Weather delaying flight of space shuttle Atlantis

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Rapidly changing weather toyed with Atlantis today as NASA tried for the second time in six days to launch the shuttle and start robot craft Magellan on its 806-million-mile journey to Venus.

"It's too close to call at the present time," said NASA spokesman Hugh Harris as the countdown clock ticked toward a planned 12:48 p.m. liftoff. The launch window stretched for 64 minutes, giving engineers a chance to pause if needed to await better conditions.

Clouds blotted out the sun early today and a gentle rain fell. Later, sea breezes arose and swept the skies, and sunlight flooded the beachside launch pad. But less than an hour later, the winds shifted and freshened, and a deep layer of clouds moved overhead.

Atlantis cannot be launched with cross winds of more than 14 mph at the emergency landing site at the Kennedy Space Center. Air Force spokesman Ken Warren said military forecasters said there was a 40 percent chance that the winds would be too strong.

Earlier, despite occasional showers, technicians had pumped a half-million gallons of liquid hydrogen and oxygen into the shuttle's tanks.

The crew members for the mission, the fourth since the Challenger disaster, are commander David M. Walker, pilot Ronald Grabe, and mission specialist Norman Thagard, Mary Cleave and Mark Lee.

Six hours after launch, Cleave and Lee were to operate remote controls to eject the $550 million Magellan — America's first deep space probe in 11 years — from the shuttle's cargo bay.

Magellan then was to rocket itself out of Earth orbit and start a 15-month voyage that would carry it 1½ times around the sun before reaching Venus.

The crew would spend the remainder of its four-day flight orbiting 184 miles above Earth, conducting scientific experiments.

The final launch preparations followed a frenzied effort by engineers to correct problems that on Friday stopped the countdown just 31 seconds from liftoff. A flawed pump and a suspicious hydrogen line were replaced.

"A real problem stopped us," shuttle chief Richard Truly said. "We've fixed that. We are ready to fly again."

Today's launch opportunity, determined by the path Magellan mysteriously neighbor, was to end at 1:52 p.m. If the launch was postponed, there would be daily launch opportunities until May 28. At that point, Earth and Venus will have moved out of alignment and the Magellan mission will not be possible for two years.

Magellan marks the beginning of a new era in a U.S. planetary exploration program that has not had

Valdez's job worth the wait

By BRADLEY WORRELL

She works with people down on their luck, in some cases people who haven't had anything go their way for a long time.

It was a desire to work in a people-related field that prompted Yvett Valdez to apply for a job with the Howard County Indigent Health Care and Welfare Department.

"I didn't know if I was ever going to get the job at first; it took a long time," Valdez said of her initial efforts to get the job.

Before she could be accepted for the position, Valdez's supervisor, Irene Rodriguez, director of the indigent health care and welfare programs, had to go before the county commissioners to get approval to hire an employee. She sifted through dozens of applications before choosing Valdez. Valdez then appeared before the commissioners for a personal interview and won their approval before she was hired.

Cinco de Mayo festival begins Friday

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

Big Spring's annual Cinco De Mayo celebration — featuring Tejano musical entertainment and Mexican cuisine — will be held Friday through Sunday at the Old Settlers Pavilion in Comanche Trail Park.

On Friday, activities are scheduled from 7 p.m. to midnight. The featured band on Friday will be La Cuatro Velas (The Four Candles).

On Saturday, activities, which include a washer tournament and pinata games for kids, are scheduled from 1 p.m. to 1 a.m. FOX 106 FM disc jockey Nick Hernandez will play rock 'n' roll music from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m., and the band Los Gallitos will also perform.

On Sunday, activities are scheduled from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. A menudo cookoff will begin at 4 p.m. Live musical entertainment will include the band Popo Hilario and Company.

Admission to the event, sponsored by LULAC and Coors, is free.

Vendors will be selling a variety of Mexican foods throughout the three-day event.

"Every kind of Mexican food you can imagine will be sold out there," said Raul Marquez, event organizer.

Marquez described the annual celebration as "a community event," and estimated that from 3,000 to 5,000 people will attend each day.

As for the historical significance of the celebration, Marquez said, "Cinco De Mayo is the celebration of the national resistance to the French invasion into Mexico that occurred May 5, 1862."

Proceeds will benefit LULAC's scholarship program, Marquez said. During the last three years, LULAC has awarded 10 scholarships, he said.

Local LULAC officials also announced that Marquez and Pat DeAnda were honored at the organization's District 5 convention in late April.

Marquez was named Man of the Year for District 5, which includes 15 chapters; the Big Spring chapter was given a community service award by the U.S. Department of Justice; and Pat DeAnda was also recognized by the Department of Justice for her work in community relations.

Public Service Employees Week In Howard County

This is the second in a group of stories on Public Service Employees in Howard County. Public Service Employees Week runs May 1-5.

"It took about three months," Valdez said. "I thought they had chosen somebody else by then."

But Valdez said the job was worth the wait. "I like working with people, I really do. This job is interesting, you meet a lot of interesting people," said Valdez, who has held the position for three years.

Valdez said her term with the department has been an eye-opening experience. "When I first started the job, I felt sorry for everybody. I wanted to help everybody," she said. "Now I can tell who's lying and who's not. You come to learn those who need help and those who don't... those who try to (improve their condition) and those who don't."

Valdez said it's her job as secretary to help take care of "all the red tape" that is involved in getting people the assistance they may be entitled to. By taking care of the preliminaries, Valdez said, she helps Rodriguez focus on the important details of the cases.

Valdez, a lifetime Big Spring resident, said her future plans are to be married soon, and to continue a career in her present field, although she said the idea of doing the same type of job in San Antonio or Denver is appealing.

Scholars angered by bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Several scholars say they are angered by a bill that would give Gov. Bill Clements the right to screen his administration's records before putting them in the state archives.

"We are leaving history to the whim of one individual," said Ann Fears Crawford, co-author of a book about Gov. John Connally. "A balanced view of history is dependent upon documents."

The protest, which occurred during a Wednesday hearing by the House Committee on Cultural and Historical Resources, was prompted by a measure that would allow governors to retain custody of documents "that do not manifest official acts," including internal memos, and correspondence from constituents.

The bill, by Rep. Ashley Smith, R-Houston, was prompted by a ruling from Attorney General Jim Mattox that said virtually all administration records are covered by the state's Open Records Act and should be given to the state Library and Archives Commission.

Until that ruling, many modern governors hadn't placed their records in the archives.

Kent Keeth, president of the Society of Southwest Archivists, said government records "forever lose their character and reliability" once they fall into private hands. "They are tainted," he said.

Chris Shields, an aide to Clements, said the bill has been misinterpreted by historians.

"Gov. Clements is an avid Texas historian and supporter of the Open Records Act. It is not his intent to take every piece of paper" from the governor's office, Shields said.

Shields said Clements is concerned about confidential staff memos dealing with litigation and unsubstantiated claims made against prospective candidates for gubernatorial appointments.

Surgeon General Koop resigning post effective July

By DEBORAH MESCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Dr. C. Everett Koop, whose campaigns against smoking and AIDS marked an often-controversial eight years as surgeon general, told President Bush today he will leave office in July.

Koop, in a brief letter to the White House, said he had told Bush in February that he would not serve out his full second term, which ends in November. The surgeon general said he will leave July 13.

Koop, 72, was appointed the government's top health officer by President Reagan, and was sworn into office in January 1982.

Koop said James Mason, assistant secretary for health at the Department of Health and Human Services where the surgeon general heads the Public Health Service, will name an acting surgeon general after he leaves.

In a statement, Mason praised Koop as "an outstanding leader on major health issues."

"All of us in the Public Health Service and the medical profession are proud of what he has accomplished. He has made impressive contributions to public health," Mason said.

Koop did not say in the letter what his plans are after he leaves government. He has said in interviews that he would like to write books and work in television on health issues.

Under Koop's leadership, the office of the surgeon general, in the Department of Health and Human Services, became an active and often controversial office.

As head of the Public Health Service, Koop maintained a vigilant campaign against smoking, calling for a smokeless society by the year 2000 and worked actively on education campaigns aimed at helping to stop the spread of AIDS — acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

When he was nominated by Reagan for the post, Koop was an internationally known pediatric surgeon and was assailed by liberals for his staunch opposition to abortion and for lacking experience in public health.

Social conservatives embraced him initially. As time went on, however, they began to see him more as a traitor to their cause, particularly after he issued a report on the AIDS crisis and increasingly took to the airwaves to promote condoms, safe sex and sex education as preventive steps against the deadly disease.

Liberals, however, warmed to him and have applauded his high profile on the AIDS issue.

Recently, Koop even found support from abortion rights groups when he told the White House he could not find enough scientific

Rare wolf gives birth

GLEN ROSE (AP) — The birth of three puppies to a red wolf, the second rarest mammal in the United States, excited wildlife officials who have been working for years to save the endangered species.

"Our phone is ringing off the hook," said Dr. Gerald Lieberman, executive vice president of Fossil Rim, the wildlife center near here where the wolves were born Wednesday.

"Wildlife and conservation people throughout the nation are elated," he said.

If the puppies survive, they will be the first Texas-born red wolves since the mid-1970s, raising the total population to 32, Fossil Rim officials said.

In 1973, after the passage of the Endangered Species Act, the entire red wolf population in southeast Texas and Louisiana was captured to prevent its extinction.

Hampton faces hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Gay rights activists say they are anxious to argue their case against Dallas judge Jack Hampton in court.

The Texas Supreme Court on Wednesday appointed a special master to hold a hearing on Hampton, who said in an interview that he was lenient in sentencing a convicted killer because the victims were homosexuals.

The hearing will be convened like a trial, officials said.

"The purpose of the hearing is to develop a record," said Robert Flowers, executive director of the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

"All the proceedings and accompanying papers will be made public on convening of the hearing," Flowers said.

The wreckage was discovered about 4 a.m. today.

Lewis: Prison bill most significant in 50 years

AUSTIN (AP) — House members, who have tentatively approved a massive prison reform package, don't yet realize its possible effects, says House Speaker Gib Lewis, who applauded the legislation.

AUSTIN — State Rep. Allen Hightower, D-Huntsville, left, is congratulated by fellow House members after his prison reform package was given tentative approval Wednesday.

"This may be the most significant piece of criminal justice legislation that's been passed in Texas in the last 50 years," Lewis said. "I don't think it has really soaked in to people, the real impact of what could take place by this package."

After lengthy debate and 23 amendments, the House on Wednesday approved a bill that sponsor Allen Hightower called "the largest overhaul of the criminal justice system in the state's history."

The package, which would create 24,000 additional beds in state prisons and community facilities, will be reviewed in two years under an amendment that was debated at length.

Another vote is required for final passage of the bill, which the Senate is awaiting before considering its prison reform bill. Only two House members voted against the package in a non-record vote.

The bill sets out numerous alternative sentencing and incarceration programs and authorizes construction of 17,300 new prison beds.

Total cost, including $400 million in bonds to be approved by voters, would be $600 million, said Hightower, D-Huntsville.

"If we continue to fund the alternative programs, I think it will keep the state — six, eight or 10 years from now — from having to come back and build prisons," Hightower told reporters after the vote.

Hightower wanted a review of the plan in four years, but lawmakers representing counties' interests sought a shorter period.

Bill would expand voter registration

AUSTIN (AP) — The sponsor of a bill to expand voter registration services to state agencies such as driver's license offices says the measure could help dilute the power of special interests.

"The best way to address the problem of special interest power is to encourage all the people of this state and this country to vote... We open up government, we try to see that it's going to represent more of the public interest than the special interest," said Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville.

The bill sponsored by Edwards and Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, would require state government agencies to distribute voter registration applications as a routine part of their business.

Giving people the chance to register when they apply for a driver's license, enroll in college or seek food stamps or do other business with the state would greatly increase the number of registered voters, backers said.

"Democracy is at risk if its citizens do not vote," said former U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan, now a professor at the University of Texas' Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

Urging the Legislature to approve the bill, Ms. Jordan said, "We complain about low voter turnout. What people do not look at is that the percentage of registered voters who vote is high... Make it simple to register. Keep it easy."

Lafe T. Larson, director of a campaign to register voters, noted that registration in Texas currently is in the 60 percent range. He said other states which have enacted such legislation have seen registration grow to 80 percent to 90 percent.

While the bill mentions the Department of Public Safety, Department of Human Services and universities, backers said it would apply to all agencies.

The sponsors said support is bipartisan, noting that Secretary of State Jack Rains, a Republican and appointee of Gov. Bill Clements, also has endorsed the measure.

"As far as I can tell now, we have universal support for this bill," Ms. Glossbrenner said.

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, who's been battling to keep his post an elected one, was among top state officials endorsing the measure.

Texas lags in SAT scores, grad rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas is behind the national average for college entrance exam scores and percentage of students who graduate from high school, a new report shows.

But the state has shown improvement in both areas and in teacher salaries, according to the report issued Wednesday by the U.S. Department of Education.

Texas ranked 17th out of 22 states that use the SAT as the dominant college entrance exam in 1988. The average Texas score rose from 875 in 1987 to 879 in 1988, up from 868 in 1982. The national average in 1988 was 904.

Texas also ranked 43rd in the nation in 1987 for its graduation rate, with 65.1 of students graduating from high school, compared with a national average of 71.6 percent.

Texas also showed an improvement in teacher salaries — with an increase to $25,558 in 1988 from $24,903 in 1987. Still, the state lagged behind the 1988 national average of $28,008, for a 27th-place ranking.

Randy Erben, deputy director of the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations, said the success of the education reforms of the past few years is evident in the report card, but acknowledged more work is ahead. "Rome wasn't built in a day," he said.

With the second largest number of school districts in the country, the trickle-down effect of education reform at the state level "is going to take some time," Erben said.

Legislation in 1987 requires school districts to have a dropout-prevention person. Recently, for the first time, each district submitted its dropout numbers to the TEA.

A state report indicates 87,000 students in grades seven through 12 dropped out in the 1987-88 school year, out of a total 3.2 million students in the state's public schools, Lozano said.

"That's... an alarmingly high figure," said Joey Lozano, a spokesman for the Texas Education Agency in Austin. "Obviously, we need to do something about it."

Dropouts, he said, will not have the skills they and their employers will need in the years ahead "and it will have an adverse economic impact."

The TEA is also asking the Legislature to appropriate more money for education "to bring Texas up to the national average by 1995," Lozano said.

"Of course, we cannot expect to rank near the top in academic achievement if we are not prepared to make a significant effort in supporting education," Texas Education Commissioner William Kirby said in Austin.

Legislation is currently before the Legislature that would pump an extra $500 million into property-poor school districts.

"The good news is that the schools are not worse; the bad news is that we are not making progress," Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos said as he stood before his department's sixth annual State Education Performance Chart.

"We are standing still, and the problem is that it's been this way for three years in a row."

Silas: Balanced reaction needed

DALLAS (AP) — The increasing U.S. appetite for energy means America must make tough choices or face shipping "bales of money" to OPEC, according to Phillips Petroleum Co. Chairman C.J. Silas, who cautioned against letting the Alaskan oil spill disrupt Arctic exploration.

Silas said the March 24 spill of 10 million gallons of crude oil into the Prince William Sound threatens to halt efforts to look for petroleum outside Alaska's North Slope, especially in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, because of an unbalanced concern about environment.

"Environmental protection is a worthwhile objective, but energy development is also a worthwhile objective. And in most cases we can have both," Silas said Wednesday in a speech to a Dallas civic club.

"It's not a question of choosing between good and bad," he said. "We've got a much tougher choice

Noting that Alaska provides 25 percent of the country's oil, Silas said, "It's my feeling that Alaskan oil production is very essential to this nation. And when you're doing something important, you keep after it. You don't quit even if you make a mistake by doing something wrong. You just try harder to do it right."

Without changing American appetites, and increasing supply through using nuclear power and finding more oil, the United States must "start getting ready to ship bales of money to OPEC nations.

alternatives are acceptable because either they use limited resources or because people are unwilling to make the kind of decisions necessary to conserve enough energy to make a difference.

The spill, the nation's largest ever, has stalled legislation designed to open up the ANWR to exploration and could undermine efforts to find more domestic reserves, he said.

"We have a very real need for energy, for heat, light, transportation and other essential activities," Silas said. "We also need clean air and clean water."

Silas said environmental concerns have led to a fear of nuclear power, "and we need nuclear power."

He said other alternatives include turning to more oil and coal to generate electricity, or conservation. But he said none of those

Senate committee to investigate Medicare surtax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee is arranging a hearing this month to examine the financial underpinning of the new catastrophic illness insurance program — specifically whether the surtax imposed on better-off Medicare recipients is too high.
 The hearing is a direct outgrowth of the outcry from elderly Medicare beneficiaries who will be hit with an income tax surcharge that can range up to $800 this year for about 5 percent of them in upper income ranges.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, the committee chairman and a major architect of the landmark legislation that took effect Jan. 1, recently raised the prospect that the maximum surcharge could be reduced. He said new revenue estimates show the tax surcharge will generate more money than originally contemplated.
 Ironically, those revised estimates suggest elderly Americans as a group are better off financially than calculated last summer when Congress was deciding to finance a major part of the program with a progressive surtax, or "supplemental premium," applied only to Medicare enrollees.
 President Bush has taken the position that even though more money than anticipated is flowing into the Medicare catastrophic illness coverage fund, it still will not be enough to cover costs over the long term.
 By publicly asking Bush for his thoughts on reducing the surtax, Bentsen has cast the White House in the role of opposing a tax reduction for elderly Americans.
 However, Bentsen had predicted in January that much of the political support for reducing the tax surcharge would evaporate after it became clear from hearings that nearly two-thirds of Medicare beneficiaries — or about 21 million people — would pay only $48 a year in additional fees in 1989 — the flat $4 a month increase imposed on everyone.
 For the remaining 12 million beneficiaries — those with enough taxable income to have to pay at least $150 a year in tax — the surcharge is determined by adding $22.50 per person to each $150 of income tax liability.

 That means the surtax can be as little as $45 for a couple, or as much as $1,600 and will show up first on tax returns filed after Jan. 1, 1990 covering the current year.
 Medicare beneficiaries in lower income ranges tend to have lower tax liabilities than wage-earners with a comparable gross income because their Social Security benefits are not subject to taxes.

Briefs

WTO submits funding application

West Texas Opportunities, Inc., of Lamesa has submitted an application to the Texas Department of Community Affairs for continuation funding of administration and general programming in Andrews, Borden, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Midland and Upton Counties. WTO is requesting $236,839 from TDCA to operate this program. A local match is no longer required for this program but the agency will continue to provide in-kind services valued at over $60,000.
 The proposed project is very similar to the current year's program; two new activities have been added while the total budget will be $5,289 less than the current year's.
 West Texas Opportunities, Inc. has 18 full-time employees that are funded by this project and provide services to the residents living in the 10-county service area. Coordination is maintained with other agencies such as churches, schools, senior citizen centers, utility companies, city and county governments, state agencies and local organizations.

Ackerly woman injured in fire

An Ackerly woman is in serious condition today after a Tuesday afternoon fire caused second- and third-degree burns to 55 percent of her body and severely damaged the woman's house.
 Ruth Taylor, 69, was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center and transferred to the Lubbock General Hospital Burn Intensive Care Unit in critical condition by a Flight For Life Helicopter, a Scenic Mountain Medical Center hospital spokesperson said today.
 "Burn victims are usually pretty critical, once they (the flight staff) get her here, they stabilized her pretty quickly," the spokesperson said.
 A Big Spring fire unit and fire units from the surrounding Ackerly area responded to the fire, reported at 3 p.m. according to a preliminary fire report. When fire units arrived at the scene the house was engulfed in flames, the report said.
 Fire Marshall Bur Lea Settles could not be reached for further comment.

Girl Scouts schedule day camp

Girls first grade and above can register at the Highland Shopping Center May 8-12 for the 1989 Girl Scout Day Camp.
 Girls must be accompanied by an adult at the time of registration and do not need to be a registered Girl Scout. Cost is $14 per girl.
 Camping will be 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. daily June 12-17 at Comanche Trail Park. Activities will center on American Indian lore, including history, music, drama, dance, arts, cookery, social skills and tribal lifestyles, according to a brochure on the event.
 An overnight "primitive" camping experience is also available on Friday night and Saturday.
 All campers will receive a day camp patch and T-shirt, and all will be covered by Mutual of Omaha insurance.
 Trained adults will be in attendance at all times, said camp organizers.
 For more information, call Elizabeth Moltz at 263-7361. Late registration after May 12 is $5 extra.

Atlantis

 a launch since 1978.
 Venus, Earth's nearest planetary neighbor, has fascinated since humans first began scanning the sky. It is the brightest object in the nighttime sky, except for the moon. It appears in season as either the morning or the evening "star," but Venus is actually a planet that orbits 67 million miles from the sun. The Earth orbits 93 million miles from the sun.
 Scientists are intrigued by Venus because it is so close in size to Earth, yet much different in most every other way. Venus rotates the opposite direction of the Earth, which means the sun rises in the west. Its rotation is so slow that a Venusian day lasts 243 Earth days.
 Venus is shrouded with dense clouds and its surface cannot be seen by telescopes on Earth, giving the planet an aura of mystery.
 Space probes in recent years have proven that Venus' surface temperature is about 900 degrees, hot enough to melt lead. The atmosphere is carbon dioxide at intense pressures, with high-altitude clouds of sulfuric acid.

 The torrid heat long ago boiled away any water that was on the planet, but probes have hinted of vast mountain ranges, towering volcanoes, and barren plains.
 Magellan will rendezvous with Venus in August 1990. It will settle into an elongated orbit, swooping to within 155 miles of the surface, and then sweeping out to a high point of almost 5,000 miles.
 The 3 1/2-ton spacecraft carries an imaging radar that will give the clearest picture yet of Venus. The radar is able to penetrate the cloud cover and detect surface features as small as a football field.
 Magellan is expected to map about 90 percent of Venus. The radar will operate during 2,000 passes over the planet, each time viewing a slice of surface and sending the image back to Earth for computer enhancement. The mapping expedition is expected to last about eight months.
 Magellan is the first in a series of deep space probes and marks what Lennard Fisk, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's chief scientist, called "a resurgence of America's planetary program."
 Pioneer-Venus, in 1978, was the last U.S. space launch and Fisk said America "had a planetary program that was in danger of being an also-ran."
 Voyager 2, launched in 1977, will fly past Neptune in August. It earlier visited Jupiter, Saturn and Uranus. In October, the robot craft Galileo will be launched toward Jupiter. A space telescope will be launched next year, followed by probes to the sun in 1990, and to Mars in 1992.
 "Nobody is going to question our leadership in planetary (exploration) again," said Fisk.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:
 • Two vehicles collided at 4:55 p.m. Wednesday after one of the vehicles failed to yield the right of way, causing more than $250 in damage to both vehicles.
 Deborah Lynn Gunn, 36, Julie Gunn, 6 and David Gunn, 7, all of 2538 Langley St., were taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center where they were treated and released.
 Deborah Gunn was driving her 1988 tan Ford Tempo GL westbound in the 200 block of northwest 10th Street when her vehicle collided in the intersection of 10th Street and the 1000 block of north Gregg Street with a vehicle driven by Tony Kurt Schafer, 32, Coahoma.

 Police cited Schafer, who was driving a 1988 maroon GMC Sierra SLV, with failure to yield the right of way.
 • One woman was taken to a local hospital where she was treated and released after the bicycle she was riding collided with a car.
 Linda Kay Light, 37, 2535 Gunner St., was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center where she received medical attention after her 10-speed bicycle collided with a 1986 Buick Century driven by

Soviet lottery offers unusual prizes

MOSCOW (AP) — A lottery in the Ukrainian city of Stakhanov didn't top the $115 million jackpot offered last week in Pennsylvania, but the winners seemed happy with their prizes: rolls of toilet paper.
 The newspaper Literary Gazette on Wednesday told the story of Ira, a girl who bought three tickets and walked away with several rolls of toilet paper, a towel and a small bowl.
 The lottery tickets cost 50 kopeks — about 81 cents — more than the actual price of many of the prizes.
 "But, don't forget that there are great shortages," Literary Gazette said. "In the city of Stakhanov, except for the lottery, one cannot get these goods."
 Soviet consumers are suffering through chronic shortages of many household goods and food products. Store shelves in Moscow are barer than they have been in years, and the situation in the provinces is worse. Thousands of people come to the capital every day to shop in its stores.
 Other lucky ticket holders in Stakhanov won hens, pigs, goats, detergent and bath soap, the newspaper said. It did not specify the date of the drawing.
 One winner "could not bring to his house everything he won. In one hand he had a hen, in the other, there were four packets of laundry detergent," the newspaper said.
 "The lucky people were bringing hard-to-get products from the park," it said. "Seventy people won toilet paper and 50 of them boxes of detergent."
 An old woman who didn't read about the lottery in the local newspaper was dismayed as she watched the people leaving with items that were not at the shops.
 "My God, where are you getting this stuff?" the newspaper quoted her as asking a winner.
Literary Gazette said "she had no idea that in the pockets of other happy people there were bars of soap and boxes of detergent."
 According to lottery results, the organizers sold 20,000 tickets and pocketed about $3,890 by giving away prizes that cost less than the tickets. The newspaper did not explain how the organizers obtained the goods that were given away.
 The lottery was held in honor of the 175th anniversary of Stakhanov, a city of 112,000 people about 500 miles south of Moscow. It was founded in the 19th century as Kadiyevka, but renamed to honor coal miner Alexei Stakhanov, who was held up by dictator Josef Stalin as a model worker for far exceeding average coal yields.
 His feat in 1935 spawned a movement of workers who strove to emulate him as Stalin led the Soviet Union on a course of crash industrialization. Stakhanov is located in the Don Basin coal mining region of the Ukraine.

Missile row in alliance

Leave it to Margaret Thatcher to inject a steely note of reality in the blossoming controversy in the NATO alliance over short-range nuclear weapons.

"Obsolete weapons do not deter," the British prime minister warned a few days ago at a joint news conference with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl. Unfortunately, Mr. Kohl and many West Germans seem to be losing sight of that truism of modern world politics. Bonn is pushing for early negotiations with the Soviet Union aimed at eliminating short-range nuclear missile forces, those with a range of less than 300 miles.

Meanwhile, the United States and Britain want to go ahead with agreements reached by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in 1987 and 1988 to modernize the U.S. Lance short-range or tactical weapons based in West Germany.

They were only recognizing the need to enhance the Western Alliance's power to deter the Warsaw Pact's vast superiority in tanks and other conventional forces. Such weapons would be key factors in NATO's "flexible response" by a mixture of conventional and nuclear forces in the event of an attack from the East.

Such an attack against Allied forces without the support of tactical weapons would gravely jeopardize the 250,000-member U.S. military contingent in West Germany. NATO strategists fear that withdrawal of the nuclear umbrella could lead to U.S. withdrawal of this defense force, which also could mean the end of NATO itself.

West German leaders, eyeing elections scheduled for 1990, obviously are influenced by polls showing public opposition to having tactical nuclear weapons on German soil. However, other polls show West Germans continue to favor membership in NATO. Thus it is incumbent upon Mr. Kohl and his coalition government colleagues to press home the case made by Prime Minister Thatcher for moving ahead forthrightly on modernization of tactical weapons.

As NATO learned from the implementation of the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Force pact, which took effect last year, a tough, united front is the best way to persuade Mikhail Gorbachev and his Kremlin colleagues to negotiate reduction in their conventional forces.

Beyond the realm

Ollie voodoo dolls all too scandalous
By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random thoughts while furniture shopping.

Have you noticed that scandals, like almost everything else, tend to run in cycles? Last year, it seemed that every televangelist in the book was involved in some sort of sordid episode. Between Oral Roberts, Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker and Jimmy Swaggart, there were enough spicy tidbits to keep us diverted for months.

Well, things have been relatively quiet on the TV pulpit beat so far this year, but things have definitely been far from dull in Washington.

The jury is in its second week trying to decide whether Oliver North is guilty of committing several crimes while as an aide in the White House. Poor ol' Ollie; the strain must be terrible on the guy.

Among the details that caught my interest while reviewing stories on the trial was his insistence that he paid for a car and several other items with $15,000 he happened to have in a box in his closet.

What a unique way of saving money! To that end, my bride-to-be and I have decided to honor the Marine colonel by putting a few bucks a week in a jar buried in our back yard.

We estimate that, by the year 2345, we'll have enough stashed away to afford a car and that dream house we've always wanted. If there's any money left after that, we'll use it to cure cancer and free the Indians.

"I'll keep you posted on our progress."

(A related note: I've decided to market an Oliver North voodoo doll. Every time you stick a needle in it, it wraps a miniature U.S. flag around itself. Sales aren't too brisk right now, but, if North is found innocent, I expect to be on Easy Street in a matter of months.)

Faithful readers will recall a column I did a few weeks ago dealing with certain laws that govern the actions of newlyweds. I'd like to add another rule to that list, if I may:

There is absolutely no truth to the vicious rumor that two can live cheaper than one. This may have been true a few generations ago, but, with the advent of joint checking accounts, money has developed a way of growing wings and flying away.

I'll be hanged if I know why this is so. Perhaps the banks have devised some mystical process that makes it impossible for people not to write checks.

Imagine Joe Bob and Earlene sitting at the kitchen table. Suddenly, he says: "Honey, I don't know about you, but if I don't write a check soon, I'm gonna scream!"

The thought of a nation full of check-writing junkies is scary, but perhaps some of them will find the idea of an Ollie North voodoo doll irresistible.

Like the saying goes, every cloud...

Worrying anew about Germany

By GEORGE F. WILL

WASHINGTON — The century will end as it began, and as it was in much of its middle part: wary about Germany. Suddenly "das Land der Mitte" is back in the middle of Western worries.

The government of Helmut Kohl, its political support evaporating, has panicked and pandered to anti-nuclear and pro-Gorbachev sentiment by falling away from a NATO decision to modernize short-range nuclear forces. But much more is at stake than those weapons.

The supposed utility of those weapons is three-fold. By being there, those weapons would prevent the Soviet Union from concentrating conventional forces for the blitzkrieg NATO fears most. Because any ban on short-range weapons would be utterly unverifiable, NATO must assume the Soviets will retain such weapons, so NATO weapons are needed to deter Soviet use of them. And in an extreme situation, NATO could use such weapons as the lowest rung on the escalation ladder — to alter the nature of a conflict. Small nuclear weapons are linked to larger ones.

However, all arguments establishing the utility of battlefield nuclear weapons may be refuted by this question: Could an alliance that is paralyzed and sundere by the prospect of modernizing those weapons ever agree to use them? In March, a NATO military exercise was aborted when German and Turkish participants objected to a U.S. proposal for hypothetical use of battlefield weapons against aggressor forces on German and Turkish soil.

Nuclear-weapons systems decay, so the alternative to modernization is obsolescence — unilateral disarmament in this category of weapons by the mid-1990s. If modernization is deemed inconsistent with the latest detente, then solicitude for Gorbachev means giving him a veto over any changes, other than unilateral reductions, in NATO's military dispositions.

But if he really wants to lighten Soviet defense burdens so that there can be a great leap forward in living standards (forward to the standards of, say, Portugal in 1930), he can reduce the burden on his own. If he feels menaced by battlefield weapons that would reach only battlefields west of the Soviet Union, and primarily in das Land der Mitte, his policy is not defensive.

U.S. policy has already conceded too much to Kohl by agreeing to delay modernization until after German elections next year. Kohl's additional demand, for immediate negotiations with the Soviets about such weapons, raises this question for U.S. policymakers: Why sustain Kohl with concessions so that he can implement policies not substantially different than those of the German opposition parties?

U.S. policy is to delay negotiations on nuclear forces in Europe until there are negotiated reductions of the enormous Soviet conventional-force advantages that made deployment of NATO's nuclear forces necessary.

(Strategic nuclear negotiations also are relevant.) And it is U.S. policy that, even with conventional-force reductions, nuclear weapons must be components of deterrence in Europe for the foreseeable future.

Kohl says he only seeks equal ceilings on short-range nuclear systems, not elimination of them. But there are only 88 short-range Lance missiles (the focus of modernization) in Europe. There is no military logic to any particular level between 88 and zero.

Aside from the Lances, there is a large NATO inventory of nuclear artillery and other nuclear weapons. The political pull of zero — not just zero Lances but the longstanding Soviet goal of a denuclearized Europe — might be irresistible.

There is in Europe a crystallizing conviction that nuclear deterrence is now incompatible with detente. U.S. policy has fed anti-nuclear thinking.

At the Reykjavik summit, only Gorbachev's overreaching rescued us from our improvident agreement to get rid of nuclear weapons. Ronald Reagan defined SDI as a program for getting rid of nuclear weapons. Reagan and candidate George Bush celebrated the INF treaty with triumphalist rhetoric implying that any elimination of "an entire category" of nuclear weapons is wonderful.

One rationale for the INF treaty was that it was homeopathic medicine, treating a disease (arms-control fever caused by the anti-nuclear virus) with small doses of the disease. It may have worked briefly, but intervals between bouts of the fever are becoming shorter.

"The Germans," said one of the greatest of them, Goethe, "make everything difficult, both for themselves and for everyone else." History's worst calamity began in August, 1914, when Germany went to war. It has been truly said that if in July, 1914, the Kaiser had been given a blank page on which to describe the world as he wanted it, he would have been hard put to list significant changes.

Germany wanted to be important, but had no clear idea of what that meant. Today Germany is acquiring new importance — as the agent of disintegration of the security system that has kept the peace.

"There are thousands here who have never known liberty but are here to fight for it." — Panama's first vice presidential candidate Ricardo Arias Calderon, predicting an uprising if vote-rigging occurs in Sunday's elections.

"Today is to call the attention of the world to what is going on. These poor kids here, the sick, some of them born here, want to return to their home." — Vice President Dan Quayle, after touring a refugee camp in Thailand for Cambodians who have fled the Vietnamese occupation of their country.

"Christ has cured a lot of people and I said, 'What do we have to lose?'" — Erie Mayor Louis J. Tulio on why he and Pittsburgh Mayor Richard Caliguiri met with faith healers 17 months ago to pray for a cure for the fatal organ-destroying disease they share, amyloidosis. Caliguiri has since died.

Letters

Letters to the editor on issues of general interest always are welcomed by the Big Spring Herald and always are printed if these guidelines are followed:

Letters should be 300 words or less, typewritten if possible, and double-spaced. If not, the handwriting must be legible to reduce chances for mistakes.

Be warned: Don't cross Iraq's president

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Here in the cradle of civilization, it doesn't seem out of the ordinary that the head of state fell for a married woman and dispatched her husband to parts unknown. After all, it's an old biblical story.

When David got an eyeful of Bathsheba, he shipped her husband, Uriah, off to the front to be killed. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein took a more humane approach. A high-level official of a friendly neighboring country confirmed this account:

Last August after Iraq and Iran reached a truce in their eight-year war, Hussein had time for his fancy to turn to a second wife. (Under some circumstances, Islam allows a man to marry up to four wives.) He saw a woman he had to have, but, like Bathsheba, she was married. The husband was a loyal Iraqi air force officer.

There was no war on, so Hussein did not have the option of sending his rival to the front. Instead, he offered the man his pick of jobs and salaries, anywhere in the world except Iraq. The only condition was that the officer must divorce his wife. The officer chose divorce instead of offending Hussein.

Hussein is a man who gets what he wants. He is considered ruthless when it comes to punishing naysayers. His iron rule is maintained in large part because of the stories that circulate through Baghdad about what happens to people who cross him.

The story most often repeated here is of a cabinet minister who, several years ago, naively suggested that Hussein step down to facilitate a peace with Iran. The unfortunate fellow reportedly was asked to step outside of the cabinet meeting with Hussein, who dispatched him with a pistol to the next life and returned to resume the meeting.

Another Hussein tale involves a top health official who was reportedly executed when Hussein found that the medical supplies he had ordered arrived with old expiration dates. In another story, the president suspected that some military officers had burned down a building to cover up the fact that they were stealing supplies. He reportedly issued an execution order for everyone connected with the incident.

One knowledgeable observer told us that it matters little here whether such stories are true. Iraqis believe their president does such things and they are cowed.

As a young man, Hussein joined the Arab Baath Socialist Party and was part of a failed coup attempt to bring down King Faisal II in 1956. In 1958, Faisal was murdered, but his replacement, Abdel Karim Kassem, was not a Baathist. Hussein was one of 10 people chosen to assassinate Kassem. The other nine assassins were killed and Kassem was not. Finally a bloodless coup brought the Baath party to power and Hussein has been head of state since 1979.

The paranoia of those early days lives on. Hussein, fearing his handwriting could be traced, used typewriters to write revolutionary leaflets. Today typewriters are still a threat. It is illegal to import them here. Iraqis must be licensed to own them. On our recent visit, our modern hotel with many other amenities for the business traveler would not let guests use typewriters unless they made carbon copies for Hussein. We declined.

Against this backdrop, our intelligence sources say it is unlikely that anyone will topple President Hussein in the near future. His only real threat is from an Iraqi army with time on its hands. Some U.S. intelligence reports suggest that one faction of the military may have tried to unseat Hussein last October and that more than 100 of the upstarts were executed.

That, like so many other stories here, is hard to confirm, but Hussein benefits from the publicity.

HITCHED TO HOOKERS — Federal investigators are tracking down a Korean prostitution ring operating in the United States and U.S. soldiers may be implicated.

Immigration and Naturalization Service officials have documented marriages in Korea where GIs have married prostitutes for a fee. The women then immigrate to the United States as spouses and set up shop. Immigration officials have been frustrated by the lack of cooperation from the Army in the investigation. Meanwhile, the prostitution scam is growing, as evidenced by the rising number of Korean prostitutes arrested recently in California, Texas and Washington.

MINI-EDITORIAL — Talk about taking your work home with you. An Iowa company has introduced the perfect vehicle for "Type A" personalities — a Chevy van that is customized as a mobile office. Luxury limos have carried all the office amenities for years, but the van is designed for a workaholic on a budget. At this rate, genuine recreational vehicles will soon be a vanishing curiosity from a more tranquil age.

Tanker captain to stand trial

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The fired captain of the Exxon Valdez was ordered to stand trial next month on charges of being drunk while his vessel crashed into a reef and spilled more than 10 million gallons of oil.

Joseph Hazelwood, 42, pleaded innocent Wednesday before state District Court Judge David Stewart to three misdemeanor charges of operating a vessel while drunk, reckless endangerment and negligent discharge of oil. He faces two years, three months in prison and $11,000 in fines if convicted of all the counts.

Paulette Foster, a spokeswoman for the district attorney's office, also said a grand jury has begun an investigation to determine whether additional criminal charges should also be filed against Hazelwood, who was released on $50,000 bail. Hazelwood's attorneys said they will seek to have the trial, scheduled for June 20 in Valdez, moved because of extensive news coverage. They have not yet proposed an alternate location.

Hazelwood is accused of turning over control of the 987-foot-long Exxon Valdez to an uncertified mate on March 24, when it rammed a charted reef outside shipping lanes and ripped its bottom, letting the Alaskan North Slope oil pour into Prince William Sound.

After the spill, Hazelwood went home to Huntington, N.Y., where he was arrested on a fugitive warrant.

Mother defies birth control order

PHOENIX (AP) — A 19-year-old woman whose sentence on child abuse charges had included an order for lifetime birth control recently gave birth to her fourth child, officials said.

Debra Ann Forster had pleaded guilty April 4, 1988, to two counts of attempted child abuse for leaving her two sons, then 7 months and 18 months old, in her sweltering suburban Mesa apartment unattended for three days in May 1987. When her estranged husband and father of the children found them, they were severely dehydrated and one was near death, according to court testimony. The boys recovered.

The judge who sentenced Ms. Forster in May 1988 lifted the birth control condition of the probation sentence in August as unenforceable when she learned Ms. Forster was pregnant.

Ms. Forster's probation officer, Lori Scott, confirmed Wednesday that Ms. Forster gave birth last week, but she would not disclose the date or location.

A daughter born in March 1988, while Ms. Forster was in jail awaiting resolution of her case, was put up for adoption. The two boys were put in the state's custody.

First sex change patient dies

CHRISTINE JORGENSEN

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Christine Jorgensen, who told the world in 1952 she was a woman trapped in a man's body and shocked it by becoming the first person to undergo a sex change, died of cancer Wednesday at San Clemente Hospital. She was 62.

She fought a 2½-year battle with the cancer, which began in her bladder. And a few weeks ago doctors found a brain tumor, according to Chris Costello, a friend.

She voiced no regrets about the sex change and the ensuing international publicity.

Her operation is much more commonplace today. As of 1980, an estimates 3,000 to 6,000 adults in the United States had undergone hormonal and surgical sex changes, according to Harry Benjamin of the International Gender Dysphoria Association.

Officials defuse beef dispute with Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration issued a stern warning to Japan on fair trade at the same time that it eased what had threatened to become a full-blown trade war with Europe.

The European agreement, announced late Wednesday, concerned American beef containing growth hormones. U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills called the partial settlement with the 12-nation European Community "a positive step toward de-escalating" the dispute between the United States and its largest trading partner.

In a separate trade dispute involving telecommunications, Mrs. Hills released a target list of Japanese products which could face 100 percent duties unless Japan does more to open its market for car telephones and business radios to American companies.

The threatened tariffs would effectively double the price of the Japanese products. Included in the proposed list are some of the most popular Japanese electronic products including color televisions, video recorders and photocopying machines.

The agreement with the EC will affect about 15 percent of the $96 million in annual U.S. beef sales to Europe. The other 85 percent of the market will remain closed, pending further negotiations, U.S. officials said in announcing the settlement.

The agreement follows the recommendations of a task force of officials from both sides.

Under the agreement, U.S. beef producers who wish to export beef not treated with growth hormones to Europe will be allowed to do so.

This partial resolution will cover high quality grades of beef being shipped to Europe, but will not cover the other 85 percent of beef trade which includes so-called "variety meats" such as livers, tongues and kidneys.

In return for this action, Mrs. Hills said, the United States will reduce the retaliatory tariffs imposed by America against imports from the European Community.

The tariffs, which took effect on Jan. 1, covered boneless beef, ham, prepared tomatoes, tomato sauce, instant coffee, fruit juices, fermented alcoholic beverages and pet food.

Those 100 percent tariffs, which covered $96 million in European food shipments to America, will be reduced by the amount of American beef which is allowed in under the new agreement, Mrs. Hills said.

U.S. officials have insisted that there is nothing harmful about the hormones being used to fatten beef. They contend that the European action was an illegal trade barrier which was masquerading as a health issue.

Poles get independent newspaper

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — For the first time in more than 40 years Poles are going to be able to pick up a daily newspaper not controlled by the government, and the editors promise to separate fact from opinion.

There even will be sports in the Gazeta Wyborcza tabloid, to be published by the country's Solidarity-led opposition.

The paper, whose name means "the election newspaper," hopes to make its debut on Friday or Monday after a frantic search for offices and the quick assembly of a staff.

Deputy editor Ernest Skalski describes it as "the first independent daily between the Elbe and the Pacific."

Although the paper will have a government censor in the office, editors say they'll be able to maintain an independent voice.

Compared to the gray, propaganda-laden dailies put out by the Communist Party, the government and various official organizations, Gazeta Wyborcza intends to be lively with short articles and more foreign news.

The eight-page newspaper will start out by reporting on the June parliamentary elections, and continue as a daily with an opposition editorial viewpoint.

Soviets give unions right to strike

MOSCOW (AP) — Labor unions will gain the right to strike in new legislation designed to free them from decades of meek subservience to the Communist Party and government, a leading Soviet union official said.

Unions "must have the right to stop work at enterprises, in organizations and institutions as a means of pressure on the administration for speeding up the resolution of labor disputes," Stepan A. Shalaev told the labor newspaper Trud in an interview published Wednesday.

But Shalaev made clear that the Central Council of Trade Unions that he chairs does not expect strikes to become as common as they are elsewhere.

"The decision to stop work at an enterprise — this is an extreme measure to be taken only in extreme circumstances," he said.

Shalaev said the draft law, published Saturday, would be discussed by unions for three months. It must eventually be approved by the new Supreme Soviet Parliament, which is considered likely.

Giving unions a limited right to strike appeared to be an effort to prevent labor unrest from taking on the dimension that led to the formation of the Solidarity free trade union movement in Poland.

Five killed in helicopter crash

DIGNE, France (AP) — A U.S. military helicopter making a night training flight clipped a high-tension power line and crashed in southern France, killing five Marines, officials said today.

The UH-1 Huey, from the amphibious assault ship Guadalcanal currently in port in Toulon, exploded when it hit a hillside at about 9:45 p.m. Wednesday near Rougon, a village 500 miles southeast of Paris.

In Washington, the Marine Corps said the Huey was one of two conducting a navigation training exercise and that the lead helicopter crashed. The other aircraft was not involved in the accident, the corps said.

The corps said the pilots were using night-vision goggles but that there was no reason to suspect the goggles played a role in the accident.

However, a marine official in Washington said on condition of anonymity that the goggles do not permit pilots to see power lines.

The helicopter was one of 13 taking part in France-U.S. training exercises in southern France from April 29 to May 19, said Peter Antico, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Paris.

Tax showdown may be inevitable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and Senate were finishing work on similar $1.2 trillion federal budgets for next year, but the chairman of the House's tax-writing committee says Republicans might delay necessary revenue-raising measures.

In addition to finishing with their fiscal 1990 budget proposals, both chambers also planned votes on several amendments. But no amendments were expected to be approved that would dramatically alter the documents' spending and taxing mixes.

The lawmakers' budgets, reflecting a pact reached last month between President Bush and congressional leaders, would claim to shrink next year's deficit to just above $99 billion, in part by collecting an additional $5.3 billion in taxes.

A partisan showdown looms over the composition of those taxes.

Bush claims $4.8 billion of that can be raised by actually cutting a tax. He says slashing capital gains taxes would cause the economy to grow, with tax revenues growing proportionately.

Democrats — including House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois — have called the idea a money-loser that would do little more than help the rich. They want to raise the funds in unspecified other ways.

Speaking on the House floor, Rostenkowski said that Democrats on his panel would not seek any new revenues unless Republicans went along. With Bush's "no new taxes" campaign pledge, Democrats are leery of being depicted as the party that favors higher taxes.

"I will not encourage or support a revenue increase that does not have the support of the president and a majority of members of both sides of the aisle on my committee," he said.

Rostenkowski told a reporter he expected Bush to cajole Republican lawmakers, if necessary, to support any tax deal reached between the administration and congressional Democrats.

"It's the president's budget," Rostenkowski said. "The president is going to have to do it."

Rostenkowski's Senate counterpart, Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, told his colleagues that his panel may propose tax increases surpassing $5.3 billion because it might also approve some costly tax breaks.

Those tax breaks, which cost the government revenues, might include the research-and-development tax credit and a cut in the surtax for catastrophic health care insurance, Bensten said. He did not say which tax increases he favors.

On Wednesday, the Senate picked its way through a series of amendments, approving one adding $94 million for AIDS research and another shifting $100 million to law enforcement from other domestic agency budgets. It also went on record against gas tax increases, approving by voice vote a non-binding provision that the current 9-cent-per-gallon levy be left alone.

In a 64-31 vote that illustrated the support they have for their spending plan, the chamber's leaders also defeated an effort by Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., to transfer $3 billion from defense to education programs.

"We made an agreement, and I believe it is a responsible and fair agreement," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

In the House, legislators spent their day arguing the merits of their $1.17 trillion plan, with many members arguing that it was the best that could be achieved considering Bush's reluctance to raise taxes and Democrats' aversion to domestic spending cuts.

"We're left with having to work around the edges, which we did," said House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

In an effort to reduce this year's expected $163 billion shortfall, both chambers are relying heavily on rosy economic projections, book-keeping gimmicks such as shifting spending out of fiscal 1990, and one-shot steps like selling federal assets.

They would allow $299.2 billion in defense spending next year, $2.5 billion more than this year. Expenditures for foreign aid would reach $17 billion, and $14.2 billion would be raised from taxes, higher user fees, and asset sales.

Expected growth in programs that provide automatic benefits to recipients, such as federal pensions, would be cut by $8.3 billion. Among those savings would be $2.3 billion from Medicare.

Woman says the law isn't always fair

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I saw a letter in your column from a mother who discovered that her daughter had shoplifted a garment while they were out shopping together. The mother immediately returned the garment to the store.

Here in Illinois, anyone who is found to be in possession of merchandise without proof of sale (a sales slip) can be prosecuted for stealing! I learned this the hard way: I bought a pair of slacks at a major department store. They did not fit properly, so I put them into a bag and took them back to the store. (I neglected to place the sales slip in the bag.) I gave the bag to a salesperson in that department while I went into the dressing room to try on some other slacks that were displayed on a rack.

When I emerged from the dressing room, I was arrested — for shoplifting! The salesperson had looked into the bag, saw the slacks but no sales slip, and assumed that I had shoplifted them.

I was sentenced to a "theft deterrent" program. With me in the class was a young woman in her 30s who owned her own printing business, a matronly grandmother and a fireman. The young woman had tried on a jacket, then walked to the shoe department at the other end of the store to find some matching shoes. She was arrested in the shoe department for "attempting to leave the store" without paying for the jacket!

The grandmother had been grocery shopping. "Security" followed her home (she lived a block from the store) and arrested her for stealing the shopping cart. (She had carted her groceries home in this manner many times and had always returned the shopping carts, as she had intended to return this one.)

The fireman had gone into a hardware store to return a defective tire gauge. He placed the defective gauge on a shelf and helped himself to a new one because he did not want to stand in a long line at the register. He was arrested for stealing as he was leaving the store.

Abby, I am not a thief, and neither were the others who were arrested for stealing. Our only crime was ignorance of the law.

Another valuable bit of information: Most stores have hidden cameras, one-way mirrors and well-trained undercover security personnel who receive bonuses for turning in shoppers (and salespeople) who steal.

I hope a word to the wise is sufficient. — BUSTED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR BUSTED: So do I. Thanks for an enlightening letter. However, because laws vary from state to state, everyone should be aware of the laws in his or her state.

DEAR ABBY: This may come as a shock to some people, but when a person comes home after putting in eight hours at work, maybe, just maybe, he or she needs to sit down and rest. Alone!

Company can be a welcome event occasionally, but not every afternoon. This is directed especially to those who do not work and who arrive at my door about 4 p.m. every day. You know who you are! — KENTUCKY WOMAN, PADUCAH

DEAR KENTUCKY WOMAN: The problem is not them, it's you. People who lack the courage to say "Enough!" had better be prepared to be walked on. Because they will be.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DISAPPOINTED IN NEW HAVEN: If you pull a few wires while your children are growing up, you may not have to pull any strings to get them into a top-notch college. (Suggested wires to pull: television, stereo and telephone.)

Chatwell is new caller

The Sparkle City Squares Square Dance Club of Snyder announces that Rick Chatwell is the new club caller, replacing Sleepy Browning who resigned to pursue a business opportunity in Lubbock.

Chatwell, 32, began calling squares at the age of 16 in Brunswick, Ga., under the direction of Dick Barker.

A 1975 graduate of Midland High School, Chatwell currently serves as the caller for the Castle Gap Squares of Crane, and teaches clogging workshops.

Chatwell, who is married to the former Julia McNair, is learning advance calling under the direction of David Davis, Big Spring.

On May 13 at 8 p.m., the club will host a "Spring Spectacular" to introduce Chatwell and to celebrate the club's new location at the former Snyder Athletic Center building, located at the corner of 33rd and College Avenue.

All former members and guest dancers are invited to attend.

Workshops are conducted on the first and third Wednesdays of the month at 8 p.m. Dances are conducted on the second and fourth Saturdays at 8 p.m.

President Josie Beard presided; and Mrs. John Clark, Rotan, reported on the 40th General Business Assembly that was conducted April 13-14 in Washington, D.C.

Barbara L. Scott, supervisor of the Solar Max Repair Mission of the National Aeronautic and Space Administration shared "behind the scenes" information.

Mrs. Stanley Reid, Stanton, learned that her grandfather came to Texas from Tennessee in 1847 via Alabama, and settled in Washington County.

Through the years, she has pieced together the trail of each grandparent and their families through court records, church records, political services, wills, census and other avenues.

She found that her grandfather, William Redford, served in the Revolutionary War in Virginia before moving to Tennessee. She also learned that her ancestor, Francis Redford, who came to America in 1659, settled in Virginia in the area of Williamsburg.

Beard is state president and member of the national board; Clak is national counselor of the Colonial Daughters of the 17th Century.

The next meeting will be July 29 at noon in Abilene. Mrs. Edward Hungerford, president general, Sebastian, Fla., will attend.

HOUSTON — flank a cross T the Spring High

Histo search

DENVER (AP) — missing for more than a year in eastern Colorado, but not by the 3000th anniversary of the search for it, magnetometers located the wreckage.

It turns out the train was buried by a flood, according to a spokesman for the water and power department. A private organization searched for the wreckage.

"The train isn't there," Dirgo said. "It was destroyed August 1878 by a party. The initial search was strong, Kansas, and was rebuilt. The engine's however, remains." Last January, Clive Cussler, an agency, Dirgo used magnetometers to search for the wreckage east of Denver, missing Kansas locomotive.

Prom night party ends in car crash, death

HOUSTON — Friends of Daniel Mulcahy, Jr., flank a cross Tuesday placed near the spot where the Spring High School senior wrecked his car early Sunday after the senior prom. The 17 year old died seven hours later in a hospital.

HOUSTON (AP) — Students from Spring High School heard sirens when they arrived at a school-sponsored all-night party following the senior prom, but it wasn't until later that they learned the emergency vehicles were for fellow students involved in an accident.

Daniel Mulcahy Jr. and his date, Erin McMahon, were en route to a school-sponsored all-night party offered as a drug-and alcohol-free safe alternative when Mulcahy's 1984 Corvette, a graduation present, careened into a concrete-lined culvert near the entrance of a shopping center.

Mulcahy, 17, suffered a fractured skull and crushed abdomen and died later Sunday morning at Houston Northwest Medical Center.

Miss McMahon, 18, was released from the medical center Tuesday.

Friends and classmates of Mulcahy erected a white cross Tuesday at the accident site a few blocks from the school. Among the scrawled messages covering the crucifix, one stood out: "We love you, Danny."

Three white roses and yellow ribbons decorated the cross, along with parts of the car wrecked in the accident.

His funeral was held Wednesday morning at St. James Catholic Church, with burial in Resthaven Memorial Gardens.

During a rosary Tuesday, Mulcahy's open casket was surrounded with high school mementos: a football signed by his teammates, his varsity letter jacket, a lion mascot.

Historian engineers locomotive search for train already found

DENVER (AP) — A locomotive missing for more than 100 years in eastern Colorado has been found, but not by the 300 volunteers who searched for it in January with magnetometers and front-end loaders.

It turns out the train was recovered months after it was buried by a flood, said Craig Dirgo, spokesman for the National Underwater and Marine Agency, a private organization that sponsored the search.

"The train isn't out there," said Dirgo. "It was dug up at the end of August 1878 by a second search party. The initial search party quit. 'We know it was taken to Armstrong, Kansas, near Kansas City, and was rebuilt.'"

The engine's ultimate fate, however, remains a mystery.

Last January, best-selling author Clive Cussler, who founded the agency, Dirgo and 300 volunteers used magnetometers and front-end loaders to search a dry river bottom outside of Bennett, 30 miles east of Denver, hoping to find the missing Kansas-Pacific railroad locomotive.

But that hunt, and another involving about 25 people the following weekend, failed to turn up any sign of the train.

The engine, 19 cars and a caboose fell 30 feet from a bridge the night of May 21, 1878, when a flood struck the area.

Twelve cars and the locomotive were reported to have been buried in the sand. The front brakeman, fireman and engineer were killed. The engineer's body was found about 10 miles downriver.

Cussler, who wrote the book "Raise the Titanic" and lives in Golden, has located 54 sunken vessels through his organization. His book, "Night Probe," was written with the missing locomotive in mind.

But on Monday, Cussler learned that the engine had been raised more than 110 years ago.

A friend, Don Snoddy of Omaha, Neb., found the information from documents at a Union Pacific museum. Union Pacific bought Kansas Pacific sometime after the flood.

The documents Snoddy found indicated the locomotive was removed from the river bed in the middle of the night in August 1878, Dirgo said. It was rebuilt two years later and received a new number in 1885.

"We've been trying to figure out why it was covered up," Dirgo said. "It was removed late at night, and they denied for years that it was uncovered."

Dirgo said he and Cussler originally thought the locomotive's recovery might have been part of an insurance fraud because Kansas Pacific had been in financial straits at the time of the flood, and the engine was valued at $18,000. But that theory didn't seem right.

he said. "I don't think it was insurance fraud," Dirgo said. "In talking to everybody, they didn't really have insurance back then."

Many Bennett residents, including 79-year-old Emma Mitchell, whose father worked on the cleanup following the flood, had staunchly believed the locomotive remained in a sandy grave.

"How they tricked an entire town for a hundred years," Dirgo wondered.

Atlantic ocean star of new PBS series

By KATHRYN BAKER
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — To most of us, it's an innocuous strip of blue that separates the United States and Europe on the world map, or that tedious nothingness that takes hours to go by outside the window of an airplane.

But the Atlantic Ocean, a shifting, churning, life-giving, living character, is the star of an ambitious new, three-part series, "Atlantic Realm," beginning this week on PBS.

The first episode, "Island Arks," examines the origins of the ocean, from its beginnings some 165 million years ago as little more than a river separating two continents before they began to drift apart.

The series offers scientific and historical data on the evolution of the ocean, but is thankfully taken up more with superb photography of wildlife the ocean has spawned than by maps and charts. One of the highlights of the first episode is the birth of a litter of lemon sharks in the shallows near the Bahamas, an event never before photographed in the wild.

Life above the sea is featured in the first episode, especially the myriad sea birds that live on islands off the coast of Africa where the delicate ebb and flow of the ecology is easily observed — such as the environmental upheaval caused when mariners introduced domesticated cats to one small island.

The series is engrossing and lovely to watch, despite occasionally overwrought narrative, such as this sample from a segment on Iceland: "Solidified lava is one of the raw materials of the Earth. Forged in fire, it's stern but ready to accept the life that pioneers its surface. Below, the Atlantic marine organisms would exploit this new territory, but here, laid bare to the winds of the air, lichens, mosses and herbs have taken hold along this broad and rolling swath of the salt that is part of the mid-Atlantic ridge."

Phew. Narrator Marty Robinson manages to read such passages with aplomb if not a breath.

The series, a joint production of WTTW in Chicago and the BBC, was created by Rod Redfern, who wrote the book "The Making of a Continent" on which a previous, six-part PBS television series was based.

"I was looking for something to follow "The Making of a Continent,"" said Redfern in a statement about "Atlantic Realm," "and the obvious thing was the making of an ocean." Redfern's book on the Atlantic is due out soon.

Next week's episode, "Ocean of Light," focuses on the effects of the winds that brush the top of ocean and the life forms that live near the surface, including whales. The cameras go the Antarctic for first-time pictures of the underwater ballet of Weddell seals. Later, they capture the flow of translucent animals that drift along the surface of the open ocean.

"Into the Abyss" is the series' big finish, with cameras diving a half-mile below the ocean's surface to examine the strange creatures that dwell in the lightless depths. The cameras also take viewers to the longest submerged mountain range on Earth and take a peek inside an underwater volcano.

Elsewhere in television: FOR THE BIRDS — The life of wildlife illustrator John James Audubon will be the subject of two two-hour television films, "The Flight of Imagination," in development by Herb Schmetz in New York and Richard Price in London. The scripts will be based on Claude Chebel's fictionalized biography "Audubon."

"MOLLY" GAINS GAYNES — Allyn Ann McLerie, who plays Molly Dodd's mother on Lifetime's "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd," has a love interest in the series' new episodes on the cable channel. He's played by McLerie's real-life husband, George Gaynes ("Tootsie," "Police Academy").

"WISEGUY" — Patti D'Arbanville, who had been guest-starring in the rock 'n' roll storyline on CBS' "Wiseguy," will play a recurring character in the crime drama, says CBS, noting, "how and why this happens remains a mystery: 'Wiseguy' writers hold the key." ... Speaking of "Wiseguy," Viewers for Quality Television, a Virginia-based group that defends high-caliber if low-rated television series, has put its seal of approval on the series. VQT director Dorothy Swanson calls "Wiseguy" "brilliant and cerebral."

WHO'S HOUSE IS HOMIEST? — Hope and Michael's Philly fixer-upper on ABC's "thirtysomething" is the coziest of TV houses, according to a survey of New York designers and architects queried by Metropolis magazine. Next on the list was Cliff and Clair Huxtable's Brooklyn townhouse on NBC's "The Cosby Show."

Baseball subject of first novel

BOSTON (AP) — Growing up in New Jersey and dreaming of playing major league baseball, Bill Littlefield hoped Willie Mays would move next door and teach him all he needed to know.

"Then when he retired, I'd just move in," he said.

But Mays and the New York Giants moved to San Francisco, and Littlefield became a college professor and radio commentator. That didn't end his love of baseball, as is clear in his first novel, "Prospect," which was published by Houghton Mifflin Co. on April 3, the opening day of the major league baseball season.

Not that the book is just about baseball. It's also about being old and caring and sharing.

Littlefield didn't know where his writing would lead when he began his book. "I got to several parts where I wanted to know what happened next myself," he said in an interview. "I certainly didn't know what was going to happen when I started it."

The story, interestingly, is told in two first-person accounts.

One narrator, Pete Estey, is a retired baseball scout whose playing career never got beyond the minor leagues. He lives in a Florida nursing home, listening to games on a radio and telling baseball stories to Louise Brown, the other narrator. An avid baseball fan from the Jackie Robinson days, she is religious, strong and determined. She takes special care of patients at the nursing home to keep them from slipping into the wards of oblivion.

Time nearing for Best of the Rest

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Comanche Trail Golf Course will be the site of the Best of the Rest two-man scramble golf tourney May 12-14.

Entry fee is $125 per team and is limited to the first 100 teams to enter. Comanche Trail golf pro Al Patterson says entries are quickly coming in. Golfers must have a 15-handicap and above.

The top finishers in each of the five flights will receive irons, woods, bags and gift certificates. All golfers will receive a KBST Best of the Rest Cap, bag towel, bag tag and a United States Golf Association rule book.

Friday, May 12, a cocktail party and dance will be conducted. After Saturday's first round, a barbecue and team discussion will be held.

Patterson also added that kicks, throws and mulligans will be allowed. For more information call 263-7271.

Thursday notes

The Mitchell County Law Enforcement Association will be having its Third Annual Pigs Men's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament this weekend in Colorado City at Hertenberger Field.

Entry fee is $100 per team. Trophies will be awarded to the first four teams; the first three teams will receive individual trophies. There will also be awards for all-tournament, Golden Glove and MVP.

For more information call Charles Watlington at 728-2449.

Borden County has a representative going to state competition in Austin next week.

Sophomore Eric Lusk earned himself a spot in the Class A state golf tournament by winning the Region 1-A golf tournament at Sundown's Municipal golf course.

Lusk fired a 77 on the opening day and finished with a 75 for a 152 total in medalist play.

"Eric and that kid from Fort Davis (Chris Mathis) were tied going into the final hole of the tournament," said Borden County coach Duke Frisbee. "Both had 10-foot putts to make. Eric made his and the other kid didn't. That shows the kind of kid that he is — he lives for pressure."

The Howard County Youth Horseman Club will sponsor an all-breed open horse show this Saturday. Registration begins at 9 a.m. Show starts at 10 a.m.

Shows will be followed by jackpot barrel racing at 3 p.m. Entry fees are $2.50 for youths and $3.50 for adults.

Awards will be ribbons, trophies, grand champions, high point youth and high point adults.

Now news from Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association...

In nine-hole scramble play on the front nine Monday, Annie Ward, Julie Hall and Harriett Richardson shot a 36 to win. One stroke back was the team of Patsy Sharpnack, Georgie Newsom, Mary Malone and Judy Beene. Dee Jenkins, Tammy Newsom and Ramona Harris were third with a 38.

In couples scramble play Thursday, Don and Roxie Belew and Jim and Georgie Newsom shot a 30 for first place. Second with a 21 was the team of A.J. and Debbie Firkie and Travis and Mitine Hunter.

In week three of the Texas Women's Bowling Association Championship Tournament in El Paso, one local is in second place.

Donna Wright is second in Division 5 with a score of 1471. Leading the division is Kerri Abair of Fort Worth with a 1550.

The Howard College Hawks baseball team will conclude regular season play with a crucial three-game series with McLennan Community College in Waco this weekend. The two teams will meet in a single game Friday and cap it off with a doubleheader Saturday.

The final week of Region V play has MCC leading the pack with a 15-6 record. Hill is next at 13-8 and Howard follows at 12-9. Ranger is fourth with a 8-13 mark and Frank Phillips brings up the rear at 6-18.

Frank Phillips is through for the season and Ranger hosts Hill in a three-game series this weekend.

As of late, third baseman Geraldo Camara has been Howard's hot hitter, hitting at a .575 clip the last three weeks. Curt Schmidt (9-4) and Corey Zielinski (11-2) have been consistent starters on the mound, and Greg Kroeger (6-3) is the steady reliever.

The Howard College rodeo team concluded its season last weekend in Stephenville and the Howard men's team finished fourth and the women finished fifth in the region.

The top two teams and finishers in each event qualify to the national finals rodeo. Odessa College and Western Texas finished one-two in the men's competition and Tarleton State University and Eastern New Mexico University will go in the women's division.

Howard has three men going to the nationals in Bozeman, Mont. Ken Berry will go in the all-around competition, for finishing second in the region. He will take Mike O'Gorman as his partner. Corey Ross will go in the team roping with his partner from Odessa College.

In the final region standings, Berry was third in bareback bronc and 10th in steer wrestling. Joey Hubbard was fourth in bull riding and Vance Eggemeyer was fourth in saddle bronc riding. For the HC women, Robin Wardlaw was third in breakaway roping and Jana Pierce was third in goat tying.

Local semi-pro baseball team, the Red Sox will be hosting the San Angelo Roadrunners in a doubleheader Sunday at Roy Anderson Complex, starting at 1 p.m.

The Red Sox currently lead the Western Division of the Central Texas League with an 8-0 record.

Kareem alive and kicking

By The Associated Press
For someone who has announced his impending retirement, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar seems determined to hang around as long as possible.

The 42-year-old center, in his 20th and final NBA season, scored 22 points and ignited a third-quarter Los Angeles rally as the Lakers beat the Portland Trail Blazers 116-108 to sweep their best-of-5 first-round playoff series. Los Angeles is 18-0 in the first round since the 16-team playoff format started in 1984.

"Our starting lineup was superb," Lakers coach Pat Riley said. "Kareem had one of the best games he's had in a long time."

In other Wednesday night playoff action, Chicago beat Cleveland 101-94 and Houston downed Seattle 126-107. After a day off today, the playoffs resume Friday night with Cleveland at Chicago, Seattle at Houston and Atlanta at Milwaukee. The Bucks lead that series 2-1.

Byron Scott scored 25 points and James Worthy added 24 for the Lakers, who have won the last two NBA championships.

Abdul-Jabbar scored nine points in the third period after Portland took a 54-49 halftime lead. Magic Johnson added 17 points and seven assists for the Lakers. Terry Porter scored 24 of his 29 points in the first half for the Blazers, who were swept for the first time in the franchise's history. Clyde Drexler added 25 points.

"Kareem has been working on his shot during practice and it's paying off," Johnson said. "He really looked good. It helps the whole team to see, 'OK, he's here; he can give us this kind of game, especially on the road.'"

"That's the shot I've tried to take all my career," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I'm going to try to get back to that. Every time that they guarded

Easy Goer big Derby favorite

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The number on Easy Goer's stall is unlucky "13." But that's OK, says Shug McGaughey, who trains the Kentucky Derby favorite. He's only a little superstitious.

"Everything has gone perfect so far," he said. "Knock on wood."

Anyway, Shug's wife Mary Jane, who is pregnant with their second child, found a lucky four-leaf clover the other day before Easy Goer could eat it. It didn't go in the baby book. She pressed it in her Kentucky Derby book, on the page with Secretariat's 1973 victory.

With a big field of 16 expected to enter the Derby today, racing luck will play its part when the 15th Run for the Roses goes off Saturday afternoon. It's not that

YEAR	HORSE	OWNER
1978	Affirmed	L. Wolfson
1977	Seattle Slew	K. Taylor
1973	Secretariat	Meadow Stable
1948	Citation	W. Wright

Easy Goer needs to be lucky; he just can't be too unlucky.

"If Easy Goer is lucky enough to run his race Saturday, they will have a hard time beating him," McGaughey said. "I'm not saying they can't beat him, but they'll have a hard time."

Only a month ago, experts predicted as few as 10 in the Derby because of Easy Goer's big victories in the Swale, Gotham and Wood this year following his 2-year-old championship campaign. But, before the withdrawal of Majesty's Imp, the probable field actually grew to 17, three short of the maximum.

"There's somebody out there drinking coffee and reading the Racing Form and saying, 'There's three spots still open. Let's go,'" McGaughey said. "It could be somebody who just won their maiden race.

"I don't think I've ever seen more horses at 100-1... If I had a horse that was 150-1, I don't think I'd want anybody to know about it."

The main starting gate at Churchill Downs will accommodate 14. Any horse with a post position beyond 14 will start in an auxiliary gate, and McGaughey did not like the prospect of being one of them.

"I really don't care how many are in there as long as we run out of one gate," McGaughey said. "I don't want to have to worry about getting stuck in the auxiliary gate."

Even so, he says: "I'm having a good time. I'm not waking up in the middle of the night in a cold sweat or anything like that,

Canadiens even series at one apiece

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens found their power play just in time. The Philadelphia Flyers are still looking for theirs.

The Canadiens, whose power-play unit has struggled throughout the playoffs and surrendered two shorthanded goals in Game 1 of the Wales Conference finals, clicked twice Wednesday night as Montreal evened the best-of-7 series with a 3-0 victory.

Montreal was 6-for-36 in 10 previous playoff games, but scored twice in eight tries and got its other goal one second after a Philadelphia penalty expired.

Coach Pat Burns said some changes he made on the power play after Monday night's 3-1 loss paid off.

"Yesterday and today, we worked on the power play. I tried different guys and put out some workers instead of the finesse guys," he said. "If certain players aren't working on the power play, they'll be taken off."

While Montreal's power play worked well, the Flyers — the No. 1 unit in the regular season and the league's most prolific unit in the playoffs — shot blanks for the second straight game.

"We have to do a better job on the power play and killing penalties," Flyers coach Paul Holmgren said after his team was shut out in four tries and fell to 0-for-9. "We have to make some adjustments."

Still, Holmgren wasn't upset leaving the Forum with a split. Games 3 and 4 will be played Friday and Sunday in the Spectrum.

"We wanted to steal another game, but we came up short. Still, I'm proud of the guys and the effort they put forth," he said.

Philadelphia's Ron Sutter said the Flyers didn't have the same energy they had in the opener, when they controlled the tempo for most of the game.

"We lost too many battles," he said. "We didn't get the second and third effort we got the other night.

"You try to take it a game at a time and you try to win every game. It would have been nice to be up two games, but we'll take a split."

For the third straight game, the injury-plagued Flyers got a superb effort in goal by Ken Wregget, playing in place of Ron Hextall, who's out with a knee injury.

Wregget made 36 saves and was the only reason the Flyers were in the game at all. If Hextall's knee

Braves snap losing streak

By The Associated Press
The standings may not show it, but the last-place Atlanta Braves are getting better. Because any time there's good young pitching, there's hope.

Rookie John Smoltz single-handedly stopped the Braves' eight-game losing streak Wednesday night, pitching a six-hitter and hitting his first career home run in a 6-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

"He could become one of the best impact pitchers in the league," Braves manager Russ Nixon said. "He certainly has what it takes."

Smoltz, 4-2, struck out nine and walked two in his first complete game. His two-run homer, a 429-foot shot, put Atlanta ahead 3-1 in the fifth inning.

The Braves were the worst team in the National League last season, going 54-106. They are at the bottom of the NL West at 11-17 this year, although a young rotation that includes Smoltz, Tom Glavine and Derek Lilliquist gives reason for optimism.

Smoltz said pitching all nine innings meant more to him than going 2-for-3.

Smoltz started poorly, giving up Juan Samuel's home run to open the game. But he didn't give up another hit until the sixth inning.

Von Hayes, leading the league with a .366 average, went 0-for-4 against the right-hander.

Dale Murphy hit his fifth home run and Jeff Blauser hit his first, each connecting against Don Carman, 1-4.

Reds 6, Mets 4

Chris Sabo and Barry Larkin hit consecutive sacrifice flies, breaking a seventh-inning tie and leading Cincinnati over New York.

The visiting Reds played their third straight game without Manager Pete Rose, who has bronchitis and is not expected back until Friday. Coach Tommy Helms has won twice in Rose's absence.

Jose Rijo, 2-0, gave up four runs in six innings. John Franco worked the final inning, striking out Len Dykstra to end the game with two runners on base for his ninth save.

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 3
Pinch hitter Rick Dempsey singled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning and Los Angeles beat St. Louis for its third straight victory.

Pinch hitter Mickey Hatcher doubled with one out and Jeff Hamilton was intentionally walked before Dempsey singled off Ken Dayley, 0-1.

Ray Searage, 1-2, pitched 1 1/3 innings for the victory.

Pedro Guerrero of the Cardinals left the game with a sprained ankle. He hurt himself with an awkward slide in the second inning.

Expos 6, Astros 5

Spike Owen hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the 11th inning, rallying Montreal past Houston.

The Astros went ahead 5-4 in the top of the 11th on Ken Caminiti's run-scoring single. But Nelson Santovenia singled with one out for the Expos and Owen hit his second homer of the season.

Tim Burke, 3-1, was the winner and Juan Agosto, the sixth Houston pitcher, lost his first decision.

Andres Galarraga and Hubie Brooks hit home runs leading off the Montreal eighth, tying the score at 4.

Cubs 5, Padres 4

Andre Dawson hit a go-ahead triple in the sixth inning and a two-run homer as Chicago won at San Diego.

With the score tied at 3, Ryne Sandberg was hit by a pitch with two outs in the sixth. Dawson followed with a triple off Mark Grant, 0-1, and scored on a single by Mark Grace.

Dawson's third home run of the season and 301st of his career came in the fourth against Dennis Rasmussen. Dawson is 7-for-12 lifetime against Rasmussen.

Paul Kilgus, 2-2, left in the sixth inning and Calvin Schiraldi finished for his third save.

Tony Gwynn hit a two-run triple in the Padres' fifth and scored on a single by Carmelo Martinez to make it 3-0.

Pirates 5, Giants 3

Barry Bonds hit a leadoff home run in the first inning for the 17th time in his career and Pittsburgh's John Smiley beat San Francisco for the second time in five days.

Kevin Mitchell hit two home runs for the host Giants. He leads the majors with nine homers and 30 RBI.

Pittsburgh had been shut out in the past two days before Bonds opened the game with his fourth home run. Rey Quinones and Tom Prince drove in two runs apiece for the Pirates.

Sports Briefs

Rebels rally for 11-7 victory

Wednesday night at the International Little League field the Rebels pushed their record to 6-0 with a 11-7 win over the Royals, who fall to 1-4.

Michael Paul Martinez got the win for the Rebels, in relief of Jason Henderson. Henderson was lifted in the fourth inning. Brandon McGuire was the loser for the Royals.

The Rebels scored five runs in the top of the sixth inning to overcome a 7-6 deficit. With the score tied 7-7, Mike Hernandez hit a two-run triple. Manuel Cervantes led the Rebels with three hits, including a homer. Mike Hernandez and Jesse Hernandez got two hits each.

Nick Arguello tripled for the Royals and Gary Martin doubled.

Lions stay perfect with 3-1 win

In National Little League action the Lions ran their record to 5-0 with a 3-1 win over the Cardinals, who fall to 2-3.

Brien Burchett and Ryan Williams combined for a six-hitter, striking out 14 Cardinals. Jason Roberts took the loss for the Cards. He and Josh Palmer combined for a five-hitter.

Chad Kemper had a two-run double for the Lions. Williams doubled and singled.

For the Cardinals, Roberts had two hits and Chris Lewis tripled.

Cities interested in new league

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are approximately 20 cities in the running for 10 or 12 franchises in the new International Football League, including some teams currently seeking NFL franchises, according to IFL president Tex Schramm.

Schramm, who met in the District of Columbia last week with other members of the committee in charge of developing the league, said their top priority at this time is settling upon sites for teams in the U.S. and overseas.

Schramm told The Washington Post that the committee is considering at least one city in Ireland, two in Britain, two in West Germany, two in Italy and cities in Spain and France.

Schramm said the committee has not discussed U.S. cities specifically. But he said some teams seeking NFL franchises, such as Baltimore, Memphis, Oakland and Jacksonville, Fla., have approached the committee to discuss their chances of landing a team in the international league.

Carter sprinter ineligible

DALLAS (AP) — A schoolboy sprinter who owns the nation's fastest 100- and 200-meter times this season has been declared academically ineligible for the state track meet May 12-13 in Austin, officials said.

The 6-4, 180-pound Jones ran personal bests of 10.19 seconds in the 100 and 20.43 in the 200 on Saturday, both Region II records. His 100 time is the second fastest automatic timing in national schoolboy history, behind the 10.18 by Dallas Roosevelt's Roy Martin in 1985.

"Doyle Jones made a grade of less than 70 in one class; therefore, he is ineligible to run in the state track meet," Dallas Carter track coach Eddie Payne said in a prepared statement.

The ineligibility puts Waco's Sam Jefferson in the 100 and Texas High's Jimmy French in the 200 at the state meet at Memorial Stadium. Jefferson and French had finished third when Jones won those events at the Class 5A Region II meet Saturday in Mesquite.

Rangers ground Yankees, 4-1

By The Associated Press
Kevin Brown gave the New York Yankees that sinking feeling from the start.

Brown pitched a two-hitter and got 17 ground-ball outs as the Texas Rangers beat New York 4-1 Wednesday night.

"The big thing was that I was in the strike zone more," Brown said. "I made a mechanical adjustment from my two previous starts. I was overthrowing. I decided to go for the middle of the plate."

AL

Mike Pagliarulo's second-inning single was New York's only hit until Rickey Henderson doubled in the sixth.

"Brown had good stuff," Yankees manager Dallas Green said. "He had an outstanding breaking ball early. That's where he was getting most of his outs. Later, he was effective with his sinker."

Brown, 2-1, entered the game having allowed 20 hits and 12 earned runs in 23 innings for a 4.70 earned run average.

me one-on-one. I tried to take the best shot I could."

Portland coach Rick Adelman praised the Lakers.

"The way they got ready for this series and the way they approached it, it just shows the kind of coach he (Riley) is and the kind of people they are," Adelman said.

Bulls 101, Cavaliers 94

Michael Jordan led Chicago with 44 points, including four clutch free throws in the final seconds, as the Bulls took a 2-1 lead over Cleveland. Jordan scored 15 points in the first seven minutes of the third quarter and the Bulls held leads of 22 points in the first half and 16 in the second half, then had to fight off a late surge by the Cavaliers.

John Williams kept Cleveland in the running by scoring 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter. The Cavaliers closed within 91-88 with 2:43 to play, but Jordan converted a three-point play, stole the ball and went in for a slam dunk that made it 96-88. Cleveland got within 97-94, but Jordan's four free throws in the last 21 seconds proved insurmountable.

Jordan opened the Bulls' second-half scoring with a three-point play and then connected on another with 1:53 remaining and Cleveland within three points of the lead.

"At the start of the third quarter, everyone was looking for something to happen," Jordan said. "When I got the three-point play it got us started. I asserted my leadership."

"The key to them getting back in the second half was offensive rebounding," Chicago coach Doug Collins said. "Our defense was great up to the second quarter when we had them down 45-23. I had to calm our guys down."

"But any time you have a big lead in this league, you know they're going to make a run at you."

Collins singled out Larry Nance for praise.

"Williams played great for them in the fourth quarter, but Larry Nance in the first half wouldn't let them slip out of the game," Collins said. "That shows great leadership."

Rockets 128, Sonics 107

Sleepy Floyd, noted for his clutch playoff performances, scored 22 of his 28 points in the first half as Houston beat Seattle for the first time in three playoff games.

Floyd, who had six assists and hit a club playoff record three straight 3-point baskets, got the Rockets off to a fast start with 10 first-quarter points as Houston used an 11-0 spurt to take control. Dale Ellis, playing despite a broken nose that forced him to wear a protective brace, led Seattle with 26 points.

Akeem Olajuwon scored 19 points and led the Rockets with 18 rebounds. Otis Thorpe added 23 points.

Last season, Floyd scored 42 points in a first-round loss to the Dallas Mavericks and two years ago he hit 51 points as a Golden State Warrior against the Los Angeles Lakers.

"We never lost our confidence," Floyd said. "We almost won the first game, and we thought that we could win once we got home. I felt if we could get home and start rebounding, we could take advantage of the situation."

plete game, striking out six and walking one to give the Indians their fifth victory in their last six games.

Blue Jays 2, Athletics 0
Mike Flanagan pitched a four-hitter for his 19th career shutout as Toronto beat Oakland 2-0 at Exhibition Stadium. The Blue Jays entered the game having lost four straight games and eight of their last nine.

The Blue Jays scored twice in the fifth inning on run-scoring singles by Tony Fernandez and George Bell.

Red Sox 8, White Sox 4
Rick Cerone drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a squeeze bunt to lead Boston past Chicago at Comiskey Park.

Mike Boddicker, 2-2, pitched 6 2/3 innings, allowing seven hits in going past the sixth inning for the first time in six starts this season. Bob Stanley pitched 2 1/3 innings for his third save.

Brewers 7, Twins 2

Gary Sheffield and Rob Deer hit two-run homers during a five-run third inning as Milwaukee beat Minnesota at the Metrodome, snapping a five-game losing streak.

although sometimes when I get up in the morning, he's sitting at the end of my bed."

Easy Goer, running as an entry with stablemate Awe Inspiring, is bound to go off as the odds-on favorite, with the Charlie Whittingham-trained Sunday Silence and D. Wayne Lukas' entry of Houston and Shy Tom next. The last time there was an odds-on favorite, it was Spectacular Bid in 1979, and the field was 10.

"It's like the Super Bowl," Lukas said. "Imagine what would happen if the Super Bowl said anybody who wants to can play. An awful lot of people would show up. They wouldn't win, but they'd show up."

While many have compared Easy Goer with Secretariat, McGaughey still believes the 1973 Triple Crown winner was the best colt he has ever seen.

"He was a 2-year-old champion. He was fast. He was a good 3-year-old. He won the Triple Crown. He could race the classic distances, and later on, he was able to carry weight and win," McGaughey said. "He was very versatile."

"He's a class act, and he's got a tremendous amount of talent," Day said. "I think he could have a couple of breaks not go his way and still get the job done."

Weather

Rain showers and scattered thunderstorms moved today over parts of 11 states in the central part of the nation, while temperatures dipped to near freezing overnight in North Carolina.

Rain fell this morning over northern Texas, northwest Louisiana, southwest Arkansas, Oklahoma, eastern and southern Kansas, eastern Nebraska, South Dakota, eastern North Dakota, southwest Iowa, the northwest corner of Missouri, and northern Alabama.

Clear skies dropped temperatures across North Carolina this morning. A frost warning was posted over the state's northern mountains.

The high temperature for the nation Wednesday was 105 degrees at Laughlin, Nev.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms extending over the Mississippi, Tennessee and Ohio valleys, the Gulf of Mexico states and the eastern part of the southern Plains; thunderstorms possibly becoming severe over parts of Oklahoma, northern Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama; and widely scattered showers from eastern Kansas to portions of the Dakotas and over the northern and central Rockies.

Highs were expected to be in the 60s and 70s across much of the nation; in the 50s along parts of the Canadian border from Montana to Wisconsin and over northern Maine.

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: journalist Nellie Bly, chef James Beard, comedian Pat Carroll, philosopher Karl Marx, author Christopher Morley, singer Tammy Wynette, actor Tyrone Power.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will be content to watch from the sidelines at a sports event. A trip that is beneficial for business will also bring you new friends. Write follow-up letters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You will have to come to terms with certain limitations before you can score new career triumphs. Your work gets more creative and interesting as the week winds down. Give your imagination free rein.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Look forward to new professional triumphs in the near future. You may receive important financial news over the weekend. Be prepared to travel on short notice. Someone at a distance needs your support.

CALVIN AND HOBBS

CANCER (June 21-July 22): There is something mysterious about your attraction to a newcomer, making your relationship all the more exciting. The outdoors inspires you. Go horseback riding or camping. Regular exercise helps reduce tension.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your high ideals are sometimes hard to live up to. Relationships of all kinds, from casual to very intimate, find expression this month. Take a short trip to revisit a favorite place.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Avoid undercooked foods or over-the-counter drugs that might upset your system. Greater financial freedom lies just ahead. Romance affects almost every decision you make now. Do not act too dependent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stop and think twice before signing a lease and moving to a new residence. Return phone calls promptly or you could miss a golden career opportunity. Influential people have no time to waste.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A conciliation attempt will probably succeed today. You are better equipped to deal with a financial or career matter than in the past. Start up for your rights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Others are impressed with your creative talents. Your ambition grows — and so does your confidence. Your accomplishments will receive wider public recognition in the near future. Enjoy the limelight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Greater peace of mind will be yours when you accept the fact that it is impossible to please everyone. Take children on a short trip and show them another side of life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Constantly criticizing a child is counterproductive. Focus on what this youngster is doing right. Dividends accrue. Continue to build savings. New investment offers deserve careful scrutiny. Rely on experts' advice only.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your confidence gets a boost when you meet a challenge head-on and emerge victorious. Travel produces a delightful new affiliation. Keep in touch with people who share your interests and ideals.

Gently persuaded

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Folks like Morris Williamson don't come along everyday. Besides the fact that the man really and truly loves kids, he has this knack of persuading people like myself to volunteer for things without them knowing that he has.

After making my acquaintance with this SISD administrator and speaking with him about the recently implemented Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS), I actually heard myself say that I would be tickled to volunteer to help children learn to write more creatively, as well as help them achieve better grammar skills.

There's just something about the way he mentioned how I, with my journalistic background and writing skills, would be a tremendous asset to the program. What could I do? He appealed to my ego, and at the same time explained to me how writing across the curriculum was one of the main concerns of educators everywhere.

So, I'm in, if not without a bit of trepidation because Ann Prough makes it all look so easy as VIPS coordinator. Sue Standefer breezes by after having helped Mrs. Snell with photocopying all day. Ruby Haggard is a whiz in the school library.

Even Ina Anderson — who is 96 years old, for heavens sake — spent an entire morning sharing her life story with Linda Denton's classroom of very rambunctious pre-kindergartners, and was none the worse for the wear.

It's very easy for me to plead off any kind of volunteering. I can always say I'm working on an important story. Yet there is something about the way the volunteers smile at me when they're talking about the day they've just had with a roomful of youngsters.

It's almost as if a shift in consciousness occurs even as they speak, and I end up thinking to myself how a lesson or two in how to write for a newspaper might be a tiny bit useful to a seven-year-old. Okay, if not to a seven-year-old, then maybe a kid in junior high.

Then again, maybe I could assist some children in expressing themselves through creative writing, like poetry or the short story or maybe even the informal essay. Or how to keep a journal so that when they want to write the Great American Novel, it won't be quite so difficult.

Better yet, I can take a class of kiddos to the newspaper office to show them exactly how the paper is designed, how the typesetting machine works, how reporters are always clicking away at computers as stories take shape in their heads.

I might be able to work up a program or two in which the children create their own newspaper right there in the classroom, from scratch. We could kick around some ideas, and assign some stories and photo shots. Somebody would have to write an editorial. We'd need a political cartoonist.

This is getting a little exciting. There's always the need for various columnists and correspondents. Advertising reps, lifestyle and sports editors, book and movie reviewers, weather reporters, carriers, the person who takes little newsbits over the phone, the person who takes complaints from the people who didn't receive today's paper.

Guess I better complete my application form and return it to Morris Williamson so I can get started. Hopefully, some of you will think of doing the same, and soon.

You can go home again, Thomas. Over a hundred people came to the Herald Open House last Friday. I was moved by your support and thrilled to see so many old friends and new faces. I thank all of you.

***
All of you who welcomed me back home last week and then had to deal with me calling you at home on the weekend probably wish I'd pack up and leave again. I had lots of loose ends to tie up during my first week back in the newspaper business so I made quite a few calls. I appreciate your patience.

VIPS: A marriage between school and city

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Most folks who know American History can probably recall studying about Booker T. Washington. He was born into slavery, 'emancipated' into a poverty not much better than what he experienced as a slave, then had to struggle for years just to survive.

Yet two decades later, he founded Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, received an honorary masters degree from Harvard University, travelled around the world and conversed with United States presidents.

When Washington spoke before groups of people concerned about the education of their youth, he almost always said that his efforts to learn to read and write would probably never have amounted to much had it not been for his mother's extra help. She spent a great deal of energy procuring books for young Washington and assisting him in obtaining an education.

Did his mother foresee a time when her son might become the great innovator in education that he did? Washington certainly seemed to think so.

Stanton Independent School District, under the direction of Superintendent Wayne Mitchell, apparently thinks that a Booker T. Washington or someone of his potential may exist within the

Anderson shares her stories

Ina Anderson can usually be found beating Porky Blocker at dominoes on any given afternoon at Stanton Care Center, or reminiscing about 'the good ol' days' back on the ranch in Alpine.

Last Thursday morning she was found volunteering for the VIPS program in Linda Denton's Pre-Kindergarten class.

Anderson is 96 years old, the oldest volunteer so far in the program. She spent an hour with the group of four-year-olds sharing memories about her childhood.

***
"We climbed lots of mountains when we were growing up in Alpine. There were some pretty high ones that were harder to climb than others, but we did. Father and the boys hunted a great deal out there.

"They hunted deer, foxes and coyotes, and even a few bear that came in from the South. My daddy would say, 'If you see a bear, run walls of its schools.

The District has recently implemented a program called Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS) in which parents, senior citizens, college students and others in the community are encouraged to become involved in the lives of Stanton school children by volunteering their time and talent.

Morris Williamson, Director of curriculum at SISD, said that VIPS is a marriage of school and community. "We feel like we can help our children by involving our community in the public school system.

"Volunteers can see what we are trying to accomplish with our young people, and help take that message back into the community. Also, they are able to do many things that will permit the teacher to devote more of his or her attention to the instructional needs of the classroom."

Williamson said that a correlation between parental and community involvement in the public school life of a child and the child's subsequent achievement and rise in self esteem definitely seems to exist.

"Many youngsters see a neighbor or parent helping out at school, and they want to be bragged on like anybody else, and I think that nothing pleases a youngster more, especially our smaller ones, than for someone to go to the parents and tell them what a fine job their child is doing in school."

Ann Prough, VIPS coordinator, agreed. "It's been found that children are really helped when parents and grandparents, and other members of the community become involved.

"We can decide not to help them, not give them the extra attention and tutoring they need, but sooner or later we're going to be paying for it. They are going to be out in the job market someday, yet they may not be able to read well, • VIPS page 2

Banquet slated for Tuesday

The Stanton Buffalos' annual Sports Banquet, hosted by the Stanton Buffalos' Booster Club, will be held Tuesday, May 9, at 7 p.m. at Bonnie's Restaurant.

Clovis Hale, Assistant Coach for the University of Texas football team will be the guest speaker.

A coaching veteran of more than two decades, Hale is in his second season at Texas after having gone there from Texas Tech with UT

Head Coach David McWilliams. He is a native of Loraine, and attended McMurry College in Abilene where he was named most valuable lineman as a senior in 1965.

He began in the coaching profession as an assistant at Lubbock High School for two years. He then joined Spike Dykes at Big Spring for the 1968-69 seasons and took over as head coach for the 1970-72 seasons. Hale moved on to the head coaching job at San Angelo Lake View from 1973-77, during which time he won a pair of district titles.

Hale joined Hayden Fry's staff at North Texas State in 1978 and went with Fry to Iowa for the next two seasons. In 1981 he joined the staff at Rice and served as defensive line coach, offensive line coach and offensive coordinator before going to Texas Tech in 1984.

Around town

The Association of Texas Technology Education recognized Norman D. King, formerly of Martin County, as Outstanding Regional Association Industrial Technology Teacher of 1988 at the Hyatt Regency in Dallas during a meeting of the ATTE.

The award is presented in recognition of outstanding professional contributions and dedicated service to the teaching profession as an industrial technology teacher of the West Texas Industrial Technology Association.

King has been teaching industrial technology for seven years. He was a member of the teaching staff of Grady Independent School District in Lamerah from 1983-88 and joined the staff of Crane Independent School District in August of 1988. He is a member of WITA, ATTE and ITEA.

The Martin County Historical Commission met at the Martin County Historical Museum on Tuesday, April 25, with Cliff Hazlewood, Jr., chairman, presiding.

A historical marker for the old Convent was discussed and a committee was appointed to research this subject. The committee consists of: Tom Angel, Frances Biggs and Ruby Payne.

The Commission voted to have a float in the parade and to meet with the Old Settler's Reunion committee during May and June. Nelda and Cliff Hazlewood reported on their visit to the Ramones Exhibit in Dallas.

Ortiz pleads guilty to burglary charge

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Gavino Ortiz, 22, pled guilty on Thursday, April 27, to charges of burglary of a habitation and cocaine possession. As part of a plea bargain, Ortiz was sentenced to ten years in the Texas Department of Corrections by 118th District Judge James Gregg.

The case leading to the arrest and conviction of Ortiz began last Jan. 19, Stanton Police Chief Michael Adams said. He stated that, on that evening, the local police station received a call from a Highway Patrolman concerning the occupants of a vehicle he had stopped for traffic violations in Howard County, as well as the stereo equipment found inside the car.

"Trooper Jones called to see if we had received a report of stolen stereo equipment," Adams said. "We did, in fact, have one, but it didn't fit the description of the one found in the Ortiz vehicle.

"Later that night we received the report of a local burglary in which a stereo system was missing, as well as other items. The total value of the missing items was about $3200."

Adams added that he contacted Patrolman Jones, who, in turn, brought the traffic citations to the Stanton police station.

"The tickets were written out to Gavino Ortiz for lacking proof of financial responsibility for his vehicle and for not being secured by a safety belt," Adams said. "James C. Reid, a passenger in the car was cited for not being secured by a safety belt."

Adams said that although there was no corroborating evidence at the time Patrolman Jones stopped the vehicle to tie Ortiz or Reid to the burglary, his alertness to the suspicious behavior of the two men, and his having taken notice of the stereo equipment was especially helpful to Stanton officers' investigation of the case.

"He actually informed us of a burglary before it was reported to us," Adams said, "and that gave us some lead time to investigate the suspects. When we later discovered the evidence that would convict one of the suspects, it was Trooper Jones' earlier actions that helped make it stick."

That evidence led to Reid's arrest at a Midland motel in which some of the missing items were recovered.

"We still did not have the evidence needed to arrest Ortiz," Adams said. "Officer Dwayne Dempsey was working this burglary, and did not feel that all the facts of the case were known. He continued digging into the case and was finally able to come up with the corroborating evidence that enabled us to come up with a warrant for Gavino Ortiz and his part in the burglary.

"Thanks to the exemplary work by Officer Dempsey, we picked Ortiz up on that warrant. During the search and booking process, we found what we believed to be cocaine. A lab analysis confirmed that he had been in possession of approximately a half-gram of cocaine. We were then able to add the drug possession to the charges against Ortiz which ultimately led to his arrest and conviction."

***
These present were Cliff Hazlewood, Nelda Hazlewood, Tom Angel, Margaret Bousche, Minnie Lee Jones, Ramsay Abbott, Lora Bell Tom, Beulah Mae Hall, Vena Fortune and Ruby Payne.

***
The volunteers in public schools participants have already contributed over 485 volunteer hours helping Stanton school children. The monetary value of this donated time would be over $1400 or $2425.

***
Most of the volunteers are parents of school-age youngsters, however, some are grandparents or just adults in the community who care. The senior citizens and Stanton View Manor patients are getting involved as well. Last week, the senior citizens Band entertained the elementary children with their music. This was a part of an old-fashioned "Pie Dinner," donated by Susan Etheredge, music teacher. Elementary classes performed square dances for a large audience of parents, seniors and school people.

***
The seniors are planning a quilting demonstration and 4th grade students, Ina Anderson, et al, will share stories of her life with pre-kindergarten students this week. These, and other sharing activities, are helping to build better communication and relations between the schools and community. Teachers who are currently working with volunteers in special programs are Sheila Schupp, Daniels Grimes, Linda Denton and Pam Hendrich. Rita Powell, Leatrice Brown, Betty Wright, Patricia Bennett, Jo Coggins, and Elaine Riddle are primary teachers using volunteers. Also, Janice Newman, Lydia Rodriguez and Dolly Bryant. Upper elementary classes with volunteers are taught by Patty Ruth, Sandy Louder, Gwen Brown, and Gracelyn Snell. Others include Stacie Redder. • AROUND page 4

Adams completes training course

Stanton Police Chief Michael Adams recently completed the Crime Prevention Officers Training sponsored by Tarrant County Junior College in Fort Worth. He received certification by the Texas Board of Insurance and the Texas Commission of Law Enforcement Officers Standards and Education to conduct security surveys and homeowners insurance inspections. "If folks want either the security survey or the homeowners insurance inspection, they can contact me at the police station," Adams said. "If the criteria is met on the homeowners inspection, there is a 5 percent reduction on homeowners insurance."

School pre-registration scheduled

The Stanton Elementary School will have pre-registration at 2:30 p.m. May 3 for children who will attend kindergarten next year. They must be 5 years old before September 1.

Also to be registered are those who are eligible for pre-kindergarten program. To qualify, families need to fall in the low income bracket and/or be English deficient. The children must be 4 years old before September 1.

Shot records, birth certificate, and Social Security number are need to register.

If families are unable to attend pre-registration that day, come by the elementary office and let them know.

Death

Gloria Gamboa

Gloria Gamboa, 44, of Midland, and former Stanton resident, died Thursday, April 20 at a Midland hospital. Funeral services were held at Sizemore Funeral Home of Midland on April 22. The Reverend Dave Simmons officiated. Internment was at Resthaven Memorial Park.

Gamboa was born on June 18,

1944 in Midland. She married Angel Gamboa on June 25, 1969. She was a member of the Northeast Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Angel, Midland; one daughter, Emelda Lopez, Midland; her mother, Augustine Marmolejo, Midland; three sisters: Adelda Salgado, Olivia Salinas and Mary Pena, all of Midland; one brother, Manuel Marmolejo Sr., Midland, and two granddaughters.

write well, perform everyday math skills."

Williamson added that although SISD has the future of every school child in mind already and each teacher works very hard to teach the child, the VIPS program enhances the academic goals the district has for each child.

"VIPS has parents and others coming to the school and demonstrating their willingness to give of their time and talent to help them achieve an education that will affect the academic future of the children, as well as assisting them in obtaining skills which will be necessary to enjoy good careers."

Prough said that the program has been in existence for little over a month. "We haven't been here very long, and yet volunteers have already put in more than 485 volunteer hours. The monetary value of this donated time would be over $2500.

"Most volunteers are parents of school-age youngsters. However some are grandparents, and others are simply adults in the community who care. The Senior Citizens Center group is involved, as are some Stanton Care Center residents. A couple of weeks ago the Senior Citizens band entertained the elementary school children with their music during the Old Fashioned Hoedown directed by Rachel Etheredge.

"By bringing old and young together through VIPS, six-year-olds and 96-year-olds can help each other simply by being brought together. The wisdom of the elderly can both enlighten and entertain the child, and the children's interest can remind the elderly that they are useful; it can bring joy back into their faces. There are many things to be given back and forth between the groups."

Prough explained that there are many ways to volunteer. Native speakers from other countries can assist in foreign language classes while others may wish to give of their time in the guidance and career counseling office.

Additional information provided by the National School Volunteer Program listed such varied activities as helping students set up science and math laboratories, assisting with school fairs and programs, accompanying classes on field trips, sponsoring school clubs and producing school newsletters.

Artists and performers such as Sandy Duncan have entered the classroom to share information their careers, as have government officials. Even President Reagan took some time off while in office to speak to Washington D.C. students about a career in public service.

Williamson summarized the VIPS process as community members becoming partners with the school system in helping to teach. "Listening to youngsters read, talking to them about their school work, and helping them to stay on task make a definite difference, not just in their academic performance, but in their lives.

"I'm selfish in that I care mostly what our students will gain from the volunteers, from their skills and lessons they have to share with us, yet I feel like most people will tell you that if they had to live their lives over again, they would say they would like to teach. Well, this is the golden opportunity for folks to do so.

"You become a part of everyone you meet. This is an opportunity to make an impression on youngsters that will stay with them the rest of their lives, the good part of you can live forever because these children will pass it on to someone else."

Taylor completes survival school

Victor Taylor, Highway Patrolman of Stanton, completed the Officer Survival School last week at the Baptist Encampment north of the city.

Sargeant Frank Woodall of Big Spring conducted the school for the Midland district, which includes Martin County.

Taylor stated that the school was designed to provide more in-depth training for officers in various areas of law enforcement.

"We have to qualify twice a year with side arms, including the pistol, shot gun and the mini 223 rifle," Taylor said. "In this particular survival school, both stationary and running targets were used. The running targets were used to help in the simulation of the felony stop process."

Taylor added that the 13-mile stretch of highway running along Martin County has seen its share of criminals, including those in which he thinks the training will prove to be especially helpful.

"We are making lots of highway stops in this area, narcotics especially," he said. "Some of these people are ready to kill and die because they're hooked on drugs, transporting a carload of narcotics or have just committed some type of major felony."

"A routine traffic stop could be one in which the occupants of a car hate law enforcement officers for just about any reason. Statistics show that there are those that hate us, and will kill us, no matter how minor the violation."

Taylor explained that the survival school included training in both physical and mental aspects of law enforcement, especially those which are helpful in the potentially dangerous felony stop.

"Every stop, especially at night, can turn out to be our last," Taylor said. "We have to be at our physical and mental best to be able to deal with the stressful nature of our job. The fact that we are in shape can make the difference in survival, and that's basically what the school was concerned with."

"There were six of us girls, including my mother. We had six side saddles, because my father wanted us to have one apiece. We really were warned by Father to take care of them. We had to keep our own one clean and hung on its proper nail in the barn, just like the boys had to do. Except for Mother, the oldest boy took care of hers.

"All nine of us children went to the one-room school up on the mountain. I loved all of the teachers. The ranching community had to pay extra money for women to travel out into that territory and teach ranchers' kids, so we all thought they were pretty special. They taught us a lot and I admired them for coming way out into that part of the country.

"We rode in our buggy to the school. It was five miles one way, and we went up there no matter what was happening with the weather. Rain or shine or snow, we went to school. My parents wanted us to have a good education."

"We had a mean old stallion. You could hook him up to a buggy, though, and he would take us anywhere. Or four of us children would pile on him and he'd be alright. But, lordy, if he were let around the other horses, he could really be mean; he bit them and kicked them.

"That old mean stallion just wanted to be king of the hill."

"My father was a great big tall man. He had the most beautiful head of hair you ever saw. Just as jet black as it could be, and thick as anything. He had to keep it cropped close to his head because it got so hot while he worked the cattle. I'll never forget my father's head of shiny, black hair. Prettiest hair you ever saw."

"My family chopped down our own trees for Christmas. There were nine of us children, four boys and five girls, but my oldest sister was really great at dressing up the tree, so she kindly took care of that.

"We cut out things and made pretty ribbons for it. Mother cooked lots of nice goodies for Christmas, and we girls helped her."

"We always had a houseful of people in the great, big two-story house that Father built for us. There were eleven of us in all, and when we children each had a friend over, the house would be plumb full, just running over with all of us.

"My father and mother enjoyed having company as much as we children did, so Mother always had good things to eat, just in case people dropped by, and they usually did."

"Ranching was a good life. We had lots of cattle and horses, pigs and goats.

"We had lots of love in our big two-story house."

Inman qualifies for state meet

Although the Stanton Buffalos made a strong showing at the Region I-II track meet in Abilene this past weekend, hurdler Anthony Inman will be the only one going to state.

The Buffs competed well as a team, tying Iraan and Stinett for fifth place. All scored 36 points. For the third straight year Haskell won the meet. The Indians scored 67 points. Spearman followed with 54 points and Idalou was third with 50 points.

Inman, a senior, gained state a berth by winning the 100 meter high hurdles in 14.5. He nosed out Mike Fair of Stinett and Shawn Cook of Spearman, both ran 14.6. Inman finished second in the 300 intermediate hurdles, running a 39.5. Cliff Alexander of Idalou won the event in 38.3. Inman has run a 38.18 this year.

"I was real pleased with Anthony," said Stanton coach Dale Ruth. "He ran real well in the 110's but he stumbled going over the third to the last hurdle in the 300's. That kid that beat him (Alexander) just blew by him. He (Alexander) was real fast, he anchored their sprint relay team that won."

Two Buffs just barley missed on a trip to Austin. Half-miler Kevin Barnes finished third in the 800, running a 2:01.1. Curtis McCreight of Coleman won the event in 2:00.8 and Neal Kenner of boys Ranch was second in 2:00.9.

In the 400, Farrell Williams finished third, running a 52.5. Andy Rodriguez of Lockey won in 52.2 and Shane McCutcheon of Reagan County was second, also running a 52.5.

"I was real dissappointed Kevin (Barnes) didn't quite make it in the 800," said Ruth. "He got boxed in on the last straightaway and couldn't get out. If he had've been able to swing outside, I think he would have made it."

"I was real surprised at Darrell in the 400. He ran well. He ran a 50.84 in the prelims, which was about a second faster than he had run before. But in the finals he ran against a strong wind."

Barnes added more points in the 1600, running a 4:40.0 for fourth place. Darrell Hudman of Boys Ranch won the event in 4:34.6.

Senior long jumper Eddie Jordan scored points by leaping a season-best 21-4 for a fifth place finish.

Six Grady tracksters going to state

Grady senior Naomi Morales will be making a return trip to the state track meet by virtue of her finish in the Region I-A track meet in Levelland over the weekend.

Morales won the shot put competition with a throw of 37-2, about a foot ahead of her next competitor. Last year at the state meet in Austin, Morales finished fourth with a throw of 35-4.

"I thought Naomi threw real well," said Grady coach Randy Peel. "I was really pleased the way she kept improving. It was a little cold and she was throwing into the north wind, so it took her a while to get warmed up," said Peel.

"I thought Naomi threw real well," said Grady coach Randy Peel. "I was really pleased the way she kept improving."

In the three prelim throws, Morales three 34-6, 35-6 and 36-5. She went into the finals in first place. In the finals the Grady strongwoman threw the eight-pound ball 35-7, 36-8 and 37-2.

"I think if we have decent weather this weekend at the six-man state meet in Comanche, she'll throw close to 40 feet," said Peel. Peel also added that Naomi would be a strong favorite at the six-man state meet Saturday, and should be one of the favorites the following week in Austin. "That's what we're shooting for, two state championships," he concluded.

Morales will be joined at the state six-man meet by teammates Fred Garza in the shot put, Sheri McMorris in the high jump, Joe Gay Tunnell in the 400 and the 1600 meter relay team.

Representing the Grady boys in the meet will be Scott Glaze in the high jump, and Julian Valle in the 110 meter high hurdles, and the 1600 meter relay team.

Running prelims, the 3200 meter run and field events begin at 9 a.m. Running finals start at 2:30.

Happy anniversary

County Judge Bob Deavenport signs a resolution proclaiming May 8 as the 75th Anniversary of the Smith-Lever Act which enabled all states in the union to put extension agencies in each county. Kathryn Burch, Home Economic Extension Agent, and County Commissioners look on.

Saturday proclaimed Nurses Day

The Stanton clinic of the Texas Department of Health, located at 403 N. St. Theresa St., announced that May 6 is National Nurses Day in honor of those in the nursing profession. As part of National Nurses Week, May 6 has been set aside to recognize the role that Public Health nurses play in maintaining health standards in their communities.

A local TDH spokesman said that in some rural areas of the state, the Public Health Nurse is the only health care provider available. "Without these individuals, many rural residents would lack even basic health services. Texas Department of Health nurses provide important care to individuals from conception through old age."

The spokesman added that the goal of Public Health Nursing is to promote wellness through education and preventative services. "This year's chosen national theme, 'Nurses Change Lives', is truly an appropriate one for Texas Department of Health nurses, they change lives."

Prenatal care, immunizations, nutritional instruction, control of communicable disease, WIC, health screenings, adult health, and nursing home supervision are among the many services provided which have made it possible for more Texans to live a better and healthier life, the spokesman said.

Grady fourth-and-fifth-grade students recently participated in the "Texans War on Drugs" Media Fair hosted by Region 18 Service Center. These students video-taped their entry of a "rap" song entitled "Don't Do Drugs."

Mendez places third at meet

Stanton junior David Mendez made his name familiar with the tennis power by finishing thirds in the Region I-AA singles play in Abilene.

Mendez, playing in one of the toughest regions in the state, won three matches and lost one to gain third place. Region I-AA has produced the state champion for the past three years. He is Will Green of Anson, who is expected to win state a fourth consecutive time.

In the final Green defeated sophomore Jerry Hill of Stamford 6-1, 6-3. Green and Hill are in the same district. Hill outfought Mendez 7-5, 6-4 in the semifinal round. In the third place match, Mendez defeated Rickey Ojeda of Hart 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

Mendez began the tournament by defeating Stephen Boyd of Ralls 6-3, 6-1. He then disposed of Ware Brown of Hart, 6-0, 6-0, going to the semifinal match against Hill of Stamford.

"I think David had a real good tournament," said Stanton coach Keyv Allred. "He played real well in the first two matches, and he played well in the semifinals. That sophomore was just too good. He (Taylor) really should've been seeded. But he got second behind Green in district and they don't seed runners-up."

"David should have a real good chance next year. He'll probably go into the tournament seeded, and might end up on the other side of the bracket, playing that kid from Stamford in the finals."

"If David improves next year as much as he did this year, he'll be there."
