oil

Cause of Delta crash eludes investigators

DALLAS (AP) — Federal investigators, still puzzled by circumstances surrounding ill-fated Delta Air Lines Flight 1141, have scheduled a four-day public hearing on the crash that killed 14 of the 108 people aboard.

The National Transportation Safety Board set hearings on the crash for Nov. 29 through Dec. 2. The agency said at least one of the flight's three crew members probably would be asked to testify.

Investigators said earlier they would particularly like to question co-pilot Carey Kirkland Jr., who said in a previous interview he remembered nothing about the crash.

Federal officials say the Flight 1141 crash, more than any major airline accident in recent years, has confounded investigators in the first critical phase of their search for a cause.

"I think we will certainly believe we know what happened when this is all over, but it isn't going to be easy," said Bernard Loeb, NTSB deputy director of accident investigation.

"We may just have to do it through a series of deductions acknowledging that yes, there is some contradictory evidence, but the majority of evidence says this, that or the other."

Previously, NTSB investigators have focused on the possibility that wing flaps and slats on Flight 1141 were incorrectly positioned for takeoff.

The hearing will be at the Marriott Hotel.

Timber cutting goes on while Congress debates

BEAUMONT (AP) — Timber companies continue to harvest trees in the Big Thicket area of southeast Texas while Congress considers designating part of the region a nature preserve, conservationists say.

Representatives for the Big Thicket Conservation Association, the Texas Committee on Natural Resources and the Sierra Club renewed calls for a moratorium on timber harvesting by Louisiana-Pacific Corp. and other companies along the scenic Village Creek area, now under consideration for addition to the existing preserve.

A bill sponsored by U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, would allow the state to buy or exchange 14,000 acres in three areas along Village Creek in Hardin County, Big Sandy in Polk County and the Canyonlands in Tyler County and add them to the Big Thicket preserve, about 80 miles northeast of Houston.

Conservationists in September asked Louisiana-Pacific, Temple-Inland and Champion International to hold off on timber harvesting in the areas while the bill was being considered. The companies own 77 percent of the land in the proposed addition.

Bob Finch of the Big Thicket conservation group said evidence of cutting prompted a Sept. 15 moratorium request.

Wilson's bill passed the U.S. House of Representatives Sept. 26 but is not expected to clear the Senate in the final week of this Congress. Wilson, who sent staffers to investigate the cutting, plans to reintroduce the bill in January if it dies in the Senate.

Minister ticketed for feeding the poor

FORT WORTH (AP) — It could cost a controversial minister $1,000 to give away food to the homeless.

But the Rev. W.N. Otwell said Sunday he is "guilty of love," and will not pay any fine that might result from a ticket from the city's health department.

The ticket, issued Sunday at the Water Garden in downtown Fort Worth, charges Otwell with operating a temporary food establishment without a permit. Jodie Collins, a sanitarian with the food section of the health department, said the maximum fine is $1,000.

Members of The Church at Fort Worth, Otwell's church, have been giving away sandwiches and other food items at the park in downtown Fort Worth for the past six Sunday despite repeated efforts by city officials to persuade the minister to comply with regulations on food preparation.

The food is given away at the end of a church service for the homeless.

"We'll be back next Sunday, the Lord willing," Otwell told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "We're not going to stop. I'm not going to pay it (the fine), and jail, we've been there before."

"I'm not trying to be hardheaded," the minister said. "All I'm guilty of is feeding the poor. I'm guilty of love. If they want to call me guilty, let them call me guilty."

The ticket was given after members of the church gave sleeping bags, winter clothing and homemade sandwiches to about 75 people.

City officials say they are trying to protect the people the church is feeding by making certain that the food is properly prepared.

The Rev. Otwell blasted city officials during a sermon at the park Sunday, saying he opposes regulation of church activities by city officials.

"The city of Fort Worth this morning is saying to me as pastor and to The Church that you cannot hand out sandwiches without our approval," he said. "I say these buildings belong to you, but the people belong to God."

Jody Henneke, Fort Worth's environmental health supervisor, says city officials will meet this week to consider possible options against the minister.

Texas coast vulnerable to global warming effect

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Gulf coast could suffer significant flooding and disastrous hurricane strikes if the greenhouse effect causes global warming and a rise in sea level, experts say.

The Texas coast is particularly vulnerable to rising seas for a number of reasons, largely related to its flatness and location in the path that hurricanes take, said Stephen Leatherman, director of the University of Maryland's Laboratory for Coastal Research and chairman of the Climate Institute.

"Essentially, the Texas coast is one of the most vulnerable," said Leatherman, a coastal geologist and a leading authority on sea level rise. "The only other coast more vulnerable is Louisiana, because of its land subsidence problems."

Warmer ocean waters resulting from higher air temperatures are likely to produce hurricanes that are stronger and more numerous, Leatherman said. "On top of that, as the sea heats up, the area where tropical storms originate will move northward and closer to Texas," he said.

The greenhouse effect is the term used to describe the warming of the Earth's atmosphere by the accumulation of carbon dioxide and other air pollutants.

One widely expected impact is rising seas, as water expands and melting occurs in polar regions. However, scientists say specific coastal changes from rising seas hinge on many variables, such as the amount of greenhouse gases that man continues to pump into the atmosphere.

"The direction is set, although we don't know how far the sea will rise," he said. "The point is, it's going to go up. If there's anything hot-wired to temperature increase, it's sea level."

Basically, Leatherman said, only three things can be done in response: People can move back from the coastline, letting it erode. They can armor the coast with structures such as the seawall built to protect Galveston. Or they can replenish beaches with extra sand.

Galveston Bay and several other Texas bays are roughly perpendicular to the shoreline and are what geologists call "funnel-shaped" — a feature that amplifies a hurricane's storm surge. Essentially, Leatherman said, when a surge enters such a bay, "there's no place for the water to go."

Critics complain of FDA inaction

HOUSTON (AP) — Critics say they U.S. Food and Drug Administration is not doing enough to keep fruits and vegetables tainted with pesticides from entering the United States through Texas.

"It's puzzling to us the FDA could feel this is not a more serious and demanding matter of public health," said Ellen Widess, director of the Texas Department of Agriculture's pesticide evaluation program.

"The point is, there is not enough testing of produce routinely coming into the United States. The second major concern is they are not testing for enough (types of) pesticides," she said.

Her comments follow the recent report by the Office of Technology Assessment, the bipartisan research arm of Congress.

Susan Shen, the OTC's residue project director, said FDA testing also failed to detect 33 pesticides with moderate to high risks for health problems such as cancer and birth defects.

Baptist minister resigns

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas' second largest Southern Baptist congregation is beginning the healing process after the church's pastor resigned because he had an extramarital affair.

The Rev. Billy Weber, 45, of Prestonwood Baptist Church told church deacons of some "personal inapproprieties" before announcing publicly that he had had an affair.

The former minister apologized and told church members in a recorded message played at Sunday night's sermon to "Remember me at my best."

"This is a case where Bill Weber failed God," he said. "But God has never and will never fail Bill Weber and his family and his church."

Church officials told The Dallas Morning News that the former minister chose to record the brief message earlier in the day rather than to deliver it personally to congregation.

"I want to apologize to you as an individual and as a part of the church for having disappointed you and having failed you," the Rev. Weber said.

"I need not tell you that this is the most traumatic moment in the history of our church," said the Rev. Tim LaHaye, who delivered the Sunday morning sermon at Prestonwood Baptist.

"From this moment on, we can experience the healing of God," LaHaye said. "God is able to overrule in the affairs of man."

Award based on poor security

HOUSTON (AP) — Jurors awarded $3.8 million to an apartment resident who was raped, saying they wanted to send a message to apartment complexes about providing adequate security.

The jury found that the apartment complex owners and managers where the 19-year-old victim lived were negligent in providing security and violated Texas law about deceptive trade practices by advertising that the complex was secure.

"Apartment owners should live up to what people expect of them. They let a lot of things go," said juror Bobby Gober.

Jurors heard testimony about the 1985 attack of a woman who lived in Austin Colony Apartments in Sugar Land.

The jury found that Austin Colony Apartments Ltd. and Greystone Management Services failed to provide adequate security.

Specifically, the lawsuit questioned instructions given to the tenant about her burglar alarm, an inadequate lock on the sliding glass door her assailant used to enter her apartment and the disparity between advertised security services and what was actually provided.

No charges were filed in connection with the rape. Although a suspect was identified, authorities did not have enough evidence to charge him, Friedman said.

Would-be crusader shot

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An arrest warrant has been issued for a man who cut down a would-be drug crusader with a shotgun after the man challenged three drug dealers at an apartment complex, police say.

Relatives said Ruben Washington Jr., 38, had armed himself with a martial arts club called a nunchaku before going to the apartment complex Saturday. Relatives said they urged Washington, an ex-Marine and martial arts expert, not to go.

Police said Washington, a machinist until he was laid off three days before his death, was shot to death in an apartment complex parking lot Saturday after he fought one man and refused to run when others threatened him.

Fort Worth Police Sgt. Dennis Timmons said the complex Washington chose for his crusade has been a major site for drug sales, with numerous arrests made there during recent years.

SoRelle said one of the dealers Washington fought with was beaten and fled. When other men armed with a shotgun and pistol came at Washington he still refused to back off, SoRelle said. Three shots were fired at him, striking him in the chest, head, leg and forearm, the officer said.

The officer said witnesses said that once Washington was on the ground, his assailants "beat the devil out of him."

"He was just a person who was tired of drug dealing and tried to run some of them off," officer SoRelle said. "He was totally against drugs."

Little and Bennett are being held in lieu of $50,000 bond each; Hitch's bond has been set at $20,000, according to sheriff's records.

Joseph B. Lopez, 20, 306 E. Fifth St., was arrested Saturday and is being held in lieu of a $196.50 judgment from county court.

Jeanie Marlene Ward, 34, 808 Baylor St., was arrested on a Midland County warrant for theft over $20, under $200. She was released on $500 bond.

Police seeking unidentified woman to say thanks for help

By MICHAEL DUFFY Staff Writer

An expression of thanks is on the way from Lt. Juan Palacios, who is seeking to locate a woman he said was instrumental in helping police apprehend a man who had been sought since 1982 on a voluntary manslaughter warrant.

Palacios said he and Sgt. George Yielding responded to a "man with a gun" call shortly after noon Thursday at Furr's Supermarket in the College Park Shopping Center.

"When we arrived Sgt. Yielding saw a man talking on the telephone and said he wanted to talk to him, but the guy took off," Palacios said.

Yielding began to pursue the man on foot, as did Palacios, who received some unexpected assistance from a woman who pulled along side of him in her car, the lieutenant explained.

"She said 'get in' and 'where do I go?'" Palacios said.

The unidentified woman drove to an alley near the 1600 block of East 6th Street where Palacios, Yielding and Capt. Lonnie Smith found the suspect hiding in tall grass.

Nathan Lynn Lemon, 27, Oakland, Calif., who also uses the alias Nathan Wright, was arrested about 12:30 p.m. on charges of failure to identify and evading arrest, Palacios said.

It was not until police began questioning Lemon that they learned he was being sought on a Howard County voluntary manslaughter indictment stemming from a 1982 incident at the Northcrest Apartments, 1002 N. Main St., Palacios said.

Lemon was indicted for the Sept. 30, 1982 stabbing death of Richard Samora, 28.

"He (Lemon) told us the day after he read in the newspaper he had been indicted he took off for California," Palacios said.

Lemon returned to Big Spring only days before his arrest, he said.

Lemon is being held in the city jail in lieu of $25,000 bond, Palacios said.

The lieutenant said he wants to learn the woman's identity so he could express his appreciation. "I wish she would call me because I really want to thank her," he said.

Officers talk with gunmen

DALLAS (AP) — A restaurant worker who hid in a freezer escaped as two would-be robbers barricaded themselves in a Wyatt's Cafeteria this morning, police said.

Detective Hollis Edwards said Gus Simon, a baker in his 40s, walked out of the cafeteria unharmed after hiding two and a half hours. It was not known how much time he had spent in the freezer. A half-dozen of his co-workers had fled the building minutes after the gunmen entered the cafeteria about 8 a.m., police said.

The gunmen themselves vanished from the cafeteria sometime during the morning. When tactical squad officers entered the building about 10:30 a.m., no one was there, investigators said.

A Wyatt's employee told police the two suspects, in their 20s, were seen crossing the parking lot shortly before 8 a.m. The manager, Clarence Hart, told an employee to lock the kitchen door, but one gunman entered the cafeteria before the door was latched, police said.

Edwards said Hart told police the other gunman entered through the front door after asking a window washer where to find the manager.

Hart said one man pulled a gun from his waistband and fired two shots, but no one was hit. No customers were in the cafeteria, and all but Simon left as soon as they heard the gunshots, police said.

Clara Luke, head saladmaker, said one of the men left the cafeteria briefly, then returned.

"One of the suspects fled and ran up under a bridge (at the expressway) but later ran back inside," she said.

Police sealed off the area around the South Dallas Interstate 35 access road in front of the cafeteria. Traffic on northbound Interstate 35 was backed up as onlookers watched.

Some of the 15 to 20 tactical officers at the scene had used a long-range bullhorn to try to talk the gunmen into surrendering.

Oil prices

closing last week at $12.88, a decline to $10 per barrel oil would mean an additional loss of almost 77,000 jobs in Texas.

But energy board members at their semiannual meeting last week said the federal government will not feel compelled to protect national oil production unless there is a full-blown energy crisis.

"Forty states in the U.S. are helped by lower energy prices. Ten states are hurt by lower energy prices. Any legitimate consensus that you can develop in the United States has to address the needs of those 40 states, because they have the votes," said Stephen P.A. Brown, senior economist at the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

"The 10 states that are energy-producing states don't have votes. It's that simple."

"For this industry to wait for help from Washington is like leaving the porch light on for Jim 'y Hoffa,'" said Tom Cruihkshank president and chief executive officer of Halliburton Co. "It's just not going to happen."

Oil show opens this week

The Permian Basin Oil Show will play host to an optimistic oil industry October 19-22 in Odessa, Texas, at the Ector County Coliseum Complex and indications are it will be the largest inland oil show on record.

The number of inland energy-related companies on hand to display the latest in equipment, services, and technology has topped the 600 mark.

Manufacturers, supply and service companies from some 50 Texas cities and more than two dozen other states will be on hand for the four days of the show. All major companies dealing with the inland petroleum industry will be represented.

The Permian Basin Oil Show has always been known as "The Working Man's Oil Show" and it will continue to carry that theme this year. The Odessa Oil Show is one where top officials from all major companies rub elbows with the roustabouts, roughnecks, drilling and production crews in a quest for new knowledge and information on the latest in the inland petroleum industry has to offer.

Activities for this year's oil show begin at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18, with the staging of the oil show parade. The parade begins at the Odessa College Campus at 23rd and Andrews Highway, proceeding north to the Coliseum Complex at 42nd and the Andrews Highway.

Highlight of the parade will be the appearance of Jessica McClure, who will serve as the Princess of the Permian Basin Oil Show.

The parade will also feature some 15 or 20 high school and junior high bands from Odessa and Midland and other cities in West Texas.

The Oil Show's Exhibitors and Press Party at the Holiday Inn Centre will be staged from 7-9 p.m. with admission by invitation only.

Opening ceremonies for the Permian Basin Oil Show will take place at the main gates of the show grounds at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, the first day of the show. The ribbon will be cut at 10 a.m. Wednesday to officially open the Oil Show to oil-related personnel.

The show grounds at the Ector County Coliseum Complex will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 19-20, and only those people who are actively engaged in some way with the oil industry will be admitted to the grounds. Wives, children and the general public will be admitted to the grounds on Friday and Saturday. The hours on Friday are 1-6 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. There is no admission charge to visitors of the Permian Basin Oil Show.

A delegation is expected from China which is also an exhibitor in this year's show. Another delegation is coming from South Australia and Canada. And as always, there will be visitors from virtually every country in Europe.

Deficit

spending." Dukakis says tax increases would be only "a last resort" but that "no serious candidate can rule out the possibility of new taxes." His first resort, he says, would be tougher tax enforcement.

Dukakis knows that fellow Democrat Walter Mondale helped doom his 1984 campaign against Reagan by declaring that higher taxes were inevitable. So Dukakis talks of raising tens of billions of dollars through a one-time tax amnesty and tougher enforcement.

"This is not a pie-in-the-sky formula," says Dukakis, who estimates that $110 billion in taxes go uncollected each year.

Tom Herman, a senior Dukakis campaign adviser, said Dukakis hopes to net $10 billion from tax cheats in the first year and $30 billion annually by 1993.

"There are only four ways to reduce the federal budget deficit: cut spending, increase revenue, lower interest rates and improve economic performance. We must do all four," says the Democratic nominee.

Dukakis has called for spending cuts on Star Wars, the space-based missile defense system, and some weapons programs. He promises to make "tough choices" elsewhere in the budget, including unspecified savings on agriculture, welfare and health care.

He also would reduce development of a supersonic space plane and pare support for nuclear fission and fusion research. He rules out Social Security cuts.

Alice Rivlin, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution and former director of the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office, said both candidates have been vague about what they would do about the deficit.

"Neither has put out any kind of a solid plan to bring the deficit down," she said. "The reason for that is there really isn't a good plan which can avoid an increase in taxes. Nobody wants to dramatize that fact."

Lawrence Chimerine, chairman and chief economist of the WEFA Group, said Bush would aggravate the deficit with a series of tax cuts or credits he has promised, from lower taxes on capital gains to a $1,000 "toddler tax credit" for poor families.

Dukakis might find some savings in military and domestic spending and bring in more revenues by bolstering the Internal Revenue Service, "but we're talking very small numbers," Chimerine said.

Both candidates are counting on lower interest rates to help reduce the deficit, but that is not necessarily within the president's power to deliver.

debate scheduled for Thursday in the Pauley Pavilion on the University of California at Los Angeles campus.

The date had depended on the length of the American League baseball playoffs, but that series ended Sunday when the Oakland A's completed a sweep of the Boston Red Sox.

If, however, rainouts extend the National League series, the debate date could change, Dukakis spokesman Mark Gearan said Sunday.

The Bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates, which assumed sponsorship of the debate after the League of Women Voters withdrew, said Friday that the confrontation would follow the format of the candidates' first meeting in which Bush and Dukakis responded to questions from a panel of four reporters.

After days of conferring with their advisers, the two candidates are expected to be ready with their rhetorical salvos — unlike the comments Bush made in a meeting last summer with an Australian official.

Newsweek magazine reported Sunday that when Prime Minister Bob Hawke voiced concern that Dukakis might pull back U.S. forces in the Pacific, the vice president sought to reassure the Australian leader.

"If Dukakis wins, you've nothing to worry about," Bush told Hawke. "He's a solid fellow. He'll do all right by you."

Western region shows increase in crime rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — People living in the West were the most likely to have been crime victims last year while residents of the Northeast were the least likely to have been victimized, the government says.

Nationally, crime levels in the United States rose 1.8 percent in 1987, ending a five-year decline, the Bureau of Justice Statistics reported Sunday.

The number of criminal victimizations rose some 613,000 in 1987 to more than 34.7 million, with increases compared to 1986 in the amount of both personal and household crime.

Even with the increase over 1986, there were 16 percent fewer crimes last year than in 1981, the peak year for crime with 41.5 million criminal victimizations.

said Joseph Bessette, the bureau's acting director.

In 1986, the number of crimes hit the lowest level in the 15-year history of the government's national crime survey, 34.1 million.

The numbers of personal crimes per 1,000 people last year were 125 in the West, 101 in the Midwest, 91 in the South and 71 in the Northeast. The household crime figures per 1,000 residents were 223 in the West, 166 in the Midwest, 179 in the South and 116 in the Northeast.

The West was the only region to show an increase in the personal crime rate last year compared to 1986, up 8.6 percent. In the South the rate fell by 4.8 percent, while the Northeast and Midwest showed no significant change.

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from across the nation:

Good news from the Soviets

On Friday, it was announced that (Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Mikhail) Gorbachev would succeed retiring Old Guardsman Andrei Gromyko as president.

There were other important changes in the leadership, including the KGB. All were calculated to advance Gorbachev loyalists.

Perhaps more important, Gorbachev announced that the Supreme Soviet, the nation's nominal parliament, would assume a greater role in everyday management of the country.

The Soviets (government councils) also were promised more power, obviously at the expense of the central Communist Party apparatus.

None of this means that the Soviet Union is turning democratic in the Western definition of that word.

But it does mean that Gorbachev plans to deal with the Soviet Union's severe internal divisions with some accommodation and negotiation.

The same is almost certainly true of the Soviet Union's foreign policy.

That's good news.

Shuttle and SDI returns to earth

There were two recent developments in the United States that bode well for the future of man in space: the successful launch of a space shuttle, and the official recognition that Star Wars, the Strategic Defense Initiative, is going to proceed at a much lower level once President Reagan leaves office.

The space shuttle program was grounded for 32 months after Challenger blew apart in early 1986. When the shock of the explosion eased, the nation discovered it had put too many space eggs in the shuttle basket.

In addition, the announcement that Air Force Lt. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, commander of the SDI program for the past five years, was resigning his post was a milestone in recognizing reality.

For whether Vice President George Bush or Gov. Michael Dukakis wins the presidency, the Star Wars program is phasing down, although not out. The only question is, how deeply to cut.

The U.S. is back in space. But, concerning the idea that a quick technological fix can protect the nation against nuclear war, it is returning to Earth.

The Rapid City (S.D.) Journal

Space program back in business

The flawless landing of the shuttle Discovery at Edwards Air Force Base puts the United States' space program back in business.

After 2½ years of agonizing reappraisal following the Challenger explosion, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration showed the world through the flight of Discovery that it has regained its directions.

There is much lost time to be recovered in the space program, and many decisions to be made.

But this painful experience has restored NASA's caution without destroying its will to go on, thereby strengthening it for the tasks ahead.

Welfare law: Hold the applause

Despite rave reviews for the new federal welfare law from supporters in Congress, the poor should not raise their hopes too high.

The lukewarm endorsement of Rep. Jim Slattery, D-Kan., probably is an accurate appraisal.

Slattery called the long-awaited legislation "strictly marginal." "It's a coin flip as to whether it will work," he said. "On a marginal basis, I support this bill. Those who vote against it may have a better reason than I."

During the welfare debate, there was a lot of high-minded speechifying in Congress about "raising families out of the mire of poverty" and such.

But political actions, as always, spoke louder than political talk. Congress will raise $375 million of its new $3.3 billion welfare bill by taking away from working parents of children 12-14 an income tax deduction for child care.

And, while telling welfare mothers they must get jobs to support their families, it refused to raise the minimum wage above $3.35 an hour.

The pollsters made them do it

Why did Mike Dukakis put on a helmet, climb into a tank and ride around in it while the cameras clicked? For the same reason George Bush toured a flag factory.

Pollsters told them to.

Hey, are those guys trying to manipulate us? Sure. Blatantly. Whenever the winds of public opinion shift, the pollsters detect the change almost instantly and order a new course. That keeps the campaigns custom tailored to the ever-shifting national consensus.

What do the candidates really think about the issues? Who knows.

But if you want to know what they'll say they think tomorrow about some piece of campaign business, large or small, just ask yourself how you feel about it today.

Hats off to the peacekeepers

It has been a remarkable year for peace and the United Nations. We have witnessed considerable progress in the Persian Gulf, Angola, Cambodia and elsewhere — in large part because of U.N. efforts.

But as U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar reminds us, "The recent achievements of the United Nations have neither been sudden nor fortuitous but are the hard-won results of persistence and dedication over many years, epitomized by the peacekeeping activities of the organization."

And so it is most fitting that this year's Nobel Peace Prize has been awarded to U.N. peacekeeping forces. It is, as Perez de Cuellar so eloquently put it, a tribute to "idealism, valor and sacrifice."

Recognition is long overdue for the 500,000 troops from 58 countries, including 800 killed in the line of duty, who have helped keep peace and ease tensions in world hot spots since 1948.

For 40 years, the world has owed them a debt of gratitude.

The good ol' boy who wasn't

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

It was something like 10 years ago when I drove up to Billy Carter's service station in Plains, Ga., parked my car, and went inside to see what all the commotion was about.

The nation's press had discovered Billy and his service station, as it covered Billy's older brother's presidency.

Even Time magazine mentioned it. There were tales of beer-swilling, lie-telling, and knee-slapping, and I've been intrigued by that sort of thing since my youthful days at Lucille's in Grantville, Ga., where the beer was always cold and the men talked of women and war and why in hell they were still trying to make a living out of a few acres of Georgia red clay.

A fellow named Leon was behind the bar cracking open the cold ones at Billy's.

A regular walked in, sat two down from me and said to Leon, "Last time I saw you, we was both drunk."

"Believe we were," said Leon.

"We used to go in some bad places," the customer continued. "Them places we went into had blood on the ceiling. I don't mind a place where there's blood on the floor, but when it's on the ceiling, that sort of worries me."

An hour passed before Billy walked in. He was shorter than I had imagined, but he had that distinctive Carter possum-eating grin.

I was surprised he didn't have a beer in his hand. Time or somebody said he always had a beer in his hand.

Billy held a cup. I managed a peek inside. The liquid was clear.

There were tourists in the station. They came to see and to talk with Billy.

"Jimmy is making $200,000 a year runnin' the country," somebody said. "And Billy is making $500,000 a year runnin' his mouth."

Billy Carter played the fool for the four years his brother was president of the United States.

If he hadn't done it, somebody else would have. The national press, dealing with a Deep South president, had to find a redneck for balance.

Yeah, one of those Southerners got himself elected president, but there's still a lot of those drooling. Jethro Bodines down in the peanut patches.

But to his lasting credit, when Jimmy lost and came home, Billy knew the party was over for him as well and he rearranged his life to fit such a scenario.

He quit drinking. He gave his love and devotion to his wife and family. And a man got up at Billy's funeral in Plains and said, "Billy wasn't a Good Ol' Boy, after all."

"Billy wasn't always good, he didn't live to be old, and God knows, he wasn't a boy."

He'll be missed by many, this charming Billy.

A few kind words for Quayle

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The debate absolutely disposed of the question. Can Dan Quayle speak and think in public?

The moat built around him by the Bush people during the past two months was largely responsible for giving out the impression that he was a basket case of illiteracy, and one or two comments caught from him during that period did much to excite suspicion that that was the case. But for 90 minutes he spoke well, trenchantly, and with a mature sense of priorities.

Oh, he did the irritating things — if he reminds us one more time that he wrote the Joint Training Partnership Act, he will succeed in giving the impression that he believes the American people are incapable of remembering the Fourth of July.

Obviously some of the rolling sentences he uttered, as with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, were prepared and memorized. So? Charles de Gaulle memorized not only the answers he gave at press conferences, but required the questioners to memorize the questions he gave them to ask him. (I knew Charles de Gaulle, visers and seek their counsel, etc., etc.

It was a very silly question, but not so silly as to prevent Tom Brokaw from asking it yet again, demanding explicit answers. I rather wish Mr. Quayle had treated the question with the contempt it deserved. He might have said, "If I become president, the first thing I will do is repeal poverty, outlaw war and declare a minimum wage of $25 per hour." And no smiling.

That would have taken care of that question, all right — except, of course, you can't engage in counterliteration or even fondle a little sarcasm in these engagements because to do so runs the danger of giving the impression that you laughed in church. Raymond Moley explained the unexpected upset of Adlai Stevenson by Estes Kefauver in Minnesota in the 1956 primary by remarking simply, "Did you ever try to tell a joke in Minneapolis?"

So Senator Quayle pretty much mumbled the same old business once again about taking counsel from the advisers to the former president, etc. He could have said that no one knew precisely what Theodore Roosevelt would do, probably not even Teddy himself, when suddenly he found himself president. Harry Truman didn't even know the atom bomb existed when he became president, and the first executive order he gave was to have matchboxes made labeled, "Stolen from President Harry Truman at the White House."

On the right

Dan, You are not Charles de Gaulle.)

There were two extra-political points of special interest. The first was the dumbfounding question put to him, not once but twice: What would you do if you found yourself president of the United States?

Now, to be asked a question like that in public is to require that one rehearse the appropriate pieties. One needs to go through the business about how tragic it was that the duly elected president has vanished from the scene (the questioner preferred to say that the president was "incapacitated," rather than that he died or was killed — gentility from the working press), and then a little mood-setting, so we pray for help from Providence, for ourselves and for our country — and then what?

The best Dan Quayle could do was to say that he would call in his predecessor's Cabinet and ad-

Abortion issue on Michigan ballot

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — While anti-abortion activists assaulted clinics during last week's "siege of Atlanta," a lower-key though no less intense battle raged in Michigan over a ballot measure aimed at outlawing tax-financed abortions for the poor.

Food supplements benefitting marketing or consumers?

By WILLIAM S. BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT — Food supplements, which began as public health measures, have escalated into an array of additives that some experts say do more to satisfy marketing than nutritional needs.

Especially in the battle for the breakfast table — Americans spend $5 billion a year on cereal — vitamins and minerals have joined the cereal maker's arsenal of eye-catching shapes, crisp sounds and sugar coating.

Sometimes there is a risk of giving customers too much of a good thing, illustrated by Kellogg Co.'s recall in August of 29,000 boxes of Frosted Mini-Wheats Biscuits cereal with too much Vitamin A. The excess was harmless, but could cause a burning sensation in the mouth and an "off taste."

The benefit or harm of additives is difficult to determine just because they are so prevalent, said Dr. Mark Hegsted, a nutrition professor at Harvard University School of Public Health. Studies require control groups, and "We don't have populations that eat the same things and don't have them."

Food producers like Kellogg say consumers look for the supplemented foods because of lifestyle changes. Company spokeswoman Marie T. Kittas referred to a brochure saying cereals are fortified to make up for skimpy, on-the-run breakfasts, and to maintain adequate nutrition on low-calorie diets.

Some dispute the industry claims. The New York attorney general obtained an Aug. 4 agreement from Kellogg to stop advertising in that state that B vitamins in Rice Krispies give consumers more energy. Studies indicate the American diet has enough B vitamins, and most fatigue sufferers do not have vitamin deficiencies, the state said.

On the other hand, no harm has been proven from additives, which are sprayed on or dissolved into batters.

"In today's world, most vitamins are chemically synthesized. But they are identical to the compounds found in nature," said Allan L. Forbes, director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's Nutrition and Food Science Division. "There is no difference whatsoever."

The FDA is preparing to impose health-claim regulations, but those deal with prevention of degenerative ailments such as cancer or heart disease, said

Forbes. Vitamin and mineral claims usually relate to deficiency diseases.

Vitamin or mineral deficiencies can be found in parts of the population, like women and teen-age girls who diet excessively, and among poor people, but, "If you look at the whole U.S. population it's hard to find a deficiency," said University of Texas nutrition professor Sanford Miller, a former FDA official and an industry consultant.

"There is no sense adding vitamins for which there is no deficiency," said Michael Jacobson of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, which raised the Rice Krispies issue.

Supplements first were added at public health officials' urging, as an inexpensive and effective way to deal with specific problems, Jacobson said. The federal Food and Nutrition Board endorsed supplementing wheat flour in the early 1940s to replace thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and iron lost in milling.

Depression-era vagrants suffered pellagra due to niacin deficiencies and beri beri due to thiamin deficiencies. The supplements worked. "You don't see pellagra in this country today. You don't see beri beri," Miller said.

Velma Lloyd birthday honoree

Velma Lloyd was honored with a dinner Saturday on the occasion of her 86th birthday. The dinner was held in the home of her sister, Mrs. Nolan Stanley, 1730 Purdue.

There were 37 in attendance and included Mrs. Lloyd's children, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lloyd, Big Spring; Mr. and Mrs. Maxon Lloyd, Dallas; two of her three grandchildren were present, Roger Lloyd, Big Spring, and Mrs. Keith (Donna) Sellars, Dallas; two of her six great-grandchildren. Out of town guests include four of her six brothers: Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Graves, Brownfield; Mr. and Mrs. Barron Graves, Slaton; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Graves, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Don Graves Killen and Mr. and Mrs. James Graves, Big Spring.

Mrs. Lloyd moved to the Luther Community in October 1948 and worked in the Luther School System until she purchased the Luther Store and Post Office in 1949. She retired from the Postal

AARP learns about the YMCA

The American Association of Retired Persons met at Kentwood Older Adult Center for the regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Lynn Smith gave a current legislative report on the city, county, state and nation.

Linda Perez, assistant gymnastic director of the YMCA was the guest speaker. She said the YMCA wanted everyone in the community to use the facilities, regardless of age, and mentioned several services offered to senior citizens. The fitness center is available to men and women, 18 and older, for an additional fee. The sauna, whirlpool and steam room are available only to men, and a sauna and whirlpool for women.

The YMCA has a "Twinges in the Hinges" arthritis aquatic program. Arthritis inhibits the quality of life for over 7.3 million people. It is America's no. 1 crippling disease and costs billions of dollars in medical care and lost wages, she said.

Perez stressed the benefits of exercise to avoid loss of joint mobility, muscle strength and body stamina.

Games and lunch followed the meeting.

Desk and Derrick hears report

The Desk and Derrick Club met recently at the Golden Corral, with 12 people attending. The guest speaker was Mrs. Myra Robinson of Robinson Drilling. Mrs. Robinson's talk was on the past, present and future of the oil and drilling business. She stated that most of the money made today is by the major oil companies for they can buy foreign oil cheaper than it can be produced in the United States.

The oil drilling business has really changed, she said. While it formerly took 3 or 4 days to move a rig to a new location and rig up, normally it can now be done in a day. For example, laying water lines was slow and tedious, with each section needing to be linked; now water lines are plastic and they can be rolled from a reel. She also said it is difficult to hire experienced hands, since most of the roughnecks have left the Permian Basin or have steady jobs and they won't come back and work on a rig without knowing whether the job will last or until another lease becomes available.

Drinking water — unsafe at any tap?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: To ensure that the drinking water of all Americans would be free of chemicals known to cause cancer, birth defects and nervous disorders, The Safe Drinking Water Act was passed in 1974.

So what happened? Nothing. The problem was ignored.

Today, only 50 water systems out of nearly 60,000 in our country use the activated carbon filter system that removes toxic chemicals from our drinking water. (Western Europe is way ahead of us in this regard.)

I have put the facts into a newsletter, telling citizens how to evaluate their drinking water and what to do if their water does not meet government standards.

The newsletter contains information such as: Where does drinking water come from, and how does it become contaminated? How is water made safe to drink? What can you do about contamination at the source? Bottled water — do you need it?

Abby, your column is powerful. Will you please use it to get this very important message to the public? I am enclosing a copy of the newsletter for your perusal. — RALPH NADER

DEAR RALPH: I'll try. I read your newsletter. It's excellent. Readers: For a copy of Ralph Nader's Drinking Water Newsletter, write to: P.O. Box 19367, Washington, D.C. 20036. Please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope (25 cents) and a check or money order for $1 to cover the cost of printing and mailing. This is a non-profit venture.

DEAR ABBY: To remind someone to buy you a gift is ridiculous. Remember, "A gift unfreely given is no gift at all."

Women, give your husbands the freedom not to buy a gift on all those special days. That in itself is a wonderful gift, which will come back to you in love and appreciation and generosity.

Abby, have you heard, "A woman who is not interested in diamonds is herself a gem"? Sign me — WISE WICHITA WOMAN

DEAR W.W. WOMAN: No, but I have read: "Who can find a vir-tuous woman? For her price is far above rubies." (Proverbs 31:10)

A lack of interest in diamonds makes not a woman a "gem." Neither does an interest in diamonds diminish a woman's worth.

DEAR ABBY: You were asked, "Why do so many public speakers (who should know better) insist on speaking longer than the time they are allotted?"

I was reminded of an incident that took place 20 years ago.

A local minister who had been invited to be the guest speaker at our Rotary Club asked the club president, Robert Proctor, how long he should speak.

Mr. Proctor replied: "You may speak as long as you wish, but everybody leaves here in 40 minutes." — SID ROSEN, BRANDON, VT.

Report: Alcohol is a women's issue

WASHINGTON — Women alcoholics are more likely than men to deny their drinking problems because of a feeling of responsibility for their children and fear of the social stigma connected with alcoholism, a new survey has found.

Consequently, women alcoholics are less inclined than their male counterparts to seek treatment, particularly with the prevalence of programs oriented toward men, according to the survey sponsored by the Association of Junior Leagues and the National Council on Alcoholism.

The survey's findings are important, women scientists said, because researchers in the past decade have discovered that alcohol has a different biological effect on women — an indication women may be more vulnerable to alcoholism.

"All drunk-driving charts are based on men," said Dr. Sheila B. Blume, a board member of the National Council on Alcoholism and director of an alcohol and drug dependency clinic at a New York hospital.

"The data on women and alcohol has been thrown out because it is so different from men, so we don't have a lot of information," said Blume. "In research, women are less represented. We are way behind."

In the mid 1970s, scientists for the first time included women in a study to specifically find out the effects of alcohol on females, Blume said. All of the women had higher blood alcohol levels than the men in the study after consuming the same dose of alcohol per body weight, Blume said.

Scientists believe the reason is because women have less body water than men. Alcohol is dissolved in the body's water before being absorbed into the bloodstream.

"Despite attempts to raise awareness, we're still seeing women under-represented in treatment," said Sharon Carlson Wilsnack, a professor in the neuroscience department of the University of North Dakota. Wilsnack analyzed the results of the "Women to Women" survey conducted in 39 cities nationwide.

A's Oakland Boston

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Oakland Athletics won the American League pennant Sunday, defeating the Boston Red Sox, 4-3, in the fourth game of the best-of-seven AL 10th home win in a row for the team odds at the start of the Home-run lead-off put the A's ahead 2-1. The Big Spring Steers dropped their fourth consecutive football game with a 31-0 blanking by Sweetwater Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

Oilers win ugly, 7-6

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Jerry Glanville said the game was not beautiful. Oiler defensive end Ray Childress even joined several players in calling it ugly. But Houston's 7-6 defeat of Kansas City Sunday was a form of justice for Oiler third string quarterback Brent Pease.

broken thumb. Pease's first seven passes were incomplete and two were intercepted by Lloyd Burruss and Jayce Pearson. He later yielded a third interception to Deron Cherry, the league leader with five thefts. "I assess my performance today as very low, a C-minus or D-plus," Pease said. "I made some good reads but I threw the ball badly. I need a week of work with the first team."

The Oilers had to overcome their own mistakes to improve their record to 4-2. They committed 12 penalties, two of which wiped out touchdowns, for 121 yards. "It was ugly if you look at the overall game but it was great from a defensive standpoint," said Childress, who had 2 1/2 of Houston's five sacks. "A 7-6 game isn't going to excite many offense-minded people. But we played well and pressured (Steve) DeBerg."

Redskins scalp Cowboys, 35-17

IRVING (AP) — Reports of the early demise of the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins were greatly exaggerated, the Dallas Cowboys learned. Washington rediscovered its old winning turnover formula Sunday to stay alive in the NFC East with a 35-17 defeat of the Cowboys. The win evened the Redskins' record at 3-3. Washington cashed three Dallas turnovers into touchdowns as Mark Rypien won his first game as starting quarterback. He threw three touchdown passes and ran for another score. Kelvin Bryant also made a big push for the starting tailback job with three touchdowns, two on pass receptions, and 118 yards rushing on 23 carries. Washington came into the game with a minus eight turnovers, near the bottom in the NFL. The Redskins intercepted four passes and recovered a fumble as Dallas plunged to the cellar of the NFC East with a 2-4 ledger. Dallas starting quarterback Steve Pelluer was intercepted three times and Washington showed no favoritism when he was replaced, picking off one of Danny White's tosses. Rypien had lost two games as the starter since Doug Williams was injured. "Believe me this will do worlds for my confidence," Rypien said. "I thought we should have won the other two games. After a while you begin to wonder if you are going to get one. "We still have a ways to go before we can think about getting back to the Super Bowl but this definitely helps." Bryant said the Redskins are back. "It will probably be a tight race to the very end but now, at least, we're back in it," he said. "We have a good shot now. No matter what it took, we needed to win this one."

Gibbs said, "It was nice to get all those turnovers. We got the big plays when we needed them." "Our defense was the key, our turnover ratio," Rypien said. "When the defense gave it to us we produced." Interceptions by Monty Coleman and Alvin Walton led to touchdowns and another score was produced by Terry Orr's fumble recovery. Landry said Pelluer was still his starting quarterback. "Steve will be our starter next week against the Bears," Landry said. "We just needed to get White some work." Rypien threw touchdown passes of 13 yards to Gary

Baldwin moves record to 3-0

Las Vegas, Nev. — Former Big Spring boxer Juan Baldwin won his third professional fight Saturday night by knocking out Richard O'Neal in the second round. It was Baldwin's third knockout in as many bouts. O'Neal took a 10-2 mark into the featherweight battle. Baldwin, who now resides in Odessa, will have his next bout Thursday at Caesar's Place in Lake Tahoe, Nev. This will be a six round bout, televised by the USA network. After that, Baldwin's next bout will be Nov. 19 in Las Vegas.

Tyson will not contest divorce

CLEVELAND (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson, stung by divorce proceedings by actress Robin Givens, prayed with a preacher who gave him a Bible and said he had been told, "Mike needs your help." "Mike, you have a way of knocking men down," the Rev. Henry J. Payden of Holy Trinity Baptist Church told the champion, who was in the congregation of 1,500 Sunday along with his promoter, Don King. "Perhaps it was maybe a blessing in disguise," he said Saturday at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport. "I'm going to be around a couple of days. I'm not training, I'm here to see George (Forbes)," said Tyson, who plans to begin training soon for his December bout with Frank Bruno. Tyson extended his professional record to 31-0 on June 27 when he knocked out Michael Spinks after 91 seconds in his latest title defense. He said he hasn't decided whether to travel to London for the Dec. 17 fight against Bruno or try to have the fight moved to the United States. "I don't know whether it's going to be here or there," he said. Asked whether he planned to reconcile with Givens, Tyson said, "Never." He said he did not plan to contest the divorce suit filed in Los Angeles on Friday by his wife.

Falcons cornerback dies at 29

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Atlanta Falcons cornerback David Croudip died early today after suffering seizures at his home, Gwinnett County police said. He was 29. The cause of death was not immediately determined, said police Detective Larry Walton. Walton said the crew of an ambulance summoned by Croudip's wife found him suffering seizures. His heart failed while he was being taken to Joan Glancy Hospital, where efforts to revive him failed, Walton said. Croudip was pronounced dead about 3:30 a.m., the detective said. Falcons coach Marion Campbell said he had been informed of Croudip's death but had no details. Campbell called Croudip a "great competitor." Croudip, a Falcon since 1985, was a reserve cornerback and a leader on special teams.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1988
HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: There will be several major decisions that only you can make. Do not abdicate this responsibility. Your self-confidence grows along with your bankroll. Your social life accelerates. Community service and politics attract your interest. Take the plunge! Paying close attention to detail, especially in March, can turn things around for you financially. Your ability to keep a secret will be instrumental in advancing your cause on many fronts. Marriage and job gates swing open.
CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: journalist Joseph Alsop, choreographer Jerome Robbins, cosmetics king Charles Revson, Eleanor Roosevelt, Air Force Gen. Nathan Twining, singer Dottie West.
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do everything you can to make an agreement work and you will benefit financially. Urge everyone you come into contact with today to cooperate. Pursue what seems to be a budding romance.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A whole new world is about to open to you. Your contacts and special talents are responsible. At times today you will be happy for no particular reason. Extra cash is available.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your attitude toward a family member could be wrong. Look at all your options before making a job decision. You are in the driver's seat when it comes to making a financial deal.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your intuition helps make you a good money manager. Your investments do better than most. Your devotion to your family is repaid by their support. A love relationship grows stronger and stronger.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You finish ahead of schedule. Pitch in and help an associate. The IOUs you earn now will help propel your career later on. Romance is definitely in the air. Enjoy a new relationship.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Act on those long-dreamed-about plans. Keeping others informed of your intentions prevents confusion. Hard work moves you nearer to your goals. You need to let someone know how much you care.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Mixed signals from an employer cause confusion. Take steps to straighten out the situation. A stock market tip from a friend bears careful investigation. A friendship turns into true love.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Leave nothing to luck in your career or financial dealings. Keep yourself on course when others try to sidetrack you. An invitation could provide a pleasant diversion tonight. Return home early.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Letting problems slide sounds tempting but could bring real problems later on. Do not assume people will do what they promise. Check up on them once in a while. Romance builds.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good day to launch new plans or make a fresh start. Mate is your strongest ally. Listen when others give you financial advice. A friend makes a startling revelation. Do not overreact!
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Trust your best hunches when dealing with finances and friends. Take decisive action on a flash of inspiration. Admitting past mistakes will put a relationship back on track. Speak for the heart.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Paying close attention to details will pay off in the near future. Influential people appreciate your diligence and patience. Praise is forthcoming but so are more tangible rewards. A raise or promotion is likely.
