Senate rejects raise; spotlight on House

JIM WRIGHT

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate's rejection of a 51 percent congressional pay raise places the spotlight on a House leadership plan to legalize the increase next week but scale it back to 30 percent a day later.

The Senate's 95-5 vote Thursday against the raise sent the two houses in different directions, and "no one knows" how the controversy will be resolved, said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., "I don't believe we'll know that for a matter of weeks or months."

The Senate resolution included language to roll back the raise if it becomes law and end the system allowing congressional increases, along with those for top federal executives and judges, to become law automatically unless rejected by both houses.

The chief sponsors were Republican Sens. Larry Pressler of South Dakota and Charles E. Grassley of Iowa.

Also approved, by unanimous voice vote, was a Senate rules change that would ban senators from keeping fees for speeches, articles and appearances. But the ban on such fees, typically paid by special-interest groups, would only remain in effect while senators were receiving the raise.

The Senate action has strong political appeal to a public angry with the size of the raise, but will have little practical effect under House Speaker Jim Wright's plan to let the increase become law automatically next Wednesday.

Wright plans to use a risky parliamentary procedure that requires a two-thirds majority to scale back the raise to 30 percent, and to pass a House ban on speaking fees along with other outside income restrictions.

House Democratic Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif., said there was only a 50-50 chance of getting the two-thirds while Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, and a leading pay raise opponent, predicted it would be "very difficult for the speaker to find two-thirds to vote for the resolution."

Rank-and-file lawmakers would see their salaries rise from $89,500 to $135,000 under the full raise. But the pay would be $116,350 under Wright's plan, the same amount House members can now receive in salary plus honoraria — defined as fees for speeches, appearances and articles.

Even if the Wright plan passed, the Senate would be unlikely to go along, since senators can now keep $35,800 in honoraria and would therefore lose money by accepting a smaller $26,850 raise. While the two houses haggled, the 51 percent raise would remain in effect along with the honoraria bans.

Wright explained his rollback plan at a news conference Thursday, emphasizing the virtue of banning honoraria and taking that same amount in salary. "The difference is we will be serving one master, not two, that is, the American people," he said.

"I don't like to articulate failure," Wright said, when asked what will happen if his plan is defeated. "If for some reason it doesn't work, we will regroup."

The House could try to pass the 30 percent raise by a majority, like most legislation, but opponents might be able to tack on language rescinding the raise altogether. Under the two-thirds rule, no amendments would be in order.

The House plan would scale back the raise for all three branches of government, even though the Constitution prohibits judges' pay from being reduced.

"I think the courts are likely to hold it's unconstitutional to do this to the judiciary," Wright said.

Wright released results of a survey showing 57 percent of House members opposing a pay raise vote before the Tuesday midnight deadline and 54 percent favoring instead a vote to reduce the raise to 30 percent.

Wright said his proposed $26,850

City native charged in double slaying

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

A Fort Benning, Ga. soldier from Big Spring has been charged with two counts of premeditated murder in connection with the November 1987 slayings of an Army lieutenant and a civilian woman at nearby Fort Mitchell, Ala.

Sgt. Jeffrey Lee Meeks, 29, has been charged under Article 118 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and conviction on the charges carries a maximum penalty of death, said Public Affairs Officer Lt. Col. M c D o n a l d Plummer.

Meeks was charged with the deaths of 2nd Lt. Todd Justin Dunlap, 25, and Debra Jean Nichols, 32, whose bodies were discovered by Nichols' mother on Nov. 22, 1987, at the Oswichee Trailer Park in Fort Mitchell, Plummer said.

Davis confirmed criminal investigators from the Russell County district attorney's office and the CID are in Big Spring today "gathering evidence related to the slayings" and the source said authorities hope to locate the pistol and knife allegedly used in the murders.

District Judge James Gregg said that he signed an "evidentiary search warrant" this morning in connection with the Alabama homicides.

The majority of residents at the trailer park — located directly in back of the base — are military personnel and their dependents, Plummer explained.

The military installation and trailer park are located on the Georgia/Alabama state line — separated only by the Chattahoochee River, Plummer said.

"Meeks was taken in for questioning about the homicides on Friday (Jan. 27) and was implicated as a suspect," Plummer said. "He was taken into custody early Saturday morning."

He is being held in a Fort Benning detention center.

Plummer refused to comment about a possible motive in the slayings. Russell County, Ala. District Attorney Ken Davis confirmed this morning that investigators have uncovered what they believe is a motive in the homicides, but

Cold front freezes Texas, Big Spring

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

A strong Arctic cold front brought sleet and snow today to large sections of North and West Texas, closing some freeways and delaying airline flights. Wind chill, meanwhile, plummeted local temperatures below the zero mark.

The winter storm coated bridges and roadways in the Dallas-Fort Worth area with a thick layer of ice and police reported several freeways were closed from traffic accidents, several involving tractor-trailer rigs.

A 4-inch gas line ruptured about 3:30 a.m., cutting service to about 850 homes in Paducah, east-northeast of Lubbock.

Big Spring's high temperature Thursday afternoon was 71 before the temperature began to plummet. The low Friday morning was 11 degrees — recorded at 8 a.m. — with a wind chill of minus 25, according to a spokeswoman with the Agricultural Research Station.

With temperatures in the single digits, schools were closed and residents were asked to move to electrically heated buildings, including the Paducah Senior Citizens Shelter.

"The whole town is out of gas," said Paducah City Manager Bill Cartwright. "It's a real mess."

About 50 Lone Star Gas workers were trying to repair the break, located 12 miles south of Childress. Spokesman Breck Harris in Fort Worth said it was uncertain whether the problem was weather-related.

West Texas Utilities has been supplying elderly people in Paducah with electric heaters until natural gas service was expected to resume by midday.

The storm brought heavy rains to East Texas, where some farm-to-market roads and bridges were closed by high water in the Longview area.

In Austin, it was 25 degrees at 9 a.m. and the temperature was expected to drop into the teens tonight, according to Jim Dugan, an NWS forecaster.

Paraplegic reprising cross-country trek

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

John Enright traveled across the United States in a wheelchair in 1983 to heighten public awareness of the rights of the handicapped.

The trip — which he began only nine months after undergoing spinal surgery that left him paralyzed from the waist down — was a grueling 97-day adventure that took Enright from New Jersey to California.

His accomplishment elicited nationwide news coverage and praise from then-President Ronald Reagan, who called the journey "an outstanding feat of courage."

But feeling much more progress needs to be made in both paralysis research and combatting discrimination against the handicapped, Enright left Santa Monica Dec. 10, 1988 to travel across the country again.

However, this time, Enright, along with his wife, Vicki, plans to make a return trip across the country. He hopes their journey will energize the newly established Will Power Foundation, a not-for-profit organization designed to provide financial support for paralysis research centers and physically disabled students, and to provide equipment for the physically disabled.

"A lot of things are happening to further the rights of the handicapped, and we complement society," Enright said while at the local Veterans Administration Medical

John Enright, who is making a 10,000-mile trip across the United States to heighten awareness of the rights of handicapped people, talks with Sammy Dennard, a rehabilitation therapist at the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital.

Center. "But there is so much that needs to be done. We're just putting in our little effort to help out."

Enright, an aerospace engineer from Van Nuys, Calif., deviated from the planned Southern leg of his tour to come to the Big Spring hospital and speak to therapists and wheelchair-bound patients.

Averaging 35 miles a day, he plans to cover more than 10,000 miles during a 10-month period. His Texas route includes scheduled speaking engagements at hospitals and rehabilitation centers in towns ranging from Sweetwater and Lubbock to Dallas and Houston.

Enright's goals are to raise $1 million for the Will Power Foundation, to focus attention on the need for accessible building and restrooms for the handicapped, to inspire others with handicaps and help foster understanding of the handicapped experience.

Enright "walked into a hospital and wheeled out" after an operation to remove scar tissue on his spinal cord when he was 22 years old. He said even though he was the same person after being confined to a wheelchair he found people treated him differently.

He also quickly discovered that many buildings were inaccessible to people in wheelchairs. An outgoing, athletic type, Enright said he made the adjustment to riding in freight elevators and having to ask people to carry him into restaurants.

But many others with handicaps will let such impediments deter them from leaving their home, he said, adding that handicapped people "shouldn't have to bear the indignity."

"After you've gone on a freight elevator in the back of a restaurant a couple times, you feel like you should be wearing a sign around your neck saying, 'prime rib $4.95 a pound,'" he joked.

He added, "Until there's a cure (for paralysis) we should make it accessible for a person to get around. (Handicapped people) are just as much a viable part of society as any else. And the less dependent you are the more self-esteem you have. Then you don't have to end up in a hospital bed letting someone take care of you the rest of your life."

Enright described his second cross-country trek as special because Vicki — a health maintenance organization coordinator from Los Angeles, whom he married in March of 1988 — will be making the trip with him.

New allegation forces postponement of vote

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A Senate panel will extend its investigation of John Tower after new allegations surfaced about President Bush's choice for defense secretary, reportedly concerning his drinking habits and relationships with women.

Tower, a onetime chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, had appeared on a clear path to confirmation after telling his former colleagues he had no alcohol problem and would not be swayed by past business ties with defense contractors.

But the chairman of the panel, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said that the committee received new accusations Wednesday afternoon and evening as did the White House, and both forwarded them to the FBI.

Nunn interrupted a committee hearing on another matter Thursday to announce that an expected vote on the Tower nomination that day had been postponed.

"The file is still not complete and there are members now who have made a request to review certain items in the files, so we will not be voting today," Nunn said.

Nunn and the ranking Republican on the panel, Sen. John Warner of Virginia, later met with the FBI and Sherrie Marshall, assistant to White House counsel C. Boyden Gray, to discuss the new information.

"It's not over till it's over," Nunn said. "The investigation is not over until all serious allegations have been checked, and that's the process we always follow."

Nunn refused to describe the allegations or identify the source. But Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., said the committee would tend "to give more weight to sources who don't have an ax to grind."

The new allegations involve reports of womanizing and drinking, according to network and newspaper reports.

The Washington Post, quoting unnamed sources involved in the investigation, said the allegations dealt with "incidents of a relatively recent nature that had previously been unreported to the FBI." An unidentified woman who worked with Tower in Geneva told CBS on Thursday that she had seen Tower chase a secretary around his desk.

Further delaying the vote was the request by two unidentified committee members to review the FBI report. Previously, only Nunn and Warner had read the report.

Warner said he hoped the committee would be able to vote next week, possibly Monday, on the nomination.

Exon said he believed the nomination was "still in question," but not in jeopardy. Another committee member, Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., said he didn't think Tower was in trouble, but rather was "just strung along."

No smugglers spotted by blimp

DEMING, N.M. (AP) — A stationary radar blimp that has been hovering three miles above Deming hasn't spotted any drug-smugglers' planes in its first two months of operation, but officials believe the device is still a success.

The $18 million, helium-filled balloon, called an aerostat, has forced drug smugglers to either fly into the United States somewhere else along the border or to drive across the border — a much riskier proposition, U.S. Customs spokesman Charles Conroy said Thursday.

The Deming aerostat was deployed Dec. 3. It is the second of a planned network of six aerostats along the U.S.-Mexican border.

The sophisticated radar aboard the Boeing 747-size aerostats is designed to detect low-flying smugglers' aircraft. It appears the smugglers have been avoiding the radar balloons.

Conroy said Customs officials believe airborne drug smugglers have switched to areas along the border unprotected by radar — principally the California and Texas borders — or are driving their loads across.

The aerostat's existence might be the reason for huge increases in cocaine and marijuana seizures by U.S. Border Patrol agents at highway checkpoints in West Texas and southern New Mexico, Conroy said.

Earth cracks could kill dump site

EL PASO (AP) — Cracks in the earth that look like a series of ditches constitute the latest hope for opponents of a proposed low-level radioactive waste dump site in Hudspeth County.

Opponents have another weapon: they contend the proposed site sits in a floodplain that can be expected to be inundated once a century — meaning the place would be unsuitable as a radioactive dump site under federal guidelines.

But executives of the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority contend the cracks and the floodplain are either nonexistent or minor concerns.

The dump, 37 miles east of El Paso, would store low-level radioactive materials from hospitals, research labs and businesses.

Officially, the disposal authority is studying the site and has not chosen it, but opponents point out that the authority is looking only at the Hudspeth County site. They say the authority has settled on the dump site but won't admit it.

Jeff Keaton, an engineering geologist heading the team that will study the crack for the Rio Grande Council of Governments, said: "I believe the fissure is a feature of such great geological significance that this site won't be licensed."

Elderly cat lover fined $50

FORT WORTH (AP) — A lawyer for an 80-year-old woman has vowed to appeal the widow's $50 fine for not keeping her cat under control.

Meanwhile, Nan Farris has promised to keep better watch over her feline friends.

"If they get out, I can't help it," she said after being fined Thursday. "But I'm going to do my best to keep them on my own property," she added.

A Municipal Court jury found Ms. Farris violated the city's leash law for cats and had failed to immunize the animal against rabies.

She could have been fined up to $900 for the escapades of her cat, which a neighbor claimed used his property as a litter box.

Charges against Ms. Farris involved two of six citations she has received since July.

Lawmaker: Stop dropouts from driving

AUSTIN (AP) — Potential school dropouts will not be persuaded to stay in school by "public relations campaigns" alone, says a state lawmaker who has filed a bill to take away some dropouts' driver's licenses.

"Obviously, all the propaganda that we have had has not worked," Rep. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, said Thursday. "We need to look at other methods of trying to combat the dropout problem."

One study has shown the Texas dropout rate to be 34 percent overall, with a 26 percent rate for whites, 38 percent for blacks and 46 percent for Hispanics.

"I think that this (driving) is a privilege that especially students in high school like and cherish, and if in any way is endangered, hopefully this would motivate them to continue" in school, Lucio said at a news conference.

Lucio said that under his bill, school districts would be required to notify the Texas Department of Public Safety of a student who drops out. The student then would have his or her driving privileges revoked for up to a year, he said.

The DPS couldn't reinstate a license before one year, unless the student re-enrolled in school and had been in attendance for a full semester without any unexcused absences.

The bill is expected to be changed to allow exceptions for special cases, Lucio said, such as students who drop out for economic reasons and must drive to work, or those who earn a high-school equivalency diploma.

Lucio also said he would work to ensure the bill would not conflict with the compulsory attendance law, which requires students to attend school through the year of their 16th birthday. The bill probably would apply to 15- and 16-year-olds, he said.

West Virginia lawmakers last year passed a bill allowing the state to take away the driver's licenses of students under age 18 who drop out, with exceptions. Lucio said a number of states are watching to see how the law works there.

Lucio said he thinks his proposal is "probably not as severe as the no pass, no play rule. ... These are students that are really trying to make an effort to represent their schools, their communities and yet we're telling them they can't play football or be involved in UIL if they have five As and one F."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby called the driver's license suspension proposal "pretty drastic."

"I think particularly rural senators might have a little problem with that," Hobby said.

Texas trade center will assist small businesses

DALLAS (AP) — A trade center, designed to provide export and import help for small businesses, will open June 1 at the World Trade Center in Dallas and should rival all others outside of New York City, the mayors of Fort Worth and Dallas said.

Dallas Mayor Annette Strauss and Fort Worth Mayor Bob Bolen said in a joint announcement Thursday that the center is the result of local political and business cooperation unparalleled since the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport opened in 1974.

A Fort Worth branch of the center will open in June of next year, probably in the downtown business district, Bolen said.

Chuck Jarvie, director of Guinness America Inc. and chairman of Dallas' Council on International Planning, said the founding of the center will help the Metroplex reverse its dreary record of non-defense exporting.

Bolen said the center will fill a big resource void.

"The Tandys and GDs and the rest of them know how to do it," Bolen said. "We're going after the small guy, the guy just going out into the marketplace."

The Dallas-Fort Worth International Trade Resource Center will occupy 6,400 square feet, which the World Trade Center virtually is donating.

Six staff workers will provide businesses with data on international markets and trade opportunities, and will act as liaisons with foreign concerns.

Businesses will be able to use a trade library, and seven Metroplex universities will give classes at the center and open campus classes to center users.

The World Trade Center is part of the eight-building Dallas Market Center on the Stemmons Freeway northwest of downtown Dallas.

The North Texas Commission, a regional economic development group, will provide $250,000 for the staffing and operation over the first few years, and the remainder of the $800,000 annual budget is to be raised from private business.

Minor bumps could cost thousands on 1989 cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Minor accidents that would have caused no damage to a 1981 small car can bring a big repair bill for 1989 models, according to insurance industry tests.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety intentionally crashed 19 new 1989 two-door cars at 5 mph into two flat barriers, once going forward and once backward, and then bumped the front end of each car into an angle barrier and the back end into a post.

Damage estimates calculated in January ranged from $3,445 for an Isuzu Impulse to $494 for a Geo Spectrum.

Identical tests on a new Ford Escort in 1981 caused no damage, institute spokesman Brian O'Neill said Thursday.

A 1989 Ford Escort suffered no damage in the straight-on barrier tests but the repair cost after the other two tests totaled $1,481.

O'Neill said the low-speed tests were conducted over the past month at test facilities in Hartwood, Va., using new cars purchased anonymously by the institute, which is financed by the insurance industry.

The highest repair estimates were for the Isuzu Impulse, the Daihatsu Charade at $3,047 and the Honda CRX HF at $3,040. The least damaged cars after the Geo Spectrum were the Toyota Corolla with $495 in damage and the Plymouth Colt with $642.

Prior to the 1983 model year, federal law required that cars sustain no damage in 5 mph front and rear barrier tests. For newer models, the standard was lowered to 2.5 mph.

Nine cars sustained no damage at all in the front and rear barrier tests in the 1989 study but all were damaged when nudged up against the angle barrier and pole.

Ford Motor Co. spokeswoman Joyce Stinson said the difference in damage to the Escort is due to changes in the model that include a lightweight bumper to help Ford meet federally imposed mileage standards. Lighter cars use less gas.

She said the pole and angle tests are "very tough" but Ford has voluntarily built other models to comply with the pre-1983 standard for straight-on barrier crashes rather than the less-stringent 2.5 mph standard.

A spokesman for Isuzu, Dan McCue, said the company had requested documentation on the testing and would not respond until it could study the material.

Kurt Antonius, spokesman for American Honda in Los Angeles, said the CRX HF model is designed for fuel economy with a lighter bumper but other Honda models have stronger bumpers than last year.

"The most important thing is that this is not related to auto safety," he said. The tests did not cover any injuries that might occur to driver or passengers in low-speed crashes.

The institute said a basic 1989 Honda CRX model suffered $2,061 in damage, compared with $2,782 damage in a previous test on a 1988 model of the same car.

"This improvement is encouraging," said O'Neill, "but there was still a lot of damage to the '89 and a very long way to go."

The fourth most-damaged car, a Chrysler Conquest TSi, with a repair estimate totaling $2,357, required a new front fender costing $300.

Bill Dunn, a Chrysler Corp. spokesman, said he could not comment on the results without knowing more about criteria used for the tests and damage estimates.

Women charged with prostitution

By MICHAEL DUFFY Staff Writer

Prostitution charges were filed Thursday afternoon in county court against three women arrested by police in December at the Melba Hotel, Howard County Attorney Hardy Wilkerson confirmed.

Capt. Lonnie Smith said the police department filed investigative reports in connection with the prostitution arrests with the county attorney's office about two weeks ago and reports have also been filed with the district attorney's office.

The women were arrested at the hotel, 813 E. Third St., on the night of Dec. 19 on prostitution charges following an investigation prompted by a citizen's complaint.

Arrested on a third-degree felony charge of aggravated promotion of prostitution was Evelyn M. Young, 61, according to police.

Young is the owner of the hotel, according to courthouse records. Also arrested on prostitution charges — a Class B misdemeanor — were Kimberly Ann Marqua, 20, Denton, and Wilma Fay Rutherford, 23, Oklahoma City, according to police.

Cheryl Ann Higgins, 28, Arlington, was arrested on a second-degree prostitution charge, a Class A misdemeanor, however, Wilkerson said he filed a first-offense charge against the woman because of time delays involved in locating court-related documents.

Higgins was previously convicted of misdemeanor prostitution in Tennessee, Wilkerson said.

He added that the women will face pre-trial hearings on the charges in early to mid-March.

The women were released on bonds ranging from $500 to $1,500 several hours after they were arrested.

District Attorney Rick Hamby — who will prosecute Young on the felony if he makes a determination it is warranted — confirmed he has received the police department report on the woman's arrest and is "looking into the matter."

Sources close to the investigation said the charge against Young may be reduced to a Class A misdemeanor.

If the charge against Young is reduced, Wilkerson said he and Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby will make a determination at a future date as to what office will handle the prosecution. Chief Joe Cook has said police used two "operatives" — not police officers — to solicit alleged sexual favors. The arrests occurred inside the Melba Hotel, Cook said.

Under the Texas Penal Code, a person commits the offense of prostitution if he knowingly:

- Offers to engage, agrees to engage, or engages in sexual conduct for a fee; or
- Solicits another in a public place to engage with him in sexual conduct for hire.

An offense is established, according to the penal code, by whether the participant is to receive, or pay a fee; or whether the participant solicits a person to hire him or offers to hire the person solicited.

According to the penal code, a person commits the offense of promotion of prostitution if, acting other than as a prostitute receiving compensation for personally rendered prostitution services, he or she knowingly:

- Receives money or other property pursuant to an agreement to participate in the proceeds of prostitution; or
- Solicits another to engage in sexual conduct with another person for compensation.

A person commits the offense of aggravated promotion of prostitution if he knowingly owns; invests in; finances; controls; supervises or manages a prostitution enterprise that uses two or more prostitutes, according to the penal code.

Hamby said police must prove to his satisfaction that Young was aware that acts of prostitution were being conducted in the hotel for the felony charge to be considered by a grand jury.

Young was arrested on a charge of promotion of prostitution at the Howard House Hotel in 1982, but the case was never presented to a grand jury, according to published reports.

Pay raise

pay raise was "a decent raise but not an exorbitant raise," compared with the $45,500 increase proposed by former President Reagan and endorsed by President Bush.

Actually, most House members would find their incomes substantially increased, since fewer than half reach the current honoraria limit of 30 percent of income, according to their financial disclosures.

The five senators who voted against the package to eliminate the currently-proposed pay increase were Christopher Dodd, D-Conn.; Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii; Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska; and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

Their votes do not necessarily mean they support the 51 percent raise.

The Senate honoraria package would:

- Prohibit acceptance of honoraria, but allow a donation to charity on the members' behalf. Donations would be limited to $2,000 per appearance.
- Prohibit members from receiving any pension or tax benefit resulting from the charitable payments.
- Prohibit conversion of the charitable donations to personal use by a member or former member.
- Require the Senate ethics committee to issue guidelines for travel expenses reimbursed by outside individuals or organizations.

Sheriff's log

The Howard County sheriff's department reported the following incidents as of 9 a.m. today:

- Mathew Derrick Scholes, 27,

no address given, was arrested on a charge of aggravated assault. He is being held without bond on a parole revocation warrant.

• Mary Lou Davis, 39, address unavailable, was transferred to Comanche County authorities on a bench warrant.

Board reviews 911 remodeling needs

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Members of the Howard County 911 Emergency Telephone District Board listened to a presentation Thursday by Bill Brooks on the cost of remodeling the public safety answering point, administrator Carl Dorton said.

"We were trying to get some figures about the cost of remodeling (the control center) facilities to receive 911 calls and see how it fits into our budget," Dorton said.

The 911 control center will be located within the Big Spring Police Department.

He added that a contract for remodeling services must be approved by the Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan city councils and the Howard County Commissioners Court.

Board members also discussed liability insurance for the 911 system, however, Dorton said prohibitive costs have created a temporary problem with acquiring insurance.

"We're looking at another course of action — like possibly obtaining individual insurance for each town," he explained.

Dorton said he is continuing to issue addresses for residences in the rural areas of Howard County and has spoken to Big Spring Postmaster Howard Riche who has agreed to assist in the process.

"Once the new addresses have been finalized, county residents will still have the option of receiving their mail at their old or new addresses for one year," he said.

There are 14,000 residences in Howard County with telephones — 1,500 of which are located in rural areas, Dorton said.

The 911 system will become fully operational on March 24, 1990, Dorton said.

Meeks

declined to elaborate.

The source said Meeks was questioned by military investigators the week of the slayings, but was not believed to be a suspect at the time.

He became a suspect last week when inconsistencies in his original statements were discovered, the source said.

"Mr. Meeks was interviewed last Friday as a possible witness, but statements he gave investigators led us to believe he was a primary suspect," Davis said.

The military charges against Meeks allege he killed Dunlap by cutting his throat, stabbing him with a knife and shooting him with a .45-caliber pistol; and that he caused Nichols' death by cutting her throat, beating her with a fireplace poker and repeatedly stabbing her, Plummer said. He added that the bodies were discovered bound with tape and the couple had been gagged.

An autopsy report revealed that the victims died as a result of having their throats cut, although Davis said Dunlap was stabbed 15 times and Nichols sustained "at least seven or eight stab wounds."

A task force was formed in December to probe the slayings and was comprised of investigators from the Alabama attorney general's office; Russell County (Ala.) sheriff's department and district attorney's office; the U.S. Army's Criminal Investigation Command and Central Intelligence Division; and the Alabama Bureau of Investigation, Davis said.

"The task force was formed because it had been over a year and we still didn't have a suspect in the case," he said. Under military law, Meeks must face court martial proceedings on the charges within 90 days, the lieutenant colonel noted.

Davis said his office and the U.S. Army have "concurrent jurisdiction" and he and will present evidence against Meeks to a Russell County grand jury.

"I expect Mr. Meeks to be indicted on capital murder charges," he said.

He was graduated from Big Spring High School on Feb. 27, 1978, according to school officials.

Meeks entered the U.S. Army in April 1978 and underwent basic training at Fort Huachuca, Ariz. He has been stationed at Fort Benning since December 1986 and is a member of the 197th Infantry Brigade, an intelligence unit, Plummer said.

Police beat

Big Spring police reported investigating the following incidents:

- Bruce David Allred, 32, San Angelo, was arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated and driving while license suspended.

• A man who resides in the 2200 block of Morrison Drive reported unknown persons took items valued at $450.

• A woman reported unknown persons took a $100 bill and a pair of sunglasses valued at $35 from her vehicle parked in the 3300 block of Interstate 20.

• The owner of Lilly's, 3704 W. Highway 80, reported unknown persons took items valued at $381.

• The theft of items valued at $3,605 were reported taken from a storage facility at Comanche Trail Park Municipal Golf Course and Pro Shop.

• A man who resides in the 1700 block of South Yale Avenue reported unknown persons took items of unspecified value.

follows him in a van donated by the Chrysler Corporation. They plan to celebrate their first anniversary while in New Orleans.

Although the couple doesn't have a paid support crew, people who have read about their journey or seen media reports have invited them to stay in their homes, and have also provided moral support. "Texans have been especially supportive of the couple's efforts, Enright said. People have stopped to talk with them on the road, made donations to the Will Power Foundation and contacted friends and relatives in other cities who plan to welcome the couple upon their arrival.

"Texans have been extremely, extremely friendly," he said. "People talk about Southern hospitality. There's a lot to be said for it."

For Enright, there's also much to be said for and about accepting people for who they are.

"It's not just physical handicaps we're talking about," he said. "Everybody has some personal handicap they're trying to overcome. We're trying to say: 'Let's not think with our eyes. Let's think with our minds.'"

Tainted DWI cases to be dropped

AUSTIN (AP) — A Travis County judge has tossed out a driving-while-intoxicated case, the first of as many as 200 such cases destined for dismissal because the arresting state trooper allegedly made up information under oath and in offense reports.

County Court-at-Law Judge Wilfred Aguilar, who dismissed the case Thursday, said people with DWI convictions based on the testimony of Jimmy Lee Holmes, the Department of Public Safety trooper, should seek the advice of a lawyer.

Holmes, an eight-year DPS veteran, was suspended with pay Wednesday because of a department investigation into the allegations against him.

Cold snap homeless activists continued to stay in a group of huts constructed on rafts and floating in Town Lake, said Ronnie North of the Street Peoples Advisory Council.

"Everything was just fine. They have it set up so they're pretty warm inside the enclosed space," said North.

Central Texans were running for firewood. Hill Country Firewood in Austin said they were booked with deliveries through Wednesday.

"We've been getting an average of 50 calls a day since everyone heard about the cold weather," said co-owner Patricia Fleming.

A First Annual February Beach Party at Bachman Lake in Dallas Thursday was greeted by temperatures in the 30s, and contestants traded their swimsuits in for long pants.

In North Texas, officials did what they could to keep roads and airports open, but freezing rain and icy winds threatened to stall most activity throughout the day.

The brunt of the storm moved through Abilene, into the Dallas-Fort Worth area and on to Paris in the northeast. Temperatures continued to plunge and visibility cut to a minimum. A windchill of 10 degrees below zero was reported at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport about 1:30 a.m. today.

"The air is so cold at the surface that it's just turning into freezing rain and sleet," said David Martin, an NWS meteorologist in Fort Worth.

Child-care compromise

Has the kinder, gentler government that President Bush is calling for inspired the 101st Congress? Recently, liberal Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., announced that conservative Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, is one of the co-sponsors of the Democrats' $2.5 billion child-care bill. Sen. Hatch responded several days later by listing Sen. Dodd as a co-sponsor of the less-expensive Republican version.

This newfound spirit of bipartisanship has political analysts scratching their heads in disbelief because the child-care issue in the past has prompted bitter wrangling between Democrats and Republicans. Last year, there were more than 100 unsuccessful proposals to provide federal assistance to two-earner families. Yet, the combatants now appear determined to achieve a compromise that will be acceptable to President Bush. Whether they can pull it off is another matter.

Predictably, the Democrats and Republicans approach the problem of child care from opposite positions. The Democrats favor federal subsidies for low- and middle-income working families and a system of national health and safety standards for day-care facilities. For their part, the Republicans support modest tax credits to help poorer families with their child-care expenses. They also oppose the creation of a costly, expanding federal bureaucracy to oversee child care centers.

News reports advise that both sides have agreed to give states greater latitude on how to spend federal day-care funds, provide for employer-sponsored programs, and permit payments to relatives, such as grandparents, aunts, and uncles who provide such care. But what about those parents who put their children in day-care centers operated by churches or synagogues? The Democrats' bill would deny federal assistance to centers with religious affiliations; the Republican measure allows credit for church-supported care centers.

Another problem is the income ceiling. The Democrats' measure would subsidize day care for families earning as much as $48,000 per year. The Republican bill would fund only the poorest families. Under current law, there are no income limits in order to qualify for tax credits for day care. This, in turn, enables the wealthiest 30 percent of the families to receive 50 percent of the $4 billion in such benefits while the poorest third receives only 3 percent.

The Republican plan presupposes enough income to pay for child care as it is used. It should be recognized that tax credits, however equitable, do little to help a low-income earner on a week-to-week basis.

With the increasing rate of low-income jobs, there is a growing urgency to find an equitable solution to the child care needs of low-income families. We hope Congress will be able to effect a compromise and offer a child-care bill this year.

A Bush agenda — Part II

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

We have been examining proposals by several prominent commentators on what the Bush administration should do, made on the assumption that although the administration is vaguely coordinated to a program through general rhetoric ("we shall kill the scourge of cocaine"), nothing very concrete has come from it.

Charles Murray is very concrete indeed. He is the Manhattan Institute author of "Losing Ground" and, most recently, "In Pursuit of Happiness and Good Government." If Mr. Bush wants to be the education president, as he has frequently said, he need go no further than to Mr. Murray for specific advice.

Mr. Murray begins by saying that middle-class liberals have three dirty little secrets, and we can get no better start on formulating a correct policy than by exposing these.

The first of these supposes that good education is a tantalizingly difficult objective to hope for. Not true. "People who have enough money to do so send their children to schools with good teachers and safe hallways and high test scores. They do so by moving to the right suburb or by putting the children in private schools. These wondrous schools are not especially exotic or expensively run. Most of them are in ordinary buildings, with ordinary textbooks and teachers who make less money than the people teaching in the public school down the street."

The second dirty little secret is that "the vast majority of middle-class liberals who oppose education vouchers — including members of the Senate and House of Representatives — exercise precisely this kind of choice for their own children."

And the third is that these liberal critics in fact doubt that working men and women can be trusted with the same options

they themselves exercise.

Accordingly, Mr. Murray urges President Bush to give, well, unshirtd hell to the critics of private education and he proposes as concrete an idea as ever came out of a social critic: "Take your school budget for the current fiscal year and divide it by the total number of children ages 5 to 17 in your jurisdiction. If you will agree to offer just two-thirds of that amount of money in the form of a no-strings voucher to any parent who wants to choose his child's school for himself, the federal government will make up the difference between that sum and $3,000." Since the average tuition at non-religious private schools was still only $1,723 as of 1985, $3,000 should be plenty for even the poorest parents to find a decent school for their children. "The cost to the federal government would be on the order of $16 billion to $18 billion, which could be defrayed by eliminating the Department of Education."

That is direct advice.

As is the advice proffered by Donald Regan, a Wall Streeter by profession, who says that the budget deficit is an obtrusive irrelevance. "The critical problem . . . is keeping the economy growing," Mr. Regan reminds us that as a percentage of the gross national product, the federal deficit has been "declining rapidly, to the 3 percent level at present. When one factors in state and local budget surpluses and the capital component of the budget, our deficit is not high at all." But we need to keep the downward trend going. How?

Freeze defense spending at the current level. Diminish agricultural subsidies "on the order of $8 billion to $10 billion annually." Cap doctors' and hospital fees paid by Medicare and Medicaid.

Mr. Regan pays great tribute to Ronald Reagan, reminding us of the naivete ascribed to him when he came to town: "His accomplishments, which now include some of the great turning points in history, are all the answer that is needed to this conventional wisdom."

And on foreign policy, the most interesting commentary is by Vladimir Bukovsky, president of Resistance International, author and heroic victim of Gulag.

He begins with a striking definition: "A pragmatic communist is a communist who has run out of money."

It is Bukovsky's point that the great political problem facing the Bush administration is Europe.

"All Soviet bloc borrowing from all Western financial institutions, all transactions conducted with the Soviet bloc countries, should be tracked down and publicized. Indeed, why is this information kept secret now? And from whom? The Soviets, after all, know it, and so do the institutions conducting such transactions. Only the public is kept in the dark. Where, then, is our 'right to know'? If the transactions are truly in the Western countries' interests and there is nothing to be ashamed of, the businessmen and bankers should be proud to report them in some detail. If they are not, we are entitled to be suspicious."

In the best of all possible worlds, President Bush calls up Jim Baker. "Jim, did you see what Bukovsky said about what we ought to do in Europe? Well, read my lips on the subject." Copyright 1989, Universal Pres Syndicate

Lewis Grizzard

Between a rock and Ernest T.

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

I always try to look on the bright side of things. Let us consider this:

When blacks marched in the infamous Forsythe County, Ga., saga, whites threw rocks at them.

When whites marched in downtown Atlanta recently, blacks threw rocks at them.

So what's the bright side? Well, at least we're throwing rocks at each other and not shooting at each other.

If I had to make a choice, I'd much rather try to dodge a rock than a bullet.

When whites threw rocks at blacks in Forsythe County, blacks filed suit. I don't know if the whites who marched in downtown Atlanta are going to file a suit, but, again, arguing in a courtroom is preferable to guns or switchblades at 20 paces.

Don't get me wrong, I'd like to see the time when nobody threw rocks at anybody else, but common sense leads me to believe that isn't going to happen any time soon.

So let's give thanks for small favors and hope the rock battles will not escalate into anything else.

I'm so serious about all this, I even made an effort to find out more about rock throwing.

I started out with some research into the Little David Goliath episode, but I learned that really doesn't fit here.

Little David used his sling to fell Goliath with a smooth river rock, and the strict rules of rock throwing forbid the use of slings, catapults or even gloves worn to protect the throwing hand from getting scratched and grimy.

My search eventually led me to the man generally regarded as the best rock thrower of the century.

I phoned him at his home on the outskirts of Mayberry, N.C.

"It's me, it's me, it's Ernest T.!" is how he answered the call.

Indeed I had made contact with the legendary Ernest T. Bass of "The Andy Griffith Show."

All Andy fans know Ernest T. could throw a rock through a window at 80 yards. Recall that was how he courted the love of his life, Charlene Darling.

Ernest T. would wrap a love note to Charlene around a rock and then heave it through the Darlings' windows.

There wouldn't have been a window left unbroken at the Darlings if Andy and Deputy Barney hadn't been called to the scene to calm down Ernest T.

I told Ernest T. what I was doing and asked if he could offer any advice to those — both black and white — who might show up at future marches to toss a few stones.

"It's all in the wrist," said Ernest T. "You want to let a rock go with a powerful wrist action which affords both power and accuracy."

"What should a rock thrower look for in a rock?" I continued. "Flat 'uns will sail on you," said Ernest T. "The rounder you can get, the better your results are going to be."

"Any other advice?" "It helps if you can run fast," said Ernest T.

"Why is that?" "In case whatever it is you're throwing at decides to chase you," he explained.

"Good point there." I thanked Mr. Bass and hope this will be taken as it was intended, as a public service. By the way, Gomer says, "Hey."

Japan tempts fate by shipping plutonium by sea

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Mark 1992 on your calendar as the year terrorists may get enough plutonium to make dozens of nuclear bombs, courtesy of Japan and the United States.

Unless the Bush administration shows some backbone, that is the year Japan will begin shipping, by sea, tons of reprocessed plutonium from Europe to Japan. The shipments will run a gauntlet of terrorists and pirates, guarded only by the Japanese equivalent of the Coast Guard.

The United States and Japan quietly signed an agreement last summer that will allow Japan to ship a minimum of 153 tons of weapons-grade plutonium between the years 1992 and 2000. To put that in perspective, consider that the entire U.S. nuclear arsenal uses 100 tons of plutonium.

The Japanese want the plutonium for nuclear power plants.

But a possible outcome is that terrorists stealing the plutonium would develop a crude, nuclear bomb like the one that leveled Nagasaki. Experts say it takes only about 12 pounds of plutonium to make such a bomb. That means the Japanese are permitted to ship the equivalent of 25,000 Nagasaki bombs on treacherous seas and through volatile regions of the world.

High-level government sources in Washington, D.C., and Tokyo tell us that Japan is secretly planning to use coast guard vessels to protect the shipment. The country's pacifist constitution prohibits it from sending its naval destroyers on such an escort mission.

Japan's plutonium originates in the United States as uranium and then is reprocessed into plutonium in France and Great Britain. Every shipment from Europe to Japan must get U.S. approval. The only previous shipment by sea coast Japan, the United States, France and Britain millions of dollars. American, French and British navy ships provided the escort.

Japan wanted to cut the red tape, so it pushed the Reagan administration for carte blanche to make dozens of shipments by air.

The Japanese found an ally at the State Department in Richard T. Kennedy, a nuclear-energy fan who is a former commissioner with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and now a special ambassador handling nuclear issues.

A 90-year agreement was sent to Congress in early 1988 over the objections of the Defense Department and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. In February, the General Accounting Office joined the list of naysayers and said that the contract was illegal. Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, threatened to block the agreement because it made provisions for refueling stops in Alaska.

Kennedy and the State Department steam-rolled over the protests, whispering behind the scenes that the United States had to placate the Japanese on this one.

But Murkowski, aided by the respected, non-government Nuclear Control Institute, got the administration to forbid the Japanese from flying over or landing in the United States unless the plutonium was sealed in casks that could withstand the worst-case crash.

The Japanese were happy to get the agreement under those terms, until they figured out that the fail-safe casks were years away from development.

In late summer, the Japanese asked for an amendment to allow sea shipments. Kennedy was anxious to please. Instead of proposing an amendment, which would have required a 90-day review period, he sent the change to Congress as a "subsequent agreement." If Congress didn't vote it down in 15 days, the agreement would automatically go into effect.

Congress was too busy in October, wrapping up the session and running for re-election, to pay much heed to the agreement, or to imagine the worst case scenario, that only Japanese coast guard boats would escort the deadly shipments. The agreement was allowed to slip into law. Now the only option for the United States is to cry foul and demand that Japan come up with a better plan.

WHO CALLS THE SHOTS — George Bush is hoping that a kinder, gentler person will soon succeed the Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran. Speaker of the Parliament Hashemi Rafsanjani is neither kind nor gentle, but he is realistic enough to know that Iran needs to end its diplomatic isolation. That means releasing hostages and renouncing terrorism. Rafsanjani has condoned terrorism in the past and he may not now have the power to stop it. Some of the terrorist organizations look to Interior Minister Ali Akbar Mohtashemi for guidance. Intelligence reports now identify Mohtashemi as Rafsanjani's strongest rival for power. He was directly responsible for recruiting and training terrorists in Lebanon.

Di winds up triumphant tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Princess Diana made a triumphant but exhausting tour of New York City that embraced both its homeless and high-and-mighty, and by most accounts the only people she failed to charm were 400 Irish-American protesters.

The 27-year-old princess, described as tired and perhaps a little homesick, was to head home to England today after visiting Harlem Hospital and meeting children with AIDS.

"She is a beautiful woman — strikingly beautiful — who has taken the world by storm," Mayor Edward I. Koch exclaimed after meeting the princess Thursday night at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Diana was at the Brooklyn concert hall to attend the American debut of the Welsh National Opera, after which she returned to Manhattan and dazzled guests at a gala dinner in her honor at the World Financial Center.

Earlier, she visited a family's apartment at a Lower East Side shelter for the homeless and browsed at the giant FAO Schwarz toy store.

Cheering crowds turned out at each stop to glimpse the princess. The lone note of dissent was heard outside the opera performance, where more than 400 protesters chanted "IRA, IRA" and waved signs denouncing the princess.

Iran to resume foreign borrowing

NEW YORK (AP) — Iran has reversed its policy of refusing to borrow from foreign banks as another step toward rebuilding an economy devastated after eight years of war with Iraq.

In an interview published in The New York Times today, Gholamreza Agazadeh, Iran's minister of oil and mineral wealth, said Iran would borrow for revenue-producing projects and that such borrowing would not exceed $3 billion over the next five years.

"In my country a big debate has gone on," he said. "Now we have decided the No. 1 priority in this country is reconstruction of the economy."

Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini had banned such loans when he took power 10 years ago and established an Islamic government.

Recent changes in government policy, including a decision to reopen a natural gas pipeline to the Soviet Union announced in December, reflected a decision to pursue a more pragmatic approach to solving the country's woes, Agazadeh said.

Paraguay president deposed in army coup

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — President Gen. Alfredo Stroessner, the longest ruling leader in the Western Hemisphere, surrendered power today after a coup by the No. 2 army commander, official radio said today.

Gen. Andres Rodriguez told the radio early today that he was "taking command of the country from this moment."

In a three-minute address, Rodriguez said Stroessner "has surrendered, was enjoying good health" and was being held by the First Army Corps that Rodriguez commands. Earlier today, Rodriguez said in a broadcast that he had launched the revolt late Thursday to restore democracy and human rights.

There was no immediate word on casualties following six hours of shelling by mortars and Sherman tanks, as well as gunfire between the rebels and troops loyal to Stroessner. Streets in the semitropical capital of 900,000 were deserted this morning.

Stroessner, 76, has been in absolute power in this landlocked South American country since 1954. He has, however, been in poor health following prostate surgery five months ago.

In the earlier radio communique,

Rodriguez said he and his men "left our barracks in defense of the dignity and the honor of the armed forces, for the full and total unification of the ruling Colorado Party, for the initiation of democratization in Paraguay (and) for the respect of human rights."

Early today, radio reports quoted an infantry division commander, Brig. Gen. Ismael Otazu, as saying the uprising was not "insubordination but a correction."

Col. Dionisio Cabello told March 1 radio he was the new air force commander and pledged allegiance to Rodriguez.

Infantry divisions in three interior cities and an air force unit sided almost immediately with the rebels, the reports indicated.

Spokesman for the National Accord, a coalition of business, church and political leaders who have called for democratic reforms, said a "transitional military junta may be named today to govern for three or four months until general elections are held. They spoke on condition of anonymity."

Rodriguez is identified with a faction within the ruling Colorado Party that favors limited democratic reforms.

China invites Gorbachev to visit

BEIJING (AP) — The Chinese government has officially invited Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to China, setting the stage for the first Sino-Soviet summit in 30 years.

The Foreign Ministry said in a statement today that Foreign Minister Qian Qichen extended the invitation in talks with his visiting Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze, who "accepted the invitation and expressed his gratitude."

No date for the visit was given, although it is widely expected to take place this spring. Qian said earlier today that Shevardnadze would announce a date at a news conference Saturday before he leaves China for Pakistan.

Gorbachev will be the first Soviet leader to visit China since Nikita Khrushchev met Mao Tse-tung in Beijing in 1959, a year before rapidly deteriorating bilateral relations led to an end of Soviet technical and military aid to China.

The Soviet president's meeting with 84-year-old Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping would help return Sino-Soviet political ties to a normal status after three decades of hostility and mistrust.

Shevardnadze, the first Soviet foreign minister to visit China in 30 years, arrived Wednesday for a three-day trip to iron out final details for the summit. He held two rounds of talks with Qian and also conferred today with Premier Li Peng. He is to meet Deng in Shanghai Saturday.

The Foreign Ministry statement said Qian pointed out during the talks that "China and the Soviet Union should establish a new type of state relationship with each other" based on principles of equality and peaceful coexistence.

Portuguese strike disrupts traffic

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Bus and rail traffic ground to a halt today and Portugal's state TAP airline operated limited services as 50,000 public transport workers went on strike to protest the government's low wage and benefits, reports said.

Union officials said about 95 percent of the bus, street car, ferry boat and commuter services were paralyzed in Lisbon and Oporto, the country's two main cities, and that national rail services also had stopped.

Officials at the state airline TAP said today that about half the company's scheduled flights faced cancellation.

Workers for the many state industries are protesting a loss in purchasing power, saying wage rises granted last year by the government were inadequate because of inflation.

Ortega promises to abide by vote

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The Sandinista government will hand over power if the opposition wins elections next year, visiting Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega promised.

Ortega also announced a Central American summit would be held Feb. 13-14 in El Salvador.

The president said Thursday night that his Sandinista Liberation Front was still the largest party in Nicaragua, but said "whoever wins the elections will assume power" — and cope with the most battered economy in the region.

"If the opposition wins, they will have to assume power and shoulder the responsibility of fixing the Nicaraguan economy, which won't be easy," he told reporters.

Blast damage cuts power service

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Thousands of people returned to their homes following a spectacular railroad explosion and fire, but the blast damage threatened a dangerous power shortage today.

"We've got to minimize power usage right down to the last light bulb," said Leroy Lemach, Helena division engineer for Montana Power Co.

Bitter cold weather that swept down out of Alaska was indirectly responsible for the pre-dawn explosions.

Authorities said the accident occurred when railroad workers tried to switch locomotives on a freight train because the heater in one locomotive had failed. Forty-eight freight cars rolled away during the switch, traveling 12 miles into Helena before derailling and plowing into a propane tank.

Reading scores higher for deaf students with speech training

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The debate over whether to teach deaf children how to speak is unlikely to wane, educators say, despite a recent study showing that reading scores were strongly higher for those able to speak.

"It's a very emotional controversy," said Jean Moog, principal of Central Institute for the Deaf, where the federally funded study was done last year. "I think what we're trying to do is bring some rationale to the topic."

In the study of 100 profoundly deaf 16- and 17-year-old students who had been taught speech, reading scores were five grade levels higher than the third-grade nationwide average for profoundly deaf students. Thirty of the 100 read at or above the 10th-grade level, said Ann Geers, who led the research.

"That means they were functioning for all practical purposes like normal-hearing adolescents, which is rather outstanding considering the severity of their deafness," Geers said.

Profoundly deaf people, even with the most powerful hearing aids, cannot understand speech without special training, though they may hear some sounds.

The report has been well received by supporters of teaching the deaf to speak, but Moog said those who favor total communication, combining speech and sign language, are less enthusiastic. That is used in 90 percent of schools.

The hit movie "Children of a Lesser God" dealt with the moral question of whether the deaf should be integrated, sometimes against their will, into the speaking world.

"The profound effect will come within the next 10 years when all deaf children being educated in total communication programs are not talking," she said. "There will be an entire generation of deaf children who will be angry that they were not given the instruction to talk."

Sign language is easier to teach than speech, but may be of little or no use except among other deaf people.

According to Helen Bayer, coordinator of the St. Louis County Special School District deaf education program, choosing between the two extremes and a myriad of choices between depends on factors such as intelligence, other learning disabilities and family support.

"I've enjoyed great success with some profoundly deaf students in teaching them to talk, and I've interacted with others where it was a very painful experience in which their self-confidence was destroyed," Bayer said.

In the typical total communication program, research has shown that students depend too much on sign language, Moog said.

Deaf children in total communications programs also don't read as well because they aren't given intensive instruction in speech and language, Geers said.

If deaf students are to reach their full potential, they must be taught to speak at an early age, before were spoken."

Of the 20,000 profoundly deaf people under age 21 in the United States, only about 10 percent are taught in oral communication programs that emphasize the limited hearing they have, lip-reading and speaking.

"If you want deaf children to talk, it takes a lot of work on speech," Moog said. On average, children in a total communication program receive two or three half-hour speech lessons a week, and end up using mostly sign language.

"The profound effect will come within the next 10 years when all deaf children being educated in total communication programs are not talking," she said. "There will be an entire generation of deaf children who will be angry that they were not given the instruction to talk."

School teaches soldiers Arctic survival skills

BY BRUCE BARTLEY
Associated Press Writer

ARCTIC VILLAGE, Alaska (AP) — Eye-stinging spruce smoke cloaked dimly lit figures huddled against sub-zero cold at the end of their first long day of learning the tricks of arctic survival.

"Nothin' but a bunch of Boy Scouts with bad language," someone quipped.

He was partly right. The only scouts were a half-dozen Eskimo Scouts who teach the military how to stay alive when it gets so cold that people from the Lower 48 states can't comprehend it.

The Scouts' weeklong course 100 miles north of the Arctic Circle is short on lectures and long on cold. At least four full days and nights are spent in the wilderness 500 miles northeast of Anchorage.

Now in its third winter, the Alaska Army National Guard school has trained about 150 people to cope with temperatures that consistently range in the neighborhood of 40 degrees below zero. It hit 45 below on the last two nights of January's class, and a couple days after the students left, Alaska's great cold wave struck with temperatures down to 50 and 60 below zero.

Students run the gamut from Army Special Forces troops to raw National Guard recruits, and Alaska Adjutant General John Schaeffer says it is not just non-Alaskans and non-natives that need the training.

"The type of Eskimo we're enlisting today doesn't have the survival skills of the older Eskimos," says Schaeffer, a participant in the January class. He estimates about half of the Guard is Eskimo or Indian.

Because of cultural changes, natives no longer have to rely on the skills handed down for generations, says Schaeffer, an Eskimo from Kotzebue. "We've got a bunch of Eskimos and Indians around here who would have as much trouble (surviving the cold) as anyone else."

Schaeffer, an experienced arctic outdoorsman, says he attended the class to lend it some credibility and assure its permanency and funding.

"We're doing what we should have been doing for years — taking the skills we've learned from centuries of living here and passing them on," the two-star general says.

The school was started in response to requests from National Guard flight crews, who wanted training similar to that offered at the Air Force's "Cool School" at Eielson Air Force Base near Fairbanks.

"We're doing what we should have been doing for years — taking the skills we've learned from centuries of living here and passing them on."

Maj. Jerry Finney, the U.S. Army adviser to the 5th Scout Battalion of the 297th Infantry, got together with an Arctic Village hunting buddy, Timothy Sam.

Sam recruited other instructors from the nearby Gwich'in Indian villages of Venetie and Fort Yukon, and they began showing students what it takes to survive.

The practical experiences of the natives are backed by scientific data from Finney about human physiology and thermodynamics.

Finney says one of the most difficult survival obstacles is to overcome the macho approach to the cold. Too often, soldiers are afraid to admit they are freezing, he says.

At 40 below zero, severe frostbite can occur within two to four hours as the result of a series of minor errors or less than an hour from one serious mistake, Finney says.

The worst injury in the six previous classes at Arctic Village involved a Special Forces sergeant who suffered serious frostbite to nine toes. Part of the cause was an experimental boot, but much of it was a stubborn unwillingness to acknowledge the cold, Finney says. "Nobody knows better than you if you're cold," Finney preaches. "If you're cold, do something about it. Deal with it."

Shelter construction is one of the areas of major emphasis at the school. Types of shelters depend on the materials at hand, and the foothills of the Brooks Range near Arctic Village have plentiful supplies of stunted black spruce.

Boughs are used for ground insulation and to thatch the sides and roofs of lean-tos. Limbless trunks become the framework for the shelters. Wood is gathered for all-night fires.

Instructors show students how to snare hares and catch fish to supplement their diet. But this part of Alaska doesn't support a bunny population large enough to feed two dozen hungry troops. Ice-fishing is somewhat more productive.

Ideally, a caribou would be killed, and instructors detail the many uses for the meat, hide and antlers. The Gwich'in have survived on caribou for centuries.

But this January, the nearest caribou were 80 miles away.

Couple's pet serves as ringbearer

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: About the church organist who was upset because the guests talked before the wedding ceremony and applauded afterward: I wonder what she would have thought of our wedding?

David and I wanted a happy, joyful wedding, so we set a lighthearted tone to the ceremony by having Knicky, our female Labrador, serve as the ring bearer.

We had the rings in a beautifully decorated basket. Knicky was to hold the handle of the basket with her teeth and come down the aisle on cue. All went well at the rehearsal, but at the wedding, Knicky got excited when she saw us at the altar and she ran down the aisle, leaving the basket behind.

You can imagine the laughter! But this in no way detracted from the seriousness of our commitment. The guests were quiet and attentive when David and I exchanged our vows, and I have never felt more moved and reverent. It was very fitting when all the guests burst into laughter after the ceremony.

JENNY KNICKERBOCKER, BOZEMAN, MONT.

DEAR JENNY (AND DAVID): Congratulations and all good wishes. May your life together be filled with love and laughter.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from the woman who, when asked, "How are you?" didn't want to lie about her physical condition, so she responded with a long-winded health report.

Her answer could have been: "I'm too young for Medicare and too old for men to care."

Chuckle for the day, right? — JEANNE L., FORT MYERS, FLA.

DEAR JEANNE: Wrong. Many women would be offended by the inference that when women are no longer "young," men will cease caring about them.

And as if that weren't enough, the feminists would be offended by the implication that unless men care about them, they have little value.

DEAR ABBY: My common-law husband has a big problem with drugs, but he denies it. He says it isn't a problem because he doesn't do the heavy stuff — he only smokes pot. Abby, he smokes a lot of pot. He gets moody, slurs his words, has an "I don't care" attitude and his memory is poor. He keeps saying he can quit if he wants to — but I don't believe he can.

Abby, he is the father of my 2-year-old twin girls and a 10-month-old boy. I am getting so disgusted with him I want out of this relationship, but I really love the guy. What should I do? — CHUCK'S WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: Your man has a chemical dependency — he's hooked on a drug and will need to go to a "de-tox" facility. If you really love the guy, try "tough love" — tell him he will have to make a decision: It's either you and the children or his pot.

As long as you stay with him while he continues to smoke pot, he won't quit. Trust me.

Child designs calendar cover

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

"Hi. My name is Teresa. I'm a foster child. I've been in a foster home for one year. I'm 11 years old. My foster parents are a real joy. They took me to Disneyland for our vacation.

These are some questions you might ask.

What would happen if there wasn't a foster home to go to? I would hope there are always foster homes, 'cause I would hate to think of living somewhere else.

How does it feel to be in a foster home? It feels like a real blessing, 'cause when you have a problem, they're always there for you. I'm glad there are foster homes, so people can get the help they need.

Thanks for all your concern, foster parents. Thanks for the home you give." — A foster child.

There are many reasons a child would be placed in a foster home, including neglect, sexual abuse, physical abuse, and abandonment.

Because foster parents play such an important role in these children's lives, the Texas Recruiter's Coalition, a group of Department of Human Services home recruiters from across the state, has coordinated and designed a 1989 calendar of Texas foster children's artwork.

The calendar, the first of its kind and a tribute to the several thousand foster parents in Texas, may be purchased by sending $5 to Greater Texas Federal Credit Union, 6411 North Lamar Blvd., Austin, Texas 79752.

Foster parents provide a temporary home for children who would not be safe at home.

The cover artwork was designed by Jeremy, an 11-year-old Odessa youth, whose crayon and pencil drawing, which features a house and a snowman during a snowstorm, was selected from over 50 pieces of art.

A foster child for the past three years, Jeremy said the house in his drawing is a foster home.

Often quiet but always smiling,

Jeremy, an 11-year-old Odessa youth who lives in a foster home, works on his drawing of a snowman during a snowstorm. His artwork, chosen from over 50 pieces of art, was chosen as the cover for the "1989 Tribute to Foster Parents" calendar.

Jeremy said he loves his foster parents, whom he refers to as "Mom" and "Dad."

Jeremy realizes and appreciates the important role his foster parents play in his life.

"I get food. Mom washes my clothes and makes my bed. If I didn't have them — I'd be on the streets," he said.

A fourth grader who likes school, Jeremy wants to be a scientist "because I want to mix all that stuff up together." He also enjoys spending time with his foster dad who takes him bowling and swimming.

Jeannie Hunt, foster home recruiter, Midland, expressed a need for foster parents in Howard County, citing local statistics.

There are six Howard County children who are currently in foster care. Five are Anglo, one is Hispanic. One child was neglected, three were physically abused, one was sexually abused, and one was abandoned.

There ages range from infant to 18 years old.

"We need homes for all children, especially foster parents who would consider caring for teen-agers," Hunt said.

If anyone is interested in becoming a foster parent, call Toni Rash at 263-7671.

Rules to overcome depression

The Sew and Chatter Club met Jan. 25 at the home of Ruth Appleton.

Ten members answered roll call by naming favorite arts and crafts and a favorite article.

Ina Richardson presided at the business meeting.

Cards and gifts were sent to Marie Daniel who is ill.

Salena Sewell presented the program on a woman who made six rules for living to overcome depression.

She noted these things should be done everyday:

- Do something for someone else.
- Do something for yourself.
- Do something you don't want to do.
- Do some kind of physical exercise.
- Do something for mental exercise.
- Make an original prayer.

Refreshments and fellowship were enjoyed by the group.

The next meeting will be Feb. 8 at 3 p.m. with Pat Arcand.

Hawks give No. 1 team scare

It was everything rubber matches were meant to be. It was round three of the Odessa Wranglers-Howard College Hawk-Queens basketball competition. The scene was Dorothy Garrett Coliseum in front of the largest Queens home crowd of the season. The series was tied at one. Howard beat Odessa 66-65 in the finals of the Hawk-Queens Classic in November. Odessa beat Howard 73-66 in Odessa. Thursday night Odessa won the rubber match 77-74 on a last second shot by forward Lisa Dumas.

"I knew what they were going to do," said Howard coach Don Stevens on Dumas' winning basket. "I knew they were going to take the ball to the side and bring it back to the middle of the lane. Instead of us stepping up to prevent the shot, we let her get the ball. She made the money shot."

Dumas' shot broke a 74-74 deadlock. After the basket, with one second left on the clock, one of the Howard players called timeout. But Howard didn't have any timeouts, which is a technical. Odessa got two foul shots and the ball. Angela Meadough made one foul shot, putting the game at its final score.

Dumas' basket offset a splendid Howard comeback. Trailing 71-62 with 3:17 left in the game, things looked bleak for HC. But the Queens quickly bounced back. Stephanie Fetcher nailed a three-pointer and Cindy Johnson made two foul shots, cutting the deficit to 73-69 with 1:38 left. A few seconds later, Howard post player Shannon Lawson fouled out. Lawson sat out almost half of the game, because of foul trouble.

Odessa's Dee Dailey sank a free throw, putting the Lady Wranglers up 74-69. But Linda Waters brought Howard to within 74-71 with two free throws at the 1:10 mark.

The two teams battled on until Odessa turned the ball over with 38 seconds left. After Howard timeout, the Queens set a double pick for Fetcher, who nailed her third three-pointer, tying the game at 74-74 with 20 seconds remaining. This set the stage for Dumas' heroics.

"Free throws killed us," said Stevens, referring to the fact that Howard didn't go to the line until there was 5:48 left in the game. "They went to the line a lot more than we did, and they made them."

When the Queens did go to the line they were almost perfect, sinking 10 of 11. The Lady Wranglers made 16 of 23.

"It hurt us when Shannon got in foul trouble and that forced us out of the triple post offense," said Stevens. "I got caught up in the game and didn't realize Shannon had three fouls. But we ran our 1-4 offense well, and that's what we started on at the first of the season. But I think we would have given them more problems with the triple post."

With Lawson saddled with her fourth foul with 1:43 left in the first half, the Howard scoring loaded was shared by the outside bombs of Fetcher and Johnson, and the inside scoring of Ana Carroll, Kristen Hedlund and Allana Cummings.

Carroll and Johnson, recovering from a fractured thumb, each scored 14 points. Johnson was a percent five-of-five from the floor, including two three-pointers. Lawson finished the game with 12 points and seven rebounds. She had all her rebounds in the first half.

Waters led Howard with eight boards. She also chipped in 10 points.

Odessa was led by Meadough and Dumas. Meadough had 20 points, respectively. Dumas was 9 of 18 from the field, and had six steals to go along with her effort. Dumas led her team with 11 rebounds.

"I'm proud of the way we played tonight. We were prepared to play," said Stevens. "Both teams played well. We played three times and this was the best game."

Howard falls to 1-5 in league play and 11-13 overall. Odessa goes to 5-2 16-7.

The Queens will play New Mexico Junior College Monday at 7 p.m. in Hobbs, N.M.

The Odessa College Wranglers proved Thursday night that when the game is on the line, an All-American is a handy person to have in the lineup.

Larry Johnson scored 30 points and dominated the boards on both ends of the court to lead the Wranglers to a hard-earned 79-71 win over the Howard College Hawks at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Lynn Collins added 14 points and Pat Nash 10 for the number-one ranked Wranglers, who improved their Western Junior College Athletic Conference record to 10-0 with the win.

Terrence Lewis scored 23 points for the Hawks, now 6-4 in conference play. Vincent McCants tallied 17 points, Michael New 12 and Charles Moore 10 for Howard. The two teams battled nose-to-nose during a wild second half that saw the lead change hands nine times before Odessa finally iced the game with late free throws.

But the major factor in the Wranglers' win was Johnson, who did yeoman's work rebounding — finishing with 25 caroms — late in the game he constantly limited the Hawks to only one shot when Howard was frantically trying to tie the game in the last seconds.

"We just couldn't keep him off the glass," HC coach Steve Green said of Johnson. "He's a great player... I've run out of adjectives to describe him. I'm tired of talking about him."

"We used a trick defense in the last five minutes; we thought they'd go to (Johnson)," Green added. "But we just couldn't keep him off the boards."

Johnson's heroics spoiled what was perhaps the most determined effort to date from the Hawks. Showing no effects from their disappointing 102-93 loss to Midland College earlier in the week, the Hawks drove the Wranglers to the limit before finally bowing.

Lewis and McCants had outstanding games shooting from the outside. In fact, it was their three-pointers in the second half that kept Odessa off-balance. Not to be outdone was the inside duo of New and Moore, who were major factors in the Hawks' being able to fashion an early lead in the contest.

Abandoning their usual run-and-gun offense for a more patient attack, Howard consistently found the open shot, and when New followed a Keith Gillespie miss at the midpoint of the first half, the Hawks led, 20-10.

Lewis hit a three-pointer two minutes later to give Howard a 23-14 lead, but the Hawks went cold for five minutes, and Odessa took full advantage of the situation, scoring 15 unanswered points.

By the time Johnson scored his 30th point in the second half, the Wranglers had eliminated their deficit and were leading by six points, 31-25.

It appeared that OC would stretch its lead even further, but Lewis scored the last four points of the half to reduce the Howard deficit to 35-31 at intermission.

As exciting as the first half was, however, it served merely as a table-setter for the second half, as McCants and Lewis waged a duel with Johnson and his OC teammates.

Outside jumpers from McCants, Larry Pettigrew and Lewis, and fine inside work from Moore and New kept the Hawks close for the first 6½ minutes. McCants hit a jumper with 14:02 left in the game that brought the Hawks to within three, 48-45. After a Collins miss, Johnson blocked a Frank Anderson shot, but Lewis responded by nailing a three-pointer to tie the contest at 48-48.

Ricky O'Neal scored a basket 80 seconds later to allow the Wranglers to regain the lead, but McCants nailed a three-pointer with three seconds left on the shot clock to give the Hawks their first lead of the second half, 51-50.

The two teams then traded the lead nine times during the ensuing four minutes until Sammie Freeman gave the Wranglers the lead for good, 59-58, with 6:31 left.

Odessa gradually built the lead to nine points on a Johnson free throw with 2:05 remaining, but the

White new National League president

NEW YORK (AP) — Forty-two years after Jackie Robinson broke baseball's color barrier on the field, Bill White is about to break it in the executive suite.

White today will be named to succeed A. Bartlett Giamatti as National League president, becoming the first black to head a major professional sports league in the United States, The Associated Press learned on Thursday.

White, a six-time All-Star first baseman with the New York and San Francisco Giants, St. Louis and Philadelphia, and a broadcaster with the New York Yankees for 18 years, was chosen Thursday by the five-man search committee, several sources said.

NL owners were expected to elect White in a telephone conference call today. He would become league president on April 1, when Giamatti succeeds Peter Ueberroth as commissioner.

"We're coming to New York and we expect a positive announcement," White's lawyer, William Eastburn III, said Thursday.

White, interviewed in St. Louis by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch Thursday night, said his chance to become the first black league president did not enter his decision. "I didn't even think about it," he said. "You just do the job whether you're red, yellow, purple or whatever."

White had not been mentioned publicly as a candidate for the job until Tuesday when the Daily News reported he would get it. When he does, he will join American League president Bobby Brown as former players who rose to head their leagues.

White said he was contacted about 10 days ago by Ted Jadick, who is with a "head-hunting" firm out of New York and Chicago.

"He wanted to know if I was interested. It really took me by surprise. He put me in touch with the baseball people. And we've been looking at each other ever since," White said.

White said he had been thinking about the pressures of the job and the loss of freedom it would entail.

"I had a lot of security with the Yankees," White said. "I lead a very nice life now. I only work 90 days broadcasting. I can go fishing, drive my truck, cut the grass and wear overalls. I can't do that with this job. It's a 24-hours-a-day job. Things happen on the (West) Coast and you've got to be with it even if it's late at night. It's going to be hard to leave that comfort of broadcasting," he said. "I don't think overalls would go over too big on this job."

Hall of Famer Hank Aaron, an Atlanta Braves vice president and baseball's top black executive, was pleased with White's selection.

"Quite naturally, I'm very happy," Aaron said. "I don't think they could have found anyone more qualified than Bill White. Bill White is a baseball man. He knows baseball. There will be nothing that will be a surprise for him."

Simon Gourdine, a former NBA deputy commissioner who had been the other remaining contender, was told Thursday that he no longer was being considered.

"I was very fairly treated by the search committee and was given every opportunity," Gourdine said. "I congratulate Bill White," Gourdine said.

Phil Rizzuto, White's broadcasting partner, said breaking barriers was important to White.

"He felt this was important for baseball, for himself and for blacks in general," Rizzuto said.

Oilers name new general manager

HOUSTON (AP) — Ladd Herzog's surprise resignation as general manager of the Oilers put an end to Mike Holovak's plan to move to Florida.

Instead, Holovak, who had planned to scout for the NFL team, was named Thursday as Herzog's successor.

Holovak engineered the draft strategy that lifted the Oilers out of the NFL depths and sent them to the playoffs the last two years. His planned move to Sarasota, Fla. — where he had bought a home — was viewed by some as a retirement job, but the 60-year-old Holovak bristled at that suggestion Thursday.

"Only the good Lord can tell someone who should and shouldn't retire," he said. "And when the time comes when I'm no longer with the Oilers, I want to be the one to say 'retire.'"

Holovak joined Houston in 1981 and most recently was an assistant to Herzog. His previous duties included player personnel director, and he is credited with the draft picks that helped Houston make it to the playoffs.

"He's our number one guy as far as evaluating draft choices,"

Oilers owner Bud Adams said. "I think he'll tell you he's never been more qualified to do the job we're asking him to do."

"Of all the many challenges I've had, this is the best," Holovak said. "You can't imagine how much I look forward to it. It's the greatest thing in the world."

Adams said his two immediate goals were to improve relations with the media, which had deteriorated under Herzog, and to make a concerted effort to market the team, which will have an additional 10,000 seats to sell next season when renovations at the Astrodome are complete.

Despite two straight playoff appearances, the Oilers had difficulty selling out the Astrodome, which had been the smallest NFL stadium with some 50,000 seats.

Adams, however, blamed the problem on the economy in Houston and not on Herzog, who was vilified by fans and in the press.

Ladd has had 13 years with the Oilers," Adams said. "He's a dedicated and hard-working and did a lot to get us where we are today. I want to give him credit."

Sports Briefs

Booster Club meets Monday

The Big Spring Sports Booster Club will meet Monday at 7 p.m. at the high school cafeteria. Participants from tennis, golf and swim teams will be introduced, as well as junior varsity and freshmen cheerleaders. All members and parents are urged to attend.

Baseball team to raise money

The Big Spring varsity and junior varsity baseball team is going to have its 100-inning fund-raising game Saturday, Feb. 11 at Steer Field.

The team is seeking pledge sponsors so the players can make money for equipment and other team expenses. Sponsors pay by number of innings played.

Anyone willing to make a pledge can call the high school and contact head baseball coach John Velasquez, or assistants Gary Simmons or Neil Potts, or they can contact any high school baseball player.

Runnels makes sweep of Snyder

SNYDER — Both Runnels Junior High School basketball teams were victorious against their Snyder counterparts here Thursday, as Runnels Red downed Snyder, 35-27, while Runnels White won its game, 37-25.

In the first game, Duane Edmonds scored 11 points and Jessie Leos 8 as the Red team pulled away from Snyder in the second half to earn the victory. Other Runnels scorers in the game included John Kennedy and Adrian ... he tallied 6 points apiece.

Edmonds was the leading rebounder for Runnels with 11. Lael Hubbard and Kennedy grabbed six apiece. Edmonds also was effective on defense, as he and Calvio notched seven steals. Runnels Red's record is now 6-5.

In the other game, Stephen Robles scored 15 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Runnels White to its victory over the Snyder eighth-graders.

Runnels trailed, 9-8, at halftime, but exploded for 25 points in the second half to gain the win.

Other White team scorers included Waylon McGee and Tim Pearson, who tallied six points apiece, Clay Klatt, with four and Mike Ross and Pat Martinez, with one each.

Martinez led in assists with three.

Both Runnels teams will return to action Thursday when they travel to Andrews. It will be the last road game of the season for Runnels.

 Hawks made one last surge behind three-pointers from McCants and Lewis, reducing the Howard deficit to four points with one minute left. The Hawks could get no closer, however. Johnson practically owned the boards during the last minutes, limiting Howard to one shot and out in preserving the victory.

The Hawks now face a three-game road stretch in which they must face New Mexico Junior College, Clarendon and Frank Phillips in the span of four days. Green said his team must win to remain eligible for post-season play.

"We've got to go on the road and win," he said. "The only thing they can derive from this game is that they played hard... Our goal is still to reach the playoffs. We control our own destiny for the next six games."

 We'll miss him."

"We have good players and a good football club," Holovak said. "I can't think of a finer one. Our main objective is to have an exciting club."

Holovak said he would go to Indianapolis where NFL scouts were conducting agility tests for the top players coming out of college.

Following the dismissal of Bum Phillips, Herzog, then executive vice president of the Oilers, took over as general manager in 1981. His latest five-year contract expired Dec. 31.

"I want to thank Bud (Adams) for having confidence in me and for supplying me with sufficient time to get the job done. I want to wish everyone associated with the Houston Oilers the very best for the future," Herzog said in a statement.

Holovak was a standout football player at Boston College in the 1940s, and still holds the Orange Bowl record for the highest rushing average in the game with 10 carries for 158 yards. In 1963, he was inducted into the National Collegiate Hall of Fame.

Shellman: pack leader

By STEVE BELVIN
 Sports Editor
 He's emerged as the leader of the Big Spring Steers. He's quiet, cool and collected. And he possesses the talent to someday be a college ballplayer.

Abner Shellman has been the main cog in the Steers' drive for a state basketball playoff berth. Shellman, a 6-0 senior guard, has been a picture of consistency for this year's league-leading Big Spring team.

It seems Shellman doesn't excel in one particular thing;

Steers vs. Monahans
Steer Gym, 7:30 p.m.
Ladies in Monahans

he's just very good in all phases of the game.

"Abner is a very unselfish player. He's our leading scorer and assist man," said Steers coach Boyce Paxton. "He's been our most consistent player all year."

The all-district and all-area player is having another all-star season. He leads the team in scoring (21.5); assists (3.2); field goal percentage (49.3); three-point percentage (34.9) and free throw percentage (74.8) and steals (4.0). He's also second on the team in rebounding (6.7). And to top things off, Paxton says he's a good defensive player.

The only things left for him to do is serve popcorn and cokes at halftime.

His coach says his work habits are a big reason for Shellman's success. "Abner's work habits haven't come real easy. But he's worked real hard, making everybody work a little harder. He's a leader by example, he doesn't say much."

Shellman says both his physical and mental attitudes are much improved.

"Last year I use to argue with the coach. Now I've learned to listen because he's telling me what's best for the team. He cares about this team," said Shellman. "I had to prove to myself that I could work hard for my coach. Someday I want to play college ball. I know I need to get a little stronger inside though."

Shellman says he has high interest in Howard College and Midland College.

"Abner can play college ball," said his coach. "He can play point guard or the off guard. But he's more comfortable at the number two guard (shooting guard). But we've used him wherever we need him. He played the point, shooting guard, small forward or strong forward."

"Because of his jumping ability he can guard the taller players. His defense has improved a whole lot this season. When he hooks it up he can guard anybody."

In one recent game Shellman showcased his jumping ability by taking a pass from teammate Jason Davis, and stuffing one home, much to the delight of the home crowd.

"People have been asking me when I was going to dunk one. I told them I'd do it sooner or later," he said with a wide grin.

Shellman and Paxton both agree the key to this year's success is unity, both on and off the court.

"Last year Brian (senior forward Brian Mayfield) carried the big load, and Abner was always in double figures. This year's team keeps evolving around everybody, and that's what we want," said Paxton.

"This year we don't have a guy like Mayfield. He was the best around," said Shellman. "This year I felt had I to contribute more. The whole team gets along well together. We all joke around with each other."

Now the Steers are two wins away from clinching a playoff berth, and both coach and players have their sights set on Austin, reaching the state tournament.

"The storybook ending would

be for us to go to Austin. I feel we've got a chance," said Shellman.

"I don't care how many games we win, I just want to go to Austin," said Paxton of his 16-10 Steers. "I've been coaching 19 years and I've seen the makup of those teams in Austin. We have the potential of a lot of those teams I've seen in Austin. We must have the hard-nose mentality and actual execution to get there."

Woman asks God to take her to heaven

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I just turned 90 and I'm all alone and in pain most of the time from a broken hip that won't heal. I pray and pray that God will just let me die and go to heaven, because there is nothing to live for anymore and I know I'll never get out of this nursing home. Is it wrong to feel this way? — Mrs. P.O.

Billy Graham

DEAR MRS. P.O.: There are two important things I want you to remember — and they are important for every one of us, no matter how old or young we may be.

No, it's not wrong to yearn for heaven; the apostle Paul stated, "I desire to depart and be with Christ, which is better by far." (Philippians 1:23) Paul also reminded us, "Now we know that if the earthly tent we live in is destroyed, we have a building from God, an eternal house in heaven." (2 Corinthians 5:1)

Second, remember that you are not alone. You may feel that you no longer have anyone near you — but God is with you, and you are never alone when you know Christ. Have you asked Christ to be your savior and are you trusting him to be just that? "Christ in you, the hope of glory." (Colossians 1:27) He is only a prayer away, and he loves you and knows the burdens and pain you bear. More than that, he can still use you. Make it a habit to pray by name for those around you each day and to encourage them with God's love. Perhaps this will be the greatest ministry you have ever had.

SOME GRANDPARENTS STAY YOUNG BUT THEY ALL NEED LOVE

Grandparents, as well as other members of the older generation, come in many forms today. The traditional image of Grandma knitting in her rocking chair and Grandpa with a long white beard and a cane may still be in effect, but it's rapidly being replaced by their going to the senior citizen's center for lunch every day, playing bingo, doing aerobics and getting involved in political issues. In any case, our House of Worship reminds us that they deserve our attention and respect. Our children should be taught at an early age to be kind and considerate to all older people, whether related to them or not, and to listen to them. Sharing ideas and activities with them is the best way to bridge the generation gap, and it can be a very rewarding experience all around. Love has no age limitation, and this is one of the finest ways of showing it.

'Wade Burroughs Sings Gospel'

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

He was raised on a cattle ranch in Coleman County and considers himself an old-time cowboy, yet Wade Burroughs recently experienced a long-awaited goal in a field unrelated to beef or horse-riding.

Burroughs, a nine-year member and choir director at Wesley United Methodist Church, recently recorded his first professionally-produced gospel tape titled, "Wade Burroughs Sings Gospel."

Burroughs' musical career began at the age of three.

As his mother played guitar, he performed before a live audience. "I've been in music since the time I could walk," he said.

Burroughs began recording the tape at NoMountain Studios, Midland, in October. After 10½ hours of studio time, the tape was completed in November.

His articulate, baritone-style voice reveals the time spent perfecting his ability to sing.

The tape features several gospel favorites, including "How Great Thou Art," "He Touched Me," "One Day at a Time," and "The Lord's Prayer."

A 13-year Big Spring Independent School District employee, he serves as administrator in charge of federal programs, computers and attendance.

Burroughs studied music at Hardin-Simmons University, which he attended on a basketball scholarship. He majored in physical education and minored in biology.

He later attended the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, where he worked toward obtaining his master's degree. He also studied at the University of California, Northridge, the University of Southern California, the University of Arizona, Tucson and received his master's degree in administration from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. At Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N.J., he studied music, vocals and conducting, was a member of the touring choir and a soloist.

Wade Burroughs, administrator at Big Spring Independent School District, recently recorded his first professionally-produced gospel tape.

"I've sang with Leonard Bernstein and Bruno Walter of the New York Philharmonic," he said.

Although his first love is music, he also is a successful basketball coach. He coached his team at Lipan to a 38-4 record.

He moved to Rotan, where he coached basketball and taught math for 2½ years. While there, he was choir director at First Presbyterian Church, Sweetwater.

After serving as football and basketball coach in Sweetwater, Burroughs began directing the high school and junior high school's choirs, earning a Division I in sight-reading and concert. "I inherited a good group," he said.

Burroughs said his talents also include playing the guitar and piano.

After years of coaching and teaching in Arkansas, he boasts one basketball division championship title.

When his father became ill 13 years ago, he and his family moved to Big Spring, where he taught math, coached basketball, football and track at Rannels Junior High School.

He served as choir director at Baptist Temple for three years.

After joining Wesley United Methodist Church nine years ago, several members of the congregation asked him to record a gospel tape.

The only setback was the cost of recording. "Now it's considerably less," he said.

Although the tapes are not yet available in stores, they can be purchased by calling the church at 263-2092.

Burroughs and his wife, Sondra, have four children, Stephen, Teri, Teresa and John; and one granddaughter, BreAnne.

Church briefs

Bowie to lead Pre-Lenten services

Rev. Gordon S. Bowie, pastor of the University Presbyterian Church, El Paso, will preach and lead the Pre-Lenten services Sunday through Tuesday at First Presbyterian Church.

The services, scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., are a time of preparation and study before Lent begins Wednesday.

Rev. Bowie, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, completed his university and theological education at the University of Glasgow and Trinity College.

His first pastorate was at Northwood Presbyterian Church, San Antonio, later serving as associate chaplain at San Antonio State Hospital.

He and his family moved to El Paso in 1965 where pastors the University Presbyterian Church.

Bowie also served as moderator of Tres Rios Presbytery in 1965. The public is invited to attend. A nursery will be available.

REV. GORDON BOWIE

Rawls is 'Teacher of the Month'

Cindy Rawls, pre-school teacher at College Park Church of God, was named "Teacher of the Month" for the second time.

Cindy, who is expecting a baby in the near future, teaches four and five-year-old children, averaging seven children per week.

Class activities include Bible lessons, drawing, coloring and various handi-craft work.

Kathy Deshotel is currently teaching Cindy's class.

Runner-up for the month of January is Patty Heckler who teaches babies upto two years of age.

"Our teachers are truly displaying the "Bold New Vision" spirit that is continuing to enhance our Sunday School Department," said Greg Pendley, Sunday school superintendent.

'The Word Made Fresh'

Texan writes a modern look at the Bible

CLEBURNE (AP) — The names have been changed for easier reading, and the locations made more familiar, but the messages and teachings remain the same in "The Word Made Fresh," a version of the Bible written by Dr. Andrew Edington of Kerrville.

Biblical characters like Mahlon, Jehoshabeta and Maacha have been renamed Charles, Florence and Marjorie. The Mediterranean resort village of Haran is called Palm Springs to help the reader more closely identify with the Biblical setting.

"If readers don't understand what's going on in the Bible, they quickly get bored and lose interest, depriving them of the joy of the scriptures," said Edington, president emeritus of Schreiner College, in a recent interview.

There are no hard words in the book; hard words are in the notes, Edington added.

"My version was never intended to take the place of more traditional versions. My version is meant to be a vehicle that runs along side and leads people to the Bible," Edington said.

Edington is a lifelong educator and Bible scholar.

His grandfather was a minister and his father was a judge who taught Bible studies.

ANDREW EDINGTON

"I came up in a church family," Edington said.

He took two years of Bible in a college in Memphis, Tenn. He was one of 25 students in a one-week Bible class taught by the Rev. Billy Graham in the early 1950s.

He received his doctorate from Austin College in Sherman, and was president of Schreiner from 1950 to 1971.

Edington began his career in education as a high school and college coach. He developed the first year-round sports program at a federal correctional institution at Alabama State Penitentiary in the 1930s.

Edington is known to sports historians as the first high school coach to allow women to play varsity football when he trained a female student to kick field goals in the late 1930s.

He served as a captain in the U.S. Navy in both the Pacific and Atlantic theaters in World War II.

In the early 1950s, Edington testified before the U.S. Supreme Court on the teaching of Bible lessons and prayer in public schools, based on his research of constitutional laws in the 48 states.

While serving as president of Schreiner College, Edington taught classes in Bible, English and psychology.

"I always thought the president of a college should teach a class," Edington said.

He used the modern names and more familiar locations while teaching Bible classes at Schreiner.

"My students encouraged me to write the account of the Bible as I had taught it," Edington said.

"The Word Made Fresh" was not written as a scholarly, word-for-word study of the Holy Scriptures, but rather as a means to get people reading the Bible and understanding the word of God. It is meant to provoke its readers into reading more traditional texts, such as the King James version, by shedding new light and understanding on the age-old lessons, Edington said.

Edington said, as an educator in the 1930s, he discovered the archaic language found in older Bible translations often clouded the meaning of the lessons for his students.

"My Bible classes were often decorated with colorful narratives, and students quickly grasped more of an understanding of what the ancient authors were saying," Edington said.

"Students would tell me, 'If you find a Bible that reads like you teach, I'll read it.' That was the beginning of "The Word Made Fresh," Edington said.

The first volume of "The Word Made Fresh," spanning Genesis through both books of Kings, was published in 1972. Volume 2, containing the remaining books of the Old Testament version was published in 1976. The New Testament version followed in 1976.

A recent set of "The Word Made Fresh," containing both the Old Testament and New Testament, has been published.

Giving gifts

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Mother Teresa gives a religious medallion to a well-wisher from the backyard of the house which will serve as the Mother's Missionary of Charity in Phoenix.

Mother Teresa brought four of her sisters to staff the foundation house which will provide ministry to the homeless and chronically ill.

Fox Family Ministry

The First Church of the Nazarene, 1400 Lancaster, invites the public to attend services Sunday when the Fox Family will perform during the 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. worship services. "You're sure to receive a blessing from this family's wonderful music and ministry," said Lynn Robertson, church member.

Purdue upsets No. 2 Illini

By The Associated Press For one of the few times this season, the Purdue Boilermakers measured up.

Purdue, which won the last two Big Ten titles, snapped a four-game losing streak, including three straight at home, with a 76-72 victory over No. 2 Illinois on Thursday night. Melvin McCants sparked the upset with 12 of his 16 points in the second half.

"We were very determined to win because we lost four in a row and most of the guys were down," McCants said. "We had decided in order for us to come out and compete with other teams and improve, we had to come out and have a great performance."

College Roundup

Purdue, which brought a 50-percent shooting mark into the game, slowed the tempo, working for an open shot. The Boilermakers shot 71 percent in the first half and 61 percent for the night, connecting on 27 of 44 shots.

But it was what they did without the ball that was crucial, Coach Gene Keedy said.

Arizona beat California 86-59, Iowa took Northwestern 102-84, West Virginia won its 15th straight, 79-71 over Rhode Island, and Stanford defeated Arizona State 75-60.

The Boilermakers' torrid shooting kept them in contention in a game that was tight all the way, with neither team leading by more than five points. They took their biggest lead of the second half at 69-65 on Ryan Berning's two free throws with 2:31 remaining, then pulled off the Illini, 18-2 and 5-2, who held within two points twice after Berning's free throws.

Purdue's Tony Jones had 22 points while Lowell Hamilton led Illinois with 18.

Georgia Tech 81, No. 12 Duke 76 A record crowd of 9,206 crowded into Alexander Coliseum to see the Yellow Jackets hand Duke its fourth loss in five games.

Dennis Scott scored nine of his 20 points in the final 2:40 for the Yellow Jackets, 13-6 overall and 3-2 in the ACC.

Duke fell to 14-4 and 4-4 despite a 27-point effort by Danny Ferry.

Tech never trailed after taking a 10-9 lead on Brian Oliver's 3-point basket just over seven minutes into the game. Oliver scored 20 points.

"He showed me he could do a lot of things besides hit the 3-pointer," Tech coach Bobby Cremins said of Scott, who filled in at center when Tom Hammonds sat out just over seven minutes of the second half with four fouls.

No. 4 Arizona 86, California 59 Sean Elliott hit six 3-pointers and scored 26 points as Pac-10 leader Arizona improved to 10-1 in the conference and 16-2 for the season.

The Wildcats led 35-30 at the half and Cal cut the score to 35-34 early in the second half. Then Elliott hit his first of five second-half 3-pointers to trigger a 12-3 run for a 47-37 lead.

The Wildcats held visiting Cal scoreless for the final 6:36 while scoring the last 16 points.

Elliott increased his Pac-10 career scoring total to 2,224 points, second-best to the 2,325 points by Lew Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar) of UCLA.

No. 9 Iowa 102, Northwestern 84 At Iowa City, Ed Horton took charge in the second half with 20 of his 24 points as Iowa improved to 16-4 overall and 4-3 in the Big Ten.

Roy Marble added 19 points.

The Hawkeyes led 76-74 with 9:24 left, then outscored the Wildcats 14-4, while hitting eight of nine foul shots.

"Horton was really a problem for us. We don't have a lot of power inside," Northwestern coach Bill Foster said.

Northwestern's Walker Lam-botte had 34 points.

No. 18 W. Virginia 79, Rhode Island 71

The visiting Mountaineers had too much for Rhode Island down the stretch. Steve Berger scored 19 points, including the go-ahead 3-pointer, as West Virginia, 16-2 overall and 10-0 in the Atlantic 10, set a school record of eight straight victories on the road. West Virginia's 15 consecutive victories is the longest streak in the nation.

"URI played a heck of a game," West Virginia coach Gale Catlett said. "Our trouble came because Rhode Island played so well."

No. 20 Stanford 75, Arizona St. 60

Todd Lichti scored 11 of his 30 points during an 18-5 spurt in the second half that was decisive for visiting Stanford. Lichti became the second-leading scorer in Pacific-10 games.

The senior guard and Stanford's all-time leading scorer, has 1,199 career points in Pac-10 games. He's behind only Reggie Miller of UCLA, who had 1,234.

Lichti has 2,102 career points overall, jumping from sixth to third place as he, too, chases the mark of Alcindor.

"Todd Lichti. Is the guy unbelievable or what?," ASU coach Steve Patterson asked. "I thought we played well against him but he still got his points."

Other Games

Duane Donald hit a layup with 16 seconds left to give Southeastern Louisiana a 56-53 victory over Pan American that ended its 16-game losing streak.

New Orleans shattered Louisiana Tech's 22-game homecourt winning streak with a 64-54 victory. Willie Richardson scored five of his game-high 21 points in the final 1:47.

Trent Jackson hit a 14-foot jump shot with 1:10 left in overtime and Wisconsin stayed ahead for a 60-64 Big Ten victory over Michigan State.

Mark Macon scored 24 points and Temple survived 14 3-point goals by St. Joseph's for a 79-71 victory. Duane Causwell added a career-high 18 points for the Owls, while freshman Craig Amos had a career-high 25 points for St. Joseph's.

Jamere Jackson scored 23 points, including 10 of 10 free throws, leading Notre Dame to an 83-68 victory over Marquette.

NBA Today

NBA Today Saturday, Feb. 4 By The Associated Press SCOREBOARD

Utah at Denver: (8:30 p.m. EST). The first place Jazz, with the Western Conference's second best road record, travel to Denver to face the up-and-down Nuggets, four games behind them in the Midwest Division.

STARS Thursday

Michael Jordan, Bulls, scored 40 points on 15-of-21 shooting, added seven rebounds, eight assists and four steals to lead Chicago to a 109-98 win over Sacramento.

Alex English, Nuggets, scored 36 points, and added five rebounds and five assists in Denver's 112-103 win over Atlanta.

Mitch Richmond, Warriors, continued to impress as a rookie, totalling 32 points, nine rebounds and five assists in Golden State's 127-113 victory over New Jersey.

SHARPshooters

Gerald Williams, Knicks, hit on 10-of-12 shots from the field for 21 points in New York's 125-109 win over Cleveland.

Also in that game, Mike Sanders of Cleveland shot 14-for-20 for 30 points in a losing effort.

SHOOTING BLANKS

Randolph Keys, Cavaliers rookie, showed why he's seen little action this season, connecting on only one of nine attempts against the Knicks ... Rory Sparrow continued to struggle from the floor with a 2-for-12 performance in the Heat's seventh straight loss ... Sam Vincent, Bulls, was just 1-for-8, but luckily overshadowed by his backcourt mate, Michael Jordan ... Fat Lever hit only 5 of 18 field goal attempts, but 13 of 14 free throws in the Nuggets win over the Hawks.

SACRAMENTO SELECTION

Rookies Ricky, Knicker and Vinny Del Negro combined to hit on 14 of 20 shots Thursday, while veteran teammates Rodney McCray, Ed Pinckney and Joe Kleine combined for a 7-for-29 effort in the Kings' loss at Chicago.

STATUS

Larry Nance, Cleveland Cavaliers, sat out Thursday's loss to the Knicks with a strained tendon in his left foot. It was the second straight game missed by the All-Star forward.

Dominique Wilkins, Atlanta Hawks, another All-Star forward for the Eastern Conference, sat out Thursday's loss at Denver with a jammed thumb he sustained the previous night in Utah.

Buck Williams, New Jersey Nets, missed Thursday's loss in Golden State with the flu. Teammate Joe Barry Carroll also sat out his third straight game with back problems.

SWINGS

The Cleveland Cavaliers, who blocked a league record 21 shots in a 104-96 win against the Knicks in Richfield last month, blocked just two without Larry Nance in Thursday's loss at New York ... Chris Mitchell, who had shot at least 50 from the field in 12 straight games, had his second straight night under 50 with a 4-for-18, 16 point effort Thursday. It was also the first time in 26 games that he has scored under 21 points in a game.

SIGNINGS

Walter Berry, waived by the Nets Monday, signed a contract with the Houston Rockets Wednesday for the rest of the season.

SOVIET SHOOTER

Rimas Kurtinaitis, the leading scorer in the Soviet Union's 82-76 victory over the United States in the 1988 Seoul Olympics, will participate in the Long Distance Shootout on NBA All-Star Saturday, Feb. 11, at the Summit in Houston.

"The theme of All-Star Saturday always has been a celebration of all aspects of basketball," NBA commissioner David J. Stern said, "so in recognition of the sport's world-wide popularity, we decided to open up the content to some friendly foreign competition."

SHOOTOUT, CONTINUED

Jon Sundvold of the Miami Heat, the NBA's leader in 3-point field goal percentage was named to replace Trent Tucker of the Knicks, who was forced to withdraw due to an illness in his family. Sundvold has shot 29-for-49 for a .592 mark so far this year.

SELLOUTS

After Thursday's game with Cleveland, the Knicks have now sold out their last 11 home games.

SOPHOMORES

Dennis Hopson of the Nets has scored 57 points in his last two games ... Horace Grant of the Bulls pulled down 18 rebounds for the second consecutive game, as he combined with frontcourt mates Scottie Pippen and Bill Cartwright for 39 boards against the Kings.

Weather

An arctic air mass maintained its icy grip on the northern and central sections of the nation today, generating dangerous wind chills of 80 below, as freezing rain made roads treacherous from Texas to Vermont.

Freezing rain, freezing drizzle and sleet fell from north central Texas to Vermont, with snow in extreme northern Ohio and northern Vermont, making driving dangerous.

Showers and thunderstorms dumped heavy rain and small hail on sections of Texas and Arkansas, with some places getting more than 2 inches of rain. A flash flood watch was in effect for southwest Arkansas. Rainfall also was heavy central Rockies, from Nebraska to the middle Mississippi Valley and over the Great Lakes and central New England; freezing rain and sleet from southeast Missouri to central Illinois and from western and central New York to Connecticut; rain from the lower Mississippi Valley to the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States; scattered rain showers along the California coast and dangerous wind chills from the northern and central Rockies to the northern and central Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley.

High temperatures were predicted for the 20s and 30s from the northern Pacific Coast to Nevada, western and northern Texas.

Today's forecast called for snow from Oregon to Idaho and the cen-

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1989

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An older person fails to live up to a promise. Judge not. Keep expenses within reason, spending your money on basics. Handle family differences with special tact. Emphasize shared goals and values.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A letter or telephone call brings good news from abroad. Look forward to a reunion with your offspring. Romance begins to heat up. Play it cool for now. Postpone making a commitment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Weekend employment could be the best answer to a temporary financial crunch. A relationship needs overhauling. Take the first steps toward straightening things out. Speak candidly. Write letters to the folks back home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be wary of anyone who approaches you with a get-rich-quick scheme. Mate or partner makes good suggestions. Write or call an old friend who is in need. Offer practical help.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Weekend shopping could yield some wonderful bargains. Parties are fun if they do not get out of hand. Protect your reputation. Another person's welfare could be involved. Avoid legal entanglements, negative publicity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Consult financial experts prior to deciding on major moves involving joint funds. You need to discuss matters with partner before making a final commitment. Mate shares secrets. Curb an urge to criticize.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): News from abroad brightens your day. Postpone asking influential people for special favors. Devote more time to creative and artistic projects. A good day for do-it-yourself types. Tackle home repairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Giving your home a face-lift will increase its value and boost your spirits. Ask family members to pitch in and help. Dining out in an exotic restaurant sounds appealing tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good morning to stick close to home and tend to your chores. An afternoon shopping trip yields fine bargains for those who can afford them. Try an outdoor sport.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Speculative ventures remain too risky. Protect jointly held resources. A chance encounter could lead to happy romance. Set aside time to relax at home and read. Family members draw closer together.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A hobby could become a second career. Enlist family members' help in starting a cottage industry. Your personal relationships are more satisfying than in the recent past. Learn from previous mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stay close to home today. Family gatherings are especially enjoyable when everyone shares the kitchen chores. Something that was lost resurfaces. Singing and dancing are good forms of recreation this evening.
