Drug bill features harsher penalties

Funding falls short of estimates

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan is signing an anti-drug bill that sharply increases penalties for recreational users and includes a federal death penalty for anyone convicted of drug-related killings.

But the bill only provides about $500 million for spending in the nation's battle against drugs, which falls far short of the estimated $1.4 billion cost of the programs envisioned by the legislation.

At this afternoon's ceremony in the East Room, Reagan was to be joined by his wife, Nancy, who has made the battle against drug abuse her cause.

The bipartisan measure was approved on a 346-11 vote in the House and passed by voice vote in the Senate in the waning days of the congressional session last month. Members of both parties used the bill to tout their anti-drug positions in the November elections.

As the bill was sent to Reagan, Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said its message is simple: "Don't do drugs. The country will not tolerate it."

It seeks to battle the use of illegal drugs through stricter law enforcement, tougher penalties, and increased treatment, rehabilitation and education. It also outlines a fund to help drug-producing countries in their battle against the illicit substances.

The bill contains stiff penalties for drug traffickers and users. Serious drug offenses would carry stiffer minimum prison terms.

The measure also makes it possible for those possessing small quantities of drugs intended for personal use to be hit with up to $10,000 in civil fines, although they would have the right to court review.

Beginning next September, those convicted of drug offenses could face loss of student loans and other federal benefits, for even a possession conviction.

That could affect public housing, grants, contracts, loans, mortgage guarantees and some forms of veterans aid, but not Social Security, Medicare, welfare benefits, veterans' disability and other safety net programs.

Under the new law, drug kingpins and others who kill or order killings while committing drug-related felonies could themselves be executed under a new revitalized federal death penalty. However, the constitutionality of that provision is in doubt and it is certain to face court challenges should federal officials attempt to use it.

The measure also establishes a Cabinet level "drug czar," who would be responsible for developing a national strategy to combat drug abuse, and for the entire federal drug budget.

JOHN SUNUNU

Congress reacts to new chief

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Capitol Hill lawmakers say John Sununu, George Bush's choice as his new chief of staff, could be a tough advocate for the new president if he listens and learns the ways of Washington.

House Majority Whip Tony Coelho, who debated Sununu several times on television during the campaign, found him "tough and competent, firm in his view... and he has Bush's confidence."

Coelho, the third-ranking Democrat in the House, said Bush's choice nonetheless was a gamble because "the guy doesn't know Washington. That's a very important negative."

"I think he can do the job," he said. "The key is does he have enough personal confidence to surround himself with people who know the power centers in Washington, what makes this city tick."

Rep. Dick Cheney of Wyoming, who is expected to become the House Republican Whip in January, said lawmakers understand that Sununu's first job is to do George Bush's bidding. But he would do well to hire a strong, experienced liaison with Congress.

"I think what Congress expects more than anything else is understanding... that we have a legitimate role in the process," said Cheney, who served as former President Gerald Ford's chief of staff. "It's more a matter of attitude than anything else."

Ford, before becoming vice president and then president, was the House Republican leader, so the staff's congressional experience was less important. With Reagan, who had no Washington experience, Capitol Hill relations rested heavily on aides.

"My guess is Bush is going to fall somewhere in between," said Cheney, noting that Bush still has a lot of friends in Congress from when he served in the House for two terms from 1967 through 1970.

Many lawmakers know Sununu mostly from his role in the Bush campaign, where the three-term governor was often leading the harshest attacks against the Big Spring Patrol Sgt. Drew Bavin believes it is important to integrate the public service his job demands with the community involvement he seeks.

Just about five years ago Bavin's friends in Big Spring told him jobs in law enforcement were available here and after a trip to Howard County, he, his wife of 19 years Sara, and their two sons left Colorado for West Texas.

When Bavin came to Big Spring he had 12 years of experience with the Delta (Colorado) sheriff's department.

He is currently working the 2 to 10 p.m. shift and his day starts with a briefing for the officers he supervises just prior to working their shifts.

"That is a chance to help new officers complete their reports, address any problems or concerns an officer has or get filled in on what happened during the last 24-hour shift," Bavin advised.

He supervises from four (the minimum) to eight (the ideal) patrol officers during a shift and his responsibilities include notifying detectives; the identification officer or whomever is necessary.

"I have to make sure the papers flow smoothly," said Bavin, who bemoaned the enormous amount of paperwork officers are required to complete.

Patrol officers are involved in a myriad of investigations, according to the patrol sergeant.

"We investigate major and minor crimes, handle traffic control, investigate accidents, issue citations or make sure garbage is picked up. On a routine shift, an officer may have to complete five to six crime reports. That's a lot of paperwork," Bavin advised.

He said that answering domestic disturbance calls ranks "right below" going to the scene of a burglary in progress and armed robbery.

"They are more dangerous than just about anything. We go in with the idea that we are going to protect the people who are involved and also protect our officers," Bavin noted.

Bavin — promoted to sergeant in February 1987 — said he has investigated practically every kind of crime, but there is no particular one in his five-year career in Big Spring that he recalls vividly.

"You never know what you're going to get into. I try to look at the overall picture, try to forget it (specific investigation) and move on," he explained.

Bavin said it is sometimes difficult not to become emotionally involved in an investigation he is conducting.

"You need to remove your personal feelings, though. The Texas state statutes are what I go by. You can't administer your own brand of justice (during an investigation)," he advised.

Bavin likens his role as a police officer to that of a referee and perceives his job aesthetically as that of the statue holding the two books of justice.

Bavin has been impressed with the recent crop of Big Spring patrol officers.

"They're a real good bunch of officers — some have experience — and some don't. I think they look to me for guidance and a lot of the time you're a teacher," he noted.

Assisting patrol officers — especially new ones — investigate a crime or accident scene is part of the job and something he is comfortable with, Bavin said.

He said the officers he supervises are "dedicated people" who often come to work 20 to 30 minutes early in order to become better prepared for the tasks awaiting them.

The patrol sergeant also believes that every day he works as a police officer he gains invaluable experience.

"If you don't learn something new everyday you are with the police department, you had better

Americans' age: Thirtysomething and counting

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Thirty-nine, that magic age teetering between youth and maturity, will be the most typical age for Americans early in the next century, according to Census Bureau projections.

Historically a nation of youthful orientation, the United States is now thirty-something, heading upward, the Bureau reports.

Combining to increase the median age of the population are the maturing of the massive post

World War II Baby Boom and that generation's relatively low birth rates, which reduce the number of babies to pull down the numbers.

So if present trends continue, census officials expect that half of all Americans will be over the age of 39 by the year 2010, and half younger. The agency's most recent estimate of median age was 31.7, as of 1986.

Whether America will plateau at 39 — as did the late comedian Jack Benny — remains to be seen.

The median age of the country touched 30 for the first time in 1950, then slipped back as the Baby Boom produced a bouncing crop of youngsters to lower the numbers.

It took until the 1980 census to hit 30 again, edged up to 31.7 as of 1986 and is expected to climb to 33 by 1990, 36.5 by 2000 and 39 by the year 2010, according to the new projections from the Census Bureau.

Despite the aging of the population, however, the report anticipates that the so-called dependency ratio will decline.

That ratio is the number of people under 18 and over 65 compared to the number of people of working age in between. The younger and older groups are most likely to "depend" on those working.

The 1986 ratio of 62.2 dependents per 100 workers is expected to slip to 56.7 by the year 2010, with the low birth rate reducing the number of young dependents to a greater extent than aging adds to the older group.

While there have been reports of increases in the total number of births in the last few years, that is because the giant Baby Boom generation is largely in its prime childbearing years. The rate of births per 1,000 remains well below that of the post-World War II period.

The new census study also estimates that the nation's black population will increase to 13.7 percent by 2010. Blacks made up 11.8 percent of the population in the 1980 census.

Nearly one in five Southerners will be black in 2010, 19.7 percent of

Second B-1 crashes; crew safely ejects

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — A B-1B bomber crashed on a runway at Ellsworth Air Force Base in the second accident involving one of the long-range strategic jets in nine days, officials said today. The crew of four safely ejected.

The $280 million plane crashed as it came in for a landing about 10:40 p.m. Thursday.

"It is possible that it came in too low and hit a power pole," said police Lt. Fred Brown.

The crew parachuted from the plane and was taken to the base hospital as a precaution but was in good condition, Ellsworth spokesman Maj. Joseph B. Saxon said at a news conference this morning at the base on Rapid City's eastern edge.

Saxon said the cause of the crash was not immediately known. Air Force Maj. Temple Black in Washington said a board of officers will be convened to investigate. He speculated that weather might have been a factor.

Conditions were foggy and visibility a half-mile at the time of the crash, the Rapid City Journal reported.

The crash came two days after officials reported that the Air Force had inspected and cleared more than two-thirds of the 98 B-1B bombers, which were grounded following a crash Nov. 8 that destroyed one of the planes near Abilene.

The crash today was the fourth in the four years since the United States began flying B-1 aircraft, the nation's first new long-range bomber in more than 25 years.

Witnesses reported a downed power line and airplane parts scattered in the landing area, Brown said. Power was reported out in Box Elder, south of the base.

"It looked like the whole runway was on fire," said a worker at a convenience store a third of a mile from the crash.

Harold Morgenstern, manager of a trailer court, said, "It felt like an earthquake." Morgenstern said he saw "about a half mile of flames" that were yellow. "They were up in the air a couple of hundred feet."

Last week, a B-1B crashed and burned in a field near Dyess Air Force Base. The crew of four ejected and survived.

Lt. Col. George H. Peck, a Strategic Air Command spokesman, said Tuesday that 63 of the 85 B-1Bs at SAC bases had been inspected without any problems detected.

The Air Force refused to speculate on the cause of the Texas crash, although witnesses reported a fire around the two left engines before the crash.

SAC's grounding order mandated inspection of electric, fuel and hydraulic lines.

In addition to Ellsworth and Dyess, the bombers are deployed at Grand Forks Air Force Base, N.D., and McConnell Air Force Base, Kan.

The Air Force has been criticized for its handling of the B-1B program, primarily because of acknowledged problems in developing its radar-jamming gear.

A B-1 bomber, similar to the type shown here, crashed at Ellsworth Air Force Base early today, authorities said; it is the second accident in two weeks involving the plane.

Three die in hunting accidents

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — A San Marcos, Texas, man apparently killed by a stray bullet is the third person to die in a hunting accident since the deer hunting season opened last Saturday, state police said.

Robert Lee Posey, 27, was shot and killed Thursday near Bonito Lake, state police in Alamogordo said.

State police officer Jim Long said the victim was sitting with a companion in Philadelphia Canyon near Bonito Lake. He was struck by a bullet in the left thigh and died at the scene.

Long said no arrests have been made.

"That is what we are trying to find out," Long said. "We have no suspects and we have not identified anyone as being the shooter."

The victim's body was recovered by members of the White Mountain Search and Rescue unit out of Ruidoso.

Authorities said a Lovington hunter wounded Tuesday when a rifle went off inside a pickup truck was in good condition today at Artesia General Hospital.

Darryl Northcutt, 29, was hit by a bullet fragment while hunting 24 miles southwest of Hope with a companion, Hershel Hayes, also of Lovington.

Authorities said Hayes placed a rifle in a gun rack inside the pickup and the gun accidentally went off. Eddy County sheriff's reports said the bullet disintegrated as it passed through the cab of the truck, and a fragment struck Northcutt, who was standing outside.

The bullet fragment penetrated Northcutt's lung, authorities said. Killed in prior incidents during the deer hunting season that began last Saturday were Steve Scheib, 31, of Albuquerque, and Rodney Pacheco, of San Juan Pueblo.

Scheib was shot Sunday by a companion while hunting deer on the White Sands Missile Range, a military facility that is closed to deer hunting this season.

He died the next day at Gerald Champion Memorial Hospital in Alamogordo.

Pacheco died last Saturday near El Vado Lake in northern New Mexico. State police said Pacheco was struck by a bullet from a gun that discharged inside a truck occupied by Pacheco and two companions.

The truck had been stopped by Game and Fish Department officers checking for illegal spotlighting. Game and Fish officers Dean Harkleroad and John Mills reported seeing a shuffling in the truck just prior to the shot going off that killed Pacheco.

Death penalty opponents meet

DALLAS (AP) — Hours before San Francisco attorney Robert R. Bryan told a college audience how he saved a death row inmate from execution, a jury in San Antonio used a new Texas law to sentence a convicted mass murderer to death by lethal injection.

"I don't think the public realizes that innocent people have been executed," Bryan said Thursday night to a small Southern Methodist University audience.

It's a statement he and other death penalty abolitionists will be repeating throughout the weekend for the 1988 National Coalition to Abolish the Death Penalty National Conference.

Texas was the obvious choice for the conference because it leads the nation in executions with 28 since the U.S. Supreme Court resumed capital punishment in 1976, said Rick Halperin, Amnesty International regional co-coordinator for North Texas. The conference, which begins today, should be the largest meeting of the coalition, an umbrella group of religious and non-religious groups opposed to the death penalty, he said.

"We as a human species have been killing each other in the name of God and law for thousands of years... and yet the crime rate doesn't go down, the murder rate doesn't go down. Obviously this is not the answer," said Bryan, chairman and executive board member of the Washington-based anti-death penalty coalition.

"I think we should start looking to see why people commit crimes rather than just treat the result later."

Bryan says that's what he did when he defended Jerry Bigelow, a California death row inmate convicted of murder. Although Bigelow confessed 10 times to the slaying and begged to be executed, he was acquitted by the jury that heard Bryan's arguments.

Bigelow confessed to the crime because he was accustomed to doing so as a child to avoid beatings from his father, Bryan said.

"Every person I know of who has ever been on death row who actually committed the act, was victimized as a child."

"I'm not saying everyone on death row is innocent. But innocent people have been executed and one innocent person is one too many."

Workers' comp rates to increase

AUSTIN (AP) — A $700 million increase in premiums for workers' compensation will prompt some businesses to drop the coverage, according to a state consumer representative.

But an insurance industry spokesman described the average 19 percent increase as a "survival increase."

The State Board of Insurance on Wednesday approved the rate increase that will take effect Jan. 1. Businesses have already seen a 109.6 percent increase in premium rates since Jan. 1, 1985.

Board chairman Edwin J. Smith Jr. said workers' compensation insurance is in "a hell of a fix."

The insurance council had recommended a 36.7 percent rate increase.

"I don't know how Texas employers are going to be able to pay this additional almost 20 percent increase," said Kay Doughty, who heads the Office of Consumer Counsel.

"A lot of employers are going to have to consider dropping their coverage entirely," she said.

Ms. Doughty's group had recommended a 10.2 percent increase. The insurance board staff suggested a 6.7 percent hike.

The three-member insurance board, Ms. Doughty and Geiger called on the Legislature to address problems in the system of compensating workers who are injured on the job.

A House-Senate committee studying the issue is scheduled Dec. 9 to send its final report to the Legislature, which convenes in January.

Farmers wait for insurance payoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of farmers are waiting for government insurance checks to cover crops scorched by last summer's drought, as the agency that handles the program wrestles with its biggest caseload ever.

The government will end up making about $1 billion in crop insurance payments for the 1988 season, an official said, but for a pair of South Texas farmers who have been waiting for their checks since summer, the delay has been tough on their cash flow.

"I'd be bankrupt if I didn't have a seed corn crop. It's the only thing keeping me going," said Edinburg farmer Gene Houts, who has been waiting since July for insurance payments on cotton and corn crops devastated by the drought.

"There must be a tremendous backlog because we're not getting much satisfaction down here," said Harlingen cotton and grain farmer Tommy Funk. "I'm about ready to go to Washington on it."

Funk said he received a check for a withered grain crop early on, but has been waiting since late August for a check in the thousands of dollars on his cotton crop.

Houts said he was appealing to Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Rep. Kika de la Garza, a Mission Democrat and chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, to investigate the situation. He said he knows of several other Valley farmers in similar circumstances.

John Marshall, chief executive officer of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp., said the U.S. Department of Agriculture agency has received more than 53,000 claims and has processed and paid about 44,000 of them.

"This is the heaviest workload we've ever had," Marshall said. "The unprecedented volume led to some of the delays."

On top of that, the agency has been phasing in a new computer system and has had to work out the bugs.

The FCIC writes and pays directly on 20 percent of crop insurance claims, with the remaining 80 percent handled through private companies that are reinsured by the agency.

Marshall expects $1.3 billion to $1.4 billion in crop insurance payments will eventually be made for drought-devastated crops.

Odessa firm fined for pollution

ODESSA (AP) — An Odessa chemical company has been fined $4,000 by the Texas Water Commission and has been ordered to clean up soil contaminated in 1986 and 1987.

Imposed Monday, the penalty requires Rexene to submit a cleanup plan within 180 days, then initiate it.

The extent of the contamination in the aquifer has not been determined but it is the second water pollution penalty imposed against Rexene this fall.

The Texas Air Control Board fined Rexene $24,000 in October for violations of the state ACB rules and the Texas Clean Air Act.

Terry James, TWC District 10 biologist in Odessa, said Rexene is believed to have stored sludge in unlined holes, causing contaminants to seep into nearby groundwater.

James said a plume of contaminants lies underneath the Rexene facility.

"It has been estimated there is in excess of 500,000 gallons of this stuff sitting on top of the groundwater zone," James said. "It has also been detected in the drinking-water aquifer."

Power line objections made harder

AUSTIN (AP) — One strategy used by Texans to block construction of electric utility transmission lines would be eliminated under a legislative committee proposal. The select committee on a statewide energy plan Thursday agreed to recommend the Texas Public Utility Commission be the major arbiter in deciding transmission line cases.

Essentially, the change would prohibit property owners from filing lawsuits in transmission line cases at the county level.

The panel's recommendations were adopted informally and will be considered again before being forwarded to the Legislature, which convenes in January.

Under current law, property owners can turn to their county courts to fight a decision by the PUC that an electric utility's transmission line should be built.

The recommended change would remove this option, although residents still would be able to continue their fight in state district court and through the appeals courts if necessary.

Committee members said the change in law is necessary to prevent delays in construction of transmission lines.

Dollar boosted by central bank intervention

NEW YORK (AP) — A wave of central bank intervention has put the sinking dollar on firmer ground against other currencies, but economists warn that the buying spree probably won't have a lasting impact.

"It's kind of like bubble gum — it loses its flavor on the bedpost overnight," said Robert A. Brusca, chief financial economist for Nikko Securities Co. International.

Brusca said traders here and abroad still are concerned that President-elect Bush and the Democratic-controlled Congress will be unable to work together to narrow the huge gaps in trade and the federal budget, and if left unchecked both factors could hurt the economy.

"Each side appears wedded to their own views and they will be unable to compromise until they've substantially ground each other up," he said.

The coordinated worldwide buying of dollars by central banks helped to make the dollar rise against all major currencies except the Japanese yen. It had hovered around the 121-yen level — near its lowest levels since the late 1940s — before closing at 121.52 yen in Tokyo. The dollar later rose to 122.65 yen in London but fell back in New York to 122.155 yen, down from Wednesday's 122.24 yen.

The dollar's rebound lent some support to the stock market Thursday. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed up 14.05 points at 2,052.63.

But bond prices slipped. The Treasury's bellwether 30-year bond finished lower by about $5 per $1,000 in face value, with its yield rising to 9.15 percent from late Wednesday's 9.11 percent. Some analysts blamed the decline on the Treasury's auction of $9.03 billion in new 30-year bonds on Thursday.

The financial markets worry that a weak dollar could drive up interest rates and spark higher inflation — which in turn depresses bond prices — because it would raise prices of imports and some domestic commodities.

Currency traders said central bank intervention began overnight without much success in Tokyo, with the Bank of Japan reportedly buying dollars heavily.

Intervention is the direct buying or selling of currencies by central banks. If the purchases are large enough, they can influence prices directly. When the Fed, or the Bank of Japan, or the West German Bundesbank, buys dollars directly, that reduces the supply of dollars available and sends up the price.

Drug bill effective September 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are details of the anti-drug bill President Reagan is signing today:

CIVIL PENALTIES

• Allows the Justice Department to assess civil penalties of up to $10,000 for possession of "personal use" amounts of marijuana, cocaine and other specified illegal drugs.

• Permits defendants to seek an administrative review and to appeal the penalty in federal court.

• The records of those hit with civil fines would be wiped out after three years if the person remained drug-free.

USER PENALTIES

• Permits courts to deny individuals convicted of drug offenses of all federal benefits except welfare, Social Security, welfare, health, disability and some veterans' programs. The judge is not obligated to impose the penalty in most cases.

• Sets a benefit-suspension period of up to five years for a second possession conviction, up to five years for first trafficking conviction and up to 10 years for second trafficking conviction.

• Automatic loss of benefits for third trafficking conviction.

• Sets an effective date of Sept. 1, 1989, for the program. Requires the president to report to Congress by May 1 on implementation.

• Allows a waiver of the punishment if an individual completes a drug rehabilitation program, has otherwise been rehabilitated, or has made a good-faith effort to enter a rehabilitation program.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

• Federal death penalty for drug kingpins and anyone convicted of drug-related killings.

• Allows the president to impose penalties and sanctions on foreign countries involved in money laundering.

• Regulates companies selling chemicals used to process illegal drugs.

• Stiffens penalties for convicted drug traffickers.

• Restores to federal prosecutors the ability to prosecute corrupt public officials on the theory that they deprived citizens of "intangible rights" to honest government. A Supreme Court ruling had invalidated such prosecutions.

• Establishes procedures for owners to petition the government for return of boats, planes, and other property seized for drug violations. Sets conditions for return of the property if owners can show they were unaware of small amounts of drugs aboard; or if owners took reasonable steps to ensure the conveyance would not be used for illegal purposes.

DRUG CZAR

• Creates new Cabinet position with authority to develop national strategy for all areas of combating drug abuse.

• Makes drug czar responsible for the entire federal drug budget.

EDUCATION AND TREATMENT

• Authorizes $900 million for additional treatment programs, although actual funding provided by the bill is far less.

• Authorizes additional money for anti-drug programs for students and dropouts.

• Provides for teacher training in substance abuse.

• Establishes community-based development projects for education and prevention, including programs to involve the private sector.

• Establishes a grant program for drug abuse education and prevention aimed at youth gang members.

INTERNATIONAL

• Authorizes $1 million for State Department international narcotics control programs.

• Authorizes $3 million for international and regional organizations to improve drug control programs.

• Authorizes $23 million for border control programs.

• Earmarks $15 million to Mexico to fight drugs.

• Permits the president to consider corruption inside foreign governments when making his determination of whether that government has fully cooperated in the war on drugs, and can receive U.S. aid.

FINANCING

• Bill calls for programs that would cost estimated $1.4 billion but provides only $500 million.

DRIVERS' LICENSES

• Establishes a one-year pilot program in four unspecified states for drug testing of new drivers' license applicants. Those testing positive would be denied licenses for at least one year.

• Allows the license to be issued after three months if the applicant agrees to regular drug testing for the remaining nine months.

• Authorizes $125 million to help states establish drunken driving enforcement programs that require license suspensions for those found driving under the influence of alcohol.

ALCOHOL WARNING LABELS

• Requires a health warning to be placed on all alcoholic beverage containers.

CHILD PORNOGRAPHY

• Toughens child pornography laws, including increasing penalties for anyone who facilitates use of a child for producing sexually explicit materials.

OBSCENITY

• Creates a new federal offense against those "engaged in the business" of distributing obscene materials; and against those who receive or possess obscene materials with the intent to distribute pornography that has been shipped in interstate commerce.

• Provides mandatory criminal forfeiture, upon conviction, of the profits of those engaged in the adult obscenity business. Their interest in property used to produce or distribute the obscene material also could be forfeited at the discretion of a judge.

Coahoma board to meet

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The semi-annual evaluation of the superintendent and the 1987-88 audit report will be among the action items considered by the Coahoma Independent School District board of trustees at its regular monthly meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The board will also consider teacher resignations and recommendations for the 1988-89 school year and an ordinance authorizing a bus lease/purchase agreement.

Information reports will be given on attendance, transportation, and maintenance. The superintendent will report on the Price Differential Index and the Texas Guaranteed Yield Program.

Police beat

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents as of 9:15 a.m. today:

• Manuel Mendez Cantu, 37, 1002 N. Main, and Oralia Rodriguez Cantu, 1002 N. Main, were arrested on a charge of possession of drug paraphernalia.

• Adam Hernandez Valencia, 27, 202 N.E. 3rd St., was arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

• Stanley Miller, 20, Box 1395, was arrested on a charge of simple assault.

• A resident in the 1500 block of Mesquite reported that jewelry valued at $6,225 and a Colt 45 semi-automatic pistol were stolen from his residence.

• An employee of Elmore Chrysler Dodge and Jeep, 502 FM, 700, reported that tires and tools valued at $2,025 were stolen from the dealer's storage building.

Sheriff's log

Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard confirmed Thursday that Frankie Salazar Hernandez, convicted of murder in 118th District Court Nov. 11, remains in the Howard County jail pending transfer to the Texas Department of Corrections.

Overcrowding has closed TDC, chief deputy Robert Puente said Wednesday, and it is not known exactly when Hernandez will be transferred to the prison.

Sheriff's officers also reported investigating the following:

• Colleen Bernadette Johnson, 21, 1502 Chickasaw St., was sentenced to 10 years probation and fined attorneys fees and court costs Wednesday after pleading guilty in 118th District Court to charges of possession of a controlled substance.

• A North Carolina man reported juveniles threw rocks at his truck near mile marker 183 on Interstate Highway 20 West Wednesday. Sheriff's records indicate the man saw one white male throwing rocks; the truck sustained damage to one side and a broken windshield as a result of the incident.

• Joyce Ann Wilson, 27, 308 E. Fifth St., and Danny Ray Crosby, 28, 508 N. San Antonio Way, were released on $1,000 bond each Wednesday. Both were arrested by city police on charges of class A theft.

• Rocky Lynn Dow, 34, 707 E. 16th St., was sentenced to three years probation and fined $300 plus court costs after pleading guilty in county court to charges of driving while intoxicated.

• Deidra Leigh Covington, 20, Odessa, was released on $200 bond after being arrested by city police on outstanding warrants from Dallas County for driving while intoxicated.

• A man reported the theft of an unknown quantity of pecans from an orchard near his residence on U.S. Highway 87 South.

Developer Rochester found guilty

MIDLAND (AP) — The government overstepped its bounds in charging an Odessa developer with racketeering, the defendant's attorney said after his client was convicted of bank fraud.

A U.S. District Court jury convicted Louis Rochester, 70, on four counts, finding him innocent on 21 other counts ranging from racketeering to fraud Wednesday. Rochester was involved in several Big Spring development deals.

A seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated for almost two days before finding Rochester guilty of mail fraud, misapplication of funds, making false entries and personally benefiting from a loan transaction without disclosing that benefit to all the parties involved.

But Dallas attorney David Schick said federal prosecutors were "obviously overreaching" with charges of racketeering. Schick vowed to continue to contest the case but wouldn't say if he planned to appeal.

Rochester, scheduled to be sentenced Dec. 12 by U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton, faces a maximum five years in prison and a $250,000 fine on each charge. Schick said he will request a probation sentence.

Rochester continued to maintain his innocence.

All four counts leveled against Rochester involved a real estate venture between Odessa Savings Association and James Pruet Construction Inc. of Arlington.

Prosecutors alleged that Rochester, while an advisory director for Odessa Savings and Mid-Central Financial Group Inc., the thrift's holding company, solicited and promoted a $7.2 million loan and profit-participation agreement between the association and Pruet for the real estate venture in Arlington known as Stagecoach Estates.

Sununu

Continued from page 1-A Democrats. The 49-year-old engineer has a reputation as a self-assured and somewhat abrasive manager from his six years in the New Hampshire Statehouse.

It's a style that could generate friction in the back-rubbing world of the Capitol.

Joseph Grandmaison, the New Hampshire Democratic Party chairman, said Sununu will "have to cool down his act."

"On a state level, he thinks nothing of dressing down legislators. The first time he tries to do that to a senior member of Congress, he'll find his effectiveness tremendously impacted," Grandmaison said.

Bush, in announcing the appointment on Thursday, said he was sure Sununu could "build a constructive relationship with Congress."

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., who is running for Senate Majority Leader, said he was like many in Congress who will wait and see.

"He is widely praised outside of Washington but brand-new inside Washington," he said.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., a Sununu ally from his home state, said he didn't think getting along with Congress was the most important task for the new chief of staff.

"I would advise him to try to transform Washington and not be conformed to it," Humphrey said. A failing of the Reagan administration, he said, was that it was sometimes "too obliging toward the bureaucracy and the Congress."

The appointment of the chief of staff is the president's. It does not require the approval of Congress. If it did, Sununu certainly would take heat over his refusal to join 49 other governors in opposing a United Nations resolution equating Zionism with racism. Because of that stance, several Jewish organizations have expressed concern about Sununu, whose Lebanese father was a Boston businessman.

Sununu said Thursday he felt as governor he should not embroil himself in foreign policy issues. He added that he took pains to make sure the 1988 Republican platform included a condemnation of the U.N. resolution.

Bavin

Continued from page 1-A look for another job," Bavin said. Bavin considers himself a representative of the Big Spring Police Department even when he isn't wearing the uniform.

"Everytime you go anywhere, you're being a police officer in the community. You're showing people what to expect (from the department) by your example," he said.

Bavin — who formerly headed the police department's Crime Prevention Program — said the way he conducts himself in the community educates the public about what the responsibility of law enforcement entails.

Stress is often cited as the main reason for the high ratio of divorce among law enforcement personnel marriages, but Bavin credits a strong family relationship and good communication with Sara for his durable marriage.

"(Sara) handles (being married to a policeman) better than some," he said.

"I think officers do a better job when they become involved in the community," Bavin advised, and apparently takes involvement seriously, including affiliations with the YMCA, the Rainbow Project, Christmas in April and Neighborhood Watch programs.

"We see a lot of people and try to project a positive image to the public. My philosophy is I try to treat somebody the way I would like to be treated," Bavin noted.

Opinion

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Gun lobby takes two direct hits

The National Rifle Association may have trouble keeping its powder dry after two recent events. The powerful lobby may be shedding tears after taking two direct hits. The first round came in the form of a scientific report that appears to show conclusively that the ready availability of handguns sharply increases a community's murder rate. Published in the New England Journal of Medicine, the study compared the murder rates of Seattle and Vancouver, Canada, — two cities that are virtually identical socially, economically and geographically.

Vancouver, however, has strict gun regulations. Seattle doesn't. That difference, researchers discovered, can be measured in blood.

Seattle residents were 63 percent more likely to be murdered than their Canadian neighbors just 140 miles to the north. Researchers concluded that "virtually all" the additional deaths were due to one thing: Lax gun laws made Seattle residents five times more likely to be murdered by handguns.

The study may mortally wound a key contention of the NRA — that limiting access to guns has little effect on murder rates, because people bent on homicide will find other ways to kill.

The second critical volley came from Maryland, where an NRA-financed effort to overturn a ban on cheap handguns — "Saturday-night specials" — was overwhelmingly defeated by voters. The NRA outspent the opposition 10 to 1, pouring $5 million into the contest to clog airwaves and mail boxes with what Maryland Gov. William D. Schaefer called "cheap, lousy (and) deceptive" ads.

Despite the shrill emotional appeal, Maryland voters handed the NRA its first defeat on a statewide referendum. For the NRA, the drubbing was even more humiliating because it came in a state that borders Washington, D.C.; thus, the results are unlikely to be overlooked by Congress.

All in all, it was a bad week for one of the nation's most powerful and uncompromising lobbies. Weakened with voters and bludgeoned by scientific facts, the NRA clearly lost some political blood. To prevent future wounds, it must learn the art of intelligent compromise. Otherwise, it may one day be looking down the barrel of political extinction.

Why Mike really lost the election

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

The most asked question following the election seems to be, Why did Michael Dukakis lose? I've read at least 14 columns attempting to answer the question. Some claimed that Dukakis didn't answer Bush's charges soon enough, his campaign staff was too inexperienced, he himself was too short.

Actually I didn't read anywhere that the reason Dukakis lost was he was too short. I made that up to show you a perfect example of how the media distorts things.

But that could have been it, couldn't it? George Bush is a tall, angular fellow, and here's Dukakis, a comparative runt.

Remember when Randy Newman sang, "Short people got nobody . . . ?"

The Democrats tried to portray Bush as a wimp, but the Republicans came back with "Our wimp can beat your shrimp."

During the campaign, as a matter of fact, Dukakis, hungry for seafood, walked into a restaurant and asked, "Do you serve shrimp?"

"Certainly," said the maitre d'. "Sit anywhere you please."

That's an old joke and never happened, of course, but once a member of the media starts distorting things, it's hard to stop.

At any rate, I, too, have been giving some thought to why Dukakis was beaten so badly and I now offer my own theories. Maybe after I'm through, the facts will be so distorted we can put the election behind us and get on to the more important things such as Gerald Rivera's upcoming prime-time special, "The Dental Floss Strangler."

THE FRANKIE AVALON THEORY: Did anybody else notice how much Michael Dukakis looks like an aging Frankie Avalon.

Obviously the American people don't want a president who reminds them of a guy who hung around Annette Funicello all those years and still thought "going all the way" meant swimming out from the beach until the water was over your head.

THE EDDIE FISHER THEORY: Come to think about it, Michael Dukakis looks more like an aging Eddie Fisher than he does an aging Frankie Avalon.

Nobody has liked Eddie Fisher since he ditched Debbie Reynolds and ran off with Liz Taylor. I have no idea whatever became of Eddie Fisher, but I hope he wound up as a chiropractor.

THE BUSHY EYEBROW THEORY: Michael Dukakis has some industrial-strength eyebrows. I kept worrying that they were made of Velcro and if he walked into a wall, they would have to get the fire department to free his head.

Never trust a man with bushy eyebrows.

THE "KITTYANDI" THEORY: Did you notice that everytime Dukakis spoke, he began every sentence with "Kittyandi," referring, of course, to his lovely wife?

If he'd said, "MissKittyandi," he might have won Texas.

THE HARVARD THEORY: Nobody who didn't go to Harvard likes anybody who did. George Bush went to Yale, of course, but a great many voters think that's where they make locks.

THE "L"-WORD THEORY: Michael Dukakis actually eats, and enjoys, liver. A man who likes liver probably also watches public television, listens to records featuring a cello player and collected stamps when he was a kid — which can mean only one thing: Michael Dukakis is a nerd.

Once you've distorted one or two facts, it's easy to go on a rampage.

Few changes expected in town

By ART BUCHWALD

There have been many telephone calls in the last few days asking what the election outcome means to those of us who live in Washington.

Nothing much will change. Construction has now begun on an underground bunker at the Burning Tree Country Club for Vice President-elect Dan Quayle. Bush handlers told me that this was being done to emphasize the important role the administration has in store for Quayle.

"Unlike the treatment of past vice presidents," one staffer said, "we intend to make full use of all of Dan Quayle's qualifications, which means we are finally going to get this country out of a lot of sand traps."

As far as we know, neither Mrs. Bush nor President-elect Bush has an astrologer. The Reagans have offered to turn over their own stargazer, but Bush's people feel that the President-elect should appoint the astrologer of his choice, to show the country that he is his own man.

There is no major decoration work to be done in the White House. The only question is, will Nancy Reagan leave behind the china she bought during her first term, or will she say, "I paid for these dishes and they are mine"?

Since George Bush claims to hail from both Texas and Connecticut, there is some question about what style of food they will be serving in the White House. The word around Washington is that it will most likely be barbecued quiche.

Domestic help could be a problem. During the last six weeks of the campaign, Bush kept yelling at his cooks, "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen" — and they all left.

There will obviously be many differences between President Reagan and the President-elect Reagan always kept asking the American people to win one for the Gipper. Bush has no Gipper and will probably urge everyone to win one for Dan Quayle, who needs the country's prayers a lot more than the Gipper did.

George Bush has a larger family than Ronald Reagan, and he sees them frequently. This means lots of photo opportunities as each grandchild will insist on sitting in Bush's lap. Therefore we can expect to see more People magazine covers featuring Bush children than Princess Diana's and Fergie's babies combined.

Social life will remain about the same as it was under the Reagans. Rich people will still be welcome at the White House and treated just like you and me.

In the sports department, Bush is an ardent tennis player and Quayle is a devoted golfer. The good news is that if Mr. Bush travels abroad, Mr. Quayle, who is also an excellent tennis player, can fill in a foursome for him so that presidential business will not be interrupted.

The in university under Bush will be Yale; the out school will be the hated "H" word, which stands for Harvard. Anything coming out of Boston for the next four years will be viewed with the same seriousness as press communiques from the Sandinistas.

It's hard for George Bush to follow Ronald Reagan's performance, because only President Reagan could get away with it. For example, for eight years the President cupped his ear to pretend he was hard of hearing each time he got on or off a helicopter or plane. No matter what the reporters asked, Mr. Reagan just shrugged his shoulders indicating he had no idea what they were saying. Every once in a while he would shout back, "Yes," "No" and "So's your uncle."

But Bush can't do this, because if he pretends to be hard of hearing, Dan Quayle will offer to take over the Presidency.

Not all people are happy about President Bush winning the election. I met one Democrat who said, "Everybody is concerned that something might happen to George Bush and then Dan Quayle will become President. But no one is worried about the effect of something happening to Dan Quayle and George Bush becoming President."

Questions remain for Palestinians to answer

On the right

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Beware dismissing as absolutely without meaning the initiative of the Palestine National Council. It is to be expected that the government of Israel would scoff at it (this is a conventional tactic), and correct that our State Department should be skeptical. But not right and not safe to put it aside as one might one more speech by Gov. Dukakis.

Here is what to watch for:

1. The reaction of Jordan. What we have, according to the Palestine National Council, is an existing state. One trouble with this gesture is that it is a little bit on the order of the American Indian National Council promulgating an Indian state. Where exactly is it? What are its borders? And isn't the reaction of the United States to the new Indian state of primary interest?

If one stares at the map (don't we all?), what one might think of as Palestine "territory" looks like a fetus in the Israeli womb, with a little separated area to the south (the Gaza Strip) and to the north (the Golan Heights). Abutting the whole is Jordan, which is, of course, two-thirds made up of Palestinian Arabs.

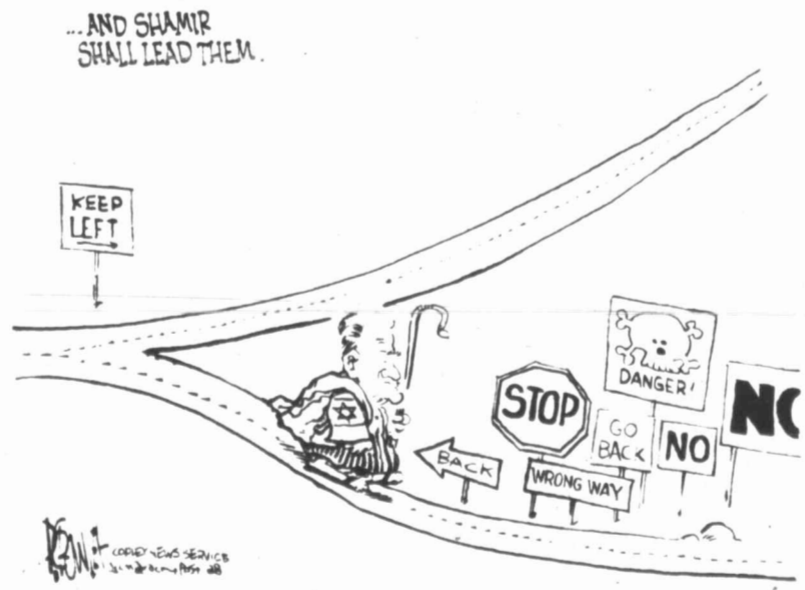

The reaction of Jordan to the notion of a baptized Palestinian state is, in a paradoxical sense, not entirely different from Israel's reaction: Does the new state threaten the security of Jordan? The announcement several months ago by King Hussein that the West Bank could look after its own concerns hand it encouraged self-determination. On the other hand, it cut umbilical ties.

2. The government of Israel is a tentative arrangement in a land deeply divided. Not at all divided on the matter of Israel's survival, but very much so on how best to effect that goal, and very much divided, recently, over the basic philosophical question: Israel the motherland of what Jews? Yitzhak Shamir, in order to achieve a parliamentary majority, appears to be ready to make the concession that only offspring of Jewish mothers (which is the prevailing criterion) and those who converted to Judaism under the supervision of an Orthodox rabbi qualify for Jewishness in the sense of inheriting an automatic right to Israeli citizenship. This is a position that outrages Reform and Conservative Jews. It has the effect, among other things, of alienating 95 percent of American Jews.

The point here is that swaggering statements of defiance by the government of Mr. Shamir are not to be taken as engraved in stone. The Labor Party is miserably unhappy over Israeli policy in the West Bank, and such prominent Israelis as Amos Elon have said that there is no difference between what Israel is doing in the West Bank and what South Africa does to the black majority. Israel will need to face a new situation if a new situation is coming, however embryonic it appears in its present form.

3. The United Nations, which is the great base of international anti-Semitism, of course welcomes the PLO's undertaking to respect U.N. Resolutions 242 and 338, expecting that those resolutions, which state in the area" to independence and secure boundaries, will make possible the formal recognition of a Palestinian state.

That, clearly, is the line the diplomatic offensive will take. One after another of the Third World countries will recognize the Palestinian state, presumably with a government in exile headed by Yasser Arafat. But to recognize a country it is generally required that an understanding be reached as to what are the frontiers of that country. All of the West Bank will certainly be included in any map the diplomats will stare at, as also the Gaza Strip. But what about the Golan Heights, formally annexed by Israel in 1981? And — the biggest question of all — what about East Jerusalem? If anything at all is absolutely safe to predict, it is that the entire State of Israel would go down fighting before giving up Jerusalem. So that the best one might reasonably expect is a kind of ambiguous status, something on the order of what Trieste was for several years after the war, claimed alike as territory by the Italians and by the Yugoslavs.

4. As one nation after another recognizes the new state of Palestine, without settling exactly what are its boundaries, what position will the Israelis take? Here there is a division between those Israelis who wish only military security and those others who are biblical irrederentists who dream of the reincorporation of the holy lands of Samaria and Judea.

And this is the correct point on which maximum U.S. attention should focus: the demilitarization of the new state. Granted, this becomes complicated as the question of Jordan comes up. Jordan is not going to disarm, quite the contrary. That Jordan will genuinely cooperate in supervising a non-militarized Palestine is, happily, probable, given that, for once, Jordan and Palestine would have interests in common.

Thanks for help with benefit

To the editor:

On behalf of the Carrie Carnahan Fund, I would like to thank everyone who made the benefit sale of Nov. 4 and 5 such a success. The warmth and generosity of the community were evident from start to finish.

Our special thanks to Bobby Price of Price Construction who donated the use of the building for the benefit sale; to Clyde McMahon who gave us free use of a storage building for the month of October; and to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2013 who not only donated goods, but also supplied table, chairs, soft drinks, and most importantly, several willing workers!

Our sincere thanks to all who contributed to the success of this sale. Those who donated goods for sale are too many to count, but may God bless each one. Thanks also to those who came to buy, to browse, to help, or just to chat and encourage — thank you and God bless you!

MIA remains returned to U.S.

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The remains of four U.S. servicemen reported missing in action in Indochina during the Vietnam War arrived in the United States on Thursday.

The bodies will be transferred to Tri Services Mortuary at the Oakland Army Depot, where final arrangements will be made by their families, said Master Sgt. Richard Castillo at Travis Air Force Base, about 45 miles northeast of San Francisco.

A brief ceremony was held to honor the men whose remains were returned to U.S. officials by the Vietnamese government earlier this year. They earlier were cleared for entrance, by federal officials in Hawaii.

Three of the men were identified as Army Maj. Kenneth J. Yonan, of Chicago, reported lost on April 24, 1972; Navy Lt. j.g. M.D. McMican, of Topenish, Wash., lost June 2, 1965; and Navy Lt. j.g. Gerald M. Romano, of New York, lost June 2, 1965.

One soldier's name was withheld at the request of his family.

Human chain planned for moving

ROME, Ga. (AP) — To move the library's 150,000 books to a recently completed building, Rome officials are hoping to form a human chain Saturday covering the 500 feet between the old and new structures.

The plan is to pass the books from hand to hand until they reach the new library.

"I see this as an old-fashion barn-raising type of event," said Libby Collins, director of the Rome-Floyd County Public Library. "We need as many volunteers as we can get, 1,000 or even 2,000. If we have more than enough for one line of people to move the books, we'll form two lines."

The estimated it may take three weekends to move all the books, even with so many helpers.

Children are invited to help, Ms. Collins said.

"We'll be passing two or three books at a time, so children won't be overwhelmed. And we won't be passing boxes of books, so no volunteer will have an aching back afterward."

Bodies of missing teens found

CAR SALVAGED

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A nationwide search for four young adults ended with the recovery of bodies from a car in a river, but questions remain whether the accident was a deadly combination of illegal drinking, missing safety barriers and a misdirected detour sign.

A car containing what authorities believed were the bodies of the four young people was found Thursday in 15 feet of water on the bottom of the murky Mill River near New Haven harbor.

Authorities were awaiting autopsy results to make positive identifications, but city police Lt. James Sorrentino said it was likely the four victims were the missing friends, who graduated together from East Lyme High School in 1987.

Police have determined the four spent at least part of Saturday night drinking at a bar near Yale University. State police Detective Andre Trudelle said a bar employee told authorities that the friends left together about 3 a.m. Sunday. The legal drinking age in Connecticut is 21.

Marijuana tax

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Alabama state officials have started selling tax stamps for drug dealers to affix to illegal drugs, but so far most of the stamps have probably been purchased by stamp collectors, not dealers. Although the purchase of stamps cannot incriminate a buyer, authorities can assess a tax and additional penalties to dealers caught with a certain quantity of drugs not bearing the tax stamp.

Kentucky leads U.S. in smoking-related deaths

ATLANTA (AP) — Kentucky has the highest rate of smoking-related deaths in the United States and Utah the lowest, federal researchers say.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control report Thursday came on the same day as the Great American Smokeout, the American Cancer Society's yearly attempt to persuade smokers to give up the habit, even if just for a day.

The CDC reported that Kentucky had 176 smoking-related deaths for every 100,000 residents in 1985; West Virginia was next, with 172. Utah had 45 such deaths for every 100,000 people.

Nationwide, smoking-related diseases killed 314,574 Americans that year. The worst states, after Kentucky and West Virginia, were Arkansas, with 164 smoking-related deaths per 100,000 people in 1985; Rhode Island, 164; and Florida, 161.

Best on the list, after Utah: Alaska, 54; Hawaii, 77; New Mexico, 85; and Colorado, 94.

The report is based on computer analysis of statistics from 1985, the latest CDC data available.

Even though the state-by-state totals are not adjusted for age — to compensate for areas with more older or younger people — the rates provide valid "ballpark comparisons," said Dr. Thomas Novotny, a specialist in the CDC's Office of Smoking and Health.

For instance, it stands to reason that Utah, with its large Mormon population that abstains from using tobacco, would have a lower rate of death from smoking than other states, he said.

The report itself gave no possible explanations for the differing death rates.

The CDC estimates the smoking deaths through a mathematical formula, counting deaths from diseases that can be caused by smoking and factoring in the prevalence of smoking in that particular state.

Although there might be cases not easily pinpointed — a chain-smoking Kentucky coal miner, for example — "the tobacco-related illnesses far outweigh the risk of other exposures," Novotny said. "These other things are not something that we think will complicate the calculations enough to make them invalid."

"Even as smoking prevalence declines in this country," the CDC said, "smoking-attributable illness will continue to produce an enormous disease burden well into the 21st century."

Anti-apartheid leaders convicted

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Four black activists, including three leaders of the country's largest anti-apartheid group, were convicted today of treason. They could face the death penalty.

said they advocated peaceful protest. Supreme Court Justice Kees van Dijkhorst described the front as a "revolutionary organization" which sought to overthrow the government.

Three of those convicted of treason were senior leaders who had spent 40 months in jail without bail — Popo Molefe, 36, who was the coalition's national secretary; Terror Lekota, 40, who was its chief spokesman; and Moses Chikane, 40, a leader of its Transvaal Province branch.

Former leader makes apologies

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Former President Chun Doo-hwan, under attack for alleged involvement in corruption, will surrender most of his wealth and retire from Seoul in an effort to allay mounting public criticism, aides said today.

One aide to Chun, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the ex-president will hold a news conference early next week to announce his decision to leave Seoul after turning over most of his wealth to the government.

"He will make a public apology, give up most of his wealth and live in seclusion somewhere in the countryside," the aide said.

The Hankook Ilbo, a mass circulation newspaper, quoting an unidentified government source, said if Chun takes the action, President Roh Tae-woo is expected to pardon him legally as well as politically.

Widespread protests have broken out in the past two months urging the arrest and punishment of Chun for alleged corruption and human rights violations. The parliament has scheduled hearings to investigate such charges.

Chun, a former general, took power in 1980 and left office in February 1987. Roh, his hand-picked successor, was elected to replace him.

Nine members of Chun's family, including two brothers, have been arrested on corruption charges. Chun is accused of amassing a fortune and sending parts of it for investment in the United States and Australia.

Gorbachev meets with Gandhi

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev began a three-day visit to India today and held private talks with Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi that are expected to produce new economic and cultural agreements.

A Soviet interpreter was the only other person present for the talks at India's presidential palace. It is Gorbachev's first visit to any country outside the Soviet bloc since he was elected president nearly two months ago.

Indian authorities, mindful of Afghan refugee opposition to Soviet involvement in Afghanistan, asked the estimated 7,000 Afghans living in New Delhi to stay in their homes while Gorbachev is in town.

India, a founding member of the movement of non-aligned nations, has friendly relations with both Moscow and Washington.

New towns make the Rand McNally atlas

CHICAGO (AP) — There's nobody home in Yturria, Texas, except maybe a few prairie dogs and armadillos.

But it's on the map, along with 51 other obscure sites that have made the big time for the first time in the 1989 Rand McNally Road Atlas, due to appear this week in stores nationwide.

Michael Dobson, director of cartographic services at Skokie-based Rand McNally, said late Wednesday most of the towns were put on the map because travelers wrote to suggest they be added.

"In most cases they had pointed out a town that had some value to the traveling public and there was no reason it shouldn't be on," Dobson said.

Yturria, about 50 miles north of Brownsville, has no human residents. But it was added this year because it is the site of the Yturria Ranch, recognized as a historic site by the state of Texas.

"Yturria is on there more as a point of interest than as a populated place," Dobson said. "We really look at places and say, 'Do they have a travel-consumer related value?' In some cases they might be the only point of significance in the area."

Dobson said he receives thousands of letters each year from travelers who suggest changes. Those have led to 18,116 new or different items in the 1989 atlas, which covers the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Vermillion, Kan., was added after Dobson received a letter from a man who said the 167 mostly elderly residents of Vermillion enjoyed looking at the atlas and planning trips, both real and imaginary.

"We detected a small but nonetheless important error," the letter read. "You have left Vermillion off the map."

Rohwer, Ark., was added after someone wrote to note that it was the site of an internment camp for Japanese-Americans during World War II, Dobson said.

"We felt there was a historical significance to that," he said.

While Dobson says he likes to add new towns when he can, he is limited to what he can fit on the map, especially in the densely populated northeast.

"The real problem on a map is space," he said. "You try to make it so there aren't so many things that you lose legibility."

Dobson couldn't say how many towns were listed in the atlas, but he said he doesn't often drop a town.

Texas had coal mines long before oil wells

NEWCASTLE (AP) — Mine shafts, dark dusty pits and mine cars might seem a common sight in the English mining village of Newcastle, Texas, has them too.

Mine tunnels, which ran under the present townsite, once rang with activity, but the coal industry fell off after it was discovered that North Texas coal wasn't worth mining because of its poor quality, residents said.

Bituminous mines attracted the first people to Newcastle — coal miners from the Appalachian Mountains, Italy and Poland. Companies named Montana Power Co., Fort Belknap Coal Co., Newcastle Coal Co. and Peabody have over the past 100 years, and as recently as 10 years ago, leased land for coal mining in Young County.

The fuel known as "black diamond" preceded the "black gold" of crude oil in early Texas. Rural one-room shoolhouses, farmhouses and dry good stores with furnaces burned lignite coal in North Texas before the first oil well spurted black crude.

Coal was discovered along the banks of the Brazos River in 1852, according to Fort Belknap records.

Residents now say none of the original coal miners are alive in Newcastle, nor are their relatives. The last serious consideration of coal mining arose 10 years ago when the cost of gasoline gave scientists incentive to invent the phrase coal gasification, and companies leased land likely to yield coal. Most profitable coal mines had stopped operation in Young County in the 1920s.

Landowners around Newcastle say they have not seen any coal mining activity in the past ten years, nor can any old mines be found.

Abandoned ghost mines were determined to be serious hazards by the United States Office of Surface Mining in 1977, which claimed that abandoned mines are causes of air pollution, mudslides and slag heaps that eventually cause land erosion.

Yet, near Bowie in Montague County, some "ghost mines," evidence of coal mines, still exist. Metal tracks for mine cars remain on Dave Rhone's ranch near Bowie. While Rhone does not foresee any interest in coal mining, he has been contacted by historical societies about placing markers on or near his land to mark the former mines.

The late Perry Jetter worked in coal mines near Newcastle in 1962. He told the Times Feature Magazine, where he was pictured holding a sharp-pointed pick, that he worked in mines in early 1900s, used Young County coal in his own kitchen stoves and continued to take coal from holes in the ground until 1950.

Five mines were sunk in the Newcastle area, said Barbara Ledbetter, the author of a manuscript titled "Newcastle, Texas: The Coal Mining Town." The sulphur content of area coal is believed to be too high, she said. Sulphates, the chemicals that cause "black lung" complications in longtime miners, are too high in bituminous coal to make the coal economically feasible.

Nevertheless, Newcastle-area coal was used to fire railroads, brick kilns, glass works, and to heat homes and shops.

Baltimore girl named 1988 Easter Seal Child

DALLAS (AP) — Joy Hall, a 10-year-old from Baltimore, was named National Easter Seal Child for 1989 at the society's national convention here Thursday.

Born with cerebral palsy, Joy lacks motor control in her legs and arms. But with the help of leg braces, she hasn't allowed the handicap to limit her activities.

Joy participates in a gymnastics class geared to building strength in children with disabilities. She also plays basketball in her regular gym class, using an adaptive step that allows her to toss the ball toward the goal. She also enjoys bowling, and adds she isn't discouraged even when she throws a gutter ball.

"Even if I do badly, I try," she says.

Joy, a fifth-grader, attends a Baltimore public school. Her mother, Janet, credits Joy's attendance over the past four years at an Easter Seal's summer camp for her abilities. Janet Hall said her daughter established her independence at the camp, where Joy is expected to make her own bed and meet a regular schedule of activities.

At home, Joy is responsible for keeping her room straight, getting dressed every morning and fixing her own breakfast.

In her role as National Easter Seal Child, Joy will represent disabled people who receive rehabilitation services from the nationwide network of Easter Seal facilities and programs.

Walter E. Shinault, 28 and a stock broker from Jackson, Miss., was named the National Easter Seal adult representative for 1989.

About 200 state and local Easter Seal societies operate more than 400 program service sites in the United States and Puerto Rico.

Tax panel declines to recommend lottery

AUSTIN (AP) — The Select Committee on Tax Equity has agreed not to make a recommendation to the Legislature on creating a state lottery.

After a straw poll of members Wednesday, Chairman Dan Cook said the committee report would note the panel has looked at a lottery and set out a revenue estimate to make it clear the measure would not be a panacea.

But the report will add a lottery is not a tax and not within the committee's purview, he said.

The decision came despite a subcommittee recommendation to support adoption of a lottery, which would yield an estimated $600 million per year in state revenue, after about five years.

"The lottery represents a large potential source of income... and it is one of the few revenue proposals to come before the committee which appears to enjoy widespread public support," the subcommittee report said.

Committee member Forrest Smith argued against taking a position on the lottery, saying in a statement, "If a lottery is not a tax, then that alone should be sufficient to take it out of (the committee's) consideration."

Smith said there are "numerous activities which the state could engage in that would produce revenue that (the committee) should not consider in its report."

Taxpayers pay for litter

DEAR ABBY: I saw this interesting bit of information in an office of one of our national parks last summer. I think it should have been handed to everyone who entered the park. Perhaps if people knew how long it takes for some of the "litter" to decompose, they would think twice before tossing any kind of litter out of their car windows. The time it takes litter to decompose: Paper — 2-5 months; orange peels — 6 months; milk cartons — 5 years; filter tip cigarette butts — 10-12 years; plastic bags — 10-20 years; leather shoes — 25-40 years; nylon cloth — 30-40 years; plastic containers — 50-80 years; aluminum — 80-100 years; plastic foam — never.

Litter cleanup in our national parks alone costs taxpayers $15 million per year!

Abby, I hope you think this is worth space in your widely read column.

Dear Abby

childbearing days should end. WONDERING IN WACO
DEAR WONDERING: I found no Texas laws requiring spousal consent for a tubal ligation.

It's possible, however, that the physician asked the woman to obtain her husband's consent in a way that gave the impression that it was required by law.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a bright idea for the bride who receives duplicate gifts, or something she knows she will never use. My sister came up with this excellent solution.

Open the gifts carefully so as not to damage the box. Send the giver a thank-you note immediately, then return the card to the box so you will know who sent it.

When a gift-giving occasion comes along, you already have a "gift" in your possession to give to someone else. Be sure to check the card so you don't give the gift back to the person who gave it to you.

Also, one day when your toaster has popped its last pop, you may find it handy to be able to go to your gift closet and bring out a lovely new toaster!

J.S. IN CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA

DEAR J.S.: Great idea. But when you recycle one of those gifts, be absolutely sure the card has been removed.

Lipstick, blush and mascara

By Home Journal
A Meredith Magazine

Women everywhere agree that lipstick, blush and mascara are the most important three cosmetics.

According to the latest statistics from Revlon, 74 percent of the women polled enhance their smiles with lipstick, 60 percent brighten their complexions with blush and 56 percent dramatize their eyes with mascara.

Ladies Home Journal offers some simple advice to help women use these popular cosmetics more effectively.

Lipsticks in shades of mauve, fuchsia and other blue-pinks are best for a woman whose skin has blue undertones. Coral-pinks, orange-reds or gold-beiges flatter skin with yellow undertones. Every lipstick wardrobe should include nude beige, standard pinks or reds for daytime and bright or frosted shades for evening.

Blush colors, like lipstick, should suit skin color.

Club note

Club meets for annual Thanksgiving dinner

City Home Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. Frances Zant for its annual Thanksgiving dinner.

Nadine Hodnett gave the devotional on "A Thanksgiving Centerpiece," referring to the Bible as she named several fruits and vegetables mentioned in the scriptures.

The onion, melons, cucumbers, beans, grapes, figs, pomograntes and dates are all mentioned.

When the onion, which symbolizes the universe, is cut down the middle, the essence of heaven, earth and hell are said to be depicted. Grapes were made into wine, and during the Last Supper, Jesus reminded his disciples that wine symbolizes his blood at crucifixion. The bitter vinegar of the grapes was offered to him as he was nailed to the cross.

The pomograntes motif, an important symbol to the Hebrews, was depicted on the robes of Aaron. The fruit stood for priesthood and was etched upon the temple walls. The seeds represent fertility.

Combining these fruits and vegetables in a canopy make a beautiful centerpiece, Hodnett noted.

Jowili Etchison and Mrs. Wiliam

Priebe presented the program "Cents Off Coupons," noting their advantages and disadvantages.

A discussion followed. The group was advised not to use the coupons just for the discount — but to use them wisely on products that are used daily.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party and gift exchange at the home of Mrs. Ross Calahan Dec. 9. A Christmas lunch for all the Howard County extension clubs will be hosted Dec. 5.

Mrs. Vaughnie White, president, dismissed members following the business meeting and program.

Queens trap Coyotes

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

All it took was eight minutes to figure out the outcome of the Howard Hawk-Queens-Weatherford Coyotes basketball game.

When Weatherford guard Lita Gidding made a driving layup, it was only the second Weatherford basket in the first eight minutes of play.

From that point on, the Queens played a loose, pressing type of ballgame, handily winning 72-40 in the opening round of the Hawk-Queen Classic at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Coyotes got off to a horrendous start, making just three of 16 field goals in the first 10 minutes of play. The poor shooting continued the remainder of the game.

Weatherford's bad luck didn't just stop at poor shooting. Howard's pressure defense was just as painful, causing the Coyotes to commit 30 turnovers.

Howard coach Don Stevens had his team press about a third of the game, but that was more than enough.

"We had never had run the press in a game until tonight. I think it looked good," said Stevens.

Post player Shannon Lawson hit three of the first four Queen baskets, and the Queens were off and running. While playing about half the game, Lawson finished with 14 points, 14 rebounds, three steals and one blocked shot.

Howard really took control right long jumper, and Candice Boyd promptly stole the ball.

On the other end, Kristen Hedlund scored and was fouled on the play. She completed the three-point play by sinking the foul shot, and Howard led 14-2 with 12:35 left in the half.

From then on Stevens continually used his reserves. Howard led 40-19 at the half and built it up to 61-29 with 11:17 left in the game.

"The best thing about this game is we got a lot of kids into the game. At times it was a comedy, but overall it was a good win," said Stevens.

Following Lawson in scoring were Hedlund and Ana Carroll with 11 points each. Boyd was the other Queen in double figures with 10.

Howard also held a decisive 48-32 rebounding edge. Behind Lawson was Boyd with six, and Allana Cummings, Hedlund and Anitra Wilkins grabbed five rebounds each.

Guard Cecilia Mack led Weatherford with eight points. Jyl Venner followed with seven points.

Howard is now 3-5 for the season. The Queens play Temple tonight at 8 in the second round of play. Weatherford falls to 0-7.

In other action Thursday, it was Western Texas nipping Panola 60-56, Odessa thumping McLennan 79-54 and Temple routing Mesa, Ariz. 75-48.

Top Def. Players — Noseguard Hudson, 98 tackles, linebacker Carter, 93 tackles, cornerback Willie Klose, five interceptions; safety Jackson, four interceptions.
Injuries — Healthy.

Achkinson's Comments — "Colorado City looks like a well-coached and well-prepared ballclub. They've got some pretty big linemen and they play real good defense.

"The similarities are very close between us. We both play good defense, we both like to run the ball and control the clock. I think it will be a defensive struggle."

COLORADO CITY WOLVES
Record — 10-1, 7-3A champions.
Coach — Tom Ramsey.
Last Playoff Appearance — 1984.
Last Week — Beat Llano 12-0.

MARK RUSSELL

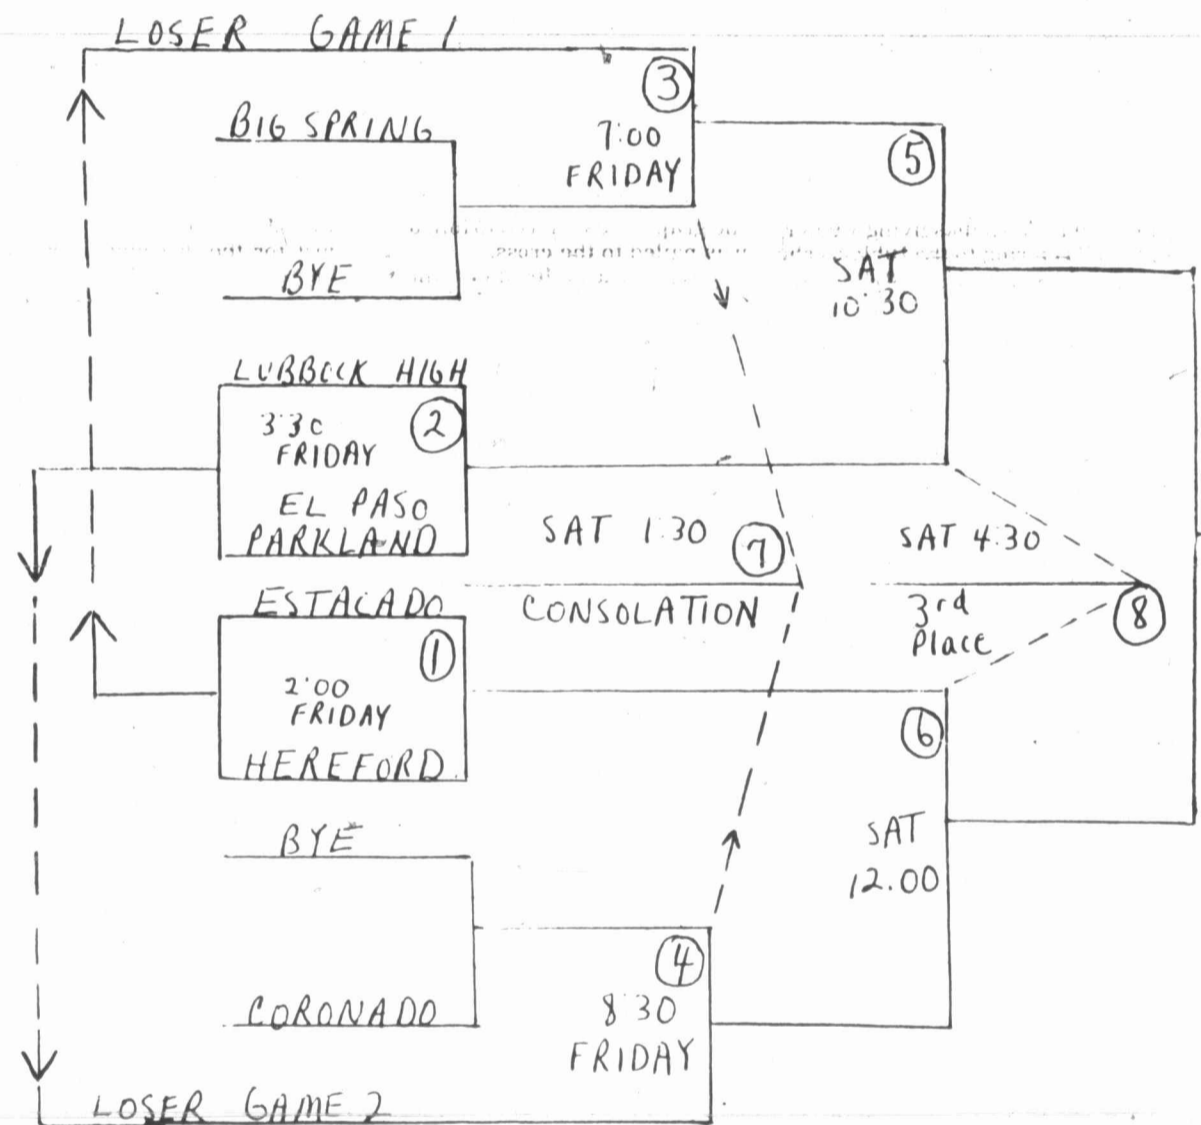

Top Def. Players — Linebacker Victor Luera, 10 tackles per game; tackle Ray Sutton, six tackles per game; linebacker Jesse Frano 10 tackles per game; free safety Mark Russell, five tackles per game, 10 interceptions.
Injuries — Quarterback Perkin, bruised hand, will play; fullback Beau Rees, torn ligaments in ankle, questionable.

Ramsey's Comments — "They (Decatur) are pretty big, they'll match us in size. They have 10 kids over 200 pounds, we have five."

"Decatur is strong both offensively and defensively. They scored 24 points on Vernon and 38 points on Aledo last week. That was the most points anybody's scored on Aledo."

"I don't know if Decatur has a weak spot. The only thing they don't do exceptionally well is throw the football. They're not really interested in that with the Wishbone."

Klondike heads all-league team

The District 6-A, Six-Man All-District football team was released this week and league champion Klondike Cougars headed the group, placing seven players on the first team.

Leading the way for Klondike were seniors Clint Kirkland and Steve Cope. Both were two-way first teamers. Kirkland made the first team as offensive end and safety on defense. Cope made the squad as offensive running back and defensive back. Offensively, they are joined by teammates Roddy Oaks, center; and quarterback Corbett Foster.

Cougars making first team defense were lineman Ron Davis.

Both Grady, the runner-up in the district, and Sands placed six players on the first offensive and defensive units.

Grady was paced by Scott Terrell and Scott Glaze, both made first team offensively and defensively. Terrell was offensive end and defensive lineman and Glaze was spread quarterback and defensive back.

Sands was paced by Jay Johnston, who actually was named to three first team positions. The Sands junior was first team wide receiver, punter and kicker.

Coach steaming over Proposition 48

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Dale Brown was disenchanted by Proposition 48 before. Now he's outraged.

"I know what some people will say sour grapes. But I'm for human dignity above everything else," he said.

Three of Brown's recruits at Louisiana State University did not meet the NCAA's academic requirements this year, including widely recruited 7-foot center Stanley Roberts. In its college basketball edition, Sports Illustrated magazine picked an All-Proposition 48 team, and included Roberts.

"It's a lifetime stigma. It's the mark of Cain. People are pointing fingers and laughing at these young men. It's not fair," Brown said.

"Why should a 15 set you free and a 14 make you a slave?"

Proposition 48 — more accurately NCAA bylaw 5-1-(j) — sets academic standards for the eligibility of entering freshmen. It requires passing grades in a core of 11 high school academic subjects, plus a score of 700 on the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) or 15 on the ACT

(American College Testing Program).

Failure to meet those standards means the player must sit out his freshman year and lose that season of eligibility.

"I'm for upgrading our schools," Brown said, rattling off a string of survey results that seem to indicate America is producing a generation of clods.

"I was for Proposition 48 when it was introduced. But it wasn't intended to be applied this way," he said.

Basketball is dominated by black athletes, and the press, Brown claimed, notices only the failure of top recruits to meet the Prop 48 requirements.

"The average SAT for the nation last year was 906. For blacks, 728," he said. "If we're talking about equity, if we're talking about raising opportunities for blacks to be educated, maybe we ought to consider that these tests are racially and culturally biased."

He said he would prefer the NCAA to declare all freshmen ineligible, then give them four years of eligibility afterward. Doing it that way would cost colleges more money, he said, but it would also increase graduation rates and give players the protection of federal privacy laws that forbid releasing grades or test scores.

"Don't give them any 'breaks' once they're in school. Don't do them any 'favors.' If they make it, fine. If they don't, sorry, come back and visit some time," he said.

"And if (some school) is making it easier on its athletes than LSU is, well that's their problem. That's something they have to live with."

"We're demanding that these kids entertain us, win, be our heroes, raise money and still carry a full academic load. The migrant farm workers didn't have it as bad as our present college athletes. They need a Cesar Chavez," he said.

"When a school goes out to raise money, they seldom take the chemistry professors with them."

"I don't have a doubt in my mind that college should be very difficult. It's higher education, and we should educate them properly," he said.

Indiana Pacers coach retires after 37 years

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Frustrated by the worst start in a 37-year coaching career and seeing no prospect for a change, Jack Ramsay decided it was time to resign as coach of the Indiana Pacers.

Ramsay has coached more NBA games than any man in history and is the league's second winningest coach. He was in his 21st season and his third as the Pacers' coach. "I've been in tough times before. But, I never started a season losing seven games," Ramsay told a news conference Thursday night after returning from Phoenix where he told his players of his decision before the club left for tonight's game with the Los Angeles Clippers. "That eats at you."

Losing and his inability to get the Pacers to play to his satisfaction led to his decision, Ramsay said, adding that he did not think he would take another coaching job.

"I've always felt that I've done my work because I like it. I thoroughly have enjoyed my coaching career but at this time it's no longer fun for me and I'm not getting the satisfaction that I want to get from my work," the 63-year-old said.

"I'd listen to opportunities (in basketball) but I don't think it will be in coaching."

Ramsay has coached a record 1,647 NBA games.

"Whatever problems there might be, it's still the coach's job to have the team win," Ramsay said. Ramsay discussed the club's worst start since it entered the NBA in 1976 with club president Donnie Walsh in Phoenix after it lost 123-104 to the Suns. They agreed it was the best decision for the coach and the franchise.

The club said a decision on a replacement would likely be made before its next home game against Milwaukee on Tuesday. Assistant coaches Mel Daniels and Dave Twardzik will guide the team against the Clippers and the Sacramento Kings on Saturday.

"They've worked hard. They're loyal guys. I think it's a good opportunity for them, although I can't say that I envy them in their task," he said of his former assistants.

"It's a tough, tough job. This is a very competitive league, our (Central) division is just fierce and to go into it in a situation that the team now finds itself is a very tough situation," Ramsay said.

Hawks nipped in tournament by Neosho

PRATT, Kan. — The Howard College Hawks lost a "nip and tuck" contest to Neosho (Kan.) County, 79-76, in the first round of the Pratt JC Classic Thursday evening.

"It was nip and tuck," HC coach Steve Green said today. "It went back and forth all night... Defensively, I thought we played pretty well, but we just turned the ball over too many times on offense."

The Hawks, now 5-4 for the season, will play Odessa College in the second round of the tournament today.

HOWARD (76) — M. Lockhart, 1-1-3; K. Carter, 1-0-2; L. Pettigrew, 2-3-7; D. Robinson, 2-4-8; T. Lewis, 9-2-22; F. Henderson, 3-0-6; M. New, 7-1-15; C. Thum, 3-0-6; W. McCaster, 2-1-5; C. Moore, 1-0-2; totals, 31-12-76.

Rookie leads Sonics by Lakers

By The Associated Press
In a game involving a big-name Johnson, unheralded Avery Johnson made the biggest impression.

Johnson, a 5-foot-11 rookie, sparked the Seattle SuperSonics in the fourth quarter as they beat the Los Angeles Lakers 101-98 Thursday night.

Johnson, from Southern University, played just one minute in the first half. But he had two key steals and three assists down the stretch.

"The coach (Bernie Bickerstaff) is getting more and more confidence in me," said Johnson, the last player off Seattle's bench. "He wants me to get out there and make some things happen when we need it. Tonight, we wanted to slow Magic down and not let him push it up and down the floor."

Magic Johnson had 28 points, 10 rebounds and six assists for the Lakers.

Dale Ellis led the Sonics with 27 points. His two foul shots with 1:23 left put Seattle ahead 100-98.

Seattle's Jerry Reynolds blocked James Worthy's shot near the basket with 10 seconds to go.

After Michael Cage made a free throw with four seconds to go, Magic Johnson, who made a game-winning 3-pointer at the buzzer in double overtime to beat Denver Tuesday night, hit the rim with a 3-point shot as time ran out.

The Sonics ended a three-game losing streak and stopped Los Angeles' four-game winning string. Seattle's reserves outscored the Lakers' subs 42-22. Johnson finished with three points in 13 minutes.

Jazz 123, Trail Blazers 99

Darrell Griffith scored 40 points as Utah beat visiting Portland in a game slowed by 69 personal fouls.

The Jazz, fouled 41 times, made only 42 of 63 free throws. Portland was 29-for-37.

Karl Malone had 29 points and Thurl Bailey 17 for the Jazz. Clyde Drexler scored 24 for Portland.

Nuggets 139, Spurs 112

Danny Schayes got 31 points and 14 rebounds, leading Denver over San Antonio.

The Spurs lost their fourth straight game and have not won in Denver since 1986.

The Nuggets made 17 of 21 shots in the second quarter to take a 71-55 lead at halftime.

Johnny Dawkins scored 23 points for San Antonio.

Mavericks 105, Hornets 93

Mark Aguirre scored 26 points and keyed a third-period surge that led Dallas past Charlotte.

The Mavericks opened the second half with 10 straight points and outscored Charlotte 34-12 in the third quarter.

Kelly Tripucka scored 21 for the expansion Hornets.

Rockets 113, Heat 107

Akeem Olajuwon had 29 points and 13 rebounds and Houston used a 15-point burst in the third quarter to beat winless Miami.

The Heat, 0-6, led 62-61 at halftime before the Rockets rallied for a 76-62 advantage. Olajuwon scored seven points during the run.

Houston, Texas Tech seeking runnerup spot

By The Associate Press
While the champion 10th-ranked Arkansas Razorbacks rest, the 17th-ranked Houston Cougars and the Texas Tech Raiders play for the runner-up spot in the Southwest Conference football standings on Saturday.

Arkansas will be interested only in the Southern California-UCLA game. If UCLA loses, the Bruins will be the Hogs' opponent Jan. 2 in the Cotton Bowl. If UCLA wins, then Florida State will be in Dallas.

Jim Brock, the Cotton Bowl's executive vice president, will be in California to extend the Bruins an invitation should they lose. Florida State is off and the Seminoles would have to be invited by telephone.

Houston, 7-2 overall and 3-2 in the SWC, is in Lubbock for a joust with the Red Raiders, who are 5-4 overall and 4-2 in SWC play.

In other games, Texas Christian (4-6 and 2-4) is at Texas A&M (5-4 and 4-1) in a noon (Raycom TV), Texas (4-5 and 2-3) is at Baylor 5-5 and 1-5, and Rice hopes to break its 16-game losing streak when it hosts North Texas at 1 p.m.

Houston was a 13-point favorite over the Red Raiders, Texas

A&M was a 20-point pick over TCU, the Baylor-Texas game was rated a tossup. Oddsmakers wouldn't venture a guess on the North Texas-Rice matchup.

The Cougars are expected to receive a bid to the Aloha Bowl against Washington State after the game against Tech.

Houston ripped No. 10-ranked and unbeaten Wyoming 34-10 last week after Tech had downed Lamar 59-28.

Houston leads the all-time series against Tech 14-5-1 although the Raiders won the last game between the two teams in Lubbock 34-7 in 1986.

The Cougars are second nationally in passing with 364.4 yards per game. Houston also has the nation's top two receivers in Jason Phillips and James Dixon.

TCU has lost 25 games in a row to A&M which has games left against Texas and Alabama. TCU last won 13-10 in 1972.

Baylor has won six of its last seven games against Texas in what is now named Floyd Casey Stadium in Waco.

Texas leads the series 56-17-4. The Longhorns last won in Waco 31-23 in 1982.

Bird will be out three months

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Larry Bird will have surgery to remove bone spurs on both heels and is expected to be lost to the struggling Boston Celtics for at least three months.

The team made the announcement after Bird sought a medical opinion from a doctor unaffiliated with the club.

The Celtics didn't say when the surgery would be done but said it would be handled by Dr. Roger Mann and Dr. Arnold Scheller — the team physician — at New England Baptist Hospital in Boston.

Buffaloes, Packers champions

FORSAN — The Division I and II Little Football League champions were crowned Saturday as the regular season came to an end.

The Buffaloes are the Division I champs, downing the Bulldogs 8-0. The only scoring was done by the Buffalo defense.

Buffalo defenders Brandon Curry and Steven Powell sacked the Bulldogs' quarterback in the end zone for a safety. The other score came on a 25-yard interception returned for a touchdown by Clay Thixton.

The Division II championship was also a defensive struggle as the Packers defeated the Bulldogs 2-0.

The lone score came in the third quarter when Packers' linebacker Kory Ryan, and linemen Kenny Dupree and Jason Roberts sacked the Bulldogs' quarterback in the end zone for a safety.

Saturday the Little Football League All-Stars will battle the Snyder All-Stars. The games will be played at Tiger Stadium and broadcast over KSNV 1470 AM.

The Division I All-Stars will play at 5:30 p.m. and the Division II All-Stars will play at 7:30.

Remember God loves you

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: It seems like I am caught in a constant tug of war. I'm 17 years old and my parents are divorced. I live with my mother, but my father is constantly trying to get me to come live with him and says my mother cannot provide for me the way he can (since he has such a good job). What should I do? - A.F.

Billy Graham

DEAR A.F.: One of the tragic effects of a broken marriage is what it can do to the children who are involved, including situations such as the one in which you find yourself. This is one reason why divorce is not God's perfect plan for us. Pray now that God will guide you as you consider marriage some day and give you wisdom so you do not repeat whatever mistakes your parents made.

parents as you should.
DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have a very religious friend who says the Bible has everything in it we need to know because it is God's word, and reading anything else is a waste of time and will lead us astray. Should a Christian be opposed to things like education? I'm thinking about going back to night school and wonder if she is right. - Mrs. R.T.

Although I cannot tell you whether you should live with your father, you would probably be wise to remain where you are unless there are compelling reasons to move. Let me point out several things to consider. For one thing, don't make your decision only on the basis of money or the promise of more things. Yes, times may be tough for your mother and you may wish you could have more financial freedom. (Does he help you financially now?) But money is never a replacement for love.

DEAR MRS. R.T.: I do not doubt her sincerity as a follower of Christ, although I do not share her conclusions on this question. If God wants you to return to school, I have no hesitancy in urging you to do so.

In addition, realize that you need stability and security right now - particularly since you will probably be leaving home in a year or so for college or work. Also, as best as you can, don't take any action that will cut you off in the future from either of your parents; you have many, many years ahead of you, and you want to do what you can to maintain your relationships.

There are several things to keep in mind. For one thing, the Bible has been given to us by God for a specific purpose - and that is to point us to Christ and his salvation. It does not claim to be a textbook on modern medicine or physics, for example (although it is correct in what it does say about science). "All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness, so that the man of God may be thoroughly equipped for every good work." (2 Timothy 3:16-17) Is this happening in your life as you study God's word?

Above all, realize that God loves you and his love never changes. Have you thanked him for his love? Ask Christ to come into your life today and help you love both your Nor does the Bible suggest we should be unconcerned about what goes on in our world, or uninterested in learning more about the world God has created. Properly understood, these things can point us to God and remind us of our dependence on Him.

WORK AND FREEDOM PUT THIS NEWSPAPER INTO YOUR HANDS

Most of us have never worked on a newspaper, and so we cannot appreciate what goes into it. As it is, we merely take it for granted and expect to find it on our doorstep, in our mailbox, in a dispenser or at the corner newsstand. In it we read about all the strife and turmoil around the world, the latest happenings in our government, and reports of murders, fires and natural disasters; as well as the happier side of the news. There are also features, and among them a helpful House of Worship directory. So read your newspaper and remember those who spent long hours putting it together for you; to place that priceless symbol of the freedom we enjoy in this country right there in your hands.

Church plans 80th anniversary event

First Baptist Church, Knott, will conduct a "Day of Celebration" Sunday in honor of its 80th anniversary. The festivities will be from 10 a.m. to noon. A luncheon will be hosted following morning worship services. The celebration will resume from 2 to 5 p.m.

In the early 1900s, several families who lived in the "Old Knott" area met in a two-room schoolhouse to worship the Lord, forming a union Sunday School.

Later in 1908, a few families organized a Baptist church, and now worship at the First Baptist Church, Knott.

According to church history, the land on which the schoolhouse was built and a cemetery, was given to the community by Mr. Knott. The Methodist and Church of Christ denominations also met in the same building, each meeting on their respective Sundays.

Originally called Mount Joy Baptist Church, the church was later named Knott Missionary Baptist Church.

Rev. Lambkin was the first pastor to be called to serve the church.

During the drought years of 1917-1918, and most likely portions of 1919, the church membership ceased to meet regularly. The resident membership had dwindled because families were seeking work elsewhere. There weren't enough members of funds to keep the church functioning.

Church history reports that the church was revived about 1919 or 1920.

About 1920, the Knott School was moved to what is now known as West Knott, consolidating with Stork and Light Schools. Soon after this time, the community and churches built a large frame building called "the tabernacle," where all the churches met and community affairs were held. This building was located near West Knott.

A split in membership in 1922 resulted in a group organizing the Mount Joy Missionary Baptist Church.

In a new church building in 1950, dedication services were held Sept. 17, pastored by Bro. Fred Smith.

First Baptist Church is now located on Knott H-46, and is pastored by Rev. Mark Winn

Pictured are the pulpit and pews where the congregation met from 1927 to 1948.

Bake sale slated for Saturday

First Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster, Ladies About the Master's Business ministry, will sponsor a bake sale Saturday at Big Spring Mall, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Convention conducted Nov. 4-6

The 30th Annual Episcopal Convention for the Diocese of Northwest Texas was conducted Nov. 4-6 at St. Paul's on the Plain Episcopal Church, Lubbock.

The delegation attending from St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Big Spring, were: Rev. and Mrs. Robert L. Bonnington, Rev. and Mrs. George von Hassell, Mr. and Mrs. Nancy Fulgham, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rainwater, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Harris, Mrs. Bette McKenzie, Mrs. Cynthia Weeks and Tatum Weeks.

The convention began Friday with the service of Even Song. The Most Rev. Edmond Browning, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church USA, presented the homily as well as addressing the convention Saturday afternoon at Texas Tech Ballroom.

Browning and Mrs. Browning were the honored guests at a clergy/wives breakfast, hosted by Rt. Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, bishop of Northwest Texas, and Mrs. Hulsey. The Rev. and Mrs. Bonnington, and Rev. and Mrs. von Hassell, St. Mary's attended.

Workshops on child care, the homeless, substance abuse, AIDS, and the youth in church were presented.

Holy Eucharist and the ordination of three deacons were conducted Sunday.

The convention concluded with a business meeting in the Texas Tech Ballroom. Invitations to next year's convention in Odessa, hosted by Rev. Donald Hungerford and his parishes of St. John's and St. Barnabas were announced.

Jonestown remembered

OAKLAND, Calif. — Paying his respects to lost family members last week, Fred Lewis walks over a mass grave at an Oakland cemetery where many unidentified victims of the Jonestown tragedy 10 years ago are buried. Lewis, who visits the site regularly, says he walks the entire gravesite so he won't miss four of this children whose bodies were never identified. Lewis lost eight relatives in Jonestown.

Church briefs

Editor's note: Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, religion page deadline will be Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Members recall their heritage

First Church of God, 2009 Main St., will host an "Old Fashion Harvest in Gathering," Sunday.

"This is the time of year when we all become nostalgic. The church will remind of us our heritage and of those who blazed the trail before us," said Pastor Darrell Hendrickson.

Expressions of thankfulness will be voiced by several groups, with special emphasis on a 70-year quartet.

A noon meal will be served.

Worship services are as follows: Sunday School 9:45 a.m.; morning worship 10:45; and evening service 6:30 p.m.

"The evening service will be filled with old-fashioned testimonies, old-fashioned singing and a little bit of old-fashioned preaching," Hendrickson said.

Counselor to be guest speaker

Rev. Mike Riggins, Christian counselor of Bethesda Assembly of God, Ft. Worth, will be the guest speaker Sunday at Bethel Assembly of God, six miles west of Ackerly, will have a guest speaker. Worship service begins at 11 a.m. The public is invited.

Church to host special singing

Birdwell Lane Baptist Church, 1512 Birdwell Lane, will host a special singing Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Anyone interested in participating is welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Smith scheduled to read Bible

In celebration of Thanksgiving and National Bible Week, Kiwanis Club of Amarillo and TCA Cable of Amarillo, will present a Bible Reading Marathon Nov. 18-22.

The 90-hour event will feature a community-wide reading is geared to remind individuals of the importance of reading the Bible; to draw attention to the number and variety of people who value the Bible's teachings; to serve as an example that may encourage the reading of and listening to the Bible; and to reaffirm the founding principles of the United States, according to a news release.

The Governor of the Texas-Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International, Billy T. Smith, Big Spring, will participate as a reader.

Thanksgiving service Sunday

The Hispanic evangelical churches of Big Spring will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. to celebrate a special Thanksgiving Day service.

The host church will be Iglesia Bautista Central, 22nd and Lancaster. Speaker will be Rev. Samuel Picazo, Northside Hispanic Methodist Church. Rev. Joe Torres will lead the singing with Mike Ramirez accompanying on the piano. Rev. Guadalupe Carranza of La Fe Baptist Church will preside during the service, and Rev. Ismael Bihl of Templo Belen Assembly of God will read scriptures.

Gospel group "Los Unidos De Cristo" will provide the special music.

Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: The rewards of staying home will more than compensate for a lack of travel. A financial turn of events puts you in a position to ensure your future security. A close relationship will endure both changes and upsets, emerging stronger than ever. Careers in medicine, biology and psychology will beckon to many. Promises made in the past will be fulfilled. Let young people know how much you care.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: catcher Roy Campanella, bandleader Tommy Dorsey, designer Calvin Klein, entrepreneur

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Thinking with your heart instead of your head leads you to do something impulsive. A candid talk with mate results in better understanding. A small gift cheers someone who is housebound.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do not let distractions take you away from your work. Small fry need more attention. Patience and lots of affection should do the trick. Save money by becoming a comparison shopper.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be more patient when others disagree with you. Forcing the issue will not accomplish anything. Examine papers carefully. You may have read it between the lines. Romance has its ups and downs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Try to help a young person with a problem without forcing your opinions on him. A great day for do-it-yourself types. A small decorating project gives your home a face-lift.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take stock of your financial situation. Seek ways to save. Someone's petulance and conflicting opinions could try your patience. The truth will make you strong; confide in mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Share your ideas with loved ones and seek a stubborn individual's cooperation. Check your social calendar. You may have to change some plans to avoid hurting someone's feelings. Go with the flow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your attention turns to hobbies. Set aside more time for artistic projects. Romance is a source of new contentment. Distant affairs begin to take on deeper meaning. Keep in close touch with allies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow your intuition. Sound reasoning and past experience are your best protectors. Show more affection to those who are important to you. Answer personal letters promptly. Faraway friends seek your guidance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pay outstanding bills before beginning a project that will require cash. Your optimism and versatility make you a popular companion. Travel proves successful. You make new friends wherever you go. Romance beckons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New social contacts and club memberships can help you fulfill your ambitions. Develop a hidden talent. A self-improvement project boosts your ego. Romance is mostly happy. Show tenderness, consideration.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Give full credit to someone who has helped you in the past. Make financial decisions very carefully. Someone who loves you is trying to tell you something important. Read between the lines.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"BOY! MR. WILSON COMES OUT FIGHTING BEFORE WE EVEN HAVE A CHANCE TO SHAKE HANDS!"

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Mommy, Billy's heating the whole neighborhood again!"

PEANUTS

IF YOU HATE RIDING ON THE SCHOOL BUS SO MUCH, WHY DON'T YOU HIRE YOUR OWN PRIVATE LIMOUSINE? THAT'S THE BEST IDEA I'VE EVER HEARD.

WIZARD OF ID

SIR, I'M LOOKING FOR A GOOD LOCATION TO OPEN UP A NEWSPAPER. THE NEXT THREE PROPERTIES ARE TAKEN, BUT THE FOURTH ESTATE IS AVAILABLE. GEE... THAT HAS A CATCHY RING TO IT.

BLONDIE

SO WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM, SUE? I'VE GOT A PROBLEM AT HOME. I CAN'T RECALL IF THIS IS MY 4TH ANNIVERSARY WITH MY 5TH HUSBAND. OR MY 5TH ANNIVERSARY WITH MY 4TH HUSBAND. YEP, THAT SOUNDS LIKE A PROBLEM, ALL RIGHT.

HAGAR THE HORRIBLE

SIGH... YOU CAN'T GO HOME AGAIN! FLOOR STILL WET?

BEEBLE BAILEY

PEOPLE HAVE MANY NEEDS, BEETLE. MONEY ISN'T ENOUGH. FUN ISN'T ENOUGH. EVEN LOVE ISN'T ENOUGH. NOW WHAT DO YOU THINK WOULD BE ENOUGH? I THINK ENOUGH WOULD BE ENOUGH.

B.C.

Dear Foot Broad, My husband has the worst taste in the world! How can I get this access to him discreetly? SHOW HIM ONE OF YOUR WEDDING PICTURES.

SNUFFY SMITH

FINALLY!! YONDER COMES JUGHAID! --DRAGGIN' HOME FROM SCHOOL!! AN' HE'S HEADIN' STRAIGHT FER TH' WOODSHED!! REPORT CARD DAY!!

GASOLINE ALLEY

I know a lot of people that feel like you! Really? Sure! They feel electing Joel was a mistake! That's encouraging! I'm going to organize a campaign to recall him!
