Robber knows 'The Color of Money'

Actor Paul Newman's racing partner discovered he was missing a sizeable amount of cash and nine credit cards when he started to get in his car in Big Spring Friday morning.

Tyler Alexander, 48, Lincoln Shire, Ill., reported the theft to Big Spring police about 7:50 a.m. as he, racing superstar Mario Andretti, and Andretti's son prepared to drive to Phoenix, Ariz., for testing race cars owned by Newman/Haas Racing, according to police reports.

Newman, Andretti and the racing team were all reportedly in Big Spring earlier this week testing their new race cars at the old Howard County airport.

Newman is the star of such movies as "The Color of Money," "Hondo," "Cool Hand Luke," and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

Approximately $1,000 in cash was taken from the trunk of the car during the theft, along with several other items. The racing company partners rented the old Howard County Airport, located northeast of Big Spring, to test their race cars, according to Patrol Officer Billy Arnold who investigated the incident.

Arnold said there was no obvious signs that the trunk had been tampered with and Alexander was unsure whether he had closed it.

Newman, Andretti and their racing company were all reportedly in Big Spring earlier this week testing their new race cars at the old Howard County airport.

Responding to an anonymous tip Thursday about noon, two members of the Big Spring Herald editorial staff drove to the old airport, but were told by a

Texas braces for cold weather

Adlene Harrison of Dallas and her husband had been planning the trip for eight weeks — a few days in New Orleans for some fun and a roofers' convention.

Then their flight out of Dallas Love Field was canceled due to ice on the runways.

"I'm disappointed. I was looking forward to some very good food," Mrs. Harrison said. "I'll go home, put a fire in the fireplace and read a good book."

The Harrisons weren't the only ones changing plans as more delays and some flight cancellations were sending dozens to stand in line to use the telephones.

The Baylor women's basketball team had to forfeit its game against Texas Tech Saturday when they were unable to continue their trip from Waco to Lubbock after they changed planes in Dallas.

Terry Mitchell, Love Field operations manager said at about 1 p.m. there were some delays, but flights were still getting in and out of the airport.

"We're kind of waiting on (the weather) now," he said. "It's kind of slushy. We're at about a quarter-inch right now. If it remains like that, it won't impede us. If it doesn't get any colder, we'll be in great shape."

The temperature at Love was 25 degrees at 1 p.m. with a wind chill of 9 degrees below zero.

While the Panhandle and North Texas were bracing for more freezing precipitation and sub-zero wind chills, temperatures ahead of the front were balmy with noon readings of 75 degrees at Houston and 81 degrees at McAllen.

Later in the afternoon, high temperatures ranged from 11 degrees at Amarillo to 75 degrees at Brownsville.

Radio war Owners' feud heats up

By MICHAEL DUFFY

Local radio station owner David Wrinkle will soon learn if his longtime ambition of owning an FM station has become a reality, according to Federal Communication Commission officials in Washington.

Wrinkle's application has been fiercely opposed, however, by competitor Dick Fields, president and general manager of KBYG.

A decision on whether the license will be approved is expected any day, said Melanie Godschall, an FCC staff attorney.

Godschall stated she has reviewed KBST's application — along with the allegations Fields made against KBST and Wrinkle — and prepared a report with her recommendation that it be approved or disapproved.

"I'm not at liberty to tell you what my recommendation is, but it will soon be forwarded to the head of FM division here," Godschall said. "Of course, he has the option of accepting it or not."

The man who will make the decision on KBST's application is Larry Eads, chief of the FCC's audio services division.

"I haven't seen the recommendation yet, but of course we have a lot of them to review," Eads said Friday afternoon.

KBST signed an agreement Dec. 9 with Bell-Ray Broadcasting Inc. and Big Spring Broadcasting Company, its wholly owned subsidiary, to purchase KWKI's FM assets for $325,000.

KWKI's FM assets include the station's FM license and broad-

Feds may intervene to slow airline strike

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner said Saturday the Bush administration would seek emergency legislation, if necessary, to prohibit striking Eastern Airlines employees from broadening their protest to "hold American industry hostage."

Skinner, asked about prospective union plans to establish secondary picket lines at other airlines and commuter railroads, declared: "A secondary boycott will hurt our ability to compete in the world. We'll take action if labor shuts down industry in this country. We're not going to tolerate that."

Skinner, interviewed on the Cable News Network, acknowledged that a recent Supreme Court decision allowed secondary boycotts in the transportation sector, unlike other industries.

"I hope the machinists don't use this anomaly in the law to shut down American industry and hold American industry hostage," he said. "It's not fair."

Union officials said Saturday they were examining a number of potential targets, airlines and railroads included, for secondary picketing, probably to begin Monday.

William Winpisinger, president of the International Association of Machinists, accused Skinner and President Bush of attempting "to confine this dispute to a narrow arena where (Eastern owner Frank) Lorenzo can bring all his resources to bear" against the striking employees.

Winpisinger said: "We apologize to all of those who may ultimately be affected. We have a wide range of options, and we'll consider those one at a time."

Winpisinger said the prospect of a widespread secondary boycott was "no greater a threat than

Coahoma teen waits for donor for bone marrow transplant

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Despite a three-month search, a bone marrow donor has not yet been found for Carrie Carnahan — a Coahoma teenager with leukemia whose condition has elicited a wave of support from the local community.

After her white blood cell count dropped drastically, Carnahan was hospitalized at Wadley Cancer Institute in Dallas last week.

The 14-year-old — who attends Coahoma High School's home-bound program — needs a bone marrow transplant "as soon as possible," said her father, Patrick.

As a result of the drop in her white cell count, Carrie essentially "has no immune system," Patrick said. "If she got a cold it could turn into pneumonia very quickly."

Carrie was diagnosed as having acute lymphatic leukemia in 1982, and since then the Carnahan family has received both moral and Dallas which accesses 91 registries worldwide, and a registry in London.

Family members have been tested, but no ideal matches were found. Patrick said he was the closest match, but tests revealed he satisfied only three of five criteria needed to constitute an ideal match.

For the surgery to have the best chance at being successful, a perfect match is needed. But if a patient's need for a transplant becomes critical, a less than perfect match could be used, Patrick said.

Anyone who like to be tested to see if they would qualify as a potential bone marrow donor is urged to contact Jill Skupin at the Wadley Blood Center in Dallas at 214-351-8531.

The blood test used to determine a person's bone marrow type is simple, said Patrick Carnahan, but casting equipment, however, the station's AM assets will not be a part of transaction, Wrinkle said.

Fields cited numerous instances of FCC infractions allegedly committed by Wrinkle in the petition to deny KBST's application, including:

- Overcharges on political commercials.
- Deliberately interfering with KBYG's transmission of a live broadcast on Oct. 7, 1988 of a Big Spring High School football game.
- Made distorted and misleading statements about KBST's Arbitron ratings, a ratings service accredited by the Electronic Media Rating Council, a national radio accrediting agency.
- Big Spring Broadcasting currently is licensee of both KWKI-FM and KWKI-AM and the transfer is for the FM only. "It appears the AM facility will be abandoned after the transfer leading to a reduction in broadcast service to Big Spring," Fields alleged in the petition.

Godschall said, however, that Big Spring Broadcasting officials responded to the FCC in connection with that allegation.

"They have told us they have no intention of abandoning it. They said they will either sell the AM facility or donate it to a charitable organization," Godschall affirmed.

• The application transfer contains no affirmative action Equal Employment Opportunity statement.

• In October 1986 KBST aired a cigarette advertisement for a Big Spring service station in violation of federal law.

Wrinkle responded to individually respond to each allegation, but did say he considered some of the charges "slanderous and libelous."

"Although I'm elated to have a competitor like Dick Fields," Wrinkle said. "I do understand, however, why he is trying to do everything within his power to delay us (KBST-FM) from going on the air."

Wrinkle is unabashedly proud of the station his father — Winston Wrinkle — purchased from the Hart-Hanks Corp. in 1959.

Winston Wrinkle — an active civic leader who devoted many hours to community affairs and in 1977 was named Man of the Year by the Chamber of Commerce — was only 51 when he died in January 1984 after a 30-year battle with kidney disease.

Winston's wife, Betty, resides in Big Spring.

"Since 1973, when I was a sophomore in high school, I've always wanted to own an FM station," Wrinkle said. "Young people have always wanted to listen to FM."

If the FCC does deny KBST's application for an FM license, Wrinkle won't be happy. He has paid "$100,000 cash money" for recently-completed renovation of KBST's facilities located at 608 Johnson St.

"There are four radio stations in this city and KBST is preferred by a 2-1 margin," Wrinkle stated.

That reference is related to last summer's Arbitron cumulative ratings for Howard County listenership: KBST — 51.6 percent; KWKI AM/FM — 31.1 percent and KBYG 25.1 percent.

Arbitron describes cumulative ratings as the estimated number of different persons who listen to a radio station for a minimum of five minutes in a quarter hour.

Wrinkle maintains that KBST receives "60 to 70 percent" of the advertising revenues of all four radio stations — and if granted an FM license — competitive Big Spring radio stations will no longer be very competitive.

"I'm sure the competition is a little bitter about it," Wrinkle said matter-of-factly of KBST's FM acquisition.

Fields declined to expand on the allegations he made to the FCC, but when asked if the reason he filed the petition to deny KBST's FM license stemmed from a professional dislike of Wrinkle, he responded:

"I'll let the allegations speak for themselves."

Wrinkle said he has not yet decided on a musical format for the FM station, however, it will be a 24-hour per-day format and the broadcast area will be expanded to include Glasscock, Martin and Mitchell Counties.

He believes the expanded broadcast area will also translate into increased revenues for Big Spring.

"If more people listen to a Big Spring station it may bring them into our city to shop and do business," Wrinkle noted.

AM Program Director Don Burns will serve in the same capacity on the FM station.

"I don't plan to hire a lot of new people. I will probably hire a couple of announcers and just work the people I have harder," Wrinkle said.

man affiliated with the Newman party that it would be impossible to see the celebrity and that he values his privacy.

The theft apparently occurred between 10 p.m. Thursday and 7:50 p.m. Friday, although Newman had already left for another destination, Arnold said.

"It was quite a thrill for me to meet Mario Andretti," Arnold said of his chance introduction to the longtime race car enthusiast.

Arnold said that Alexander expressed more concern about a list of names and telephone numbers for parts suppliers than any of the other missing items.

"That list was only valuable to him," Arnold noted.

Although two women employed by Days Inn of Big Spring admitted that Newman had spent two days at the local motel, the Inn's manager Jan Howard refused to confirm that.

"I'm on strictest orders not to confirm anything," Howard explained.

When asked, she did admit there was a theft in the parking lot of the motel, but said the car's owner had failed to close the trunk.

Scattered showers or thunderstorms are expected over most of northeast and South Texas with most precipitation ending from the west on Sunday.

Fifteen miles west of Love Field, Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport also made allowances for the weather Saturday.

"We have canceled approximately 50 percent of our flights for the remainder of the day," said Mary O'Neill, a spokeswoman for American Airlines. "The flights that are going, are running 45 minutes to an hour and a-half late. I would definitely urge anyone who has a flight today to call before they go out to the airport."

"Saturdays are usually somewhat lighter days than during the week or Sunday afternoons," O'Neill said.

Tower may face Senate questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary-designate John Tower has moved out front in the Bush administration effort to salvage his nomination, pleading the case publicly and setting the stage for a possible last-ditch stand on the Senate floor.

A White House official insisted Saturday the effort is not a lost cause.

"We've still got some good prospects," among Democrats who would be needed to provide a majority vote in Tower's favor, said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"We could still pull it out," the official said. "I admit it's very tough."

As the number of Democrats on record against the nomination grew, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole raised the prospect of bringing Tower to the Senate floor to answer allegations against him.

"The request would be that John Tower be allowed to come to this chamber, to stand in this well, and to answer his critics face-to-face, charge-by-charge, rumor-by-rumor and fact-by-fact," the Kansas Republican said Friday.

Dole did not formally ask permission for Tower, once a senator himself, to speak from the floor, but said he was considering introducing such a motion.

"If we owe Senator Tower anything, we owe him the right to say, 'I've had my day in court,'" Dole said.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said he would be "happy to consider any request" by the minority leader, but gave no indication on how the proposal would fare.

If Tower came to the floor to answer questions, it would be the first instance for a Cabinet nominee and only the sixth time in Senate history for a non-member to be questioned.

he advised that potential donors be aware of the following information:

- The chances that a donor would match the bone marrow type of Carrie are extremely slim. But those tested may be placed in a registry that could be accessed by others in need of bone marrow transplants. Patrick emphasized that people should not volunteer for testing if they would consider donating bone marrow only to his daughter.

Once a person's blood is analyzed to determine bone marrow type, a code denoting the person's genetic markers is placed in a donor registry. If a person's code were to match someone other than Carrie, and the patient's family were to be notified, their hopes would be unnecessarily raised if the potential donor refused to donate bone marrow to someone he doesn't know, Patrick said.

If a person is selected as a match and agrees to donate bone marrow, the procedure is as follows: bone marrow is extracted from the donor's hip while he is under anesthesia, and then it is transfused directly into the recipient's circulatory system.

The process takes less than an hour, and generally the donor stays in the hospital for one night's observation and is released. The donated bone marrow, from two to five percent of the body's supply, replaces itself in about two weeks. Side effects of the process are some soreness and stiffness when walking for a week or two after donating bone marrow, but there are no long-term side effects.

- The blood test given to type a person's bone marrow, costs the potential donor $35. "I don't know why they have to pay, but they do," Patrick said.

Bone marrow transplants have been used to fight leukemia and other blood related diseases since 1968, and the Carnahans hope a donor will be found soon for Carrie so she can have the procedure performed at Baylor Medical Center in Dallas.

Carrie has been undergoing a newly developed form of chemotherapy after "losing her last remission" from the disease in late February, Patrick said.

A friend of the Carnahans described the medical expenses incurred by the family as "awesome," and as a result local citizens have responded with numerous fund-raisers. An account in Carrie's name has been established at Coahoma State Bank.

He referred to Bush's refusal a day earlier to establish an emergency fact-finding board and thereby postpone any job actions for 60 days.

But Skinner said: "This dispute has been going on for 17 months. It's time we get it resolved. There was no guarantee that in 60 days we're going to be any better off than we are now."

Moreover, said Skinner, "We can't afford to let a company go bankrupt in the next 60 days. Eastern doesn't have enough cash to operate."

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, noted that 34 members of the Senate urged Bush to establish the emergency board, a procedure that has resolved 26 of 34 previous cases without a work stoppage. "In this case, he's been wrongly advised."

Skinner said, "It appears that Eastern has been flying some flights today, and I think that with 2,200 FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) inspectors all over the country, we can make sure that those airplanes to do go up are safe. There's no question that all the pilots and mechanics all have to be FAA licensed."

Bush threatens veto of Democratic minimum wage increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration is heading toward a confrontation with Senate Democrats over sharply differing plans to raise the $3.35-an-hour minimum wage, with the possibility of the first increase in eight years in the balance.

"$4.25 is it," Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole told Congress on Friday, warning that President Bush would veto any attempt to fatten the hourly increase that the administration would phase in over three years.

Mrs. Dole said the raise to $4.25 must also be coupled with a sub-minimum "training wage" for the first six months employment for all newly hired workers. And she would expand the current exemption from the minimum to all small businesses.

The Bush plan puts the administration at odds with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, and his bill to gradually raise the minimum to $4.65 an hour.

There are slightly fewer than 4 million people working for the minimum wage, according to the Labor Department.

The $3.35 floor has not been raised since 1981. Since then, said Kenedy, inflation has cut the purchasing power of that wage by 40 percent.

The Labor committee will begin considering the minimum next week, and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell says he would like to bring it to a vote by the full Senate by the end of the month.

But Mrs. Dole's veto warning on Friday — what Kennedy termed a "take it or leave it" — set the stage for a battle like the one last year when Kennedy's increase failed because of opposition by the Reagan administration.

Mrs. Dole told the Labor panel that any rise in the minimum wage will cost the nation jobs and that Kennedy's plan would mean 650,000 jobs lost. She said the administration's increase of 30 cents a year for three years would balance lost jobs with higher earning power for low-income workers.

"Any more expensive approach at this time would be unacceptable, because it would decrease job opportunities," she told the committee.

"Legislation outside those parameters would call for a veto," she said.

Kennedy told Mrs. Dole that if a veto threat is part of the administration's proposal "then we're laying right out for a confrontation... I hope we're not getting a take or leave it."

Mrs. Dole answered, "The president has signed up for $4.25 an hour, and not higher."

"$4.25 is it," she said, waving her hand.

Under the "training wage," all workers hired at the minimum could be paid $3.35 an hour for six months before they are covered by the higher standard, whether or not it is their first job. There are no limits such as age on that exemption.

The administration would also expand the tax credit for tips from the current 40 percent to 50 percent. Kennedy, noting cost-of-living increases for government workers, those in the military and others, said "those at the end of the economy ought to get it, too."

The administration proposal was attacked by the business community after the committee hearing.

"A higher minimum wage would deny access to the first rung on America's job ladder or those entering the work force — the very people the increase is meant to help," said Robert L. Martin, director of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's employee relations policy center.

No candidate for council in Coahoma

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Candidates have yet to file for two Coahoma City Council seats up for grabs in the city's May 6 election, City Clerk Holly Best said Friday.

Filing for the city council positions and for mayor began Feb. 20. Two-term mayor Eleanor Garrett is currently unopposed as she begins seeking her third term.

Although no other candidates have filed for mayor, Garrett said she "wouldn't be surprised" if someone else decided to run. The deadline for filing is 5 p.m., March 22.

Garrett said she considers the purchase of new equipment to help with road renovations and expected waterline improvements as a result of a recent federal grant as some of the major accomplishments of her terms as mayor.

"We feel we have improved the place tremendously," she said. Garrett said she wants to stay in office and see the work completed.

Low salaries limit hiring of minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service is having a difficult time recruiting minority group members because it can't keep up with salaries offered elsewhere, the agency's director says.

"If I were a minority getting out of college, I would be heavily recruited by Xerox and IBM and all the major corporations," Secret Service Director John R. Simpson told the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service and General Government on Friday.

And the problem isn't just limited to minority recruitment, he said.

"We're offering $18,000 to incoming agents," Simpson said. "The Los Angeles Police Department is starting in the vicinity of $33,000."

One agent who had been with the Secret Service for three years recently left to take a job with the Suffolk County police force in New York, where he'll earn $55,000 a year, Simpson said.

"You train them for other places," said Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md. "You're the farm team."

The Treasury Department agency which protects the president, the vice president and presidential candidates, among others, will face a crisis when the next presidential campaign rolls around, Simpson said.

"In 1992, when one-third to one-quarter of our law enforcement personnel will be eligible to retire, the potential applicant pool of men and women between the ages of 21 and 30 will be at its lowest point since World War II," Simpson said. "Without the ability to attract and retain their replacements now, the future of our operations is very seriously threatened."

Secret Service uniformed officers, whose jobs don't require college education, begin at $23,000, but their salaries can't eventually increase as much as those of actual agents, who must have college degrees, Simpson said in an interview after the hearing. There are about 1,950 agents and 1,000 uniformed officers in the Secret Service.

Stephen E. Higgins, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, indicated his bureau faces the same situation because of starting salaries of $15,000 to $18,000.

Ms. Mikulski noted: "They start at the same level as a paralegal in the office of attorneys defending the drug dealers."

The National Advisory Commission on Law Enforcement, a panel created at the urging of subcommittee chairman Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., is considering calling for salary increases for the officers, the senator said.

Such a decision would have to be made by Congress, so the budget requests for the agencies for fiscal 1990, the topic of the subcommittee hearing, did not include money for increasing salaries.

The Secret Service request for fiscal 1990 is $368.4 million, an increase of $10.9 million over 1989.

DeConcini noted that in the year after a presidential election, "historically, your budget requests are down."

Asked why the budget request had increased this year, Simpson said some of the campaign protection funds for last year's election had been distributed to the agency in advance of fiscal 1989, and the elimination of non-recurring costs was not enough to offset inflation.

"In order to stay ahead of the bad guys, you have got to have some flexibility in the budget," Simpson said.

Opinion

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Herald opinion

Caution better serves justice

Mitchell County authorities have taken opposite approaches in dealing with two controversial death cases, both of which generated considerable public interest.

The May 13, 1988 fatal shooting of Sammy Gomez by Colorado City police who were attempting to arrest Gomez on an alleged sexual assault charge has raised many questions.

A Mitchell County grand jury, convened only one week after his death to hear evidence in connection with the shooting, did not return indictments against the two officers at the scene of the shooting.

It appears that the investigation into the June 23 death of a Big Spring woman is being handled differently by the Mitchell County sheriff's department.

Sheriff Wendell Bryant has proceeded slowly and cautiously — to a fault, some might say — while conducting an investigation into the suspicious death of Tammy Lynn Gray.

The most disturbing factor in the Gomez case is that the grand jury apparently didn't have all the relevant evidence pertaining to the case they were investigating — particularly the final autopsy report.

The release of that report six months and two days after Gomez died raised new questions; of primary concern is how did Gomez sustain a fatal gunshot wound to the back of the head?

The release of the Gomez autopsy has prompted the FBI and state attorney general's office to investigate Gomez's death.

Colorado City police continue to maintain they did nothing wrong; if that is the case a grand jury armed with all available information could have dispelled allegations and laid to rest the troubling questions now resurfacing.

In contrast, the Mitchell County sheriff's department investigation into Gray's death is unfinished eight months after she was pulled from Lake Colorado City.

Although the final Gray autopsy report was only recently released, sheriff's department investigators are still pursuing leads in an apparent attempt to resolve nagging questions surrounding her death.

It's difficult to imagine which family is going through the greatest stress: A family whose son was shot and the matter swiftly considered by a less-than-informed grand jury, or the relatives of Tammy Gray, who are still awaiting grand jury action.

The length of the investigation is far less important than its thoroughness if justice is to be served. The approach to the Gray investigation seems to promise a greater chance of justice.

The lesson to be learned in this matter, we believe, is that caution must be the watchword of those who investigate such matters and undue speed by any grand jury fails to meet the requirements of our justice system.

Texas has potential for racial polarization

By JESSE TREVINO

Each of the past two weeks has provided an example of the role race can play in politics. First, former Ku Klux Klansman David Duke won a seat in the Louisiana state legislature despite disavowals by other conservative heroes such as Ronald Reagan. Then, the politics of Chicago's Democratic mayoral primary degenerated into racial gridlock as 94 percent of blacks voted for the black candidate and 91 percent of whites supported the white candidate.

Racial friction in Chicago is nothing new. Neither is the sort of racial polarization that results when different ethnic groups vote for "their candidate" en masse.

The Duke campaign, however, was a new phenomenon in American politics: In a contest among an overwhelmingly white electorate, the cutting issue was still race. That is, whites were separated by the issue of race even though the campaign involved no black candidate and no black constituency.

Both elections have aspects that could be operational in Texas. Parts of Texas have a racial history similar to that of Louisiana, and demographic shifts in the last 20 years have had similar effects in Texas and Chicago: in both places, white majorities are being whittled away and the future holds the prospect of a majority that is composed of minorities.

Given these similarities, one is forced to wonder whether race will rise to the surface in Texas as it has in Louisiana and Chicago.

Of course, Texas has had its share of problems since before the Civil War. But over the years, the eruptions have been sporadic: South Texas in the late 60's, Houston in the 70's, and most recently, Dallas, where increasingly bitter race relations have begun spilling out into the open at city council and county commissioner's court meetings.

These overt incidents, like the Chicago primary, are bad enough. But they tend to result from tangible racial conflicts such as black vs. white candidates or the notorious brutality of the Dallas Police Department. Perhaps even more frightening, however, is the emergence of race as a political force in the absence of actual racial conflict.

Such a force can be whipped into a fury for no reason, as in the election of David Duke, or it can be quietly hidden, and called by another name. Some have suggested, for example, that the phenomenal growth of the Texas Republican party is not due to the popularization of conservatism — long the most popular political persuasion of the state — so much as to a reaction against demands for greater minority participation in the Democratic party.

Race has emerged as a political force independent of tangible ethnic conflict because of a popular misperception that has become ingrained in the American political consciousness: Americans, especially white Americans, tend to believe that years of race-conscious government and political decision-making have given minorities special consideration and undeserved advantages at the expense of whites.

Regardless of whether such consideration was unduly bestowed on minorities, the result of this misperception has been the recasting of what should be non-ethnic battles in racial terms. Thus, it can be embarrassingly easy for a cheap politician to use illegal immigration as a powerful political issue that, while not racist in itself, appeals to a certain racial defensiveness within many Americans.

The issue of law and order, used so effectively by George Bush in his trouncing of Michael Dukakis, is another example. The Bush law and order ads featured a black man who, as the caller on one talk show said, "You could tell was a criminal by looking at him." Again, perhaps not overtly racist, but if not racist, then what?

Similarly, the issue of public school finance reform in Texas can be demagogued easily by claiming that local school boards would lose control of their schools and that any reform would take money away from wealthier school districts and redistribute it to poor, rural, or inner city (read minority) districts.

Does equal educational opportunity for all Texans constitute an unfair advantage for minorities? Of course not. Yet, this has become an issue of race and ethnicity in the minds of too many Texans.

Concrete disputes can be settled. That is what compromise is all about. The conflicts that exist within people's minds, however, are much more difficult, if not impossible, to deal with. As more minorities take their place in the mainstream of America, these successes are often perceived as the result of still more special advantages.

One wonders if the most intractable racial battles are still to come.

Rushdie's situation similar to Luther's

By MARC SCHWARZ

Once a relatively unknown European authored a series of texts dealing with what he perceived to be discrepancies in the teachings of his religion. As a result, the spiritual leader of the man's faith declared him an outlaw and put a bounty on his head. The charge was heresy, and the punishment was death.

The hunted man was Martin Luther, the father of the Protestant Reformation of the 16th century, and the time was some 468 years ago, in 1521. Luther had nailed his 95 Theses to the church door in Wittenburg only a few years earlier, and by this time, the Reformation was sweeping across Northern Europe. And every convert to Lutheranism dealt yet another blow to the weakening power and prestige of the Roman Catholic Church. Small wonder Luther was at the top of the pontiff's hit list.

Perhaps history does repeat itself, or maybe human nature just hasn't really changed in the last four and a half centuries: In any case, British author Salman Rushdie currently finds himself in a predicament uncomfortably similar to Luther's. It seems that Rushdie's latest novel, The Satanic Verses, contains passages many Muslims worldwide find insulting to their faith. So insulting, in fact, that Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini has ordered Rushdie's death, and added as an incentive the promise of heaven and a five million dollar reward for the assassin.

Even worse, several American booksellers quickly pulled The Satanic Verses from their shelves, fearing terrorist reprisals if they refused. Demonstrating Muslim mobs have staged protests in front of various bookstores, going so far as to burn copies of the book while chanting death threats against Rushdie, his publisher, and virtually anyone else who might have in some way defiled their religion.

It has gone far enough. No longer is Rushdie the only one threatened; the actions of the Ayatollah and his supporters threaten the very essence of our own democratic heritage the right to freedom of speech and press. The protesters are not only telling Rushdie what he can or cannot write, they are trying to censor what we can or cannot read.

It's really not a question of whether Rushdie's book insults Islam; it might very well do so. But the central issue is the freedom to write or read such a work without fear of death. Our nation's founders regarded that right with such paramount importance that they made it the First Amendment to our Constitution. If Muslims don't like Rushdie's novel, that's fine — they don't have to buy it. But they shouldn't try to restrict my right to read it.

The bookstores, in refusing to sell the books, even to protect their employees, have in effect consented to the Ayatollah's wishes.

Guest column

and are unwillingly participating in the subjugation of our First Amendment rights. B. Dalton and its subsidiary, Barnes and Noble, recently reversed their original decision to pull the novel, and are now restocking their shelves. Hopefully other firms, especially Waldenbooks, will follow suit.

If we attempt, even this one time, to give security priority over freedom, the end result can only be a further limiting of our liberties. No matter how frightful the spectre of terrorism may appear, no matter how long the Ayatollah's reach may seem, no matter how many threats we are accosted with, we can never, never surrender to our fears, especially when to do so requires the wholesale sacrifice of what we consider to be inalienable rights.

Salman Rushdie may have insulted Islam, but many of Islam's followers insulted our nation when they totally and purposely rejected one of our most basic and sacred tenets — the First Amendment. The violent picketing of bookstores, the bomb threats, the book burnings — all of these run directly contrary to American beliefs. The Ayatollah, after oppressing his own people for a decade, has apparently decided to do the same with peoples around the globe. Should we let him, especially when concerned with freedom of speech, we stand to eventually lose everything we've gained in over two hundred years of democracy. If we play his game his way, we can only end up the losers.

The United States, Canada, and our European allies must put a stop to this hijacking of the freedom of speech. Let Iran threaten with terrorist attacks and the like, and then inform the Ayatollah in a not-too-subtle way that should anything of the sort actually occur, NATO will respond with quick, devastating military action directed at Iran itself. The important thing is to show that we are not, and will not be, intimidated by any nation or religion.

Winston Churchill once said, "Never give in, never give in, never, never, never, never give in. In anything great or small, large or petty, never give in except to convictions of honor and good sense." Acquiescing to the Ayatollah's demands isn't honorable. And it certainly doesn't make sense.

Gun advocate speaks out

To the editor:

Come on, guys, how about a few words from the other side?

We all know the Herald is about anti-gun as one can get. In the past couple of weeks I've counted no fewer than 69 column inches of anti-gun diatribe by way of columns and editorials, but not one column inch representing the opposite view. I've seen not one well-thought-out idea, but I've read a lot of emotional outbursts.

They blame the school-yard killings in California on a particular gun. No one has blamed the idiot who pulled the trigger. No one says anything about Purdy's previous criminal record and how California allowed him to plea-bargain seven felony charges away to misdemeanors and thus stay on the streets. California allowed him to purchase five handguns despite his history of arrests and mental history — all this in addition to the state's 15-day waiting period.

There's no way anyone can convince me adding more laws to already existing ones is going to make any difference to the criminal element. It will, however, certainly keep guns from law-abiding sportsmen and pleasure shooters. Drugs are illegal, but drugs still come into the country. Making guns illegal will only create a lucrative black-market trade for those who could afford them.

Why don't we simply enforce what we already have? Perhaps our courts should allow a person to plea-bargain a felony charge to a misdemeanor only once in a five-year period. If this had been the case, Purdy would have been roaming a jail cell instead of a school yard. We need to get on with building more jails and prisons to keep criminals behind bars, not roaming the streets on early outs and furloughs.

In addition to the above, we could also call upon the new Justice Department to stop the practice of coddling criminals by refusing to enforce the Firearms Owners Protection Act. The act gave the feds the tool to take away drug traffickers carrying firearms off the streets with a mandatory five to 20-year prison sentence with no parole. Also, a section of the Omnibus Drug Bill passed by Congress last summer directs the Attorney General to develop a system for screening felons attempting to purchase firearms without forcing law-abiding citizens to wait or register firearms should be pursued.

We have the tools at hand to do something about the tragic killing with firearms. We as a people need to demand that courts begin to enforce what is already there.

Now, do you dare print an opposite view?

Goetz may appeal parole denial

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state Board of Parole says Bernhard Goetz must serve the full one-year prison sentence he got for illegally carrying the gun he used to shoot four teenagers on a New York City subway in 1984.

Releasing Goetz after just two months in jail "would deprecate the seriousness of the crime and undermine respect for the law," the board said Friday.

Monday was the earliest Goetz could have been released.

Edward Elwin, executive director of the parole board, said the decision meant Goetz would have to serve his full one-year sentence, minus any time off for good behavior, unless he can persuade a court to overturn the board's ruling.

Goetz, 41, was convicted on the gun charge, but acquitted of attempted murder, assault and reckless endangerment charges. The case drew international attention.

Goetz's attorney, Mark Baker, said he might try to have the decision overturned and called the board's decision outrageous.

Goetz began serving his sentence Jan. 13 after appeals in the state courts failed. On Monday, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to reverse the conviction.

INS loses citizenship papers

MIAMI (AP) — An Immigration and Naturalization Service official described as irresponsible an audit that claimed thousands of citizenship certificates — worth as much as $155 million on the black market — were lost from the Miami office.

Justice Department spokesman David Runkel said the government's audit was conducted at the request of Attorney General Dick Thornburgh. Runkel would not comment on specific findings of the report, adding that it won't be made public until INS has had an opportunity to review and comment on it.

The audit claimed 23,000 citizenship certificates, which are as good as a passport, had been misplaced.

About 14,000 of the supposedly missing documents belonged to new citizens sworn in by then-Chief Justice Warren Burger in a widely publicized July 1986 ceremony at the Orange Bowl, said Rivkind.

All but 1,200 of the certificates were discovered in one computer bank, and the rest were expected to be located after a check of a second, Rivkind said.

The audit said INS couldn't account for them more than a year after investigators discovered them missing, and the agency took no steps to prevent further losses.

Duke calls Jackson 'racist'

CHICAGO (AP) — David Duke, the former Ku Klux Klansman recently elected to the Louisiana General Assembly, called Jesse Jackson a "racist" Saturday and said affirmative action and minority set-aside programs should be abolished.

"I think the racists in this city are people like Jesse Jackson," Duke said at a news conference after addressing the national convention of the right-wing Populist Party of America.

Following the news conference, Duke posed with American Nazi Party vice chairman Art Jones, who shouted anti-Semitic and racial slurs at reporters and got into a shoving match with a television reporter who asked Duke about his connection to Jones.

The three-day convention that began Friday at a downtown hotel was attended by about 200 people, some of whom identified themselves as Ku Klux Klansmen and neo-Nazis.

"I think Jesse Jackson needs to back off his racist politics throughout the city," Duke told reporters. He called affirmative action, minority set-aside programs and integration of schools "racially discriminatory."

Set-aside programs ensure that a certain percentage of federal, state and local government contractors are minorities.

Jackson, reached at O'Hare International Airport where he was showing support for striking Eastern Airlines workers, declined comment on Duke's statements, except to say, "I don't think it's an American point of view."

"I am a Republican. I will remain a Republican despite whatever Mr. (Lee) Atwater wants to do," Duke said.

Atwater, chairman of the Republican Party, denounced Duke following his election victory.

PURLEY, Eng. — Wreckage lies on the railway line after two trains collided on the southern outskirts of London. One train crashed into the rear of another, sending several carriages down an embankment into the gardens of homes along the rail line.

British trains crash; five dead, 80 injured

LONDON (AP) — A passenger train struck the back of another train outside London on Saturday, sending rail cars careening into the yards of nearby homes and killing at least five people, police said. At least 80 people were hurt.

Earlier death tolls in the capital's second major rail accident in less than three months ran as high as 12 but could not be confirmed.

Scotland Yard put the confirmed death toll at five dead and 80 injured. Earlier it had said six died. It did not explain the change.

Firefighters had to cut dozens of passengers from the wreckage of the trains, and authorities said some were trapped for hours after the 1:39 p.m. collision near the Purley station in Surrey.

Both trains originated in southeast England cities and were traveling north to London.

A British Rail spokesman said it appeared a train that originated in Horsham, West Sussex, was crossing from the local line to a main track when it ran into the back of a train that originated in Littlehampton.

Littlehampton is about 50 miles south of London and Horsham is about 30 miles south of the city.

The spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it was not known why both trains were on the northbound track at the same time.

The trains collided a few hundred yards outside the station on London's southern outskirts, sending several cars hurtling down an embankment into the yards of homes, witnesses said. It was not known if anyone was hurt in the houses.

Several rail cars came to a precarious rest on the steep slope, and residents were advised to leave their homes until the wreckage could be cleared.

Witnesses heard a deafening bang followed by silence, then shouts and screams as passersby and residents rushed to the rescue. Firefighters arrived and cut victims from the wreckage.

A three-train crash at London's busy Clapham Junction on Dec. 12 killed 35 people, and the latest disaster brought immediate accusations by the opposition Labor Party that neglect of the state-owned rail system was to blame.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was "very distressed" and following developments, her office said. Queen Elizabeth II was said to be shocked.

Soldiers stop Israeli peace march

ATAROT, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Soldiers on Saturday blocked roads and turned back hundreds of Israeli peace activists hoping to meet and discuss peace with Palestinians in the occupied West Bank.

In the occupied Gaza Strip, the army restricted access for reporters while British Foreign Office Minister William Waldegrave toured the Jabaliya refugee camp. At least two Palestinians were reported shot and wounded in violent protests that broke out after the visits.

Angry activists of the Peace Now movement accused Defense

Minister Yitzhak Rabin of thwarting the meetings with Palestinians in Arab towns.

"We weren't planning assemblies or marches or protests — just meetings," said Peace Now spokesman Tsali Reshef.

One of the activists, Yochanan Spruch of Jerusalem, called the government "plain stupid."

Reshef called a Defense Ministry spokesman and demanded an explanation for closing the roads. He quoted ministry spokesman Eitan Haber as saying Peace Now did not receive permission for the visit.

Madonna video protested in Italy

ROME (AP) — The distributors of rock star Madonna's new single, "Like a Prayer," decided not to release the video immediately on Italian television because of protests from a Roman Catholic group, news reports said Saturday.

The conservative Catholic group Famiglia Domani charged the video was blasphemous, and it threatened to go to court to block the broadcast, newspapers said.

The video was to be shown Tuesday on the popular program "Notte Rock" (Rock Night) on state-run RAI television.

Officials of Madonna's Italian record company, WEA, announced after a meeting with RAI officials Friday they had decided "to suspend the television distribution of this video for some days, to keep any more controversy from arising."

Representatives of Famiglia Domani acknowledged they had not seen the video, first shown in Italy on Friday at press screenings.

According to Italian journalists who saw the video, it shows the following:

The singer witnesses an attack on a girl by a group of white boys, who then escape. A black man who arrives on the scene is accused of the assault.

Madonna, wearing a slip, seeks refuge in a Baptist church and pauses before a statue of a black saint, whose face becomes that of the accused man. The statue cries tears of blood and comes to life.

The rock singer develops cuts in her hands resembling the wounds of the crucified body of Jesus.

Madonna gives the statue a kiss then goes to police and tells them the accused man is not guilty.

Fire threatens Brazilian forest

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — More than 150 firefighters and volunteers Saturday battled a forest fire in the Monte Pascoal National Park, the last great wildlife reserve of Brazil's Atlantic coastal forest and home to about 1,000 Indians.

Firefighters have been unable to contain the blaze, which entered the park Friday, fire chief Solange Borges of the Brazilian Forestry Institute said.

Borges said the fire had already destroyed more than 62 acres of the park, which is 900 miles northeast of Rio de Janeiro. He spoke by telephone from the city of Salvador, 1,055 miles northeast of Rio.

The park is the last untouched sanctuary for rare wildlife and vegetation on the Brazilian coast and is home to 1,000 Pataxo Indians who live on a reserve in it.

"The situation gets more critical by the minute," said Borges. "We're on the brink of a real emergency."

The fire began 28 days ago as a series of brush fires throughout the northeastern state of Bahia. It has destroyed more than half Brazil's Atlantic Forest, sweeping south through more than 80,000 acres of virgin wilderness.

The cause of the fire was not known. But Borges said Indians often set fire to their land at the edge of the forest this time of year to renew pastures.

LUBBOCK — Adam and Martha Moreno lead other blind workshop employees at the Southwest Lighthouse for the Blind on a picket line last August. The strike in protest of subminimum wages has prompted a U.S. Labor Department hearing that could lead to better pay for the workers.

Workshop for blind facing probe

LUBBOCK (AP) — The Southwest Lighthouse for the Blind was founded to provide employment and rehabilitation for the visually impaired.

But in the past seven months, blind workers have gone on strike over wages and working conditions, one Lighthouse workshop was closed and 13 employees laid off. Now the workshop is being asked to prove the $2.05 an hour it pays most blind employees doesn't violate the Fair Labor Standards Act.

"I think they're trying to have more of a factory out there than to do something for the blind," says David Rocco, a former Lighthouse worker who led the workers' strike in August and was laid off in January.

The wage dispute began in August when 14 blind workers, wearing signs reading "Lighthouse wages are from the Dark Ages" while carrying their white canes, walked off their jobs to protest the $2.05 hourly wage and their $65-a-month health insurance fee.

The strikers demanded the same $3.35 minimum wage that Lighthouse pays sighted workers doing the same job.

The workers returned to their jobs two weeks later after union cards were distributed. The National Labor Relations Board has since ordered a union election, and negotiations have begun between Lighthouse and the Teamsters.

The U.S. Labor Department is investigating the workshop's wages, and Lighthouse officials are scheduled to appear next month before an administrative law judge to defend the separate wage scales for blind and sighted employees.

"Blind people have been exploited in workshops since workshops came into being." — James Gashel, director of governmental affairs for the National Federation of the Blind in Baltimore.

A non-profit organization started in a Lubbock garage in 1955, the Lighthouse now employs 55 workers - about 40 of whom are blind - and five staff members, said director Bob Crane.

Those figures are disputed by Rocco and Lighthouse worker Joe Morales, who said only 25 blind workers are employed there. "There are more sighted people there than blind," said Morales, who was laid off in January but later rehired.

The facility is under contract to the federal government to produce military items such as helmet chin straps and pads.

"We're a rehabilitative facility," said Crane. "We like to take people, train them and place them in the private sector."

He said, however, that most people who come to work at the Lighthouse remain there because they aren't capable of working elsewhere.

Crane acknowledged that the organization, which is supported by the its government contracts and donations, is suffering financially. He declined to comment further on the subject.

Federation of the Blind in Baltimore.

Part of the issue stems from a clause of the Fair Labor Standards Act which allows sheltered workshops to pay subminimum wages.

The provision states that a subminimum wage must be paid according to how much the worker produces compared to an experienced, non-impaired worker in the same job.

The Lighthouse employees are the first to take action under a 1986 addition to the law that allows them to question their wages. The National Federation of the Blind is seeking to have the subminimum wage provision changed.

"What they think is that if you're blind you can't really be expected to do anything much," he said.

Panhandle girl's steer wins at Houston show

HOUSTON (AP) — A Ropesville teen-ager's 1,276-pound Shorthorn steer beat out 29 other top steers to capture the Grand Champion of Show at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

The brown and white steer named Viper and owned by 16-year-old Davon Taylor, was selected in front of a sellout crowd Friday night that also came to see the rock group Chicago. Viper was deemed the best of 1,196 steers in the show's competition.

Davon, the daughter of a cotton farmer, struggled to hold the halter of her animal when Judge Gary Minish slapped its rump in the Astrodome. Her brother, Darrell, 19, however, came to Davon's rescue when the steer almost broke away from a crush of reporters.

Sobbing, the teen-ager said she planned to use the money from Saturday's auction of Viper to pay bills, go to college, and maybe go shopping.

Last year's grand champion steer sold for $85,000.

The reserve grand champion steer — Blackjack, a 1,222-pound animal of the Limousin breed — was shown by Ryan Jeffery of Roby. Meanwhile in the Astrohall, I.W. and Diane Marks teamed with Jim and Vickie Clepper to pay $45,000 for the grand champion pen of five broilers — 22 pounds of chicken.

The price exceeds last year's $38,000 for the champion chickens, but falls short of the record $62,000 paid here in 1985.

Beauty shop bandits get jail terms

HOUSTON (AP) — Melchor Longoria Ortega Jr., 42, and his wife, Helen Marjean Smith-Ortega, 37, known in police circles as Houston's "beauty shop bandits," won't be going to trial later this spring after all.

In a plea bargain agreement on Friday, Ortega agreed to accept a life sentence, but only after prosecutors agreed to a 35-year sentence for his wife.

The two pleaded guilty before state District Judge Jay W. Burnett. The sentence means Ortega will be behind bars until at least 2003, but his wife could be released within five years.

"I suppose it's love," defense attorney Tom Steinmeyer said, calling the sentence for Ortega's wife "a heck of a deal."

The couple was arrested after a string of robberies committed shortly after their releases from prison. The couple said in statements to police that they were supporting heroin addictions.

Between mid-May and June 13 of last year, a pair of bandits robbed at least 20 Houston beauty shops, wig stores and gift shops. Prosecutor Alvin Nunery said the bandits amassed at least $50,000 worth of loot from the businesses and patrons.

In some instances, the bandits didn't stop at stealing jewelry, Rolex watches and whatever money was in the cash register.

DALLAS — Rosemary Lloyd, 32, a U.S. Postal Service letter carrier delivers mail in Dallas during a winter storm which hit early Saturday morning. Accumulations of 1/2 to one inch were reported by the National Weather Service. More snow is expected tonight and a winter weather advisory is in effect for most of North and East Texas. Temperatures are in the 20s.

NAACP alleges racial bias

AUSTIN (AP) — The NAACP asked federal officials to withhold $935 million for Texas highway projects because of alleged discrimination against women and minorities in the state highway department.

"Our concerns cover the full gamut of discrimination — from failure to hire to the failure to promote to the discriminatory working conditions," said Gary Bledsoe, president of the Austin chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In a letter to the Federal Highway Administration, Bledsoe said, "We are asking that you investigate this matter and withhold federal funding pending your inquiry," the Austin American-Statesman reported.

Leslie Clark, the state Highway Department personnel chief, said the department does not discriminate.

John Conrado, Federal Highway Administration division administrator in Austin, said it is unlikely the U.S. government would withhold funds pending an investigation.

Chefs spice up menu at skid row kitchen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michele Knight slopped a jumbo can of cream of mushroom soup into a pot and stirred — a sight you'd never see at her Verdi restaurant, where a meal can cost an easy $40 and strains of Puccini accompany the pasta.

Robert Miller, a recovering alcoholic and drug abuser, biceps bulging from his T-shirt, looked on along with Nancy Silverton, a former pastry chef at star-studded Spago and Michael's in Los Angeles and Maxwell's Plum in New York.

Ms. Silverton resumed her demonstration of how to section an orange.

"They taste so much less bitter if you cut them away from the membranes," said Ms. Silverton, author of "Desserts" and about to open her own restaurant.

"Sage! Black pepper!" said Tevis Runyan, the executive chef at Duc Duc Mousse Catering. "We sure won't need any salt."

The slightly surrealistic scene played out last week at the Union Rescue Mission, where some of the city's top chefs showed soup-kitchen cooks like Miller how to ladle out tastier and healthier fare to the 2,400 homeless people who crowd in daily for free meals.

Miller, a former Army and short-order cook who is halfway through an eight-month drug and alcohol recovery program, watched Ruth Hedges sium a head of lettuce down, pop out the core, slice away brownish leaves and hold the remainder up for inspection.

"If you went to today's expensive restaurants, you'd only get the inside third of that — just the heart," she said.

No one's proposing serving haute cuisine on Skid Row, said Ms. Hedges, who runs a company that provides food to tony private schools and theaters and whose Women's Culinary Alliance organized the monthly teaching sessions.

It's more a matter of souping up whatever is on hand — like turkey tetrazzini for 900, which incorporated two cases of cream of mushroom soup, 100 pounds of pasta and a couple of cases of frozen peas.

At the classes, held during regular meal preparation hours in the mission kitchen, the master chefs and the mission cooks face off across a table to prepare food together. It is then served to the transients who stream in off Main Street and hunker at the rough wooden tables.

Most of the lessons are simple: Don't over-saute, season food before popping it in the oven, don't cook the taste and vitamins out, said Ms. Runyan, the caterer.

At the first session last month, for example, chefs from the vogue City Restaurant and Angeli explained how to use up leftovers by making vegetable frittatas — Italian-style omelettes.

"You can use up all your old produce — just throw it in the egg mixture and bake it. Plus it's simple to do," Ms. Runyan said.

"The really important thing is that it is going to be nutritionally balanced," said Ms. Hedges. "Those people out there have a lot greater nutritional needs than you or me. The meal they get here may be their only one of the day."

Members of the Women's Culinary Alliance, a "networking" food-industry group, at first merely gathered leftovers to donate to the mission, said Ms. Hedges.

"But then I came down here one day and I saw the kitchen, and I realized that this was where we could really focus — on education," she said.

It looks as though the mission will get a whole new kitchen for free, along with the cooking tips.

Shel Brucker, president of Avery Services Corp., which designs and plans restaurants, unveiled the plans, and said he was confident his suppliers would contribute materials so the restoration could be complete by year's end.

Miller, the former Army cook, said he welcomed the chefs' advice.

"It's more than just thrown together now," he said. "There's more of a menu, and the food is seasoned properly."

Extended Coverage by Danny Weir

Most people insure their homes, their cars, their jewelry. Important assets? Yes. But the most important asset — personal earning power — often goes unprotected. Disability income insurance is the answer.

On the job coverage offers some help, though that's usually limited. Social Security disability benefits are meager and very hard to get; disability must be total and terminal or long term crippling.

Two musts when you shop for disability insurance: the policy should be noncancelable, and guaranteed renewable. That means as long as you pay the premiums, you can't be dropped.

Other variables can be tailored to your needs. Waiting periods before benefits start are usually 30, 60 or 90 days; some policies pay extra until Social Security disability starts.

Most insurers will pay you between 50 to 70 percent of your gross income (it's tax free if you pay the premiums). Opt for payments until you're 65, not just a few years; lifetime benefits are available.

Different policies have different definitions of covered disability. Some will pay partial benefits if you can work part time. Look into cost-of-living adjustments and even standard of living adjustments.

Pork rinds are part of 'no waste' tradition

NAHUNTA, N.C. (AP) — Even in good times it's hard for Southerners to trash anything that comes from a hog, hence the presidential snack, pork rinds.

"You don't throw nothing away," said Larry Pierce, manager of the Nahunta Pork Center. "You use everything from a hog but the squeal."

"It's the finest food substance available on the planet," said state Sen. Wendell Murphy, a Duplin County hog farmer and one of the largest pork producers in the nation.

Hogs provide hams, pork chops, bacon and sausage. Their feet are pickled, the intestines are used as casings for sausage, the tails are used for seasoning and the hide ends up in fancy driving gloves, Hush Puppy shoes and President George Bush's favorite muncie.

Pierce, who produces pork rinds, thinks it's great that Bush prefers them with Tabasco sauce. But if the president wants some of Nahunta's home-style skins, he'll have to come to this crossroads 50 miles southeast of Raleigh to get them.

"It will probably be good for the pork industry, but there's not much way for it to help our business," said Pierce, whose father founded the company 24 years ago. "We process 100 skins a week and can't meet the demand from our customers as it is."

The pork company, which makes up most of Nahunta, started as a slaughterhouse in 1955 and added retail pork sales in 1975. It does not distribute its products, but more than 3,000 people a week come by to pick out fresh pork and cured hams. They also grab up 99-cent bags of Pierce's salted and deep-fried pork skins.

"We process about 500 hogs a week," Pierce said, "but we're real particular about the skins we use. If they aren't quite up to snuff, we won't use them. That's why we only turn about 100 skins a week into pork rinds."

A special machine slices the skin off of pork pieces. The skin pieces are cooked for four hours in vats to dry out the fat. Then the hard, shriveled skins are deep fried.

The pieces of skin swell and pop, turning into puffy slabs of rind in minutes.

"This is our scientific measuring process," Pierce said as he dipped a handful of salt from a bucket and spread it over the fried rinds.

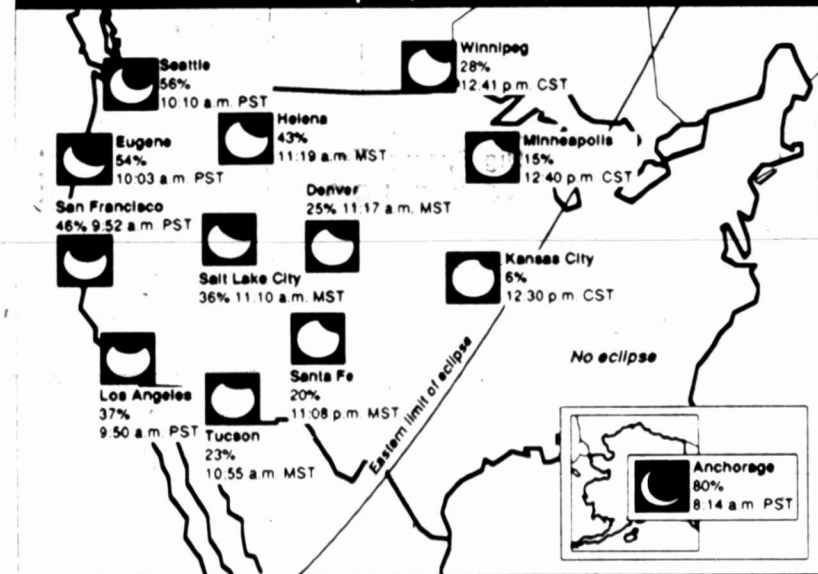

"Ones that come out like this, we throw away," he said, plucking a dark, hard chunk from among the beige sheets of fried skin. "And we've got two grades of rinds."

"The ones that come out really nice and thin are No. Ones," he said. "Your thicker skins that come out a little tougher are No. Twos."

A bag of No. Ones, which weighs a little more than 3 ounces, and a 12-ounce bag of No. Twos go for the same price — 99 cents.

"We actually sell more of the No. Twos," Pierce said. "People seem to like to gnaw on them a little bit."

Mac on way back with WCT victory

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS — John McEnroe shook off the fatigue of a four-set match 12 hours earlier to earn a record fifth WCT Finals title on Saturday with a methodical 6-3, 6-3, 7-6 victory over fellow American Brad Gilbert.

The sixth-ranked McEnroe ran his all-time WCT Finals bankroll to $925,000 with the $200,000 he won against the 16th-ranked Gilbert, who settled for $100,000.

McEnroe has a 11-1 lifetime record against Gilbert, whose only victory over McEnroe was in the 1985 Nabisco Masters first round.

McEnroe took six months off the tour after the loss to Gilbert, saying "I'm not going to play tennis if I lose to jerks like that."

McEnroe had defeated Ivan Lendl in a four-hour semifinal match ending just before midnight on Friday. He took the fight to the well-rested Gilbert in the first set, breaking his service in the sixth game with an overhead smash.

Gilbert had arrived in his third WCT Finals championship match with a four-set victory on Thursday night over Sweden's Mikael Pernfors.

Gilbert was competitive only in the third set which McEnroe won on a 7-3 tiebreaker when his opponent double-faulted on match point.

Ranger downs Howard

WACO — The Howard College Hawks learned the truth of the adage that close isn't good enough when they fell to Ranger Junior College, 90-89, in the semifinals of the Region V basketball tournament here Friday.

Terrence Lewis led the Hawks with 30 points — including 21 on three-point shots. Larry Pettigrew and Michael New, playing their final games for Howard, added 19 and 15 points, respectively.

Ranger was led by Reginald Davis with 31 points and Ken Austin with 18.

The Hawks concluded their season with a 20-13 record. Ranger, which advanced to meet Odessa College in the tournament final Saturday night, improved their record to 16-15 with the win.

Howard had defeated Ranger twice this season, but the third time definitely was the charm for the Rangers, who led 41-37 at halftime.

"We had a few turnovers that put us in a little bit of trouble," HC coach Steve Green said. "We got ahead with about seven minutes left, but that was very brief."

Green had praise for Lewis' performance in the loss.

"Terrence shot the ball extremely well," he said. "Larry had a tremendous game the night before (37 points Thursday against Weatherford) and was a little bit off (Friday)."

"We ended up in the semifinals of the regional tournament; we kind of came from nowhere," Green said of the Hawks' season. "I'm proud of what we accomplished. We've got intact a solid foundation for hopefully years to come."

In Friday's other game, Odessa College broke open a tight game in the second half to down the Midland College Chapparals, 97-87.

The Wranglers were led by All-American Larry Johnson, who scored 39 points and grabbed 23 rebounds before fouling out with about 90 left in the game. Charles McCovey scored 35 points for the Chapparals.

HOWARD (89) — Keith Gillespie 0 1-1; Vincent McCants 4 0-8; Bryant Smith 1 0-1; Larry Pettigrew 5 7-19; Terrence Lewis 11 1-30; Frank Henderson 1 0-2; Michael New 4 3-15; Willie McCaster 1 0-3; Charles Moore 4 2-10; totals 33 14-24 89.

RANGER (90) — Mike McDougal 0 1-2; Darryl Gould 0 4-5; Reginald Davis 11 3-31; Ronald Marshall 2 2-6; Ken Austin 6 2-15; Sedrick Daniels 2 9-13; James Bell 4 1-19; Chris Walker 4 0-8; totals 29 23-59.

Halftime score — Ranger 41, Howard 37; 3-point goals — Lewis 7, Pettigrew 2, Davis 6, Austin 3; Fouls — Howard 24, Ranger 17; Fouled out — Moore, Robinson; Technicals — McDougal.

School rejects change

By JOE BIGHAM
Associated Press Writer

FRESNO, Calif. — They named the junior high school in the San Joaquin Valley farming community of Lindsay after Steve Garvey a dozen years ago because he was considered a good example for young, impressionable minds.

But last week, two women claimed they were impregnated by Garvey who married a third woman earlier this month. The former star first baseman of the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Diego Padres said if the children can be proved to be his, he will pay for their support.

Despite that revelation, officials at Lindsay Unified School District are not yet reconsidering the name on their junior high.

"He's really been a wonderful model for our kids, and I think a lot of good has come out of this relationship with Steve Garvey for our young people," Superintendent Bob Mohr said in a telephone interview Friday. "With that in mind, we're not about to disassociate ourselves from Steve at this time."

"We've hung in with Steve, and it's been good for us, up to this point."

Mohr, who has been with the district eight years, probably wouldn't have approved the 1977 move to change Lincoln Junior High to Steve Garvey Junior High. It was aimed at getting kids to relate to a live hero.

"I think I probably speak for the present board of education; it's probably questionable in our minds to ever name an institution after somebody that's living," Mohr said. "I was rather skeptical about this thing when I came."

But he applauded Garvey for visiting the school each year, talking to the 350 students and dancing with every girl at a school dance, even though he never lived in Lindsay nor attended school there.

"If you were to go out and pick any person, up to this time, I don't think you could have picked any finer person than Steve," Mohr said. "He has taken the obligation that goes with being the namesake of an institution very, very seriously."

Garvey, in an interview while mired in a batting slump during the 1978 World Series, said the renaming of the school put him under some pressure.

"The World Series is not pressure," said Garvey, who wound up hitting .208 as the Dodgers lost to the New York Yankees in six games. "Having a school named after you ... that's pressure."

Farwell downs Haskell in region final

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The Farwell Steers may have been out-matched on paper against the Haskell Indians, but the Steers were quicker and, in the end, that was enough to carry them to the Region I-2A basketball title.

The smaller-and-outmanned Steers used their quickness to build a 17-point lead midway through the third quarter, then hung on to take a 63-58 win in the championship game of the regional tournament at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Saturday.

With the win, Farwell, now 30-6 for the season, qualifies for its first-ever trip to the state basketball tournament, to be held Thursday through Saturday in Austin.

All-tournament selections Michael Day and Jeff Actkinson led the Steers with 15 and 14 points, respectively. Monty Delgado added 13 points and Shawn Stewart 12 for the regional champs.

The Indians, led by James Rike with 13 points and Dusty Meeks and Chan Guess with 12 each, ended their season with a 28-5 record.

After the game, Farwell coach Larry Gregory credited his team's quickness with the victory.

Dusty Meeks (22), of Haskell, drives to the basket as Jeff Actkinson (42) and another member of the Farwell Steers defend during second-half action from the Region I-2A boys' basketball championship game Saturday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"We felt like we had to use our quickness and the press to win," Gregory said. "The last thing we wanted to do was get into a half-court game with them. We played a very good first half. The kids showed a lot of poise."

The Steers scored three consecutive baskets — two by Greg Actkinson — to start the game, and built their lead to 11-4 when Jeff Actkinson converted a three-point play with 5:10 left in the first quarter.

Haskell cut the lead to five on a Derrick Billington jumper a minute later, but Farwell responded with a 9-2 run to take a 22-10 lead at the end of the first quarter, and maintained that 12-point cushion through the second quarter to lead, 35-23, at halftime.

The major reason for Farwell's surprising lead at the half was the Steers' superior shooting. Farwell hit 52 percent of its field-goal attempts in the first half, while Haskell connected on just 10 of 31 (32 percent) from the field.

Farwell increased its lead to 44-27 on a Day jumper with 5:00 left in the third quarter before the Indians mounted their comeback.

Meeks canned a short jumper and Guess hit a three-pointer to bring Haskell to within 12 with 3:26 left in the quarter. Reserve guard Paul Harvey then hit or consecutive layups and Rike nailed

Nazareth, Levelland continue basketball dominance

Nazareth 51, LaPoynor 33

AUSTIN (AP) — Behind Darla Leavitt's 24 points and eight rebounds, the Nazareth Swiftettes captured their 10th title in 12 years, whipping LaPoynor 51-33 in the Class A final Saturday of the 39th Girls' State Basketball Tournament.

The Swiftettes finish 33-2 on the year and have won 29 straight. Nazareth won six consecutive championships from 1977-82 and beat this same LaPoynor squad 64-28 in last year's finals.

"Every one of them feels good," said Nazareth Coach Sandy Heiman. "A lot of people think we take it for granted, but we don't. Each one is special."

With LaPoynor, 34-3, surrounding Leavitt in the lane in the first quarter, Nazareth had to rely on outside shooting, and Stephanie Brockman and Shana Birkenfeld responded with six points.

With the Swiftettes leading 13-12 at the outset of the second quarter, the 6-0 Leavitt went to work.

During a 16-point streak in the second quarter, the junior post, who was an all-tournament selection last year, had with six field goals from close. Nazareth led at the half 31-21.

The Swiftettes outscored LaPoynor 13-4 in the third quarter as Leavitt hit for 10 and Brockman two to make it 43-25.

Leavitt also had 24 in the Swiftettes' semifinal win over Moulton.

LaPoynor went almost nine minutes without scoring in the third and fourth quarters and shot 17 percent from the field in the second half.

Toyna Davis led LaPoynor, which had a 23-game winning streak, with 10 points and 12 rebounds.

AUSTIN — Pam Anderson (34) of West-Orange Stark is surrounded by Levelland's Twylana Harrison, right, and Rachel Hesse in the second half of Saturday's Class 4A State Championship game.

Levelland 45, West Orange-Stark 24
AUSTIN (AP) — Levelland won its fourth consecutive Class 4A state girls basketball championship Saturday with a 45-24 victory over West Orange-Stark.

The Lobettes, 34-1, have reached the state semifinals seven times since 1982 and have won five titles during that span.

Carol Bailey sparked Levelland with 19 points and seven rebounds against a West Orange-Stark team that managed only three points in the first quarter and four in the third.

Travesa Gant had more points (27) Thursday in the Lady Mustangs' semifinal victory over Calallen than West Orange-Stark scored as a team against Levelland. Gant was limited to six points Saturday on 3-of-18 shooting.

Gant's performance typified the Lady Mustangs' shooting woes; they hit on only 25 percent of their shots.

"I was surprised that they didn't pressure more," said Levelland coach Dean Weese, who has a career record of 926-143 to accompany his five state championships. "We don't mind a slow-paced game and it looked as if they didn't either."

Grapeland 54, Abernathy 47

AUSTIN (AP) — Trinia Tillis scored 25 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Grapeland past Abernathy 54-47 Saturday for the Class 2A state girls basketball championship.

Tillis, considered one of the top recruits in the nation, helped the Sandiettes avenge a loss to Godley in last year's finals.

Tillis had 33 points and 14 rebounds Friday in the Sandiettes' semifinal victory over China Spring.

Abernathy, 25-10, has made it to the finals in all seven of its trips to the final four, and on Saturday lost in the title game for only the second time.

"We knew we couldn't shut down Tillis," said Abernathy Coach Pat Mouser. "We wanted to control her some, but we knew we couldn't stop her."

Jennifer Thomas led Abernathy with 16 points.

Grapeland, 34-5, packed in a zone defense, forcing the Lady Lopes to shoot from the outside. Abernathy responded by hitting only 38 percent from the field.

Hits keep coming as Hawks down Plainsmen

By RUTH COCHRAN
Staff Writer

The Howard College Hawks were feeling generous Friday, but Frank Phillips College was in even more of a giving mood.

Howard, taking advantage of four Plainsmen errors, opened its Western Junior College Athletic Conference schedule with a 10-6 win over FPC. Coach Bill Griffin's team improved to 13-4 on the season and 1-0 in conference. The Plainsmen suffered their first loss of a short season, dropping to 5-1 and 0-1.

The Hawks ripped FPC for 11 hits in eight and one-half innings, but gave up 12 to the Plainsmen, as well as committed two errors. Howard didn't gain control of the game until the bottom of the sixth.

After giving up four hits and two runs in the top of the inning to allow FPC a 4-3 lead, the Hawks came back to score four runs on just one hit.

Although the Hawks took the lead for good at that point, their less-than-spectacular defensive show prompted Griffin to say his team would have lost without FPC's errors.

"We played terrible, but then they played all right," Griffin said. "I'm satisfied with the way we played. I'm glad for the win, but that was ugly."

"I didn't expect that type of performance in the opening conference game.

"I'm not disappointed in our pitching... a lot of (FPC's) hits were grounders. They had eyes. Take away their errors and they'd have beat us five to four."

FPC coach Jim Davis, heading the school's first baseball team ever, agreed that errors were the key factor to the game.

"That's the worst we played all year," Davis said. "We should have won. The errors we made were critical errors."

Tim Demerson opened the Hawks' offensive effort in the bottom of the sixth when he knocked a double to center field — Howard's only hit of the inning. After Jay Williams struck out, Jose Rubiera reached first on a walk and Michael Bard loaded the bases when FPC's second baseman fumbled the grounder.

Demerson added the Hawk's fourth run of the game when Darin Glenn got the free walk to first. Rubiera scored on a fielder's choice when Geraldo Camara grounded to the shortstop. A passed ball allowed Bard to sprint in for the Hawk's sixth run, and FPC's final error of the game gave Camara the chance to add Howard's seventh run.

The Hawks added three more hits and three runs in their last two at bats, including a homer over the left field fence when Kenny Frederick connected with a hanging curve ball. It was the second homer of the game as FPC's Scott Mowles sent one over the left field fence in the top of the eighth.

Curt Schmidt, a freshman from Miles City, Mont., pitched seven and one-half innings for the Hawks, getting his third win of the season against one loss. Greg Fisher took the loss for FPC and evened his record at 1-1.

The Hawks face Angelina Junior College Friday at 1 p.m. in a double header, then play another double header with Angelina Saturday starting at 1 p.m.

NC State wins in four OTs

By The Associated Press

North Carolina State clinched a tie for the regular-season Atlantic Coast Conference championship Saturday by winning the longest game in league history.

Rodney Monroe scored 26 points, including two crucial game-tying baskets, as the 20th-ranked Wolfpack outlasted Wake Forest 110-103 in four overtimes at Greensboro, N.C.

It was the first quadruple overtime game between two ACC opponents, although two conference teams had played in games that went four overtimes. Canisius beat N.C. State 79-78 in 1956 and North Carolina defeated Tulane 113-106 in 1976, both in four extra periods.

N.C. State, 20-7 overall and 10-4 in the league, will win the regular-season ACC title outright if North Carolina loses to Duke on Sunday. If the Tar Heels win, they will share the crown with N.C. State.

Wake Forest, 13-14 and 3-11, appeared headed for a major upset in regulation. But Monroe grabbed the rebound of a deliberately missed free throw by Kelsey Weems with two seconds left and lofted in a shot while falling on his back to make it 77-77. Monroe also forced the third overtime with a basket with 45 seconds left in the second extra period.

N.C. State overpowered a tiring Wake Forest team in the final period of the game, which lasted more than 2 1/2 hours.

Chucky Brown of N.C. State and Chris King of Wake Forest each scored 34 points.

No. 1 Arizona 89, UCLA 86 Sean Elliott scored 26 points and took control in the final minutes as Arizona edged UCLA in the final regular-season game for both teams.

Jud Buechler had 18 points and 14 rebounds for Arizona, 24-3 overall and 17-1 in the Pacific-10 Conference. The Wildcats clinched their second straight league title Thursday night with a victory at Washington State.

UCLA, which suffered a 38-point loss to Arizona two weeks ago in Tucson, is 19-8 and 13-5. Trevor Wilson led the Bruins with 30 points, including 22 in the second half.

No. 1 Oklahoma 103, Nebraska 76 Mookie Blaylock scored 19 of his 22 points in the second half as Oklahoma broke open a close Big Eight game.

The Sooners ended the regular season 26-4 overall and won the league championship with a 12-2 record. Nebraska, which was led by Beau Reid's 17 points, wound up 16-14 overall and 4-10 in the conference.

Blaylock made only one of nine field goals in the first half when he shot primarily from outside. By taking the ball inside more in the second half, Blaylock had more success as the Sooners won their 30th straight at home.

No. 7 Missouri 66, Colorado 65 Greg Church made four free throws in the final 11 seconds as Missouri held off Colorado to complete a perfect home record this season.

The Tigers, 24-7 overall and 10-3 in the Big Eight, won all 16 of its home games this season. Colorado finished the regular season at 7-20 overall and 2-12 in the league.

Church scored 21 points for Missouri, while Reggie Morton had 19 for Colorado.

No. 10 Michigan 119, No. 11 Iowa 96 Glen Rice scored 29 of his 33 points in the second half as Michigan topped the 100-point mark for the ninth time this season.

The Wolverines, who led 48-33 at halftime, scored 71 points in the second half as they improved to 23-6 overall and 11-5 in the Big Ten.

Roy Marble scored 30 points for Iowa, which played without injured point guard B.J. Armstrong. The Hawkeyes, who fell to 21-8 and 9-7, lost to Michigan 108-107 in double overtime earlier this year.

No. 14 Louisville 87, Notre Dame 77 Kenny Payne scored 27 points as slumping Louisville rebounded for a victory over the Fighting Irish.

Louisville, which had lost five of its previous eight games before playing the Irish, will enter the Metro Conference tournament on Friday with a 20-8 record. Notre Dame, an independent hoping for an invitation to the NCAA tournament, slipped to 18-7.

acrobatic volley work at the net in the second set as he broke Gilbert's service three times. The rattled Gilbert suffered numerous unforced errors.

Gilbert was only the second alternate in the 18-year history of the tournament to get into the finals. The other was Sweden's Anders Jarryd.

Jimmy Connors was to be the original alternate but withdrew and Gilbert got a spot in the tournament when West Germany's Boris Becker caught the flu.

Although almost all of the 17,000 sets in Reunion Arena had been sold, it was only half full because of a sleet storm that hit Dallas an hour before the nationally televised match began.

It was a record eighth appearance in the WCT Finals for McEnroe who is 21-4 lifetime in the tournament.

McEnroe is off to his best start since 1985 when he won his first 10 matches. He has compiled a 15-2 match record in 1989.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — New York Yankees' first baseman Don Mattingly is the center of attention as he signs autographs Friday afternoon prior to the Yanks' game with the Montreal Expos.

Darryl swings bat instead of fist

By The Associated Press
Darryl Strawberry made a dramatic return from a one-day walkout with a three-run homer and Darren Reed's three-run shot capped a five-run seventh inning that rallied the New York Mets to a 9-8 exhibition victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers on Saturday.

It was the teams' first meeting since the Dodgers won last year's National League playoffs.

Strawberry, who left camp Thursday after throwing a punch at first baseman Keith Hernandez and was fined $750 when he failed to show up Friday, put the Mets ahead 3-2 with his first spring homer in the third inning off Tim Belcher. Strawberry has been upset because the Mets refused to renegotiate his contract.

He said he came back "because I felt it's right for me to come back to be a part of this team and my teammates at this time."

But he still threatened to leave the Mets after 1990, the year in is contract.

In other games, Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati 2-1, Boston beat Detroit 5-2, Toronto beat Philadelphia 9-2, the Chicago White Sox beat Texas 3-2, Kansas City beat Cincinnati 6-2, Minnesota beat Houston 4-3, the Chicago Cubs beat Oakland 5-4, Cleveland beat San Francisco 7-4, San Diego beat California 4-2, Seattle beat Milwaukee 13-2 and Atlanta and Montreal played to a 1-1 tie after 13 innings.

In a night game, the New York Yankees played the Baltimore Orioles in Miami.

Los Angeles went ahead 8-3 with four runs off Wally Whitehurst in the fourth inning, including John Shelby's solo homer, and two more off John Mitchell in the sixth. Reed's second homer in as many spring games capped the seventh-inning comeback against Chris Jones and John Wetteland.

Jeff Hamilton homered for the Dodgers off Mets starter Sid Fernandez, who allowed two runs in three innings.

Pirates 2, Cardinals 1
A ninth-inning error by rookie second baseman Geronimo Pena set up Felix Fermin's game-winning sacrifice fly.

Dann Bilardello led off with a single off Jeff Fassero and was sacrificed to second. With one out, Pena bobbled a potential double-play grounder to load the bases and Fermin's fly ball scored pinch-runner John Cangelosi. Pittsburgh's other run off Joe Magrane in the first inning was also unearned. It came on an error by shortstop Rod Booker.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 2
Jim Rice hit a three-run homer and Carlos Quintana and Ellis Burks added solo shots in a five-run third inning.

Blue Jays 9, Phillies 2
Rob Ducey had four hits and Jesse Barfield three in Toronto's 16-hit attack. Toronto scored single runs in the second and third innings off Mike Maddux and two in the fourth off loser Bob Sebra. Scott Service gave up Toronto's last five runs, including Kelly Gruber's two-run homer.

White Sox 3, Rangers 2
Eddie Williams tripled home one run and scored another in a three-run fifth-inning Chicago rally. Paul Wilmet, the third of five Texas pitchers, gave up all the runs on four hits and a walk. He also balked home the final run.

Chicago starter Jack McDowell pitched three hitless innings. Chad Kreuter homered off Ken Patterson.

Raiders, NFL reach settlement in anti-trust suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Raiders and the National Football League reached settlement Saturday in a decade-old, multimillion-dollar antitrust suit involving the football team's move from Oakland to Los Angeles.

A source close to the case said the Raiders will receive $18 million, while Raiders' spokeswoman Sue Turner estimated the figure at around $20 million.

Attorneys for both sides advised federal Judge Harry Pregerson of the settlement, and at their request, placed the settlement document under seal, said court clerk

Richard W. Johnson.

"It's set and done. All they have to do now at the court is file an order dismissing the case," Johnson said. He added that the dismissal could occur some time next week.

The case pitted the Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission against the NFL, which had tried to block the team's move to Los Angeles, which finally occurred in 1982. Al Davis, the Raiders' managing general partner, had been trying to move the team south for several years by that time.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said he was just relieved the case was over.

"Obviously, the whole matter was very distasteful," he said. "You're talking about 10 years and a lot of money spent and a lot of anguish. It's very nice to have it behind us. I think it tied us all up."

Turner said Davis took little comfort in the settlement.

Farwell

two three-pointers as the Indians cut their deficit to 52-44 going into the final period.

Haskell scored the first six points of the fourth quarter to cut the Raiders lead to two, 52-50, with 5:34 remaining. Day hit a jumper and Jeff Atkinson converted two free throws to rebuild the Steers' lead to 56-50 2½ minutes later.

Guess, however, answered for the Indians by canning consecutive three-pointers to tie the game at 56-56 with 2:19 left in the game.

Day and Rike traded baskets to bring the score to 58-58 with 1:39 remaining, but that proved to be the Indians' last points of the game. Greg Atkinson and Day combined for five points to give the Steers the regional title.

"I think you saw some fatigue out there," Gregory said of the Indians' comeback. "There was just no way we could maintain the level of intensity we had for the full game."

"(During Farwell's last time out) I told them to just run the offense and settle down. I told them just to play our game and think about things."

In Friday's first-round games, the Atkinson brothers scored 21 points each as Farwell ousted the Bangs Dragons, 84-76, while Meeks scored 23 points to lead Haskell past Canadian, 74-57.

Welcome to the NFL, Jimmy

By HAL BOKK
AP Sports Writer
Welcome to the NFL, Jimmy Johnson. You will find life with the Dallas Cowboys considerably different than it was at the University of Miami.

There are no recruiting wars to worry about here, no need to sweet talk some high school hot shot to come play for your program.

Just the pro draft.

There are no bowl games at the end of the season, or weekly polls to assess your team's progress to those fancy playoffs.

Just the daily standings.

And — maybe best of all — there are no two-point conversions that could come back and haunt you later, maybe even in extreme circumstances, cost you the national championship.

Just sudden death overtimes.

Those, then, are some of the plusses. There are also, of course, some substantial minuses. Like the schedule.

Indianapolis Colts coach Ron Meyer, who made the jump from college to the NFL in 1981, remembers the week-to-week grind as one of the rudest awakenings he had when he took over the New England Patriots. College teams routinely schedule some soft opponents, built-in breathers. NFL teams don't have that luxury.

"Up here, every team is loaded and there are no lollipops on the schedule," Meyer said. "Green Bay can hammer you as easily as Chicago. There are no free lunches in the NFL. Every Sunday is a dog fight."

Meyer recalled a conversation he had during his first season with Bum Phillips, longtime coach of the Houston Oilers and New Orleans Saints. "I said to him, 'Bum, where are the pushovers?'"

Phillips, always a sardonic sort, looked at Meyer and said simply, "Ain't none."

"Essentially, football is football," Meyer said. "The organizational skills, the staff implementation, the evaluation of personnel, the problems of putting the right peg in the right slot... those things are constant. But college to pros,

Analysis
It's a different game from many aspects. The rules and the speed of the game caught me a little."

There is also the very basic issue of the number of athletes available. NFL rosters permit 45 active players. Some major college programs distribute uniforms to well over 100 players. "Your organizational skills are more taxed on the NFL level to get the same production from fewer bodies," Meyer said.

Then there is the matter of dealing with freshmen and sophomores, kids not yet out of their teens, on one level, and grizzled veterans on the other.

"A 10-year pro who's played 16 games a year, that's 160 games," Meyer said. "That might be more experience than some members of your coaching staff have. Hey, it might be more experience than you have."

In college, a head coach is primarily a teacher, a professor of football. In the pros, because of the experience factor, he can be a student. Perennial NFL All-Pro like John Hannah, Raymond Clayborn and Steve Nelson didn't need "a whole lot of help from their coach."

"Instead of teaching technique, suddenly you're working with premier players and sometimes you learn from them," Meyer said. "I got feedback from players. I've grown with the give and take, the interchange and dialogue and it's helped a great deal."

"I'll tell (Pro Bowl center) Ray Donaldson what we need done. Then I'll ask him, 'What's the best way of doing it?' When you get his input, it's more likely it'll get done right."

Paul Wiggin, an assistant coach with the Minnesota Vikings, reversed the route Johnson and Meyer took, beginning his head coaching career in the pros with the Kansas City Chiefs and then going to Stanford University. "In college, you're the next level parent for a lot of kids, someone they can trust," he said. "That's different from the NFL. You're not gonna be a daddy to anyone in pro football.

"But coaching is coaching. That won't change. You encounter the same situations in the pros that you do in college. It's third-and-two. What do you do?"

"If Jimmy Johnson is talented, and everything indicates that he is, it doesn't matter if he's a college coach, a pro coach or an executive with GM. There are the same adjustments. He has leadership skills. What made him a winner in college will make him a winner in the pros."

That didn't work, though, for Lou Holtz, who made the round trip, from college to the NFL and back to college.

Holtz was hired away from North Carolina State in 1976 by the New York Jets and arrived as a folksy, good-humored sort, equipped with a fight song and a few other innovations that did not quite make it in the pros. A year later, he was back in the college ranks at Arkansas, licking the wounds of a disastrous 3-10 season that ended mercifully the week before the final game.

"I just wish I'd have been better prepared and more mature at the time," Holtz said. "I made some mistakes."

And if you do put those pieces in place, Holtz said, you will be successful. "Same as always."

Yet it is not the same. In the NFL, teams play a minimum of 20 games, four in the preseason, 16 in the regular season. Make the playoffs and there can be four more games.

That's twice as long a schedule as college teams play, twice as many game plans and preparations, twice as many weeks of practice.

And the schedule might be more than twice as tough.

Next season, the University of Miami plays East Carolina, Wisconsin, San Jose State and the University of California.

Next season, the Dallas Cowboys play the San Francisco 49ers, Washington Redskins and New York Giants — winners of the last three Super Bowls.

McDonald's has begun a search for America's top high school musicians for its 1989 All-American High School Band season.

Band directors across the country are invited to nominate their best high school musicians to the prestigious All-American band.

In addition to performing with the band in nationally-televised events such as the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City, students chosen to the band also qualify to audition for some $170,000 in scholarships to America's leading music institutions.

The 104-member band is comprised of the top two high school musicians from each state and the District of Columbia, with one member each from Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

All nominees must be seniors for the 1989 fall semester.

Deadline for nomination to the 1989 McDonald's All-American Band is April 15. Those interested should write to: McDonald's All-American High School Band, P.O. Box 11189, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

The Texas Railroad Commission will hold its annual "state-of-the-industry" oil and gas hearing March 17 at 9 a.m. at the Austin Crest Hotel in Austin.

Senior officers of companies and associations in the oil and gas industry are expected to deliver their assessment of the present condition and outlook for the industry to Chairman Kent Hance and Commissioners John Sharp and James E. (Jim) Nugent.

Railroad Commission statistics show Amoco and Exxon to be the top oil and gas producers, respectively, in Texas for the 12-month period ending December, 1988.

Amoco led all oil producers for the period with an average daily production of 192,584 barrels, some 10.09 percent of all oil produced in the state.

Exxon Corp. took second place with an average daily production rate of 166,976 barrels, some 8.75 percent of total state production.

Other companies in the top ten included Chevron U.S.A., Inc., 124,361 bpd (barrels per day), third; Mobile Producing Texas & New Mexico, Inc., 108,588 bpd, fourth; Shell Western E&P Inc., 102,536 bpd, fifth; Marathon Oil Company, 96,474 bpd, sixth; Texaco Producing, Inc., 62,032 bpd, seventh; Arco Oil & Gas Co., 54,807 bpd, eighth; Amerada Hess Corp., 52,429 bpd, ninth; and Sun Exploration & Production Company, 49,923 bpd, tenth.

Exxon Corp. was the top Texas gas producer for the period, averaging 920,985 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) per day which represented 7.77 percent of total state production.

Mobil Producing Texas & N.M. Inc. was second, averaging 645,411 Mcf per day, or 5.45 percent of all gas produced in the state.

Other companies included Transamerican Natural Gas Corp., 529,876 Mcf, third; Shell Western E&P, Inc., 445,818 Mcf, fourth; Chevron U.S.A., Inc., 392,225 Mcf, fifth; Phillips Petroleum Company, 312, 207 Mcf, seventh; Sun Exploration & Production Co., 281,198 Mcf, eighth; Arco Oil & Gas Co., 263,907 Mcf, ninth and EP Operating Co., 232,387 Mcf, tenth.

3 Beall Brothers 3, Inc. (commonly known as Bealls, pronounced "Bell's") celebrates 66 successful years this month.

Operating with the motto, "Quality merchandise at reasonable prices with one price to all," three Beall brothers (Archie, Robbie and Willie) set up their first Striking Eastern Airlines Machinist Union members set an Eastern Airlines shirt on fire early Saturday morning after the strike was called. store in 1923 in Henderson, Texas. For the first twenty years Bealls was primarily a small East Texas chain selling only dry goods and shoes.

Then, in the late 50's, expansion spread to all corners of the state. These new stores were, on the average, much larger — allowing for the addition of jewelry, cosmetic and accessory lines. The 60's and 70's saw the most rapid expansion of the company with numerous new units in Texas and the move into Oklahoma. By the end of the 70's, ninety-six stores were in operation. The Bealls chain now operates in four states — Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Alabama.

Operational offices for the chain have been in Jacksonville, Texas since 1930. In 1983, offices were opened in Las Colinas (Dallas) to facilitate buying and sales promotion.

The most significant changes, however, have taken place in the past 13 months. In February, 1988, Frank Fietz became the first non-family member elected to the company's presidency, while Royce Beall, son of co-founder Robbie Beall, retained the titles of chairman and chief executive officer. Then December 28, after nearly 66 years as a family-operated chain, Bealls shareholders voted to sell the company to a group of investors led by Bain Capital.

At this time, brothers Royce and Ray Beall (VP of marketing and corporate planning) retired from the company after 41 and 40 years, respectively; Fietz was given the additional duties of CEO.

Along with Bealls, Bain acquired the Houston-based Palais Royal group of 28 stores. Both Bealls and Palais Royal will be operated under a newly formed parent company, Specialty Retailers, Inc. (S.R.I.) from headquarters in Houston. Bernard Fuchs, president and CEO of Palais Royal, has been elected chairman, president and chief executive officer of S.R.I. The new company is now one of the largest specialty retailers in the country.

In the past, when asked the secret to Bealls' success, Beall officials have pointed to "customer service — friendly 'hometown service' no matter where the store is located, and complete satisfaction on every purchase." Bealls, Big Spring, is committed to maintaining that winning attitude.

The Texas Employment Commission reports that Unemployment Insurance Tax rates have been established for 1989. Close to half of employers covered by the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act will realize as much as a fifty percent reduction in the new rates as compared with last year's rates.

"Employers who are taxed at the minimum allowable rate based on their employment experience will see their taxes drop to about half of what they paid last year, even though the wage base is increasing from $8,000 to $9,000 this year. We certainly are encouraged by this decrease in taxes and believe employers will be very pleased," says Mary Scott Nabers, TEC's Commissioner representing employers.

As an example, for a minimum rated employer, last year's tax rate of 1.41 percent on the first $8,000 in wages resulted in a yearly tax of $112.80 per employee. In 1989, that percentage will drop to .64 percent on the first $9,000 resulting in a yearly tax of $57.60 per employee.

According to Labor Commissioner Charles Haddock, that is also good news for employees. "This drop in employer taxes reflects an improved labor market where more people are working, and that is always good news. Texas' economic recovery will be based, to a large degree, on putting people back to work, and judging from these tax rates we are making progress."

The drop in the 1989 minimum tax rate is due in part to the vast improvement of the trust fund balance between October 1, 1987 and October 1, 1988. The October 1 balance in the unemployment trust fund is the primary determinant of the deficit ratio for the next year.

The unemployment trust fund has a statutory minimum reserve level of 1 percent of the taxable wage base, about $417 billion for 1988. Any balance below that minimum, even a positive balance, is considered a "deficit" for purposes of the tax rate calculation. The deficit for October, 1988 was $201 million, compared to a deficit of $838 million on October 1, 1987. This $637 million improvement in the trust fund balance has allowed TEC to drop the deficit tax rate from 1.45 percent in 1988 to .25 percent in 1989.

At a community luncheon Friday, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce announced its 1989 membership drive will begin March 15.

The goal of the drive, entitled "Full Court Press," is to recruit 100 new Chamber members.

The "Full Court Press" program will consist of eight teams, headed by an "owner" and a "manager." Team leaders are expected to recruit team members to aid in the membership drive.

On March 15 from 4:30-6:30 p.m., a "Tip Off" meeting for the membership drive will be held in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The drive will conclude on April 11.

Report meetings on the team's progress will be held March 21 and 28, and April 4 and 11.

Neel Barnaby, membership coordinator, has identified 500 potential Chamber members.

In a video presentation, Wayne Moore, executive vice president of the chamber, who was unable to attend the luncheon, said the drive will attempt to "secure the membership dollars required in order to produce results."

Membership fees will fund the Chamber's research efforts; publications and economic studies; advertising and convention and visitors bureau programs, he said.

Recruitment teams, followed by their leaders are: Shirley's Shooters, Shirley Shroyer and John Freeman; McLaughlin's McMuggers, Scott McLaughlin and Iris Correa; Waggoner's Wonders, Sandra Waggoner and Carl Bradley; Mark's Larks, Mark Morgan and Robert Wernsman; Corky's Corkers, Corky Harris and Richard Atkins; Steve's Slammers, Steve Fraser and Charles Beil; James' Jumpers, James Welch and Sandy Burroughs; Marie's Marauders, Marie Hall and David Wrinkle.

The Big Spring Area Chamber of

Commerce's youth leadership program is currently accepting applications.

This year the program is designed to educate area high school juniors and seniors "about what is available in the Big Spring area, and help them to become leaders in the community," said Betty Clear, co-chairperson of the program.

Last year, 18 high school juniors graduated from the program, Clear said.

Tentative plans are to begin the 1989 program Monday, and classes would meet three nights per month until graduation, which would occur approximately in mid- to late-June, she said.

This year the program will be expanded and is open to high school seniors as well as juniors. Students from Big Spring, Forsan, Coahoma and Sands High schools are eligible for the program.

Junior Leadership — which is free of charge to those approved for enrollment — will include courses on leadership development; leadership skills and needs in the job market; small business and downtown development; city government; education; tourism and history; agriculture and related industry; commerce and industry; and law enforcement.

Applications for the program can be acquired from local high school counselors or principals, and from Don Richardson at the Howard County Agriculture Extension Office, said Clear.

Applicants should include two references on the form, she said, and at least one of the references should be a teacher.

As of Wednesday, eight students had applied for enrollment in the program, she said.

Junior Leadership is closely modeled after Leadership Big Spring, which began in 1984, with the purpose of identifying and developing potential leaders, and facilitating communication among community leaders.

"The Leadership Big Spring group of 1986-87 came up with the idea (for the Junior Leadership program)," Clear said. "Since they had benefited from the program so much, they thought we should have something for future leaders, for young people."

County auditors discussed compliance with section 89 of the internal revenue code, self-insurance for counties and legislative issues at a meeting of the Area 2 County Auditors, noon, Feb. 23, at The Branding Iron Inn.

Fourteen people from 10 counties attended the luncheon meeting, hosted by Howard County Auditor and Board of Director of the Texas Association of County Auditors Jackie Olson.

Oil/ markets

Pumping 54 barrels of oil with 395 barrels of salt water per day, the No. 36 KLOH has been brought on line in the Howard-Glasscock Field, Howard County, about five miles southwest of Forsan.

With Southland Royalty of Midland as the operator, the well bottomed at 2,550 feet and was plugged back to 2,510. Production will be from a set of San Andres perforations, 2,146 to 2,420 feet into the wellbore.

Samedan Oil of Midland has abandoned an undrilled location at a wildcat driller in Howard County, about eight miles southwest of Coahoma. The well carried permit for 8,500 feet of hole making and had been designated as the No. 1 O'Daniels.

Exxon has called for a completion rig at the company's No. 56 H.R. Clay in Howard County's part of the Howard-Glasscock Field, 13 miles southeast of Big Spring. The well was spudded last Nov. 18 and probed to a total depth of 3,353 feet. No details have been revealed regarding production outlook.

Conoco is testing for potential at the No. 29 Belle Overton "A", a developmental try in the Howard-Glasscock Field, about four miles southwest of Forsan. The well was taken to total depth of 2,600 feet after being spudded last Nov. 4. Perforations for possible production have been shot at depths of about 2,420 feet.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY
Flowing 435 barrels of oil plus 175,000 CF casinghead gas per day, the No. 1 Nestschwarz has been completed in the Bankbook Field, Glasscock County, about eight miles south of Garden City. With Union Texas Petroleum of Midland as the operator, the well probed to total depth of 10,183 feet. It will produce from a perforated interval in the Fusselman Formation, 10,120 to 10,184 feet into the wellbore.

Gauged on a 14/64 choke, the well registered an even 1,000 PSI flow pressure. Water production totaled eight barrels daily.

An ill-fated Glasscock County wildcat has been written off as a dry hole in a lease about six miles northwest of Garden City. The explorer well was known as the No. 1 Dyad-Meek "7." Drilling commenced on Jan. 21 of this year and progressed to total depth of 7,835 feet with no commercial shows indicated.

Mycro Industries of Artesia was the operator.

It showed ability to pump 73 barrels of 40-gravity crude plus 30,000 CF casinghead gas and 55 barrels of waste water per day on an open choke.

OXY U.S.A. of Midland is the operator. OXY took the hole to total depth of 8,750 feet, plugged it back to 8,682 and perforated for production in the Spraberry Formation, 7125 to 8,560 feet into the wellbore.

DEADLINE APPROACHES FOR "GRANDFATHER ELECTION"

For years taxpayers have used IRAs, Keoghs, 401(k)s and other pension and profit sharing plans to cut their income taxes while saving for retirement. Distributions from these plans have been subject to tax penalties when taken too early, too late, or in too small an amount. Now the 1986 Tax Reform Act has added a 15% penalty on distributions that are too large.

The law includes a special rule which allows individuals to exempt from the penalty tax amounts accumulated before the law was passed. This "grandfather election" can be made by individuals whose retirement plans totaled $562,500 or more as of August 1, 1986. The catch is that the election can be made no later than the due date of your 1988 individual tax return. That's April 17, unless you file for an extension. Once made, the election is irrevocable.

If you think this issue concerns only the wealthy, you could be making a costly mistake. Self-employed individuals with Keogh plans or those who have a pension plan at a company where they've worked for many years can have accumulated significant amounts. The only way to be sure is to check the amount in your retirement plans as of August 1, 1986. (Don't forget to add in your IRAs.) If your total tops the $562,500 threshold, you'll have to decide whether to make the election or not.

Since the election eliminates a 15% excise tax on the "grandfathered amount," it would seem to be advantageous for all qualifying taxpayers to make the election. That's not necessarily so. Generally speaking, the election should probably be made by those whose plan assets exceeded $1 million as of August 1, 1986, and not taken by those with plan assets of less than $750,000. Between these amounts lies a gray area requiring careful calculations to determine the correct choice. The matter is complicated by a 15% estate tax penalty that may be assessed if undistributed plan assets at your death exceed certain amounts.

Seek professional guidance in making your choice in this complex matter.

7-Eleven locked in bitter fight over franchises

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Watson was home asleep, he says, when Southland Corp. officials, accompanied by two uniformed, off-duty police officers, tried to take his 7-Eleven franchise store "by force" before dawn one Saturday. Southland had given Watson three days' notice that he was in breach of his franchise contract when company officials swept into the store and tried unsuccessfully to take control of the safe and rip the door to his office from its hinges, Watson says. A 7-Eleven franchise owner for about 10 years, Watson accuses Southland of "retail sharecropping." He is leading a bitter fight against the giant Dallas-based chain by the Capital Area 7-Eleven Franchise Owners Association. At issue is Southland's formula for splitting 7-Eleven profits. Watson and other owners contend it doesn't account for the costs of running stores in the inner city, where labor costs more, shoplifting is more frequent and managers have to contend with neighborhood violence. Southland officials say they have considered the complaints and improved franchisers' terms. Corporate officials also said they entered Watson's store before dawn to avoid interfering with business. At issue is Southland's formula for splitting 7-Eleven profits. Watson and other owners contend it doesn't account for the costs of running stores in the inner city, where labor costs more, shoplifting is more frequent and managers have to contend with neighborhood violence. Guion, manager of the chain's Capital division, said the safe had to be seized because Watson was in a "serious deficit position" and had become a "serious financial risk." "We were trying to protect our security interests," Ms. Callahan-Guion said. The District of Columbia City Council and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People have been drawn into the dispute, and the owners association plans a Capitol Hill march Wednesday to protest the corporation. Franchise owners claim they aren't making enough money under their Southland contracts, which give most franchise owners 48 percent of the stores' gross profits. Out of that owners must pay wages and cover inventory losses from shoplifting and employee theft. Southland is responsible for leases, taxes, utilities and other expenses. "Sometimes they (franchise owners) are getting 48 percent of nothing," said Fred Rasheed, national director of the NAACP's economic development program. Ms. Callahan-Guion said the company has been making significant changes to help its D.C. stores, and about a third now get a 52 percent cut to Southland's 48 percent. But Watson said inner-city owners' shares fall short because of their circumstances. "We moved our telephones outside because the drug dealers were dealing on the telephones. We had the telephones taken out... so that we could get rid of the drug dealers," Watson said. "These are all the kind of problems that we run into in the inner city. And to walk away with $20,000 or $30,000 or even $40,000 (a year), it's absolutely ridiculous. In some cases, we're putting our lives on the line."

Feds probe $53 million peso scam

DALLAS (AP) — A Tulsa, Okla., man is accused of taking $53 million from a currency investment program he helped develop in a lawsuit filed by an Irving investment firm that is under criminal investigation. WWG Investments filed the federal lawsuit Thursday against Robert L. Johnson. The suit alleges that Johnson borrowed and then refused to repay the money earlier this year, according to The Dallas Morning News. Johnson and the owner of WWG, William W. Gray of Grapevine, were indicted last month by a Dallas County grand jury on charges that they failed to register their investment program with the Texas Securities Commission. According to the Dallas newspaper, police investigators are portraying Johnson as a career con artist who masterminded a fraudulent plan that promised investors they would receive 12 percent weekly returns through the purchase and sale of Mexican pesos. Investigators say as much as $150 million could have been invested by hundreds of people in more than 10 states during the 10 months the program existed.

Huckleberry is vice president of the 37-year-old company and Taylor is production manager. ## When the bell rings, it may be a hustler

WASHINGTON (AP) — Low-cost long-distance calling has spawned a busy new field, telemarketing fraud. Both government and private consumer experts are warning you to be wary of those irresistible offers when the phone rings. "While the vast majority of those engaged in telemarketing are honest and legitimate, it has unfortunately attracted numerous scam artists and swindlers who, through high-pressure tactics, dishonesty and outright lying, manage annually to steal millions of dollars from consumers," warns James H. McIlhenny, head of the national Better Business Bureaus. "Don't believe offers that sound too good to be true," adds Linda Golodner, executive director of the National Consumers League. Scams claiming that people have won some sort of prize or are entitled to a free gift have become popular lately, according to the Postal Inspection Service. Operators of these schemes send out notices claiming that people have won something, and then follow up with a telephone call in which they apply pressure to try to get the victim to send money or give them a credit-card number, allegedly to cover shipping charges, the agency reports. "Don't give out your credit card number or send money if unless you are sure just whom you are dealing with, says Chief Postal Inspector Charles R. Clauson.

Call the company back — and look up the number yourself, don't take the word of the caller — or check with the Postal Service, the Better Business Bureau or other local consumer agency. Postal inspectors have made several recent arrests, including one group claiming people had won a boat and motor worth $500 or more and asking for $120 or so for shipping costs. The victims received a cheap inflatable raft and tiny motor worth a total of less than $40, Clauson said. However, even though one operation is broken up, others continue to spring up selling the same or other items. Bargain-priced travel packages are a common scam and likely will increase in number as spring approaches, warns the Federal Trade Commission. Telephone salespeople claim to offer cut-rate trips to people who pay a membership fee, but often the deal includes the requirement that tickets and lodging for a companion also be purchased through the organization. The result is that the total cost can be several times the price of buying on your own or through a travel agent. More details on what to look out for can be found in the publication "Telemarketing Travel Fraud," available for 50 cents from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 455V, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Time Inc., Warner merge

NEW YORK (AP) — Time Inc. will buy Warner Communications Inc. in a stock deal that both companies value at $18 billion, creating one of the world's largest media and entertainment empires, the companies announced Saturday. The newly formed conglomerate will include publishing, film and music interests with estimated annual revenues of $10 billion, said a Time Inc. spokesman, Lou Slovinsky. The Time-Warner merger would be one of the biggest corporate takeovers in history. The largest was the $24.53 billion takeover late last year of RJR Nabisco Inc. by Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co., a Manhattan investment firm. Slovinsky said the deal involves Time's purchase of Warner through a tax-free exchange of Warner's outstanding common stock. The $18 billion figure is based on the closing price of the companies' shares Friday afternoon, Slovinsky said.

Move over Oscars; it's the Jasons

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

There's got to be a better way. The Oscars will be presented soon, and that means that once more, we will be inundated by news of movies that no one has ever heard of — but will win umpteenth zillion Academy Awards.

Nothing personal against "Dangerous Liaisons," but has anybody in Big Spring seen the movie yet? Or have a faint idea about its plot? Or who its stars are? Does anyone really care?

I thought as much. The trouble with the Oscars is that nominated movies are usually ones that have been released within the past two or three weeks and haven't been seen by anyone except a few prestigious critics.

And the flicks are usually so artsy (and depressing) that few people in Big Spring would give two hoots for the darned things.

As I stated before, there's got to be a better way — and, by sheerest coincidence, there is.

That's right, folks. It's time for the Second Annual Jason Awards, presented annually to the best and worst movies available at your local video store.

The winners were bad, good and mediocre. The only criteria for consideration is that they could be found within the city limits of Big Spring.

There's plenty of awards to present, so let's get cracking.

The envelope, please. . . Best horror movie(s) — There were several, but the winner is "Alien" and its sequel. The movies, starring Sigourney Weaver, featured more chills and squeals than a visit to your mother-in-law.

They were that scary. Worst horror movie(s) — Any of the "Friday the 13th" genre. After watching a few, I can't say I was scared, but my insomnia was cured.

Silliest horror movie — "Lifeforce." — The movie featured vampires that extracted a person's energy — or lifeforce — from his/her body.

The only trouble was that the chief vampire was a beautiful woman who spent most of the movie stark naked. Was I scared? No. Did I want her phone number? Definitely.

Best epic — "Out of Africa." This one, starring Meryl Streep and Robert Redford, was beautifully filmed, scripted and acted. It was so good I wanted to book the next plane for Nairobi.

Worst epic — "King Solomon's Mines" — not the original, but the 1986 version starring Richard Chamberlain. So full of cliches and so lacking in actual plot that I actually felt sorry that Chamberlain ever got out of television.

Best movie if you're planning an excursion to Alaska — "Never Cry Wolf." This is a beautiful movie, with enough stunning cinematography to cause sensory overload. After an hour, you'll be saying "Oh, wow," more than any refugee from Woodstock.

Most exploitative movie title — "Slave Girls from Beyond Infinity."

Most self-explanatory movie title — "Amber Pays the Rent." You figure it out.

Most self-explanatory movie title (horror division) — Tie between "I Spit on Your Grave," and "I Dismember Mama."

Best baby movie — "Three Men and a Cradle." After all these years, Tom Selleck finally has a hit. The irony, of course, is that his leading lady's three months old.

Worst baby movie — "Ernest Goes to Camp." OK, maybe Jim Varney is a grown-up in physical terms, but his brand of humor should insult anyone over the age of five weeks.

Best line — From "Raising Arizona." The gynecologist tells the movie's hero why he and his wife can't have a baby: "He told us that her insides were a rocky place, where my seed could find no purchase."

Second-best line — From "Bull Durham." After his pitcher has given up a home run, Kevin Costner walks out to the mound and says: "Whew! Anything that flies that fast ought to have a stewardess on board."

Worst line — From "Sheena, Queen of the Jungle." The hero gazes lovingly into the heroine's eyes and says: "I love you so much my heart could burst." And they say love is dead.

Next Sunday — more Jasons.

Bowling 'em over

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

The old saying "practice makes perfect" must be true.

Some 74 talented local youth bowlers have been practicing tournament etiquette since September to compete in June at the state bowling competition in Austin.

Among the competitors will be Big Spring's own back-to-back state title winner, Amy Hyden, daughter of Glenn and Karen Hyden.

The youths, whose ages range from five to 17, are members of Highland Lanes' Young American Bowling Alliance, where they are taught the basics of bowling, including the four-step approach, sportsmanship, bowling courtesy and teamwork.

Amy, 15, won her first state title in Lubbock in 1987. Her brother, Andy, and Emily Sanders, daughter of Richard and Debbie Sanders, also won the state title in doubles competition the same year.

Amy, who won her second competition in 1988 in Bryan and College Station, competed against more than 4,000 youth bowlers.

Amy, who works part-time with her mother in Highland Lanes' snack bar, said she practices nearly everyday during the summer.

Her mother, Karen, who also serves as YABA head coach, is assisted by James and Mary Wells, as well as 16 adult coaches and two student coaches.

The bowlers need sponsors and donations to make the trip and have already raised $1,300 by conducting bake sales, collecting aluminum cans, and selling raffle tickets.

All 27 local YABA bowlers that competed last year finished sixth place and above in the doubles, singles, team and all-events competition.

The YABA members meet every Saturday at 10 a.m. at Highland Lanes to practice their bowling skills. Participants must be at least two-years-old and must be able to carry a ball unassisted to the foul line.

A trophy is given every Saturday to winners in each division.

YABA members also volunteer their time to help with the local Special Olympics. "They run score machines, help the handicapped to the foul line and assist those in wheelchairs," Karen said.

Since some of the bowlers aren't involved in other sports, they appreciate the time and efforts Karen, her assistants and Harold Aberegg, owner of Highland Lanes, gives them.

"We really appreciate what they do for us," said a young bowler.

Apparently there is a demand among the youth for bowling perfection.

"These kids are our future league bowlers and pro-bowlers," Karen noted.

Local YABA members include: Erica Partlow, Lance Monteleone, Kirstin Marshall, Tyler Marshall, Misty Loyd, Janay Crow, Danielle Stokes, Kaci Stokes, Travis Maas, Ricky White, Jimmy White, Dawn White, Beth Ann White, John Paul White, Jay Theford, Kimberly Robertson.

Travis Maas watches the path of his bowling ball after releasing it towards the pins Wednesday afternoon. Travis and other YABA members were practicing at Highland Lanes.

Two youths stand in front of the YABA banner that hangs in Highland Lanes in the above left photo. The banner was signed by the 74 members that will go to Austin for state competition. Some of the 74 youths take time for a group picture in the above right photo.

Mike Schaefer, a member of the Young American Bowling Alliance, practices with other youths at Highland Lanes for the statewide tournament in Austin in June.

Cities preparing for rattlesnake roundup

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

"OK now, we'll watch Harley milk that snake. It's different from milking a cow. There's no stool here."

Gill Warren is explaining rattlesnakes to a crowd of people at the Sandhills Rattlesnake Show in Andrews.

"Experiments are underway to see if rattlesnake venom can be used in the treatment of AIDS."

Gill Warren has taken the microphone because the usual rattlesnake ringmaster, Bill Ransburger of Sweetwater, was bitten by a rattlesnake and is in the hospital. Dr. Brian Gordon cut a two-foot-long trench in Bill's right arm to stop the spread of the poisonous venom. The snake got Bill in an artery.

Andrews hosts the first rattlesnake show of the season in early February. Breckenridge has one later that month. The world's largest rattlesnake roundup is held the weekend of March 10 in Sweetwater. Some 40,000 people attend. Brownwood's rattlesnake event is March 17-19. Big Spring, which perhaps has the best and wildest show, is March 25th and 26th. This year's event in Big Spring features a rattlesnake meat cook-off. Jacksboro has a roundup April 1st and 2nd and Gainesville has one April 7-9.

The Andrews, Sweetwater, Jacksboro and Gainesville shows are primarily educational. Snakes are displayed in large wooden enclosures inside large exhibition halls. Members of the sponsoring organization (usually a service club) get inside the enclosures, pick up a microphone and demonstrate how to extract venom, explain what to do when you encounter a snake and how to treat a snakebite. Safety is stressed. Bill Ransburger was talking about safety with rattlesnakes in Andrews when he was bitten. Although he has been bitten by rattlesnakes 42 times, this is the first bite that put him in the hospital.

Other shows, such as the one in Big Spring, feature people performing daredevil stunts with the deadly reptiles. A bunch known as Mi Mo Jo puts a dozen rattlesnakes inside a sleeping bag, then one of their members crawls inside. A member of the "Pit Masters" picks up half a dozen snakes in each hand, holding them by their tails. Another picks up a coiled rattlesnake and puts the snake on his head. Still another lets a rattlesnake slither across his face.

Some shows feature rattlesnake sacking contests. Contestants see how many rattlesnakes they can pick up by hand and stuff into a bag within a certain amount of time.

Trophies and cash prizes are awarded to rattlesnake hunters for the most pounds of snakes brought in, the biggest snake and the one with the most rattles.

When you enter the exhibition buildings during rattlesnake shows, you hear the unmistakable sound of hundreds of snake rattles vibrating. Some people are thrilled by the sound. Others aren't.

The roundups charge admission and give the proceeds to local charities. This is a record year for rattlesnakes in a number of ways. First, the number of rattlesnakes is increasing, according to Ransburger. "They're breeding faster than we can catch them." And the price of rattlesnake meat is up to $8 a pound.

The skins, used for years as hatbands and belts, are now being made into vests, boots and even hats. More and more people are buying rattlesnake meat in gourmet food stores. The Chinese eat rattlesnake gall bladders to retain their youth.

With the high price of rattlesnakes, a lot of people are going to be out looking for snakes under rocky ledges. Doctors are expecting an increase in the number of rattlesnake bites this year.

Ransburger, who began the snake shows in Texas, hopes to be at his post March 10th talking about snakes to fascinated spectators at the rattlesnake roundup in his hometown of Sweetwater.

Ushers were Miles Brown, Miles; Kevin Roe, bride's brother-in-law, Robert Lee; and Allen McDowell, Cartersville.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at the church. The house party included Joy

Richardson, Janet Stewart and Mary Ann Lowe, San Angelo; and Karen Howard, bride's cousin, Gatesville. At the bridegroom's table were: Terry Chutz and Nancy Thompson, bridegroom's sisters.

Lanelle Petty, Gatesville, was guest registrar.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Zentner's Restaurant, San Angelo.

The bride was honored at a bridal shower Feb. 18 at First United Methodist Church.

Hostesses were: Lucy Knox, Jean Stripling, Mildred Anderson, Jane Thomas, Mauvis Jones, Lilian Staggs, Louise Boykin, Roberta Shive, Suncha Christensen, Talley Driver, Bobbie Wooten and Dee Rihard.

Special guests included the bride's sister, Tammy Roe; and the bridegroom's mother.

The hall was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of peach and green.

The hostesses presented the bride with stainless serving pieces and a place setting.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Gatesville High School, and Angelo State University. She is a secretary at Park Heights.

The bridegroom is a 1982 graduate of Forsan High School, and a 1986 graduate of Angelo State University, where he received a bachelor of science degree. He is a sales representative for Orkin.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Las Vegas.

"I've won a lot of little things — but nothing this big!" says Pam Campbell. Pam recently won a trip to Las Vegas in a drawing at Highland Mall.

She and husband Joel will consider the trip as a 10th wedding anniversary present. "Our anniversary was actually on Valentine's Day, but we couldn't get away then," Pam says.

Pam hasn't been to Las Vegas since she was 12 years old. "I didn't like it then," she says, "but now I'm real excited."

A visitor coming this way from Las Vegas is Katherine Monroe, who'll spend several weeks with her daughter, Judith Gray.

Katherine will also visit her sister, Bernice Davis, and her brother and his wife, Leonard and Mary Helen Hanson. They expect to take trips to see other relatives in El Paso and Waco while Katherine is here.

Katherine recently moved to Las Vegas from Bakersfield, Calif. Judith's brother, James Monroe, also lives in the city of casinos.

Deloris Albert is just back from Lubbock where she was present in the delivery room at the birth of her first great-grandchild.

The new arrival is Hope LaRae Teichman, daughter of Shelli Teichman, Stanton, a former Big Spring resident. The middle name beginning with an "L" is a family tradition, Deloris says.

Grandparents are Tim and Kari Judd, Modesta, Calif., former Big Spring residents; and Bill and Diane Teichman, Stanton.

Shirley Lee will be on crutches for the next six to eight weeks.

She was attending a fishing tournament at Lake Spence when she decided to step closer to watch the catch weigh-ins. The next thing she knew she was flat on the ground — with a broken ankle.

The hospital tried to make it all as painless as possible, she said. "They even asked me what color cast I'd like. Did you know you could get leg casts in colors now?" Shirley chose blue.

The second annual Vietnam Memorial Air Show has quietly gotten underway. It's set for Oct. 28-29 — a two-day event this year.

Already signed up are several noted professional acts — the "Golden Knights," crack Army parachute team; Jim Franklin, pilot, with Johnnie Kazian, wing-walker; Craig Hosking (his plane has wheels on the top and bottom!); and Zar, a costumed pilot who does a children's act.

Vaughn Martin is chairman for this year's show; others on the planning team are John Marshall, Rob McKenzie, Jeanine McKenzie and Charlie Lewis. Charlie is president of the Vietnam Memorial Committee, which again will benefit from show's proceeds.

At a professional seminar at the University of Texas at San Antonio School of Dentistry Thursday and Friday were Dr. David Rickey, Ann Olson, Darla Choate and Treva Hall.

They planned a quick trip to that city's big Inghram Mall when the day's studies were over.

Readers say 'golden years' is more than a phrase

DEAR ABBY: You blew it! "Christine in Albuquerque" voiced the thoughts I've held for a long time. The discounts given to senior citizens by parks, theaters, public transportation and restaurants are largely unjustified.

I, too, was under the misconception that today's seniors are a poor and hungry lot until I researched the subject. Imagine my surprise to learn that there are more poor people in my own age group (24 to 35) than there are in the senior citizen group!

Get with it, Abby. — CHRISTINE IN CLEVELAND

DEAR CHRISTINE: Believe me, I'm with it now. Did I get mail? Flog me with a Forbes! My desk is piled high with articles from The Wall Street Journal, Barron's, Time, Fortune and Money, plus various "studies" including figures, facts, graphs and charts. Read on for a peek at my mail:

DEAR ABBY: We've reached the point where senior citizens are getting a disproportionate amount of help from the government. Thanks to AARP, with a membership of 38 million, theirs is one of the most powerful lobbies in Washington.

Dear Abby

The working poor are the ones who could use some help. They frequently have no medical insurance and struggle to make ends meet from paycheck to paycheck. — COLUMBIA, MO.

DEAR ABBY: You owe Christine an apology. According to Time magazine, Feb. 22, 1988, during the Reagan administration, payments to the elderly have risen 35 percent. Now, more than 25 percent of all government spending goes to the 12 percent of the population who are 65 years old and older. Meanwhile, Aid to Dependent Children was cut 19 percent, and school meal programs were cut by 41 percent during the same period. Also noted in this article, the percentage of the elderly living below the poverty level was reduced from 20 percent in 1970 to 12 percent in 1984. — SENIOR, WILMINGTON, DEL.

DEAR ABBY: Of course there are some poor among the elderly in this country, but collectively, they are the wealthiest group of people in the United States. They have no house payments to pay, they're not educating children, they get Social Security and pensions, and spend their golden years on cruises and travel. No names, please. I'm one of them in... FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: Don't cry for the elderly. Senior citizens' per capita income is now higher than the average American's, and their median income has doubled since 1960. They hold title to about 50 percent of all household net worth, and 40 percent of all financial assets. — J.W. IN S.F.

DEAR READERS: Enough already! So next time I see an elderly bag lady, instead of offering her a few bucks for a meal, I may hit her up for a loan.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I each have our own car. They are about the same in value, equally safe, and both in good condition — so that is not an issue. My question: When we go out on a date, who drives? Maybe I should tell you that I have driven coast to coast and am as good a driver as he is. — SHERRI

DEAR SHERRI: If you're using his car, he drives. If you're using your car, you drive. If you'd rather have him drive your car, offer him the option because some men may feel a tad less than masculine if they're not in the driver's seat.

Wedding bells? Wedding bills! Who pays for what and everything else you need to know if you're planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Professional Grooming Advice:
Q.: How long in advance should a hair appointment be cancelled?
A.: An appointment is an arrangement for a meeting. Please try to cancel as soon as you know so the hairdresser can fill that time with someone else. It is very inconsiderate not to cancel an appointment if you cannot meet at that time. Call and try to reschedule at a more convenient time, at least call. Emergencies happen and a hairdresser realizes this. When we are left waiting for a client and they don't show then we have possibly turned other clients away. Time and money have been lost. We understand your time is as important as ours. We try to remember that, and appreciate your patronage and thoughtfulness.

Cleaning products

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

There are several simple, traditional cleaning aids which can be used for both general and specific cleaning tasks.

Ammonia, baking soda and borax are weak alkalis. Since some soils are acidic in nature, these and alkaline materials can be helpful in their removal.

Ammonia is a volatile alkali and hence leaves no solid residue on drying, making it easier to rinse off completely. The combination of volatility and mild alkalinity is the reason why low levels of ammonia are frequently found in formulated glass cleaners. Ammonia can also be used in wax-stripping.

Baking soda, in dry form, provides a scratchless abrasive action. This action helps in removing soil because the baking soda crystal is harder than soil, but softer than sensitive surfaces such as fiberglass. As previously stated, baking soda can also act to deodorize refrigerators and freezers where it destroys and also absorbs food odors.

Borax, a white, crystalline, mildly alkaline, water soluble salt is used as a deodorizer and household cleaner.

For soils which respond to an acid cleaner — hard water deposits, for example, — a mild acid like Vinegar may be effective.

Bleach, liquid chlorine bleach in particular, is well established in laundry practices for removing stains on fabrics. Bleach is similarly effective on stains found on hard surfaces. In addition, chlorine bleach is a strong disinfectant and kills mildew and many other fungi.

Ammonia, vinegar and chlorine bleach give off strong characteristic odors, which to most users may be less pleasant than those given off by formulated products.

Then, too, the materials discussed here are relatively simple chemicals. In fully formulated products, manufacturers have the opportunity of providing multiple functionality — cleaning through inclusion of a surfactant, for example — so that, in general, a formulated product will provide the user with advantages in performance and convenience.

Even though the products in this section have been employed for many years, some cautions should be observed when using them. Household cleaning products should never be mixed together. As an example, avoid mixing products containing chlorine bleach with products containing ammonia or acids. Such mixtures can release hazardous gases.

All household products should be stored in the containers in which they were originally purchased. Products should not be removed from their original containers and stored in unlabeled jars, bottles, etc., that lack the cautionary language present on product labels.

Director plans to phase out antiquated U.S. leper colony

CARVILLE, La. (AP) — Leprosy treatment has come a long way since the days when victims of the disfiguring disease were forcibly detained here.

Hansen's Disease can be treated almost exclusively on an outpatient basis now, and the director of the only leper colony in the continental United States plans to phase out the antiquated facility set up when victims were outcasts.

But Dr. John C. Duffy doesn't intend for the work of the Gillis W. Long Hansen's Disease Research Center to be lost as its buildings age along with its 140 permanent patients, who average 65 years old. One outgrowth of leprosy research has led to help for diabetics, for example.

"Our research is outstanding, but our physical plant is a disaster," said Duffy, citing an Office of Management and Budget study. He wants to move the center's acute care, research and education functions, to Baton Rouge.

The colony was opened in 1894 on an old plantation when the state ferried five men and two women up the Mississippi River under cover of night from a New Orleans "pest house." The federal government took control in 1921 and as many as 500 permanent residents were housed during the 1930s. Most of the 330-acre complex of white, plantation-style buildings connected by a maze of enclosed walkways was built during the '30s by the Works Progress Administration.

"It was a very different patient population," Duffy said. "They were young, non-immigrant and they were mainstream Americans."

Leprosy victims were arrested and forcibly detained here until after World War II, when drugs were found that stopped the contagiousness and progression of the disease. Over time, fewer patients took up permanent residence.

The center, which has treated nearly 3,000 patients, survived when the Reagan administration in 1984 closed seven other hospitals operated by the U.S. Public Health Service. The late U.S. Rep. Gillis W. Long spearheaded a drive to save it, but federal officials suggested research be done by either the Centers for Disease Control or the National Institutes of Health.

Leprosy, a bacterial infection, attacks the skin, flesh and nerves, and is characterized by scabs, deformities and eventual loss of sensation. There are an estimated 6,000 to 10,000 U.S. cases, but up to 20 million worldwide.

"We will continue to receive men, women and children with this disease. It's not an excludable disease," Duffy said. "You can have it and you can come into this country. Because the incubation period is sometimes six to eight years somebody can come into this country with no idea they have the disease."

Dr. John C. Duffy stands in front of the administration building at the Gillis Long Hansen's Disease Research Center in Carville, La. The facility is the only leper colony in the continental United States.

Research needs to continue at the center, he said. For one thing, the work takes hundreds of armadillos, the only nonhuman animal that gets the disease, and "there is no room at either CDC or NIH for the armadillos."

Also, "All the experts are here. They are not in Bethesda or Atlanta."

The center could take rental space in Baton Rouge without increasing its $18 million annual budget, he said.

All major advances in leprosy treatment — drugs, armadillorelated discoveries and two generations of vaccines with limited effectiveness — came from Carville's researchers, said Duffy, who fears that research would be downgraded if it was moved to another agency.

"It's one of the paradoxes of the disease that as far as scientists are concerned, their interest is almost always elsewhere than on this disease," he said. "It's not the kind of research for which you will win a Nobel Prize."

"As a result, the scientific community has paid scant or little attention to this disease. There is this group that has almost, in a sense, religiously dedicated their lives to this disease, that are centered here."

But even the worst cases discovered today can be handled through one of 11 regional treatment centers or by private doctors. For example, a victim whose disease progressed while he was confined in a Cambodian prison is undergoing outpatient treatment in San Francisco.

Thalidomide, notorious for causing congenital birth defects, is one drug that controls the disease. The drug of choice is diamindiphenyl sulfone, first used in leprosy treatment in 1941 by Dr. Guy Faget at Carville. Two other drugs — Rifampin and Clofazimine — have been tested successfully in recent years, and research continues because the bacteria is becoming resistant to sulfone drugs.

New admissions to Carville are mostly patients with reactions to the drug treatment or have diagnostic problems. After a few weeks, they go home.

Research into the loss of feeling in hands and now is being put to work for diabetics, who often require amputations after foot injuries stemming from the lack of sensation in their extremities.

About 500 diabetics have been treated here for foot problems such as ulcers with special casts that allow healing and mobility, said Dr. Charles Patout, chief of rehabilitation. "The techniques we've developed here could reduce the number of amputations among diabetics, about 50,000 a year, by 90 percent."

Of the diabetics treated at Carville, only two have undergone amputations. Duffy would like to see more diabetics take advantage of Carville, but he admits the stigma of leprosy may keep many patients from coming to the center. That is another reason to move treatment facilities to Baton Rouge.

As far as the permanent colony residents are concerned, the federal government should continue to care for them at Carville, he said, especially because of the traditional stigma. "Private nursing homes wouldn't take them.

The founding partners of Sun Country Realtors, Inc. based the premise of their company on service to their clients. Shown are (left to right)

Janell Davis, Patti Horton and Janelle Britton, placing a "For Sale" sign at another prestigious Big Spring property.

Growth Local realtors earn coveted rank

Sun Country Realtors, which opened in 1981, continues to grow and be a leader in Big Spring.

"We believe in Big Spring more than ever," says Patti Horton, one of the partners in the firm. "All of us at Sun Country own our own homes here and feel that is the best commitment to making Big Spring 'our home town'."

The staff at Sun Country have distinguished themselves by achieving professional plateaus: the three partners — Patti Horton, Janelle Britton and Janell Davis — are all three GRI-CRS designees.

GRI — Graduate Realtor Institute — is a prerequisite for the CRS designation — Certified Residential Specialist. Termed the "finishing touch" to a career in real estate, the CRS designation is awarded by the Realtors National Marketing Institute to those who have "achieved a superior level of knowledge by completing prescribed courses, and ... proved competence through documented practical experience."

"Of 2,000,000 persons with real estate licenses in the United States, only 10,000 are CRS designees," says Horton. "Sun Country Realtors has the only three designees in Big Spring."

The homebuyer or seller would do well to learn the significance of these designations when selecting a realtor.

Horton has been a realtor since 1976, and a broker since 1978. She acquired her GRI in 1981 and CRS in 1983. In addition, she has completed courses in real estate appraisal practice, 1985; residential valuation, 1986, and standards of professional practice, 1987 — all courses of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

Janell Davis has been in the profession continuously since 1976, and became a broker in 1982. She acquired her GRI designation in 1983 and her CRS in 1989.

Janelle Britton began her career in real estate sales in 1977, and earned her broker's license in 1980. She acquired her GRI in 1987 and CRS in 1988.

Katie Grimes, broker, entered real estate sales in 1983, received her broker's license in 1985, and completed requirements for GRI in mid-1986. Grimes was named Big Spring's Woman of the Year for 1989 for her professional and community achievements.

Connie Helmes, a sales associate since 1983, is currently working on her GRI courses. She is licensed to sell property and casualty, life and health insurance.

Sun Country maintains an average inventory of 150 residential and commercial listings. As a member of Multiple Listing Service (MLS), she can show any property.

The firm is a member of Homeowners Marketing Services, Inc., the nation's leading independent supplier of real estate support services with thousands of participating firms coast to coast.

Through this affiliation Sun Country can now offer home warranties to sellers and buyers which will eliminate the possibility of major costly repairs during the time the home is on the market and for the first year of occupancy.

"Our motto is 'Professional Service with a Personal Touch,' says Horton. "We treat people equally, no matter what price home they have to sell, or what price home they want to buy."

If you are thinking of buying or selling a home or other property, go by Sun Country by 2009 S. Gregg or phone them at 267-3613.

West-Tex Telephone Cooperative, Inc. hereby gives notice that it has filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas a proposed Private Pay Telephone Service tariff on January 18, 1989. A complete copy of the filing is available for review at the Cooperative's offices at West Highway 80, Stanton, Texas.

Card Of Thanks 693

Dear Friends
of Judge M.L. (Milton) Kirby
On February 20, 1989, our community lost a friend. We lost a Husband, a Father, and a PaPaw. Judge Kirby loved his God and he served his country. He was devoted to his family and cared for the people he served. We will miss him. Many are able to do his job. None will take his place. Thank you for your love and prayers, the memorials, floral arrangements, food, phone calls, cards and other expressions of sympathy shown our family,
The Family of County Judge M.L. (Milton) Kirby</

New Doctors Discovery
Weight Loss Pill
Approved for U.S. Gov't. Patent
 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight Already Sweeping U.S.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally"
 Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body
 The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat
 According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public
 If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W842, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free 1(800) 527-9700, ext. W842.
