Shelter location in doubt

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

Efforts to locate a new home for Big Spring's homeless animals have hit another snag.

After a six-month search, Big Spring Humane Society officials thought they had found an area near the city golf course, where they could relocate the society's shelter.

But the plan is now "on hold," according to County Commissioner Bill Crooker, who has been leading the effort to relocate the shelter.

The Society was seriously considering relocating its shelter on two acres of city-owned land between the city golf course and the Silver Heels fire station. But the proposal met with opposition from Lisa Hubbard and Linda Schaefer, who reside approximately 1,600 feet from the proposed shelter site.

The Humane Society is now attempting to find at least two acres in a non-residential area in or near Big Spring, which could be donated to the society or sold at a low cost.

But officials have said they are not ruling out locating the shelter on the land near Country Club road. The city has indicated it would lease the land to the shelter at a nominal rate per year.

Crooker said the closest residents to the proposed shelter location are 1,200 feet away. Both of the residents have been contacted and have no objection to the shelter being located there, he said.

Except for Schaefer and Hubbard, no other residents in the area have objected to the proposal, he said, and sound tests conducted in the area have indicated that dog barking could not be heard in excess of 900 feet from the proposed shelter location.

The Society has been looking for a new location since November when home owners who reside near the shelter, located at 4200 Wasson

Road, began complaining of excessive noise and foul odors emanating from the shelter.

Humane Society officials have said that the shelter is regularly cleaned and does not emit odors. Noise such as dog barking cannot be completely controlled, they said.

The shelter is located 20 feet from Berea Baptist Church and 300 feet from a residential neighborhood.

The homeowners met in November at a public forum to discuss the alleged problems. After subsequent meetings between a homeowners' group and society officials that were mediated by

Supreme Court hears abortion case arguments

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The politically charged battle over abortion reached a Supreme Court showdown today as the justices heard arguments in a Missouri dispute that has seized the nation's attention.

Hundreds of demonstrators, "pro-life" and "pro-choice" activists and would-be courtroom spectators gathered outside the court's Capitol Hill building this morning, enlivening the normally tranquil scene.

"I'm here to see history," said Jordy Green of South Stafford, Vt., a sophomore at Dartmouth College who arrived at 6 p.m. Tuesday to assure himself a courtroom seat.

"I've been rather uneducated on this issue. I guess I'm neutral and trying to learn more about it," Green said.

Classmate Clay Fong, from Alameda, Calif., said he was attending as a strong supporter of abortion rights.

"If the constitutional right to abortion were taken away it would have a devastating impact on the country," Fong said. "American individual rights are at a crossroads."

First in line was Brad Schranke of Seattle, a University of Washington engineering student who arrived at the court at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

"I believe that God is the creator and man has no right to take a life God has created," Schranke said. "The baby has to have the choice."

By 8 a.m., court police had given numbers to 175 people hoping to witness the argument session.

Nearby, demonstrators peacefully displayed competing banners and placards while standing on the steps leading to the court plaza, kept off court property by a police barricade.

"Keep Abortion Legal," "Women Must Have the Right to Choose" and "Abortion is Murder" some of the signs said.

Missouri officials and the Bush administration are urging that today's case be used to overturn or curtail the court's landmark 1973 decision that women have a constitutional right to abortion.

Lucille Ball dies of heart attack

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Lucille Ball, the zany, wide-mouthed redhead who reigned for more than 20 years as the queen of television comedy, died today, a week after undergoing emergency heart surgery. She was 77.

The excitable star of "I Love Lucy" and similar situation comedies that continue in syndication around the world died of cardiac arrest at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Ronald Wise.

Miss Ball, who had a heart attack and had throat surgery in 1988, underwent surgery at Cedars-Sinai to replace her aorta and aortic valve April 18 and had been getting out of bed, eating and even walking around the room in recent days.

"Lucille Ball is the greatest woman clown in the world," fellow comedian Milton Berle once said. "In fact, she is one of the great clowns of all time, male or female."

Miss Ball's singularity as a comedian was matched by her talent as a show-business entrepreneur. She and her former husband, the late Desi Arnaz, established one of TV's first major independent studios.

Desilu, as their production company was called, made some of the top comedy shows of the 1950s and '60s, including "December Bride," "Our Miss Brooks" and "Make Room for Daddy."

As testament to their value as prime-time stars, Miss Ball and Arnaz signed an $8 million, non-cancellation, two-year contract with CBS in 1953 — the largest in television history at the time and a figure scarcely any TV star can touch 36 years later.

The actress was last seen introducing the "Young Hollywood" production number with Bob Hope at the 61st Academy Awards ceremony March 29, receiving a standing ovation. Looking svelte for her years in a fashionable slit skirt, she seemed to be in good health and laughed freely throughout a brief routine with

Beals Creek: Engineers present flood plans

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

Four flood protection plans for the Beals Creek area were outlined by U.S. Army Corps of Engineers representatives at a public hearing during Tuesday's City Council meeting.

The hearing was organized by the Army Corps of Engineers to gauge public opinion on the proposed flood protection plans. The Corps is conducting an 18-month re-evaluation of a previous study on Beals Creek because of a serious flood problem that exists in the area.

In 1972, Congress approved the Corps participation in constructing a 50-year channel to protect against flooding along Beals Creek.

However, Corps investigations in 1978 indicated that U.S. government participation in protecting against flooding in the area was not warranted because of the limited amount of damages.

The city of Big Spring requested the Corps re-evaluate the authorized plan in July 1987 to determine if a smaller plan would be feasible, Rice said. The re-evaluation began in March and is scheduled for completion in September.

During the hearing, attended by about 20 local residents, Gene Rice, Corps project manager for the Beals Creek study, detailed four flood protection plans that would require both U.S. government and local financial participation.

Rice explained that the Corps had designed four plans, which would provide varying degrees of flood protection, and that it wanted to receive feedback from city officials and local residents on which plan they prefer.

Each of the plans would require

Van in tow deals blow to utility poles; no injuries

HERALD STAFF REPORT

More than $1,500 in damage was done to four cable poles in an accident Tuesday afternoon, but the effect on local service was minimal, representatives of TU Electric and the local cable TV company said today.

The accident occurred in an alley in the 500 block of west Main Street when the top portion of a vehicle in tow snagged a cable line and seriously damaged four poles which were connected to the line, a police report stated.

The driver of the first vehicle, Wayne Wesley Childs, 53, Rt. 2 Box 1638A was unaware that the 1989 white Fruehauf van in tow had caught the cable line, the report said.

About $1,000 damage was done to three of the cable poles belonging to Big Spring Cable TV Inc., 2006 S. Birdwell Lane, Cable Manager Larson Lloyd said. He said only two downtown businesses were affected by the accident and that cable services had been restored to those businesses this morning.

About $500 was done to a cable pole belonging to TU Electric, 409 Runnels St., but a spokesperson for the electric company said customers where not affected by the accident because the cable's line was already dead.

No damage estimate was available on a third, unidentified vehicle, that had a cable line fall on it. No one was injured in the accident, the police report said.

Teacher indicted

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A former high school English teacher has been indicted on sexual assault charges after allegedly having sex with a student who later committed suicide.

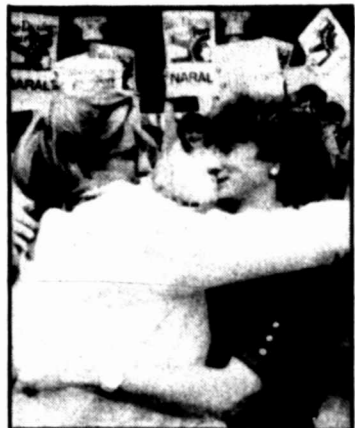

Lou Ann Hogan, 25, a former Clark High School teacher who now lives in Schenectady, N.Y., with her husband, Mike, is expected to surrender this week to Bexar County officials to answer the charges. A grand jury on Tuesday returned two sexual assault charges involving Chad Cadenhead, who committed suicide on Jan. 28, 1988.

School bans smoking

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Teachers' groups unsuccessfully fought to stop a tough new no-smoking rule to take effect in the Corpus Christi Independent School District next fall.

Smoking will be prohibited at all schools and most other Corpus Christi Independent School District property under the ban passed Monday by a 4-3 vote of the district's board of trustees.

Members of the Corpus Christi American Federation of Teachers and the Corpus Christi Classroom Teachers Association, as well as several teachers, spoke at Monday night's meeting in an unsuccessful effort to continue the current policy.

Choosing choice

Appointee objections

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite objections from the Texas Lesbian-Gay Lobby, State Board of Insurance appointee Richard F. Reynolds will probably be confirmed, according to the chairman of the Senate Nominations Committee.

In testimony Tuesday before the Nominations panel, a former employee said Reynolds fired him after discovering the employee had tested positive for the AIDS virus.

Reynolds, 61, a former state legislator from Flower Mound who was appointed to the Insurance Board by Gov. Bill Clements, denied the charge.

Balky witnesses stall Wright probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investors who could provide the last piece of the puzzle in the ethics case of House Speaker Jim Wright have abruptly stopped cooperating with investigators looking into how he profited handsomely from a nonproducing gas well.

The chairman and vice chairman of the ethics committee, who had traveled to San Antonio, Texas, to interview businessmen involved in the drilling venture, returned to Washington without completing their inquiry.

In the capital, Wright's colleagues continued to focus on charges that he sold bulk quantities of his book, "Reflections of a Public Man," to evade House limits on outside income. The speaker said he might consider giving the profits to charity if the ethics panel suggests it.

Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., and senior Republican John T. Myers of Indiana declined to say whether they would seek contempt citations against the Texas investors who spurned the committee's subpoenas.

Myers was annoyed by the investors' move and suggested that it could further delay the case, which Wright has clamored to speed up.

Asked whether he was upset, Myers said: "Yes, we came down here to Texas to expedite this, and find they are less than cooperative."

SAN ANTONIO — Chairman of the House Ethics panel, Julian Dixon, departs the Seven Oaks Hotel here Tuesday. Dixon's probe in the Speaker Jim Wright dealings hit a roadblock when scheduled witnesses refused to testify Tuesday.

The ethics panel issued its findings in the 10-month investigation last week, formally charging Wright with 69 instances of violating House rules. The panel said he had improperly received $145,000 in gifts from a Fort Worth business partner with a direct interest in legislation, and had used bulk sales of a book he wrote to evade limits on outside income.

The panel is considering whether there is "clear and convincing" proof of the 69 alleged violations and, if so, whether to recommend disciplinary action to the House. The committee left open one area

Lubbock race track sets March opening

AUSTIN (AP) — Owners of a Lubbock horse track have become the fourth horse-racing license applicants in the state to receive approval from the Texas Racing Commission.

On Tuesday, the commission voted unanimously to award the pari-mutuel license to the owners of Lubbock Downs race track, located southeast of Lubbock. The vote cleared the way for betting windows to open next March 1.

"We need it; we need it badly," Lubbock Downs owner Jean Arnett said after the Class 2 license was awarded to the track, located southeast of Lubbock. "This is an industry that provides a lot of jobs to our area."

Rep. Delwin Jones, R-Lubbock, said the track will be the largest industry added to the Lubbock area in recent years.

Lubbock County voted against a 1987 referendum that legalized horse racing, but approved gambling in a local-option election last year.

Earlier this month, licenses were awarded to G. Rollie White Downs in Brady, Bandera Downs in Bandera County and Trinity Meadows located near Weatherford.

On Monday the commission turned down a license application submitted by Ross Downs in Colleyville, located near Fort Worth, citing questions about zoning and financing for the North Texas track.

The license application of one other West Texas track, Randall Park located near Umparger in the Panhandle, will be considered by the commission in a series of hearings scheduled next week.

Lubbock Downs' owners plan to spend about $4.2 million to build a new track, grandstands and other facilities at the Lubbock Downs site. The construction project, which is to be done in two stages, will be financed in part through the sale of about $3.5 million of stock in the track, she explained.

The track will continue races without pari-mutuel betting through July, when construction of the new facilities will begin, Ms. Arnett said.

Pari-mutuel betting will not begin until the 1990 racing season, when Lubbock Downs hopes to have 108 racing days. The track is seeking authorization for 107 racing days both in 1991 and 1992.

Beginning in 1993, Class 2 tracks will be limited to 44 racing days by state law.

Commissioners awarded the track a license contingent on its owners building 400 horse stalls that comply with the panel's rules by March 1, 1991.

Lone Star Cafe auctions off bits of Texas

NEW YORK (AP) — Fans of the Lone Star Cafe, many lugging beer cans and bottles, convened at the Texas eatery one last time for an auction where everything went, from the famous rooftop iguana to the cafe's kitchen sink.

The highlight of the Tuesday sale also brought its highest price — $17,500 was paid for the 41-foot, 3,000-pound iguana.

But the giant lizard was the exception rather than the rule when it came to price. A few dollars could buy a nice table, window or kitchen utensil.

Stewart and Lynne Anne Fisher, of Glen Cove, Long Island, placed the winning bid on the iguana, generating much applause and cheers.

But generally it was a sullen occasion for some 200 former patrons, who watched kitchen and dining supplies depart from the cafe which for 12 years had billed itself as the best honky-tonk north of Abilene.

It was strictly a BYOB — Bring Your Own Beer — affair for the hard-core fans, who left the auction periodically only to return from the local deli to have yet one more last beer at their favorite watering hole.

Many at the auction wanted to know what the Fishers planned to do with the polyurethane lizard.

"I bought it for my wife. It's one of a kind. It's a piece of New York history and I'm a little crazy," explained an elated Fisher as he dashed off to a waiting limousine to tell his wife that the iguana was theirs.

Minutes later, Mrs. Fisher was up on the roof, which she reached via an inside staircase, hugging the iguana. She, however, insisted she had bought the lizard for her husband, a real-estate developer.

"He's the biggest child I know," she said. But both agreed that it would adorn their horse farm near Charlottesville, Va.

The iguana's sculptor, Bob Wade of Dallas and Santa Fe, had hoped his friends would bid on it. But they had stepped outside to get some beer and when they returned the iguana had already been sold.

"I thought it was worth more but I would have been disappointed if it sold for a lot less," said Wade, who attended the auction.

The Greenwich Village cafe opened in 1977 and soon became a mecca for expatriated Texans and aficionados of country and blues music. Texas lawmakers loved the place so much they declared it sovereign Texan territory and encouraged the club to secede from New York City.

After the building's owner tripled the club's rent last year, co-owners Mort Cooperman and Bill Dick decided to close it and concentrate on their newer Lone Star Roadhouse in midtown Manhattan.

The cafe's entire contents were sold. Among the very affordable items on offer were beer signs, menus, posters, giant cooking pots, amplifiers, speakers, four big cans of nacho cheese sauce and two large cans of tomato puree.

A set of steer horns that adorned the downstairs bar fetched $30; a pair of 1985 Texas automobile license plates sold for $6; the front window marquee fetched $10; and 22 "famous Lone Star parquet tables" sold for $9 each.

Candidates seek Optimists' support

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Little new ground was broken this morning when Big Spring's two mayoral candidates addressed the city's Optimist Club and sought the support of its members.

Incumbent A.C. "Cotton" Mize and challenger Maxwell Green each were given 11 minutes to present their case and persuade their listeners why they should be the respective choice when city voters cast their ballots May 6.

Mize, a retired snack food distributor, has been mayor since 1986; Green is a certified public accountant.

By virtue of arriving first, Mize was given the floor first, and he spent his time accounting for his activity as mayor for the past three years. The accomplishments he cited included:

- Reduction in what he described as "a top-heavy administration," from four fulltime management positions to one and one-half positions, and a reduction of 20 city employee positions, saving $240,000 annually;

- Removal of a "brick wall" that existed between city officials and city firefighters, citing an out-of-court lawsuit settlement;
- Obtaining a $650,000 grant to replace the breached Comanche Trail Dam;

- Renegotiation of a 51-year contract with the Big Spring State Hospital, from 10 cents per 1,000 gallons to $1.14 per 1,000, a $65,000 annual city gain;
- Progress in the study and resolution of flooding problems in the west area of Big Spring;
- Obtaining a franchise contract with Bell Telephone, which will mean $30,000 annually;
- Progress in establishing a medium-security prison in the former Homestead Inn;
- Improved relations between the city and both the county and the local chambers of commerce, and the attitudes among city departments;

- Reduction in the city's annual budget by $750,000;

In closing he said that "I've played no favorites... I know this community as well as anybody. There's room for improvement and I think continuity is important" in seeing it occur.

Challenger Green concentrated on answering what he says is an oft-asked question: "Why do you even want to run for this often thankless job?"

The reason, he said, is because "I have a vision; a vision of Big Spring as a nice, neat, clean, aggressive community with an 'I can do it' attitude." His goal, he said, is to have out-of-town visitors leave Big Spring with an impression of a good community who "had a real good time" and wish to return; "that's how a community grows and prospers."

He told the group Big Spring competes "not locally, but on a West Texas basis with San Angelo, Abilene, and Midland/Odessa. Without putting our best foot forward, we're going to stagnate and not grow."

That, he said, is the reason that advocating a tax increase "is the worst thing possible right now. Businesses have been struggling," and any tax increase to businesses would be passed on to customers.

Having studied the 1988 city audit, Green said he sees a profit that means the city needs no higher taxes. Instead, he advocates zero budgeting, requiring each department to justify its existence.

Concerning the four possible Beals Creek flood control projects, Green said it is imperative the city learn how much it will cost to support and maintain the project once it is constructed.

He appealed to the need for cleaner streets. Echoing a complaint he has previously raised,

Green poked at the mayor when he said: "I found the streetsweeper, yesterday. It was on 3rd Street... it wasn't sweeping the street, but it was out."

Green suggested using local artists and architects to deal with the appearance of the Hotel Settles, and said that the community is a source of great "brain power." In that regard, he said — from either source or confirmation — that Big Spring holds more patents per capita than any community in the country.

He described the traffic past Big Spring of "24,000 to 25,000 cars per day" as the city's biggest "gold mine," with the challenge being to attract such drivers into the city and have them do business.

Green concluded by advocating cooperation between like businesses, suggesting that it would improve sales and show customers a spirit that would benefit all businesses.

Shelter

Crocker, the Society agreed to relocate if a suitable location could be found.

The homeowners have pledged to help Society officials move the shelter once a location was found.

However, Society representatives have examined three possible locations that have been ruled out.

Crocker said the relocation effort has been hampered by the fact the shelter needs to be located in a non-residential area, but utilities such as water and electricity must also be available.

It is also imperative that the shelter be in or near Big Spring, so that it is accessible to residents bringing animals to the shelter and to the volunteers who work at the shelter, he said.

"The unique combination of factors we must consider are making it pretty difficult to find a suitable location," Crocker said.

Beals

the construction of a channel that would speed the flow of water through Beals Creek, directing the water away from homes, businesses and infrastructure.

The U.S. government, Rice said, could participate in designing and constructing a channel, provided the benefit-to-cost ratio of the project met federal guidelines.

The potential damages a flood could cause, in effect, determines the amount of federal participation in the project, he said.

The flood protection alternatives outlined by Rice included construction of a 50-year channel; a 25-year channel; a 10-year channel; or a 10-year channel and a small earth berm.

The 50-year channel, for example, would protect against the effects of a 50-year flood, Rice said.

A 50-year flood is defined as a flood that is likely to occur only once in a 50-year period. There is a 2 percent chance each year a 50-year flood will occur.

The 50-year plan would include construction of a combination grass and concrete-lined channel approximately 29,600 feet long. The channel would originate upstream of One-Mile Lake and proceed downstream to 11th Place. The plan would also call for the replacement or modification of 13 city, county and state bridges. As for the Society remaining in its present location, Crocker said it would be "an impossible situation" because of the close proximity of the residential neighborhood.

Humane Society officials believe the 1,200 feet distance from houses near the golf course location is more than adequate. But the objection from the two home owners who reside 1,600 feet from the shelter has led Crocker to speculate: "We might have to go at least half a mile (away from a residential area), and that's quite a long way."

Asked about the proposed shelter location 1,600 feet from her house, Hubbard said, "That's too close for comfort."

She said she became concerned about potential noise and smell from the shelter after talking with five residents who live near the shelter on Wasson Road.

Since approached by Society representatives, Hubbard and Schaefer have pledged to work with the group to find another location for the shelter.

Hubbard stated she supports the Society's work, saying, "We don't want to see it close down, and we are willing to go out and ask for donations (to help them relocate)."

However, Margaret Lloyd, Humane Society board member, said the difficulty in locating an area which is inexpensive and meets the shelter's needs may lead the society to relocate on the city-owned land, despite the opposition raised by the two residents.

"It's still a possibility unless something else comes along that's within our price range," she said.

The Society is strapped for funds and will be hard pressed to come up with the money simply to move its existing shelter, much less purchase at least two acres of land,

Lloyd said, adding she would welcome any fund raising efforts by Hubbard.

Bettie Cox, Humane Society president, responded to the latest turn of events, saying that the Society has agreed to look for another location.

"We would like to please everybody if possible..." Cox said. But there may come a time when two or three people will have to be unhappy.

Bill Banks, who lives near the Humane Society, said he is definitely unhappy with the stalled moving plans.

Banks, a deacon at Berea Baptist Church said the "smell and the noise (from the Humane Society) is a big problem, we need to get rid of both of them."

Residents near the shelter have discussed petitioning the city to close the shelter because of the alleged problems. Since the shelter is less than a mile outside city limits, Crocker said the city would have jurisdiction over such a petition.

However, Banks said, "That would be the last option we want to use."

"We don't want to have to hire a lawyer, and I know they don't want to, either," he said.

But Banks said residents near the shelter want the shelter to move soon.

"We told them we couldn't put up with it another summer," he said.

A meeting between the homeowners and Society officials will be held May 2, and the public is invited to attend.

Humane Society representatives have urged anyone with land that would meet the Society's needs to contact Margaret Lloyd at 267-5646 (after 4 p.m.), Bettie Cox at 267-1910, or Bill Crocker at 263-7132.

county and Union Pacific Railroad.

"The railroad has more land involved (in the proposed project) than anyone else," Mize said. "Cooperating and working with them on this project is one of our major concerns."

Several local residents expressed their opinions on the proposals, and Rice said the input would be considered as Corps engineers completed the re-evaluation study.

Among those voicing an opinion on the proposals was mayoral candidate Max Green, who repeatedly suggested the Corps concentrate their efforts in the downstream area of Beals Creek.

Mize and other residents had informed Corps engineers that one of the problems associated with the Beals Creek was the accumulation of sediment where the creek passes Big Sandy west of Big Spring.

"If you don't solve the sediment problem, we're going to get the same floods we've always had," Green said.

However, Corps engineers responded to Green's comments, saying that since the downstream section where the sediment accumulation occurs is not in a populated area or near businesses, the benefit-to-cost ratio would not be high enough to warrant Corps involvement in such a project.

"We've got to get benefits that exceed the costs or we can't do it," said Jerry McCrory, Corps chief, basin planning branch.

Mize said the Corps plans could not solve all Big Spring's flooding related problems because the city is situated in an area that is extremely flat.

"Our forefathers should have built the city five miles north or 10 miles south," he said.

But Public Works Director Tom Decell said the proposed channel would speed the flow of water from 250 cubic feet per second to about 1,700 CFS. Such a flow would move one billion gallons of water per day through the channel, he said.

Rice said the Corps will come back in August to ask the city which project it would like to pursue. After the city approves participation in the project, it will likely take three years before construction begins. The city would not be liable for any costs until then, he added.

Mize said the city "will be looking real seriously at getting (the project) initiated as soon as possible."

Herald opinion

A reasonable precaution

One of the reasons the savings and loan industry got into such a mess is because the thrift institutions failed to keep a safe ratio between capital and assets. In his proposal to bail out the industry and prevent such problems from rising in the future, President Bush wisely proposed that savings and loans do as banks do — keep a capital fund equal to 6 percent of the institution's total assets.

But strange as it seems, the House Subcommittee on Financial Institutions has voted to cut that figure in half to 3 percent. Even more surprising is the fact that the subcommittee would allow such intangible assets as "good will" to be counted as part of the capital.

At a time when taxpayers are being asked to bail out an industry because its bad apples engaged in a number of questionable practices, it is inexcusable that members of Congress are taking steps that will insure that future problems will arise and still more tax funded bailouts will be needed.

Even Rep. Henry Gonzales, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, was distressed at the actions of the subcommittee. "Time after time we have accepted industry arguments that we give them just a little more time, just a little more phony-baloney bookkeeping and just a little more capital and everything would be all right. We did those things and everything is not all right."

If Congress does not restore the 6 percent capital requirement proposed by President Bush, the bailout measure should be vetoed when it reaches the White House.

Help needed to enhance Capitol's frayed image

By LAWRENCE L. KNUXTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a new effort on Capitol Hill to polish the tarnished image of Congress.

No, the organizers, who include some of the weightiest movers and shakers of the Senate and House, are not worried about scandals or opinion polls or the accusations plaguing House Speaker Jim Wright.

Rather, they are concerned about the actual fabric of the place.

To be precise, they worry about the preservation of the marble and sandstone and bronze of which the Capitol building is composed, the art work which adorns it, and the history the Capitol has sheltered since Congress moved to Washington 189 years ago.

They are aware also that in an era of shrinking budgets and tight money, Congress is increasingly reluctant to appropriate taxpayers' dollars for feathering the nest in which it does business.

So a group of congressional leaders sat down over coffee last week and, with portraits of Thomas Jefferson and John Adams looking over their shoulders, announced the imminent launching of the U.S. Capitol Preservation Fund.

The multiple purpose:

- To persuade private citizens and corporations to do for the Capitol what such contributors have already done for the White House, for the historic Americana collection at the State Department and for the newly refurbished Blair House, the president's guest house.

- To provide a way for the House and Senate to accept gifts of fine art and historic items related to the history of Congress.

- To use the money raised to undertake major restoration projects.

In the first such effort, the deteriorating 19-foot bronze statue of Freedom will be removed from its commanding perch on top of the Capitol dome — probably by helicopter — and be brought to earth for a major facelift costing at least $300,000.

It will be the first time the statue has been moved since Dec. 2, 1863, when the last of its five separate parts was lifted to the top of the dome by a steam hoist and hammered and bolted into place. Also on the drawing board is the installation on the Capitol's East Plaza of two 30-foot Carrara marble fountains which were crafted 19 years ago for Lady Bird Johnson's beautification campaign but placed in storage when the money ran out.

The installation of the fountains, and the paving of the plaza with ornamental stone blocks planned for later, will banish the cars that have used the plaza as a parking lot since the beginning of the automotive age.

Capitol Architect George White says money also is needed for the restoration of dozens of works of art inside the Capitol itself.

The initial fundraising is being handled by New York corporate executive Preston R. Tisch, the former postmaster general.

He predicts $1.5 million will be raised at a June 20 gala celebrating the bicentennial of Congress.

Funds also will be received from a 50 percent share of the profits from the sale of coins commemorating the 200-year history of Congress to be minted by the Treasury in five-dollar, one-dollar and half-dollar denominations.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the Senate's president pro tem and most ardent student of its history, says the fund and the Capitol Preservation Commission created to administer it will be "Congress' bicentennial gift to the nation."

"What better testimony to Congress' 200 years than to ensure a means to provide for the continued restoration of our nation's symbol of democracy?" Byrd said.

"The Capitol is a unique, working museum. Fifteen million visitors come here each year, making it one of the most frequented public buildings in the world. Through these efforts we are committed to ensuring the ongoing legacy of the Capitol for generations to come."

"We're trying to stay solvent long enough for your tax check to clear... so the government can use the money to bail us out!"

Bush nominee deserves closer look

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — George Bush, like the president before him, is loyal to his friends. Time will tell whether Bush, like his predecessor, is loyal to a fault. John Tower was the first test. Fred Zeder is the next.

Bush has picked his close pal Zeder, the former ambassador to Micronesia, to head the Overseas Private Investment Corp. The nomination, which will be considered soon by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, comes at a time when Zeder has come under scrutiny in a congressional investigation into alleged corruption in Palau, a U.S. Trust Territory in the South Pacific.

After embarrassing Bush on the Tower nomination, the Senate may feel obliged to rubber stamp the rest. But Zeder deserves a second look.

As president of the Overseas Private Investment Corp., Zeder would help American businesses invest in developing countries. The agency is supposed to steer Americans to safe foreign harbors — countries where coups, embargoes and the whimsy of dictators won't bankrupt a business. The agency insures investors against those political risks.

Zeder's most notorious investment advice concerning Micronesia is a disturbing example of his business acumen and international savvy.

From 1982 to 1987, he was President Reagan's negotiator in self-government talks for the Micronesian trust territories. In May 1983, he sent a State Department cable to the U.S. Embassy in London advising British banks that Palau should be able to repay a $32 million loan to finance a power plant. The banks loaned the money based on Zeder's advice and are now suing Palau to get their money back. Zeder now says his cable was misinterpreted. Zeder's work in the South Pacific helped him gain a reputation as a businessman in ambassador's clothing. At least, that is the conclusion of some members of Congress, Interior Department officials who oversee the trust territories, and even the environmental group Greenpeace.

Former Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, told us that Congress enacted strict ethics laws in 1985 for U.S. officials in Micronesia, in part because of uneasiness over the way Zeder operated.

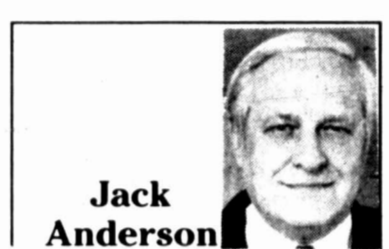

The General Accounting Office has spent 15 months investigating a tangle of problems surrounding the conduct of U.S. officials in Micronesia, the negotiations for self-government in Palau and the power plant deal.

We reported last summer that the now-bankrupt power company that sold Palau the plant it can't afford treated Zeder to a flight to the British Open golf tournament in Scotland in 1984. The company's bankruptcy records show plane tickets for Zeder and his wife. Zeder later repaid the company.

Zeder also refutes allegations that he introduced Palau to a New York investment firm which has since been indicted on 52 counts of fraud, bribery and obstruction of justice in the South Pacific and the United States.

Zeder quit the Micronesia post in 1987 to raise money for Bush's presidential campaign.

He told our associate Jim Lynch that he knows he has critics, but that comes with the turf. "If you don't want to create any controversy, you don't get very far." He called himself "a respected businessman."

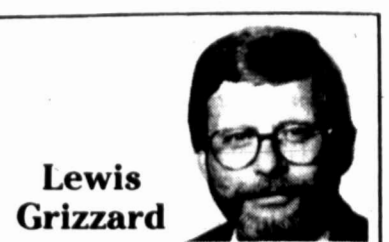

A former top Reagan administration official credits Zeder's success to his friendship with Bush. "He has one godfather, and that godfather is George Bush." According to the source, Zeder's "forte is the cocktail circuit." He gave Zeder credit for never clearly breaking the rules. "He never did anything illegal. Unethical? Maybe. Eyebrow raising? Hell, yes."

Our source insisted on anonymity. He feared that criticizing the president's fishing buddy would kill his chances for future employment in the Bush administration.

SANDINISTA AID — U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan contras has been reduced to strictly non-military uses after a highly public congressional debate. The Soviet Union isn't bound by the same free exchange of opinions. Last year, the Soviets shipped $515 million worth of military supplies to the Sandinista government. A grateful Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega has made it clear that he has no intention of renouncing Marxism.

MINI-EDITORIAL — Even before the polls open, the May 7 election in Panama has already been dismissed as a joke. Manuel Noriega has rigged the voter lists, threatened his opponents and made it easy for his friends to vote early and often. Yet the spirit of the opposition is undaunted. Their numbers, no matter how Noriega counts them, will add to the mounting pressure to oust him. The United States can't do that alone without the will of the Panamanian people.

At least somebody is reading

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Inquiring minds often want to know, "Lewis, do you get much hate mail?"

My standard answer is, "While most of my mail remains relatively kind and gentle, I do occasionally receive a missive in which the author suggests I am certain things like ignorant and a threat to society."

People who like guns often write me letters such as that. I get the idea they don't want anybody to take away their guns — thereby ruining any chance they might have of taking a shot at me.

People who are insanely religious also write me angry letters.

"I know in my heart," a reader wrote, in reaction to a column on Jim Bakker, "you will wind up in hell anyway, so there is no reason for me to waste my time telling you to go there."

I thought I'd even share a couple of letters today from people who obviously feel I should be in another line of work — not to mention dead.

The first came from a Mark DeMoss, who identified himself as administrative assistant to Jerry Falwell, the television preacher.

It was in reaction to a column about people who have never had sex before. You know the pope never had sex before, but did you also know Richard Nixon never had sex? He was afraid he'd get something on his tie.

I included the Rev. Falwell in this group. Rev. Falwell never has had sex because I spent several hours trying to visualize him taking part in something like that, and I simply couldn't.

Mr. DeMoss's letter concluded with, "Such ridicule is not new to the Rev. Falwell. The last 'journalist' to write about Falwell in such a manner was named Larry Flint."

This was pretty frightening. At first, I thought perhaps Mr. DeMoss was also a member of the National Rifle Association who wanted to see me shot, since that's what happened to Flint of Hustler magazine.

My managing editor disputed that, however, and said it sounded more like a threat of a lawsuit to him.

Falwell, recall, did sue Flint. My lawyer, Scuzzy St. John, is standing by in case a suit does come.

In any event, I tried to call Mr. DeMoss 11 times to ask him which it was, but he never would return my phone calls.

I tried to get the Rev. Falwell on the phone, too, but he was never in, either. I don't know what he was doing out, but I do know he wasn't having sex.

An even more distressing letter came from a man from Tucker, Ga., a suburb of Atlanta.

I don't think I'm going to mention the man's name, even though he was gracious enough to sign the letter because that just might make him even madder, and who knows where he stands on the issue of gun control.

I can tell you the man is a graduate of Georgia Tech, I am a graduate of the University of Georgia, and Georgia Tech is my natural rival, and I occasionally make cutting remarks about Georgia Tech in my column because it's fun.

This particular Georgia Tech man was not amused by recent statements about his school, however, and he ended his letter by penning, "I look forward to the day I read that the (bleep) that runs through your veins has clogged the aortic valve in your heart and I won't have to read your (bleep) anymore."

Here is a man who is looking forward to my death. I have had two operations to correct my leaky aortic valve, and this guy can't wait for the day it leaks me right out of here.

So, people want to know, how do you handle such as this? You lock your doors at night and rest with the thought they're at least reading. And that — next to getting my picture in the paper a lot and the money — is why I do this in the first place.

'Market value' for spill damage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration has agreed to assess Exxon Corp. for oil spill damage to Alaska's natural resources according to guidelines that already are under court challenge for allegedly being too easy on polluters.

The decision comes despite administration promises to seek "complete restoration" of losses from the Exxon Valdez tanker spill that has fouled Alaska's wildlife-rich Prince William Sound.

Interior Department officials acknowledged in interviews Tuesday that the government has agreed to use guidelines giving polluters the option of paying only the "market value" of resources they destroy, rather than the cost of replacing them.

Under the rules, for example, a seabird with little potential for commercial exploitation might be declared to be worth just a few dollars.

Several environmental groups were expected to send a letter today to Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr., saying the rules could severely undervalue natural resources destroyed by the Exxon spill.

The procedures in question stem from the 1980 Superfund law which required Interior to establish guidelines on assessing damage resulting from an oil spill or discharge of toxic chemicals.

Economy surpasses $5 trillion mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy, surpassing the $5 trillion mark for the first time, expanded at a robust annual rate of 5.5 percent in the first three months of 1989, the fastest pace in more than a year, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that almost half of the increase in the gross national product came from a statistical catch-up from last year's drought.

But even discounting this bookkeeping factor, the GNP, representing the country's total output of goods and services, advanced at a 3 percent annual rate, down only slightly from a 3.5 percent non-farm growth rate in the final three months of 1988.

The non-farm growth was slightly better than economists had been expecting. Most analysts believe the U.S. economy will slow substantially this year under the weight of higher interest rates.

United transcript released today

SEATTLE (AP) — The crew of United Flight 811 struggled with their crippled jetliner for eight minutes before they realized passengers had been swept to their deaths through a giant hole in the plane, a transcript shows.

The transcript from the cockpit recorder was released Tuesday as the National Transportation Safety Board opened a three-day hearing into why the forward cargo door and part of the fuselage tore off shortly after the plane left Honolulu on Feb. 24.

Eight minutes after the trouble began, flight engineer Mark Thomas returned to the cockpit after inspecting the damage.

"The right side is gone ... it's just open. You're just lookin' outside," Thomas told pilot David Cronin and co-pilot Al Slader.

"Looks like a bomb," he said.

"Fuselag?" Slader asked.

"Yes, fuselage, it's just open,"

Thomas said. "Some people are probably gone. I don't know."

Six seconds of silence followed, then the crew frantically discussed flying the plane.

At the hearing, Boeing engineer James Fitzgerald testified that the 747's 800-pound cargo doors are safe.

But Pan Am engineer Robert Dann told of a 1987 incident in which a 747 cargo door partially opened on a flight out of London, forcing the jetliner to return to the airport.

Hundreds seek lottery tickets

SNOWSHOE, Pa. (AP) — Hundreds of truckers and other travelers got off Interstate 80, looking for Easy Street. Even the winners of a $46 million prize took a chance on tonight's North American record $100 million lottery jackpot.

"You got to dream," said Daniel Moelling, of Clayton, Ill., a trucker who bought five Super 7 tickets in this central Pennsylvania town Tuesday.

Dreams abounded in Pennsylvania as $24.35 million in lottery sales Tuesday topped the state's single-day record and brought total sales since Thursday to $67.26 million. Sales of the $1 tickets end about two minutes before the 6:59 p.m. drawing.

"The final total will be determined by how high sales go today," lottery executive director Jim Scroggins said this morning on NBC's "Today." "It's probably at this point in time safe to predict that it'll be beyond $100 million."

Gorbachev remolds party's membership

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev has taken a major step toward mastering the Communist Party's top policy-making body by easing out a quarter of its most senior members and installing his own men.

At a meeting of the Central Committee on Tuesday, the Soviet president remolded the body's membership in a maneuver expected to make it easier for him to wage his campaign for reform.

Seventy-four of the committee's 301 full members retired, including former President Andrei A. Gromyko and many other holdovers from pre-Gorbachev days, and 24 people were promoted to full membership. The committee also retired 24 of its non-voting members and 12 members of the Central Auditing Commission, which handles party finance.

Party ideology chief Vadim A. Medvedev told a news conference that all had volunteered to step down.

The military lost a substantial voice in the Central Committee: at least nine senior officers were dropped and just one officer was promoted from candidate status to full membership.

The changes left the Central Committee with 251 full members.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

• A Big Spring man is in county jail today after being arrested on charges of assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

Robert Allen Walker, 26, 907 W. 2nd St., was arrested on the two charges in front of the Wes-T-Go, 1800 S. Gregg St., Tuesday evening, according to a police report.

Police were originally called to the scene in reference to a fight. A person who knew Officer T. A. Hain to be a peace officer assaulted Hain and continued to fight and struggle with the officer, resulting in injuries to the officer's left ear and left leg, the report said.

Walker is awaiting $4,500 bond in county jail.

Students defy government threats

BEIJING (AP) — Students said today that government threats to suppress the largest student movement in Communist China's history have only increased their resolve to make the country's leaders embrace democratic reforms.

Student leaders said a class boycott that began Monday has spread to 41 universities and colleges around Beijing, involving more than 70,000 students. At least four more schools joined the protest today, they said.

Two protest leaders said students were ready to stage street demonstrations again as they did when they began their campaign 10 days ago.

Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping on Tuesday ordered authorities to crack down on the protest, said a journalist at the People's Daily, the voice of the ruling Communist Party.

"The peasants support us, the workers support us, the army supports us, so why should we be bothered by students," the journalist quoted the 84-year-old Deng as saying.

Takehita aide commits suicide

TOKYO (AP) — An aide who handled scandal-tainted donations that helped to sink Prime Minister Noboru Takehita's career committed suicide today, casting a pall of sorrow over Japan's growing political crisis.

Police said Ihei Aoki, 58, who had served Takehita since 1958, was found dead at his apartment in Tokyo. He had slashed a wrist and an ankle with a razor and hanged himself, they said, and he left notes to his wife and several other people including the prime minister.

The normally unflappable Takehita appeared shocked by the death. He told reporters he had not seen Aoki's note but thought it was possible that the suicide was linked to the long-running Recruit scandal.

"I strongly regret (his action). We walked side by side for over 30 years," said Takehita, who had announced Tuesday he would resign soon to take responsibility for his and his party's involvement in the scandal.

Quake kills one in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Just one death was reported in the strongest earthquake to strike Mexico since a 1985 tremor that killed thousands of people, but panic was widespread among residents haunted by memories of the last big quake.

Two women leapt from the second-story window of a swaying building during Tuesday morning's quake, seriously injuring themselves, police said. Another 240 were treated for shock, said Mayor Manuel Camacho Solis.

Two little girls hit by falling debris were briefly hospitalized, 13 buildings were damaged seriously enough to be closed for repairs and parts of the city of 19 million were without water because an aqueduct cracked.

The tremor, which measured 6.8 on the Richter scale, felled a power line just north of the city center that electrocuted a man of about 30, said Maria Cortina Benitez, a city police spokeswoman.

Port facilities in the Pacific resort of Acapulco and city hall in the Guerrero state capital, Chilpancingo, sustained minor damage.

Reports of baby food tampering

LONDON (AP) — Police say they are investigating at least eight incidents this month in which baby food bought in British stores has been found spiked with glass shards, pieces of razor blades, thumbtacks and caustic soda.

Scotland Yard says it is coordinating a nationwide police inquiry but has refused to give any further details.

The London newspaper the Daily Mail reported today that blackmailers trying to extort money from supermarkets and food companies were believed responsible. It said several major supermarket chains and food manufacturers have received threats.

In the latest incidents, reported Tuesday, pieces of glass were found in baby food bought in Bradford-on-Avon in southwest England, in the south coast resort of Fratton, and in Newport on the Isle of Wight off the south coast.

In Bradford-on-Avon, Diana Tyndall said she cut her lip on a piece of glass as she tasted a jar of fruit dessert she was about to feed her six-month-old daughter Roxanne.

No one else was reported hurt in Tuesday's incidents. But in similar incidents reported from April 7 to April 15, a nine-month-old girl in the university town of Oxford cut her mouth on a piece of razor blade in yogurt.

The other incidents were at Rayleigh, east of London; at the southern port of Southampton, where two incidents were reported; and at the south coast

Ponying around on route

HINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — When 9-year-old Lydia Fulton misplaced her bicycle last year, she found a quick alternative for covering her paper route. She hopped on her pet pony.

Lydia, a fourth grader with seven older brothers, has had an afternoon paper route since December.

Except when it's snowing or raining, she and her Shetland pony, Jacky, take to the streets of Hingham to deliver The Patriot Ledger newspaper, published in Quincy.

Her mother calls Jacky a "fair weather pony" because she's older now and the family fears for her health in poor weather.

Lydia says she's been riding horses since the age of 4, and as for using Jacky on her paper route, "It's fun."

It's more to her liking than growing up in a household of boys, which, she says, is "kind of boring."

Author recalls Nazi terror at Texas POW compounds

By GREG BOWEN
The Victoria Advocate

VICTORIA — Nazi soldiers beat, tortured and "just outright murdered" folks in places like Wharton, Ganado and Palacios during World War II, says Victoria author Richard P. Walker.

But the victims of the crimes committed by Hitler's Finest weren't Texans, they were non-Nazi German soldiers.

The Germans — Nazi and non-Nazi alike — were captured by Allied Forces on battlefields in Europe and Africa and brought to Texas for imprisonment in the 70 or so POW camps scattered across the state from 1942 through 1946.

Walker, a member of the Social Sciences Department at Victoria College who holds a Ph.D. from the University of North Texas, said the Nazis, who totaled about 10 percent of the 75,000-prisoner population, used terror to intimidate non-Nazis into obeying Nazi commands.

"The Nazis wanted to manipulate the non-Nazis to try to convert them to Nazism," said Walker, whose article "The Swastika and the Lone Star State: Nazi Activity in Texas POW Camps" appears in the current issue of the magazine Military History of the Southwest.

"When I started doing research on this I was flabbergasted at the small number of adults who lived here at that time who'd ever heard of this," said Walker. "For the most part the public didn't even know that kind of stuff was going on, because the Army clamped a real tight secrecy lid on it."

The secrecy lid was so tight, in fact, that Walker had to pass background investigations by the Army and the FBI before he was allowed to conduct research on the deeply classified subject of Texas prison camps.

After the authorities granted him a top secret clearance in 1976, he went to Washington to conduct his research at the National Archives, the Library of Congress and the Pentagon.

"After I got up there and they found out I was serious about doing some research, they gave me access to virtually anything they had," said Walker.

He found that the U.S. Army was aware of Nazi activities in the camps, but was never able to prevent Nazi groups, which included members of the notorious Gestapo secret police, from exerting control over other prisoners.

The Nazis set up a clandestine communications network that reached from camp to camp — and even all the way back to Germany — which they used to direct beatings, intimidation and murders of non-Nazis, he said.

"There was quite a bit of that that went on the entire time," said Walker. "The Nazis would do things like control all the reading material and sometimes the work schedules and often they led the rest of the POWs on strikes and gave the American authorities a hard time," Walker said.

He tells a tale of the murder of one non-Nazi POW who had been born in North Africa and moved to Germany and joined the German army after becoming influenced by an American pro-Nazi group.

The New York Nazi was captured in North Africa and sent to a POW camp in Huntsville, where he became a collaborator with the American forces.

"The Nazis found out he was a collaborator. A group of them, about 10, sneaked into his compound, and beat him to death," Walker said.

When the man began screaming, American guards ran to rescue him, but other Nazis, numbering about 50, blocked the guards' way, Walker said. There was an altercation between the guards and the Nazis.

The New York Nazi died of his wounds two days later.

Court overturns spy conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The espionage conviction of Richard Miller, the only FBI agent ever convicted of spying, was overturned by a federal appeals court today because of the use of lie-detector evidence at his trial.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the jury should not have been told the results of Miller's polygraph examinations, which concluded that he was lying about his motives.

The polygraph evidence bolstered the credibility of Miller's later admissions of wrongdoing, "the heart of the prosecution's case," the court said in a 3-0 ruling.

The decision entitles Miller to a new trial on charges that he spied for the Soviet Union.

Miller was convicted in June 1986 of passing secrets to the Soviets through his lover, Svetlana Ogorodnikova, in return for promises of $65,000 in cash and gold. He was sentenced to two life terms plus 50 years in prison.

She and her husband, Nikolay Ogorodnikov, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit espionage and are serving prison terms.

U.S. Attorney Robert Bonner was informed of the ruling while attending a speech by President Bush on a ranch in Riverside County.

"Oh really?" Bonner said. "We'll obviously want to take a look at the 9th Circuit opinion. We may re-appeal and we have other means. If those fail, we will retry the case. We'll deal with it when we see the decision," Bonner said.

Joel Levine, a Los Angeles lawyer who represented Miller, reacted by noting the time Miller has spent behind bars since his arrest: "We're very, very pleased, but we would be more pleased if we didn't have to go through five years, waiting for a fair trial with a client in custody."

Miller, a 20-year FBI veteran, was portrayed by prosecutors as a bitter, vengeful failure easily recruited as a spy. The defense described him as a well-meaning FBI misfit who dreamed of redeeming his career by infiltrating the Soviet spy network in the United States.

He was charged with furnishing a classified document called the Positive Intelligence Reporting Guide, which sets forth annual U.S. intelligence needs, to his lover for delivery to the Soviet consulate in San Francisco in August 1984.

Officials begin cancer research with Soviets

BOSTON (AP) — Cancer researchers, unable to find enough American patients to try new treatments, are reaching out to a potentially huge source of human test material in the Soviet Union through a joint cancer study announced Tuesday.

Scientists from the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., and the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston said the clinical study conducted with Soviet hospitals will be the first of its kind.

It will involve carefully monitored trials of new therapies on several hundred Soviet and American patients over the next two years, said Dr. Emil Frei III, director of the Dana-Farber institute, which is affiliated with Harvard Medical School.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the study marks a resumption of formal collaborative cancer research programs that began in 1972 but effectively were terminated when the Soviet army invaded Afghanistan in 1979.

"What the Soviet side is providing, the advantage of the Soviet health care system, is that it is very centralized, which allows them to get just the right patients from all over the country and bring them to Moscow for these studies," he said.

Kennedy said the study may involve exchanging some patients between the countries to provide them with the best available treatment for their conditions. But Frei said that, given the state of Soviet technology, the exchange was likely to be "mainly one-sided."

The Soviet Union lags behind the United States in cancer research, but Soviet scientists have made important advances in a few areas, such as diagnostic blood tests for testicular cancer and development of drugs for breast cancer, said Dr. Frederick C. Kass, an oncologist at Dana-Farber.

Besides the National Cancer Institute and the Dana-Farber institute, the American hospitals participating in the study are the Jonsson Comprehensive Cancer Center in Los Angeles and Roswell Park Cancer Center in Buffalo, N.Y.

On the Soviet side, the participants are the All-Union Cancer Center in Moscow and the Petrov Research Institute of Oncology in Leningrad.

Chris Aho, a spokeswoman for the Dana-Farber Institute, suggested that the quality of the test patients may be more significant than their quantity.

Lost boy 'not scared'

CONROE (AP) — An 11-year-old boy who got lost in the woods while gathering honeybees with his grandfather said he was never scared during his 31-hour ordeal despite fending off poisonous snakes.

"I knew I'd be found," said Terry Bruce, who was reunited with his family Monday night. "I saw a helicopter fly over me 20 times."

His disappearance Sunday prompted dozens of people to join in an air and ground search over a 10-square-mile area of Montgomery County.

Bruce said he had wandered for several miles, mostly on logging trails, after getting lost while chasing a swarm of his grandfather's bees. He eventually stumbled out of the woods to a rural house and asked the occupants to help.

"I knew as long as there was hope, there was a will and a way, and we had a bunch of hope," his father, Richard Bruce, said after his return.

53 horses seized

SANTA FE (AP) — Galveston County authorities seized 53 Arabian horses from a 17-acre breeding farm after a judge ordered they be removed from the property where experts said they have been neglected for months.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will care for the animals until a county court-at-law judge rules on the case.

Precinct 4 Justice of the Peace Mike Nelson's order could result in public auction of the horses.

A veterinarian testifying on behalf of owner Carol Young said none of the animals were near death and showed no signs of physical abuse, but acknowledged they needed more food.

Nelson said that after watching a portion of a videotape showing the animals' condition he decided to order them seized Monday for their own protection.

But Ms. Young, 48, denied treating the horses cruelly. "I have done the best I could," she said.

Texan chased in car

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A Texas man who led state troopers on a 120-mile car chase was charged Monday with resisting arrest and possession and transportation of 75 pounds of marijuana.

Robert Carrasco, 32, of El Paso, was jailed under $200,000 bond. A preliminary hearing was set for May 16 in Greene County Associate Circuit Court.

Carrasco was stopped for speeding shortly before 11 a.m. Sunday on Interstate 44 near the Springfield city limits, the highway patrol said. He allegedly gave officers permission to search his 1981 Chevrolet one-ton truck but sped away before the search.

Speeds reached up to 100 mph as the chase continued on I-44 to St. James, where the suspect turned east on Missouri 8. Carrasco was captured when he ran out of gas, the patrol said.

Policeman indicted

TOMBALL (AP) — A Harris County grand jury has indicted Tomball Police Chief Durwood Kennedy on a charge of stealing about $1,500 from a department fund established to help the needy and fund Christmas parties.

Prosecutor Casey O'Brien said Monday that Kennedy, 55, a former highway patrolman who has been police chief of the Houston suburb for eight years, stole money from the Tomball Police Officers Benefits Fund on eight occasions between October 1986 and November 1987.

Some of the money went to pay off hot checks written by a family member, O'Brien said, and more went for newspaper subscriptions and the chief's membership in the American Association for Retired Persons. AARP dues are $5 a year.

The prosecutor said he thinks an unidentified Tomball officer provided the tip that led to Kennedy's indictment.

'Friends' help disabled kids

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The vitality of Ofelia Cardenas can be traced to two sources: a natural enthusiasm for life and an appetite for vitamins.

The 30 vitamins a day she swallows helps her stay on a schedule that includes countless volunteer hours at San Fernando Cathedral and Family Friends Project.

The project trains volunteers above age 55 to assist chronically ill and disabled children and their families.

"They need more attention than most children," Cardenas said of the children the project serves.

"You have to be in good physical shape and have strong nerves," Cardenas, 57, trained 20 hours at Santa Rosa Hospital, learning how to care for handicapped children up to age 12.

As a project volunteer, Cardenas is committed for at least one year to Family Friends, and now cares for two children from different families.

Not having a driver's license,

"They need more attention than most children. You have to be in good physical shape and have strong nerves." — Ofelia Cardenas, volunteer

Cardenas must ride the bus to both residences.

She spends a minimum of four hours a week changing, feeding and cuddling the children while their parents work.

Cardenas said she needs every ounce of energy and tenderness she can muster to care for 2-year-old Daphne Gonzalez, who is paralyzed from the neck down.

"When I'm with her, I don't think of anything else," Cardenas said.

The other child she helps, 8-month-old Steven Canfield, suffers from Down's syndrome.

She said he requires the same maternal devotion as does Daphne, especially at mealtime.

"When he swallows it sounds like he's choking," Cardenas said.

"When he eats, it's hard to tell if he's just swallowing or really choking."

The Family Friends Project service is free.

But through an agreement with the Canfields, Cardenas earns a salary working extra days baby-sitting Steven and his 2-year-old brother, Ricky.

Along with baby-sitting, Cardenas cleans houses and sells vitamins out of her home for Shaklee Distributors.

"I'd like to get a good job and earn more money, but I don't want to give up the two children," Cardenas said.

Cardenas is a nurturer who had nine children of her own, of whom four died at birth.

A more recent family hardship was her 1987 divorce.

To relax, Cardenas polkas.

"I like to stay active," she said.

"When God sits me down, I'll stay seated.

"Until then, I'll keep singing, dancing and caring for children."

Chickens rule roost near Houston

BACLIFF (AP) — Some people like to talk turkey, but Katie Durbin would sooner talk chicken.

The 69-year-old Houston native has amassed a huge collection of knick-knacks, utensils and assorted doo-dads that have one thing in common: a chicken motif.

Katie Durbin is the uncontested Chicken Lady of Bacliff.

While some low-thinking individuals might suggest that collecting replicas of domesticated poultry is a bit, well, unusual, Mrs. Durbin couldn't care less. She and her husband are retired and they do what they darn well please.

Besides, she says, collecting chickens is fun, and, when you get down to it, that's all that matters.

"I love it," she says more than once during a recent guided tour of her collection. She is dressed appropriately for the task: jeans and a light blue T-shirt emblazoned with a bright red rooster.

Mrs. Durbin began collecting chicken memorabilia some 15 years ago, when she and her husband, Jack, married. Among the wedding gifts, Mrs. Durbin was surprised — and pleased — to find a ceramic cookie jar shaped like a chicken. She has been at it ever since.

The Durbin Chicken Collection is a multi-media conglomeration of wood, glass, rubber, metal, cloth, ceramic, plastic — just about any material you can shape into a chicken or stick a chicken to. The collection is rounded out with a handful of "real" chickens, the kind that cluck and peck and breathe.

The collection is displayed in haphazard fashion throughout the Durbin home, which they share with Jackie the dog, Birdie the cat, three hens and two roosters. The animals, for the most part, are relegated to the outside.

The Durbin estate is not pretentious. You enter through an unpainted wooden arch, under a silhouette of Texas that has "The Durbins" scratched into it. A flagpole flies the state's colors and a small sign warns: "Beware of Rooster."

In fact, the chickens peck about the yard. Above a chicken coop in the yard is a large sign that announces U.S. POST OFFICE, BACLIFF, TEX.

"Found that on the road after (Hurricane) Alicia hit," Mrs. Durbin says.

The decor inside the house is basic, cluttered, yet comfortable. And there are hundreds of chickens.

"We've just about run out of room," Mrs. Durbin observes.

She isn't kidding. There are old chickens, new chickens, middle-aged chickens. One of the oldest pieces is a pair of cuddling chickens attached to a spoon holder. The latest addition is a pair of chick dish towels.

Every chicken has a story and Mrs. Durbin remembers them all. Many were gifts from friends and relatives. Some she bought herself. Each year the Durbins take a trip to the giant flea market in Canton. They set up a table and sell antiques and other collectibles — and look for chickens to buy.

Mrs. Durbin has a philosophy about making chicken purchases: buy low and sell — well, you don't sell.

"I'm not going to sell any of my chicken stuff," she says. "I don't get rid of my chickens, no way!"

On the Durbins' dining room wall hangs a "Don't Mess With Texas," sign. Above it is one that says, "Bless This Mess." Both seem appropriate.

Spread throughout the rooms in apparent reckless abandon are hankies, tea kettles, napkin holders, candles, coffee cups, clocks, bells and glue dispensers, all with a chicken connection.

"I love it," she said.

One of her favorites in a paddle ball toy that, when you bounce the ball, causes the miniature chickens to peck at the paddle.

Texas school district bans smoking

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Smoking will be prohibited for teachers and parents as well as students at all schools and most other Corpus Christi Independent School District property under a ban taking effect next fall.

The ban, passed Monday by a 4-3 vote of the CCISD Board of Trustees, also prohibits smoking at after-school activities, such as Parent-Teacher Association meetings.

Teachers and other employees no longer will be allowed to smoke on campus during the school day.

Members of the Corpus Christi

American Federation of Teachers and the Corpus Christi Classroom Teachers Association, as well as several teachers, spoke at Monday night's meeting in an unsuccessful effort to continue the current policy allowing teachers to smoke in designated areas.

The new policy bans smoking on school property with the exception of Buccaneer Stadium, Cabanis Field and other outdoor athletic facilities.

Board president T. Theresa Rasco, who cast one of the three votes against the strict smoking ban, said, "I smoke, but think this policy is an attempt to control a person's behavior."

Board member Arturo Medina, who voted for the smoking ban, argued that CCISD teachers and other employees have personal rights, but "not the right to endanger the lives of someone else. This is not a moral issue, but a health issue."

Linda Bridges, president of the Corpus Christi American Federation of Teachers said 53 percent of her 1,700 members believe smoking should be allowed on campus, even though 79 percent of them don't smoke.

Austin policeman draws laughs with pen

AUSTIN (AP) — A rookie police officer rudies for an ambulance to rescue a chicken hit by a car.

A sergeant brushing up on his bowling rolls his ball through the wall of his house.

Two officers pick up a suspect in Dallas, but get lost trying to find the freeway. The prisoner has to give them directions out of the big city.

They're police officers caught in the act of being themselves, but this isn't Candid Camera. They're immortalized in a thick looseleaf binder full of cartoons by homicide Sgt. William Beechinor of the Austin Police Department.

His drawings first appeared on a note board at the police station in 1983. Soon after he switched to pen and paper, they ended up on most desks and cubicles at the station. Now officers say the cartoons go beyond boosting morale. A cop whose foul-ups land him in a "Beech" cartoon has received something akin to a badge of honor.

"I've never heard about anybody who was mad at Beechinor because he did a cartoon. It gives them a chance to laugh at themselves." — Assistant Chief Ray Sanders.

"I've never heard about anybody who was mad at Beechinor because he did a cartoon," Assistant Chief Ray Sanders said. "It gives them a chance to laugh at themselves."

"It's like the final punctuation to a screw-up," police officer C.F. Adams said. "Once you look at it and laugh, you realize it's all over."

Beechinor, 32, holds a degree in commercial art from Southwest Texas State University, where he graduated in 1979. But when he couldn't find a job in his field, a friend at the San Marcos Police Department encouraged him to apply as a police officer. He worked there until 1981 when he joined the Austin police.

Since that first drawing of day-to-day "funny stuff" in the patrol officers' meeting room, he has never been short of material.

"It kind of caught on where we would just leave it up there (on the board) and all the shifts would get to read it. The material started coming in. I didn't have to go looking for it anymore."

Although "no one's safe now," Beechinor said, he steers clear of controversial topics. "You go for the stuff that's just the little screw-ups that you do or the ad libbing that you have to do in this job, to get by, in dealing with situations."

In police work, "you've got to have a sense of humor to survive," he said. "And one of the rules is never take yourself too seriously."

Beechinor is also a composite artist, who sketches suspects wanted by police.

Austin policeman William Beechinor shows off some of his cartoons.

Hope.

Her last series — "Life with Lucy," co-starring frequent sidekick Gale Gordon — was carried by ABC at the start of the 1986 season. But the show, Miss Ball's first series in 12 years, was canceled after less than two months when it drew spectacularly low ratings. The actress "felt terrible. ... It really devastated her," daughter Lucie Arnaz said at the time.

Miss Ball also played a bag lady in the 1985 TV movie "Stone Pillow," considered one of the most challenging roles of her career. She was hospitalized for dehydration when it was over, but the movie was a minor critical and ratings success.

Despite her remarkable popularity, Miss Ball was one of the few stars in television's golden age who did not go on to have an extensive theatrical film career.

Her timing, wails and pratfalls made the "I Love Lucy" show one of the most popular in television history.

Bridge clubs and bowling teams changed their meeting nights to watch Lucy Ricardo and her sidekick, Ethel Mertz (the late Vivian Vance), come up with another harebrained scheme to drive their long-suffering husbands, Ricky and Fred, to desperation.

A Chicago department store changed the night it stayed open because shoppers were staying home in front of the television.

Miss Ball's real, onscreen pregnancy marked a milestone in television, and an estimated 44 million viewers — more than watched the inauguration of President Eisenhower — tuned in on Jan. 19, 1953, the night Lucy Ricardo delivered Little Ricky. Her real son was born just four hours before the previously filmed show was broadcast.

Miss Ball remained a worldwide favorite through the breakup of her 20-year marriage to Arnaz, who played husband Ricky Ricardo in "I Love Lucy."

Miss Ball was born Aug. 6, 1911, in Celeron, N.Y., the daughter of an electrician and a concert

Career highlights

Here are highlights of Lucille Ball's career:

1911 — Born Aug. 6, 1911 in Jamestown N.Y., the daughter of an electrician and concert pianist Desiree Ball.

1926 — Begins career in show business in New York as a chorus girl.

1933 — Goes to Hollywood as movie showgirl for RKO, later becoming a successful actress appearing in more than 75 films.

1940 — Marries Desi Arnaz, a Cuban percussionist and bandleader when both were making the movie "Too Many Girls."

1951 — They form Desilu Productions with $5,000 and "I Love Lucy" begins its historic six-year domination of television comedy. Earlier in the year, they have their first child.

1953 — "I Love Lucy" episode in which Lucy Ricardo gives birth to Little Ricky is telecast the same day that Lucille Ball, in real life, gives birth to second child, Desi Jr.

1957 — Desilu purchases RKO studios and begins producing other programs.

1960 — The Arnazes divorce, with Desi selling his share of the studio to Lucy for $3 million.

1961 — Miss Ball marries nightclub comic Gary Morton, who becomes her executive producer.

1962 — Miss Ball goes solo, returning to the airwaves in "The Lucy Show."

1967 — Miss Ball sells company to Gulf & Western for $18 million.

1968 — "The Lucy Show" is redesigned and becomes "Here's Lucy." It runs until 1974.

1974 — Miss Ball plays the title role in the movie version of "Mame."

1985 — In her first serious dramatic role in years, Miss Ball plays a New York bag lady in the CBS-TV movie "Stone Pillow."

She is hospitalized for dehydration following strenuous work on the film.

1986 — Miss Ball returns to sitcom television in ABC's "Life With Lucy." The show is canceled within only months.

American public.

The couple went on a nationwide vaudeville tour and proved audiences would sit still to watch a leggy, blue-eyed comedian and a Cuban-born band leader with a heavy accent. They also produced their own pilot episode on borrowed money.

CBS relented, and "I Love Lucy," with Miss Vance as Ethel and the late William Frawley as Fred, was an immediate success.

More than 10 million of the nation's 15 million television sets switched to "Lucy," and some of her antics became comedy classics: Lucy putting too much yeast in the bread, which quickly fills up her kitchen and pins her against the wall; Lucy fighting with a fellow grape-presser in a giant wine-making vat; Lucy rehearsing a commercial for a health tonic and becoming drunk from its alcohol content.

The show also revolutionized television sitcom production in the days before videotape.

Easy potato omelets

By JOE REED

Hey! We're going to have a potato omelet for breakfast. I see you are a little late getting up this morning. Also whistling? What's that I hear? The wife singing at THIS hour of the morning? Everything looks like it's coming up roses. I have to believe things worked out this past week. Right?

I've been telling you, if you will just listen to me, follow my instructions, you will have no problems. Just don't get over confident. Women, as they are, in their very make-up, resent men being liberated. We've been put down so long, they think it's the natural order of things. We men have a right to be our own person, to have a hand in the every day running of the household, especially in the kitchen. They can't keep us down any longer.

But we have to tread easy. This movement of ours must not overstep our goals. Let us try to stay away from confrontation and militancy. Rather, we should use logic, reason and persuasion.

Personally, I think you had better drink lemon juice this morning instead of orange juice. It will take about three glasses to wipe that silly grin off your face. Might save a glass or two for your wife, also.

Let's start breakfast. This morning you will need:
Two boiled potatoes
1 small onion
8 eggs
Parsley
Butter
Salt and pepper

Always remember to keep about a half dozen boiled potatoes on hand, along with hard-boiled eggs. Sure comes in handy on a

How to open an egg morning like this.

In a skillet, melt a chunk of butter about the size of a golf ball. Cook the potatoes and onions (finely chopped) in the butter over a medium flame for about five minutes. Pour in the beaten eggs and cook.

When the eggs are set, or when they don't run, take a spatula (that's one of those little plastic flat do-jiggers you flip eggs and pancakes with) and run it around the edge of the skillet, lifting the eggs to let the uncooked eggs run underneath. When the concoction is all set or cooked, put on a platter. That's all there is to it. Elapsed time? About 15 or 20 minutes.

You'll find that cooking is fun. You're beginning to feel like a liberated man. I assure you this feeling of independence can be kept for the rest of your life. Just don't listen to the voice of doubt that will begin to assail you from every side. Our next meal will be lunch and we will feature: PIZZA CUT-UP.

Southwestern-style Swiss Steak may look like the childhood favorite, but its tongue-tinging taste has adult appeal. The easy addition of mild, medium or hot picante sauce adds spicy, garden-fresh flavor and just the desired degree of jalapeno heat.

Spicing up bland foods

The hearty, homey dishes mom used to make can trigger fond memories of childhood. Their fondly remembered flavors, however, often can seem bland to sophisticated "grown-up" tastes.

When formerly favored foods lose their charm, revive their appeal with a spicy Southwestern flavor boost. All it takes is a bit of imagination and a jar of versatile PACE picante sauce, in the cook's choice of mild, medium or hot.

SOUTHWESTERN-STYLE SWISS STEAK

1 1/2 to 2 pounds boneless round or chuck steak, cut 1/2-inch thick and well-trimmed
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
1/2 cup flour
2 lbs. vegetable oil
2 large onions, sliced and separated into rings

1 1/2 to 2 cups sliced carrots, 1/2-inch thick as desired
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 can (16-oz.) tomatoes, drained and coarsely chopped
1/2 to 2/3 cup picante sauce
1/2 cup beef broth
2 lbs. chopped cilantro or parsley

Cut meat into serving pieces; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Pound all the flour into meat, using meat mallet. Heat oil in heavy, large skillet. Brown meat in oil on both sides. Arrange onions, carrots and garlic over meat. Pour tomatoes, picante sauce, and beef broth over all. Cover tightly and simmer until meat is fork-tender, 50 to 60 minutes. Remove meat to serving platter. Cook liquid over high heat until reduced and thickened, about 5 to 7 minutes. Pour over meat; sprinkle with cilantro. Serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 6 servings.

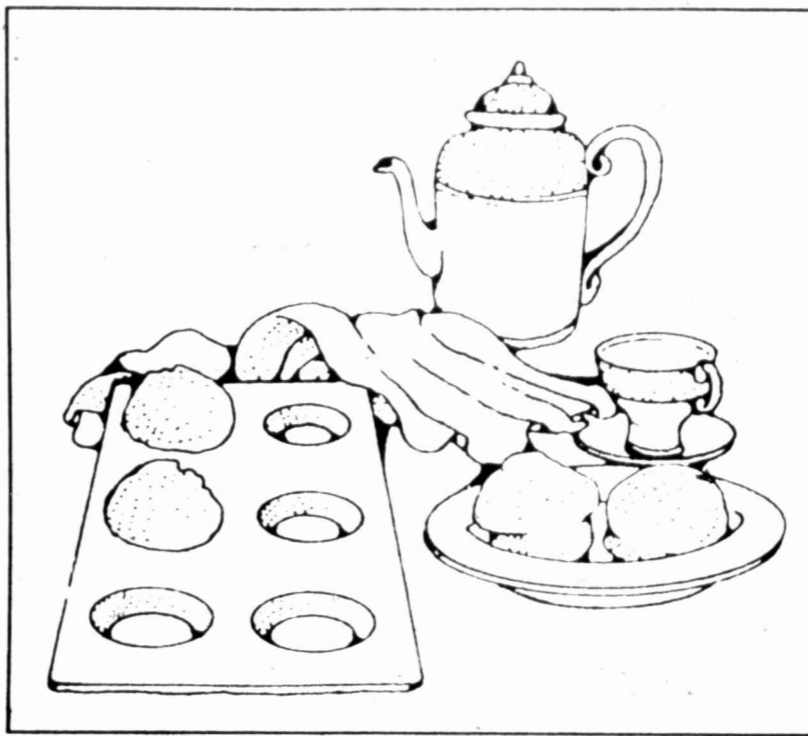

Easy-to-prepare breakfast muffins

Treat yourself to something special in the morning. Bake up a batch of morning muffins to enjoy all week and start every day with a smile.

This week's Recipe Exchange features muffin recipes from The Joy of Muffins Cookbook.

DUTCH APPLE

1 1/2 cups chopped, peeled apples
1 cup raisins or currants
2 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 tsp. ground cardamon, or cinnamon
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
4 tsp. baking powder
2 large eggs
1 cup whipping cream
3/4 cups melted butter or margarine
Mix apples and raisins with lemon juice and spice. Set aside. In a large bowl, stir the dry ingredients together well. In another bowl, lightly beat the eggs with the cream and butter. Add to dry ingredients along with the apples. Stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. Spoon into greased muffin tins and bake until golden brown. Bake at 400 degrees F for about 18 minutes. Makes 20 muffins.

CLASSIC BLUEBERRY

2 cups flour
1/4 cup sugar
3 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
2 eggs
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup melted butter
1 cup washed blueberries

Mix together dry ingredients in a large bowl. In another bowl, whisk eggs, milk and melted butter. Make a well in the dry ingredients and pour in liquid ingredients, blending quickly. Fold in blueberries. Spoon batter into greased muffin cups and bake until golden brown. Bake at 400 degrees for 20-30 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

Wife doesn't like husband's rough love

DEAR ABBY: You say a wife should never stand for being slapped around, pushed, pinched or hit. My husband is good to me. He doesn't drink or run around. I have a fur coat and nice jewelry. He doesn't deny me anything, but he does manhandle me. I've asked him not to, but he won't listen. He says it's because he loves me so much.

Dear Abby

For example, he will jerk my arm when I pass him and pull me off my feet so he can kiss me. Or he will grab the front of my shirt and pull me to him and kiss me so hard my lips hurt. He will kick me when I'm bending over, or slap me on the behind really hard, calling it a "love slap." He has tickled me until I can't breathe and scream for mercy. When I get angry and complain, he says he can't help it — he loves me. I've told him that kind of treatment turns me off. He says he will try to remember, but the next day it's the same thing all over again.

Abby, I am not a cold woman. I give him plenty of love and attention, and I tell him I love him every time he calls me from work, which is about five times a day. He's really not a bad guy, and he's good to my mother, but I wish I could stop him from being so physically rough with me. But how? — BLACK AND BLUE IN LOUISIANA

DEAR BLACK AND BLUE: I do not doubt that your husband "loves" you, but when he kicks, slaps, jerks and kisses you so hard it hurts, that's ABUSE.

He may tell you that he is expressing his "love," but the kind of treatment you describe — "manhandling" you while your protests are ignored — is veiled hostility. If he really loves you, he will go to family counseling with you and learn how to express his love without physically abusing you.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you, thank you for publishing the letter from "No Name," the battered husband. While I do not deny or condone the reality of abused women, it's high time we: a) start referring to "spouse abuse," b) recognize that "spouse" can and does include the husband, and c) recognize that abuse can be verbal and emotional as well as physical — regardless of the abuser's gender.

In my own case, after tolerating years of physical and emotional abuse in the futile hope that my ex-wife would change, two things woke me up. The first was the realization that I was nearing the point of physical retaliation. The second was when her assaults began to turn against our 1-year-old son. The day she began throwing things at him and screaming that she hated him, I took the boy and what personal possessions I could carry, and walked out. I may have allowed her to manipulate me and abuse me, but she was not going to do it to him.

By then I was emotionally drained and close to a breakdown. However, through treatment and counseling for depression, and with the support of family and friends (who had seen it coming long before I did), I regained my self-esteem and will sufficiently fight and win the ensuing custody battle. It was an uphill fight, and the legal expenses very nearly finished me. Two years later, I'm just getting my head above water financially. But I have my son, my self-respect and a good beginning toward a new life.

I am not suggesting that my experience mitigates — let alone excuses — the very real violence that many women endure. My heart goes out to them in their efforts to escape and rebuild their lives. — BEEN THERE IN OHIO

Saying farewell to my Poke favorites

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Being a TRUE-BLUE Dallas Cowboys fan, this has been a very difficult year. The Cowboys suffer through a 3-13 season, Tom Landry is told to step down, Tex Schramm followed suit, and Randy White retires.

When Jerry Jones purchased the Cowboys, it was curtains for Landry. The multi-millionaire from Arkansas promptly ditched Landry for University of Miami coach Jimmy Johnson. After all, Jones and Johnson together played on Arkansas' 1964 national championship team.

With that move goes one of the greatest coaches to ever coach the game. It's too bad Jones didn't realize he was shedding one of the best coaching minds in the game.

The negatives multiplied against Landry after three losing seasons. The game finally caught up to him; he showed no emotion, and he didn't want his players to, either; heck, he didn't even curse.

Jones booted the only coach the Cowboys have ever had in their 29-year existence. It's ironic that Landry will go out as he came in. His franchise Cowboys had five losing seasons.

But in-between, there were 20 consecutive winning seasons. There was also 13 divisional titles, five National Football Conference championships and two Super Bowls crowns. The 250-162-6 record ranks him as the third winningest coach in pro football. George Halas and Don Shula are not bad acts to follow.

Thanks for the memories, Tom. I'll always cherish the Super Bowls titles in '74 and '77; even the '75 and '78 Super Bowl losses to Pittsburgh. Roger Staubach's Hail Mary pass to Drew Pearson in the '75 playoff win over Minnesota and Clint Longley's 1974 bombing of the Redskins Thanksgiving day.

I'll never forget Staubach, Pearson, Calvin Hill, Duane Thomas, Butch Johnson, Bob Lilly, Rayfield Wright, Mel Renfro, Bob Hays, Cornell Green, Chuck Howley, Dave Manders... the list could go on and on.

Since 1966 when Texas E. Schramm, was elevated from Vice-President and General Manager to President, the organization moved with clockwork precision. Schramm brought peace to pro football when he completed two months of negotiations with the AFL's Lamar Hunt, merging the two leagues under the NFL banner.

Landry and Schramm worked well as a team. The Cowboys modernized football and quickly became the envy of the league. With a label like America's Team, it's hard not to be a fan.

After Landry's departure, he is no longer coach of the Cowboys, he went to his office and quietly cleaned it out of all his personal belongings. He even called someone from the maintenance department and asked him to come remove his door from its hinges. He would take it with him. And with that door left an era, an era that will never be relived in Dallas Cowboys history.

After more than a decade, the Manster finally called it quits. Not that he really thought he was ready, but he knew the old era of the Cowboys were over. It just wouldn't be the same.

I can still remember Randy White when he came out of Maryland as the Outland and Lombardi Trophy winner.

The Cowboys spent two seasons trying to turn the defensive end into a middle linebacker. However, playing in the trenches was what Randy White did best, so he took over at the tackle position.

I never really took much notice of him at Maryland, but when he became a Cowboy I watched his every move. He quickly became my idol, picking up where Bob Lilly left off.

At the time, he was the most intense football player I had ever seen.

During the early years, he dominated because he had so much ability. But as the years wore on, he still dominated simply because of his sheer determination.

So, after 14 seasons, which included nine straight All-Pro selections, White's relentless march to the Hall of Fame is over.

Landry once said in a classic discription of White, "When Randy White lines up over you, he doesn't care whether you're All-Pro or whether you're a rookie. You're going to get the same treatment. That's what makes him unique in this game."

And Landry knows about unique people. Birds of a feather flock together. I'm going to miss you guys.

Sophomore netter to state

BROWNWOOD — For the first time in many years Big Spring will have a player competing in the state tennis tournament. Sophomore Rocky Tubb earned the honor by finishing second in the Region 1-4A tennis tournament here Tuesday.

Tubb, the No. 3 seed in the tournament, making his second trip to regional, was defeated in the finals by No. 1 seeded Sean Cobb of Crowley, 6-4, 6-2. The Big Spring doubles team of senior Binky Tubb and junior Danny Whitehead were defeated in the semifinals by Carl Wynn and Brian Holcomb of Levelland, 6-0, 5-7, 3-6.

Wynn and Holcomb were defeated in the finals by Snyder's Michael Rodriguez and Kevin Winter, 6-3, 6-4. Ironically, Binky Tubb and Whitehead have been the only pair to defeat Rodriguez and Winter — and they did it twice this year.

This was the second consecutive regional singles title for Crowley's Cobb. Last year he finished third in the state tournament.

"Rocky had a real good tournament," said Big Spring coach Dave Hay, of his sophomore that carries a 29-3 season record. "He ended up right where we hoped he would be. But he had very tough semifinal match against a senior from Borger (Scott Clark), who had only lost one match this year.

"One of the positive things throughout the tournament in Rocky's game was his attacking first serve. He upped the level in the past two weeks and there was nobody in the tournament who served better than Rocky," said Hay.

The finals marked the second time Rocky had played Cobb. In the first meeting Cobb won handily 6-0, 6-1.

"Against Cobb, Rocky played tough and with much more determination than the earlier match, in which Rocky looked nervous. Cobbs expected to be the top seed in state.

"I'm pleased with Rocky's performance in the match. I believe with continued hard work, we can get a couple of more games in a rematch. As close as those scores are, it might even give Rocky the chance at defeating one of the state's finest players."

Binky Tubb and Whitehead end the season with a 25-3 record. Hay said the duo had a tough road to make it to state.

"The doubles pair got a surprisingly tough draw. We were the only seed to survive the second round of the tournament. But the pair didn't play as sharp of tennis as they had in winning 19 straight matches and five tournaments going in.

"The semifinal match appeared to be well in hand but the Levelland pair appeared more concerned with hitting the ball hard, than where it goes. And when a team like that gets hot, look out. They started hitting balls in play that were longed out earlier in the match.

"I don't think we let up, but we still weren't playing sharp tennis. It was more of the Levelland pair taking charge than us letting up."

Rocky Tubb will compete in the state tennis tournament in Austin May 10-12.

Steers vault into first place tie

By RUTH COCHRAN

All Sweetwater saw in the first inning of their District 4-4A baseball game Tuesday was the backs of Big Spring players as they crossed home plate.

For the Mustangs, it wasn't a pretty sight. The Steers scored seven runs on just three hits then held off a Sweetwater rally to win 15-8 in six and one-half innings.

Big Spring improved to 7-3 in the conference and 12-9 overall. The Steers also got just their second home win of the season. Sweetwater fell to 1-7 in the district. The win, combined with Andrews' win over Fort Stockton, put Big Spring in a three-way tie for first with Fort Stockton and Snyder.

A wild first inning got the Steers off to an excellent start. After downing the first three Sweetwater batters to step to the plate, the Steers took over. Two errors, two passed balls and a wild pitch by Sweetwater led to Big Spring's first five runs.

Shortstop Freddie Rodriguez capped the inning when he sailed a triple to center field that just did catch the top of the fence. The shot counted for two RBIs and a 7-0 lead for Big Spring.

The Mustangs, led by base-runner deluxe Kenneth Norman, got back in the game in the second with a three-hit, three-run effort. Sweetwater kept picking away at the Big Spring lead, finally edging to within 8-7 in the top of the fourth.

Big Spring coach John Velasquez said his team, comprised mostly of freshmen and sophomores, suffered through a three-inning mental lapse.

"We always find a way to mess it up," he said. "We haven't been playing well at home."

"We didn't play any defense. Norman is real fast. He makes everybody nervous."

Pelluer misses mini-camp opening day

IRVING (AP) — Quarterback Steve Pelluer missed the beginning of the Dallas Cowboys mini-camp today, apparently because his contract expired in February and he does not want to risk an injury while he is negotiating for a new contract.

Cowboys personnel moves weren't limited to the playing field. Vice president Joe Bailey, who negotiated player contracts as former team president Tex Schramm's first assistant for 19 years, said today he is resigning.

In addition, Don Wilson, the club's treasurer for 20 years, was terminated in a one-paragraph letter from new owner Jerry Jones. Pelluer hinted to reporters that he believes his future may be with some other team since the Cowboys selected UCLA quarterback Troy Aikman as the No. 1 selection in the National Football League.

Aikman already has signed a six-year contract valued at $11.037 million.

Pelluer, last year's starter, earned $302,500 in 1988 and has not been under contract since February, when his agreement with the Cowboys expired.

"I've always thought I'd like to finish my career here. But I need to start. I still consider myself the starting quarterback," said Pelluer, who will spend the next three days visiting his brother in Idaho.

"I just cannot see myself being a backup and being content to be a backup for the rest of my career," he said. "I'm not conceding the job, but if they aren't going to treat me like a starter, there are others out there that will."

Joe Courrage, Pelluer's agent, said he spoke Tuesday with Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson and made "zero progress" toward reaching an agreement.

Courrage said he advised Pelluer to skip the mini camp.

Pelluer notified Johnson of his decision Tuesday, reiterating that he is skipping the mini camp because he does not want to risk an injury and jeopardize his bargaining power, not because he is angry that the Cowboys selected Aikman.

"There's not much to do with Aikman, other than I want them to tell me where I stand," Pelluer

Committee cracks down on Valvano

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State basketball coach Jim Valvano should not also be the school's athletic director because there is a conflict of interest when he creates policies for himself, a committee has concluded.

Its recommendation was unanimously endorsed by the faculty senate after it was issued in a report by the group's Select Committee on Academic Integrity, which was formed to examine N.C. State's handling of student grades in the wake of allegations of improper grade changing on the basketball team.

The singular nature of the varsity basketball challenge at N.C. State University has prompted the committee to further suggest that the two roles of director of athletics and basketball coach of the men's team may not be compatible," the committee said. The panel added that it was impressed with the improvement in academics in athletes in non-revenue sports as well as the football team.

In an interview after the senate meeting, Dr. Edward P. Stahel II, a professor of chemical engineering who chaired the committee, said the committee had found that basketball players were not encouraged to achieve beyond a minimal level to keep them eligible to play.

Valvano, reached at his office for comment, hung up on a reporter asking for his reaction to the senate vote and the committee's report.

In the first four pages of the five-page report, the committee said it had found nothing amiss in the university's handling of student grades. On the final page, however, the committee wrote that it had found serious academic problems with the basketball team.

"While TV 'color' personnel talk of 'seniors' on the team, they are often referring to athletes in their fourth year of eligibility and the students' academic standing may place him years short of achieving a degree," the report says.

The committee wrote that it was encouraged that a report by the director of the academic skills program said that "essentially all our athletes were capable of successful academic work at N.C. State."

"It is the consensus of the committee that an extremely strong statement needs to be made by the academic community, indeed by the whole university family, that athletes are first and foremost students and scholars," the report said.

Seton Hall hoop coach may leave

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Seton Hall basketball coach P. J. Carlesimo met today with Kentucky athletics director C.M. Newton after The Associated Press reported that Carlesimo would get the Kentucky coaching job.

"I can't say anything right now," Carlesimo said before a meeting began with Newton and Jim Host, president of Host Communications Co., which holds broadcast rights to Kentucky sporting events.

Two sources told the AP that Carlesimo, who guided an unheralded Seton Hall team to the runner-up spot in the NCAA tournament, would accept the position and that an announcement could come as early as today.

UK president David Roselle said he expected to meet with Carlesimo today. Roselle told The Courier-Journal of Louisville that reports were "not true" that Carlesimo had been hired.

As he entered the meeting with Carlesimo and Host, Newton said questions about whether Carlesimo had been hired were "premature."

"We're just talking," Newton said.

The sources told the AP that Carlesimo wanted to talk with Seton Hall officials, specifically those who supported him during attempts to oust him two seasons ago, before making an official announcement.

"Kentucky has a new coach," one source said Tuesday night. Roselle said Carlesimo's hiring would have to be approved by the school's athletics board, of which he is chairman. He said no such board meeting has been scheduled.

"He's a good candidate (and) we're clearly interested in one another," Roselle said. He added that he was sure Newton had "not made any offer" to Carlesimo.

Carlesimo had remained in Lexington after his interview Tuesday with the school's screening committee and Newton.

Chris Cameron, UK sports information director, and Bernie

Vonderheide, a school spokesman, said they knew nothing about a decision on a new coach, and both added no news conference had been scheduled for today.

Carlesimo just finished the first year of a five-year contract reportedly worth a total of $1.2 million. That average salary of $240,000 could probably be doubled by UK's overall package.

Carlesimo, a 39-year-old bachelor whose coaching record is under .500 despite last season's 31-7 mark, is the first candidate Newton had wanted who has been interested enough to visit the campus.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski and Los Angeles Laker coach Pat Riley immediately said they were not interested. Arizona coach Lute Olson flirted with UK briefly but canceled a visit to the campus.

Newton had declined earlier Tuesday night to characterize Carlesimo as the top candidate.

"Not really. I'm not going to get into numbers," Newton said.

Rangers get production from bottom half

By The Associated Press
What would a manager take from his No. 7 and No. 9 hitter. How about seven hits, six RBIs and four runs scored?

Bobby Valentine got that Tuesday night from Pete Incaviglia and Steve Buechele as the Texas Rangers extended their best start ever with an 11-7 victory over the Cleveland Indians. Texas, 14-4, had 19 hits.

Incaviglia was batting .203 and has not been much of a factor as the Rangers compiled the best record in the majors. Valentine dropped him to seventh in the batting order. Buechele hit ninth.

"My job is to play hard and do the job, whether I'm hitting fourth, seventh or ninth," Incaviglia said. "Bobby (Valentine) is the manager and I'm not going to cause problems. He respects everybody in this clubhouse."

Incaviglia was having trouble respecting himself before the first four-hit game of his career — two singles, a double and a triple.

"Four hits brings my confidence back," Incaviglia said. "I was fighting myself through spring training and up until now. But mentally, I've been believing in myself, and everybody on the club believes in what I can do."

He scored three runs and drove in two in boosting his average to .246. Buechele had four RBIs from a single, double and triple. Buechele and Incaviglia each knocked in two runs during the Rangers' five-run fifth inning, which snapped a 5-5 tie.

Elsewhere, it was Boston 11, Chicago 0; Milwaukee 10, Minnesota 4; Kansas City 5, New York 3; Detroit 5, Seattle 2; Oakland 3, Toronto 1, and Baltimore 8, California 1.

Bobby Witt, 3-0, allowed seven runs on seven hits in five innings. Reliever Brad Arnsberg pitched four scoreless innings for his first career save, yielding two hits.

Cleveland lost for the ninth time in the last 11 games. The Indians' starting pitchers haven't won in 11 games since April 12, 0-6 during that span.

"You're always concerned about something like that, but I know they're good enough. They're going to be back," Cleveland manager Doc Edwards said. "Last year, they were getting into the sixth and seventh inning. You hate to go to your bullpen before the fifth."

Red Sox 11, White Sox 0
At Boston, Roger Clemens beat his nemesis, pitching a three-hitter to break his five-game losing streak against Chicago. Jim Rice, Ellis Burks and Rich Gedman homered as Boston ended a three-game losing streak and improved Clemens' career record after Red Sox' losses to 36-6.

"I just made good pitches all the way through," said Clemens, 3-0, who struck out 11 and allowed singles to Harold Baines in the first and to Ivan Calderon in the fourth and to Ivan Calderon in the fourth and seventh. "You hear everybody saying, 'you're struggling against a particular team (Chicago),' and the team (Boston) itself is struggling a little bit. It makes my job a little tougher, but I like those situations."

Brewers 10, Twins 4
At Milwaukee, Bryan Clutter-

buck's first major league victory was easy thanks to two homers apiece from Glenn Braggs and Paul Molitor and one by Gary Sheffield.

Clutterbuck, who pitched a seven-hitter in his first decision since 1986, did not pitch in a major league game the last two years after undergoing elbow surgery in 1987.

"It feels good, especially after surgery," he said. "I worked hard to come back, but it's easy when you get the runs and the defense is behind you."

Braggs drove in five runs. He hit a two-run homer in the fourth, tripled in a run in the sixth and had a two-run homer in the seventh. Braggs' five RBIs were a career high.

"I just decided I was going up there and be very aggressive, get my pitch and swing as hard as I could," Braggs said. "I hope this is a breaking point and I show what I can do. It's been real tough. I'm good one day and the next day I'm terrible."

Molitor led off the first with a solo homer — the 24th time he has done so — and also hit one in the eighth. Sheffield added a home run in the fourth on the pitch following Braggs' first homer.

Royals 5, Yankees 3
At Kansas City, Bo Jackson hit his fourth home run in six games and major-league-high seventh. Kevin Seitzer also homered and singled in a run. Frank White had an RBI double and Bob Boone added a run-scoring single.

in 171 games on a questionable scoring decision in the eighth. Rickey Henderson, one of the league's swiftest runners, hit a ground ball that White lunged to his right to stop. But he didn't come up with the ball in time to get Henderson and was given the error. But Henderson was picked off by Bret Saberhagen. Then Steve Sax doubled and, on right fielder Dan Ryer's fielding error, came all the way home.

Dodgers hurler fires second shutout

By The Associated Press
Move over Orel, Tim Belcher is starting a streak of his own.

Belcher pitched his second straight shutout Tuesday night as Los Angeles beat Chicago 4-0, spoiling the party to celebrate the 75th anniversary of Wrigley Field.

Belcher has a ways to go, though. Last season, Orel Hershiser had 59 consecutive scoreless innings to break Don Drysdale's major league record by one inning.

"He pitched a helluva game," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "We had a chance to get some more runs, but as it turned out he pitched some kind of a game."

Belcher, 2-1, allowed five hits, walked one and struck out seven. He also shut out Cincinnati 6-0, on four hits in his previous start on April 18.

While the Cubs weren't hitting, Belcher was.

He provided all the runs he needed with a two-run double to cap a three-run second inning against Scott Sanderson, 1-2.

Mike Marshall led off the second with a single and continued to second on right-fielder Andre Dawson's error. Mike Scioscia reached when shortstop Domingo Ramos booted his grounder for an error.

John Shelby doubled to score Marshall and after Alfredo Griffin struck out, Belcher doubled to right-center to make it 3-0.

Belcher also singled in the sixth while Eddie Murray had three hits, including a pair of doubles. Murray also had a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Padres 1, Pirates 0
Eric Show allowed six hits in eight-plus innings and Mark Davis got the last three outs for his 10th save in 10 opportunities as San Diego edged Pittsburgh at Three Rivers Stadium.

With one out in the fifth, Garry Templeton doubled off Bob Walk, 1-2, and scored on Roberto Alomar's single.

Walk lost to the Padres for the first time since July 21, 1984. He had been 5-0 against San Diego since then.

Mets 2, Braves 1
David Cone allowed five hits in 8 2-3 innings and Len Dykstra drove in a run and scored another, leading New York past Atlanta at Shea Stadium. It was the Mets' sixth victory in their last eight games and moved them to the .500 mark at 9-9.

Cone, 2-1, struck out 10 and walked four before needing last out relief help from Randy Myers. Cone lost his shutout bid when Ron Gant homered on a 1-2 pitch with one out in the eighth inning.

Reds 6, Expos 1
Paul O'Neill snapped a sixth-inning tie with a three-run homer as Cincinnati, beat Montreal at Riverfront Stadium and snapped out of a batting slump.

The Reds had scored only 10 runs in their previous six games, including three straight shutouts. The Expos have lost four of their last five games.

O'Neill's second homer of the season came off Dennis Martinez, 1-1, and put the Reds ahead 4-1 in the sixth.

Tom Browning, 3-1, allowed seven hits, including Tim Wallach's homer.

Astros 4, Phillies 1
Mike Scott pitched a four-hitter and Glenn Davis hit a two-run homer as Houston beat Philadelphia in the Astrodome. Davis has homered in three straight games and has six for the season.

Scott, 3-1, had a shutout until the seventh inning when Darren Daulton hit his fifth homer of the season. Daulton had one homer last season in 144 at-bats.

Davis hit a two-run homer off Ken Howell, 2-1, in the first and scored from first in the sixth on Kevin Bass' double.

Howell allowed four hits in seven innings and struck out a career-high 10.

Giants 4, Cardinals 0
Don Robinson allowed four hits in seven innings and singled to key a three-run third inning, leading visiting San Francisco past St. Louis.

Robinson, 1-1, walked four and struck out none. He also singled in the fifth inning in improving his lifetime batting average to .268, best in the majors among pitchers with at least 150 at-bats.

Boston Bruins ousted by Canadiens

MONTREAL (AP) — It can't be disputed that Ryan Walter, a plugger and digger on Montreal's checking line, was the hero of the Canadiens' Adams Division playoff-clinching victory over the Boston Bruins.

NHL Playoffs

Just ask Cam Neely, Boston's best forward, who saw nothing but Walter's six-foot, 195-pound frame nearly every time he stepped on the ice.

"That's really the first time in my career that someone has really stuck to me," said Neely, held to only two goals in the five-game final series, which were all one-goal games.

"In other years, guys have been on me, but not like this."

Walter was on Neely again on Tuesday night, when Montreal wrapped up the series with a 3-2 victory in which Neely had only one shot on goal. Rookie Bob Joyce had both Boston goals and Craig Jan-ney had two assists. Neely had five goals in Boston's first round series against Buffalo, but one of his goals against the Canadiens came on one of the rare occasions when Walter wasn't on the ice.

Walter, who turned 31 on Sunday, has been stoic about his work, which earned him one of the three game stars in the first two games of the series.

Walter has also emerged as a first rate faceoff man, taking the most important faceoffs even when Neely was not on the ice.

It was Walter's kind of work that defeated the Bruins. The Canadiens were getting an effort even from their stragglers in the finale, as Shayne Corson scored his first goal of the playoffs and assisted on the game-winner by Stephane Richer.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again, I believe in Shayne Corson," said Montreal coach Pat Burns, who had criticized Corson's substandard play.

"He bounced back tonight with a big game. I think he knows now how much we need him out there."

The Bruins had forced a fifth game with a determined effort Sunday in Boston and it looked like a sixth game might be needed when Joyce opened the scoring at 15:37 of the first period.

But Montreal struck back with goals by Chris Chelios and Corson in the second frame and Richer got the game-winner at 4:14 of the third. Joyce added another and a desperate Boston comeback fell short.

"It's always a relief when you win a series," Burns said. "As much as everyone has been saying that we played badly, I think it was a case of the Bruins playing well."

Penguins 10, Flyers 7
PITTSBURGH (AP) — No matter how many regular-season goals he scored, no matter how he elevated the art of playing hockey, there were those who doubted Mario Lemieux.

Sure, he was a great goal scorer — when the games didn't really matter. Sure, he saved a franchise. But how could he ever be compared to Wayne Gretzky until he did it in the playoffs?

May the comparisons begin. Mario Lemieux has the Pittsburgh Penguins one victory away from their first appearance in the Wales Conference finals. Wayne Gretzky is on the sidelines, his Los Angeles Kings eliminated in five games by the Calgary Flames.

Mario Lemieux showed why he is the best hockey player in the world, goaltender Tom Barrasso said after Lemieux tied NHL playoff records with four first-period goals, five overall and eight points as the Penguins beat the Philadelphia Flyers 10-7 Tuesday night.

The victory before 16,025 towel-waving fans gave the Penguins a 3-2 edge in the best-of-7 series, which continues with Game 6 Thursday night in Philadelphia. Game 7, if necessary, will be Saturday night in Pittsburgh.

Lemieux was listed as questionable because of a strained neck suffered in the Flyers' 4-1 victory in Game 5, and he admittedly couldn't see from side to side as well as usual.

Lemieux scored a natural hat trick in the first 6:55 of play and had four goals by the end of the first period, when the Penguins led 6-1.

Martina to play lighter schedule

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Martina Navratilova will bypass the French Open and other European clay court tournaments this year, apparently in an attempt to lighten her schedule, the Women's International Tennis Association said.

Navratilova, a two-time French Open champion and the second-ranked women's player in the world, has also withdrawn from the Italian and German Opens.

Navratilova, whose style of play is better suited to fast surfaces, won the French Open in 1982 and 1984 and lost in the finals in 1985, 1986 and 1987. Last year she was knocked out in the third round by Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union.

Amateur upsets third seed

HOUSTON (AP) — Sixteen-year-old amateur Carrie Cunningham won a battle of service breaks 4-6, 7-5, 6-2 in the Virginia Slims of Houston over third-seeded Katerina Maleeva, who served much of the final two sets underhanded.

In another upset, sixth-seeded Isabel Cueto of West Germany lost 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 to American Elise Burgin.

Second seeded Zina Garrison of Houston defeated unseeded 18-year-old Marisaan DeSwardt of South Africa 6-2, 7-5 in evening play.

Troubled player pleads innocent

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Jay Edwards appeared in Monroe Superior Court and pleaded innocent to two misdemeanor counts of battery from an alleged assault on an Indianapolis woman.

Judge Douglas Bridges set a May 30 date for the bench trial for the former Indiana University basketball star. If convicted, Edwards faces a maximum sentence of 1 1/2 years in jail and a $6,000 fine.

The charges stemmed from a complaint filed by Beth Ann Irish, who told police Edwards slapped her twice and punched her at a party Saturday night. Edwards has admitted to slapping her, but said he did it because she had rushed him.

EX-NFL player busted for drugs

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former professional football player Woodrow "Woody" Green has been arrested and accused of possession and distribution of crack cocaine, police said.

Green, 37, a former Arizona State running back who played professionally with the Kansas City Chiefs, was arrested last Thursday along with two boys, ages 12 and 13, when officers served a search warrant at a house in northeast Portland. He was released the day of his arrest on his own recognizance.

Sweetwater in the game until the Big Spring offense kicked back into gear in the bottom of the fifth. Sweetwater pitcher Juan Mendoza saw his arm turn to jello and the Steers ate his lunch. Two pitchers and three outs later, the game essentially was over.

Big Spring reeled off another seven runs on four hits, including a double by Rodriguez, a triple by Robert Perez and a double by Chris Crowover.

The Steers hit the road Saturday to play district-leader Fort Stockton. Velasquez said his team doesn't have to win to stay alive in district but it would help.

"It just assures us of having to lose two games to be out of it instead of just one," he said. "And, we play on the road."

Although his team is relatively young, Velasquez is confident about its chances.

"They are good athletes, good baseball players," he said. "I think... if we eliminate those mental errors we're going to be very good."

three runs as Las Vegas (Padres) beat Calgary (Rangers) 6-6 in a PCL game Tuesday night. The 6-foot-5 catcher, brother of San Diego Padres' second baseman Roberto Alomar, hit four singles and a double and scored twice. Jay Buhner hit two home runs for Calgary.

"First I'm told I'm pitching Friday. Then I'm told I'm bumped. Who's to say I won't keep on getting bumped? It's not fair. I don't think two bad starts out of four warrants my being bumped. It's too quick. But who said life is fair?" — New York Mets left-hander Bob Ojeda, who was bumped from his next start on Tuesday.

1995 — Jack McCarthy of the Cubs became the only outfielder in major-league history to throw out three runners at the plate, each of whom became the second out of a double play.

1931 — An unusual game between Washington and New York saw Lou Gehrig hit a "home run" into the center-field stands at Griffith Stadium, but the ball bounced back and Lyn Lary, rounding second base, saw the center fielder catch it. He jogged past third and into the Yankee dugout unnoticed by Joe McCarthy coaching at third. Gehrig was declared out for passing a runner and lost a homer. In the same game, Ossie Bluege hit a short fly to right fielder Dusty Cooke, who ran for it, flipped over trying to catch it and hurt himself. Gehrig ran out to get the ball but Bluege circled the bases on one of the shortest homers ever.

1941 — The Chicago Cubs became the first major league team to install an organ. Roy Nelson took to the keyboard and played a pregame program but the Cubs lost to the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2.

1961 — Roger Maris of the New York Yankees began his successful assault on Babe Ruth's single-season home run record at Tiger Stadium with the first of his 61 homers in the fifth inning against the Detroit Tigers' right-hander Paul Foytack.

1980 — Steve Carlton of Philadelphia pitched his sixth one-hitter in his career against St. Louis for a National League record. The Phillies blanked the Cardinals 2-0. Ted Simmons managed a single to lead off the second inning.

Police officers promoted

Pam Jordan, an eight year veteran with the Big Spring Police Department, recently achieved a milestone when she was promoted to Lieutenant.

She is the first female in department history to attain that rank.

Jordan was selected from a competitive field after a rigorous two-day assessment process. All the candidates, including Jordan, underwent exercises intended to demonstrate decision making abilities as well as management and leadership skills.

"Lieutenant Jordan has consistently demonstrated determination to do her best, regardless of the assignment. She has earned the position," said Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook.

Jordan, a Big Spring native, holds advanced and instructor certificates in law enforcement. She will also receive an Associates Degree in Criminal Justice from Howard College in the near future. She began her duties April 16 as Patrol Division Lieutenant.

Robert Fitzgibbons, 29, and George Yeilding, 31, were recently promoted to the rank of Sergeant in the Big Spring Police Department.

They were selected on the basis of performance through a competitive exam.

The sergeant's exam consisted of a written portion to determine their knowledge of law enforcement procedures, local, state and federal laws, as well as department policies. Each also met before an interview board of police administrators, which evaluated their abilities to translate laws and procedures under supervisory conditions.

Fitzgibbons began his career with the department in 1984. He holds an Intermediate Certificate in law enforcement and has experience in Patrol and Criminal Investigation divisions. In addition to numerous police schools, Fitzgibbons is pursuing a Criminal Justice degree at Howard College.

Fitzgibbons is married with one child and is assigned as a patrol supervisor. He is a graduate of Big Spring High School.

Yeilding, a graduate of Snyder High School and Western Texas College, has been in law enforcement for nine years. He has been with the Big Spring Police Department since 1987. He holds an Intermediate and Instructor Certificate in law enforcement and teaches in the Criminal Justice Department at Howard College.

Like Fitzgibbons, Yeilding has numerous police schools to his credit and has patrol.

Blackshear running unopposed Motivation seminar offered

Tim Blackshear is more than ready to serve his community but he'd just as soon not have to fight to do it.

That's why Blackshear is pleased he's running unopposed for the District 2 Big Spring City Council seat being vacated by D.W. Overman.

Blackshear ran for a council post in 1986 but lost the election. His work in the community has centered around his position on the planning and zoning board.

All that will change in May when the owner of Earthco Construction and Blackshear Rental takes up his new post with the council.

"I feel like I have something to offer," Blackshear said of his decision to run again. "I just feel like my background in construction and equipment... I feel like I've got something to offer the city at this time."

Blackshear and his wife, Terri, have two children, Shane, 6, and Timmi, 3, and although he is relatively young at 30, he is quick to recognize what he feels are the biggest problems facing Big Spring. "The tax base is declining and we need ways to raise more revenues without more taxes," he said. "I want to seek other avenues before we try that (increasing taxes)."

One option Blackshear said he would consider to balance the budget is cuts.

"I'd be for any cuts that could be made," he said. "My basic policy on city government is five things: fire protection, police protections, streets and utilities - water and sewer."

"That's the basic things I feel like the city should accomplish and everything else is after that."

Although specific cuts would have to wait for a close review of the budget, Blackshear said he knows where he would like to make improvements. "Getting back to those basic things, we always constantly have water problems," Blackshear said. A certain amount of the water lines should be replaced each year, he said, to update the system and cut down on maintenance costs. "Probably the same thing with the seal-coating program," for streets, he said.

Motivation seminar offered

"Looking Within Prevents Going Without" is the title of a motivational seminar sponsored by Howard College and The Hatten Summer Leadership Program. The two-day seminar will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, April 26 and 27 in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the Howard College Campus. This special workshop will be led by Jeff Conley, award-winning member of the Zig Ziglar Corporation's Speakers Bureau.

The cost for the seminar is $60 per person, which includes lunch on both days as well as refreshments during the breaks. The workshop may also be taken for Continuing Education credit (CEU's).

JASON CAMPBELL

QUICK PROFILE:
Jason Campbell opened the Fun Shop in Sand Springs in 1984. Then he added Stagecoach Gifts in Big Spring in 1986, moving it to Big Spring Mall in early 1987.

WHAT ARE YOUR HOBBIES?
Working between two shops has become a "lifestyle," says Jason. He's opening his summer Polar Delite and fireworks stand at Sand Springs as well. When he can relax, he enjoys listening to his record collection — everything from jazz to hard rock.

WHAT DO YOU DO TO KEEP IN SHAPE?
"Well, all this running around —" he says. "But I don't exercise as much as I should."

WHO IS A PERSON YOU ADMIRE?
"I look up to my parents a lot," he says. "They've always been supportive of me and all their children." His parents are partners in Jason's business operation.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE TELEVISION SHOW?
"ALF" is Jason's favorite. He carries stuffed animals and other ALF merchandise in his shops. Jason also likes to watch "LA Law."

DO YOU HAVE ANY PETS?
Jason has a black cat named Puddin' who's nine years old. "We've been through a lot together," says Jason. "Puddin' is my friend."

WHAT MAGAZINES DO YOU SUBSCRIBE TO?
Jason reads "Entrepreneur," "Video Digest" and "Plain Truth."

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE LEISURE THING TO DO IN BIG SPRING?
Jason likes to spend time with his parents, spend a quiet evening at home or go out to visit friends.

WHAT DID YOU DO ON YOUR LAST VACATION?
Jason spent his last vacation visiting his brothers and sisters and their families in Dallas and Houston.

WHAT ARE YOUR FUTURE GOALS?
"I want to see my two businesses grow," says Jason, "and offer even more to my customers."

Big Spring pharmacist honored with Good Neighbor Medallion

Jim Bob Coates, pharmacist of the Medicine Shoppe in Big Spring, has received a "Good Neighbor Medallion" for offering free health screenings and education programs for the community. With the support of local medical professionals, the services both detected signs of hidden conditions such as diabetes and glaucoma and increased the community's overall health awareness. Coates has previously been honored with a "Good Neighbor Plaque."

Courtney Callaway-Murphy, formerly employed by the Big Spring State Hospital, has been hired as the News Director at KBYG. She has previously worked at the station as a music director and at

MR. AND MRS. JOE MURPHY KIOF-FM as program director. She joins her husband Joe Murphy at the station — who serves as program director and morning disc jockey — and they are the only husband-wife team currently broadcasting in West Texas.

Gordons Jewelry Store in Big Spring Mall is currently preparing for a restyling event May 1. The restyling event is held periodically to assist customers in remounting diamonds and other precious stones.

"Gordons is committed to Big Spring and we felt it was time for a new look," said Miguel Rocha, local manager.

A hearing will be held on May 3 in the U.S. Courthouse, 200 E. Wall St. in Midland on a bankruptcy proceeding filed by Hoolamans Enterprises, Inc.

It is the former operator of Hoolamans restaurant in Big Spring and trustee Kenneth D. Holt has made application to sell assets at private sale of restaurant equipment.

Gary Payne has been named the new store manager at Bealls in the Big Spring Mall.

PAYNE

He has been employed by Bealls for nine years. He and his wife Janet have four sons, ranging from age 14 months to 12 years. "We are here to serve the needs of the community," Payne said. "This is a very successful Bealls store and we are looking forward to meeting the community."

Payne attended Baylor Law School for one year and enjoys the outdoors and fishing. He says he is impressed with the Parks and Recreation facilities in Big Spring.

Jean Pierson has been chosen as the employee of the month for April at Malone and Hogan Clinic.

PIERSON

She is the executive secretary to the administrator and has been employed at the clinic for the past two years. She is married to Eddie Pierson and they have a daughter, Debbie Wiley who lives with her family in Colorado.

Pierson attends Birdwell Lane Church of Christ and enjoys bears, quilting and sewing.

Clinic administrator Penny Phillips said: "Jean is just an all-around terrific employee! She is very dependable and always on the job. Everyone in the clinic knows how valuable she is, and we are very lucky to have her on our staff. She is a joy to work with and well-deserving to be Employee of the Month."

Three salespeople at Dunlap's were recently honored for having sales of more than $100,000 during the recent business year.

Jean Clinkscales, Vivian Rusb and Dorothy Burrow were recently inducted into Dunlap's Century Club, according to store manager Cliff Drinkard.

"It was a substantial thing to accomplish when you consider the average unit sale at the store is $13," Drinkard said. "For a person to have $100,000 in sales represents quite an achievement."

Clinkscales, Rusb and Burrow received plaques and letters of recognition from store officials.

Owners and operators of small businesses in the Permian Basin are invited to join in the free "Small Business Network". It's designed to provide a support group for ideas, information, assistance, and even just morale-building through monthly meetings.

The first meeting of the new group was held Thursday at Midland College.

Future monthly meetings will have guest speakers to discuss small business management, record keeping, tax information, accounting, research, sales, marketing, advertising, and personal management.

Walls' lightweight Coveralls and suits offer cool comfort for summer activities.

Walls Industries, which has a sewing manufacturing plant in Big Spring, has introduced a variety of short-sleeved, lightweight coveralls to its products.

Most of the coveralls come with a soil release finish that allows dirt, greased and stains to wash out easily.

The company, headquartered in Cleburne is one of the nation's leading manufacturers of rugged outdoor apparel.

Tidbits

With Lea Whitehead

By LEA WHITEHEAD
Staff Writer

History buff, Emily Ward, attended the 10th annual Confederate History Symposium at Hillsboro College in Hillsboro recently.

She was invited to this unusual affair by her sister and brother-in-law, Bob and Ruth Wren, El Paso. It was the Wrens' third Symposium.

Emily explains that this scholarly gathering is always held at Hillsboro College which houses a very imposing Confederate history archive. This time the emphasis was on the history of battles between the North and South, shown from the perspective of each side. Speakers included former A&M chancellor Dr. Frank Vandiver, now the director of Moser Institute for Defense Studies; and Lyndon Baines Johnson professor, Dr. Grady McWhiney, TCU; plus other notables.

More than 400 other history buffs were on hand.

Howard County Library's Judith Gray and Donna Jackson have just returned from the annual Texas Library Association meeting at the new George R. Brown Convention Center in Houston.

There were four days of exhibits, meetings and seminars — plus an opportunity to meet authors, including Elmer Kelton, San Angelo ("The Wolf and the Buffalo"); Clyde Edgerton ("Walking Across Egypt") and children's book writer-illustrator Jack Pereletsky. Donna, children's librarian, was delighted to sit next to Pereletsky at a breakfast meeting.

A group from the West Texas area went out together one night for Chinese food, says Judith.

"We had to buy an extra suitcase to bring back all our souvenirs and things," says Rebecca Smith. She and Howard, along with Howard's brother, Ladd and Betty Smith, Dallas, are back from a three-week vacation in Hawaii.

They spent 10 days on Maui ("It rained every day!"); three days on Kauai; and four days on Oahu. Highlights included a helicopter ride over the mountains on Kauai; and a visit to Pearl Harbor and the USS Arizona Memorial.

While Howard and Ladd played golf, Rebecca and Betty shopped for chocolate covered Macadamia nuts, T-shirts, and native jewelry and souvenirs. At one shop, Rebecca had a pearl set into a ring — she had personally chosen the oyster from which the pearl was taken!

"The flowers were beautiful — everywhere," says Rebecca. "Plants we think of as special — hibiscus, bougainvillea, Boston fern — grow wild."

Leslie Kelley, professor emeritus at Howard College, will soon have his portrait hung in those "hallowed halls."

Ex-students and friends will gather at a reception in his honor Friday, 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., in the administration building conference room to unveil the portrait.

Kelley has taught at the college 35 years, including seven years as chairman of the Division of Social Sciences. He taught under all five of Howard College's presidents — E.C. Dodd, W.A. Hunt, Thomas Salter, Charles Hayes, and now Bob Riley.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Edited by Lea Whitehead

Need taxi, truck, van, wrecker? See Mitchem!

Mitchem & Son's Wrecker & Transport Company has just added the new Vulcan Wheel Snatcher Wrecker to its fleet — the latest in towing equipment. This is the most recent innovation in the company's transportation services which include Big Spring Taxi, truck and van rentals, and bonded courier service.

Residents should put this phone number — 267-3747 — on their list of important numbers. Call it for a taxi across town, a van to the airport, trucking service, a bonded courier, towing service or safe transportation on prom night.

Mitchem & Sons Wrecker and Transport Company will answer your call.

David Mitchem recently announced the addition of the revolutionary Vulcan Wheel Snatcher Wrecker to his towing fleet. The new wrecker will enable his firm to provide even better service to residents of Howard County, he believes.

"The Vulcan lifts cars by the wheels," says David. "This is essential when towing imported or luxury sports cars. We're the only company in Big Spring with a wrecker of this kind."

This is the latest achievement for a firm that has been dedicated to transporting and serving the public in this area. Mitchem operates Big Spring taxi, the area's only taxi company; and offers van service to the Midland-Odessa Air Terminal. Contract transportation is also offered.

The Transport Division has added Bonded Courier Service. A uniformed driver delivers packages and important papers, and provides a signed return receipt.

"Our luxurious vans would be ideal for use on prom night," Mitchem says. "Young people could chip in with their friends and hire one of our vans for transportation to the prom or other social activities."

He emphasizes that his firm is registered and insured as a public carrier. His drivers are experienced and dependable.

Mitchem Wrecker Service is listed with all automobile clubs, including AARP, AAA, Allstate, Montgomery Ward, Amoco, Volvo on Call and ERS (Emergency Road Service for mobile homes.)

The firm's wreckers, featuring the most up-to-date equipment, are on a rotation schedule to provide wreckers for state, county and city requests. "We put safety first," says Mitchem. "We're the professionals in towing service, offering well-equipped vehicles and trained professional drivers." Ricky Mitchem, head of the wrecker division, has attended special schooling for wrecker operators.

The Mitchems are also representatives for National Safety Association water purifiers. Models include top-of-sink, under-sink and whole-house — as well as a truly portable purifier that would fit nicely in your carry-on luggage on a trip. These units remove bacteria and impurities from the water for three years before they need replacement. Home demonstrations are available.

Mitchem & Son's Wrecker and Transport Company is located at 700 West 4th Street. David's wife, Peggy, is also on the staff.

Booth-Long

Dolores Wyleen Booth, 1217 W. Third St., and Lloyd Bryan Long, Knott, were united in marriage April 22, 1989 at 3 p.m. ceremony at Anderson Street Church of Christ, with Rev. Roland Johnson, bridegroom's great-uncle, officiating.

The elbow-length, lace puffed sleeves were caught at the elbow with bows. From the fitted basque waistline, flowed a satin train edged with schiffli lace and accented with a large bow and draped from the waist.

She carried a cascading bouquet of peach roses, miniature navy blue roses, accented with white lace and peach and navy blue ribbon.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at the church. The bride's table, draped with a white cloth with a lace overlay, featured a four-tiered white cake, decorated with small prim-drop flowers of peach and navy. Curving stairways lead up to a traditional bride and bridegroom figurine. The centerpiece was a 5-branch candelabra with candles accented with peach and navy blue bows and greenery. The bridegroom's table, draped with a white cloth, featured a chocolate sheet cake with a shell border. Atop the cake was a reluctant bridegroom figurine. Coffee was served from a silver coffee service that belongs to the bridegroom's mother.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Big Spring High School, and Howard College. She is employed by Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.
