Choosing the jury nears end

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Seven potential jurors were recalled for more intensive questioning at 9 a.m. today — and the remaining 60-odd jury panel members will return to 118th District Court at 1 p.m. as jury selection continues.

District Judge James Gregg said today he expects the jury to be seated by the end of the afternoon. Of the recalled potential jurors this morning, five were excused for cause, and defense attorney Tom Morgan registered an objection to having a sixth not excused.

District Attorney Rick Hamby had first crack at the twelve benches of Howard County residents called for selection in the Frankie Hernandez murder trial.

During questioning of a minister — and later, while questioning the wife of another minister — Hamby referred briefly and generally to the Bible, asking the jurors to remember "what we're doing here is rendering unto Caesar, doing our civic duty."

He pitched his questions to the panel members in a clear voice, using colorful but uncomplicated language. Once in a while a reply — or a question to a particular juror — would result in a ruffle of laughter in the packed courtroom, particularly when a panel member revealed he had worked with Hamby in a grand jury two years ago.

"Yes, I know you, Mr. Hamby," the juror said. "But I wouldn't want to hug your neck," in response to Hamby's earlier remark about potential jurors' feelings toward him.

Hamby grinned and continued his questioning, finishing with his examination of prospective jurors before 2 p.m., thanking the panelists for their attention and pleading with them to give the defense the same attention and answer defense attorney's questions with the same candor.

Judge Gregg interrupted the proceedings for a brief recess before allowing defense attorney Tom Morgan to begin questioning the panel members.

Morgan's opening remarks were also designed to put the jury at ease. He told them he had served as a prosecutor for 10 years in Midland County prior to taking up defense practice — and then told them that he had "been sitting where you are now, and I was nervous — and that was on a DWI case" during his own jury service about three years ago.

His voice somewhat higher in pitch than Hamby's, and his speech so soft that court reporter Jerry Spence several times interrupted him to ask that a question or response be repeated so Spence could hear. Morgan presented the panel with a primer on law.

Trade deficit faces new president

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — If the federal budget deficit seems invisible to most Americans, the gaping trade deficit is all too apparent. They see its evidence every day in the cars they drive, the televisions they watch, the shoes they wear.

Now it will fall to either George Bush or Michael Dukakis to try to remedy this other U.S. deficit, the trade imbalances that hit a staggering $170 billion last year and are running at a $138 billion pace for 1988.

The American appetite for imported goods became voracious in the 1980s as a strong dollar produced a flood of bargains for U.S. consumers. Even when the dollar took a nosedive after intervention by the United States and its allies in 1985, Americans retained their taste for imports.

Japanese auto makers who established a beachhead in the U.S. market with cheap, fuel-efficient subcompacts earned a larger and more expensive niche on the strength of their autos' quality and reliability.

The trade law signed by President Reagan in August gives the next president new tools to protect American markets and retaliate against countries with unfair trading practices.

'88 Issues

Dukakis's running mate, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was the leading congressional champion of the tougher trade law.

"I want to be a president who stands up and fights for American companies, American products and American workers," Dukakis said at a metal factory in Dayton, Ohio, last month.

Bush says American exports are booming, the trade deficit is already coming down, and free trade, not protectionism, is the way to restore America's competitiveness. The Republican dismisses Dukakis' warnings about foreign ownership as "protectionist demagoguery."

"We need to increase our exports, not shut our borders," says Bush. But, he adds, "our commitment to free trade must be linked to a reciprocal commitment to fair trade by our trading partners."

Dukakis, while trying to make a gut-level appeal to American workers alarmed about their livelihood, has tried to avoid being cast as a protectionist.

Dukakis stayed conspicuously silent when Congress passed a protectionist textile bill in September that Reagan vetoed.

But even Reagan is not the doctrinaire free-trader he once was. His administration, confronted with gaping trade deficits, backed off from what had been an undeviating faith in free markets in 1985 and worked in concert with allies to bring the value of the dollar down. That effort was orchestrated by James Baker III, then-Treasury secretary and now Bush campaign chairman.

Cotton

Howard County pickin' looks good

Cotton harvesting has begun in the county and the local crops "really look good," according to Don Richardson, Howard County agriculture extension agent.

Harvesting is at a minimum now, but farmers are expecting a freeze before Nov. 15 that will spur increased stripping of local crops, Richardson said.

Last week, harvesting occurred primarily in the Knott and Ackerly areas, he said.

Richardson said that cotton is not performing better in any one area of the county, rather various parts of the county are expecting above average yields.

"There are super good crops in Knott, Ackerly and Luther," Richardson said, adding that he is "hoping, for a county average (yield) of one bale per acre."

Last year, the county averaged approximately one-half bale per acre, he estimated.

Only a few areas of the county have been adversely affected by severe weather conditions, he said. Some crops in Lomax have been damaged by prolonged drought and some crops in Knott were hurt by flooding.

Recent morning dews have delayed stripping in some areas of the county, and farmers are waiting for the dry, clear weather conducive to harvesting.

As further stripping occurs, farmers will be closely following the yields of the new varieties of cotton planted in the county.

Business owners to meet city officials

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

In an effort designed to unite local business owners and address their individual problems, the Chamber of Commerce Major Employers and Business Committees will sponsor a Community Breakfast Nov. 10, according to chamber representatives.

An all-you-can-eat breakfast will be served at 7 a.m. at Furr's Cafeteria in Highland Mall and will be open to the public. The breakfast and discussion is expected to last approximately one hour.

Ken Dunwoody, plant manager at Western Container Corp. and chairman of the chamber's Major Employers Committee, said the breakfast has been scheduled to allow small business owners to express themselves on issues that concern them.

The major employers committee is composed of representatives of Big Spring area companies with 40 or more employees.

"Too often we felt that the average employer in Big Spring is being somewhat overlooked. This will be a chance for them to clear the air and discuss possible grievances," he said.

The primary purpose of the employer's committee is to recruit new industry into the Big Spring area and also to produce an annual wage and benefit survey of employers, Dunwoody advised.

"We're all here to help each other," he said.

Dunwoody said that to his knowledge the breakfast will be the first organized event designed to provide assistance for small business owners.

He candidly admits he is unsure what kind of response to expect.

"There are some people who won't come because they don't think it will accomplish anything and others who will wait and see if anything (positive) does come about. The last thing any of us need is just another meeting," Dunwoody noted.

If the breakfast proves to be beneficial, similar monthly or quarterly meetings may be scheduled on a regular basis, he said.

Sherry Rose, secretary of the chamber's Business Committee and property manager of Highland Mall, said the idea originated at a recent chamber meeting, but stressed the breakfast is not limited to chamber members.

"The meeting is also for non-chamber members and small business people. The purpose is to give everyone a better understanding of what is going on in the city," she said.

City officials and council members will also be extended invitations, Rose noted.

"This breakfast will give ordinary citizens a chance to meet people they have never had a chance to meet before like the mayor (A.C. Cotton Mize), city manager (Hal Boyd) and members of the city council," she said.

Papers play endorsement game

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the first time in its history, the Wichita (Kan.) Eagle-Beacon broke with the GOP by endorsing Democrat Michael Dukakis, joining several newspapers nationwide that backed Dukakis, and criticized George Bush's negative campaign tactics.

Dukakis also was endorsed by The New York Times, the Star Tribune of Minneapolis, the Philadelphia Inquirer, the Charlotte (N.C.) Observer, the Greensboro (N.C.) News & Record and New York Newsday, which called Bush's campaign "sniveling, dirty, distorted and irresponsible."

Bush picked up endorsements Sunday from the Detroit News, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and the Denver Post, which said that "after wiping away the mud from both candidates, The Post believes George Bush is the better choice."

The Eagle-Beacon, the largest newspaper in heavily Republican Kansas, said in a Sunday editorial that the Democratic nominee "seems uniquely prepared to deal with the crises certain to confront the next president."

Dukakis "has shown much deeper sensitivity toward the struggles of millions of Americans to make ends meet," the newspaper said.

Eagle-Beacon managing editor William R. Handy said it was the paper's first endorsement of a Democrat for president since The Wichita Eagle and The Wichita Beacon were formed in 1872 and the two papers merged into a morning edition in 1980.

This year, the editorial board said it was disgusted with Republican nominee George Bush's negative campaign tactics. "I think it reveals the broad distaste that the Bush campaign, really both campaigns, has left in the mouth of the American people," Nevall said.

"Gov. Michael Dukakis has drawn criticism from his fellow Democrats because he has refused — or has been unable — to match the Republicans in meanness and contempt for the American voters," the newspaper said.

The editorial also said that while Bush has more than 20 years in public service, "he has left his fingerprints on so few positive accomplishments." It also questioned Bush's choice of Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana, "a feckless, shallow, politically immature man," as his vice presidential running mate.

The New York Times said the scales were tipped in Dukakis' favor as the candidate likely to do a better job of "getting America

Protesters block women's clinic entrance

AUSTIN (AP) — Abortion protesters taking part in a "rescue mission" at a clinic near the University of Texas linked arms to block entry to the center but police reported no arrests in the daylong gathering.

About 100 abortion protesters on Monday sang and prayed as they blocked entrances to The Ladies Center.

"We're doing it again because after the rescue on Saturday, we felt like that was so successful — we felt like we had rescued children and the expression of our love had come through — that we wanted to do that again this morning," Rex Moses of Austin Rescue said.

Police said no one was arrested in the protest. When about 300 anti-abortion activists gathered at another Austin clinic as part of a national protest Saturday, there also were no arrests.

Center officials were not asking for arrests because, "That's exactly what they want," said Nola Puente, clinic administrator.

"We are trying to keep this dog-and-pony show to a minimum," Ms. Puente said.

Protesters did not want to be arrested, but wanted to stop abortions and communicate their message to the public, said Moses.

The clinic normally does not handle abortions on Mondays but usually would be doing pregnancy tests and counseling, said Ms. Puente. She said people who called to come in Monday were told of the protesters and advised to go elsewhere.

A staff member and Ms. Puente were escorted through a rear clinic entrance after police created a diversion at the front entrance. Officers walked to the front with a woman who works for Travis County Jail who appeared to be trying to enter, said Austin police spokesman C.F. Adams.

Protesters later were moved from the rear entrance so other staff members could enter.

"Our only purpose was to clear the doorway," Senior Sgt. Sam Cox said. "We're here for everybody. We're not here for any particular side."

The police action constituted "absolute brutality," said Moses. He said two protesters were injured when they were moved. One man's face was scraped and another sustained a knee injury.

But a complaint was not planned about the officers' actions, said Moses.

Protesters prevented a woman from entering the clinic. Elaine Allan, who declined to say whether she had an appointment, left angrily after trying to get through the protesters.

"I have a 3-year-old. I'm pro-choice. I chose to have her, and I'm glad I did. But I'm sympathetic with people who have to make an opposite choice," Ms. Allan said.

Phyllis Dunham, executive director of the Texas Abortion Rights Action League, said "further challenges" would be offered to the rescue missions "within the next several days." She would not give details.

Officer pleads no contest to prisoner assault

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin police officer who was videotaped punching a prisoner three times has pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor assault charge.

Gaylon Dunkin, 34, earlier had been tried on a civil rights violation charge. The trial ended with a hung jury.

Police Chief Jim Everett fired Dunkin for using excessive force, but he was reinstated after an arbitration hearing.

Dunkin entered his plea to a Class C misdemeanor assault charge Monday before Justice of the Peace David Crain, and State District Judge Jon Wisser dismissed the civil rights violation. Crain ordered judgment in the assault case deferred for six months. If Dunkin does not break any laws during that time period, there will be no final record of a conviction.

Dunkin said he had no comment about the plea. His lawyer, Bill McQuillen, said his client's plea should not be considered an admission of guilt. "We could fight it again, and win. The only reason we entered into this agreement is to avoid another trial, to put the agony of the past year behind us," he said.

Military facilities to get new use

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The military will begin work within the next 11 months to convert under-used facilities into civilian drug treatment centers to help stop AIDS and the birth of AIDS virus-afflicted children, U.S. Surgeon General Dr. C. Everett Koop says.

"If we are to stop AIDS and stop the birth of children with AIDS, we have to do it in this fashion," Koop said Monday at the 95th meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States.

"The reason it is so important at this point is that the spread of AIDS is taking place most swiftly in the drug abuse community," he said.

The Department of Defense and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services agreed in a memorandum of understanding last week to pursue the proposal, which would expand the availability of drug treatment for civilians, Koop said.

"This has to do with the ready treatment of drug addicts in our country who are coming in for slots that do not exist at this point in time," said Koop, 72, a Navy vice admiral by virtue of his being chief of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Following his speech to 6,000 military health leaders, Koop said carrying out the plan to open treatment slots for drug addicts was one of the key items he wanted to see accomplished before his scheduled retirement from public service in November 1989.

Drug addicts particularly needed to be the focus of the battle against AIDS, even though they make up a small percentage of the total U.S. population, Koop said.

"It is the only group of people that is involved in the birth of babies with AIDS," Koop said. "They are only born to women who are abusing drugs or to partners of drug abusers."

There will be 3,000 U.S. babies with acquired immune deficiency syndrome by this time next year, the surgeon general predicted.

Four die from apparent cocaine-heroin overdose

HOUSTON (AP) — Four people who died last week after injecting what was at first thought to be poison-laced cocaine may have been stricken by narcotics that were "too pure," authorities said.

With most autopsy tests complete, no poison has been detected in the victims, said police.

"There were no contaminated substances in the drugs," said homicide detective Tom Ladd. He said the medical examiner's office is expected to rule that the deaths were due to an accidental drug overdose.

William Edgar Small Jr., 45,

Steve Wilson Ridley, 37, Johnny Lee Johnson, 38, and Edith Renee Harris, 40, died within an 18-hour period on Oct. 17-18.

Police have said the four close friends died after "speedballing" heroin and cocaine the weekend before their deaths. Medical personnel familiar with the victims' symptoms initially said the narcotics could have been mixed with lethal amounts of boric acid.

Asked if the victims died from an overdose of very potent narcotics, Harris County's medical examiner, Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, said, "That may be so."

Jackson criticizes conservatives

MCCALLEN — The Rev. Jesse Jackson holds two-year-old Maria Christina Ortiz during a Democratic campaign swing through Texas ticket. Jackson came to the Rio Grande Valley to urge people to vote and led a march to the courthouse.

AUSTIN (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson campaigned through Texas trying to drum up support for Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis and criticized Republican nominee George Bush for waging a negative campaign.

On Monday, Jackson spoke at the University of Texas campus before an enthusiastic crowd of about 3,000. He also made stops in McAllen, Dallas and Fort Worth, before heading for other southern states.

"We are going to take off the Bush-Quayle mask. We will not have Halloween November the eighth. We will not get the trick, while they get the treat," Jackson said at UT. "We can win Texas. We can win America."

Jackson's speech coincided with a move by Dukakis on Sunday to defend liberal traditions. Jackson told the crowd that certain conservative values should be cherished, but that conservative politicians have stood in the way of progress in civil rights.

"And if conservatives had had their way, the sign on the Statue of Liberty would have said, 'No room in the inn. You don't have any property. You don't speak English. You can't come.' But the liberal tradition said, 'Give me your poor, your huddled masses...'"

Higher interest expected in 1989

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates have been falling in recent weeks, but many economists believe they will stabilize around current levels for the rest of the year and climb early next year.

While the Federal Reserve is not likely to take any action to drive rates higher for the rest of 1988, these analysts said the central bank will be forced into a series of rate hikes beginning next year to fight renewed inflationary pressures.

The Federal Open Market Committee, led by Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan, was meeting behind closed doors today to review how the economy has been performing and map monetary policy for the next two months.

Analysts said they expected no dramatic change in course from this session, especially given the fact that the presidential election is just one week away.

"Right now there is no over-

Business update

whelming need to change monetary policy and they certainly aren't going to stick their neck out one week before an election," said David Wyss, chief financial economist with Data Resources Inc., a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm.

Various economic reports are suggesting that the economy slowed in the second half of the year. Last week, the government said the broadest measure of the economy, the gross national product, grew at a modest 2.2 percent annual rate during the summer, the slowest pace in almost two years.

Many economists believe this slowdown is good because it will relieve the pressure on tight labor markets and factories already operating at peak capacity.

The Fed began a series of credit-tightening steps late last March which culminated in August with a one-half percentage point increase in its discount rate, the interest it charges to make bank loans.

Analysts give these changes part of the credit for slowing economic growth although some critics contend the central bank overreacted and has increased the chances of a recession next year.

"Economic growth has slowed to far below its potential," said Richard Rahn, chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "It is time for the Fed to reverse its mistaken interest-rate policy and lower the discount rate before slowing investment derails the 71-month-old economic expansion."

While economic growth has slowed, many economists argue that it is not at all certain that inflationary pressures have abated. They predicted the Fed would take a wait-and-see attitude, ready to react more quickly to signs of inflation than to fears of a recession.

The performance of consumer prices, especially energy and food prices, and renewed downward pressure on the dollar will contribute to higher inflation next year, many economists said.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, said the Fed will probably delay further increases in interest rates, however, partly out of fears that it could be accused of manipulating the presidential election.

"I think the Fed would consider it extremely poor form to tighten right after the election. People would say they knew they had to tighten but they just held off until (George) Bush got elected," he said.

Supreme Court Justice asks voters to compare records

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

Incumbent Place 3 Democratic Texas Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez asked supporters this morning to compare his record to that of his Republican opponent — and said a decision on who to vote for Nov. 8 will be easier.

Gonzalez briefly addressed a group of about 25 people — primarily composed of attorneys — at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office.

"My philosophy is 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it,'" he said.

Gonzalez, 47, was appointed to the Texas Supreme Court in 1984 by former Gov. Mark White; the judge's election to the state's highest court in 1986 was the first time an Hispanic was elected to statewide office.

He is opposed by Charles Ben Howell, a member of the 5th District Court of Appeals in Dallas, and Libertarian Calvin Scholz.

Gonzalez labeled Howell a "kook" during a debate last month, citing his appearance in pajamas in a Texas courtroom on one occasion, according to published reports.

He said he feared "another judicial scandal" if Howell is elected, saying the last thing the court can tolerate is an incident similar to the election of Don Yarborough who later served a prison term for crimes that allegedly occurred while he was a supreme court justice.

Gonzalez expressed concern that because 1988 is a presidential election year, a landslide vote in Texas for Vice President George Bush could produce a "coattails" effect for Howell.

"I'm also concerned about all the negative campaigning and that the voters won't know who the good guys and bad guys are and decide to throw all the rascals out," he said.

Scathing negative campaign advertisements on television by some Supreme Court justices are also having an adverse effect on how the electorate perceives the court, Gonzalez noted.

Stating he "doesn't have the funds to advertise," Gonzalez said he was depending on voters "telling your friends" about his qualifications.

Despite his disclaimer about campaign financing, the Dallas Morning News reported in its Sunday edition that the Gonzalez campaign has received over $1.5 million in contributions during the past 3½ years.

"In Big Spring, how we do here depends in large measure how you do here," he told those in attendance.

Gonzalez said he was "appalled" by the way judicial races are currently run and noted that justices should "not lower ourselves to gutter-line politics."

He also said that despite news stories to the contrary, Supreme Court justices are not influenced by donations received from certain special interest groups.

"I'm tired and embarrassed about the issue of judicial ethics," Gonzalez said.

He said he has received the support of more than 90 percent of the Dallas Bar Association despite the fact that his opponent is from Dallas and has received the endorsement of all of the state's major metropolitan newspapers.

Gonzalez said his trip to Big Spring was one of "12 to 15" stops throughout west and southwest Texas in the next few days.

Stenholm endorses Avery

Congressman Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, was in Big Spring Tuesday morning and endorsed the candidacy of Johnnie Lou Avery in the race for state representative of the 69th District.

Stenholm, who was honored at a breakfast held in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, said Avery has been a coordinator in Howard County for his congressional campaigns since 1978 and the "people of Big Spring know what she can do."

He added that Avery has been part of many progressive actions in Big Spring for many years and is a strong advocate of economic development.

"Although she is not an incumbent, she will be as close as you can get in representing the interests of the 69th District in Austin."

Stenholm also called Avery's opponent Troy Fraser "a good man" who has also served as a coordinator for his campaigns.

"Either way, you have two good people running, but Johnnie Lou CHARLES STENHOLM has really meant so much to me," he said.

The Cedar Rapids Gazette, the second largest paper in Iowa, backed Bush for his promise of no new taxes and his support for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels and the Star Wars plan for a space-based missile defense system.

Defense attorneys object to moving female prisoner

District Attorney Rick Hamby confirmed today that Pamela Newton, 21, accused of capital murder in an April shooting, is being held in Howard County jail.

Hamby said defense attorneys Wayne Basden and C.E. (Mike) Thomas III had expressed objections to a proposal that would allow Newton to be transferred to the Midland County jail.

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard has written a letter to the 118th District Court in the matter, which has been included in Newton's case file, indicating it costs $144 per day to retain Newton in Howard County, because she must have 24-hour per day female supervision.

That has required the hiring of matrons for the jail, at the hourly rate of $6, pending Newton's trial, Standard has said. He also said he understood the Midland County jail would charge Howard County $50

Hamby said today his office has no objection to moving Newton; District Judge James Gregg said he had not been aware of the proposal before reading a Monday newspaper article.

In the past Hamby has pointed out that the law requires defendants to be held in facilities allowing them to be available to their defense attorneys in order for the defense to prepare its court case properly.

Water lines under repair

A six-inch break was reported on Alabama Street and an eight-inch break was reported near the Veterans Administration Medical Center about 3 a.m., Decell said.

The water main breaks will be repaired before the end of the day, he said.

Trade deficit

Reagan-Bush administration in the past three years," Bruce Smart, a Bush trade adviser and former undersecretary of Commerce, said.

Dukakis says the Reagan-Bush policies in those first four years "turned two generations of trade surpluses into the world's largest trade deficit, and cost our workers 5 million jobs."

But Smart notes both Bush and Dukakis support the U.S.-Canada Free trade agreement and favor strengthening the 96-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which sets global trading rules and investigates alleged violations.

Dukakis has endorsed extending voluntary restraint agreements with 29 steel-exporting countries after those agreements expire next Sept. 30. Bush has withheld judgment, waiting "to see if there is a better way" to help U.S. steel companies at a disadvantage from subsidized imports, Smart said.

Both Bush and Dukakis supported the unfair trade complaint that American rice growers lodged against Japan.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton K. Youtter rejected that complaint last Friday, prompting the Dukakis campaign to accuse the administration of failing to "stand up for America."

Economist David Wyss said, "It's quite clear Bush would continue current policies, sticking as much as possible with multilateral accords and keeping an open economy.... Dukakis feels that interference with trade is justifiable to protect American industry."

"There is no easy way out," said Robert Strauss, who was trade negotiator for the Carter administration.

"It's going to take strong direction from the president leading the way (with) the bully pulpit," said Strauss. "You must do a lot of things, including strike some global bargains with the Europeans and Japanese."

William Beeman, a vice president of the Committee for Economic Development, a business group, said, "The most important thing you can do for the trade deficit is reduce the budget deficit."

Foreign investors lured by high interest rates bought up much of the Treasury debt that financed the Reagan budget deficits. That in turn helped drive up the dollar's value and made it harder for U.S. manufacturers to compete abroad.

Bush looks to farm exports to help restore the trade balance, and promises to make agriculture a prime topic at the next economic summit with U.S. allies.

Dukakis has pledged to wipe out the trade deficit in four years, without fully spelling out how.

The most important step is to reduce the federal deficit, he says.

Both candidates agree better education is a key to improving U.S. productivity and competitiveness.

Dukakis says he would insist on reciprocity from such U.S. trading partners as Japan, South Korea, West Germany and Brazil that restrict American imports while they "flood" the U.S. with products.

But in an earlier position paper, the Democrat also cautioned against erecting trade barriers, saying, "If every barrier to American goods abroad disappeared tomorrow, we would still have a trade deficit of $125 billion."

Wyss, chief economist of Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass., said the new trade law is "a potential disaster in the wrong hands."

"It's really a protectionist measure, but it gives the president a great deal of leeway to shortcircuit that," Wyss said.

The first sign of the next administration's intentions may come in April when the law requires the U.S. trade representative to produce a list of targeted countries, along with a plan for negotiations to remove trade barriers.

Jury

panelists asked Morgan to explain further before replying — he hammered home points he plans to present during his defense of Hernandez.

He began by asking his client to stand, introducing him to the jury panel and saying, "I am not going to call him defendant. I am going to call him Frankie. That's his name."

He then asked the panelists to keep in mind that a charge of murder might not be the only charge they should consider in determining whether Hernandez had committed an offense, and enumerated lesser homicides — voluntary manslaughter, involuntary manslaughter, and criminally negligent homicides — as possible.

Demanding of each potential juror he questioned whether they understood those offenses, whether they could in good conscience consider the minimum punishment allowable if they found Hernandez guilty of murder — five years' probation — and whether they understood such legal tenets as the absolute presumption of innocence and the right of a defendant to abstain from testifying against himself, Morgan cued the panelists until after 5 p.m., when Judge Gregg called a halt and instructed the jurors about returning today.

PACs and perks aid incumbents

"It could probably be shown by facts and figures that there is no distinctly native American criminal class except Congress," Mark Twain once observed. His gibe spoke to a venerable American tradition of politician-bashing, a tradition we presume thrives today.

Today's "facts and figures" also suggest something else. They seem to indicate that voters feel downright cozy with their congressmen, particularly with members of the House of Representatives. A House member who manages to get elected can pretty much count on staying there.

In 1986, for example, 99 percent of all incumbents were re-elected. For the past 20 years or so, the re-election rate has been above 90 percent.

It looks to be no different this time. Congressional Quarterly reports that out of the 435 House races, fewer than 10 House members are in any danger whatsoever of being turned out of office. Five of those, the magazine reports, are Republicans meeting the same foes they managed to defeat two years ago.

We can think of three possible explanations. Either there are no issues worth debating or voters are satisfied with the people they have dispatched to Washington or — and this is the possibility that concerns us — the powers of incumbency are so formidable that it's almost impossible for anyone to mount a serious challenge.

PACs and perks make for a daunting combination. According to the lobbying group Common Cause, special-interest political action committees give incumbents an overwhelming edge over challengers in campaign money. In the 1986 election, PACs gave House members $8 for every $1 given to challengers. That's a total of $65 million for incumbents compared with $8 million for challengers.

The perks also are important. Members of Congress supplemented their congressional income with $7.3 million in special-interest honoraria in 1987. Common Cause points out that senators and representatives serving on committees with jurisdiction over defense matters received two-thirds of the $730,000 total in honoraria given by top defense contractors in 1987.

Incumbents take advantage of a unique "mutual fund." Members of Congress had $56.6 million stockpiled at the beginning of the '87-'88 election cycle; through June, incumbents had doled out $2.03 million to fellow members. It's a lesson learned from their California colleagues. Forty-seven members of Congress also have their own PACs.

"There is nothing wrong with an incumbent winning on the merits," Common Cause president Fred Wertheimer points out. "But we are losing all accountability under the present system."

We agree. The only way to change the present system is to institute tight limits on campaign spending, along with limits on the total amount of PAC money that candidates may accept.

Colleges beat pros in sportsmanship

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

While observing two football games this weekend I came to this conclusion: Keep the pros — give me that good ol' college ball.

I've attended both, and there's something about the pageantry and overall ambience of the collegiate contests that professionals can't match.

Pro football has its share of thrills, I admit. After all, those guys are at their physical peak, at times performing feats that leave me absolutely stunned.

However, while watching the Cleveland-Cincinnati game Sunday, an incident occurred that reinforced my college game bias.

Cincinnati — the visitors in the contest — were driving for a touchdown in the second quarter when the TV cameras panned an area of Municipal Stadium known as the "Dog Pound" — so named perhaps because it houses the Browns' most rabid fans.

And for about two seconds, God, country and about 50 million viewers were treated to the sight of a Cleveland fan saluting the Bengals — with the middle finger of both hands.

I don't think I have to go into much greater detail on that subject; you probably catch my drift.

Now, I've been known to present this particular salute on occasion, particularly while watching the Cowboys play. But as far as I know, I've never done this on national TV — and never with the obvious fervor displayed by the fan in question.

Before you get the idea I'm singling out this one fan, let me say his behavior appeared normal for the entire section. While nobody else — at least, as far as I could tell — resorted to the crude gesture, the behavior of the Pound residents leads one to believe that a return to the Roman gladiator days is just around the corner.

Beyond the realm

They were screaming for blood, figuratively speaking, and perhaps literally, and their demeanor suggested they wouldn't be satisfied until the entire Bengal offense was dismembered and mutilated.

I'm all in favor of rooting for the hometown team, but this kind of nonsense has no place in so-called sporting events. Call me a Pollyanna if you wish, but I firmly believe in rules of behavior at public gatherings.

The crowd's actions are reminiscent of those of English soccer fans — popularly called hooligans in the British press. These fine folks care not so much if their team wins or loses, but about how obnoxious they can become before their arrest.

And if they can bash one or two people in the skull, well, so much the bloody better.

No fan riots have erupted at U.S. pro football games, but if encouragement of the blood lust of fans continues — as in Cleveland, where the Dog Pounders are reaching cult status — it's only a matter of time before a melee occurs.

All of this may seem as though I'm making a mountain from a molehill, but I don't think so. For several years, hot-heads in the stands have come dangerously close to inciting bloodshed.

Pete Rose, manager of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team, recalls in horror when a fan hit him just below the eye with a heated penny. "A half-inch higher," he said at the time, "and I would have been blinded."

Another sickening incident occurred during the Dallas Cowboy-Minnesota Vikings playoff game in 1975. A Viking "fan," incensed because Roger Staubach had led the Cowboys to a last-minute victory, vented his (or her) rage by hitting an official with an empty liquor bottle.

Newspaper morgues are filled with accounts of several such incidents. Players have been drenched with beer, spit on, cursed and taunted by fans who, for whatever reason, cannot simply watch a game without trying to inflict pain of some sort.

These things may be possible at college games, but they are more prevalent at pro contests for some reason. The major culprit, I am convinced, is the availability of alcoholic beverages at pro games.

Almost anyone under the influence becomes more aggressive in their behavior; things that no sane person would do under normal circumstances become perfectly acceptable to the drunkard.

Alcohol sales and consumption should be banned from all public athletic events. It may not stop boorish behavior by rowdy fans, but at least it'll reduce the number whom security people must deal with.

Minister says apologies needed

To the editor:
I was very disappointed to read Johnnie Lou Avery's statements about Deede Cauley in the Herald Oct. 20. In an article complaining about dirty politics, she attacked Deede's character by accusing her of writing and distributing lies.

Then she went on to make Deede out to be some kind of kook. My wife and I have come to know Deede quite well, primarily through her involvement in the local activities of Concerned Women for America, her work in her local church, her literacy activities, and her advocacy of morally-based sex education. She is definitely not the Deede Cauley described by Mrs. Avery!

Deede is a well-educated, responsible, and intelligent Christian woman who is respected as a leader by a large number of women in Big Spring. When she married her husband, she was serving as a special agent in the FBI (not just a secretary or clerk). Now, whatever one may feel about the FBI, I think it is safe to say that the Bureau does not employ agents who act "irrationally" and "rudely," or whose "lips quiver" when holding conversations.

Johnnie Lou charged that information in a flyer written by Deede Cauley is a "bald-faced lie," but did not substantiate the charge. I was present at the Family Issues Forum (a public meeting held in the Sparenburg Building, not Deede's home as the Herald said) and heard Johnnie Lou's husband answer questions about her stand on abortion. Also, I picked up the "questionable" flyer while there, and frankly I cannot find anything in it that contradicts any of Johnnie Lou's activities or public statements regarding abortion.

The Herald writer also strongly implied that Deede Cauley is a liar. He reported that she said she "had nothing to do with (the flyer's) circulation." But he then went on to remark that "she did bring a copy to the Big Spring Herald," suggesting that she lied. What the reporter failed to say was that the flyer was only one of many pieces of literature she took by the Herald for the purpose of providing information about the Family Issues Candidate Forum. She did that only because the Herald failed to send a reporter to cover the meeting.

In my opinion, Johnnie Lou Avery needs to specifically substantiate her charges or publicly apologize for her smear on Deede's character. I also think the Big Spring Herald should publish an apology for being so inaccurate and so selective in the story as to reinforce Johnnie Lou's unproven attack on a fine Christian woman, whose only "fault" in this matter, as far as I can see, is to express by political action her own personal opposition to abortion.

Adoption may solve problems

Every political campaign manager saves a thunderbolt for the last week before Election Day. George Bush's people are no exception.

I've known Rovere for ages. He is one of the best political handlers in the business, and except for getting the date of Pearl Harbor wrong, he has never missed kicking the ball through the goal posts.

We were sitting in the bar and he said, "I suppose you're wondering if we're going to pull a rabbit out of the hat."

I replied, "I don't believe a newspaperman should inquire into a politician's business."

"We intend to take care of the Quayle problem once and for all," Rovere said.

"I'm ready if you are," I told him.

Rovere looked around the room and then said, "Bush is going to adopt Dan Quayle as his son."

"Before the election?" I asked.

"The news will wipe Dukakis off the networks. He won't be able to get a sound bite on a cable station in Butte, Mont."

"I understand the publicity value, but why else would Bush want to adopt Quayle?"

"To silence the critics once and for all. They will no longer be asking why Bush chose Quayle as his Vice President. The answer will be obvious. It's because Quayle is his son."

"There has never been a father-son relationship like that in the White House. Was it hard selling it to Bush?"

"Not very. We explained to him that by adopting Quayle, the voters will see the warm, compassionate side of Bush that he has been hiding since the campaign started. Also, this allows George to deal directly with the 'President Quayle' issue. When people see them together as father and son, it will make the country feel less nervous that Quayle is a heart-beat away from the White House."

"Does Quayle want to be adopted?"

"He doesn't mind, provided the Bush people don't assign handlers to him to tell him how he should behave as a son."

"This has the makings of a news story. When are you going to announce it?"

"In a day or two. We want to get Barbara Walters to film the actual adoption ceremony with Ronnie and Nancy holding the Bible. When the press asks him why, Bush will say he decided to go ahead with it because Quayle was the most qualified son a President could have."

"It's good," I said, "and it's good because it's true. I have nothing but admiration for the way you people have handled this campaign. And having Bush adopt the vice-residential candidate as his son is the final stroke of genius. When did you decide about this?"

Rovere ordered another drink. "The trick in politics is to do the unexpected. When Quayle's military record was exposed, everyone expected Bush to drop him. We decided to have him adopt Dan instead, because no one could complain if a father didn't want his son to go to war."

"What puzzles me is that with the polls showing Bush so far ahead, why would George want another son?"

"Because although he has several of his own, there is nobody quite like Dan Quayle."

"J. Danforth Quayle Bush has a nice ring to it," I told Rovere.

He said, "The adoption won't affect the true believers, but when the undecideds see George carrying Quayle on his shoulders, they'll be so moved that they will give Bush a landslide."

Court to hear suit against agency

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) — Nine-year-old Joshua DeShaney can make some awkward movements and guttural sounds and will need special care throughout his life because of a beating more than four years ago that left him brain damaged.

The boy's mother blames a Wisconsin county welfare agency for not preventing the injuries inflicted by the boy's father, and the U.S. Supreme Court will hear arguments in her lawsuit Wednesday.

Ms. DeShaney, who lives in Wyoming, filed the lawsuit on behalf of her son against the Winnebago County Department of Social Services and two of its employees.

The multimillion-dollar lawsuit accuses social workers of violating the boy's constitutional rights by failing to come to his rescue after they had repeated evidence he was being beaten.

Young man charged in church fire

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The pastor of a black church hit twice by arson fires in six months said worshippers could "breathe a little easier" after a young man was arrested in the more recent blaze.

"We're elated. It's hallelujah time," the Rev. Steven Jackson of New Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church of Rock Fork said following the arrest Monday of 19-year-old John Russell Calvin.

Calvin, who was charged with one count of arson, was being held in the Madison County Jail in this southwest Illinois city today on $100,000 bond, Sheriff Bob Churchich said.

Authorities refused to give Calvin's race.

Calvin told authorities he set the church in Godfrey on fire Oct. 19 because he believed it would be used by devil worshippers, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported today, citing unidentified sources.

Asked about the report, sheriff's Lt. Richard Beasley said, "First I've heard of that."

Members of the church, which was founded in 1863 by blacks fleeing from slavery, had feared that the arson fires in April and October were rooted in racism. The October blaze, which occurred less than a month before the rebuilt church was to be rededicated, left only a wall standing.

Churchich said Monday there was nothing linking Calvin to the earlier blaze.

"We can breathe a little easier and I can sleep a little now," Jackson said.

Imelda must pay $5 million bail

Imelda Marcos

NEW YORK (AP) — Wearing a regal gown, former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos was fingerprinted, photographed and ordered to remain here until she can come up with $5 million bail to face a racketeering trial.

"I'm not going to let the lady go back to the Hawaiian Islands until I'm certain the bail is set," U.S. District Judge John F. Keenan said after Mrs. Marcos pleaded innocent at an arraignment Monday.

The Marcoses were indicted Oct. 21 on charges they plundered the Philippine treasury of $103 million, spirited the money out of their country and into foreign bank accounts, and used it to buy prime Manhattan real estate and art.

Mrs. Marcos' attorneys originally wanted her released without any bond, but had agreed to a package in which the couple would put up $1.2 million in Philippine pesos and jewelry they brought to Hawaii in 1986.

Book, special revive assassination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new book and a TV report are reviving the emotional debate over the John F. Kennedy assassination and whether reputed Louisiana mob chieftain Carlos Marcello conspired to kill the president.

Jonathan Kwitny, a former investigative reporter for The Wall Street Journal, hosts an hour-long public television special that concludes there was a mob conspiracy to kill Kennedy.

The TV report points to evidence that both Kennedy assassin Lee Harvey Oswald and Oswald's killer, Jack Ruby, had connections to Marcello's crime syndicate.

The show airs tonight on New York public television and elsewhere later in the month. It recounts a potpourri of evidence presented over the years by Kennedy authors, theorists and investigators, plus some new evidence unearthed by John H. Davis, a cousin of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and author of a new book on Marcello and the JFK slaying.

Marcello, who was a prime target of then-Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy and was temporarily deported by RFK, was mentioned by the House Select Committee on Assassinations as a possible conspiracy suspect in the JFK assassination.

The House panel concluded that Kennedy was probably the victim of a conspiracy, breaking sharply with the Warren Commission. The commission, appointed by Lyndon Johnson and headed by then-Chief Justice Earl Warren, concluded that there was no conspiracy, and two commission counsels who appear on The Kwitny Report reject the mob conspiracy theory as nonsense.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who served as a commission counsel, said evidence presented by the theorists are "snatches of a little fact here and there which really add up to nothing."

"The Warren Commission turned over every stone and found no conspiracy," Specter said.

David Belin, the panel's chief counsel, scoffed at the notion that Ruby, who gunned down Oswald in a Dallas police station, was a mob assassin.

"Mafia hitmen do not go ahead and kill their targets when they're surrounded by police, when they're sure to be apprehended and face life in prison and possible death," he said.

Marcello reportedly hated the Kennedys for the 1961 deportation. A Las Vegas private investigator told the House committee that Marcello indicated to him a year before the slaying that he wanted to kill the president. "You cut off

Man to receive $1.6 million

ATLANTA (AP) — A hemophiliac has been awarded $1.6 million by a federal jury in a lawsuit in which he said he contracted AIDS from a blood-based drug.

Randy J. Jones, 35, sued Miles Laboratories, the Elkhart, Ind., maker of Koate, a blood-based clotting product he took to control bleeding after minor surgery in October 1983.

In a similar case in south Florida earlier this year, a jury ruled in favor of Miles Laboratories.

Jones was diagnosed in 1985 as infected with the AIDS virus, and two years later, doctors told him he had developed acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

In his lawsuit, Jones contended that the product he took had been contaminated with the AIDS virus from an unemployed Texas man who, on 40 occasions between November 1982 and September 1983, sold plasma to a center in Austin, which supplied Miles.

The Texas man died of AIDS less than six weeks after his last plasma sale. A U.S. District Court jury on Wednesday awarded Jones $1.1 million and his wife, $500,000.

"This was a tragic thing," George H. Connell Jr., Jones' attorney, said Monday. "A man about 30 years old, just got married, in the prime of life ... and he gets struck down like this."

According to the national Centers for Disease Control, almost 800 cases of AIDS have been attributed to blood products such as that taken by Jones.

Leopoldo Galtieri conviction upheld

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Former President and army chief Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri lost his appeal of a 12-year sentence and conviction of negligence in losing the 1982 Falklands War with Britain.

A civilian court on Monday upheld a military court's decision against Galtieri and the two other members of his former junta, Adm. Jorge Isaac Anaya and Brig. Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo and stripped them of their ranks.

The four-judge federal appeals panel upheld the May 1986 convictions by the Supreme Council of the Armed Forces.

It also adjusted the sentences for Anaya and Lami Dozo to 12 years, reducing Anaya's by two years and increasing Lami Dozo's by four.

The retired commanders-in-chief of Argentina's army, navy and air force have been in jail since 1984; their sentences run through February 1996. Their pensions, while technically denied to them, will be paid to their wives.

Government extends truce

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — For a sixth time, the leftist Sandinista government has extended for a month its truce with U.S.-backed rebels.

President Daniel Ortega on Monday extended the 7-month-old cease-fire "with the objective of enabling Contra (rebel) groups to put down their arms, take advantage of the amnesty and enter the normal life of the country," according to a statement released by his office.

The cease-fire, yet another unilateral extension of a 30-day formal truce that took effect April 1, would have expired Nov. 1.

The rebels have said the cease-fire is indefinite.

The Sandinistas and rebels agreed on March 21 to halt offensive military operations. Two days later, they signed a pact to negotiate a lasting peace in the 8-year civil war.

But talks on a definitive cease-fire stalemated in September. Each side has accused the other of violating the truce.

The government newspaper Barricada on Monday urged Nicaraguans to prepare for a U.S. invasion.

Under the headline "Rising Threat," an editorial said Honduran troops on Sunday harassed a Nicaraguan border village and accused Honduras of what it called a recent series of cross-border attacks.

Most Contra fighters are at base camps just across the border in southern Honduras.

Israeli voters cast ballots today

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's voters, protected by massive security forces, cast ballots today in national elections dominated by violence and a search for peace in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The major issue is the future of the occupied territories, where more than 300 Arabs and 10 Jews have been killed since a Palestinian uprising against 21 years of Israeli rule began Dec. 8.

As its citizens voted, Israel staged its 20th air raid of the year on Arab guerrilla targets in Lebanon.

In Arab east Jerusalem, assailants threw a firebomb at a car, injuring three people, police said. Witnesses said the car was plastered with stickers for the right-wing Likud bloc and was being used to transport voters.

On Sunday, a rabbi's daughter and her three children were killed in a firebomb attack by Palestinians in the West Bank.

Troy Fraser and the Republican Leadership:

A strong voice for West Texas

"Troy Fraser has the traits that are rare in a candidate - he has common sense and business sense. He'll use his business sense to create more jobs, and he'll treat your tax money with the respect it deserves. West Texas needs Troy Fraser in Austin."

Vice President George Bush

Fraser is opposed to a state income tax, and will work to control state spending. He demands tougher penalties for drug dealers, and supports more local control for schools.

Fraser was one of the few state legislative candidates to receive President Reagan's endorsement.

"Troy Fraser knows that the voice of the district is in West Texas, not in the lobbies and hallways of the Texas Capitol. Send Troy to Austin."

Area sculptor to present demonstration

Dr. Robert Taylor, Snyder, will present a free lecture/demonstration Wednesday at the Big Spring Mall.

The Crossroads Fine Arts Association will sponsor a free lecture/demonstration by noted wildlife sculptor, Dr. Robert Taylor, Snyder.

The program, an Arts Fest '88 event, will be Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Art Focus Gallery in the Big Spring Mall.

Taylor will demonstrate his technique of working with a clay form of the bird sculpture before its final casting in bronze. A slide presentation of the actual bronze casting in the foundry will be shown.

For more information, please call 263-1756.

For Taylor, appreciation of animals and years of working with them evolved into a professional career in art.

During his teen and college years, he was a collegiate and professional rodeo cowboy, gaining national recognition, according to a published report.

He attended Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine, and upon receiving his degree in 1973, established practice in Snyder.

It was early in his 10 years of practice that sculpting began as a hobby. Though he had no formal training, his anatomical knowledge and experience with animals contributed to the exceptional realism and movement depicted in his works.

Since being encouraged to market some of his early pieces, Taylor's bronzes have been enthusiastically received. His work has been selected as "Best of Show" at the Minneapolis Art and Wildlife Exhibition, Kansas City National Wildlife Art Show, Iowa Wildlife Art Show, and Buffalo Gap Arts Festival, Abilene.

He has received several first place awards in area art shows, and was honored among those chosen by Who's Who in Texas.

Taylor's bronzes are represented by several fine art galleries across the United States.

The Angler, a continuity of motion characterizes this traditional depiction of a bald eagle snatching its prey from the water.

Photo from the Big Game Wildlife Series is the grizzly, one of the latest in Taylor's series of the more popular big game animals of North America. In keeping with prior editions, each animal has been rendered typical of its species and temperament.

Mother tells son 'I don't want you'

DEAR ABBY: As I was leaving the second floor of a major department store yesterday, I saw a little boy around 3 or 4 years old screaming hysterically as he ran blindly and all alone across the floor and onto the escalator right behind me.

Halfway down the escalator, he was still alone and screaming. His little face was contorted and purple. That was bad enough, but a woman ahead of me — all the way down at the bottom of the escalator — turned around and yelled, "No, I don't want you! You're a bad boy!"

Abby, I am a mother, too, and I can't begin to describe how much I hurt for that boy. I could never dream of pretending, even for a second, to abandon a child. I might have given him a tongue lashing, or threatened to spank him, but never would I say, "I don't want you," and I surely would never have taken my eyes off that kid in a large department store, never mind turning my back and leaving him!

Later I was sorry I didn't give that woman a royal blasting. What would you have done?

HUMAN, TOO, IN BOSTON

Dear Abby

DEAR HUMAN: I would not have given her a "royal blasting" — that would serve only to embarrass and humiliate her, and she'd probably take it out on the child when she got him home.

I would have approached her as inconspicuously as possible and quietly told her that I knew she was upset ("I'm a mother, too, and I know how you feel..."), then suggested that she get some kind of counseling to help her deal with the difficult job of parenting.

Of course, you would risk being told in no uncertain terms to mind your own business. But it would be a small price to pay if it would cause an out-of-control mother to seek the help she needs.

DEAR ABBY: A while back someone wrote to you complaining because she got too much attention while shopping in a department store. (She said she wanted to just "look" without having a salesperson pounce on her and stick to her like glue.)

Abby, what planet does this person live on? The last time a salesperson "stuck to me like glue" was 20 years ago. If I'm lucky enough to find someone to wait on me, I stick to her (or him) like glue!

Last winter I was looking for a flannel shirt, and when I asked the salesperson if she had any, she looked at me like I was crazy. Then she asked me what "flannel" was!

Last month, my favorite department store eliminated two cashiers' counters, and there was one woman frantically trying to help the line of customers waiting for her.

So, dear "Too Much Attention," the next time a salesperson sticks to you like glue, give 'em a big kiss for me and count your blessings.

Chalk Talk

Four Crossroads Coutry football teams clinched playoff appearances in action last Friday, and another gained the inside track to a post-season berth.

Area teams were 3-4 last week. In games where area teams collided, Grady pounded Borden County, 54-26, while Klondike nipped Sands, 26-16 in six-man action.

In other games, Forsan fell to Winters, 30-16, Coahoma lost to Wylie, 9-0, Colorado City beat Ballinger, 21-6, Stanton steamrolled Iraan, 28-7 and Garden City blanked Water Valley, 35-0.

C-City (7-3A), Stanton (5-2A) and Klondike (6-A, Six-Man) clinched district championships with their victories, while Grady is assured of the runner-up spot in District 6-A, Six-Man. Garden City will make the playoffs in District 8-A if it wins its remaining two games.

Here's what area coaches had to say about last week's games, and this week's opponents:

Leandro Gonzales, Grady, on the Wildcats' victory against Borden County and this week's game against Dawson:

"Offensively, we executed our blocking patterns well... defensively, we had a few mistakes, but nothing major.

"Dawson has had a tough season, but I guarantee they'll be ready to play. They're not just going to let us have the win."

Tom Ramsey, Colorado City, on his team's district-clinching win against Ballinger, and Friday's game with Coahoma:

"It was a typical Colorado City-Ballinger ball game; it was a pretty hard-hitting contest. It was 12-6 at the half, but we took control of the game in the final half. I thought the turning point was when we held them when they had first and goal in the first half. They were ahead 8-0 at the time, and we kept it from getting any worse.

"There's a lot of rivalry (involved with Coahoma). They usually save their best game for us. The kids like to play the game, so I'm not concerned with any letdown."

Sam Scott, Garden City, on the Bearkats' win against Water Valley, and this week's game against Sterling City:

"It was a big one for us. We thought a long time ago that we had to win at least two out of three (of games with Rankin, Iron County and Water Valley). The kids bounced back well (from the Rankin defeat) and did what they had to do."

"Sterling City has a stingy defense. They don't have the athletes they had a few years ago, but they do have a good defense. Their kids will compete hard and I'm sure they think they'll have a chance at an upset."

Dale Ruth, Stanton, on his team's victory against Iraan and this week's game against Marfa:

"It was a big game for us, and I thought we played real well. We had a 28-spurt in the second quarter that got us going. I thought the kids were a little uptight and nervous in the first quarter, but they finally got going."

"Marfa was rated as one of the top teams in the district at the start of all this. They have good personnel, good size and good quickness. John Fellows, who's gained over 1,200 yards rushing, is a good, little back for them. It'll be a tough ball game."

Steve Park, Coahoma, on the Bulldogs' loss to Wylie, and Friday's game with Colorado City:

"The kids again played real hard, and the defense did especially well. Wylie's got a lot of talent, but they only broke one big play (for 58 yards and a score). As a unit, the defense played outstanding."

"Colorado City's already clinched the district championship. They've got a lot of talent. They've got a good offense and defense, and we'll have to play a good game to win."

Randy Roemisch, Sands, on the Mustangs' loss to Klondike, and Friday's game against Borden County:

"We probably played one of our better games, we just came up short. We gave them a couple of big plays; plus we recovered four fumbles and only converted two of them."

"Borden County's probably the biggest team we've played this year. They've got a couple of really good players in Lance Latimer and Brian Bond. They've just played some good people this year."

Jan East, Forsan, on his team's loss to Winters, and Friday's season-ending game with Reagan County:

"If you take away the first seven minutes, it was a pretty good ball game. They scored 21 minutes in the first quarter, but after that, we beat them, 14-9. But Winters is a pretty good ball club."

"Reagan County is 9-0 and has been in the playoffs the last three or four years. We're going to have to be ready to play."

Joe Bond, Borden County, on last week's loss to Grady, and Friday's last game against Sands:

"I was pretty well pleased with the kids' effort. We got beat pretty bad, but we had (five starters) missing. I felt that the kids played about as well as they could play."

"Sands has a good ball club; a good, young team. They don't have a whole lot of size, but they're quick and aggressive. I expect a pretty good game from them."

Colts embarrass Broncos

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eric Dickerson celebrated his anniversary with the Indianapolis Colts, and the NFL's leading rusher provided the treats.

Performing before a record Hoosier Dome crowd of 60,628, Dickerson scored a career-high four touchdowns and rushed for 159 yards, going over 1,000 yards for an NFL record-tying sixth consecutive season despite carrying the ball only three times in the second half.

Indianapolis was ahead 45-10 at halftime en route to a 55-23 triumph in the first Monday night football game played in Indianapolis. Dickerson did all his scoring in the first half on runs of 12, 11, 1 and 41 yards, sparking Indianapolis to a 31-0 lead.

Dickerson and Coach Ron Meyer, who was reunited with the running back he coached at Southern Methodist on Halloween Night last year in a blockbuster three-team trade that brought him from the Los Angeles Rams, talked about his play at halftime.

"He asked me if I wanted to play more," Dickerson said. "I said I can sit out and let Albert (Bentley) play. I don't like to run scores up on people. We have to play another game this week (Sunday against the visiting New York Jets). It was no big deal."

"I felt I had a chance to run for 200 yards, but it may come another day."

The Colts totaled 244 yards on the ground against the worst rushing defense in the league.

"The offensive line did play a marvelous game," Meyer said. "I think it's noteworthy that for the third game in a row we allowed no sacks. As for Eric, he is just special."

"We could do nothing to stop Dickerson. He was outstanding," said Denver coach Dan Reeves after the two-time defending AFC champions fell to 4-5, the same record Indianapolis has in defense of its AFC Eastern Division title.

The Colts scored on seven of their nine first-half possessions, forced four fumbles, sacked Denver quarterback John Elway three times and didn't let Denver cross midfield until its seventh possession, five minutes into the second quarter.

By then, Indianapolis had its 31-0 lead on Dickerson's four touchdowns and the first of two field goals by Dean Biasucci. The Colts built the margin to 45-10 at halftime, breaking the franchise's record of 42 points in a half and falling only four points short of the NFL mark set by Chicago against Philadelphia in 1941 and matched by Green Bay in 1983 against Tampa Bay.

"Our defense really played well early in the ball game to create the turnovers, and the offense executed to take advantage of those turnovers," Meyer said.

Meyer also used the wishbone formation, with Dickerson, Bentley and George Wonsley lining up as running backs behind backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom, for the second consecutive week. Hogeboom, who replaced starter Chris Chandler whenever the Colts went to the wishbone, threw a

After seven years, Irish back on top

By The Associated Press
Notre Dame has reclaimed the top spot in the college football rankings for the first time in seven years. Lou Holtz is wary of the position.

"My motto's always been, first we'll be best, and then we'll be first," the Notre Dame coach said Monday. "Right now I'm not sure we're the best."

The latest AP poll of sports writers and broadcasters put the Fighting Irish on top for the first time since early in the 1981 season.

The Fighting Irish, coming off a sluggish 22-7 victory over Navy, will take the top ranking into Saturday's game against winless Rice.

"Here we are number one and I'm scared to death of a team that hasn't won a game all year," Holtz said. "We can't go the cash window yet and cash our tickets in. I just hope our players don't get all excited about being number one."

That position had been held for two weeks by UCLA, which lost to Washington State 34-30 on Saturday and fell to sixth.

Southern Cal, a 41-20 winner over Oregon State, moved from third to second, while Miami, Fla., moved up one place to third. West Virginia and Florida State rounded out the first five.

Notre Dame became the fourth team to be ranked No. 1 this season. Florida State was tops in the preseason poll but lost its opener to Miami 31-0. Miami then became No. 1 for six weeks before losing at Notre Dame 31-30. UCLA then stepped in for its two weeks on top of the college football world.

"It wasn't very good luck for Florida State," Holtz said. "It wasn't good luck for Miami and it wasn't for UCLA. It's nice that it creates an awful lot of interest."

But what we have to understand is, we're not defending a number one ranking. What we're doing is fighting for a national championship."

Since the AP poll began in 1936, Notre Dame has won seven national championships, more than any other school. But the Irish haven't won a national championship since 1977 and were last ranked No. 1 after opening the 1981 season and the Gerry Faust era with a 27-9 victory over Louisiana State. Notre Dame lost to Michigan 25-7 the following week and haven't been higher than fourth until beating Miami two weeks ago.

"We're not an indestructible team," said offensive tackle and co-captain Andy Heck. "We could just as easily fold as we go on and have a great season."

After Rice, the Irish face Penn State before ending the season at Southern Cal, setting up a possible meeting between the two top-ranked teams Nov. 26 in Los Angeles. Southern Cal, 7-0, would have to beat California, Arizona State and UCLA.

"It gets tougher now, because we're on top, and people are making stabs at us, trying to knock us off," Notre Dame tailback Mark Green said. "This team has done an incredible job this year but it's like building a house — it looks good and it hasn't fallen down yet, but it hasn't had a big storm yet, either," Holtz said.

Although the Top Ten teams in this week's poll are the same as last week, there was considerable shuffling.

West Virginia leaped from seventh to fourth by routing Penn State 51-30. The Mountaineers, 8-0 for the first time in their 97-year football history, was as high as No. 4 twice during the 1983 season.

Florida State was idle but rose from sixth to fifth followed by UCLA, Nebraska, which dropped from fifth to seventh, and Oklahoma, Auburn and Wyoming, Nos. 8, 9 and 10 last week.

The Second Ten consists of Arkansas, Oklahoma State, LSU, Michigan, South Carolina, Syracuse, Clemson, Alabama, Georgia and a tie for 20th between Brigham Young and Indiana.

Oregon fell out of the rankings by losing to Arizona State 21-20. BYU, 7-1, made it for the first time this season by crushing New Mexico 65-0 and Indiana, which dropped out after losing to Michigan last week, moved back in with a 45-34 victory over Iowa. The Hoosiers are 6-2-1.

Thompson's Time

The Big Spring Steers dropped a 49-0 decision to the Andrews Mustangs Friday night. Here is what Big Spring coach David Thompson had to say about that loss and this Friday's home finale against the Snyder Tigers.

"We just weren't mentally prepared to play. They were and we got our tails whipped. I don't have any idea why we played so badly. All we ask is that the kids play hard. We'll take responsibility for that. It's our job to get the kids ready to play."

"It happens in all levels of play. Look at the Dallas Cowboys and Denver Broncos. When you're not mentally prepared, it happens. We've got to stop that."

"We did have some kids like Pat Wilbert, John Covington and Jason Phillips."

"We'll make a few position changes, get some young kids in there. Maybe they'll give us some spark. We'll appeal to their character to bounce back. If they've got any, they will bounce back.

"Snyder has been hot and cold this year. You never know how they're going to play. But you know they'll play hard against Big Spring because this is a rivalry type deal. It's up to us to uphold our part of it."

Pokes now in Aikman stakes

IRVING (AP) — After going 0-for-October, the Dallas Cowboys have become legitimate contenders in the Troy Aikman sweepstakes.

The Cowboys, who are only a half-game behind the Kansas City Chiefs in the race to be the worst team in the NFL, play a tough schedule in the last seven games.

Dallas' remaining opponents have a record of 39-24.

This Sunday the Cowboys, who are having their worst season in 25 years, play at the New York Giants (6-3).

Then they meet in order the Minnesota Vikings (5-4), the Cincinnati Bengals (7-2), the Houston Oilers (6-3), the Cleveland Browns (6-3), the Washington Redskins (5-4) and the Philadelphia Eagles (4-5).

Sunday's 16-10 loss to Phoenix sent the Cowboys tumbling to a 2-7 ledger. Dallas has lost five games in row. The Cowboys haven't lost six consecutive games since the 1960 season.

Kansas City leads the chase for UCLA quarterback Aikman with a 1-7-1 record. Atlanta, Detroit,

Hawks drop opener to Weatherford 98-94

RANGER — The Howard College Hawks dropped their season basketball opener, a 98-94 decision to Weatherford College Monday night in the Ranger Junior College Classic.

The game was close all the way, but Howard trailed most of the time. The Hawks did rally to take a 40-39 halftime lead.

"We started real slow in the second half," said Howard coach Steve Green. "The first five minutes we didn't play well and we put ourselves in a hole. We had to play from behind."

"I really wasn't too pleased with our play. We had too many breakdowns."

Terrance Lewis and Michael

New led the Hawks with 22 and 20 points respectively. Larry Pettigrew and Charles Moore added 14 and 13 points. Moore led all Hawk rebounders with eight.

Tonight at 8, Howard will play Ranger, a winner over McMurry junior varsity.

Michael in the morning

CHICAGO (AP) — Soon you'll be able to gaze at Chicago Bulls star Michael Jordan at your breakfast table.

General Mills Inc announced Monday that Jordan will be pictured on the front of packages of Wheaties, a breakfast cereal marketed as "The Breakfast of Champions."

Jim Nuckols, a General Mills product manager, called Jordan "a man of real character and integrity," fitting for the positive image the product tries to promote.

"He truly is a champion in every sense of the word," Nuckols said at a news conference.

"I'm very happy to be part of the Wheaties organization," said Jordan, clad in his No. 23 Bulls jersey and black sweat pants. "A lot of people would love to be in my shoes."

While Jordan said Monday's honor was "up there" with being chosen as pro-basketball's Most Valuable Player last season, he admitted that as a child he hadn't even heard of the cereal.

"We had a big family," said the 25-year-old North Carolina native. "We used to eat wheat puffs — remember those in the big bags that could last ... through five or six kids? That's what we had."

Terms of the Wheaties agreement were not disclosed by Jordan or General Mills. But they did disclose that Jordan's picture would be printed on at least 12 million boxes of the cereal.

On the back of a series of Wheaties boxes will be installments of "The Michael Jordan Story," tracing his roots from an awkward child to the MVP award

Kansas hoop program chastised hard by NCAA

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Kansas was hit with a three-year probation today and became the first NCAA basketball champion ever barred from defending its title.

The NCAA stopped just short of imposing the death penalty, which would have shut down the basketball program for at least one season. In addition, the Jayhawks will not be allowed to give any paid campus recruiting visits in 1989 and will be stripped of one scholarship during that period.

The report by the Infractions Committee said the investigation was begun by telephone call from a "confidential informant" dealing with the recruitment of a "highly visible transfer student-athlete."

News reports have linked former Memphis State guard Vincent Askew to the probe although the NCAA announcement identified no one. Askew was recruited by KU and spent one summer on campus but returned to Memphis without playing.

David Berst, assistant executive director for enforcement, confirmed that no one who played on the 27-11 championship team at Kansas was involved in any serious violations.

The NCAA noted the Kansas football program received a major penalty in November 1983 and that this major basketball violation within a five-year period made the Jayhawks subject to having their program shut down.

The NCAA also outlined the following penalties for the Jayhawks, the fourth-winningest basketball program in NCAA history:

In addition to the three-year probation, the NCAA outlined the following penalties for the Jayhawks, the fourth-winningest basketball program in NCAA history:

—The team must end its 1988-89 season with the last regularly scheduled contest and cannot participate in postseason competition.

—Kansas can pay for no campus visits by basketball recruits in 1989.

—Kansas is stripped of one basketball scholarship for the 1989-90 academic year.

—Kansas must make annual reports on action it is taking during the probationary period to bring its program into compliance with NCAA rules, including a full audit of athletes' summer jobs; make annual reports on wages and salaries paid to players employed in university summer camps and campus operated by the school's athletic staff.

—Kansas must "show cause" why it should not be penalized further if it does not disassociate three unnamed "representatives of the athletics interests from the athletic program based upon their involvement in violations of NCAA rules."

The NCAA also criticized Kansas for the "casual administration of a summer jobs program" and said it was "troubled by statements by the university in its official response to the NCAA's letter of official inquiry and during the hearing before the committee that clear and admitted violations of NCAA regulations somehow should not be considered violations."

"Such statements diminished the committee's sense of confidence that the university was prepared to take institutional action to discipline individuals for whom it was responsible and who were involved in NCAA violations," the NCAA said.

Following up on the information by the confidential informant, the NCAA said it found violations that included improper inducements with a total value of at least $1,244 to the recruit.

These included a $183 airline ticket; a loan of $350; the provision of clothes worth $231; payment of at least $297.12 to the prospect for work not actually performed; and $366 in cash from "the then men's head basketball coach for the young man to purchase a roundtrip airline ticket."

"The committee made additional findings of improper recruiting inducements, contacts and transportation related to the recruitment of this prospective transfer student-athlete, as well as one finding of improper entertainment for a different prospective student-athlete," the NCAA said.

Kansas officials, describing themselves "frustrated and disappointed, said they would not fight the decision."

"Because we believe the university effectively presented its case, and we believe the NCAA committee gave us a fair hearing, we will not appeal," Bob Frederick, athletic director, said at a news conference on the campus in Lawrence.

Kansas officials had complained that the NCAA was taking more than a month to render its verdict. Berst said the delay was caused partly by deliberations on whether to make Kansas the second school to receive the death penalty.

Yanks hire Green

NEW YORK (AP) — George M. Steinbrenner III runs the New York Yankees in a style that matches the numerals at the end of the owner's name: "1, 1, 1."

This view of baseball does not coincide with that of his new manager, Dallas Green.

"I had a slogan in Philadelphia. 'We, not I,'" Green said Monday. "I think that's the way it should be done."

As Green said Monday, "We're gonna have a lot of fun."

George Dallas Green Jr., the 17th manager in the reign of Steinbrenner, was introduced to New York on Monday. He has the reputation of a tough guy and sounded like it.

"I'm coming in here as a new guy because everybody who was supposed to know about these guys didn't get the job done," he said. Green is the first Yankees manager to join the organization from the outside since Billy Martin came to New York in 1975 for Billy I. And Green has his views on how things should be done.

"I really believe in some disciplines that are really necessary to bring a team together," he said.

Talk like that is what convinced Steinbrenner to bring Green to Yankee Stadium. But Steinbrenner also is not known as a supporter of pluralism. After all, there have been 11 general managers, 17 managers, 30 pitching coaches and nine spokesmen since he purchased the team on Jan. 3, 1973. He banishes all who disagree with his decrees.

"I think the understanding George and I have is that we're men and we're going to talk together as men," Green said.

"We are still hurting in the last two minutes of the game," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Until we learn to get over that hump then we're not going to have much success."

Dallas has lost five games by 19 points. Three losses have come in the final two minutes.

Landry isn't planning an immediate switch to backup quarterback Kevin Sweeney although Steve Pelluer had one of his poorest games since becoming the starter.

"You have to keep working and climb out of it," Landry said.

53-yard touchdown pass to Bill Brooks in the second quarter.

"The offensive mix was good, the combination of Chandler and Hogeboom in the game and the use of the wishbone," Meyer said.

"It gives the defense a different look," Dickerson said of the formation which has had little use in the NFL. "I know it confused Denver. They didn't know who was going to get the ball."

Dickerson, seeking a fourth NFL rushing title in six years, raised his season total to 1,038 yards, joining Franco Harris and Walter Payton for the most consecutive 1,000-yard seasons with his 50th regular-season 100-yard game. The first back to run for 1,000 yards in his first six years in the NFL boosted his career-rushing total to 9,294 — the eighth highest in league history and just 113 yards short of No. 7 Earl Campbell.

Dickerson broke the Colts' record of three rushing touchdowns in a game he shared with Alan Ameche, Lenny Moore, Tom Matte, Don McCauley and Randy McMillan.

His first touchdown came on a 12-yard run early in the first quarter. Chris Goode's recovery of a fumble after a pass reception by Pat Kelly and a personal foul on Denver's Clarence Kay gave the Colts possession at the Broncos' 10-yard line. After a 5-yard penalty, Dickerson ran twice and scored from the 11 to give Indianapolis a 14-0 lead before Denver recorded its first first down.

Denver's next two possessions also ended in fumbles, once by Mark Jackson after a pass reception and another by Elway on a bobbled snap from center.

After Jackson's fumble, it took Indianapolis five plays to score, all on runs by Dickerson. His one-yard dive put the Colts ahead 21-0 with 16 seconds left in the first quarter.

Biasucci kicked a 31-yard field goal three plays after Elway's fumble, and it took only one play for the Colts to score again after consecutive sacks of Elway forced Denver to punt from its own end zone. Dickerson, matching his longest run of the season, raced 41 yards through the middle on the first play for his fourth touchdown.

Denver scored on the next series, with passes of 23 yards to Vance Johnson and 45 to Jackson taking the Broncos to the Indianapolis 2. Elway hit Steve Sewell on the next play for the touchdown, but Denver was never able to mount a serious challenge.

October farm prices — 13% higher this year

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — New figures from the Agriculture Department show farm commodity prices, on the average, have held steady the last two months after peaking during the summer drought.

Even so, the USDA's preliminary figures released Monday showed that October prices still averaged 13 percent more than they did a year ago.

The department's Agricultural Statistics Board said prices rose from September to October for oranges, milk, lettuce and corn but were offset by lower prices for tomatoes, apples, eggs and soybeans.

Meanwhile, prices paid by farmers to meet expenses — a figure computed only every three months — rose 1.2 percent from July and averaged 5.5 percent more than a year ago.

Farmers paid more for feeder cattle and calves than they did in July, but feed and fuels were lower, the report said.

Prices received by farmers for some major commodities are based on mid-month averages and then are revised the following month when additional information is available.

The revised figures showed the leveling off actually began in September when the price index held steady at its August average. The preliminary reading for October continued at the August-September level.

Prices of raw farm commodities began rising in May as the drought worsened and continued climbing in June, July and August, an increase of about 11 percent from last April.

After holding steady during most of last winter, the USDA index rose 3.1 percent from April to May, followed by June, 2.2 percent; July 2.9 percent; and August 2.1 percent.

The drought and searing heat during the spring and summer cut 1988 harvest prospects sharply and triggered the midyear price rise. Total U.S. grain production is ex-

Cotton harvesting has begun in the county and the local crops "really look good," — as displayed in this photograph taken two miles north of Knott this morning — according to Don Richardson, Howard County agriculture extension agent. Although harvesting is at a minimum now, farmers are expecting a freeze before Nov. 15 that will spur increased stripping of local crops, Richardson said. Harvesting occurred primarily in the Knott and Ackerly areas last week, he said. A related story appears on page 1-A.

pected to be down 31 percent from last year's harvest.

Despite the leveling of the overall price index, some commodity prices were higher in October. Wheat, for example, rose an additional 14 cents per bushel to a U.S. farm price average of $3.89 per bushel, the most since it was $3.95 in May 1981.

Prices of livestock and livestock products as a group were unchanged from September, although dairy products gained 3.1 percent during the month and the index for poultry and eggs declined 5 percent. Compared with October 1987, the index was up 4.1 percent.

The department's all-crops price index for October, although unchanged from September, was up 27 percent from a year earlier. Prices of feed grain and hay as a group rose 1.5 percent from September and averaged 62 percent more than in October 1987.

Prices of commercial vegetables were down 5 percent from September but were still 8.2 percent more than a year ago.

Although the projections are subject to change, USDA economists say that net cash income of farmers may be in the range of $55 billion to $60 billion this year, compared with the record level of $57.1 billion in 1987. That is the difference between cash receipts and cash expenses during the calendar year.

Department economists are holding to an earlier prediction that consumer food prices will rise 3 percent to 5 percent this year, compared with a 4.2 percent average increase in 1987. Before the drought took hold, USDA was predicting a 1988 food price hike of 2 percent to 4 percent.

Some USDA officials also have predicted that the drought may add 2 percentage points to food prices in 1989, above the expected increase in inflation, currently forecast at around 4 percent. That could mean a 1989 food price increase in the range of 6 percent to 7 percent.

The report said:

• Cattle averaged $67.90 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, up from $67.20 in September and $62.90 reported for October 1987. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

• Hogs averaged $39.40 per 100 pounds, compared with $40.70 in September and $48.90 a year earlier.

• Corn, at $2.71 a bushel, was up from $2.60 in September and the average of $1.55 per bushel a year earlier.

• Wheat prices at the farm, according to preliminary figures averaged $3.89 per bushel, compared with $3.75 in September and $2.62 a year earlier.

• Rice averaged $7.15 per 100 pounds, compared with $6.82 in September and $5.88 a year earlier.

• Soybeans were $7.71 per bushel, compared with $7.94 in September and $5.04 a year earlier.

• Upland cotton was reported at 50 cents per pound, compared with 51.8 in September and 65.1 cents in October 1987.

• Eggs were 58.7 cents per dozen, compared with 63.8 cents in September and 50.2 cents a year earlier.

• Milk was $12.80 per 100 pounds, compared with $12.40 in September and $12.90 a year earlier.

• Broilers were 37.5 cents per pound, live weight, compared with 39.2 cents in September and 25.1 cents a year ago.

State's pumpkin prices up

DALLAS (AP) — There's good news for Texas pumpkin growers and bad news for pumpkin lovers because of the drought that wiped out or sharply reduced pumpkin crops in the Midwest.

Texas pumpkin growers who raise their crop on irrigated fields are finding that they are getting good prices for their crops as they are in demand to become Halloween jack-o-lanterns and Thanksgiving pumpkin pies.

The bad news is in the form of higher prices for pumpkin lovers.

"Pumpkin prices are way up and they're in demand," Ellen Ritter of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service said Wednesday.

Pumpkins are selling for 15-20 cents per pound at the retail level this year, compared with 10-15 cents per pound last year.

The mini-Jack Be Little and Munchkin varieties that are used as decorated centerpieces cost as much as 40 cents per pound.

"The price is way out of line, but many people are willing to pay anything for what they think depicts beauty," Roland Roberts, an agriculture service vegetable specialist in Lubbock, said.

Roberts said growers in the Panhandle have produced about 39 million pounds of pumpkins this year on 1,500 acres.

The growers are getting 5-6 cents per pound for pumpkins this year, compared to 3-4 cents per pound a year ago, Roberts said.

Gilbert Helm, manager of the Dallas Farmers Market, said consumers should be able to tell a difference in the prices they are paying for pumpkins this year.

Cranes return to Texas

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Endangered whooping cranes have been spotted on the Texas coast, and wildlife officials say they expect a record number of the birds to arrive here for the winter.

About 11 cranes were sighted at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, said refuge manager Brent Giezantner.

He said a record number of cranes are expected to make their way to the refuge and surrounding marshes from their nesting grounds at Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada.

"We're expecting a dramatic increase, because a lot of these birds that were produced four or five years ago are now starting to breed," Giezantner said.

As many as 145 may make the trip this winter, according to biologists. Last year, 132 birds arrived at and around the refuge north of Corpus Christi, while one juvenile whooping crane stayed farther north in the Edna area and another was spotted in the Texas Panhandle.

Officials reported that three whooping cranes were lost since last winter at the refuge and an adult female from a nesting pair was lost during migration last spring.

The number of whooping cranes has increased steadily since 1982, when 73 were recorded, Giezantner said. The species had fewer than 20 birds and faced extinction in the late 1930s.

CRMWD budget remains nearly the same for 1989

By Joe Pickle
Special to the Herald

Although it is in the middle of a $70,000,000 long range supply project at Stacy, the Colorado River Municipal Water District will operate its financial affairs at about the same level in 1989 as this year.

Directors Thursday morning adopted an operating budget of $12,645,631, up $73,343 or .58 of one percent over the current year. Virtually all the increase is for manpower costs directly and in benefits.

This marks the sixth consecutive year that CRMWD budgets have remained almost constant. The 1989 budget is actually .39 of one percent less than in 1987 and 1.33 percent less than in 1986. In fact, the new budget is up only .91 of one percent over 1984, the first year that district budgets topped the $12,000,000 mark.

Revenue estimates total the same as expenses, and for 1989 this includes $12,555,631 — estimated water sales, up $73,343 from this year's projections. This postulates modest gains in deliveries, for while water rates to cities are not fixed until January, the adopted budget does not anticipate any significant changes.

Budgeted operational expenses of $6,607,266 would be up $61,977 or .95 of one percent. Debt service of $4,976,415 is up only $3,621 of .07 of one percent. (Not in the budget is an additional $5,467,013 debt service for Stacy reservoir, which is totally funded by contract cities of Abilene, Midland and San Angelo, plus one half from district reserves.)

The majority of operational costs, or $3,607,000, is for electric energy, and estimated decrease of $233,294 due to more economical pumping patterns from the nearest sources of water. Next greatest item is manpower (payroll) costs of $1,584,966, up $89,571 or 5.99 percent. When one new position is taken out the rise is about 4 percent.

Also, of the administrative and general allocation of $1,061,668 in 1989, an increase of $84,637 is attributable for hospitalization, social security and retirement benefits.

Net revenue at the end of next year is pegged at $2,011,353, most of which will go to indented and reserve funds. An item of $1,061,950 or $7,800 more than this year, is provided for future water supplies.

CRMWD board addresses Natural Dam's discharge

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District moved Thursday to try and head off discharge of Natural Dam Lake's salty contents into the Lake E.V. Spence water shed.

Management was authorized to negotiate contracts, with limits, which will result in cutting flow through and under the natural earthen plug on Sulphur Draw 10 miles west of Big Spring. The dam may be increased five feet to Elevation 2460.00, which would increase capacity by about one-third. Then the top and downside of the structure would be topped by roller compacted concrete so that the dam would in effect become its own spillway if ever it were topped. Some 79,000 ac. ft. of poor-quality water had been discharged from the lake in the past two years as a safety measure, but it forced even larger discharges from Lake Spence, board officials said. Cost of the work was estimated from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000.

Supply line pipes across Buzzard and Sulphur Draws, at the upper end of the lake, are being raised to prevent the possibility of cutting off service to the west should line-breaks occur in the underwater areas. This may run up to around $200,000.

A budget of $12,645,631 for 1989 was adopted. It is up less than one percent from last year, secretary/treasurer Joe Pickle reported.

Also adopted was a code of ethics to avoid conflict of interests by directors or officers of the district, and which has been signed by each.

Right of way easements were granted to All American Pipeline in Concho County and General Telephone in Coke County across district-owned lands. The board appropriated a second $2,000 toward assisting the Sabine River Authority law suit against the Department of Interior and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to block what General Manager Owen Ivie said would bar any future Texas reservoir projects.

Drilling report

Exxon has given up on its efforts to make a producer out of a Howard County wildcat venture, 10 miles northwest of Big Spring.

Exxon's No. 1-4-G, Wilkinson was spudded on July 25 and probed to a dry bottom at 10,685 feet. It will be plugged and abandoned.

Wildcat drilling is nearing projected total depth at a Howard County location 12 miles west of Big Spring. The explorer well is known as the No. 1 Hamilton "G." It carries permit for maximum hole of 10,800 feet. Union Texas Petroleum Inc. of Midland is the operator.

Marathon Oil of Midland has called in a completion rig at the No. 29 KLOH, a developmental well in the Howard-Glasscock Field, two miles southwest of Forsan. Spudded on Oct. 6, it was taken to total depth of 2,700 feet. No details have been released regarding pay prospects.

Drilling operations have reached the 7,100-ft. mark at the No. 2 F.F. Umphress et al., a developmental bid in Howard County's Mer. Max Field. With drillsite two miles northwest of Coahoma, the well is under permit for maximum drilling depth of 9,400 feet. Meridian Oil Inc. of Midland is the operator.

MARTIN COUNTY A total of three new producers have been completed in Martin County's part of the Spraberry Trend Parker and Parsley of Midland is the operator.

The wells are designated as the No. 1 Fisherman "A," No. 1 Scharbauer "M," and the No. 1 Breedlove "A." The latter well had been completed at a deeper pay interval earlier this year.

Parker and Parsley posted production potentials including 29.44 and 38 barrels of oil per day, respectively. Casinghead gas potentials ranged from 38,000 to 42,000 CF per day. Locations are six miles northeast of Stanton, 14 miles southwest of Lenorah and 20 miles northwest of Tarzan, respectively.

Pay intervals ranged from 6,696 to 9,659 feet into the wellbore. The Breedlove well had potential at 14 barrels of oil daily when completed on March 9 in a Devonian structure, 12,130 to 12,150 feet into the hole.

Heritage Resources of Midland has temporarily abandoned a Martin County wildcat located 21 miles west of Stanton. Spudded on Sept. 11, the well had bottomed at TD of 10,630 feet. It is designated as the No. 1 Courtney Cowden "A."

Flowing 411 barrels of 44 gravity oil daily along with 463,000 CF casinghead gas, the No. 1 R.J. Shortes is an impressive wildcat success for Jet Oil Co. of Dallas in Martin County, 14 miles northeast of Lenorah.

Potential was gauged on a quarter-inch choke. The flow pressure stood at an even 800 PSI.

Jet bottomed the explorer well at 10,000 feet and plugged it back to 9,825. Production will be from a set of Canyon Sand perforations, 9,516 to 9,562 feet into the wellbore.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY The South Lake Blacklock Field gained an excellent producer when the No. 1501 F.B. Powell was brought on line 14 miles northwest of Garden City. Trend Exploration of Midland is the operator.

It flowed 411 barrels of oil per day plus 288,000 CF gas on a 22-64 choke. It bottomed at 8,277 feet and will produce from a set of Wolfcamp Formation perforations, 7,220 to 8,164 feet into the wellbore. Oil tested at 43 gravity. Flowing tubing pressure registered 358 PSI.

Flowing 1,100,000 CF gas per day on a 14-64 choke, the No. 15-0 Woody has been completed in the SFM Field, Glasscock County, 16 miles west-northwest of Garden City. Sun Exploration of Midland is the operator.

The well was assigned and absolute open flow rating of 2,000,000 CF/D. Flow pressure on choke was gauged at 1,356 PSI. Production will be from the Strawn Formation at 10,000 to 10,200 feet. No perforations were required.

At a location 11 miles southwest of Garden City, EP Operating has completed the No. 1 Daniels Unit II, flowing 226 barrels of oil with 1,053,000 CF gas and a small volume of stal water.

The well bottomed at 10,700 feet and will produce from a perforated interval in the Strawn Formation, 9,001 to 9,044 feet into the hole. EP is a Dallas-based corporation.

BORDEN COUNTY

For a second time in the span of seven years, the No. 1 Nance-Occidental has been branded as a dry hole in Borden County's Elsie Field. Location is about 14 miles northwest of Gail. The well probed to a total depth of 9,060 feet and showed no commercial prospects when perforated at 6,990 to 7u,396 feet in the Spraberry Trend.

The well originally had been labeled as a duster when drilled in November of 1981. Oxy Petroleum is the operator.
