Big Spring federal prison plans on again

Staff Writer

City officials will renew negotiations with the Federal Bureau of Prisons to bring a level II federal prison to Big Spring.

By a vote of 5-0, the council approved an intergovernmental agreement allowing the city to continue negotiations with the bureau of prisons and Mid-Tex Dentention Centers, owned by developer Ed Davenport.

The aim of the negotiations will be to acquire contracts with Mid-Tex and the federal government that will allow the city of Big Spring to own and operate a level II federal prison.

If a contract is reached the prison would enable the city to realize revenues of approximately $100,000 per year, according to city

At a 11 a.m. news conference preceding a special meeting of the city council today, Boyd said recent developments have led the city and Mid-Tex to revise proposals for the ownership and operation of the prison. On June 14, 1988, the city council approved the signing of a letter of intent with Mid-Tex, which then began renovation of the former Homestead Inn Motel into an Immigration and Naturalization Service minimum security prison.

Initial plans stipulated that Mid-Tex would own and operate the facility; and the city of Big Spring was to "act as the contracting agent with the federal government," Boyd said.

The city had planned to pay the ad valorem taxes on the facility, provided a contract was executed between the city and the federal government

In return, the city was to receive approximately $1 per day per inmate from the Federal Bureau of Prisons for each inmate housed by

However in December, the council was notified that the bureau of prisons would not allow contracts to be consumated that did not provide for complete governmental control and ownership of federal

The council met in executive session about the matter on Dec. 13, and city officials have declined to comment publicly on the matter of federal prisoners, Boyd said.

On Feb. 21, the city received a bureau of prisons proposal to con-

The proposed agreement re-"the contractor to provide proof that the legal right-to-use the facility is in the name of the city of Big Spring and further that at least 75 percent of the staff be full-time employees of the city...," Boyd

Mid-Tex has made a series of proposals that would allow the city to "lease-purchase the facility from them and additionally have proposed to provide a core of contract staff with the knowledge, skills and abilities to operate the facility in accordance with the federal standards," Boyd said.

Boyd emphasized that the intergovernmental agreement 'would not require the expenditure of any city...funds nor the utilization of any existing staff to implement this program.

'The proposed budgets and anticipated revenues have been carefully scrutinized and the results indicate that the facility PRISON page 3-A

That's the message Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, delivered Tuesday when he toured Big Spring's Avantech Corporation and spoke to a group of people from the Chamber of Commerce and Big Spring Industrial Foundation.

"We need more home-grown businesses based on new technology," said Gramm, who was praised for his efforts to recruit industries to Texas. "We need to grow our own companies, developing new products and new ideas," he said.

Gramm called the local robotics company, "an exciting new company . . . developing products that are important to us." Robotics is an especially appealing field because of its poten- year per pumping jack. tial to save human lives by using disposal, he said.

"It can create larger net returns (and) get production costs down. As I understand it, it can save as much as $500 (per pumping jack) a year," he said.

Gramm said he understands concerns about robots being used in ways that threaten human life, but said, "Almost anything science builds can be used or misused."

In other matters, Gramm called President Bush's proposal to raise the minimum wage by 90 cents a "reasonable compromise" and said he will vote for it over Massachusetts Sen. Ted Kennedy's proposal to raise the wage by $1.35.

"If minimum wage laws worked I'd vote for them," he said of his own position on a wage increase. Gramm said he would prefer to use the money intended to raise the minimum wage to improve the educational system. 'That would do more for the economy (than raising the minimum wage)," he said.

In reference to the failed John Tower nomination for secretary of defense, Gramm said he was disappointed by mudslinging that occurred during the nomination

Burglars hit at least seven houses and one business for more $9,000 in the last 48 hours, Big Spring police Capt. Lonnie Smith confirmed today.

There has been a significant increase in burglaries," Smith said,

Many of the burglaries were reported Tuesday night between the hours of 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. and many of the offenses occurred within blocks of each other, police reports said. Smith said some of the crimes have "some relationship" with other burglaries.

VCR's and guns have been some of the main targets for burglars because the items can be easily resold, he said. Other items reported missing in the police reports include jewelry, coins, money, furniture, microwaves and other appliances

Smith said the chances of people getting their things back "fluctuates" depending on if people's valuables have serial numbers and what kinds of leads police have to

Asked if Spring Break and the resulted extra juveniles out on the street might be contributing to the new crimes, he said, "I don't know if I'd go that far." He did say, "a lot of the crimes we have are youth related.'

Convicted killer put to death

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Texas inmate Leon King was executed early today for abducting and then killing a Houston-area man nearly 11 years ago by smashing his victim's head repeatedly with the butt of a shotgun.

King, 44, showed little reaction as he received lethal injection for the April 1978 slaying of Michael Clayton Underwood, 26, of Baytown.

"I would like to tell Mr. Richard I appreciate all he has done for me," he said to Richard Wall, one of five witness his execution. "I love you all. God bless.

He closed his eyes, heaved a sigh as the drugs began to take hold and then stopped breathing.

He was declared dead at 12:27

"It's about time," Doug Shaver, an assistant district attorney who handled King's case, said.

Shaver, now a Houston judge, said King never expressed remorse for the slaying of Underwood. "If anyone deserves the death penalty, it's him," Shaver said.

Underwood's family declined to talk about the execution. 'We are apprised always of what is going on," his mother, Mrs. C.J. Underwood, of Houston, said. "But we really do not have any desire to friends he was allowed to invite to make any comment. I don't think it would serve any purpose.

King on Tuesday lost last-minute appeals before a federal district judge in Houston, a federal appeals court in New Orleans and the U.S. Supreme Court. His attorneys cona.m. CST, 10 minutes after the tended King, who had prior conviclethal dose began to flow into his tions for burglary, forgery and drug possession, suffered from organic brain damage. They unsuccessfully raised 11 challenges to his death sentence.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said King admitted to at least 30 arrests and acknowledged fathering at least eight illegitimate children.

According to court records, Underwood and his 19-year-old girlfriend were abducted at gunpoint from a Houston nightclub April 10, 1978 and taken to a remote area where Underwood was beaten to death.

Dr. Ethel Erickson, the medical examiner who performed the autopsy on Underwood, compared the damage to that one would suffer if they were run over by an 18-wheel truck.

ple was carrying only $11.50. After Underwood was killed, the woman was repeatedly raped and sodomized but survived the five-hour ordeal and identified King and Carter as her attackers.

This was a particularly brutal murder, one that was totally senseless to an unarmed and defenseless individual," said Mattox, who witnessed the execution.

King was sentenced to death. Carter, who could not be sentenced to death because he was only 16 at the time of the crime, is serving a life prison term. King, an 11th-grade dropout who worked as a bricklayer, refused to be interviewed by reporters in the weeks preceding his death date.

AUSTIN — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower talks Tuesday about a new program designed to reduce hunger. The Texas SOS, or Sharing Our Surplus, is a cooperative effort.

Commission to fight hunger across state

AUSTIN (AP) - Farmers, government, business and nonprofit agencies are among those working together to fight hunger through the new Texas Sharing Our Surplus Task Force, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said.

"Our goal is not to hve a bunch of meetings. Our goal is to try to solve the problems and begin to move food out of the fields of Texas into the kitchens of the people who need it," Hightower told a Tuesday news conference.

Among members of the SOS Task Force are representatives of the Christian Life Commission; Texas Catholic Conference; Second Harvest; Dallas, Laredo and Houston food banks; Texas AFL-CIO; H.E.B. Food Stores; Texas Farmers Union; Texas Motor Transportation Association; Valley Fruit and Vegetable Company; San Antonio Farmers Market Association; Urban League; some state agencies; and officials from Travis, Lubbock and Castro counties.

The task force will address the problems of food transportation to points of distribution; harvesting of surplus food in the field; farm liability for donated food; and communication, matching those who produce surplus food with transporters and distributors capable of handling it in a timely manner.

"By working together, we can pool our resources to create a statewide food distribution system," Hightower said.

After supplies and capabilities are identified, he said, a coordinated system could be developed around a toll-free food hotline that should be able to more 1 million pounds of suprlus Texas food to those who need it.

Four million Texans were in need of emergency assistance at some point during the past year.

Business

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) -The death of 2.7 million chickens and turkeys from an early March ice and snow storm that crushed poultry houses was a severe setback for producers.

And industry experts said the most lasting damage from the storms stem from the deaths of brood hens, which are poultry producers' lifeblood.

Ken Klippen, vice president of United Egg Producers in Atlanta, estimated losses in Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas at between 1.5 and 2 million brood hens, worth about $55 million. The losses represented just under 1 percent of the nation's egg-laying chickens, he said.

For every 1 percent change in supply, a corresponding 5 percent change in price usually occurs, Klippen said.

Wholesale prices in New York, considered an industry benchmark, rose to 98 cents a dozen for Grade A large white eggs from 90 to 92 cents before the storm hit, said Jack Ross, an economist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington. Prices in mid-February averaged about 66 cents a dozen, he said.

The three states have about 7.5 percent of the nation's 230 million brood hens, Klippen said. Arkansas, with 9 million of them, suffered the greatest losses in the

The damage came at a time when egg prices already were rising because of traditionally heavy holiday demand, he said.

Ross said there is a good balance between production and demand, rather than a shortage of eggs. Prices will drop again after Easter, he said.

The last time egg prices reached current levels was in 1984, when an on the poultry industry," said Gene influenza outbreak decimated Pennsylvania flocks and pushed wholesale prices above the dollar a dozen mark, Ross said.

'Each dead brooder hen represents about 150 chicks that won't be produced," said Lyndon Irwin, a professor of poultry science at Southwest Missouri State University. "You have to consider all the potential eggs she could have produced in her lifetime.

In all, the storm destroyed about 600 poultry houses in Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma. About 2.7 million chickens died in Missouri and 3.9 million in Oklahoma. Total damage in the three states has been estimated at about $100

Missouri officials say the storm was the worst disaster ever to hit the state's poultry industry. And McDonald County, which bills itself as the "Poultry Capital of Missouri," was hardest hit.

"Our county's economy is based

Hall, the McDonald County clerk. "It's the largest employer off the farm as well as on the farm. It's probably going to take a year or longer to recover. Lost production will occur in the poultry processing plants down the line because of the loss of breeding hens and hatcheries."

The good news for the region's poultry producers is that, while the effects of the storm might last, the recent discovery of heptachlortainted chicken feed that led to the destruction of 400,000 chickens in Arkansas should result in only short-term problems. "In 1987 we produced 879 million chickens here in Arkansas, so this 400,000, that's kind of a drop in the bucket," said Lowell Lankford, a University of Arkansas Extension poultryman.

He said it takes six to seven weeks to grow a chicken for market, so farmers should recover quickly from the effects of the banned, cancer-causing pesticide.

Continental officials, meanwhile, dismissed claims by its flight attendants that their walkout, which began Monday by the Union of Flight Attendants, was hampering flight schedules.

Union officials, however, said they were having a growing impact on Continental operations, and that the airline was hiding the effects of the strike.

The Continental flight attendants say they are striking to protest wages of $11,000 to $15,000 a year.

Poison grapes and terrorism

The sudden, massive disruption of Chilean fruit imports to the United States because of two poisoned grapes found in Philadelphia illustrates yet again the shocking power of terrorists to subvert civilized order.

Although the Chilean government blames this abhorrent act of terror on the Communist Party, investigators may never determine with confidence who injected cyanide into the red seedless grapes. The Food and Drug Administration intercepted the deadly fruit after an unidentified telephone caller to the U.S. embassy in Santiago vowed to contaminate Chilean exports.

What is inescapable, however, is the wide-scale economic destruction caused by this simple, anonymous action.

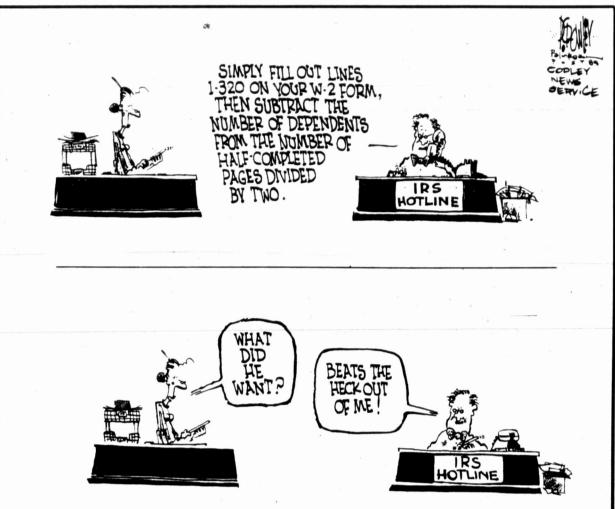

As many as 200,000 Chilean fruit pickers, processors, truck drivers, dockworkers, and other agricultural laborers have been thrown out of work. Chile's $860-million-a-year fruit-export industry, a vital element of the country's growing economy, has been dealt a potentially crippling blow at the height of the harvest.

The tampering comes at a time when Chile is going through a tense transition to democracy after 15 years of dictatorial rule under Augusto Pinochet. Any of a number of political groups, including the communists, could have tainted the grapes in a bid to disrupt the economy and thereby undercut the process toward democracy.

Along with the Chilean fruit exporters, American consumers have been held hostage once again by the loathsome intrusion of terrorists. The unfortunate fact is that the modern world can never be made absolutely safe from ruthless, indiscriminate terror, whether it is directed against airline passengers, passersby on a crowded urban street, or grocery shoppers.

For civilized persons who cannot comprehend why such barbaric acts are committed, the case of the Chilean grapes demonstrates anew that terrorism is common because it pays such inordinate dividends.

By JACK ANDERSON and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON - When Gen. Duane Cassidy visits Andrews Air Force Base outside of Washington, D.C., he doesn't tool around in a drab military jeep. The four-star general has a midnight blue Mercedes at his disposal.

The 1981 Mercedes 240D sits outside the Andrews Officers' Club when it isn't in use. We asked base officials if taxpayers' dollars bought the car. Certainly not, they

The reality is even worse. The general's chariot was paid for out of the base's "Morale, Recreation and Welfare Fund." The money in the fund is raised privately from the enlisted personnel to maintain libraries and tennis courts and to buy fishing poles and other recreation equipment for everyone on the base to use.

The Mercedes certainly must boost somebody's morale, but that defense will publicly commend Ansomebody isn't the average

Sources at the base told our associate Jim Lynch that the Mercedes was likely the brainstorm of the base Wing Commander Col. William Phillips. He apparently wanted to treat Cassidy to a little extra comfort when the general visits — at least two to four days each month. Cassidy is stationed at Scott Air Force Base in Illinois and is in charge of the Air Force Transportation Command, which oversees the military's air and ground transportation needs. A guy like that obviously deserves the best ground transportation money can buy.

It took Andrews officials more than a week to get back to us with an explanation for the Mercedes. After taking that much time to think, the base came up with these half-baked arguments: The Mercedes "is used primarily for official club business" and "has also been used to support senior officers and other protocol functions.' Translation: When officers want to make an impression or feel like a big shot, they wheel out the

Grizzard Tyson's next

opponent By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Somebody asked me recently: Would you go into the ring with Mike Tyson for a million dollars?

My answer was a simple "no." Mike Tyson is the heavyweight boxing champion of the world, and I have seen him nearly take off the heads of men twice my size and half my age. A million wouldn't be enough.

"OK," the questioner went on, "how about two million?"

"Nope. "Ten million?"

"Let me think about it."

I thought about it.

"All I would have to do for the 10 million is answer the bell, right?"

"That's all."
"OK," I said, "I'd go into the ring with Mike Tyson for $10

Ten million would just about do it for me in my quest to retire filthy

I'd buy myself a couple of houses

Gucci loafers. All filthy rich retired men should have a pair of white Gucci loafers

I'd buy myself a Rolls-Royce convertible, a red one, and hire somebody to chauffeur me around, and I would insist my driver agree to wear a hat. A chauffeur without a hat is hardly worth having.

Then, I'd buy myself a pet goat, only because filthy rich retired people are usually eccentric, and buying a pet goat is pretty strange. Now, as to my ring appearance with Mike Tyson.

I never was much of a fighter. The only boy in my class I could vas a sickly sort and ne missed a lot of time at school, so I never got much practice fighting when I was growing up. Most of my fighting as an adult has been with women, and all of that has been of the verbal variety, although one of my ex-wives did punch me in the stomach once because I forgot the anniversary of the first time we kissed on the mouth.

I'd do a little training before my fight with Tyson so I wouldn't look so puny in my boxing trunks with no shirt on.

I'm 6-foot-1 and weigh 185, but my arms and legs are very skinny. I'd pump a little iron to keep the laughing down to a minimum when I took off my robe in the ring — the one that would have "Lewis (Tarzan) Grizzard" stitched on the back

A fighter without a nickname is like a chauffeur without a hat, and couldn't think of anything that rhymed with Grizzard (I don't pronounce it like lizard, smart-aleck), so that's why I went with Tarzan.

I have at least some pride, so I would wait for Tyson to throw a punch before I would go down. I mean I wouldn't just walk out there after the bell and fall down there and pretend to be unconscious before Tyson could get his first shot at me

What I would hope to do is dodge Tyson's opening salvo, so as to take only a grazing blow. Then, I would fall down flat on my back and refuse to get up again until I had been assured by members of the boxing commission that Tyson had, in fact, left the arena.

If I had to, I'd remain on the canvas all night. Then, I'd get my check for the 10 million and name my goat "Sugar Ray.

Pet goats won't hit you in the stomach nor take your money in a divorce. Too bad Mike Tyson didn't know that and I didn't think of it

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

And Terry Anderson, prisoner of Beirut, has seen none of it. Incredibly, it has been four years since the Saturday morning the telephone rang with word that

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, had been kidnapped by gunmen on the way home from a game of tennis.

At the time, it seemed to his editors and others among his colleagues that the kidnapping probably was an outrageous scare tactic aimed at reporters, and that Anderson would be held for a day, perhaps a few days.

That had happened before, to other journalists, in the chaos among the factions still battling in Beirut

But the days stretched into a sentence that has passed its fourth year with no sign of a way out. The signal dates that might be chosen for release — a birthday, then another and another; the presidential election; the Bush inauguration — have passed with no respite for Anderson. The first and only declared demand of the captors was for the release of radical Moslems imprisoned in Kuwait for terrorist activities.

In his inaugural address, Bush spoke of the hostages, Anderson and eight other Americans seized after he was taken. Reagan seldom had spoken of their captivity since the scandal that embroiled his administration over the sale of arms to Iran. Three American hostages were freed in Lebanon during the arms deal period of 1985 and 1986.

'There are today Americans who are held against their will in foreign lands and Americans who are unaccounted for," Bush said.

"Assistance can be shown here, and will be long remembered. Good will begets good will."

Four years of captivity for Terry Anderson

In an interview, Bush was more explicit, saying that he looked to a day of better U.S. relations with Iran and saw the hostage issue as one that could help lead to such a thaw. He said that while Tehran clearly has influence over the captors, he is not certain the Iranian government has clear control of the hostage situation. At the same time, Bush said there would be no change in the U.S. policy against concessions or ransom to free hostages, a policy Reagan declared but abridged during the arms sales. "We are not going to escalate the currency of holding Americans hostages," he

One gesture that could be made within that framework remains pending but stalled. It is the standing U.S. offer of compensation to the families of 290 people killed when a U.S. warship mistakenly shot down an Iran Air jetliner over the Persian Gulf on July 3, 1988.

The State Department said the United States remains committed to compensation payments, but that Iran has not provided information about the families, data needed to determine payment levels

The U.S. offer was to make payments directly to families, not through the Iranian government. While the administration has barred concessions for hostage and set up a distribution system.

release, it has said it is willing to talk with the captors. But there has been no direct contact, official or for hostage families. That silence intensifies the frustration for Anderson's colleagues who are, after all, communicators, accustomed to asking questions, gaining information, getting answers. So when they gather, as at Thursday's fourth anniversary, they deliver to one another their message to the captors, words that may find a way to the faction holding Anderson in Beirut.

They say that holding Anderson and the other hostages is no way to tell a story but is, instead, damaging the Moslem image. They say that kidnappers keep out reporters who would otherwise come to learn and tell others about Lebanon.

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The United States resumed talks today with the PLO, saying it planned to ask that steps be taken to ease tensions in the occupied lands but not demand an end to the Palestinian uprising.

The meeting, the second between United States and PLO officials since Washington lifted its 13-year embargo on official contacts with the group in December, began shortly after noon at a Tunisian government guesthouse in the northern surburb of Carthage.

Sources in Washington have said Secretary of State James A. Baker III's strategy is to seek reciprocal gestures from the PLO and Israel to calm the occupied

"We will not be asking for an end to the intefadeh (uprising), but for practical steps that can be taken to reduce the tension and reduce the suffering," said a U.S. Embassy official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The PLO, backed by much of Western Europe, wants an international peace conference involving all the parties directly concerned by the Arab-Israeli conflict and under the aegis of the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council -the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France.

Israel rejects such a conference. Washington does not seem as adamantly opposed to it as it once was.

Philippines to sell Marcos jewelry

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino's government plans to sell $14 million in jewels that Imelda Marcos left behind in 1986, when she and former President Ferdinand Marcos fled the country, officials said today.

Officials also plan to sell three vacation houses they allege were built illegally by the couple with government money.

Chairman Mateo Caparas of the Presidential Commission on Good Government said the money from the sale of the gems and houses will be used to finance the government's land reform program.

Caparas told reporters he allow his commission to sell the said in a telephone interview.

gems, appraised in 1986 at about $14 million, as well as the houses. Officials said at least two boxes of jewelry, left behind by Mrs. Marcos at the presidential palace during the February 1986 uprising that toppled Marcos' 20-year regime, are now kept in a Central Bank vault.

Commission member Rosalio de Leon said the agency plans to sell at least three vacation homes belonging to the Marcoses, which they allegedly built with public funds

"We will try to determine which houses are already deteriorating. The ones which are expensive to maintain and are not income-producing will be sold would ask an anti-graft court to through public bidding," de Leon

Sakharov still in running for seat

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei D. nominated for the 20 legislative Sakharov's bid for a seat in the new Soviet legislature may be revived now that the Soviet Academy of Sciences has rejected most of the candidates on the officially backed slate.

The outcome means the academy will have to vote again, giving Sakharov another chance for election to the 2,250-seat Congress of People's Deputies. Academy members had left the human rights activist off the official slate.

But members of the prestigious academy on Tuesday approved just eight of the 23 candidates Afghanistan.

seats alloted to the academy, the official Tass news agency reported.

Sakharov, a physicist, and other reform-minded academicians had called for rejection of the old-guard candidates.

Sakharov, meeting with other academy members today, said the outcome of Tuesday's vote is a victory for those seeking greater democracy. Sakharov, a Nobel Peace Prize laureate, spent almost seven years in internal exile for criticizing the Kremlin's military drive into

Lunch in 30 minutes

You have to have lunch in 30 minutes? What to do? First, just calm down. Believe me, it's not a crisis. This is so easy, it's embarrassing to give it to you. It is called

"TUNA TERMINATOR." Get your ingredients together.

You will need: Tuna (one can) Bread crumbs Celerv

Tomatoes (two) Sweet pickle relish

First, drain the tuna, then add about three quarter cup of bread crumbs, a half cup of chopped celery, a half cup of salad dressing, and quarter cup of milk. Chop up the onion and add two tablespoons of relish. Mix these ingredients. Next, slice three tomatoes, put the slices on leaves, and top with the tuna mixture. Elapsed time? About 20 minutes

Simple, isn't it? Where's the hot stove? Now you're beginning to get the idea. You are catching on to women's secrets. A lot of what women would have us believe is sheer propaganda. Let's face the facts. Women have been afraid to be honest with us. For centuries, they have held us down, making us feel inferior. But, if we band together, and persevere, we shall overcome, and take our rightful place in the kitchen.

I know you're wondering why I call this dish "Tuna Terminator," instead of Tuna Salad. Well, when the kids come in for lunch, a lot of times they yell and whine about not liking tuna salad. You could use your wife's rejoinder, "Eat it. It's good for you." I have a different reply, hence the name. "Shut up! Eat it or die!" I'm a little more direct than my your hand at a cheery holiday brunch. With just a minimum of planning and this simple menu plan, you can prepare a festive mid-morning buffet for eight and feel confident that your efforts will be the hit of the season.

The menu is tailor-made for beginning cooks and first-time entertainers. Most of the menu conveniently cooks together in the oven; the remainder of the meal can be prepared the day before the brunch. With only a few last-minute details, the entire meal will be ready when your guests arrive Traditionally, the natural choice for any company-special Easter meal is a convenient versatile ham. The size of the boneless ham you select will depend upon the number of guests you expect and your plans for leftovers. A boneless "fully-cooked" ham provides four to five servings per pound. A ham half is just right when you prepare Honey Glazed Ham, an entree that combines the flavor of savory ham with a comforting honey glaze that gets an appealing boost from ground allspice.

HONEY GLAZED

Preparation time: 5 minutes: cooking time: 54 minutes to 1 hour and 40 minutes

3 to 4-pound boneless, fullycooked ham half 14 cup packed light brown sugar 1 tbs. honey

1/4 tsp. ground allspice Place ham on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 325 degree F. oven until temperature registers 130 degrees F. to 140 degrees F. Allow approximately 18 to 25 minutes per pound. Meanwhile, combine brown sugar, honey and allspice with fork; mixture will be dry and crumbly. Carefully spread mixture over ham 15 minutes before end of cooking time. Note: A boneless, fully-cooked smoked ham will yield four to five 3-ounce cooked, trimmed serv ings per pound.

Arrest detachment

Soldiers arrest Jesus on the Mount of Olives

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first story in a three-part Easter series, "The Military and Jesus," about Jesus and his involvement with the Roman rulers of the time, based on the Bible and historical and ancient noncanonical Christian writings.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

"Fall in!" The Roman troops, roused from their barracks in the second watch of night, sleepily formed ranks in the compound alongside the towering Fortress Antonia in the military-ruled colony of Judea.

Orders for the covert midnight arrest of the Galilean agitator, Jesus, had come directly from the Roman procurator, Pontius Pilate. The company centurion slapped his "vitus" staff of command against his leg. Lanterns on the wall cast flickering streaks on the cobblestones and the helmets and bucklers worn by scores of

It seemed an unnecessarily heavy force to deploy for seizing this single hinterlands rabbi. One biblical account says an entire Roman "cohort," 600-strong, was involved, although such designations were commonly applied to units short of a full complement. Some scholars believe a smaller contingent, perhaps reduced by the centurion's assessment of the situation, assembled that night.

The officer certainly didn't want a massed parade through the incendiary city of Jerusalem. "Column of twos!" he ordered. The men shuffled into a thinner line for the road.

Then he waited. Leaders of the adjoining Jewish temple had agreed to provide an informant to lead the troops to the Galilean's nighttime camp. Cooperation of these Sadducean oligarchs served handily in controlling this unruly Judean province. Their collaboration was assured by the appointive authority Pilate wielded over priests before finding a sufficiently compliant one in the current of-angry throng jammed the plaza beside the fort and temple.

They were outraged that sacrificial tithes of shekels would be diverted to the heathen Roman oppressor. Bad enough were the empire's commercial levies, paid in Roman money. But diverting holy funds to pagan purposes seemed utter profanation.

To quell the upheaval, Pilate had ordered 400 soldiers, four centuries, to mingle among the demonstrators disguised as Jewish civilians but armed with swords and clubs hidden under their cloaks.

At his signal, they laid on. Amid Rome had ousted four high cries and moans, a "great number" were slain, many "trodden to death," while "others ran away wounded," recounts the an-

Because of such ruthlessness. treasury to build an aqueduct, an a Roman soldier passed.

However, this peculiarly crowdrousing Jesus apparently didn't hate the military, something the waiting centurion had learned from fellow officers.

The story had come from Capernaum in Galilee where a fellow centurion was stationed with a small garrison.

As the account went, the Capernaum centurion's sergeant had become critically ill. Having heard how the roving Galilean teacher strengthened the sick, the centurion sought him out.

"Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof," the centurion says in Matthew 8. "But only say the word, and my servant will be healed. For I am a man under authority, with soldiers under me.

Jesus marveled, telling his men, "Truly, I say to you, not even in Israel have I found such faith." He added something about sustaining people of all kinds, east and west, and told the centurion, "Go. Be it done for you as you have believed.'

The centurion found his sergeant suddenly well again.

It was an odd case, a Jew powerfully befriending a Gentile, a Roman devotee to the imperial gods and part of a foreign military occupation force in a conquered land. A strange beneficence.

The centurion assigned to arrest Jesus drew his red-tinged cloak tighter about his shoulders, still waiting for the temple crew. He had heard another story indicating Jesus even understood the rudiments of arms.

As recorded in Luke 14, Jesus observed: "And what king, going to encounter another king in war, will not sit down first and take counsel whether he is able with 10,000 to meet him who comes against him with 20,000?"

While likely referring to the costs of serving his cause, as Bible scholars say, it nevertheless showed his practical awareness of military operations.

Also, some of his own men bore arms, a puzzling aspect brought out at his last supper with them. Luke 22 relates that when one of his men said, "Look, Lord, here are two swords," he said, "It is One apostle was a Zealot member of an anti-Roman revolutionary faction that vowed, 'No ruler but God!" Romans called them "Sicarri" for the concealed daggers they carried.

At the iron-grilled gate, the temple functionaries appeared, clamorous, blustering, a mob. A priest gestured toward a dourfaced civilian, "He'll show you the place.'

The centurion wanted no hubbub, no unnecessary noise, no calling cadence by his men. "Route step and keep it quiet." They filed through the gate and circled around the temple as the city slept.

Its temporary calm was a relief in this turbulent time of Passover. Disorders had flared like scattered brushfires across the city, keeping troops doubletiming to put down one outbreak after another.

Several troublemakers and brigands had been imprisoned, including an insurrectionist ringleader, Barrabas, captured in a melee involving fatalities.

The centurion's detachment moved through the Sheep Gate and down the trail into the Kidron Valley, overspread with tents of pilgrims, smouldering camp fires and knots of squatting peasants in low talk.

The soldiers tracked up the Mount of Olives, their way lit by flaring torches. At a clearing near an abandoned oil press they spotted the prey. The informant slouched forward and kissed the wanted man on the cheek, the agreed signal.

Temple minions lunged toward Jesus, and one of his men brashly whipped out a sword, slashing off one man's ear. But Jesus sternly intervened, "Put your sword back in its place. For all who take the sword will perish by the sword.'

He said he could summon 12 "legions of angels" to defend him if he wanted, but didn't, Amazingly, he restored the dangling ear lobe and, under the glare of torches, calmly regarded the arresting band.

'Have you come out as against a robber with swords and clubs to capture me? Day after day I was with you in the temple teaching, and you did not seize me. But let the Scriptures be fulfilled.

The centurion had the man bound and led back across the valley, another Passover prisoner. It seemed a questionable case, but orders were

Telechief rattles the wrong cage

DEAR ABBY: You recently ran a series of scathing letters condemning telemarketing. It was discussed at length on one of our local radio call-in talk shows, and telemarketers took a verbal beating that made telemarketing in this area very difficult

I have been in sales all my life, and for years I listened to people gripe about our door-to-door salespeople: "They are too persistent." "They always come at the wrong time." Then when we tried mail-outs, people complained about all the junk mail they were getting. We tried radio and television advertising, but people griped that we were aired too often and came across like used-car salespeople (my apology to usedcar salespeople; however, that stigma persists). Even newspaper advertisements drew fire.

So, we turned to calling people on the telephone in order to sell our product, and never has there been a more economical way to reach people in the history of America and what happens? People complain, and you add fuel to the

Who in all of God's creation ever said that we would go through life without interruptions? What makes people think that they possess an unalienable right never to be approached by anyone at any time for any reason that they feel to be an improper interruption?

So, Abby, please remember: Peeking in your window while you are taking a shower is a direct violation of your privacy; telemarketing is only one of life's interruptions, but whose efficiency and effectiveness to this outweigh its inconvenience. -TELECHIEF IN BLOOMINGTON,

DEAR TELECHIEF: You rattled the wrong cage. I am still of the opinion that one's telephone is for the convenience of the person who pays for it, and that solicitors and market researchers should find some other way to sell their products or gather information.

Some people sleep at odd hours; others may be ill, or otherwise occupied. Why should we accept a salesperson's telephone call as "one of life's interruptions" as though it were an act of God?

The late Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis said, "One of our most cherished rights is the right to be left alone." (I'm with Louie!)

DEAR ABBY: I was amused to read the letter from Wallace A. Krapf, who stated unequivocally that a friendship cannot survive where there is a business relationship. (He specifically deplored relatives in business.) Mr. Krapf may be interested in our story: My husband and I met in 1974 when I took a job as his secretary. We worked together for four years, then we both moved to another company in the same department.

In 1979 he moved in with me, and in 1982 we were married (a second economically struggling nation far marriage for both of us). He left the company I was with for a short time, but returned to become the manager of my department.

We still work for the same company and I am his assistant. We ride to work together every morning and go home the same way. And whenever it's possible, we go to lunch together. We have never taken separate vacations because we enjoy being together and are each other's best friend. We both feel that we have an ideal, enduring relationship and wouldn't trade it for the world. I know this probably sounds like I made it up, but you may sign me -WOULDN'T HAVE BELIEVED IT EITHER, BUT IT'S TRUE

DEAR WOULDN'T, ETC.: Now that's what I call "togetherness." Siamese twins could not be closer. If it works for you, bravo and congratulations. May it ever be thus.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Irked," who applied for a sales job in a large retail store, brought back memories. He was told if he wanted the job he'd have to shave off his beard. Back in 1929, I applied for a job with the Standard Oil Co. The job paid $80 a month for working a 60-hour week. I was told I wouldn't be hired unless I shaved off the moustache I'd been wearing for 10

I didn't think twice. I agreed to shave off my moustache and felt lucky to get the job. - DON McLELLAN, FLINTRIDGE,

The Redmen have dedicated the director Katha Quinn, who died last Friday, one day before her 35th birthday, after a long battle with liver cancer.

NL East Troubled NY Mets can be overtaken

The New York Mets are giving the rest of the National League East reason to feel optimistic this

The Mets have been hit with several nagging injuries and Manager Davey Johnson has accused his team of being lethargic.

"We're behind in our conditioning and our skills," Johnson said. "There hasn't been enough work done here: not enough extra running, extra BP (batting practice), extra stretching."

In fact, the only thing extra the Mets have had is trouble.

The biggest problem the Mets face heading into a new season is the tension in their clubhouse.

Some players are unhappy about where they play and others are grumbling because they don't play

All-Star right fielder Darryl Strawberry has an uneasy truce with co-captains Keith Hernandez and Gary Carter and keeps saying he wants out after the 1990 season.

Montreal has added right-hander Kevin Gross and Pittsburgh's youngsters are hungry after tasting a pennant chase in 1988. New York Mets

On offense, the Mets have very little over any team in the NL East but hardly any team in baseball can match the rotation of Dwight Gooden (18-9, 3.19 ERA), Ron Darling (17-9, 3.25), David Cone (20-3, 2.22), Bob Ojeda (10-13, 2.88) and Sid Fernandez (12-11, 3.03).

New York led the majors with a team ERA of 2.91 and allowed only 404 walks.

Left-hander Randy Myers became a dominant force in the bullpen with 26 saves and a 1.72 ERA and right-hander Roger McDowell had 16 saves.

Despite the brilliant pitching, the Mets were only a .500 team from May 22-Aug. 21 (41-41).

Hernandez missed two months with a hamstring pull and Carter (.242, 11 HR, 46 RBI) went 225 atbats without a home run as years of catching are finally slowing him down. Both are in the final year of their contracts and may not be back.

Strawberry (.269, 39 HR, 101 RBI) and Kevin McReynolds (.288, 27 HR, 99 RBI) carried the offense and will have to again in 1989.

New York Mets catcher Gary Carter is one of many veterans on the team. Carter and the Mets have been going through some troubled times during spring training, but are favorites to win the National League East crown again.

The Mets tried to trade third Keith Miller and Dave Magadan baseman Howard Johnson (.230, 24 HR, 68 RBI) to make room for Gregg Jefferies, but were unsucsecond. But where do Tim Teufel, ed they would give the Mets a run, • NL East page 2-B too, but a nine-game losing streak ruined that possibility.

Rodgers thinks the addition of Gross (12-14) from Philadelphia and slick-fielding Spike Owen at shortstop could make the Expos serious contenders again.

This team certainly has the talent and is probably the most balanced club next to New York in Tim Raines (.270, 33 SB), Andres Galarraga (.302, 29 HR, 92 RBI), Tim Wallach (12 HR, 69 RBI) and Hubie Brooks (.279, 20 HR, 90 RBI) give the Expos a formidable heart of the order. Raines was plagued by injuries and should bounce back to his .330 pace of 1957.

The Expos had the third lowest ERA in the majors at 3.08 and may be even better this year. Gross joins a rotation of Dennis Martinez (15-13, 2.72), Bryn Smith (12-10, 3.00), 6-foot-10 rookie Randy Johnson (3-0, 2.42 ERA) and Scott Holman. Pascual Perez (12-8, 2.44) is undergoing drug rehab and his playing status is uncertain.

Pittsburgh Pirates It seems like the second-place Pirates are coming off a super season, yet they finished 15 games behind the Mets.

In their head-to-head competition with New York last season, the Pirates lost 12 of 18 games.

Former GM Syd Thrift thought the reason was the bench, so he went out and got outfielders Gary Redus and Glenn Wilson and infielder Ken Oberkfell. Management thought he was spending too much and let Thrift go.

Thrift will be remembered for making some great deals, though. He got outfielder Andy Van Slyke (.288, 25 HR, 100 RBI) and catcher Mike LaValliere (.261, 47 RBI) from St. Louis, and pitchers Doug Drabek (15-7) and Brian Fisher (8-10) from the New York Yankees. Drabek is now the No. 1 starter followed by Bob Walk (12-10, 2.71), John Smiley (13-11), Mike Dunne (7-11) and Fisher. Left-hander Dave LaPoint was acquired late in the season from the White Sox and didn't stay long as he signed a freeagent contract with the Yankees.

The Cardinals finished 25 games cessful. Jefferies, who wants to in 1987, the Expos slipped last behind New York last season, but play third, will start the season at season to 81-81. For a while it seem they are still the team the Mets

Compound may replace steroids

NEW ORLEANS (AP) -Studies indicating that a chromium compound may help athletes beef up their bodies are at least a step in the right direction, says one of the most vehement opponents of anabolic steroids.

"This is the type of research we hope will eventually give athletes alternatives to steroids," said Bob Goldman, head of the High Technology Fitness Research Institute and of the Steroid Treatment Research Institute in Chicago and chief physician for the International Federation of Body Builders. "I'd like to try the stuff myself and see if it works."

But Goldman, interviewed by telephone, said that without seeing details of the study he couldn't assess findings reported Wednesday by Gary W. Evans, a nutritional biochemist and professor of chemistry at Bemidji State University in Bemidji, Minn.

Two studies at Bemidji State found that tiny amounts of chromium picolinate helped "bulk up" muscle and cut down body fat, Evans told a meeting at the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The second and larger study, using 40 football players on the team's weight training program, found that those taking the chromium compound added an average of  $5\frac{1}{2}$  pounds of muscle over six weeks - 42 percent more than the 3-pound average gain for the control group, he said.

They also showed a 22-percent average loss in total body fat from 15 percent of total weight to  $12\frac{1}{2}$  percent — while the control group lost an average of 1.06 percent of its body fat.

The studies were the first ever to look at the effects of any form of chromium on muscle building, said Richard Anderson, who said he has studied the metal for 15 years at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Beltsville Human Nutrition Research Center.

Evans also described earlier studies at Mercy Hospital in San Diego, which found that chromium picolinate also reduced cholesterol and excess blood sugar. "It may appear paradoxical that chromium picolinate can benefit such seemingly diverse problems as diabetes, high cholesterol and difficulty in adding muscle tissue, but it makes perfectly good sense," Evans said.

The reason, he said, is that chromium apparently acts to help insulin do its job regulating sugar, cholesterol and tryglicerides in the blood, and "directing" amino acids out of the blood and into cells which reassemble it as enzymes and muscle or organ tissue.

Anderson and several other scientists who heard Evans said he didn't show whether the effects were those of chromium alone or the specific chromium compound. Evans said he wanted to find out whether the compound was worth further study before comparing it to other forms of chromium.

"The effects are very nice. Whether they're from chromium or chromium picolinate is not important," Anderson said. "What's important is that people aren't getting enough chromium and this documents it.'

It's been known for decades that the body needs chromium. Evans said, but few foods contain it even in the minuscule amounts required — 50 to 200 micrograms.

available form in kidneys and brewer's yeast. Not exactly staples of the American diet. he said.

Large amounts can produce side effects including scaly red skin, loss of hair and anemia, Evans said. But those are mild compared to the liver cancer. cardiovascular problems and other ailments linked to steroids, he said.

Evans had studied picolinic acid, one of the chemicals created when the body breaks down the amino acid tryptophan, while working for the USDA's Nutrition Research Center in Grand Forks, N.D.

NFL vows to crack down on steroid use

The NFL has given notice to its players that it's no more acceptable to use steroids than cocaine.

In fact, as of now, steroids are techically less acceptable than the so-called "street drugs."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced Tuesday that beginning next season, any player testing positive for steroids — even for the first time — will be automatically suspended for a minimum of 30 days. Second-time offenders in a given season will be suspnded for the balance of the season.

Users of cocaine and other illegal substances aren't suspended until their second violation. First-time offenders are warned and, in some cases, given counseling.

Rozelle, who said the more stringent policy on steroids was the result of an arbitrator's ruling in 1986 that limited penalties for substance abuse, said he deliberately announced the new policy now to give players currently on steroids time to get off them before they are tested early in training camp next July. 'We want them to stop using steroids," he said. "This should be a very positive incentive to do so.'

The NFL has tested its players for steroids in each of the past two seasons but has not imposed penalties for their use. Rozelle said that between 7 and 8 percent of the 2.500 players tested in each of those two years had tested positive, a figure slightly higher than the 6 percent the league had previously

Rozelle said the new policy also was aimed at detecting steroid screening agents, usually diuretics. It requires any players

The NFL also took action Tuesday at its owners meeting to crack down on another element owners feel was hurting competitive balance — loud home crowds who disrupt the signal-calling of visiting teams.

In what Tex Schramm, chairman of the Competition Committee called "an upset," the owners approved by the bare three-fourths margin needed a measure that will allow referees to take away timeouts or penalize teams that can't silence their crowds. Three teams that play in domes — Minnesota, Detroit and New Orleans voted for the measure though domes are the arenas where the problem is most pronounced. The owners also approved unanimously a resolution that would impose penalties ranging from fines and suspension to loss of a draft choice against any team feigning injury. Seattle's Joe Nash acknowledged he did in the Seahawks' playoff game against Cincinnati in an effort to slow down

No Rose garden for Pete

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose is being investigated by major league baseball for possibly betting on baseball games, Sports Illustrated reported in this week's issue.

Under baseball's rules, if the Cincinnati manager bet on games in which his team was not involved, he could be suspended for one year. If Rose bet on games involving the Reds, he could be banned for life. The magazine, in its March 27 issue, said that Ron Peters, the owner of a restaurant in Franklin, Ohio, has been linked to possible baseball betting involving Rose. In a related article, Rose was portrayed as a poor father and husband who rarely showed affection, flaunted his affairs and rarely saw his first two children, in the April issue of Gentleman's Quarterly. Rose's daughter, Fawn, called the manager "the world's worst father." and Pete Rose Jr., a minor league third basemen, says he rarely talks to his father, who has remarried and had another son since divorcing his first wife.

Three times in the 1980s the Cards went from NL champions to sub .500 the next season. So last year's 76-86 finish must mean big things for St. Louis in 1989, right? Well, maybe.

The Cards started 1988 with an obvious power shortage and helped that problem by trading for Tom Brunansky (22 HR, 79 RBI) and Pedro Guerrero (10 HR, 65 RBI).

Still, the Cards finished last in the majors in homers with only 71. Oakland's Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire combined for 74 homers. The top of the Cardinals' order will have Vince Coleman (81 SB), Ozzie Smith (57 SB) and Willie

There will be more night games at Wrigley Field this year and probably more losses for the Cubs than in 1988 when they finished 77-85.

The home team should score lots of runs in Wrigley, but don't expect much offense this year.

Final Four or bust

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Using last vear's NCAA accomplishments as a gauge, Arizona coach Lute Olson says the Wildcats have two games to go to stack up with their 1988

But his players, All-American Sean Elliott included, say they won't settle for anything less than another four successful games — which would settle the matter — and, they hope, secure the national championship.

"All year long this question has been asked: 'Are they as good, can they be as good?" as last year's team, which finished 35-3, Olson told reporters this

The top-ranked Wildcats, 29-3, play Nevada-Las Vegas on Thursday in the NCAA West Regional semifinals in Denver. Arizona is the top seed in the region. The fourth-seeded Runnin' Rebels, 28-7, are ranked

15th, and lost to the Wildcats

86-75 on Dec. 10 in Tucson. The winner will advance to Saturday's regional final against either Indiana, 27-7, or Seton Hall, 28-6, seeded second and third, respectively.

After winning its second straight Pacific-10 Conference tournament, Olson said he thought his team was "certainly as good, based on what they'd accomplished to that point," as the 1987-88 version.

"Then I stated that last year's team got to the Final Four, so as we looked at the start of NCAA play, whether they are (as good) or not is up to them now," Olson

"I think over the regular season, yes, I'd say they were very comparable. 'Last year's team was a little better shooting team; this year's team is a considerably better defensive team. Elliott, who had 32 points and 15 rebounds in the first game against UNLV, said the team is jelling at the right time. "We're playing our best basketball," he said. "We have the potential of being a lot better than last year.'

He said despite having had to replace playmaking 3-point specialist Steve Kerr and offguard Craig MacMillan this year, "we haven't lost a step with the guards (with the play of Ken Lofton, Matt Muehlebach, Matt Othick and Harvey Mason). Defensively, we've picked it up.

Elliott said the way the tournament has started for Arizona is so similar to last year's start "that it's scary."

Weather

Rain pounded the eastern and central Gulf Coast today, but much of the central and northeastern parts of the nation enjoyed fair weather.

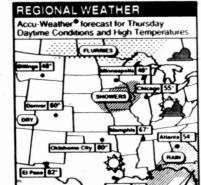

A cold front extending from North Carolina to the central Gulf Coast continued to produce showers and thunderstorms. More than 2 inches of rain fell in parts of southern Alabama, with Cordova reporting more than 21/2 inches.

Elsewhere, a mixture of sleet and snow fell over the hill country of central Texas and light snow fell over the Idaho Panhandle.

A high pressure system over the upper Great Lakes provided pleasant weather for much of the central and northeastern portions of along the Carolina coast and Pacific Northwest. DENNIS THE MENACE

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: catcher Bo Diaz, actress Joan Crawford, psychoanalyst Erich Fromm, basketball star Moses Malone, scientist Wernher Von Braun, director Mark Rydell.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to routine matters and postpone starting a creative project. Bring new ideas to the attention of higher-ups. Children offer some valuable suggestions; try them. Fresh approaches enjoy favorable

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cut yourself loose from negative people and unproductive methods. A young person needs more of your time. Stop dwelling on past mistakes. Forgive and forget. A newcomer enriches your social life.

GEMINI (May 21 June 20): A relationship will be tested in a unique way. Work alone at least part of the day and you will accomplish more. Limit spending on business entertaining. Romance is jolly. Share good news.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A change of attitude salvages a domestic relationship. Forget past grievances. Pursue romance with zeal and you could end up finding the perfect mate. A phone call delights you. Be appreciative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your stubbornness could work to your advantage today in spite of mate's or partner's reaction. Romance deserves a second chance. Assert yourself. Do not say "yes" when you mean "no." Compromises are favored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Contact someone influential about developing an original idea. A secret romance could have you walking on air. Watch your step! Make a special effort to get to social events on time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Arm yourself with the latest facts and figures before going into important meetings. Share the compliments and you will get wonderful assistance. A good time to launch your own business

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

Some unusual, intriguing people want to be your friends. You are gratified by their attention, even if their habits seem extravagant or wasteful. Improved communication ' at work lightens your load.

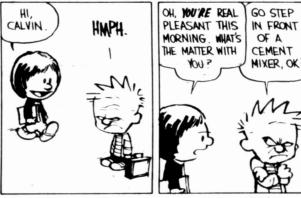

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Not a good time to force issues. Although you feel there is a crisis, you could be wrong. Look at things from a new angle and your understanding will increase tremendously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone who means a great deal to you is very touchy now. Tread gently. Work is demanding but there is no running away from it. Réturn phone calls and answer letters promptly.

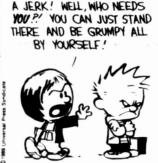

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Giving things away, often unexpectedly, exalts you. Your work on someone else's behalf is rewarded. You have a strong sense of purpose and can expect to make steady

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An understanding with someone who means a lot to you firms up your sense of purpose. Your inquiring mind leads to a serious revelation. Romance looks rosy! Speak from the heart.

Wednesday, March 22 SCOREBOARD

EST). The Cavaliers, who lead Detroit by one game in the race for the league's best record, can clinch a playoff spot with a vic-Conference standings, lead No. 8 Boston by two games and No. 9 Washington by 41/2.

Tuesday Mitch Richmond, Warriors, had 29 points, 10 rebounds and five assists as Golden State defeated Portland 151-127 Richmond was 12 of 22 from the field as the Warriors went 11 games over .500 for the first time in 13 years.

Isiah Thomas, Pistons, scored 18 first-quarter points, leading Detroit to a 110-95 victory over Central Division rival Atlanta at the Omni. Thomas, who made his first six shots, finished with 26 points, seven rebounds and seven assists as the Pistons won for the 10th time in their last 11

SUPERB IN DEFEAT Houston center Akeem Olajuwon scored 36 points and pulled down 23 rebounds, but the Rockets lost to Denver 112-110 on Tuesday. Olajuwon missed two jump shots in the last 11 seconds as the Rockets lost for the 11th time in their last 15 games Atlanta guard Spud Webb made 10 of 11 shots from the field in the Hawks' 110-95 loss to Detroit

SECOND LOSS IN THE FINAL SECOND The Los Angeles Lakers lost their second straight home game Tuesday, a 104-103 decision to Chicago. Lakers guard Byron Scott missed a jumper from the left corner at the buzzer after Bulls center Bill Cartwright had missed two free throws with one second left. Sunday, Atlanta guard Glenn "Doc" Rivers sank a 21-foot jump shot at the buzzer to give the Hawks a 113-111 victory over the defending champions.

SCORCHING points in the fourth quarter of their 151-127 victory over Portland on Tuesday, setting a franchise record for points in the final period. Before this season, the Warriors had never had a 50-point quarter. This season they have three.

SLAPPING THEM SILLY 101-96 victory over Utah. Center Alton just one.
