Raceway drawing support

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioners today offered their support to a proposed raceway at the Howard County Airport location.

Promoters Jimmy and Dottie Leffler told the commissioners the National Hot Rod Association and other sanctioning bodies had promised to book races at the facility if the Lefflers can build the raceway

The Lefflers have the backing for at least a drag strip and are working on a $10-million investment deal with Los Angeles investors that would allow five kinds of auto racing at the site. Jimmy Leffler said that type of track would bring in a projected income of "$9 million a year.

He said he and his wife toured the facility, currently leased to the Industrial Foundation for $10 per year, and "it's sad. It looks like a dump ground."

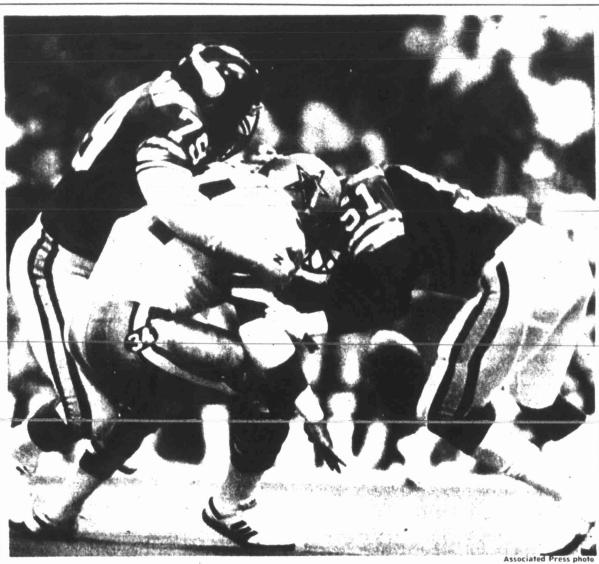

He offered to double the county's current income from the lease. Commissioner David Barr suggested having the county consider looking into a percentage of the income for the lease.

Commissioner Louis Brown said, "I'm on your side," and Commissioner Paul Allen agreed, "We need to look at this and decide from there.

The contract with the Industrial Foundation, according to Allen and Commissioner Bill Crooker, mandates that the industrial foundation maintain the buildings at the site and keep them rented. Following a decision to examine the property personally, the commissioners approved a resolution to support a change in the oath-ofoffice law and the conflict-ofinterest law so that a proposed interpretation of the latter would not keep commissioners and county from serving on boards of agencies such as the United Way and Scouting groups, as well as on boards of firms or shareowners in companies with which the county might do business. Commissioners voted to close a road on the Bobby Lawdermilk property and announced that CapRock Electric Company will move telephone poles, thus settling RACEWAY page 3-A

Bush team acts to calm market

Associated Press Writer

GULF STREAM, Ela. - The cochairman of President-elect George Bush's transition team moved to calm nervous financial markets today by assuring them that cutting the federal budget deficit would be "priority one" for the incoming administration.

'I do think we've got to turn first to the deficit problem as soon as we undertake a new administration.' Craig Fuller, Bush's chief of staff, said from Washington on the NBC-TV "Today" program.

Questions about the markets' behavior have dogged the vice president during his post-election Florida beach vacation. The dollar spiralled downward Friday. depressing stock prices for the biggest daily loss on Wall Street since April and reflecting concerns about how President-elect George Bush will manage the economy.

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks lost 47.66 points Friday to finish at 2,067.03. That gave the blue-chip indicator a net loss of 78.77 points for the week, the steepest electionweek decline since the 1948 victory of President Harry S. Truman.

The dollar stood at a 10-month low against the Japanese yen and at five-month lows against the West German mark and British pound

Bush turned aside reporters asking about the stock market slide as he left a church service Sunday.

"I just came to get my instructions from the head of our family here on how to do my job," he said with an arm around his frail mother, Dorothy Walker Bush.

Asked about the nosedive of the stock market since his election and the weakening dollar, he said, "No comment on that one.

Fuller said Sunday that Bush plans to name his top economic advisers later this week

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady is widely expected to stay on with Bush and former Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard G. Darman has been reported to be the choice for budget director.

Fuller, asked in the interview today about investors' concerns, said the Bush White House is moving quickly to address the deficit.

"We've already had some good contacts with the (House Speaker James Wright, D-Texas). I expect to have further contacts with the speaker. I think you'll have people who have a great deal of experience working with each other willing to sit down early and talk about these concerns," Fuller said.

Investors should understand, he said, that no major differences in spending priorities from the Reagan administration are planned.

Quayle's VP role stirring debates

By EILEEN PUTMAN

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Dan Quayle is likely to be a "man on the outside" in George Bush's White House following a vice presidential candidacy that began in a furor but settled into obscurity, experts say. Encumbered by his image as a political novice who needed a bevy of professional handlers to survive early campaign controversies, Quayle enters a Bush administration in which he has few intimates or allies

Relegated in the campaign to small towns and safe GOP areas. Quayle as vice president is likely to be given a traditional ceremonial going to political gatherings and state funerals - rather than the advisory role that Walter Mondale and even Bush had, some scholars feel. 'Dan Quayle is going to set the vice presidency back about a decade or more. One thing that political scientists have been talking about is just how much the vice presidency has grown....With Quayle, it's just going to retreat to the old days of politics and funerals," said Ryan Barilleaux, a professor of political science at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, who studies the American presidency.

Bush rarely mentioned his 41-year-old running mate during the campaign. When asked, Bush employed the stock lines that Quayle would "make an outstanding vice president" and had been "tempered by steel" as he weathered the early furor over his military service, academic record and personal life. The president-elect told

Eddie Mahe Jr., a GOP consultant who worked with the Bush campaign, says Bush is likely to give Quayle a more active role in the administration than he had in the campaign. "Vindication demands that. Both of them will want to prove how right the decision was," Mahe says.

But that's not the way everyone

Both Bush and Mondale came to their vice presidential campaigns with substantial reputations and were able to place key staffers in important positions in the respective presidential campaigns, Barilleaux notes.

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

More than three dozen Howard County youngsters spent Saturday learning about small animals, wildlife and photography during 4-H Project

County Extension agents Don Richardson, Mike Bragg and Naomi Hunt oversaw the informal seminars on the three subjects, with help from adult leaders like Hannah Coleman, photography assistant, and Corky Burcham, small animals assistant.

Richardson said 13 youngsters signed up for the photography program, the only one of the activities conducted entirely at the Howard County Fairgrounds fair barn where all three groups assembled at 9 a.m. He said 14 youngsters took the small animals tour and 13 more joined Bragg in the wildlife program.

Hunt's students were given small 35-millimeter cameras and assigned a series of photographs to make, and saw a 'camera's eve view'' of scenes outside the life-size camera Coleman constructed, according to spokespersons Leanna Price and Courtney Fryar, as well as making "sun photos" by placing objects on photographic paper and exposing the resulting designs with light from an enlarger. They also toured Keaton Kolor's photo studios and developing facilities. Bragg's group traveled to the nature trail in Comanche Trail Park and to a prairie dog town before journeying to Eddie Symer's place, according to spokesman Justin Delgado, to see exotic birds

They also built bird feeders from kits and learned about gun safety, according to spokesman Michael Burcham, and were given clay pigeons as a reminder of their experience with target shooting. The youngsters then went to the M.H. Boatler farm where they viewed wild turkeys, sheep and a Longhorn steer.

Richardson's group also traveled quite a bit. Each member of the tour spoke about one of the activities completed, with Rodney House describing a trip to "the bird lady's farm" and Alyssa Taylor recounting a trip to the Howard County Humane Society's animal shelter.

weddings in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — It was the on ly alternative, make that altarnative, for 16 residents at a public housing project after police told the eight live-in boyfriends to get married or get moving.

So on Sunday, eight brides, dressed in pink gowns donated by a local dressmaker, and eight grooms, wearing black tuxedos provided by a formal wear store, tied the knot.

After a Sept. 20 police raid to combat gang violence in the Rockwell Gardens housing project, overnight guests were banned, meaning the boyfriends were forced to choose between walking down the aisle or walking out the door:

"I just love it," said the former Tammy Grigsby, 20, who married Eugene Young, 54. "We had been planning to get married, but since they went on and pressed the issue, we was all for it.

The couples beamed as the Rev. Louise Reed pronounced them husbands and wives

Chicago Housing Authority Chairman Vincent Lane, whose agency arranged the wedding, said the nuptials represent a step in the right direction for the residents involved.

The agency also will work with the husbands, all unemployed, to help them find jobs, he said. These people are models and I have high hope for them," said Lane, who ceremony: I trink a great dea. what happens in public housing in Chicago is riding on their shoulders

U.S. District Judge Barefoot day there is no constitutional basis nor legal precedent to force the Department of Human Services to disclose all records about the children they adopt

The parents, who filed the suit last May seeking records and help with staggering medical bills for their children's emotional treatment, say the children often have so much pent-up rage and other emotional problems that they become a danger to themselves and their new family.

"It seems irrational to say that the parents don't have the right to the background information," said the Rev. Bob Chandler, the adoptive father of an abused child. "If we had not gotten the records, Tina might still be a child without hope.

The state contends it shares all known relevant information with prospective adoptive parents through interviews and written summaries. But medical specialists who treat adopted abused children say few states fully disclose details that can be essential to recovery. Knives disappeared from the kitchen, later to be found as Tina raced through the house, ripping up furniture in a rage.

Fearing for their lives, the Chandlers later installed locks on their bedroom doors.

Top-selling steer brings $27,000 price

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - A Texas steer named Big Boy brought big bucks when the animal was auctioned for $27,000 at the American Royal Sales

Dwight Sutherland of the Kansas City-based Sutherland Lumber Co. bought the grand champion steer — a 1,261-pound Chianina-Angus — on Sunday at the livestock show.

Sutherland said he would donate it to the University of Kansas Medical Center.

The steer's owner, 17-year-old Michael Mustian of Graham, Texas, said he was excited about the sale and that most of the money would go toward his tuition at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, the school he plans top attend.

"This is probably the most outstanding steer I've seen here for years," said Sutherland, who bought the grand champion in 1984 for $18,000. "I am happy to do it (buy the steer) and happy to help the young man with his education.'

Economists optimistic about Texas

update

DALLAS (AP) — Texas is slowly shaking off the oil and real estate depression and shifting toward exports, manufacturing and small business start-ups, which economists say are setting the stage for new investment.

And a consensus forecast by The Dallas Morning News Board of Economists calls for the state jobless rate to fall in coming months, even though the panel expects a decreased rate of growth for the national economy

'You've got to look at the fundamentals. At the basic industries, at employment, at the changing industrial structure, at the demographic trends...Texas is looking real good," said Bernard L. Weinstein, director of the Center for Enterprising at Southern Methodist University.

"I think there will be a stampede of investors over the next year," he The panel said the state got a boost last week with the announcement that the multibillion dollar superconducting "super collider" will be built in Ellis County.

"If we get a $6 billion federal construction project into Texas, it also brings us a national research lab and an additional $250 million or so in research money," said M. Ray Perryman, director of the Baylor University Forecasting Service.

The super collider announcement came only two days after voters sent several influential Democratic and Republican Texans to key Washington posts, including President-elect George Bush, who is expected to appoint a handful of Texans to his Cabinet.

Although Lloyd Bentsen was on the losing Democratic ticket as the vice presidential nominee, he was re-elected to his seat in the Senate, where he is chairman of the powerful Finance Committee.

The panel said Texas' power base in Washington could grow and become ever more important for the state recovery, especially if House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth is able to resolve issues raised by a House ethics committee investigating his dealings with insolvent Texas savings and loan associations.

The board, however, foresees the price of West Texas intermediate crude falling to $14.63 per barrel below the perceived comfort level

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, said he will use the meeting to argue for a $50 billion emergency program to head off an impending-crisis in the nation's thrift industry.

Gonzalez will urge Brady to extend a $50 billion line of credit to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. so it can move to deal with the nation's many insolvent thrifts.

'The alternative is chaos and a breakdown in our present financial system," Gonzalez said in an interview Saturday at the San Antonio Light. "The eventual cost to the na-

Gonzalez, 72, has won the backing of House Speaker Jim Wright in his bid to succeed Banking Committee Chairman Fernand J. St Germain of Rhode Island, who was defeated for re-election last week.

The 27-year House veteran said Congress and the Reagan Administration both contributed to the S&L crisis by putting the issue off until after the General Election.

'Nobody wanted to rock the boat," he said. Gonzalez wrote Wright last month urging emergency preparations in case the thrift crisis came to a head before Congress convenes in January. But Saturday, he said administration officials can authorize his proposed $50 billion line of credit on their own.

"I think a lot can be done now, without congressional legislation,'

Gonzalez criticized the FSLIC's current Southwest Plan, under which insolvent thrifts in Texas and other states have been bundled together and offered to investors with the government assuming most of the risk.

"All they've done is stitch together six or seven dead corpses, and all they've done is produce a bigger corpse that stinks more," he deregulation bill he opposed. As chairman, Gonzalez said he would move slowly and carefully in any further deregulation of the financial services industry, particularly as concerns the Glass-Steagall Act that separates commercial banking from investment banking.

Gonzalez blamed much of the thrifts' problems on a 1982

Lawyers for Mrs. Conn called the appeal "entirely without merit."

'Every appellate court to consider the issue has held that a man does not have the right to a court order enjoining a woman from exercising her abortion right," they said. "This has been true in cases where the man seeking the court order was the woman's husband.' The case is Conn vs. Conn, 88-347.

Witnesses uncooperative in shooting

A 46-year-old Big Spring man has been released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center following treatment for a gunshot wound he received early Sunday at the Howard County Fair Barn, authorities said.

Felipe Villa, 1603 Donley St., was shot in the right thigh about 1:15 a.m. by a passenger in a pickup as he was walking with several people, Detective Sgt. Bill King said.

Villa was transported by ambulance to Scenic Mountain Medical Center and was admitted for treatment, but was released Sunday afternoon, according to a nursing supervisor. King said details are sketchy. although he believes Villa was shot with a handgun, because witnesses to the shooting are being uncooperative. "Nobody saw anything. I'm really getting tired of this. These (witnesses) are the same people who will be screaming a couple of weeks from now that we don't have anyone in jail," he said.

But Eddie Mahe Jr., a GOP consultant who worked with the Bush campaign, says Bush is likely to give Quayle a more active role in the administration than he had in

"Vindication demands that. Both of them will want to prove how right the decision was," Mahe

Democrats portrayed Quayle during the campaign as a lightweight, a man with little or no legislative accomplishments, untested and unqualified to be a heartbeat away from the presidency. Even some members of Quayle's own party were dismayed at Bush's choice.

Quayle didn't help his case by making a number of celebrated gaffes during the campaign, perhaps the worst being his garbled explanation of the Holocaust and his declaration, "I didn't live in this century.

Norman Ornstein, of the American Enterprise Institute, says Quayle, while "not the world's leading intellectual," is not "a complete dummy." He was simply thrust into a situation for which he was unprepared, Ornstein says. "I think he's immature. He's not stupid," Ornstein says.

But Quayle comes to the White House with "a very damaging stereotype that's developed about him that's widely believed in the political community and that's believed by a large segment of the electorate," Ornstein says.

"That's going to give him a good deal to overcome. It's going to give him an enormous impetus to prove himself. That's going to be difficult, given the office.

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from across the nation:

Can slurs be forgotten?

From Ted Kennedy's "Where was George?" speech at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta through the last airing of the Willie Horton revolving door commercial, the mud flew freely. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Dukakis' running mate, watched it fly. Kennedy, Howard Metzenbaum, Jim Wright and Robert Byrd heard their names invoked negatively to energize conservative audiences.

When President Bush goes to the Hill with legislation, Cabinet nominees and Supreme Court appointees, these Democrats will be waiting in the Capitol. . .

Democrats who may harbor bitter memories . . . may be eager to remind Bush that his coattails are short and the Americans have opted for power sharing between the Democrats on the Hill and the Republicans in the White

Roanoke (Va.) Times & World-

Time to end negativity

George Bush attained the pinnacle of his political career with a sweeping victory over Michael Dukakis last night, ending the lengthiest and one of the most bitter presidential campaigns in American history.

All citizens now must hope that the new Republican president-elect will succeed in fulfilling his campaign promises, to seek a "kinder, gentler nation" and to build upon the best elements of the Reagan years. That task will not be easy.

The negativity of the campaign must be replaced by positive commitments to raise the hopes and opportunities of those who have very little of either. As Dukakis put it in his gracious concession speech, every citizen must become "a full shareholder of the American dream."

Seattle Post-Intelligencer

Election paradox inherent

The paradox inherent in Tuesday's presidential election suggests difficulty ahead as George Bush seeks to govern this nation. No one should find joy in that prospect. All Americans should wish Bush well, for their future rides with his.

The paradox is that Bush was chosen president in an election Michael Dukakis lost and President Reagan won. Bush served as intermediary, slashing at Dukakis while promoting Reagan policies that brought deceptive prosperity and peace. Bush now has no Dukakis to run against and no Reagan to run for. He must govern on his

Minneapolis Star Tribune

Now rise above campaign

Apparently a majority of voters were untroubled by the deplorable campaign conducted by the vice president; worse, perhaps they were taken in by his insinuations that his opponent was an extremist, was unpatriotic, belonged to a subversive organization and personally let murderers out of prison.

In either case, the first challenge facing the presidentelect is to demonstrate that, notwithstanding his sleazy campaign, his presidency will not be predicated on appeals to people's worst instincts. Down the road lies national division and turmoil. Mr. Bush, who was perceived through most of his career as a man of moderate views and tolerant instincts, must move quickly to reassure the millions of Americans who voted for Mr. Dukakis and those who voted not at all that he will be president of all the people, that he will seek to unite, not exclude." St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Priorities of the office

George Bush must swiftly put the uglier moments of the partisanship behind him. That should come naturally to him. Except for his brief run in recent weeks as a tart-tongued political infighter, he's been a lifetime model of style and class. .

Well before the inauguration, a man with his hard-won sense of the realities of the office will want to start tussling with the intractable budget deficit and pushing for a sitdown with Mikhail Gorbachev to get an update on glasnost and perestroika and the climate for continued arms negotiation.

A bipartisan commission is working on proposals to whittle the deficit, but the new president is going to need help from Democrats in Congress to work on acceptable compromises.

At least one other high-priority item should be on President-elect Bush's pre-inaugural agenda. He owes it to Dan Quayle, his vice president-elect — and to all of us — to provide the 41-year-old senator with the best crash course that the brightest transitional aides can teach to start preparing him for the awesome possibility that he might have to lead this country.

Gleanings from the elections

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR. Here are a few of the statistics that congealed on Election Day and caught the eye of this pundit (the

York Times)

• George Bush did better in the popular vote in 1988 (54 percent) than Ronald Reagan did in 1980 (51 percent). (I will drop the word "percent" from now on.) Nationally, the gender gap all but disappeared (50 Bush, 49 Michael Dukakis), which is a good thing since the women outvoted the men (52 to 48) Contrary to expectations, Bush did only slightly better than Reagan-1980 with blacks (12 to 11). but significantly better than Reagan-1984 (12 to 9). Bush did best with the 45-to-59-year-olds (57-42), but he prevailed over Dukakis with every age group, coming close only with those 60 and over (50-49).

 Bush did best with college graduates (62-37), least well with postgraduates (50-48), and with those who did not complete high school (43-56)

• Bush did better than Reagan-'84 with the Jewish vote (35-31), but not as well as Reagan-'80 (35-39). Bush did almost exactly as well with union households as

Reagan-'80 (42-43) • The wealthier the voter, the more pronouncedly in favor of Bush. But at incomes between $12,500 and $25,000, Bush began (49-50) to overhaul Dukakis

 Bush got far fewer Democrats than Reagan-'84 (17-24).

• Bush split the blue-collar workers with Dukakis almost exactly (49-50). Dukakis' heaviest patronage was among the unemployed (62-37). Bush's was among "homemakers" (58-41). • Bush won 21 percent of

Democrats who voted in their primaries. • Whereas 15 percent of black men voted for Bush, only 9 percent of black women did so. Bush's draw with women was: least among the very young (18-29)

• Bush was weakest (12) among Oregon a law that would have ban-blacks. • Married men (60) and women (54) were more heavily pro-Bush than the unmarried (51, 42). • The lowest turnout (D.C.) of voters went the most heavily for Dukakis. The highest turnout (Min-

deficits By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Although I don't have any grandchildren, and very little prospect for having any at the moment, I'm still concerned about what to do about the federal deficit. Those cute little toddlers of today are go ing to have to suffer for tomorrow

Because of this concern, I have been giving much thought as to what to do about the deficit problem, and I've come up with a few ideas the new president might use during his administration.

Not all of these will work, of course, but nobody in Washington seems to have any solutions, either, and it's downright embarrassing to be the biggest debtor nation in the world.

Somehow I just can't handle the image of Uncle Sam on a street corner with a tin cup in his hand selling pencils.

It's time for drastic action. Let us consider the following

• We just don't pay any of our bills. People have done this to me. I played golf with a guy once and won 8 bucks.

He said, "I ain't paying." I said, "Why not?"

He said, "I just ain't paying." I could have pounced on him and attempted to beat the $8 out of him, but he was bigger than me.

I'm not certain who all we owe, but it's probably nobody who could do any pouncing on us.

If Japan, for instance, becomes upset abouteus not paying, we can just say, "It's what you get for Pearl Harbor and introducing sushi bars."

 We call in all our debts, which is a joke since other countries have been using the "I ain't paying" trick on us for years.

Do you think Mexico is ever going to pay back any money they owe us? Of course not. So when the Mexicans don't pay up, we write out a marker for what they owe us and then give it to the West Germans for what we owe them.

"You can collect ours from the Mexicans," is what we say.

Since it works in gin rummy, why not in international financial

 We declare war on Japan, West Germany and Italy and then surrender the next day and say, "We need some foreign aid for post-war reconstruction. • We tear up all the federal credit cards and make sure Nancy gives up hers when she leaves the White House. That ought to pay off anything we owe to Norway · We sell all tall buildings on Manhattan to the Japanese. They'll own them all eventually anyway. Then, we sell back the island itself to the Indians for the original $24 and walk away from the deal. We sell Alaska to the Canadians and let them spend all that money to get the whales out next time.

• We hold a fire sale in Yellowstone National Park

There's one more thought - and that is, we go right on having a great time spending and borrowing recklessly as we've been doing and if our grandchildren don't like it, we tell them how we had to walk six miles, barefoot, in the snow to school every day and then write them out of our wills

Gangs killing in record numbers

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Drugdealing gang members are killing in record numbers this year with no end to the deadly violence in sight, despite police claims that they are not losing a street war waged against the gangs.

The battle is being won in target areas such as southcentral Los Angeles, police said, but those successes are not reflected in the numbers.

'We aren't losing the war, we just aren't winning in the data," department spokesman Cmdr. William Booth said Friday. But he conceded, "The data does tell us we are a long way from winning the war.

Sakharov signs membership book

WASHINGTON (AP) - Andrei Sakharov finally was able to sign the membership book for the National Academy of Sciences on Sunday, 15 years after he was inducted as an associate member.

In brief remarks at a banquet hosted by the academy, the Soviet scientist thanked the academy that "supported me unequivocally" through his long years of protest.

"This is a fact I can never let myself forget," he said.

The Nobel Prize-winning physicist, long a spokesman for political prisoners and dissidents, has been an ardent supporter of perestroika, the plan to restructure the Soviet economy.

Sakharov, 67, said the changes under way in the Soviet Union under the leadership of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev are historic.

Likud bloc wins support from two

JERUSALEM (AP) - Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc has won the support of two ultra-Orthodox parties, apparently enabling it to form a governing coalition that will exclude Israel's other dominant party - Labor.

The price of the religious parties' endorsement, secured late Sunday, was a promise to amend Israel's controversial "Who is a Jew" law so Orthodox rabbis have exclusive rights to approve conversions to Judaism.

Most American Jews, who like most Israelis are not Orthodox, fiercely oppose the amendment.

President Chaim Herzog was expected to give Likud the go-ahead today to form a new government after meeting with leaders of the hardline party and its left-leaning rival, Labor. The two parties have governed Israel since deadlocked 1984 elections, and inconclusive Nov. 1 elections gave Likud 40 seats in the 120-member parliament and Labor 39.

But with its new ultra-Orthodox partners, Likud and its allies on the far right would control 63 seats in parliament — two more seats than required for a majority.

To woo the ultra-Orthodox Shas and Agudat Israel parties into the coalition, Shamir promised what Labor and its staunchly secular allies would not - the amendment to Israel's "Who is a Jew", or Law of Return, which guarantees automatic citizenship to all Jews and converts.

Because of the nearly-even split between Labor and Likud, the small religious parties had found themselves holding the balance of power in an overwhelmingly secular society.

'The Council of Torah Masters has decided that we'll recommend Shamir to form the next government," Rabbi Menachem Porush, head of Agudat Israel, said Sunday. Shas holds six seats in parliament, and Agudat Israel five.

'We have to correct the Law of Return, and we hope now that we can change it in a few weeks,' Porush said

Shamir promised leaders of the Shas party that in three months the new government will change the law so it only recognizes conversions performed by Orthodox rabbis, said Tzakhi Noga, a spokesman for Shas

End of the line for Morse code

Big Spring Herald, Monday, November 14, 1988

LONDON (AP) - World shipping leaders have given the goahead for the introduction of new, automatic communications that will mean the end of the Morse code for ships at sea.

The Global Maritime Distress and Safety System transmits and receives automatically, so Morse will no longer be a requirement for ships. Shipowners are expected to phase out radio operators when the new equipment is installed in ships, starting in 1993.

Some parts of the new echnology, which includes satellite communications, are already in use on British ships and from 1999 they will be compulsory on ships worldwide.

The decision was taken Friday during a two-week London conference of the International Maritime Organization, a United Nations agency for the safety of shipping and preventing ships polluting the seas.

The 66 countries represented accounted for about 97 percent of the world's ships, said spokesman Roger Kohn.

A statement afterward called the decision "one of the biggest advances in maritime communications since the introduction of radio.'

Happy birthday Prince Charles

LONDON (AP) - Prince Charles celebrates his 40th birthday today at an inner-city "street party" for 1,500 youngsters helped by his charities and at a glittering Buckingham Palace ball.

As he crosses into middle age, the heir to the British throne, who has no constitutionally defined job, has carved his own role – as crusader for the underprivileged and protector of the environment.

On the eve of the prince's birthday, one of his close associates, Tom Shebbeare, said Charles is irritated by the news media's obsession with peddling what he called "tittletattle" and fiction about Charles' private life, which he said distracts from the prince's serious work.

Charles chose the Prince's Trust — which he established in 1976 to help disadvantaged youths find jobs — to organize his public birthday celebration in Birmingham, Britain's second-largest city.

Geography Awareness Week planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Schools, museums, librarians, prominent Vietnam. politicians and even a television quiz show are teaming up this week to draw attention to the need to know where we - and others -

A variety of programs are planned for "Geography Awareness Week" in the United States, a land of people who came from other places

"Without geographically literate citizens, America cannot compete in global markets or take the lead in meeting international political, economic, environmental, social and military challenges," said Gilbert M. Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society. Yet Americans' ignorance is illustrated by a recent Gallup survey which found that 18- to 24-year-old Americans know less about world geography than residents of other nations do.

The Census Bureau, which spends lots of time worrying about where people are, will send workers to a dozen or more schools in the Washington area.

The geography of environmental hazards will be the focus of lectures at Western Washington University in Bellingham, the University of Maryland in College Park, Villanova University, in Villanova, Pa., Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. and others.

Overeaters Anonymous helps with compulsion

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "End of Rope," who complained that his wife was 45 pounds overweight, was really off the mark. You said: "Now is the time to be especially loving and supportive. Love her to pieces and kill her with kindness, and say nothing about her weight.

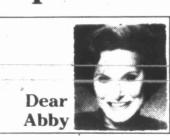

I agree that the wife needs her husband's love and support, but she also needs to seek help for her obesity and/or compulsive overeating. I believe that overeating is a disease that should be treated with the same respect as heart disease, diabetes or alcoholism. But to ignore such a problem allows the person to stay in denial and avoid treatment that could save her life.

CATHY RELF. RN DEAR CATHY: I hit the nail right on the thumb with that answer! You make an excellent point and I thank you for it. However, I welcome the opportunity to mention Overeaters Anonymous. It has been a lifesaver to many compulsive overeaters. O.A. operates on the same principle as Alcoholics Anonymous and Gamblers Anonymous. ("If I can do it, you can do it.")

Consult the white pages of your telephone book to find the chapter in your city. If Overeaters Anonymous is not listed, write to: Overeaters Anonymous, 4025 Spencer St., Suite 203, Torrance, Calif. 90503, for information. Enclose a long, stamped, selfaddressed envelope. It is a nonprofit organization.

DEAR ABBY: I have been an avid Dear Abby reader for many years and have never seen this question addressed in your column.

A friend who is soon to be married mentioned to me that she is paying $125 a plate for each guest who will attend her wedding and reception. I have received an invitation to both, and now I am wondering what to give her for a wedding gift. Am I required to give her a gift that would cost at least

I really didn't think it was proper for her to have mentioned her cost, but now that I know, I feel compelled to spend at least that much on the gift. I am not a pauper, but I am far from wealthy, and I would rather not go to the wedding than to appear cheap.

TO GO OR NOT TO GO

DEAR TO GO: A guest is not "required" to give a wedding gift that costs at least as much as the bride spends per plate. I agree, it was no'. proper for the bride to have mentioned her cost.

Select a gift in the price range that is comfortable for you, and don't worry about appearing

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you (or one of your readers) can give me the answer to a question that has been puzzling me for a long time. When citizens are asked to vote on a proposition or initiative concerning their local townships or counties, why is the language so confusing and ambiguous? For example, "If you are OP-POSED to additional funding for public education, vote YES." But, If you are IN FAVOR of additional funding for public education, vote NO.

Or, "If you are OPPOSED to drilling for oil in a specific locality, vote YES, but if you are IN FAVOR of drilling, vote NO.

It seems to me that these issues are deliberately presented in language that will confuse " voters. Or am I mistaken'

DEAR VES .vo! I, too, would appreciate an answer to that disturbing question. Readers?

True or false, it was telling evidence of the pervasive influence exerted by the man who shaped President-elect George Bush's kinder, gentler media image and orchestrated slashing attack commercials against Democrat Michael Dukakis

The task was basic: Tear down Dukakis and build up Bush. And experts agree, the execution was brilliant. But on the morning after. some are concerned about the legacy left by the relentless attack

"The Bush campaign has been rewarded with the White House for the most negative broadcast campaign in the last 30 years," said Kathleen Hall Jamieson, a political communications expert at the University of Texas.

'The lesson is clear,' added Larry Sabato, an elections specialist at the University of Virginia. "Negative ads work. Use

The two academics said a greater proportion of the candidates' advertising was negative and the attack spots were on the air for longer than ever before in a presidential campaign

'Candidates don't bother with the positive phase anymore," Sabato said. "They never go completely positive either at the beginning or the end.

Bush's ads, reflecting his campaign themes and news coverage, lashed out at the Massachusetts governor on everything from pollution in Boston Harbor and problems in a state prison furlough program to Dukakis' stands on defense and the death penalty.

"The lesson is clear. Negative ads work. Use them." - Larry Sabato, elections specialist at the University of Virginia

Jamieson said voter savvy, news coverage and opponent counterattacks generally are sufficient to check the impact of false, distorted or misleading political advertising.

'This year has made it very clear that the existing protections only work if the other side is equally competent in its use of advertising and debates and if the press does its job very, very well," she said. "Dukakis didn't respond in ads. He didn't respond in debates. This year, until the last two and a half weeks, the press was expected to do it alone. And the press alone can't do it.' Dozens of media professionals offered reams of advice to Dukakis over the course of his campaign. Early in the game, several suggested that he might capitalize on an excellent job.'

presidential campaign entered its TV campaign right after the conlast two weeks, Democratic Party vention in July. He waited until Chairman Paul Kirk declared at a September, consequently losing a news conference that "the chance to define himself before the > Others pleaded with Dukakis to take a dramatic step to seize control of the campaign agenda — in the second debate, for example, ask Bush to agree to a moratorium on negative ads or challenge him to a weekly man-to-man debate until the election. He didn't, and by virtually all accounts lost the debate.

> Most advertising ideas never made it as far as film or videotape. Hundreds of scripts were received, and hundreds were shelved. And unlike Ailes, an inner-circle strategist for Bush from the outset, no Democratic media expert was let into the Dukakis loop.

> "We were in another room We weren't working together," said Theodore Voss, a New York advertising consultant who helped recruit talent for the campaign. Furthermore, the ad department was ruled by a group of high-level campaign officials that one insider likened to a jury needing a 12-0 vote to make any decision.

In short, Dukakis sorely needed a Roger Ailes.

The thing that was wrong was not having a strong advertising director to set direction, to motivate and to say yes or no, Voss said. "There's no question in my mind that the ads could have been superb had there been better organization.

When the national Dukakis campaign finally went negative, it focused for a long time on the Dan Quayle veep selection and the 'packaging of George Bush.' Neither message had the gut-level appeal of crime or militarism or patriotism or clean water, the hot buttons pushed so skillfully by Bush and Ailes.

Ailes had a few things going for him in addition to the ineptitude of the Dukakis ad campaign. Republicans and some Democrats cite peace, prosperity and other successes of the Reagan years. Scott Miller, of Sawyer-Miller, said Bush's unformed public image was another advantage.

"What Roger had to work with was an advertising man's dream a product without a label on it, that he could define and shape pretty much the way he wanted," he said, 'I don't believe there's another such candidate on the national scene in either party.

Kirk and others have denounced Ailes as the dark genius behind Bush's airwaves assault, but Miller defended his GOP compatriot and said the ultimate responsibility for questionable Bush tactics lies with

"It's not up to Roger Ailes to make the decision that he's asking the candidate to say things that contradict his values or positions or ethics. It's up to the candidate to say 'that's not me' or 'I won't do that," Miller said. "Roger did what he was paid to do and he did

Congress prepares for leadership elections

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is preparing for a final fling at the ballot box - this time to elect its own leaders for the next two years.

The jobs at stake range from leadership in the Senate to the second and third positions in the line of succession to the presidency of the United States

With Democrats expanding their control of both the Senate and the House in last Tuesday's election, no upheavals will take place in party control of the 101st Congress and all of its committees. Democratic leaders keep their majority status; Republican leaders remain minority leaders.

Only a few of the leadership spots are contested, topped by the fight to succeed Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia as Senate majority leader. Byrd will step down from top party leadership to succeed John Stennis of Mississippi as Senate president pro tempore, a largely ceremonial ob that is third in the line of succession to the presidency, behind the vice president and speaker of the House

Jim Wright of Texas is certain to return for his second term as speaker of the House of Representatives - a position voted on by all

House members but held by the majority party.

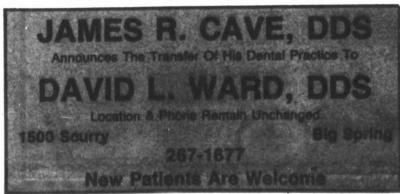

Three men want the powerful Senate majority leader post Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, Bennett Johnston of Louisiana and George Mitchell of Maine. Their campaigns have been confined to quiet cloakroom conversations, with a rule of thumb being that the less said publicly, the better.

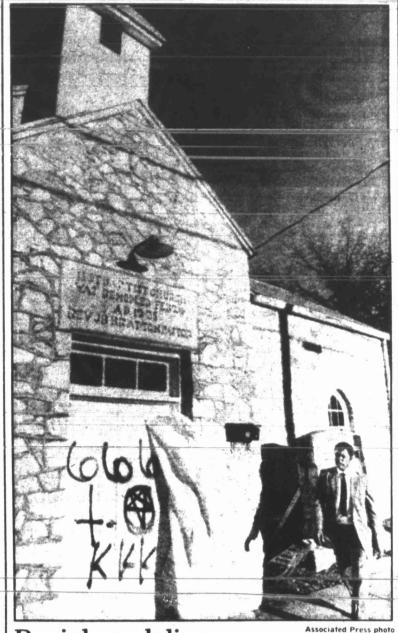

Looking ahead to the Senate leadership contest, Inouye broke the public silence among the three candidates earlier this month to say he expects to win on the second

"Those who vote for someone else on the first ballot have said they would vote for me on the second ballot," said Inouye. But he also said, "Nothing is locked, anything can happen.

Sen. Alan Cranston of California is fighting to keep the No. 2 leadership post, that of Democratic whip, a position he has held since 1977. In a surprise move recently, Sen. Wendell Ford of Kentucky, chairman of the Rules Committee, announced he would challenge Cranston for the job.

The 55 Democratic senators — up from 54 before Election Day - will make their decision in the Capitol on Tuesday, Nov. 29.

Deficit commission beset by dissension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The highlevel commission created to break the seven-year deadlock over the federal budget deficit is beset by internal dissension as hopes dim that it will be able to fulfill its mission

Long simmering disputes over tax and spending questions have broken into the open among commission members and some fear that President-elect George Bush may dismiss the whole exercise.

"At this stage, it is hard to tell whether there is any hope for the commission or whether their entire effort will be a waste of time," said David Wyss, senior financial economist for Data Resources Inc., a private economic consulting

The current state of affairs is a far cry from what supporters had in mind when Congress created the commission a year ago.

The 12-member panel, which will grow to 14 with the appointment of two more members by Bush, was alternatives. expected to come up with a solution to the thorny deficit problem by devising a package of spending cuts and tax increases acceptable to the new administration and Congress

Supporters believed that the weight of the commission's recommendations would mobilize the support needed for the politically painful actions necessary to finally eliminate the string of deficits that have sent the national debt spiraling to $2.6 trillion, almost triple the level when President Regan took

The commission will kick off its post-election deliberations on Wednesday at a daylong session where it will hear from some of the biggest names on budget and economic matters, including Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan.

But supporters are worried about what comes after the hearing. Originally, the commission had an ambitious schedule that involved almost daily meetings in late November and early December, aiming toward completion of a final report by Dec. 21.

However, that timetable has now been scrapped with commission cochairman Robert Strauss suggesting the panel's report may be delayed until March or perhaps as and cut spending.

laté as September 1989.

The delay was apparently first proposed by Republican members of the commission with Strauss and other Democrats deciding to go

Some argue that Strauss, considered a savvy Washington insider, is being politically astute in deferring to Bush's desires on the grounds that the commission's work-product will go nowhere without the support of the new administration.

But Rep. William Gray III, a commission member and the head of the House Budget Committee, complained that too much delay would make the commission's efforts "irrelevant."

Gray argued that if by late January the commission has not recommended ways to reduce the deficit, the new administration would by then be too far along in preparing its own proposals for the 1990 fiscal year to consider

The magnitude of the problem facing Bush and the new Congress was highlighted last week with new# that the drought and higher interest rates had forced a $21 billion upward revision in the estimate of the budget deficit for the 1990 fiscal year, which begins next Oct. 1.

.The Office of Management and Budget said the deficit projection had risen to $132 billion, meaning that $32 billion in deficit reductions will be needed to reach the $100 billion deficit target established by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law

During the campaign, Bush insisted that the budget could be balanced through use of a "flexible freeze" by which spending, with the exception of Social Security and interest on the debt, would be held to the annual increase in inflation. He also took a tough "read my lips" approach against any tax

But many economists say Bush, once in office, will be forced to face the reality that tax increases and spending reductions both will be necessary to solve the deficit problem

That is why specific recommendations from the commission are needed on ways to increase taxes

Bush faces evolving NATO

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Once in office, George Bush will be faced with a NATO alliance struggling with decisions on upgrading its nuclear arsenal, sharing defense costs and responding to a changing Soviet Union

The U.S. president-elect will come into office at a time when the European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization see the lowest risk of war on their continent since World War II ended.

Moreover, relations among the 16 NATO partners are good.

Yet, Bush will be faced with a number of issues that could be potentially divisive. He likely will discuss these defense problems with other leaders of NATO nations early in his administration.

There is some speculation a summit could be held as early as April to mark the 40th anniversary of the April 4, 1949, signing of the North Atlantic Treaty.

The new president will be dealing with troublesome defense issues as Western Europe becomes more unified and possibly more independent from the United States, which has long dominated the alliance.

The dozen nations of the European Economic Community, all of which belong to NATO except Ireland, will form a single market in 1992 when the countries remove the many trade barriers separating them.

"All of the pressures of last year will be there again next year in arms. spades," said Hans -Binnendijk director of studies for the Londonbased International Institute for Strategic Studies.

Binnendijk predicted Bush's campaign promise not to raise taxes to ease the federal budget crunch will add to the problem.

"It will put pressure on the system to do something about (U.S. military) bases here," he said.

McCusker said the discussion

This issue has gained prominence since President Reagan and Gorbachev signed in December the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty which provides for eliminating all U.S. and Soviet land-based missiles with ranges of about 300 to 8,400 miles.

IRVING - Kevin Sweeney was welcomed to the "real" NFL on Sunday night by the Minnesota Vikings who inflicted the fourth worst loss in history on the Dallas Cowboys.

Minnesota cashed seven turnovers into a 43-3 rout and stayed alive in the NFC Central Division with a 7-4 record

Dallas suffered its seventh consecutive loss and dropped to 2-9.

The Vikings intercepted Sweeney. four times, sacked him five times, and recovered two of his fumbles in an experience he called 'humiliating to say the least.' Sweeney was the hero of two strike replacement game victories' last year, and earned his first starting berth in a regular game last Sunday with three scoring passes, against the New York Giants in the second half

The Houston crowd gave McCray a standing ovation during the pregame player introductions.

'They always say the guys you trade come back to haunt you,' Houston coach Don Chaney said.

"I admire the way the Houston fans welcomed him back. No doubt that pumped him up. McCray was inspired and he was overdue for a good game," Chaney said referring to McCray's 0-15 showing against Utah four nights earlier.

But Chaney also felt Thorpe was primed for the Kings.

"Otis played extremely well and his concentration level was really perked up for them.

McCray said he did feel comfortable in the setting. "Houston's fans made me feel like they appreciated what I did and I wanted to play hard and get a good game under my belt. We almost pulled it out and if you go around the room here and ask all these guys, they'll tell you we should have won.

The win was Houston's fourth straight after the Rockets lost their first two games of the young season. Sacramento was trying to win its first game after an 0-4 start.

Houston was down by as much as 17 points in the first half and didn't grab its first lead until early in the fourth quarter.

Akeem Olajuwon scored five of his game-high 34 points in the final minute to build a 129-123 Houston lead with only 12 seconds remaining.

The Kings' Kenny Smith hit a lay-up with 8 seconds left, then stole the in-bounds pass and fed McCray for a lay-up that cut Houston's lead to 129-127 with 3

"Sweeney just didn't have a chance," Landry said. "They just unloaded on him after they got an early lead. He tried as hard as he could but he just didn't have a chance. He got worked over because he had no protection.

Dallas offensive guard Crawford Ker said, "You can't get any lower than this right now. It wasn't Kevin's fault. He just never had a chance.

Dallas running back Herschel Walker called the loss "embarrassing. Nobody can blame Kevin for

The Vikings remained two games behind the Chicago Bears in the NFC Central and in the race for a wildcard spot.

The colt will be paraded in the paddock and on the race track Saturday immediately before the Golden Rod Stakes, the eighth race. Alysheba's owners, Dorothy and Pamela Scharbauer, of Midland, Texas, and trainer Jack Van Berg said the thought of ending Alysheba's racing career brought tears to his eyes but it was the only way to let him retire with dignity.

"It's not the money," Van Berg said Saturday at Churchill Downs. 'You have everything to lose and nothing to gain as far as the horse. We made the decision strictly for Alysheba.

'After the horse went through his campaign and did everything we asked of him, we didn't feel it was sair to ask him to do more and take a chance. He'd have to pack a lot of weight (in handicap events next year), and maybe get off his form a bit and have someone beat him and not go out with the distinction he's going out with now.'

Detroit sacks Rogers

PONTIAC, Lions owner William Clay Ford has fired Coach Darryl Rogers, who led the team to a 2-9 record this season and a tie for last place in the NFC Central Division, sources said

Rogers, 53, was fired after the Lions' 23-20 loss Sunday to the visiting Tampa Bay Buccaneers and was replaced temporarily by defensive coordinator Wayne Fontes, said the sources, who spoke on the condition of anonymity. Rogers, in his fourth season with the Lions, has a record of 18-40. Reached at his home late Sunday, Rogers denied he had been "Not that I know of," he said.

Bill Keenist, the Lions public relations director, said he couldn't confirm the report. But the sources said formal announcement of the move would be made at the team's regular weekly news conference at noon Monday. Fontes, 48, is in his fourth year with the Lions and 13th in the NFL. He spent nine years with Tampa Bay under John McKay.

This marks only the second time that Ford, an heir to the Ford Motor Co. fortune, has fired a head coach before the end of a season since assuming sole control of the In 1976, Ford axed Rick Forzano after a 1-3 start and replaced him with Tommy Hudspeth. The team finished that season 6-8 and was 6-8 in 1977. That was enough to get Hudspeth fired and bring on Monte Clark who lasted until Rogers was hired Fontes, whose brother, Len, is the defensive backfield coach for the New York Giants, pleaded guilty to drunken driving charges earlier this year.

"You don't know what's going to happen on third down," said Knox. On a day when all five AFC West teams won after all five lost the previous week, the Seahawks improved their record to 6-5 to stay in a tie for first place with the Los Angeles Raiders and Denver. The loss kept the Oilers, 7-4, from moving into a first-place tie with Cincinnati in the AFC Central.

Houston had a lot of statistics — 419 total yards and 22 first downs - but it wasn't enough. The Oilers only had to punt twice.

Houston's second punt came in the fourth quarter with the score tied at 24 and went into the end zone. The Seahawks took over with 4:50 left and drove to the Houston 28 before Johnson kicked his second field goal of the game.

Warren Moon completed 13 of 22 passes for 182 yards, including a 57-yard touchdown pass to Drew Hill in the opening quarter, and put the Oilers ahead 24-17 with an 11-yard touchdown run with 3:13 gone in the fourth quarter.

Allen Pinkett scored on a 2-yard run and Tony Zendejas kicked a 52-yard field goal for Houston's other points.

Seattle also scored on a 40-yard

Johnson field goal and a 3-yard touchdown run by Curt Warner. The Seahawks made two big defensive plays in the first half that ended tied at 10 that could have seen two more Houston touchdowns. Mike Rozier was stopped for a 1-yard loss by Ken Clarke on fourth-and-1 on the Seattle 6 with 1:30 left in the half. Alonzo Highsmith's 42-yard run had given

Seattle the ball at the 26. Houston's players refused to second guess their coach, Jerry Glanville. 'We think we can make a yard on anyone," said Moon. "Hindsight is 20-20. You can't look back that far in the game and say it was the turning point.' But Clarke saw it differently

"That play gave us a lift and I'm sure it was a letdown for them," he said. "They pride themselves on physical play, but we shut them down when we had to. In the second quarter, Houston moved to the Seattle 4-yard line after nose tackle Richard Byrd intercepted Krieg at the Seahawks' But Moon was intercepted by Paul Moyer in the end zone just two plays after the Byrd interception.

'The blitz was on and I just stepped in front of my man (Hill), said Moyer.

Steve Largent of the Seahawks extended his NFL receiving record to 163 consecutive regularseason games, catching two passes for 46 yards.

Associated Press photos

In his return to the playing field after a two-game absence following arthroscopic shoulder surgery, Brian Bosworth had four tackles as a starting Seattle linebacker.

The Oilers wasted an outstanding rushing performance by Highsmith, who had 80 yards on nine carries.

"There were so many things that could have happened," he said. "Whoever had the ball last was going to win this game and Seattle had the ball last.

Advisory teachers assigned at Goliad

JEAN WARREN Herald Correspondent

Every student at Goliad Middle School and his parents have been assigned an advisory teacher who will counsel with approximately 14 sixth and seventh graders. Advisory groups met for the first time Friday and will continue to meet once every six weeks to give students an opportunity to share concerns and problems. However, the advisory teacher will be available to confer with the student or his parents at any time.

Letters were sent home to parents Friday informing them of the goals of the program and inviting parents to contact advisory teachers. Through the advisory program Goliad staff members are seeking to foster greater understanding of the goals of the school and to work with parents for solutions to any problem a youngster may be encountering.

Rock 'n' roll music and popular songs from the '60s will be featured at the Runnels choir concert Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the boy's gym. All three choirs will perform under the direction of Jeanine Fishback. A total of 20 Runnels students had the distinction of being chosen for the West Texas Honor Choir; they will be introduced during the program.

High school seniors from Big Spring, Ira, and Forsan traveled to Howard College Nov. 2 to meet with representatives from 35 colleges and universities. The orientation session was planned to inform students about the various courses answer questions about college

"There are 10 response choices to avoid trouble," says Scott. "Say no, leave, pretend you didn't hear, make an excuse, act shocked, change the subject, make a joke, try flattery, offer a better idea, return the challenge. The technique, which she calls

"The most common choice is making an excuse.'

It can be truthful: "I'm grounded." "I have to meet my parents." It can be tongue-in-cheek: "I have to rearrange my sock drawer." have to brush my dog's teeth."

If all else fails, Scott says, just say, "I have to go to the bathroom," and walk away.

"Kids today are expected to make decisions at an earlier age," she says. "For example, people who are 35 years and older were offered their first drink at age 17 or

18. Today, the average age is 111/2. At the same time, she adds, drugs have come to the fore, and there are fewer adult role models per child. "The average number of significant adults used to be 17 or 18. Now, the average is between 1 and 4." Scott says this is because the extended family has been replaced by the nuclear family.

Scott says negative peer pressure starts as early as age 4. But there are three years that are especially tough. The first year of middle school, the first year of high school and the first year of college. In each situation, you're the new kid and the youngest kid and want

Bringing science to life for youths

By JIM CONLEY El Paso Times

EL PASO - He's funny. He's weird. He's great. At least that's how students at H.E. Charles Middle School describe science teacher Tim Holt.

"I gave up football to join the science club," said Greg Lipe, 13. 'I chose it because I wanted to learn more things and do experiments.

Since the 27-year-old seventhgrade teacher started cosponsoring the science club this fall, it has grown from 10 members to at least 75. Holt does special things with science.

Amber Haynes, 12, "used to hate science, but now it's fun. Mr. Holt is funny and weird ... and just

"He's hilarious," Sunday Condon said. The 13-year-old added, "I joined the club because I want to be a scientist when I grow up. Before, science was kind of boring with most teachers.

Student testimonials to Holt's way with science go on and on Fifty youngsters typically show up for Wednesday afternoon club meetings. Recently, Holt's lesson was the creation of a disgusting-but-fun concoction of green slime. Holt, beakers in hand, stood in the center of the laboratory, mesmerizing the students with rapid-fire comments about chemical changes and the uses of slime, most of them comically gross The students, laughing and joking, stirred their own mixtures of two liquids that reacted to produce the slimy jelly.

"Science is exciting," said Holt, a 1980 Irvin High School graduate. "I teach like this because I had some really bad and boring teachers in school and I remember sitting there bored to tears.

"I remember when I was a sophomore in high school saying group, serves as a waitress at the Sonic Drive-In Saturday evening as a could do better than that.

"Then they remember the point," Holt said. "You can't using boring stuff with them. They're used to special effects. They've been to Star Wars.' It's got to be handson for these kids. They've got to touch it."

Nick Gomez, 12, said Holt once 'rolled clay into a long thing and went "Yaaaaah' and chopped it with his ruler. And that's supposed to be mitosis (one way cells divide), he told us.

Bill Rider, 14, said Holt makes learning "enjoyable. He makes up jokes and stories.

"I get to be the ringleader," said Holt, a 1986 graduate of the University of Texas at El Paso. "This is fun for me. But the purpose is to turn the kids back to education."

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Big Spring Kiwanis has given $820 to the Big Spring Independent School District and pledged another $200 to implement a program designed to promote values such as honesty and responsibility.

The program, titled Character Education, has been designated by the Kiwanis International as a service project for its clubs, which number almost 8,000 nationwide. "The main purpose of the program is to develop good citizens, kids who will make sound moral decisions," said Bill McQueary, BSISD superintendent.

After Billy T. Smith, Big Spring, governor of the Kiwanis Texas/Oklahoma District presented him with the check for $820, McQueary expressed his gratitude and said the program will be implemented at a date yet to be determined in grades K-9.

Smith said the Kiwanis had agreed to provide an additional $200 to the district to help fund the needed teacher inservice training the program requires.

McQueary said the curriculum has been well-received by school districts using the program and as been endorsed by education leaders such as former U.S. Secretary of Education William Bennett.

Literature promoting Character Education states: the program, has been developed and tested for 20 years at a cost of $212 million, is used in more than 24,000 classrooms in 44 states, and the state of Tennessee has mandated the teaching of the program in all of the state's elementary schools.

The literature also states: "Our aim is to indicate to children those values which are generally accepted by members of our society such as honesty, patriotism, generosity and responsibility.
