Suspected drug money will help fight crime

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

A pickup truck and more than $1,000 in suspected drug money seized by law enforcement officials during a sting operation will be used to continue the war on drugs.

The truck and money were confiscated during a sting operation that led to an arrest of a suspected drug dealer at a local school, according to the leader of the Permian Basin Narcotics Task Force.

"It helps run our program," task force leader Art Van Doren said. An attorney for the PBNTF recently filed three suits in district court to take possession of the 1980

GMC truck and $1,222 in cash seized during the arrest.

Big Spring police officers and Howard County deputies worked with task force members and five other law enforcement agencies in the Feb. 10 arrest of Robert Bond Jr., Bossier City, La. He was apprehended at Moss Elementary School after attempting to flee from the officers.

Bond, charged with aggravated possession of cocaine, forgery of a government instrument and illegal investment, pleaded guilty in district court to the possession charge and was given 10 years probation. The other two charges were dropped. Van Doren said the confiscated cash from Bond will be turned over to an independent auditor in Austin and deposited into a drug forfeiture account. It will be used in subsequent undercover operations, he said.

"The vehicles (are) used in our operations," Van Doren said. Confiscated vehicles, like Bond's truck, are used by undercover officers in places where their previous use in drug-related crimes is not known, he said.

"If we finish with them, they're given to member agencies. They go back to the area where they were seized," he said. The truck seized in Howard County could be returned to the sheriff's office or police department, he said.

A 1986 drug enforcement law allows authorities to seize vehicles or other forms of transportation used in the distribution of controlled substances, but in Bond's case he voluntarily signed over his vehicle and money to the drug task force. Asked if Bond's decision to turn over his things was part of a plea-bargained agreement, Van Doren responded, "He knew we had a good case on him. His vehicle would have been seized regardless. That vehicle now belongs to the state."

Van Doren said that although he is against using plea-bargaining in murder and armed robbery cases, it is used in some drug cases. "You do use plea-bargaining," he said. "You saved your county a bunch of money (by plea-bargaining). If (Bond) gets his life straightened out, what's the difference?"

Deficit panel's report split

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A high-level advisory group once seen as the best hope for crafting a bipartisan solution to the nation's budget problems ended up deadlocked, issuing a final report today that splits essentially along party lines.

The seven Republicans on the National Economic Commission and the one Democrat appointed by President Bush endorsed the president's pledge against raising taxes and praised his budget submission to Congress, calling it a "workable plan for eliminating the deficit" by 1993.

However, the six Democrats on the panel who were appointed by the congressional leadership signed a minority report calling Bush's budget "neither theoretically sound nor politically realistic."

The administration's $1.16 trillion spending plan for 1990 "rules out any discussion of additional revenues and relies heavily on harsh and disproportionate reductions in domestic spending," the Democrats said.

The sharply divergent reports ended up echoing the current debate between Bush and congressional Democrats, where both sides remain far apart on solutions to a budget crisis which is expected to produce a deficit of $170 billion this year.

The commission, which now goes out of existence, was a deep disappointment to supporters, who pushed legislation creating the panel through Congress in the wake of the October 1987 stock market crash.

Their hopes were that a panel of the nation's top business, labor and political leaders would be able to agree on a combination of spending cuts and tax increases to solve a deficit problem which has almost tripled the national debt over the past eight years.

But while campaigning for the White House, Bush was openly critical of the commission, which had the backing of his Republican primary opponent, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan. Bush vowed to reject any final report which called for a tax increase.

FBI eyes gambling evidence

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

Evidence related to alleged sports betting seized in early January raids in Big Spring is currently being analyzed in FBI laboratories in Washington, officials confirmed.

It will probably be April, however, before a grand jury is convened to investigate specific allegations stemming from the raids, FBI Special Agent Tom Clark said.

The seizure of alleged gambling-related evidence occurred Jan. 2 and was the result of a nine-month investigation into illegal sports betting in Big Spring. No arrests were made at the time.

Among the gambling-related paraphernalia confiscated were records including names and addresses of people allegedly involved in the operation, Cook said.

"At this stage we are looking at a federal grand jury in Lubbock being convened in mid to late April," Clark, with the Bureau's Abilene office, said Tuesday.

A coordinated investigation by the FBI, Internal Revenue Service, state law enforcement agencies and Big Spring police uncovered a six-state illegal gambling operation, Chief Joe Cook has said.

Cook stated that police — responding to a citizen's complaint — launched an investigation last year into the sports betting allegations.

Through the course of the investigation, authorities learned Big Spring was the focal point of the sports betting operation and contacted the FBI for assistance, Cook said.

The gambling probe is unique because unlike other local undercover investigations — that culminate with arrest warrants being issued and suspects arrested — the confiscation of evidence did not result in anyone being arrested.

The police chief notified members of the Big Spring Herald staff the day after the raids were conducted and asked that publicity be withheld so that the investigation, which is continuing, would not be jeopardized.

A story about the gambling raids did appear in the Herald Jan. 10.

Clark said numerous media organizations have contacted him about the raids and he expects felony indictments — some involving Big Spring residents — to be returned when a grand jury is convened.

Feud simmering over proposed workers' comp legislation

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

AUSTIN — Legislation filed Monday in the Senate would cut workers' compensation insurance rates by 20 percent over three years and require employees to make their work place safer.

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, has said the bill offers an alternative to legislation being considered by the House Business and Commerce Committee, which would revamp the state's system of compensating employees injured at work.

But state Rep. Troy Fraser, D-Big Spring, a member of the House committee, discounted Lyon's bill, saying it represented the interests of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association and fails to address the root of the problem.

In promoting his bill, Lyons said,

"This workers' compensation crisis is a safety issue and an insurance issue. And the way to solve our problems is through legislation that ensures safer workplaces and regulates insurance rates."

House Bill 1 seeks to revamp the state's workers' compensation system by: increasing the maximum weekly benefits for injured workers; broadening the powers of the system's governing body; addressing workplace safety; and restricting lump sum settlements.

Lyon described the House bill as "kind of like the farmer whose chickens are being killed by skunks. So, to solve his problem, he brought in cannons and killed the skunks, the chickens, and wiped out the whole barn yard."

Lyon's proposal would

strengthen the occupational safety division of the Texas Department of Health; abolish the assigned risk pool, forcing carriers to write compensation insurance for companies they have previously refused; and reduce premiums by 20 percent beginning with a 7.5 percent cut this year.

While Lyon's bill would reduce insurance rates, Fraser said it is purposely designed not to address the principal flaw in the current workers' compensation system — the lengthy trial process required to settle claims.

House Bill 1 would create "a higher level" of the Industrial Accident Board to hear initial appeals in workers' compensation cases, Fraser said.

Currently appeals of the Industrial Accident Board — the governing body of the worker's compensation system in Texas — receive a new trial at the district court level. The house bill would allow for district court action to be treated as an appeal of the board's action.

"We want to take these cases out of the court system," Fraser said. "So trial lawyers are opposed to House Bill 1, and Lyon is taking the position of the trial lawyers."

Responding to Lyon's assertion that "no one has been able to say (HB 1) will lower rates," Fraser said the bill will indeed lower rates, but not immediately.

"House Bill 1 will stop rates from going up drastically," he said. "But it will not result in an immediate lowering of rates because we will be grandfathering in the cases that are already in the system."

Fraser predicted that it would take "two to three years for (HB 1) to have any dramatic effect on rates."

Lyon has also criticized the house bill for implementing what he terms a tax, which would be used to expand the Industrial Accident Board.

Fraser said that an additional fee would be added to insurance rates to fund the expansion of the board, but he said the fee would "amount to less than a 1 percent (rate) increase for an employer."

Fraser said company representatives appearing before the committee in hearings on the bill have said they would rather pay the 1 percent increase than continue a system in which rates rise dramatically each year.

Bush, Republicans promise lengthy Tower debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and his Republican allies are jockeying for more time to save the faltering nomination of John Tower as defense secretary, promising a lengthy debate that could push a Senate vote back to next week.

"I would assume it's going to take more than a couple of days," Senate Republican leader Bob Dole said after a day of personal appeals by Bush failed to produce any public conversions among the Democrats who control the Senate

55-45. "We want the American people to know that this is an affront to the president of the United States who was elected last November to make these nominations," Dole said after a strategy session Tuesday night at the White House with Bush and Tower.

Those rules also give members great leeway to extend debate. While Dole said Republicans weren't trying to stall, he added: "There's plenty to say."

Bush, Dole and other Republican leaders are trying to shift the debate away from allegations that Tower has defects in his past, including a drinking problem so serious that it would disqualify him to serve as the nation's defense chief.

the White House to decline an offered meeting with Bush. He said allegations in the report are "recent, credible and overwhelming."

Teenage rec centers wait for court ruling

DALLAS (AP) — Roller rink owner Michael Stanglin says a local law setting age limits at teen dance halls ruined his business, a combination rink and dance hall that catered to teens.

That means that a 19-year-old guy cannot come in with his 18-year-old girlfriend," he said. "If you had a 13-year-old in there, you're in violation."

Rattler roundup
AUSTIN — Steve Posey shows off a rattlesnake as State Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, keeps a safe distance. Posey and other members of the Sweetwater Jaycees went to Austin Tuesday to promote their annual rattlesnake roundup. This year's event is set for March 10-12.

The rink is closed now, but the lawsuit Stanglin filed against the city of Dallas — to be heard by the U.S. Supreme Court on Wednesday — may have long-lasting effect on civil rights as well as the future of teen recreation centers that have sprung up around the country.

Lawyers say a ruling in the Twilight Skating Rink case is likely to determine whether the government can limit freedom of association in social settings.

Sheehan questions why the same restrictions weren't applied to other gathering places, such as parks or ice cream parlors.

The ordinance was passed in 1985. When he began complying, Stanglin said, his crowd dropped from 800 one week to about 200 the next, then less than 20 the third week.

One-third of all U.S. children will be poor by 2000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of poor families with children is growing rapidly, increasing the number of youngsters without proper health care, the National Association of Children's Hospitals and Related Institutions said today.

In a report, the group predicted that by the end of the century one-third of all American children will live below the poverty line, and that youngsters from such families are at the highest risk for poor health.

"The No. 1 key to the poor status of our nation's children relative to their health is insurance, and... we see that 12 million of them, one in every five, do not have insurance, either public or private," William Considine, chairman of the association, said on NBC's "Today" show.

He said the study's authors found that 7 million children do not receive routine medical care from the ages of 1 to 4. The parents delay care, he said, "because they cannot access the care because of the inability of insurance."

Thus, Considine added, "those children do not come to our children's hospitals throughout the country until their course (of illness) is well-developed, and it's at a state where it's more costly and the consequences already more developed and set in."

The report also noted: —Nearly 40,000 of the 3.8 million children born in 1987 in the United States died before their first birthday. —Since 1979, nearly a quarter of all pregnant women received little or no prenatal care.

—Low birth-weight infants in the U.S. have remained at 6.8 percent of the infants born, in contrast to 4 percent in western Europe.

—Child abuse and neglect increased by 55 percent between 1981 and 1985.

"We seem to be exploiting our children much more than we're nurturing our children," Considine said.

—The rate of suicide among people aged 15 to 19 has doubled in two decades.

—Less than 60 percent of children under the age of four received the complete basic series of immunizations in 1985, and cases of mumps, measles and whooping cough have increased.

"Only about 75 percent of all our children 1 to 4 are being immunized to measles before that age of 4," Considine said. "That's a shocking statistic to us. We have the technology and the talent. We're just not getting that to our children," Considine said.

Franchise tax bill gets Texas House approval

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS
AUSTIN (AP) — A $279 million corporate franchise tax bill approved by the Texas House would help balance the state budget, Speaker Gib Lewis says.

The House approved the bill, which would yield the $279 million over three years, with a 142-3 vote Tuesday. That sent the measure to the Senate, where a committee quickly approved the legislation with a 13-0 vote.

"What do we do with it? We try to balance our budget, which we are now short of doing," Lewis told reporters.

At least a two-thirds vote is needed in the 150-member House and 31-member Senate to allow a bill to take effect immediately. Lawmakers want quick enactment on the franchise tax bill so it can be applied to the tax notices that must be mailed to corporations March 15.

The bill "would narrow that gap between what we need and what is available at this point," Lewis said. But he added, "We're not there yet. We're still a billion dollars off."

The measure is part of a package designed to capture about $1 billion that the comptroller has not certified for use by the Legislature in the next two-year budget period because of lawsuits challenging state tax laws.

State Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, was one of the three House members who voted against passage of the bill.

"I voted against it because it was a tax increase, and it would have had an adverse affect on American Petro Fina in Big Spring," Fraser said.

He said he contacted Fina representatives who told him said the bill would increase the amount of taxes the company pays.

A House vote on the bill initially was scheduled for Monday, but action was postponed at the request of Rep. James Hurry, bill sponsor.

Hurry, D-Galveston, had said he asked for the delay because of the speed with which the measure has proceeded. The bill was introduced last week in the House, and two days later was approved without a public hearing by the Ways and Means Committee, which Hurry heads.

The postponement allowed a public hearing by the Senate Finance Committee to take place before the full House voted on the bill.

Lewis and Gov. Bill Clements, who also supports the measure, have said the bill is not a tax increase. The speaker calls it a "clarification" needed because of legal challenges.

The bill would repeal a provision allowing corporations that do business in the state to make certain adjustments that can lower the taxes they pay on Texas gross receipts.

Rushdie's book fails to generate interest here

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

A book that inspired the spiritual leader of Iran to place a $5.2 million bounty on the head of its author hasn't generated too much interest in Big Spring, local librarians and book dealers said.

"The Satanic Verses," a book which many Muslims consider blasphemous and which has been banned in several countries, has been in several counties, and has spurred too much interest at Howard College, the school's librarian said.

"I have no objection to ordering it," Howard College Librarian Judith Fleming said. "It's just not one of my priorities right now," she said.

Fleming said she is concerned about the implications of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's threat to order the death of Indian born British writer Salman Rushdie and the book's publishers. "It's a whole new kind of censorship," she said.

The American Library Association agrees. "It's intellectual terrorism," said Ann Levinson, assistant director of the Office for Intellectual Freedom at the ALA in Chicago. "It's certainly the first incident of this magnitude since the Middle Ages," she said. Levinson said that librarians nationally have reported there is a tremendous backlog for the book.

Fleming said even though the book hasn't generated a lot of interest at the college, she might get it so "students can see what's caused all the fuss."

County Librarian Judith Gray said she hasn't received too many inquiries about the book. "As I understand it, two individuals had expressed an interest in checking out the book," she said.

Gray said she wants to see if there's sufficient interest in the community to warrant buying the book before actually purchasing it. For the sake of the few individuals who are interested in the book, the library might consider getting it on a trial basis, she said.

Gray said she's interested in reading reviews about the book to try to find out if it's a well-written book and if it fits in with the rest of the library's collection.

Leon Poncho, owner of Poncho's News Stand, said he has received half a dozen inquiries about the book. Asked if he plans to get the book he said, "I have no idea." The decision whether to carry the book is up to his distributor, he said.

Council approves SWBT contract

By MICHAEL DUFFY

The Big Spring City Council approved the first reading of an ordinance Tuesday night that will allow the city to enter into a contract with Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and should increase revenues by $25,000 annually.

Darlene Gifford, SWBT representative, said she and city officials resolved minor problems with the contract last week.

Among the sticking points resolved were length of the contract and a renewal option. The specifics of the contract were presented to council members at a work session last week.

SWBT asked for a five-year contract with a five-year renewal option, however, city officials asked for a three-year renewal, which was finally agreed upon.

The city and telephone company have not had a contract since a federal court ordered the divestiture of Bell and AT&T four years ago.

The previous contract — which had been in effect for 25 years — generated approximately $38,000 in revenues for the city, however, the new contract is expected to generate $72,000 in annual revenues.

A special municipal charge of 20 cents to Big Spring residential customers will increase to about 35

Motor fuel delivery fee proposed

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

City Council members and officials listened to a proposal Tuesday night by a Big Spring man for a "delivery fee" on all motor fuel deliveries for re-sale within the city limits.

Bob C. Parks — who sought council input on the legality of his proposal — said his objective is to raise revenues for the revitalization of the downtown area.

Parks assured the council the delivery fee is not an excise tax — which is illegal. "The delivery fee would be directly related to the size of the truck entering Big Spring to deliver fuel," Parks explained.

He said the fee would bring in estimated revenues of $6,840 per month and $82,000 annually.

Parks said a representative of the Texas League of Municipalities informed him "a proposal like this has never been done (in Texas)," although he added that the representative would not give him a definitive answer about the legality of his proposal.

"In the long run, for anything good to happen in this town we're going to have to pay for it," Parks told the council.

Other specifics of the proposal are:

• The fee would be itemized separately on each invoice and not part of the excise tax or cost of fuel.

• The fee would be collected by the fuel distributors and remitted on a monthly basis to the Tax Assessor's office. A committee would be set up to administer the money and keep the program credible.

• All monies collected would go only for the downtown revitalization project and not into the general fund.

• The boundaries for improvement of the downtown area could be set by a special committee.

Mayor A.C. "Cotton" Mize expressed concern about "what would amount to one cent increase in gasoline to a market that is already the highest in the area."

Mize noted that he has heard "more complaints" about the price of gasoline in Big Spring than practically any other issue that affects West Texas taxpayers.

The mayor's comments prompted Councilwoman Gail Earls to humorously ask: "You wouldn't pay a penny more for gas if it was for the good of Big Spring?"

Following a protracted pause, Mize responded: "I guess I would if I had to."

Jack Watkins — who has been a frequent critic of city officials and operates two service stations — said there was "no reason" to even consider the proposal.

He called the service station business "the most competitive in Big Spring" and said if Parks' proposal is even considered the council will face serious opposition.

Council members asked for public input on the proposal.

Emergency system to be tested Friday

The Big Spring Emergency Alert System will undergo its initial test Friday at noon when regular programming will be briefly interrupted for Howard County cable subscribers.

Big Spring Cable TV Systems Manager Larson Lloyd said subscribers can expect their television screens to go blank for approximately five seconds and then they will hear a distinct warning tone.

Viewers will then hear a member of the Emergency Management Services staff advising them that a test is being conducted — and in the event of an actual emergency, what to expect, Lloyd said.

He added that the eleven sirens in Howard County will be simultaneously activated while the cable television test is being conducted.

"The best way for people to be aware of the test is when they hear the sirens go and turn on their televisions," Lloyd explained.

The Emergency Alert System should relieve the influx of telephone calls police dispatchers receive during threatening weather because residents will be made aware of the latest developments by watching their televisions.

Herald opinion

1,000 points of light inadequate

President Bush sounds enthusiastic when he talks about "a thousand points of light." It's a glittering phrase for an old idea — the notion that private charities and volunteers can take up the slack when the government reduces domestic spending.

Private giving certainly should be encouraged. It doesn't just help meet human needs; it also helps bind a society together. If Bush can stimulate greater giving and increased participation in volunteer programs, more power to him.

However, he should not mislead himself or anyone else. The record indicates that private charity and volunteerism can go only so far in meeting human needs.

Volunteers can deliver "meals on wheels." Private donations to college scholarship funds can help needy students obtain an education. "Habitat for Humanity" can provide housing for a certain number of underprivileged families. Large organizations such as the Red Cross and the Salvation Army can provide substantial help.

Those are important functions that need to be emphasized over and over. Still, things must be kept in perspective. Private charity makes only a moderate dent in the nation's total social needs, and that dent is unlikely to become a great deal larger than it has been. Many philanthropic and volunteer groups already are doing about all they can do.

The Reagan administration, after all, put them to a pretty severe test for eight years when it asked them to make up for sharp cuts in government programs.

In the end, it has to be admitted that the main responsibility for welfare, education and social services inevitably must rest with government. So does a large part of the responsibility for health care. In order to operate effectively, such programs must be designed in a comprehensive way. The extent of their coverage cannot be left to chance.

Philanthropy might sustain an art museum or help an elite private school stay in business, but charity certainly is not going to replace Medicaid, school lunch programs or public housing. Such essential programs must be able to count on a certain level of taxpayer support, and it is the duty of elected officials to make sure that the funds are provided.

Noble and necessary as private giving is, it is not a workable substitute for taxation.

How you view the news is important

By KAREN MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

I've now been working for a living for more than 30 years, and it's purely by chance that I landed a position at the Big Spring Herald. A lucky chance for me, because after years and years of jobs that were just jobs, I find myself with one that I absolutely, almost unconditionally love.

One of the major things I do here is select the state, national and world stories that go into the Herald everyday.

Literally thousands of stories come across my desk, over my phone or into my computer terminal. A few are dull but most are interesting, fascinating, funny, pathetic, tragic or bizarre. They are all stories that someone thought important enough to tell others about.

We are not a large newspaper and we can't print everything I'd like to put in the paper. Local news takes priority, of course, and that leaves very little space for me to squeeze in all the things I'd like to share.

So I try to give our readers a balanced choice of stories you will find interesting, informative and entertaining — stories that will, I hope, keep you reading the Herald every night after supper.

But that leaves a lot of stories that won't make our paper, stories that don't make any of the other papers I read, either. And one of my other jobs is to erase these stories every night from the computer so we can start fresh again the next day.

That's the part of my job I don't like. I have save files in the computer, of course, but they fill up, too, and I have to face the fact that some stories are destined to be told once, read only by me and other copy editors, and then disappear into whatever black hole erased computer copy enters.

It's difficult. I'd like to share the story of the 70-year-old woman who repairs bicycles for a living; or the central Texas farmer who had never tasted broccoli until he needed a second cash crop; or the Florida man who looks like Gadhafi.

I have to restrain myself from devoting too much space to stories that passionately interest me, but might leave many people indifferent. That includes many animal stories and yards and yards of copy on recycling waste.

I have to choose stories that I may not necessarily find compelling but are most likely to interest many of you. Articles, for instance, that deal with elementary education or mental health or veterans' affairs.

Sometimes I get carried away, or so my editor tells me, and give you more than you probably want to know about one subject. (Are you getting more than you want to know about Ollie North's trial, for instance?) It's a subjective choice and without feedback from readers, I have no way of knowing if you like my choices or not.

So I appreciate the letters, the phone calls, and being stopped on the street. I want to know if you enjoyed the article about naming roses, or the one about fax junk mail. Do you think our national budget debates are important or would you rather read about the Supreme Court or Rushdie?

My job is to keep you interested in reading our paper, so let me know what you like, please.

The Berry Seal Memorial Airport

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The joke around Mena, Ark., is that everyone works for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Mena is a tiny town of 5,000 nestled in the Ozark Mountains, far from the interstate. Its most noteworthy landmark is what locals call "The Barry Seal Memorial Airport," in memory of a notorious drug smuggler.

From 1982 to 1986, Seal used the airport as the headquarters for a massive drug-dealing, arms-smuggling and money-laundering operation. During part of that time, he was both a smuggler and an undercover federal informant posing as a smuggler. Seal paid the ultimate price for playing both sides of the fence: He was killed in 1986 by the Medellin cocaine cartel of Colombia.

State and local police suspect that the Mena airport is still being used by smugglers. But efforts to prove that have been stymied at every turn. Police have been stonewalled by the Justice Department, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the FBI and even the Internal Revenue Service. When the heat is on, the suspects fall back on the line that worked for Barry Seal. They say they work for the CIA.

Sources tell us that several Mena businesses have used that line to discourage state officials from asking too many questions about their activities. State and local police say that they have received strange phone calls from people claiming to be FBI agents, asking them to stop nosing around Mena.

In late 1987, a firm which once had a minor maintenance contract with the Strategic Defense Command, used that tie to convince the airport authority to build a security fence around a hangar and supply more guards to protect an airplane.

A former top Pentagon criminal investigator checked through the Pentagon's top secret "black" channels to see if the government is sanctioning any covert activities in Mena. The answer was no.

Sources familiar with the ongoing activities in Mena speculate that the area is one of several places used to ship private aid to the Nicaraguan contras. "They pushed Ollie (North) aside and kept going," one source said.

A congressional investigator told our associate Jim Lynch that covert support operations that used to be in highly visible places in southern Florida were moved to remote locations. The former Pentagon investigator said some of those operations are suspected of financing their private military aid by running drugs.

Since Seal's death, a new cast has settled in at the Mena airport. One business calls itself an "international aircraft delivery company," another "delivers aircraft parts all over the world." State police are wondering why all those international services picked a remote base in the Ozarks.

Among the strange goings-on in Mena was the construction of a primitive airstrip 15 miles from town. The former Pentagon criminal investigator claims that up until a year ago, the strip was used for commando training and to teach pilots how to land without lights.

Freddie Hampton owns land on which the airstrip was built. He said the commando stories are ridiculous, that he built the strip for "recreation." Hampton owns Rich Mountain Aviation, and Barry Seal once used the company's facilities. But Hampton noted that even Seal had said publicly that Hampton was not involved in illegal activities.

Last year, Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., asked the General Accounting Office to investigate any government involvement in drug and arms trafficking to Central America. He specifically wanted to know about a link to Mena.

A string of letters shows that the National Security Council told the GAO it would speak for the administration in the investigation. Then the NSC instructed other government agencies not to cooperate with the investigation, and it gave the GAO no answers.

LOSING CONTROL — The Agriculture Department started a "streamlined" inspection system this year for Canadian meat coming into the United States. Instead of checking every shipment, U.S. inspectors randomly choose samples of meat. When those samples come across the border, the shipper is supposed to tell border inspectors that the load is designated for inspection. But inspectors tell us that trucks with Canadian meat due for inspection have rolled through the border unchecked. Earlier this month, 300 tons of Canadian pork were rejected at an inspection station in Blaine, Wash. It was one of the few inspections completed under the new system. One inspector told us, "We've lost control of what comes into the country and where it goes."

A peek at the real Ayatollah

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

I talked to a guy who knows the Ayatollah Khomeini personally. It was just a chance meeting, a stroke of journalistic luck.

I was changing buses in Dallas, on my way to a speaking engagement in San Antonio.

The group didn't have a lot of money, so I agreed to take the bus, and I happened to be sitting next to this guy who said he was waiting on a bus for Houston where he had taken a job as a convenience store clerk.

I noticed he was dressed in an odd manner, even for somebody waiting on a bus to Houston. He looked like a cross between Yasir Arafat and a recently drowned rat.

We started to chat. I introduced myself. He introduced himself.

"My name is Jabbar Abdul Kareem Ahmad Rashad, Jr., but my friends call me 'Lefty' because I lost my right hand as a result of some unpleasantness with the Iranian People's Court."

"You are from Iran?" I asked.

"You know anywhere else where a man can lose his right hand for serving fried eggs with the yellow too runny?"

"You were a cook in Iran?"

"I cooked for the Ayatollah."

"The Ayatollah?"

"The Great Wise Exalted One. Or, how you say in this country, 'The Head Horseshoe.'"

"It's the head 'Honcho,'" I corrected him.

"Whatever," said what's-his-name. "I was the Ayatollah's cook and he doesn't like the yellow of his eggs to run, so when I served him runny eggs one morning, he sent me to court and they ordered my right hand be chopped off."

"After the bleeding stopped I stole a camel and, well, here I am."

I had to ask.

"What's the Ayatollah really like? All we get are a few television shots of him and news of whom he happens to be condemning to death that particular day."

"He's not that bad of a guy until he gets mad," said Jabbar, Etc. "For instance, on my fifth anniversary date as his cook, he allowed me to take a look at one of the girls in the pastry department with her veil off. He had her put to death the next day, of course, but what a thrill for me. I took cold showers for weeks."

"But when he's mad?"

"Oh, Margaret, bar the door."

"That's 'Katy' bar the door," I corrected him.

"Whatever," said my Iranian friend.

"Once some bees got into the Ayatollah's robe. He had some pretty bad stings and had the heads of every exterminator in Tehran cut off."

"Roaches, they were everywhere for weeks. But Oliver North sold us a plane load of Raid, and we were OK after that."

"Then there was the time the Ayatollah's doctor told him his cholesterol was too high and he couldn't eat any more fried goat dung. He sent the doctor to prison."

"And how about when he got the news about the book 'Satanic Verses'?" I asked.

"He went blueberries."

"That's 'bananas.'"

"Whatever. He ranted and developed a terrible case of painful, itching hemorrhoids."

"Is there any way the book's author, Salman Rushdie, could ever get forgiveness from the Ayatollah?"

"Perhaps if Rushdie sent the Ayatollah some Preparation W."

"That's 'H,' I said."

"Whatever," said Abdul. "I have to go now, they're calling my bus."

If this doesn't get me a Pulitzer, nothing will.

South Carolina bans waste disposal

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A ban on shipments of hazardous waste from 33 states and Puerto Rico was beginning today with the operators of South Carolina's toxic repository saying they won't challenge the restriction.

"It will have a tremendous impact on our business," GSX Vice President Roger Davis said. "We just think it's a good business decision not to challenge it."

The ban, announced Tuesday, affects such heavy landfill users as Florida and North Carolina. It results from Gov. Carroll Campbell's Jan. 18 executive order that South Carolina would prohibit, beginning March 1, the disposal of waste from any state that refused to dispose of the waste itself.

"We hope our actions will encourage other states to move toward developing their own hazardous waste management programs," said Hartsill Truesdale, head of the state Department of Health and Environmental Control's hazardous waste division.

Directors adopt transplant policy

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Severely deformed babies facing certain death should not be routinely considered as organ donors, even though hundreds of children desperately need new hearts and livers, the national transplant network said.

Directors of the United Network for Organ Sharing adopted a policy Tuesday discouraging, at least for now, use of anencephalic infants as organ donors. The board noted, however, "it is unwise to recommend a moratorium."

The issue of whether to take organs from anencephalic infants — babies born without most of their brains — has troubled experts for some time, but some say it is the only way to save other dying babies and children for whom there are few organs.

Reagan joins board of directors

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Reagan has joined the board of directors of the National Review, the conservative biweekly announced.

William F. Buckley Jr., founder and editor-in-chief of National Review, said Reagan's involvement, announced Tuesday, signals a new role for the magazine's board "in helping us set the policy agenda for the conservative movement."

Publisher Wick Allison said the magazine intends to "take an aggressive journalistic stance in the policy debate in this country and Mr. Reagan's appointment is only one in a series of steps we will be announcing soon to accomplish that mission."

Bombings may be linked to book

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Operators of two bookstores where firebombings may be linked to sales of "The Satanic Verses" pledged not to stop selling the book despite the violence, which caused modest damage but no injuries.

Bookstores throughout the country have been threatened if they carry the book that Muslims call blasphemous. The bombings at Cody's and Waldenbooks in Berkeley and at a weekly newspaper in New York City early Tuesday were the first signs of violence in the United States.

At eight bookstores in Santa Barbara in Southern California, employees opening for business Tuesday found crudely worded, poorly typed notes warning that something "bad" would happen to shopowners selling the novel. The notes were signed "American Muslims."

Cody's owner Andy Ross found no such threat, but he said he had little doubt the firebombings were connected to the novel that prompted Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini to issue a death order for the Moslem author, Salman Rushdie, and the book's publishers.

"I can't imagine any other reason why people would be lobbing bombs through bookstores — Cody's or anyone's," said Ross.

CARACAS, Venezuela — Residents of Petare, a shantytown in eastern Caracas, carry the body of a man killed in Tuesday's riots. Seventeen people were reported killed, according to unofficial sources.

Nationwide curfew to combat violence

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The army moved to wipe out snipers in the hills of Caracas today after the government suspended civil rights and imposed a nationwide curfew to combat the worst violence in 31 years of democratic rule.

Reports from authorities and independent sources indicated the death toll had surpassed 100 in two days of rioting and plunder touched off by protests over price increases imposed to meet the demands of international creditors.

The El Nacional newspaper said today that 80 had died in Caracas. At least 800 have been injured in what President Carlos Andres Perez termed an "incredible tragedy." At least eight cities were placed under military control to keep order.

Victims were carried down from the hills to major avenues to be taken to hospitals while crowds watched, witnesses said.

Later Tuesday, the army moved into Petare and the hills of January 23, a lower-income neighborhood on the west side of Caracas, to take on snipers. Authorities said army units completed their search before dawn but did not elaborate.

The curfew was in effect from 8 p.m. Tuesday to 6 a.m. today, and 6 p.m. tonight until 6 a.m. Thursday.

The Education Ministry ordered school and university classes suspended nationwide.

Residents of the Palo Verde and La Urbina areas, both near Petare, said they had experienced "hours of terror" as pistol-armed mobs came down the hills by the hundreds, sacked grocery stores and a Portuguese restaurant, burning its furniture on the streets before the army intervened.

"I saw angry mobs shout at an army unit of approximately 200. We prefer to be killed by bullets than to die from starvation." Then shots started and I saw three fall dead. People covered the corpses with blankets," said Jose Nunez del Prado, who lives in an apartment high-rise in Palo Verde.

Perez, in office only since Feb. 2, said in the television address that the riots were threatening the democratic process.

In the eastern shantytown of Petare, 17 people were killed in battles between police and rioters.

Beer flows freely in Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Beer flowed freely in Iceland for the first time in 74 years today as the last vestiges of prohibition came to an end.

Lines formed outside some of the nation's 17 state liquor stores. Waiting patrons applauded when the Snorra Braut liquor store in central Reykjavik opened for business at 9 a.m.

Icelanders voted for prohibition in a 1908 referendum. The law didn't take effect until 1915, when it was assumed the last alcoholic beverage on the island had been drunk.

The ban was repealed in 1933, but through a legal quirk beer with alcoholic content above 2.25 percent remained under prohibition. A powerful temperance lobby kept it that way until May when Parliament voted 13-8 to lift the ban effective March 1.

The luxury doesn't come cheap. With the government levying a hefty tax, liquor stores are charging up to $57.60 for a 24-can case of imported beer. A glass of beer in a bar costs $3.90 to $4.80.

Armed forces declare cease-fire

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The armed forces called a halt today to its attacks on leftist rebels and urged the guerrillas — who are trying to negotiate participation in national elections — to also cease hostilities.

The military announced the three-month halt in offensive operations just hours after the rebels offered to declare a unilateral cease-fire of their own to help facilitate direct peace talks with President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

However, the rebels rejected in their communique both the agenda and venue for the talks that Duarte called for on Sunday.

The armed forces said in a statement that the cease-fire took hold at midnight Tuesday and would last until June 1, Duarte's last day in office.

Riot police arrest dissident leaders

NAEYU, South Korea (AP) — Riot police overpowered and arrested 28 leading dissidents who tried to reach the North Korean border today for talks with communist officials on reunifying the divided Korean peninsula.

Police seized the dissidents after a six-hour standoff on the main highway from Seoul to the Panmunjom border truce site.

They forced their way onto the dissidents' bus and took them to a nearby police station.

"Get away, get away," some of the dissidents shouted as they were taken off the bus at the station. Dissident leader Lee Jae-oh and some other protesters kicked and punched police trying to take them away.

50 drug smugglers executed in Iran

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Fifty drug smugglers were hanged in Iran today, the official Iranian news agency reported.

The Islamic Republic News Agency said those executed — 48 men and two women — had been found guilty of possession and sale of more than 70,000 pounds of narcotics. Some also had been convicted of other crimes such as arms smuggling and theft, according to an agency report monitored in Nicosia.

the others in Kerman, Tabriz, Hamedan, Sabzevar, Nahavand, Shiraz, Qom, Neishapur, Gonbad, Isfahan, Birjand, Mashhad and Bakhtaran.

The executions are part of a nationwide crackdown on drugs. Since a new anti-drug law went into effect Jan. 21, Iran has reported 225 executions of drug smugglers.

The new law carries the death sentence for possession of small quantities of drugs, and gives addicts six months to kick the habit or face jail terms.

IRNA said 14 executions took place in the capital, Tehran, and

Officials attempt to block name grab

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — California's Tinseltown may be the best known Hollywood, but at least 11 others around the country don't want their name to be taken in vain.

Representatives of the other Hollywoods held a summit here Tuesday to plot their opposition to the movie capital's attempt to trademark the community's name and collect royalties for its use.

"They should just back off, honestly," said Mara Giuliani, mayor of this seaside city of 125,000, just north of Miami. "I don't believe a make-believe Hollywood can compete with the things we're doing."

Trademark opponents offered historical arguments, civic pride, the U.S. Constitution and a bit of showmanship — a 7-foot egret that is this city's mascot — to buttress their campaign to keep their name in the public domain.

The West Coast's Hollywood Chamber of Commerce applied in 1986 for a trademark with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and comment will be accepted until March 18.

Maria Chiaro, city attorney for Florida's Hollywood, said opponents may seek an extension to force Hollywood, Calif., to prove ownership of the name.

A trademark would guarantee power to regulate promotional, educational and legislative activity under the Hollywood name and would allow the trademark holder to charge royalties, she said.

Ms. Giuliani began uniting the other Hollywoods last week, and representatives from Florida, Maryland, Alabama, Texas, New Mexico, South Carolina, Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana, Illinois and Arkansas gathered here. They agreed to draft a resolution for a joint fight and may form an unofficial sister cities program.

"We feel a protest loud and clear will be warranted," said the mayor, wearing a rhinestone

"Hollywood" pin in her jacket lapel.

Rodney Thompson, a St. Mary's County commissioner from Hollywood, Md., 50 miles south of Washington, D.C., said the trademark issue "would have ramifications down the road which would be hard to swallow."

"Let's kindle the fire a little hotter because I'm hot," said James Ross Dover of rural Hollywood in northeast Georgia. "Hollywood vs. Hollywood. Let's see how the fight turns out. Right now, it's looking a little better."

His unincorporated community was founded in 1807, which he claimed makes it the oldest Hollywood in the United States. The name Hollywood was registered with the Los Angeles County recorder 80 years later after having been adopted from an estate near Chicago that is now part of Brookfield, Ill.

TV station plans service for blind

BOSTON (AP) — A public television station has developed a service that makes TV vivid for the blind and visually impaired by having a narrator describe a program's setting and action during pauses in dialogue.

The service, developed by Boston's WGBH-TV, which also pioneered closed captions for the hearing impaired 15 years ago, broadcasts the added narration over a special channel that can be tapped by people with a stereo television or a video cassette recorder.

The station tested the service last year and is seeking funding to make it available in January 1990 to the nation's estimated 12 million visually impaired people.

Descriptive Video Services allows anyone with visual impairment — or even sighted people stepping away from their TV set — to follow the show. With a stereo television set or VCR tuned to the Separate Audio Program channel, they can hear a narrator describe a program's scene and action during musical interludes or breaks in dialogue.

Student collects degrees

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Some people collect stamps, others collect coins. Torrey Tellefsen collects college degrees. Tellefsen, 38, says he's earned 900 to 1,000 college credit hours at 39 colleges around the country. He has a box filled with 30 two-year associate degrees in fields including business administration and criminal justice. At least four colleges have awarded him bachelor's degrees.

"In terms of his academic record, he is the most unique person I have ever met, or anyone has ever met," said Larry Hungerford, Tellefsen's adviser at Winston-Salem State University. Tellefsen has yet to complete a graduate degree, but Wake Forest University says he's a few hours short of completing a law degree; he's working on a master's in counseling at North Carolina A&T State University; and is completing courses for a master's degree in business at North Carolina Central University. His goal is to earn 12 master's degrees and at least one doctorate, probably in education. "That will be a lot more impressive," he said recently.

Principal keeps promise

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — Principal Matthew Plevyak promised pupils at Bel Air Middle School he'd put on a chicken suit if they read four books each in a month. Now he's flapping down Main Street. The 935 students, challenged to read four books apiece last month, tackled 5,527 or nearly six each. "It's worth it," seventh-grader Susan Hoopergardner said as she waited for the feathered Plevyak to walk through the center of this northern Maryland town Wednesday. Teachers decorated the principal's office like a chicken coop, and a local newspaper delivered five roosters to the school. Plevyak, in costume, arrived at the school in the back of a pickup truck, read to classes and ate lunches with the classes that read most of the books. He said his day as a chicken was a lot of fun. "In nine years, the students have not seen me wear anything but a suit and tie to school," Plevyak said, adding, "We hope that some of them found out that reading books is fun."

Coahoma Elementary

Adam Tindol, left, son of Tim and Jennie Tindol, won the school-wide spelling bee at Coahoma Elementary School, and will participate in the county competition. Adam correctly spelled exclamatory to win. Kenny Casbeer, son of Kenneth and Cherrie Casbeer, was the runner-up, after he failed to spell dynamite.

Texan wins Miss USA title again

By GARRY MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer

MOBILE, Ala. — A Fort Worth brunette, Gretchen Polhemus, was crowned Miss USA, marking the fifth consecutive victory for a Texan.

"They called my name and I was shocked," the 23-year-old cattle broker said after she won the pageant Tuesday night. Miss Polhemus said she thought her runner-up, Jill Scheffert of Oklahoma City, was the winner.

Richard Guy of Guyrex Associates of El Paso, director of the Texas USA pageant, said the agency's fifth winning entry in the Miss USA Pageant just showed that "classy, elegant — today women" are victorious. Guy was in the Texas cheering section waving a Lone Star flag.

Guyrex last week was featured on an ABC-TV "20-20" segment that detailed the rigorous training given winning contestants represented by the agency. A "20-20" team was filming Guyrex again Tuesday night.

Miss Polhemus was crowned at the conclusion of a dazzling, internationally televised two-hour production on CBS from the Mobile Civic Center. Emcees were TV personalities Dick Clark and Angie Dickinson.

"I'm so proud of her," Miss Polhemus' mother, Pat, said, hugging a "lucky" stuffed toy cow.

Some $200,000 in prizes and gifts goes with the title.

The other finalists, in addition to Miss Oklahoma, were Miss New Jersey Deborah Lee Husti of Rockaway; Miss Louisiana Elizabeth Primm of Houma; and Miss Georgia Michele Nemeth of Lilburn.

After the winner was crowned, the contestants went immediately to a coronation ball.

Fifty-one women from every state and the District of Columbia competed in categories of swimsuit and evening gown, where the focus was partly on physique.

MOBILE, Ala. — Miss Texas Gretchen Polhemus, left, is crowned Miss USA 1989 by Courtney Gibbs, Miss USA 1988, during pageant activities Tuesday night in Mobile, Ala. Miss Texas has won the Miss USA title for five consecutive years.

However, celebrity judges said that the contestants' personal interviews were where they revealed the best of their personalities.

Miss Polhemus said she will pursue an entertainment career while continuing her current real estate business and livestock broker business in Fort Worth.

Alabama Gov. Guy Hunt was among the 1,200 spectators at the pageant, which was interwoven with promotions of Alabama tourist sites. The program was highlighted by a dance number with Broadway star Tommy Tune and the 51 contestants stepping out, "Is It True What They Say About Dixie?"

The swimsuit display brought out hot pink and an array of colors as the 51 semifinalists showed off one-piece swimsuits.

Miss Polhemus inherited the crown from Miss USA Courtney Gibbs, 22.

On the 11-member judging panel were: author Jude Deveraux, modeling manager Bonnie Kay, Dick Rutan and Jeana Yeager, pilots of the experimental Voyager aircraft; actress Stella Stevens; tennis player Roscoe Tanner; Linda Shelton, an aerobics instructor; Lillian Glass, author of "Talk to Win"; actor Richard Anderson; Cecilia Bolocco, Miss Universe 1987; and former Olympic diver Jennifer Chandler.

Lesson comes from newspaper

DEAR ABBY: A little while ago, I took a break from my job of reading and grading essays written by high school juniors. Their grammar, spelling and punctuation defy description — but with the mail you get, you probably have a pretty fair idea.

Anyway, I relaxed for a few minutes, scanning headlines and reading Dear Abby, and there it was: "Confidential to Eunice: All men do not cheat on their wives. But it's a fairly safe bet that the man who says they do, cheats on his."

Abby, I believe what you meant to say was that not all men cheat on their wives, since what you did say stated that there weren't any men who cheat on their wives, and, unfortunately, we all know better than that.

Forgive me for being so picky, but I used a lot of red ink today. — ADELE CHRISTENSEN, CALIFORNIA SCHOOL TEACHER

DEAR MS. CHRISTENSEN: I forgive you for being so "picky," and regret that my editor lacked the pickiness to pick up on this error.

DEAR JERRY: It figures. We both cut the same classes.

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for your quiz about homosexuality in which you debunked many myths. I am sure you educated many people, but, Abby, you write about gays as though they were another species, as if the reader had never known any, as if there were none among your readers. The fact is, we are your readers. We are also your sons and daughters, your grandchildren, your brothers, sisters, cousins, aunts, uncles, mothers and fathers.

We are your neighbors, your teachers, your supermarket checker, your stockbroker, your plumber, your mail carrier, your nurse, your doctor or your lawyer.

In short, we are people you know, and often people you love.

Because people often confuse femininity in men and masculinity in women with homosexuality, most are not aware how many gays they come in contact with every day.

Colds, flu prompt useless doctor visits

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS
A Meredith Magazine

Colds, flu, and similar viral infections produce more useless doctor visits than all other ailments combined.

Dr. Michael Oppenheim believes home remedies are best. He offers the following suggestions for treating such ailments at home in Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

For a fever, drink plenty of fluids and keep cool. A 102- or 103-degree fever will not damage a healthy body, so there's no need to "bring it down." Take acetaminophen, if desired. Calm a sore throat with a salt-water gargle; or use an over-the-counter spray or lozenge.

Breathing in steam will relieve stuffiness and loosen a cough. Many medications do the same, but most contain antihistamines that may cause drowsiness. A few don't (Sudafed, Daycare).

For a dry cough, use cough drops or hard candy. Or try an over-the-counter cough remedy with dextromethorphan.

Always phone the doctor if the following symptoms occur:

- Any sore throat, fever, and swollen glands without a cough or runny nose are typical of strep throat.

- Severe cough with fever, shakes, and chills is a sign of pneumonia.

- Sinus infection causes severe pain over one sinus. Aching over the cheeks and forehead is sinus congestion.

- Phone if ordinary cold symptoms last more than two weeks, sooner if symptoms get worse. Call immediately if the above symptoms occur.

Don't try to second guess the weather — be prepared. Let G&M Garage take care of those hard to start mornings.

Lunch that'll win the kids

By JOE REED

You felt pretty good about last week's breakfast, didn't you? I bet your wife told all the women at the office about it.

Today's lunch is going to win the kids over to your side. No longer will they tell the other kids that your cooking is so bad, that the outside flies pooled their money and repaired the screen door.

First, set the oven at 350 degrees. You will need the following ingredients:

Weenies (½ lb.) (You could use lunch meat, or ham, leftover roast, whatever you have in the way of meat).

Cheese
Salad dressing
Hot dog buns
Eggs (hard boiled, two)
Pickle relish
Onion

Here's a little tip that will always come in handy. Keep about a half dozen boiled eggs on hand. You can always use them. They go real good with a cold drink in the afternoon.

Ready for lunch? First, chop the meat very fine, and cube the cheese. Take a quarter cup of tomato paste, a quarter cup of salad dressing. Chop the hard-boiled eggs, put in about two or three tablespoons of the pickle relish and the chopped onion.

Now for the nice part. Mix the whole mess together and spread on the buns. Wrap each bun tightly in foil and put in the preheated oven for 15 or 20 minutes. This makes eight bunwiches. Oh, you might have one or two left over. No worry. They're good cold. Will go good with the hard-boiled egg and cold drink this afternoon.

Now be truthful. Isn't cooking a snap? The women of the world have been guilty of keeping men from their rightful place in life. They're always telling us, "It's beyond our capabilities, that men are not suited for cooking, that we are too emotional." Suffering this type of injustice, it's time we men demanded equal rights in the kitchen. Let the world know we are tired of being considered second class citizens.

Now that lunch is over, I know you have no earthly idea what to do for dinner. Never fear, Papa Joe is here.

Take a look at this evening's menu. "Hamburg & Tater Stroganoff." Sounds kinda fancy, doesn't it? I could have said, "hamburger & potatoes." But notice, adding "Stroganoff" gives it a bit of class. When the wife asks, "What's for dinner?" You just say non-chantly, "Hamburg & Tater Stroganoff." Be sure to stress the "Stroganoff." You will relish the looks of amazement.

P.S. Hey! You "chocololics." If you want Papa Joe's Famous Potato Fudge Recipe, (no cooking), just send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720 and I'll send it right out to you.

Salad bars

Realize value for your money

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convenience-conscious Americans have made salad bars one of the most popular new supermarket innovations in recent years, and with some care these shoppers can also realize value for their money.

Salad bar ingredients have proven popular not just for salads, but also as ingredients in stir-fry dishes, side dishes, sandwich fillings and the raw materials for a hearty soup, say researchers Eileen Patz Newman and Dianne D. Odland.

Nutritionists at the Department of Agriculture decided to look into the growth of supermarket salad bars, and studied those at markets in the Washington, D.C. area.

They found that some items, not surprisingly, cost a lot more on the salad bar than they do if purchased in larger units in other sections of the market.

But other items cost about the same, and shoppers could even find savings on some items at the salad bar, the researchers reported in the magazine Family Economics Review.

The difference exists, of course, because salad bars generally charge one per pound price for whatever ingredients the customer selects, while prices for the same items bought individually would vary widely.

Cucumbers, carrots, green cabbage, yellow onions and watermelon, for example, were as much as four times more expensive at the salad bar.

And salad-bar buyers paid triple the regular price for lettuce, celery, bean sprouts, red cabbage, zucchini, canned kidney beans and peas, cole slaw, macaroni salad, potato salad and hard-cooked eggs, the researchers said.

Tomatoes, spinach, radishes, green pepper, cantaloupe, sliced beets, chickpeas, raisins, pineapple, tofu, egg salad and cottage cheese cost about double if bought at the salad bar.

On the other hand, mushrooms, cauliflower, broccoli, spring onions, strawberries, honeydew, grapefruit, peaches, pears, three-bean salad, pickled beets, salsa and rice pudding cost about the same at the salad bar as in other supermarket areas.

And the nutritionists found that shoppers could actually save money at the salad bar by buying alfalfa sprouts, pineapple, mandarin orange slices, tuna fish, American cheese, domestic ham, sunflower seeds, croutons, chow mein noodles, jalapeno peppers, pitted olives and bread pudding.

While their research concentrated on supermarkets in the Washington area, shoppers in any part of the country might also find savings by comparing per-pound costs of salad bar foods to the same item in other sections.

A straight price comparison isn't always valid, of course, because at the salad bar shoppers can buy any quantity of an item then need, eliminating potential waste.

This can be especially important for one- and two-person households or those who prepare meals at home infrequently. Buyers from those homes need to consider whether they can use an entire head of cauliflower or carton of cottage cheese, or if much of it will end up thrown away eventually, negating the saving.

Another consideration is time, since salad-bar ingredients are already cut up and prepared. This may be an advantage for the cook who needs items for a stir-fry dinner and doesn't want to spend the time slicing and chopping.

Sale prices and local price differences also make a difference, the researchers pointed out.

But the final conclusion is that basic salad ingredients are most costly at the salad bar while salad toppings and products of animal origin can offer a saving there.

Thus, consumers anxious to make the best use of their shopping dollar, and who have time and storage space, might want to consider buying items like lettuce, carrots and cabbage at the regular produce counter, and turning to the salad bar for the extras such as tuna, ham, sprouts, cheese and croutons.

Texas ladies make it big with cookbooks

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

More than seven years ago Janel Franklin and Sue Vaughn decided to compile a recipe booklet for their family members.

Today — Janel, who is from Tahoka, and Sue, who is from Lamesa — own a publishing company and have published two cookbooks.

Their first book titled, "Calf Fries to Caviar," was published in August 1983 with 5,000 original copies. To their surprise, the book sold quickly, so 20,000 more books were printed in February 1984. The demand for the book also required a third printing of 20,000 copies.

In the first five years, more than 50,000 books have been sold nationwide, said Sue.

When the ladies first decided to publish a cookbook they had no idea how to begin. By luck, they met a Dallas cookbook coordinator who was impressed with the book's easy-to-read format. "She also liked our everyday recipes," said Janel.

"Our goal was to sell 5,000 books in three years," Sue said. "In dire secrecy we ordered 5,000 cookbooks. . . . We didn't know if we'd have to have a bonfire or not," she joked.

"Calf Fries to Caviar," which is still in demand, is scheduled to be printed for the fourth time.

Through the years, Janel and Sue, who own Jan-Su Publications, have received so many recipes they decided to publish another cookbook titled, "More Calf Fries to Caviar," which can now be purchased locally at the Accent Shoppe and Joy's Hallmark.

Although they follow a hectic schedule, Janel and Sue stepped by the Herald last week on their way to San Angelo where they were to be interviewed by the paper and also tape a television program.

"We travel, attend autograph signings at various bookstores, and lead cooking schools," said Sue.

The ladies agree their working relationship is unique because not everyone can work as closely as they do and still get along.

"We have fun. Our's is a good working relationship," they agreed.

For those of you who aren't familiar with calf fries or caviar, Janel and Sue offer their definitions and preparation possibilities.

"Calf fries or 'Mountain Oysters,' are the delicacies eaten on the working ranches of Texas. They are the part of the bull removed to make the animal a steer. After a long day of working cattle, the cowboys will clean the calf fries, leaving the membrane intact. They will throw them on the branding fire, sit back, and wait for them to pop open, which indicates they are done. The cowboys peel back the membrane and savor the delicious meat. We have a little bit more sophisticated way of cooking them in our kitchens. We fry them in batters, crumbs, or cornmeal coatings. In the home or on the open range, they are delicious."

"Caviar is roe of the sturgeon treated by heating, straining, and salting. The best caviar is made only in winter, and one of the causes of its high price is the great difficulty in preserving it. It should be spread on toast and flavored with a few drops of lemon squeezed over it, and is usually eaten as an hors d'oeuvres."

This week's Recipe Exchange features recipes from "More Calf Fries to Caviar."

HC splits twinbill with Western Oklahoma

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

The Howard College Hawks' bats were colder than the late February weather in the first game of a doubleheader with Western Oklahoma...

Howard's record is now 11-3, while the Pioneers stand at 3-2. First game Western Oklahoma pitcher Tom Peters never allowed the Hawks to get untracked...

Brett Tucker took the loss for HC. His record is 0-1.

The Pioneers' first score came in the bottom of the second inning. Leadoff hitter Bryan Grejtak walked, then went to third on a double down the right field line...

After Tucker walked Todd Laughlin to load the bases, Mike Walden hit an infield single, scoring Grejtak. Batiste was brought home on a double-play grounder from Brian Young.

Peters, meanwhile, had little trouble from the Hawks, surrendering just four harmless singles while walking three and striking out five.

The remaining Pioneer runs came in their half of the fifth inning. Young walked, stole second and advanced to third on a sacrifice fly from Jonathan Sheffield...

The next batter, Joey Green, rapped a double to left that scored Twynor. Green then stole third and came home on a wild pitch from Tucker.

The Hawks mounted their only serious threat of the game in the sixth inning. Jose Rubiera singled, David Wallace walked and Gerry Camara singled to load the bases with one out.

The threat was snuffed, however, when Todd Kolbicka grounded into an inning-ending double play.

Howard threatened once more in the final inning, when the Hawks had runners on first and second with one out, but Peters struck out Jay Williams and forced Rubiera to pop up for the final out of the game.

Western Okla. 020 030 0-5 7 1 Howard 000 000 0-0 4 0 WP - Peters (2-0); LP - Tucker (0-1); LOB - WOC 4, HC 8; DP - WOC 2, HC 1; 2B - Green, Batiste; SB - Twynor 2; Green 3, Young 1; E - Grejtak; WP - Tucker.

The Hawks struck for three runs in the first inning, then benefitted from the Pioneers' charity in the fifth to take the nightcap, 5-3.

Greg Kroeger gained the win in relief to improve his record to 2-0 for the season. Western's Troy Koehler went the distance to lose his first decision of the year.

Howard first scored in its half of the first inning. Leadoff hitter Rubiera reached second base on an error, then stole third and came home on Michael Bard's grounder.

Left fielder Mike Hughes then singled and scored when Kolbicka hit a triple to the right centerfield fence. Kolbicka later scored on Bill Alexander's grounder to give the Hawks a 3-1 lead after one inning.

Kroeger and starter Ruben Felix pitched well for Howard, limiting the Pioneers to two singles while striking out eight and walking one.

The Hawks' fielders, however, combined for six errors to allow Western back into the game.

Western scored its second run of the game in the third when Tim Kenny singled and advanced to third on a throwing error by Jim Kraut. Kenny later scored on a fielder's choice grounder from Green.

Schoendienst gets Hall of Fame nod

By FRED GOODALL AP Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. — Stan Musial says former St. Louis teammate Red Schoendienst always had a way of finding greatness. Now, greatness has found Schoendienst.

Schoendienst, the former Cardinals second baseman and manager was elected to the Hall of Fame on Tuesday by a vote of the veterans committee, an 18-man panel created 32 years ago to consider players passed over by the regular balloting of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

While Schoendienst will be making the trip to Cooperstown this summer, former New York Yankees shortstop Phil Rizzuto will have to wait for another day.

Umpires and executives are eligible too, and one-time National League ump Al Barlick will join Schoendienst and BBWAA selections Johnny Bench and Carl Yastrzemski as 1989 inductees on July 23 at Cooperstown, N.Y.

Schoendienst, who led NL second basemen in fielding a record seven times, spent 18 years in the major leagues — including 14 with the Cardinals. He also managed the club to two pennants and one world championship in the 1960s.

Red had an outstanding career and the greatest pair of hands I've ever seen in baseball," said Musial, a Hall of Famer and a member of the veterans committee.

"He loved to play and never got too high or too low. He was always on an even keel," Musial added of the 10-time All-Star. "He was a great second baseman, but you put him on third base and you said he was a great third baseman. You put him in left field and said he was a great left fielder."

Barlick, known for a booming voice that projected balls-and-strikes calls loud enough to be heard on radio broadcasts, was one of the youngest umpires ever to make it to the majors when he was called up to the National League in 1940.

He was only 25 then, but earned the respect of players and managers over a career that spanned 27 full seasons and part of another. He worked seven World Series and seven All-Star games and has served as an umpire consultant for the NL since retiring after the 1971 season.

"I think it's a miracle that I got in," Barlick, 73, said by telephone from his home in Gilbert, Ariz. "Other than that, I really don't have anything to say."

Barlick missed two seasons while serving in the Coast Guard and two more with a heart ailment.

Jimmy Johnson meets the media

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Jimmy Johnson knew it wasn't going to be easy replacing Tom Landry as coach of the Dallas Cowboys. He discovered the degree of difficulty in his first news conference.

Johnson was grilled for showing up in Dallas before the sale of the Cowboys to close friend Jerry Jones had been completed last weekend.

Things got so heated on Tuesday that Johnson said at one point, "This thing has been a grind."

Questions about Landry outnumbered football questions, 2-to-1.

He repeatedly apologized if he offended Landry or the Cowboys' fans.

"I'm sorry if I hurt anyone. I apologize," Johnson said. "I was in Dallas (on Friday before the Cowboys were sold on Saturday) to talk face to face with Jerry Jones."

"The fact I was seen in public apparently offended some people. I'd like to sit down and visit with Tom sometime about it. We'll do it at a time of his choosing."

Jones and Johnson were photographed celebrating at a Tex-Mex restaurant in downtown Dallas on a day Landry had spent studying film and getting ready for the season.

Jones, an Arkansas millionaire, bought the team from H.R. "Bum" Bright in a sale announced on Saturday night after Johnson, the former coach of the Miami Hurricanes, had flown home.

didn't mean any disrespect to anybody," Jones said. "I have deep feelings for the Cowboys and Coach Landry."

Landry wasn't told he had been fired until Jones and club president Tex Schramm visited him on Saturday afternoon at the Hills of Lakeway near Austin.

"It hurts me to say I did something out of disrespect for Tom Landry," Johnson said. "I don't expect to replace someone like him. But just let me do my thing and judge me by what happens later."

Landry said he thought his dismissal "could have been handled better."

Landry was left uninformed for almost two days after Jones had shaken hands on a done deal with Bright.

Jones, who was standing near Johnson during the news conference, said, "I'm wrong and there was no right way. I visited with Tex about the sale then got to Tom as soon as I could."

Jones added, "Tom Landry and Tex Schramm are bigger than money, bigger than life."

Jones also said that the sale with Bright was final.

It now awaits approval from three-fourths of the NFL owners. With Schramm still with the team, no problems were expected in getting the deal approved.

Douglas sets assist, scoring records in Syracuse victory

By WILLIAM KATES AP Sports Writer

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Syracuse's Sherman Douglas says there was no pressure while he was closing in on college basketball's career assist record and his own school's scoring record.

Nevertheless, Douglas let out a big sigh of relief Tuesday night after achieving both records within minutes of one another during No. 6 Syracuse's 88-72 victory over Big East foe Connecticut. It was the only game involving a ranked team.

Colleges

"It really hasn't been on my mind all that much. There are other things to worry about," said Douglas, who led the Syracuse triumph with 22 points and 11 assists.

"But I wanted to get it out of the way," the 6-foot senior guard said. "I'm definitely happy about it. It was the right time. We were up and we were at home."

The victory, which boosted Syracuse to 9-5 in the Big East and 24-5 overall, means that the Orangemen have evened the score with four of the five teams to deal them losses this season: Villanova, St. John's, Pittsburgh and Connecticut. Syracuse will try to exact the same revenge against No. 2 Georgetown on Sunday.

Connecticut is 6-9 in the conference and 15-10 overall.

Douglas' 11 assists give him 897 for his career, pushing him past Northeastern's Andre LaFleur as college basketball's all-time leader. LaFleur, who played between 1983 and 1987, finished his career with 894 assists.

The 22 points gave Douglas the Syracuse all-time scoring record with 1,889 points. The record was held previously by Dave Bing, who had 1,883 in a three-year career. Both Bing and Douglas played prep basketball at Springang High School in Washington, D.C.

Douglas broke the scoring record with 11:57 to play on an emphatic breakaway dunk — not his typical style of scoring.

Later, he said he wasn't sure if that was the record-breaking basket.

"I knew I was coming close... If I could have hoped for the shot, it would have been a dunk, but it would have been a dunk over somebody," Douglas said.

Less than three minutes later, Douglas lobbed a soft pass to freshman Billy Owens, who sank it with a tomahawk slam.

Play was stopped on both occasions for Douglas, who received minute-long standing ovations both times. When the assist record fell, Syracuse fans showered the court with vinyl records.

Connecticut Coach Jim Calhoun, who coached at Northeastern while LaFleur played, heaped praise upon Douglas.

"He's a terrific basketball player. He's the heart and soul of their team. He can really control game and he did it tonight," Calhoun said.

Asked to compare the two guards, Calhoun said Douglas was a more physical player and a more creative passer.

"He (Sherman) does things I've never seen before," Calhoun said. "If you don't have to coach against him, Sherman is a fun player to watch compete." But it wasn't fun for Calhoun this night. It was Douglas who ignited Syracuse during a decisive run early in the contest.

The Huskies were ahead 14-10 with 13:58 to play when Syracuse reeled off 11 straight points, seven by Douglas and four by junior forward Derrick Coleman, who finished with 21 points. The run gave Syracuse a 21-14 lead with 9:18 to go.

Third verse same as first as Cleveland stops Detroit

By The Associated Press

They are 1-2 in the NBA standings, but when the Cleveland Cavaliers and Detroit Pistons meet, there is little parity.

The Cavaliers, at 42-12 owners of the best record in the league, took their third victory in as many meetings with the Pistons, 36-16, as Ron Harper scored 26 points in a 115-99 decision Tuesday night. It was a bruising battle and set up another war Friday night on the Pistons' court in Auburn Hills, Mich.

Pros

"They got all pumped up and made a big deal of this game, so it's a big win for us," said Cavaliers center Brad Daugherty, who had 13 rebounds and 20 points, including his first career 3-pointer.

"My knee, my wrist, my whole body — that's the kind of game it was," added a very sore Harper.

More of the same could be on tap Friday night.

"It was playoff intensity," Detroit's Mark Aguirre said. "We're competing at the highest level. We played extremely hard and the Cavs played extremely hard."

Elsewhere, it was Indiana 108, Seattle 106, just the second road victory for the Pacers this season; Portland 139, Phoenix 134; Boston 112, Charlotte 87; Dallas 111, Miami 110 in overtime; Philadelphia 123, the Los Angeles Clippers 105; and Chicago 121, San Antonio 102.

At Richfield, Ohio, Harper made 11 of 16 field goals, mostly on fast breaks and in the low post.

"I'm 6-6 and Joe Dumars and Vinnie Johnson are like 6-3, so Coach (Lenny Wilkens) put me in the low post," Harper said. "My teammates were getting me the ball in a position where it was easy for me to turn around and shoot. Anytime you're that close to the basket, you're going to shoot a very high percentage."

The Cavaliers, five games in front of Detroit in the Central Division, outscored the Pistons 34-17 from the free throw line.

Daugherty and Laimbeer were ejected and suspended for one game for fighting the last time the teams met Jan. 27. There were no fights Tuesday, but four Pistons collected five personal fouls each.

"That's no big deal to me," Daugherty said of the rough stuff. "It's just part of the game. I don't dwell on it. Tonight, I just wanted to come here and take care of business."

Aguirre and Isiah Thomas scored 28 points each for Detroit, and Thomas added 13 assists.

Larry Nance scored 18 points and Mark Price had 17 for Cleveland.

Pacers 108, SuperSonics 106 Chuck Person led the way for Indiana with 45 points, but it was Detlef Schrempf who won it, breaking Indiana's 11-game road losing streak.

After Xavier McDaniel's jump shot tied it at 106 with nine seconds left, Schrempf took an inbound pass, dribbled into the lane and made an off-balance one-hander.

"We just wanted to get the ball in, and get a shot up at the basket because we didn't have another timeout," Schrempf said.

Indiana's only other road win was 127-108 at Boston on Jan. 11. Seattle has lost its last two home games to Sacramento and Indiana, who are a combined 6-50 on the road this year.

Dale Ellis, whose 3-point shot bounced off the rim with two seconds remaining, finished with 30 points for Seattle.

Royal: Law would dissuade cheaters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A single felony conviction, which carries a prison sentence, would end cheating in the recruiting of college athletes, former University of Texas football coach Darrell Royal says.

One of Royal's prize pupils, former Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell, says he was offered cars by another institution, but turned them down and signed with Texas in 1974.

Campbell, on the UT staff, said blue-chippers now are looking for something extra "because they've had a chance to hear what other guys have gotten over the years, and they come in wanting the same thing."

Royal and Campbell appeared at a news conference Tuesday with former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, and Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, principal sponsors of what Glasgow calls the "illegal recruiting bill."

The Senate Criminal Justice Committee on a 6-0 vote approved the bill, which Glasgow said would cover student-athletes, parents and alumni — not only in Texas but in other states.

"We think the law would apply equally," Glasgow said. "If somebody, a university, from Florida or Michigan or Ohio State or California came into Texas and violated this Penal Code, we think those people are subject to prosecution also."

A majority of Southwest Conference schools have been penalized by the NCAA in recent years for alleged violations, and Texas' blue-chip football recruits have responded by leaving the state in record numbers.

"We look like the biggest bunch of thugs, gangsters... of all time," Royal, who retired from coaching in 1976, told the Senate committee. The bill would make it a misdemeanor — punishable by up to one year in jail — for a person to intentionally or knowingly solicit, accept, or agree to accept an illegal inducement to attend a particular college.

Glasgow said in many cases parents are trying to negotiate benefits for their children who play sports. "The day of the student-athlete and his parents asking a college, 'What do you have to offer?' must end, he said.

In a provision directed at alumni, those offering illegal recruiting benefits would be subject to a felony conviction with a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison.

"Believe me... the first guy that's convicted on this thing, there will be no more cheating, in my opinion," Royal said.

David Berst, NCAA assistant executive director, has said the bill would "actually undermine our effectiveness" by creating new issues, "including the involvement of legal counsel and Fifth Amendment rights."

Johnson

ing it approved at the next owners' meeting in March.

Asked how he could win some of the disenchanted Dallas fans, Johnson said, "I hope they are as excited as I am. We need your help. I don't claim to have all the answers but I want to take them to the Super Bowl."

Johnson, who was 10 minutes late for his first news conference, said he had not decided on what assistant coaches he would be bringing with him from Miami or which Cowboys' assistants would be retained.

"We'll say something about that next week," Johnson said. "We also will be evaluating the players on the team and have no announcements about them yet."

Johnson said he will field a Dallas team that is "aggressive on both sides of the ball. We want to press the game on offense and press the game on defense with an attacking style."

He said the Cowboys will run a 4-3 defense with some 3-4 sprinkled in as a changeup.

Johnson said former Miami assistant David Shula "is a brilliant coach and an excellent offensive strategist. He'll do a great job."

Search continues for Miami coach

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Gary Stevens faces at least one challenger in his bid to succeed former boss Jimmy Johnson as head coach at the University of Miami.

Washington State coach Dennis Erickson was interviewed Tuesday for the job, several Miami television stations reported. The visit with Athletic Director Sam Jankovich reportedly lasted six hours.

Erickson apparently won't be the last candidate to talk with Jankovich.

"He's got other guys I guess he's going to interview," said Stevens, who had a 7 1/2-hour interview Monday. "He said he's going to interview a couple. I don't know who they are."

Stevens is the only coach to say publicly that he wants the job. Jankovich has declined to discuss the search publicly.

Several Miami players said last weekend that they wanted Stevens, an assistant with the Hurricanes since 1980, to become head coach if Johnson left. Miami quarterback Steve Walsh, who graduates in May but has a year of eligibility left, said he's turn pro if Johnson

Heavily recruited quarterback Bryan Fortay of East Brunswick, N.J., who signed a national letter of intent with Miami earlier this month, also said he wants to play for Stevens.

"If Coach Stevens is named the new head coach and the staff remains stable, this (Johnson's departure) might not affect me," Fortay said.

Jankovich has said players will not dictate who will be hired.

Miami begins spring practice Saturday, and Stevens is likely to serve as interim coach.

Hawks

The Pioneers again enjoyed some Howard miscues in the fifth inning. With one out, Twynor reached base on an error by shortstop Darrin Glenn and stole second base. He then advanced to third on a sacrifice from Batiste and came home on a throwing error by first baseman Matt Stewart, tying the contest at 3-3.

But the Hawks benefitted from some charity on the Pioneers' part to regain the lead in the fifth.

With one out, Rubiera reached on an error by Green and Bard singled. One out later, Kolbicka was intentionally walked, loading the bases.

Howard then scored two runs without a single hit, as both Camara — pinch-hitting for Alexander — and Kraut walked, driving in two runs.

The Hawks and the Pioneers will hook up in another doubleheader today at 1 p.m. at Jack Barber Field.

play, a lead the Orangemen never relinquished.

Syracuse built a 40-27 halftime lead and held its biggest advantage, 64-44, when Owen finished off with Douglas' record-setting feed with 9:13 to play.

Senior center Cliff Robinson scored 29 points for the Huskies before fouling out with 3:28 to play. Freshman guard Chris Smith added 19.

Other Games
Lance Blanks scored 26 points and Travis Mays 23 to lead Texas to a disputed 82-79 victory over Southern Methodist and give the Longhorns the lead in the Southwest Conference.

Texas is 22-6 overall and 12-3 in the SWC, a half-game ahead of 11-3 Arkansas.

SMU's Rod Hampton missed a layup with five seconds left and the ball went out of bounds. SMU coach John Shumate claimed Texas fouled Hampton and then knocked the ball out. SMU then tried to foul Blanks, but none was called and he clinched the game with a dunk.

Shumate was so upset that when he went to shake hands with Texas coach Tom Penders he slapped it extra hard, making Penders grimace.

SMU was led by John Colborne's career-high 26 points and Glen Puddy's 22.

Princeton failed to clinch the Ivy League championship, losing to Penn 43-42 when Walt Frazier made a 3-point shot from deep in the corner with 50 seconds left. Princeton, 18-6 overall and 10-2 in the Ivy, must win one of its two remaining games for the title and an automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament.

Princeton's Jerry Doyle missed the second of a 1-and-1 with one second left.

Jerry Simon led Penn with 13 points.
Keith Gailles scored 31 points, including nine in overtime, to lead Loyola of Chicago past Marquette 91-83. Gailles and Keith Carter combined for eight consecutive free throws in the final 1:16 of overtime to give the Ramblers an 89-82 lead with 15 seconds remaining. Chris Funchess added 26 points and Carter 20 for Loyola. Trevor Powell led Marquette with 22.

problem.
Schoendienst, a .289 career hitter who batted over 300 seven times, was a lot more expressive. Reached at his apartment in St. Petersburg, where the Cardinals are in spring training and he is working as a coach, he said he felt deserving of the honor.

"My wife thought I should be in a long time ago, but that's wives," the 66-year-old native of Germantown, Ill., said. "She asked me, 'When is the announcement?' I said, 3 o'clock. She said, 'I'm not going shopping.'"

"Anytime you can stop a gal from going shopping, that's pretty big news."

Schoendienst's major league career began in 1945 with the Cardinals. He also played for the New York Giants and Milwaukee Braves before ending his playing days with the Cards in 1963. He managed St. Louis from 1965-1975, compiling a 938-835 record and winning the NL pennant in 1967 and '68 and a World Series title in '67.

"He was a quiet man, but as colorful as his hair," said longtime baseball writer and committee member Bob Broeg of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"I figured I had a chance," said Schoendienst, who overcame a bout with tuberculosis in 1958. "I did a pretty good job as a player, manager and coach. If it didn't happen this year, I wait 'til next year. I'm in now."

The vote was another setback for Rizzuto, who has been open about his disappointment at not being picked, especially after his cross-town rival of the 1940s and 1950s, Dodgers shortstop Pee Wee Reese, was elected in 1984.

Seventeen of the 18 committee members were present during 5 1/2 hours of deliberations. Although no vote total was announced, it takes 14 for election and there was not sufficient support for Rizzuto, the 1950 American League Most Valuable Player who played on nine Yankee pennant winners and has seven World Series rings.

Still, the panel continues to bypass him while staunchly defending the balloting that has elected others whose teams did not achieve as much as those of Rizzuto. Schoendienst played in three World Series, batting .269 and finished with 84 career home runs and 773 runs batted in.

"We don't vote against people. We vote for people," committee member Birdie Tebbetts said.

"A lot of people do not equate the things (Rizzuto) did as being Hall of Fame caliber," Broeg said. "You can't twist people's wrists."

Hall of Fame president Ed Stack said about 25 candidates were given serious consideration, including Rizzuto, Richie Ashburn, Leo Durocher, Bill Veck, Carl Mays, Joe Gordon, Tony Lazzeri, Carl Mays, Hal Newhouser, Babe Herman, Walter O'Malley, Gil Hodges and Vic Willis, who missed election by two votes when the veterans failed to select anyone for the first time in 1988.

The late Nellie Fox, in his first year of eligibility with the panel, also was discussed. He fell two votes short in his 15th and final year on the baseball writers ballot in 1985.

NBA

Trail Blazers 139, Suns 134
Terry Porter, Jerome Kersey and Clyde Drexler were a three-man gang for the Blazers. Porter scored a season-high 34 points and had 12 assists, while Kersey had 21 of his 31 points in the second half. Drexler added 28 points and 11 rebounds, but missed getting his third consecutive triple-double by having nine assists.

Tom Chambers had 15 points in the second period, 13 more in the fourth, and finished with a season-high 42 for the Suns. Kevin Johnson had 32 points and 13 assists.

"I played well tonight and made some decisions to shoot the ball," Porter said. "I had the opportunity to get into the offense."

Celtics 112, Hornets 87
Boston scored 28 points in the first quarter, with Reggie Lewis and Kevin McHale combining for all of them. Then a 26-4 burst in the second quarter turned the game into a rout.

The Celtics have won all four meetings with the expansion Hornets.

McHale had 19 of his 21 points in the first half, while Lewis got 15 of his 28. Robt Parish hit seven of his nine shots for 16 points and grabbed 13 rebounds.

McHale and Parish were blocking everything underneath and Kurt (Rambis) couldn't get anything going inside." Hornets coach Dick Harter said. "They have a lot of confidence when they play us. They play hard and everything seems to go in for them."

Mavericks 111, Heat 110

At Miami, Rolando Blackman scored Dallas' final seven points, including a three-point play with three seconds left in overtime. The Heat blew a seven-point lead in the final 1:33 of OT.

Blackman, who led the Mavericks with 27 points, also scored their final six in regulation time. His two free throws with 51 seconds to go gave the Mavs a 99-97 lead. Two free throws by Miami's Rony Seikaly 11 seconds later tied the game.

Miami was led by Grant Long with 24 points and Seikaly with 20.

76ers 123, Clippers 105
Rookie Hersey Hawkins scored a season-high 32 points and Charles Barkley added 23, sending

Los Angeles to its 10th straight defeat.

The Clippers, losers of 29 of their last 30 games and 19 of their last 21 against Philadelphia, were led by rookie Charles Smith with 24 points and Ken Norman with 18.

"Shooting-wise, I think it was my best game," said Hawkins, last year's College Player of the Year who finished his collegiate career as the fourth all-time scorer in NCAA history. "I don't think I played any differently tonight than the way I've been playing. Their rotation left me open a lot of the time, and when I have the open shot, I have to take it."

Bulls 121, Spurs 102
San Antonio lost its 12th straight game and clinched a losing season for the fourth consecutive year. The Spurs were 1-12 in February, the worst month in their 16-year history.

Michael Jordan scored 24 points, 18 in the opening half. Chicago's defense also forced 20 turnovers through the first three quarters.

Willie Anderson led the Spurs with 22 points, Greg Anderson added 18 and Frank Brickowski 16.

Sports Briefs

Klondike wins, C-City loses

The Klondike Cougars earned a spot in the Region 1-1A tournament with a 65-46 area playoff win over Anthony in Carlsbad, N.M. Tuesday night.

Jody Simpson scored 25 points, Clint Kirkland tallied 17 and Steve Cope added 12 for the Cougars, now 20-12 for the season. Anthony finished its season at 12-6.

The Cougars rushed to a 21-point lead after three quarters, and cruised the rest of the way for the win. They now advance to the regional tournament, to be held in Lovell Friday and Saturday.

Klondike's first-round opponent will be New Home, a 76-46 victor over Whitharral Tuesday.

The Colorado City Wolves were eliminated from Class 3A playoff competition, losing to the Decatur Eagles, 64-49 Tuesday in Breckenridge.

Tony Howerton scored 18 points to lead Decatur, now 21-12 for the season. C-City, paced by Dane Hoover's 19 points, ended its season with a 13-14 record.

Limited to only seven points in the first quarter, the Wolves rallied to close their deficit to 49-42 entering the final period. C-City, however, went cold in the last quarter and was outscored 15-7 by the Eagles.

Decatur advances to the Region 1-3A tournament, to be held Friday and Saturday in Lubbock.

Big Spring wins season opener

HOBBS, N.M. — The Big Spring Steers scored nine runs in the final two innings to down the Hobbs Eagles, 18-12, in the Steers' baseball opener here Monday.

Dimas Morales pitched the final four innings in relief to pick up the win.

"It was not real pretty," Big Spring coach John Velasquez said of the win. "We made some mistakes that I attribute to us being so young; we have only two seniors in the starting lineup.

"We'll come around, but our pitching and defense needs to get better," Velasquez added. "I'm proud of the kids. They had a big lead, blew it, then came back ahead again."

Both teams had trouble in the pitching department; Big Spring hurlers issued 12 walks, while Hobbs' pitchers allowed 15.

Freddy Rodriguez went four-for-five from the plate, while Mike Calvio, Marvin Rubio and Chris Crownover all had two hits for the Steers.

Crownover delivered the big blast of the contest, a three-run homer in the third inning.

Second baseman Mike Hilario had a good game defensively for the Steers, Velasquez said.

Big Spring returns to action Friday when it takes on Corpus Christi King in the first round of the Fredricksburg Baseball Tournament.

Weather

By The Associated Press
Snow fell over the Rockies and the Plains today, and up to 7 inches of rain drenched southern Florida. Advisories for snow along with strong winds were posted for the mountains of northwest Montana, the upper Yellowstone Valley in south-central Montana and the Idaho Panhandle. A freezing rain advisory was posted this morning at the Pikes Peak-Palmer Divide in east-central Colorado, and a winter storm watch was posted for tonight and Thursday in the northern mountains of Idaho. In the Southeast, afternoon and evening thunderstorms produced as much as 7 inches of rain near tana, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Michigan.

Rain was scattered from western Texas across east-central Texas and central Louisiana into central Mississippi.

Today's forecast called for snowshowers extending from northern New England across northeast New York and along the lower Great Lakes, in upper Michigan, from Iowa across southern Minnesota, South Dakota, northern Nebraska, Montana and western Washington. Snow was to change to rain in eastern Washington.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1989

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not pursue too many interests right now. Best results will come from focusing on one thing at a time. Work with a passion! You can bring a project in on time and under budget.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You know exactly where you are going and will not be taken in easily. Beware of attractive lures. Luxury purchases are best postponed. Wait until you have better financing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your new ideas are exciting. Do not let a jealous individual throw cold water on them. Changes in a relationship bring quick dividends. Be prepared to handle family upsets. Emphasize your objectivity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are in an affectionate mood. Get some expert advice before making an important move. Substantial financial backing could become available, allowing you to advance a cherished personal goal. Choose partners with care.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You start the day in a bouncy, energized mood. Make headway while others are asleep at the switch. Put your energy and enthusiasm to the best possible use. Your leadership qualities command respect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtaining everyone's approval is impossible. Loosen your grip on the family purse strings and talk things over. A child will respond to new responsibilities better than to lectures — so will mate. Be tactful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Creative endeavors are your best bet for raising extra cash. Travel can help cement a valuable relationship. Correspondence can be misleading. Read between the lines to avoid making a costly mistake.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You find yourself front and center at work today. Beware of someone who could be setting you up. Steer clear of a friend's shady financial scheme. Get receipts together and complete tax forms.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you feel a relationship slipping away, sit down and put your cards on the table. Get partner to do the same. Your ambition rises to the surface. Find constructive ways to satisfy it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Resist the temptation to skip meals or sleep. You need to build up your strength. Consider buying property near the water. It is easier to turn a profit now. Investigate prospective partners.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are in a more conservative mood and easier to deal with. Seize an opportunity to be part of an ambitious project. Someone will back you when the right time comes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Secondary duties could become a top priority in your plan. Hang on to procedures that work well, but be open to new ideas. Do not dismiss high-tech advances out of hand.
