Teen hurt by rifle shell

A 16-year-old Howard County youth was treated and released from a local hospital Thursday after a live .22 cartridge he was handling discharged and struck him in the hand.

Bobby Klug, 16, was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center Emergency Room about 7 p.m. after he dropped the live long rifle shell he was playing with. The rifle shell, an old .22 cartridge, struck the floor and discharged, striking him in the right index finger, according to a sheriff's report.

The accident reportedly occured at a residence on Wasson Road at 4 p.m., but Klug did not did not go to Scenic Mountain until about 7 p.m., the report said. There was no mention of a reason for the delay. There were no witnesses to the incident.

Brothers held in death

FORT STOCKTON - Two brothers who hold jobs in Big Spring are in custody at the Pecos County Sheriff's Department in lieu of $50,000 bond each today after being arrested in connection with the death of a Fort Stockton man.

Jose Avila, 28, who gave a Howard County road address as his place of residence and Juan Manuel Avila, 33, who listed a room number at the Golden West Motel as his address, turned themselves in to the Pecos County authorities Thursday, Fort Stockton Police Sgt. Ken Maninger said today. The men are from Fort Stockton but have jobs in Big Spring, he said.

Warrants for their arrest in connection with the death of a Fort Stockton man, Juan Jose Sariba, 37, had been issued in, Maninger said It's believed the two brothers and Sariba had an argument before the Fort Stockton man's death, Maninger said. "We're still trying to sort it all out," he said. Sariba suffered injuries to the head and neck but the cause of death is still undetermined; an autopsy has been ordered, Maninger said.

Water line break

A major water line break at Fifth and Johnson streets today is likely to result in a cutoff to residences and businesses for much of Johnson Street and some of the surrounding blocks for most of the day, a city spokesperson said.

"It will be at least today (before it's fixed)," the spokesperson said. Poor weather may hamper attempts to fix the line, she said.

The water line cutoff will effect residences and businesses from Second to 10th Street on Johnson Street and two to three blocks east and west of Johnson, said the spokesperson, who described the water line as "one of our major lines in the downtown area.

United Blood Services is the nonprofit community blood provider serving patients at the VA Medical Center, Hall Bennett Hospital and Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

Since blood cannot be manufactured or synthesized and can be stored only 42 days, a safe and adequate supply of blood must be available to meet the needs of area hospital patients.

Blood used by patients in the United Blood Services system is freely provided by volunteer blood donors, so there is no

High school enrollments drop in area

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

Although Howard County public schools reported drops in secondary school enrollment for the past school year, gains in the lower grades allowed Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan's overall figures to remain largely unchanged.

All three schools reported a drop in secondary enrollment figures, and decreased high school attendance will likely result in a drop in UIL classification for Coahoma and Forsan when realignment occurs in January.

Coahoma, currently a AAA school, will likely drop to AA after the 1989-90 school year, Superintendent Gary Rotan said. "We were right on the (AAA) cutoff point last year," he said, "and our enrollment's down from that survey. Unless we have a lot of high school students enroll, we'll likely drop to AA.

Coahoma had a secondary enrollment of 264 this school year, compared to 283 the year before.

Class AA Forsan also is facing a probable drop in classification, according to Superintendent J.F. Poyner. The high school had an enrollment of 117 this year - 22 below the AA cutoff point, he said. Big Spring secondary schools recorded an enrollment of 2.031 on the last day of school this year, a drop of 97 from the same time last year. But that drop was offset by enrollment gains in kindergarten and elementary and, as a result, Big Spring reported a district-wide gain of 45 students from the 1987-88 school year.

"Even with a decrease in secondary enrollment, we had enough of an overall increase to reflect greater enrollment," Assistant Superintendent for Instruction and Personnel Murray Murphy said. "Our enrollment pretty well bottomed out as of two years ago, and I think we'll see a slow, steady increase for the next 5-10 years.' Coahoma also experienced a slight enrollment increase from the previous year, reporting 920 students in 1989, compared to 917 in "Our enrollment had been going pretty well downward," Rotan said. "It bottomed out in '87-88, and now we're holding our own. I anticipate it will remain stable."

Forsan's final enrollment figures this year reflect a drop of 18 from • ENROLLMENT page 3-A

NEW YORK - Some Chinese army officers favor the goals of the democracy movement, but the military as a whole is still largely sympathetic to hard-liners who ordered the recent crackdown, academic experts on China say.

Any conflicts within the military over the handling of student unrest are unlikely to flare into major confrontations among army units,

"The army has always opted for unity. The instinct of most Chinese soldiers is to unite behind bad policy instead of breaking up,' said Harvey Jencks, a research associate at the University of California at Berkeley and an expert on the Chinese military.

University of Miami. "These kids in the army are there grudgingly and are not sophisticated. They will protect themselves first," she said. The Chinese experts also said many army officers have their careers tied to the Communist Party and the privileges of rank, and are unlikely to rebel.

'The officer corps of the PLA is made up almost exclusively of Chinese Communist Party members," said Jurgen Domes, a West German professor who is a visiting scholar at the Center for Chinese Studies at Berkeley.

"A sizeable majority are secondgeneration military, members of a privileged class whose privilege is bound to their position in the military.

Domes said these secondgeneration officers have fewer options — and, therefore, a higher stake in the status quo - than student dissidents who are sons and daughters of party cadres. The intellectuals have had the opportunity to go abroad or seek a understanding of the issues.

Domes agreed, saying that 40 percent of the army's rank-and-file are "illiterate peasants with no understanding or even awareness' of the principles for which prodemocracy activists are striving.

Unlike others, Jencks saw widespread army support for the student protesters, but he predicted the desire for unity would prevail.

"Probably, a majority of the army sympathizes with the students, but they won't shoot each other over it," he said.

Nelsen was the only academician interviewed by The Associated Press who saw substantial political divisions between the 27th Army and other army units. The 27th Army is believed to have carried out the brunt of attacks against

Risky emissions reason plant listed as EPA's worst polluter

Port Neches plant ranks at the top of a list of the most dangerous chemical air polluters, according to a California congressman's findings now under attack by industry officials.

Texaco released a five-page statement challenging Rep. Henry Waxman's allegations Thursday as "totally unsupported by any technical and scientific facts or by employee health records.'

According to Waxman's list, based on Environmental Protection Agency data, the Port Neches plant releases toxic emissions that pose a one-in-10 risk of cancer. Environmentals contend the plant poses a "clear and present

Texaco, however, said Waxman's conclusions were based on plant configurations which no longer exist, have been refuted by tests on actual emissions, and are in "total disregard of the millions of dollars in environmental expenditures which were made at this

> Said Texaco Chemical Co. Chairman Willis B. Reals: "The claims about activities at our Port Neches plant are totally unsubstantiated by any technical and scientific data and they raise serious questions as to the objectivity and balance of this legislative effort.

> Government and other industry officials also said the data released by Waxman was outdated, based on assumptions, and not an indicator of cancer risk

Waxman used 1984 EPA data to identify 205 industrial facilities that have at least a one-in-1,000 cancer risk, while the EPA deems a risk of more than one-in-a-million as unacceptable.

More than 30 plants in Texas made the list, most of them chemical or petroleum plants along the Texas Gulf Coast from Corpus Christi to Orange County. Only one plant nationwide, Texaco's butadiene plant in Port cancer risk of 1-in-10.

EPA spokesman Roger Meacham in Dallas said the data was never intended to estimate the risk of cancer and was gathered to identify sources and categories of pollution.

"You can't use these figures, this data, as an accurate measure of the cancer risk," Meacham said. "This data is so old to be essentially useless except for locating pollutants.'

He said a person would have to be within 200 meters of a plant for 70 years, 24 hours a day, to be exposed to the level of contaminates that would cause cancer. Daniel Weiss, Washington director of the Sierra Club's pollution program, said he believes the EPA figures are reliable indicators of toxic-emissions hot spots around the country. "The people in these com-

Airport screening tests catch 93 percent of weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airport screening is catching a record 93 percent of mock weapons concealed by agents in tests of the system, according to federal authorities, but airlines still are being fined for letting some slip through.

The Federal Aviation Administration announced $1.25 million in fines Thursday against 28 U.S. airlines, bringing total fines for security lapses over the past year and a half to $5.2 million. A single undetected weapon can cost an airline up to $10,000. The most lapses in the latest round of fines were cited against United Airlines, which would have to pay $167,000 for 23 security falldowns, the FAA said.

Growth predicted for state

HOUSTON (AP) - Despite significant population declines over the past few years, U.S. Census Bureau estimates released today project the state's population will see strong growth in the future and will exceed New York by the end of the century

The Census Bureau is predicting that Texas will grow by 21.1 percent during the remainder of the century, pushing the number of residents well past that of New York, which now holds the No. 2

California is the most populous state in the nation, and the bureau estimates it will hold that lead.

Demographer Campbell Gibson said the bureau expects 20,211,000 people will be living in Texas by the year 2000, compared to 17,986,000 in New York.

According to the latest estimates, Texas now has 16,841,000 residents.

Census Bureau analysts cautioned that the new population projections may be optimistic because they are based on growth trends that occurred between 1980 and 1986 and therefore do not include events of the last two years, when fallout from the decline in oil prices was most severe.

"We only really had one year of the downturn (included in statistics)," Signe Wetrogan of the bureau's population projections branch told The Houston Post's

Washington bureau.

Still, the experts believe the figures still will prove basically correct as far as Texas' growth

"If I had to make a wager, I would bet the Texas population will still exceed New York's by the year 2000," Gibson said. "Texas could still grow a lot more slowly and still exceed New York.' Wetrogan said that in making the population projections, she already included factors to "temper down" the effect of Texas' phenomenal growth in the early 1980s, which reached a high of 4.1 percent between 1981 and 1982. More than 430,000 people moved into the state in that oil boom year, the largest 'inmigration'' of the decade.

Between 1986 and 1987, experts said, 86,000 more people moved out of Texas than moved in. Last year, the figure grew to 124,000.

But Texas still managed to register an 18 percent growth rate between the years 1980 and 1987, making it the fifth-fastest growing state in the country.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

 Robert Jay Taylor, 27, 1518 Washington Blvd., was arrested on a warrant charging him with theft by check.

 A woman who resides in the 700 block of San Jacinto Street reported the theft of a $30 purse and $150 in jewelry.

 A man who resides in the 800 block of West 16th Street reported the unlawful discharge of a weapon within city limits, cruelty to an animal and disposal of a dead dog.

1988, but Poyner also noted that his district's figures have fluctuated for the past several years, making it difficult to forecast any trends.

"We were moving steadily upward through 1984-85," he said. "Then the oil disaster hit . . . and we had a little bit of steady fall-off. We're fairly steady now . . . I don't anticipate it changing much."

As for the decrease in secondary enrollment, all three men said that was merely a reflection of statewide trends

"It's an historical trend in all secondary schools," Murphy said. "The attrition rate, the drop-out rate, the move rate; it's a culmination of many different things."

Continental, Delta, Northwest and Trans World airlines would each have to pay in excess of $100,000 for 16 or more failures to detect mock weapons or explosives, the FAA said. Fines against others ranged down to $1,000 for single violations.

The fines, which are either $1,000 or $10,000 per violation depending on the airport checkpoint's overall record, were proposed in letters sent to the airlines, which can appeal the assessments. Fines at airports where detection is less than 95 percent are at the higher rate.

The FAA does not disclose which airports it checks or where the security lapses occur.

In all, the airlines' X-rays, metal detectors or hand searches of passengers and luggage allegedly failed 179 times in tests since late last vear

The FAA said detection has improved steadily under a program of stepped-up enforcement begun in October 1987. The rate of detection then was 78.9 percent. It increased to 85.6 percent during the first six months of 1988, to 88.9 percent in the July-September period, and to 93 percent in tests conducted up to March 1989, the FAA said.

Airlines are responsible for screening all passengers and their carry-on items and are fined for violations even though screening is sometimes performed by another airline or by a contracted security agency. Each airline using a screening station when a lapse occurs is fined

The FAA said it ran more than 6,800 checks at U.S. airports last year. The agency does not conduct testing at foreign airports where screening is often performed with the direct participation of governments.

In addition to United, five airlines were cited for a dozen or more lapses: Delta, 19 violations for $136,000; Continental, 19 for $127,000; Northwest, 18 for $99,000; TWA, 16 for $133,000, and American, 12 for $75,000.

Other airliens and their violations and fines were:

Aloha, 2 for $20,000; Alaska, 1 for $10,000; American West, 1 for $10,000; Atlantic Southwest, 2 for $2,000; Braniff, 6 for $24,000;. Legal residents need legal aid

The undocumented immigrants who came out of hiding and applied for amnesty wanted to live in this country as legal residents. At least, that's what the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 reform law seemed to

No longer would they be hunted and deported. No longer would they have to live and work in fear as an exploited subclass. No longer could people arbitrarily deny them the freedoms that American citizens enjoy.

But it's one thing to have rights, quite another to exercise them in a complex society like ours. If people don't have access to legal advice, what will they do if they're evicted from their apartments for discriminatory reasons? If they're involved in a child-custody dispute? If they're disabled on the job and unfairly denied benefits? If a wife needs to be protected from a violent

To make sure those who can't afford attorneys get the help they need, the federal government's Legal Services Corp. channels funds to local legal-aid organizations. These groups provide lawyers to the poor at little or no cost to the clients.

Amnesty applicants, most of them low-income — many long deprived of their rights — surely should qualify. But the Legal Services Corp. is trying to deny them this service on grounds that it is a form of prohibited federal financial assistance.

The other day, U.S. District Judge Thelton E. Henderson temporarily halted the agency's plan to block federal legal aid for those in the amnesty program. The Legal Services Corp. should reconsider in light of the stay and drop a plan that would cause hardship for many newly legalized residents.

It's true that as part of the immigration-reform package, Congress insisted that amnesty applicants receive no welfare benefits. But the Legal Services Corp. has gone to absurd lengths to define legal assistance as federal aid. By those standards, the children of amnesty applicants ought to be barred from attending any public school receiving federal funds.

The government is required to provide attorneys for indigent defendants accused of crimes, even if they are amnesty applicants. It makes no sense to deny them legal help in civil cases, when they may be the victims of abuse.

Our system of laws must apply to all. It couldn't function properly when millions of undocumented workers were exploited and denied their rights, Amnesty, was and at supposed to empower its participants to fight back through the legal system. By trying to handicap them, the Legal Services Corp. makes a mockery of equal justice

Loop-holes not for exploitation

To the editor: Well, We The People won another one! I am referring of course to the resignation of Jim Wright over unethical improprieties.

The most disturbing point of this whole incident is not the fact that the Speaker of the House was caught with his hands in the proverbial cookie jar, but his adamant denial that he did anything wrong. Mr. Wright seems to be sincere in his belief that his acceptance of inordinately large royalties and bulk orders of his book in lieu of honorariums is perfectly within the limits of the law. Technically, he's right. What the unscrupulous Mr. Wright has done is attempt to exploit an unintentional loop-hole in the rules. A man of his supposed stature should have recognized that this scheme to line his pockets is a repugnant violation of public trust

It has become prevalent these days for industrial governmental officials to exert their energies towards finding ways to beat the system. Technically legal, ethically and morally wrong. These loopholes are merely flaws in an imperfect system, and were not purposely designed. Self-respecting public servants should not take advantage of them because "everyone else does.

I realize the problem is not confined to the government but is widespread throughout the private sector. Still, there is measure of perverse pleasure in squashing one scoundrel, even though most get away

It's fun to support city

To the editor:

I would like to extend my sincere thanks to the members of the Cultural Affairs Committee of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce for their recent recognition of me as "Cultural Affairs Man of the Year" for 1989.

This is an accomplishment of a dream come true; I feel that civic recognition of contributions to the community is one of the highest awards a person can receive. But in the back of my mind, it was a goal I knew could be reached, because of the many cultural opportunities in which I was able to participate here in Big Spring.

We can all take pride in the productions of the Big Spring Symphony and the Spring City Theatre, the entertainment and competition provided by the Big Spring Rodeo, the number and variety of artisans in the Big Spring Art Association, the variety of shows sponsored by various community organizations, and other opportunities too numerous to mention.

There are so many different ways to grow and share in our cultural atmosphere! More so than any other town of its size, Big Spring has a rich cultural heritage in which it can be proud!

I encourage everyone to support the many cultural events in Big Spring. You'll not only be surprised at the quality, but also at the variety of events that you can enjoy as a spectator and often as a participant!

Those of us in the cultural community are working hard to see that Big Spring not only has unique but quality cultural opportunities. Please support us and our community by becoming more involved in our cultural affairs! You'll be amazed at how much fun you'll have supporting Big Spring!

SOMETHING TO LOOK FOR-WARD TO — The man who brought China out of its isolation, Deng Xiaoping, introduced reforms in China long before Mikhail Gorbachev came to power in the Soviet Union. But Deng reached the point that the reforms threatened his own power base. The students demonstrating in the streets are demanding more than he is willing to give. Gorbachev must have felt a particular unease being in the center of the demonstrations on his recent visit to China. Deng is trodding a path that Gorbachev will have to go down, too.

MINI-EDITORIAL Washington, D.C. frequently grumbles about the diplomatic immunity that lets foreign diplomats off the hook for crimes. But the U.S. government practices a reverse form of immunity and the taxpayers pick up the bill. The Washington Post reports that a U.S. foreign service officer now doing jail time for using his diplomatic passport to smuggle gold is still collecting his salary. Foreign service officers can't be fired without a hearing, and the hearing process takes months. The wheels of justice moved fast enough to put the man in jail, but the wheels of government can't get him off the payroll.

Congress decides to quit

By LEWIS GRIZZARD And now the news:

Every member of Congress resigned today rather than face investigations into their personal finances.

Said former House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., "I have no plans for the future, but for the record, I wouldn't buy a worm from Jim Wright.

It was the Gingrich-inspired investigation into Mr. Wright's finances that set the congressional dominoes to falling.

When it appeared Mr. Wright might be forced to resign, his apparent successor, Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., was also hit by an investigtion and, rather than being investigated any further.

After cleaning out his desk, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., once thought to be presidential timber, was asked what he would miss the most about his congressional post.

"Being on 'Nightline," he answered.

The unprecedented mass resignations hit Washington like a tidal wave

Said Washington Post Editor Ben Bradlee, "I haven't had this much fun since we got Nixon."

Asked who the Post would investigate now with no members of Congress remaining as targets, Mr. Bradlee said, 'We're looking into the personal finances of Michael Jordan. Let's see him jump out of this take over the duties of the entire legislative branch in the interim. The president said he expects the first lady to be "tough as "I feel very confident that once (Tutu) arrives there will be enormous pressure on Harvard to divest," said Robert Wolff, director of Harvard-Radcliffe Alumni Against Apartheid.

Tutu's victory was the only one claimed by the pro-divestment coalition, which ran four other candidates against an official slate of 10 people backed by the Harvard Alumni Association.

Actor John Lithgow and U.S. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole, both endorsed by the alumni assocation, were the top votegetters in the write-in election open to all Harvard degreeholders. Tutu came in fourth.

Eastern pilots dismiss proposal

MIAMI (AP) — Striking pilots session since the strike began at Eastern Airlines dismissed a new contract proposal from the company as a "public relations hoax," saying the carrier wanted to annul the union's contract rather than settle the walkout.

Eastern is seeking temporary pay and vacation cuts similar to those it imposed on non-union workers last week. The airline needs the concessions to emerge from bankruptcy, the company said at a news conference Thursday.

But the union complained angrily that Eastern announced the proposal at the news conference before presenting it to union negotiators. The parties met at their second negotiating been filled.

"Obviously the cameras are more important than the contract," said Ron Cole, spokesman for the Air Line Pilots Association. "It's nothing more than a public relations hoax presented to establish a paper trail to the doors of the bankruptcy court, where we expect Eastern will file for abrogation of our contract."

Even if the pilots accepted the new proposal, Eastern is offering to take back only 950 union pilots. The airline had 3,500 pilots before the strike began but will need only 1,700 under its plan to rebuild to about 65 percent of its prestrike size. Many of the positions have leader Deng Xiaoping today appeared in public for the first time in more than three weeks in a show of solidarity with hard-line leaders believed behind the military invasion and occupation of Beijing. The 84-year-old Deng, speaking forcefully in a nationally televised speech, praised the suppression of the pro-democracy movement in an address to officers of the People's Liberation Army. He thanked the military for their actions, which resulted in the deaths of hundreds if not thousands of Beijing residents.

On his right was conservative Premier Li Peng, who declared martial law in Beijing on May 20.

Deng has not been seen in public since he met Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on May 16. There have been numerous rumors in recent weeks that he was dead or critically ill.

Also sitting at an oval table were old guard revolutionaries who have returned to the political front to ensure party supremacy in the wake of increasing popular dissatisfaction over the lack of freedom and political reform in China.

They included President Yang Shangkun, believed a major figure in ordering the troops into Beijing, former Politburo member Bo Yi tions of more sanctions on China

Congress Chairman Peng Zhen. Like the Deng, all are in their 80's.

Conspicuously absent from the gathering was Communist Party General Secretary Zhao Ziyang, who was reportedly stripped of power by Deng after opposing the military crackdown on the students

Qiao Shi, a Politburo Standing Committee member and a top candidate to replace Zhao, was present, as was Vice Premier Yao Yilin, a conservative economist and Wan Li, current National People's Congress chief.

Chinese Red Cross officials estimate 3,600 people were killed and 60,000 injured in the assault, according to a Chinese group in West Germany, the Union of Chinese Students in the Federal Republic. The government says 300 people, mostly soldiers, were killed; Chinese and diplomats say up to 3,000 died.

President Bush late Thursday said the United States "can't have totally normal relations" with China until the government there recognizes the rights of the students who led the prodemocracy demonstrations.

However, Bush in a televised news conference rejected sugges

Talks with PLO accomplish little

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) - The talks between the United States and the PLO have shown little progress so far, with both sides appearing more interested in maintaining regular contacts than registering complaints.

U.S. Ambassador Robert Pelletreau Jr. and PLO executive committee member Yasser Abd-Rabbou on Thursday held their third meeting since December in an attempt to advance the Middle East peace process.

Pelletreau said he devoted the 41/2-hour meeting Thursday to trying to persuade the Palestine Liberation Organization to agree to elections in the Israelioccupied West Bank and Gaza Strip as proposed by Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir. The elections "should be free and fair, open to the media and outside observers and entail as broad a participation as possible," Pelletreau said. He added he hoped the PLO will "seriously consider this idea, and that Palestinians and Arab governments will also respond constructively.

The Shamir plan calls for the 1.7 million Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories to elect representatives to negotiate with Israel for autonomy. Later talks would determine the final status of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, but Israel says an independent Palestinian state is out of the

The PLO, which has declared a Palestinian state, has rejected the Israeli plan for elections.

Botha extends emergency again

JOHANNESBURG, South "unrest-related violence is still Africa (AP) — President P.W. unacceptably high." Botha today extended the national state of emergency for a fourth year in a bid to further quell black unrest and maintain a clampdown on opposition political groups.

Despite a sharp decline in political violence during the past year, Botha said black revolutionaries still were plotting to undermine his white-led government.

"By applying the emergency measures the government succeeded in stopping the widespread violence by radicals," Botha said.

But, Botha said in a statement made public at midnight, revolutionaries are "continuing underground to mobilize and to exert their influence" and

Anti-apartheid groups said Botha's decision would further polarize the deeply divided country "The apartheid policy is so acutely unacceptable to the majority of the people of South Africa that apartheid government can be maintained only by force," said Zach de Beer, the white leader of the anti-apartheid Democratic Party.

Botha gave no indication of any changes in the regulations, which make it illegal to call for boycotts or foreign sanctions, to seek to undermine the security forces or to report on police activity or unrest without permission. Most forms of peaceful protest also are

NATO chiefs meet for final talks

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — NATO defense ministers today met for their second and final day of strategy talks, and a U.S. official said they were expected to reaffirm a goal to increase annual defense spending by 3 percent in real terms.

An aide to U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said on Thursday the ministers agreed "to maintain the defense efforts" even though NATO seeks deep cuts in conventional troops and weapons with the Moscow-led Warsaw Pact at arms talks in Vienna.

dition of anonymity, said the ministers will reaffirm the longstanding goal that all 16 North American Treaty Organization nations raise their defense budgets by 3 percent a year after inflation.

Although most allies have failed to meet that goal in recent years, he said it was important the objective not be dropped for fear of sending the "wrong signal" to the Warsaw Pact nations.

Glaucoma victim hopes for legal marijuana use

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) -Elvy Musikka begins most days like she ends them — smoking a legal joint and hoping others like her can do the same some day.

Either rolled like a cigarette or baked into brownies, marijuana has been in Musikka's life for more than 12 years as she tried to lessen the effects of glaucoma, which has left her with only 10 percent of her

Yet she clearly sees herself as a crusader for the thousands of glaucoma victims around the United States denied legal use of the drug that reduces the high eye pressure caused by the disease.

"I think people have every right to sue the government for keeping them from what could be their one hope left of keeping their sight,' said Musikka, 44, one of three people given government-grown marijuana for medical reasons

"I am constantly haunted by the idea there are others who will never see the stars again or look upon their children because they were denied a simple plant."

Musikka's application for legal marijuana was approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in October, two months after a Broward Circuit Court judge was persuaded to clear her of marijuana-growing charges

Each month, Musikka receives 300 marijuana cigarettes shipped to Bascom Palmer Eye Institute in Miami

If she smokes, it's a joint every three hours. "But actually I prefer to eat it," said Musikka. "You feel less stoned and it lasts longer. I can eat some pot brownies and go about 12 hours. Also, your throat doesn't get-so raspy." Musikka has turned to music since her limited sight keeps her from working. She now travels around Florida discussing marijuana treatment for glaucoma and promoting her newly released foursong record partially funded by a $6,000 grant from the state Division of Blind Services

Randall, president of the Alliance for Cannabis Therapeutics in Washington, said Musikka is only the third person to be guaranteed a supply of marijuana

"I can't explain why the government is withholding marijuana while people are going blind," said

FDA spokeswoman Susan Cruzan said no figures are available on the number of people given marijuana under medical experiments.

U.S. savings bonds keep up with the times

NEW YORK (AP) - In their search for a hip investment for the sophisticated 1990s, some advisers are putting aside their computers and their calculators and recommending U.S. savings bonds.

Why such an old plain-vanilla idea when so many newer and more exotic flavors are available? Well, for one thing, recent

Environmentalists see growing need to potty train society

EDITOR'S NOTE - The disposable diaper, that grand convenience for new parents, now looms as an environmental threat. Each year, landfills bury 16 billion of them, loaded with chemicals and human waste and neatly wrapped in impermeable plastic. They may remain intact indefinitely. The first story in a two-part project, "Dirty Diapers," reports on the problems of disposable diapers in America's waste stream. Sunday's story examines the $3.5 billion diaper industry and the growing pressure on it to make changes.

By FRED BAYLES AP National Writer

Snigger if you will, but Carl Lehrburger sees nothing funny about disposable diapers in the garbage.

'Once people get over the frivolousness of the subject, they will begin to comprehend the sheer magnitude of the problem," said Lehrburger, an Albany,/ N.Y., recycling expert who crusades against what he calls single-use

Lehrburger warns that products with such comforting names as Pampers, Huggies and Luvs are ecological booby traps, clogging the nation's landfills with an unhealthy legacy of indestructible, urine-soaked, feces-bearing, of discarded paper, plastic, bottles If measured by approximate plastic-and-paper time capsules. "Our job is to potty train society in terms of how we handle our waste," he said. Toss-away diapers transformed infant care when they were introduced 27 years ago. An onerous task became easier, cleaner and time-consuming. Families with infants and young children could travel with ease. An entire eneration has matured never knowing the pricks of diaper pins or odor of diaper pails. But now the wonder product is under scrutiny for what happens after it leaves baby's bottom. Last month Nebraska banned the sale of non-biodegradable diapers, effective in 1993. Lawmakers have debated disposable diapers in Iowa, Oregon and Washington.

Although landfill managers and environmental officials worry more about heavy metals and other toxic wastes leaking into ground water, there is a growing awareness that disposable diapers contribute mightily to what is known in the garbage trade as the waste stream."

Best estimates say disposables account for a relatively small 1 percent to 2 percent of the nation's refuse each year. But disposables can be disposed of only by burning or burial. As a greater percentage and cans is recycled, the problems posed by disposable diapers will become more significant.

"I wouldn't put diapers right at the top of my priority list. I'm more worried about car batteries. But we are concerned about them.' said Edward Klein, deputy director of the Environmental Protection Agency's Municipal Waste Program. "There are a lot of unanswered questions about them."

Challenges to disposable diapers spring not only from selfless concern about the environment. Lehrburger's research is financed by a cotton diaper industry campaigning to recapture its market. The sponsors of the Nebraska law noted that since biodegradable diapers use plastic made from cornstarch, what might be good for the environment might also be good for corn farmers.

Nevertheless, the disposable diaper presents several specific problems of contamination and decomposition.

The main environmental worry is numerical. More than 16 billion used diapers went from nurseries to landfills last year. Two billion more were incinerated.

By volume, 16 billion used diapers would blanket 25 football fields — and reach 30 stories high.

weight, that many diapers could fill up the wandering garbage barge of 1987 every six hours for 322 consecutive days.

The diaper industry says the 18 billion diaper total amounts to half of 1 percent of the 160 million tons of garbage accumulated last year. Lehrburger puts it around 2 percent of the total and says that would make diapers the third largest single product in the American trash pile, behind newspapers and containers for food and beverages

When you have a product that has a life of maybe a few hours and ends up constituting 2 percent of our municipal solid waste, it is not an insignificant number," he said. Another problem is that disposable diapers cannot be recycled, for reasons less obvious than what babies deposit in them. While 60 percent of a disposable diaper is wood pulp and fluff that would normally decompose easily, this is enclosed in an armor of plastic that can keep it intact indefinitely

"Disposable diapers are a combination of paper fiber and plastic and human waste, so that is a difficult product to deal with," said Jay Shephard, a supervisor in the Washington state Department of Ecology.

In addition, the "ultra" absorbent disposable diapers contain 'acrylic absorbers,' crystals of an oil-based polymer that can absorb up to 80 times their weight in moisture. The chemical crystals turn into a thick gel when wet.

A third factor is the contents of used diapers. Beyond the regular diseases carried in human waste, babies' feces carry intestinal viruses that cause polio, hepatitis and meningitis.

No immediate solution to the diaper dilemma seems clear. Several smaller companies are marketing biodegradable diapers using cornstarch-based plastics that break down faster than a regular plastic shell. But not many hold out hope for that as a solution.

Alternatives to disposables available

NEW YORK (AP) - Eskimo women used moss. Navajo squaws used soft bark. European women knit them from wool.

For thousands of years, diapering has been women's work. So it's no surprise women are championing innovative alternatives to the 18 billion / ecologically suspect disposable tiapers plopped into landfills or incinerated each year.

In the process, these women have spawned a cottage industry built around cloth diapers.

Gone are the days of pins, stuck babies and leaky plastic pants. The advent of the diaper wrap — a panty-like cover that fastens snugly with Velcro and holds a diaper in place without pins — has simplified cloth diapering, making it a more method of choice for a growing number of parents.

"My main concern was that I didn't want to put plastic on my baby. I wanted breathability and cloth, not paper," said Margorie Magidow, 38 and mother of three.

In 1983, Magidow concocted her own diaper wrap, sewing a cover Cooper and Anita Diffiondstein, that surrounds a cotton diaper and former college roommates now in is fastened with Velcro. She added some pizzazz with color, made them relatively cheaply and used breathable, quick-drying nylon.

Today she runs a factory with 20 sewers who turned out the more than 50,000 Rubber Duckies wraps sold last year through her R. Duck Co. in Santa Barbara, Calif.

"I'd say in the last six months interest has almost doubled because so many people are switching to cloth," Magidow said.

In Asheville, N.C., Becky Kubota is swamped distributing Nikkys, plush wraps made in Japan, where cloth diapers are the standard among the middle and upper

A week's worth of diapers from a service costs $8 to $15, cheaper than their disposable counterparts. (Assuming a baby needs 80 diapers a week, disposables cost anywhere from $17.50 to $20.)

But the wraps, which come in various sizes, are an added expense. Madigow's Rubber Duckies sell for about $5.50 apiece, while the top-of-the-line woolen Nikky costs $16. Companies recommend parents purchase five or six wraps, each of which lasts through several diaper changes.

Wool is considered the best material because it's highly absorbent and doesn't get cold when wet, but cotton covers are more popular because they're cheaper.

Dr. George Sterne, a New Orleans pediatrician and professor at Tulane University, said he believes bables get lewer rashes with cloth diapers and prefers them if they are used without plastic pants, which provide a warm breeding ground for

According to Biobottoms' Cooper, plastic can raise temperatures inside the diaper to as high as 104 degrees. "Imagine wearing a shower cap 24 hours a day," she said.

While no studies have been conducted on who uses cloth diapers. many advocates suspect it's an upper-middle class trend. "These are environmentally conscious people who shop from eatalogs,' Kubota said. "They're people who take more time to make a purchase decision.

Sterne generally agreed."People who are very low income don't have washing machines and can't get diaper service," he said.

Wife looking for direction in affair

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old female, married nearly five years (no children), and have been having an affair for several months. Late last year I realized that I was not happy. My husband started a new consulting job at that time and worked every evening until 9 or 10 p.m. and all day Saturday. I saw less and less of him, and felt lonely and frustrated. We argued a lot and I kept telling him I was not happy. He told me if our marriage did not work out it would be because I wasn't understanding enough that he was working for our future.

Innocently enough, I asked one of my clients to a client appreciation luncheon. We had a wonderful time, and after I left him, I felt something deep within my heart for this man. I passed it off as "flirting" fun: then he called me a few days later and invited me to lunch. I felt like a schoolgirl again. To make a long story short, more lunches followed, and I knew he was special enough to risk any marriage for. That's how our affair

Now I know that I love this man life with him. The problem is that I really do love my husband and don't want to hurt him. How did this happen? How can I be in love with two men? Is my affair true love, or am I substituting the lack of love at home for an exciting affair with another man?

Dear Abby

We both decided to end our affair on the last day of 1988. It didn't work. We saw each other again because we couldn't stay away from each other.

The guilt is killing me. Meanwhile my husband is working so hard he doesn't seem to notice. Please help me. — IN LOVE WITH TWO MEN IN TEXAS

DEAR IN LOVE: You need more help than I can give you in a letter. You (and your husband) need to find the time to discuss your marriage and evaluate it. Here we go again - I am recommending a family counselor.
You do not mention whether your new love is married or has children.

How your affair "happened" is no mystery. in your bored and lonely state and were unconsciously looking for the attention and excitement you hungered for.

There are many unanswered questions here. If you left your husband for this new man, who would be hurt? The answers to your questions can be found through counseling. One thing is certain: There's no free lunch. You can't build happiness on the misery of others.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Mrs. G. in L.A." not to shoot herself shoot her husband instead. (Only kidding.) She said her husband, age 72, was having a delayed midlife crisis and is divorcing her. I know how she feels. My husband of 20 years walked out on me shortly after our daughter turned 16. He said he was going to "find himself." (He also took along his 30-year-old girlfriend and her teenage son!)

I have (mentally) shot him, poisoned him and strangled him at least once a week since he took a hike. I realize I am only fantasizing, but it helps me cope with the anger, hostility and stress I feel.

Tell Mrs. G. to hang in there. Counseling helps — individually, in a group or both. Also, don't shut out friends who want to help but cannot find the words. Keep busy, volunteer, take classes at a local college or trade school. Most of all, pain does diminish.

Thanks for giving me a chance to BEEN THERE IN unload. WISCONSIN

DEAR ABBY: You missed the boat on the letter from the "Savannah Cop" who appealed to you to uniformed patrolman, he probably has no say in department policy or programs. Second, it's not the schools or the department he is appealing to, it's the parents. If parents have already instilled fear of policemen in their children, then giving talks to schools isn't going to help change that. Many departments do work with schools in this area, but it's not enough. Abby, you should help educate the parents. They cannot use the image of the "cop" to threaten their children, and then turn around and expect the

Whether or not his police depart-

Peace Corp prepares for China

WASHINGTON (AP) - Chinese and U.S. Peace Corps officials offered two-dozen Americans a boost this month as they began training for the Peace Corps' first-ever program in a communist country.

Lauding them as "the hand-clasp" between the two nations, Peace Corps Director Paul Coverdell told the volunteers at a modest ceremony that they were embarking on a mission and taking a special piece of our country with you."

Despite the weeks of political tur-moil in China, the band of 23 Peace Corps volunteers began a monthlong training program today on the American University campus.

The participants were treated to a series of inspirational speeches, cups of tea and good will wishes during the brief ceremony attended by Peace Corps officials and representatives from the Chinese embassy.

Xiao Houde, the counsellor of the Chinese embassy, said the program "is very important because it reflects the friendship between our two peoples. "You have a special responsibility. You will set an example for your followers," Xiao said. The ceremony marked the end of a more than four-year effort to bring the U.S. program to China. 'Our presence is definitely a sign of transition in the U.S.-China relationship," said James C. Flanigan, spokesman for the Peace Corp. "In the 1970s, we were reviled in China

as an imperialistic agency. As the Chinese aspired to impress lesser-developed nations during those years, the American volunteer agency bore the brunt of a Chinese propaganda attack in an attempt to blunt the U.S. effort in Asia. Radio China broadcast attacks against the Peace Corps, condemning the workers as agents for the CIA. Relations improved after President Nixon's historic trip to Beijing in 1972, but it wasn't until Election Night 1984 that the subject of a trial run for the corps was suggested by the Chinese.

Chinese officials had been invited to watch a broadcast of the U.S. election returns at the Great Wall Hotel in Beijing. A Chinese official approached an American official, saying there was interest in the Peace Corps program.

This is the first such program in a Communist country, and we're very hopeful that it will be a rela-Flanigan said.

Although the Chinese initially asked for some 800 volunteers, it was decided that "the emphasis should be on quality program, over a large number of volunteers."

The Chinese have requested English teachers for the trial run, and if both sides find the two-year program satisfactory, other types of volunteers in health, agriculture or other technical fields might be used, the spokesman said.

Some 23 volunteers have been chosen for the training program, which includes three months of study in language, culture and technical arts. By mid-August, 20 of the trainees will head for the heart of the Middle Kingdom -Chengdu in Sichuan province where they will teach English at three colleges and two universities.

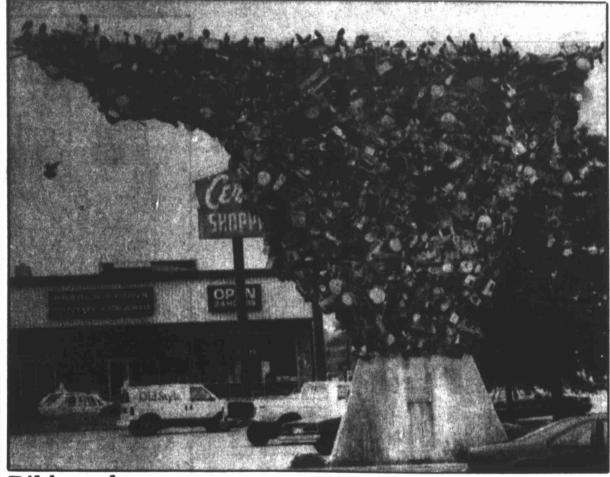

Flanigan said the group is composed of a variety of Americans, ranging from some Chinese-Americans to a Cuban American and even a former college presi-

Usually, the Peace Corps trains its volunteers in the host country in order to ease their transition and better their language skills. Flanigan noted that despite the demonstrations and political uncertainty that has gripped China in recent weeks, the trainees have several months to prepare, "and by then, things may shake down a little."

The Chinese are eager to have English teachers in order to help push forward with Deng Xioping's modernization program. Flanigan said the Corps has received no indications from China that the program would not move forward.

Universal vaccination suggested for hepatitis strategy for vaccinating against hepatitis B has not significantly curbed the disease, and it may make sense to inoculate every infant and 12-year-old instead, a federal expert says.

That would cost up to $150 million a year just for publicly funded programs, said Miriam Alter, head of hepatitis surveillance at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. Hepatitis B infections cost the nation more than $700 million a year in treatment and lost worktime.

No cost-effectiveness analysis of the massive vaccination approach has been done, but "that's what we think is the ideal strategy," Alter

CDC is not now recommending it because no money is available, and much organizing among pediatricians, parents and local health departments would be required before it could begin, she said in an interview, adding she hoped it could be put in place "someday soon.'

An estimated 300,000 new hepatitis B infections occur every year in the United States, said Alter. The annual number of new cases rose 67 percent from 1978 to available in 1982. Some 5,000 to million.

NEW YORK (AP) — The current 6,000 Americans a year die from resulting liver disease, including chronic hepatitis, cirrhosis and cancer.

Vaccination is now recommended for people in high-risk groups. Because the virus can be spread by sexual contact or infected hypodermic needles, those at risk include homosexually active men, heterosexuals with multiple sex partners, health care workers, drug abusers and those who have sex with infected people.

Although about 2.5 million Americans have been vaccinated, Alter said, the effort has done little to stem the disease. At least 30 percent of the infected people don't come from any of the high-risk groups, and most inoculations have been given to health care workers, who comprised no more than 5 percent of hepatitis B cases even before the vaccine was available, she said.

Vaccinating every infant would be effective, but it would take years before the children got old enough to affect disease totals appreciably, Alter said. Including 12-year-olds at the same time would have a faster impact.

The two-pronged program would initially cost $100 million a year in 1985 although a vaccine became public funding and peak at $150

Lakers lose Magic, game

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) -The Lakers lost their Magic touch. Can their championship be far

"The Pistons must be the luckiest team in the country," Los Angeles guard Tony Campbell said, "in the world."

The Lakers chances of becoming only the third team in NBA history to win three consecutive titles sustained a severe blow when Magic Johnson, their leader, was hurt in the third quarter Thursday night.

He didn't come back. Detroit did. A 10-point run that opened the fourth quarter gave the Pistons their first lead, 94-92, and carried them to a 108-105 victory and a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 NBA Finals.

It's uncertain whether Johnson can play in Sunday's third game in Inglewood, Calif. Byron Scott, the other starting guard, missed the first two games and said he also would miss the third because of a hamstring injury suffered in

Although Los Angeles misses Scott's shooting and defensive quickness, the impact of his loss doesn't compare with that of Johnson, the NBA's most valuable player and the man who directs the Los Angeles attack.

'When Magic's not in the game, it's like when (Larry) Bird's not in the game or (Michael) Jordan's not in the game," said Detroit's Isiah Thomas, who had 13 of his 21 points after Johnson was injured.

Johnson strained his left hamstring with 4:39 left in the third quarter and the score 75-75. He stood at center court while his teammates huddled during a timeout. Then trainer Gary Vitti escorted him to the locker room.

"I felt a twinge early in the third quarter but thought everything was OK," Johnson said. "I pulled it trying to get back on defense.

Edmonton goalie retires after eight good seasons

WETASKIWIN, Alberta. (AP) — Goaltender Grant Fuhr figures he, like Rodney Dangerfield, doesn't get the respect he deserves, so he says he's ending his NHL career after eight illustrious seasons with the Edmonton Oilers.

The 26-year-old goaltender said Thursday night that he has filed his retirement papers with the NHL and his career "as of right now is over.'

Sitting in a golf cart after playing in a company tournament, Fuhr was visibly emotionally distraught at times as he tried to answer questions about his shocking decision.

Fuhr is regarded as the league's premier goaltender. He won the Vezina Trophy in 1987-88 when he also was the first-team all-star, and backstopped the Oilers to four Stanley Cup championships.

But he said "unjustifiable" things have been said and done to him in the Oiler dressing room "since Day One."

"Some things were said that never should have been said ... this has been building, ongoing for a long time ... you can't be belittled all the time.'

Fuhr's statements were shocking to reporters who cover the Oilers regularly because general manager-coach Glen Sather has, openly at least, usually treated his favorite goaltender with kid gloves. Sather's preferential treatment of Fuhr was a factor in Andy Moog's bitter departure in 1987.

Sather expressed dismay over Fuhr's talk of hostility between "Grant Fuhr has been treated with kid gloves from Day One,'

"Something monumental happened ..." said Fuhr's agent Rich Winter, who has been at Both Fuhr and Winter said they wouldn't reveal any details of what went on behind the closed dressing room doors. If there's any dirty laundry to be aired, they said, it would have to begin with the Oilers.

'My teammates will understand. I won't have to say anything to them," said Fuhr, who has five years remaining on a seven-year contract that reportedly paid him between $400,000 and $600,000 annually.

Winter said another factor in the decision was the refusal of Sather to sign the necessary approval papers to allow Fuhr to continue his endorsement obigations with equipment manufacturers.

"Glen said he would do everything is his power to help Grant ... then he wouldn't sign the papers," Winter said. "This is costing Grant a lot of money.

"Tommy's come a long way in eight years," Leonard said Thursday. "Now he can do a monologue."

Hearns livened up a final joint pre-fight appearance of the fighters Thursday by suggesting that Leonard used steroids to bulk up for Monday's scheduled 12-round fight.

Leonard is guaranteed $13 million while Hearns will earn at least $11 million. Both fighters will earn more if the fight revenues exceed certain

The bout is being televised on pay-per-view and closed-circuit to some 1,600 locations across the country.

"You're like you've been taking steroids or something,' Hearns told Leonard. "It's like you think you're a body builder. You've blown up like a big balloon.'

Hearns' manager, Emanuel Steward, took it a step further, saying he will ask the Nevada State Athletic Commission to test both fighters for steroid use before and after the fight.

Leonard, who has noticeably bulked up in the upper body for the fight, laughed off the allegation. His attorney, Mike Trainer, said he welcomed it.

"The message has gotten across that Ray's bigger and stronger than the man he fought in 1981," Trainer said. "They're throwing this out there to stir things up. It's fun."

Commission officials said they have no plans to test either fighter for steroids in the celebrated rematch, although both will give urine samples immediately following the fight which will be screened for other

Longhorns make LSU coach eat his words with 12-7 win

ponents at the College World Series are learning you don't tell the Texas Longhorns there's no way they're going to beat you.

A Miami player was heard by the Longhorns to say there was no way Texas could beat the Hurricanes. Texas won 12-2 in the West Division winners' bracket final Monday

Louisiana State Coach Skip Bertman said after the Tigers eliminated Miami the following night that he believed his ace pitcher Ben McDonald was better than Texas and that LSU would force a second semifinal game today.

Texas collected 13 hits, scored 12 runs again and handed LSU a going-away ticket with a 12-7 whipping in a CWS semifinal Thursday

The victory sends second-seeded Texas to the championship game with a 54-17 record. Sixth-seeded LSU ends its season 55-17.

Texas goes to the championship game for the eighth time to face the winner of tonight's 7:10 p.m. CDT East Division semifinal between No. 1 seed Florida State, 54-17, and No. 4 seed Wichita State, 66-16.

"I think I said and some other people said that very often these highly pumped pitching duels just don't develop that way. This was just another case of it," Texas coach Cliff Gustafson said.

Scott Bryant and Arthur Butcher drove in three runs each for Texas as the Longhorns erupted for four runs in the first, two in the second, one in the third and four more in the fourth off McDonald, the No. 1 pick in the Major League draft last

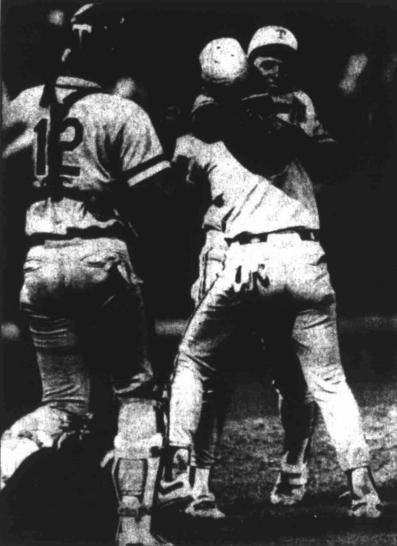

The matchup of McDonald, 14-4 with the loss, and Texas starter Kirk Dressendorfer, 18-2 with the win, drew a session record crowd of 16,072. The fans saw McDonald set a record not expected of the pitcher named College Player of the Year by Baseball America last week. The loss was McDonald's fourth career CWS loss. No other pitcher had lost more than three at the NCAA Division I championship.

"It's been tough here," McDonald said. "I haven't had a lot of luck. I cannot let it affect me and I have to go on.

The two teams did tie a CWS record with a combined 25 strikeouts, however. McDonald ended with six in his 3 13 innings. while Dressendorfer had nine in 6 23 innings. McDonald said he had to give

Texas credit, however.

The coaches of the two teams indicated their pitchers were ailing in the outing. Dressendorfer had a sore back "but he didn't want to come out," Gustafson said.

McDonald had a blister on his middle finger which prevented him from properly gripping his fastball, Bertman said. Still, it was the Texas bats that damaged the Tigers most. Bryant drove in two runs with a firstinning triple and singled to score another run in the fourth. His RBIs upped his school season record to Brian Dare came on to shut LSU down in the final 2 13 innings, collecting five strikeouts for Texas.

NEW YORK (AP) — For the sixth time in 16 years, a horse comes into the Belmont Stakes with a chance to win the Triple For only the second time, the

there," said Shug McGaughey, trainer of Derby and Preakness runner-up Easy Goer. "I'm not sure I know why they're all in there, though. In those 16 years, three horses have won the Triple Crown -Secretariat in 1973, Seattle Slew in 1977 and Affirmed in 1978 — but none has done it in a Belmont field of more than eight. Could the size of the field reflect a lack of belief in Sunday Silence?

The winner's share of the total purse of $689,200 on Saturday — if all 10 go to post — will be worth bonus money Sunday Silence stands to earn. A Triple Crown would be worth an additional $3,987,570, which added to his Derby and Preakness purses would equal $5 million. Even without the Triple Crown, Sunday Silence could win a $1 million bonus by finishing in the money at Belmont.

Sunday Silence beat Easy Goer by 21/2 lengths in the mud at Chuchill Downs and by a nose on a fast track in the Preakness. McGaughey considered scratching Easy Goer in the Preakness if it was an off track, but he said he would run, rain or shine, in the Belmont.

American wins gruelling match; advances to French Open finals

PARIS (AP) — Michael Chang of Placentia, Calif., outlasted Andrei Chesnokov 6-1, 5-7, 7-6 (7-4), 7-5 in a four-hour baseline battle today to reach the final of the men's singles at the French Open.

The 17-year-old Chang, who saved three set points in the third set, became the youngest-ever men's finalist in Paris and is one step away from becoming the first American to win the French Open men's singles title in 34 years.

"Making tennis history makes me feel good inside," Change said after the 4-hour, 5-minute marathon. "It's definitely a dream. It's something special I'll always have with me. I hope it'll be an encouragement to other young players."

Chang, who ousted top seed and heavy favorite Ivan Lendl in the fourth round, became the 16th American in the history of the tournament to reach the men's final. He will be the first American finalist since John McEnroe five years ago and the sixth since Tony Trabert won the title in 1955, the last American to do so.

"I went in relaxed because I had gone further than expected, Chang, the 15th seed, said. "I was ready to wait for each point. It was a tough match. Each point was really close. The exchanges were very long.

"It's the type of match you're really happy to pull out.'

In Sunday's championship match, Chang will play the winner of the second semifinal between Boris Becker and Stefan Edberg.

Chang, whose previous best performance in a Grand Slam tournament was the fourth round at last year's U.S. Open, started the match in complete command and ripped through the opening set in 28

Chesnokov, the unseeded Soviet who upset defending champion Mats Wilander in the quarterfinals, won only 12 points in the set as he struggled to find his timing and rythym, especially on the backhand.

The pattern continued at the start of the second set as Chesnokov dropped his serve twice and was down 0-3.

But the 23-year-old from Moscow, a frequent slow-starter, then broke Chang for the first time and, with the crowd behind him, rallied to take the set and tie the match. By now, the rallies were long and hard, with most games going to deuce and some lasting more than 10 minutes.

Then came the moment Chesnokov felt he may have lost

HOUSTON (AP) — In the last 18-10 in one-run games after having Astros have turned the improbable into a baseball science.

On Thursday, the Astros revived in extra innings again to pull off a 7-6 win over the San Diego Padres after being down 5-1 in the ninth inning and then 6-5 in the 10th before Davis pulled the trigger with a tworun home run.

Houston, 34-25, is tied with Cincinnati for the lead in the National League West. The Astros have won 13 of their last 14 games, and they had to rally in their last five wins four of them in extra innings.

They led 106-100 before Mychal Thompson and A.C. Green made two foul shots each to make the score 106-104 with 32 seconds left. The Lakers got the ball back with eight seconds to go on a 24-second violation.

With two seconds remaining, James Worthy drove to the basket and was fouled by Dennis Rodman. Worthy missed the first shot and made the second, leaving Los Angeles one point down. "The first one felt better than the second," Worthy said.

Thomas made two free throws with one second left and a desperation heave by the Lakers at the buzzer fell short.

Worthy and Cooper led Los Angeles with 19 points each and Johnson had 18 points, nine assists and six rebounds in 29 minutes. Joe Dumars topped Detroit with 33 points. He had 26 in the first half, but the Lakers led 62-56 at intermission. "We feel very fortunate to win," Pistons Coach Chuck Daly said.

"We got a break when Magic went down. But we did not have quite the intensity."

Nor did they have their usual defense. Detroit's streak of keeping opponents under 100 points in all 14 of its previous playoff games this year was broken.

But in the fourth quarter, the Lakers didn't sink a field goal in the first 8:20 and made only two of 14 shots. They finished the period with just 13 points, matching a Finals record for fewest points in a fourth period. San Francisco set it against Philadelphia in 1967 and Boston matched it against Milwaukee in 1974.

LET'S HELP REBUILD THE LIVES THEY WOULD HAVE GIVEN

We send the members of our armed services into battle in unavoidable situations, knowing with sad hearts that many of them will not return home. There are, however, others who will, for although they have risked their lives for us they did manage to survive; even though in some cases with permanent disabilities. Let us never forget what we owe them for what they have done for us. We must give them every possible advantage in the way of job opportunities housing, education and all the things they will need in order to resume their place in our society. We should also thank the Lord at our House of Worship for their safe return, and pray for their future well-being. It is incumbent upon us to do whatever we can to help them reconstruct their lives, which they were prepared to sacrifice for the preservation of our freedom.

Church members debate over acceptable music

By Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We're having a debate in our church over music, and what is acceptable in the Sunday morning service. Some of us like the old traditional hymns, but others like lots of contemporary gospel songs that are quite different. Does the Bible give any guidelines about this? - Mrs. R.E.

DEAR MRS. R.E.: I hesitate to this! However, I know things like this can get blown out of proportion in a church and can even lead to anger and division. Don't forget that Satan likes nothing better than for Christians to fight each other! Don't let this happen in your church, but "make every effort to keep the unity of the spirit through the bond of peace" (Ephesians Musical tastes change across the years; a hymn that we consiler an 'old" favorite today was once new and probably was not accepted by some people when it was new. The Bible seems to suggest various types of hymns and songs were used among the early Christians: Let the word of Christ dwell in you one another with all wisdom, and every day?

get into the middle of a debate like as you sing psalms, hymns and spiritual songs with gratitude in your hearts to God" (Colossians 3:16). Be tolerant, therefore, toward others who find spiritual strength in songs that might not be as helpful or familiar to you.

At the same time, every part of your church's worship service should point to Christ and should help you praise him - including your music. Sometimes we have lost sight of the need to praise and worship God, and we are spiritually poorer for it. The Book of Psalms, for example, was a hymnbook, and the Psalms were originally sung. And yet they are full of spiritual truths that have brought comfort and help to millions across the ages. Are you richly as you teach and admonish worshipping and praising God

Lawyer-minister

Day divided between law and commandments

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — During the week, Jimmy Odabashian can be found representing clients at the Cameron County Courthouse. On evenings and weekends, he leads Bible studies at his home and preaches at a modern dance studio, which he rents from his sister-in-law.

Odabashian's jobs as attorney and minister keep him on a hectic 80-hour-a-week schedule and he admitted juggling them is difficult.

"When I first heard the word bivocation, it sounded so good, so easy," he said. "It's difficult to keep my priorities straight. My family comes first, then church, then the job. Of course, God is on top always. It really is two fulltime jobs.

Odabashian said he chose to become a lawyer, but it was God's call, not his own desire, to enter the ministry.

"I don't think it's something you decide to do because you want to go up in front of people and talk," he said. "It's more than standing up in front of people for an hour on Sunday. It requires being involved and willing to listen. One of the commands of love is to be willing to listen and to have the door of your home open to people when they're in trouble, hurting, disappointed, excited and full of joy."

The word bi-vocation didn't enter into Odabashian's vocabulary much until he found himself with two jobs. He has been an attorney since 1973 and hadn't considered adding a hyphen to his job description. That changed in 1986 after he attended the North American Conference on Evangelism in New Orleans and heard a speaker address the topic

"He said today many pastors are holding onto a secular job and also ministering," Odabashian said in his office that he shares with another attorney. "In many denominations this isn't anything new, but I felt like that was something I could do. I could continue my law practice and work toward he establishment of a

Two years later, that's exactly what he did. He started a nonchurch to reach the "lost" between 20 and 40 years of age and named it Solid Rock Christian moil, he said, was a personal enrellowship. Before making the move, however, he made certain his wife, Pat, shared his vision.

a 'pastor's wife.' She could be herself and retain her individuality and still move with God and minister as a woman.

Odabashian, a 40-year-old Brownsville native who sometimes wears a salt-andpepper beard, graduated from the University of Houston law school. It was when he landed a job as an assistant district attorney for Cameron County that he thought he had found his lifetime profession. Gradually he became disenchanted with his work and personal life.

"By the time 1976 rolled around, I had become everything I said I wouldn't be," he said. 'My marriage wasn't going well. I was drinking too much. I had a lot of fear. And it came to the denominational, full-gospel- point where I knew I was out of years. Smoking wasn't the issue, not even drinking," he said. "They just reflected a need I had. Those are exterior things. God moved in and changed something on the inside of me.

In 1977, he closed his law practice and moved with his family to California to attend a seminary. A year later, he returned to Brownsville. He had a desire even then to start a church, but it would be 10 years before his vision became reality

In the meantime, he continued to practice law and became an elder at an established full-gospel

'There was a certain frustration (with law)," he said. "I had worked for the DA's office, and I had done some family law work as well as representing Cameron County Child Welfare. It was pretty obvious to me that the systems of man were limited, and there was a growing dissatisfaction.

Although he handles a variety of legal assignments ranging from real estate and wills to criminal work, the majority of his practice involves family law. In most cases, it concerns couples who want a divorce. They don't always realize that Odabashian will make every effort to encourage a reconciliation.

"Many of the men and women who come in here don't realize or don't know they have other options," he said. "There are other alternatives to divorce. One is the Biblical alternative, which is to love your wife and love your husband. They don't realize that that's a decision, not a feeling."

In both jobs, Odabashian said he deals with people who have serious problems. "The difference is that I believe there's a far greater opportunity to reach a solution with people who come with spiritual problems than people who have been wronged and are seeking redress in the courts."

Odabashian's intention is to gradually phase out his career as a lawyer and work exclusively as a pastor. Until then, he'll be Jimmy Odabashian: lawyer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Actress Alessandra Mussolini, granddaughter of the late fascist dictator of Italy, visited Judaism's holiest site and appealed for an end to religious prejudice.

Miss Mussolini, 23, who is here for a film in which she portrays an Israeli soldier, visited the sacred Western Wall and the Yad Vashem Holocaust museum and said she "felt just sick" after seeing MUSSOLINI displays of Nazi atrocities.

"There are no words to describe those things," she said Tuesday. Miss Mussolini said she saw no irony in her visit even though her grandfather, Benito Mussolini, was an ally of Germany's Adolf Hitler, DENNIS THE MENACE
