Local weather

Forecast for the Big Spring area: Partly cloudy through Friday with a chance of mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Some thunderstorms may be severe this evening with very heavy rain in the Panhandle and South Plains.

On the side:

Red Cross chairman

The former treasurer of the Howard-Glasscock Red Cross chapter has been named chairman of that organization.

Bob Mehan, treasurer of the group for about 2 1/2 years, and vice president for academic instruction at Howard College was elected to the post Wednesday. He replaces Dr. John Farquhar, had served as chairman for the last three years.

New members named to the Red Cross Board included Rita Frambo, Judy Rickey, Tim Wittington, Steve Ray, John Coffee, Ken Dunwoody, Nancy Brownfield and Aurora Rodriguez.

"We've got a whole bunch of new board members that came in and are really helping," said Marianne Brown, director for the Howard-Glasscock Red Cross.

"The people are very enthusiastic about it... and are not letting me carry the load by myself. I really think we are going to make it."

Financial problems had plagued the local Red Cross chapter and it faced the possibility of having to close recently. Wednesday the group approved a new budget that it will present in July to the United Way.

Graduations tonight

Big Spring and two other area high schools will hold graduation exercises tonight.

BSHS will hold commencement for the class of 1989 at 8 p.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the campus of Howard College. Featured speaker will be U.S. Congressman Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

Valedictorian for BSHS is Cheryl Holt, while Paul Chavez is class salutatorian.

Sands High School will graduate the class of '89 at 8 p.m. tonight in the high school auditorium in Ackerly. Adam Chavera is SHS' valedictorian while Deanna Herm is the salutatorian.

Borden County High School's commencement will be at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium in Gall. Kate Phinizy and Randall Hollis will lead the graduates as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively.

The final area high school graduation ceremony will be Friday, when Forsan High School holds its commencement at 8 p.m. in the auditorium there.

Still in custody

A 34-year-old local woman remains in custody at a local hospital with charges pending in connection with the shooting death of her husband.

Lonnie Joe Brown, 34, was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace China Long at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, victim of a .22 rifle gunshot wound to the head. He was found in bed in his trailer home on Matt Loop off of Jeffrey Road in the Tubbs Addition, Long said.

Brown's wife, whose name Standard declined to disclose, remains at Big Spring State Hospital under evaluation.

No motive in the shooting has been established; Long said she has ordered an autopsy.

One-car rollover

A Big Spring woman is in stable condition in a local hospital today after an accident Wednesday evening when her car went out of control — striking a mail box, a large highway sign and then rolling once and resting on its top.

Cynthia Pennington, 30, was transported by ambulance Wednesday to Scenic Mountain Medical with an undisclosed injury.

Pennington, Rt. 2 Box 110A, was driving her 1981 tan Ford LTD east on Interstate 20 when she lost control of her vehicle, according to a Texas Highway Patrol report. The car swerved off the road, struck a mail box, crossed the road to the other side and struck the highway sign and then continued on before rolling once and resting on its' top, the report said.

Cotton losses may cost $65 million

By RUTH COCHRAN

Clear, sunny skies may be a boon to the swimming pool industry, but they're costing the West Texas economy millions of dollars.

Cloudless days over the winter and the spring have left rainfall levels far below the norm and cotton farmers lining up for federal crop insurance disaster programs. Officials say the weather could cost the local economy $65 million.

Don Richardson, Howard County agricultural extension agent, said extremely dry weather has forced cotton farmers to delay planting their crops.

"Right now we're about three weeks behind where we ought to be in terms of planting our crop," he said. "Many farmers are going ahead and 'dry planting,' or planting without the benefit of a heavy rain.

Farmers must get their cotton crop in the ground by June 10, he said, to comply with federal crop disaster insurance programs.

"They have to at least try to get a crop in," Richardson said. "If they plant and the crops don't come up, they're eligible to receive their disaster insurance premiums."

Howard County has been hit especially hard, Richardson said, with only a few stands of cotton up in the Vealmore area and some irrigated patches in Lomax.

"Ninety percent of the county is still too dry to plant a crop on," Richardson said.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Howard County has received 3.88 inches of rain this year, well below the norm of 6.69. During May, the county got 1.22 inches of moisture, less than the yearly average of 2.86 inches.

The dry spring, coupled with a dry winter, has forced a waiting game with June 10 — the target date for most farmers.

"If there would come a rain today or tomorrow — I'm talking like a three-inch rain over the entire county — they could still plant, but yes, it's getting late," Richardson said of farmers' chances for making a cotton crop.

The loss of this year's crop would be a blow not only to farmers but also to the local economy. Richardson said each dollar generated by the cotton crop is estimated to turn over three times within the county. With a normal crop of 90,000 bales at $250 per bale, the county faces a loss of $65 million dollars, he said.

The crop loss would have an effect on the entire agricultural industry.

"This is a loss to the whole economy," Richardson said. "Fertilizer and fuel sales will be down, ● COTTON page 3-A

The Wright decision

WASHINGTON — House Democrats are moving to install a new leader swiftly in hopes of avoiding long-term political damage from the ethics controversy that culminated in Speaker Jim Wright's decision to resign and end "this season of bad will."

No sooner had Wright announced his intentions in a forceful speech from the well of the House on Wednesday than Majority Leader Tom Foley said he hoped to "help bring a spirit of mutual respect and reconciliation back to the Congress."

"I think I'm seeing on both sides of the aisle a wish to return to national affairs," said Foley, who is expected to be named speaker at a Democratic caucus next Tuesday.

But while President Bush issued a statement praising Wright's "effectiveness and dedication," congressional Republicans weren't ready to let go of the ethics issue so fast.

Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, chairman of the GOP campaign committee, said Wright believed he had done no wrong. But, he added, the speaker behaved out of a "thought pattern" of "self interest rather than the public interest."

Wright's resignation speech was filled with detailed denials of the House ethics committee charges against him and punctuated with a plea to Democrats not to try and exact revenge on Republicans for his political demise.

"All of us in both parties must resolve to bring this period of mindless cannibalism to an end," said the man who initially laughed off the complaint that triggered the ethics committee investigation. "There's been ● WRIGHT page 3-A

60 seniors graduate from CHS

COAHOMA — Under skies that threatened but never delivered rain, about 60 Coahoma High School seniors received their diplomas in graduation exercises here Wednesday night.

The ceremony included a presentation from State Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring and an address from longtime Coahoma teacher Loma Jean Wynn.

Fraser presented a copy of House Resolution 999 and a Texas flag that had flown over the Capitol to Senior Class President Ronnie Ruiz, who accepted the gifts on behalf of the graduates.

The resolution, passed by House voice vote Monday, congratulated the seniors for their accomplishment. The flag, Fraser said, flew over the Capitol Tuesday.

Coahoma school superintendent Gary Rotan then recognized scholarship winners from the class of 1989. He said that 25 seniors — 40 percent of the class — had received scholarship offers.

The top 10 graduates also were honored.

In her address, salutatorian Andrea Ray thanked her teachers, grandmother and parents for the help they had given her, and also said that what the future holds is up to the graduates.

"Graduation has been described as the end of the road," she said. "But I look at it as a ramp; like a service road leading onto a highway... What we make of life is up to us. We can either succeed or fail. We'll probably do some of both. But never let them say we never tried."

Valedictorian Rochelle Rotan, who graduated with a 95.760 grade average, also thanked her parents and teachers, and urged the seniors — as in Robert Frost's poem, "The Road Not Taken" — to be unafraid to try new things in life.

Big Spring speller advances to finals

By MARIO CRISTALDI
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Carvell Nguyen of Big Spring survived another round of the National Spelling Bee this morning, swallowing hard and spelling a word he apparently never heard before.

The 13-year-old gave a big sigh of relief after spelling "bolus," a word defined as a large pill or a soft mass of chewed food.

On Wednesday, Carvell made it through the first three rounds of the 62nd annual bee, but only after getting a good scare.

The Runnels Junior High School eighth-grader correctly spelled "sumptuous," "conscience" and "oryzivorous" to advance to the final day of the spelldown today.

But he almost confused conscience with another word and asked to hear it pronounced three more times. To buy more even time, he also asked its definition, how it is used in a sentence, if it is plural or singular, and what language it comes from.

"Ohhhh... conscience!" he said finally, before quickly spelling the word.

"I couldn't hear what he said at first, and I thought it was a different word," Nguyen said. "I thought I was going to miss it, so I kept stalling for time... When he kept repeating it, I finally figured it out."

From espionage to abbatial, the 9- to 15-year-old word whizzes were asked to spell 601 words over a nine-hour period during the grueling first day of competition Wednesday. After three rounds, 151 of the 222 original spellers remained.

"If you have any opponent here, it occurs only in Webster," Dr. Alex J. Cameron, the official pronouncer for the bee, told the spellers just before the bee began. ● SPELLER page 3-A

Cult suspect charged

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — The only suspect in U.S. custody linked to cult slayings near Matamoros, Mexico, has been named in a new, five-count federal indictment, charged with drug and weapons offenses.

Serafin Hernandez Rivera, 45, of Brownsville, remains jailed without bond on the new charges outlined in a complaint filed last week by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

He is not a suspect in the murders, officials said. The latest charges replace an indictment filed in April against Hernandez and 10 others, alleging they helped smuggle marijuana through a ranch near Matamoros. Police in April found 13 bodies buried at the ranch, some of whom allegedly were victims of ritual sacrifices designed to bring magical protection to a drug ring.

Street vendors nixed

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Juarez's downtown renovation is almost complete with the virtual elimination of a maze of market stalls just south of the cathedral, officials say.

About dawn on Tuesday, three dozen commerce inspectors swept through the 18-square-block area. By noon, they had dismantled about 50 sidewalk stalls and had forced about 250 other vendors to move.

The sweep marked the beginning of the last phase of the renovation program known as Nuestro Centro — Our Downtown. In about a month, officials said, downtown will be free of vendors, the streets should be patched and well-lit, traffic signs and medians should be freshly painted and the police presence should be strengthened.

In addition to making the streets cleaner and safer, the revitalization program is putting some vendors out of work.

Judge decries deaths

AUSTIN (AP) — The clubbing and subsequent fire deaths of three children, apparently at the hands of their father who also died, was "one of the roughest things" a judge investigating the deaths says he's ever seen.

"I've seen a lot ... but this tops all of them," said Williamson County Justice of the Peace Jimmy Bitz, who conducted an inquest into the deaths of Illian Dunlop, 9, Ivan Dunlop, 7, and Sacha Lucia Dunlop, 5, and their father, John Donald Dunlop, 40.

Bitz said Wednesday he ruled the children's deaths homicides and their father's death a suicide.

Autopsies on the children revealed that the boys were knocked unconscious with a hammer before a fire was set with gasoline in their bedroom about 5:30 a.m. Monday, Bitz said.

Because of burns to the girl's body, head injuries could not be determined, but investigators think she too was struck, Bitz said.

Henry Cisneros leaves public life quietly

SAN ANTONIO — Outgoing San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros spends part of his last day on the job cutting a birthday cake to celebrate Sea World of Texas' first anniversary. Cisneros is leaving after eight years in office.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Bucking some political observers' predictions of immediate aspirations to higher office, Mayor Henry Cisneros leaves City Hall today and quietly enters private life.

The 41-year-old Cisneros served 14 years in the public sector, six as a city council member and the last eight as mayor of a city that grew to the country's ninth largest.

Cisneros was a driving force in the community whose influence was felt statewide and nationwide, observers said.

"I think that if I had drafted a plan for how I wanted these eight years to go, it would not have been as ambitious," Cisneros recently told the San Antonio Express-News.

"I could not have predicted the levels of success that have materialized for San Antonio," he said. "It's been better and more exhilarating than I expected."

Returning to office is Lila Cockrell, who preceded Cisneros as mayor from 1975-81. She returns after winning election over six other candidates last month.

One of the country's top Hispanic leaders, Cisneros wooed businesses such as Sea World and the future Opryland USA to the city and bridged gaps between feuding Hispanics and Anglos.

"One way or another, he'll be back," U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said. "And we'll be the better for it." Cisneros' latest victory was voter approval in January of a public transportation tax to fund construction of the Alamodome stadium, which he strongly supported.

But Cisneros declined to seek a fifth term after being besieged by personal problems, including a troubled marriage and the health of his son. He plans to join an asset management firm in San Antonio.

"I don't expect to try to remain a force in city government or city politics," Cisneros said. "I don't think you can be halfway in or halfway out. You're either in or you're out, and I'm going on to other things."

The city's general expenditures during his term grew from $184 million in 1981 to $257 million last year.

Officials said the number of tourists increased from 8.5 million in 1980 to 10.5 million last year, and tourism revenues grew from $654 million in 1980 to a projected $1.5 billion this year.

The Texas Employment Commission said jobs in San Antonio increased from 781,200 in 1980 to more than 1 million in 1988.

"I suppose the thing that I'm proud of is having worked with San Antonians to raise our sense of the city's role and to overcome the kind of inward-looking tendencies," said Cisneros.

The only large Texas city that grew during the last five years was San Antonio, said Baylor University economist Ray Perryman.

"He bridged" the gap between ethnic groups in a very articulate and charismatic way," City Councilman Weir Labatt said. "I haven't always agreed with Henry but he will go down in history as a mayor that was pro-active and imaginative, especially for the many things he pushed through the council that would not have gotten through the council were it not for his driving force."

Ms. Cockrell, 67, must lead San Antonio through one of its most critical periods, according to observers, who say she is charged with carrying out economic development and public-private partnership programs initiated by Cisneros.

"I want to see our city continue to move ahead with an expanded economic base, a base that will be sufficient to carry out our future needs and provide services to our citizens," said Ms. Cockrell.

"Of those services that are needed, public protection is one of the highest on my list."

Cisneros' political future remains uncertain. After voters approved the transportation tax to fund the Alamodome, he briefly reconsidered a re-election bid but then decided to stay out of the race.

Fort Worth officials fear for future

FORT WORTH (AP) — Residents of the city Jim Wright represented for 34 years expressed little surprise that he resigned as House speaker, but they expressed sorrow and fear about the loss of political clout they will suffer.

"There's no question this is a tremendous loss for the community. Anybody who knows anything of the American political process knows the loss of the speakership is a major loss for this area," Mayor Bob Bolen, whose community has long counted Wright as a major asset in attracting defense jobs, said Wednesday.

As pressure against Wright grew this week, Texas politicians began talking about a number of potential replacements. Most frequently mentioned is state Sen. Hugh Farmer, D-Fort Worth.

But it won't be easy to rebuild the political power the region gained from Wright's position, second in line to the presidency behind the vice president, officials said.

"It's the only time I'll ever see it in my lifetime," Bolen said. "Most cities in America have never seen it. Most cities have never had the opportunity."

People gathered around the televisions in an electronics shop at a shopping mall to watch Wright's speech.

"I think it's horrible," said Lynn Bratcher. "He's the only one I could call on for help when I needed help. When I worked at a bank for the old people. He's the only one that has ever really done anything for anyone for Texas."

"I think it's a shame and disgrace that the news media has challenged his integrity." Staffers at Wright's local office said they listened to his resignation speech, but refused to talk about it.

FORT WORTH — Larry Shannon, the district director for House Speaker Jim Wright's office in Fort Worth, holds his eyes while talking on the telephone Wednesday afternoon.

"All I can say is, the speaker has spoken, and he speaks for us," said Larry Shannon, district director of the office, who with the backing of two security guards, turned reporters away from Wright's door. Beyond it, his staff appeared to be carrying on business as usual.

At another federal office, workers turned on the radio and cheered as Wright defended himself in an hour-long speech to Congress. One woman yelled "Touche!" as Wright dismissed the House ethics committee's charges he violated congressional rules 69 times.

But minutes later they fell silent as Wright said, "I give you back this job ..." promising to give up the speaker's post and then his seat sometime in June.

"Wrong," one woman said, and the workers turned back to their work. They declined to give their names.

At Bailey's Bar-B-Q across the street from the federal offices, talk was about daily business, not Wright's problems. But patrons gave varied responses when asked their opinions.

"In my opinion, it probably was the best thing for him," said Deborah Frazier, a Fort Worth city employee. "He's had his day. I think he should resign to save face."

"I'm glad he's going because they need to get it all straightened out," said Bruce Westrick, an engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. "I just think he got caught."

Ken Fowler, a General Services Administration auditor from Arlington, said Wright got railroaded, "chopped up" by the media.

"You can find something wrong in anyone, if you go looking for it," Fowler said.

At Weatherford, the ranching town about 30 miles west of Fort Worth where Wright grew up and served as mayor in 1950-54, current Mayor Sherry Watson said his resignation was "truly awful."

"Jim has done us a wonderful job up there and I was truly hoping that he would continue on," said Ms. Watson, who calls herself a Wright fan. "He has been a real asset to Weatherford, the Dallas-Fort Worth and Metroplex area, and I think we will all suffer from the loss."

Claybell DeBeauford, 69, who has known Wright since childhood, sobbed softly as she talked about his fall.

Crop report: No drought relief in sight

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas agriculture appears to be settling into an early phase of the summer doldrums as hot, windy weather rapidly dries soils and farmers hurry to plant annual cash crops.

Soil moisture is still reasonably adequate in most areas east of a line from Palacios on the Gulf Coast, up through San Antonio and Abilene, and then to the southern Panhandle.

But all areas west and southwest baling is underway and irrigated vegetables are progressing.

South Plains cotton is 60 to 70 percent planted and sorghum planting is peaking but pastures and ranges are much too dry as hot, windy conditions continue.

Carpenter said Central Texas producers are busy planting peanuts, spraying for the pecan nut casebearer and harvesting disappointing wheat yields. Early corn is tasseling and hay making is active.

Mid-May's heavy rains have pushed East Texas pastures to lush growth, he said, cattle are gaining weight and very little maintenance feeding is necessary. Good hay yields are noted and corn is growing fast. The peach crop, however, will be sparse because of late spring freezes and current, rot-causing high humidity.

The picture is much different along the Coastal Bend, and South, Southwest and West Texas, where drought is intensifying.

Trustees discuss building options at work session

By BRADLEY WORRELL
 Staff Writer

Howard College trustees suggested modifications in the layout of two proposed dorms at a special work session Wednesday.
 "We're going to try our best to hold costs down, yet provide a quality facility for our students," Howard College President Bob Riley said.
 The proposed addition of a men's and a women's dorm to existing dorms is expected to add 96 new beds to present student housing. Riley declined to speculate on the cost for the two buildings, noting the board has yet to commit itself to certain construction features which can influence the cost.

 "We'll have a more firm cost estimate at the next meeting," Riley said. Board members scheduled another work session to deal with construction issues on June 14.
 Possible features for the new dorms include: sky-lights, balconies, portico, special handicapped entrance and a tanning area on top of the buildings. The college's architectural service, Gary & Phillip Architects, showed board members computer graphics of what some of the proposals would look like.

Board members discussed possible renovations for the existing dorms that will adjoin the new dorms. Bids for modifications to the existing heating and cooling system in those buildings may be let at a future meeting, trustees decided.
 School trustees also heard a proposal by a securities dealer to raise revenue bonds to finance the construction costs. Leon Johnson, a bond dealer, promised that if the board used his advisory service, "We will have gotten you there, we will keep you out of trouble and we will save you money."

Johnson explained it takes the services of a professional bond dealer such as himself to navigate through all the paperwork and legal obstacles involved in approving school bonds.
 Asked after the meeting if board members could try to sell bonds on their own, Johnson replied, "Not in 60 days" — the amount of time before construction of the buildings is scheduled to begin.
 Johnson told board members that if they intend to allow construction to begin in August the board should hire the services of a securities dealer immediately and offered to enter into a gentlemen's agreement with the board.

 "You've got no time to waste if you've got to have the money August," he said.
 But board members declined to enter into any arrangements with Johnson before speaking with other bond dealers. "He wants the job," Riley said of Johnson's tone of urgency after the meeting.
 Riley stressed the tentative nature of proposals made Wednesday. "We didn't take any action. There was nothing official . . . other than the sharing of ideas," he said.

 place," Ivie declared, "I am confident we will be able to take care of the non-potable flows above Lake Spence. As we are able to make more room for good-quality inflows into Lake Spence, we will have much better quality water with a few years."
 The board engaged Freese and Nichols of Fort Worth, consulting engineers, to begin plans immediately. Initial costs will be handled out of the district's Contingency and Improvement Fund until a decision is reached on long-term financing.
 Lake Spence water would have been far better had it not been for unprecedented water runoff. That runoff caused Natural Dam Lake to spill thousands of acre feet highly salt-charged water into Beals Creek which flows down to the Colorado River and Spence. "This unfortunate chain of events," Ivie explained, "demonstrated that we had to take steps to prevent it from again happening."

In other actions, the board appropriated $35,000 from the Contingency and Improvement Fund to install larger impellers on pumps at the Martin County station in order to meet greater delivery demands by Midland. Rod Lewis, assistant general manager, told the board that this will enable the District to provide a new daily maximum of 15,000,000 a day to the City of Midland in 1990.
 Even though Stacy reservoir will be filling in 1990, the board told Ivie to be on the watch for opportunities to acquire well-water reserves as insurance against dry years and as a ready source for peaking purposes in the summer time. The district has well fields in Martin and Ward Counties as well as a ground water reserve in Winkler County.
 A contract with Fina Oil Company for the right to dispose up to 370-acre ft. non-potable water from its Big Spring refinery in the district's Red Draw diversion reservoir.
 Fina previously had filed with the Texas Water Commission for a permit to discharge a limited amount of waste water into Beals Creek, but CRMWD opposed on the grounds that it was committed to cleaning up Beals Creek. CRMWD's Red Draw diversion is only a short distance removed from the refinery.
 A 120-day extension of the completion date, originally in June, for the intake sub-structure at Stacy was granted Brown and Root. Ivie told the board that in general progress was near schedule on the Stacy reservoir and that he anticipated a start on closure of the dam by late November.
 Additional appropriations were made to close out the weather modification project costs in 1987-88, which Ivie said was due to having to contract for the actual cloud seeding. The additions combined for $45,391. The appropriation for raising a 2,300-ft. section of 36-in. pipeline across the upper end of Natural Dam Lake by $27,518 was approved. This makes the project, occasioned by raising the potential level of the lake by five feet, to $252,518 in order to protect the west end of the system in event of flooding.

WASHINGTON — Lori Wray, 14, of Lynchburg, Va., waits her turn to take the microphone late in the 3rd round of the National Spelling Bee in Washington.

Speller

 "The rest of us are on your side."
 While the opening rounds were tense, there were several lighter moments. Cameron elicited an unintentional laugh from the packed ballroom when he used the word boing in a sentence: "Donald Duck bounced off the hotel awning with a loud boing."
 Speller Angela Martin of St. Petersburg, Fla., also drew laughs after she was asked to spell boulevardier: "Oh gosh, can I buy a vowel?" she said before giving the correct spelling.
 Some of the spellers, who were dressed in everything from suits to shorts, said the air-conditioned room was too chilly. But most complained of boredom after having to sit still all day waiting to spell.

 and there'll be a cutback in farm labor."
 Area cotton gins expect a direct blow to their businesses. Billy Bryant, manager of the Coop Gin of Big Spring, said many of the 10 cotton gins in the county probably won't even open.
 "If it doesn't rain by June 10, probably just about two gins in the county are all that will open," Bryant said. "There's not even enough cotton produced for two gins to operate economically."
 Eight closed gins would be a blow to the workforce. Bryant estimates that 200 jobs would be affected, with 50 percent of those held by local workers.
 The gins that open will have to absorb losses too, Bryant said. In 1986 when the Coop ginned just 4,700 bales, it lost $84,000. By comparison, when it ginned 23,000 bales in 1987, the Coop netted almost $0.5 million.

 "If it doesn't rain by the 10th of June, it would surprise me if the county made 5,000 bales," he said. "If we can get a rain within a week, the chances of the county getting a good crop will be greatly improved."
 While gin owners are left out in the cold, most farmers at least have insurance to ease their losses.
 Richardson said crop insurance will help. "But nothing takes the place of a good crop if you get a good price for it too."

Wright

 enough of it."
 Wright mopped his forehead repeatedly and his hands shook at times as he delivered his self-defense to a packed chamber and a national television audience.
 The ethics committee investigation of the speaker, which led six weeks ago to charges that he violated House rules of conduct in 69 instances, has overshadowed and interfered with the business of legislation.
 Every time he wanted to talk about national priorities, Wright said, the news media "wanted to ask me about petty personal finances."
 "You do not need that for a speaker. You need somebody else," he said, announcing the end to his tenure.
 Despite Foley's assured ascension to speaker, Wright's resignation comes at a tumultuous time for Democrats. Democratic Whip Tony Coelho of California has also announced plans to resign, saying he didn't want to endure an ethics investigation like Wright's.
 Coelho acknowledged recently that a savings and loan officer set him up with a junk bond buy, and that he failed to properly report a $50,000 loan toward that purchase from the officer's financial institution.

In addition, Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania, the No. 4 leader in the party hierarchy, has complained to Justice Department officials about leaks to reporters that his office is the subject of a separate probe.
 The Democrats scheduled a party caucus next Tuesday to nominate Foley, and the full House is likely to ratify the choice within hours. The speaker said by the end of June he also would give up his seat representing the 12th district of Texas.
 Never before has a House speaker resigned under fire in mid-term. Wright's Democratic colleagues, some of whom had privately told reporters they thought he had stayed too long, hailed it as an heroic sacrifice for the institution and called on Republicans to take heed.
 "Jim Wright committed a selfless act," said Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., who helped defend the speaker before the House ethics committee. "His parting gift to this institution was a warning . . . (to) stop looking for retribution and vengeance and simply get on with the nation's work."

Stenholm sorry to see Wright go

WASHINGTON — Rep. Charlie Stenholm, D-Texas, said House Speaker Jim Wright had little choice but to resign Wednesday after the steady bombardment of press reports alleging that he violated House ethics rules.
 "I was sorry to see it happen, but he did it for the good of the House and for the good of his party," said Stenholm.
 Wright made a passionate speech defending his past financial dealings with a Fort Worth businessman Wednesday, but announced his resignation as well.
 Stenholm said, "The speaker was wrongfully convinced that he was acting within the rules, but he also acknowledged that he may have made some mistakes."
 The Stamford lawmaker said he hoped Wright's resignation would end the bitter fight between Republicans and Democrats over ethics investigations, but was skeptical. He noted that Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., has said other Democrats deserve to be investigated.

"I know there are Republicans planning a strategy to do just that," Stenholm said.
 Stenholm was at the Texas Democratic luncheon Wednesday that Wright attended. He said the speaker did not make any announcement about his impending speech, but said everyone knew his resignation was likely.
 "It was a pretty grim lunch," he said.
 "I felt it was almost like Hamlet, a prince on his knees and a very strong effective speaker we're not going to have any more," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif.
 The investigation of Wright was begun a year ago based on a complaint by Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., who was rewarded by his GOP colleagues earlier this year when they installed him as the House Minority Whip.
 Gingrich, who himself is now the target of an ethics complaint, avoided reporters after Wright's speech. But other leading Republicans made clear they wanted to take advantage of the Democrats' loss.

Deaths

Leland Camp

Leland Stanford Camp, 83, Forsan, died Wednesday, May 31, 1989 in a Big Spring hospital.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Friday in Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Jack Clinkscales, pastor of Forsan Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.
 He was born April 10, 1906 in Hood County and married Nina Ula Williams Dec. 24, 1928 in Tolar. He was a member of Forsan Baptist Church. He came to Howard County in 1934 and lived in Forsan and the surrounding area since then. He worked for Mobile Oil Company for 43 years, starting in 1925 and retiring in 1968.
 Survivors include his wife, Nina Ula Camp, Forsan; one daughter, Mrs. Boyd (Cleo Mae) Brawley, Odessa; one sister, Mrs. W.R. Rogers, Big Spring; four grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.
 Pallbearers will be Boyd Brawley, Dub Day, Bobby Williams, Charles Camp, Johnny Sherman and Jerry Rogers.

Johnnie Haby

Johnnie Irene Haby, 67, Big Spring, died Thursday, June 1, 1989 in an Odessa hospital.

Services are pending with Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

Vanessa Cordoba

Vanessa Erin Cordoba, infant daughter of Ann Marie Cordoba, died Thursday, June 1, 1989.

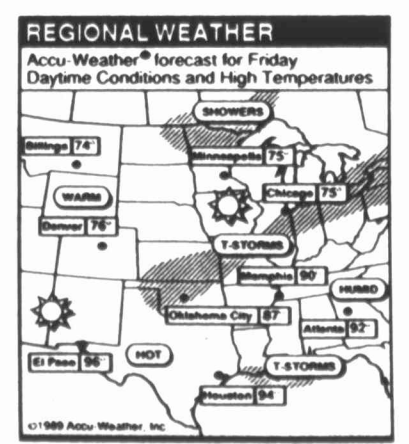

Services are pending with Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

Weather

Heavy rain drenched Chicago and parts of the Midwest early today, causing floods that washed away roads in Michigan.
 Roads were swept away in Eaton and Clinton counties in southern Michigan, and considerable street flooding was reported in Lansing.
 Lightning struck about 200 times late Wednesday in the southern third of lower Michigan, said David Koehler, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Ann Arbor.
 Nearly 4 inches of rain fell in two hours early today in St. John, Ind., making some roads in the area impassable and knocking out power.
 Thunderstorms also dumped more than 2 inches of rain in the Chicago area.
 Flood watches were in effect for all of today in parts of northern Ohio.

 In the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake, a dike on the Chagrin River gave way Wednesday, flooding a neighborhood and forcing about 50 residents from their homes. Residents were still cleaning up from flooding a week ago.
 Hail up to 1 inch in diameter fell in Montgomery, Mich., and thunderstorm winds gusted to 60 mph in Princeville, Ill., about 15 miles northwest of Peoria.
 Thunderstorms were scattered from southern Iowa across western Missouri, much of Kansas and Oklahoma to western Texas.
 In the Texas panhandle, golfball-size hail fell in Castro County late Wednesday, and nickel-size hail was reported in northwest Oklahoma.
 Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms from northern New England across New York, Pennsylvania, southern Michigan, portions of the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys and eastern portions of the central Plains to northern and central Texas; severe thunderstorms possible over eastern Missouri, much of Illinois and Indiana and western Ohio.

A freedom fighter retires

Before the world paid much attention to South Africa's racist system known as apartheid, Helen Suzman was a lonely white voice in the struggle against it on its home ground. This economics professor has served in parliament for 36 years and has spent all that time denouncing apartheid. Now, at 71, she's retiring to write her memoirs.

As a woman and normally soft-spoken liberal in a male-dominated, rough-edged, conservative parliament, Suzman never flinched, and could be as sharp-tongued as any. She often attended funerals of black militants killed by security forces, and encouraged politicians from the ruling National Party to go, too, but "heavily disguised as a human being." In the face of bullying by President P.W. Botha, she once retorted during a debate: "I am not frightened of you. I never have been, and I never will be. I think nothing of you."

It was Suzman who drew the world's attention to human rights abuses, including the death in custody of black leader Steve Biko. For that and much else, she won the admiration and respect of black South Africans, despite her continuing opposition to international economic sanctions, which she fears will only harden white resistance to reform. Helen Suzman deserves the whole world's respect and thanks for fighting injustice when others declined to do so, and for inspiring those who must now continue the struggle.

CRIE cares

To the editor:

This is to inform the community of a group called C.R.I.E. (Children's Rights through Informed Efforts). We have attended two meetings and have learned so much.

Divorce is devastating and one side always suffers, but it is the child that hurts the most — and no one cares. C.R.I.E. does care, so if you are a parent, grandparent or relative, come to the meetings. We meet the first and third Thursday of every month at 7:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce conference room.

You will receive moral support and information from which all concerned parties can benefit.

Just to say thanks

To the editor:

I would like to thank everyone in Big Spring that participated in the first SADD and "Just Say No" Anti-Drug Rally. The purpose of the rally was to bring the community together to show our concern about the drug problems that we are experiencing and also for the kids to be able to interact and have fun in this type of rally. I do feel that we accomplished our goals successfully. The support and donations that were given by so many businesses and civic organizations is greatly appreciated. I would also like to thank you and your staff for the coverage of the rally.

Again, Big Spring, let me say thanks and let's all work together and eliminate drugs from our community and create a more positive attitude.

Reps play beat the clock

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

By all accounts, the party just wasn't as fun this year as it usually is.

Sine Die (pronounced sinee die by all good Texans) is the term used to signify the final day of the Texas Legislature's final session — but in the past, it was also a good excuse for our representatives to let their hair down.

The happenings of past Sine Dies have grown to the status of folklore. Legislators, tired and stressed from several months of high-voltage politicking — and racing the midnight deadline set by the state Constitution — would go just a tad bonkers on occasion.

It was not unheard of for several parties to spontaneously erupt in and around the Capitol. Many state reps, it's been written, endured those last few hours of the session in a distinct alcohol-induced haze.

Gag gifts would be exchanged, practical jokes pulled and songs would be sung. And, yes, bills would be passed.

For several years, the final song of Sine Die had been sung by Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, the round legislator from Alice, because, of course, the opera's not over until the fat lady sings. Some people may think that might sound crude, but Glossbrenner was good-humored about the whole thing.

Beyond the realm

But, Glossbrenner went on a diet, and had to be joined this year by three or four other women reps to replace the weight she lost.

And, according to Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, this year's Sine Die was not as crazy as past events.

Because so many important bills — such as education and worker's compensation — had not been dealt with, Sine Die was more business than pleasure this year, Fraser said.

"It was such a serious session this year," he said. "There were just so many things we still had to do... I've had several of my colleagues tell me that this is the most serious legislature they've ever seen."

The education bill, of vast interest to educators, was battled back and forth all day until, with a scant four minutes remaining until closing time, it was passed by the House.

Which left precious little time for parties, Fraser said.

"It wasn't just people in the offices having parties," he said. "There was some real key pieces of legislation that had to be passed."

All of which is not to say that the atmosphere was cool and professional; it was anything but, Fraser said.

"It got kind of crazy," he said. "There were so many people on the floor (of the House). It got so that when anybody was at the microphone, there would be a lot of people crowding him... There was a lot of noise and cheering from the gallery that you don't normally have."

What convinced me that some Sine Die fun was still to be had was found in an Associated Press photo that appeared in Wednesday's Herald.

Mankind's last hope?

By ART BUCHWALD

The lottery is now the last hope for all mankind, and the beauty of it is so many players in this country believe that they are born winners.

Joe Jarboe is one of them. He owes me 50 bucks and he told me just last week, "As soon as I win the lottery I will pay you back."

"I don't want to wait," I protested.

"It won't be long," he said. "But, Joe, millions of people are playing the lottery. What makes you think that you will win?"

"Because I have hunches which are almost supernatural. Take last month — the winning numbers were 8, 7, 3, 2, 6, 1. I played 7, 8, 2, 0, 3 and 9."

"That's nowhere near the winner."

"Right. I learned a lesson. Never play zero on a Friday if it's raining. With just a little more concentration, I figure I'll be staring at a million dollars a year for the rest of my life. Then I'll be happy to pay you back."

"Joe, I think the reason you keep picking wrong numbers is because you're worried about the money you owe me. That's what is driving you crazy."

"You don't understand," he said. "I am determined to have a winning ticket. State lotteries are now the only way the government can provide its citizens with the American dream."

"You're living in a fantasy world," I told him. "Nobody wins the lottery except some porter from the Bronx who says he's not going to quit his job, no matter how much money they give him."

Joe wasn't listening. "I know my turn is coming up. I've been too close for comfort too often. Once I was off by just two numbers. If I had bet 3 instead of 5 two months ago I would have been on the 'Today' show talking to Jane Pauley. I'm not the only one who thinks that the lottery can save him. I have a friend who forgot to pay the IRS last year. He told them that they would get their money after the next sweepstakes drawing."

"What did the IRS say?"

"They were happy because they were dealing with a winner. There is a woman who is selling her house in Hoboken, N.J., and moving to Princeton, because she is sure she's going to split a $10 million prize with a bus driver in Bayonne. Next to God the lottery is the only thing people have to live for."

"I understand that," I said. "But you couldn't do business in this country if everyone said that they had to wait for their lottery money to come in."

"Why not? It's the easiest way to have a cash flow. You better watch out or I may not talk to you when I win the sweepstakes."

"Joe, give me the $50."
"I don't have $50."
"Then what do you have?"
"I have a sign."

"What kind of sign?"

"I've had an itch under my left toe for a week. If this isn't a hunch that I am going to be a winner, then I don't know what is. You see, I am not like most people who have no idea what they're doing. They shouldn't be playing because for them the lottery is a sucker's game."

Perfection — in ethics as elsewhere — is unattainable

By GEORGE F. WILL

WASHINGTON — The reign of Virtue shall begin when the last king is strangled with the entrails of the last priest. Or so 'twas said, many reigns of Virtue ago.

But what can be done for Virtue now that kings are scarce and strangling them, even less messily, is frowned upon? Well, Newt Gingrich has got a little list.

It contains the names of "another nine or ten, maybe more than that" House Democrats. They'd none of them be missed, says Gingrich, if the House is sufficiently thorough with the moral refurbishing now afoot.

Have we seen this movie before? This is the Summer of Sequels (Ghostbusters II, Indiana Jones III, and Vicebusters II is a remake of an oldie from 40 years ago).

A Wheeling, W. Va., radio station recorded Joe McCarthy's speech on Feb. 9, 1950, but later erased the tape, so it is unclear how long was McCarthy's list of "all the men in the State Department who have been named" as communists and spies. A reporter wrote that McCarthy said, "I have here in my hand a list of 205." Others remember 57 or 81. The number mattered less than the political climate in which citing a number mattered.

Today's list-making is different in this important particular: There are House rules; they have been broken. However, there is this similarity to 1950: The reign of the accuser has been re-established. And not by Gingrich. He is just accepting — with unlovely zest — the terms of political combat since 1966-67.

Gingrich, who relishes his bicentennial role as Robespierre, thinks the sulfurous smoke seeping from the Capitol dome denotes civic health and (in his words) "tougher standards." He offers an analogy involving the "wilding" attack on the Central Park jogger: "Nobody 40 years ago would have suggested a young woman could have walked through Central Park. I mean, they just sort of understood, at 10 o'clock at night women don't walk through Central Park. We now have a standard that says: By God, in America you ought to be able to walk through Central Park and not be assaulted. Well, 40 years ago in Georgia, politicians routinely took cash and they gave cash."

It is progress that Georgia's politicians are cleaner. But Gingrich's Central Park analogy is wonderfully wrong. Forty years ago, everybody knew there were parts of the park you did not pass through alone after dark. What is new is the mentality that postulates a new entitlement: Perfection. We are entitled to a city made safe for everyone to do everything everywhere at any time.

In this unattainable, hence foolish, ideal there is a childish impatience with imperfection. In Central Park, such impatience is physically dangerous. Elsewhere it is hard on the body politic.

Again, Gingrich is not the Abner Doubleday of today's political hardball. He did not invent the use of ethics as a truncheon. But as a player in the game of scrupulosity, he is part of the problem.

There is a downward ratchet effect in civility. The ratchet clicked many times in the negative advertising in 1986 campaigns. Also in the Robert Bork affair, when nastiness was covered with a cloying incense of ethical pretense. It clicked when some of Bork's critics in the media laid their muddy hands on a list of movies he had rented.

That they were disappointed (Bork's taste involved nothing kinkier than Fred Astaire) does not alter the disgusting nature of their partisanship: Any stick will do to beat a dog with, and anyone we want to beat can be considered a dog.

Some ideologically intoxicated Republicans think Democrats are not merely mistaken but sinful. Such Republicans believe the earth must be scorched and sown with salt before the Heavenly City can be built. Some Democrats, having lost their ideological confidence, substitute character assassination for political purpose.

Yes, there is condign punishment in the fall of Tony Coelho, who was especially operatic when singing about Republican "sleaze." But nothing so became Coelho in his public career as his manly manner of leaving it. He was clearheaded in doing so. Having handled the electrodes, he understood ethics as an instrument of torture.

We are awash in a sea of synthetic passion, with politicians throwing elbows and sound bites in the crush to capture ten seconds of television time. Ethics, like every other subject, is lost to measured discourse. And ethics, more than anything else, is made for the reign of the accuser. Ten seconds suffices: "I have in my hand a list..."

Ethics is something (patriotism is another) the health of which is inversely proportional to the amount of speechifying and editorializing about it. The more people talk about it, the more pandemic is the confusion about what it is.

Energy bills roughest on poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's poor, suffering from cuts in aid levels, are spending three times as much of their income on home energy bills as the average U.S. household, according to a newly released study.

The report issued Wednesday by the National Consumer Law Center, a non-profit organization, said many state governments have not made up fully for recent declines in federal energy assistance to the poor.

The study said low-income households spend, on average, 11 percent of their income on home energy costs, compared with a national average of 3.4 percent.

Among the group's other findings:

- Average home energy costs during the winter exceeded $100 a month for the poor last year in 43 states and the District of Columbia.

- In 10 of 16 states for which complete data was available on recipients of federal low-income home energy aid, the average household had $75 or less to spend per week on food, transportation and other needs after paying winter heating bills.

1,269 missiles destroyed last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union destroyed a combined 1,269 nuclear missiles during the first year of the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty, the U.S. officials said Wednesday.

The two sides also have conducted a combined 340 inspections to verify the missile destruction and ensure compliance with other terms of the treaty.

"The past year has been marked by almost continual elimination of missiles, launchers and related equipment as both sides seek to implement the primary aim of the INF Treaty," Pentagon officials said in a statement.

The treaty took effect on June 1, 1988, and calls for the destruction of all intermediate-range nuclear missiles over a three-year period. Those missiles have a range of roughly 300 miles to 3,500 miles, and the agreement to destroy them marked the first time the two superpowers had agreed to eliminate an entire class of nuclear weapons.

The agreement also marked the first time the United States and Soviet Union ever agreed to on-site, or "intrusive," inspections to ensure compliance with an arms treaty.

When the treaty took effect, the Soviets had 1,846 missiles in the intermediate-range category, divided among six different types. The United States had 846 missiles, divided between Pershing and ground-launched cruise missiles.

Teen tests dropout-driving law

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A 17-year-old whose wife is pregnant says an anti-truancy law has taken away his livelihood as well as his license, so he plans to take the matter to court with the help of his father.

One attorney has predicted that if Michael Means and his father, William, go through with their lawsuit, the ruling will set a precedent.

The measure was the nation's first anti-truancy law to include revoking teen-agers' drivers' licenses.

"Our first step will go through the circuit court to see if we can't get this law declared unconstitutional," said William Means.

Means dropped out of Roosevelt Junior High School in Kanawha County a year ago when he was in ninth grade. He and his wife, Tonya, 16, are expecting their first child in the fall.

Means got a license before dropping out and worked as a gas station attendant. But he misplaced his license in October and had to quit his job when the state wouldn't replace it because he was a dropout. On Tuesday, the DMV affirmed its decision.

Koop's drunk driving campaign criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeon General C. Everett Koop's sweeping proposals to curb drunken driving brought sharp criticism today from the restaurant and alcoholic beverage industries, which say they were intentionally left off a panel that drafted them.

C. EVERETT KOOP

"This report contains a few good recommendations and many that are both misdirected and destructive," said Harris Rusitzky, president of the National Restaurant Association.

Koop on Wednesday asked for a ban on some alcohol promotion and advertising he says is aimed at youths. In one of his last official acts before leaving office July 13, Koop also called for higher taxes on liquor, tougher state laws and enforcement against drunken driving and far-reaching voluntary action by the industry.

Rusitzky, whose organization represents 100,000 establishments, said a majority of Koop's recommendations were designed to reduce the availability of alcoholic beverages to responsible drinkers.

"The major thrust of the report, if implemented, could actually make the problem worse," said Gerald E. Murphy, director of the National Licensed Beverage Association, which calls itself a voice for half a million bars and taverns.

Murphy said Koop's proposed restrictions on alcohol distribution, new axes and other proposals would force the closing of thousands of neighborhood taverns.

"This will not lead to less drinking. It will lead to less supervised drinking," he said.

James C. Sanders, head of the Beer Institute, which represents breweries, said Koop's proposals fail to consider that drunken driving deaths have dropped 17 percent over the past five years, with teenage drunk driving fatalities down by nearly one-third.

He said many of Koop's suggestions will either not work or impinge on the right of free speech by restricting product advertising and marketing.

Several industry representatives criticized Koop for not inviting them to participate on the panel in December that drew up his recommendations. It included experts from five federal agencies and scores of doctors, lawyers, anti-alcohol campaigners. Advertising groups were invited but declined to participate.

"Surgeon General Koop has endorsed a drastic series of proposals that would dramatically increase the level of government intrusion into our private lives without a significant effect on the alcohol abuse problem," said Stephen Lambright, vice president of Anheuser-Busch Companies.

Anheuser-Busch's Spuds MacKenzie ads for Bud Lite beer were one target of Koop's complaints about the industry.

Koop did not draw a clear line between what action should be imposed and what should be voluntary but said his proposals stress voluntary compliance.

Nonetheless, representatives of the alcoholic beverage industry interpreted the broad program as an infringement.

Koop adopted several proposals from scores presented in a report by the December workshop. Among other recommendations he endorsed: a decrease in the amount of blood alcohol content at which it is illegal to drive from 0.10 percent to 0.04 percent by the year 2000, instant confiscation of drivers' licenses, anti-drunken driving programs and funding of safety and health ads to match alcohol ads.

Forty percent of all deaths between the ages of 15 and 20 are the result of motor vehicle accidents, and half of all crashes are linked to alcohol abuse, according to federal statistics.

LONDON — The staff of 10 Downing Street applaud President Bush and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher Thursday.

Bush and Thatcher meet before Bush heads home

LONDON (AP) — President Bush and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher had "a very encouraging and frank exchange" today capping their NATO summit triumph in persuading Western allies to keep short-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Nearing the end of his week-long European tour, Bush emerged from two hours of talks with Mrs. Thatcher to report that the "special relationship" between the United States and Britain was stronger than ever, "and will continue to be."

Mrs. Thatcher credited Bush's "staunch and steadfast" leadership for a "very, very successful" two-day NATO summit in Brussels, Belgium, earlier this week, and declared that "freedom is on the offensive" around the world.

The two leaders said they discussed a wide range of issues, ranging from the post-summit disarmament measures to the Middle East, China, South Africa, Argentina, Central America and Cambodia.

Bush said that "it is only with friends that you can take off the gloves and talk from the heart." Said Mrs. Thatcher: "We think very much the same way, which isn't surprising. ... I think they have been some of the most valuable and happy talks I have had for a very long time."

Bush met with the prime minister at 10 Downing Street before a luncheon at Buckingham Palace with Queen Elizabeth II. A dinner with Mrs. Thatcher was the final event before Bush returns to the United States early Friday.

The president's visit coincided with a subway strike in London, which created traffic jams 10 miles long on major highways into the capital and forced many commuters to walk or ride bicycles to work. Motorists who reached the city found routes of the Bush motorcade sealed off.

Mrs. Thatcher is regarded as the United States' most ardent supporter in the West. At the NATO summit in Brussels, she took an even harder line than Bush on keeping nuclear missiles in Europe.

The issue pitted the United States and Britain against West Germany, after Chancellor Helmut Kohl demanded early East-West negotiations to reduce and perhaps eliminate short-range nuclear missiles.

The president arrived at dusk Wednesday aboard Air Force One and was greeted by Mrs. Thatcher and her husband, Denis, on the tarmac at London's Heathrow Airport.

Arafat creates Palestinian army

LONDON (AP) — Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat has ordered the establishment of a 3,500-member Palestinian army in south Lebanon, Jane's Defense Weekly reported today.

The force is to become "the core of a regular army of an independent Palestine of the future," the London-based military affairs magazine said.

It is intended to replace "the existing chaos of assorted unruly militias, most of them affiliated with Arab countries and not always friendly to Arafat."

Jane's said.

The magazine said Arafat sent his handpicked military commanders to south Lebanon in February to serve notice that part-time militia salaries were to be reduced, and eventually stopped.

It said the affected militiamen protested strongly and at times violently because the economic crisis in Lebanon provides no other outside employment. It said the militia system provides a livelihood for about 10,000 men in south Lebanon refugee camps alone.

Israel issues IDs to Palestinians

JERUSALEM (AP) — The army began issuing computerized plastic identity cards today to Palestinians in the occupied Gaza Strip as part of a campaign to tighten control over the Arab population.

The move coincided with a demand by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir that the army adopt harsher measures to crush the nearly 18-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israel's occupation of the Gaza Strip and West Bank.

Shamir's spokesman, Yossi Ahimeir, confirmed reports that the prime minister wants a tougher approach. "If current measures are not enough, we have to consider other measures," said Ahimeir.

At least 10 Palestinians, most of them teen-agers, were wounded today in clashes with troops in the occupied lands, Arab hospital officials said.

Since the uprising began in December 1987, at least 503 Palestinians have been killed, most of them by army gunfire. Twenty-two Israelis have also died in the violence.

The Bank of Israel said the uprising cost Israel $630 million in export losses last year, including $280 million in lost tourism.

Soviets to look into Baltic accord

MOSCOW (AP) — The new Soviet Congress today formed a commission to determine whether the Kremlin absorbed the three Baltic republics by force under a secret accord with Nazi Germany.

The Congress acted after President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said the issue needs to be investigated. But he also told the Congress the original copy of the agreement can't be found, either in the Soviet Union or in West Germany.

The dispute over the 1939 German-Soviet non-aggression pact is explosive because decades of official Soviet doctrine maintain that the republics — Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania — voluntarily joined the Soviet Union in 1940, ending their existence as independent nations.

But secret protocols to the 1939 pact, concluded by the foreign ministers of Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin, deeded control of the Baltic area to the Kremlin, and Soviet troops moved in the next year.

Baltic activists, now freer to express themselves because of Gorbachev's political reforms, demand that the official explanation of how their homelands came to be part of the Soviet Union be exposed as a lie.

The secret additions to the Hitler-Stalin pact have long been known in the West, but Gorbachev told the Congress no one has been able to locate the originals.

Gorbachev said that when Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany visited Moscow last year he asked Kohl if the originals were in West Germany.

Kohl said they were, Gorbachev said, and the Soviets asked for them. But when Soviet diplomats went to West Germany to get the documents, they were told the originals couldn't be found, Gorbachev said.

Art dealer buys stolen mosaics

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — For nearly two years, the Cypriot government mistakenly believed four sixth-century Christian mosaics stolen from a Cyprus church had been destroyed, the press counsel at its U.S. embassy testified Wednesday.

"In early 1980 we received a communique from Cyprus to the ambassador that the mosaics were destroyed," Marios L. Evriviades testified in federal court. The government, therefore, did nothing to recover them, Evriviades said.

But the mosaics were removed and sold for $1.2 million to Peg Goldberg, an art dealer from suburban Carmel. She is being sued by Cyprus and its Greek Orthodox Church, which claim they are the legal owners of the mosaics and want them returned.

Goldberg's attorney, Joe E. Emerson, maintains the plaintiffs did not make a legitimate effort to notify the public of the theft and that his client has made a legal purchase.

Evriviades testified before U.S. District Court Judge James E. Noland that he learned in June 1982 that the mosaics had been removed and taken out of Cyprus.

Reciting cowboys gather for poetry

By WENDY E. LANE
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — Out on the lonesome plain, the scrubby brush country or the trails that connect the two, a cowboy can get mighty bored.

Hence the genesis in the 19th century of the cowboy poet, who memorized poetry and recited verses to calm the cattle.

The genre has outlasted the great cattle drives of the early 20th century, and its modern practitioners are scheduled to gather Friday for a celebration of cowboy culture and arts.

The National Cowboy Symposium and Celebration June 2-4 will draw more than 250 authorities on cowboy culture to display, discuss and demonstrate everything from team calf roping to handmade boots to Western yodeling. The event is sponsored by Texas Tech University.

Western writers and cowboy poets love and often romanticize their way of life, said Texas Tech English professor Kenneth W. Davis.

"Cowboy poets and Western fiction writers, although highly individualistic, are traditionalists," he said. "They take pride in traditional values — courage, dignity, integrity, rugged individualism, freedom, loyalty and honesty."

Discussion panels will examine the roles of both women and black cowboys in shaping the American West.

"We've tried to cover every aspect of this Western culture," said Alvin Davis, executive vice president of Texas Tech's Ranching Heritage Association.

In addition to panel discussions, performances by the cowboy poets and musicians will be held. Two of the nation's foremost cowboy poets, Baxter Black and Carlos Ashley, will attend, along with Western musician Red Steagall and yodeler Don Edwards.

Some newcomers will get their chance to recite their own compositions.

Dennis Gaines, a working cowboy at a ranch near Matador, said he composes his verses while on horseback or just gazing down a fence line. His performance at the symposium will be just his second in public.

"Mostly I've just performed for friends, my parents and about 800

Roof rats invading California

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Upwardly mobile roof rats who prefer California's newer neighborhoods are invading pricey homes, using newly planted vines and trees as an above-ground freeway, health officials said.

Twice during the past two weeks, wrecker rats have driven Lance Finkel out of his home in Oakland's Montclair district, a neighborhood of $300,000-plus houses in the hills overlooking the city.

"They're chewing the house apart," said Finkel. "They're chewing up the doors and pulling the carpet up, they've chewed through the bottom of an armoire. ... They're driving me out of the house."

Even an exterminator wasn't able to solve the problem for Finkel, who is hoping Alameda County's Vector Control unit can stop the infestation.

The baby boom among roof rats is keeping pace with California's population rise, which saw the number of residents jump from 662,000 to 28.3 million this year.

The rodents, which use telephone lines and overhanging trees to travel from city to suburb, are moving in where there was never a problem before, health officials said.

"There's a lot of development taking place all over the state. And all these developments are putting in new landscaping. As it matures, this vegetation provides ideal habitat for roof rats," said Richard Yercott, a State Health Department biologist.

Complaints about Norway sewer rats, the larger more aggressive cousin found in city slums and waterfronts, used to dominate rat complaints in Oakland and the adjacent suburban counties, but not any more.

"For years the Norways were the prevailing animals, but I think the roof rat is quickly catching up," said John Chase, a technician in Contra Costa County's rodent control unit. Chase says 50 percent of his office's calls are about roof rats now.

Alameda County roof rat complaints have increased 50 percent during the past five years, particularly in Oakland's hill areas, said Harry Scott, manager of Alameda County's Vector Control district.

Sometimes the rats come indoors: "They suddenly get curious and invade a home" and that's when the real trouble begins, Scott said.

One Oakland hills resident called Scott's office when roof rats scurrying through his house set off the motion detector in his home security system.

Book mystery solved

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Thousands of books whose absence was undetected by librarians have returned, solving a mystery that Brown County Library didn't know it had.

Because the library has yet to complete an automated inventory system, employees were unaware many of the books had left the shelves without being checked out, library director Patricia La Violette said.

About 4,000 have been returned in a rush of deposits to night book drops during the past three weeks. Hundreds were left during the Memorial Day weekend.

Ms. La Violette said the books began showing up after she got a telephone call May 8 from a weeping woman. She said the caller related her mother had died, leaving behind a large number of stolen library books.

Ms. La Violette said the woman did not identify herself. The library declined comment about the book returns for several weeks because it did not want to discourage the recovery, she said.

Most of the books are romances, mysteries and popular novels. Others are hardback non-fiction works.

Ms. La Violette said more than half the books did not contain the bar-code stickers used in the library's inventory system, meaning they were taken before the coding system was established.

Wife has eyes for husband but nose balks

DEAR ABBY: I can relate to the lady who said she stayed on her side of the bed for 40 years because her husband hardly ever took a bath. I have been in the same boat for years. I threw hints at my husband for years, but it did no good. Finally, in desperation, I said to him, "Honey, you stink!" It was like talking to a brick wall.

I'm a good cook and keep a clean house, but this man refuses to keep himself clean. He must be used to the smell, but I'm not. I've slept by myself and cried myself to sleep because he doesn't think I'm worth taking a bath for.

The sad part of it is, I love this man, and he's the only one I want to give my love to. I'm 50 and still ache to have his arms around me and give me a little loving once in a while. I've never looked at another man and have no desire to.

Oh, I'd settle for a hug and a kiss, but if I try for it, it turns him on and makes him want to have sex, and I can't go that far because he smells so bad. I can't win.

The only time he ever was clean enough to love was when he was in the hospital and they bathed him. So what can I do, Abby? — MISSING LOVE IN INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR MISSING: If you haven't told this to your family doctor, please do. Your husband could have mental problems. His behavior is not normal, and both of you are deprived because of it. Tell your doctor what you have told me. Your husband needs a thorough examination from the neck — both ways. I wish you luck.

DEAR ABBY: This is an open letter to all who have treated me kindly when they have driven by me while I'm on my bicycle:

Thank you for giving me a little extra room even if I have to ride in the lane instead of on the shoulder. You obviously realize that either the shoulder is soft dirt, or it has glass and junk on it that you can't see at 55 mph but I can see at 10 mph.

Thank you for not being impatient when it takes you an extra moment to get past me.

Thank you for not crowding me into the curb when there is no shoulder — as you know, sometimes the sewer gratings are set several inches below pavement level and might be just the right size to catch my tire and flip me into your path.

Dear Abby

Thank you for not making left and right turns into me, but according to me the same courtesy you would any other driver.

Thank you for patience when I ride after dark. Sometimes I don't have a light and my clothing isn't bright enough, which is stupid, but maybe I've been caught unawares and didn't expect to be out after dark — maybe I had a flat, or misjudged my distance or the time. And I'm grateful when you don't turn on your bright lights in my face.

Thank you for not honking your horn, or seeing how close you can come short of hitting me (for the fun of it), or yelling or shouting obscenities when you drive by as though I had no right to be on the road. Please be considerate of me, automobile driver. When gasoline costs $5 a gallon, we'll all be on bicycles. — ANYWHERE, USA

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for reminding us to watch the number of "you knows" we use in one sentence. I wasn't aware that I was guilty of overusing "you know" until I listened to myself.

Another annoying habit is punctuating the end of every sentence with "Right?" or "OK?"

Example: "So I went to the post office, OK? Then I asked for postage stamps, OK? I gave him a $5 bill, OK?"

I think you get the idea, right? ALICE IN ALTOONA, PA.

DEAR ALICE: Right!

Seniors enjoy box supper

The Mighty Oaks Senior Citizens Club met in the Fellowship Hall of East Fourth Baptist Church for an old-fashioned box supper.

J.W. Kizer opened the meeting with a prayer.

Gertrude McCann, president, appointed F.L. Dean and J.W. Kizer as judges, and Dean as auctioneer.

The boxes were judged for most original, craziest, and beauty.

First place, Gertrude McCann, western theme; second place, Katherine Weidel, Marti Gras theme; third place, Ferman Dean, gift package theme. All boxes were considered as outstanding. Gertrude presented each of the winners with a gift.

Brother Bob Ferrell presented a musical of old hymns with the group participating. Brother Ferrell was presented with an appreciation gift. Zelma McClahan, Cletha Clayton and Barry Clayton decorated the Fellowship Hall in Patriotic Theme.

McCann, reminded the group of all the veterans who served our country, each one present received a short history on military service who helped save our country and everyone received a Flag Etiquette Book and a copy of all wars and the poem "Flanders Field."

It was announced that reservations had been made for the Mighty Oaks Club to attend the "Fandangle" June 29th in Albany.

The group voted to cancel the June meeting because of other activities and they will meet again July 18th for a noon luncheon.

Brother Bob Ferrell closed the meeting with a prayer.

Professor finds history lessons in graveyard

By DEBORAH WILKINS
Tyler Courier Times-Telegraph

TYLER (AP) — Some might call it graveside robbery. But the only thing Dr. Stephen Daniels, an associate professor at University of Tyler, is stealing is a bit of information.

Each semester, Daniels takes his students to Oakwood Cemetery on North Palace Avenue. The purpose is not to revere the dead, but to study their tombstones.

"I've always had an interest in old cemeteries, but I started doing this when a student teacher wanted to find a way to interest her kids in history," Daniels said.

The field trip is part of the curriculum in Daniels' course, which teaches teaching methods to education majors. His reasoning is that reading dates, birthplaces and various emblems directly from tombstones piques a young person's interest more than a textbook and gives them a personal feel for the 19th century.

"The problem with history textbooks is that they are written for a national audience, so they tend to capitalize and pick up on the biggies in history like the labor movement. Labor organizations don't have a heck of a lot of meaning for kids in Tyler, Texas. But if they go to Oakwood Cemetery and see tombstones with emblems like the Masons, Knights of Pythias and Woodmen of the World, it becomes significant."

He also said name recognition helps drive home bits of history.

"It's a lot better to use hands-on material with familiar names — Bonner, Chilton, Bergfeld, Goodman — than a sterile history text. Oakwood is extremely familiar.

It's like reading a city directory or city map."

But the detective work at the cemetery doesn't stop at passively reading names and death dates. Students are required to record the information, sometimes indecipherable to the eye, by making tombstone rubbings.

This involves placing a large sheet of paper over the tombstone's face and rubbing the horizontal side of a crayola over it to make an imprint of the engraving.

"Kids have to get information off the tombstone, take that information and draw their conclusions."

"What did Tylerites do in the late 19th century? Only a few occupations show up on a headstones, mostly doctors, lawyers and firemen." But he also said a few stones were engraved with trains and one had an etching of a skull and bones that he interpreted as an inference to a pirate.

"It makes kids ask questions, and a way to answer questions and put that information into some semblance of organization."

He said the tombstone data also helps bring historical theories closer to home.

Some accepted textbook generalizations have been proven false, he said. For example, most history textbooks say foreign immigration into the South ceased after 1800. But Salim Serur from Beirut, Syria, Alfred Hewitt from Northampton, England, Eugene Florentin from Paris, France, and Florette Rothschild from Lauterfingen, Lorraine — all buried in Oakwood Cemetery — say otherwise.

TYLER — Dr. Stephen Daniels, an associate professor at the University of Tyler, makes a tombstone rubbing. Each semester Daniels takes his students to a cemetery to study the tombstones.

'World News' in Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's Peter Jennings was longing to be in China last week like competitor Dan Rather of CBS, but he's looking ahead now to taking "World News Tonight" to Europe next week, and anchoring a prime-time news special on Thursday to set it all up.

Jennings will report from Brussels and London from May 29 to June 2 as President Bush meets with leaders of NATO allies. Unless something unusual happens, though, the story in Western Europe won't be as exciting as the one that CBS' Rather found himself in the middle of last week.

Rather and CNN's Bernard Shaw were the only U.S. network anchors in Beijing. ABC and NBC had correspondents on the scene, but Jennings and Tom Brokaw were in New York.

"Obviously, I mean, God, I mean, it would have been wonderful to have been there," Jennings said in a telephone interview Monday. "They'd had a hard time dragging me back."

CBS got calls of complaint after Rather and crew interrupted the season finale of "Dallas" with live coverage of negotiations with Chinese officials who had been sent to pull the plug on CBS' satellite transmissions.

"Dallas" fans aside, it was a public relations coup for CBS News. And for news junkies, the live scenes from Beijing were in-initely more fascinating than any cliffhanger on a night-time soap.

CBS News, however, had not known it would land such a big story, and in fact had gambled that events in, say, Panama, would not overshadow the real reason for the China trip, the four-day visit to China by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Gorbachev came and went, Panama stayed put, and the student protests in Beijing became THE story.

But the recent movements toward democracy in both the Soviet Union and in China have potentially profound implications for the United States' relationship with NATO. On Thursday night, Jennings will anchor a prime-time special on the subject, "Beyond the Cold War: The Risk and the Opportunity," that will include an interview with Secretary of State James Baker III.

"I hate missing a big story, but we're about to go on to witness the president attempting to deal with a tumult which has far wider-ranging effects than what's been happening in China," said Jennings.

"We were sort of thinking this morning, how long could China go on having internal revolution before it would have a profound effect on the United States, and the answer is, a long time."

Jennings said he agreed with ABC's decision not to send him to Beijing. But in retrospect, ...

"We know on a big event our audience expects us to go to them," he said. "This is in some respects why we felt badly last week. I don't think we were as frustrated last week as we could have been. Because sometimes you just luck out, and there's no way, it's like — I'll tell you a really clean beat was when Brokaw went to Soviet Armenia. I thought that was a clear beat. ... That's different from lucking into a story."

"I thought my boss (ABC News President Rooney Arledge) was perfectly legitimate in saying, listen, the Soviet-Chinese rapprochement is not a major story for Americans. It's a major story, but it certainly wasn't worth going over there for the broadcast."

"But I didn't think that last week."

Elsewhere in television:

CAPITALISM AT WORK — While the drama in Beijing was unfolding on Friday — student demonstrators tensely awaiting possible action by government troops — CNN and NBC bickered over CNN's contention that NBC swiped 20 seconds of live satellite pictures during a morning news update. CNN President Burt Reinhardt zipped off a telegram of protest to NBC News President Michael Gartner. NBC said it was all a misunderstanding.

Canvases that paint themselves

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — At life's strokes, William Tolliver does it. He lets the cotton pickers from around the nation grab his works, forcing him to turn down offers to go on show in galleries because he can't paint fast enough to keep up with the demand for his creations.

"I put a stroke there, two strokes here and let the strokes dictate what I'm doing," Tolliver says. "I might start out with a cotton field and end up with a mother and child. It may be in abstract or impressionism. In some instances, they paint themselves. It's just a feeling."

The feeling is everything for Tolliver, who learned to paint from a paint-by-numbers set when he was 14 and not busy carrying water to fellow cotton pickers in the Mississippi Delta country.

"I could draw anything I could see by the time I was 9," he said. "It was like playing music by ear. But painting is different. The man who invented that paint-by-number thing was great. I learned the principles of blending colors, everything."

Tolliver, a high school dropout, then began reading every book he could find on art and the masters. Most of his works feature people — mostly cotton pickers, or landscapes of shanties and lazy streams.

"That's my background, and what I paint is the nostalgia I feel. But I've only been doing this pro-

"I put a stroke there, two strokes here and let the strokes dictate what I'm doing. I might start out with a cotton field and end up with a mother and child. It may be in abstract or impressionism. In some instances, they paint themselves. It's just a feeling." — William Tolliver.

essionally for seven years. As I grow and see new things, I'll paint from a new background," the artist said.

The old background does just fine for Tolliver, who has painted 1,000 pieces, selling all but a few that are on display in his studio in downtown Lafayette. He now commands a minimum of $1,000 a painting.

His works hang in the Zigler Museum in Jennings, La., a few feet away from a Rembrandt and a Van Dyke, and in the New Orleans Museum of Art. His work also has been displayed at African American Art's "The Heartland" in Los Angeles, and displayed in the rotunda of the U.S. Senate Building in Washington. Hampton University in Virginia has purchased several of his paintings.

"Now, some universities don't want my paintings because they say I'm commercial because my work sells," Tolliver said. "It doesn't make sense to me. I don't know a painter anywhere who doesn't want to sell his work."

"They say I paint what people like. That's funny. I paint what I like when in impressionism to modern art. Whatever I feel. I can't help it because people like it."

The 37-year-old native of Vicksburg, Miss., lied about his age when he was 14 and joined the Jobs Corps to learn carpentry. He finally moved to Lafayette to take advantage of the brief oil boom.

He never thought about painting for a living until 1983 when he was laid off as a carpenter, one of the thousands of victims of the oil patch crash in Louisiana.

"Painting was a hobby, nothing to make a living at," he said. "But there was nothing else to do. A lady I had worked for enrolled me in the Lafayette Art Association and paid my dues."

Tolliver then sent his wife to the association with two paintings to display but she went to the wrong place instead. She wound up at the University of Southwestern Louisiana Museum, which gave her $150 for her husband's work.

Frances Love, then the museum director, purchased the paintings, told Tolliver about a local art gallery and the money began rolling in.

"One of the paintings was absolutely beautiful," Love said.

Film review

By The Associated Press

Poor Patrick Swayze. The handsome actor who showed so much promise in "Dirty Dancing" is back on screen in "Roadhouse," a clunker so bad it has little competition for worst picture of the year so far. Its only pluses are a lot of unintended laugh lines.

"Roadhouse" is the embarrassing awful tale of Dalton, a onetime philosophy student who finds his true calling as a nightclub bouncer. Swayze as Dalton is not just any bouncer, mind you. He's the ultimate "cooler," the bouncer that all others emulate. And he has the cuts, bruises, scars and stitchmarks to prove it.

When the owner of a trashy, sleazy club decides to dump Dalton for the night, Dalton (and we) must watch Dalton and his crew of drunk goons, get stabbed in the arm and — before our very eyes — use needle and thread to stitch up his bloody wound.

The moviemakers behind "Roadhouse" take perverse pleasure in showing medical-text closeups of oozing wounds. Yuk!

The patchwork script inflicted on us by David Lee Henry and Hilary

Henken meanders from one barroom brawl to another, and throws in some sex, foul language and a slimy villain played to the hilt by Ben Gazzarra.

With cliches flying, the actors actually mutter such lines as: "This town isn't big enough for both of us," and "This is our town and don't you forget it."

Swayze, who spends a lot of time with his shirt off and even shows some derriere, appears unsure if he's playing Rambo with Stallone-like greased muscles, or a cowboy hero of the past come to clean up this ol' town. Director Rowdy Herrington doesn't give him much help in defining the role, but neither does the script which soon has him falling for the town doctor, Kelly Lynch, and engaging in a gratuitously raunchy sex scene. What ever happened to the taste and sensitivity of "Dirty Dancing?"

In a fittingly disgusting finale, Swayze winds up in another fight and rips out the windpipe of his opponent with his bare hands. Then there's a bloody mass murder scene at the home of the villain with blood and guts everywhere.

"Give me a break!" groaned a viewer at a recent screening of "Roadhouse" as the audience began to laugh in all the wrong places.

Former local gymnast going to national meet

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Former Big Spring Sidewinder gymnast Will Rutherford, now competing with the Crenshaw Athletic Club in Austin, recently qualified for the National United States Gymnastic Federation meet.

Last weekend the 15-year-old Rutherford won the overall competition in the Class II Compulsory and Optionals, scoring 109.6 points, beating his nearest competitor by two full points. Gymnasts from Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana competed in the meet.

Rutherford won the parallel bars, high bar, rings, vault and floor exercises. He finished fifth in the pommel horse.

By virtue of his finish, he and five others will comprise a Southwest Regional team at the nationals. The national meet is June 30-July 2 at Oshkosa, Wis.

Thursday notes

Howard College will be hosting boys and girls basketball camps this summer at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The boys camp will be June 26-30, the girls overnight camp will be July 10-14 and the girls day camp will be July 17-21.

The fee is $150 per participant for the overnight camp. This will cover room, meals, equipment, tuition and camp t-shirt. A $25 deposit is required with the remaining amount due upon registration.

Day camp will cost $75 per participant. This will cover tuition, equipment and a t-shirt. A $25 deposit is required.

Campers will be separated according to level of expertise and age. Competitors will be categorized as: Seniors, Juniors, Mid-Level and Little Dribblers.

Members of the staff will be under the direction of Howard coaches Steve Green and Royce Chadwick. The staff will consist of Howard assistant coaches, high school coaches and members of Hawks and Lady Hawks basketball teams.

For more information call Teri at the athletic department at 287-6311.

There will be Gorilla Volleyball competition Saturday, June 24, played on the sandy beach at Highland Mall starting at 1 p.m.

There will be two competitions, gorilla volleyball, two or three person teams, and standard volleyball, six-person teams. Entry fee is $10 per person and $15 for both events. Deadline to enter is June 9. Proceeds from the tournament go to the Rape Crisis-Victims Services.

For more information call Vicky Jernigan 263-3312.

The Ninth Annual Odessa Women's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament will be June 10-11 at the University of Texas Permian Basin Complex in Odessa.

Entry fee is $100 per team. Deadline to enter is June 7 at 12 noon.

The first four place teams receive team trophies and the first two teams receive individual trophies also. There will also be awards for all-tourney, golden glove, MVP and sportsmanship.

Local sharpshooter Kelly Rogers won the Panhandle Handicap Trapshooting title in Amarillo last weekend.

Rogers, who attends Texas Tech, shot his first 100 straight perfect score from the 27-yardline. He also won singles, doubles and handicap competition in the three-day event.

Kelly was named High All-Around for his 391x400 in three championship events, and High Overall Champion for his 781x800 combined score.

Rogers will compete in the Texas State Shootoff in San Antonio in two weeks.

The Fifth Annual Oil Capital Masters Track and Field Meet and 5K Road Race will be June 11 at Andrews's Mustang Bowl.

A full slate of track and field events, plus a 5K race will be conducted. In each event, there will be age groups ranging from high school to 70 years and older. The 5K will begin at 8 a.m., field events at 2:30 p.m. and running events at 5:30.

Zoop Dove of Farmington, N.M. will be this year's rodeo announcer.

Pistons take 3-2 lead

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP)— In the special language of the NBA, the Microwave shorted out Air Jordan's landing lights.

Vinnie Johnson scored 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter Wednesday night as the Detroit Pistons, who trailed by as many as 10 points in the first half, beat the Chicago Bulls 94-85 to take a 3-2 lead in the Eastern Conference finals.

The best-of-7 NBA series continues Friday night in Chicago and Game 7, if needed, would be Sunday afternoon back at The Palace. The winner will earn the right to advance to the NBA Finals against the Los Angeles Lakers, who locked up the Western Conference title earlier in the week.

The Bulls, in the conference finals for the third time, have never appeared in the NBA Finals; the Pistons lost to the Lakers in seven games last season.

Detroit's swarming defense held Chicago's Michael Jordan, who averaged 27.7 against the Pistons in the regular season, to just eight shots and 18 points.

"You have to take what the defense gives you," Jordan said. "If I didn't feel comfortable driving to the hole, I didn't do it. I'm not going to force an issue if it's not there."

In Game 1, also at The Palace, the incredible Jordan scored 32 points as the Bulls shocked Detroit with a 94-88 defeat, stealing away the Pistons' home-court advantage. In Game 3 at Chicago, he floated and soared for 46 points as the Bulls overcame a 14-point deficit down the stretch to beat Detroit 99-97.

But even with Jordan lost in flight, the Pistons were doing their best imitation of the gang that couldn't shoot straight.

The Pistons, despite hitting their first two shots, hit only 27.3 percent in the first quarter and finished the

Teens advance in French Open

PARIS (AP)— Michael Chang hammered Pete Sampras 6-1, 6-1, 6-1 in a battle of teen-age Americans to reach the third round of the men's singles at the French Open today.

But another U.S. hope, Lori McNeil, became the fifth women's seed to bow out of the tournament when she was upset 6-2, 6-1 by Manon Bollegraf of the Netherlands.

"I just had an off-day," McNeil said. "She forced me a lot and rushed me. I never settled down." Chang, who reached the round of 16 at last year's U.S. Open as a 16-year-old, needed only one hour, 37 minutes on the day's opening Center Court match to beat his fellow 17-year-old.

A couple of Chang's unseeded countrymen also advanced as the United States kept up its bid for a first French Open men's title since 1955. Jim Courier beat countryman Jimmy Brown in straight sets and Lawson Duncan overpowered Andrew Sznajder of Canada, also in three.

Andre Agassi, the leading U.S. hope for the men's title as No. 5 seed, was next up against Paolo Cane of Italy. Also in action was the top seed and favorite, Ivan Lendl, playing the second match on Court One, and defending champion Mats Wilander.

Monica Seles, the Florida-based Yugoslav and youngest player in the tournament, continued her meteoric rise in women's tennis by thrashing Stacey Martin of the United States 6-0, 6-2.

The unseeded Seles, who hits a double-fisted forehand and wears polka-dot pink skirts on court, beat Chris Evert at the Virginia Slims of Houston event six weeks ago.

As Seles continued to make her mark in world tennis, Jimmy Connors, old enough to be her father, bowed out of the only Grand Slam event he has never won yet again.

But try telling him to put away his rackets and buy a new pair of slippers, and Connors gets riled.

"Who brought that guy in here?" the 36-year-old Connors said after a reporter asked him how he felt about having just played his last singles match at the French Open. Connors had just lost to Jay Berger in a hard-fought contest.

"All the way here just to ask me that question," he added, tongue-in-cheek.

Pitino to Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)— Rick Pitino, who has made a career of rebuilding basketball programs, vowed today to immediately turn around the downtrodden Kentucky program, the winningest in college basketball history.

"When people say we can't be competitive, let's prove them wrong. And that's what we're about to do," Pitino said. "It's been a tradition with me to say, 'We will win, and we will win right away.'"

Athletics Director C.M. Newton, who formally introduced Pitino as the school's head basketball coach today, said he got the best man for the job.

"We have just named the very best coach, I think, in the country," Newton said. "Today begins a new day in Kentucky basketball. Today is the first step in rebuilding this program."

Kentucky's Athletics Board unanimously approved Pitino's hiring earlier today. He was given a seven-year contract with a base salary of $105,000, but that will grow with income from coaches shows and endorsements, among other things.

"It was a lateral move economically," said Pitino, who resigned as coach of the New York Knicks on Tuesday night.

Pitino will spend his first three years dealing with NCAA probation — including a two-year ban on postseason tournament play and no live television next season — for recruiting violations under Coach Eddie Sutton, who resigned in March.

"The sanctions and probation just make it tougher," Pitino said. "But we will overcome all obstacles to make Kentucky basketball rich again."

He also warned boosters to keep their enthusiasm in the stands.

"Come to the games and cheer as loud as you can. But stay away from our practices; stay away from my players," he said.

Pitino gave up a young, aggressive pro team that won the Atlantic Division title and tied for the fifth-best record in the NBA to coach a Kentucky squad that lacks size, strength, numbers and the respect of the NCAA.

Pitino, who coached previously at Providence and Boston University, said he and his wife, Joanne, who accompanied him at today's news conference, often looked back on their days at Providence after moving to New York.

Pitino met with his players for about 40 minutes today, but forward Reggie Hanson is the only starter who says he's definitely staying. Point guard Sean Sutton, Eddie Sutton's son, said he will decide by the end of the week, and fellow guard Derrick Miller said he still hasn't decided but is leaning toward leaving.

Center LeRon Ellis already has announced he will transfer and Chris Mills is doubtful.

Jordan, Magic head All-NBA contingent

NEW YORK (AP)— Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson made the 1989 Final Five, Larry Bird didn't.

For the first time this decade, the Boston Celtics' forward was not a part of the 1989 All-NBA team. Bird, a three-time Most Valuable Player, played just six games before undergoing foot surgery.

Johnson and Jordan, both guards, finished one-two in this year's Most Valuable Player balloting, but were not everyone's choice for the league's best. Each were relegated to the second team by one of the 85 media members who voted. The league would not reveal who left them off.

A new face to the first team, Utah Jazz forward Karl Malone, was the only unanimous choice.

Malone, 25, in his fourth year in the league, averaged 29.1 points per game to finish second to Jordan in the scoring race and grabbed 10.7 rebounds per game.

The forward helped lead the Jazz to a franchise-best 51-31 record this year, although they lost in the first round of the playoffs.

Making the first team, along with Malone, Johnson of Los Angeles, and Jordan of Chicago, were center Akeem Olajuwon of Houston and forward Charles Barkley of Philadelphia.

Johnson was an All-NBA choice for the seventh straight year; Jordan and Olajuwon were named for the third straight time. Barkley was first honored last year.

The second team was led by center Patrick Ewing of New York; forwards Tom Chambers of Phoenix and Chris Mullin of Golden State; and guards John Stockton of Utah and Kevin Johnson of Phoenix.

For the first time ever, a third team was chosen. It included center Robert Parish of Boston; forwards Dominique Wilkins of Atlanta and Terry Cummings, just swapped from Milwaukee to San Antonio; and guards Dale Ellis of Seattle and Mark Price of Cleveland.

The voting panel was made up of three electors from each league city plus ten members of the national media. The voters picked three teams and points were awarded on a 5-3-1 basis.

Sports Briefs

STANTON HOOP CAMP

STANTON — Stanton High School will be the site for two two-week basketball camps this summer, according to girls' coach Rob Young.

There will be a girls' camp beginning June 5 and a boys' camp beginning June 12. Pre-registration cost is $25. The fee is $30 if you register at the door.

Instructors will be Young and Keyv Allred. For more information contact Young at either 756-2566 or 756-3233.

FORSAN CAMP

FORSAN — Forsan High School is sponsoring a summer basketball camp for boys and girls June 19-23 at the Forsan gym.

The camp will be conducted by Forsan boys basketball coach Kurt White. The camp is for youth ages 9-12, and any incoming seventh, eighth or ninth grader is eligible. Cost is $15 per camper. The camp hours will run from 8:30 a.m. to 3:45 p.m.

The camp will stress fundamental skill development, individual shooting competition and team competition. Individual and team awards will be presented at the conclusion of the camp.

For more information call Kurt White at 457-2223 (work) or at 457-2333 (home).

BIKE TOUR

There will be a bike tour Sunday, June 4 starting at the old K-Mart parking lot at 2 p.m.

There is no entry fee to ride in the tour, and it is open to anyone interested in biking. There will be two courses, a 20-mile course and a 35-mile course.

RUNNING

VAN HORN — Van Horn will be the site of the Texas Frontier Days Rotary Club Runs — 5K, 10K and half-marathon.

The events are scheduled for June 17 starting at 8 a.m. Entry fee is $7 for early registration, and $10 on the day of the race. This includes t-shirts for all participants.

Registration will be Friday night, June 16 at the Van Horn Convention Center and Visitor's Bureau. There will be a barbecue lunch, air show and dance Saturday afternoon following the races.

For more information call 254-2424.

HOCKEY

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Tom Webster, who coached the New York Rangers for 14 games in 1986-87 before an inner-ear ailment forced him to resign, was named head coach of the Los Angeles Kings.

Webster had a 5-7-2 record with the Rangers before the ear problem, which prevented him from flying, forced him to step down.

Webster, 40, replaces Robbie Ftorek, who had at least one run-in with Kings' superstar Wayne Gretzky during the season and was fired after guiding Los Angeles to a 42-31-7 record, fourth best in the NHL last season. The Kings were knocked out of the playoffs by eventual Stanley Cup champion Calgary in the second round.

TRACK AND FIELD

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Oklahoma State's Jackie Goodman pulled away from Suzanne Jones of Harvard on the final lap of the women's 10,000 meters and became the first winner in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Goodman's time of 33 minutes, 42.35 seconds was the slowest since the women started competing in the meet in 1982.

BOWLING

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Top-seeded Cheryl Daniels defeated Nikki Gianulias 226-200 in the championship game of the $35,000 Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour Western Open.

For Daniels, who rolled six strikes in her first seven frames, the triumph was her third this year and second in a row. She won $7,000.

CYCLING

MANTUA, Italy (AP) — Urs Freuler of Switzerland outspun the pack at the finish line to win the 11th stage of the Italian cycling Tour while Erik Breukink of the Netherlands retained the pink jersey as the overall leader.

Freuler gained his second stage victory in five days, finishing just ahead of Italy's Marco Cipollini, Adriano Baffi and Paolo Kosola.

Freuler leads Stephen Roche and Greg LeMond by 46 seconds in the overall standings.

WRESTLING

WRESTLING — Cindy Rae, 45-60, (AP) — Cindy Rae, 45-60, defeated Another Jo by a head after a stretch-long duel in the $20,000 Happy Mood Purse for fillies and mares at Hawthorne Race Course.

Three-run shot sinks Rangers

By The Associated Press

Last year, Baltimore's Mickey Tettleton and Detroit's Lou Whitaker combined for 23 homers. In 1989, they're tied for the American League lead with 13 apiece.

Tettleton's three-run homer sparked the Orioles to an 8-5 victory over the Texas Rangers on Wednesday night, and Whitaker's two-run shot lifted the Tigers past the Chicago White Sox 4-3.

Whitaker's homer was his second in two games and came in the eighth inning off relief ace Bobby Thigpen, 0-2. Acting manager Dick Tracewski was glad to see Whitaker at the plate with his team down 3-2.

Orioles 8, Rangers 5

Tettleton's homer came off Cecilio Guante, who had relieved starter Bobby Witt, 4-5, earlier in the inning. The Orioles swept the three-game series.

Mark Williamson, 3-2, got the final out of the top of the sixth and allowed no hits in 2 1-3 innings for his second victory in as many days. Gregg Olson worked the ninth for his fifth save and second in three games.

Tigers 4, White Sox 3

Detroit also swept its three-game series as the White Sox lost for the 11th time in 12 games.

With Chicago leading 3-2, Shawn

BOSTON — Jody Reed of the Boston Red Sox slides wide of second base on a seventh inning steal attempt as Oakland Athletics second baseballer Tony Phillips comes in to tag Reed Wednesday night.

Hillegas walked Gary Pettis to lead off the eighth and was replaced by Thigpen. Chet Lemon struck out, but Whitaker hit an 0-1 pitch to the upper deck in right field. Chicago has lost nine straight at home.

Brewers 4, Angels 1

Greg Brock hit a three-run homer in his first game of the season and Don August beat California for the fifth straight time, leading Milwaukee to a rain-drenched victory.

Yankees 9, Mariners 5

Deion Sanders, the All-American football player, made his major-league debut a memorable one, singling to start a five-run rally in the seventh inning.

Sanders, a defensive back from Florida State who was Atlanta's first-round choice in the recent NFL draft, was promoted from Class AA Albany earlier in the day. He went 1-for-4 with an RBI grounder and also threw out a runner from center field.

Red Sox 4, Athletics 3

Rick Cerone's pinch RBI single capped a two-run 10th inning for Boston.

The Athletics had tied the game on shortstop Jody Reed's throwing error in the ninth and taken a 3-2 lead in the 10th on Dave Parker's eighth home run.

Dodgers outfight Expos, 9-4

By The Associate Press

Montreal got the knockdown, but Los Angeles scored the knockout. Expos pitcher Pascual Perez triggered a bench-clearing brawl by hitting Mike Scioscia with a pitch during a seven-run, seventh-inning rally that gave the Dodgers a 9-4 victory Wednesday.

Perez wouldn't talk about the incident after the game, but Scioscia claimed the knockdown pitch was intentional.

"When you throw 92 miles an hour, and the ball just misses your head by an inch and hits the bill of your cap, you know what's going on," he said.

Asked if Perez was throwing at Scioscia, Montreal manager Buck Rodgers said: "I wouldn't know, but I suppose he may have. It might have been frustration."

Hershiser, 7-4, gave up three runs and three hits in the first inning, then held Montreal hitless for the next six innings. Dodgers relievers Ricky Horton and John Weteland allowed only one hit the rest of the way.

Gibson had four hits and Randolph added three hits and three RBIs for the Dodgers, who matched their season high with nine runs.

Alfredo Griffin walked and pinch-hitter Mickey Hatcher hit a double off Hesketh, 4-2, to start the Los Angeles seventh. Chris Gwynn sacrificed and was safe when Hesketh threw to third and Hatcher beat the throw.

Perez came in and gave up a pair of run-scoring hits and a sacrifice fly before the brawl started. Jeff Hamilton capped the rally with a two-run homer off Andy McGaffigan.

Astros 4, Cardinals 3

Craig Biggio snapped a ninth-inning tie with a run-scoring double as Houston beat St. Louis for its sixth consecutive victory and 10th straight on the road.

With one out in the ninth, Ken Caminiti singled off Cris Carpenter, 1-4, who lost his fourth straight. Caminiti stole second, took third on Craig Reynolds' groundout and scored on Gwynn's double to left center.

Dan Schatzel pitched the final two hitless innings. He struck out two batters in the ninth and completed a 6-0 shutout in 6 1/2 innings, striking out seven batters in two.

St. Louis' Steve Carlton pitched and 12 of it.

Roberto Alomar hit a two-run home run in the eighth and Luis Quiroz hit a two-run home run in the ninth. The Expos ended a four-game losing streak.

Jose Rijo pitched seven innings in 7 1/3 innings for the Red Sox. John Franco pitched the final 1 1/3 innings to earn his 45th save in 16 opportunities.

Quinones, one of four part-time players in the Reds' revamped starting lineup, broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth by hitting Neal Heaton's 92 pitch over the left-field wall. The homer was Quinones' second in 396 major-league at-bats.

Braves 3, Cubs 2

Shortstop Shawn Dunston's throwing error allowed Dale Murphy to score the go-ahead run in the sixth inning.

The Braves had two runners thrown out earlier in the inning before Murphy scored from second when Dunston fielded Ron Gant's grounder and threw into the dirt past first base.

Retirement is not one of Connors' favorite subjects. After all, he can still battle for hours under a hot sun and remain in good shape.

"It wasn't exactly a walk in the park today," Connors, the oldest player in the tournament, said after a 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 loss to compatriot Jay Berger in the second round at Roland Garros, his earliest defeat here in 16 years.

The match took more than 4 1/2 hours but, said Connors, "I could still have played the fifth set, my mouthpiece wasn't knocked out."

Several contenders for Wilander's title already bagged their third-round places on Wednesday.

No. 2 seed Boris Becker, in a second straight three-set victory, beat Eric Winogradsky of France 7-6, 7-5, 6-2. Stefan Edberg of Sweden, the No. 3 seed, outlasted Nicolas Pereira of Venezuela 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

Other seeded men advancing included No. 6 Jacob Hlasek of Switzerland and No. 11 Alberto Mancini of Argentina.

Steffi Graf and Gabriela Sabatini moved closer to their expected women's championship showdown by winning in straight sets. Graf has conceded three games in two matches. Sabatini has given up four.

They were joined in Round 3 by No. 9 Katerina Maleeva, No. 8 Conchita Martinez, No. 10 Helen Kelesi and No. 15 Mary Joe Fernandez.

Two other seeds joined Connors on the sidelines. Helena Sukova, No. 5 among the women, lost to Japan's Akika Kujimita, while Aaron Krickstein of the United States squandered a two-set lead and was beaten by Australia's Mark Woodford.

Connors, renowned throughout two decades for his tenacious rallies, for once ran out of weapons during a 4-hour, 38-minute match against Berger that taxed the minds and bodies of both players.

Not even the excited Center Court crowd could will Connors to victory as the 22-year-old from Plantation, Fla., wore him down in the sun.

Connors, who has won 11 titles, fighting back to tie the match at 2-2. He joyed the crowd with a 10-10 tiebreak advance in the match.

"I never had any doubts," he said. "All I can do is play my best."

Connors, 22, said he was "a good exercise. I can't match this. I was tired, but I can't stand it."

"I still like the idea of playing out and playing well," he said. "I've been playing for 10 years, and I'm still here."

Berger, 26, said he was "a good exercise. I can't match this. I was tired, but I can't stand it."

"I think I'm a good player," he said. "I've been playing for 10 years, and I'm still here."

game shooting 48.8 percent. The Bulls hit 49.2 percent of their shots.

It was two spurts, one by Mark Aguirre and a crunch time burst by Johnson, that proved the difference.

Aguirre scored 11 of his 19 points in the final 4:41 of the second quarter as Detroit got the Chicago lead down to 45-41 at halftime.

Thomas finished with 17 points.

Aguirre had eight points in a 16-7 run to start the third quarter as Detroit finally took the lead.

Then Johnson suddenly heated up and the Pistons, with both Aguirre and Isiah Thomas sitting on the bench all but one minute of the fourth quarter, steadily pulled away.

"That's why they call him the Microwave," Jordan said. "Vinnie Johnson got hot and carried them down the stretch. Vinnie got hot and no matter what you did — get a hand in his face or what — he still got the shot off and he made it."

Jordan said he couldn't remember a game in which he took so few shots.

The most involved was Craig Hodges whose 19 points included five 3-pointers, three in final quarter. Bill Cartwright had 16 points for Chicago, but only six in the second half.

"We had our opportunities," Cartwright said. "We could very easily have won the game. But Detroit did a good job, I'll give them credit. Now we have to go back to Chicago."

With Jordan not able to get a shot, the rest of the Bulls offense suffered. Chicago got off only 59 shots, a record low for playoff games, shaving two off the old mark set May 3, 1984, by New Jersey against Milwaukee.

"I think Detroit is one of the outstanding defensive teams in the NBA," Chicago coach Doug Collins said. "You know what they're going to do. They're going to make you and chase him."

"I think it's a good sign that he did it," Jordan said. "A lot of shots against the Bulls."

The Detroit Bulls, who played 10 minutes in the fourth quarter, got 12 points in the final 10 minutes of the game.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Hawks 6, Coahoma Lions 3

The Hawks evened their record to 6-6 behind the six-hit pitching of Kris Pirkle. The Hawks scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth to gain the win.

Chris Arguello had the only extra base hit of the game for the Lions, a triple. For the Hawks, Kory Ryan, Jason Chandler, J.D. Wheeler and Billy Shubert doubled.

The Lions fall to 9-3 for the season.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

Rebels 20, Royals 0

Michael Paul Martinez came in in the first inning to relieve Mike Hernandez, and pitched no-hit ball, leading the Rebels to their 13th win in 14 games.

Martinez was backed by an 18-hit Rebel attack which dropped the Royals to 2-11.

Hernandez, Martinez and Manuel Cervantes all got three hits in the victory. Jason Henderson added two hits. The only Royal hit was a single by Gary Martin.

Rebel shortstop Joe Montez made several key defensive plays.

UNITED GIRLS SOFTBALL ASSOCIATION

Panthers 16, Killer Bees 2

Karma Morrow pitched one-hitter and struck out eight to lead the Panthers to their fourth win of the season. Tammy Grissom was the losing pitcher for the Killer Bees.

Liz Anzudua and Jenny Conaway got three hits each for the Panthers.

Names in the news

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Is she or isn't she speculation is cropping up again from so-called family sources who Monday denied earlier reports that Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto is expecting a second child. It also was family sources who confirmed Pakistani newspaper reports in March that Ms. Bhutto, who became the head of government after general elections in November 1988, was expecting a baby this October. One source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the rumor apparently started when Ms. Bhutto gained weight earlier this year.

BHUTTO

MANDELA

ROME (AP) — Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela will be honored in mid-June with a prize named after Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, the Libyan news agency JANA said Monday. JANA, in a dispatch from Tripoli which was monitored in Rome, did not say if the prize consisted of money or who exactly was sponsoring it. The Observer newspaper reported Sunday in London that the award is worth $250,000 and that Libya is establishing a $10 million foundation in Geneva for future awards.

Biwalal, on Sept. 21, 1988.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: composer Marvin Hamlisch, actors Stacy Keach and Charles Haid, writer Thomas Hardy, gossip columnist Hedda Hopper, actress Sally Kellerman, the "Beaver" Jerry Mathers, former Cuba and Yankees manager Gene Michael, statesman John Randolph, first lady Helen Taft, "Tarzan" star Johnny Weissmuller.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be realistic when handling investments and other money matters. Give your work everything you have and you will move forward at a steady pace. Go ahead and splurge on a few small luxuries.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A relationship seems ideal. Handle your spiritual and emotional needs in a positive way. You could land a lucrative contract if you are patient. Avoid coming on too strong with higher-ups.

A personal side to the holiday

By STACY PAYNE

Memorial Day has always meant a lot to me because it was my grandfather's birthday. A long weekend was involved with one day set aside to take Granddaddy (Cecil Gilmore) his cake and presents.

He always pretended that he had no idea we'd be stopping by, and yet we figured he probably ran from the door back to his chair when he saw us drive up.

I think of him every Memorial Day.

It was only this past Monday when I attended the local memorial service at Evergreen Cemetery that the day became more significant to me. Perhaps because I stood not too far from Tull Ray Louder and Lorabel Tom. Beside them sat David Workman, and away from the crowd was Edgar Standefer.

When I visited with Lorabel Tom in her home last week, she showed me her son's medals, all awarded posthumously. She showed me the pencil tracing of his name from the Vietnam Memorial. And she told me that she goes through the loss every year at this time.

What really moved me, though, was when she told me about being involved in the Gold Star Mothers Chapter in Big Spring. The members go to the Veterans Hospital there once or twice a month and serve cookies and coffee to patients.

The death of their children brought them together not only to help share the loss, but to reach out to veterans they may not have had empathy for a few years ago.

Another thing that got to me the past few days was talking to Gene Wheeler about his Medevac days. I mean, the guy risked his life in a very big way every single time he got in a helicopter. He landed in the midst of hostile fire ten or twelve times on some days, and some of the wounded he took back to the hospital were his buddies.

He told me he slept with a .38-caliber pistol under his pillow because the Viet Cong slipped through booby traps and Though David Workman and Fred Campbell became acquainted 44 and one half years ago in Germany they only met face to face a month ago in San Angelo.

"It all started in 1944," Workman began when detailing how he and Campbell were both shot down and transported to the same interrogation camp during World War II. They were from different bombing units, Workman flying out of a base in Italy; Campbell from England.

"I was in the 15th Air Force," Workman said. "Campbell was in the 8th Air Force. Campbell's group crash-landed on a farm in occupied Holland on November 6, 1944, and my plane was shot down on November 12."

Both were taken prisoner and transported to the interrogation center in Frankfurt.

"One day someone from the next cell started tapping on my wall," Workman said. "He told me his name was Fred Campbell. I told him my name and that I was from Rankin, Texas. We got to know a little about the other. He was from Missouri."

"We were in that center for about two or three weeks, and have since found out that when we left there, we went to the same camp three different times but never did see each other."

The third move found them both in Moosburg, just north of Munich, in Stalag Luft 7A. "That's where Fred Campbell, (left) and David Workman share an afternoon at the Workman home. Both men were prisoners of war in the same interrogation center in Germany.

we were when liberated by General Patton and his troops on April 29, 1945."

Soon after, the war ended. Workman and Campbell went their separate ways, Workman to Texas and Campbell to Missouri.

"About 16 years ago, Campbell moved to Texas and wound up in San Angelo," Workman said. "He had forgotten my name but remembered that I was from Rankin, and he also remembered that my nickname was 'Deacon.'"

"When he retired as pastor of a Presbyterian church in San Angelo, he began helping to build a small church in Sonora. He met a man from Rankin there, and asked him if he knew a man or had heard of a man from there called Deacon, who had been a prisoner of war in World War II."

The fellow named James did not know Workman, but thought he knew someone who might. He put Campbell in touch with a Doc Adams, longtime Rankin resident, who knew that Workman and Deacon were one and the same. Shortly thereafter, Campbell was dialing Workman's Stanton number.

"This happened just this past March," Workman said. "I wasn't home, but my wife, Ann, took the message."

"It was hard to believe when he called. A lot can happen in 44 years. I got real excited about seeing him, so Ann and I went down to San Angelo to visit him on the 29th of April, which ironically, was the 44th Anniversary of our liberation in 1944."

"What is so unusual is that we had never seen each other, we had only talked through a wall briefly, and then 44 and one-half years later, we meet in San Angelo, Texas on the same day we were liberated."

Last Monday, Memorial Day, they met again, this time in Stanton at the Workman home. Workman attended the annual Memorial Service earlier that morning at Evergreen Cemetery then returned home to await the Campbells' arrival.

I found them sitting out on the patio later that afternoon. Workman was cooking hamburgers and hotdogs on the grill. The women were away looking over all of Ann's handmade crafts.

It seemed a special time for old friends. I didn't stay long.

Recollections of a Gold Star Mother

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Lorabel Tom wiped a few bits of dust off the frame that holds a photograph of her grinning young son and all of his medals. George Tom was 20 in that picture. Less than three years later his helicopter was shot down in Vietnam.

"George was a helicopter mechanic, and wasn't even supposed to go out that morning," Lorabel said. "But they asked for volunteers. George and another boy agreed to go, and this other boy said 'You take this mission, and I'll take the next one.'"

"The other boy is in a hospital in San Antonio today," Lorabel paused. "He knows nothing — I'd rather that George was killed."

Lorabel never really knew what happened that morning until years later. She was working as a volunteer at the Martin County Historical Museum when a young man from Big Spring came in.

"He was looking at the Servicemen Photo display, and we began to visit. I told him about George. He said that he was a Green Beret and had been sent in to the same place George had been killed, and just about the same time, to figure out how these boys were getting shot down."

"They discovered that the Viet Cong had dug deep holes, then covered them up with grass to make the ground level. They were in these holes with rifles; our boys couldn't see them. This guy from Big Spring was pretty sure this is what happened to George." Lorabel said that she didn't worry too much about George on his first tour. "But the second time he went — I was sitting down to eat one night at Monterrey Kitchen in Midland — and the thought came, 'George isn't coming back.' I just had that feeling all of a sudden."

Lorabel is a Gold Star mother, the only one in Martin County. "A Gold Star mother is one who lost her son in active duty. I belong to the Big Spring Chapter of Gold Star Mothers. We go once a month to the Veterans Memorial there and serve coffee and cake and doughnuts and candy. "It's nice to be involved with those who have experienced the same thing you have. It's nice to know you're not alone." George was Lorabel Tom's only child. "I miss him."

Wheeler looks back on Vietnam service

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

A great many slides are scattered across Gene Wheeler's kitchen bar. He slips them into a hand-held viewer while his wife, Gayle, leafs through a photo album.

Two girls, one their seven year old daughter, Erin, and the other, Erin's first cousin, Lorie Dillard, are told once again to skate outside — not on Gayle's hardwood floors. Gene put the hardwood floors in himself; a few years after he got back from Vietnam.

The slides and photo albums contain shots of that country, some of its people and the American G.I.s who fought there.

He was only 18 when he left the states on Thanksgiving Day, 1968.

"I was pretty scared," he said. "I graduated from high school in May of 1967, joined the Army in January of 1968, and was shipped to Vietnam the next November."

Wheeler was part of a Medevac unit. The helicopter held five crewmen including two pilots, a medic, and two door gunners. "We flew out and got the wounded. Sometimes we'd fly eight or ten times a day, sometimes more."

"I couldn't think about the plight of the wounded too much. It was just something we had to do. Something we were trained to do."

Wheeler said that there were 12 helicopters in his unit with five crewmen each. "We got shot up all the time. Eight or nine of the crewmembers in our unit were killed and that many more wounded." He doesn't think about it much — intentionally, he admitted.

There was one night he thought he also might die. "It was two or three in the morning. The South Vietnamese army (ARVIN, we called them) had about 15 or 20 wounded on the ground out in this big forest. We couldn't land. We had to hoist them out in the helicopter, staying above the trees the whole time. We'd tie the wounded on to a litter and hoist them up."

"We were flying at about 2000 feet and there were rounds coming from everywhere; there was shooting all over the place. We flew there for four or five hours trying to land, but we never could because every time we got close to landing near the wounded, (the North Vietnamese) started shooting at us."

"I just knew we'd wind up not getting back. It was pretty hairy that night."

Wheeler said that when his helicopter went back to his base to refuel the mission was called off because the fighting was so heavy. He added that his unit lost more men rescuing the South Vietnamese than were ever lost during efforts to bring out their own wounded.

Wheeler wouldn't talk about his acts of heroism during these missions, but his wife made mention of them as well as the medals and

Elementary school honored

Stanton Elementary School has been awarded a Certificate of Exceptional Effort from the Texas School Safety Honor Roll Program recognizing its support of safety education and accident prevention. The Texas School Honor Roll Program, sponsored by Texas Safety Association in cooperation with the Texas Education Agency, is the only state recognition program that covers all aspects of school safety education and accident prevention. The Honor Roll Program assists schools in meeting the intent of Texas accreditation standards (Principles 3 and 10) relative to safety, promotes coordinated efforts for safety throughout the school system, encourages programs for reducing or eliminating accidents involving students, and enables each school to objectively analyze its own safety activities.

1,000 schools from 243 school districts across the state participated in the program during the 1988-89 school year.

Cherlyn Gail Stewart, 17, daughter of Teddy and Clara Stewart, has been awarded the Martin County Young Homemaker Scholarship. Stewart, a recent graduate of Stanton High School, has been accepted to attend Tarleton State University in the Fall. Though she has not decided on a major, she said that her interests include working with pre-kindergarten children as well as the medical field. For the past nine years Stewart has actively participated in 4-H. "I have done projects on the county level in foods, clothing, textiles, livestock, and horses. I also participated in Share-the-Fun. For two years our group placed on the State level of competition." She has served the organization over the years as vice president, secretary, treasurer, reporter, district council delegate on the 4-H council and as junior project leader. Stewart twice competed in the Miss Martin County Pageant, having won first runner-up last year. She has also won categories such as judges interview, the evening gown, and the talent division awards. A member of the First United Methodist Church, Stewart is active in the church's youth group, and has served on the youth council for several years. "Two summers ago our group served on a week long mission trip to an Indian reservation in Oklahoma. We helped restore homes for several families on the reservation. I felt blessed to have helped these people who are so much less fortunate than myself." Activities that helped Stewart secure the scholarship included a four-year membership in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes as well as three years service in Future Homemakers of America. During her sophomore year she was selected as the Outstanding Homemaker of the Year. She played Golf for the Buffalos for three years. She qualified for Regional and State tryouts during her junior year on the team. She was voted FFA Sweetheart her senior year and served the Boys' varsity basketball team as manager. other about the war. He did feel like we were trying to help a country that needed us. "But looking back," he said, "they shouldn't have stopped us inside the South Vietnamese border. That's what we kept saying over there. The war would have been over in two months had they let us penetrate North Vietnam. They bombed the 'hound out of it, but they wouldn't let us go in. They finally went in to Laos and Cambodia in about 1970, but the war was about five years old by that time. "It was a political war." Wheeler spent two years and nine months in the United States Army, one year and three days of it in Vietnam. He returned to Stanton. "I admit it. All I thought about was getting back here, and that may be the reason I'm still right here. Because the minute I got to Vietnam, all I could think about was getting back home."

mines and got inside their base at night. How he dealt with all of that at age 18 is beyond me. David Workman should be a professional story teller. I sat spellbound at his house not long ago and listened to his WWII narrative. One aspect that really fascinated me was how he told me details like the exact day, time, and even in what direction the wind was blowing when remembering an event. He reminded me that the nation was welded together once upon a time. And he, like Wheeler, said that "we did what we had to do. We didn't think about the fear at the time." Almost everyone in the county knows that Tull Ray Louder was in prison camp in the South Pacific during WWII. I've been begging him for a story ever since I took my first journalism class back in college. (He did promise that if he ever decides to tell it, he'll tell it to me.) I observed him at the Memorial service last Monday, and I tried to imagine what it must have been like to go to war to fight for freedom and then lose your own. And I wondered what was going through Edgar Standerfer's mind as he attended the service. Was he remembering a World War I battlefield perhaps, the day he went to war, the day he arrived back home? Does he, like the others, feel a great deal of pride and patriotism? I have no desire to experience firsthand what these guys know about war. And because of these guys, perhaps I never will.

Seniors

'kidnapped'

Six SHS senior girls were "kidnapped" for breakfast last Saturday, May 18, by Melissa Franklin, Mrs. Terry Franklin and Mrs. Hughlyn Todd. The girls honored at the breakfast were Kathryn Elmore, Kelli Glaspie, Shannon Koonce, Karen Graves, Cheryl Stewart and Stacie Tom.

After a breakfast of danish, fresh fruit, and sausage, each senior was presented with a personalized make-up kit. Jill Todd then awarded prizes for Hardest to Wake Up, The Hairiest Legs and The Worst Hair-Do.

Couple engaged

Joyce Ellis of Stanton announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Sherry Kelly to Mark Nichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Nichols of Spur.

The couple will wed June 24 at the First Baptist Church in Stanton with Tim Chase, brother-in-law of the groom and pastor of Hughes Street Church of Christ in Midland, officiating.

Miss Kelly is a 1989 graduate of West Texas State University, having received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Elementary Education. Nichols is involved in ranch and farm production in Midland and Dickens counties. The couple plan to live in the Greenwood area.

Miss Kelly is the daughter of the late Tommie Kelly.

Stone wins award

Chris Stone, 18, Stanton High School senior and son of Bill and Carolyn Stone, received a check for $300 from the Cash-For-Champions Award sponsored by Acco Feeds for his Reserve Grand Champion Steer win at the Southwestern International Livestock Show in El Paso.

Stone's steer also won the Grand Champion title at the Martin County Junior Livestock Show this year.

Jerry Hansen, owner, Stanton Chemical, said that Stone won $250 for the Reserve Champion win at the national level, and $50 for the Grand Champion at the county level.

Jimmy Harris, District Sales Manager for Acco Feeds travelled to Stanton from Abilene to present the check to Stone.

Deaths

Gabriel Romero

Gabriel Romero, 54, of Big Spring, died Monday, May 22, in Big Spring, after being involved in a road construction accident.

Services were held Thursday, May 25, at 3 p.m. in the St. Joseph Catholic Church with Rev. Frank Colacicco officiating. Burial was in St. Joseph Cemetery under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home.

He was born December 3, 1934 in Karnes City and married Julia Gutierrez Sept. 6, 1955 in Martin County. He was a longtime resident of Stanton and had lived in Big Spring for six months. He was a heavy equipment operator for Price Construction Company.

Survivors include his wife, Julia, Big Spring; a son, Gabriel Romero, Jr., Stanton; two daughters: Sylvia Rios and Yolanda Esparza, both of Stanton; his parents: Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Romero, Sudan; three sisters: Guadalupe R. Diaz, Dallas; Susan Gonzales, Coahoma; and Carmen Cavazos, Muleshoe; two brothers: Antonio Rosa and Ramon Romero, both of Sudan; and seven grandchildren.

of life, Marsha Todd, Stanton High School counselor said.

Inman, grandson of Mrs. Ralph Inman, will be a senior at SHS. His interests include football, basketball, golf, and band. Kelly was Academic All-District in basketball and All-District in Golf. He is Second Chair French horn in the Sweepstakes SHS band.

Inman will attend Boys State June 3-9 on the University of Texas campus. While there, he, along with students from across the state, will study the democratic process by creating a mock government and cabinet. He will be a guest of the governor and legislature.

Todd said that the week's activities will include a tour of the state capitol and the use of the capitol facilities for the mock legislative session. Other activities will include all sports, musical events and sightseeing.

"This all-expense paid opportunity for Kelly promises to be a memorable experience," Todd said.

The Stanton Music Club of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs held its Annual Past Presidents' Silver Tea in the home of Dr. Sue Fisher, with Mrs. Roy Koonce acting as co-hostess, during National Music Week. The week was celebrated May 7-14.

Past presidents honored were Mrs. Don Gaddis, Mrs. Glenn L. Brown, Mrs. R.O. Anderson, Mrs. Glenn Sargent, Mrs. Morgan Hall, Mrs. Curtis Erwin, Mrs. Carl Leonard, Jr., Mrs. Paige Eiland, Mrs. J. Alex Haggard and Mrs. Roy Koonce. Mrs. Glenn L. Brown gave a short history of the club and cited the names and work of the past presidents who are no longer living.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Tull Ray Louder also reported on the NFMC national convention held recently in Fort Worth. Mr. Glenn L. Brown also attended the convention.

Mrs. Ronnie Graves reported on the National Music Week exhibit at the Martin County Museum which displayed musical instruments and awards won by the club.

Plans were made to host a Birthday Party with the Stanton Study Club at the Stanton Care Center for residents during the month of May. In a short business meeting Mrs. Ronnie Graves was elected president of the club. Special thanks was given to the outgoing president, Mrs. Gary Clevenger, for her "untiring work and dedicated service to the club," Mrs. Brown said.

Mrs. Carl Leonard, Jr. read an original tribute to Mrs. Glenn L. Brown in honor of her presidency of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Special music was presented by Mrs. Gary Clevenger and Mrs. Roy Koonce for the closing of the meeting. Refreshments were served from a Spring theme decorated Tea Table to those present.

In the meeting of Noon Lions Club of May 16, announcement was made of the Joint Installation with Evening Lions Club on Friday, May 19 at 7:30, of officers for next year.

The Club welcomed several members who have been absent recently because of illness.

Eugene Byrd introduced John Wesley Yater of Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center of Big Spring as guest speaker. He said that this organization is a non-profit group, serving eighty West Texas counties. He showed slides of techniques of various programs.

In their final meeting of the year, Laureate Alpha met in the home of June Reid, with Margaret Roueche presiding. She gave each member a copy of the list of officers for the new year, which included Roueche, president; Sammie Laws, vice president; June Reid, secretary; Mamie Roten, treasurer; Mary Prudie Brown, extension officer; Helen Ruth Louder, publicist, and Roueche, membership contact.

June Reid discussed the Reunion and its theme for this year, "Martin County, Past and Present." The chapter voted to sponsor a float, as is their custom, a member said. To finalize their study of Australia for the year, the movie, "Return of Man from Snowy River," was shown. All members, except one, were present. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the movie.

A hobo party was held recently by the members of Xi Epsilon Delta in the home of Judy Ireton. Members and guests came dressed as hobos. Special guests were Ronda Ireton, Demorie Maker and Mary Woodfin.

A hobo meal of hot dogs, beans and "dump" cake was enjoyed by all. Members attending were Judy Ireton, Jackie Williams, Tere Garlington, Pam McCampbell, Nancy Bradshaw, Jeanne Haislip and Pam McNally.

The members of Xi Epsilon Delta met on May 11 in the home of Tere Garlington.

Harvey Heller of Midland was the winner of the porch glider being raffled off. The funds from this project will be used in the Martin County Little League concession stand this summer, Garlington said.

Following a short business meeting, members watched the video, "Whatever Happened to Dick and Jane," a film about drug abuse among children.

Members present were Nancy Bradshaw, Pam McCampbell, Tracy McNally and Tere Garlington.

Noons Lion Club met May 23 with Boss Lion McGilvray presiding. He had his mother, Dorothy McGilvray, as his special guest. Charlie Pinkerton made a motion to purchase eye glasses for a student.

Paul Kosh gave a short sketch on Lionism and installed a new member, Robert Robinson, sponsored by Wayne Mitchell.

Eugene Byrd introduced June Reid, president of Martin County Old Settlers Reunion. She discussed the history of the organization and presented Nancy Holt and Ruth Reid, who encouraged members to sponsor floats.

Tom Angel announced that the Club would sponsor a carnival starting June 12.

4-H news

By KATHRYN BURCH

Come join the fun. You do not have to sew to compete in the 4-H Clothing Project this year. We have a new division called Ready to Wear. This division judges your shopping skills. So, all you "shop-till-you-drop" fans, perk up your ears and test your shopping skills.

A Clothing Project Kick-off has been scheduled for Thursday from 2-5 p.m. at CapRock Auditorium. Participants should bring an equipped sewing box, cotton, or cotton blend fabric scraps for quilt squares, and something that needs mending.

I want to invite parents to meet with me following the project kick-off. New rules and project participation will be discussed.

The Farmer's Co-op Gin is offering $200 in prize money for garments made and purchased that have a minimum of 65 percent cotton. Thanks for the great incentive, cotton farmers.

For more information on the Clothing Project, give me a call at 756-3316.
