Flood lawsuit against city ends in mistrial

By BRADLEY WORRELL Staff Writer

After two weeks of testimony and nearly 10 hours in deliberations by jury members, the flood lawsuit against the city has been declared a mistrial — starting the process all over again.

"I hate to do it again, but we're going to have to do it again," District Court Judge James Gregg said Thursday evening, after the presiding juror told Gregg the panel was in a 7-5 deadlock. Under civil case procedure, at least 10 jurors must reach the same decision for a jury's decision to be members, who had arrived at a.m., back into the courtroom at 8:05 p.m. to determine if they were close to reaching a decision.

Gregg summoned the jury

"Sir, I don't believe so," the presiding juror admitted. "Your honor, we're still on question one,

The jury was given twelve questions to decide, the first being whether the city was liable for damages and the other questions providing jury voted yes to question one - revolved around damages that could be imposed for negligence or gross negligence.

Jury members were able to reach an agreement on some of the questions, juror Jack Letts said today. He said all of the jurors were unanimous in finding Public Works director Tom Decell innocent of charges of gross negligence.

But because jurors could not agree on the crucial issue of whether the city was negligent that decision and all of the others will have to be decided again in another trial.

Of the twelve jurors, seven jurges did not believe the city was liable for damages and five believed that it was, Letts said. Lawyers from both sides said the next trial will probably call for a change of venue because of the media exposure the trial has received in Howard County. Other possible sites for the next trial in-

Gregg said it could be a year or more before the case goes to trial again. "We've got a lot of cases to try before we try this one again,'

The inability of jury members to reach the 10-2 majority needed to reach a decision left people on both sides disappointed.

Terry Rhoads, attorney for the city, said, "I'm disappointed . . . that we didn't get a final saying from the jury.

Mayor A.C. "Cotton" Mize said he was also disappointed by the lack of a clear decision but said he was very happy with the way the AUSTIN — Attorneys for Texas mental health patients say state budget writers must fund courtordered improvements in the mental health system or face "possible seizure and sale of state assets to assure compliance.

Bookstores report brisk sales of Khomeini death book

By BILL STIEG Associated Press Writer The nation's largest bookseller, Waldenbooks, ordered "The Satanic Verses" off store shelves for fear that threats of violence against the book's author and publisher might extend to its employees.

But the book was missing from many bookstore shelves today for another reason: Sales were booming.

"This is not a freedom of speech issue — the sole reason is the protection of our employees," Bonnie Predd, executive vice president of Waldenbooks, said after the chain ordered its copies removed from display Thursday.

"We've fought long and hard book against censorship," Predd was quoted as saying in today's editions of The New York Times. "But when it comes to the safety of our employees, one sometimes has to compromise."

Telephone calls by The Associated Press to Waldenbooks stores nationwide Thursday night found that the Salman Rushdie novel — which provoked the Iranian leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, to call for the author's death — was available for sale on request in a few stores, but was not on display.

Employees answering the telephone at most stores said they had been instructed by corporate headquarters to say "No comment" to any questions about the Viking Penguin began a second printing of the book last week, according to a company spokesman.

The first run was 50,000 copies. "We're printing to meet demand," the spokesman said Thursday. He asked that his name not be used, citing the bomb threats at the company's New York headquarters

He said the $19.95 hardcover has hit five regional best-seller lists in this week's Chicago Tribune and The Boston Globe and next week's San Francisco Chronicle and The Washington Post

A fast-selling book usually gets special treatment from retailers window displays, a separate table or a prominent place on shelves. Some booksellers said the uproar wouldn't deter them.

"No book should be banned from sale for the ideas it contains," said Michael Bills, manager of The Harvard Book Store in Cambridge, Mass. He said an unidentified group called him Tuesday to urge that an "offensive" Rushdie display be removed from the shop window, but he refused.

Autopsy report shows Carrillo was drunk, had taken cocaine

By MICHAEL DUFFY Staff Writer

The blood alcohol level of a 27-year-old Big Spring man whose body was discovered in the parking lot of a downtown theater last September was twice the legal Autopsy reports showed that Jimmy Carrillo had also taken cocaine shortly before his death.

Carrillo, 1014 Bluebonnet Ave., died from aspiration of gastric contents, Big Spring pathologist Dr. Robert Rember concluded in the autopsy report that was released Thursday. Aspiration is the inhaling of foreign objects or materials into the lungs Carrillo was involved in a fight during the early morning hours of Sept. 3 and was knocked down striking the pavement in the parking lot of the Ritz Theater — 104 S. Main St., according to police.

The autopsy report confirmed the police findings.

"A large bruised area was found beneath the scalp at the back of the skull corresponding to the area where the head made contact to the pavement, as depicted in the investigating officer's photographs," the report states.

Carrillo's blood alcohol level was .22 percent — over twice the limit considered legally intoxicated in Texas. It was a contributing factor

The autopsy report also states: ... Toxicological tests of the urine revealed this person had used cocaine fairly recently."

Levels of cocaine are not measured in toxicological tests because it is rapidly absorbed in the blood.

In toxicology reports, tests are conducted for the following controlled substances: amphetamines; barbiturates; tranquilizers; opiates (narcotics); marijuana; cocaine; methadone; methaqualone (Quaalude); phencyclidine (PCP); and propoxyphene (Darvon).

'The skull and brain were intact, showing no internal evidence of injury . . . moderate fatty degeneration of the liver would indicate longstanding ethanol (alcohol) ingestion," the report concluded.

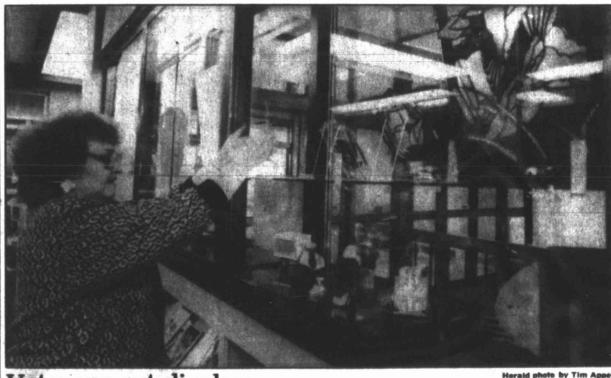

Capt. Lonnie Smith said this morning he received a copy of the report from Howard County Justice of the Peace China Longwho ordered the autopsy

Smith has submitted the investigative report on Carrillo's death to Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby for review. Several of Carrillo's friends attempted to resusitate him by using

CPR, but fled the scene when their attempts failed, Smith said. Hamby said this morning he has not yet seen a copy of the autopsy

Investigation into Carrillo's death is expected to be among the cases reviewed by an upcoming

Plans made to hold refugees in 'tent-city' detention center

BAYVIEW — Central American refugees wait under an IRS tent for asylum applications to be processed. The Justice Department plans to pitch tents to house the flood of refugees that are entering the United States each day, since an order baring asylum-seekers from traveling has been

WASHINGTON (AP) — Central American refugees will be detained in a "tent-city" on isolated South Texas brushland while their applications for political asylum are processed, congressional officials say.

The Justice Department plans to pitch tents on land adjacent to a minimum-security federal detention center now being used to process the refugees' applications, the Capitol Hill officials said

Rep. Lamar Smith, a San Antonio Republican, said in a statement released by a spokeswoman that the facility would meet basic human necessities of adequate housing, food and sanitary conditions. There will be no fence around the tents, another congressional aide said.

More than 2,000 refugees from Central America are crossing into the United States illegally every week, most of them coming across the Rio Grande at Brownsville from Mexico, officials say.

A second congressional aide said the Justice Department hopes word of the tent-city detention center quickly reaches Central America and discourages the thousands of amnesty-seekers from coming into the United States.

Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman Duke Austin said, however, there has been "no public disclosure" of the Bush administration's plans for handling the flood of refugees and that the issue was still under review.

But one of the congressional aides said the Justice Department would start "interning people" now that U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela has reinstated an INS policy that bars asylum-seekers from traveling beyond the Rio Grande Valley while their applications are Vela ruled on the case today, and Austin said the INS would address its plans for meeting the refugees' "human needs" in court.

Before Vela blocked the INS' notravel policy on Jan. 9, Central Americans who had crossed the Rio Grande illegally were living in shanty town conditions - camped out beneath plastic sheets in open fields - or in condemned

Some officials believe the judge's order blocking the no-travel policy has sent a signal to Central America that the time has been ripe for asylum-seekers to enter the country. Once they leave the border, officials say it is much more difficult to find and deport those who are denied asylum.

'Word flashes to Central America as fast as a phone line can flash it that the time is ripe to come into the United States, and they (Justice officials) are hoping the word flashes, probably via Miami, that the time is past and to stop coming now or you might wind up in a tent in South Texas," the aide

The Justice Department plans to keep the refugees in tents near the Port Isabel Service Processing Center, about 15 miles north of Brownsville, the officials said.

"The mass detention of thousands of refugees shows a disrespect on the part of the INS for the refugees' right apply for political asylum," said Brian Szittai, spokesman for the Refugee Rights Coalition of the Rio Grande Valley, a group advocating freedom of travel for asylum-seekers The INS moved its operations for processing asylum claims to the facility near Bayview after city officials closed the INS' processing center in Harlingen because of alleged health and fire code violations caused by the stream of applicants. Rep. Solomon Ortiz, a Corpus Christi Democrat, said providing shelter at the center would be an improvement because the refugee seekers now must walk miles to reach the center from town or take cabs, and must stand in line whatever the weather.

'They're out in the boondocks, in the middle of nowhere - away from shelter, in the rain, the hot sun," Ortiz said, adding that the line on Wednesday stretched threequarters of a mile long.

The INS processed 900 asylumseekers Wednesday, its first day to take applications at the new office. By late Thursday afternoon, the new center had processed another 510 applications and officials expected to process 150 more before closing for the day, said Mario Ortiz, INS spokesman. When the office closed at 6:30 p.m., 450 people were still in line.

INS officials contend many seeking asylum are here only to better themselves economically and use the asylum process and lengthy appeals to get into the United States. Political asylum is granted only to those fleeing persecution for political or other reasons.

Investor eyes Odessa chemical plant

ODESSA (AP) A debt-taden chemical plant which has been cited for air and water pollution could get a new lease on life if a California investor has his way. Jim Lindley, a principal owner of Fresno-based Moyer Products Inc., said Wednesday that Permian Chemical Co. Inc. could become a thriving fertilizer company. But the plan hinges on a bankruptcy court hearing that began Thursday in San Antonio. But Lindley said the rusting, delapidated chemical plant is "a mess" that probably would require expenditure of more than $2 million to bring the facility into compliance with environmental standards.

Lindley, who along with another man owns about 75 percent of Moyer, said he is willing to provide money to operate the plant after

"We want to clean up the plant and make it a proper and respectable plant and hire local people. I think the community will really benefit," said Lindley.

'We have no obligation to go there and make it run; we don't want to do it if we can't do it safely and effectively," he said. State regulators said they are considering Lindley's proposal. Permian Chemical manufactured potassium sulfate, marketed as a fertilizer, and hydrochloric acid that was sold to oilfield companies. State officials said more than "Chloride content is incredibly high," TWC investigator Ralph Johnson said. Plant chlorine levels are about 22,000 parts per million, compared with state recommendations that levels not exceed 300

Earlier TWC tests on Permian Chemical's wastewater also showed toxic levels of chromium and lead and elevated levels of cadmium, barium, mercury and

Medicaid coverage for all the poor will be costly

"We are placing before the people a tough statement that there is an unmet need; it is well documented; the program is falling substantially short — it covers fewer than half the poor in the country — and that's go-

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government and the states would have to spend at least $13.2 billion more to expand the Medicaid program to cover all Americans who live in poverty, according to a coalition led by the American Medical Association.

The coalition proposed such a plan Thursday to cover the estimated 11 million people whose incomes are below the federal poverty level but who do not now qualify for the health assistance program.

"Medicaid simply does not work adequately in its current form," said James R. Tallon Jr., majority leader of the New York State Assembly and chairman of the coalition's committee on Medicaid. "We call for a system that truly cares for the needs of the poor."

Though Medicaid was established as a federal-state program to serve the medical needs of the poor, fewer than half of the 33 million Americans below the poverty line are covered by the program, the coalition said.

Eligibility varies from state to state, and as health-care costs have soared, states have trimmed growth in their Medicaid costs by restricting eligibility.

ing to have to fall to government."

As a result, the average income threshold for eligibility in 1988 was $4,792 gross annual income or a family of three — 49 percent of the federal poverty level of $9,690, the report said. In Alabama, the state with the lowest income threshold, a family of three can earn no more than $1,416 a year to qualify for Medicaid.

The coalition, called the Health Policy Agenda for the American People, said its plan to expand the Medicaid program and improve benefits would cost $13.2 billion to $28 billion above current Medicaid expenditures, with most of the additional cost borne by the federal government.

A Big Spring man escaped injury Thursday afternoon when the landing gear on the single-engine airplane he was piloting locked causing the aircraft to crash on the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark runway, Airpark Secretary Nancy Brownfield said.

The crash occurred about 1:10 p.m. as Larry Ashbrook was attempting to land his Bonanza airplane on Runway 17, Brownfield

She added that the aircraft sustained an undetermined amount of damage and was towed from the runway by a crew from C-Bar Fly-

'He told us he put the landing gear down and it didn't hold,' Brownfield said.

No structrual damage to the runway occurred as a result of the crash, Brownfield said

Pharis, of Austin, reported Thursday to U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders in Dallas that the proposed MHMR budget would force the department to violate the settlement.

"Without adequate funding," Chapman said, "Judge Sanders may have to rule (on a motion) which includes the suggestion of possible seizure and sale of state assets to assure compliance."

The Legislative Budget Board's funding recommendation is almost $1 billion less than the amount MHMR asked in order to comply with the settlement.

"It may be unfortunate that the mental health budget requires expansion to adequately meet the needs of patients," Pharis' report said. "But that is a hard fact — it

MHMR asked for a total $2.2 billion for the next two years to fund programs and comply with demands of the settlement.

State budget writers, under pressure to avoid new taxes and decrease spending, recommended a two-year budget of $1.5 billion for the department.

The settlement requires that patients be protected from harm and treated humanely; that facilities use medications properly and provide individual treatment; and that adequate services be provided after patients are discharged.

Pharis previously told a Senate finance subcommittee that the budget proposal won't cover needed hospital staffing and community service programs.

The budget proposal assumes that one state hospital and two state schools can be closed during the next two years, because of the declining number of patients, the report says.

Pharis said he does not oppose the closings, but urged lawmakers to focus on developing services required by the court.

Implementation of the settlement began seven years ago, and some improvements have been made, Pharis said, but other problems remain, such as removing the mentally retarded from state hospitals.

The budget board's proposal also does not include $17 million necessary for nursing home reform, Pharis said.

ple a tough statement that there is an unmet need; it is well documented; the program is falling substantially short - it covers fewer than half the poor in the country — and that's going to have to fall to government," Tallon said. "New resources have to be made available because we have a system that's crumbling."

In fiscal 1988, the federal government spent about $30.5 billion and the states spent about $20.5 billion on Medicaid.

-Raise reimbursement rates for physicians and hospitals at least to the level of Medicare rates, which would cost an additional $4.4

Big Spring police reported investigating the following incidents:

 Clerks at the 7/Eleven Food Store, 800 S. Gregg St., and 300 Owens St., reported two unidentified suspects took nine cartons of cigarettes Thursday night. The suspects removed five car-

Cigarette thefts from Big Spring 7/Eleven stores have been common during recent months, however, Capt. Lonnie Smith said today that two men have been arrested recently in connection with the alleged sales of cartons of cigarettes.

Smith said he believes there are an undetermined number of people involved in stealing cartons of

Guardians of virtue

By now, most of the nation knows something of the tragedy of Nancy Klein, the pregnant New York woman who was in an auto accident in December and has been in a coma ever since. A few days ago, believing an abortion might increase the chances of a recovery, Martin Klein, her husband of nine years, sought, and finally obtained, authority for the procedure. But he didn't get it without a protracted legal battle, through four different courts, in which two anti-abortionists who had never met Nancy Klein and had no other interest in her sought to have themselves named her "guardians" so they could block the abortion.

In an appellate court ruling in the case, a five-judge panel declared, persuasively, that strangers "have no place in the midst of a family tragedy." As Martin Klein said during the course of his ordeal, he is the person who will have to live with the decision and its medical and moral consequences. The would-be intervenors would be there today, and gone tomorrow.

But the Klein case also is a paradigm for the larger issue. If it dramatizes with unusual clarity the cruelty of an attempt by absolute strangers to make difficult moral choices for other people — to place themselves in the midst of a family tragedy — it throws light as well on the political effort of anti-abortionists generally to arrogate to themselves the power to make moral decisions for strangers. If Roe vs. Wade were to be overturned or seriously eroded and abortion severely restricted, the state would, in effect, become legal guardian over all pregnant women, determining who could have the procedure and under what conditions, even though it is the individual who will have to live with the consequences of that decision.

There are times — in cases of child abuse, for example — when the state has to intervene in families to protect the lives or safety of individuals. But the Klein case demonstrates that where the existence of the "life" to be protected is itself a matter of moral and scientific dispute, no official wisdom can replace personal conscience. In the first months of pregnancy, the centrally responsible moral agent can be only the woman herself and those closest to her. All others are relative strangers.

The chances are small that Nancy Klein will ever come out of her coma, even with the abortion. But in her inability to make the choice herself can anyone seriously suggest that for her, or any other pregnant woman, the state, the law or any collection of self-ar ppointed "guardians" — how the word rings with Orwellian overtones - can ever make a more conscientious choice?

Show supporters appreciated

To the editor:

Our family has recently concluded its partcipation for another year in the Howard County Stock Show. We have had a son active in this aspect of 4-H and FFA for five years now. I was particularly impressed this year with the generosity of Big Spring/Howard County merchants, independent companies and individuals. It is understandable that economic times are not at their best, yet we felt many local businesses supported this endeavor even when it was not financially easy to do so.

We wish to take this way to say thank you to those who purchased aumals in the auction (this is strictly a cash contribution to the child as the buyer does not actually buy an animal). There were others who donated money or belt buckles and they also have our thanks.

I realize many times we find it desirable to shop in surrounding cities and towns, however my family will make it a point to try and support those who have also supported these young people. We certainly found it another reason to be glad we live in Howard County.

We wish also to thank those who made the show a success: the agents, the Ag teachers, Howard College helpers and all the other parents. 4-H and FFA are very much worth all the time, effort and expense involved.

To the editor:

I am so tired of people letting their children off and picking them up at Washington School and having the nerve to just stop right in the middle of the street. They make everyone wait, as cars dangerously pile up behind them, sometimes as far back as on Birdwell.

These people make everyone else wait for their convenience.

Today a woman sat in her car in front of me talking to a person in another car, blocking me from moving. I got out to ask her to please move and she very rudely told me I could just wait, that she'd had to wait earlier.

I realize I can't change the world (although I'd like to) but I still refuse to treat others as I've been treated. I will continue to pull over to the curb and inconvenience myself for the convenience of others. I hope people will try to be a little more kind and considerate of others and not just think about themselves.

The third area of contention has received remarkably little attention. What happened suddenly, just after the national election, was the implementation of the Crocker (Chester) Plan for Namibia-Angola, patterned after U.N. Resolution 435 dating back to 1978. That plan calls for elections in Namibia on Nov. 1, 1989, and, for reasons that defy understanding, the removal of the Cuban military contingent that has secured the communist government in power in Angola not until July 1, 1991.

Now the geopolitical meaning of this is simply stated. The Cuban military has kept the communists in power in Angola. And the South African military has kept freedom alive in Namibia by sustaining resistance to the Marxist-led SWAPO forces; and, in Angola, by sustaining Gen. Jonas Savimbi, president of UNITA, who has the southeastern section of Angola liberated from the Marxists in the north.

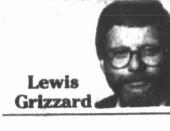

But our pressures on South Africa have accumulated to such a point as apparently to have exhausted their reserves. They can no longer expend the energy to hold the line, for fear of increased sanctions. SWAPO will face little effective political opposition now that the South African military is to be replaced by blue-helmeted U.N. troops in Namibia, and the Cubans remaining in Angola will provide provide pressure especially against a Savimbi weakened by the withdrawal of South Africa.

Moreover, as General Savimbi recently declared to activist Howard Phillips, head of the Conservative Caucus in Washington, the offer to withdraw 50,000 Cuban military says nothing about 10,000 Cubans who are black-skinned and speak Portuguese and have been now 10 years in Angola. A trivial force of 90 members of the United Nations are given the responsibility of verifing the Cuban withdrawal. But if the anti-Marxist, pro-Western forces of Savimbi are by midsummer of 1991 thoroughly weakened, there is hardly any duty left for the Cuban Marxist mercenaries: Angola will continue to be governed by the Marxist puppet government of Moscow, the forces of UNITA will suffer the fate of the contras in Nicaragua, and, in the south, a 40-year struggle by South Africa to yield what was once its protectorate only to a non-Marxist government will have ended in failure. Score one more triumph for sanctions.

What has been happening in Central America and in Africa slips from the memory, as we are encouraged to think in terms of the end of the Cold War. But the peasant in Nicaragua, the forces of democracy in El Salvador, the blacks in Angola and Namibia who yearn for an independence not merely from Portuguese and South Africans but also from Muscovites, see no difference at all in the age of perestroika. February can be bearable

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

ORLANDO, Fla. - Sports Illustrated's annual swimsuit issue, as the magazine's writers explained about 195 times, is an attempt to make February bareable to its readers.

February is the worst month of the year in most portions of the country. It's damp and cold in February, and football is over and baseball hasn't started yet and basketball and hockey still have an eternity to go.

So Sports Illustrated puts out an issue filled with photographs of pretty girls in swimsuits. Or, as the years and swimsuit issues have gone by, photographs of pretty girls in skimpy swimsuits.

As we hurtle toward the 1990s, it is now possible to buy a copy of Sports Illustrated and see a pair of women's breasts. I knew when the American League adopted the designated hitter rule, sports would never be the same.

But enough about Sports Illustrated and let's get on with what I'm doing in Orlando.

Hey, Sports Illustrated doesn't own the idea to give its readers something to get by on during February.

I simply looked at a color weather map in the paper the other day and noticed it was mostly white and blue all over the country.

For those who don't look at color newspaper maps, if it's white where you live, dare not walk outside lest your nose hairs freeze. not that much better. About the only place on the weather map where it was orange - which means it's nice and warm and your nose hairs stand no chance of freezing — was Florida.

So I said to myself, "Why don't go to Florida and write about the niceness and the warmness so people who read my report will feel better about the fact they're stuck in various Siberias with frozen nose hairs?"

I chose Orlando because I'm afraid to go to Miami. That's not the only reason. Orlando is a vibrant city with ideal weather, lots of great golf courses, and I have a friend here who knows the owner of the city's best steakhouse and can get us a table without having to go through the usual one-hour wait.

So, it reached a high of 83 the first day I arrived in Orlando There were no clouds. Not one. I checked into the Grand Cypress Hyatt Regency. The next morning I went down to the pool and had my coffee and read the paper while getting a bit of sun. It was nice and warm down by the pool. After lunch I went over to the golf course and played 18 holes. It was nice and warm over at the golf course. I didn't have a good front nine. I had trouble adjusting to the fact I wasn't wearing a hat, two sweaters and long underwear.

But at the turn, I bought myself a tall cold drink and sat out on the patio, and by that time I was getting used to the fact I was actually playing golf in a pair of shorts. I shot 40 on the back. I parred 10, 11 and 12 and then double bogeyed at 13. I parred 14, 15 and

16. Then, I bogeyed 17 and 18. Afterwards, I bought myself another tall cold drink and went back to the patio and watched the golden sunset.

It was nice and warm out on the

The forecast is for more good weather in Orlando. I plan more mornings down by the pool, more golf and more drinks out on the patio.

Some people might ask, "Isn' he really doing this because he wants those of us who can't just pick up and go chase the sun to feel jealous?"

I promise I'm not. I'm doing this for you. I swear on my toasty nose hairs.

Navajo leader takes leave

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) -Navajo tribal chairman Peter MacDonald has taken a leave of absence amid allegations that he accepted kickbacks, but it was unclear today who will lead the nation's largest Indian tribe.

MacDonald's decision Thursday came a week after witnesses told a U.S. Senate committee that MacDonald demanded trips, gifts and other favors as a part of awarding contracts and other tribal business.

MacDonald, who acknowledges accepting gifts but denies wrongdoing, announced his intention to step down during an emotional speech to the 88-member Tribal Council. He appealed for tribal

Exploding toilet mystery solved

SEATTLE (AP) - About two dozens toilets and urinals in the King County Courthouse exploded when they were flushed after an air compressor was mistakenly connected to a water line, officials said.

Each time the pressurized privies were flushed in restrooms throughout the 72-year-old building, plumbing started popping, Kemp said. Instead of the usual swirl and gurgle of water, geysers erupted.

Officials eventually traced the problem to an erroneous compressor hookup by a construction worker on a nearby $430 million bus tunnel project.

"They started blowing at about 11:30 (a.m.) and it took us a while to figure it out," he recounted. "We knew it had to be air in the system, but the (city) Water Department said that was impossible."

Kemp said there were no reports of injuries.

Flood waters have begun receding in Tennessee and Kentucky, but one town of 400 people remained surrounded today by swirling, muddy water and officials in both states said damage was heavy from a week's worth of relentless rain.

Tennessee Gov. Ned McWherter asked the U.S. Small Business Administration on Thursday to designate eight middle Tennessee counties as flood disaster areas. Kentucky officials said they would seek similar federal relief.

Kentucky officials estimated that at least 1,000 people were forced from their homes by rising waters in most of the river systems in the western two-thirds of the state.

In Tennessee, officials said Valentine's Day flooding in Wilson County damaged 66 businesses and 28 homes around the city of Lebanon, causing an estimated $1.9 million in damage.

White Afrikaner nation proposed

Africa (AP) - A group of rightwing academics who believe black majority rule is inevitable have proposed creating an allwhite, Afrikaner nation in a thinly populated section of western South Africa.

Carel Boshoff, leader of the Afrikaner Freedom Movement, outlined details of the proposed nation Thursday that he said would include the Atlantic coastline starting about 60 miles

JOHANNESBURG, South north of Cape Town and extend 300 miles inland. The area contains no major cities, and much of

Legalization of Solidarity closer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) -Solidarity leader Lech Walesa praised a tentative accord that would legalize the banned trade union movement if it reaches agreement with communist authorities on other political and economic reforms.

Government and Solidarity negotiators, in part of broad talks on Poland's future, agreed in principle Thursday to amend the labor law so Solidarity can be registered immediately if the two sides agree on other reforms.

"That's a lot. That's a lot.

That's great," said Walesa by telephone from his home in Gdansk. Solidarity has demanded a return to legal status after being banned in 1982.

Officials announced the agreement after a session of a working group devoted to trade unions.

A resolution passed by the working group also said the new Solidarity would have freedom to create its own organizational structures, but would have to negotiate jointly with other existing unions during talks with management.

Threat taken seriously by Britain

LONDON (AP) — Authorities said they were taking "extremely seriously" a threat in India to bomb British Airways flights because of the controversy over Salman Rushdie's book "The Satanic Verses.'

Britain protested to Iran after Ayatollah Khomeini urged Moslems to kill Rushdie, an Indian-born British citizen, because he wrote a book that religious zealots say slanders Islam. Iranian religious leaders have offered a $5.2 million bounty for the killing of Rushdie.

West Germany today announced it was recalling its senior diplomat from Tehran to show its "deep consternation" over the death threat, which it said poses "an encumbrance for German-Iranian relations.'

Rushdie, 41, and his wife, American novelist Marianne Wiggins, remained under police guard today at an undisclosed site in Britain in fear of their lives.

Refugees have nothing but hope

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Sister Juliana Garcia receives the poorest of the poor at Casa Oscar Romero, a no-frills barracks 5 miles from the Mexican border. Hundreds of Central Americans arrive seeking temporary shelter and, eventually, a permanent home in the United States. They bring little with them but hope and their clothes, often still damp from crossing the Rio Grande.

But despite their lack of belongings and uncertain futures, Sister Juliana says she finds joy, not despair, among residents of the shelter she directs.

"They have a lot of hope and where there is hope, there is joy, too," she said.

Typical is 15-year-old Leopoldo Castillo. Unable to swim, Castillo spent his last $50 to rent an inner tube on which he floated across the Rio Grande on an 'early December evening.

"I arrived with nothing, with nothing," said Castillo, who fled Nicaragua, he added, to avoid being drafted into the military Castillo, his 27-year-old cousin and her three children found room at Casa Romero.

Brownsville and the Casa are stops on a swelling migration route through southern Texas, which the Immigration and Naturalization Service says was followed by more than 30,000 Central Americans last year seeking political asylum in the United

Like most on the trail, Castillo and his relatives are bound for points beyond Texas. They are waiting for relatives in Florida to send money for bus tickets to Miami - one of the most common destinations for asylum-seekers.

Elsa Soto, 30, said she left Guatemala on Dec. 8 after antigovernment guerrillas threatened her for refusing to store arms in her house.

"They told me to leave or everybody would be killed, and I didn't want that to happen to my children and my husband," said Ms. Soto, who left her family

She waits at Case Romero for relatives in New Jersey to send money for her trip there. On this night she cooks beans and rice in the kitchen, one of the chores assigned to residents.

Most stay about two weeks at the refuge, said Sister Juliana.

The cinder block buildings have separate quarters for men and women and, since the refuge's neighbors filed suit in a bid to have it shut down, are limited by court order to no more than 200

Demand for shelter reached a crisis point in December, after the INS adopted a policy to keep asylum-seekers in southern Texas while their cases were being decided. Homeless Central Americans no longer able to travel on to their U.S. destinations took what meager shelter they could find in primitive campsites and condemned buildings.

The largest, most squalid campsite was across the street from Casa Romero

Known as a street fighter, the young Cates took on anybody willing to challenge him. And as the third in command of San Antonio's largest street gang, he had a plethora of challengers.

"I'd been stabbed in the chest, arms and head all before I was 17," said the 12-year veteran of the Austin Police Department, who last month took command of the vice detail. "I'm lucky I got out of that life completely. I'd probably be in the penitentiary now if I hadn't," Cates, now a sergeant, said. But luck didn't have everything to do with his survival, Cates said. A San Antonio police officer took interest in the young Cates and helped steer him in the right the city to fight me and my best friend because we had the reputation of being tough fighters. "There were some cops playing football at a nearby field, and when they saw the fight, they came and broke it up," Cates said. "This one cop, he stuck around and started talking to me about how I should be putting that energy into something better. I told him I had nothing else to do.

The police officer, who has since retired, introduced Cates to a friend who operated a boxing gym in the basement of a Catholic Church. Cates trained and became good enough to compete in Golden Gloves and AAU boxing matches before closing out his amateur PARIS, France — A director of the Swiss watchmaker Patek Philippe displays the Caliber 89 watch in Paris. It is called the world's most complicated watch.

Swiss unveil the world's most complicated watch

By HANNS NEUERBOURG Associated Press Writer

GENEVA — It takes five years for one of the 184 tiny wheels in a new Swiss watch to complete a single revolution. Another wheel takes a century. Then after 400 years, a lever has to be moved so the watch's calendar won't skip a leap year date.

It also is the first timepiece to calculate the date of Easter and features a celestial chart showing the Milky Way and 2,800 Northern Hemisphere stars.

The 18-carat gold "Calibre 89," which has a diameter of 3.4 inches and weighs 2.4 pounds, has two dials and 24 hands. Packed among its parts are 68 springs, 126 jewels and 332 screws.

Patek Philippe, the Geneva company that recently unveiled the Calibre 89 to mark its 150th anniversary, says it hasn't any idea how much it can sell the watch for, so it plans to auction it off April 9 in

"We estimate that it will get between 5 million and 10 million Swiss francs ($3.2 million and $6.4 million)," said Osvaldo Patrizzi, the watch expert at Habsburg, Feldman auctioneers of Geneva. To date, the highest price paid for a timepiece at an auction was $1.2 million in 1984 for a clock from the mid-17th century.

Patek officials say the company did not keep any accounting of how much Calibre 89 cost to make since it was not done for marketing purposes.

But Patek is not likely to be contested in its claim that the Calibre 89 is the world's most complicated

A team of watchmakers took more than five years to design its 1,728 parts and four years more to

"At some points, we were greatly worried that we would not succeed," said Jean-Pierre Musy, the head of the firm's Complicated Pieces Department.

Calibre 89 has 33 functions. That is 19 more than the firm's Packard watch of 1927, which it bought back last year for $1.3 million.

Calibre 89's features include a daily display of the sunrise and sunset, chimes that ring on the hour and half-hour, and "power reserve" indicators that show when rewinding is needed. The mainspring can run for 30 hours.

But the makers' pride is the watch's "perpetual secular calendar.

It takes into account that a leap year is skipped at the turn of most centuries by the Gregorian calendar, introduced in 1582. Only the century years that are exactly divisible by 400, such as 2000 and 2400, have a Feb. 29.

To keep it "up to date," the complicated mechanism makes one wheel turn once every five years, triggering a 20-tooth "century wheel" to move on by one notch. A peg gives that wheel an extra push every 100 years, thus disengaging the calendar mechanism on three out of four century years to skip the leap year. A lever re-engages the mechanism after 400 years.

The date of Easter, which changes every year, is shown on the watch at midnight of the preceding Dec. 31. Calculating the date for more than 30 years would require additional mechanisms that would not fit into the watch. So a special cog allowing the watch to display it must be replaced every

Police nab phone scam documents

HOUSTON (AP) - Federal authorities capped an 18-month investigation with the breakup of a telephone scam that allegedly bilked more than $500,000 worth of long distance service involving calls to the Middle East.

Computerized telephone records, documents and videotapes were seized in raids in Houston and Sugar Land, a western suburb. The tapes included an instructional video discussing long-distance operations, according to U.S. Secret Service spokesman Neil Findley.

"It's taken care of for now, but we can't guarantee they won't be back in business two months from now," he said Thursday.

Charges were pending against an undetermined number of people. Agents are working on translations of the tapes, which were in Arabic, should ever get around to compiling a list of the most popular hubcaps in America, the 1957 Chevrolet would be right up at the top for a particular model.

SHERMAN - If Felix Myers

At the same time, any Chrysler car would rate the nod for the make of auto that provides the greatest demand for used hubcaps

Myers, who developed his yen for hubcap collecting while working in a service station more than a decade ago, today is Grayson County's undisputed king of the road when it comes to hubcaps.

Myers operates his hubcap haven along busy U.S. 82 between Sherman and Bells. The hubcap king has built a fence in front of his place of business with some of his hubcaps. The shiny, round cap collection doubles as an advertising beacon for Myers Hubcap Sales & Tire Repair, the official name of his business all of these hubcaps it makes quite a glitter. It stops a lot of motorists who take one look at the collection and have a pretty good idea that they may find a replacement for their missing hubcap here," Myers said.

However, Myers said it is dealers who are his largest and most steady customers. They come in to find replacement hubcaps on a steady basis, Myers

While a lot of people may cuss when they hit a pothole, Myers admits that potholes are to him what hidden stumps are in a lake to boat repair shops

"Looks like we're headin' into another pothole winter. Gimme a hubcaps a day in the ditch. Few years ago I really made a killing on hubcaps walking the ditches along pothole-marred highways in the area," Myers said gleefully.

Myers said when he had his service station in Sherman, people started asking for hubcaps and tires. "To me, they are as necessary for the operation of a station as gas and oil," Myers

In fact, Myers soon became so wrapped up in the service station sideline that he decided to chunk the service station and go into the hubcap and tire business solely.

"I had always wanted a little farm area and that is why I picked this spot along the highway. I figured it would put me in the country and still keep me close enough to be easily reached by the public," Myers said.

Myers estimates he has in excess of 7,000 hubcaps in his constantly changing collection. They can be had for as little as $3 or as high as $25.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram Writer ALEDO (AP) - Most of us know them only from movies about the Old West, when the script called for a high-speed chase and there were no accelerators to mash. Instead, the cowboys dug their spurs into their horses' flanks. But Aledo author Jane Pattie says it's time spurs got more attention: They were - and are - functional, yes, but "they really are a form of Western art," says Pattie, 54, who recently wrote a book on spurs. "Handmade spurs are becoming more and more rare." She is bothered when she spots foreign-made, mass-produced spurs in stores. It may seem a strange issue to champion, but Pattie, horsewoman that she is, knows sional pride to the cowboy as well as a way to express personality. "They used to make them out of buggy axles and then Model T axles, because that was what was available," says Pattie, who interviewed several of the old-time spur-makers for her book, 'Cowboy Spurs And Their Makers," to be published in the fall by Texas A&M University Press.

"But it was good steel, with a good ring to it ... Cowboys like to hear that ring, that jingle as they ride along. There used to be a song about that - 'I've got spurs that jingle-jangle-jingle. The spurs that are poured and molded simply cannot compare in the jingling or any other way with "that little strip of steel that was cut and beaten by hand," Pat-tie insists. With that in mind, she put together a collection of such spurs, on loan from several spur-makers and collectors, which is on display through March at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. And she wrote her book, which relates the history and traits of different types of spurs and includes biographies of their makers many of them certifiable them, but their style and philosophies live on in her book. told me how long it took to make a brass slipper, garter and stocking. pair depended on how many people came by to drink coffee," she says, chuckling.

Her fascination with spurs and their makers began in her teens. before she was married, says Pattie, who also has written articles and books on horse care and training tips for riders.

"My cousin's husband had a big ranch, and he had some old spurs hanging in his barn," she explains. "There would be singles. Somebody had lost one and hung it up, maybe hoping they'd find the other. I was interested, and he said, 'You can have them.

It wasn't the typical interest of an adolescent girl, perhaps, but "I and that was it," Pattie shrugs. At one time her collection consisted of nearly 500 pairs of spurs.

Today, years later, she marvels at the wealth of spur designs, ranging from rather macho symbols of Indian heads, bulls and eagles to the hearts and goosenecks that could be appreciated by the country decor lover of today.

"When cowboys had a little money, they'd spend a whole month's wages to have a good pair of spurs — and that's still the case," Pattie says.

The look and design they choose "all gets back to the individual whether they're long-legged, shortlegged," she explains. "Women's spurs are smaller, more femininelooking. And there are different types of spurs — English spurs and polo spurs, roping spurs.

"Roping spurs have little short shanks, because the cowboy or cowgirl has got to dismount in a hurry - and they may wear just one, so there'll be less chance of one catching as they dismount. Then there's the English — very plain, very English, no embellishment.'

But the spurs made in the Southwest offered plenty of opportunity for ornamentation.

In spurs — as in everything, it - sex sells. An example is Their work was never the kind of the "gal-leg" spur, with a shank thing that fell into the quota-and- shaped like a woman's leg. The deadline category. "One maker most ornate of those came with

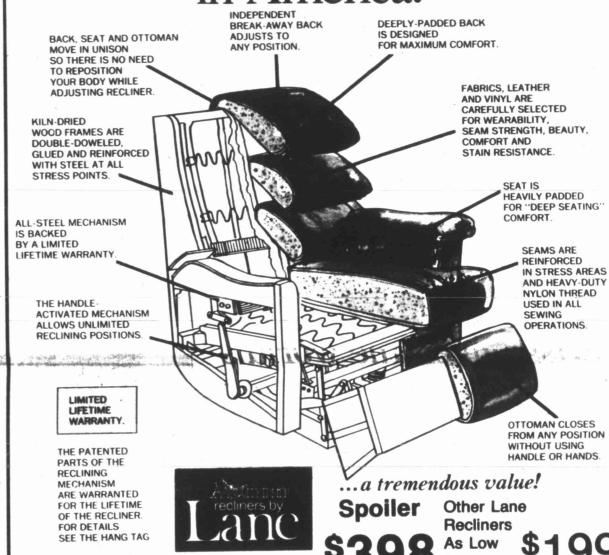

Those remain a perennial favorite because, as Pattie observes, "Aren't women's legs still popular to a cowboy?"

As for the rowel at the end of the spur — the small revolving wheel that is used to prod a horse along they range from the tiny-pointed sawtooth style to flashier models in the shape of a star.

And here Pattie could offer some advice to Western movie-makers. You just have to barely touch the horse with them, not dig them in," she says. "They can even just know you've got 'em on. Horses are smart. Spurs aren't for amateurs.'

Pattie eventually sold her collection - individual pairs of handjust always liked things Western, made antique spurs are worth hundreds to thousands of dollars each but the fascination goes on.

Man should be barred *from taking law exam

DEAR ABBY: In case you haven't already been raked over the coals for telling the fellow who flunked the California bar exam 44 times to "keep trying" - here comes the rake.

Abby, no one should practice law who has had to take the bar exam 44 times — assuming he or she passes on the 45th try. Eventually, some people who are marginally qualified will pass the bar exam simply due to learning how to take it. If such a person required 45 tries to do so. I would avoid having him or her as my legal counsel.

How would you like to be operated on by a surgeon who has had to take his state medical boards over 40 times before he or she finally passes them?

Please don't encourage this turkey to keep trying. He might make it, and we already have enough incompetent bunglers out there now, giving the legal profession a bad name. — CALIFORNIA ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: You are right, of course. Much as I admire determination, for the reasons you mention, I should not have encouraged a 44-time loser to keep

And speaking of how difficult it is to pass the bar exams, judging from the number of candidates who flunk on the first try, Vermont's bar is the toughest to pass, and California's is the second toughest.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for three years and have been dating a divorced man for two. We have agreed to see no one else but each other. He calls me two or three times a day, and we are together every weekend and at least once or twice during the week. We have taken several vacations together and spend every holiday with his family or mine.

If any repairs are needed at my home, he is always there to do them. He is constantly sitting near me, holding my hand or showing some other sign of affection. He seems to care a lot for me, but he's never told me so.

After two years of dating, I'm wondering if maybe I should try to meet someone else. I am crazy about him, but I'm getting older and don't want to spend the rest of my life alone. All our children are grown and away from home and we are both financially secure.

Abby, how can you tell if a man loves you? I'm so afraid I may be living in a fantasy world and will get hurt that I'm considering backng off from this relationship Please don't tell me to discuss it with him. I just don't have the nerve. - WARY WIDOW IN TEXAS

DEAR WARY: Actions speak louder than words. Of course he loves you. Your question seems to be: "Am I wasting my time — or is this man going to ask me to marry him?"

That's a perfectly legitimate question, and if you're considering backing off because he's made no commitment, take my advice and get that message to him — if you

DEAR ABBY: You said, 'Market researchers should find another way to gather information. Some people sleep at odd hours; others may be ill and don't want to be disturbed.'

Abby, that response was the most uninformed response I have ever read in my adult life. Maybe it's time you considered stepping down to let a more rational, knowledgeable person give advice to the public.

Dr. George Gallup Sr. years ago reported that the most genuine responses are recorded in an anonymous telephone interview.

National companies need to know what consumers really think. Their survival depends on quality information. Our client list of manufacturers, retailers, banks and dentists are most interested in gathering information so they can better fulfill consumer needs. To say that market researchers should find a better way to gather information reflects your total ignorance of what telephone research really does.

I, too, grew up in Iowa, and it is obvious that you have lost the common-sense perspective associated with Midwesterners.

By the way, we get many more positive comments than negative ones from people our company has interviewed. It is with much sadness that I read your poorly thought-out column. - PROFES-SIONAL RESEARCHER, CHARLESTON, S.C.

DEAR RESEARCHER: Sorry. I stand by my original opinion: Telephoning the general public either to sell something or to gather information for whatever purpose is an invasion of their privacy and should be abolished. Furthermore, my mail is running 100-to-1 in favor of my view. So, sue

It's now two down and one to go for Coach C.E. Carmichael and the Big Spring Lady Steers.

Before the season started, Carmichael listed three goals he wanted his team to achieve: Keep Big Spring's home winning streak alive; successfully defend its district crown; and advance in the state playoffs.

On the first two counts, all is well. 'The Lady Steers' home winning streak has now been extended to 31 games (a string dating back to 1986) and the team won its third Tipoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium located on Eighth Street.

Big Spring coach C.E. Carmichael said the Demonettes headed by 14th-year head coach P.D. Fletcher – appear to be similar to the Lady Steers in several areas.

Queens falter down stretch; drop 85-80 decision to FP

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

For the Howard College Hawk-Queens it was the same song, different verse. Turnovers killed the Queens down the stretch as the Howard dropped an 85-80 decision to the Frank Phillips Plainswomen in hoop action here Thursday night.

This was the Queens second meeting with Frank Phillips in a week. Last Friday Frank Phillips defeated the Queens 91-85 in overtime. And just like they did in their first loss, the Queens committed three turnovers in the last two minutes to let the Plainswomen off the hook

"We've seen this before," said Howard College coach Don Stevens, referring to his team faltering down the stretch. "If we didn't use a clock we might pull it off. But we start looking at the clock and we go into a zombie walk.

The Queens tied the game at 80 apiece with 2:15 remaining on a Stephanie Fetcher threepointer. But after that, Frank Phillips' Robbie Marlar got a steal, and Howard threw the ball away two times, sealing its doom. Peggie Shepard made a free throw for the Plainswomen and Patricia McDonald scored two baskets, icing the game for Frank Phillips.

"We were in position to win the ballgame, but then we made those critical turnovers," said Stevens. "It's very frustrating.

Having a lot to do with Howard's frustration was the "Kingston Trio." Forwards Connie Francis and Sharon Taylor, and post player Patricia McDonald - from Kingston, Jamaica - caused major pro-round of the playoffs. Kelli Glaspie scored 14 points, Heather Colburn added 11 and Karen Graves 10 to lead the Lady Buffalos.

After Iraan scored the first eight points of the contest, Stanton rallied behind the shooting of Jana Heidelburg — who scored six points in the first half — to tie the contest at 18-18 at intermission.

"I think it was poor shooting on our part," Stanton assistant coach Wilma Stirl said of the first half. "We had the shots, we just didn't hit them. I don't know if it was the pressure of being in the playoffs or what."

The two teams stayed on even terms in the third quarter until Graves scored five consecutive points to put Stanton in the lead.

The Lady Buffalos stretched their margin to 33-24 in the fourth quarter before Iraan reeled off eight unanswered points to pull But Graves scored five more points and Glaspie hit four free throws, and Stanton was able to hold off Iraan for the win.

Several words MIDLAND come to mind when describing Thursday's Borden County Grandfalls bi-district girls' basketball game, but only one truly suffices — domination.

MIDLAND — Borden County Lady Coyotes'

Rachel Romero, far right, gets off a shot as Coach Bill May's Lady Coyotes out-gunned, out-hustled, outrebounded and out-manned - in short, dominated — the Grandfalls-Royalty Cowgirls, 88-9, at Chaparral Center to advance to the second round of the Class A playoffs.

Vida Balague led the Borden County onslaught with 25 points, Lisha Sternadel added 14 points and Elana Himes 11 for District 16-A champs, who improved their record to 25-1 with the win.

Four players scored two points each for the Cowgirls, who finished their season with an 8-13 record.

Borden County now advances to play the winner of the Sierra Blanca-Marathon contest, which will be played Saturday. If the Lady Coyotes win that match, they qualify for the Region 1-1A tournament, to be held Feb. 24-25 in Levelland. The Borden County rampage was so complete that Grandfalls was shutout for the entire second half.

Further proof of the Lady Coyotes' utter domination — if any is needed - can be found in two statistics: Shooting percentage and points Even May had a hard time explaining Borden County's romp.

"I'm definitely at a loss for words," May said. "I've always dreamed of having a game like this, but I never had (Grandfalls) definitely was out-manned, but then again, I've got some good kids.

'In all fairness to Grandfalls. we've played in a tougher district,' May added. "I think that prepared us better for the playoffs than them . . . I didn't know what to expect. We've been off for a weekand-a-half, but obviously, it didn't have a big effect on us.

Obiviously, indeed. The game was close for all of one minute, before Balague and her teammates kicked in the afterburners to lay waste to the out-matched Cowgirls. With the score 4-2 in Borden County's favor, Balague scored seven consecutive points to key a 18-3 run for the Lady Coyotes that ended with them leading, 22-5,

But, if the Cowgirls thought they would get any relief from the Borden reserves, they were in for a rude shock. The Lady Coyotes' second-stringers, led by freshman Amanda Anderson and junior Amy Lewis, showed little pity, increasing their team's lead to 65-9 heading into the final quarter.

May had plenty of praise for his team after the game.

'Vida played a real good game,' he said. "She had some easy baskets, but that goes back to the others. (Point guard) Kate (Phinizy) did a good job of finding her . . . and when our post players (Himes, Sternadel and Kristi Adcock) got the ball inside, it made all the difference.'

May also praised Sternadel's defensive play. The 5'7" junior led the Lady Coyotes with six steals.

'Lisha always plays aggressive defense," he said. "She's one of those girls that always gives 110 percent — even in practice."

The 10th-ranked Cardinals, always ready to play their best ball when it matters most, stung No. 7 Florida State 78-77 Thursday when freshman reserve Everick Sullivan made a 3-point shot with one second left in overtime.

'We've had our share of defeats at the end," Louisville coach Denny Crum said. "Maybe the law of averages is coming around for us."

Louisville, 18-5, had dropped its previous two games. The Cardinals fell to Florida State 81-78 at home 10 days ago and lost at UCLA 77-75 Sunday on a last-second goaltending call.

The victory moved Louisville back in front of the Seminoles in the Metro Conference standings at 7-1. Florida State, 19-3 overall, is 7-2 in the league.

Florida State overcame a fivepoint deficit in the final 11 seconds of regulation to tie it at 69-all.

The Seminoles led 77-73 with 1:54 left in overtime, but Pevis Ellison's basket got Louisville within two points. Tony Dawson, who led the Seminoles with 21 points, then missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with eight seconds remaining.

Crum said the final play was designed for Kenny Payne, who led Louisville with 24 points and 12 rebounds. But when Payne was covered, the ball went to Sullivan. Sullivan finished with 17 points and Ellison had 16 points and eight rebounds.

Tat Hunter had 19 points and 15 rebounds for Florida State and George McCloud scored 18 points. Louisville led 69-64 with 11 seconds to go when Dawson made one foul shot but missed his second attempt. McCloud, however, got the rebound and scored on a follow. The Cardinals then lost the ball out of bounds and Hunter tipped in Dawson's miss to tie it at the Howard was led by post player Ana Carroll, who made 9 of 10 field goal attempts for 20 points. But Carroll was about the only inside scoring punch Howard had.

The rest of the firepower was supplied by the hot outside shooting of Fetcher, Linda Waters and Cindy Johnson. Howard stayed in the game via the outside shot, as the Queens nailed nine three pointers.

Fetcher led the way, making five three-pointers and finishing with 19 points. Waters made three three-pointers and scored 1 of her 13 points in the second half. Johnson made one threepointer and finished the game with nine points.

Frank Phillips came out hot in the opening minutes, making its first five shots. On the other hand, Howard missed its first five shots and trailed, 10-0, with 18:25 left in the first half. The lead grew to 26-9 at the 12:25 mark on back-to-back three-pointers by Francis. But the Queens came roaring back, outscoring Frank Phillips 22-13 in the last 10 minutes, cutting the halftime deficit to 43-38.

They (Frank Phillips) were running a box-on-one on Stephanie Fetcher, so we went to the high-low post instead of a double post," said Stevens. "We spread our offense out more and it worked.'

The Queens came out firing in the second half. After McDonald scored, putting Frank Plillips up 45-38, Johnson bornbed a three-pointer and Waters had a steal and layup, cutting the lead to 45-43. Howard took the lead for the first time in the game on a three-pointer by Fetcher. The Queens led 46-45 with 18:20 remaining. The teams exchanged leads and Waters hit a three-pointer from the top of the key, putting the Queens ahead 75-70 with 8:15 remaining. But the vistors quicky answered with eight straight points, taking a 78-75 lead with five minutes left, and setting the stage for an exciting finish.

The Queens fall to 12-16 overall and 2-8 in conference play. Frank Phillips goes to 6-3 and 23-4. The Queens will play.

They finished second in a real strong district," Carmichael said. There's six or seven strong teams in that district, so they faced quality players almost every night.

(Dumas) is a real solid team; they don't make a whole lot of mental mistakes," Carmichael said of the Demonettes. "They play smart" basketball. They're not real quick overall, but they make up for it by playing good position and sound fundamentals.

"Size-wise, (Big Spring and Dumas) are similar, and overall, the two teams are similar," Carmichael said. "It ought to be an interesting game. Carmichael said he believes this year's Big Spring team is better prepared than past editions for the state playoffs. "I don't think I can tell you for sure how we'll respond in the playoff games, but I feel better about this team going into the playoffs than than I have the past two years," he said. "We seem to be healthy, and we're developing confidence individually and team-wise," he added. "In many ways, I believe we're a little better prepared (for the playoffs). It's not new to us anymore, plus we have everyone available, which we didn't have the past two years.' The Lady Steers will go with a starting lineup of Tami Wise at post, Jennifer Hendleman and Gisila Spears at forward, and sisters Stephanie and Peggy Smith

Carmichael said he hopes Wise

- who scored 25 points in Big Spring's district playoff game against Sweetwater — will continue to provide scoring punch. He added, however, that the other starters contributions have increased. "Down the stretch, we're going to go to (Tami). I want her to take over," Carmichael said. "But, watching the films, I noticed that even though (the other starters) didn't score much, they passed the ball and played defense really well. "Jennifer played one her best games defensively . . . Stephanie hit probably the two most important shots of the game for us, . . . Peggy has handled the ball well . . . and Gisila really got some key rebounds and points at key parts of the game," Carmichael said.

Carmichael also said he wouldn't hesitate to go to his bench, although his five starters played the entire game agains Sweetwater.

"On two or three occasions (in the Sweetwater game) I started to change players," he said. "But then, the person I was going to rest would hit a key basket or two, so I decided to stay with her . . . But, in the playoffs, you're going to have have more than just five

The pre-season goal of advancing past the first round of the playoffs is important to his team, Carmichael said.

"We're going to try and get ready," he said. "It's important to our program to represent our district and play well in the playoffs.

Bible: Angels do exist

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Where did people develop the idea of angels? Does the Bible say anything about angels, or was this something the churches developed later on? -Mrs. E. O'R.

DEAR MRS. E. O'R.: Angels are found in the Bible from the beginning to the end. They are not, therefore, an invention of human imagination but part of God's revelation to us.

When Adam and Eve were banished from the Garden of Eden because of their rebellion against God, angels (known as cherubim) guarded against their return (Genesis 3:24). At the end of time as we know it, Christ will appear again "in his glory, and all the messengers of God, created by him and sent to do his work on Earth or to give special protection to God's people. "For he will command his angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways" (Psalm 91:11).

Angels are heavenly beings who are higher than we are (although they are not to be worshipped), and are just as real as we are although for the most part they are not seen by us. While there is much life to him?

about them we do not fully understand, the Bible makes it clear that they are not only real, but they are t, tactive at God's command to watch over his people. Even when we 1376 come to the point of death, God's 3! angels will carry us to heaven if we know Christ as our Lord and Savior (see Luke 16:22). Several years ago I wrote a book on the subject of 115162 angels, because the Bible's gut teaching on them is often neglected - and yet they are a source of that great comfort to us. One purpose of the angels, however, is to point us beyond. themselves to Christ. He is God's jet only son, sent from heaven to save many us and forgive us. Have you turned to him in faith and committed your (1)

Civil rights leader

Corpus Christi pastor leaves his mark

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) Black preacher and civil rights leader Elliott Grant of Corpus Christi says he left his mark on white society by "knowing when to scream, and when to stop screaming and start negotiating.

He recently retired from the pulpit of St. Matthew Missionary Baptist Church after more than 26 years as pastor.

He was the first black elected to the board of the Corpus Christi Independent School District, and was a key player in planning the district's court-ordered desegregation.

He has been preacher, pastor, peace-maker, politician and power broker. His allies and adversaries concur that Grant's political acumen has been keen and his influence deep. "We didn't always agree, but he always gave me good advice." said Dana Williams, a former superintendent of CCISD, whose tenure included years of desegregation tension.

"He is a man of good character," said Williams. "He was an able critic. He loved children and he loved teachers . . . I'm delighted he was there. The entire community was delighted he was there."

In 1974, Grant and others circulated petitions to U.S. District Judge Owen Cox protesting oneway busing. Shortly afterward, said Grant, Cox appointed him to a committee advising Cox on desegregation matters.

"He said he wanted me to keep my ear to the ground," Grant said. "He wanted to know what the community thought, but he always said he would make his decisions based on law.'

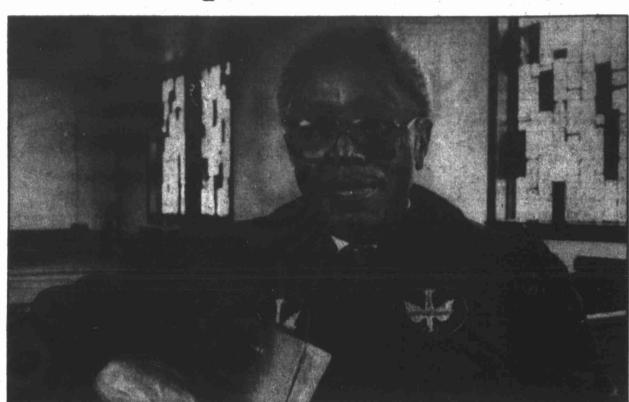

Grant won his spurs on the city's northside streets by defusing a riot among black youths on-April 4, 1968, the day Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn.

"He was a force for racial harmony, making changes for the better," said former Corpus Christi Mayor Luther Jones. "He was inexhaustible in this

"There's an awful lot of bright people in the community who could offer a lot," Gurley said. "We have to do it together, rather than have one person in the black community who has the key to everything.

Grant's departure from the unqualified success. After an-nouncing in 1987 that he would set

King's assassination in 1968 was the turning point in Grant's public career.

"The day Martin Luther King was killed, there were riots and misbehavior, especially in black communities, all over the United States," said the Rev. W.H. Colson, director of missions for the Corpus Christi Baptist Association from 1954 until 1982.

"As the day wore on, the most tense area we had was young blacks at Miller High School who wanted to march and we didn't know what else," Colson said.

Colson called Grant and community activist Lillian Leathers "to go down and get with the young people." There was a march, but no trouble. Colson credits Grant and Leathers with preventing a riot.

Corpus Christi politicians have been listening to Grant ever

Grant and Branch helped keep the lid on after a confrontation between police officers and black youths during a fight at Buc Stadium in October 1980. They advocated a citizens review board of police conduct. That idea was rejected, but the department did establish a community-relations division that continues to operate.

In 1971, Grant became chairman of the Human Relations Commission, which was charged with administrative enforcement of the city's civil-rights

Colson says Grant "Was invaluable . . . He would not take radical positions, but he was sensitive in the areas of housing, employment and public accommodation.'

Meanwhile, a desegregation suit filed against CCISD had been making its way through federal

Filed in Houston on July 22, 1968, the case went to trial in May

A Houston judge found that the district operated a dual system and in July 1971 ordered that schools be desegregated by busing 15,000 students. The case was transferred to a new federal court in Corpus Christi.

It would be two years before the U.S. Supreme Court upheld an appeals court finding that CCISD schools were racially segregated Grant says he was concerned that desegregation would hurt, rather than help, black communities.

Efforts to overcome religion gap

NEW YORK (AP) - With public school textbooks rarely mentioning religion, growing efforts are being made to overcome this gap in the education of the young.

They simply can't know about the real world "without understanding the intensity of religious faith throughout history," says Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching.

But they aren't getting that understanding now, conclude an accumulating succession of studies which say schools and their textbooks virtually exclude information about religion.

This "has reduced the quality of the education we are providing to our children," says Boyer, former U.S. commissioner of education.

He is the chairman of a review board of educational experts that is developing a one-week course for elementary and high schools on the principles and problems of religious liberty.

It was the second major under-taking recently to get schools to teach about religious factors in life.

The board was formed in cooperation with the Williamsburg Charter Foundation, a nonpartison, non-sectarian project working for a more balanced place for religion in public life.

"For far too long, we've had a remarkable silence on teaching about religion in the nation's public schools," says Boyer, saying this largely stems from fear such teaching might violate the constitutional principle of separation of church and state.

However, the new projects emphasize adherence to that principle and to Supreme Court decisions outlawing organized prayers or devotions in schools.

The irony is that those decisions, in barring religious indoctrination from schools, specified that the schools could, and should, teach about religion.

Former Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark's majority opinion said "one's education is not complete without a study of comparative religion" and the "Bible is worthy of study for its literary and historic

However, studies find, one after another, that the schools mostly ignore the subject.

The findings have come from strong church-state separationists such as Americans United For Separation of Church and State and People for the American Way, as well as from various professional education groups.

There is a "glaring omission" of religion in public school curricula, says the nation's largest educational leadership organization, the Assocation for Supervision of Curriculum Development.

Dantley's failure to go to Dallas, reportedly rooted in his anger at 38-36-74 38-37-75 respect, meant that Aguirre could only watch when the Pistons played at 39-36-75 Sacramento Thursday. 39-36-75 35-40--75 39-36-75 37-38-75 37-38-75 36-39-75

STEPPING IN Dennis Rodman, starting at forward for Detroit because newly acquired Mark Aguirre wasn't available, scored 10 points and grabbed 15 rebounds Thursday as the Pistons beat Sacramento 95-84. Rodman, 5-for-6 from the field, moved into the lead in the league field goal percentage race with a .591 mark. Philadelphia's Charles Barkley had led with a .590 percentage. STEPPING FORWARD The Dallas Mavericks, undermanned because Adrian Dantley had not yet reported and Sam Perkins went down with an first-period injury, received a surprising offensive lift from center James Donaldson as they beat the Miami Heat 93-80 Thursday. Donaldson, who averages just over six field goal attempts and eight points per game, totaled 16 points on 7-for-12 shooting and had 22 rebounds and four blocks. SCORING BIG Michael Jordan's 50-point performance against Milwaukee Thursday was the 17th time he scored at least 50 points in a game during his career, tying him with Elgin Baylor for second place on the all-time list of 50-point seering games. Rain fell from Texas to North Carolina today, prompting a flash flood watch in the Lone Star State, as snow fell from the Pacific Northwest to the upper Mississippi Valley.

The rain was heaviest from westcentral to northeast Texas, where showers and a few thunderstorms left up to 3 inches of precipitation. A flash flood watch was issued for the extreme southwest section of the state.

Snow extended from inland Oregon and Washington to the northern Rockies, the northern Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley. By late Thursday, up to 6 inches of the Continental Divide in Montana, snow had fallen in Minnesota and and up to 4 inches in South Dakota.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Spokane, Wash., got 5 inches.

Winter storm warnings were also issued for northeast Washington and valleys near the Cascade Mountains in the south central section of the state.

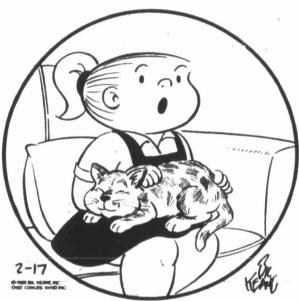

Today's forecast called for rain along the Pacific Northwest coast and from Texas to the lower Mississippi and Tennessee valleys, northern sections of the Gulf Coast states and most of the Carolinas; snow from higher elevations of Oregon and Washington to the northern and central Rockies, parts of the northern and central Great Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley; snow mixed with sleet and freezing rain from northwest Texas to Oklahoma.
