Big Spring GI faces murder trial today

By KIMBALL PERRY
 For The Big Spring Herald
 FORT BENNING, Ga. — Jury selection is expected to begin this morning in the general court-martial proceedings of a Big Spring native accused of murdering two of his friends, but the military judge is expected first to rule on a defense motion to move the trial.
 Defense counsel for Staff Sgt. Jeffrey L. Meeks, 29, filed a change of venue motion last week with the judge, claiming Meeks would not get a fair trial if it was held at Fort Benning.
 Best sources have confirmed Meeks graduated from Big Spring

High School in 1978 and joined the army soon after graduation.
 Col. Richard P. Scheff, the military judge who will preside over the case, is expected to rule on the motion filed by Meeks' military attorneys, Capt. William Hudson and Capt. Bart Sperry.
 Meeks, the defense will argue, has been exposed to a great deal of pre-trial publicity since his early February arrest.
 He was brought in for questioning in late January by Fort Benning's Criminal Investigation Division concerning the Nov. 22, 1987, slayings of 2nd Lt. Todd Justin (Meeks) was brought in for questioning in late January by Fort Benning's Criminal Investigation Division concerning the Nov. 22, 1987, slayings of 2nd Lt. Todd Justin Dunlap and Debra Jean Nichols in the Oswichee Trailer Park... (He) is being tried by the Army for two counts of premeditated murder and could face the death penalty if found guilty.

 If the change of venue motion is denied, selection of the military jury will begin. The jury can consist of from five to nine soldiers. Once the jury is empaneled, the trial portion of the court-martial will begin and witnesses will be called.

 Big Spring resident Dorothy Meeks, Meeks' mother, and his oldest sister, Rita Clayton, have been brought to Columbus at Army expense and are expected to testify on Meeks behalf.
 Dunlap's father, Marlin Dunlap of Yakima, Wash., will also be at the trial and is expected to be called to testify.
 The trial is open to the public, but because the courtroom at Fort Benning's Judge Advocate General's office seats only a few dozen, access will be limited. The audience will consist of members of the media and other observers with an interest in the case.

 One of those interested observers is expected to be a representative of the Russell County (Ala.) District Attorney's office. Because states can try the accused after he has been tried in a federal court — regardless of the outcome of the first trial — Russell County authorities are expected to press similar charges against Meeks. The trailer park where the bodies were found is in Russell County.
 Meeks is being tried by the Army for two counts of premeditated murder and could face the death penalty if found guilty. The trial is expected to last about two weeks.

Parolee still jailed in killing

TEMPLE — No additional charges have been filed against Joe Bernardo Lopez, a Big Spring parolee who was charged with one count of murder Thursday in connection with the stabbing of a Temple man, according to the Temple Police Department.
 Lopez, 20, — a local parolee who fled Big Spring — has been charged with killing Larry James Womack, Jr. in an alley at 524 S. 16th St. in Temple early Thursday morning, police officials said.
 He is also a suspect in the fatal stabbing of Gregory Dennis Reed, 31, Temple, and the wounding of Ernest Ray Anderson, 49, Temple, who was stabbed once in the chest and is in stable condition in Scott and White Memorial Hospital in Temple, said Capt. Wallace Bartek, a Temple police spokesman.
 Lopez is being held without bond in the Temple city jail, but will be transferred to the Bell County jail later today, Bartek said.
 Bell County District Attorney Arthur Eads was unavailable for comment on the prosecution of Lopez this morning.
 Lopez served eight months in the Texas Department of Corrections on a burglary conviction, was paroled June 6 and scheduled to be discharged from parole April 4, 1994, according to David Harman, district parole officer.
 He fled Big Spring some time after Dec. 27 in violation of his parole, and the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles issued a warrant for his arrest Jan. 31.
 Lopez was arrested at 3:25 p.m. Thursday in connection with the stabbing death of Womack, and was later arraigned on one count of murder.
 Temple police Sgt. Mike Hughes said Friday that Lopez had not confessed to the killing, and that officials had not yet determined a motive in the crime.
 Harman said Dec. 27 "was the last time I laid eyes on (Lopez)."
 After a warrant was issued for his arrest Jan. 31, the Big Spring Police Department received information he had returned to the Big Spring area, but attempts to locate him were unsuccessful, Harman said.

BEIJING — Soldiers stand at attention as they wait on the arrival of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for a Communist summit that has been marred by Chinese students who refuse to end their protest for increased democracy.

Communist summit begins amid protests

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
 Associated Press Writer

BEIJING — Mikhail Gorbachev, a new symbol of tolerance in the Communist world, arrived Monday for a historic summit meeting overshadowed by an impasse between Chinese officials and thousands of students fasting for democratic reform.
 The Soviet president was officially welcomed at the airport in a last-minute change of plans caused by the occupation of Beijing's Tiananmen Square, the usual site for official welcoming ceremonies, by protesting students.
 Gorbachev, accompanied by his wife Raisa, arrived at noon for the first Sino-Soviet summit in 30 years. He was greeted by President Yang Shangkun and reviewed a military honor guard, receiving a 21-gun salute.
 The planned ceremony on the square could have been a major embarrassment to the Chinese. Tens of thousands of students and supporters, including 2,000 hunger strikers, on Monday defied police orders to leave, saying they would carry on their month-long campaign for democratic reform.
 The Chinese had no immediate comment on the change of venue and their apparent willing to pressure from the students.

 Earlier Monday the students, out of respect for Gorbachev, moved to an opposite side of the square from the Great Hall of the People, where the ceremony was to have been held. They also used their banners to sweep up some of the litter from two days of protests.

 In Irkutsk, Gorbachev told a crowd of Soviets who gathered at the airport that his trip would signal a warmer relationship between the two nations.
 Gorbachev said he did not want to talk about the years of tension between the countries, but said "our people and the Chinese people preserved a feeling of respect and a wish to live like good neighbors." His remarks were shown on the Soviet TV news program "Vremya."
 The main business of the visit is expected to take place Tuesday when Gorbachev holds talks with senior leader Deng Xiaoping and top party and government officials.
 Deng, the venerable 84-year-old revolutionary, now frail and semi-retired, has steered his country through a period of economic reform that brought growth and Westernization. But along with the reforms came inflation and dislocation that the government is trying to control.
 Gorbachev also has spearheaded a movement to overhaul the centralized Communist structure, but his economic measures have been far more cautious and, to date, less effective than

Storms hit area

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Sunday's thunderstorms hit Big Spring hard while leaving the surrounding area relatively untouched, area weather watchers reported today.
 More than eight-tenths of an inch of rain and marble-sized hail was reported in Big Spring, according to the United States Department of Agricultural Research Service. But golf ball sized hail was reported in neighboring Coahoma.
 The new rainfall brings the total to 3.85 inches of rain this year, above the 2.09 inches recorded at this time last year, but still down from the 4.67 inch average.
 Tommy Hart, 1750 Purdue Ave., reported "considerable" pea-sized and marble-sized hail and seven-tenths of an inch of rain. Total rainfall amount for the week was 1.11 inches, he said.
 A spokesman for the Colorado Municipal Water District reported six-tenths of an inch at the Big Spring monitoring station and nine-tenths at another station.

Tap water may change its color

By STEVE GEISSEN
 Staff Writer

Big Spring residents may notice a change in the color of their tap water, but incidents of "red water" in the city's waterlines should be temporary and isolated, according to city officials.
 Cloudy or red water could be the temporary result of a valve identification and maintenance program in the potable water distribution system, said Tom Decell, public works director.
 Waterline valves will be opened and closed during the process to ensure they operate and are available during an emergency.
 This valve testing could release build-up in the lines, resulting in the temporary emission of red water from home water outlets.
 Decell said the city would advise local residents through the media when and where possible changes in water condition could occur.
 "We don't think it will have much of an impact," he said. "But we want to notify the public (about the program) before someone puts a bunch of white uniforms in their washing machine without checking."

Uncertified traffic radar units may cause ticket dismissals

By BRADLEY WORRELL
 Staff Writer

Law enforcement agencies in at least two dozen Texas counties are using traffic radar units sold with falsified Federal Communications Commission certification, a spokesperson for a national motorists' rights group said.
 The falsified certification on radar units produced by the MPH Industries of Owensburg, Kentucky, may mean drivers who have been ticketed with that type of radar unit may have grounds for dismissal of their speeding citations, said Janice Lee, president of Radio Association Defending Airwave Rights (RADAR).
 What makes the radar gun readings unacceptable is the use of fraudulent type acceptance numbers, Lee said. The numbers CIY8AEKFS4 and CIY8AEKX54 used on the radar units were falsified, never having been certified by the FCC as required by law, she said.

 The FCC requires only that a speed gun is operating on its assigned frequency, not whether it is accurate, Lee said. There are no performance standards for radar units, she said.
 "Nevertheless, without commission certification there is definitely a question of whether the speed readings from these units is admissible evidence in court," Lee said. "We recommend that anyone getting ticket check the model and type acceptance number of the radar gun," she said.
 Units of the Texas Highway

Sgt. Frank Woodall with the Texas Highway Patrol said today that the county — which purchases the radar units the DPS troopers use — has always sought to buy quality units from companies who have been in existence for some time and whose products can be trusted for reliability. Local troopers have not used the MPH bee, he said.

Patrol and county law enforcement agencies in the counties of Anderson, Bell, Childress, Collin, Coryell, Denton, Eastland, Gray, Gregg, Kenedy, Lampasas, Lipscomb, McLennan, Navarro, Nolan, Potter, Randall, Scurry, Shackelford, Van Zandt, Webb, Wheeler, Willacy and Williamson are known to have used falsely certified units, Lee said.
 Local law enforcement agencies said they will be unaffected by the revelation of uncertified radar units.
 Radar units used by the Howard County Sheriff's Department are "used for tabulating but not enforcement," Sheriff A.N. Standard. "We do not enforce the radar... We do not have a large enough department to have a traffic department," Standard said. Instead, drivers who violate the speed limit are cited unsafe or excessive speed, he said.

 Standard said if the sheriff's department receives complaints of unsafe speeds in an area, such as a school zone, it turns the matter over to the highway patrol for them to monitor.
 Sgt. Frank Woodall with the Texas Highway Patrol said today that the county — which purchases the radar units the DPS troopers use — has always sought to buy quality units from companies who have been in existence for some time and whose products can be

 "We do not have any Bee radars, we have not had any Bee radars, we do not have any plans to get any Bee radars," he said.
 The officer in charge of Big Spring's traffic department was also unavailable for comment about the radar units, but Police Captain Lonnie Smith said, "All I really know about it is that we don't have any of them."
 The issue of falsely certified radar units was revealed in a Texas lawsuit alleging the that MPH company illegally used the "Bee" trademark of Broderick Enforcement Electronics, Lee said.

Fourth charged in arson

HOUSTON (AP) — A fourth person has been charged in the arson fire that killed four members of a Houston family last week.

Alfredo B. Guardiola, 34, was charged Sunday with theft by receiving in connection with the blaze last Thursday, said Houston Fire Department Arson Chief H.G. Torres.

Earlier in the weekend, Angelina Yvette Murray Gonzales, 21, and Lionel Segundo, 27, and Mario Valenzuela, 19, were charged with felony burglary of a habitation, authorities said.

Segundo was being held in City Jail without bail, while Valenzuela, whose bail was set at $10,000, was in Harris County Jail, authorities said. Ms. Murray Gonzales remained at large, according to police.

Joint exhibition opens

FORT WORTH (AP) — Nearly 700 people crowded the Modern Art Museum for the opening of the first joint exhibit of contemporary Soviet and American paintings.

Three of the 10 Soviet artists whose works are displayed in the exhibit also attended the debut Sunday of 10+10: Contemporary Soviet and Museum Painters.

In all, 60 paintings are on display at the Fort Worth museum, including those of 10 contemporary American artists. The exhibit will travel to four other U.S. museums and three in the Soviet Union, the first to tour both nations.

"10+10 epitomizes cultural dialogue more clearly than any other exhibition we've done," said Dee Smith, who initiated the exhibit with Soviet officials and is president of Inter-Cultura.

Parkland stops service

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County's public hospital has joined the growing list of Texas hospitals to stop offering kidney dialysis treatment to foreign citizens who can't pay.

Parkland Hospital officials say the facility can no longer afford to offer the costly treatment. But the eight undocumented aliens currently receiving dialysis treatment at the hospital will be allowed to continue as long as they want.

"These are patients that have faces and families and names," said Kathy Matney, Parkland vice president for non-surgical patient care. "We've committed to these patients."

Dialysis is required for persons who suffer irreversible kidney damage. The treatment, which can take four hours, removes impurities from the bloodstream.

Tanker fire injures two

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Two crew members suffered minor injuries in a fire aboard a Liberian tanker carrying 450,000 barrels of crude oil, U.S. Coast Guard officials said.

The fire erupted Sunday morning in the engine room of the 810-foot Jalinga. It was contained about 6 p.m., said Coast Guard Lt. j.g. Robert R. Dubois.

Hance may have known about Wright oil deal

FORT WORTH (AP) — The only high-ranking Texas official to call for the resignation of Jim Wright may have called to the attention of ethics investigators a questionable oil deal involving the House speaker, a published report said.

Texas Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance has claimed his demand for Wright to step down was based on news reports and the speaker's own admissions.

Records indicate he demanded Wright's resignation on the same day his agency began supplying the Committee on Standard of Official Conduct to the oil well deal, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

The unusual oil deal provided

Wright's blind trust with a quick profit.

Unidentified sources at the agency, which regulates Texas' oil and gas industry said Hance may have been the first to tip the committee. "No, that's not true," said Hance, an outspoken Democrat turned Republican and a longtime enemy of Wright. "The first I heard of it was when I read about it. . . . Actually, I got a call from some reporters the day before it came out in the newspapers."

Most of the documents supplied to the panel were public records. And Hance would not have violated any law or ethical standard if, indeed, he called the matter to the attention of ethics investigators — or if he heightened their interest.

But in the unpredictable world of Texas politics, where Wright remains a powerful and popular figure despite his troubles, such a revelation could prove troublesome.

Wright has been accused of 69 instances of House rules violations.

Five Texans, including San Antonio financier Morris Jaffe, testified in Washington recently regarding the Orange County exploration project, in which a $9,120 investment resulted in a $340,880 profit for a company half-owned by Wright and his wife, Betty.

When Gov. Bill Clements, a fellow Republican, was asked to react to Hance's call for Wright's resignation, he said Hance, who had opposed him in the 1986 governor's race, has a tendency to talk too much and too soon.

Telephone records obtained by the Star-Telegram under the state Open Records Act show that about a month before the report was issued, on March 16, the facsimile machine just outside Hance's office transmitted materials for 61 minutes to the telefax machine in the committee's office in Washington.

Although Hance said he knew nothing of the committee's investigation of the gas well deal at that time, records also show that he and the other two commissioners received a memorandum that day headed "Inquiry from Counsel of House Ethics Committee."

The memo, from the Railroad Commission's director of information, Brian Schaible, says that records regarding the Orange County well, and two in Freestone County in which Wright invested with the prominent Moncrief family of Fort Worth, had been supplied to Ralph Lotkin, an ethics committee investigator.

Schaible confirmed that the memo was delivered the same day the other material was faxed to Washington. It was also the same day that Hance called for Wright to step down.

Budget conferees look at Clements' program

AUSTIN (AP) — If Gov. Bill Clements stands by his veto pledge of a cigarette tax increase then an education program Clements has proposed may not get funded, budget leaders say.

On Sunday, Sen. Kent Caperton mentioned Clements' educational excellence program as one that may have a difficult time competing for budget dollars with other state needs.

But Caperton, chairman of the Senate budget negotiators, said he was not trying to target the governor's initiatives.

"I don't think that kind of confrontational approach is going to work," said Caperton, D-Bryan.

But he added, "We have a duty to articulate what our needs are and what needs will be unmet if we don't take advantage of revenue that is easily within our grasp."

Clements has stated there is enough available revenue to compose a state budget for the 1990-91 biennium, and that he would veto a cigarette tax increase.

Both the House and Senate have passed proposed budgets, and a conference committee has been negotiating on the final spending plan to total more than $46.5 billion for the next two years.

But legislative leaders say they still find themselves $300 million to $600 million short of paying for all needed services.

To help bridge that gap, lawmakers have discussed increasing the cigarette tax by 7 cents, from 26 cents per package of cigarettes to 33 cents. That increase would bring in $166 million in state revenue and $274 million in federal funds.

"With the cigarette tax we can have a budget we can be proud of. Without it we have a budget we can tolerate," Caperton said.

Caperton said without the additional cigarette tax, general tax funding of other necessary programs, such as higher education, public education, and prisons, will have to be shaved.

"The bottom line is that we are not going to be able to write a budget that will really keep us moving forward without some extra revenue," Caperton said.

Caperton mentioned Clements' proposed educational excellence program as one that may have trouble in the budget negotiations.

The program, designed to reward schools that show an increase in academic performance, would cost approximately $70 million to $80 million for two years.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and a member of the budget conference committee, described Clements' proposal as a good program, but added, "I don't think we've got the money to fund it."

But Montford said he held little hope of Clements changing his mind on the cigarette tax. "I'm not ready to pronounce it dead, but it certainly is ailing."

The House-Senate conference committee indicated it may take up the issue of a state employee pay raise today.

Caperton asked for a review of the various proposals under consideration.

Industry provides jobs, faces criticism on environment

MEXICALI, Mexico (AP) — Spread out over a tarp, a sea of barrels suddenly appeared in the desert outside this city, burning the eyes and throats of anyone who approached.

About 150 in all, the barrels were labeled as containing toxic substances. But when a story appeared in a local newspaper, they disappeared as suddenly as they'd appeared.

Mexican environmental officials say the barrels of toxic waste were returned to the United States, but decline to identify which company dumped them or provide further for a lot of pollution.

The Mexicali daily newspaper Novedades last January reported the discovery of the barrels outside Mexicali, just south of the California border about 100 miles east of Tijuana. When a Novedades reporter returned to the same site less than a month later, the barrels were gone.

There was no public announcement about what poisons were in the barrels, who took them away or where they went.

Those barrels became a focus of fears that the industry is not a good neighbor, notwithstanding the employment it provides.

Sergio Quiroz, congressman from the People's Socialist Party in Baja California, accuses maquiladoras of environmental derelictions, which he calls "serious problems that can't continue."

Under Mexican law, maquiladoras must dispose of all toxic wastes in the country of origin, but even Mexico's environmental agency, Sedue, admits it has a hard time enforcing the law.

"We still don't have all the monitoring equipment we need. We don't have enough personnel and laboratory equipment," said Ricardo Parra Montes, the top federal environmental official in Baja California state.

"We are aware the infrastructure of waste management is not duplicated across the border," said Larry Aker, assistant deputy director of San Diego County's Hazardous Materials Management Division.

Waste disposal problems are not limited to maquiladoras. Aker said a "regular flow" of waste oil, some laced with toxins, is taken to Mexico for use as fuel in industrial boilers.

Lawmaker proposes work cards to curb discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress should consider some kind of work-authorization card so employers would not be tempted to discriminate against foreign-looking applicants who have a right to a job, says the chairman of the House immigration committee.

Under the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, employers face criminal and civil sanctions for knowingly hiring undocumented workers. It is also against the law for employers to discriminate against eligible job-seekers, such as asking only foreign-looking candidates for their work authorization papers.

"One way you fight discrimination is you remove the verification burden and I think we need to work on that," says Rep. Bruce Morrison, a Connecticut Democrat and chairman of the House Judiciary's subcommittee on immigration, refugees and international law.

"The burden on the employer should be as light as possible, so there won't be incentives for them to discriminate," Morrison said. A decision to hire "should be drawn on the line of the law, not on how (applicants) look or their accent."

While acknowledging his proposal for work-authorization cards may raise concerns about civil liberties, those concerns must be balanced against the threat of discrimination, he said.

"I'm a card-carrying member of ACLU," Morrison said. "My wallet is full of cards that I applied for. I'm not saying we should have an involuntary card. But what's wrong with a voluntary card? If I apply for a VISA, Mastercard and driver's license... what is the specter that would be added by my right to apply for a secure work authorization card?"

In testimony before his committee last week, several immigration rights advocates said discrimination has been occurring under the 1986 reforms.

"It has become increasingly evident that employer sanctions are causing significant levels of employment discrimination, resulting in the unlawful denial of employment to people who are authorized to work," said Muriel Heiberger, executive director of the Massachusetts Immigrant and Refugee Advocacy Coalition.

Lawrence J. Siskind of the Justice Department's office of special counsel for immigration-related unfair employment practices, testified the agency had received 532 charges of discrimination as of May 1.

He said the office has settled 67 cases, usually for back pay and reinstatement. Some of those settlements are far-reaching agreements that will open up "tens of thousands of jobs in the defense and airline industries... to aliens who intend to become citizens."

"I heard good news and bad news about discrimination," Morrison said in an interview Friday. "The good news is the agency charged with worrying about this has really taken it seriously."

"(But) there is a discrimination problem out there that needs to be addressed. I'm going to fight for adequate resources for the anti-discrimination effort, in terms of education and enforcement," Morrison said.

Rep. John Bryant, a Dallas Democrat and member of the committee, said indications of the scope of discrimination justify regional offices of the special counsel's office around the country, as well as "much more dramatic efforts to educate employers."

"It is not possible for a single national office to enforce the law related to discrimination in every region of the country where it occurs," Bryant said. "There is an enormous inertia to an enforcement effort if it's working off a minimal staff and they're all located in Washington. It's the same reason we have U.S. attorneys all over the country."

Envoy accuses Noriega of attack

PANAMA CITY, Panama — U.S. Ambassador Arthur Davis declared today that Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega ordered last week's attack on opposition candidates in an attempt to assassinate one of them.

"What happened was a Noriega-directed attempt on the life of one of the candidates," Davis, who is leaving Panama on President Bush's orders, said in a statement.

Witness reports and the type of wounds sustained by Guillermo Ford, an opposition candidate for second vice president, "showed that the attack was designed to kill him."

Ford and his two fellow opposition candidates were attacked by pipe-wielding thugs on Wednesday at the end of a political parade that called for recognition of an opposition victory in May 7 elections.

Davis said he could not reveal details of the evidence and said he did not know why Ford was targeted.

Davis credited Ford's bodyguards, one of whom died in the attack, with saving Ford's life.

After the news conference, Davis left for Howard Air Force Base to depart the country. He was recalled by Bush last week after opposition candidates were beaten in the streets of Panama City.

Meanwhile, American children at military bases returned to school today, but work was suspended for Panamanian teachers preparing for the opening day of the school year.

The U.S. schools had been closed Friday while dependents were moved on-post at Bush's order, and resumed today.

A message from the U.S. Southern Command said parents who had moved from their homes to the bases would be responsible for getting their children to classes.

The Panamanian school year was scheduled to begin May 22 for 660,000 primary, secondary and university students, and teachers were to report today until the school year was postponed for security reasons.

The most cautiously independent newspaper, La Estrella, took the opportunity to publish an editorial that said the annulment of last week's elections had provoked "a series of discomforts which does not permit classes to begin in a normal way."

The newspaper also published a front page picture of Ford entering church to applause from members of the congregation.

The caption did not mention that the service turned into a virtual opposition rally, with the congregation chanting "Justicia, Justicia" and passing out leaflets calling for a 24-hour general strike against Noriega's regime on Wednesday.

The caption did say such scenes were "repeated all over Panama."

An opposition leader Sunday rejected any proposals for a junta, saying the opposition won the May 7 elections and the victory should be recognized.

Exit polls by the Roman Catholic Church and surveys by opposition poll-watchers had opposition candidate Guillermo Endara ahead 3-1 over Carlos Duque when the count was stopped.

At Panama City's Cristo Rey Church, a militant opposition stronghold, the congregation jumped to its feet and cheered when opposition vice presidential candidates Ford and Ricardo Arias Calderon walked in to take seats in front pews.

Endara was greatly improved today and will probably be released from the hospital Tuesday, a medical bulletin said.

Weather

By The Associated Press

Severe thunderstorms wracked parts of Texas and Oklahoma, spawning one tornado, generating winds up to 67 mph and dropping hail as big as baseballs.

The thunderstorms were most severe along a stationary front over central Texas Sunday evening. A tornado hit at Brady, baseball-size hail peppered Eden, and winds gusting to 67 mph drove dime-size hail at San Angelo.

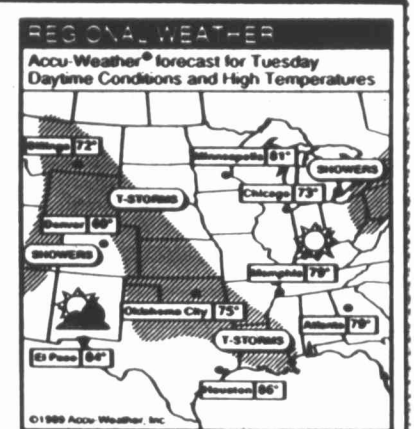

There were no reports of injuries or damage.

Thunderstorms also produced golf ball-size hail east of Petersburg and in southwestern Floyd County.

An upper level disturbance generated more storms over northwest portions of Texas and Oklahoma. Hail the size of baseballs struck near Boise City, Okla., and Gruver, Texas.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered from Tennessee to Pennsylvania early this morning, over the Carolinas, and over northern California.

Heavy rain also hit central Florida late Sunday and early today, with Orlando receiving 1.38 inches.

Today's forecast called for severe thunderstorms in the southern and central Plains; showers and thunderstorms from the southern and central Plains through the lower Mississippi Valley to Georgia and the Carolinas. Thunderstorms were expected to be severe in the Plains region. Showers were forecast from New England across the lower Great Lakes, Michigan, southeast Wisconsin, northern Indiana and northern Ohio.

Sheriff's log

The Howard County Sheriff's Department reported the following incidents:

- A drug raid by local law enforcement agencies Saturday reportedly netted a cache of drugs and led to the arrest of a Big Spring man, the Howard County Sheriff's Department said today.
- Alvino "Al" Noyola, 36, Palmer House Hotel, 207 E. Second Street, was released on $10,000 bond after being arrested on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.
- A search of Noyola's residence by sheriff's deputies and a city police detective allegedly uncovered three clear plastic bags of a substance believed to be cocaine and a rifle.

The street value of the substance believed to be cocaine was not known, Sheriff A.N. Standard said today. The substance was taken to Midland for analysis, he said.

The search came after the sheriff's office had obtained information about narcotic trafficking at the location and obtained a search warrant from Justice of the Peace William "Bill" Shankles, the report said.

- Scott Allen Goodblanket, 31, 3619 Conally, was released on $400 bond after being arrested on charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and public intoxication.
- Mike Fierro Hernandez, 56, 508 N.W. Fifth St., was released on $1,000 bond after being arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

tenths of an inch at Moss Creek Lake.

H. Boyce Hale, Sterling City Rt., reported .04 inches of rain as of 6 a.m. Monday, bringing a total of .26 inches for the month of May and 3.63 inches for the year to date total.

In Luther, John Couch reported pea-sized hail and six-tenths of an inch of rain. He did not have a total for the week or year.

In Forsan, O.W. Scudday reported one-fourth of an inch and no hail. The year to date rainfall amount in Forsan is almost 6 inches, he said.

Elsewhere across the state, a weak warm front lingered in North Texas, setting off thunderstorms in the Hill Country. Fog reduced visibilities to as low as one mile in the Panhandle.

A dry line maintaining its position in West Texas was the other dominant weather feature in the state.

The thunderstorms in central Texas produced strong winds and very heavy rain. Hail was reported in Blanco and Gillespie counties. Rainfall rates of one and a half inches per hour combined with saturated ground to produce some localized flooding in the Austin area.

Damage by a storm Saturday in the Killeen, Fort Hood and Belton areas in central Texas was preliminarily estimated at $3.5 million. Officials said 2,500 structures suffered damage in the storm.

Helicopters at Fort Hood were tossed around and some roofs were sheared off by winds that reached 96 mph.

Winds Sunday and early today were much calmer. Southeasterly winds breezed much of the state at 5 to 10 mph with some gusts to 35 in the thunderstorms.

Temperatures were in the 60s and 70s in the north and south. Readings in the 50s were reported in the Panhandle with some 40s in the Big Bend region. Extremes at 4 a.m. ranged from 46 degrees at Marfa to 79 degrees at Laredo, McAllen and Kingsville.

Partly cloudy skies were expected Monday evening in much of the state. Scattered thunderstorms are possible, with some again turning severe in North Texas.

If incidents of red water lasts for more than two hours, Decell advised residents to call the public works department at 263-8311 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or 263-8321 after working hours.

Water should not have to be cut off during the testing, he said.

"Several thousand" valves will be tested and identified in the program, which Decell said there was "a tremendous need for."

"The overall purpose of the program is to ensure that if we have a problem we are able to isolate it by shutting off the necessary valves," he said.

Decell said the testing will eventually become an annual program.

China's.

The Soviets, however, have moved more dramatically to ease restraints on public expression and have permitted competitive elections and a level of democratization practically unheard of in China.

As a result, Gorbachev is seen as something of a hero to many of the Chinese students, who have been demonstrating for a month to press their demands for democracy and freedom.

The last Soviet-Chinese summit was in Beijing between Nikita S. Khrushchev and Mao Tse-Tung in 1959 as Mao challenged the Soviets' leadership of the once-solid Communist bloc. Relations plummeted shortly afterward, and the Soviets pulled out thousands of technical advisers who had been helping rebuild China.

In the years since, China endured the trauma of the Cultural Revolution, and the Soviets experienced what is now referred to as the "era of stagnation" but which is remembered here as a time of Soviet adventurism in Asia.

What's in a name? Sometimes nothing

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Nimrod Dancer," the name of the operation that dispatched 2,000 U.S. combat troops to Panama, is the latest in a long list of fanciful, hokey and sometimes incongruous codes used by the Pentagon to describe its missions.

"Nimrod Dancer — didn't he come in seventh at the Kentucky Derby?" a Pentagon official was overheard to wonder when word of the operation's code name was announced Thursday.

Nimrod, the Bible tells us, was a mighty hunter. Was he a dancer too?

"No," said Lt. Kathy Woods, a Pentagon spokeswoman. "These names aren't supposed to mean anything. They have absolutely no significance on the face of it."

To make sure the names are totally random, a computer picks them, Woods said.

But once chosen, the combination of words, the number of their syllables or some other pattern does have significance for "those who need to know," said Lt. Cmdr. Jim Kudla.

Or, as explained in The Encyclopedia of Code Names of World War II, codes serve "as a type of mental shorthand for those in the know and to obfuscate the issue for those not in the know."

Winston Churchill, the master tactician who led the Allies to victory over Nazi Germany in World War II, may not have approved of the way codes are selected nowadays. In instructions to Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay in August 1943, Churchill wrote:

"Operations ought not to be described by code words which imply a boastful and overconfident sentiment. They ought not to be names of frivolous characters.

They should not be ordinary words. Names of living people should be avoided."

The Pentagon also avoids the names of living people for operation names. But what would Churchill have made of Operation "Urgent Fury," the code name for the U.S. invasion of the Caribbean island of Grenada in 1983 to counter a Cuban-backed coup and evacuate American medical students?

While names like "Urgent Fury" may sound inspirational, their aim is purely operational. "You have to have a code name to use in communications during an operation," said Barry Blechman, an expert on defense issues at the School of Advanced International Studies of Johns Hopkins University.

Major operations have different code names for each component, he said. "One must be precise. If you use the wrong name, you could land a unit at the wrong place."

Before computers got in on the act, some operation names actually had meaning the public at large could understand.

For instance, an operation mounted in 1968 by the 196th Light Infantry Brigade in Vietnam was code named "Attleboro," after the town in Massachusetts where the unit had trained.

In a more figurative although still understandable name, Operation Niagara in January 1968 conducted an average of 300 bombings daily in support of a besieged Marine base at Khe Sanh, Vietnam. The bombs rained down like a water fall, get it?

Former President Nixon liked to keep his hand in on code name selections during the Vietnam War. There was Linebacker One, for a bombing operation, and then Linebacker Two for another one.

Standards urged for bike safety helmets

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission should set performance standards for both adult- and child-size bicycle helmets, a private safety group says.

The group, the National Safe Kids Campaign, says that federal standards would help reduce the 1,000 deaths and half-million serious injuries each year in bicycle accidents.

Members of the campaign said they were going to present a petition to the CPSC today to require those standards.

"If we can prevent thousands of kids from being injured and killed each year while bicycling, we must remove the barriers to helmet use," Herta Feely, campaign executive director, said in a statement.

The campaign, supported by the Consumer Federation of America and 34 other organizations, recommends that all children and adults wear helmets when riding any bike.

People often don't use helmets because they feel they are not needed, doubt their effectiveness or are confused over which ones to buy, Feely said.

Until national standards are adopted, bike riders should use helmets that have safety approval labels from the American National Standards Institute or the Snell Memorial Foundation, said campaign officials.

AIDS panel not functioning

WASHINGTON (AP) — A commission to coordinate the federal attack on AIDS has yet to sit down to work, and a Democratic congressman who helped create it blames President Bush for being five months late in appointing members.

The White House defended the delay in appointing two additional members, saying it is still staffing a new administration, and says a list of names should be given to the president within the next two weeks.

Congress created the bipartisan commission last year to coordinate the federal attack on AIDS. Although Congress gave the president and House and Senate leaders 45 days to select the 15 members of the panel, no one met the Dec. 19 deadline.

House leaders announced their five appointments in February, and Senate leaders only finished their five selections earlier this month.

Bush must still appoint two members to serve along with the secretary of health and human services, the surgeon general and the secretary of veterans affairs.

Rep. Roy Rowland, D-Ga., who sponsored the legislation that created the commission, said in an interview Friday that Bush's failure to make his appointments is holding up the work of the panel of medical, scientific and legal experts.

"As long as it's not functioning, we're not addressing the problem and the number of AIDS cases that we're aware of is going up exponentially," said Rowland, a physician who was one of the five people selected by House leaders to serve on the commission.

"We have no idea how many people have been exposed to the virus that don't have the disease yet," he said. "There's just all kinds of things that we need to be dealing with from a policy standpoint that we're not dealing with."

White House spokesman Alix Glen said the appointments have been delayed because of "the enormous task" of staffing a new administration.

"While this is a priority, it has not moved as quickly as perhaps it should have," he said. "However, within the next couple of weeks, names should be forwarded to the president."

The new commission was endorsed by the National Academy of Sciences and the Institute of Medicine in a white paper on AIDS that was presented to Bush at the beginning of his administration.

Rowland said the emergency supplemental appropriations bill up for final action in Congress this week includes $400,000 this year for the commission. He said an additional $2 million has been set aside in the fiscal 1990 budget to fund the panel's operations.

But until Bush makes his appointments, Rowland said, the commission simply can't function.

Opinions from across the U.S.

Dishonorable actions

The Reagan administration's place in U.S. history was further cemented (May 4) by the conviction of Oliver North, Ronald Reagan's idea of "a national hero."

The guilty verdict was more than a finding against one White House agent on three specific violations. It will be seen around the globe as a judgment against CIA-style covert wars.

When the president attempted to overthrow tiny Nicaragua, hiding the operation from the American people, he broke the first rule of democracy: that the people decide their nation's actions. The concealment failed, and America was dishonored in the eyes of most of the human race. The World Court found America guilty of treaty-breaking.

For years, the Kremlin and its KGB sponsored surrogate wars in other nations. We hope (the North) verdict helps terminate America's participation in this ugly practice.

The Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette

No improvement

When ex-National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane and Oliver North, then a National Security Council aide, flew to Iran in May 1986 to exchange military parts covertly for American hostages, more than an arms-for-hostages deal was supposedly at stake.

The other goal — or so President Reagan later claimed — was to increase contacts with so-called Iranian moderates, who presumably would improve relations with the United States and soften Iran's brutal government after the death of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

One of the "moderates" who administration officials had long hoped would produce a diplomatic breakthrough was Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian Parliament, who was endorsed Sunday by departing President Ali Khamenei as his successor.

On Friday, the "moderate" Rafsanjani urged Palestinians to kill Americans and their Western allies to avenge Arabs killed in the 17 months of rioting in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. He recommended that for every Palestinian killed in the uprising, five Americans, Britons or Frenchmen be assassinated.

Rafsanjani has shown, unfortunately, that he's more than ready to carry on in the Khomeini tradition.

Daily News, Los Angeles

Sentence should be light

Oliver L. North really believed in his covert mission of helping the Nicaraguan rebels who were struggling against the Communist Sandinista government which runs the country. We're persuaded that he thought what he was doing was the right thing to do.

But he violated the law. He lied to people in authority. He deceived Congress. Even when persons are loyal and well-meaning, that is no excuse for deceit that violates the law.

The jury in the North trial obviously had a tough time coming to a decision. Jury members deliberated painfully over 12 days before reaching their verdict; not guilty of nine of the charges against him but guilty of shredding documents, of accepting payment for the $13,800 security system installed at his home and of destroying and falsifying records and aiding and abetting the obstruction of Congress. As we recall, North conceded as much during the trial.

While North now faces substantial penalties — at worst, 10 years in prison and fines totaling $750,000 — we suspect his sentence will be much lighter, and in our view it should be.

We're convinced North was not working on his own. Despite the denials of former President Ronald Reagan and President George Bush, we suspect they knew what North was doing. So did CIA Director William Casey, now dead. Certainly that mitigates North's wrongdoing.

The Greenwood (Miss.) Commonwealth

Pardon called for

We... believe that while an appeal from the (Oliver North) verdict might result in reversing the conviction on those three counts, President Bush should spare the taxpayers and Lt. Col. North of any further expensive litigation by promptly issuing a pardon.

This would not be full compensation for the indignity to which he and his family have been subjected during the past year, but at least it would recognize the validity of his assertion that there was no criminal intent on his part and that he believed the orders he received from his superiors were lawful.

Noriega: The perfect villain

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the villain, Manuel Antonio Noriega is perfectly cast. He even sounds like a dictator. His pockmarked cheeks, his shouted speeches, his belligerent manner all mark the strong man of Panama as the obvious bad guy.

Furthermore, by the measures known to American political leaders, many of his own countrymen hate his guts. He also is predictable: everybody said he would steal Sunday's Panamanian elections and the evidence is that he did so.

With traits like that he ought to be an ideal adversary. But he also has been a survivor. "Our policy remains that Noriega must go," White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Tuesday.

But the policy prior to that one involved a secret partnership with the Panamanian general against Nicaragua's Marxist-run government.

That may be one of the reasons that he is a survivor. The United States has been trying to bring him down since 1987, with negotiations, political opposition, threats, economic sanctions and criminal charges, all of them withstood.

As head of the Panamanian Defense Forces, Noriega's power is solidly rooted in the military. Unfortunately for 1989 policymakers, before beginning the effort to get rid of him, the U.S. government tried to use him.

The Reagan administration's Nicaragua fixation led to collaboration with Noriega. The government's statement of facts at the Oliver North trial told of an offer from the Panamanian boss in late August 1986.

"Noriega's representative proposed that, in exchange for a promise from the U.S. government to help clean up Noriega's image and a commitment to lift the U.S. government ban on military sales to the Panamanian defense forces, Noriega would assassinate the Sandinista leadership for the U.S. government.

North said that would be illegal. Noriega's man replied that the Panamanian could help in other ways, as when he had helped blow up a Sandinista arsenal in 1985.

According to the court papers, Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, then the White House national security adviser, said that if Noriega "had assets inside Nicaragua, he could be helpful. The U.S. government could not be involved in assassination, but Panamanian assistance with sabotage would be another story."

In September 1986, North said Noriega wanted to meet him in London. Poindexter and Secretary of State George Shultz both approved that meeting. North returned to report that Noriega "would try to take immediate actions against the Sandinistas."

That cozy relationship lends an ironic flavor to warnings in Congress that if Noriega got away with stealing an election, the Sandinistas would have scant incentive to deliver on their promise of free elections in Nicaragua early next year.

The era of U.S. collaboration with Noriega withstood initial accusations that he was involved in drug trafficking. However, the Reagan administration was trying to get rid of him before federal grand juries in Florida returned drug-dealing indictments against him in early 1988.

Sen. John F. Kerry, D-Mass., calls Panama an example of what the drug trade does to democracy. "What is clear from the Panamanian experience is that drug enforcement took a back seat to perceived foreign policy concerns," he said last week.

Bush and a unanimous 100 senators declared in advance of the Sunday voting that the United States would not tolerate a rigged election and would respond accordingly. They also declared in advance that Noriega's candidate could not win anything but a rigged election.

The question now is what will work. Two years of gradually escalating sanctions have battered the Panamanian economy without dislodging Noriega. The White House says no option, including the use of military force, now is foreclosed.

The preferred option, of course, would be for the Panamanians to get rid of him themselves, rising up to insist on the leadership they are said to have chosen with their burned ballots.

Bush is urging Noriega to step aside because of the verdict of his countrymen. Should it require a heavier push from the outside, the United States needs to have it come from other Latin American capitals, not only from Washington.

Noriega long ago mastered the political art of rallying supporters and even some skeptics by claiming Yankee interference in Panama. Even Nicaragua's Daniel Ortega turned up in Panama City in June 1987, to express support for Noriega against U.S. pressure to get him out.

That was less than a year after Noriega was said to have sent North the secret offer to assassinate the Sandinista leadership.

Telling my best for my country

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

As you may know, the federal government is planning to take the nation's sexual pulse with a far-reaching poll.

Not everybody is for such a thing. Said one citizen when asked about the poll, "It's none of the government's business. I won't say one word about my sex life." The man was identified as a J. Swagart of a Baton Rouge address.

Others, however, said the poll was a good idea since it's been a long time since anybody really tried to find out about American sexual attitudes.

Said a J. Tower, "Hey, I don't have anything else to do, shoot."

I'm for the sex poll, too. Sex has been thoroughly confusing for me for most of my life, and after watching a few installments of "Geraldo," I'm not certain I could put names to all of the intimate things discussed there. Maybe I could bring myself more up-to-date by reading the findings of the poll.

Because of my interest in and support for the poll, I went ahead and phoned Washington and volunteered to be the first interviewee. I didn't get a chance to volunteer for World War II, so I try to do everything I can in the area of patriotism.

"It's Americans like you," said the guy who answered the phone at Sex Poll Headquarters, "who make this a great country."

I thanked the man and insisted we get down to business because I had an appointment with my accountant to see if I could get an extension on my income tax bill — until 1999 when maybe the IRS will have forgotten about me.

"You are obviously male," said the pollster. "Last time I checked," I said. "Pollsters like a bit of levity."

"Age?"
"42."
"Occupation?"
"Typist."

"Tell me, sir," the pollster continued, "how often do you have sex?"

"In a decade?"
"No, let's say a week."
"I once had sex eleven-and-a-half times in a week."

"How could you have one-half of a sexual experience?"
"She was asleep."

"What is your wildest sexual fantasy?"
"To make passionate love to Kim Basinger on the pitcher's mound of Dodger Stadium during the seventh-inning stretch of the seventh game of the World Series, and then to put on a Dodger uniform and hit a home run in the bottom of the ninth to win the game."

"How aroused do you become during this fantasy?" the pollster continued.

"Everytime I hear the Star-Spangled Banner, I begin to drool."
"What is your feeling concerning fellatio?"

"I really don't know enough about opera to comment."
"Were your parents the first ones to tell you about sex?"

"No. It was when I was 8, my boyhood friend and idol, Weyman C. Wannamaker, Jr., a great American, explained it to me."

"How did he begin his explanation?"
"He said, 'You ain't gonna believe this.'"

"Have you ever taken part in group sex?"
"I once barged in on a Tupperware party and had sex with every woman there."

"That's incredible."
"It's also not true, but I read about a guy who said he did it in a letter to Penthouse magazine."

"Would you like to have the same experience?"
"Only if none of the women have mustaches."

"I have just one more question," said the pollster. "Have you ever considered having a sex change operation?"

"Once," I said. "I figured it might help my golf game."
"How?"

"Then," I said to the pollster, "I could hit from the ladies' tees."

Camp closes due to radiation fear

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 67-year-old children's summer camp located two miles from a uranium processing plant closed Sunday because of concerns over radiation poisoning.

The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Cincinnati, which owns Fort Scott Camp, announced last month it would permanently close the retreat near the federal government's Fernald uranium plant.

Residents of the area surrounding the camp have filed a $300 million class-action lawsuit against the former operators of the plant, contending they allowed radioactive dust to contaminate local land, water and air for three decades.

The Energy Department has conceded that figures released in past years measuring the amount of radiation were too low. It is revising them.

The plant processes uranium for use in nuclear weapons-making facilities.

The camp in Crosby Township, north of Cincinnati, opened in 1922 and provided recreation for more than 150,000 campers over the years.

The advisory board had suspended operations at the camp for the summer because of dwindling enrollment, but hoped the enrollment might bounce back the next year.

Soviets may get to see a rodeo

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa (AP) — Cowboys mainly ride the range to sell beer and cigarettes these days, but the Wild West still captures the imagination of foreigners — even in the Soviet Union, a rodeo promoter says.

Stephen Gander, who once staged a rodeo for former President Reagan, hopes to have broncos bucking in a Moscow arena by the end of next year.

The cowboy as profession may have been consigned forever to television advertisements, "but when you leave the borders, the American cowboy is the thing that other people identify with," Gander said. "It's the most recognized symbol worldwide for the United States."

U.S. officials say Gander's rodeo would be one of the largest cultural exchanges between the two countries since Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev signed an exchange initiative in January 1986.

"If he can pull it off, it will be the first of its kind in the Soviet Union," said Molly Raymond, deputy coordinator of the U.S. Information Agency, which helps organize cultural exchanges.

LA teachers go on strike today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Teachers in the nation's second-largest school district went on strike today for the first time in 19 years, threatening to create chaos for nearly 600,000 students in the final weeks of school.

The union, representing 22,000 teachers, is demanding a 21 percent pay hike over two years and more control over classrooms. Although district administrators said schools would remain open with substitute teachers, union President Wayne Johnson called that "a joke, at best."

The first picket lines formed at about 2 a.m. today when about 30 teachers marched in front of district warehouses in an attempt to block Teamsters union drivers from delivering food later this morning.

"For too long teachers and students have been at the end of the pecking line instead of at the front where they should be," said one of the pickets, Leo Hildebrand, a fifth grade teacher at Garvanza Elementary School.

About 500 hastily hired substitutes and another 500 credentialed administrators lined up to teach the district's 594,000 students.

With five weeks remaining before summer vacation, the strike threatened to create havoc at the schools, with high absenteeism, large and unruly classrooms, and students' final grades determined by substitutes.

Israeli army destroys Palestinian houses

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army today blew up or sealed 13 houses of Palestinians suspected of killing alleged collaborators with Israel or attacking soldiers and police in the West Bank.

The move came a day after the Cabinet voted 20-6 to approve a plan for elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip to choose Palestinian representatives for talks with Israel on an interim settlement.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir considers the plan a step toward permanent peace, but many Palestinians criticize it for not linking balloting to the eventual creation of an independent Palestinian state.

In the occupied lands, Palestinians observed a general strike today to protest the displacement of more than 600,000 Palestinians after Israel was founded on May 15, 1948.

In the West Bank village of Beita, residents stoned seven Jewish settlers who were hiking, the army said. The settlers fled to a nearby hill and repeatedly fired in the air before soldiers rescued them. No injuries were reported.

Settler leader Benny Katzover charged Monday's hikers showed too much restraint. "They had five guns. The fact that no Arabs were wounded is a sign of weakness," Katzover said on Israel radio.

Also Monday, new army figures showed 61 Palestinians have been killed by plastic bullets since the ammunition was introduced in August.

Gen. Ehud Barak, the army deputy chief of staff, was quoted by Israel radio as saying the plastic bullets helped reduce the number of Palestinians killed in army gunfire from 204 in the first eight months of the uprising to 151 in the following eight months.

The Associated Press has counted 474 Palestinian deaths, most when Israeli soldiers fired on stone-throwers, since the rebellion began in December 1987. Twenty-one Israelis also have died.

Western nations, including the United States, have condemned house demolitions and sealings as a violation of the right to due process because punishment usually comes before suspects are tried.

An army spokeswoman could not say what legal proceedings were being taken against those whose houses were destroyed or sealed today.

More than 170 houses have been demolished and more than 70 others sealed during the uprising, according to army figures.

Actors attempt to save theater

LONDON (AP) — Shakespearean actors took to a makeshift stage Sunday in a bid to block construction of an office building at the site of a 16th century theater where the Bard himself once performed.

The players entertained a rally that attracted hundreds of supporters to the remains of the Rose Theater on the south bank of the River Thames.

"It's like the Greeks knocking down the Parthenon to make a car park," Sir Peter Hall, former director of the National Theater, said at the rally.

"I do not believe any other country at this moment in the world would do this and it's a terrifying example... of a situation in our country where cash is more important than the soul of the country itself," he said.

On the makeshift stage a few yards from the Rose, members of the Royal Shakespeare Company read from William Shakespeare's "Henry VI," which they now are performing in London.

Shakespeare is thought to have acted in "Henry VI" at the Rose. His early plays were staged there.

Bulldozers were scheduled to begin work on an office building at the site Monday morning. Construction has been postponed for five months since the remains of the theater were found.

Archaeologists pressed ahead with their excavation Sunday, and protesters declared they would conduct an all-night vigil.

Spaniards protest U.S. bases

CADIZ, Spain (AP) — Protesters demanding the dismantling of U.S. garrisons in Spain tried to go over a wall and into a U.S. Spanish naval base but were turned back by police using clubs, rubber bullets and tear gas, police said.

No arrests or injuries were reported in Sunday's confrontation.

The roughly 400 protesters, many with their faces covered, were among about 5,000 people who had marched on the joint-use base, police said. March organizers estimated the crowd at 15,000.

The marchers, who also shouted anti-NATO slogans, walked nearly 10 miles to the base from the town of Puerto de Santa Maria. The Atlantic Coast base is about 50 miles north of the Strait of Gibraltar.

The march was organized by regional pacifist groups.

Spain and the United States signed a new eight-year pact on Dec. 1 that mandates removal of 72 U.S. F-16 fighter bombers from Spanish soil by 1992. But it permits continued U.S. use of three military bases, including Rota.

The new agreement reduces the maximum number of U.S. troops allowed to be stationed in Spain by 36 percent, from 12,545 to 8,078. Though a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Spain remains outside the alliance's military command structure.

British Guardian Angels ready

LONDON (AP) — The first 30 citizen volunteers to form a New York-style Guardian Angels chapter for patrolling London's subways have been awarded their trademark red berets and T-shirts after a three-month training course.

The anti-crime group's American founder, Curtis Sliwa, made the presentation Sunday during a ceremony in a pub in London's East End.

Sliwa, who flew from New York for the graduation, told the group: "We must not play Rambo with criminals. We have to work with the police and the Underground crews to show we are responsible people and not vigilantes."

The eight women and 22 men, ages 16 to 45, were trained in martial arts, first aid and law.

Strikes disrupted service today so they were to start work Tuesday, patrolling the Circle and District lines of the 237-mile subway system.

North jury foreman hid relationship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The forewoman of the jury that convicted White House aide Oliver North is the cousin of a secretary who works for the prosecution, a spokesman for the independent counsel's office said today.

James Wiegart said the matter was brought to the attention of the court and North's attorneys "when we learned of the relationship from the secretary" during North's trial in the Iran-Contra affair.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, who presided in the case, held a hearing on the matter, but the record of that proceeding has been sealed.

Denise Anderson, the forewoman of North's jury, said in an interview in this week's People magazine that she bumped into her cousin, Gertrude Griffin, but did not discuss the case with the woman.

"She knew her job, and I knew mine," Anderson said. "Just because she worked for Keker didn't mean diddlywink."

Anderson was referring to John Keker, who headed the prosecution team in the North case. Wiegart said Griffin works in the independent counsel's office but is not specifically assigned to Keker.

Anderson did not report the meeting or her relationship to Griffin to Gesell, according to People.

Taking load off woman's mind adds a few years to her age

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to Desperate in Skokie' was right on target. She was faced with the dilemma of admitting her true year of birth (1919) to Social Security and to her husband, who thought she was born in 1925. You told her to come clean, starting with the people at Social Security. He — and others who have falsified their year of birth in order to make themselves younger — should remember that honesty is the best policy.

There is little reason for embarrassment or worry about explaining the age discrepancy to Social Security officials; we've heard that story many times. Also, she can rest assured that her husband will NOT find out from us. This is confidential information, protected from disclosure by the Privacy Act. As long as she can establish her true birth date, via birth certificate or other convincing documents, she'll have no problem. But more important, we want her to receive exactly what she is entitled to — no more, no less. — LAWRENCE KEILLOR, DEPT. HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, CHICAGO

DEAR MR KEILLOR: Thanks for a letter that will undoubtedly "put a few years on" a number of people who have taken a few years off to make themselves younger.

DEAR ABBY: You were prematurely apologetic to "California Schoolteacher," who picked on your statement, "All men do not cheat on their wives," saying that what you MEANT to say was that not all men cheat on their wives, but what you DID say was: There aren't any men who cheat on their wives.

Abby, that was an unfair accusation. You said what you MEANT to say, but you also allowed ambiguity. Examples of ambiguous sentences:

They are cooking apples. I dislike his painting. The fish is ready to eat. She decided on the boat. They invited many old men and women.

All the above sentences can be interpreted in more than one way, depending on the intonation and context.

Students, teachers or writers cannot avoid ambiguity unless they understand its nature. Few readers devote much attention to this issue.

— UNAMBIGUOUS AT UCLA.

P.S. You may print this — maybe?

DEAR UNAMBIGUOUS: I did print it. Obviously.

DEAR ABBY: I was very much annoyed to see "Wife of a Slob" compare her husband to a pig. Several days later, you published a letter from "Mother of a Slob." In your answer, you told her to give her son an ultimatum — that he could no longer live "like a pig" under her roof.

Abby, if her son lived like a pig, she'd have no problem. She'd have a son she could be proud of. Pigs are very clean. They do not smell. They do all their "business" in one location. Sure, their table manners aren't all that great, but it's difficult to eat with only a snout — and no hands.

Pigs wallow in the mud to cool off. They can't pant like dogs; they don't have an "air conditioning system" as humans do.

Pigs are very intelligent — smarter and more loyal than some dogs.

If you want to cite an example of a creature that's really filthy, try the sparrow or pigeon. Now they are truly dirty! — LISANNE IN CHICAGO

The scent for men

by ESQUIRE

Men will talk about sports, sex and even feelings — but they turn up their noses at talking about fragrance.

One reason, according to an article in the current issue of Esquire, is they don't know how, despite the fact the men's fragrance business is up 30 percent from last year.

Another is that consensus is hard to come by. One man's aroma is another man's odor. It is a fact of body chemistry that a particular scent smells one way on your skin, another way on somebody else's.

Some men might want to look for the ultimate olfactory phenomenon, or "chemical messenger": that scent that has your name on it. It exists in nature among lower animals. Among insects, when it's time to propagate, one party blows off a scent that the other, after just one whiff, interprets as a categorical imperative. You don't have to be a fragrance manufacturer to appreciate the potential payoff of discovering the human chemical equivalent.

Piano auditions to begin today

Area members of the National Guild of Piano Teachers will have piano students auditioning today through Wednesday at Howard College.

Ruth Holmes, professor of piano at Lubbock Christian College will serve as adjudicator.

The Guild, a division of the American College of Musicians, is one of the largest, non-profit organizations of piano teachers in the United States, according to a news release.

Founded in 1929 by Irl Allison, 46 entrants participated in the first audition at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. Since then, the student/teacher membership has grown to more than 115,000 participating in the Guild goals and awards each year.

Piano students attain goals through non-competitive judging in the Annual Piano Playing Auditions.

Auditions are private sessions, with well-qualified musicians serving as judges. Students are judged on individual merit.

Students who take advantage of auditions become members of the National Fraternity of Student Musicians. They receive pins, report cards and certificates, and can work toward diplomas and scholarships.

The American College of Musicians presented more than $74,000 in awards and scholarships last year, according to the release.

The following members of the Guild will enter students in the auditions.

Mrs. Ann Cheateam, Mrs. Marie Louise Barnes, Mrs. Brenda Bedell, Mrs. Delores Lillard, Mrs. Emilee Beckham, and Mrs. Sallie Wilson, all of Big Spring; Mrs. Carol Maule, Lamesa; and Mrs. Mildred Harris, Garden City.

SEATTLE (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers behind by 29 points in the second quarter of their game, they believe they will win.

And that faith is reason they did it.

In one of the greatest comebacks in NBA history, the Lakers battled the Seattle SuperSonics to a 117-115 victory in the first round of the Western Conference semifinals.

"You can't give up," said Lakers coach Pat Riley. "You have to fight until the very end."

Byron Scott said, "I don't know how much pride we have, but we're going to win."

They advanced to the second round of the playoffs against the Phoenix Suns, which the Lakers won 117-107.

The NBA doesn't have a playoff game on Monday. The Lakers stunned the Sonics with a comeback during the first quarter. During the second quarter, the Lakers led 32-12.

LA makes second sweep

SEATTLE (AP) — Even when the Los Angeles Lakers are behind by 29 points in a playoff game, they believe they're good enough to come back.

And that faith is part of the reason they did it Sunday.

In one of the greatest comebacks in NBA history, the Lakers battled back to beat Seattle 97-95 and complete a 4-0 sweep of the SuperSonics in their Western Conference semifinal playoff series.

"You can't give the Lakers a single breath," the Sonics' Olden Polynice said. "When you have them down, you have to put them out. You can't let them get up off the floor."

"This was the first time we've ever been beaten like that in the first quarter," the Lakers' Byron Scott said. "But we have too much pride deep down inside to quit."

They advanced to the conference finals against the winner of the Phoenix-Golden State series, which the Suns lead 3-1.

Seattle led 32-12 after the first quarter Sunday and extended the margin to 41-12 and 43-14 in the first two minutes of the second period.

The NBA doesn't keep records on playoff comebacks, but the Lakers stunned the crowd of 14,006 in the Seattle Coliseum with a comeback that has few equals. During the regular season, the Lakers blew a 27-point third-quarter lead to lose to Detroit 111-108.

This time it was different for the Sonics, however. Sunday's loss came in the playoffs.

"The Lakers just kept coming back and coming back," Dale Ellis said. "You just try to forget about a game like this."

A key to the Lakers' comeback was a 16-0 run in the final 5:35 of the first half in which Coach Pat Riley's team went from a 54-27 deficit to a 54-43 deficit at halftime.

When Orlando Woolridge made two free throws after being fouled by Derrick McKey with 6:14 to go, the Lakers led 82-81. They wouldn't give up their lead after they finally got it.

James Worthy led the Lakers with 33 points and 12 of them came in the fourth quarter, seven in the final 3:07.

The Lakers knew they had a chance to win because of who they are, team members said.

The final minute was testimony to the Lakers' tenacity. Seattle kept trying to catch the Lakers. The Lakers wouldn't give in.

Xavier McDaniel, who led Seattle with 30 points, had a chance to tie the score for the Sonics with 50 seconds left after being fouled by A.C. Green. McDaniel cut the Lakers lead to 90-89 by making his first free throw, but missed his second.

A wide-open Green hit a 15-footer from the side with 31 seconds to go after a pass from Magic Johnson for a 92-89 Los Angeles lead. Polynice made a basket for the Sonics with 27 seconds left, but Worthy answered with two free throws with 26 seconds remaining.

After Ellis missed a 3-pointer with 14 seconds remaining, Green converted one of two free throws with nine seconds left for a 95-91 lead.

McDaniel scored on a 15-footer with three seconds left, but Green made two free throws with two seconds to go for the Lakers' final points. McDaniel made a basket at the final buzzer.

Flames' little man scores giant goal

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Theoren Fleury, the little man nobody wanted, got the gigantic goal that Calgary needed.

The rookie center, 5-foot-5 without skates but a big scorer with them, broke a 2-2 tie midway through the second period and the Flames, sparked by defenseman Al MacInnis' two goals, beat the Montreal Canadiens 3-2 in the opener of the Stanley Cup finals Sunday night.

CALGARY — Calgary Flames' Theoren Fleury goes behind the net after scoring the winning goal against Montreal Canadiens' Patrick Roy Sunday.

Fleury said he slipped behind the defense when the Canadiens headed for 197-pound defenseman Jamie Macoun, who had the puck at the Montreal blue line.

Macoun, rushing up ice, passed to Fleury in the left circle. Fleury, on the move, fired it between the legs of Patrick Roy, the NHL's leading goalie in the regular season and playoffs.

Fleury's goal gave the Flames their 10th victory in their last 11 games. Calgary was 45-0-2 in the regular season and is 10-1 in the Richer opened the scoring with a power-play goal at 2:43. He took a pass from Shayne Corson, went around MacInnis in the left circle and shot a 20-footer that banked off the post to the right of goalie Mike Vernon for his sixth playoff goal.

But 18 seconds after Robinson was penalized for hooking, MacInnis atoned for his error with the first power-play goal against the Canadiens in nine games.

Twins pluck Blue Jays

By The Associated Press
It was double or nothing for the Minnesota Twins in their weekend sweep of the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Twins had 12 doubles, including six by Kirby Puckett, in beating the Blue Jays on Saturday and Sunday in the Metrodome.

On Sunday, Puckett tied a major-league record for doubles in consecutive games and Frank Viola tied a career high with 11 strikeouts as the Twins trounced season. The knuckleballer struck out four and walked one.

Royals 3, Rangers 2
Kurt Stillwell's single with none out in the 10th inning scored Willie Wilson to lift Kansas City past slumping Texas.

It was the Royals' eighth victory in their last nine home games, while the Rangers have lost eight of their last 10 games and finished their nine-game road trip 2-7.

Wilson led off with a walk against Cecilio Guante, 2-2, and stole second. Jeff Russell relieved and Stillwell singled to shallow center. Catcher Geno Petralli took center fielder Cecil Espy's throw but missed the tag on a Wilson.

White Sox 8, Orioles 5
Ron Kittle went 4-for-5, including a two-run homer, and Ivan Calderon and Fred Marique added two-run homers, leading Chicago past Baltimore at Memorial Stadium.

Each of the Chicago's season-high three homers came with the White Sox trailing by a run as they won for the fourth time in five games on their current road trip.

Angels 5, Yankees 0
Chuck Finley and Greg Minton combined on an eight-hitter for California's eighth shutout of the season as the Angels beat New York at Anaheim.

In 1988, the Angels had nine shutouts for the entire season and ranked next to last in the AL in earned run average.

Brewers 2, Athletics 1
Glenn Braggs homered in the second inning and broke a tie in the ninth with a run-scoring single as visiting Milwaukee edged Oakland to snap a four-game losing streak.

Chuck Crim, 2-2, got the victory in relief and Dan Plesac earned his sixth save.

Mariners 4, Red Sox 3

Ellis Burks tied the score 3-3 in the sixth inning with a home run.

"It was a lot better for the team than for me," Hershiser said. "I like to see that attitude change and see some smiling faces in the

"We thought we'd go out and change it around and try to get some luck a little bit," Lasorda said. "We couldn't keep the pace we were going."

Los Angeles had not scored in a week and had not homered in 66 innings before Jeff Hamilton hit his first home run of the season in the second inning for a 1-0 lead. The Hershiser, 5-3, gave up a third-inning single to Ricky Jordan and an eighth-inning double to Steve Jeltz. He struck out seven and walked four as he pitched his second shutout and complete game this season. It was the 21st shutout of his career.

Stanton hurdler fourth

AUSTIN (AP) — In his first trip to the state track meet, Stanton senior hurdler Anthony Inman just missed out on bringing back a medal.

Inman, competing in the Class AA 110 meter high hurdles and 300 meter intermediate hurdles, finished fourth in both events. Inman ran a 15.0 in the 110 highs. The event was won by Lenoard Leviton of Electra who ran a 14.4. Inman ran a 38.8 in the 300 intermediates. Carlos Hayward of Karnack won in 37.7.

Despite a bad handoff, Dallas South Oak Cliff's 400-meter relay team won its specialty to zip away from Galveston Ball and grab the UIL State Track and Field Championships crown.

Running just hours after a heavy rain and hailstorm Saturday, South Oak Cliff made the difference in the team title with a 40.8 relay finish.

South Oak Cliff has the fastest time in the nation this year in the event at 40.18.

South Oak Cliff retained its crown with 42 points to 32 for Ball.

Longview was a surprise winner in the evening's final event, the 1600-meter relay, and Ball finished second ahead of South Oak Cliff's third place.

The Golden Bears' 400-meter had to overcome a bad handoff from Cleve Phillips to Marlin Cannon for the victory.

Cannon took off too fast and had to turn around to get the baton.

"It was my fault," Cannon said. "I don't know why I took off too fast. I had to slow down to get the baton. I don't feel good about that."

Cannon, who has the fastest time in the nation this year at 45.9 in the 400 meters, won the event in 46.7.

The University Interscholastic League event was delayed 80 minutes between afternoon and night sessions by the weather.

Before the rains came, Monday scored 94 points to run away with the girls' Class A title and Rotan held off Wortham for the boys' A title.

Bonham won the 3A girl's crown, that included setting a record in the 800-meter relay with a time of 1:40.2. The old record, set by Marlin in 1985,

Galveston Ball, which had the potential to score 68 points in the meet, got no points from the 400-meter relay because lead runner Lamont Washington dropped the baton at the start of the race.

Houston Sterling won the girls' 5A title over runner up Dallas Carter by a 90-74 point margin.

Sterling won the 1600-meter relay and placed second in the 400 and 800 relays.

Refugio rallied with a second place finish in the 1600-meter relay to win the girls' 2A title.

Corrigan-Camden outdistanced Refugio to win the boys' 2A crown with 61 points to 38 for runnerup Refugio.

Greenville's Henry Neal, the favorite in the 5A 100 and 200 meters, won a photo-finish 100 meters in 10.3 but was scratched from the 200 meters on a false start.

Stevanie Wadsworth of Hurst Bell set a state record in the girls' 5A shot put with a toss of 48-3.

She broke the old record of 47-10 set by Wanda Gardner of DeSoto in 1985.

Mindy Myers highlighted Monday's second straight win of a Class A girls crown, scoring points in four events. Myers, a junior, placed third in the 1600-meters run and ran the anchor leg on the Muguettes' 1600-meter relay team, charging into the lead at the final turn.

Munday won the 400-, 800- and 1600-meter relays.

Atlanta set a Class 3A record in the 1600-meter relay with a clocking of 3:15.7, breaking the old mark of 3:15.7 by McGregor in 1977 and Rod Rowe won the 400 meters.

Rotan got victories in the 100 and 200 meters from Joe Huitt to win the Class A boy's title with 50 points to 35 for second place Wortham.

Bonham won the girl's Class 3A title with victories in the 400- and 800-meter relays and Michelle Johnson's victory in the 100 meters.

Goldthwaite's Steven Bridges pole vaulted 17-0 1/2 to break the state record of 16-9 1/2 set by his friend, Jason Lavender of Wichita Falls in 1988.

Bridges also broke the Class 2A record of 16-9 by Kyle Henderson of Karnes City.

Rarick nets first win in two years

LINCROFT, N.J. (AP) — Cindy Rarick curled in a 20-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole Sunday to take control and capture the $275,000 Chrysler-Plymouth Classic by two strokes for her first LPGA victory in two years.

Laura Davies of England, who chased Rarick all afternoon along with Sherri, Steinhauer, finished second, one shot ahead of defending champion Nancy Lopez and Alice Ritzman.

LPGA

Rarick, who had a share of the lead in all three rounds, had a final-round 1-under-par 72 and finished the 54-hole event on the Bamm Hollow Country Club in 5-under 214.

Heading into the final round, Rarick was tied with Davies and Steinhauer. Four other players, including Lopez, were within two shots of first place.

However, Rarick quickly moved into the lead by sinking a three-foot birdie putt on the first hole. When the 29-year-old sank a 20-footer on the sixth hole, she suddenly had a three-shot advantage.

But it didn't last long, as Rarick bogeyed the seventh hole by missing a three-foot putt and the eighth by missing the green.

Davies, the long-hitting 1987 U.S. Women's Open champion, moved into a share of the lead at 4-under by sinking an eight-foot birdie putt on the 10th hole. But she quickly dropped back with a three-putt bogey from 20 feet on the 11th hole.

Rarick never lost the lead after that. But Davies and Steinhauer, who bogeyed the last two holes to finish at 1-under, kept the pressure on.

Steinhauer, a non-winner in four years on the LPGA Tour, sank a 5-foot putt to get to 3-under at the 13th hole. Davies, who also had a three-putt bogey at No. 13, tapped in a 12-incher at the par-3 15th to get to 3-under.

But Rarick took command on the 16th hole.

She appeared to be in trouble after driving into the left rough. With a big tree in front of the green and the pin set behind it, it did not appear she could get to the green.

Pelluer wants trade

DALLAS (AP) — Free agent quarterback Steve Pelluer, a five-year NFL veteran who started parts of three seasons for the Dallas Cowboys, asked to be traded Sunday.

Pelluer's agent, Joe Courrege, said at an evening news conference that negotiations with the Cowboys failed to produce an acceptable deal. Pelluer refused a one-year offer that matched his salary last year, $302,000. He also refused a five-year offer.

"The five-year offer contained language that was unacceptable," Courrege said. "It was based on playing time. If he didn't get it, they would take money away."

The announcement came a day before a "voluntary" full squad mini-camp that Pelluer had been warned to attend by new Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson or end up behind three other quarterbacks.

"I have to do what's best for Steve Pelluer. This is what's best for me," Pelluer said.

"I can accept the fact that they have three quality quarterbacks there already ... and I wish them all the success in the world."

Johnson said in a statement released by the Cowboys that the team was willing to "listen to offers from other teams, but we will not trade him if it is not in the best interest of the team."

"We would like to see Steve remain with the Cowboys but apparently he is not satisfied with our contract offer, which we think is fair. I am confident our quarterback situation is in good hands with the three other quarterbacks we have," Johnson said in a statement.

The 6-foot-4, 208-pound Pelluer shared starting duties with Kevin Sweeney last season, when the Cowboys finished an NFL-worst 3-13. Pelluer also shared quarterbacking duties with Danny White. Sweeney has since signed a free agent contract with the San Francisco 49ers.

Pelluer missed a three-day mini-camp recently because he didn't have a contract, and the Cowboys refused to offer him a waiver that would allow him to play without fear of non-covered injury.

Pelluer said he won't attend the mini-camp that begins Monday and said he hoped the Cowboys would trade him as quickly as possible.

The camp begins with an hour-long classroom session followed by two hours of practice.

Other quarterbacks include White, Scott Secules, a second-year player who didn't take a snap last year, and 1989 No. 1 draft pick Troy Aikman.

Aikman, out of UCLA, signed a six-year, $11.2 million contract on April 20, making him the highest-paid rookie in NFL history and the third-highest paid player in the league.

"I was willing to help bring Troy along, do whatever I could to teach him," Pelluer said.

The Cowboys offered a deal identical to last year's contract. "And they said, 'Take it or leave it.' So, basically, I'm leaving," Pelluer said.

Pelluer said that his agent made no counter offer to the Cowboys.

Tway overcomes Fuzzy

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — After three years and a lot of frustration, Bob Tway rediscovered what it was like to win a golf tournament.

Tway, winless since holing a dramatic sand shot on the final hole of the 1986 PGA Championship, birdied the final two holes to pass Fuzzy Zoeller and win the Memorial Tournament by two strokes Sunday.

"It's been three years since I'd won and I'd kind of forgot what it felt like," said Tway, who shot a 3-under-par 69 to finish at 11-under-par 277 at Muirfield Village Golf Club. "I've been hounded by questions of what's wrong with your game and why haven't you won. And I couldn't answer any of them."

He finally came up with the answer by nearly holing two iron shots on the back side and by rolling in a long putt on the closing hole.

Tway started the final round a shot back of Zoeller after rounds of 71, 69 and 68 on the 7,104-yard, par-72 course designed by Jack Nicklaus.

Bogeys on two of the first three holes left him four shots back of Zoeller, who led for most of the tournament's four rounds.

But Tway pulled ever with a 35-foot putt on the par-4 13th hole. He took the lead by birdieing the 15th hole with a 9-iron that stopped six inches from the cup.

Kryskowiak's damaged left knee never felt worse.

Their conditions summed up the feelings of their respective teams, the Detroit Pistons and Milwaukee series with a 110-90 romp that put them up 3-0.

Isiah will be back tonight as the Pistons go for a clean sweep.

Kryskowiak, however, will be in the hospital, recovering from knee surgery to repair damaged ligaments. He played only 25 seconds Sunday before he went crashing to the floor on a drive and had to leave the court on a stretcher.

Now Kryskowiak must rebound from an injury that not only ended his season prematurely, but threatens his career. The Bucks must find a way to make up for his absence, something they couldn't do Sunday.

Thomas had 15 points in the third quarter when the Pistons took command of the game. He made 11 of 19 field-goal attempts in the game.

Laimbeer, known as one of the NBA's roughest players, was in the middle again Sunday when Kryskowiak went past him for a dunk.

When Kryskowiak went down in a heap, Milwaukee coach Del Harris came racing onto the floor and accused Laimbeer of shoving Kryskowiak. TV replays showed no shove.

The Bucks are hurting, but Harris insists they still have a chance, even though

Braves 5, Pirates 2

John Smoltz, 6-2, allowed four hits in seven innings, struck out five and walked six to win for the fifth time in six decisions. Atlanta won for the eighth time in 10 games as Joe Boever pitched the ninth for his fifth save.

Doug Drabek, 1-5, lost his fifth straight start. Pittsburgh has scored only seven runs in those five starts.

Mets 2, Padres 1

Luis Salazar's error on Mark Carreon's grounder to shortstop with one out and the bases loaded in the ninth allowed Len Dykstra to score the winning run.

Roger McDowell, 1-1, pitched a two-hit ninth.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Patrick Swayze says he is "attracted to the dark side of things," and wants his acting to convey the "wild man" in him.

"It's that instinctual, innate part of you, your power, that, if used constructively, can be an incredibly productive force. But off-kilter the least bit, it'll kill you," Swayze said in an interview in the May 29 US magazine.

"I'm real intrigued by that edge. It can create an unpredictable, dangerous performance."

In his latest film "Road House," which opens this weekend, Swayze has a sexy love scene with co-star Kelly Lynch. He said he sought advice from his wife, actress Lisa Niemi, on how to do the scene.

"I pictured Lisa in my mind," Swayze said. "I'm pretty much in love with her. She's still the most beautiful woman I've ever seen."

NEW YORK (AP) — Comic actor Gene Wilder, back on the big screen after a three-year break to help wife, Gilda Radner, overcome ovarian cancer, says the struggle has made him appreciate life much more.

"Life is very short," he said. "You hear it, you know to say it. Everyone says, 'I know, I know, but... if they knew they'd stop doing what's unimportant and do what is important. There's no time for anything else. And it's too sad to learn it when it's too late." Wilder is busy promoting his new movie, "See No Evil, Hear No Evil."

NEW YORK (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says she's determined to fight for her beliefs, even if some people find her toughness unladylike. "I'm driven to be confrontational," she said in an interview in June's Vanity Fair. "I have had to learn to be combative to get it across. Of course, when you're a woman and you're combative they say you're an iron lady."

"DAD JUST SWATTED A BLUEBERRY!"

Elbow project helps lives of BSSH clients

By JEAN WARREN

The fifth grade of Elbow Elementary School accepted the challenge when Scholastic News, an elementary school paper, invited its readers to enter a "good citizen contest designed to motivate students to participate in projects that help others and teach them the basic concepts of citizenship."

Students chose the Medical Unit of Big Spring State Hospital as their project because many clients in the units have disabilities that prevent them from being outside the unit on a regular basis; they set goals for activities that would bring enjoyment to the clients.

Under the direction of fifth-grade teacher and project coordinator Bo Fryar, students have carried out a variety of activities, including: A collage of students' pictures and letters; Halloween cards; nut and candy cups; valentines; Easter baskets; and candy filled umbrellas.

For Thanksgiving, students made brownies in class for the clients, along with original drawings depicting Thanksgiving traditions. The student group and Mrs. Fryar went to the Tollet All-Faith Chapel in December to present a Christmas musical program.

As a culmination of their year of caring and interest, students will present a program and have a "picnic" on May 26 for the Medical Unit clients. At that time, they will present a VCR to the Medical Unit.

For their participation in the project, fifth-graders were presented an award banner by Scholastic News. According to Mrs. Fryar, "We hope to make the 'Elbow Kids Care' project a continuing program for next year. It has been such a good experience for the children; they have learned so much."

The music department of Sands School will present a spring concert at 7 p.m. May 18 in the school auditorium. High school and junior high choirs will present "Friends Forever," and elementary students will present "Kids Are Music."

The Big Spring High School choirs will present a spring concert at 8 p.m. May 16 in the BSHS auditorium. Featured will be all solos and ensembles that qualified for the state contest to be held in Austin in June.

Selections by Meistersingers, Minnesingers and Rhapsody will be presented. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Masquerade was the theme of the banquet and dance for BSHS choral students Saturday night in the East Room of Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Honored by membership in Who's Who in Music were Christy Alexander, Daniel Andrews and Stacey Rogers. The same students, along with Donna Reitzer, received certificates of membership in the National Choral Hall of Fame. Scholarships for the summer All-State Choir Camp at Texas Tech were awarded to Eric Dorton and Stacey Rogers.

Choir director Kristi Jasek also presented an award to the outstanding choir member from each class: Freshman, tie between Robin Cave and Bradley Heckler; Sophomore, Traci Clark; Junior, Stacey Rogers; Senior, tie between Christy Alexander and Daniel Andrews.

Outstanding Meistersinger was Alexander and the outstanding Minnesinger, Marci Weaver. Jasek also recognized the graduating seniors, honor choir students, choir lettermen for the next year and students with perfect attendance records in choir.

Members of the newly organized Runnels Junior High Dance Team have been selected. These girls will assist with and perform at pep rallies. They also will perform at half-time of home games.

Azure Miller and Liz Anzaldua are captains of the team that includes: Amy Alexander, Kim Middleton, Jaime Parker, Brandi Borchardt, Misti Cauble, Michelle Zapata, Debbie Cunningham and Amy Garcia.

Other members are Corina Ramos, Amy Cook, Peggy DeAnda, Diane Thomas, Brandy Castillo, Christi Torres, Cara Stathem, Amy Dominguez, Amy Earnst and Christy Miller. Their sponsor is Teresa Harrell.

Members of College Heights PTA honored faculty members with a luncheon May 9. PTA parents substituted in classrooms while teachers enjoyed the luncheon, which featured a cake decorated with names of all faculty members.

Each teacher was presented a carnation. Mrs. Terri Gordon, president of the PTA group, coordinated the activities for Teacher Appreciation Week.

First-graders in Mrs. Davis' class at Washington Elementary made the costumes and scenery for two plays they presented to their parents on May 5. The plays were entitled "Little Red Hen," and "Little Red Riding Hood, Never Talk to Strangers."

A SMILE — During a language class at St. Mary's Episcopal School, students learned that the subjects of sentences are always nouns or pronouns. When the teacher asked what kind of words are predicates, one student eagerly responded, "Verbs and proverbs!"
