From simple traffic stop to deportation

By MICHAEL DUFFY Staff Writer

A routine traffic stop by Big Spring patrol officers early Wednesday proved to be anything but

The traffic stop led to the arrest of a 24-year-old man and prompted a police investigation that uncovered unusual circumstances and will apparently lead to the man being returned to El Salvador.

When police stopped a car driven by Jose Adam Rivera in the 1000 block of Gregg Street about 2:30 a.m. they discovered that a woman passenger was bleeding profusely - an apparent beating victim, Acting Patrol Sgt. Billy

El Salvador native may be returned home

Although the woman — who has been identified as Bernice Garcia. 23 — refused to tell police how she sustained the injuries, Rivera was arrested on a charge of unlawfully carrying a weapon after a pair of numchauka (pronounced numchucks) were allegedly discovered in the vehicle, Arnold

While police were transporting Rivera — who reportedly carried identification with more than one name — to the city jail, Garcia was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center for treatment, Arnold advised. She is seven months

A nursing supervisor at the hospital said this morning that Garcia is in stable condition. Police learned the couple had left - alone at their 1301 Park Ave. residence — four children under five years of age while they searched for a hospital. Sources said the family has been in Big Spring only a few days. Detective Sgt. Bill King said Garcia refused to tell police how she sustained the injuries, although domestic violence is suspected, King said. However, one spouse must file charges against the other in order for police to pursue prosecution in domestic violence cases. Lisa Brooks, director of Rape Crisis/Victim Services, said that although she has visited Garcia in the hospital, Brooks has been unsuccessful in persuading the woman to relocate her family in a battered women's shelter in Midland.

Brooks said women who are victims of domestic violence often react in the same way.

The children were initially taken to the police station and later placed in the Rainbow Project — a temporary home for victims of domestic violence and abuse, Brooks said.

Garcia appeared to have been severely beaten, Brooks said. King said Rivera told police he did not know how Garcia sustained the injuries, although he admitted he was looking for a hospital when stopped by police. Police Chief Joe Cook said a records check revealed Rivera has two counts of aggravated assault pending against him in Phoenix, Ariz., although detectives in that city apparently don't want him extradited.

He added that police learned Rivera is not an American citizen. but a citizen of El Salvador.

The couple is reportedly not married.

"He had apparently been involved in some type of gang-related violence. They don't want him back, they want him deported, Cook said.

James Stone, a Border Patrol agent with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said he has learned through INS records that Rivera is in the United States illegally.

Stone said he has initiated deportation proceedings against Rivera.

It is unclear what will happen to Garcia and her children.

Wright's wife: Subpoena issued for work records

WASHINGTON (AP) - The special counsel investigating House Speaker Jim Wright has subpoenaed records on work his wife, Betty, did for a partnership between Wright and a Fort Worth real estate developer and investor, according to a source familiar with the case.

The source, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said investigators for outside special counsel Richard J. Phelan had subpoenaed and received records of transactions, working papers and memos related to Mrs. Wright's work for George A. Mallick.

Until 1984, Mrs. Wright was paid $18,000 a year for advice that she gave to an investment venture formed by the Texas congressman, Mallick and their wives in 1979, according to financial disclosure statements filed by the speaker.

With the six-month ethics probe of Wright entering its home stretch, the investigators are examining transactions underlying the partnership company, Mallightco, in much greater detail than available in public records, the source said.

Wright's financial disclosure form shows that he apparently exchanged stock worth between $50,000 and $100,000 for his initial share of the partnership, which was formed to manage investments in stocks, real estate and precious and semi-precious stones.

He listed the value of his Mallightco holdings, which were later placed into a blind trust, at between $100,000 and $250,000. The trustee disclosed last July, two months after the ethics probe began, that the assets had been disposed.

Wright's investments with Mallick are not mentioned in the six-count resolution which spells out the bounds of the investigation by the ethics panel, formally known as the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct

The complaint against Wright involves charges that he improperly used his office to lobby federal officials, used campaign funds to pay for publication of a book on which he received some $55,000 in royalties, and used rent-free a Fort Worth condominium owned by Mallick's son.

Committee chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., declined to comment on whether Phelan is probing Wright's financial dealings with Mallick or on other matters under investigation. But he denied that any such scrutiny would amount to an expansion of the investigation.

"I am totally satisfied that Phelan's office has not in any way expanded the scope of the preliminary inquiry," Dixon said. "I cannot comment or explain why a particular issue is relevant" to the initial six charges.

Dixon also said he was not concerned that Wright's attorney, William Oldaker, also is acting as counsel to others who testified before the ethics panel, including Mallick and Carolos Moore, a Wright campaign contractor who published the book that is a subject of the probe.

Oldaker did not return phone calls earlier this week.

Officials update n-plans

By TIM AHERN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In the event of a nuclear war, the Interior Department would try to keep the nation's mines open and the Education Department would seek out

President Reagan. Not surprisingly, the lion's share of the responsibility for responding to nuclear attack is assigned to the Pentagon, according to the recentteachers to reopen schools, according to a new order signed by ly released directive The order overhauls a 19-yearold executive directive that was first approved by President Nixon, Russell Clana spokesman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The new 27-page document brings up to date the 1969 order by taking into account a number of changes in the structure of the federal bureaucracy since then.

For example, the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been split into two Cabinet agencies: the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Education.

The 1969 order had been updated periodically but never totally rewritten until now, Clanahan said. The job took several years.

"It had to go around the government several times for coordination," he said. "It did take quite awhile. You'd be amazed at the amount of nit-picking the bureaucracy can do.

The order covers 26 federal agencies, including FEMA, the office charged with coordinating the government's response to a wide variety of disasters, including atomic war.

The new document does not propose spending any more money for civil defense, nor does it propose changing any policies

When he took office in 1981. Reagan began a large build-up of military forces, including a variety of nuclear arms, and administration officials also proposed increasing the nation's civil defense effort. They said the Soviets have a much larger civil defense system.

Critics charged that the administration was pursuing a policy based on the belief that a nuclear war could be fought and won. The administration denied this.

The latest executive order sidesteps that controversy, noting only that "the policy of the United States is to have sufficient capabilities at all levels of government to meet essential defense and civilian needs during any national security emergency.

Most of the emergency tasks assigned in the Reagan order are meant to fit the federal agencies' areas of expertise. The Labor Department, for example, is to ensure "effective use of civilian work forces resources in national security emergencies.'

The Pentagon was given several tasks in addition to its role of maintaining the necessary military forces. For example, it is expected to ensure an adequate supply of drinking water, keep waterways and harbors open, help the Justice Department enforce civilian laws and coordinate the efforts of the government and private industry.

Seizures expected in bingo probe

HOUSTON (AP) - Investigators collecting information on bingo halls that allegedly skim profits from charities may soon begin carrying out seizures, officials said.

'As soon as we are able to put it in a logical pattern, we'll act," First Assistant District Attorney Don Stricklin said. "It will be sometime later on next week before we can run on it."

Some industry observers claim hall operators actually control all aspects of the games and split profits with the charity.

Minister accused of child abuse by son

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state court order on Nov. 7 that allowed officials said he considers a minister dangerous and is trying to take 10 children out of the man's home after a son testified that the children were beaten with a leather strap and one daughter was sexually molested.

The Texas Department of Human Services is seeking to retain temporary custody of the children while the abuse investigation involving minister Ron Larrinaga, 52, continues.

"Our position is, he's a danger to these children," Assistant District Attorney Richard Garcia, who represents DHS, told 299th District Court Judge Tom Rickhoff. "These children have been brainwashed and controlled.

Randall Larrinaga, 29, told authorities that he "escaped" from his father's control four years ago out of fear for his life. "He uses the Bible to justify anything and makes it quite believable," the son said.

In a custody proceeding Wednesday, minister Ron Larrinaga denied the allegations.

"I study the word of God, and I give my life to God," Larrinaga said from the witness stand, while clutching a maroon Bible.

Of the 13 children born to Larrinaga and his wife, Dorothy, 10 were still living at home when authorities got an emergency

Guide says gunshots in canyon are common

ALPINE (AP) — A man injured when he and a West Texas couple were attacked by snipers while rafting down the Rio Grande says he first thought the gunmen were harmless.

River-rafting guide Jim Burr, who survived the attack that killed one man and injured his wife Saturday, said he really wasn't alarmed when he first heard gunfire in the distance.

"That wasn't unusual," Burr said. "In the past, it hasn't been a cause of concern. Even when the snipers first fired on the three, Burr said he still didn't think those shooting were seriously trying to hurt them.

"When I got hit, I realized they weren't kidding.' Burr, 36, a guide with the Terlingua-based Far Flung Adventures, was shot in the thigh. He remains hospitalized in Alpine in stable condition. Michael Heffley, 40, of Eastland was killed in the attack. His 32-year-old wife, Jamie, was wounded and remains in stable condition in an Abilene hospital. The three were rafting through the Colorado Canyon when they were attacked by snipers who opened fire from atop 300-foot bluffs overlooking the Rio Grande, which runs along the Texas-Mexico border. The attack occurred about 30 miles southeast of Presidio. Heffley was fatally shot while trying to shield his wife from the gunfire.

Authorities on both sides of the river joined in the search for the attackers, but they have not made any arrests.

Burr said the gunshots he heard before the attack didn't trouble him because hunters and people "just shooting" have used the area.

After he was shot, he said, "I started hollering at them and running down the river. I'm hollering, 'There's no money on the boat. Please don't shoot! No more! No "They were hollering something back, but in the distance it all got wadded up. But I think it was Spanish," he said. "As far as I can tell, it was total-Heffleys swam about 50 yards against a canyon wall to elude their attackers, Burr thought their troubles were over. But moments later, Heffley was fatally shot.

Two killed when small plane crashes

WEATHERFORD (AP) -Federal investigators were scheduled to begin sifting through the scattered wreckage of a twinengine plane that fell out of the sky. after losing power, killing two as it crashed into a cow pasture.

Killed in the crash were the plane's only two occupants, a 60-year-old "veteran engineer" who worked for LTV Corp. and his 23-year-old daughter.

Authorities said Grady Eugene Davis and Margaret Frances Davis had just finished a potluck holiday meal with the rest of their family and friends, who had gathered at Parker County Airport to share a day of food, friendship and flying. The two decided to enjoy a short flight in the six-seat Cessna 337 Skymaster after finishing Thanksgiving dinner. Others at the airport northeast of Weatherford declined to go along, authorities said. "They weren't going anywhere else," said Texas Department of Public Safety dispatcher Susan McAllester. "I understand it was a joyride. They already had finished their Thanksgiving dinner. They were going to fly awhile before the parachuting started.' Texas Department of Public Safety dispatcher Susan McAllester said the plane went down about 2:20 p.m. in a pasture about a mile from the airport, but Davis' wife and the others at the airport did not see it go down. Apparently, both engines quit and the pilot tried to make an emergency landing," Ms. McAllester said. "But the plane went into a spin and fell 800 to 1,000 feet straight down.

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board and Federal Aviation Administration could not begin looking for clues to the cause of the crash Thursday night because of darkness. But the site was secured and investigators planned to begin surveying the site early Friday.

OPEC ministers cut tentative deal to limit production

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — OPEC oil ministers cut a tentative deal to end a bitter dispute between Iran and Iraq and boost crude oil prices on the international market.

Iran's oil minister, Gholamreza Aghazadeh, flew to Tehran today to get his government's approval for the pact, which would lead to higher prices for gasoline and other petroleum products.

Each $1 increase in the price of crude oil theoretically means a rise of 2.5 cents a gallon in retail gasoline prices.

The major stumbling block to the accord, which would replace one drawn up in 1986, has been the Iran-Iraq dispute. Iraq has been insisting that its

Police beat

A 23-year-old Big Spring man suffered minor injuries Thursday when the car he was driving struck a concrete culvert, according to police reports.

The car driven by Victor Gomez, 1105 Blackmon Ave., was westbound on a dirt road in the 700 block of West Third Street hit the concrete object about 5:30 p.m., reports stated.

Herald opinion

An issue that must be faced

Funny how the world gets serious immediately following an election. Funny how plain talk about the issues, which we always thought was the essence of a campaign, gets postponed until after an election.

A case in point is Federal Reserve chairman Alan Greenspan and his pointed remarks this week about the dangers of the budget deficit. What he had to say not only underscored the hollowness of campaign discussion about the deficit. It was a sober reminder to Presidentelect Bush and the Democratic Congress that they have little time to come up with a credible deficit-reduction package. If they don't act, Greenspan suggested, he will. To dally means that we will continue to depend on a huge and unreliable foreign cash flow. To dally is to risk a plunging dollar, which we already are seeing. That would impel Greenspan and his Federal Reserve colleagues to allow interest rates to rise rather than risk the distress of high inflation. Speaking to the bipartisan National Economic Commission on Wednesday, Greenspan criticized economists who contend that "deficits do not matter very much, or in any event that there is no urgency in coming to grips Greenspan warned that "the deficit has already begun to eat away at the foundation of our economic strength.' Deficits are damaging, he said, because "they tend to pull resources away from net private investment."

Deficits have forced the government to borrow money that otherwise would be available to private borrowers people who want to start businesses or develop new products or build new buildings.

Deficits, in fact, are a form of taxation — on ourselves and on our children.

Our deficit difficulties are compounded by our low personal-savings rate, now about 2 percent. That means that Americans do not provide an adequate pool of capital to finance both debt and investment.

In his Wednesday remarks, Greenspan refused to be drawn into the argument over whether Congress needs to raise taxes. Nor did he suggest what programs he thought ought to be cut, though he did say that cuts have to be made.

The real question, he said, is political. "We don't have a numbers deficiency. We know all the numbers. What we have to find is the means to find a national consensus to reach a national compromise."

Congress and the White House created the National Economic Commission to lay the groundwork for that national compromise. Now, the commission is having difficulty.

Public bickering has erupted within the 12-member panel — half Democrat, half Republican — over whether taxes should be raised and whether defense spending should rise at the expense of domestic programs. President-elect Bush will add one Democrat and one Republican to the panel after the inauguration.

Robert Strauss, commission chairman, has insisted that the deficit cannot be solved unless Congress and the White House are willing to consider everything - spending cuts, Medicare, Social Security benefits, defense spending and, yes, taxes.

That sort of plain talk makes Washington nervous, as did Greenspan's remarks. But Washington, nervous or not, needs to hear more of it.

Is Sakharov gullible or ignorant

I was going up in the elevator at the Hilton in Washington from the lower lobby when suddenly I saw, piling into the car, Andrei Sakharov. The leading nuclear physicist in the Soviet Union, inventor of their hydrogen bomb, hero of the resistance. He was exiled to Gorky, rehabilitated by Mikhail Gorbachev, permitted last week for the first time to come to the United States.

We were introduced by his retinue of translators and guides and, one supposes, KGB agents. I could not detect in his craggy, Slavic, peasant's face scar tissue from his harassment by the country he served so grandly, but the fatigue was manifest. Indeed, he had served notice on his hosts, the Ethics and Public Policy Center, that he would need to catch a plane to Boston at 9 p.m. Since the program called for him to be introduced at 9:45 in Washington, this was convulsive news to the planners. He pleaded, pure and simple, overwhelming fatigue, and it was palpable.

When he got up to speak he was without a single note in hand, and a young woman expertly (I must suppose) translated what he said. He paid great tribute to Edward Teller, the man who invented our hydrogen bomb, slid over completely the subject of human rights about which he had been invited to speak, and went directly to make war on SDI. It would be very costly. . .it would destabilize the international balance. . .it would bring on temptations to knock down the other power's satellites...this might mean nuclear war.

The crowd was faced with a theatrical challenge. They wished to applaud the man, not his message. The master of ceremonies attempted to articulate the distinction.

"We're not anti-American. We just don't want to be American.''

Rick Salutin, a Toronto playwright

Quotes

On the right

When time came for Dr. Teller to speak (also without notes), one could hear the tenderness he felt for his opposite number in the Soviet Union. Although by this time Sakharov was halfway to Boston, somehow it was not appropriate to scold him. To do such a thing would be on the order of scolding Mother Teresa for coming out against the Reformation. But in a half-hour, Teller carefully made his points. They were that the great feature of the 20th century is the acceleration of technology, that it was the responsibility of a free people to probe means of defending themselves. . . And then the only raw nerve: An allusion to what Andrei Sakharov might NOT know. Although the foremost physicist in the Soviet Union, he was years ago deprived of his security clearance and it is just possible that academician Sakharov does not know a) what progress has been made by the Soviet Star Wars team; and b) just possible that he does not know the progress made by the U.S. Star Wars team.

The Soviet Union has for the past four years (at least) spent $25 billion per year on SDI, utilizing the services of 10,000 scientists. All of this is not done in order to create Disneyland in space. What are the responsibilities of the United States given Stakhanovite Soviet activity in attempting to launch creatures in the atmosphere that would end our capability to deter?

which became the focus of the recent Canadian election

Sakharov was slipped, in Russian, an exact account of how the United States stands in its SDI program i.e. factual data that dissipate many technical doubts about the capacity of SDI to perform. On the basis of his knowledge of this, Sakharov may in the future decline to say, as indeed he declined to say on Wednesday night, that the whole idea was technologically implausible.

Two rumors are floating in Washington. The first is that

And then most interesting of all. It is speculated that the reason the Kremlin permitted Sakharov to come to the United States has become plain: to influence Congress, and to harden the opposition to SDI of so many of our scientists, who seem driven by ideological rather than factual considerations.

I give it as my own view of Sakharov that he is incapable of guile. The theory supposes that Gorbachev called him in and said, Andrei Dimitrievich, here's my idea. I let you go to the United States and guarantee you the right of re-entry. You go there, say your usual bit about human rights, but stress your opposition to SDI. OK?

I cannot believe he'd have participated in such a deal. But what need was there for Gorbachev to make it? Sakharov had already on several occasions renounced SDI, for reasons as gullible as those that dominate the thought of the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy. All he had to do was go to America and speak — and he would say what the Soviets wanted him to say. There was, to be sure, the risk that someone would ask him what in the hell his government was doing with that $25 billion per year. But that question was not put to him. Not in public.

Barbara is beautiful

BY MARYLN SCHWARTZ Dallas Morning News

I'm a bit tired of all these snitty predictions about how style and elegance are going to leave the White House just because a size 4 (Nancy Reagan) is moving out and a size 16 (Barbara Bush) is moving

Let's get serious, folks. Life does not end at size 6.

The models with the 33-inch hips may be in mourning at Galanos and Oscar de la Renta. But they're popping champagne corks at Lane

Barbara Bush announced last week that she has nothing to apologize for. "Nancy Reagan may be a size 2, but I'm a size 52 and Hooray for you, Barbara. You're not alone. Fortune magazine reports that one-third of the women in America are size 14s or larger. It's the size 4 that's not natural.

Exit Nouvelle Anorexia. Enter Haute Robust.

A clothes call The next four years are going to be fun. We're going to see reality again. We're going to see real thighs again. We're going to eat sour cream again. So let's stop giving Babara flak for being human. (Some fashion writers have chided the first ladyto-be for appearing at black-tie events looking like a grandmother.)

The woman is 63-years-old. She is a grandmother. She accepts that she will never again wear miniskirts, and she doesn't try to wear ball gowns that pouf at the fanny.

But don't cry for her, Valentino. Somehow she still manages to hold her head high.

"Leave Barbara Bush alone," says Nancye Redmin, owner of the Forgotten Woman a national chained of large size dress stores. "She's wonderful just the way she is."

The Forgotten Woman has two dress stores in the Washington area. Sales of designer outfits, which start at size 14, have doubled since the election.

'Our glamour just comes in a larger size, but it's definitely there," Mrs. Radmin says. "We do wonderful business. Lots of Washington names shop with us. They are thrilled with Barbara. She seems so content. She will bring life and fun to the White House. If she went on a diet, it would probably wouldn't be that way at all. It's very hard to be fun and jovial when you're hungry.

Lane Bryant, a large-size dress store with 10 locations in the Washington area, also believes glamour comes in all sizes." 'Barbara Bush will be a wonderful, wonderful role model," says Ann Armbruster, vice president of marketing. "I can certainly identify. I wasn't a size 4 when I was born. The stories on the Bush "style" don't end with the soon-to-be-first lady's wardrobe. Some analysts say caterers may lose business because the Bush White House won't do much elegant entertaining.

Ridiculous. Caterers probably will flourish as never before. People may start to actually eat again. With the Bush administration, you can still say "no" to drugs - but now you can also say "yes" to chocolate mousse

The fat of the matter "I'm going to be thrilled with Barbara Bush," says Dallas investments counselor Linda Binion, a loyal Republican and a size 18. "I was at the Republican convention in Detroit eight years ago. I went to a luncheon honoring Nancy Reagan. I was on the front row of tables and had a good view of her the whole lunch. She nibbled on the four strawberries for half an hour. She didn't eat anything else. It made me feel guilty.

Of course, not everyone has been won over. A Dallas aerobics instructor says Nancy Reagan has been an inspiration to her and her customers. She thinks that fat is distasteful and that men in particular are turned off by excess weight.

But it should be pointed out that the size 4 who was talking is divorced and working as an exercise teacher. The size 16 she was chiding is married to the presidentelect of the United States.

As far as I'm concerned, let's just let Barbara be Barbara. The new first lady has her own agenda and her own style, and it suits her

Carnival accident kills rider

HALLANDALE, Fia. (AP) - A paint-covered crack has been blamed for the collapse of a whirling, dipping carnival ride that killed a 17-year-old girl and injured six others, state investigators said.

SOUTHERN SUDAN — A malnourished boy waits in line for a bowl of food at a Sudanese relief camp. Continued fighting between the rebel Sudan People's Liberation Army and government forces has turned about 2 million residents of southern Sudan into refugees, many of whom are starving.

Civil war in Sudan halts starvation relief efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) - With thousands of "stick children" starving in civil war-torn. Sudan, the United States should be speaking out against the atrocities rather than preserving its ties to the Sudanese government, congressional and relief officials say.

The State Department contends it is doing the best it can in dealing with an ineffectual and stubborn government and the complexities of a cruel civil war pitting the Moslem rulers in the north against the Christian and pagan minority in the south.

Both the State Department and relief officials agree that the government and the rebels are using available supplies of donated food as a weapon against millions of innocent civilians, but opinions differ on how best to handle the crisis. In the southern town of Abiye, where the United States was able to arrange a food airlift a few weeks ago after months of pressure on the Khartoum government, there are no children under three years old, the staffers and relief officials

"They've all died of hunger or been sold for food," said Jeffrey Clark, who coordinated the trip on behalf of Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Tex., chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger. "We saw stick children, their arms barely two inches in diameter," he added.

Roger Winter, director of the privately funded U.S. Committee For Refugees, said he had been urging the State Department to take a stronger stand with the Khartoum government.

"A high profile U.S. leadership role is critical at this point," he said, to get a massive relief effort under way.

In response, the State Department issued a statement saying "a major human catastrophe continues to unfold in the Sudan. The world is witnessing famine that is the result not of nature but of endemic civil war. The department also said its

Hundreds missing after rains

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) -A week of monsoon rains sent logs and mud crashing into villages and killed at least 142 people, officials said today.

Unofficial counts placed the dead at more than 200, with hundreds missing and believed drowned or buried beneath mudslides that hit several villages in Nakhon Sri Thammarat province.

The Interior Ministry said at least 70,000 villagers in 12 southern provinces were left homeless while extensive damage was reported to roads, bridges, railways and agricultural land.

Torrential rains in southeast Asia from Saturday to Wednesday also were blamed for the deaths of dozens in Malaysia and Indonesia

A spokesman of the Meteorological Department in Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian capital, said the weather, part of the annual Asian winter monsoon season that lasts from November until March, was among the three worst this decade.

Shiites clash in Beirut slums

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) -Rival Shiite Moslem militias, backed by Syria and Iran, battled with tanks, rockets and mortars in the slums of south Beirut today.

Police said seven people were killed and 20 wounded before a cease-fire ended the worst fighting in six months.

A police spokesman said most casualties were residents caught in crossfire after skirmishes broke out Thursday night between the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, and the pro-Syrian Amal. Amal is Arabic for "hope."

Both sides accused each other of provoking the clash, the fiercest since Syrian troops were deployed in south Beirut in May to end two weeks of Amal-

Hezbollah fighting.

The spokesman said stray shells hit several apartments in the densely populated slum area, driving panic-stricken residents to spend the night in basements and bomb shelters.

The police spokesman said Amal fighters, backed by six Soviet-made T-54 tanks, advanced about 500 yards across the northern flank of Hezbollahcontrolled territory in south Beirut's Mouawad district.

He said the two sides were observing a "cease-fire-inplace," with Amal militiamen refusing to withdraw from the area they gained.

"The gunmen are still there. God knows when they will start shooting again," the spokesman

Mandela will move to new location

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government said it will not send black leader Nelson Mandela back to prison when he completes his hospital stay but will keep him under guard at an unspecified location.

A brief statement on Thursday by Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee did not give any details on when Mandela would leave the hospital, where he would be taken, or what restrictions he would face. The 70-year-old Mandela, head of the African National Congress guerrilla movement, has been recovering from tuberculosis since August at the Constantiaberg Clinic in Cape Town. The Citizen, a pro-government

English-language newspaper, reported today that Coetsee's reference to "secure living accomodations" may mean that Mandela would be accomodated in a house built for prison officials on a prison farm.

"These homes are within the enclosed prison compound and therefore Mandela's security would not pose an insurmountable problem," The Citizen said.

It also referred to speculation that Mandela might be allowed to receive visitors outside his immediate family and lawyer, including the press, and that it may become possible to quote him. It is now illegal to quote him or print his picture.

The government statement suggests authorities are attempting to release Mandela in stages in an effort to temper the public's reaction to the country's best known black leader.

Mideast top market for U.S. arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Middle East remained the No. 1 market for American arms manufacturers last year, although total U.S. arms exports fell sharply, according to a new study.

The report also said McDonnell Douglas Corp. was one of the few major defense contractors to post a sales increase for the year. The St. Louis-based company assumed the top industry position with sales of $657 million.

The value of contracts awarded to U.S. defense contractors for military equipment and services earmarked for export abroad fell to $4.9 billion — off 22 percent from the 1986 level and 44 percent below 1985's total, the report said.

The study examined sales in the 12-month period ended Sept. 30. 'The overall decline in Foreign Military Sale awards led to a drop in the level of arms export business for 17 of the top 25 U.S. arms exporting companies in 1987," the report

The study was conducted by the Investor Responsibility Research Center, which bills itself as a nonpartisan research organization dedicated to conducting impartial studies on public policy issues involving corporate America.

The group has been analyzing foreign arms sales for several years, focusing on the official Foreign Military Sale, or FMS, transactions, that are arranged and overseen by the U.S. government. FMS sales account for about 84 percent of all U.S. arms exports; the remainder normally involved company-to-country agreements.

The research center waits until complete government tabulations are available for each fiscal year, meaning there normally is a lag of more than a year. The latest report was mailed out this week.

Center officials attributed the Pentagon figures show that based on deliveries of equipment in fiscal 1987, the Middle East "continued to be the largest recipients of U.S. military exports in 1987,' Ferrari said.

'The biggest reason for the drepoff has to do with competition," said Paul Ferrari, a center spokesman. "It's a tighter market out there.

The six largest U.S. arms contractors account for 55 percent of the total FMS awards in fiscal 1987, the study said.

Besides McDonnell Douglas, they are General Dynamics Corp., which had $606.9 million in foreign sales; Grumman Corp., with $503.7 million; General Electric Co., $341.5 million; Raytheon Co., $326.2 million, and United Technologies Corp., $223 million.

General Dynamics had held the top spot two years ago with sales of $1.4 billion.

Rounding out the top 10 arms exporters were Lockheed Corp., $197.1 million; General Motors Corp., $194 million; Unisys, $173.1 million, and Westinghouse Electric Corp., $122.7 million.

The center said the export contracts for fiscal 1987 benefited the states of New York, California, Massachusetts, Texas and Missouri the most.

Jose, a spunky streetwise kid despite his handicaps, fled the crowded two-room hut and meager meals he had shared with his mother, grandmother and four siblings in Tampico, a port city n the Gulf of Mexico.

He was found Nov. 7, 1987, wandering the streets of Ciudad Juarez, across the border from El Paso, Texas, 700 miles from home. Social workers spent eight months trying to learn his identity, but Jose could communicate only through gestures, pictures and his crooked-toothed grin.

"He's very sharp. He's always been able to communicate in one way or another," Cecilia Villarreal, Casa Hogar director, said in an interview this week at the home.

The mystery was solved in June when his mother, Micaela Aguilera, learned where he was. Aguilera, a poor barmaid with an estranged common law husband, turned her son over to the Casa Hogar in Ciudad Victoria, capital of the state of Tamaulipas, about 130 miles from Tampico.

Jose now lives with 120 other children ranging in age from newborn to 15; his mother has visited several times, officials said.

The small campus with spotlessly clean dormitories, a dining hall, classrooms and a large garden is one of four homes in the state and dozens around the country for abandoned, mistreated and needy children. Jose started classes at a special education school in September. Although he has a lot of catching up to do, he seems unfazed by the burden of learning to spell, count and communicate through sign

Yet through it all, much of the bad was offset, said Tolbert McCarroll.

"For every problem we encountered, there was some surprising force that came along to balance it," said McCarroll, author of "Morning Glory Babies.

McCarroll, known as Brother Toby, said the book is an "unconcealed plea" to readers to adopt infants infected with the AIDS virus who otherwise will "spend their days in walkers tethered to doorknobs in hospital corridors." "There are a lot of misconcep-

McCarroll describes a social worker yanking Starcross Monastic Community's 12-year-old foster care license because it would not abandon plans to care for the infants, a neighbor telling reporters the nearby town of Annapolis didn't consider Starcross 'part of the community anymore" and a poster being defaced with graffiti reading: "Catch exotic

Even now that two years have passed, McCarroll said, "good will toward us will continue to be a local sin for some time to come.'

The monastery, about 120 miles north of San Francisco, cares for three or four infants with AIDS.

Although the internationally known monastery's conflicts have been reported before, the book, which details the first two years of Starcross's efforts to help the babies, offers the most complete picture so far of its struggles since November 1986.

Aside from neighbors' fears, the 'most antagonistic reaction' came from the government, Mc-Carroll said

At one point, a social worker ordered McCarroll's 82-year-old bedridden mother, who lived in a separate house on the remote property in Sonoma County, to be

Despite the problems, "unsolicited helpers" began showing up, offering physical labor, sup-

A banker with AIDS who has two children started showing up early in the morning to do whatever was needed; an elderly woman would drop off a newly made quilt and baby kimonos every few months; a public health worker brought diapers on his day off; and a retired New York subway worker "tackled the mysteries" of farm

Possible new AIDS treatment developed

BY PAUL RECER AP. Science Writer

WASHINGTON — Laboratory experiments announced today show that a plant toxin combined with a synthetic protein is able to attack and kill cells infected with the AIDS virus while leaving healthy cells untouched.

In a study published today in the journal Science, a group of researchers report that a manmade molecule called recombinant CD4 can be used to deliver a killer toxin to cells infected with AIDS in testtube experiments.

However, they cautioned that the new laboratory development like other incremental advances in ALDS research — was far from being ready for clinical application and, at best, might offer a potential new treatment approach rather than a cure.

Dr. Jonathan W. Uhr, chairman of the department of microbiology at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, said the CD4 molecule naturally binds to a gycoprotein, called gp120, that forms on the surface of cells infected with human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, inch causes AIDS. CD4, he said, will not attach itself to cells not incted with HIV.

In the laboratory, Uhr said, his research group combined a synthetic CD4 molecule with a toxin called ricin that is extracted with

When exposed in a test tube to HIV-infected cells, he said, the CD4-ricin combination binds to the cell surfaces and the ricin then kills the cell, thus eliminating a source of HIV virus.

Early in the course of HIV infection, T-cells and macrophages (two types of immunity cells) are thought to be the major cellular reservoirs for the virus. Both of those bear the CD4 molecule that permits the virus to enter," said

By combining a toxin with the CD4 molecule, the researchers are, in effect, creating a guided missile that attacks only those cells that are infected. Healthy cells are not 300ched by the toxin, said Uhr.

The scientist said toxic effects of the CD4-ricin combination will have to be studied in the laboratory before the technique could be used in-clinical experiments. Ricin has been used in cancer drugs and has been found to be well tolerated by patients if managed carefully, he

'Uhr said it will be at least a year before the drug could be tested on patients. And, though this technique shows promise, he said he is not suggesting that it would cure

"We would not expect it to kill a latently-infected cell and this represents a significant obstacle in terms of curing this disease," said Uhr. "I think that one might expiect, at best, to slow it down.'

He said the AIDS virus is known to invade cells and stay there quiet-

"One would have to consider the problem of these latent infected cells as a major one in terms of ridding the body of all the infected cells," said Uhr.

They were so amazed at their quarterback's outburst that the Oilers overcame their road phobia to beat the Dallas Cowboys 25-17 on Thanksgiving Day.

It was Dallas' ninth consecutive loss and its 11th defeat of the season, tying a club record set in 1960 when the Cowboys went 0-11-1. The Oilers are 9-4, with each of the defeats on the road.

Moon said he was tired of them easing up once they left their socalled "House of Pain," the Astrodome. He gave them a hard chewing out after Dallas jumped to a 7-0 lead and seemed to be on the way to one of the shocking upsets of the NFL season.

"When you get to this time of a year, you have to count on something besides the home crowd to fire you up," Moon said.

So, in the absence of a Houston crowd, Moon took it upon himself to provide the incendiaries.

"I had a few players on my team mad at me for awhile," Moon admitted. "I felt we came out flat and I said so on the field. I don't usually do things like that, but I could see us flat and so I said something.

"Maybe some of the guys thought it would be like preseason (when Houston beat Dallas 54-10) coming in here, but I knew it wouldn't be like that. When you're playing a team that's down and they get off to a good start it gives them too much of a lift. That's when I noticed I had to say something. Dallas played us tough and I knew they would.

The Oilers are a half-game behind Cincinnati in the AFC Cen-

"We ran into a trap today," Houston coach Jerry Glanville said. "Dallas was emotionally high. We were flat coming out.

'I thought (Dallas coach) Tom Landry did a hell of a coaching job. They gave us a lot of new looks.' Glanville said Moon was the difference. "He was the key, the catalyst," Glanville said. "He makes this football team work.' The Cowboys led 17-10 in the third period after Steve Pelluer's 3-yard touchdown run, but Moon wouldn't be denied. He took the Oilers on what proved to be the game-winning drive after safety Jeff Donaldson intercepted a tipped pass at midfield. Other than Mike Rozier's 12-yard run in the second period, it was Houston's only touchdown of the day

Tony Zendejas kicked four field goals, but his miss on an extrapoint kick caused some concern for the Oilers. But Zendejas padded a 19-17 edge with two fourth-period field goals.

The Cowboys could be thankful that they played Houston tough and still remained in the race for the NFL's No. 1 draft pick next spring. But Landry said, "This wasn't a happy Thanksgiving for me." He praised his downtrodden club's effort.

"I'm proud of their performance," Landry said. "Houston knew they were glad to get out with a win. Houston has a good football team. A playoff team. It seems like we just can't make the big play. I didn't want just a moral victory.

Dallas defensive end Jim Jeffcoat said the Cowboys were mad over charges that the team had quit in losses of 44-3 to Minnesota and 38-24 to Cincinnati.

"People said we quit last week and we wanted to prove to people that our defense never quits," het

Dallas linebacker Steve DeOssie chipped in, "I don't care if we're 2-13, we're not going to quit no matter what happens around here. We PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) Detroit coach Wayne Fontes didn't know it, but his good bud-Jerry Burns nad nim in a hole before the opening kickoff.

Once the Thanksgiving Day contest between Detroit and the Minnesota Vikings had begun, Burns quickly filled in the hole and the Vikings buried the Lions Fontes, coaching his second game on an interim basis after the firing of Darryl Rogers, went from player to player during warmups, giving hugs and handshakes.

Meanwhile, Burns, a Detroit native, was standing at midfield chatting with Lions owner William Clay Ford, the man who will decide Fontes' future when the season is over.

"Wayne's a good friend," Burns said. "I think he could be a very good coach for the Detroit Lions.

But it became quickly apparent that what seperates the Vikings from the Lions is not coaching. Detroit needs horses. The Lions fell to 1-1 under Fontes and 3-10 for the season.

"One day, hopefully, we'll be that good," Fontes said. "They've got athletes and they're so well-coached.' The Vikings, evoking memories of the defensive line dubbed "The Purple People Eaters," completely dominated the Lions

The Orange Bowl-bound Hurricanes are 16-point favorites over Arkansas, the large margin based in part on Miami's last game — a 44-3 smashing of then-No. 16 Louisiana State at Baton Rouge — and the memory of its 51-7 rout of Arkansas last year.

But those statistics can't match the numbers of Steve Walsh. The Miami junior has thrown for 2,517 yards and 28 touchdowns. He has already broken the Miami season record for touchdown passes set by Heisman Trophy winner Vinny Testaverde, and needs only one more to tie Testaverde's career record of 48.

"Walsh is just playing outstandingly well," Hatfield said. "Walsh is as good a quarterback as I've ever seen. That's high praise. The guy is that good.

Aggies whip Longhorns for fifth year-in-a-row

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas, frustrated for the fifth year in a row by Texas A&M, 28-24, can only look to next season. A&M, basking in its 500th college football victory, will seek No. 501 next Thursday against Alabama.

A&M, 7-4, but ineligible for bowl play because of NCAA probation, led 28-0 Thursday before the underdog Longhorns, 4-7, rallied in front of a national television audience and sellout home crowd of 77,809.

The Southwest Conference loss ended Texas' worst football season since 1956 when it went

A&M running back Darren Lewis, a 210-pound sophomore, ran 38 times for a career-high 212 yards and a 15-yard touchdown for the favored Aggies.

Lewis also set up fullback Robert Wilson's 1-yard touchdown with a 36-yard run.

All-American linebacker John Roper ran a blocked field goal 48 yards for a 21-0 A&M lead, and sub quarterback Chris Osgood's 8-yard scoring run raised the score to 28-0 in the second quarter."

Texas redshirt freshman Mark Murdock brought screaming Texas fans to their feet with scoring tosses of 9 yards to Kerry Cash in the second quarter, 14 yards to Stephen Clark and 76 yards to Tony Jones in the second half.

"It was all on guts and effort tonight," said Texas Coach David Williams, whose team lost four games this season by a total of 13 points.

A fumbled pitchout on thirdand-2 after Texas had reached the A&M 34 spoiled Texas' chance for a possible go-ahead touchdown.

Texas sub quarterback Donovan Forbes tossed the ball to tailback Eric Metcalf, who said he slipped, and the ball bounced to the A&M 49, where A&M recovered.

'We practiced it all week - it's unfortunate it turned out that way," said Metcalf, among the nation's leaders in all-purpose yardage. 'The momentum was ours the whole second half. Time just ran out," said Texas linebacker Britt Hager, who was credited with 20 tackles.

Trojans, Irish battle will decide who's number one

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach story Lou Holtz of No. 1-ranked Notre Dame says, "This game is what college football is all about."

Coach Larry Smith of No. 2 Southern California says, "This promises to be one of the great games of all time.

And Southern Cal quarterback Rodney Peete? Smith will be delighted if Peete can just say "Hut one, hut two" 80 or so times and throw, oh, a half-dozen touchdown passes when USC entertains Notre Dame on Saturday in the 24th game between No. 1 No. 2 since the Associated Press poll began in 1936.

Peete's last two weeks were the stuff of legends — or, at the very least, the kind of stuff one would be more likely to associate with Notre Dame than Southern Cal.

First, he was hospitalized with the measles a few days before he led the Trojans to a 31-22 victory Pac-10 title and a berth in the Rose Bowl.

As a side effect, Peete lost his voice on Sunday and was unable records into their historic to talk for several days. That meant the Trojans had to practice with 12 men on offense with freshman quarterback Todd Marinovich calling out the

The silence was deafening and if Peete is rendered speechless against Notre Dame, Southern Cal's tailback will call out the

All of this probably means that trainer Jack Ward, team physician Dr. Chester Semel and executive medical director Dr. !Allan Ebbin are assured they will be prominently featured when Hollywood does Peete's life team when we're required to

By Wednesday, Peete had his voice back enough to conduct a telephone news conference. Two days earlier, he had to write out

Enough to say that "I have never been through a two-week period like this before.

Enough to agree with Holtz and Smith that Saturday's game is about as big as they come.

"One of the reasons you come to USC is to play Notre Dame, play UCLA," Peete said. "I'd like to go out with a victory over Notre Dame. I've never experienced one (Notre Dame has won five straight and leads the series 32-23-4), so that makes the game even more meaningful for me and the other seniors on this team.

Both teams are 10-0 — they also have been inoculated against measles and flu - and it's the first time these tradiover UCLA last Saturday for the tional powers have been involved in a No. 1-No. 2 showdown against each other and also the first time both brought perfect rivalry.

The winner will be one step away from the national championship. Notre Dame will meet No. 4 West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl, Southern Cal plays No. 11 Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

But it's hard for coaches not to worry themselves sick, and these two are no exceptions.

Among Holtz's concerns is that Southern Cal will get out to an early lead.

"What scares you against Southern Cal is that you could be forced into a catchup game," he said. "We're not a very good throw, and we haven't been forced into a passing game all year.

"We haven't played a team that runs and throws as well as Southern Cal, and it starts with Peete. They have great running backs, their offensive line is big and strong, they have two fine wide receivers and two great tight ends who give them an awful lot of big plays.

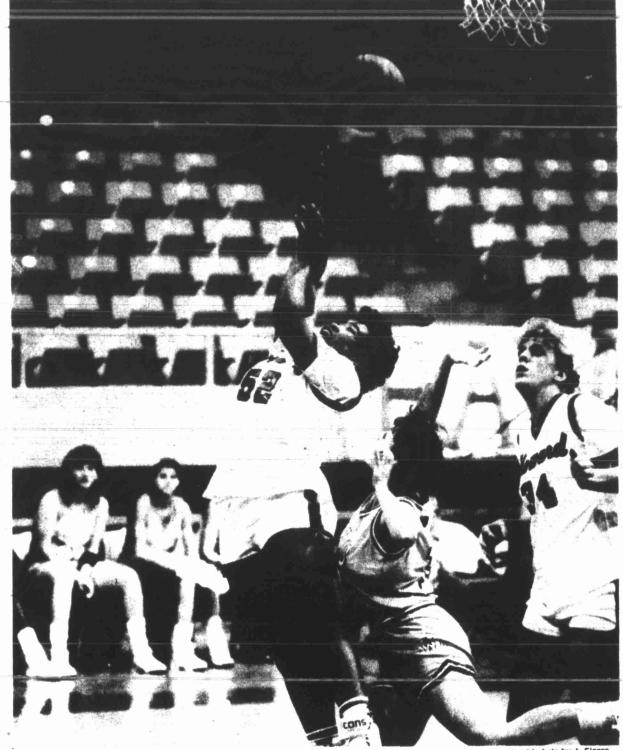

"They're averaging 35 points a game, and to me that's unheard of against the schedule they play (Hey, Lou, Notre Dame is averaging 33 points a game against what the NCAA preseason ratings called the eighth most difficult schedule in

"Southern Cal presents more problems than Miami did (Notre Dame edged then-No. 1 Miami 31-30 last month) because of their ability to run and throw, probably more problems than I've ever encountered as a football coach. Right now, Southern Cal is a better team than Miami on

"I'm concerned about our kicking game. We're not punting very well, we're not kicking off very well and our placekicking has been inconsistent the last few weeks, but there's not much we can do about that right now. We've also turned the ball over far too many times (12 lost fumbles, nine interceptions).

"We're much smaller than Southern Cal. We're probably as small an offensive line as you'll find. We're not as strong as Southern Cal and if (nose guard) Chris Zorich can't play, we'll be one of the smallest defensive lines in the country.

"But we're not going out there

North Texas seeking playoff win

Mimitz RB could be trouble for Mojo

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) -When Marshall takes the field Saturday in an attempt to stop the University of North Texas in the first round of the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs, it will have a lot of places to start:

North Texas, 8-3, likes to use four wide receivers, usually three on one side, and keeps a running back behind the quarterback just to keep people honest, according to Marshall assistant head coach Don Poluszek.

"They call the majority of their plays at the line. They check your alignment and predetermine what they do. If you're not ready up front, they utilize the fullback,"

North Texas, the third-place finisher in the Southland Conference, is seeded 10th in the Division I-AA playoffs. Marshall, 10-1 and the Southern Conference cochampion, is seeded sixth and seeking to return to the title game in Pocatello, Idaho.

Southland member Northeast Louisiana defeated Marshall 43-42 in last year's championship game. If Marshall is ready up front on defense Saturday, prepare to see the ball in the air. North Texas sophomore quarterback, Scott Davis, has completed 158 of 270 passes for 2,409 yards. Davis also has rushed for 439 yards and Darrin Collins has carried for 412.

"They have a lot of weapons. Ask Texas. They had to hold on to win," Poluszek said. The Mean Green Eagles lost to Division I Texas 27-24 but defeated Division I teams Texas Tech and Rice.

That, of course, is not to say that Marshall doesn't have offensive weapons of its own. Junior quarterback John Gregory is 185-of-327 passing for 2,687 yards - most of that to split end Mike Barber and tight end Sean Doctor, both All-Americans last year.

"Everybody at Northeast Louisiana has said good things about Marshall. I know they have a good group of athletes and a good group of players," said Bob Finklea, North Texas defensive coordinator. "We have to play a good Marshall will be going without freshman fullback Michael Bryant, who had surgery Monday after injuring his right knee last weekend at Youngstown State. Bryant was "the second-leading rusher on the team, behind junior tailback Ron Darby, who has 1,128 yards on the ground this season, including 467 in the last two games.

Ticket sales were heavy this week, and Marshall's athletic director is hoping to surpass the crowd of 15,584 that saw the Thundering Herd's 41-12 victory over James Madison in last year's first round of the playoffs.

The attendance mark last year is team, but we're looking forward to a Southern Conference home playoff record.

Johnson wants shot in 1992

MILAN, Italy (AP) - Canada's Ben Johnson, the world recordholder in the 100-meter dash who lost his gold medal at the Seoul Olympics after testing positive for steroid use, says he wants to compete in the Barcelona Games in 1992.

"I hope I can do it ... It will take me one year to recover, if I am definitely stopped for two," Johnson was quoted as saying by Milan's weekly magazine Europeo. "I believe that 1992 will be something that people will never forget.'

Johnson also was banned from international competition for two years after he failed the doping tests. He claimed hard training and weightlifting - not steroids - were the reason for his impressive muscular growth

"I am innocent, innocent of knowingly taking what they gave me," he was quoted Thursday as saying.

Interviewed by the magazine at his home in Toronto, Johnson said he's training three hours a day, including weightlifting. He still holds the world record of 9.83 seconds set at the World Championships in

Recognize temptations

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My wife says people can talk me into just about anything, and I guess she's right. I know I shouldn't give in to temptation, but when I am with my friends it never even occurs to me to do anything but follow the crowd. It is causing a lot of strain in our marriage, with my wife threatening divorce. Why am I such a weak person when it comes to temptation? - M.B.

DEAR M.B.: The real question is not "why" but "how" - how can you recognize temptations before they overtake you, and then resist them.

The answer is to seek God's help He wants to help you, and he will if you let him. Look closely at what God has written about temptation in his Word: "No temptation has seized you except what is common to man. And God is faithful; he will not let you be tempted beyond what you can bear. But when you are tempted, he will also provide a way out so that you can stand up under it." (1 Corinthians 10:13)

But how will God "provide a way out"? Let me suggest several ways. First, write down the situations in which you know you are most tempted — and then avoid them. Don't even get in them and if that means dropping your old friends and activities, have the courage to do it. (They are not really friends anyway if they let you keep on destroying yourself and your family.) Then ask God to prick your mind and heart when temptations arise, and turn to him. In addition, you need to devote more time and energy to building your relationship with your wife.

Study finds new religions aren't declining

NEW YORK (AP) religions that have proliferated in America in the last two decades aren't fading away as they had been widely expected to do, but instead are growing and multiplying.

This is the finding of research by The Rev. J. Gordon Melton of Santa Barbara, Calif., director of the Institute for the Study of American Religions

'Non-conventional religion in the United States has flourished for a generation, continues to grow and is transforming America, religiously, into a radically pluralistic culture," he says. ment...has had no measureable affect on the development of the unconventional religions" which in the last decade "have continued to grow, consolidate gains and expand." An authority on the country's increasingly wide religious spectrum and editor of the Encyclopedia of American Religions, Melton says scholarly assumptions had been that new religions soon would die out.

But that simply has proved not to be the case, he says, either nowadays when they've cropped

"Non-conventional religion in the United States has flourished for a generation, continues to grow and is transforming America, religiously, into a radically pluralistic culture." - Rev. J. Gordon Melton up profusely, or in the past. He says fresh data collected on 835 new religions formed since 1940, most of them in the last 20 years, only 125 now are defunct, by-decade growth. In a paper presented at a meeting of the American Academy of Religion in Chicago last weekend, he said:

while most have shown a decade-

"While some groups have experienced ups and downs, most...have shown a pattern of continued high-level recruitment of new members, net growth and geographical spread.

Melton, a United Methodist. over the last year surveyed U.S. religion groups for a new edition of the religion encyclopedia to be published in December. It describes 1,586 U.S. faiths, old

He said there have been

"The anti-cult movement... has had no measureable affect on the development of the unconventional religions" which in the last decade "have continued to grow, consolidate gains and expand." — Rev. J. Gordon Melton numerous false assumptions about new religions that have "attained the status of truisms," including these:

• That new religions, often called cults, mainly emerge in periods of social turmoil.

• That they are transitory, depending on some charismatic leader, and usually break up and gradually die out after the leader

• That they are "deviant, weird and largely irrelevant religions on the margins of culture.

Actually, he said, most of them are offshoots of older religions, such as Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam, Theosophy, Spiritualism, Adventism, Christian Science, Mormons or others.

"Most of those groups we refer to as cults are simply representative . . . of these older religious traditions which are rapidly diffusing through the Western nations ...," he said.

The most common misassumption, Melton said, has been that the new religions were less than genuine and simply a passing phenomenon that would disappear under social and legal

"The opposite seems to be the case," he said. "As new nonconventional religions continue to emerge, the older groups have shown an amazing staying

He said the past "framework for studying cults has viewed them as small, ephemeral, disconnected and essentially ahistorical groups which exist on the margin of society, deviating from its normative central core.

However, he said the survey shows "a decade by decade growth in the number of additional religious groups and no rapid delcine" of older groups.

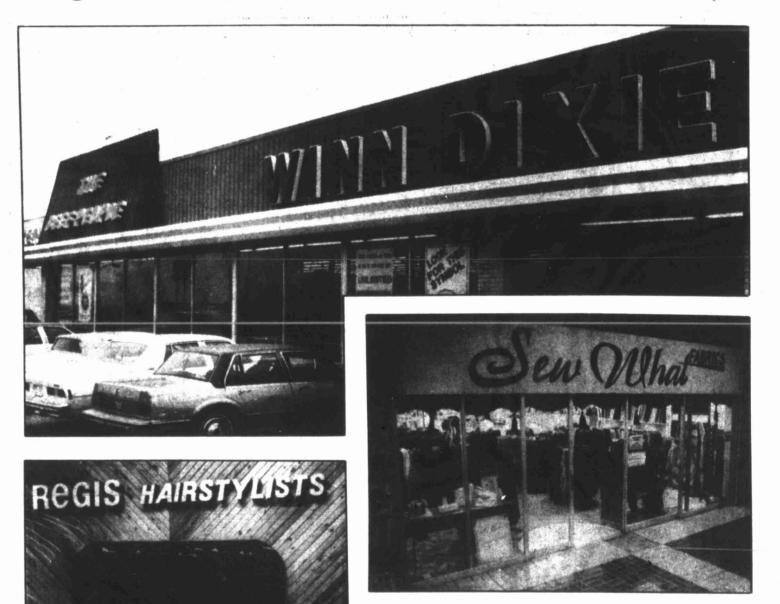

"While a few non-conventional religions do in fact come and go quickly, and while most pass through unstable phases especially in their first generation, the great majority which survive the first decade continue to become stable organizations and longterm factors in the religious ecology of their communities."

As for the idea that the groups gradually disappear after the death of their charismatic leaders, Melton this hasn't generally been the case.

Citing cases of various groups whose founder-leader had died, such as Scientology, the Way International, Hare Krishnas, Alamo Christian Foundation and International Buddhist Meditation Center, Melton said:

"Each group passed through a brief period of mourn ing ... Completely absent were any signs of significant internal turmoil and noteworthy problems with a transition of authority.'

Isn't it about time we gave Big Spring the business?

When you make a purchase, where does vour dollar go? Grocers buy shoes, shoe sales people buy cars. Car salespeople buy newspapers. Newspaper salespeople buy clothes. Clothing salespeople buy jewelry. Jewelers need their cars fixed. Mechanics buy candy. Candy salespeople buy air conditioners... When you buy locally your dollars don't "go." They come back to you from customers, and from civic improvements paid for by taxes raised from the business you support.

Shop locally. It pays YOU.

European PGA to crack down on ticket scalpers

LONDON (AP) — Ticket considerable interest in the tournascalpers who try to make a fast buck out of next year's Ryder Cup matches face the possibility of the most stringent penalties ever imposed in golf.

Europe's Professional Golfers Association said Thursday it would prosecute anyone who tries to take advantage of new regulations covering the 28th series between the top golfers representing Europe and the United States.

Next year's match at the Belfry will be the first advance-ticket-only competition in the history of European golf. A maximum of four tickets per application will be allowed, with a limit of 27,000 spectators -20,000 general public and 7,000 hospitality patrons.

Organizers said they are confident the event won't face the ticketscalping problems that have plagued such events as the Wimbledon tennis championships. "We are sailing in uncharted waters," John Lindsey, executive director of the PGA, said. "It will be an offense, punishable by law, to put in multiple applications for tickets and we will take every step we can to stamp this out. We shall take action against anyone dealing in an unofficial capacity." Lindsey said the "genuine golf fan'' will be able to get a ticket by applying well before the event. He said unprecedented interest in the Ryder Cup forced organizers to limit crowds "The Ryder Cup committee unanimously agreed that a limit must be set bearing in mind the ment," Lindsey said.

The Ryder Cup, staged every two years, is riding the crest of a wave of popularity following the Europeans' first-ever success on American soil last year.

The Europeans, who won the last time the matches were staged in Europe, thus will be seeking an unprecedented third straight triumph in next year's event, scheduled Sept. 22-24.

Lindsey said during a new conference that 16,000 tickets would go on sale in Britain, 2,000 in the rest of Europe and 2,000 in the United States, through official package holiday tours Without the crowd restrictions,

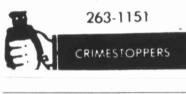

Lindsey said, more than 40,000 fans could have converged on the Belfry, leading to the type of problems encountered in 1985 when too many spectators got on to the fairways and prompted complaints by American officials. Prices range from about $27.45 a day to $82.35 for a season ticket covering the whole tournament. Overseas applicants will have to pay in British currency, regardless of the exchange rates at the time.

For the first time in the history of the event, plans are under way for live television transmission to the United States.

A written statement from Jim Awtry, executive director of the American PGA, said his organization was holding discussions with the American networks and cable stations "to ensure that (the) enthusiasm (of the Ryder Cup) is shared with the American public."

In another written statement. American team captain Ray Floyd said his freedom to select two 'wild card'' players for next year's team should give the United States its strongest lineup in some time.
