It was incorrectly reported in the Sunday edition of the Big Spring Herald that a gunshot wound Sammy Gomez sustained to the back of his head was the third of three shots fired by Colorado City

Dr. Patrick B. Besant Matthews - the Dallas County medical examiner who performed the autopsy - said today the bullet wounds were diagramed in arbitrary sequence, not necessarily in which they were sustained.

MIAMI, Fla. — This strange scene met the eyes of travelers on Interstate 395 Monday night after violence erupted following the death of a police suspect who died after wrecking his motorcycle. Man's death stirs rioting in Miami

By MICHAEL WARREN Associated Press Writer

MIAMI - A police officer shot a fleeing black motorcyclist in the predominantly black Overtown neighborhood, touching off a sixhour riot that left cars and a store ablaze. Sporadic gunfire and looting continued today.

Mayor Xavier Suarez declared the situation in the predominantly black neighborhood under control early today and called for a full investigation.

The riot occurred on the night of the federal holiday for slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. and as national attention was focused on the city as the host of Sunday's Super Bowl. It also rekindled memories of Miami riots in the early 1980s. "It just exploded," said City Commissioner Rosario Kennedy as she prepared to enter the 11/2-square-mile area with a police escort. "People have been celebrating Martin Luther King's birthday all day. Maybe they were drunk. We just don't4know.' The riot was triggered by the motorcyclist's death Monday night as he was chased for an alleged traffic violation, said Sgt. Michael Mazur, a police spokesman. At least two officers were pursuing the motorcycle, and one of the officers fired a shot, hitting the 21-year-old driver in the head, said Assistant Police Chief Don March. The motorcycle crashed into a moving car, March said.

March said on NBC's "Today" show that he believed the shot killed the motorcyclist, but said police could not be certain until an autopsy was conducted.

Police refused to give the of-

The motorcyclist's 24-year-old brother, who was a passenger, was in critical condition today, said Jackson Memorial Hospital officials.

Within minutes of the shooting, at least 100 blacks began throwing rocks and bottles at police, who called for reinforcements. About 125 officers cordoned off

Four people, including one police officer, were treated for cuts and minor injuries, said Jackson Hospital spokesman Tony Fallon.

The mob set two cars and an auto parts store on fire.

The store burned to the ground after firefighters were shot at and had to leave the area, said Mazur. WCIX-TV reporter Lourdes Ruiz-Toledo, who had gotten out of her car earlier, said she feared for her life.

"All of a sudden they threw a big huge rock right on the side of the driver. I blocked it with my elbow. They were yelling 'Get that white woman out of the the 27-year-old reporter said.

Toomire county appraiser By SARAH LUMAN the board, and to serving the tax-Staff Writer

Howard County's new chief appraiser is a county resident — but, like all the other candidates considered for the post, he was not a Howard County appraisal district staff member.

Robert Keith Toomire, 43, was unanimously chosen by the tax appraisal district's board of directors to replace F.E. "Gene" Pereira after a marathon executive session Monday afternoon. "I'm very pleased with having been selected for this job,' Toomire said after the announcement Monday. "As a general statement for the press and the public, I would like to say this office is always open . .

We have a lot of information that needs to get out, and a lot of information taxpayers need and need to understand," Toomire said. "I'm looking forward to serving payers of Howard County.

He cited his experience as his greatest strength. "I have eight years' experience as a chief appraiser, and for six years before that I was with a mineral appraisal firm.'

Interim office manager Ruth Mitchell said today none of the applicants for the position Pereira vacated in December were members of the current staff.

Board chairman Lee George said Toomire, whose salary has been set at $37,500 annually, was "the best qualified for our district.

"We're extremely pleased to have him," George said. Board member Corky Harris concurred, adding that the Texas Tech graduate and former Marine has extensive experience in mineral appraisals, a major factor in the Howard County economy.

Toomire served as chief appraiser for the Hockley County Tax Appraisal District from November 1980 until "this past May," according to Hockley County Chief Appraiser Nick Williams.

"He's the person who set up and organized this office," Williams said. "He took it from its inception.' Williams, who said he had worked as tax collector and business manager for the Sundown Independent School District for seven of the eight years of Toomire's tenure, called Toomire "a most accommodating young man.

"He's a good communicator," Williams said. "Most people in town still ask about Keith and are concerned about him. He was very well thought of in the community.

Toomire left in May, resigning for personal reasons, Williams said, "and because he felt it would be for the good of the district for

STAFF AND WIRE REPORT

NEW YORK — Oil has spurted to a 14-month high in the futures market in a gusher of speculation by traders that oil-producing nations will succeed in controlling their perennial overproduction but at least one Big Spring producer downplayed the increase.

Guthrie Oil and Gas producer Kimble Guthrie said today the price jump will have "not much" impact on the local economy. 'That's about all I can say — it's not that much of an increase; I don't believe it's going to amount to much. There's just not that

The price jump will not spill over onto prices of consumer products such as home heating oil and gasoline unless it lasts for a considerable period of time, analysts say.

Permian Basin Petroleum Association board chairman Charles Perry blamed the increase on a "temporary tight supply" in what he called an "extremely volatile" futures market.

Perry said futures react strongly to events every day. "Futures traders never go home with a long or a short position, because something might happen overnight and wipe 'em out.

there."

Citing the tightening of supplies, he noted that "there are just more buyers than there are sellers right now" and added that the OPEC production cutback had affected the futures price.

"We don't have the 1 million or 2 million barrels hanging over us every day like we did in October," he said. Perry noted that 'Everything is improving, but it's not as dramatic as the futures price would have you believe."

He described the futures market as "a giant crapshoot, Las Vegas-style," and said posted sales prices, while increasing, are "lagging behind" the rising futures price.

The February contract for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark grade of U.S. crude oil, jumped 40 cents on Monday to settle at $18.88 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Perry said he expects the price to drop "between now and the end of the second quarter."

The last time the near-month contract settled higher was Nov. 20, 1987, amid hostilities in the Persian Gulf in the Iran-Iraq war It settled that day at $18.93.

Although Persian Gulf troubles no longer are an issue, the price of the near-month contract for West Texas Intermediate has soared 50 percent since an intraday low of $12.28 a barrel on Oct.

One reason for the increase is speculation that some kind of production agreement may be reached at a meeting beginning Jan. 26 in London between members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and non-OPEC countries, according to Gene Nowak, an analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

Nevertheless, analysts said the latest surge seemed more the result of emotion than news.

"The main thing we've got getting this market up is momentum. I'd have to list that as the first cause," said Peter Beutel, assistant director of the energy group at Elders Futures Inc.

"There's no underlying structural reason. There's no shortage," said John Lichtblau, president of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation.

Prices began rising in October on expectations that OPEC members would agree to cut production as a way of propping up prices. An agreement was reached in late November for Jan. 1.

Broken water main lines — a recurring problem in Big Spring have kept city work crews working full time since early Monday, Public Works Director Tom Decell confirmed today.

PLANO (AP) — A woman who was mortally wounded at a day care center provided information about her assailant before she died, police said.

An arrest warrant has been issued for a 30-year-old Plano man, police said

Police said Laurie Lee Newman 25, of Richardson, was wounded Monday afternoon, then drove to a nearby bowling alley to seek assistance. She died later at a Plano hospital of a gunshot wound to the right side.

Giddings said he could not give further details about the search, but a witness said the gunman followed Ms. Newman to the bowling alley before fleeing as a crowd of people rushed to her assistance.

The shooting came just six weeks after a similar shooting at a daycare center in Dallas resulted in the deaths of a Dallas woman and a Dallas County deputy sheriff who had driven her to the Day Place Development Child Center to drop off two of her children.

Rig count drops by 32, totals 840

 ${\bf HOUSTON}~({\bf AP})-{\bf For~the~third}$ week in a row, the number of working oil and gas rigs took a plunge, this week by 32 to total 840, industry watcher Baker Hughes Inc. reported.

For the last two weeks the count has plunged by 32 and 36, respectively, following a two-week increase of 25 rigs. Last week the rig count totaled 872. A year ago, the number of rigs totaled 1,054, Baker Hughes said Monday.

The decline follows normal seasonal patterns, according to Baker Hughes economist Ike Kerridge.

FBI anticipates arrest in First Federal robbery

Investigators have confirmed they may be closer to making an arrest in connection with the September robbery of First Federal Savings, FBI Agent Tom Clark refused to be more specific about the status of the investigation, saying he didn't want to jepordize the probe.

white male in his early 20s wearing a blue shirt, entered the lobby of First Federal, 500 South Main St., gave a teller a note demanding money and escaped with an unspecified amount of cash, authorities said.

The suspect was last seen fleeing east on foot toward the post office Clark, citing standard FBI

It's time to close the gap

As Americans of all races honored Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. yesterday, a gulf of perception separates the visions of blacks and whites about America.

The picture of this nation that emerges from an opinion poll, as well as from health and housing studies, is so divided that it, virtually, isn't the same nation. The visions are, in Louis Harris' words, "worlds apart." A recent Harris poll, commissioned by the NAACP, shows how deeply race colors perception. Whites believe that equality exists in America. Blacks do not. Whites think that job discrimination is not a major problem. Blacks say it is a real problem in their lives. Whites believe that the criminal-justice system is colorblind. Blacks say their people are the victims of prejudice in the legal system. Disturbingly, racial bias was espoused openly by many white people. Thirty-six percent of the whites interviewed subscribed to one stereotype, that "blacks tend to have less ambition than whites." Many blacks also hold racial stereotypes, which cause both resentment and insecurity. The vision that blacks are treated like second-class citizens is, sadly, supported by two new studies of health care and housing.

Blacks do not get the same proportion of life-saving heart procedures as whites, says a study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. New drugs, according to the report, are not sufficiently tested on blacks to accurately gauge possible toxic reaction.

In another article in the same issue of JAMA, a team of researchers from three universities report that black American access to medical care still lags behind whites. The consequence, according to the study, is an "excess of unmet needs for blacks compared with

Despite the gulf of vision and reality between blacks and whites, the Harris poll reveals an increase in support among both whites and blacks for action to bridge the gulf between worlds.

School busing has gained support during the past 20 years. Nearly half the white respondents said they favored school busing. While a slim majority still opposes it, that is in marked contrast to a 1967 poll when 78 percent of whites opposed busing.

Blacks and whites both favor programs to aid youth and combat drug and alcohol abuse. Ninety-three percent of those interviewed favored special school programs. Public housing, despite the huge cutbacks in " federal programs, was supported by 88 percent. There is compelling evidence that the public is ready to get on with the business of attending to many of the race-relations issues that have not been addressed during the past eight years," says Julius Chambers, director of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund.

King believed that black and white Americans could fight against racist perceptions by changing racist realities. To honor King, let us not commit ourselves to token rituals, but rather to activist crusades — in housing, in education, in health. The gap between races must be closed if we are to make King's dream of equality an American reality.

Accomplishments of President Reagan few

Special to the Herald

As dear old Ronnie rides off into the sunset with his forceful and convincing going-away speech, it makes us senior citizens wonder: Since he doesn't remember or recall much that has happened the last few years, a problem which reached its peak while Oliver North was nearing trial, is this the way all good movies end?

He didn't have a lot of wonderful accomplishments even though he brought Carter's 20 percent inflation down to a mere 3 percent by cutting off housing for the aged, food for the hungry and hurting the ones that needed help the most. At the same time he let medicalhospital costs rise 25 percent a year, or 200 percent in his eight year reign, he helped 100 of his buddies become millionares. He even tried to convince our legislators to sell our U.S. weather service as well as our postal service. I sincerely believe no one past the age of 70 should be allowed to hold any public office under any condition after watching old Clinton Anderson of Albuquerque. Anderson held his job after he got so senile that he could not find his office in the Senate office building in Washington D.C., yet he stayed in office. Our minds wear out, as well as our bodies. I am 79 years old and want no responsiblity from any source.

Senior thoughts

This boycott with our European allies seems like a lot of bologna. Why not ship the two percent of our beef contaminated with these chemicals to Washington D.C. for our "not too smart" legislators who approved feeding this appetite-stimulating chemical to start with?

The only beef producers who use it are these "get rich quick" feed lot operators, so our over-the-hill President Reagan can get a fight started with our allies as he leaves office, with President Bush left to wallow in the confusion!

Your federal veterinary group will agree it has created problems in this country. In Amarillo a few years ago there were some unexplainable deaths from food served to several hundred people at a special occasion affair. After several got sick from the food it was traced to beef from one feed lot. Yes, it was condemned, so I expect it went into pet food.

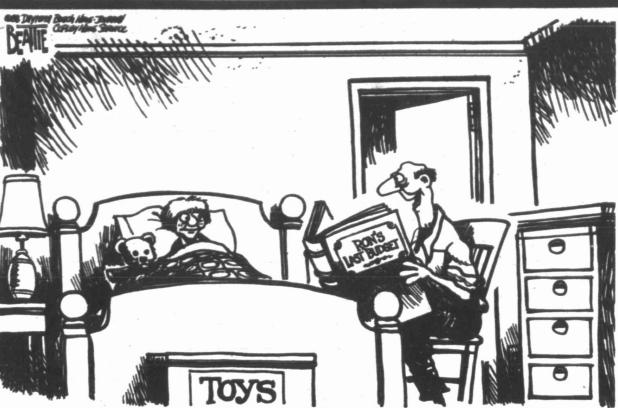

If I was an animal lover I would object to those feed lots that try anything to make more money. Beef consumers don't want the extra fat cuts of meat; too much cholesterol.

North case could go on and on

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The New York Times' R.W. Apple captured nicely the general frustration when, about the decision to drop the toughest charges against Oliver North, he wrote, "It was perhaps the least satisfying outcome imaginable, lacking the catharsis of a courtroom battle, the melodrama of a presidential pardon, the put-it-behind-us finality of a decision not to indict in the first place." Here, for the confused, are the confusing but discernible parts: Many people urged President Reagan to pardon North. They were motivated to do this by one or more factors. A) They believe that North should not be persecuted for doing what he did in the line of duty. B) They disapprove of judicial and legislative interference in an executive relationship which, in order to function, requires a guarantee of immunity from the kind of public scrutiny it would receive in the courtroom. C) They do not believe that President Reagan or President Bush should run the real risk of being summoned to a courtroom to be questioned by an aggressive prosecutor and Bull, who would rather see the end of Western civilization than one of

What then happened was that the grim prosecutor, Lawrence E. Walsh, finally relented on the matter of what we will call Official Documents A B & C. He reluctantly admitted that without producing them in court, North could not receive a fair trial on the conspiracy counts, inasmuch as it could be argued that those documents motivated his behavior. Accordingly, Walsh announced that he would move to drop those counts against North (et al.) and satisfy himself with a dozen others, such as shredding papers, lying to congressmen, that kind of thing. Now it is widely thought that Walsh has satisfied himself that he can distinguish between Official Documents A B & C, and Official Documents X Y & Z. These last, one infers from the activity of the prosecutor, are either A) not needed by North to effect his defense; or B) if needed, can readily be produced by the executive without hazard to the national security. The assumption is entirely mind in which he operated. Now at this point, prosecutor Walsh is likely to dig in his heels. And so is Judge Gerhard Gesell. A screenwriter would here intervene to note, "Messrs. Walsh and Gesell are determined men." So then let us suppose that Judge Gesell rules that Documents A B & C will be sheltered, but that Documents X Y & Z will not be sheltered, orders a trial, North is had up - and case without the necessity of a presidential pardon. That would greatly please Messrs. Reagan and Bush, inasmuch as it is clear that they have come to believe that a forthright presidential pardon granted ahead of all these proceedings would give the impression that the pardoner was motivated by self-serving instincts. The other route is to whittle away at the documents subpoenaed, arguing their inadmissibility on national security grounds, as far as they can go. If there develops an impasse - if, let us say, the executive branch rules that Documents X Y & Z are also highly sensitive and therefore not available to the court — then the Justice Department can behavior was motivated by his strands left, because the mandate of the special prosecutor is independent of that of the Justice Department. But what can the special prosecutor in fact do, if the executive clings to its insistence that the necessary documents affect the national security, and the courts are unwilling to demand that they be submitted? In 1974, the Supreme Court ruled against Richard Nixon. But it is unlikely that the courts would overrule the executive in a criminal proceeding involving men clearly motivated by an understanding that they were engaged in an act mandated by the executive and involving the national interest.

Arafat plans speech in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) - Yasser Arafat has accepted an invitation to address Arab-Americans in Washington, says a Detroit attorney who met with the PLO leader in Tunisia, but such a visit could pose a clemma for the Bush administration.

Attorney and American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee President Abdeen Jabara, who met with Arafat last weekend, said the Palestine Liberation Organization leader has agreed to address the group April 13 at its convention in Washington.

However, the State Department on Monday refused to say resolutions recognizing Israel's whether Arafat would be allowed right to exist.

Denying Arafat a visa could anger Arab leaders who consider the PLO a key part of the push for peace in the Middle East. Issuing the visa could anger Israel and its supporters.

Last November, Secretary of State George Shultz rejected Arafat's application for a visa to address the United Nations, citing the Palestinian leader's support of terrorism.

But in December, the United States agreed to renew talks with the PLO after Arafat renounced terrorism and endorsed UN

Tropical oils dropped from food

NEW YORK (AP) - Five major food companies have joined four others in working toward eliminating highly saturated palm and coconut oils from their products, prompting a multimillionaire health crusader to declare victory. "How much I have had to do with this is for the public to decide," said Phil Sokolof, who spent $2 million on nationwide newspaper advertisements to promote his cause. "I know we speeded it up."

The Omaha businessman announced Monday that General

Mills Inc., Ralston Purina Co. Borden Inc., Pillsbury Co. and Quaker Oats Co. had agreed to switch to vegetable oils with less saturated fat.

Earlier, Kellogg Co., Sunshine Biscuits, Pepperidge Farm and Keebler said they would stop using the so-called tropical oils in their food products.

Saturated fats increase blood cholesterol levels, which are a risk factor for heart attacks. Sokolof, 66, blames high cholesterol for the near-fatal heart attack he suffered 22 years

Civil defense sirens silenced

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The civil defense siren — that Cold War symbol of the fear of a Soviet nuclear attack - is being silenced in some San Francisco Bay communities where officials feel it's obsolete.

"It blows and it tells you a bomb is coming, but (the bomb) would be here already," said Jim Moore of Alameda County's Office of Emergency Services.

"The warning system is out of date," Moore said recently. "Most people don't even know what it's about. It has outlived its

Alameda County is following Contra Costa County's lead. San Mateo and Santa Clara counties still use the sirens, and will test them Jan. 27, but other cities, including San Jose, have chosen silence.

In Contra Costa County, the sirens were inoperable before officials did away with them in 1983, said Janet Grenslitt of that county's Office of Emergency Services.

Moore said people today are trained to go to a television or radio during an emergency.

Originally, people who heard the sirens were suposed to evacuate to shelters, Moore said. There are very few shelters being adequately maintained.

LONG BEACH — Hawthorne Police Sgt. Don Jackson talks with reporters after he carried out a "sting" to back up allegations of racism within the Long Beach Police Department. Jackson and a black corrections officer were stopped by two white officers and allegedly subjected to violence.

Boss says black officer was looking for trouble

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - An occurred," Hawthorne Police Chief off-duty black policeman was looking for trouble when he was pushed face-first through a window by a white patrolman during a "sting" to expose alleged police racism, the black officer's boss says.

A television news camera crew that arranged to follow Hawthorne Police Sgt. Dor Jackson captured Saturday night's confrontation in Long Beach on videotape.

The police chief in Long Beach declined to comment pending an investigation. City officials promised a thorough inquiry. Jackson and a companion were driving through a high-crime area of the city 20 miles south of Los Angeles when their car was pulled The NBC-TV videotape shows the Kenneth R. Stonebraker said at a news conference Monday.

He said Jackson apparently timed the confrontation to coincide with the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. birthday holiday, so it should be considered "nothing short of timed sensationalism at the risk of serious injury to all of the parties involved.

The 30-year-old Jackson, who has been on a stress-related disability leave from his Hawthorne job for 22 months, contends the incident is typical of a pattern of racism by white officers in the area.

Jackson was riding as a passenger with Jeffrey Hill, a 30-year-old off-duty state corrections officer, when they were pulled over allegedly for straddling lanes, which they denied. During an argument, Long Beach Officer Mark Dickey ordered Jackson to face a building and put his hands behind his head. Jackson complied, and moments later was pushed through a plateglass store window.

Train engineers deny negligence

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) -The engineers of two trains that crashed head-on in Bangladesh's deadliest rail accident said today that they both had received clearance to continue their journey on the same track.

Railway officials said at least 114 people died when a 10-car express train and a mail train slammed into each other Sunday outside the farming village of Maizdi Khan, about 16 miles north of Dhaka, the capital.

As many as 1,000 people were injured.

the signal at a nearby railway station was not working, but he received written clearance from the stationmaster to proceed. "I suddenly saw another train coming from the opposite direc-

at normal speed, about 50 mph. Ahmed said he left the railway station after he was given a

U.N. approves forces in Nambia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - In a cost-cutting move, the Security Council has directed that a fewer peacekeepers than originally planned should monitor South-West Africa's independence from South Africa.

The council, in unanimously approving the peacekeeping force on Monday, asked Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to identify "possible tangible cost-saving measures" to the mission.

Black-ruled nations of southern Africa had lobbied to deploy the 7,500 peacekeepers, at least 360 military police and 2,000 civilian administrators under U.N. auspices — at a cost of about $800 million a year.

But the council's five permanent members - the United States, Soviet Union, China, Britain and France — want to hold the cost to between $400 million and $500 million, diplomats said on condition of anonymity.

Namibia is to gain independence under peace accords signed Dec. 22 by Angola, Cuba and South Africa that also stipulate that 50,000 Cuban troops in neighboring Angola will leave by July 1991.

South Africa captured Namibia from Germany in World War I, and the League of Nations gave it a mandate for the mineral-rich territory. The U.N. General Assembly revoked the mandate in 1966 but South Africa refused to

Historian believes Earhart crashed

LONDON (AP) - An air historian says he has unearthed evidence suggesting U.S. aviator Amelia Earhart ran out of fuel and crashed about 30 miles short of a Pacific island on her round-theworld flight a half-century ago.

Roy Nesbit, a former British air force navigator, said Monday he discovered a letter Earhart wrote to Britain's aviation authority saying she intended to carry 1,000 gallons of fuel aboard her Lockheed Electra on the flight over the Pacific, some of which crossed over British Commonwealth territory.

He said Earhart's navigator, Fred Noonan, also was reported by The Daily Telegraph of Sydney, Australia, as saying the twinengine plane would be loaded with 950 gallons for the flight from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland Island, a speck of land in the central Pacific.

The record-setting pilot never arrived on Howlett Island, disappearing near the end of a 2,550-mile flight over water on July 2, 1937.

No trace of the plane or its pilot and navigator were found, and theories about their fate have since abounded, including one that Earhart landed on another island, was imprisoned by the Japanese and was executed as a spy.

"With 950 gallons, they could have made it, just," Nesbit, 67, said in a telephone interview. "But, unfortunately, she experienced relatively strong head winds on the failing to find Howlett Island.

No trace of the plane or were found, and theories about their fate have. since abounded, including one that Earhart landed on another island, was imprisoned by the Japanese and was executed as a spy.

flight and her safety margin evaporated. So she must have come down in the sea.

Nesbit, whose research was published in the February edition of Aeroplane Monthly magazine, calculated that Earhart was flying about 35 miles west or northwest of Howlett Island when her last, frantic message that she was about to crash was received by the U.S. coast guard cutter, Itasca, 20 hours and 20 minutes after takeoff.

"It is evident she must have come down in the sea a few minutes later, when she believed she was nowhere near Howlett Island," Nesbit wrote.

Nesbit says other researchers have suggested Earhart landed on the Japanese-controlled Mili Atoll 23 hours and 10 minutes after takeoff, having turned back after

"This suggests the flight duration was the maximum possible if its pilot and navigator the Electra had been fueled to capacity," he wrote.

The aircraft, converted from a Lockheed airliner, had a fuel capacity of 1,150 gallons, he said, but in a Feb. 13, 1937, letter to the director of Britain's Civil Aviation Authority, Earhart wrote that she intended to carry "probably 1,000 gallons of gasoline" on her longest flight over the Pacific. Nesbit said he found the original letter written by Earhart on her headed notepaper and bearing her signature in London's Public Record Office.

He said that according to fuel consumption figures supplied to him by Lockheed, 950 gallons would have given the twin-engine plane an endurance of 20 hours and 13 minutes.

In her final message, Earhart said she was flying north and south on a line but did not give a reference point.

"This sounds as though Amelia was chasing shadows on the surface of the sea, formed by the cumulus clouds above, or was flying toward more distant clouds in the hope that these were the smoke which the Itasca was making, Nesbit wrote.

He dismissed the notion that she was on a mission to photograph the Japanese-held island of Truk, saying she would have crossed it at

Fast track business courses geared for adults

From Better Homes and Gardens

A Meredith Magazine Certificate programs appeal to adults who want to learn specific job skills but don't need a degree. Program participants take a series of short noncredit courses leading to a certificate, such as the certificate in management.

According to Better Homes and Gardens magazine, most programs are geared for working adults who attend class at night or on weekends.

Depending on the school, an entire program can range from $200 for a professional secretary program to $2,900 for a legal assistant certificate. Financial aid is available; employers sometimes will subsidize a course.

 Admission is a snap. Some programs have no entry requirements. Others require only a college degree. Many courses also downplay tests, grades and assignments, so pressure is minimal. That makes it easier. • Practical emphasis. Certificate courses skim over theory and go directly to practice.

"You study things that happen every day at work," says Philadelphia's Deborah Stanek, who completed a certification course at Villanova University's management program. "In my writing course, we edited memos we were preparing on the job," she grams to see if they can handle college classes. Raul Heredia's paralegal program at Chicago's Roosevelt University let him try out a new career without spending years preparing for it.

 Quick results. In some programs, students take only the courses needed to pass a certifying exam. Individual courses may last only six weeks, and entire programs, a year or less.

 A chance to update old skills. When Joyce Brock of Des Moines, Iowa, began a professional secretaries' program, she'd been a secretary for 31 years. Now, her experience, certificate and training give her an edge.

Despite their benefits, certificate programs aren't for everyone. Disadvantages include:

 Unknown quantity. Some employers who value a master's degree in business administration aren't familiar with certificate programs

• Limited application. If one changes jobs, a certificate that counts for promotion in one company may not be recognized by another. Problems transferring credit. Most programs offer noncredit classes, which won't transfer if students decide to apply to a degree program later. Before enrolling consider: What's the school's track record? What percentage of its students get new jobs or promotions?

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - The wife of slain Egyptian President Anwar Sadat made an unannounced appearance at a fund-raiser honoring talk show host Johnny Carson, praising the comedian and calling for peace. Jihan Sadat praised Carson as 'an American who is a household name throughout the world, a man who has humorously chided us for our shortcomings and brought laughter into our lives." The star-studded dinner Sunday night also was held to raise money for scholarships in Carson's name to Hebrew University of Jerusalem, publicist Lee Solters said. "Our goal must be books and brotherhood. We must pledge that there will be no more war. widows and no more war orphans and no more war veterans," said Mrs. Sadat, a longtime supporter of the university. "We can carry out that pledge through higher education, for knowledge is a giant step toward understanding, and understanding leads to peace.' Carson, host of NBC-TV's "The

King's message has enduring power of truth

DEAR ABBY: This week we pay tribute to a great American, Martin Luther King Jr. His words of wisdom are even more meaningful today than they were 22 years ago, when he said: "One day somebody should remind us that even though there may be political and ideological differences between us, the Vietnamese are our brothers, the Russians are our brothers, the Chinese are our brothers; and one day we've got to sit down together at the table of brotherhood.'

DEAR ABBY: If people wonder why grocery prices are so high, perhaps I can shine a little light on the subject. I am a cashier for a large grocery store in a very well-to-do suburb of Chicago. You would not believe what we find in the evening when we close the store: Frozen turkeys and $30 roasts in the magazine racks, half-eaten bags of nuts and candy stuck here and there, frozen food thawing outside the freezer, and foods that shouldn't be frozen in the freezer!

We realize that shoppers have the right to change their minds while shopping, or at times could find themselves short of money, but all they have to do is give the unwanted items to the nearest cashier or stock clerk, who will gladly return the items to their proper places. It's a sin to see so much food wasted because people are either too embarrassed or too lazy to put them back.

If more customers realized that they are the ones who pay for all the spoiled food, perhaps they'd be more careful. - TIRED OF WASTE

Rice hurting; questionable

AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — The thought of playing a Super Bowl without Jerry Rice is enough to nauseate any San Francisco 49er fan. Or player. Or coach.

It's not something the NFC champions will have to stomach on Sunday, despite the ankle injury Rice suffered in practice Monday. Just ask any 49er - or any Cincinnati Bengal.

"If he can't walk, he'll play," Joe Montana said. The 49ers quarterback knows his All-Pro receiver isn't about to let his first Super Bowl appearance hinge on a twinge six days before kickoff. "Believe me, he'll play. I'll drag him out

If he doesn't do the dragging, Bengals coach Sam Wyche might. "This is a game where the two teams should be at full strength," Wyche said. "I hope he can play. Jerry Rice is one of the best players they've got and one of the best players in the league. "I hope all of them play, on both

tice after injuring his right ankle and was listed as questionable for this rematch of the 1982 Super Bowl, San Francisco's first of two NFL championships. In the minds of the medics, there might be a question.

As for Rice's teammates and opponents, forget it.

"He's the man you want to get the football to," Cincinnati Pro Bowl safety David Fulcher said of Rice, who when healthy is the most dangerous receiver in the game. 'Nobody at this time is going to miss a game like this and I'm sure he knows how important he is to that team."

How important? When Rice's ankle finally healed this season, the 49ers went on a four-game tear that boosted them to the NFC West title. In those four games, Rice averaged five receptions for 104

"He's our gamebreaker," Montana said. "That's no secret. And you go to your big-play guy in big games. That's not a secret, either. "Knowing Jerry Rice, he will be on the field and doing his job." That's all he was doing when he went down in practice.

"He did a hook pattern and finished it off and then he went in," Montana said. "I didn't know it

"I don't think it means much if he doesn't (practice). By this time, we're not learning anything new about each other.

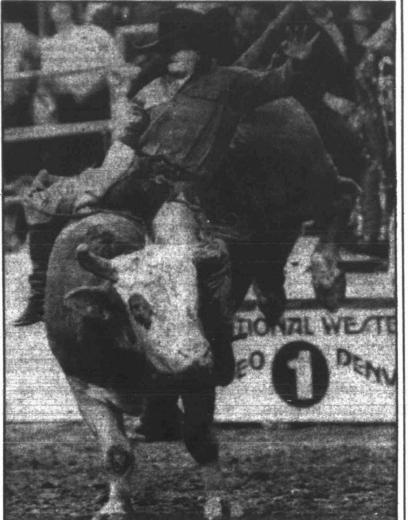

Bill Walsh wasn't so sure. "So much of our offense is related to Montana getting the ball to Rice and without that timing and that week of work, it reduces our effectiveness," the coach said. 'We'll rest him completely. We feel he'll be OK."

"If he needs the time to rest and heal," Montana added, "he should

For six weeks this season, Rice had trouble taking it to anybody. Because of the sprained ankle and the tendinitis that followed, he didn't have more than four receptions in any of those games and scored only once. Because San Francisco didn't have another deep threat, the team slumped.

In the playoffs, with the ankle strong and the tendinitis gone, he has 10 catches, half of them for come as a surprise to some faithful readers who were offered a pinup sports calendar rather than "luscious photos of beautiful women in swimsuits" a year ago.

In a testament to the selling power of midwinter swimsuit issues, the February Sport has a dark-haired model appropriately dressed for what the headline over the magazine title called its "Hot Swimsuit Issue."

The magazine's executives note that new owners - and a new editor — have taken over since the last policy pronouncement on swimsuits. Petersen Publishing Co., based in Los Angeles, bought the magazine last summer.

And the new owners say they are giving the predominantly-male sports magazine audience what it wants, as demonstrated by the huge popularity of the swimsuit issues from its rivals, Sports Illustrated and Inside Sports.

Sport is reviving its swimsuit issue just weeks before Sports Illustrated celebrates the 25th anniversary of its first swimsuit edition with a blitz that will include a pay-cable program, a home video and a desk calendar.

NEW YORK (AP) - Sport baseball seasons when many Normagazine's latest issue may have thern cities are snowbound and sports fans are blue.

The swimsuit issues periodically have sparked protests that the sections are sexist, exploit women and are unsuited to a sports magazine. Some readers threaten subscription cancellations, although publisher Donald Barr said he had fewer than 50 cancellations due to last year's swimsuit issue.

Sports Illustrated charges about 28 percent more for ad space and 75 percent more for a single copy of its swimsuit issue. It expects to sell nearly 5.5 million copies of this year's special issue - which hits the newstands Feb. 6 — compared with the usual 3 million for regular Home Box Office Inc. plans to air a 47-minute video about shooting the swimsuit issue Feb. 9. A slightly longer home video will be available a few days later in video, retail and magazine stores, and retailers have reportedly ordered about 350,000 copies, which will be priced at $19.99.

Next fall, a special 25th anniversary desk calendar will be published for 1990 using photos taken for the 1989 swimsuit issue. Tom Ettinger of Sports Illustrated Enterprises said he expects to sell about 250,000 desk calendars at $12.95 feature to brighten up the dark each in addition to 500,000 of the days between the football and usual wall calendars at $10.95 each.

Proposition 42, approved last week during the NCAA convention, prohibits athletic scholarships for incoming freshmen who don't have both a 2.0 grade-point average in high school and a minimum score of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or a similar score on another test. Three-pointer saves Rebels

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

The timing would have done a Las Vegas nightclub comic proud. It was good enough to keep the Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels from defeat.

Greg Anthony's only 3-pointer of the night came with three seconds to go and gave the 10th-ranked Rebels a 66-63 victory over lightly regarded Fullerton State.

"Maybe we're just not very good; I don't know," UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian said after Monday night's victory.

Anthony, a sophomore guard who scored just five points in the game, launched his desperation 25-footer after Fullerton's Cedric Ceballos had tied the game at 63 with 11 seconds left when he hit a 3-point jumper.

'We got outhustled at home, in front of our own people," Tarkanian moaned. At least Nevada-Las Vegas ended up a winner. The same can't be said for No. 11 Syracuse, which fell 68-62 to Connecticut.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, it was No. 6 Michigan 99, No. 16 Ohio State 73; No. 8 Missouri 104, Virginia Tech 99; No. 12 Seton Hall 78, Villanova 61; and No. 20 Stanford 93, Miami of Florida 59.

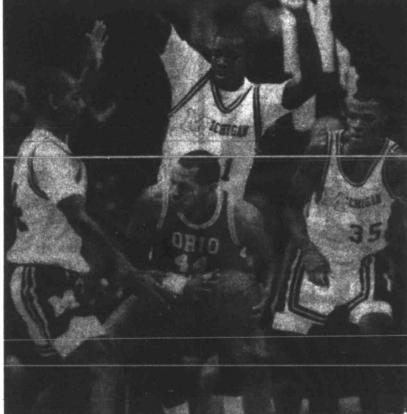

Anthony's game-winner overshadowed the performance by Ceballos, who scored 31 points, am getting as much as I can out of grabbed 13 rebounds and was 10-of-10 from the free throw line in the Big West contest.

"I'm disappointed in our effort," Tarkanian said. "I'm disappointed in our concentration. I think what happens to the kids is that they hear how strong they are and how weak everbody else is, and that's a bunch of buil."

Lakers stay perfect at home

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

In a town where 10 is considered perfect, the Los Angeles Lakers are a perfect 15.

Okay, so the Lakers actually play in Inglewood, not Hollywood. Regardless, they remained the only NBA team with a perfect home record - 15-0 - by defeating theHouston Rockets 124-113 Monday. 'We don't want to lose at home.

That's the attitude we take - we don't want to lose in our own backyard," said James Worthy, who led the two-time defending champions with 26 points. Mychal Thompson, the league leader in shooting pewcentage, came off the bench to score 13 points without missing a shot in the first half — he was a perfect 6-for-6 - as the Lakers made 47 of 72 shots for 65.3 percent, not perfect but the best in the NBA this season. Home also remained sweet for the New York Knicks, who won their 14th straight home game by defeating San Antonio 116-106 as Mark Jackson had 24 points, 10 rebounds and 12 assists, and for the Cleveland Cavaliers, who have won 10 in a row on their own floor thanks to a 126-110 victory over Phoenix as Mark Price scored 11 of his season-high 29 points in the third quarter.

Elsewhere, it was Detroit 96, Boston 87; Atlanta 117, Washington 106; Charlotte 127, Philadelphia 122 in double overtime; Denver 116, Sacramento 110 and Golden State 146, Seattle 117.

The Lakers have won 22 straight regular-season home games dating back to last season, but are only 10-12 on the road this season. They went ahead for good by outscoring the Rockets 17-2 over a 4:07 of the first quarter and put the game away by making 15 of 17 shots in the third quarter for a 95-75 lead.

Los Angeles has won three in a row and has played "a lot better offensively and defensively," according to Magic Johnson, who had 17 points, 13 rebounds and 18 assists for his eighth triple double of the season. "In the last three games, we've played 48 minutes. Before that, we had played two, 21/2
