Social security benefits jump 4%

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The nation's 38.4 million Social Security recipients will get a 4.0 percent benefit increase in January, the second highest boost in 6 1/2 years, the government said today.

The Social Security Administration said the increase promises an extra $21 a month for the average retired worker, who now gets $516 a month from the huge pension and disability insurance program.

It said the maximum monthly benefit for a worker retiring in 1988 at age 65 will rise $61, from $838 to $899.

For the elderly and disabled, the Social Security increase will be partially offset by an extra $7.10 a month in Medicare premiums, which will rise to $31.90 starting in January. They are deducted directly from the benefits.

The exact size of the increase became official today when the Labor Department announced the change in the Consumer Price Index for September.

The increase for 1988 was 4.2 percent, which had been the biggest advance since a 7.4 percent rise in 1982, when higher inflation rates translated into bigger cost-of-living increases.

Since 1975, Social Security benefits have risen automatically each year with the CPI with the exception of six months in 1983 that were skipped to help bail the system out of a crisis.

The increase for 1988 was 4.2 percent, which had been the biggest advance since a 7.4 percent rise in 1982, back when higher inflation rates translated into bigger cost-of-living increases.

The change in Social Security benefits is calculated by taking increases in the CPI for urban wage earners and clerical workers for the July-September period, compared to the same period in the previous year.

More than 4 million recipients of Supplemental Security Income, a welfare program for the aged, blind or disabled, will also get a 4.0 percent increase.

The agency gave the following examples of how the 4.0 percent increase will affect average monthly benefits:

- All retired workers, up $21, from $516 to $537.
- Aged couple, both getting benefits, up $38, from $883 to $921.
- Widowed mother and two children, up $42, from $1,070 to $1,112.
- Disabled worker, spouse and children, up $41, from $902 to $943.
- All disabled workers, up $20, from $509 to $529.

The maximum federal SSI payment will rise by $14, from $354 to $368, for an individual, and by $21, from $532 to $553, for a poor couple.

The Social Security Administration also announced today that the maximum amount of wages subject to the payroll tax will climb from the current $45,000 to $48,000 in 1989.

That means that the maximum tax on employees will jump by $225.30 to $3,604.80 for workers earning over $48,000 annually. Employers pay the same amount each worker pays.

This change affects about 7 percent of the 130 million workers covered by Social Security. The wage base, the amount subject to the tax, has gone up every year since 1971.

However, the payroll tax rate, which has been increased 20 times since Social Security began in 1937, will remain unchanged at 7.51 percent. But it will rise to 7.65 percent

County attorney: Cruelty charge is being pursued

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

Three and one half months after an alleged cruelty to an animal incident was reported — and subsequently investigated by the Big Spring Police Department — Howard County Attorney Harvey Hooser Jr. said "we are going to pursue it."

However, Hooser would not specify how the case is being pursued.

"We are looking at it (allegations) in a different light. An ultimate decision (on whether to prosecute) has not yet been made," he said.

Jimmy Sundy, 3603 Hamilton St., was accused by a next-door neighbor, Anita Gonzalez, her son, Zynoe, 8, and a friend, C.J. Horn, 10, of allegedly throwing a cat over his backyard fence causing it to be mauled by two chows he owns.

Gonzalez, 3605 Hamilton St., reported the alleged mauling on Aug. 4 — the day the incident allegedly occurred.

Gonzalez said on that day her son and Horn told her that Sundy asked the boys to whom the cat belonged. The boys told Sundy they didn't know and then he picked up the cat by the neck and threw it into his back yard occupied by the two chows.

Gonzalez has previously said she heard several loud noises that prompted her to go out and investigate. She stated she witnessed Sundy pick up the animal and place it in a paper sack.

She has also stated that she observed Sundy dump the sack containing the animal in a dumpster at the Park Hill Terrace Apartments, 800 Marcy Drive.

The woman said today she has given a statement to police about the alleged incident.

Hooser said the county attorney's office has a "plan" to deal with the case, although he said he didn't want specifics "in the newspaper right now."

Asked if there is a reason for the length of time it has taken his office to make a decision on whether to prosecute, Hooser responded: "There's a reason for everything . . ."

Sundy has previously denied the incident occurred.

The perception by members of the Howard County Humane Society that the county attorney's office is not taking action on reported cruelty to animal incidents has resulted this week in a petition being circulated.

"The Humane Society is circulating a petition requesting the county attorney to take action against Mr. Sundy. We have

Girl's death deepens founder's mystery

By SALLY CARPENTER HALE
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. — Fame followed Eldridge Broussard Jr. out of Watts and back, from basketball stardom to his once-praised program to lift children out of the drugs and poverty of the Los Angeles ghetto.

Now his 8-year-old daughter is dead, allegedly at the hands of staff members of Broussard's ultra-disciplinary program, and 55 other children are in protective custody.

Oregon authorities say the children, who were kept in a sparsely furnished four-bedroom farmhouse, were subjected to ritualistic beatings of up to 800 strokes with a paddle or electrical cord. The others were forced to watch and keep count, authorities also said.

Yet such is Broussard's popularity that parents have made no attempt to reclaim their children, even though the youngsters were removed from the house a week ago, according to Children's Service Division spokeswoman Alice Galloway.

The parents display "no lack of confidence in Eldridge Broussard," she says. "They trust him implicitly."

Broussard blames the media for his daughter's death and for the downfall of his Ecclesia Athletic Association.

He said negative publicity when Ecclesia arrived in Oregon last year cost his group financial backing and led to suspension of its activities a year ago. As a result, Broussard said, there were fewer staff members, and some were performing duties they weren't qualified for.

The children, mostly from the Watts area of Los Angeles, were kept in the farmhouse near Sandy, about 30 miles southeast of Portland.

On Oct. 14, four staff members took the body of Dayna Broussard to a nearby fire station. She had been beaten and whipped, and died of multiple blunt-force injuries, Medical Examiner Larry Lewman said.

That night, 53 children were taken from the house, where they were sharing sleeping bags on the floor. Investigators said the children, ranging in age from 1 1/2 months to 16 years, had eaten only a tomato apiece that day.

Two other children involved with the group were taken into custody in Los Angeles.

The beatings were an integral part of the group's program to heighten athletic performance, much like harassment used in military training, said Donald Welch, director of the Clackamas County Juvenile Court.

In an appearance on Oprah Winfrey's syndicated television talk show Thursday, Broussard denied that the children were beaten or abused, saying they were only "spanked."

He said standards of discipline in Oregon differ greatly from those in Watts.

"In Watts, parents have seen brutality that would trip the mind of the average American," he said. "The people that are a part of my school, when they see brutal, they see ears coming off, they see giant huge lacerations."

Broussard, 35, was a basketball star at Pacific University in Forest Grove, Ore., and was signed by the Portland Trail Blazers, where he did not make the final cut.

In 1975, he formed Ecclesia at his father's Watts Christian Center in an effort to steer children away from drugs and crime and to motivate them through tough discipline and athletics. Ecclesia's members, about 80 adults and 80 children, renovated a rundown gymnasium and formed a 32-team

Hobby rejects governor's furlough position

AUSTIN (AP) — The flap over inmate furloughs from Texas prisons continued as Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Gov. Bill Clements "should do his homework better" before criticizing a prison furlough program in the home state of Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis.

About 5,000 felons, including 517 convicted of murder or voluntary manslaughter, have been furloughed in Texas since 1987, according to reports.

Clements has denied responsibility for the Texas program and blamed it on the "bureaucracy" within the Texas Department of Corrections.

The program is "under the control and under the jurisdiction of TDC," Clements said. "That's what the legislation says. I don't have any direct control over it. I did not know what was going on. I don't share any responsibility for it," he said.

"It's not an intelligent enough remark to merit an intelligent response," said Hobby on Thursday, in response to Clements' charge that the Texas program was mishandled by the bureaucracy.

Speaking to reporters during a break in the Legislative Budget Board meeting, Hobby described Clements' criticisms of the Massachusetts program as "intellectually dishonest." Clements, co-chair of the state campaign to elect George Bush president, and other Republicans have sharply attacked Dukakis on an incident in which a convicted murderer was allowed a weekend pass from a Massachusetts prison.

The inmate escaped while on furlough and later raped a woman and attacked her fiance. Dukakis has noted most states have prison furlough programs, that the law allowing the inmate on furlough was in place before he took office as governor, and that the law was tightened under his administration.

Hobby said prison furloughs of inmates are common practice throughout the nation.

"It's a fact of our criminal justice system all over the country. It's been a part of our system for many years," Hobby said. Of Clements' charge that the Texas program was mishandled by the bureaucracy, Hobby said, "It's not an intelligent enough remark to merit an intelligent response."

Hobby said that the Republican presidential campaign has misled voters on Dukakis' record on defense, crime and the environment.

"I'm really appalled at the level of dishonesty in the campaign," he said.

Child support program given emergency funds

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Attorney General's office received $4.3 million in emergency funds to beef up child support enforcement, but also came under fire from state lawmakers for the program.

House Speaker Gib Lewis on Thursday told assistant attorney general Darryll Grubbs, who heads the child support program, that the budgetary panel was hesitant to provide the funds, "because of the poor job you have done in the past."

Grubbs admitted there was room for improvement, but he later said the major problem with the program is that it is underfunded.

States leading in enforcing child support payments have more employees and computerized systems, he said. Grubbs said New York has 3,000 employees and a budget of $130 million; whereas Texas has 800 employees and a budget of $28 million.

Texas ranks 32nd in the nation in collecting child support, but is among the best improved over the past five years since the program was put under the attorney general's wing, he said.

The office has been under fire recently for its backlog of cases.

Since 1983, the caseload has increased 48 percent; there are 365,000 cases on file, and 11 percent of those are receiving child support, according to the LBB staff.

Lewis, and state Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, criticized the program, saying it was inefficient in collecting delinquent child support payments.

Schlueter suggested that instead of allocating the funds to the attorney general's office, "Why don't we just cut checks to all those women."

Eventually, however, the Legislative Budget Board unanimously approved moving $4.3 million of unused funds from the Department of Human Services into the child support program.

The board also restricted use of the funds, saying no more than $1 million can be spent until the attorney general hires an outside management firm to conduct an audit covering the past two years of the program.

Lewis complained the state of Michigan nets about $460,000 in delinquent child support per state employee, while in Texas that figure is $133,000.

Governor skeptical of proposed tax reforms

AUSTIN (AP) — Tax reform without a tax increase is something the public should be skeptical about, Gov. Bill Clements says.

"When I have heard the Congress and/or politicians and legislators talk about... we're going to restructure the tax system, we're going to have tax reform, that's gobbledygook for 'I'm getting ready to raise your taxes,'" he said.

For the past 18 months, a Select Committee on Tax Equity has been examining the state's tax system and will make recommendations to the 1989 Legislature for possible changes.

Clements on Thursday told the Texas Association of Taxpayers that he would support restructuring of the tax system "only if it is revenue neutral," meaning it wouldn't increase total taxation.

"I know that there are some legislators that are talking about restructuring the tax base and so forth," the governor said.

"I am very, very cautious. I'm skeptical, that's the best word, when these legislators talk about we're going to have tax reform and we're going redo the tax base on a revenue-neutral basis. Put it in quotes and capitals — I am suspicious. So we'll wait and see."

Clements said the state government's finances are in good shape today.

He said the debt and cash shortfalls of the past have been corrected, and he said he wanted to allow some $650 million in temporary taxes to expire on schedule Aug. 31.

"With the state's fiscal outlook improving daily, I see no need at this time for any new taxes during the next session (of the Legislature). And, in fact, it is my goal to make those temporary taxes that are now on the books just that — temporary," he said.

"I will not agree to renew those taxes, so in that sense you're going to have tax reductions. Our revenue stream is excellent. We are in a state of recovery."

When he campaigned for office in 1986, Clements vowed "no new taxes," but subsequently he was forced to sign the largest tax hike in Texas history — totaling $5.7 billion — into law.

Customs try plant inspections

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Some trucks crossing the U.S.-Mexico border here will skip Customs inspections under an experiment to speed up the flow of commercial traffic.

In a 90-day experiment, trucks from TRICO Technologies Corp. will be inspected at the company's "maquiladora" plant in the border city of Matamoros, Mexico, then sealed to allow them to cross without facing inspection at the Rio Grande, officials said.

The plan hinges on tightened security at the TRICO Manufacturing Co. plant in the border city of Matamoros, Mexico, and the sealing of northbound trucks after inspection at the manufacturing facility.

TRICO has developed a security system acceptable to both countries. U.S. Customs will provide training to plant management and security personnel, according to the agreement.

Trucks also will be similarly sealed by TRICO before crossing back into Mexico.

In the battle against illegal drugs and other contraband, U.S. Customs has a mandate thoroughly to search 35 percent of all loaded trucks that come across the bridge, Macias said.

Mayor target of recall petitions

DALLAS (AP) — Mayor Annette Strauss is the target of recall petitions being circulated by a group upset over the city's contract with managers of the Starplex Amphitheater in Fair Park.

The Committee for Better Government filed papers for the recall election, officials said Wednesday.

Tax protestor Frank Bodzin, committee leader, said he realizes it is impossible to force such an election before May 6, when Mrs. Strauss and other City Council members are up for election.

Bodzin, along with other committee members, are upset by the contract the city negotiated with PACE Entertainment for operation of the $10 million amphitheatre.

"The PACE contract, like many others that have financially raped the Dallas taxpayer, are the result of poor and incompetent management or outright fraud," Bodzin told a press conference.

Bodzin said he holds Mrs. Strauss accountable for the 40-year contract with PACE Entertainment of Houston. He added City Manager Richard Knight and City Attorney Analesie Muncy should be fired for negotiating such a bad deal.

Arrest made for desecration

DALLAS (AP) — A man charged in the desecration of a Jewish temple denied he is a member of a "skinheads" group believed to be responsible for the vandalism, while praising the perpetrators of the act.

Police said Daniel Alvis Wood, 19, is affiliated with Dallas "skinheads." Wood told the Dallas Times Herald he is not a member of any such white supremacist group, although he said he believes in the teachings of Adolph Hitler and Rudolf Hess.

Wood, charged with felony criminal mischief, was released Wednesday night after posting a $1,500 bond.

Wood, who has the words "white power" tattooed on his left forearm, is affiliated with the "skinheads," a small group of white supremacists noted for their ultra-conservative political views and penchant for violence, said police spokesman Ed Spencer.

The desecration occurred at Temple Shalom on Oct. 8. Several similar incidents in the past year prompted police to form a special task force to find the perpetrators.

Official urges heat system inspections

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Railroad Commission chairman James E. "Jim" Nugent called on utility companies to remind homeowners and businesses across the state to check their gas furnaces and heating systems before cold weather reaches the state.

Nugent said Thursday a simple check for leaks could avoid an accident.

There have been five deaths and 12 injuries in 39 natural gas-related explosions, fires or leaks in homes or businesses reported through September, according to the Railroad Commission.

Funds available for agricultural programs, says official

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Rural development programs funded for $5 million and $500,000 respectively are already in place to help Texas improve its agricultural economy, and a $500 million program is in the works, according to state agriculture officials.

Mike Moeller, deputy commissioner of agriculture for the state, sketched the program outlines for a group of county officials and agribusiness representatives Wednesday, noting that one in five Texas jobs is ag-related.

He said a recent survey of agricultural colleges across the state indicated more jobs — with a median starting salary of $18,000 to $25,000 — were available in ag-related fields than there were graduates.

An image problem in agriculture-related industries exists, he noted, since ag-related jobs were ranked 225th to 250th in a poll of all university graduates, but Moeller said he believes that problem can be overcome, and programs like the grant and loan of funds may help.

According to Moeller and JoAnn Noble, of the Texas Department of Agriculture District office in Odessa, the goals of the grant and loan programs are to fund innovations in food and fiber processing or the development of new or alternative crops.

"We're looking for innovative ideas," Moeller stressed, "such as a new idea in food or fiber processing that we can use in Texas, that isn't used anywhere else in the world."

To apply, he said, a person needs only contact the local TDA office. Big Spring and Howard County residents may request an application by contacting Noble at (915) 337-0491 or by writing to the TDA Odessa office, 855 Central Suite 31B, 79761, for either a grant or a low-interest loan.

Half the $250,000 available through the grants program will be awarded during the first disbursement, expected in December, he said.

The $5 million pilot program, called the linked-deposit program, allows qualifying applicants to receive low-interest loans from local banks. The state then deposits funds for the amount of the loan with the bank, which charges the loan receiver 2 percent less than the local market interest rate and pays the state 2 percent less than the normal fee for state-deposited funds.

The program funds loans in the $30,000-$100,000 range for the most part, Moeller said.

Currently, the linked-deposit program has received applications for a variety of projects including production of exotic deer as a source of low-cholesterol red meat, Moeller said. "The more innovative (the idea) the better," he noted. "We're looking for people who have an idea about a new commodity or improving a commodity that already exists, or new ways to control agricultural pests."

Efforts to control such pests as fire ants and boll weevils have been encouraging recently, he noted. In South and Southeast Texas, farmers have created boll weevil control districts under a new state law.

That law allows the department of agriculture to plow up cotton belonging to farmers who refuse to abide by the rules of the weevil control district, and file charges against them, Moeller said.

"It's got some teeth in it," he noted, "and we think it's going to work out real well. We haven't had to plow up anybody's cotton yet."

Fire ant control experiments in commercial turfgrass last winter also have been encouraging, Moeller said, with a chemical proving effective in clearing large areas such as pastures of the pests. The drawback, he noted, is that the federal Environmental Protection Agency has not licensed this agent for use in pastures.

A $500-million program exists but isn't operating yet because it is funded through taxable bond sales, Moeller said, explaining, "right now there's no market for taxable bonds."

"So we're hoping that the next legislature will authorize us to sell some tax-exempt bonds as a blend," he said. "That way we can sell a bond broker some tax-exempt bonds if he buys an amount of taxable bonds."

Such a program would fund projects like a proposed Panhandle ethanol plant to sell byproducts, and other $1-$5 million processing type projects like a shipping facility for agricultural projects.

School fight results in suspension of students

HERALD STAFF REPORT

An altercation between students at Big Spring High School Thursday afternoon is being treated as a normal school disciplinary problem, school officials said today.

High School Principal Kent Bowerman confirmed that an altercation occurred on the school parking lot immediately after classes dismissed Thursday.

Six football players and one member of the band have been suspended from school today and will not be able to participate in extracurricular activities this weekend, said Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction.

The students will be allowed to return to school on Monday, he said.

School officials are still investigating the incident and further suspensions could result, Murphy said.

High school teachers who requested anonymity confirmed that the incident involved members of the football team and band.

"As far as I'm concerned, what happens between school officials and students in disciplinary matters is confidential," Bowerman said.

Band Director Ricky Mitchell said that he did not personally observe the altercation, and therefore could not comment on the incident, but said it would not affect the band's performance at either the homecoming game tonight or district marching contest Saturday in Odessa.

"I'll have no effect on us at all, as far as I know," Mitchell said.

David Thompson, head football coach and athletic director, confirmed today that there will be four changes in the Steers' starting lineup for the game with Pecos tonight, but declined to comment on whether those changes are related to the parking lot incident.

Thompson said it would be inappropriate to comment at this time, but added that he believes the incident will not affect his team's performance.

"We're not going to worry about who's not there," Thompson said. "We're just going to go out there and do our best."

Steer band to compete

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Big Spring High School Steer Marching Band will compete in UIL competition Saturday at 4:15 p.m. in Ratliff Stadium in Odessa.

Two bands will be selected from that competition to perform in the Region B Marching Contest to be held at Ratliff Stadium Oct. 29.

The Steer Band has won both the District Contest and the Region B Contest for the past two years.

The band won Outstanding Band honors in the Class 4-A competition at the 12th Annual Texas Tech Marching Festival held this past Saturday at Jones Stadium in Lubbock.

The Texas Tech festival is a "warm-up" contest held before the UIL competition each year. The festival allows bands to be critiqued by a panel of professional judges and march on artificial turf before the UIL performance. This year's showing marks the second time the Steer band has won the Outstanding Band Award in Class

4-A.

Last year, the Steer Band was selected to represent Region A at the Texas State Marching Contest. In an effort to return to the state contest, the band's staff has chosen "Rock 'n' Roll" as its theme and will feature the following selections: "Love Me With All Your Heart," "Proud Mary," "La Bamba," and a medley featuring "Stand By Me," "Wipeout" and a reprise of "Proud Mary."

The staff is working on more technically challenging drill patterns and routines, said Ricky Mitchell, director, and will also feature more of the "asymmetrical" drill patterns used by today's leading bands and drum corps.

Assisting the band staff will drill design is Victor Mellinger, former Steer Band rifle captain and former rifle and drum major for the Sky Ryders Drum and Bugle Corps of Hutchinson, Kansas.

Suspect charged in two murders is out on bond

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

A Knott man accused of two 1987 capital murders has been released on bond, according to Howard County Sheriff's Department records.

Orlando Aguirre, 19, Knott, was released Thursday — after spending 364 days in Howard County jail — on two $35,000 bonds. He had been arrested Oct. 21, 1987, and charged with capital murder in the deaths of Miguel Villareal Calixto and Norberto Gurrola Hernandez, two Mexican nationals whose burned bodies were found among the debris of a torched farmhouse near Luther Oct. 11, 1987.

Indictments returned by a January grand jury charge Aguirre with intentionally and knowingly causing the deaths of Calixto and Hernandez by shooting them "while committing and attempting to commit the offense of robbery and arson."

Aguirre's attorney, Frank Ginzel of Colorado City, had requested a continuance of Aguirre's trial in March. District Court Judge James Gregg signed the continuance but did not specify in the order when the case would come to trial, and a deputy district clerk said today the trial has not been rescheduled.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said today he had no comment on Aguirre's release.

On Oct. 3, a request for bond reduction in the case — from $100,000 per count to a "minimum acceptable to the state" of $35,000 per count — was approved, according to 118th District Court records.

Accident

Four people suffered minor injuries about 7:45 p.m. Thursday when the Buick Riviera driven by Karla Rangel, 16, 1103 Mesa Drive, failed to stop at a yield sign on the south service road at FM 700 and collided with a pickup driven by Ernest Hufton Kerr, 22, Coahoma, according to police reports. Rangel was cited by police for failure to yield right-of-way at yield sign and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

reported animal cruelty cases in the past and they have been ignored," said Betty Cox, Humane Society president.

"We feel that any animal cruelty is ugly and unpleasant not only for animals, but for the people who see it happen."

"The petition also asks that 'primitive damages' be assessed to prevent further like actions."

Asked if he was aware of, or had a reaction to the petition, Hooser responded: "I haven't said anything. I haven't seen, haven't heard about it," until a newspaper reporter told him of it.

The petition is a result of community interest in the status of the alleged incident involving Sundry and "no response" from the Howard County Attorney's office about the case, a Humane Society spokesman said.

Cruelty to animal charges can be filed against a person who knowingly tortures, injures or kills an animal without the owner's permission; or causes animals to fight resulting in injury or death, explained Hardy Wilkerson, who becomes Howard County Attorney Jan. 1.

Cruelty to an animal is a Class A misdemeanor punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 and two years in jail.

The charge has a two-year statute of limitations, Wilkerson said.

Police beat

A man who resides in the 2900 block of Melrose Lane reported unknown persons took items of unknown value, including a rifle.

Sheriff's log

Howard County Sheriff's Department officers reported the following incidents as of 8:30 a.m. today:

• Irlando M. Jackman, 24, 404 W. Sixth St., was released on $3,000 bond Thursday. He had been arrested by city police on charges of burglary of a building.

• Ted A. Leath, 29, 811 Willa St., was released on $1,000 bond. He had been arrested by city police on charges of making a false report to a peace officer.

Child's death prompts autopsy

A five-year-old Big Spring girl died this morning at Scenic Mountain Medical Center after being rushed from her home to the hospital by ambulance personnel, authorities said.

Elizabeth Darnell, 111 E. 16th St., was pronounced dead at 7:40 a.m. after doctors unsuccessfully attempted to revive her. Howard County Justice of the Peace William (Bill) Shankles said.

Shankles said the girl died of natural causes and ordered an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death.

Detective Sgt. Bill King said foul play is not suspected and called the girl's death "unfortunate."

In retrospect, you look back and say, "Wow, what happened?"

"It's like he took a real bad trip and never came back," Scales said.

Broussard's 79-year-old father, Eldridge Broussard Sr., acknowledged that his son has changed, but said he sees nothing out of the ordinary.

The elder Broussard said he beat his sons and daughters as children. "A child wouldn't listen to you if punishment wasn't behind it," he said.

"When they got too tough for a razor strap, I'd get a connection cord," he said. "You should see the welts on them."

on Jan. 1, 1990. Tax rates for the self-employed remain unchanged at 13.02 percent for 1989, but the amount subject to tax will rise to $48,000.

Social Security Commissioner Dorcas R. Hardy said in a statement that the benefit increase announced today "ensures that America's elderly and disabled are able to maintain their purchasing power as the price of necessary goods and services rise."

Officials said the cost-of-living increase will boost Social Security payments by $8.7 billion in 1989.

Here are some other changes for 1989 that the agency announced:

• Retirees ages 65-69 will be able to earn $8,880 without losing benefits, up from $8,400 currently.

• Beneficiaries under 65 will be able to earn $6,480 without penalty, up from $6,120.

• Workers will need to earn $500 for a quarter of coverage, up from $470.

Benefits are rounded down to the next dollar, which means most people wind up with an increase slightly smaller than the exact inflation rate.

Also, most SSI beneficiaries also get regular Social Security, and their entitlement to welfare benefits usually decreases when their Social Security check increases.

Commissioners to meet Monday

Howard County Commissioners are scheduled to appoint a balloting board judge and consider vehicle bids during a regular meeting scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday.

The agenda also includes discussions of insurance, approval of homestead refunds, purchasing of office supplies and personnel matters in the auditor's and tax assessor/collector's office.

An amendment to that agenda indicates that a contract for county indigent health care services in physician, hospital and pharmaceutical categories will be discussed, as will approval of salaries for indigent health care personnel.

The commissioners are expected to establish a central counting station for the general and special election and discuss replacing the county's representative to the 911 board.

An easment for the city of Coahoma is also to be discussed.

Approval likely for fetal research

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A special federal advisory committee formed to consider the use of intentionally aborted fetal tissue for research bogged down Thursday without reaching final agreement on the exact wording of its recommendation.

However, it was clear from the day-long discussions that the 21-member panel eventually will recommend that the research proceed, particularly as a potential treatment for diabetes and Parkinson's disease.

The hangup, which prompted the panel to put off a final vote on the cornerstone issue, is how to address the question of whether the panel will say fetal tissue transplant is "morally acceptable" or simply "acceptable."

A number of committee members are philosophically opposed to abortion and reluctant to agree to anything that seems to sanction the procedure.

It remained unclear late Thursday whether the committee would vote on whether to include a moral sanction in its recommendation, or skirt that and simply find fetal transplant "acceptable" on the more narrow ground that since abortion is legal there is no ethical bar to using fetal remains.

A decision is expected at Friday's meeting.

Man arrested for threats to Bush

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — A 21-year-old man being held on charges he threatened Vice President George Bush's life has bought at least six guns and read books by mass murderer Charles Manson, Secret Service agents testified.

U.S. Magistrate Stewart Elliott ruled Thursday that David Allen Russell was a threat to himself and others and should not be allowed to go free on bond.

Russell waived his right to a preliminary hearing, and was returned to the Daviess County Detention Center in this northwestern Kentucky city.

Secret Service Agent Don Bell testified that Russell had confessed to mailing two letters to President Reagan threatening the Republican presidential nominee's life.

"If he wins, he will be executed and his blood will be on your hands," said Bell, reading from the second letter.

Russell was arrested Tuesday at the home he shares with his mother, Beatrice.

He is charged with threatening to take the life of or inflict bodily harm upon the vice president, and sending a threatening letter through the mail.

Hunt brother pays assessment

NEW YORK (AP) — An attorney says Peru's state-owned mineral company views a $17 million check from Lamar Hunt as the "first installment" from the three Hunt brothers, who a jury found plotted to corner the world silver market.

Minpeco S.A., the Peruvian minerals concern, has been unable to collect any part of the $132.45 million jury award from Nelson Bunker Hunt, 62, and William Herbert Hunt, 59, because they filed for personal bankruptcy protection in Dallas late last month.

The three brothers, all from Dallas and sons of the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt, were sued by Minpeco in federal court here.

Whale rescuers smash trail in ice

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Rescuers frustrated by a delayed icebreaking barge opted for a new plan to free three trapped whales: using a helicopter to drop a 4-ton concrete slab that could punch a trail through foot-thick ice today.

"A large, wide lead has opened four miles from the whales. That's the closest open water there's been yet," Ron Morris of the National Marine Fisheries Service said Thursday. "I just want to take advantage of the situation." Weather forecasts indicated that favorable winds would shift over the weekend, probably shutting the pathways through the ice, Morris said.

Officials said they planned to have a giant Alaska Army National Guard Skycrane helicopter lift the concrete "crusher" — left over from the construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline — at first light today. The trip was expected to take about two hours.

SIDON, Lebanon — A Palestinian guerrilla helps a woman fleeing from the scene of a bombed Palestinian refugee camp in south Lebanon as Israel retaliates for the recent car bomb attack that killed seven Israeli soldiers.

Israel hits Lebanese bases in retaliation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes and helicopters attacked guerrilla strongholds in Lebanon today in apparent retaliation for a bombing that killed seven Israeli soldiers. Fifteen people were killed in the raids, police said.

The jets scored direct hits on ammunition dumps and training bases of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, and Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, said a police spokesman in Lebanon.

On Thursday, Israel's leaders vowed to retaliate against Hezbollah, which claimed responsibility for killing the Israeli soldiers Wednesday.

The police official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said 12 Israeli fighter-bombers were involved in simultaneous air strikes near Sidon, provincial capital of south Lebanon, and in the eastern town of Mashgara.

Helicopter ships later joined the attack on Mashgara, police said.

Eight people were killed and 15 wounded in the Sidon area, and seven were killed and 15 wounded in Mashgara, the spokesman said.

The Israeli military command said the raids occurred about 10 a.m. and were aimed at "Palestinian targets in the Sidon area and Hezbollah command posts in the villages of Mashgara and Al-Luwayzah."

The village of Al-Luwayzah is about two miles southeast of Metulla, where the car bombing occurred.

The military statement said at least six U.S.-made F-16's took part in the raids.

Lebanese police said an ammunition depot belonging to Hezbollah was hit near the Palestinian refugee camp of Mieh Mieh, on the outskirts of Sidon, and set off a series of explosions.

A Palestinian guerrilla training base was hit in Mieh Mieh and the nearby Ein el-Hilweh refugee camp.

Warplanes fired at least 18 rockets into Mashgara as the gunships strafed the town, police said.

Shortly after the air attack, Israeli troops in the hills in south Lebanon fired on Mieh Mieh and Al-Luwayzah with long-range howitzers.

Soviet activist may get visa

MOSCOW (AP) — Human rights activist Andrei D. Sakharov said today he wants to leave the Soviet Union for the first time to attend a conference in the United States and that the Kremlin may grant him permission.

Granting Sakharov, father of the Soviet dissident movement, a visa to travel abroad would be a dramatic gesture to show the liberalization of restrictions under President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

In another sign of his return to good graces of Soviet officials, Sakharov has been elected one of 47 members to the Presidium, the ruling body, of the prestigious Soviet Academy of Sciences, Tass reported Thursday.

United States still owes U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States has paid $28.8 million in back dues, but a U.N. spokesman says the American government still owes the United Nations $570 million.

The United States has withheld payments to try to force the United Nations to adopt budgetary and administrative reforms.

President Reagan announced Sept. 13 he was satisfied with progress on the reforms and approved the release of $188 million — $44 million for the last fiscal year and $144 million for the one beginning Oct. 1.

Two other payments have been made since Reagan's announcement — $15.2 million in September and $85.6 million Oct.

That leaves $58.4 million still outstanding of the amount Washington has promised, and more than $500 million more in back payments, including those designated for the peacekeeping missions and specialized agencies.

The General Assembly's fiscal committee is to take up the budget issue in December. A subcommittee recommended the austerity budget, which also limits emergency spending, last month.

Fred Eckhard, the U.N. financial spokesman, has said timely payments by the United States are necessary if the organization is to pay for new peacekeeping operations.

Storm batters Bangladesh

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — A severe storm lashed southern Bangladesh and battered coastal cities with high waves, and as many as 1,500 were missing, news reports and witnesses said today.

The storm, packing 75 mph winds and 15-foot waves, hit coastal cities on the Bay of Bengal early Wednesday. It knocked down thousands of mud-and-straw houses, snapped power lines and overturned fishing boats and trawlers, the reports said. "We had not prior bad weather warning. It came all of a sudden," one resident, Abdul Mannan, told the Bengali-language daily, The Dainik Bangla.

The government-run newspaper said at least six trawlers carrying 40 fishermen sank off the town of Cox's Bazar early Wednesday. All 40 were missing and feared dead, it said.

Marcos indictment will be sought

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Filipino officials today hailed reports that U.S. authorities would seek an indictment of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos, who is accused of embezzling billions of dollars.

In Washington, U.S. sources said federal officials would seek a grand jury indictment of the 71-year-old Marcos and his wife, Imelda, later today on racketeering charges.

Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus, who returned from the United States earlier today, said, "Obviously, the indictment strengthens our own position as a stable democratic government."

The Philippine government has filed 39 civil suits against him seeking to collect $96.7 billion in damages. But no criminal charges have been filed because officials fear Marcos would insist on his constitutional right to return to the Philippines from Hawaii to face his accusers in court.

The Philippine Constitution forbids criminal trials in absentia.

TV seems more influential than press in '88 campaign

BOSTON (AP) — The bad news for newspapers this presidential election season is that most voters follow the campaign on television, political columnist Jack Germond told the Associated Press Managing Editors convention Thursday.

"We are not in on the making of the agenda," Germond told the audience of 300 newspaper editors. "If we think we are, we're fooling ourselves."

Germond was the lone journalist in a forum titled "All About George Bush," convened during the weeklong convention. Wednesday's schedule included a panel called "All About Michael Dukakis."

Despite the designated subject of Thursday's panel, the discussion quickly became a comparison between the campaign run by the Republican vice president and his Democratic rival for the White House, Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

"American voters have decided that Mike Dukakis can't take direction and that George Bush is more in tune with the electorate," said Maine's Republican Gov. John McKernan, who was there to speak for Bush.

"He has been successful at painting Dukakis as being out of the

"Bush seized on issues of little substance (such as) the Pledge of Allegiance, prison furloughs... that created a caricature Dukakis couldn't escape from," — GOP strategist David Keene mainstream, the dreaded Big L (liberal)," McKernan said.

McKernan said New England as a whole is doing well economically and he received the biggest laugh of the 90-minute session when he minimized Dukakis' role in the economic comeback of Massachusetts.

"We ought to give credit where credit is due," he said, "and Dukakis has been smart enough to stay out of the way of progress."

John Martilla, a market researcher and active Democrat, predicted the race could be closer than it appears from current polls, which give Bush a sizable lead. "Conventional wisdom has been so wrong this year," Martilla said.

There is still room here to bring this back in Governor Dukakis' direction."

He said Dukakis' problem is partly that he is "carrying a legacy of failure of the Democratic Party at understanding the basic values of the American people."

Another panelist, GOP strategist David Keene, picked up this point.

The Bush campaign is run by men and women with a good perspective on national concerns, Keene said. Their counterparts working for Dukakis are bright but too ideological and parochial.

One result was the way Bush altered the public perception of Dukakis.

"Bush seized on issues of little substance (such as) the Pledge of Allegiance, prison furloughs... that created a caricature Dukakis couldn't escape from," Keene said. In this way, Bush changed the perception of Dukakis' message, he said.

Germond had the last word.

"We have had the most wretched campaign we have seen," the veteran journalist said. "It's a campaign of shameless irrelevance by the vice president and staggering ineffectuality by Dukakis...."

Bush supporters push crime issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commercials depicting Democrat Michael Dukakis as soft on crime are moving more voters this year than anything else, a pollster said as a handful of new anti-Dukakis crime ads hit California airwaves.

The Committee for the Presidency, an independent group backing Republican George Bush, said Thursday that its three ads would start today on TV stations in Los Angeles, San Diego and Bakersfield, and may be used later in other states.

The spots feature first-person accounts of crimes involving Willie Horton, a convicted murderer who failed to return to prison from a weekend furlough under a program supported by Dukakis, the governor of Massachusetts.

The independent ads hit on the same themes as Bush campaign spots that, according to pollster Lou Harris, have had an enormous impact on the election.

"Really more than the debates, more than anything else, they have determined the set of the election until now," he said Thursday of Bush commercials hammering the furlough program and Dukakis' opposition to capital punishment.

Bush's 9-point lead in the latest Harris poll was built mainly through his crime spots, Harris said before an appearance in Rochester, N.Y.

He said 63 percent of voters see Dukakis as soft on crime as opposed to 52 percent before the Bush attacks aired, and 49 percent term the governor out of the political mainstream compared with 34 percent who did so before the advertising blitz.

Dukakis did not starting any new national or regional advertising Thursday, according to spokeswoman Lorraine Voles. But he scheduled an appearance today on ABC's "Good Morning America," and Dayton Duncan, his press secretary, said the campaign had purchased five minutes of time on the same network to air a speech at 9:55 p.m. Saturday.

The new anti-Dukakis spots feature Donna Cuomo, whose brother was murdered by Horton, and Cliff Barnes, whom Horton stabbed several months after his release on a weekend pass. Horton also raped Barnes' fiancée.

Cuomo and Barnes are shown in tight close-ups, their faces and voices grim as they recount their experiences and criticize Dukakis' record.

"First Dukakis let killers out of prison. He also vetoed the death penalty," says Cuomo, of North Andover, Mass., in one spot. "Willie Horton stabbed my teenage brother 19 times. Joey died. Horton was sentenced to life without parole, but Dukakis gave him a furlough. He never returned.

Horton went on to rape and torture others."

Barnes, of Maryland, says Horton was serving a life term without parole "when Governor Dukakis gave him a few days off. Horton broke into our home. For 12 hours, I was beaten, slashed and terrorized. My wife, Angie, was brutally raped. When his liberal experiment failed, Dukakis simply looked away... We are worried people don't know enough about Mike Dukakis."

The Committee for the Presidency said it purchased $125,000 of airtime for a week-long run of the two spots and a 60-second combination of the two. They may run in other California markets and Western states if they are needed, said spokesman Fred Karger.

Rep. Bill Thomas, R-Calif., a co-chairman of the group, acknowledged under questioning that the furlough program was started by a Republican governor who preceded Dukakis. But he said the point is that Dukakis at first vetoed a legislative attempt to modify the program.

The poor give more as the rich give less

WASHINGTON — Donations to charity decrease as incomes increase, according to a Gallup poll which says low- and moderate-income Americans are more generous than their upper-income counterparts.

"Giving and volunteering in America is a stark contrast between heart-warming generosity and bone-chilling selfishness," said Brian O'Connell, president of the Independent Sector, a nonprofit coalition of 650 corporate, foundation and volunteer organizations which commissioned the survey.

The March survey of 2,775 adults 18 years and over produced profiles of the most and least generous Americans according to income, family status, church membership, community size and region.

Those most likely to make contributions and volunteer their time were members of low- to moderate-income families, churchgoers, rural residents and Midwesterners.

The least generous were the affluent, single individuals, the non-churchgoing, city dwellers and Southerners.

"Contrary to popular opinion, the well-to-do in America cannot be described as generous," O'Connell said.

O'Connell said at a press conference Tuesday that contributing households with incomes below $10,000 gave an average of 2.8 percent of their income to charity. Those with incomes from $10,000 to $29,999 gave 2.5 percent, while those between $30,000 and $49,999 gave 2 percent.

Contributing households with incomes between $50,000 to $74,999 gave 1.5 percent, those earning $75,000 to $99,999 donated 1.7 percent, and those with incomes of $100,000 or more gave 2.1 percent.

Overall, the survey found that 70 percent of the households in America make charitable contributions.

The average amount of annual contributions per household was $790.

Members of almost half of the households — 45 percent — also volunteered time to charitable activities. The average per household was 4.7 hours a week in 1987.

Extrapolated to the entire U.S. population, the figures would translate into 80 million people giving a total of 19.5 billion hours worth $150 billion in time contributed, O'Connell said.

The study indicated a link between religion and charitable support, with 79 percent of church members contributing money and 51 percent volunteering time.

Among non-members, 55 percent made donations and 33 percent volunteered time.

However, more than one in five of the church members — 22 percent — contributed only to religion and not to any other charities.

Eugene C. Dorsey, head of the group's "Give Five" campaign to increase volunteerism, said the study shows it is possible to reach the organization's goal of motivating Americans to donate at least 5 percent of their incomes and five hours a week apiece to the causes of their choice.

But Dorsey, who also serves as president of the Gannett Foundation, said the findings also confirm the need for establishment of "a basic standard of what we owe to our communities."

Virginia A. Hodgkinson, the coalition's vice president for research, said its previous surveys had missed the link between rising income and decreasing support for charity. She said the earlier studies measured only the amount given without regard to what percentage of income the donated amount represented.

She said the profiles of the most and least generous Americans were based on the averages for weekly volunteerism, contributions as percentage of income and the percentages of family members who were volunteers.

Using this formula, the Midwest was first with individual volunteers donating 2.5 hours of their time and 1.5 percent of their income, followed by the West (2.4 hours, 1.5 percent of income), the East (2.0 hours, 1.2 percent) and the South (1.8 hours, 1.7 percent).

Although those questioned in the South reported giving a greater percentage of earnings to charity, Hodgkinson said this group had a lower overall proportion of households with volunteers and fewer volunteers overall in the general population.

Rankings by size of community, using the same criteria, were: rural (2.4 hours, 1.8 percent of income), suburban (2.2 hours, 1.5 percent), and city (2.0 hours, 1.3 percent).

Married people gave an average of 2.5 hours a week and donated 1.5 percent of their income, compared with singles who gave 2 hours a week and just 0.5 percent of their income.

Supporters say the legislation is the most important statement by Congress on children's television in a generation.

"This legislation will challenge broadcasters to educate children creatively rather than to exploit children commercially," said Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., a co-author of the measure.

Peggy Charren, president of Action for Children's Television, called passage of the bill "a landmark victory for parents and children."

Contaminated water blamed on old wells

ODESSA (AP) — Abandoned, unplugged or improperly plugged oil and gas wells have been blamed for turning clean groundwater into a salty liquid that can't be used to quench the thirst or irrigate the land.

The Texas Water Commission, the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Environmental Protection Agency have documented cases of salt-contaminated water from Hobbs, N.M., to San Angelo and from Fort Stockton to Big Spring.

The scenario is the same, according to the agencies: Groundwater has been contaminated by oil field brine water.

If that contamination continues in the Permian Basin's groundwater, water supplies will be unuseable, said James F. Wright, an environmental consultant for the Midland firm of Wright, McKague & Associates.

Brine water contains assorted elements and minerals, including chloride, that when dissolved can combine with any number of minerals to form salts, Wright explained. And that water is too salty to drink, he added, noting that the contaminated water is useless.

Leaks from abandoned wells also can result in groundwater contamination and can lead to salt water seepage, contaminating the land surface and reducing soil productivity.

The EPA estimates that 1.2 million abandoned wells exist nationwide, with 500,000 in Texas.

The Texas Railroad Commission estimates that as many as 50,000 abandoned wells may need plugging or re-plugging.

When an oil well is drilled, shallow formations of fresh water are pierced along with deeper brine formations in order to penetrate oil- and gas-producing zones.

An abandoned well must be plugged with cement and heavy mud at proper depths to keep the deeper brine from migrating to freshwater zones, or, in some cases, to the surface.

In the Permian Basin, Wright said, "We're concerned with the Edwards Trinity and the Ogallala aquifers."

"These aquifers are not only used for drinking but for irrigation," Wright said. "If they get polluted, not only will it have an impact on drinking water, but we won't be able to grow some crops. Fresh water is precious from Abilene to L.A."

Oil and gas related contamination of groundwater has been documented in almost every county in the Permian Basin.

Climatic changes melt glaciers

RIVERTON, Wyo. (AP) — Global warming seems to be shrinking high-mountain glaciers, according to researchers who say the change could have drastic effects on water supplies in some areas.

The Bull Lake and Knife Point glaciers, two of more than 50 in the Wind River Range, have receded in length by about 30 feet and in depth by six to seven feet since 1986, said Charles Love, a Western Wyoming College professor who has studied them for four years.

"The glaciers are getting smaller, and they're getting smaller fast," Love said. "And what's happening with them probably holds true for all of the other glaciers in the area."

Photographs of the Dinwoody and Gannett glaciers taken this summer show they have retreated "dramatically" since the 1930s and are "in a bad state of health."

Children's TV bill passes; Reagan veto is predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some television stations would have to reduce advertising and refocus their children's programming efforts under a bill approved by Congress and hailed as "a victory for America's children."

The measure won final passage on a voice vote in the Senate on Wednesday, but the Reagan administration opposes it and the Justice Department recommends that he veto it on constitutional grounds.

The measure would limit advertising time during children's shows and require TV stations to provide informative programming for children as a condition of license

Mother says three's a crowd

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after Julie was born, I started taking her into my bed to breast-feed her. I had fully intended to put her back in her own crib when she was finished, but after a week or two, I found myself falling asleep with her, and when she would wake up, I would be right there. It was convenient, and I admit I enjoyed the security of having her next to me, as my husband was working the graveyard shift.

However, when my husband started working days, Julie was not used to sleeping alone, so she cried until I took her into our bed. When she was 10 months old, I weaned her to a bottle.

Abby, she's 2½ years old now, and she's still sleeping with us! It is ruining our marriage, but I just don't know what to do. I can't force her to sleep in her own room because she's afraid to sleep alone. I've tried everything. I guess I'm just a marshmallow. Please help.

Dear Abby

try. I have a suggestion that could help.

If most people are like me, they let the water run while they brush their teeth. Today, I closed the drain to see how much water I was wasting. The sink filled twice before I finished brushing (about two gallons).

Perhaps most people would waste only one gallon per brushing. However, if 200 million people brush their teeth twice a day, wasting only one gallon of water each time, that's 400 million gallons of water going "down the drain" daily. Multiply that by 365 days a year, and we have lost 146 billion gallons yearly!

Abby, if people would shut off the water while brushing their teeth, think of all the water we could save.

Chance of tax bill passage dim as Congress nears adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time is running out on a tax bill that has been awaiting action for more than two years, as Congress inches toward adjournment for the year.

"We'll need a miracle to pass a tax bill this year," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., who has been managing the measure for the Senate. "However, it's never over until it's over," he added.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, another member of the Senate team trying to negotiate a compromise with the House, said there was less than a 50 percent chance of getting a bill. One House aide, who would not be quoted by name, said there was only one chance in 10.

"There's still a pulse but the odds are against resolution of the imasse," said Rep. Bill Archer of Texas, chief Republican negotiator for the House.

After a week of deadlock, senior staff members from the tax committees suggested a compromise with a three-year price tag of about $4 billion. That is higher than senators had favored, but less than backed by the House.

Baucus "calls this a serious proposal and one that the Senate should consider seriously," said spokesman Bill Maddox.

Congress hopes to adjourn tonight or Saturday. And many members of Congress, including some who were named to negotiate a compromise tax bill, already have left town.

The tax bill originally was written in the fall of 1986, immediately after Congress completed work on a thorough overhaul of the income tax. The original purpose of the bill was to eliminate errors and uncertainties in that huge bill.

"We'll need a miracle to pass a tax bill this year," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., who has been managing the measure for the Senate. "However, it's never over until it's over," he added.

Efforts to pass it failed in 1986 and 1987. And as it awaited final action, it picked up dozens of unrelated amendments, most of which were designed to provide a targeted new tax benefit or extend an old one, and to raise other taxes enough to finance those benefits.

The Senate attached to the package this year a "taxpayer's bill of rights" designed to increase the clout of those who are audited or face collections actions by the Internal Revenue Service. It would, for example, require the IRS to inform a taxpayer fully of his or her rights before any action is begun, and increase from 10 days to 30 days the minimum waiting period before the IRS can seize property for back taxes.

Major provisions of the deadlocked legislation would free farmers from paying the federal fuel tax on diesel burned for off-road purposes; allow certain livestock producers and freelance artists to deduct some operating expenses before a project generates income, and renew an exclusion for employer-financed educational assistance.

The version passed by the House would provide tax benefits worth about $7.5 billion over three years and raise other taxes to pay for those benefits. The Senate plan has a price tag of under $3 billion.

The biggest point of contention between House and Senate negotiators has been over the size of the compromise bill. The House insisted that the final version be closer to its figure in order to finance longer extensions of certain expiring provisions, such as a tax exemption for bonds issued to help low-income families buy their first home.

The Senate declined to go much beyond $3 billion for fear that President Reagan would veto the bill as another exercise in raising taxes to pay for more spending.

Senators and the Reagan administration also object to two big revenue-raisers in the House plan. One would cost defense contractors and big construction companies about $2.4 billion by repealing a special method of accounting. The other would reduce the dividends-received deduction used by many big corporations.

Convicted driver is released

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A man with 33 drunken driving convictions and free on bond pending appeal of four others has been released on bond after being arrested once again for drunken driving, officials say.

"I have never, never, ever had anybody with a record even approaching that," said attorney Earle R. Purser, who represented Otis Donald Wadford at a hearing in September.

Wadford, 52, was arrested Monday and released after he posted $1,000 bond in Wake County District Court. He was free on a previous bond pending his appeal of four drunken driving convictions last month. The News and Observer of Raleigh reported.

Bond can be denied only in first-degree murder cases in which the death penalty is being sought.

"Maybe it's time we look at the law and consider some sort of revision to protect the public," said Wake District Attorney C. Colon Willoughby Jr. "Maybe public safety outweighs the individual's right to be free pending his case being litigated" in instances other than murder cases.

Wadford pleaded guilty Sept. 8 to four charges each of driving while impaired and driving while his license was permanently revoked.

OAKLAND, Calif. — The World Series belonged to the Los Angeles Dodgers — not a "dream team," as Manager Tom Lasorda called it, but a team that simply did the right things at the right times.

Battered but never beaten, the Dodgers captured their sixth World Series title Thursday night with a 5-2 victory over Oakland. Orel Hershiser pitched another masterpiece as the Series ended in five games.

And there were no more A's. They were only the Z's, because their bats had gone to sleep. The heavily favored Athletics, who averaged nearly five runs a game during the season, scored just 11 runs on 28 hits in the five Series games.

From A to Z, the Dodgers did what they were called upon to do. They hit-and-ran, stole some bases, moved runners along, played defense and even hit a few homers.

"I think everyone will respect us now," Dodgers second baseman Steve Sax said. "We may not be a power team, but we sure are a winning team."

Mickey Hatcher had two homers, including one in the decisive game, and that's as many as the entire A's team hit. The A's may have out-homered the Dodgers 156-99 in the season, but in the Series, it was 5-2 Dodgers.

"We missed the biggest piece we were chasing," Manager Tony La Russa said of his American League champions. "But I have a great feeling about the 1988 Oakland A's. I'm very proud of what this team did. We didn't choke. We got beat because the Los Angeles Dodgers did more."

The Dodgers did the winning without their key player, Kirk Gibson, who was gimpy on both legs. Their inspirational and on-field leader had only one at-bat during the Series, although it resulted in a game-winning homer in the opener.

He was not alone among the dented Dodgers. Cleanup hitter Mike Marshall missed part of Game 3 and most of Game 4 when his back stiffened up. Pitcher John Tudor came out of Game 3 in the second inning when his elbow hurt.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Los Angeles Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda, right, and Fred Claire, Dodgers vice president, hoist the World Series trophy after LA clinched the championship with a 5-2 win over the Oakland A's Thursday.

He may need surgery and a new career. And catcher Mike Scioscia couldn't play in the final game because he wrenched his knee the day before.

"This team has established itself in baseball history," Dodgers general manager Fred Claire said in a jubilant locker room. "It will go down as one of the great storybook seasons, all the way to the finish when it overcame injuries and beat two great, outstanding teams."

It took the Dodgers seven games to dispose of the New York Mets in the National League playoffs. The A's, meanwhile, waltzed over the Boston Red Sox in four games in the AL, giving them 108 victories for the season.

They would get just one more.

"I don't think you can look at it as a total shock," A's catcher Ron Hassey said. "The media all felt that we were such a great favorite... but you didn't give credit to the Dodgers."

"It was a season we started hard from day one and just didn't close the book at the end."

The Dodgers last won the World Series in 1981, beating the New York Yankees in six games, and they are the only team with two World Series wins in the '80s. The A's last won the Series in 1974, beating the Dodgers in five.

Those were the A's of Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando and Rollie Fingers. These were the A's of Jose Canseco, Mark McGwire and Carney Lansford. But among this modern trio, there were just five hits in 54 at-bats in the Series for an average of .093, and Lansford had three of the hits.

"The Dodger pitching shut us down," La Russa said. "It's the age-old story. If you make the right pitches, you can't make much contact... Most of it was Dodger pitching."

And most of that pitching was Hershiser, who was voted Most Valuable Player of the Series. Hershiser ended the season with the most remarkable string of success in baseball history, a major-league record 59 consecutive scoreless innings, breaking Don Drysdale's mark of 58.

Hershiser finally allowed three earned runs in the playoffs, but he had a save and a win, including a

The Bulldog beat the Bash Brothers

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. — In the end, the story of the World Series can be written in simple, numbing numbers, depressing digits for the Oakland A's.

They are .053 and .059, the five-game batting averages for Oakland sluggers Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire.

The Bash Brothers went bust against Los Angeles pitching, often embarrassed by Series MVP Orel Hershiser and his colleagues.

Canseco finished 1-for-19, 0-for-18 after a grand slam in Game 1. McGwire was 1-for-17, his only hit a game-winning ninth inning home run in Game 3. That combined 2-for-36 was the exclamation point of a .177 team batting average for the A's in the Series.

"Dodger pitching shut us down," Oakland manager Tony LaRussa said. "It's been this way for 100 years in baseball. Make quality pitches and you get hitters out."

By himself, Hershiser had more hits in the Series than McGwire and Canseco combined. And he did that in one game when he matched a 64-year-old record for pitchers by stroking three hits while pitching a three-hit shutout.

Deprived of his bat by the DH rule in Game 5, Hershiser settled for a four-hit, 5-2 victory that clinched the Series and the MVP award. The starts came on three days rest, his regular post-season schedule.

Beginning with the playoffs, Hershiser pitched 42 1-3 innings in 17 days, starting five times on three days rest and relieving once. He allowed five earned runs in that stretch — the only ones he gave up over 101 1-3 innings starting Aug. 30. That includes a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings at the end of the season.

"I can't find words to describe Orel Hershiser and what he's accomplished," Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda said. "I saw it, but I can't believe it. I can't believe anybody can achieve his mastery for as long as he did."

Hershiser seemed to be operating in his own little world, focused in on every pitch and every hitter. He insisted it wasn't as easy as he made it look.

"I feel like I'm climbing a mountain every time out," he said.

That had to be the feeling of the whole Dodger team, decimated by injuries, limping along like a M-A-S-H unit of walking wounded. They won this Series just in time. Otherwise they might have run out of players.

Going in, the Dodgers were decided underdogs against an Oakland team that had won 104 games and swept Boston in four straight in the American League playoffs.

Canseco had MVP credentials with the first 40-home run, 40-stolen base season in history. McGwire had 32 homers and 99 runs batted in. Dennis Eckersley had 45 saves as the best relief pitcher in baseball.

They all became non-factors against a Dodger team carried by shock troops who replaced the regulars. In the course of the five games, catcher Mike Scioscia, pitcher John Tudor and outfielder Mike Marshall all got hurt. Kirk Gibson was injured before it started, limited to one swing, a dramatic ninth-inning pinch home run that won Game 1.

With Gibson out, Lasorda was forced to turn utilityman Mickey Hatcher into a regular. Limited to 191 at-bats during the regular season, Hatcher responded magnificently, leading the Dodgers with seven hits and five runs batted in, four of them on a

Pecos (0-3, 3-3) at Big Spring (1-2, 1-4)

This will be a battle of two pretty good teams with less-than-stellar records. This homecoming bid promises to be a wild and woolly affair since both teams have shown potent offenses and faltering defenses.

The contest will showcase two of the most productive quarterbacks in the area in Big Spring's Rance Thompson and Pecos' Bobby Ray Smith. Thompson is the better passer but Smith is an excellent runner.

The offensive fireworks will fly, but the Big Spring defense will contain Smith enough to make this a happy homecoming.
Big Spring 35, Pecos 21

Colorado City (2-0, 6-1) at Abilene Wylie (2-0, 4-2-1)

The winner of this game could very well be the District 7-3A champion.

Both teams have good offenses and both play strong defense. The edge goes to Wylie on offense because of their good passing game, while Colorado City gets the nod on defense, because C-City has given up only seven points in district play.

The Wolves will depend on the strong shoulders of fullback Beau Rees to pave the way offensively, and "Super Thief" Mark Russell will have to hold the secondary together against Wylie quarterback David Blackburn and his talented corp of receivers.

A Dane Hoover field goal will be the difference.
Colorado City 17, Wylie 14

Garden City (1-0, 6-0) at Rankin (1-0, 6-0)

This battle of top 10 teams will more-than-likely decide the District 8-A championship.

The Rankin Red Devils are loaded with team speed, headed by quarterback Doug Braden, one of the best athletes in West Texas.

The Garden City Bearkats have the most balanced offensive attack in the land. They score by air or on the ground, whatever it takes to win.

The main factor is that Garden City has a rock solid defense — a defense that is hard to drive on, and one that doesn't give up the big play.

The Bearkats will howl tonight.

Michigan, Hoosiers tangle in Big Ten

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The not-so Big Ten has its biggest game of the year Saturday. Yes, Michigan is in it. No, Ohio State is not.

The 20th-ranked Wolverines welcome the 14th-ranked Indiana Hoosiers to Ann Arbor. The winner becomes a heavy favorite for the conference's Rose Bowl slot.

The Big Ten has had a rough year — every team has at least two losses except for the Hoosiers, who are 5-0-1 overall and 3-0 in the conference. Only Indiana, Michigan — which is 3-2-1 but has lost by two points to Notre Dame and one point to Miami — and Illinois (3-0 in the Big Ten heading into Saturday's home game with Michigan State) appear capable of making a serious run at the championship.

"Right now, we're all in the thick of things and each week is important," Hoosiers coach Bill Mallory said. "The farther we go, the more important each game becomes."

Indiana beat Michigan 14-10 at Bloomington last year, the Hoosiers' first victory over the Wolverines since 1969. To make it two straight, they'll need a big effort from Anthony Thompson, the junior tailback who had his sixth straight 100-yard game against Minnesota last week. Thompson ranks second in the nation in rushing with 964 yards.

"He's a better back than he was a year ago (when Michigan held Thompson to 77 yards on 27 carries)," Mallory said. "First of all, he's matured more, physically. He's stronger, he's quicker, faster, and with the experience and know-how, he's smarter, and he's learning."

"We feel he's an outstanding back. This is not a putdown to the other backs I've been associated with, but he's the best back I've had the opportunity to be around." Michigan has a good one, too, in Tony Boles, who needs 167 yards to reach 1,000.

Still, Wolverines coach Bo Schembechler isn't thrilled with his team's attack.

"Our problem is that we're not scoring enough," Schembechler said. "We just don't get enough points on the board. We've been a 17-point offense and that's just not good enough today. We've got to start scoring more points."

"Our goal is to come out of every game with 24 points."

That might not be enough — Indiana has scored at least 28 points in every game this year.

Elsewhere, top-ranked UCLA is at Arizona; No. 2 Notre Dame entertains Air Force; fourth-rated Miami is at home for Cincinnati; No. 5 Nebraska visits Kansas State; Boston College is at No. 6 West Virginia; No. 7 Florida State plays host to Louisiana Tech; eighth-ranked Oklahoma goes to Colorado; No. 9 Clemson visits

North Carolina State; and 10th-ranked Auburn entertains Mississippi State.

Also, it's No. 11 Georgia at Kentucky; Utah at No. 12 Wyoming; No. 13 Arkansas at Houston; No. 14 Indiana at No. 20 Michigan; Missouri at No. 15 Oklahoma State; No. 17 Washington at Oregon; and No. 19 Syracuse at East Carolina.

Third-ranked Southern California, No. 16 Louisiana State and No. 18 South Carolina are off.

UCLA gets to show off its stuff as the No. 1 team for the first time ever. The last time the Bruins were 6-0, in 1980, they came into Arizona Stadium ranked second, but left with a 23-17 loss.

"Tucson's always been a tough place for us to play," Bruins coach Terry Donahue said.

The Wildcats are 4-2 under second-year coach Dick Tomey, who has worked as an assistant to Donahue and is a close friend of the UCLA coach.

Runnels sweeps Pecos

The Runnels Yearlings defeated the Pecos Eagles in a junior-high football sweep Thursday night, with the A-team taking down Pecos 28-14 and the B-Team defeating the Eagles 26-6.

Waylon McGee ambled for two touchdowns en route to his 226-yard performance, carrying the ball 19 times. He is credited with touchdown scampers of 42 yards and three yards.

Steven Robles collected 72 yards on seven carries and played a good defensive game, according to coach Jim Wirwahn.

Clay Klatt scored touchdowns on runs of three and four yards, and Pat Martinez converted two two-point efforts, one by catching a Klatt pass and one on a three-yard run.

Wirwahn also praised the defensive efforts of Freddie Williams.

"Our offensive line did great," he said, complimenting Richard Hain, Salvador Trevino, Jerolmaine Gonzales, Victor Zapata and Marcos Yanez for their play Thurs-

Klondike (2-0, 4-3) at Grady (2-0, 3-3)

Another key matchup in the area ranks. The two will be battling for the lead in the 6-A Six-Man race. The Grady Wildcats are on an emotional high, coming off two upset wins over Sands and Loop. Klondike has played lower division district teams Dawson and Borden County. The Wildcats are scrappy, but their offense sputters at times. On the other hand, Klondike has a very powerful offense that is effective on the ground or in the air. That will be the difference. Klondike 44, Grady 32

Borden County (0-2, 1-6) at Dawson (0-2, 2-5)

The Borden County Coyotes and Dawson Dragons will be trying to stay out of the district cellar. Both are better than their records indicate, but Borden County has been in a slump as of late. On the other hand, Dawson has played the upper division teams well. The Dragons will get their first district win. Dawson 38, Borden County 20

Loop (1-1, 4-3) at Sands (1-1, 5-2)

Niether the Loop Longhorns or Sands Mustangs can afford another loss if they want a repeat of last year's state playoff appearances. The Longhorns lost their starting quarterback to injury and it will hamper their offensive performance. Sands is known for its stout defense which specializes in creating turnovers. The Mustang offense will convert Loop turnovers into points. Sands will still be in the playoff hunt. Sands 30, Loop 22

Forsan (0-2, 1-6) at Eldorado (0-1-1, 4-2-1)

The Forsan Buffaloes are a young team going through a rebuilding season. Coach Jan East's lads are gaining some very valuable lessons. Though they've only won one game, the Buffs are improving each week. The Eldorado Eagles were picked in the pre-season polls to make the playoffs. They can't afford to lose any more. Another learning process for the Buffs. Eldorado 24, Forsan 7

Coahoma (0-2, 2-5) at Merkel (0-2, 1-6)

These two teams will be battling to stay out of the cellar in District 7-3A. Both are better than their record indicates, and Merkel has to be the best 1-6 team in the state. The Badgers have lost both district games by a touchdown while Coahoma lost a one-point heartbreaker to Clyde and a 27-10 game to Ballinger last week. That score is misleading because Coahoma trailed by less than a touchdown with two minutes left in the game. Merkel's strong suit is its defense. Coahoma has been up-and-down offensively. That will be the key. The Badgers will get in the win column. Merkel 14, Coahoma 7 6-0 shutout of the Mets in Game 7. In Game 2 of the Series, he pitched a 6-0 shutout on three hits. And he allowed only four hits, two by Lansford, in Thursday night's clincher. "We caught them in a little cold streak, and we nickel and dined them to death," Hershiser said. "We also out home-ran them, and you don't expect that." "I'm very, very proud of our team," Hershiser said. "It's a great mix of individuals — both personalities and talent. With one swing, Gibson exemplified what he's done all year long for us. He made it cool to be aggressive, to be a workaholic." The Dodgers got two runs right away Thursday night. With one out in the first inning, Franklin Stubbs singled, and Hatcher followed with a homer to left off Storm Davis. Hershiser gave up consecutive hits for the only time in the game to start the third when Lansford and Tony Phillips each singled. A sacrifice bunt got Lansford to third, and he scored on a fly ball by Stan Javier, making it 2-1. Mike Davis, the Dodgers' designated hitter, made it 4-1 with a two-run homer in the fourth, and it was 5-1 after an RBI double in the sixth by Rick Dempsey, who was catching for Scioscia. In the meantime, Hershiser was singing hymns to himself in the dugout between innings to try to relax. "When you're under so much pressure like this, it's almost like a spiritual experience," Hershiser said.

Dwaine Edmonds scampered seven yards for another Yearlings TD and converted a two-point try. Wirwahn said. "We also had good games played by Shawn Boyd, Monte Lindsey, Lucas Lopez, T.L. Gastineau quits Jets to care for ill fiancée

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Mark Gastineau, who fought his way back with the New York Jets, is walking away from football to help actress-fiancee Brigitte Nielsen in her fight against cancer. Gastineau, the defensive end whose headline-generating personality infuriated teammates and made him a media star, cited the illness of the actress as the reason he is leaving the game. "My relationship with Brigitte Nielsen was the primary reason I returned to football this year, and for whatever success I enjoyed," Gastineau said at the Phoenix, Ariz., airport. "Her sudden illness, for which we are now seeking medical treatment, has caused me to put into perspective my career and the things that are most important to me in my life. "I hope everyone will understand this decision and wish us well." The New York Times, in today's editions, quoted Nielsen as saying in a telephone interview: "I have cancer of the uterus. I'm trying to handle this in a positive way. We're going to decide how we'll deal with this." Gastineau decided to deal with it by retiring as a player. "For personal reasons, Mark Gastineau has decided he will not play football anymore," Jets president Steve Gutman said Thursday. "They are his reasons, and they are personal. He is no longer with the team. We will be in Miami (Sunday) without him." "He will get paid for the games he played. We're sorry about the decision. He was a great player. He set records and set the standard for sacks. It's his decision." Gutman said the Jets' options are to place Gastineau, 31, on the Reserved-Left-Squad list or the Reserved-Retired list. If Gastineau is placed on the latter and reconsiders, he must go through procedural waivers. Gastineau who was leading the AFC in sacks with seven, told Jets coach Joe Walton on Tuesday that he was contemplating retirement. He attended team meetings on Wednesday, but skipped practice, claiming an illness in the family. "He told me he was thinking about quitting and I said, 'think about it, it's a big decision,'" Walton said. "He called this morning and told me he no longer wanted to play. I informed the team on the field. I told them he didn't have his heart in it and wanted to get out." "He played hard and he was a great player. It's a decision he's made and will have to live with. I don't know if you could call it sad, but I am disappointed."

pair of two-run homers. Mike Davis, a dismal 196 disappointment during the regular season, added another two-run shot. So Goliath was brought down by David again, a team full of Davids, in fact, perhaps the least impressive lineup a World Series champion has fielded in years. Lasorda seemed awed by what these Dodgers achieved. "This is the greatest accomplishment of them all," he said. "We didn't have all the talent in the world, but we believed in ourselves. If you want somebody to be an inspiration to people who don't believe in themselves, then take a look at this ballclub. I can't believe it happened. This is a dream team, a team of destiny." That destiny was molded by Hershiser and six magnificent weeks of pitching, more than 100 innings, a third of a full season's workload in which he compiled an earned run average of 0.50. "I just never wanted to let down," he said. "I always went pitch by pitch and never tried to think about complete games. I never want it to be said that the streak stopped or I pitched badly in a crucial game. The pressure was really great. I never had time to enjoy it." Now he can, and consider the unlikely World Series championship that it produced.

FAITH REMINDS US OF OUR MOST PRICELESS POSSESSION

Of all the pleasures we have known
 And all the treasures we will own,
 There's just one thing that stands alone,
 Apart from all the rest.
 We learn it's not a brand new car,
 The means with which to travel far
 Or talent to become a star,
 Which some of us possessed.
 It isn't any sort of rank,
 Or big deposit in the bank;
 But our good Father let us thank,
 With gratitude expressed
 For something which is truly grand
 That our great leaders wisely planned:
 It's all the freedom in our land,
 With which we have been blessed.

For what avail
 the plow or sail,
 Or land or life,
 If freedom fail?
 — Ralph Waldo Emerson

"Behold, I proclaim
 a liberty for you,
 saith the Lord."

Billy Graham:

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can I deal with depression? After our fourth child was born a few months ago I seemed to get more and more depressed, wondering if there was really any point to it all. I thought I'd get over this, but I'm only getting worse, and my husband doesn't understand. Where can I turn? — Mrs. R.B.

DEAR MRS. R.B.: Have you openly shared your problem with your doctor? Depression can be caused by many things, but one source can be a medical problem of some type. Chemical or hormonal imbalances can occur in the body (including following the birth of a child) which can contribute to depression, and these often can be treated medically.

There may also be other reasons for your depression. Being a mother is far more stressful and demanding than many people (especially we men!) realize. It is a nonstop, and when you're chronically tired all the time it catches up with you and can contribute to depression. And having a husband who doesn't understand the pressures and feelings you have can make you even more depressed.

Whatever the reasons for your depression, take practical steps to overcome them. Keep your communication open with your husband; hopefully he will begin to see that you need him — both his understanding and his help — in a special way at this time. If possible, get help once or twice a week to take care of your children so you can rest and regain your strength.

Let me assure you also that God understands your problem, and he wants to encourage you at this time. He loves you and has entrusted these children to you, and he wants to help you realize they are not only a responsibility but a privilege. "Sons are a heritage from the Lord, children a reward from him" (Psalm 127:3). Turn to Christ and ask him to help you during this time.

Write to Billy Graham, c/o Tribune Media Services, Inc., 611 E. Concord St., Orlando, FL 32801.

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Years ago I made a decision to believe in Jesus, because I wanted to be saved and go to heaven when I die. But it seems to me like there ought to be more to it than that, and that Christ ought to be affecting my life right now more than he does. Am I right, or is Christ mainly concerned about saving us after we die? — E.W.

DEAR E.W.: Certainly Christ came to save us from the penalty and judgment of sin (which is death and eternal separation from God). But he also is just as concerned about our lives right now. "For we are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to do good works, which God prepared in advance for us to do."

When we come to Christ, we are called not only to accept Him as our eternal Savior from sin and death, but as the Lord of our lives right now. This is what it meant to be a disciple — to be a follower of Christ our everyday lives. In fact, the Bible makes it clear that there is no change at all in our lives when we come to Christ, then he isn't really living in us.

CHICAGO (AP) — Marriage is the only appropriate setting for expression of sexual intimacy by candidates for the clergy in the Evangelical Lutheran Church, its Division for Ministry says.

In guidelines, it also said homosexual erotic activity is unacceptable and "reason for a person to be removed" as a ministerial candidate.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis will be the main speaker at a feast day dinner Saturday honoring Archbishop Iakovos, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in the Americas.

About 1,200 Greek Orthodox leaders were expected for the affair at the J.W. Marriott Hotel.

TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP) — The Roman Catholic Diocese of Tucson says severe financial strain from continued ownership of television station KDTU has forced elimination of 14 jobs; suspension of some services and imposition of salary cuts.

"The financial resources of the diocese have been severely pressured by the continuing financial demands caused by the diocesan-owned television station," Bishop Manuel D. Moreno said in a letter to parishes.

He said efforts have failed over the last three years to sell the UHF station, Channel 18, which went on the air in 1984, and the "continuing demands caused by its operations" have forced reductions in diocesan services to parishes.

The bishop said the cutbacks, however, would not affect regular parish operations nor parish employees since parish budgets are administered independently. He also said Catholic Community Services, Catholic schools and cemeteries would be unaffected.

NEW YORK (AP) — A national poll of 1,252 Jews and 1,217 non-Jews issued by the American Jewish Committee finds that Jews remain well to the left of the national political center in several key areas.

They are four times as likely to consider themselves liberal and Democrats than other Americans and more heavily than most Americans strongly support separation of church and state, abortion rights and equal rights for gays.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, representing nine U.S. Baptist denominations, says the Soviet Union and its leader Mikhail Gorbachev are making "progress toward religious freedom."

These changes were cited: "Easing of restrictions on importing the Holy Bible and religious literature."

"Recognition that believers are patriotic citizens, thus leading to a diminution in arrests and incarceration of believers, and an increase in the number of prisoners granted amnesty or prison term reduction."

"Permission for Christian leaders, particularly Baptists, to engage in social programs such as hospital service."

Call for freedom

ALGIERS, Algeria — People bow in prayer on a street in the popular Bab el Weid section of Algiers. Fundamentalist leaders, reacting to a week of rioting over economic reforms and a government austerity program, used the occasion to call for an end to a state of emergency in Algeria.

Buddhism

Seeking enlightenment of Zen

HOUSTON (AP) — The comfortable ranch-style house on Westview Road in northwest Houston is an unassuming spot at which to begin a journey to enlightenment.

There is no steeple, no stained glass window. Simply a small sign. It alone denotes the location of the Southwestern Zen Academy, Houston's center of Zen Buddhism for students of Myo-Bong S. Nim, master teacher.

But it is here that students of this master of Zen come to begin the pilgrimage. It is an ongoing, inner journey that depends not on the trappings of the sacred but on continuing the dialogue between master teacher and student.

Son, properly spelled with an inverted triangular-shaped accent mark over the "o," is the Korean equivalent of Zen (Japanese) or Chan (Chinese). Since mid-century many Americans have begun to practice this East Asian form of Buddhism.

The goal of Zen is the attainment of direct spiritual enlightenment, or, as Zen students are fond of saying, "understanding of self-nature or of our Buddha nature."

At the Houston academy, that understanding comes through kong-an — the core of the dialogue between student and master. It oversimplified, kong-an might be defined as seeking the meaning of seemingly baffling riddles or paradoxical questions that, when understood, bring enlightenment. To achieve this, Zen students practice seated meditation in the contradictory state of looking inward while becoming one with the universe.

Myo-Bong S. Nim is a courtesy title meaning master and mentor, says he emphasizes guiding the student.

"Our main theme is introspection," he said. "Instead of looking outside we look inside ourselves, which is introspection. Then that "I want to stress that Buddhism is not in opposition to any religion. Certainly it's called a religion, but it's also an enlightenment practice."

— Craig Learned

introspection will provide us with respect for others. There's no divide between I and thou."

"If you introspect, then respect for others will come naturally. The other important thing in our original mind is the Buddha. Our daily life of function is dharma, meaning truth. One who conducts others is the monk."

Originally from Seoul, South Korea, Myo-Bong came to the United States in 1975 because his master teacher in Korea believed he was suited to teaching Zen in Western cultures. As monk, the term used for both men and women devoted to teaching Zen, Myo-Bong took a vow of poverty.

He first visited Houston in 1984. The academy, designed to to serve a geographic area embracing several states, opened last fall. Myo-Bong estimates 70 or 80 regular students study with him in Houston. He divides his time between here and Irvine, Calif., where he has 300 students at the West Son Academy.

Revered by his students, Myo-Bong downplays his own role, but acknowledges that he is in the line of patriarchal Zen masters believed to proceed back — through 78 generations — directly to Siddhartha Gautama, the fifth century B.C. Indian philosopher known as Buddha.

In one sense, Zen begins with a question and continues the dialogue, rather than providing a predetermined set of answers. To understand it, many Americans who are schooled in mainly Westernized approach to truth seeking must virtually reverse the way they seek to define theology or the concept of God, beginning with an inward, not an outward search.

"We are not the messengers who try to teach someone what is important for them, what they have to do, what they have to follow," Myo-Bong says of the master teacher's place in Zen.

"We have to realize that every human being is originally enlightened," Myo-Bong said.

"We have forgotten it just like we might forget our hometowns. My job is sort of reminding. We are not going to become Buddhists. Our understanding is that we are Buddhists originally."

Church news

Women study religion in USSR

The women of the First Church of God met Oct. 3 for their monthly meeting.

Betty Reagan, Missionary Education coordinator, directed the second study on the USSR titled, "The Cross and the Curtain," written by Kay Shively, associate secretary for the Women of the Church of God.

The objective of the lesson was to learn about Christianity in the USSR. The history of Christianity in Russia dates back to 988 A.D. with a long and troubled history. Although churches are permitted to exist in the USSR, they are required to register with the state which severely restricts their activities.

Americans giving smaller share

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans generally are richer, with more money to spend on extras, but they're giving a smaller proportion of it to their churches.

That's the central finding of a broad study comparing real income gains, adjusted for inflation and taxes, with changes in church contributions over a 17-year period.

"For the first time in history," says researcher Sylvia Ronswalle, "the majority of people in the U.S. have discretionary income, beyond basic needs. However, church giving has not reflected this newly available money."

Concert

The Christian music group, Petra, will be in concert in Lubbock Monday, 7:30 p.m., at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium, Texas Tech campus. For ticket information, call 817-468-7368.

Artist waits a lifetime to create

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Ramon Garrido waited a lifetime to paint. Now, at age 90, after building two fortunes and losing one to the Cuban revolution, he is able to fulfill his dream.

"I loved art since I was born," Garrido said, "but I was told all painters die of hunger."

The threat of hunger drove him from his native Orense, Galicia, Spain, at age 14 to financially help his parents and nine brothers and sisters.

"My father discouraged me from studying art, because I had to do my part to support the family," Garrido said.

He traveled to Argentina, where he befriended an army colonel who helped him open a tobacco and stationery store. Even then, he would draw pictures for the schoolchildren on the front of their copybooks.

Garrido brought his father from Spain to help with the shop, but after a few years, the senior Garrido wanted to return to Spain. They sold the store and father and son returned together.

In the early 1920s, Garrido returned to the new world, this time to Cuba, where he amassed money in real estate and building construction.

The triumph of Fidel Castro's revolution brought the nationalization of all income property and many private land holdings in its wake. Garrido estimates he lost a half-million dollars in holdings. He and his wife were allowed to stay in

"He never had the opportunity to paint before he came to San Antonio. I started giving him some paints for Christmas on his birthday. He started painting to kill the time."
— Dr. Jose Ramon

their house in fashionable Alameda Marianao until his wife died in 1970.

After his wife died, he said, "I wasn't interested in anything there."

His son, Dr. Jose Ramon, then brought him to live in San Antonio and renewed his father's interest in painting.

"He never had the opportunity to paint before he came to San Antonio," the son said. "I started giving him some paints for Christmas on his birthday. He started painting to kill the time."

The senior Garrido's fascination with buildings and land can be seen in his impressionistic landscapes, most often of structures surrounded by lush gardens, that evoke the verdant mountains of Cuba.

Garrido never studied theory of painting.

"I believe study is in the practice," he said. "My style is to paint whatever there is from here and there in my life. I combine images in my imagination."

Portraits, however, are too limited in their appeal, he said.

"If you paint a person, the only one who is interested is the subject of the painting," he explained.

Garrido said he paints what interests him and only when he is inspired.

Garrido says that when he dies he may be famous, but not before. He says he plans to leave his paintings to his children.

"I can't take them with me."

SAN ANTONIO — Artist Ramon Garrido, 90, is fascinated with land and builders.
