Sununu likely Bush chief

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President-elect George Bush has tapped feisty New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu as his chief of staff, sources say, a signal of change after his first two top appointments went to Reagan administration veterans.

Bush was meeting British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at the White House today while his transition co-chairmen, Craig Fuller and Robert Teeter, were expected to announce a raft of additions to the transition team.

Among those slated to be named deputy transition directors is Fred Fielding, the former Reagan White House counsel now advising Dan Quayle, the vice president-elect.

On Tuesday, after flying home from a four-day Florida vacation with Sununu in tow, Bush met with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and announced Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady as the second occupant of his Cabinet. He said he was not prepared to announce his chief of staff, "but it might be fairly soon."

Sources close to Bush who insisted on anonymity said the choice of Sununu was already made, with the nod going to the 49-year-old lame duck governor who helped Bush bounce back in New Hampshire from a defeat in the Iowa caucuses last February.

The blunt-spoken Sununu, a onetime engineering professor, was an indefatigable Bush campaigner, often employed as a surrogate to attack Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic nominee, and his claims of a "Massachusetts miracle."

The Sununu choice should cheer conservatives worried that the pivotal White House job would fall to Fuller, chief of Bush's vice presidential staff for the past four years and regarded as more of a moderate and pragmatist. Fuller may be in line for a Cabinet post, possibly Transportation. He is expected to disdain working under Sununu at the White House.

According to Bush transition press secretary Sheila Tate, Teeter and Fuller said Tuesday night that "the vice president has not indicated to us that he's made a decision."

Sununu's selection would leave Bush with a right-hand aide with no Washington experience. Sununu's government experience consists of six years as chief executive of one of the smallest states in the union. A father of eight, Sununu decided

Stacy commanding double shift

STACY DAM — Work continues on the massive center section of Stacy Dam here at a double-shift per day pace.

Although carpentry crews were sent home at noon Tuesday because high winds made crane work impossible, according to Brown and Root project manager Ron Hayes, massive earth-moving equipment continued dirt and rock work on both shifts.

Brown and Root USA also will build the dam's intake structure. "We have about 27 feet to go in the intake structure," Hayes said Tuesday.

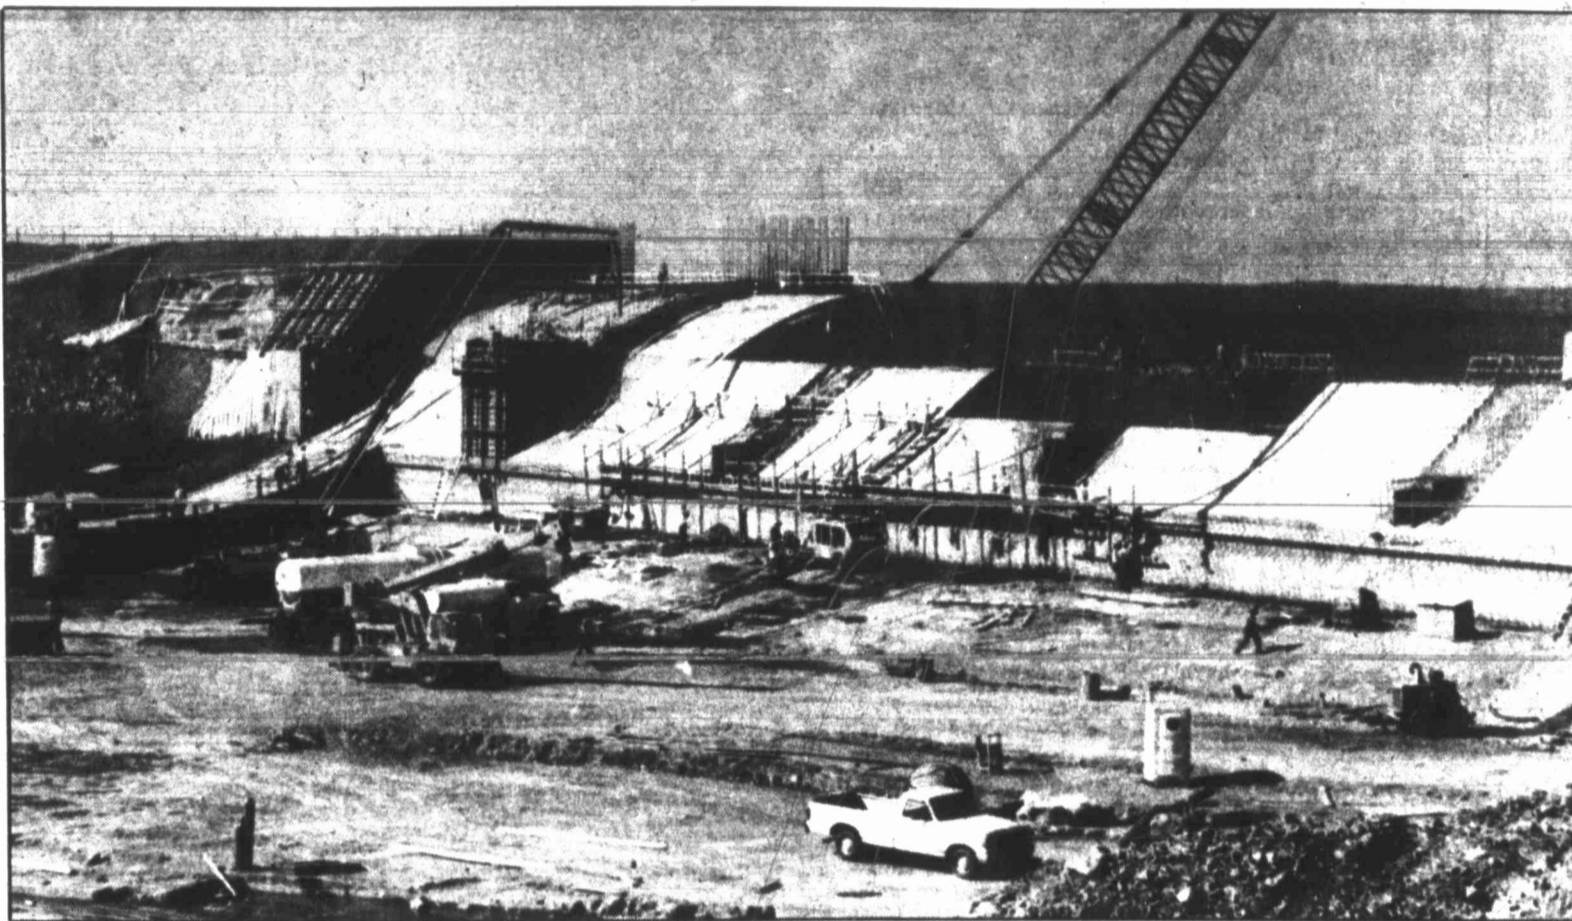

He said the double-shift pace began Nov. 7 and is expected to continue, except for a four-day Thanksgiving break at the site, through Christmas.

Colorado River Municipal Water District officials have located two small private cemeteries within the proposed basin, according to Stacy division manager Ed Morris, where marked graves were discovered. A third, "Boot Hill," contains unmarked graves, he said.

The spillway is well underway, with 2,000 yards of concrete poured per week. Along with the nearly-completed earthen embankment on the north levee, this portion of the dam is rapidly approaching completion, according to information from CRMWD.

Its internal drainage and inspection tunnel is now complete. The outlet works are approximately 91 percent finished, and more than $22 million of the estimated $68 million project cost has been completed.

site by resident engineer John Arthur, who estimated the top of the crest of the overflow spillway will be completed "in the next two weeks."

Hayes said gates for the dam will arrive and be mounted in January or February. He and Arthur said a training dike, which will form a backflow barrier should the lake ever go over its western spillway, is well underway.

Archaeological studies throughout the reservoir basin have reached the second phase. Investigation of 40 sites will be completed within six weeks; two intensive study sites will be chosen by the first of the year.

Eight graves from the Gann cemetery have been relocated to the Leaday cemetery, which will not be inundated.

Two marked graves on the Rich Coffee estate also will be moved to Leaday, Morris said. He said he has been told there are four graves in the Coffee cemetery, but only two markers have been found; eight miles from the dam, the graves lie near a house dating to the 1840s.

He said archaeologists will handle relocation of the Boot Hill

College looks for dormitory growth

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

The building of additional dormitory space was discussed by the Howard College board of trustees Tuesday afternoon during its regular monthly meeting.

After being presented with an administrative proposal to consider building additional dormitory space at Howard College, the board directed Bob Riley, college president, to compile a "detailed feasibility study" for consideration at its next meeting.

Additional dormitory space is needed, Riley said, to allow the college to continue in its recruiting efforts.

Preliminary plans are for the college to expand its dormitories to accommodate an additional 100 students, 50 men and 50 women.

"We're at the point now where we really have no place to put any students that we recruit," Riley said. Riley said the college has not been able to promote some of its vocational programs such as cosmetology because it does not have the dormitory space to house the additional students.

Since 1985, Howard College dorms have been fully occupied in the fall, Riley said. Dormitory occupancy decreases in the spring, but not dramatically.

Currently, there are 160 students living in the Howard College dormitories. Because of space limitations the college has added beds to existing rooms and housed students in a mobile home on the campus.

If the college could attract 100 students to occupy the additional dorm space, it would realize approximately $500,000 in state funds, Riley said.

The college would have to add "a few faculty members" to accommodate the increase in enrollment, but Riley said the increased funding would more than offset the expenses of hiring additional staff.

The additional dorm space would aid the college in its efforts to expand and "become a better, more comprehensive community college," Riley said.

"Once we get past the 2,000-student mark, the college becomes more self-perpetuating," he said.

If the board chooses to build the additional space, improvements to the lobbies of the existing dorms could be made at the same time, Riley suggested.

In other business, the board: Approved the 1987-88 combined audit report for SouthWest College institute for the Deaf and Howard College conducted by Lee Reynolds Welch & Co.

James Welch reported the college's finances were in good shape as of Aug. 31. The audit is a matter of public record and can be acquired at the college's administration office.

Viets' health studied

By MICHELLE LOCKE
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Vietnamese physicians who have worked to cope with the aftermath of the Vietnam war say that health in that country is declining, and there is a shortage of money to research the ravages left by the conflict.

While U.S. veterans have struggled with post-traumatic stress disorder, the Vietnamese have tried during the last 13 years to reclaim forests stripped bare by chemical defoliants such as Agent Orange and restore health services during poor economic conditions, physicians and others said Tuesday at a panel discussion.

"I think it is in the interest of both the United States and Vietnam that the citizens as well as our leaders begin talking," said former Sen. George McGovern of North Dakota, the keynote speaker at the American Public Health Association gathering. "That as much as anything will help heal the wounds of war."

McGovern called for normalizing diplomatic relations with Vietnam, pointing to the rapid normalization of relations with Germany and Japan after World War II.

Le Cao Dai, a Vietnamese physician who is studying the effects of Agent Orange in his country, echoed McGovern's calls for opening diplomatic relations.

"It is time to reconcile... to heal the wounds of the tragedy of the war," he said.

Dai said a study of toxins found in the breast milk of new mothers in south Vietnam showed a high level in the early 1970s, but it has since subsided to nearly normal levels.

He acknowledged that the studies need to be funded. "There is a shortage of money for that work."

Coping with the aftermath of the war has been difficult, said Nguyen Dinh Ngo, vice chairman of the Binh Tri Thien Pro-

Schools consider state aid formula

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Unless nullified by the Texas Legislature, a recent decision by State Board of Education to phase in a new state aid formula will reduce money for the Big Spring Independent School District and increase funding to the Forsan and Coahoma Districts.

The plan will phase in the so-called price differential index (PDI), a complex funding formula instituted by House Bill 72, designed to help districts pay for uncontrollable costs.

The phase-in formula recommended by the State Board will limit any losses or gains to 20 percent in the 1989-90 school year and 80 percent in the 1990-91 school year.

Under the plan, the Big Spring School District would lose $4,620 in state funding for the school year beginning in September 1989. The following year, the district would lose $18,479.

The Forsan School District would gain $6,200 the first year and $24,801 the second year, and the Coahoma District would gain $8,742 the first year and $34,968 the second year.

But Forsan superintendent J.F.

Poyner discounted the State Board ruling saying, "With the equity lawsuit (pending), the decision is probably meaningless."

As a result of the Edgewood vs. Kirby lawsuit, state legislators are expected to adopt a funding plan that will provide for more equalization of public educational funding.

Poyner said the legislature would likely "wipe out" the PDI once it adopts an equalization plan. Bill McQueary, Big Spring superintendent, also said it was likely the legislature would abolish the PDI and expressed support for such an occurrence.

"We would like to see the PDI abolished and some sort of more equitable plan put in place," he said.

Under the plan, 111 school districts mostly large will lose money, while 945 smaller ones will gain.

The PDI formula, one of several used to determine state aid to schools, is designed to reflect differences between what each school district must pay in "uncontrollable" costs for various goods and services, principally teacher salaries.

Girl screams for life on death tape

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO — Seven months after she died begging for her life, the screams of Shannon Mann, two sisters and a brother were played to jurors in the trial of their accused killer, who said he was high on cocaine on the morning of the slayings.

Leo Narvaiz Jr., 20, is charged with capital murder in the April 15 slayings of Miss Mann, 17, his former girlfriend; Jennifer Mann, 19; Martha Mann, 15; and Ernest Mann, 11.

The bodies were found in their blood-spattered mobile home, where bloody knives — some broken and imbedded in the victims' bodies — also were recovered.

In a taped telephone call to the 911 emergency service around 3:20 a.m. on April 15 and played in court on Tuesday, Shannon Mann said Narvaiz was attacking her and her siblings.

"I feel bad about this," Narvaiz said in his statement to police. "When I went to Shannon's the cocaine really controlled me."

Police detective Jimmy Holguin

— who investigated the slayings, talked to Narvaiz and took the statement from him — identified the voices on the tape.

"My boyfriend just beat us up," Shannon Mann told the 911 dispatcher over screams in the background.

"He's killed my little sister. Please hurry, please hurry," she says.

After a pause, she says, "Leo, please don't" and the conversation fades as if the telephone receiver had been dropped.

The operator says, "Hello," and that is followed by a male voice, which Holguin identified as Narvaiz's, who says, "Why did you have to do this to me?"

After some unintelligible sounds, Shannon Mann says, "I love you" twice in between a "Yeah," from the male at the home.

"I'm dying already. I can't breathe," Shannon Mann says.

"Did you call the cops?" the man asks.

"No, I didn't," she says. "My mouth hurts."

The conversation ends with a loud scream and then a fainter scream.

Officer given polygraph

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — A Grand Prairie police officer has taken a polygraph test in connection with a Sept. 2 bank robbery that officials believe was an inside job, according to a published report.

The Dallas Times Herald, citing sources close to the case, reported in today's editions that investigators also want to talk to a second officer, who quit the force earlier this month and is a close friend of the officer who took the polygraph Tuesday.

Police officials would not confirm whether the officers, one of whom was a security guard at First State Bank in Grand Prairie at the time of the robbery, are the targets of a criminal investigation.

The robbers knew enough about the bank to deactivate the alarm system and stop an employee from turning on the surveillance camera, Detective Richard Bender said.

"The cameras are not on 24 hours a day and normally the first one in in the morning turns on the cameras," Bender said.

State may seek Japan's help on SSC

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas may need Japan's help to secure funding for the federal super collider project, according to Texas Sen. Phil Gramm.

The $4.4 billion super collider, which would be the world's biggest atom smasher, is proposed to be built in Texas on farmland south of Dallas. Scientists would study the basic structure of atomic particles at the high energy physics laboratory.

Gramm, a Republican, and other Texas congressmen said Tuesday getting other countries to share the cost of the super collider may be crucial to ensure that Congress will approve funds for the project.

Gramm said he and the Energy Department were trying to convince Japan to commit $400 million to $500 million to the super collider. DOE, he said, "is trying to line up solid commitments from Japan and the European economic community."

"The more of the funding burden they're willing to pick up, combined with what the state has already provided, the quicker we're going to get some money," said Gramm during a news conference at the dedication of Sematech, a semiconductor research facility.

About 6,500 Texas farmers will receive FmHA past due notices

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — About 6,500 Texas farmers will be receiving notices from the Farmers Home Administration warning that their loans are past due, a move members of Congress say was timed for political reasons and which may be scrutinized.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a Texas Democrat and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, accused the FmHA of holding the letters back until after the Nov. 8 presidential election for "political reasons." Bentsen said the agency had the notices in hand "well before the election."

"That is no way to administer a program that is so important to our nation's farmers, and it is no way to treat the 6,500 or so Texans who are getting the letters," said Bentsen, the Democratic nominee for vice president.

"The Farm Credit Act of 1987, legislation on which I worked long and hard, may give us the means to restructure some of the overdue loans so that we do not push farmers into foreclosure unnecessarily," Bentsen said. "That is where I will focus my attention in the days ahead. I urge the Farmers Home Administration to do the same."

FmHA spokesman Marilyn Aycock said about 83,500 letters would be sent in an effort to collect $6.3 billion in past-due loans but Aycock said some accounts have been brought up to date. The collection effort comes under rules implementing new credit legislation that took effect Monday.

FmHA is considered the farm lender of last resort because it makes loans only to those who cannot qualify at banks or other commercial sources.

Rep. Glenn English, an Oklahoma Democrat and member of the House Agriculture Committee, said he was "certain that the actions of the Farmers Home Administration will be scrutinized by both the House and Senate agriculture committees with an eye toward whether Farmers Home has carried out both the letter and the intent of the 1987 Agriculture Credit Act."

The FmHA letters inform borrowers who are more than 180 days late of their options. The notices explain that FmHA borrowers must notify the agency within 45 days if they intend to apply to make arrangements for settling their debts. Details regarding the options, including debt restructuring and writeoffs, will be provided.

Congress in the Farm Credit Act ordered FmHA to revise its lending practices, with the debt write-down considered one of the most important parts of the law. It allows FmHA to reduce a farmer's delinquent debt to the recovery value of the collateral, which is usually land or farm equipment, depending upon cash flow and other factors.

Also, as a result of lawsuits, the FmHA is under court order to redo many of its loan regulations and to delay foreclosures and forced liquidations until those actions are completed.

against seeking a fourth term this fall, largely for financial reasons.

Brady, 58, former chairman of the investment banking house of Dillon, Read & Co., joins James A. Baker III, the secretary of state-designate, as a cornerstone member of the Bush Cabinet. Brady took over the Treasury Department post in August when Baker quit to run Bush's campaign.

Bush said Brady "will be the chief economic spokesman for my administration."

"He knows that our most important priority is to keep our economy growing with low inflation and . . . that we must resist the policies that will impede that effort, such as raising taxes or resorting to protection."

Bush added that Brady also "knows we've got to sit down with the Congress and hammer out a budget deficit reduction agreement and that we have to do it soon."

"I'm putting together a good team here," said Bush. "You'll see some continuity and you'll see some change."

Sununu flew to Florida on Monday for a private dinner with Bush at a friend's beach home where the Bushes took their post-election respite.

At a dinner Tuesday night honoring Bush's wife, Barbara, for her crusade against illiteracy, Bush joked that he had not quite been able to escape the media on his vacation.

"The slogan was not, given these telephoto lens, 'Read our lips,' but 'Read our hips' as we were in the surf," he said.

Both Bushes were visibly moved by the salute at the National Literacy Honors dinner, where Mrs. Bush and 18 adults who recently learned to read received gold medallions. Opera star Sherrill Milnes, singers Loretta Lynn and Pearl Bailey, Govs. Thomas Kean of New Jersey and Bill Clinton of Arkansas, and the Naval Academy Glee Club joined in the festivities.

"I really am overwhelmed," Mrs. Bush told the audience of 1,200. She said those who won their own battles with illiteracy were "all shining examples of those thousand points of light we've been hearing a lot about lately."

Bush, taking up that theme, said the entire audience of literacy activists and corporate sponsors were all part of what he meant by "a thousand points of light" reaching out "to help someone else."

With his wife now freed from campaigning, he said, "Now it's back to her true love, which is literacy," said Bush. "Barbara has helped, she will continue to help, and I want to help, too."

Twenty-three million American adults are said to be unable to read above a fourth grade level.

vince in central Vietnam, a site of heavy fighting during the war.

After the war, unexploded land mines, damaged forests and dead livestock were an immediate problem, Ngo said, reading a paper that was translated into English.

Then came natural disasters: a devastating flood in 1983 and a typhoon in 1985 that caused $50 million in damage.

"Since the end of the war, our people's health has been declining," Ngo said. "Many children are undernourished and get sick. The height and weight of newborn babies is declining."

But, he added, "Despite the many difficulties we face, progress is being made." People in the province are replanting trees and the water can now be used for domestic purposes, he said.

Ngo and another Vietnamese physician, Bui Tung, a surgeon at Hanoi Medical School, said assistance from several countries and private groups has helped the country recover from the war.

Tung said reconstruction has erased many of the scars of war, and he showed a picture of a portion of a bombed-out bridge next to the rebuilt span. He said the government has concentrated on providing medical care, nourishment, mental care and assistance in resuming normal life and vocational training.

In the United States, refugees, particularly from Cambodia, are still being treated for trauma experienced during the war, said Richard Mollica of the Southeast Asian Psychiatric Clinic in Boston.

Returning U.S. veterans also have suffered health problems. While claims of cancer, birth defects and other problems associated with exposure to Agent Orange have been disputed, the government has sponsored studies on the post-traumatic stress suffered by many veterans.

Jonathan Fine, executive director of Physicians for Human Rights, said the lesson of Vietnam should be studied in a government-funded institute that would examine the medical consequences of wars and the weapons used to wage them.

Fine said health professionals have always played a key role in taking care of war wounded, but they have not taken an active role in preventing conflicts.

"It's time for the public health community to declare war on war," he said.

Cotton fire injures 18; 400 evacuated

ALTUS, Okla. (AP) — Burning bits of newly harvested cotton carried by swirling winds spread a fire through this city, destroying 20 houses and businesses, injuring 18 people and keeping 400 evacuees from their homes today.

Police Chief Jim Hughes said the best he hoped for was that the driving winds would subside and no bodies would turn up as workers dug through rubble left from the blaze, which spread from giant bundles of cotton stored in an open field.

"The damage has been done," Hughes said late Tuesday after the fire was contained. "I'll be happy if we don't find anyone in that rubble. I don't think they will."

Dense smoke from the burning cotton forced the evacuation of about 400 of this southwest Oklahoma city's 23,000 residents. Several schools closed early. The smoke, fanned by 40-65 mph gusts, could be seen from 30 miles away and made firefighting difficult.

"We couldn't see a hand or foot in front of our face," said firefighter Eddie Williamson. "We had to feel from house to house."

The fire seemed to skip and jump like a tornado through a residential area, burning some houses and leaving others unscathed, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said.

Eighteen people were treated for smoke inhalation at Jackson County Memorial hospital, with six or seven hospitalized for observation, officials said.

Altus Civil Defense director Dwight Dennis said that evacuated residents would not be allowed to return home until at least today.

"It's just the dense smoke. We don't want them breathing it," Dennis said.

The fire broke out about noon in cotton modules, which resemble giant bales of cotton, said city Administrator Joe Courtney. The modules were about 40 feet long, 8 feet high and 8 feet wide and were stored in an open field to await pro-

Officials said the cause of the fire had not been determined.

Salazar released from custody

By MICHAEL DUFFY Staff Writer

Pete Salazar Jr. — the prosecution's chief witness in the state's case that resulted in the murder conviction and subsequent 50-year sentence for Frankie Hernandez — was released Tuesday on $50,000 bond, Howard County Chief Deputy Robert Puente confirmed.

Salazar, 24, who listed his address at the time of his arrest Oct. 16, 1987 as 411 N.W. 10th St., spent 13 months in jail.

Salazar — along with four other people including Frankie Hernandez — were indicted on charges of capital murder for the death of Noe Perez, 39, Grand Prairie, who disappeared in April 1987 and whose burned remains were found Oct. 20, 1987 in a remote area of Martin County.

A member of the Howard County District Attorney's staff said Salazar was not released on bond until the trial's conclusion because of fear for his safety.

On Nov. 9 Salazar directly implicated Hernandez as the instigator in the murder of Perez.

Puente said today, however, that there have been no threats against Salazar made at the sheriff's department.

During his testimony, Salazar, who admitted his own participation in the murder of Perez despite never knowing the victim, told a Howard County jury a grisly and convincing tale of how he, Hernandez, and three others beat and strangled Perez April 3, 1987 in Room 12 of Motel 9.

Salazar testified it was Frankie Hernandez who got a rope, placed it around Perez's neck and "Joe and Frankie just kept pulling on it."

Salazar told the court he complied with the demand by Jeannie Fonseca, serving a life sentence for another murder, and helped hold Perez's hands while the victim was being beaten and kicked.

Arthur Islas Jr. and Joe Hernandez also face capital murder charges in Perez's death.

The capital murder defendant also testified he, the Hernandez brothers and Arthur Islas Jr. laughed after they repeatedly jumped on Perez's back while a rope tied to his neck was connected to a bathroom door handle.

Salazar also testified that it was Frankie Hernandez who doused Perez's body with gasoline and set it afire in a secluded area of Martin County owned by Larry Shaw.

He told the court that he and the three other defendants smoked a marijuana cigarette while Fonseca turned Perez's body with a piece of pipe in an effort to make it burn more quickly.

graves. Of the 21,000 acres of land needed for the total project, 18,775 have been bought. Only 261 more acres of land for replacement wildlife habitat remain to be bought.

Land clearing operations within the lake's proposed basin are continuing, Morris said Tuesday. Some 10,000 acres must be cleared; of that total approximately 1,800 have been cleared entirely. There are about 2,000 acres of that land in cultivation, Morris noted. The remainder is covered with mesquite, bee brush, prickly pear, oak, pine and cedar growth.

Brush is cleared in two steps, Morris said: a 200-foot loop of 70-pound-per-foot anchor chain is dragged across the land between two bulldozers, uprooting and breaking most of the larger growth. A third bulldozer completes the operation by blading any remaining growth.

The brush is then piled and burned as a water-quality measure, Morris said. Some trees will be left in place to provide bass and other gamefish with cover, he said. Morris estimated 20 acres can be cleared per day.

CRMWD biologist Okla. Thornton, conducting the district's study of the endangered Concho water snake, said Tuesday he and Texas A&M biologist John Dixon have suspended their snakehunting operation for the season, despite an unusually warm fall.

"We shut down about Oct. 15," Thornton noted, "essentially in order to complete our report." The report, he explained, has been submitted to the U.S. government's Fish and Wildlife Service for study.

Sakharov has earned respect

Andrei Sakharov, the Soviet physicist and human-rights activist, has long been an inspiring symbol of resistance for victims of government repression the world over. He has bravely spoken out — against repression and in the face of it.

Although Sakharov was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975, his outspokenness has not been without cost. In 1980, he was banished to the Soviet city of Gorky for opposing the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. While in exile, he went on a lengthy hunger strike, which undermined his health. Mikhail Gorbachev approved his release in December 1986.

Sakharov, now 67, is in the United States this week on his first visit to the West. His comments so far would suggest that this most famous Soviet dissident is no less outspoken — and no less worthy of our attention.

"Perestroika," he said on Monday, referring to the restructuring of the Soviet economic and political system, is "at a very critical phase."

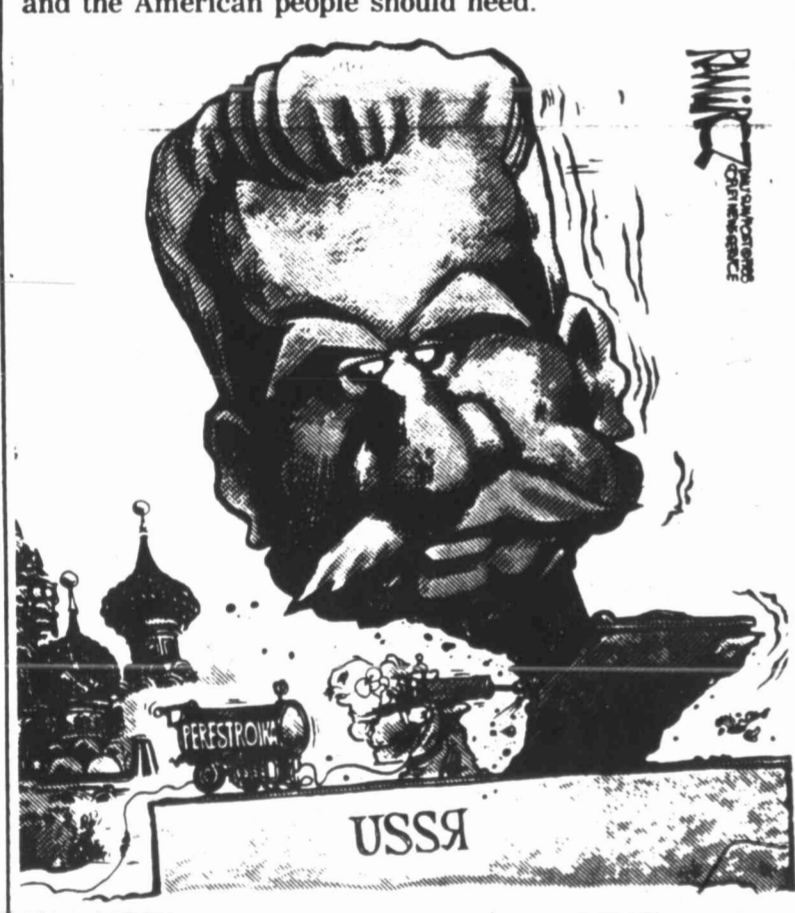

It's a "genuine, real process," he said, but it still could be undermined. He alluded to a crackdown on demonstrations, including the violent breakup of a meeting in Minsk last week. It gave him "very great anxiety," he said.

The failure of perestroika, Sakharov warned, would have consequences beyond the borders of the Soviet Union. Internal turmoil would prompt hard-liners to expand externally even as they came down hard internally. The result, Sakharov said, would be "a loss of stability for all the world" and "a great threat for all of humanity."

"The West must not fear perestroika," he said. Sakharov, who helped invent the Soviet hydrogen bomb, also noted that arms-control negotiations between the Soviet Union and the United States are at a crucial stage. Both sides are considering 50 percent cuts in their strategic arsenals. Sakharov called it an "extraordinary opportunity."

Sakharov is scheduled to meet with President Reagan next week. We would hope that he meets with President-elect Bush and with James Baker, the secretary of state-designate.

With the Soviet Union in the midst of dramatic change, Andrei Sakharov offers insights the new administration and the American people should heed.

"No... seriously... you haven't finally gone insane. Gorbachev really IS releasing political prisoners from psychiatric hospitals!"

Chance encounter results in pet

By BRAD COOPER
El Paso Times

Rambo came into my life several weeks ago.

It was somewhat of a stinging revelation — an affirmation, let us say, that the El Paso Southwest is... how shall I put it... different.

I'd heard about the scorpions stinging people in their own living rooms before, but when it happened it was more than just a pain-in-the-ankle. It wasn't that I was afraid of dying. Dying would almost be a pleasure next to trying to collect on a health insurance claim, and my group health holder had just made a new policy where you had to make approved emergency room reservations two weeks in advance of an injury, or you weren't going to get a dime out of them.

I called a friend (to call the emergency room for advice) and set out with a jar and a spatula to capture this 2-inch lobster-bug. Even though my ankle started to throb, I was on a game hunt for two reasons: (1) I was going to squash him on a Fax machine and phone him to a guy probably named Adolf at the insurance company if he gave me any trouble; and (2) I was sure some doctor at the hospital was going to want to know whether the particular scorpion that stung me was male or female, had brown eyes or blue.

"They said that most scorpions (great, define 'most' for me) around here aren't deadly," a friend reported over the phone as I stared at the insect now imprisoned in the apricot jam jar.

"The only problem might be an allergic reaction, in which case you'll get light-headed, turn white and maybe pass out, and then you ought to call 911."

Hopefully not in that order, and not until I microwave this S.O.B., I thought.

Guest column

With some ice and sympathy, I lived. So did Rambo.

He's pretty good as pets go. I don't have to have meaningful conversations with him like you do with some philodendrons, and he doesn't bug the neighbors. I don't have to get up in the middle of the night to let him out, and he doesn't chase cars. He doesn't get matted slobber all over his ears. Indeed, I don't even know if he has ears. When I go to put on my tuxedo, it isn't immediately covered with hair.

That doesn't mean that life with Rambo has been a bowl of cherries either. He won't eat cherries. No, it couldn't be that easy. They don't make Purina Scorpion Chow, and Morris the spokescat would be more to Rambo's liking than any cat food.

Unlike a dog, I wish Rambo would get ticks. It'd save me having to catch them.

Now, late at night, I dress in black, leave my fashionable Kearn Place two-bedroom with curb-appeal stone cottage and search for things that crawl in the night.

I figure if I ever get picked up by the police, creeping around in a black commando outfit with a flashlight, I'm going to fess up to being a cat burglar. If word got out about scorpions in Kern Place, the property values would go to hell and the Junior League would be out of several cute places to throw darling cocktail parties.

Yeah, Rambo's been OK, even though a bit aggressive and a little temperamental. We share a mutual love-hate thing. I hate bugs; he loves them. Cats just stare at them; Rambo goes turbo. Bugs are his life. I do miss a lick on the hand sometimes, though, and I'm sure that fetching slippers and the morning paper is pretty much out of the question.

I haven't been robbed since he's taken up his post on the front porch. The mail delivery seems to be a bit erratic, but I haven't had any of those youthful here's-my-ID-card magazine salesman, either.

No double-knit missionaries from Salt Lake City have stopped by to discuss my fulfillment in life (the answer surely secured in their dangling briefcases).

I've made a note to get him his shots at six weeks and I know sooner or later I'm going to have him fixed so he doesn't embarrass me when friends come over.

Soon he'll be big enough for a collar. In the cool, satisfied Kern Place mornings we'll go jogging together, maybe up over Scenic Drive. If he does well in obedience school at the Y, I'll take him biking. He'll undoubtedly run along nipping at my heels and then disappear, off exploring the neighborhood lawns where I'll allow him to relieve himself as soon many of my neighbors have done unto me. I'll look the other way, of course, as though it's not happening.

The next weekend when they're out mowing the lawn they'll step in it and use the S-word. "Why don't they keep their damn scorpions in their own yards?" they'll mumble.

And when vacation comes there will be saddened parting when I drop him off with his blanket and toys at the kennel for two weeks.

Or, maybe I'll make a paperweight out of him.

Some things cost less out of town

To the editor: A Big Spring Herald public service advertisement that appeared on page 7-B of your Sunday, November 13, 1988 issue encourages your readers to support our local businesses. We heartily agree with all Big Springers being "bullish on Big Spring." However, after having spent much time in neighboring towns we find it more economical to patronize businesses in their neighboring communities.

Probably due to the volume of sales, grocers there have consistently lower prices than those we find in local grocery stores. Also at least one store gives double value on manufacturer coupons of greater value than our local supermarkets. And some of the grocery stores accept payment via bank credit cards which gives us additional points toward discounted on free airline travel.

Gasoline in these towns, most of which have no local refinery, is available at 4 to 6 cents per gallon cheaper.

We would like to be totally "bullish on Big Spring" and will continue to be on those products and services that are of comparable value to those found within a reasonable distance of our great town.

Geography improves relations

By KAREN MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

There has been a lot of news this week — Geography Awareness Week 1988 — about the poor showing of American students in the area of geography.

I am old enough to remember when geography was taught as a separate subject in both grade school and high school. We memorized states and capitals in grade school and didn't pass to the next grade unless we could fill in a U.S. map accurately. In high school we coped with the world and that was harder because we had not only countries with their capitals but also the continents, the seas, the major mountain ranges and other special items such as Victoria Falls.

All this memorization paid off when we moved on to history, science, world literature, and even algebra, which I seem to remember was invented by Arabs. The whole point is that a lot of fields are incomprehensible without a basic sense of location.

What happened to geography? Was geography deemed minor enough that administrators figured it would be picked up through related studies: Columbus discovered America in 1492 — this, class, is where America is?

No wonder some people have trouble seeing the world as a whole, with sympathy and understanding of the similarities and differences we share with others.

Which brings me to a point I have wanted to make.

I have been seeing quite a few stories from the Associated Press news service in recent months of racial and religious violence. Churches and synagogues have been vandalized and burned. Blacks, Asians, Jews and homosexuals have been subjected to harassment and even death. Skinheads make intolerable slurs on the Geraldo Rivera show (which resulted in a televised fight and a broken nose for Rivera.) A black man was beaten to death by a white gang in Portland last weekend. The Ku Klux Klan is actively recruiting members.

I'm not sure what has happened to cause such a nationwide outburst of hatred, mostly on the part of white youths. I would make the basic assumption, without really knowing any of them personally, that these young people are mostly poorly educated and have a low sense of self-confidence.

But it behooves the rest of us, the rational, fair-minded, reasonable citizens, to examine our own attitudes and behavior to make sure we are as unprejudiced as possible.

There is no acceptable reason to pre-judge anyone on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, or sex. (I left out creed when I realized I am guilty of condemning everyone who calls himself a skinhead without ever having met and talked to a single one.)

We owe it to ourselves and to our children to actively and vocally protest every case of prejudice we encounter. To merely sit back and deny that we would be guilty of such an act is not enough — our rejection of prejudice should be just as conspicuous as the incident of prejudice itself. To do less constitutes an acceptance of the act.

Let's support the winner

To the editor:

With the race for the 69th District over, it is once again time to put aside our differences and give enthusiastic support to the one we have selected to represent us. For the first time ever, that person will be a Republican — the only evidence any of us have ever seen that proves we really do have a two party system in this District.

There has been with us too long a myth that only one representing the other side of the ticket — a Democrat — could be representative of all the people. Not true! Along with this has been the logic that any one that exhibited any qualities of success could not possibly make a good representative. Indeed, this became a critical issue in the campaign and the only fault that could be found with our newest representative — that he was successful.

Those that know Troy Fraser know that he will work as hard in the legislature as he did campaigning. He will work for all of us — from Coahoma to Pecos, for the rich and the poor (and the in-between).

Give Troy Fraser 8 years in Austin and he won't be head of a committee; he will likely be the strongest and most positive voice West Texas ever had in the State Capitol. And let us all hope (and pray) that he continues to be... successful.

Humane Society thanks helpers

To the editor:

In behalf of the Big Spring Humane Society and the four-footed friends that we represent, I would like to express my deepest thanks to those who helped make our rummage sale a success. The money made from the sale will go toward the operation of our Adoption Center.

Without the help and cooperation of the First National Bank and the use of their building the sale would not have been possible. Without the dedication and many miles of driving to pick up and to unload donated items by Lou Chrane we could never have accomplished our goal. And a special thank you to the Humane Society members who worked sorting and selling at the sale: Bettie Cox, Greg Smith, Emma Doe, Mary Thomas, Karen McCarthy, Shirley Murphy, Tara McCarthy, Donise Perkins and Margo Perkins. We couldn't have done it without them. We thank the members of the community who sent us their items to sell a heartfelt warm purr and wag of the tail to you. Your continued support and caring has made it all a reality. We can never say thanks enough.

Deficit falls nearly $2 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's merchandise trade deficit shrank nearly $2 billion to $10.5 billion in September as exports hit a record high, the government said today.

The 15 percent improvement came from an August deficit revised upward from $12.18 billion to $12.3 billion. Imports declined slightly in September from the record high $39.8 billion posted the previous month, the Commerce Department said.

Analysts had anticipated the narrowing of the U.S. trade gap in September following a large widening in August in what has been a month-to-month seesaw pattern most of this year.

Many analysts, however, had hoped for a greater narrowing of the gap to prevent a new raid on the dollar, which fell last week on currency markets over concerns about President-elect George Bush's ability to bring down the trade and budget deficits.

Plan could gather more dust

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Economic Commission, once seen as the best hope for solving the federal government's budget problems, now faces the possibility that George Bush will let its recommendations gather dust on the shelf.

The president-elect's campaign pledge against any tax increases could undercut recommendations by the 12-member commission, which will expand to 14 with the appointment of the final two members by Bush. Many analysts are watching closely to see whom Bush names to the panel, figuring that this could give a clue about the president-elect's intentions.

The panel, headed by Democrat Robert Strauss and Republican Drew Lewis, will kick off its post-election deliberations today with a full agenda of 27 witnesses scheduled to testify. Some of the biggest names on budget and economic matters are scheduled to appear, including Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan.

Former Goodwill executive guilty

CHICAGO (AP) — A former executive of Goodwill Industries was found guilty of diverting more than $400,000 from the charity for his personal use.

Herman Kaye, 66, the former associate director of Goodwill Industries of Chicago and Cook County, was convicted Tuesday on multiple counts of racketeering, fraud and tax evasion.

Kaye, who resigned from the charity in 1985, faces a maximum of 103 years in prison and $145,000 in fines when he is sentenced Jan. 4.

The government also will attempt to seize more than $300,000 in assets that Kaye is accused of gaining through the sale of real estate that was donated to the charity.

300-foot telescope collapses

GREEN BANK, W.Va. (AP) — One of the world's biggest radio telescopes collapsed in what a scientist lamented as a "major blow" to astronomy.

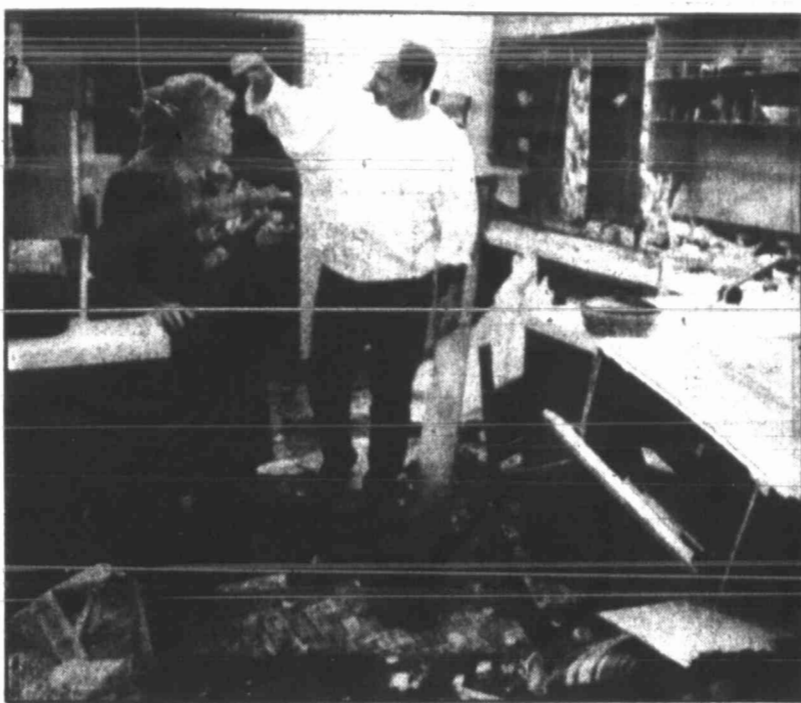

The 26-year-old telescope, a dish the length of a football field in diameter, gave way late Tuesday, said George Seielstad, assistant director for Green Bank operations at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory.

"Absolutely nobody was hurt, but the telescope itself is beyond repair and there was damage to the control room where the telescope is operated from," Seielstad said today.

The cause of the accident was under investigation. "We know it was not weather-related because last night was a beautiful evening," Seielstad said.

The 300-foot telescope, which resembles a TV satellite dish, was as a "major surveyor of the universe," capable of covering the entire northern sky, he said.

TOPEKA, Kan. — Topekans Sara Weeks and Harold Pierce stand in what's left of Weeks' home after a freak November twister smashed portions of the city on Tuesday.

Several tornadoes kill at least seven

At least 35 tornadoes churned a trail of destruction through five states, killing seven people and injuring dozens, while the same storm system left three people dead in road accidents in the season's first major snowfall.

The twisters took their worst toll in Arkansas, where six people were killed and many others injured on Tuesday as the tornadoes damaged buildings and overturned cars.

"I can't even tell what street I'm on because the trees are uprooted," said Police Chief Darnell Scott of the central Arkansas town of Lonoke. "Damage is so bad. I think we were very lucky it wasn't more tragic than it was."

Tornadoes also struck Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Iowa. One person died in Missouri when a tornado threw a trailer home into the air, authorities said. A woman in Illinois was electrocuted by a power line downed by high wind.

"It may be a little unusual for this time of year to have a tornado outbreak like this, because they normally occur in spring," said meteorologist Brian Smith from the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City.

ning thunderstorms were created by an intense area of low pressure over the upper Mississippi Valley and a cold front trailing south from the low, Smith said this morning.

The same low pressure system produced up to a foot of snow over most of Colorado and Western Kansas on Tuesday, and the snow moved today into the eastern Dakotas, Minnesota, northwest Iowa and eastern Nebraska, he said. The storm closed schools in Colorado and caused three traffic fatalities in there.

In Arkansas, as many as 10 tornadoes touched down Tuesday night, toppling trees, downing power lines and crumpling mobile homes, houses and businesses.

Two people were killed on Interstate 40 near Lonoke when high winds overturned their vehicle. A Wal-Mart store and an attached grocery in Lonoke were demolished by a tornado. A janitor suffered a minor shoulder injury, police said.

Three other people were killed when a tornado ripped through the town of Scott in west-central Arkansas, and a man injured when a twister struck north-central Arkansas later died at a hospital, authorities said.

Tentative agreement in Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — South African-controlled Namibia will hold elections for its first independent government next year and the more than 50,000 Cuban troops in Angola will be sent home by early 1991 under a tentative agreement reached in Geneva, U.S. officials say.

The agreement was worked out by negotiators during five days of talks that ended Tuesday and is subject to final approval by the governments of South Africa, Cuba and Angola, officials said.

If ratified, the agreement would represent a victory for U.S. Assistant Secretary Chester Crocker, who has been attempting to work out a settlement since 1981 and has served as mediator for the current phase of the negotiations, which began in May.

The officials, insisting on anonymity, said it was agreed the Cuban troops would be withdrawn over a 27-month period, probably starting in December.

First free election in a decade

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Pakistanis voted today in their first free elections in more than a decade, deciding whether the charismatic populist Benazir Bhutto will become the first woman to lead this Moslem nation.

About 30 political parties ran for 217 seats in the National Assembly, but the two heavyweights were Ms. Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party and the conservative Islamic Democratic Alliance, which is dominated by supporters of the late military ruler Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq.

There were no reports of major violence or fraud when the polls closed at 5 p.m. (7 a.m. EST).

PLO moves toward moderation

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — It could be months before the PLO's strategic shift from guerrilla warfare to political pragmatism, based on indirect recognition of Israel, has any real impact on Middle East peace efforts.

But, if nurtured, the clear swing toward moderation by the Palestine Liberation Organization could mark the start of a serious peace dialogue.

The big question now is how far the United States and Israel are prepared to go in terms of direct talks with the PLO, which also declared an independent Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital.

Tuesday's declarations in Algiers, by implicitly recognizing Israel and renouncing terrorism, mark a significant breakthrough in the Middle East peace process even though Palestinian pragmatists have long advocated the moves.

Parliament begins debate today

TALLINN, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Defying the Kremlin, Estonia's parliament today began debating a "declaration of sovereignty" proclaiming the Baltic republic's independence in all areas but defense and foreign policy.

About 1,000 quiet, determined supporters of the declaration held the blue-and-white flag of Estonian independence, banners and posters outside the pink 18th century Toompea Palace as the session began.

For the first time in the history of Soviet Estonia, the debate was broadcast live on television in the republic.

Legislators also were to weigh a related amendment to the Estonian Constitution that would bar enforcement of any new Soviet law unless it has been ratified by the Estonian Parliament, said Edgar Savisaar, a leader of the grass-roots Estonian People's Front.

Big bellies may mean heart problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — If your paunch is fatter than your haunch, the chances are you're at greater risk of having a heart attack, a stroke or diabetes.

Scientists at the American Heart Association meeting said Tuesday that a series of studies in the United States, Europe and Canada have now confirmed that a pooling of fat about the middle is a clear signal of heart attack risk.

A Santa Claus-style belly may be cute, but it can be as dangerous to the heart as cigarette smoking, high blood pressure or excess cholesterol in the blood stream, said Per Bjornorp of the University of Goteborg in Sweden.

"If a person has normal weight, but the fat is distributed wrong, it could be a risk," said Bjornorp. "When you compare it to the other risk factors, it is about the same strength."

He said he studied a group of 900 men and 1,400 women and found that those who had more fat on the waist than on the buttocks tended to have a greater number of heart attacks. Those with belly blubber also experienced more strokes and were more apt to develop diabetes.

Bjornorp said the study showed that men whose waists measured the same or more than their hips were more apt to have a heart attack than those who carried their weight elsewhere. For women, he said, the risks increase when the waist size was 80 percent of the hip size. And the fatter the waist, the higher the risk, he said.

In effect, if you're shaped like a barrel, you've got a greater chance of having a heart attack than if you're shaped like a pear.

A Canadian study of identical twins showed that the rate of weight gain and the distribution of fat may be determined, in part, by genetics.

Mom finally tells son 'I love you'

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing the letter from "Feeling Guilty" — the mother who couldn't bring herself to show love to her 15-year-old daughter. I know exactly how she feels.

For the first four or five years of my son's life, I simply could not show him any affection and I was miserable because I couldn't do anything about it. Deep down I really loved Tommy and would have killed anyone who tried to harm him. Yet I held him at arm's length.

Why? Because I was crazy in love with his father, "Mike," who ordered me to get an abortion when I told him I was pregnant. (We were not married.) I considered an abortion, made all the arrangements, but couldn't go through with it at the last minute. That cost me my relationship with Mike.

I married someone else for all the wrong reasons, but that marriage didn't last long.

Dear Abby

As time went on, I found myself being unreasonably hostile to Tommy. It got so bad that I actually gave him to a friend for a few days so I could get my head screwed on straight. After hours of soul-searching and praying, God finally spoke to my heart. He said, "You are blaming Tommy for being born and coming between you and Mike." When I finally admitted it to myself, it was as though a heavy weight was lifted from my shoulders.

Tommy is 11 now, and I'll never forget one day about three years ago, we were driving down the street, and I just felt like reaching over, giving his arm a pat and saying, "I love you." He turned toward me, his big brown eyes filled with tears, and said, "Mommy, I don't remember ever hearing you say that before." Abby, that just about broke my heart. Imagine being 7 years old and never hearing your mom say "I love you" before.

From that day on, I changed my ways and have said "I love you" every day. And you know what? I really do.

New devices attacking heart disease

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors are attacking heart disease with a variety of tiny new devices that shave, sand or burn away fatty deposits that clog the arteries, according to reports Monday.

"This is in its infancy," said Dr. George Beller of the University of Virginia. "Progress is being made by leaps and bounds. We are starting to see the first trials in patients."

All of the gadgets being developed are intended to burrow through plugged heart arteries and blast away the fatty buildups that choke off the flow of blood and cause heart attacks.

They were described Monday at the annual meeting of the American Heart Association. An estimated 30,000 people are attending the four-day meeting.

All of the devices are intended to replace or improve balloon angioplasty. This treatment, performed on 184,000 people last year, is one of the nation's most common medical procedures.

The devices have been tested on numbers ranging from about 50 to more than 200 patients — more research will be necessary before doctors know whether the long-term success is any better than with balloon angioplasty.

During angioplasty, doctors thread a tiny balloon through an artery into the heart. There it's inflated, squeezing open the narrowed blood vessel. However, in about 30 percent of cases the vessel soon closes shut again.

Doctors hope the new tools will solve this problem. The devices have been tested on numbers ranging from about 50 to more than 200 patients. While these initial results show they can open clogged arteries, more research will be necessary before doctors know whether the long-term success is any better than with balloon angioplasty.

The new devices include:

- Shaver catheter. This device works something like a miniature electric razor. Anything on the vessel walls that contacts the catheter's whirling blades is sliced off and removed.

- Rotablator. This is a diamond-coated burr similar to a dentist's drill. "It literally polishes and sands the inside of a diseased vessel," said Dr. Robert Ginsburg of Stanford University.

- Hot-tipped laser. This metal point is heated by a laser. It burns away the fatty deposits.

- Smart laser. This approach uses a laser beam directly to burn the deposits. Earlier attempts failed because the pin-point beam burned holes in the artery. Now doctors are marking the fat first with specific colors, then using lasers that only attack those colors.

- Laser and balloon. In this technique, doctors open the artery with a balloon. Then they use relatively low levels of laser heat to seal off tears in the vessel wall and, they hope, prevent it from squeezing shut again.

In addition, several reports at the meeting describe the use of mesh tubes that are pushed into the newly opened blood vessels. The goal is to hold the blood vessels open after angioplasty.

Of the devices described, the shaver catheter has been tested most widely, used on about 230 heart patients at several hospitals.

Its developer, Dr. John B. Simpson of Sequoia Hospital in Redwood City, Calif., predicted that it will be approved for widespread use in about a year. Doctors working with other devices said as much as five years more testing may be required before they can be employed routinely.

Women now live longer; AIDS threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — American females born today can expect to live healthier, longer lives than those born a quarter century ago, but the AIDS epidemic and limited access to the health care system pose a serious threat, says a status report on today's woman.

Citing recent surveys and national statistics, the study suggests that although women make up a small proportion of those who have been diagnosed with acquired immune deficiency syndrome since the beginning of the deadly epidemic, women are the fastest growing group of people with AIDS.

A separate study on women's health care notes that of the 37 million Americans without health insurance, women are most vulnerable.

The poverty rate is higher among women, especially older women, and they must rely on inadequate public programs, the study said. Women classified as non-poor are less likely to work than men and therefore are less likely to be covered by an employer's health insurance plan.

The studies are contained in "The American Woman 1988-89: A Status Report," a 443-page collection addressing issues ranging from the presence of women in politics to basic health care to women's progress in law enforcement.

In a chapter devoted to AIDS, the study cites statistics compiled by the Centers for Disease Control, which found that in the first 11 months of 1987, 1,377 women were diagnosed with the incurable disease — 8 percent of all AIDS cases reported during that period.

The disease that attacks the body's immune system is believed caused by an unusual virus, now called human immunodeficiency virus or HIV. The virus is spread through close contact with blood or semen from infected persons. The disease is spread most often through sexual contact, needles or syringes shared by drug abusers, or infected blood or blood products.

The study notes that the Centers for Disease Control estimates there are 50 to 80 times as many women who are infected with HIV as there are women with active cases of AIDS.

The status report says that 15 percent of women who acquired AIDS through sexual contact were not aware of their contact's risk factor — intravenous drug user, bisexual or the recipient of possibly contaminated blood.

"To prevent further spread of the deadly AIDS virus to women and their children, it is imperative both to educate the general public and to mount aggressive, targeted outreach efforts to women at highest risk," the report said.

Three area teams in state playoffs

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

After one week of state high school football playoffs, there are three Crossroads Country teams left.

Last week the area split, winning two and losing two. The 11-man teams, Stanton and Colorado City came through with wins, while six-man teams Klondike and Grady ran into very tough opponents.

The Garden City Bearcats get their first taste of state playoff action when they take on the Sanderson Eagles in McCamey.

The Cougars were upset by the Sierra Blanca Vaqueros 31-23, a team that was runner-up in their district. The Cougs were hampered by turnovers, especially in the second half. On both turnovers, Sierra Blanca scored touchdowns.

The Grady Wildcats just bit off more than they could chew in taking on the powerful Fort Hancock Mustangs and losing by a 61-16 count.

The Wildcats were in the playoffs for the first time in six years. They really didn't know what to expect. The Mustangs were doing this for the third straight year, therefore almost everyone on the team knew what playoff pressure is about.

And to top it all off, the Mustangs just had too many thoroughbreds for the 'Cats.

How good is Fort Hancock? Well, they are supposed to be a run-oriented team. So they promptly went and passed for 389 yards against the Wildcats in three quarters of play.

Don't be surprised to see the Fort Hancock Mustangs win their second state championship in three years.

The Stanton Buffalos used the big play in beating the Winters Blizzards 24-12 on Winters' home field Friday.

The Buffs, who are equipped with good overall team speed, got a 72-yard scoring run from quarterback Randy Nevarez and a 55-yard interception returned for a touchdown from cornerback Steve Scurlark.

Stanton coach Dale Ruth also tricked the Blizzards with his play calling. Most of the season — and for most of the game — Ruth will bring option QB Nevarez out and let Brad Holland do the throwing.

But on one drive in the second half, Ruth twice had Nevarez throw on third and long situations, catching the Blizzards napping because they were expecting the run.

Nevarez completed both passes, the last a 123-yard touchdown to tight end Lance Jenkins.

*****
As it has all season, the Colorado City Wolves' defense turned in a sterling performance in the Wolves' 12-0 win over Llano.

The Wolves went into the game allowing seven points per game. They went even one better against Llano, allowing the Yellow Jackets only 190 yards total offense.

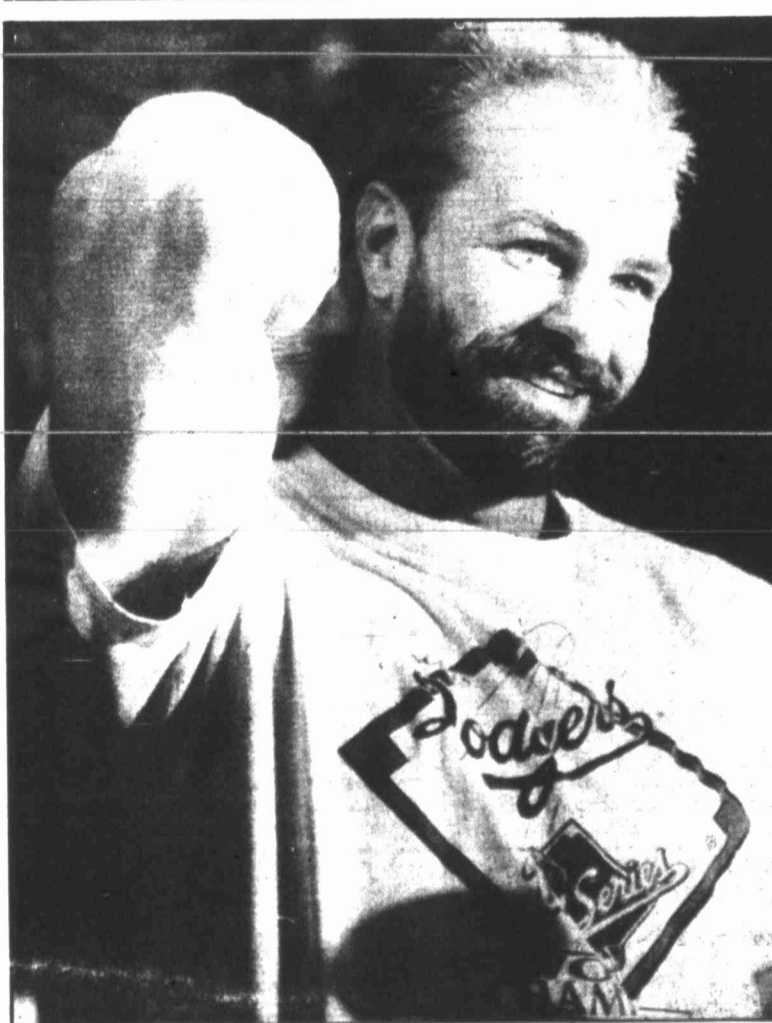

C-City's offense sputtered at times; three turnovers were part of the cause. But the Wolf offense was good enough to muster two TD's.

*****
This week's contests will be hard ones for both Stanton and Colorado City.

The Buffs catch perennial power Eastland Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in Abilene's Shotwell Stadium. The Mavericks finished second in District 8-2A behind DeLeon, who's ranked No. 5 in the state.

Eastland seems to be a very balanced team. In last week's 40-6 win over Anson, the Mavs ran for 232 yards and passed for 210 yards.

Colorado City faces a tough road to hoe also. The Decatur Eagles, winners of District 5-3A, are a team that is used to the state playoffs.

Lady Steers nudge 'Cats

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Tami Wise did the damage early and Gisila Spears did the damage late as the Big Spring High School Lady Steers opened their basketball season with a 57-51 victory over the San Angelo Central Lady Bobcats in Steer Gym Tuesday night.

Big Spring was led by Wise's 24 points, but it was Spears' 12 points — six of which came in the last 2:31 of the game — that iced the victory for the Lady Steers.

Big Spring coach C.E. Carmichael expressed mixed feelings on his team's play after the game.

"I really thought San Angelo played well," Carmichael said. "I thought we made way too many mistakes that a veteran team doesn't make."

"We haven't scrimmaged this year and I guess it showed," he said. "I've been coaching long enough so that I'll always take a first-game win, but I saw a lot of things that need hard work."

If Tuesday's game is any indication, one thing Carmichael won't have to work on is Wise's point production. Until she got in foul trouble early in the second half, the senior post player proved to be a major headache for the Lady Bobcats.

Big Spring would grab the lead for good when point guard Peggy Smith buried a three-point shot with 7:06 left in the opening quarter — and then Wise went to work.

She proceeded to score 10 of the Lady Steers' next 12 points to give the hosts a 15-8 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

Field goals by Stephanie Ware and Gail Allison, and a free throw from Rhonda Orr would bring San Angelo to within four, but Wise responded with eight points and Debbie Pulver and Kelley Knight added buckets to give the Lady Steers a 27-17 halftime lead.

Unfortunately for Big Spring, Wise also was called for three first-half fouls to go with her 18 points during that time, which would significantly lower her output during the second half.

But fortunately for the locals, the second half would be Spears' time to shine, as she scored all her points in the last 16 minutes.

Her first point — on a free throw with 4:41 left in the third quarter — gave the Lady Steers a 30-21 lead, and she would add two more on a jumper 30 seconds later to offset a basket from San Angelo's Christi Uzilino.

It was at that point, however, that the Lady Bobcats began their biggest surge of the night — a 10-4 spurt that would cut the margin to five points as the quarter ended.

Kristie Neighbors would score on a jumper early in the fourth to bring San Angelo to within three, but Wise responded with two buckets and Spears added another to give the Lady Steers some breathing space.

The teams would trade baskets for the next few minutes until Uzilino, Allison and Ware each scored baskets to cut the Big Spring lead to 46-44 with 4:58 left in the contest.

Two free throws from Wise and a lay-up from Smith off a turnover would increase the Big Spring lead to six points before Allison responded with a short jumper at the three-minute mark.

Momentum appeared to be on San Angelo's side — especially after the Lady Steers failed to get the ball past midcourt in the allotted 10 seconds with 2:41 left.

But Spears added two more free throws, and then Smith turned in perhaps the game's most important play when she stole a San Angelo pass at the 2:12 mark.

Big Spring then froze the ball for the next minute, daring the Lady Bobcats to come and take it from them. Uzilino tried just that but missed, and Spears took advantage of the mistake for an easy lay-up with little more than a minute left in the game.

She would add two more points on a jumper 30 seconds later to give Big Spring a 57-48 edge, and the Lady Steers hung on for the win.

Carmichael said Spears may have been favoring an injured knee early in the contest, but responded

It will be basketball galore this weekend at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum when the Howard College Hawk-Queens host the Hawk-Queen Classic Thursday through Saturday.

Eight teams will be vying to make it to the championship game, which will be Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

Besides Howard, also competing in the tournament will be Panola, Western Texas, McLennan, Odessa, Temple, Mesa, Ariz. and Weatherford.

The Hawk-Queens, 2-6 for the season, will take on Weatherford College at 8 p.m. Thursday night. If Howard wins, it will play the winner of the Temple-Mesa contest on 8 p.m. Friday. If Howard loses, it will play the loser of the Temple-Mesa contest at 4 p.m. Friday.

Kicking off the action Thursday afternoon will be Panola and Western Texas at 2 p.m.

Western Texas, a Western Junior College Athletic Conference foe of Howard, currently has a 5-3 record.

Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters are one of the most veteran teams around in the junior college circles.

Four top-quality starters return, led by post player Nicki Allen, a 5-11 jumping jack from Amarillo High School.

WTC has been beaten by Western Oklahoma, Kilgore and South Plains. But they also beat South Plains by 10 points in a second meeting.

Panola brings an East Texas flavor to the tournament. Coached by former Forsan High School and Western Texas coach Joe Cushing, the Fillies are considered one of the powers in the strong East Texas area. Panola is expected to battle Kilgore, Trinity Valley and Tyler for top honors in its conference.

The 4 p.m. game Thursday will pit McLennan Community College against Odessa College.

Coach Ken Hefner's always powerful Lady Wranglers will display a younger look this season. After suffering back-to-back losses

Although they are young, Odessa's talent is top caliber. Coach Hefner feels his team is improving fast, and that they once again will be one of the top teams in the WJAC.

The MCC High Lassies are coached by Wendall Hudson and bring a 2-4 record into the tournament. It is a fiercely competitive squad that has a nice blend of experience — five sophomores and eight freshmen.

Buzzer-beater sinks Steers, 78-76

SAN ANGELO — Tracey Anthony hit a jumper from the top of the key with three seconds left and the San Angelo Central Bobcats nipped the Big Spring Steers 78-76 in the season opener for both teams Tuesday night.

The Steers had the ball and a 75-74 lead with 30 seconds remaining in the game. Steers guard Tony Lewis missed a outside shot, Central rebounded and Big Spring fouled. The Central player made both foul shots, giving the Bobcats a 76-75 lead.

Next Big Spring post player Thane Russey was fouled. Russey made one free shot, tying the contest at 76-all. Then Anthony came down and hit a bomb from the top of the key with three seconds left, giving Central a 78-76 lead. Ironically, Anthony hit the winning shot in a victory over Big Spring last year.

Then Steers guard Abner Shellman heaved a pass downcourt to post player Joe Downey, who was fouled on the play. But Downey missed the front end of the one-and-one attempt, allowing the Bobcats to escape with the victory.

"It was a typical Big Spring-Central ballgame," said Steers coach Boyce Paxton. "It was close and very competitive. We outplayed them. We outrebounded them 42-30 and they had 15 tur-Russey led the Steers with 24 points and 14 rebounds. Guards

Shellman and Doug Young scored 21 and 18 points respectively.

The Steers will host Frenship Saturday at Steer Gym at 7:30 p.m.

Sub-Varsity results
The Bobcats made it a clean sweep by winning the sophomore and junior varsity games.

Central won the sophomore game 85-49. Raul Castillo led Big Spring with 17 points. Brad Neel and Joe Juarez scored 10 and eight points respectively.

Central won the junior varsity contest 92-57. Roy Lang was Big Spring's leading scorer with 16. Neal Mayfield scored 15 and Allan Baker added eight points.

Lions after Houston Oilers coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers coach Jerry Glanville has been offered a five-year, $3 million contract with the Detroit Lions, The Houston Post reported today.

Although Glanville has refused to comment on speculation he may coach the Lions, the Post reported that he met unofficially with Detroit and was told he could have the job.

Oilers owner Bud Adams said he would not release Glanville from the remaining two years of his five-year contract with the Oilers. "That's something I don't even want to talk about," Adams said.

"As far as I'm concerned, he's got a contract for two more years and he has to honor it. I'm not interested in Jerry Glanville coaching anywhere else. That's why you sign contracts, so you won't have to deal with these things."

Glanville would not address the subject Tuesday, saying, "I'm just trying to get ready for the Cardinals." The Oilers host the Phoenix Cardinals on Sunday in the AstroDome.

Glanville, who was born and reared in Detroit, once wrote an essay in the eighth grade saying he was going to be the head coach of the Lions some day. He also has been friends with Lions owner William Clay Ford since he had his first National Football League coaching job with the Lions in 1974.

Adams, however, said he would not even allow Glanville to talk to the Lions about the job.

"But he's never told me he wanted to coach there. All I've heard were rumors to that effect."

On the two remaining years of his contract, it is believed Glanville will get $300,000 per year, about half of what he would be paid by the Lions.

Glanville is 21-23 as a head coach but he took the Oilers to the playoffs last year and seems to have them headed back for a return appearance this season.

It's Cotton Ginning Time

Bringing in the bolls

By PEGGY LUXTON
Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc.

Every fall in Martin County, farmers strip their cotton and load it in trailers or in modules — and its off to the gin. County roads look like they sport the vestiges of half-melted snowfalls as loose bolls and bits of cotton float off trailers to cover the ditches alongside.

A cotton gin to someone not a farmer is a big building that is common to most communities in this part of the world. You know that cotton is ginned there, but you're not at all sure what process it goes through from trailer to bale.

Smoky Greenhaw is boss in one of Martin County's cleanest, most efficient, and most successful gins — the Lenorah Gin Company. The gin has been in business since 1941 and Smoky has directed that business as gin manager since 1948. The gin is a privately-owned Texas Corporation. The gin serves farms all over the area, but the majority of the cotton processed there is Martin County cotton.

A fixture of Lenorah, Smoky was born there and spent all of his 62 years there — excepting the time he spent in the Army in Europe. After Smoky returned from his stint with Uncle Sam, he went to work in the gin in the tiny community about 15 miles northwest of Stanton.

When a farmer takes his raw cotton to the Lenorah Gin Company, the ginning process is begun by a weighing-in on the gin scales. The farmer does not get paid for the cotton as it is weighed in, he is paid for the finished weight of the bale. The bales weigh approximately 500 pounds, though they may vary a few pounds either way. When the cotton is weighed, it is parked in its place in line. First cotton in is first cotton ginned.

The cotton is removed from the trailer by suction. It goes into a cleaner and separator, where the cotton is separated from the air. A lot of the trash and dirt in the cotton is removed by this process.

The cotton is then moved through the dryer tower. If the cotton is a little green, there is heat put on it while it's in the tower. Depending on the condition of the cotton being processed, the tower may contain heat or no heat. It can also be double-dried, if necessary.

The next step is the cleaner. This removes more dirt and trash from the cotton. At this point, the cotton is still in the boll. After the cleaner, it goes through the burr machine, where it is rid of burrs and stems. From there, it goes through the stick machine, where most of the sticks are removed.

The cotton then goes through another cleaning. This step is by what is called the "push/pull" system. Air pushes the cotton at the same time that air pulls the cotton. It then goes into the distributor, which moves it and distributes it at the gin stands. While the cotton is still in the feeders, more cleaning is done.

When the cotton reaches the gin stands, this is where ginning is actually done. Saws take the lint off the seed. The lint goes into the lint flue and the seeds go into the seed pile. After the lint, which the cotton has now become, is put into the lint flue, it goes to the lint cleaners. This time, moisture is added and it is a humidifying procedure. Air pulls the cotton from there to the lint cleaners, where it is cleaned some more. This time, the lint is cleaned in a "sling-off saw" system. Saws rotate at about 850 rpm and a lot of the trash and motes is slung out of the lint.

After the lint goes through this final cleaning, it is soft, white and fluffy — the condition in which most city-dwellers usually encounter it. It then goes through the condenser, where it is condensed into a continuous wad, or bat. When it leaves the condenser, it is a uniform 54 inches wide. The bat is normally about four inches thick, but the thickness depends upon the speed of the ginning process. The faster the gin is running, the thicker the bat will be. From the condenser, the continuous bat goes into the press, where it is pressed into 500-pound bales.

All the trash from the cotton is carried into a hopper at the end of the gin building. The seed is automatically carried outside the building, where it is dropped on the seed pile. The only thing lost in the gin building during the whole process is a little dust. Gone are the days when a gin was automatically a smoky, dirty place. This gin is surprisingly clean. Smoky says the gin building is cleaned every night after the day's ginning. When they haul a bale of cotton off, the seed leaves the building, too, along with dirt and trash that was caught up in the cotton bolls.

The first bale of the 1988 cotton crop was ginned at the Lenorah Gin Company October 27. They expect to continue ginning until about the first of February. They will gin between 9,000 and 10,000 bales. Some years they gin a little more, some years they gin a lot less.

"The cotton crop looks pretty good this year," Smoky says, "though not as good as last year." He estimates this year's crop at a little more than a bale an acre.

The U.S. government determines the grade of the cotton ginned. Grades 11 and 21 are the best grades. Smoky proudly shows off his gin records which indicate that the cotton ginned at the Lenorah Gin is mostly grades 11 and 21. The worst they have ginned this year was a grade 31, which is still classified as top-grade cotton. He attributes this record to good ginning.

The government's USDA office in Abilene grades the cotton. When a bale leaves the gin, neither Smoky nor the farmer who grew the cotton knows what price he will receive for the cotton. A card is sent back to the gin for each bale ginned. That card, which rates the staple of the cotton, determines the price. The price of cotton, depending on its rating, can vary from ten cents to fifty-five cents a pound.

The Abilene USDA office will also determine the micronaire, or "mike" of the cotton. The mike determines the resistance of the fiber and how fast air moves through the fibers. Mills that buy cotton want to know the mike of the cotton before they purchase it.

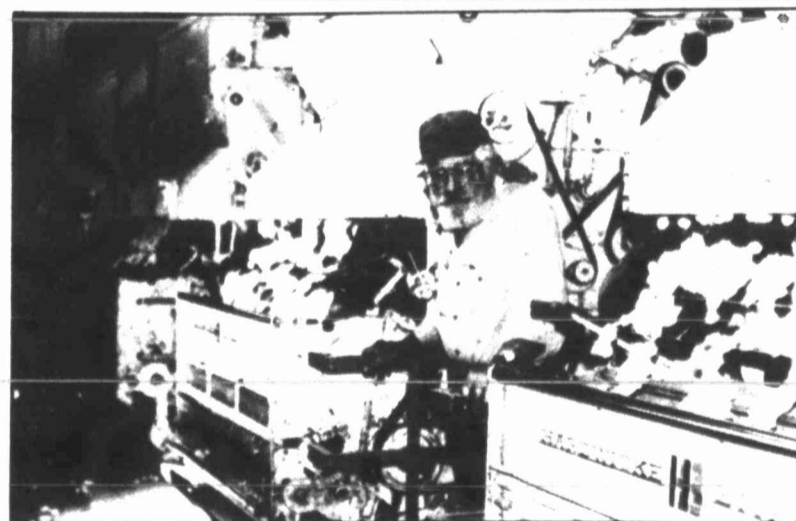

Other tests made on the cotton sample when it reaches Abilene are tests that determine the uniformity and the strength of the fiber. The tests made on the samples get tougher every year. Smoky says farmers in this area are changing (See Bringing, page 3)

Big vote is cast in county

Sixty-three percent of Martin County's registered voters cast their ballots in last week's general election, giving their nod to the Bush-Quayle ticket.

Vice-President George Bush polled 62 percent (1,012) to Governor Michael Dukakis' 619 votes. Bush had his largest lead in the Klondike School box, winning by 56 to 13. By contrast, Governor Dukakis took a 48 to 6 margin in the Headstart Center box.

In the U.S. Senate race, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen carried 11 of 12 boxes, to lead Beau Boulter 937 to 604.

In the Railroad Commissioners races, Jim Nugent lead his Republican opponent, Ed Emmett, 1004 to 413. West Texan Kent Hance defeated his Democratic rival, Clint Hackney, by a margin of 1,006 to 521.

With six Supreme Court spots to be selected, Martin County voters went for three Democrats and three Republicans. Tom Phillips (R) outpolled Democrat Ted Robertson, 775-684. Democrat Bill Kilgarlin led Nathan Hecht 748 to 691. Democrat Lloyd Doggett bested his Republican opponent, Paul Murphy, 810 to 660. Democrat Raul Gonzales took a 789 to 622 lead over Republican Charles Howell.

Republican Barbara Culver, former Midland County Judge, led Jack Hightower (D), 814 to 714. Eugene Cook (R) had a six vote lead, 696-690, over Karl Bayer (D).

In county races James McGilvray, county attorney; Dan Saunders, sheriff; and Leona Louder, tax-collector; were re-elected without opposition. James Biggs was returned as commissioner in Precinct 1, while Ronnie Deatherage was re-elected as commissioner from Precinct 3. Richard Lewis drew another term as constable, Precinct 2.

County voters gave the "good roads" amendment a whopping 1,172 to 193 majority, but rejected propositions 2 and 3.

Recognition ceremony for Watkins

A special recognition ceremony and reception for Gary Watkins, state representation, district 75, will be held Thursday, Nov. 17, 1988, from 4 p.m.-5:30 p.m. in the Auditorium of the Texas Tech University Regional Academic Health Science Center, 800 West Fourth Street, Odessa.

This ceremony is being held in appreciation for Rep. Watkins' work on the Texas Special Legislative Task Force. This event is open to the public.

Watkins, elected to the House of Representatives in 1986, serves on the Higher Education and the Labor and Employment Committees.

During the interim, he is serving on the Joint Committee on Higher Education in South Texas, the Special Committee on Post-Secondary Medical, Dental and Allied Health Education and the House Select Committee on Sentencing and Recidivism.

Watkins has been an integral part of the community both professionally and civically. He served as Ector County Judge from 1977 to 1982 and is an attorney in private practice in Odessa.

His past civic activities include the Board of Directors of the Odessa YMCA, and he has served as President of the Ector County Bar Association and the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. Currently, Watkins is a Director of the American Red Cross and is Vice President of the Buffalo Trails Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Supercollider will provide jobs for Texans

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said today that the choice of Texas for the $4.4 billion Superconducting Supercollider will have a significant impact on Texas jobs and economic diversification into the high tech industries, research and education.

"I am pleased that our state has been selected for the project," Bullock said. "The Texas economic base has been expanding for some time and this is going to be a real boost."

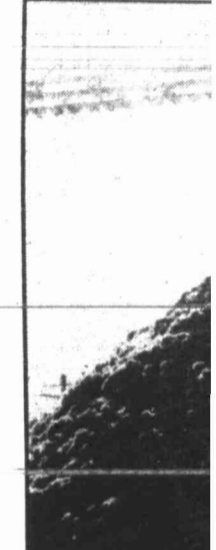

Texas will reap the most immediate benefit from the construction phase of the Supercollider project which is being considered one of the largest in history. Approximately 4,500 people will be employed directly in the construction of the plant with a potential spin-off of as many as 12,000 jobs.

varieties of the cotton they plant, trying to find a strain or a variety that will give the fiber more strength. "As long as there is plenty of cotton," Smoky says, "the mills can get as picky as they want to."

As well as functioning as a cotton gin, the Lenorah Gin Company is also a gathering place. There is a Coke machine that vends Coke in the small glass bottles. Each bottle bears the name of its place or origin. Whoever is in the gin at Coke time pulls a bottle out of the machine. A pot of one or five dollars is put up among the group and the one who pulls the bottle from the farthest point of origin is the winner.

Smoky says that a few years ago, the pot was a lot bigger. They have pulled bottles with a bale of cotton at stake. "But that's when cotton wasn't bringing much," Smoky adds.

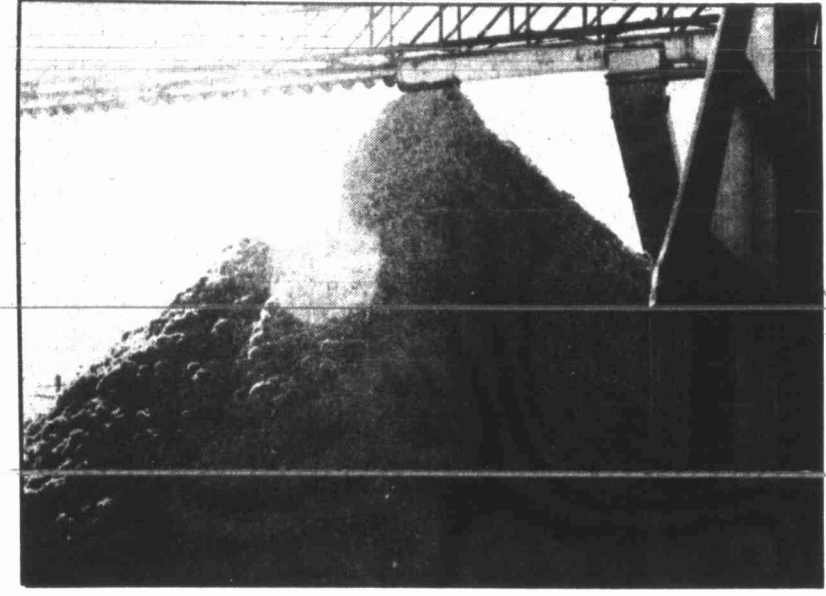

There is also a set of dominoes on a well-worn table in the gin. "Ten years ago, there was a domino game going on there constantly."

Smoky says. "But too many of the old hands have died off." Smoky says they have never gambled on the outcome of the domino games, but adds, "maybe we could get more players if we did."

During the ginning season, there are about eleven full-time employees at the gin. There are two year-round employees, Mark Greenhaw, Smoky's son, and Watler Hildreth. Hildreth has been at the gin since 1949.

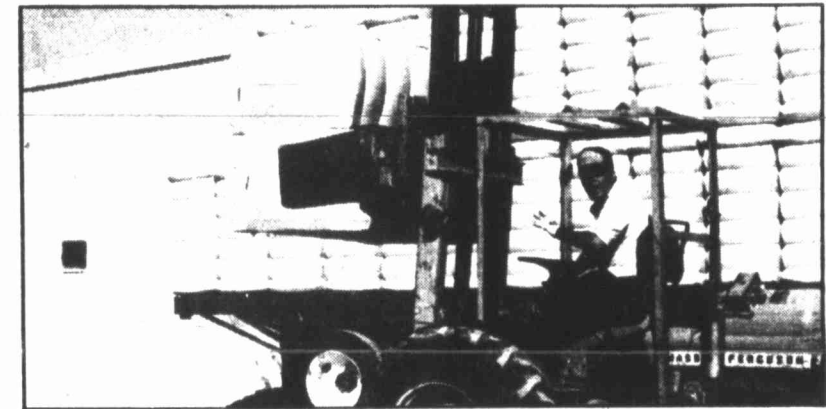

When the cotton bales leave the Lenorah Gin yard, they go to the Trinity Compress in Stanton. From there, they go by truck and by rail to all the places they have been sold. Samples are taken at the compress to be sent to Abilene, to be classed by the USDA Classing Office. A sample is taken from each side of each bale.

Cotton gins are as much a part of the West Texas countryside as are tumbleweeds and mesquites. But Smoky Greenhaw's Lenorah Gin Company is one-of-a-kind, for the simple reason that Smoky Greenhaw is one-of-a-kind.

Last week takes toll

WALT FINLEY

Due to circumstances beyond my control (and there is no other kind any more), I managed to fritter away virtually the entire week.
So this column is going to be jerkier than usual, if possible. Brace yourself.
It seems to be a little heavy on one-liners at the moment. But they're better than no-liners. For instance:
IF RAP BROWN was arrested for vagrancy, could it be called a bum Rap?
Do you know what Santa Claus's father's father was called?
The grandfather Claus.
That's why we never dream of a black Christmas.
Basically, I'm a night person. So how come I get up each morning at 5:30?
A PTA speaker said, "We can't imagine life 100 years from now." I can't quite picture tomorrow.
MY CALCULATING cousin, Jimmy Ladd, Los Angeles, defines middle age as "when the slim hips and the broad mind begin to change places."
There is a rumor that grocery stores are considering cutting the price on hot dogs. They may devalue the frank.
Insanity is all in your mind.
MODERN MOTHER to Mod daughter: "Drink your milk. It will make your hair straight."
The first instruction in a recipe for pickled pig's feet is about as logical as anything I've read recently: "Wash pig's feet thoroughly."
IF THE YOUNGER generation pays any attention to the TV weather reports, they're going to grow up talking about: "Isn't that a lovely life rain?" "Yes, but the weather bureau said it would be pty cldy."

again, does anyone want to invite him to speak in Texas? If the Republicans won't, maybe the Teamsters will.
More money would solve all the cities' problems except one — where to get it.
Ex-Duncan Banner, now farming in Aztec, N.M., Joe Awrtrey says the big debates were all right, but next time he hopes the commercials are occasionally interrupted by a program.
The fight over centers for convicts goes on. The only solution to this problem is for state officials to keep talking about it and never reach a decision.
FAST FINGERS Yolanda Williams, Herald word maker, has some quotes from disenchanting relatives.
Mrs. Whitney: Eli, get your cotton pickin' gin out of here. You're getting lint all over my kitchen!
Mrs. Bell: Alexander, you made that silly contraption, now answer it — I'm in the tub!
Mrs. Edison: Alva, can't you get a new recording? I'm sick of that "Mary had a little lamb" business!
That working man, Jim Beal, recalls:
"Money in the bank is like toothpaste in the tube — easy to take out, hard to put back."
My super Okie uncle, Charles Lanhan, served as Binger school superintendent for 25 years. This included four years when former World Series hero Johnny Bench was a student there.
Shortly before he retired, Ches said a young relative of Johnny's told him proudly that his family had moved to a new home.
"How do you like it?" Ches asked.
"Oh, we like it a lot," he said. "I have my own room, and each of my sisters has her own room — but poor mom, she's still in with dad."
With Richard Nixon emerging

FORMER HERALD WORD chaser, Marsha Bishop, alias "Sand Springs' chick," says some self-made men say they made it on a shoestring — it was the shoestring their grandfathers used to tie up their stocks and bonds.
Everyone keeps talking about going back to normalcy, but it's doubtful that anyone remembers what it was.
Overheard at drug store:
"Cheer up, you're mentioned in my will."
My wonderful aunt, Mildred Ladd, says, "What this country needs is more country."
THE OTHER day, I told my ex-friend Dr. Lee Evans of Atoka, Okla., "Do you know I seldom have the opportunity to be alone?"
"In your case," Lee replied, "I'd think you'd appreciate it."
ALL OF US would agree, while the memory is fairly fresh in our minds, that political campaigns are too long, too much and out-of-sight for the "little man."
"When I read about someone commenting that one candidate for governor spent half a million dollars on his campaign, I have the feeling that somehow the taxpayer will wind up paying that bill, as well as his opponent's."
Some strict limits should be prescribed for the length of the campaign as well as the amount spent. But no one has stepped forth with a plan. Until now.
My hunting uncle, Russ Harris proposes we adopt the same sort of rules for the political campaign season that now exists in the hunting of quail in Oklahoma.
It is a six-week season which permits hunting from daylight to dark on Mondays, Thursdays, Saturdays and holidays.
That ought to be enough — even in Texas — especially since we're the birds they're hoping to bag.

Mustangs kick Grady

BALMORHEA — The fifth ranked Fort Hancock Mustangs had an easy time in the first round of the playoffs; thumping the Grady Wildcats 61-16 in the six-man bi-district play here Friday night.
The Mustangs ran their record to 11-0 while Grady, making its first state playoff appearance since 1982, ends the season with a 5-5 mark.
Fort Hancock, the state champion in 1986, will face Trent next game.
Fort Hancock quarterback Jamie Aguilar passed for 389 yards and three touchdowns to key the win.

Big-play Buffs win, 24-12

By STEVE BELVIN
Big Spring Herald Sports Editor
WINTERS — The Stanton Buffalos started with a big play and ended with a big play — and that was the difference in their 24-12 bi-district win over the Winters Blizzards Friday night at Blizzard Field.
The Battlin Buffs got a long touchdown run from quarterback Randy Nevarez on their first possession of the game, and a big interception, returned for a touchdown by cornerback Steve Scurlark later in the game, to vault into the second round of the state playoffs.
The Buffs, now 9-2 for the season, will play Eastland, a 40-6 winner over Anson, in Abilene's Shotwell Stadium Friday at 7:30 p.m.
The Blizzards, who practically battled the Buffs on even terms, finish the season with an 7-4 mark.
Since district play began six weeks ago, the Buffs have come up with the big play time and time again. Friday night against the Blizzards was no exception.
On Stanton's first possession of the game, Nevarez kept on the Wishbone option, and scampered 72 yards for the score.
"It was option all the way," said Stanton Coach Dale Ruth of Nevarez's run. "He (Nevarez) read it right and it was a touchdown."
What Nevarez started, Scurlark finished. With Winters trailing 17-12 with less than two minutes remaining in the game, Scurlark stepped in front of intended receiver Bryan Green. Scurlark took quarterback Chris Rives' attempt in the right flat, and raced untouched 55 yards for the score with 1:01 left in the contest.
Tony Moses' extra point gave the Buffs its 24-12 margin of victory.
"Steve Scurlark made a great play on that pass," said Ruth. "He read it perfectly and turned it into a big play."
The Buffs led 10-6 at the half and appeared to be on the verge of taking complete control. The sidwinding Moses booted a 28-yard field goal for Stanton's other first half points. The Buffs had success getting halfbacks Scurlark and Robert Jones outside in the first half; the Wishbone offense racked up 208 yards rushing in the first 24 minutes of play.
Four fumbles in the game hampered the Stanton offense however. But in all fairness to the Blizzards' defense, it dominated things in the second half. The Buffs, who had zero passing yardage in the first half, passed for 51 yards in the second half, and had a meek 29 yards rushing in the second half.

Winters' first half score followed a 42-yard punt return by Ruben Hernandez in the second quarter. On the next play, Rives passed to Tony Shelby for a 27-yard TD. The extra point attempt was missed.
Late in the third quarter, the Buffs uncharacteristically went to the air for a series. Twice Nevarez completed passes a third and long attempts. The first covered 17-yards to fullback George Reyna. The second was a 23-yard scoring strike to tight end Lance Jenkins.
Jenkins caught the ball at the 10 and twisted away from two tackles to score.
"They left the middle wide open," said Ruth. "They weren't expecting Randy to pass because we usually throw with Brad Holland, plus we had the wind."
The catch capped a six play, 45-yard drive.
Late in the game, the Blizzards

pass plays."
But nevertheless, the Buffalos head into the next round of competition, thanks to some timely big plays.
Individual Leaders
Rushing — Stanton — Nevarez 9-84; Jones 19-77; Scurlark 16-64; Winters — Salazar 5-41; Thornhill 13-33; Lett 4-24; Passing — Stanton — Nevarez 3-4-51; Holland 0-4-0; Winters — Rives 10-18-150; Receiving — Stanton — Jenkins 1-23; Reyna 1-17; Cain 1-11; Winters — Green 3-32; Lett 2-30; Shelby 1-27; Hernandez 1-27.
Scoring
1st Qrt. — Stanton: Nevarez 72-yd. tun, Moses PAT, 10:46.

The Cap Rock Connection Overhead power tips

By PEGGY LUXTON
Member Information Advisor

When working or playing around areas that have overhead power lines, serious precautions should be taken to avoid all potential contacts with the lines or hardware. Any contact with overhead lines could result in a serious injury, or even loss of life.

Overhead power lines are not insulated and carry anywhere from 120 to 345,000 volts. Contact with these voltages can be deadly.

If circumstance requires you to work in close proximity to any overhead power line (for home repairs, tree trimming, construction, harvesting crops, etc.), we urge you to contact Cap Rock Electric Cooperative and allow us to assist you in completing your task safely and without injury.

Anytime you raise anything — antennas, sailboat masts, irrigation pipe, stripper baskets, ladders — look for overhead lines first! Use the same rules for construction equipment, dump trucks, cranes, front-end loaders, etc. Make sure anything that will raise up is horizontal before you move it. Also, look for lines in trees or brush before you trim or cut.

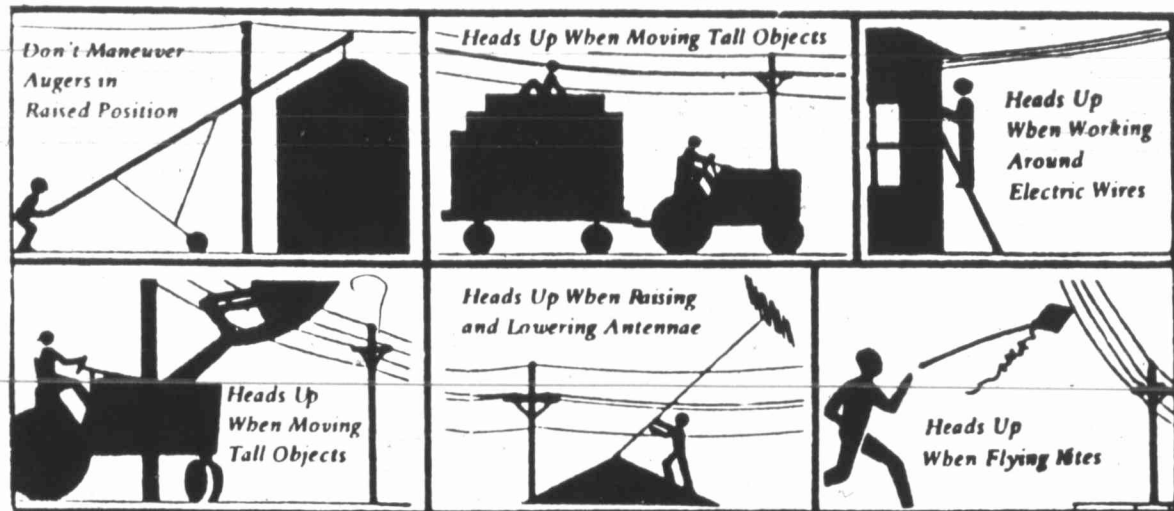

The same rules apply for underground lines. Look down and call before you dig. Make sure you know where any lines are before you plant a tree, put in a foundation or sprinkler system. Power lines at proper height can still be reached by persons standing irrigation pipe upright, cotton strippers and compactors, folding drawbars, TV antennas, windmill towers, kites, A-frame trucks, grain augers, and other large equipment.

Maintaining the proper clearance from a high-voltage electric line is not just a good safety practice, it's the law — State of Texas Civil Statute, Article 1436-A. This statute states that it is unlawful to operate equipment or perform any activity near overhead lines.

Electricity is docile, until something or someone makes it dangerous.

Bentsen big winner in race

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen won big in his race for reelection as U.S. Senator from Texas, bigger than anyone ever before.

With 99 percent of the state's 6941 voting precincts reporting he has received 3,115,090 votes, more than any other candidate for statewide office in the history of Texas. Sen. Bentsen received more votes than George Bush did in the presidential race and his margin of 59.1 percent was also better than the 56 percent margin for Bush.

The Senator's presence on the Democratic presidential ticket combined with his coattails in the Senate race to prevent a Texas presidential loss of the magnitude of 1984, when President Reagan carried the state with 63.6 percent of the vote.

This difference between 1988 and 1984 was welcome news to down ballot Democratic candidates in Texas. The GOP landslide in 1984, for example, gave that party a net gain of six Texas congressional seats. This year, in spite of the Republican presidential victory, Democratic candidates regained two of those seats.

A statewide survey of likely voters indicates that Senator Bentsen added 7 percent to the ticket in Texas.

The poll was conducted Nov. 3-6, 1988 by Delta Research of Houston. Nine hundred ninety five likely voters were questioned. It has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percent.

Seventy one percent of Texas voters said they were more likely to vote for Michael Dukakis because he chose Lloyd Bentsen as his running mate, 22 percent of those said they were much more likely.

Bentsen hates to lose and the loss is the vice presidential contest was his first in Texas. But, as he said in a statement today, "you also know that I never look back."

He has offered his thanks to the people of Texas for their support in his victorious campaign for reelection to the U.S. Senate. He said:

"This has been an unusual campaign — to say the least. I recognize the difficulties you had to go through. It was truly unlike anything that had gone before.

"Every hazard was twice as perilous. Every difficulty was twice as hard. And victory is twice as sweet!"

Guarantee Fiveash Plumbing stands behind work

Fiveash Plumbing, 821 E. Third Street, a distributor for Price-Pfister and Moen faucets, announces a special offer to introduce these high quality products — which won't corrode, even in Big Spring water, say the owners.

"For the next two weeks we are giving a free standard toilet seat with any kitchen, laboratory or bathroom faucet," says Dan Fiveash.

Fiveash believes he is the only local distributor for these faucets. "Now we don't have in stock the extra fancy Price-Pfister faucets you see advertised — but we can get them."

The firm has the most modern electric snakes to unstop sewers and sink drains. "Clogged — and re-clogged — drains are the most common customer complaint," says Fiveash. "This new equipment enables me to get to the problem and correct it once and for all, so that there is no recurrence of the problem."

For all plumbing work, Fiveash says he gives free estimates before the job begins. "As soon as I determine the problem and the labor and materials needed, I prepare a fair estimate. Customers appreciate this and there are no surprises at the completion of the job. Our work is guaranteed for one year."

It has always been a special concern to the staff at Fiveash Plumbing to leave surroundings as clean and neat as when they arrived to do the work. "I respect my customer's home or business," Fiveash says.

Fiveash Plumbing handles problems with heating equipment, specializing in converting furnaces to pilotless ignition, "which will substantially lower your bills."

"Our rate is $20 for the first half hour, and $17.50 for each additional half hour — for one man," says Fiveash.

Fiveash Plumbing is owned and operated by Dan and Delfina Fiveash. Frank Galaviz is also on the staff.

The Fiveash name has long been associated with plumbing in Big Spring. Dan's father bought out Runyan Plumbing, located at Goliad and Sixth Streets, in 1946, and the two operated Fiveash & Son Plumbing until it closed in 1975. Dan, by that time, had moved to California and was in the plumbing profession there until he returned this year to open — or re-open — Fiveash Plumbing.

To put all this experience to work for your next plumbing job, phone 263-1410.

Fiveash Plumbing gives estimates before the job and guarantees its work for one year. Pictured are Frank Galaviz and owners Delfina and Dan Fiveash. Fiveash began plumbing in his father's firm, Fiveash & Son, here 42 years ago.

Copper, brass, lead, bronze, aluminum and all types of baling scrap will bring the highest prices. They in turn sell materials to foundries, iron works and other places to where they are converted into useful products.

This firm has built a fine reputation for reliable dealings and the editors of this 1988 Area Business Review recommend them to all in this section who have scrap metal to sell, or have need of selecting some materials for their own use.

Help beautify America. Take your scrap metal to MIDLAND-ODESSA METALS.

Chamber notes

Congratulations are in order for the SHS Football team for advancing in the playoffs with Friday night's win over Winters. An enthusiastic crowd of Stanton supporters were treated to an exciting game and an outstanding performance by the Buffalo Band. Best wishes to Coach Dale Ruth and his Battling Buffalos in their game with Eastland. The area playoff game is set for Shotwell Stadium in Abilene Friday at 7:30.

Two local men were honored in a Veteran's Day ceremony last Friday at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Big Spring. Tull Ray Louder and David Workman, along with 59 other area veterans received a Prisoner of War medal which was recently authorized by Congress.

T.R. was taken prisoner when Corregidor fell on May 8, 1941. After six months in the Philippines, he was transferred to Japan and spent three years in different Japanese prison camps. On August 12, 1945, the prisoners learned that the war had ended and were released. T.R. was brought to California and spent time in several hospitals for medical treatment before he returned home. His length of service was 1940 to 1945.

David Workman was a bombardier on a B-17 when his plane was shot down by anti-aircraft fire on a night mission over Germany. Only four of the ten crewmen parachuted safely. David was captured around noon the next day and spent the rest of the war in German POW camps. He was liberated on the 29th of April, 1945 by American troops headed by General George Patton. He was on his way home a few days later.

Both of these men have not only served their country in war-time, but both have contributed a great deal of their time to local civic activities. Keynote speaker, Colonel Glenn Dishman, of Goodfellow Air Force Base, said it best, "History teaches us that freedom isn't free and it certainly isn't cheap. A nation that forgets its heroes forgets its very existence."

Chamber director ballots and 1989 membership billings were mailed this week. The Chamber can only be as strong as its membership. We urge your support. Larry Elliott, Martin County Hospital Administrator, is serving as membership chairman.

FFA plucks 'farmers' out of name

The Future Farmers of America took "farmers" out of its name Thursday in a change designed to show there are other agricultural careers besides working down on the farm.

Delegates to the national convention in Kansas City, Mo., voted to change the name to National FFA Organization, the culmination of a five-year movement to broaden the organization's appeal. About 23,000 delegates are attending the convention.

"The students who are already in have no concerns about the name," said Bill Stagg, director of information for the 416,000-member organization.

The change was made in hopes of counteracting a 23 percent loss of membership that has occurred since the mid-1970s.

Interests of FFA members include horticulture, forestry, agriculture mechanics, agricultural journalism, research and marketing, Stagg said.

He said House members were rated on 15 votes, including deficit reduction, banking reform, trade protectionism, government intervention, in the workplace, access to federal contracts, taxes, and faster government bill-paying procedures.

The NFIB is a trade group based in Washington.

Entire town plays practical jokes

Forty years after his service as a World War II tailgunner, Joel Griffin displays nine medals and a ribbon presented to him at the Veterans Day ceremonies at the Veterans Administration Medical Center Friday morning.

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

It's difficult to walk down the streets of Menard without experiencing some sort of practical joke. Ed Mears explains his city's preoccupation with the practical joke like this: "Before the birth control pill and television, that's about all people had to do in a small town... play tricks on each other."

Ed says one time some guys made a wanted poster with the postmaster's picture on it and hung it in the post office. Another time some pranksters put a bobcat in a suitcase and placed it on the edge of a highway. It wasn't long before a carload of folks passed it up, turned around, came back, picked it up and took off again. Down the road a piece, the car began swerving and finally stopped so passengers could get out in a hurry.

One man in Menard used to always buy an Irish sweepstakes lottery ticket. On one occasion some of his friends sent him a fake telegram notifying him he had won.

Numerous tricks were played on traveling salesmen. For instance, a salesman would be enticed to a woman's house, then her alleged husband would show up.

Ed Mears says once in a great while some men would have a poker party. "This one man imbibed a little too much and finally passed out. His card playing buddies went down to a local mortician and asked him if they could borrow a casket for the night. They put their buddy in their like he was ready for burial, then placed a Lily in his hand.

"The next morning when they thought he should be walking up, they went down to the mortuary. The man opened one eye, looked around and threw the Lily away. Then he sat up and screamed. Slowly he got out of the casket and went outside. The local pranksters scattered, thinking it was a big joke. But the man went home and got his shotgun and was gonna come back and kill everybody responsible for doing that to him. But he calmed down in a couple of days.

Some years ago the manager of the telephone company in Menard announced there would be a big radio broadcast in town and people with talent should sign up for it. He was flooded with applicants.

"At that time radio was very new and people thought if you could get on the radio you might become a star," says Herbert Mears. "They took this big flat bed truck, put red carpet on it, took it up into pecan bottom and all these people who signed up to perform were told to be up there. There was a big audience.

"There was just one catch to it. The promoter had no intention of putting anything on the air. However, he went through the motions of hanging a line from a piece of equipment to a telephone pole.

Everybody thought it was a live broadcast. The master of ceremonies announced that Menard had been receiving, and now was sending. "A lot of people sang," says Herbert, "they had a piano on the bed of the truck."

One man sang "My Wild Irish Rose." At the conclusion of the song, a newly installed telephone nearby rang. It was phony, too. But the announcement was made that the governor had called and wanted to hear a repeat of "My Wild Irish Rose."

A local dentist had a special job during the broadcast. "He held a wire on a battery," says Herbert, "and he had been told that if he removed that wire from the battery the program would go off the air. The dentist held the wire using each finger for a whole hour. The next day his hands hurt so bad he couldn't pull teeth."

The control panel was a fancy looking apparatus. "They kept pulling switches and twisting knobs. Red and green lights came on and off. Everybody in the audience tried to see who could clap the loudest. They thought they were being heard all the way to New York. But their sounds weren't going anywhere."

Days later, when everybody learned it was a big hoax engineered by the telephone company manager, they appreciated the practical joke and called it one of the best ones ever pulled in Menard.

Family ties, traditions and rituals Menus

By NAOMI HUNT
Extension Agent

The joy of family ties, traditions and rituals creates a sense of belonging and implies that families are trying to stay close. Family traditions are all the family things and activities we take for granted, including, talking and laughing together at the supper table, and going to school and church together as a family. They, too are:

- Things that brings us security, pleasure and joy.
  - Things we preserve and want to pass on to other generations.
  - Distress us when challenged, threatened or condemned.
- Traditions are normally things that happen on some cycle. They usually evolve around an already-established event such as birthday, holiday or special anniversary.
- There are traditions in every family. If you think there aren't any in yours, its probably because

Focus on family

Traditions and family rituals teach responsibility to family, beliefs, values, acceptable behavior and pride in our roots. Traditions are the ties that unify families and create loving memories.

Strong family ties are in defense of strong families. They teach us that families are important to our own growth.

Remember the Family Caregiver Conference, sponsored by the Extension Home Economics Committee. The Conference will be 10:00 a.m.-2:00 p.m., Nov. 19, in the Patio Room at Day's Inn. Cost is $6.25 per person which covers the luncheon, refreshments, gratuity, and materials. Make reservations by calling the County Extension Office at 267-8469 by noon Nov. 18.

The program will provide family members with information and skills in caring for ill or disabled relatives at home.

you call them something else and don't think of them as traditions.

In each of our memories are special times with our families — times which have grown into daily, weekly or even yearly occurrences. Family traditions have a unique ability to draw families together. They are a source of support and nurturance for individual family members who have been pulled away from their families due to the complications of our fast-paced lifestyles.

Tidbits

Election Day held special significance for Archie and Eleanor Adkins: their son, John Adkins, Melbourne, Fla., was running for county judge of Brevard County — against a 16-year incumbent!

John phoned late Tuesday night to tell them he was the victor. Brevard County, home of Kennedy Space Center, has 190,000 registered voters.

Eleanor said that John's sister, Louise Temte, La Cross, Wis., and his brother, James Adkins, Baltimore, also stayed up waiting for the good news.

Sherry Rose expects to return from Tuscaloosa, Ala., Tuesday "with some new dinosaur drawings."

Sherry explains that her grandson, Kristopher Morton, 4½, "always has a new dinosaur for me." Sherry is having one of his originals framed for her office.

Kristopher's parents are Mark and Sheleen Morton. Sheleen is Sherry's daughter.

Marianne Parkkamaki, Helsinki, Finland, was in Big Spring this week to serve as a bridesmaid at Brenda Beil's wedding Saturday. Marianne and Brenda met near Billie Jean (Anderson) and Tabor Rowe, Odessa, picked up Melba Dean (Anderson) Ewing, Tucson, at the Midland/Odessa International Airport and drove over. They were joined by Janice (Anderson) Minton, who was on leave with husband John from Yemen, near Saudi Arabia, where he is employed by Hunt Oil Co. John was held up on business in Dallas and wasn't able to make the trip to Big Spring.

The Mintons had a busy schedule while in the U. S. For one thing they had to buy supplies for an entire year. Very high on Janice's shopping list, according to Theresa, was celery for the family's holiday turkey and dressing.

Make a note on your calendar: The March of Dimes' popular Casino Night has been moved to New Year's Eve, according to Lisa Nichols.

Theme is "Happy Birthday Bash" to commemorate MOD's 50th anniversary. The evening of dancing, casino action and an auction will be topped off by a midnight breakfast buffet — with plenty of blackeyed peas — and a drawing for a trip for two to Paris.

There's still time to be a sponsor or patron (or to get your name on the guest list). Phone Lisa at 263-3014 or 398-5468.

Bob "Tumbleweed Smith" Lewis is surely one of our area's most sought-after personalities. The Sweetwater Chamber of Commerce phoned and asked him to be Grand Marshal of their city's Christmas parade — but he had already committed just the day before to lead Big Spring's holiday parade.

Beil-Payne

Brenda Diane Beil became the bride of Gary Allen Payne, Houston, in a 7:30 double-ring ceremony Nov. 12, 1988 at First United Methodist Church, with Dr. Keith Wiseman, pastor of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Amarillo, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Beil, 502 Highland Dr.

Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Payne, Greenwich, Conn.

An antique Bible, belonging to the Beil family, was placed upon the altar table during the ceremony. The table was flanked by candelabras, decorated with greenery and ecru bows, which matched a crescent candelabra holding tapers. In addition, brass spiral candelabras, which held tall tapers, were placed to accent the stained glass window at the front of the worship area. Completing the setting, were stylized floral arrangements of ecru and peach. The bridal aisle was marked with ecru bows placed on tall hurricane standards.

Organist was Keith Ross. A string quartet played music before the wedding.

Mrs. Gary Don (Beverly) Newsom, bride's sister, sang the "Mozart Alleluia." A duet titled, "Love Divine," was sung by the bride's sisters, Beverly Newsom and Charlotte Beil. Mrs. Don (Marilyn) Newsom sang "Walk Hand in Hand With Me."

The bridegroom's sisters, Dina Payne, Clemson, SC; and Deidre Payne, Tucson, Ariz., served as candlelighters.

Guest registrar was Lorinda Lee, Fort Worth; and Barbie Kothmann, Houston.

The bride, escorted by her father, was given in marriage by both her mother and father. She wore a formal gown designed by Eve of Milady in candlelight silk organza and alencon lace. The gown featured a high neckline, long lace sleeves, and a bodice that was applied with French alencon lace, sequins, and tiny seed pearls. Her long veil also was fashioned of alencon lace and pearls.

She carried a cascading bouquet of fragrant gardenias, stephanotis and English ivy.

The bride also carried her grandmother's handkerchief, which she had carried in her wedding.

Honor attendants were Mrs. Gary Don (Beverly) Newsom, Midland; and Charlotte Beil, Fort Worth.

Bridesmaids were Linda Sieron, Dallas; Melanie Payne, bridegroom's sister, Austin; Marianne Parkkamaki, Helsinki, Finland; and Mrs. David (LaVoy)

MRS. BRENDA PAYNE

Yarbrough, Graham.

Best man was Thomas Payne, bridegroom's father.

Groomsmen were Dr. Gary Don Newsom, Midland; Joe Simmons, Waco; Scott Pearson, Atlanta, Ga.; Chris Cook, Houston; and Rodney Doulet, Montgomery.

Small bows were placed at the corners of the table.

Advisory teachers assigned at Goliad

JEAN WARREN
Herald Correspondent

Every student at Goliad Middle School and his parents have been assigned an advisory teacher who will counsel with approximately 14 sixth and seventh graders. Advisory groups met for the first time Friday and will continue to meet once every six weeks to give students an opportunity to share concerns and problems. However, the advisory teacher will be available to confer with the student or his parents at any time.

Letters were sent home to parents Friday informing them of the goals of the program and inviting parents to contact advisory teachers. Through the advisory program Goliad staff members are seeking to foster greater understanding of the goals of the school and to work with parents for solutions to any problem a youngster may be encountering.

Rock 'n' roll music and popular songs from the '60s will be featured at the Runnels choir concert Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the boy's gym. All three choirs will perform under the direction of Jeanine Fishback. A total of 20 Runnels students had the distinction of being chosen for the West Texas Honor Choir; they will be introduced during the program.

High school seniors from Big Spring, Ira, and Forsan traveled to Howard College Nov. 2 to meet with representatives from 35 colleges and universities. The orientation session was planned to inform students about the various courses offered by different colleges and to answer questions about college life.

For the past two years 90 percent of the students at Bauer Magnet School have passed all three of the TEAMS tests in reading, mathematics, and writing. Only 109 schools in the state have achieved this distinction.

The Division of Exemplary Programs in the State of Texas has asked these campuses to serve as models to help other districts improve their programs. Betty Cain, third grade teacher, and Gail Berringer, fifth grade teacher, represented the Bauer staff at a conference in Austin Oct. 26 to share ideas for school improvement.

Chalk board

The Big Spring VFW in conjunction with Fred Yockey, scout executive, presented a program on the history of the U.S. flag at Moss Elementary Nov. 4. A new flag was given to the school by the VFW. Students participated in a flag raising ceremony.

The seventh grade SIGNAL class wrote character studies about imaginary people who could have lived during some of the major events in Texas' history. They then wrote an introduction, transitions from one event to another, and a closing and presented the resultant effort — complete with costumes and props — to several social studies classes.

A variety of characters, some cheerful, some fearful, some reckless, some humorous, evolved. Making the presentation required some of those same qualities to be exhibited by SIGNAL students. Carol Gauer instructs the SIGNAL classes at Goliad.

Third, fourth and fifth graders at Kentwood Elementary are taking the theme from the Pilgrims' journey and arrival in America to write short stories. Students are learning about publishing companies, copyrights, copyright dates, and illustrations. After completing their stories, students will make library catalog cards with the information from their stories.

A SMILE — On his first day in the first grade one little boy walked to school from his home nearby, accompanied by his mother. She was startled to see him return home at 10 a.m. He explained that school was over, that the teacher had said to go outside. After a thorough discussion of the meaning of the word, recess, his mother escorted him to school a second time.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

U.S. Gov't. Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally"

Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat

According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public

If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+ $3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+ $3 handling), to: Fat Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W842, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) ## Fiveash Plumbing stands behind work

Fiveash Plumbing, 821 E. Third Street, a distributor for Price-Pfister and Moen faucets, announces a special offer to introduce these high quality products — which won't corrode, even in Big Spring water, say the owners.

"For the next two weeks we are giving a free standard toilet seal with any kitchen, laboratory or bathroom faucet," says Dan Fiveash.

Fiveash believes he is the only local distributor for these faucets. "Now we don't have in stock the extra fancy Price-Pfister faucets you see advertised — but we can get them."

The firm has the most modern electric snakes to unstop sewers and sink drains. "Clogged — and re-clogged — drains are the most common customer complaint," says Fiveash. "This new equipment enables me to get to the problem and correct it once and for all, so that there is no recurrence of the problem."

For all plumbing work, Fiveash says he gives free estimates before the job begins. "As soon as I determine the problem and the labor and materials needed, I prepare a fair estimate. Customers appreciate this and there are no surprises at the completion of the job. Our work is guaranteed for one year."

It has always been a special concern to the staff at Fiveash Plumbing to leave surroundings as clean and neat as when they arrived to do the work. "I respect my customer's home or business," Fiveash says.

Fiveash Plumbing handles problems with heating equipment, specializing in converting furnaces to pilotless ignition, "which will substantially lower your bills."

"Our rate is $20 for the first half hour, and $17.50 for each additional half hour — for one man," says Fiveash.

Fiveash Plumbing is owned and operated by Dan and Delfina Fiveash. Frank Galaviz is also on the staff.

The Fiveash name has long been associated with plumbing in Big Spring. Dan's father bought out Runyan Plumbing, located at Goliah and Sixth Streets, in 1946, and the two operated Fiveash & Son Plumbing until it closed in 1975. Dan, by that time, had moved to California and was in the plumbing profession there until he returned this year to open — or re-open — Fiveash Plumbing.

To put all this experience to work for your next plumbing job, phone 263-1410.

Fiveash Plumbing gives estimates before the job and guarantees its work for one year. Pictured are Frank Galaviz and owners Delfina and Dan Fiveash. Fiveash began plumbing in his father's firm, Fiveash & Son, here 42 years ago.

County pecan exposition slated to begin Dec. 1 at Highland Mall

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Prospects for an outstanding pecan crop in the county has created interest and questions about our annual county pecan show. Our show this year will be Thursday, Dec. 1, at 1 p.m. in the Highland South Shopping Center Mall in Big Spring.

Any Howard County resident is eligible to participate in our show, whether he or she has a single backyard tree or a thousand... and all are encouraged to do so.

A Howard County resident may enter pecans grown on his property in another county, providing that county or an adjoining county does not offer a county pecan show, in which case he or she must show their entry in that show to advance to any regional show.

Howard County abides by state

Ask the agent

pecan show rules. Participants are limited to any one entry of each named variety they grow. The grower may enter as many seedlings, known hybrids or natives as he wishes.

The exhibitor must be the grower. A minimum of 40 pecans are necessary for each entry. This minimum sample of 40 should represent the variety and be uniform in size and shell color. Mixed samples (more than one variety in an entry) are disqualified. The grower may wish to select the heaviest pecans by weighing individual nuts on a gram scale. Such a scale is available at the county extension office and growers may bring their samples in and weigh them there if they choose.

A varietal entry may be composed of nuts from more than one tree. For example, if the grower has two Choctaw trees, each tree could contribute nuts to the grower's one Choctaw entry.

Nuts should be without insect or disease damage, and should be free of dust, dirt and shuck remnants. They should not be buffed to the extent that shape or color is altered.

Pecans must be from the 1988 crop. Pecans are judged on the basis of size (number per pound), appearance and shell color. Kernel quality is equally important and is based on kernel percentage, color, general appearance, texture, hollowness, taste and spots.

A variety is defined as an individual pecan tree that has been named and is commercially propagated. A named variety is synonymous with variety. An In-Shell variety is a variety that has less than 50 nuts per pound. These pecans are those varieties suitable for sale in the shell.

A Shelling Variety is one that has more than 50 nuts per pound and is more suitable for sale as a shelled pecan. A Known Hybrid is a pecan that has not been named, but for which both parents are known. This includes those pecans commonly referred to as USDA Crosses. The parents and identification number must be listed on the entry card.

A variety seedling is a pecan that is unnamed and has not been commercially propagated, but for which — in the opinion of the judges — one of the parents is either known or strongly suspected.

A Native pecan is a hybridized (crossed) pecan under natural conditions. As far as can be ascertained from the history of the tree's origin and from the appearance of the nut, there was no named variety that served as either parent.

Three championship plaques will be awarded by the Texas Pecan Growers Association for the top pecans in the In-Shell, Shelling, and Native divisions. At our County Show, a Grand Champion over-all award, in memory of one of the originators of our county show, the late Sherman Smith, Big Spring, and the late Austin Stockton, Extension Horticulturist, Ft. Stockton, will be named and placed on a permanent plaque to be displayed in the County Extension Office.

Other top awards donated by local individuals and horticultural supply businesses will be awarded at this year's show. Entries for our 1988 show are now being accepted at the County Extension Office and will continue to be so until November 28.

We are expecting a record number of entries this year and must begin some of the processing prior to show date this year. Some of our pecan show committee members that will be assisting with our show this year include: Mrs. Jowili Etchison, Mrs. Zula Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Bennie McChristian, Mrs. Wanda Perry, Mrs. Venora Williams, Mrs. Lois Rhotan, Mr. Roy Smith, Mr. Davie Stephens, Mrs. Gail Earls and other volunteers.

For more information on this event, please call the County Extension office at 267-6671.
