Construction permits
 BIG SPRING — Due to temporary personnel shortages in the permit office the application for construction permits will be accepted between the hours of 1-2 p.m. each day until further notice.
 The change is effective June 19.

Personnel will be in the office at that time to assist with any questions in regard to permit requirements.

Dog catchers needed!
 BIG SPRING — The city is without dog catchers after two animal control officers resigned from their posts recently, according to Police Capt. Melvin Fowler.

But about 25 to 30 other people want their jobs — and it's just a matter of time until the police department can decide who's best for the positions.
 "A lot of people applied for the jobs," Fowler said. "I told them it might take a while to separate through all of these. When we get down to the best two we'll call them in for final interviews and do background checks."

"This is a slow process when you work for the government because of all the requirements."

Right now, that leaves Big Spring without any animal control officers. Applications for the posts are no longer being taken, Fowler said.

"We're trying to keep the corpses off the streets and we're doing that ourselves," Fowler said. "The other calls, unless they are an emergency — we're just having to handle them as we can."

"Animal control is a sensitive job because it is connected with the police and a lot of people are real sensitive about their animals cause it is just like a relative."

Veto hurts poor
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Minorities and the working poor will be especially hurt by President Bush's veto of legislation that would have raised their hourly wages to $4.55 by 1992, a study says.
 The veto would particularly hit hard black and Hispanic workers, who have seen their earnings erode over the decade, said a study released Thursday by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities.
 The minimum wage, $3.35 an hour, hasn't been lifted since 1981.

According to the center, an independent organization that specializes in issues affecting low and moderate-income Americans, Hispanics and blacks are 40 percent more likely to be paid at or near the minimum wage than white workers.
 Yet a full-time, year-round worker earning the minimum wage and supporting a family of three falls $2,900 below the poverty line, the study said. In 1979, the minimum wage put a family of three at 104 percent of the poverty level.

New grand jury may hear Gomez case

By BRADLEY WORRELL
 Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — A June 21 grand jury hearing concerning the shooting death of a 27-year-old Hispanic man has been postponed and a new jury panel may be selected to hear the case.

"No (future) date has been set because we are waiting for some evidence to be made available. As of (Wednesday) it had not arrived," said Ron Dusek, spokesman for the Texas Attorney General's Office. Dusek would not disclose what evidence investigators for the attorney general's office are waiting for.

Mitchell County District Attorney Frank Conard said

"Hopefully we can resolve their fears. Whatever we can do to make this fair from both sides, from all sides . . . I'm for it. I want it to be fair. I'm not here for an indictment and I'm not here for a whitewash." — Mitchell County District Attorney Frank Conard.

previously that state investigators are waiting for the results of lab work on the knife allegedly wielded by Sammy Gomez before he was fatally shot by a part-time Colorado City police officer. The purpose of the lab work is to determine whose fingerprint is on the blade of the knife.

Conard revealed Thursday, "(The case) might not be presented to this grand jury."

The district attorney said a recent meeting with League of United Latin American Citizens has made him more aware of the concerns LULAC supporters have with the case and with the current panel members.

"I understand their concerns and I understand why they feel like they do," he said. "Maybe even more now I understand some of their concerns."

Conard said he hoped the selection of a new jury panel to hear what will be the second investigation into the May 1988 shooting might allay concerns of LULAC supporters. Area and state LULAC leaders have been outspoken in their claims of conflicts of interest for seven of the 12 grand jurors on the panel.

San Antonio civil rights attorney Ruben Sandoval, representing the Gomez family, contends the makeup of the current grand jury has determined the outcome of their verdict before they even convene.

"We want to be judged by a jury of our peers; we don't want to be judged by a jury of cronies," he said. "(This) grand jury does not have the characteristics of an impartial jury."

Sandoval specifically charged that the panel's inclusion of city councilman Eric White is a conflict of interest; that one juror's position as a school board trustee and five other grand jurors with supposed ties to area law enforcement authorities should prohibit them

Stenholm votes to toughen S&L laws

By PETER ROPER
 Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, voted to toughen capital requirements for the thrift industry as the House approved a $157 billion bailout package late Thursday night.

The Bush administration, in an unusual pairing with congressional Democrats, sought the tougher "capital standards" to force thrift owners to put more of their own money in their institutions in order to discourage the risky investments that led to many thrift failures in the last decade.

Stenholm, from Stamford, joined with the majority in rejecting an amendment from Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., that would have held down the capital standards. Hyde argued there were financially healthy thrifts that could not meet the recommended standards because they had acquired insolvent thrifts — often at the encouragement of federal regulators.

Stenholm disagreed, saying, "The government has made many deals in the past that turned bad and this is just one of them. I'm not persuaded that we can get by with the lower standards."

The House rejected the amendment on a vote of 326 to 94.

The final bill was approved by the House on a 320-to-97 vote. It would require thrift owners to deposit enough of their own cash to equal 3 percent of their institution's assets, and will eliminate the use of so-called "supervisory goodwill"

Bush: S&L vote major victory for taxpayers

By DAVID SKIDMORE
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The administration is hailing the House version of savings and loan bailout legislation as a major victory for taxpayers after the resounding defeat of an attempt to weaken President Bush's key reform proposal.

Shortly before 11 p.m. Thursday, the House capped a 13-hour session by voting 320-97 to solve the worst financial crisis since the Depression with the most expensive government bailout in history. It will cost, according to the congressional General Accounting Office, $285 billion over 30 years — $157 billion of that from taxpayers.

The legislation also includes a series of what Bush has labeled "never again" provisions. In what the president identified as the heart of his proposal, it requires S&L owners to risk more of their own money in a capital cushion between S&L losses and the government deposit insurance fund.

"The American taxpayers won a major victory today when the House of Representatives voted for strong, tangible capital requirements for the nation's savings and loans," Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady said in a statement.

"We applaud the House leadership for moving this bill rapidly through the House," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

The House action paves the way for a conference early next month with the Senate, which passed its S&L bill in April, and for final enactment before Congress goes on vacation in August.

The sharpest conflict between the two chambers will likely be on their funding plans. The Senate would allow Bush to keep some S&L spending out of the budget deficit through a plan to sell bonds through a new quasi-private agency. But the Democratic-dominated House would swell the deficit by $44 billion, increasing pressure on the administration to agree to a tax increase, in a bid to cut long-term interest costs.

On capital, the House would require S&L owners to risk $3 in "real money" capital for every $100 in lending, while the Senate standard is $1.50.

Despite heavy industry lobbying, the House, on a 326-94 vote, rejected an amendment offered by Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., which would have given 241 S&Ls a chance, through an administrative appeal, to win exemption from new capital requirements.

Hyde was arguing on behalf of institutions currently benefiting from an accounting break known as "supervisory good will." Regulators granted the $19.7 billion break to institutions.

Mattox levels charge

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox charged the campaign of state Treasurer Ann Richards as being behind the recent publicity of allegations that $125,000 was slated for his intervention in a lawsuit.

Mattox on Thursday denied the allegations, describing them as "hot air." When asked who was responsible for the publicity, he pointed to Ms. Richards' campaign.

Ms. Richards announced last week her candidacy for the Democratic Party gubernatorial nomination, and Mattox has said he will run, too.

Mr. Richards' campaign denied the charges.

Interpol joins probe

GALVESTON (AP) — Interpol has joined an investigation into the disappearance of about 80 rare books from a Galveston medical school library, suggesting that the books may have been sold in other countries, officials said.

"We want to be as thorough as we can, but when you are looking at something that may have happened outside the states, it just takes a little longer," District Attorney Mike Guarino said, adding that the international scope of the case has slowed the probe.

An audit concluded in February revealed that books were missing from the Truman G. Blocker Jr. History of Medicine Collections at UTMB's Moody Medical Library. Officials have refused to identify the missing books, except to say that they are duplicates of others in the collection.

Head librarian Emil Frey resigned his $83,389-a-year job on May 18. After his resignation, the locks were changed in the library. UTMB officials have said their investigation is focusing on some individual suspects, but have declined to say whether Frey or other library employees are targets.

John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, said the state's teachers will be asked to grade 10 areas of reform, including "no-pass, no-play" requirements, minimum skills testing and teacher career ladders.

"We have all of these reforms now implemented... and we can now stop and take a look and see how well these things are doing," Cole said Thursday during a news conference to announce the survey.

"We can see which ones the teachers think are worth keeping and which ones should be scrapped," he said.

The survey, to be completed by fall 1990, could lead to changes in the reforms set out by House Bill 72 in 1984, Cole said.

"If there are specific reforms that just consistently... show up

Clements' signing of colonias bill draws praise

"(The bill) is going to improve the health of children who are missing school and adults who are missing work, and over time it will have a significant impact on their lifestyle," — Alex Moreno.

cant impact on their lifestyle," said Moreno, the bill's House sponsor.

With the measure, he said, "The state is giving hope to people who were living in such poor conditions, they didn't even dare hope any more."

Under the legislation, as much as $100 million in state general obligation bonds could be issued through 1993 by the Water Development

Board to provide financial assistance for water and sewer services in the substandard subdivisions.

Residents of colonias, often characterized by poor housing and unpaved roads, would repay as much as they could through rates for the services. It is estimated as many as 250,000 people live in such subdivisions.

The measure also would establish regulations to stop the development of new colonias.

Clements has given particular praise to a provision of the bill that would provide a method for coordinating and financing development of wastewater treatment plants between the United States and Mexico. That would allow a Nuevo Laredo-Laredo wastewater treatment project that is aimed at stopping the flow of raw sewage in to the Rio Grande.

The measure also was sponsored by Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, who has said its passage marks "an historic moment in our state's attitude toward public health and the protection of natural resources, and it also reflects a new understanding about the importance to the entire state of providing reasonable living conditions in our poorest areas."

People from the Texas Industrial Areas Foundation Network worked for passage of the bill and have called it the culmination of a five-year campaign.

Group to survey teachers on 1984 education reforms

AUSTIN (AP) — A poll of public school teachers in 50 districts across the state could illuminate weaknesses in education reforms mandated five years ago, says an official of a Texas teachers' union planning such a survey.

John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, said the state's teachers will be asked to grade 10 areas of reform, including "no-pass, no-play" requirements, minimum skills testing and teacher career ladders.

"We have all of these reforms now implemented... and we can now stop and take a look and see how well these things are doing," Cole said Thursday during a news conference to announce the survey.

"We can see which ones the teachers think are worth keeping and which ones should be scrapped," he said.

The survey, to be completed by fall 1990, could lead to changes in the reforms set out by House Bill 72 in 1984, Cole said.

"If there are specific reforms that just consistently... show up as real losers, that would be an opportunity to go to the Legislature and say this one needs to be fixed, repealed, changed," Cole said.

He said the survey results also would be given to the State Board of Education.

Cole said the federation, with a membership of 15,000, hopes to poll most of the state's teachers. He said the 50 school districts would probably include some in Dallas, Houston, Austin and San Antonio.

Cole criticized efforts by the 1989 Legislature to equalize state aid to poor and wealthy school districts.

"Unfortunately, the Legislature failed to deal with the school finance issue in any meaningful way, and that is a time-bomb that is ticking away at the heart of our whole education system," Cole said.

"Until it is dealt with, our education is going to continue to suffer," Cole said.

He said "it will be interesting" to see whether the survey results reflect the funding inequities, but that he didn't expect them to.

Judge gives Hunts leeway in dealing with creditors

DALLAS (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge allowed Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt to continue to deal exclusively with their creditors as they seek to satisfy billions of dollars in debts that accumulated through silver speculation and income taxes the government claims it is owed.

But U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Harold Abramson suggested the brothers' liquidation plans are inadequate and said he may consider appointing an independent examiner to devise a way to split their holdings — which are far short of the total claims against them.

Abramson set a status con-

Business

ference for July 31 to consider Herbert Hunt's progress and an Aug. 15 status conference for Bunker Hunt.

Last September, the brothers and their wives filed for Chapter 11 protection from creditors after Minpeco S.A., a Peruvian mining company, won a $196 million judgment on its claims it lost money because of the brothers' silver dealings in 1979 and 1980.

Minpeco's current claim, including interest it says it is owed on the judgment, is about $251 million.

The Internal Revenue Service remains the largest single creditor with more than $1 billion. The IRS says Bunker Hunt owes $730 million in taxes and accumulated interest while Herbert Hunt owes $317 million.

The IRS' claims, if paid in full, would wipe out the assets of each brother, leaving nothing for the other creditors.

Abramson urged government attorneys to consider those other creditors in their negotiations with Hunt attorneys, and leave some assets to be divided among others.

Negotiations in both cases are set for later this month.

Attorneys for the Hunts told Abramson on Thursday they had reached agreements with several creditors settling the percentage of any assets they would receive under a liquidation.

Lawyers for those creditors said they supported allowing the Hunts to continue their so-called "exclusivity" in formulating a liquidation plan, and suggested they distrusted an ad hoc creditor committee made up of the IRS, Minpeco and Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, which says it is owed $36 million.

The attorneys said they feared their smaller claims would be overwhelmed by any liquidation plan formulated by the creditor committee. Abramson said he would consider appointing an independent examiner to devise a plan to overcome those fears.

The latest liquidation plans were filed Wednesday, but several creditors object to provisions that would leave the brothers with a percentage of the proceeds from the sale of their assets.

Herbert Hunt's plan would pay him 10 percent of the proceeds — estimated in one document at about $7.6 million — plus some of the proceeds from the sale of his coin and artifact collection above $5.5 million. In addition, Herbert Hunt would keep his house, which he values at $1.25 million, and memberships in various social and civic associations.

Weather

Powerful thunderstorms thrashed much of the eastern seaboard, downing trees and power lines and spawning a tornado that injured seven people in Pennsylvania.

Thunderstorm winds downed trees and power lines across much of Florida, cutting power to 15,000 homes alone in Duval County, which contains Jacksonville. The storms also damaged a half-dozen mobile homes near Arcadia in south-central Florida.

Today's forecast called for widespread showers and thunderstorms from the eastern Great Lakes across New England, the upper Ohio Valley, the Appalachians and the Atlantic Coast into northern and central Florida.

S&L 'redlining' could be stopped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The savings and loan bailout bill approved by the House gives new weapons to battle "redlining," the discrimination by banks and thrift institutions against loan applicants from poor and minority neighborhoods.

By a 214-200 vote Thursday night, the House voted to include in the $157 billion bailout a requirement that lenders disclose both the number of loans they approve as well as the number of applications they get by race, income and sex.

"We know redlining is a reality," said Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus. "The banks and savings and loans don't want this information to become public because they know what it would do. It would provide the basis to establish a national policy."

The amendment, written by Reps. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, and Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., also requires federal regulators to disclose their ratings on how well banks and S&Ls lend money for community needs.

Civil rights and community activists have been demanding the release to the public of numerical ratings the government keeps on community lending in the wake of reports the past two years about redlining in Atlanta, New York, Detroit, Dallas and other cities.

Redlining is a practice by which banks and S&Ls have used zip codes and other geographic factors to systematically deny loans to residents and businesses in areas with high concentrations of minorities or poor people regardless of the creditworthiness of the applicant.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said that without the provision, minorities would reap no benefit from the savings and loan bailout. "There is no way in the world I can go back to my constituency and explain to them why redlining is still allowed in this country," Conyers said. "I can't stress enough the important dimension of this civil rights amendment."

Opponents of the amendment, led by Reps. Steve Bartlett, R-Texas, and Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said they were against redlining but argued that the issue had nothing to do with the bailout and should be addressed in a separate bill.

Wylie also called the measure "mischievous," saying the ratings could be misinterpreted by the public as an indication of the financial soundness of a bank or S&L rather than how much it helps the local community.

Both banks and regulators also have expressed fears that the disclosures will be used by community and civil rights activists to promote risky inner-city lending to borrowers who are not creditworthy.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, attempted to add a similar provision to the Senate's version of the S&L bailout but withdrew it in the face of overwhelming opposition. He promised that the issue would be considered in a separate Senate bill.

in meeting the percentage. Supervisory goodwill is an accounting fiction that boosts an institution's net worth, but only on paper. It is not backed by cash and could not be used to bolster deposits in the event of financial problems.

Democratic floor leaders credited last-minute personal lobbying by President Bush and intense media scrutiny of members' positions on the bailout bill for the dramatic margin backing tough capital standards.

Though Bush may have been effective in lobbying for his capital standards, he could not convince the House to adopt a costly book-keeping plan to keep the expensive bailout off the federal government's 1990 budget books.

Stenholm also joined with House Democrats in approving an amendment by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., that will include bailout costs in the budget. Backers said this will swell the federal deficit for this year, but save $4.5 billion in interest costs, at least $150 million a year for 30 years.

"We're going to be spending $50 billion to protect depositors and there's no way you can ignore that. It deserves to be on budget," Stenholm said.

Though strong, the House endorsement for the Democratic version of the bailout does not signal the end of the fight because the House version still will be matched with a somewhat different Senate version.

Bush defends tough crime crackdown policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said today his crime crackdown policies may not be popular with some judges because they fill trial calendars, but he declared they are needed to stop the "shooting war" in the streets.

Bush told a White House gathering of about 90 of the nation's 94 U.S. attorneys to return to their states and enforce his policy of plea bargaining with violent, gun-wielding offenders.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh gave the prosecutors a set of written guidelines regarding plea bargaining for crimes involving firearms.

Thornburgh wrote: "In all but exceptional cases such as those in which the defendant has provided substantial assistance to the government in the investigation or prosecution of crimes by others, federal prosecutors will seek conviction for any offense involving the unlawful use of a firearm which is readily provable.

Bush told the federal prosecutors they are "the commanders at the frontlines" and urged them to help "put away the nation's most wanted."

"The situation in our streets has been aptly compared to a shooting war," he said, noting that many in the room might take issue with statements that the country is at peace.

The president hammered home his view that criminals who use guns in violent crimes should be prosecuted to the maximum extent.

"This policy may mean more trials... firearms cases like narcotics cases, are not always very popular with some on the bench," he acknowledged.

Bush said his proposals for more federal prosecutors, law-enforcement officers and new prison construction will help ease the overburdened criminal justice system.

from serving on the panel. Sandoval called the current investigation a "worthless gesture" and said, "If anyone wants to believe there's enough votes for an indictment, I'm an astronaut."

Oscar Ortiz, president of the Colorado City LULAC chapter and LULAC State Director John T. Garcia of El Paso said previously that the jury panel's inclusion of three people with Spanish surnames does not adequately reflect the county's Hispanic population, estimated to be about 40 percent. "Hopefully we can resolve their fears. Whatever we can do to make this fair from both sides, from all sides... I'm for it. I want it to be fair," Conard said. "I'm not here for an indictment and I'm not here for a whitewash."

Conard said he is unsure what the next step in the case will be. "I'm not sure if (the district judge) has the power to convene a special grand jury," he said.

If not, the case could not be able to be brought up until the next grand jury in October. "I'm not sure if we want to wait that long," he said. Conard said he intends to meet with Assistant Attorney General Ned Butler in the future to work out a possible rescheduling date.

Mitchell County District Judge Weldon Kirk did not return calls to his office in reference to special grand juries, but Howard County District Judge James Gregg said district judges do have the power to convene special grand juries.

"It's kind of unusual to do it; I've never done it before," Gregg said. Grand juries usually require the use of a jury commission; panel members for special grand juries can either be chosen by a jury commission or directly by the judge, he said.

Sandoval called the delay a "blow to the DA's office" and said he will fight to see the grand jury investigation moved to a federal court where he said he believes it can receive a fair hearing.

"We're not going to allow this thing to go on to the predictable, ascertainable end we're sure this (investigation) will get," he said. "We're going to do everything to block it because we're not going to allow this sham to continue."

"Our only hope is the federal government. I don't see anything coming out of a state prosecution," he said.

Conard counter-charged, "Mr. Sandoval doesn't want a fair grand jury, he wants one to indict the officer."

Cut out the dirty politics

President Bush was correct in denouncing a Republican National Committee memo that implied that House Speaker Tom Foley is a homosexual. The president also decried the "ugliness" of the political climate in Washington where members of both parties have exchanged so many insults that they have not had the time to deal with the problems they were elected to solve.

We need in Congress the sharp exchanges over public policy issues and the crisp debate over such things as ethics, but the increasingly common attacks concerning private matters are an insult to both lawmakers and voters.

While millions of Americans are repulsed with homosexuality as a personal lifestyle (Speaker Foley denied that he is gay), the fact is that the practice is not limited to any single political party or occupation or anything else.

We send our lawmakers to Washington to conduct the public's business in a manner that benefits the public and not to exchange insults over their private lives. We ask only that they improve their ethical conduct and to look after the needs of their constituents with the same enthusiasm with which they have sought to advance their own careers.

Adventure sells at the movies

It isn't a major surprise that the latest Indiana Jones adventure movie is setting records at the box office. Steven Spielberg and George Lucas, who collaborated on the picture, have displayed a knack for producing top-grossing movies with themes that evoke the innocent thrills of the old-time Saturday matinee serials.

Americans who can remember the years before television often have fond memories of gathering at the Bijou or its equivalent and watching heroes and heroines struggling to escape traps set by villains who had no redeeming virtues. Those were the days before X-rated and R-rated fare. Language was clean. Good and evil were clearly delineated. Heroes and heroines were good role models.

In the "Star Wars" and Indiana Jones films, Lucas and Spielberg have given audiences pure heroes and heroines, evil villains, cliff-hanging moments of anxiety, exotic locales and scripts that just about anyone can understand.

That the formula works is evident in the fact that "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" has had the biggest box office opening in movie history. The fact that a relatively clean and innocent adventure movie can do well demonstrates again that there is a substantial market for something other than the sleaze-and-slash films that have polluted movie and television screens in recent years.

Unprejudiced sergeant punished

By JACK ANDERSON
and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The career of Army Staff Sgt. William Murphy is ruined, all because he wouldn't turn his back when he saw what he thought was racism. Murphy's mistake was that he stood up for two soldiers, one black and one white, who wanted to marry.

The captain who supervised Murphy and the young couple called the bride's family to discuss the implications of her planned marriage to a black man and then refused to give the woman leave for the wedding. Murphy sided with the couple. Now he is doing menial work and the captain, Sheila O'Connor, is on the fast track to the top.

Before Murphy tangled with O'Connor he was regarded as one of the Army's brightest Russian linguists, translating Soviet military manuals into English.

Today Murphy is a gaffer. He chauffeurs Army brass. He carries paper from office to office. After a long string of outstanding evaluations in his eight-year career, Murphy lost his top security clearance, was reprimanded for "disrespect toward a superior commissioned officer," and branded as disloyal.

Murphy's story as revealed by Army documents is a blatant example of the military's bungling its own personnel matters. That's business-as-usual. Except this time Rep. Roy Dyson, D-Md., and two senators, Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. are angry enough to lean on the Army to re-open the investigation into the allegations of racism. "The case is a tragedy," Dyson told our associate Jim Lynch, "but the Army is content to sweep it under the carpet."

Capt. O'Connor was in charge of Murphy and some 100 other soldiers at the Foreign Materials Intelligence Group in Aberdeen, Md. Last year, a white woman and a black man under O'Connor's command announced their marriage plans.

According to affidavits from the bride and her relatives, O'Connor, who is white, phoned the bride's mother and grandmother and asked them if they were aware the groom was black. O'Connor also allegedly solicited their opinions on inter-racial marriage.

O'Connor told Army investigators that her calls were motivated by concern, not racism, and the Army accepted that explanation without talking to the mother or grandmother. It is not unusual for a captain to counsel a subordinate on a marriage but even the Army admitted the phone calls to the bride's family were "unusual."

The bride, a private, was outraged by the intrusion and filed an equal opportunity complaint against O'Connor. When the private asked for a few days leave to get married, O'Connor denied the request. Army investigators also decided that action was not racially motivated.

It was not the first time O'Connor was accused of being prejudiced. Three years ago, sworn testimony in a court martial proceeding against a Moslem soldier indicated that O'Connor had blamed the man's religion for some of his problems.

When word of the marriage conflict spread through the ranks, Murphy, who is white, circulated a petition to support the young couple. The command caught wind of the petition and called the soldiers together. They were warned that signing the petition was tantamount to "mutiny."

At that point, the Army's investigation into O'Connor turned into a witch hunt to find the author of the petition. Murphy took the credit. The Army reprimanded him for being disloyal and sent him to a psychiatrist who pronounced him "normal."

O'Connor survived the investigation unscathed and was given a meritorious service award last fall. The couple got married.

Murphy has hired seasoned military lawyer James Klimaski to help him clear his record so he will be able to get government jobs in the future.

Murphy is 40 years old and knows that his Army career is dead. As a young man, he tried to join the Army and serve in Vietnam, but an illness kept him out. He tried to join again and failed a physical. Finally, at the age of 32, Murphy was admitted to the Army. "I just thought it was something I owed the country," he said.

KHOMEINI'S LEGACY — The frenzied mourners who wept over the death of the Ayatollah Khomeini would do well to look at his record. He left behind a nation where women are required to wear scarves over their heads; where school prayers are compulsory but 1.8 million children have no school to go to; where 52 percent of the population is illiterate; where alcohol is banned and 3 million people are addicted to drugs; where 6 million people are out of work and industries are running at one-third the output of a decade ago. Iran has more reasons to mourn than the death of Khomeini.

MINI-EDITORIAL — A man in Florida has turned three exotic roaches loose in the wild, one step ahead of the law. The roaches on the lam are 3-inch-long hissing roaches from Madagascar and are pest-non-grata in Florida. Agriculture authorities there are afraid the roaches will breed like rabbits, only uglier. But the roach lover was afraid the authorities would kill his pets. We hate to come between a man and his best friends, but anyone who would introduce a new breed of giant roaches into the country is nuts. This guy should be locked up with a roomful of his closest friends.

Plans for ayatollah's arrival

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

The devil called his management staff to order.

"Men... and women, of course," he began. "Will you please take your seats."

The devil did not like the idea of women in management, but after months of pressure from various she-devil rights groups, he had been forced to relent and name female executives.

"As you may have heard," the devil went on as the room fell silent, "the Ayatollah Khomeini arrives in hell this afternoon."

"It is not every day we receive someone with a background such as his."

"If you will check the documents in front of you, you will note that Research has compiled some startling figures concerning the ayatollah."

"Notice, if you will," the devil continued, "the incredible number of political opponents he had killed. Right up there with Joe Stalin."

"And then there were all those who died as a result of the long war Iran had with Iraq."

"Add that to all the terrorist acts he ordered, all the imprisonments, all the hands he had cut off, and we've got a guy who certainly deserves the kind of treatment we give only to true hall-of-famers who devoted their lives to the misery of others."

"What I am looking for from you guys — and gals, too, of course — are some suggestions regarding the appropriate punishment for this mad despot."

"How about you, Ursor?"

"I say we put the ayatollah in the dung pit, head first, next to Hitler," said Ursor.

"I think not," said the devil. "I want to keep Hitler alone. Being head down in a dung pit isn't nearly as wretched if you know somebody else is in there with you."

"Chief," said Munakahkin, "why don't we move Attila the Hun out of the Oval Oval and put him in the Room of Doom with all the poisonous snakes?"

"Then we could put the ayatollah in the oven and knock up the temperature a couple of hundred degrees and keep him in there for a century or two until we can come up with something better."

"Not bad, Munakahkin," said the devil, "but it's still not exactly what I'm looking for. Ms. Durbalia?"

The devil did not particularly care for Ms. Durbalia, whom he considered a troublemaker. It was Ms. Durbalia who led the other female executives to demand that the devil end the rule that forced female employees to keep their tails covered while in the office or when out representing The Firm. But she did have an obvious mean streak.

"I say we put the sucker behind the Door of Gore," she said.

"And?" asked the devil. "Put bamboo reeds under his toenails," said Ms. Durbalia.

"Go on."

"And cut off his fingers one at a time with a dull butcher knife."

"I'm beginning to like it," smiled the devil.

Ms. Durbalia continued. "Then, we slice open his tongue with a dull razor blade, gouge out his eyes with an ice pick, trim his eyebrows with a weed eater and have a dentist come in and perform a root canal on him with no Novocain."

"That last thing there is a nice touch," said the devil. "And we've certainly got enough dentists around to do the job. Is there anything else?"

"Yes," said Ms. Durbalia, "while we're doing all that to him, we'll make him listen to 'The Satanic Verses' being read aloud."

The devil heartily approved and thought to himself, "Perhaps women know a little bit more about how to torture a man than I gave them credit for."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever happened to Manuel Noriega?

Not much so far. That question and answer carry a lesson in limits.

Despite U.S. pressure, despite the dispatch of nearly 2,000 troops to join the 11,000 or so already there, despite help from other nations in trying to get him out, the Panamanian strongman remains just that.

Nearly six weeks after the elections his henchmen disrupted and then disavowed, Noriega still commands the real power in Panama. President Bush said he is not giving up the U.S. effort to force Noriega from power and from the country.

Inevitably, the crisis atmosphere has eased, other issues have moved past Panama on the agenda, and Noriega persists.

The regime he dominates tried to erase the elections after the fact because he didn't like the outcome. His paramilitary squads beat opposition candidates bloody, in full view of cameras and therefore the world. The Organization of American States rebuked him.

For all that, Noriega could not be quickly ousted.

Capitol report

The United States and the OAS still are trying.

But the outrage level is down. The OAS mission returned to Panama this week, seeking to promote negotiations between the government and the disenfranchised opposition. The OAS decided its mediators should have another six weeks to seek a solution.

Vice President Dan Quayle pressed the U.S. campaign on a trip to Central America this week. "Our bottom line is that Noriega must leave, not only from power, but also it is our position that he should leave the country," he said.

Last time anybody asked Noriega whether he would resign, he dismissed the question as stupid.

The difficulty of achieving that outcome in Panama points to the reasoning behind President Bush's cautious handling of the situation in China after the savage crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators in Beijing. The administration can't write scripts in such crises, not even in tiny Panama, with the leverage of the canal and the U.S. garrison.

The major step in what Bush called a prudent response to the Chinese army assault on demonstrators was a halt in weapons sales and exports, despite pressure from some corners for tougher sanctions.

Bush said he didn't want a break in U.S. relations with China. "When you see these kids struggling for democracy and freedom, this would be a bad time for the United States to withdraw and pull back and leave them to the devices of a leadership that might decide to crack down further."

That's exactly what the Chinese leadership is doing now, but there is no practical way for the United States to change it.

Bush said at his June 8 news conference that China and Panama both are affected by a worldwide yearning for democracy. "As you look around the world and you see change, respect for the election process, I would simply say Panama is not immune," he said. "We're all traumatized, and properly... by the terrible excesses of Tiananmen Square, and I haven't forgotten the brutal beating of Guillermo Ford in Panama, and the world hasn't forgotten it." Ford was the opposition candidate for vice president of Panama.

"It is my fervent hope that... the Organization of American States will stay with their mission and will keep working on their mandate until Mr. Noriega leaves," the president said.

Noriega, commander of the Panama Defense Forces, was indicted by two U.S. grand juries last year on drug trafficking charges. The administration has been trying to get him ousted for nearly 18 months, using economic sanctions, withholding canal revenues and financing the opposition for the aborted May 7 campaign.

After the election, Bush suggested that the military kick out the general. "I would love to see them get him out," the president said. "They wouldn't need support from the United States to get rid of Noriega. He's one man and they have a well-trained force."

Bush said again last week that the administration has no quarrel with the Panama Defense Forces, only with Noriega. Quayle carried that message on his Central American trip.

The pressure continues. So, for now, does Noriega.

Innocent man jailed three months

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who was held in jail for three months and lost his job after being charged with armed robbery was cleared because of a small facial blemish.

Robert Lynn Witner, 43, was set free Thursday after his lawyer, Joseph Licata, persuaded authorities that the robber photographed by a surveillance camera had no such blemish.

District Court Judge Frank Price dismissed the two aggravated robbery charges against Witner, who has a small, reddish mole on his lower right cheek.

Witner called the experience a nightmare.

Witner said he lost his job because his employer, an asbestos removal company, wouldn't accept a collect telephone call when he tried to call and explain his situation. He spent 90 days in jail, unable to pay $40,000 bond.

Minor earthquake strikes Alaska

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — An earthquake struck an area 50 miles west of Kodiak, Alaska, early today, but only minor damage was reported, the Alaska Tsunami Warning Center said.

The quake, which had a preliminary reading of 5.9 on the Richter scale, occurred at 2:51 a.m. ADT (6:51 a.m. EDT) and was felt in Kodiak, Larsen Bay, Karluk and Akiok, said Alec Medberry, a spokesman for the center. He said there was no danger of a tsunami, or tidal wave.

A dispatcher with the Alaska State Troopers in Kodiak said there were reports from throughout Kodiak Island of pictures being knocked off walls, but that no major damage was reported.

Medberry said there were reports that some people were knocked out of bed in Larsen Bay and that dishes were broken and lightbulbs were broken in their sockets.

Sparrow to be declared extinct

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A monthlong search for the last three crossbred dusky seaside sparrows, which had escaped from captivity during a storm, revealed no traces of the birds, and ornithologists are convinced the species is extinct.

The quest by federal biologists ended Wednesday, two years to the day after the death of the last known pure dusky seaside sparrow, a small brown-and-white bird with a short buzzing trill.

"You can't come to any other conclusion because there's no habitat around here for them," said Herb Kale, vice president for ornithology at the Florida Audubon Society.

In 1966, the dusky seaside sparrow became the first species on the federal government's endangered species list.

Kale became an adviser to a Disney World program that had tried since 1963 to mate the crossbred birds with a related species.

Second faces new DWI charge

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — Iran-Contra figure Richard Secord faces a new charge of drunken driving, authorities in this Washington, D.C., suburb said.

Secord is appealing a conviction last month for the same offense.

The 56-year-old retired Air Force major general was arrested in the town of Vienna early Wednesday morning, according to Marie Kisner, public information officer for the town.

She said the arrest occurred after a police officer spotted a suspicious looking vehicle that was moving very slowly and came to almost a complete stop at a green light.

Secord, cited for drunken driving and refusing to give a breath or blood sample, was released on $750 cash bond after spending several hours in the Fairfax County jail, Kisner said.

BEIJING — Chinese citizens line up to fill out applications for U.S. visas Friday at the U.S. Embassy here.

Chinese papers laud hard tactics

BEIJING (AP) — The leading national daily today lauded the hard-line tactics of senior leader Deng Xiaoping and appealed for "unity of thinking" in a sign that China's rulers intend to stamp out all political dissent.

In the first news conference for Western reporters since the crackdown on pro-democracy protesters began, an army general first said soldiers fired on unarmed civilians, then denied they shot anyone.

The government previously said troops did not fire a single shot in Tiananmen Square, which soldiers and tanks cleared of thousands of protesters. The government has not commented on shooting elsewhere in Beijing.

The call for unity by the Communist Party's People's Daily came as the state moved to expunge opposition through arrests, death sentences and a barrage of pro-government propaganda.

On Thursday, a Shanghai court sentenced three men to death for setting fire to a train during an anti-government riot. They were the first to receive the death sentence of more than 1,000 people arrested since nationwide protests broke out following the June 3-4 military assault on Beijing demonstrators.

The People's Daily editorial praised the "keen insight and scientific judgment" of the 84-year-old Deng in his June 9 address to military officers involved in the attack in the capital.

The government variously says 200 to 300 people, mostly soldiers, were killed. Unofficial Chinese and Western intelligence reports say troops fired on unarmed crowds and killed up to 3,000.

The editorial said the rebellion in Beijing has been put down but "some people still harbor ideological hangups."

"Therefore, it is necessary to seek unity of thinking covering the whole party and the whole people by seriously studying the important speech made by Deng Xiaoping."

The paper said China must abide by "one center and two basic points." The center, it said, is the party and the people.

South Africans observe holiday

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Businesses shut down as thousands of blacks stayed away from work today to observe a self-declared national holiday on the 13th anniversary of the Soweto township riots.

Police reported scattered incidents, but no major violence.

June 16, commonly known as "Soweto Day," has no official status as a holiday. But many businesses decided to close because so many of their black workers and customers took the day off.

In the major cities of Johannesburg, Durban and Cape Town, black commuter traffic was less than half the weekday average, according to various estimates. Bus stops, railway stations and taxi stands all were unusually empty. Black schools nationwide were deserted.

Buses in Durban traveled under police escort to prevent attacks by black militants.

Soviet troops confiscate firearms

MOSCOW (AP) — Troops have seized thousands of weapons since a curfew was imposed nearly two weeks ago to quell ethnic violence in Uzbekistan, and the death toll rose with the discovery of two more bodies, Tass reported today.

Tass, the official news agency, said troops had confiscated 157 firearms and steel weapons as well as 26 firebombs during road checks in the last 24 hours. A total of 7,718 weapons have now been confiscated.

Meanwhile the remains of two people were discovered and added to the list of at least 100 victims, Tass said. On Thursday, the agency quoted Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov as saying that at least 100 people had died during the turmoil that began June 3.

More than 1,000 buildings have been looted and burned since the brutal rampage against the Meskhi Turk minority began in the Fergana Valley.

U.S. soldiers killed in accident

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Three U.S. soldiers were killed when the military helicopter they were riding in crashed near the Panama Canal, but a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the accident did not involve any hostile fire.

"We don't know why or how" the accident occurred, U.S. Embassy spokesman Terry Kneebone said Thursday, adding only that the crash of the OH-58 helicopter "apparently was an accident."

The helicopter went down about 2 p.m., Kneebone said. The helicopter and all three aboard belonged to the 7th Light Infantry Division from Fort Ord, Calif.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of their families.

The division was among about 1,900 troops sent to Panama following the government's nullification of the May 7 elections and post-election violence in which three opposition candidates were beaten.

Israeli planes hit terrorist base

TYRE, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes blasted a base operated by Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal at dawn today in twin bombing runs. Two children were reportedly wounded.

Six U.S.-built Skyhawk jets swooped down for the raid on the beachside Rashidiyah refugee camp, police said.

An army spokesman in Israel said the planes hit all the targets. The spokesman said the base that was bombed had been used to launch guerrilla attacks against Israel and its self-declared security zone in southern Lebanon. The camp is 10 miles north of the Israeli border.

A spokesman for Abu Nidal's Fatah-Revolutionary Council said only that Israeli warplanes bombed positions of his group within the camp.

No casualty figure at the military base was immediately available.

Navy sends valuable equipment to Davy Jones's Locker

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ocean floor is full of sunken treasure from old military ships that have been blown up as targets or sunken as artificial reefs, an investigative report says.

Although there may be no doubloons or pieces of eight in the newest denizens of Davy Jones's Locker, $17 million in recoverable goods has been destroyed on board 24 ships sunk in recent years as reefs or in target practice, the report by the Navy's inspector general said.

An additional $40 million will be lost unless something is done to salvage items from 64 vessels that now await a similar fate, it said.

There are, in fact, "significant amounts" of gold and silver — to be salvaged from communications and code equipment, the report says.

Mostly the wasted goods consist of power tools such as lathes, drill presses, band saws, pumps and office and electronic equipment.

Inspectors also said there were operating room and dental equipment, including sterilizers; air conditioners and ice machines; silverware; radios and teletypes; new mattresses, still in plastic bags; and numerous spare parts.

"The Navy has been derelict in the proper management of the public property under its control," the report concluded.

Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., who released the report, introduced legislation on Thursday to permit outside contractors to reclaim scrap items from such ships. They would apply for the right to salvage items under sealed bids, Broomfield said.

"America may be the most wealthy nation in the world, but we are not so wealthy that we can afford to dump millions of dollars worth of sophisticated equipment to the bottom of the ocean floor," he said in a statement.

The Navy continues to buy some of the same items it has wasted, the inspector general's report said, and "has ignored the possibility of re-usage."

In a response, the service said it is "reviewing the report to determine any appropriate action. This will include reviewing the cost estimates of the unrecovered materials, plus the associated recovery costs, equipment condition and applicability to current needs."

The Navy added that it "also plans to review its instructions governing the process and procedures for inactivating and stripping ships."

The internal investigation was prompted by a complaint from William R. Justen, whose Stuart, Fla., company had been hired to sink an old Navy ship under the artificial reef program.

Justen complained that some $300,000 worth of reusable items were on the vessel, but he was unable to salvage them because of the time constraints of his contract. He told the Navy that he was aware of other, similar cases, as well.

The inspector general found confusion in the handling of decommissioned ships and few clear provisions for salvage.

Marriage mistake

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A woman who said "I do" after partying for 12 hours wants the Las Vegas marriage annulled because neither she nor the groom realized the ceremony was legitimate.

Kimberly Lorna Scott, 21, who is from Boulder, filed a motion in District Court on Tuesday seeking to annul her Dec. 17 marriage to Michael Shawn Dalzell, 22, of Anchorage, Alaska.

"No toaster ovens here," Scott said jokingly by telephone from Alabama, where Dalzell is a student at the University of Alabama. "It was just a joke, an accident, and we didn't think it was real."

The two college students exchanged wedding vows at the Little White Chapel after they spent nearly 12 hours consuming alcohol and wandering along the popular Las Vegas strip of hotels and casinos, Scott said in an affidavit that accompanied the motion.

Scott and Dalzell decided to "get a Las Vegas marriage just to see what it was like, not realizing that it would be as valid as a marriage performed anywhere else," according to the motion.

Shortly after the ceremony, the two parted company, but after they received a Social Security name change request form they realized the marriage was legal, the motion said.

"It was sort of a slight panic, maybe shock," Dalzell said.

Luxury bread lines

NEW YORK (AP) — New Yorkers are used to standing in lines. There are lines for Broadway tickets, lines for movies and even lines for trendy restaurants.

But lines for bread? Residents formed bread lines on Wednesday to buy loaves of real Russian rye flour from the Soviet Union.

"We're selling it at a rate of one loaf every two minutes; right now, the line is very long," said Miraed Peake Smith, spokeswoman for Bloomingdale's, where 1,100 loaves arrived Tuesday night.

"One person came in and bought 14 loaves," she said. Among the buyers were employees from the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

"The bread is good. It's not a gimmick," Ms. Smith said. "But Americans also seem to be fascinated with Russian items."

Yes, but they're still Americans, and any resemblance to Moscow ends at the rear of the line. Competition broke out before the bread had even arrived in the United States, and a bakery chain is already planning to undercut Bloomingdale's price — a hefty $6 for each two-pound loaf.

The dense bread was made in Moscow on Sunday, shipped Sunday night, arrived Monday via Aeroflot, underwent federal inspections and was delivered to Bloomingdale's on Tuesday.

Good gnu for park

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — The new gnu is good news.

The herd of 15 large African antelopes at International Wildlife Park should soon increase by more than 50 percent with the pitter-patter of little hooves.

Terrie Gonzalez, a spokeswoman for the drive-through park, said zoo officials were worried about the condition of eight pregnant gnus that were displaced following a flood at the park. But park officials examined them and said they are doing fine even though they were evacuated from their normal range.

The damage from last week's heavy rain has kept the park closed for more than week.

An adult male gnu was swept away by the high water and died.

Needle-free injections give diabetics an alternative

OAKDALE, Minn. (AP) — For the first year after their infant daughter Natalie was diagnosed with diabetes, Brian and Cindy Campbell never left her for more than a few hours. There were no weekends for themselves, no vacations.

"We were trapped. We couldn't get babysitters. Nobody was comfortable injecting her insulin with syringes," Mrs. Campbell said.

"You really find out very quickly there's no break for you," her husband said. "You want to sleep in on a Saturday morning but you can't. She needs her insulin."

Natalie, 2, gets two insulin shots daily and will need them all her life so her body can convert sugar, starches and other food into energy.

That won't change. But the Campbells' lives changed in February, when she began getting insulin with a new needle-free injection system. "It has given us more freedom," Mrs. Campbell said.

Babysitters are no longer reluctant and Natalie's grandparents are more comfortable giving her injections. There's also less stigma, she said. "You whip out a syringe in a restaurant and people wonder what you are doing."

The Tender Touch, for children, and Medi-Jector EZ for adults use pressure to deliver a stream of insulin about the diameter of a hair through the skin. The device, which has 14 pressure settings, is held against the skin; at the touch of a button, the insulin is forced through the skin and spreads out.

The sensation is similar to being tapped lightly with a pencil tip.

While Natalie often still struggles when it's time for her injection, if she is being distracted she doesn't even know she's getting it. "For her, it seems to be more psychological than physical pain" that causes her to resist the injections even with the Tender Touch, Mrs. Campbell said. "She fights. Imagine trying to stick a needle in her when she's fighting and kicking."

More accurate measurement and mixing of insulin also is possible with the system, which is accurate to within tenths of a unit. This is important for Natalie, who needs a mix of fast-acting and medium-acting insulin.

Pressure injections have been in use for about 40 years and were widely used for inoculations in the Armed Forces. Earlier systems used a 200-pound air compressor as a power source, didn't have uniform power and made a much larger hole in the skin, said Jeffrey Burnham, president of Derata Corp.

The Minneapolis-based company began marketing Medi-Jector EZ three years ago, and about 1,000 patients are using Tender Touch since it went on sale Jan. 1, Burnham said. Medi-Jector sales worldwide in 1988 were $3.2 million.

An estimated 1 million North Americans, one-fourth of them children, suffer from Type I, or insulin-dependent, diabetes.

Medi-Jector EZ and Tender Touch are about four inches long and one in diameter, weigh eight ounces, are powered by a wind-up spring and can be used with one hand. There are two other insulin pressure injection devices on the market, one made in Canada and the other in Brazil, Burnham said.

Emma Page, 8, of Inver Grove Heights, who was diagnosed as a diabetic in April 1988, switched from syringe and needle injections to the Tender Touch two months ago and wouldn't go back to needles.

"It hurts a little bit but not as much as the syringe, and it's much faster," she said. "With the syringe you had to push the needle in and pull it back out. With the Tender Touch you just push the button and it's done."

Dr. Joseph Sockalosky, director of pediatric endocrinology/diabetes at St. Paul Ramsey Medical and an assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Minnesota Medical School, recently began telling all of his patients about the needle-free alternative.

Insurance coverage for the devices, which cost $695, has generally been good, he said, noting the cost of the instrument will be recouped over a few years because of the money saved by not buying disposable syringes.

Sex offenders have traits in common

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The typical male sex offender is passive, has low self-esteem and looks down on other sex offenders, according to a researcher who has drawn 14 common characteristics from 10 years of treating offenders.

Seventy percent of 56 offenders studied had 11 of the traits, and 83 percent had eight, said Margretta Dwyer, coordinator of sex offender treatment at the University of Minnesota. Dwyer said the traits, to be published in the Journal of Psychology & Human Sexuality, should help in developing treatment.

But she emphasized that more research is needed, with control groups made up of those who don't commit sex offenses.

Dwyer's subjects ranged in age from 20 to 82. Eighty percent were incest offenders or pedophiles. Thirty-four were married.

Sex offenders grow up "learning to be passive," Dwyer wrote. "Passivity is their way of interacting with life ... encouraged by the over-protective mother and/or wife who makes decisions for them. Offenders tend to attract partners who will mother them."

Other traits:

The typical male sex offender is manipulative. He has to be tricky to keep from being discovered. His relationship with his father, if he knew his father, was lousy. His mother worried constantly about his health and safety.

He's angry, but keeps his anger bottled up. Other adults intimidate him. He tries to hold back his sexual thoughts in an effort to keep from committing sex crimes. He often believes someone other than himself is committing the act.

There's money to be made recycling trash

DENVER (AP) — Paul Meyer, an 81-year-old former corrections office and bank guard who drives a dented pickup truck, collects hundreds of pounds of newspapers a day for recycling. He gives the proceeds to charity.

Like a growing number of others, Meyer has found there's money to be made in trash. He figures he's given more than $60,000 to various Masons' organizations since 1977, in particular the Scottish Rite Foundation for Aphasic Children, which he helped establish.

Meyer takes his newspapers to Tri-R Systems, a recycling company in northeast Denver, which like many other companies is cashing in on the recycling boom.

Meyer's stack of newspapers is immediately added to the inventory by laptop computer.

"We've essentially applied fast-food techniques to the old scrap business," says Tri-R president David Powelson.

The scrap and recycling industry is approaching the $14 billion mark in annual sales, Powelson says. He said Tri-R had $1.5 million in sales in 1983 and $5.3 million in sales last year.

Founded in 1977, it now accepts 35 kinds of recyclable materials, from paper to plastic and brass to glass, at operations in three states.

The growth of recycling has "changed the economics of scale" in the scrap industry, attracting entrepreneurs versed in business-school economics and computer technology, Powelson says.

Bob Rubin agrees. He's director of Recycle Now, a non-profit group funded largely by the beverage and container industries to encourage the growth of recycling in Colorado.

"There's a definite trend toward multimaterial recycling facilities with an emphasis on being as convenient as possible," he says. "Recycling works best when it's most convenient."

Although America still has one of the lowest recycling rates of industrialized nations — about 10 percent — that rate has begun to climb in the last few years and is expected to accelerate in the next decade.

The nation's garbage dumps are filling up rapidly, and public awareness of the problem has grown to what Powelson calls "staggering proportions."

Studies say as much as 80 percent of household trash could be recycled, and the Environmental Protection Agency has set a goal of recycling 25 percent within four years.

Smaller scrap and recycling companies also are benefiting from the industry boom.

Leonard Benson, of Benson and Benson Iron and Metal Co., says his company is expanding, moving from its scrap yard in Denver to a "customer-service center" in suburban Westminster equipped with can-buying machines and attendants to help customers unload their recyclables.

Benson, whose father was in the scrap business, says he didn't decide to enter the business until five years ago.

"Recycling has put a lot of people into business," he says, adding that scrap dealers "are getting away from the old scrap salvage yard."

"We're now dealing with residential businesses and people in the community — providing a community service by making recycling efficient to more customers."

For manufacturers, using recyclables can be cheaper than finding and processing raw materials. Using recycled paper products instead of virgin products, for example, can cut the energy used in production by as much as 74 percent, according to the Washington, D.C.-based Worldwatch Institute. It also cuts water usage by more than half, and air and water pollution significantly.

The company's main warehouse in Denver processes 4 million to 5 million pounds of recyclable materials daily, most of which is sold the very same day to keep inventory low.

Computerization of the inventory means Tri-R also can adjust the prices it pays for materials to fit the latest market conditions, Powelson says.

Powelson says the recyclers' real competition is the trash can, and he is hopeful "the world's No. 1 throw-away society" will keep changing its ways.

Standing amid mountains of baled paper and cans in Tri-R's warehouse, he winces at the words "trash" or "garbage."

"I just look at them and see money," he says.

So does Meyer. One load of his newspapers weighs from 2,000 to 2,800 pounds, for which he is paid 1½ cents a pound.

Health-conscious buyers want a low-salt cheese

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Health-conscious consumers are dehanding foods that are low in salt, but taking it out of cheese does more than change the taste — it can allow some bacteria to flourish, making the food unsafe.

"Fermentation in cheese is tolerant of salt, but the bacteria that makes us sick don't tolerate salt," said Steve Taylor, director of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln food processing center.

Under a grant from the Wisconsin Milk Marketing Board through the University of Wisconsin, Taylor and assistant professor Robert Hutkins will study bacteria growth in low-salt cheddar cheese produced by food chemist Bob Lindsay at the Madison, Wis., school. Wisconsin researcher Eric Johnson will test the cheese for clostridium botulinum, the toxin that causes botulism poisoning, which can be fatal in humans.

"No one's ever got botulism from cheese, for two reasons," Taylor said. "One is salt and the second is moisture content. There is not much likelihood that it would grow, but the industry will say, 'Prove it, then we will consider this product,' and that's basically the reason for the study."

FCC to eliminate amateur radio band

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission on Thursday reaffirmed its decision to allocate to land mobile radio service a frequency band that previously had been available to amateur radio operators.

The commission's August 1988 action had been appealed by the American Radio Relay League and about 700 other amateur radio organizations and individual ham radio operators.

At Thursday's meeting, the FCC stood by its decision to maintain the 216-220 MHz band for maritime mobile communications, allocate the 220-222 MHz band — which earlier had been available to amateurs — to land mobile service and allocate the 222-225 MHz band exclusively to amateur service.

A number of other frequency bands also are currently allocated to amateur radio operators.

In affirming the previous action, members of the commission said they were particularly sensitive to the needs and concerns expressed by amateurs, particularly their requirements for emergency communications.

In other actions Thursday, the FCC:

- Proposed amending its rules to permit mobile stations in aviation services to use 40 reallocated channels in the 136-137 MHz band.
- The commission called for allotting 20 channels for aeronautical en route services and 15 channels for air traffic control purposes.

Hungry patrons fax food orders

AUSTIN (AP) — Burger orders wait their turn with business papers at the facsimile machine, since several downtown restaurants have installed the devices and are urging customers to "fax" in their lunch requests.

"It just seemed like it would be the most efficient way to do things in the restaurant," said Garrett Finch of Iron Works Barbecue.

"It saves a lot of time, it's cost effective, it's real accurate, and it gets us off of the phone and into the kitchen making orders," he said.

The barbecue restaurant, owned by Finch's father, has had a facsimile machine since October or November, Finch said. The machine also is used for letters and other business documents, he said.

Two other restaurants — The Garden Spot Subs and Salads, and Waterloo Ice House — put in facsimile machines more recently.

"It's become kind of a new, popular thing. More and more people are going to have them, I'm sure," said Donald Polise, owner of The Garden Spot. His restaurant, which uses the slogan FAXFOOD, has had a facsimile machine since opening at its 5th Street location about a month ago.

The Garden Spot counts among its customers workers for the Ann Richards Committee, a campaign organization for the state treasurer, who is announced Saturday she will run for the governor's office.

Employees in the committee office find it convenient to simply pass around an order sheet obtained from the restaurant, said Juan Barrientos, office manager. The information then is transmitted via the facsimile machine.

"It's pretty clever, actually," Barrientos said. "It prevents mistakes, and also you don't have to waste time on the telephone."

Barrientos named only one drawback, calling it "a little bit frightening" that the transaction takes place without any personal contact.

"It's a little regrettable that you don't get to speak to a human," he said.

But Scott Hentschel, one of the owners of Waterloo Ice House, said that's also an advantage for customers.

"You don't have to deal with the person on the other end of the line," he said.

Waterloo Ice House, best-known for its burgers, has leased a facsimile machine for about six weeks and has received up to 10 orders a day via the device since recently advertising in a business publication, Hentschel said.

"It's something different," he said, "and it's lots more convenient."

It's 102° in the Den.

DEAR ABBY: I have been divorced from my first husband for five years, and am now happily married to another man.

My problem is my niece (by marriage to my first husband) — I will call her Melanie. She is 17 years old and still keeps in touch with me. Melanie has been calling me with a rather strange request. She wants me to arrange a "family portrait" to include me and my ex-husband, who is her mother's brother. In that picture she wants her own mother and father, who are now divorced and both living with other mates, and herself!

Melanie has been begging me to round up these people and arrange for a studio portrait. When I asked her what her mother (my ex-sister-in-law) thought about this idea, she said, "She said she would be rather uncomfortable with the idea, but she would do it if you would."

Abby, I am not comfortable with this idea, but I hate to hurt Melanie's feelings. How would you handle this? — EX-FAMILY MEMBER

DEAR EX-FAMILY MEMBER: I would tell Melanie that the "family" she would like to re-create for a family portrait no longer exists, so it is very unrealistic to take a "family portrait" now.

Let her down as gently as possible. The poor girl is still hurting, and has not yet accepted that the "family" she once had is no longer a family.

Dear Abby

are too nice finish last.)

DEAR ABBY: In regards to the fathers who are divorced, pay child support, but are dissatisfied with the amount of child support that actually goes toward the child's needs: If the fathers are as concerned as they claim to be, they should seek custody of their children, and make sure their children receive the care and attention they deserve.

I am a happily married man (thank God) and our marriage is strong, but my parents were divorced. My father paid child support, but I was raised by my mother, who was a very bitter and unhappy woman.

The real tragedy of their divorce is that I grew up seeing my father through my mother's eyes. I never really knew my father until I was 18 or 19 years old.

I know it wasn't his fault, but in retrospect, I would have settled for a little more of his time and a lot less money.

Children who grow up with two parents who really care about each other don't know how lucky they are. — MY NAME IS LEGION

DEAR ABBY: I can't get "Torn Mom's" letter off my mind because I know exactly how she feels. "Torn" had a 3-year-old child who had strikingly beautiful red hair that caught the attention of strangers who couldn't resist commenting on it — in the presence of a 5-year-old sibling who was repeatedly hurt when he was overlooked.

I have a similar problem with well-meaning admirers making a fuss over my identical twin daughters who are a year and a half old. When I have the twins out in public with their older brother, the twins get all the attention and the boy is ignored. May I suggest some reminders to public admirers?

The best way to admire children is from afar. But if you must come closer to comment or ask questions, please make it a point to "notice" the other siblings first. It will make their day.

When you see twins, don't ask, "How do you tell them apart?" Parents of identical twins learn to look for the differences. Also, don't ask, "Are they twins?" It is obvious that they are. — MOTHER OF TWINS

DEAR MOTHER: Good suggestions. Being a twin myself, may I add another to mothers of twins: Do not dress identical twins alike — it discourages individuality and thwarts personal growth.

Reagan presents club program

Women of the First Church of God met June 5 for their monthly meeting.

Nelda Reagan, stewardship coordinator, directed the program "Making Time Work For You," written by Wilhelmina Quick, who is a member of the National Stewardship Department.

The objectives of the lesson were to introduce basic concepts of time management. Members shared their daily activities, showed ways to maintain a relaxed and normal life, and determined the best use of time.

"As Christians, it is important that we identify the areas of our lives that require 'prime time'. These are our responsibility to God, our responsibility to others, and our responsibility to ourselves," Reagan said.

Donna Lee closed the program with the hymn "Take Time To Be Holy," and prayed for wisdom and direction to accept God's way in planning time.

The WCG Unit History Book, which will be judged at the Texas Camp meeting in July, was displayed by Kathryn Thomas, historian.

The next meeting will be July 3.

Harrell family holds reunion

The children of the late Susie and Pete Harrell recently conducted a reunion in the home of the W.F. Harrells, 4205 Connally.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. T.M. (Jack) Harrell, Kemp; Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Malone, Weed, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. John Bill Harrell, Allen; Mr. and Mrs.

C.D. Lawson, Big Spring; Lillie Mae Miller, Pasadena; and Rena Galey, Santa Monica, Calif.

The Harrells came to Howard County in 1931 from Ellis County.

"This was the first time in 15 years that all seven children were together," said Mrs. Harrell.

Sew and Chatter Club meets

Nine members of the Sew and Chatter Club met Wednesday at the home of Louise Porter, with Norma Murdock presiding.

Members read several poems and discussed making feather beds, comforters and quilts. Ruby Haynes' birthday was celebrated.

The next meeting will be June 27 with Salena Newell, 409 Washington, at 9:30 a.m.

Club members travel to Snyder

TOPS TX 21 Club met recently in the arts and crafts room of Canterbury South.

Leader Shirley Jenkins called the meeting to order. Fifteen members answered roll call, conducted by weight recorder Edith Roberts.

Olene Menges was the best loser for the week with a loss of six pounds.

Mary Cuthbertson was welcomed as a new member.

After the business meeting, members traveled to Snyder to meet with TOPS TX 56 Club for a salad supper and social.

Jean Yearwood, Snyder club leader, who welcomed the Big Spring group, announced the weight loss competition between the clubs showed that the Big Spring club lost 68½ pounds, and the Snyder club lost 99½ pounds.

If you are interested in joining TOPS, please call Shirley Jenkins at 263-0391, or Virginia Collins at 263-1340.

NL Rangers oust Coahoma Lions

NL Rangers 13, Coahoma Lions 8
The National League Rangers broke open a 3-3 tie after one inning of play and a got strong relief pitching from Trey Cauble to defeat the Coahoma Lions 13-8 in third round of city Little League tournament action.

The loss eliminated the Lions from tournament play. The Lions won one and lost two. Their overall season record was 9-3.

Cauble came in for Rusty Baker in the fourth inning. The bases were loaded and there was one out. Cauble fanned the next two batters to get out of the inning. Brian Ruiz went the distance for Coahoma.

Cody Hedges led the Ranger hitting attack by getting a single, double and homer in four at bats. Jacoby Hopper was also hot, hitting a homer, two doubles and a single. Kurt Ogle also swung a hot bat, going four-for-four at the plate. He doubled and hit three singles. Jason Lentz singled and Cauble singled twice.

Rodney Gressett and Adam Tindol led the Lions with two hits apiece. Gressett singled and doubled and Tindol singled twice. Scotty Bryant and Chris Arguello singled and Alfredo Olivias tripled.

AL Colts 7, Coahoma Reds 2
The American League Colts scored four runs in the first inning and never looked back as they eliminated the Coahoma Reds from tournament play. The Reds exit the tourney with an 1-2 record. They finish the season with an 8-4 mark. The Colts move their overall record to 16-2.

Gabriel Rodriguez was the winning hurler for the Colts. He fanned three along the way and scattered seven hits. Kelby Kirby took the loss for the Reds. He fanned seven and walked eight. He allowed three hits. Rodriguez and Derek Hobbs singled for the Colts. Seven different players got hits for the Reds.

IL Rebels 18, AL Ponys 1
The International League Rebels remained undefeated in the tournament as Jason Henderson fired a one-hitter, striking out 10 American League Ponys. The win moves the the Rebels' overall mark to 17-2.

The Rebels are one of two undefeated teams left. The American League Ponys have one defeat in the tournament.

The Rebels scored seven times in the first inning, and the game was over for all practical reasons. Dallas Hopper was the losing pitcher for the Ponys. He went two-and-one-third innings, allowed seven hits and 11 runs. He was relieved by Clayton Fryar. The game was called after four innings because of the 10-run rule.

Henderson was also hot at the plate, going two-for-two and driving in four RBIs. He also added a three-run homer.

Michael Paul Martinez, Mike Hernandez and Manuel Cervantes all got two hits each for the Rebels.

The only hit off Henderson was a double by DeLynn Reed.
IL Tigers 11, IL Indians 2
The International League Tigers set up a showdown with fellow league member Rebels by blasting the International League Indians 11-2.

The win moves the Tigers' overall record to 13-6. The Indians have the same mark.

Ernest Escovedo was the winning hurler for the Tigers, picking up his second win in tournament play. Escovedo got excellent defensive help from James Escobar and Roger Eddington. Gabriel Aguilar was the losing pitcher for the Indians. He was relieved in the fourth by brother Edward Aguilar.

The Tigers led 1-0 after the first inning, but the Indians took the lead for the first and last time in the second, scoring two runs to take a 2-1 lead.

The Tigers put their lock on the game in the third inning, scoring five runs on six hits. They then added two more runs in the fourth, and three more in the fifth.

John Oliva led Tiger batters with four hits. Richard Balcozar, Orlando Olague, Chris Yanez, Ernest Escovedo and Robert Valencia each got three hits. Escobar, Eddington, Robert Rios and David Patterson got one hit apiece.

For the Indians, the Aguilar brothers got two hits each. Randy Mier, T.J. Rios, David Franco, P.J. Dominguez and Brock Gee added one hit each.

NL Lions 16, AL Hawks 2
The National League Lions pumfled out 16 hits and Brien Burchett tossed a two hitter at the American League Hawks, eliminating the Hawks from the tournament.

Chris Pirkle was the loser for the Hawks.

Polo Morin led the Lions with single, double and triple. Burchett, Chad Kemper, Ryan Williams and Oscar Canales all got two hits for the Lions.

Pirkle and Shubert singled for the Hawks.

Three tied for Open lead

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — For years, only his scores have been fat. Now, Jack Nicklaus is shedding strokes, too.

Winner of 18 major tournaments, the man called "Fat Jack" when he joined the PGA Tour in 1962 is bidding for yet another title — the 1989 U.S. Open.

"I don't know what's going to happen tomorrow or the next day," said Nicklaus, one shot off the lead after Thursday's first-round 67. "But at least it's shown me that I can still play a little, sometimes."

Bernhard Langer of West Germany, four veteran Payne Stewart and newcomer Jay Don Blake shared the first-round lead at 4-under-par 66 on Oak Hill's 6,902-yard East course, where a week of rain turned putting surfaces from teflon to velcro.

"The course was surprisingly dry on the fairways," said Scott Simpson, who was tied with Nicklaus. "No roll, but the greens are holding, and that's good for scoring."

Also at 67 were Tom Kite, Joey Sindelar and Tom Pernice.

Langer, who had only one par in the final 10 holes, had eight birdies and four bogeys in his round. His bogey on the 18th prevented him from equalling the best round ever played here during three Opens — John Spray's 65 in 1968.

"It was kind of an up-and-down day," said Langer, the 1985 Masters champion. "I didn't think there were eight birdies out there. That kind of surprised me."

Nicklaus, 49 years old and in his 33rd straight U.S. Open, started the day with a bogey, but still had a feeling this wasn't going to degenerate into another of those 78s.

"I was playing a little more positive today than I have been," Nicklaus said. "That's something that I used to do until the last three or four years when I forgot how."

He finished the day without another bogey and four birdies, including a near eagle on the 594-yard, par-5 13th when he fired a 9-iron past the cup on his third shot.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Payne Stewart, of Orlando, Fla. (right) talks with his caddie Mike Hicks after Stewart birdied the 14th hole in the U.S. Open.

Stewart finished the day tied for first with Bernhard Langer and Jay Don Blake.

Dodgers edge Astros, 2-1

By The Associated Press
The Los Angeles Dodgers have won five straight games, thanks to John Wetteland and Mariano Duncan.

Who?
The Dodgers edged the Houston Astros 2-1 Thursday night, completing a sweep of a three-game series. Wetteland got his first major league victory, pitching one scoreless inning. Duncan knocked in the winning run with a long single to center field in the 11th inning.

"We were going to get that run in no matter what," Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda said. "We were waiting to see how they were going to play it. My first thought was about the squeeze but we couldn't try the squeeze if they pitched out. Duncan eliminated the decision with his drive to center."

That hit made Wetteland's fondest wish come true.

"It was a great feeling getting my first major league win," Wetteland said. "It's something I've dreamed about. The guys are really up right now. Five in a row is our longest streak of the season."

Elsewhere, it was St. Louis 4, Montreal 3 in 10 innings; Atlanta 2, San Francisco 1; San Diego 1, Cincinnati 0 in 12 innings; Pittsburgh 5, Philadelphia 3; and New York 4, Chicago 3 in 12 innings.

The champion Dodgers are 4½ games out of first place in the NL

West — but three teams are ahead of them. All of them — the Giants, Reds and Astros — lost Thursday.

The Dodgers won after rallying to tie it in the eighth.

Alfredo Griffin walked and was sacrificed to second by pinch-hitter

Dave Anderson. Kirk Gibson hit a high chopper to second baseman Bill Doran. Unable to make a play on Gibson at first, Doran tried to get Griffin off third but threw wildly into the Dodgers' dugout as Griffin scored.

Franklin Stubbs led off the 11th with a single. Mike Scioscia attempted to sacrifice and, after Scioscia fouled off two pitches, Stubbs stole second. Scioscia then grounded to first base, moving Stubbs to third with one out. Juan Agosto intentionally walked Jeff Hamilton.

"When I went up to hit," Duncan said after pinch-hitting for John Shelby. "I was thinking squeeze. If I didn't get the squeeze sign, I was looking for a pitch I could drive deep to the outfield."

He found one and the Dodgers had a sweep.

Cardinals 4, Expos 3
At St. Louis, pinch-hitter Tom Pagnozzi singled home Milt Thompson in the 10th inning. Pagnozzi's hit to right field came off Andy McGaffigan, 1-3, after Tony Pena's two-out RBI triple tied it for St. Louis in the ninth. Pagnozzi's single gave the victory to Todd Worrell, 1-1, as the Cardinals erased the Expos' early 3-1 lead.

Vince Coleman started the 10th with a single and stole second. But he was caught in a rundown when Thompson bunted too close to the mound. Thompson got to second before Coleman was tagged out.

McGaffigan walked Ozzie Smith intentionally before Pagnozzi's winning hit.

Two tie OC cowboy in NFR bull riding

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Three new leaders emerged during the running of Thursday night's performance at the College National Finals Rodeo.

Lisa Pulse of Montana State University took over the second go-round lead in breakaway roping when she roped her calf in 2.4 seconds. She displaced previous leader Shannon Lord of Southwestern Oklahoma State University who had a 2.6-second run.

Barrel racer Bobbi Woodbury of Dickinson State University had a run of 14.22 seconds to jump into the lead of the average with a two-run time of 28.49 seconds. That was 2 of a second better than Julie Adair of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo. Jill Lowe of Northeastern Oklahoma A&M continues to lead the second go standings.

In goat tying, Jimmi Jo Martin of Wyoming took the second go-round lead in the event with a 7.2-second run, bumping teammate Toni Christinck from the top spot by .2 of a second.

The first go-round of bareback riding concluded Thursday night and Kent Crouch of Fort Hays State saw his 74 ride hold up. The second go-round opened with Denny McLanahan of Western Texas College taking the lead with a 77. McLanahan also leads the average with a two-ride score of 149.

Weak hitter powers Orioles by Yankees

By The Associated Press
Rene Gonzales probably could roll out of bed on Christmas morning and get a base hit — as long as he was facing the New York Yankees.

A .203 hitter against everyone else in his 2½-year major-league career, Gonzales raised his lifetime average against the Yankees to .370 with a two-out single in the 10th inning that gave the Baltimore Orioles a 2-1 victory Thursday night.

Gonzales' game-winning hit scored Mickey Tettleton, who opened the 10th with a double off McCullers.

McCullers entered the game with a 2-1 lead after Richard Dotson scattered eight hits in seven innings and the Orioles promptly tied it on Randy Milligan's single, a stolen base and a single by Jim Traber, batting for Worthington.

Singles by Rickey Henderson, Steve Sax and Don Mattingly, gave the Yankees a 1-0 lead against Jeff Ballard. With a 3-2 count and the runners going, Steve Ballboni lined to shortstop Cal Ripken, who threw to second baseman Bill Ripken to double Sax. The relay to Milligan at first completed the Orioles' first triple play in 10 years.

Cal Ripken tied the game 1-1 with a leadoff homer in the fourth inning, his fifth of the season. The Yankees went ahead 2-1 in the fifth on Don Slaught's double and Alvaro Espinoza's single.

Mark Thurmond, who pitched the 10th inning for Baltimore, was the winner. Ballard allowed two runs and 10 hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Royals 5, Indians 4
Bill Buckner reached 1,200 career RBIs by driving in three runs, two of them during a three-run eighth-inning rally.

The Royals trailed 4-0 after two innings and were behind 4-2 entering the eighth. But George Brett led off with a walk off Cleveland starter John Farrell and Bo Jackson singled off Doug Jones, who blew a save for only the third time in 17 opportunities.

Jones hadn't allowed an earned run in 15 2-3 previous innings against Kansas City.

Winner Bret Saberhagen gave up four runs and seven hits in seven innings. Jeff Montgomery and Steve Farr each pitched an inning, with Farr getting his 15th save.

Kevin Seitzer's Kansas City record of 37 consecutive errors.

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Sidney Green of New York went to the Orlando Magic and Rick Mahorn of newly crowned champion Detroit was chosen by the Minnesota Timberwolves as the top two picks in the NBA expansion draft.

Each NBA team except last year's expansion clubs — Charlotte and Miami — lost one player in the draft, with Orlando taking 12 players and Minnesota 11.

Guards Reggie Theus of Atlanta and forward-center Steve Johnson of Portland, both former All-Stars, were among the other selections with Theus going to Orlando and Johnson going to Minnesota.

HOCKEY

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Ted Sator, who led the Buffalo Sabres to a pair of third-place finishes but was unable to get the team past the first round of the playoffs, was fired.

Sator, who succeeded Craig Ramsay as coach in December, 1986, had a 96-89-22 with the Sabres. He led the team to third-place finishes in the Adams Division in both of his full seasons as coach, but the Sabres were eliminated in the first round both times by the Boston Bruins.

Last season, the Sabres finished 38-35-7, but lost in the playoffs to the Bruins after going 5-0-3 against Boston in the regular season.

Kingdom wants revenge; Foster not around

HOUSTON (AP) — Roger Kingdom came to the Mobil Track and Field Championships seeking revenge. But Greg Foster, the object of his vengeance, was absent.

Kingdom qualified for tonight's semifinals in the 110-meter hurdles Thursday in a meet that was marked by the absence of six of the eight U.S. gold medal winners from the 1988 Olympic Games.

Foster, a two-time world champion, ended Kingdom's string of 23 straight victories in the 110-meter hurdles last week.

Kingdom was seeking a rematch. But Foster was among the lengthy list of late withdrawals, adding fuel to a growing debate started by Carl Lewis, who is boycotting the meet because he doesn't like the policies of The Athletics Congress.

"A lot of people are trying to get back at TAC by not competing but they are burning bridges and keeping the sport down," Kingdom said. TAC is the governing body of track and field in the United States.

"The only way you will ever get it better is to compete and let people see you compete," Kingdom said. "You'll get better sponsors. Then you sit down with TAC and work things out."

Kingdom and high jump champion Louise Ritter are the only 1988 gold medalists to competing.

Lewis said he never claimed to be the leader of a boycott and only spoke for himself.

"I don't know why they pulled out," said Lewis, who attended Thursday's qualifying session. "If TAC was working with the athletes and we were doing things together, the situations would be a lot better and we'd have less dissention."

TAC president Frank Greenberg said Foster told him last week that he would participate in the championships.

But Foster was a no-show along with 1988 gold medalists

Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Joe DeLoach, Andre Phillips, Steve Lewis and retired Florence Griffith Joyner.

Foster withdrew with a foot injury and Joyner-Kersey said she was fatigued, although she won two events at last week's Florence Griffith Joyner Invitational.

Dropouts other than Foster, a 1984 silver medalist who missed the 1988 Olympics with an injury, were Renaldo Nehemiah, Danny Harris, Butch Reynolds and Antonio McKay.

Greenberg said the absent athletes likely were just pacing themselves for a long season.

"I saw Greg Foster last week and he's 110 percent in our corner," Greenberg said. "What happened to people like Greg and even Jackie is they are in shape but here you have to run a lot of rounds."

"Greg told me he'd be here. But he has a full season ahead of him. I suppose a lot of them are like that."

Dennis Mitchell of Team Elite qualified second into the semifinals in the 100 meter dash, one of Lewis' specialties, with a 10-flat wind-aided time.

Daron Council of the Mazda Track Club, led 100-meter qualifiers with a 9.98 time behind a 5.15 meters per second wind.

Mitchell says Lewis' absence gives him a chance to perform and be seen.

"Basically, I don't understand his reasons for not running," Mitchell said. "Yeah, it hurts overall. The U.S. is used to having Carl Lewis in there."

"Now America will have to look at its other athletes."

Dawn Sowell, Flo-Jo International, was third in women's 100 meter qualifying with an 11.10 time, but hopes she's saving her best for the finals.

"I'm mentally tired but physically I feel good," Sowell said. "I think I left my brain at the NCAAs."

The Mobil meet is a qualifier for the U.S. team that will compete in the World Games at Barcelona, Spain, Sept. 8-10.

"It could have been a much stronger team if all the best athletes competed, said Joe Douglas, Carl Lewis' agent.

"This is a pro sports and not an amateur sport," Douglas said. "It should be treated as a pro sport. The way we run the sport now, it will never be great."

"I hope pressure comes to bear to move the sport forward."

Party time in Motor City

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons made their final appearance of the 1988-89 season here, this time in long pants and wide smiles reflected in the golden glint of the trophy awarded the NBA champions.

The Thursday afternoon rally at The Palace of Auburn Hills climaxed a three-day love-in sparked by Detroit's four-game sweep of the Los Angeles Lakers for the Pistons' first NBA title.

An estimated 125,000 people turned out for a noon parade in downtown Detroit. Another 12,000 attended the jubilant, hour-long rally at the suburban arena.

"In order to win at anything, there has to be pressure," Isiah Thomas, the team captain, told the roaring, foot-stomping Palace crowd. "Every time we lost, it was the worst feeling in the world. We never wanted to lose again.

The Palace fell relatively silent as Thomas turned to his teammates, seated on a stage at center court, and led them in applause for their fans.

"This is fantastic," General Manager Jack McCloskey said. "In 1980, this team won 16 ballgames. The players were losers, the coaches were losers, we all were losers.

Open

backed it up and just lipped it the hole, settling for a tap-in birdie.

Nicklaus said he had gone back to three old clubs — his sand wedge, wooden driver and 27-year-old putter — for this tournament. They're all confidence-builders; so too is the knowledge that the last time there was a major tournament here — the PGA in 1980 — Nicklaus won by seven strokes.

"I know I can play this golf course," he said. "If I'm seven shots worse than I was in 1980 — and I probably am — that still puts me in contention here. That's sort of a negative positive." Nicklaus won his last major in 1986, the Masters.

Rain fell only sporadically on Thursday, although more was forecast for today and possibly Saturday. Still, Langer agreed with most of the other golfers that it had helped scoring rather than hindered it.

"The greens must be playing a little easier," he said. "For one thing, you can hit a lot of shots more at the hole, and they may be putting just a touch slower."

"Still, the rough is very, very tough. It's wet and heavy, and the ball doesn't go anywhere, and you don't get any run on the fairways."

When Langer came to the 18th — a 440-yard par-4 — he was five under par after his only regulation hole on the back nine. He just barely made the 18th green with a 5-iron second shot, then 3-putted from 60 feet. That made up for the 60-foot birdie putt he made on the par-3 11th.

Stewart won the Heritage Classic earlier this year but has yet to win a major tournament. "I don't think my career will be complete until I win a major," Stewart said. "I'm not saying I will, but I'm not saying I won't."

Stewart's first round was much the same as Langer's — up and down. He turned in 2-under 33, then got to four under with birdies at Nos. 12 and 14, both par-4s. He then bogeyed the 15th and 16th, and finished with birdies at 17 and 18, where he holed a 20-foot putt.

Blake, in his third year on the tour at age 30 and never a winner, had a more consistent round of 33-33. It included just one bogey, the 177-yard, par-3 15th, where he plopped a 6-iron 40 feet from the hole and three-putted.

Kite shot 32-35, Simpson and Sindelar had 33-34, and Pernice shot 36-31 with four birdies on the back nine.

Kite won two straight tournaments in March, finished fifth in last week's Westchester and is considered a strong contender here.

"It's nice to be in the red in the Open," said Kite, who was four under before bogeying the 16th when he pushed his 5-iron second shot to the right of the green. "I've got to feel good about my game, the way things have been going."

At 68 and two shots back were Nick Faldo of England, Kurt Beck, Dillard Pruitt, Larry Nelson and Raymond Floyd.

In 1968 at Oak Hill, there were only 14 rounds of 68 or better during the entire U.S. Open. This time, there were 13 rounds of 68 or better in the first round alone, and Hal Sutton blew a chance to make it 14.

At four under, Sutton double-bogeyed the 16th when he put his second shot over the green and under a tree, took an unplayable lie, then chipped over the green. He finished at 69 after bogeying No. 17, too.

Defending champion Curtis Strange finished the day at 71. Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the No. 1 player in the world, shot 75 after bogeying four of the last seven holes.

walks, four intentional, and Montreal stranded 15 runners.

Braves 2, Giants 1
At San Francisco, John Smoltz won his eighth game with a seven-hitter and Lonnie Smith homered as Atlanta broke a six-game losing streak. The victory stopped a five-game Giants winning streak.

Smoltz struck out nine and walked two in his third complete game of the year.

"He's got one of the best young arms in the league, and he showed a lot of poise," Giants manager Roger Craig said.

Smith got his first home run since returning Tuesday from the disabled list with a sprained right ankle.

Padres 1, Reds 0
At San Diego, slumping Jack Clark broke up the scoreless duel in the 12th with a single that scored Mark Parent.

Parent singled with one out off Tim Lincecum, 2-1. After Garry Templeton singled Parent to second, Clark hit for reliever Greg Harris, 2-2. Kent Tekulve relieved Birtsas and Clark got his bloop hit.

"The pitch was where I wanted it," Tekulve said. "That's the pitch he's been swinging at and missing, a slider just off the plate. On a 3-2 pitch, you can't put it in a much better spot."

Clark found a better spot. "I didn't hit it well, but I hit it in the right spot," Clark said. "If it had been harder, they would have had a good chance at Parent at the plate."

Pirates 5, Phillies 3
At Pittsburgh, Doug Drabek didn't let three rain delays totaling two hours stop him. Drabek, 4-5, won his third straight decision since ending a five-game losing streak May 25. He struck out seven, despite allowing solo homers to Randy Ready and Juan Samuel.

Bob Kipper and Bill Landrum pitched the final two innings, with Landrum getting his third save.

Gary Redus and Jose Lind hit solo home runs for Pittsburgh. Randy Ready and Juan Samuel homered for Philadelphia, which lost for the 16th time in 20 games and the 13th time in its last 14 road games.

Mets 4, Cubs 3
At New York, the Mets overcame a 3-0 deficit and outlasted the Cubs in the rain. Gregg Jefferies singled home the winning run with two outs in the 12th, ending a five-hour game.

The game was twice delayed by showers for a total of 1 hour, 31 minutes and finally finished at 1:24 a.m. EDT.

Dave Magadan's two-out, two-run single gave the Mets a 3-3 in the ninth inning after Howard Johnson was walked intentionally.

Magadan drew a leadoff walk from Pat Perry in the 12th. Lee Mazzilli walked with two outs and Jefferies' third straight single scored pinch-runner Kevin Elster without a throw.

FOR A REAL EDUCATION, TAKE TIME TO READ YOUR BIBLE

In that busy life of yours, so rigidly apportioned among work, home maintenance, TV, PTA meetings, the bowling league or whatever, try to find time to read your Bible; even if it's only one chapter at a time. It contains a great many elements for our education and well-being. It's history, with the story of the earliest days of the world, faithfully handed down through the generations. It's geography, inviting fascinating comparison between the Middle East and Mediterranean lands, then and now. It's a prescription for better living, with its rules for behavior toward our fellow human beings. It's a great comfort, bringing us guidance and solace in times of trouble or sorrow. All in all, it's the world's most perfect collection of writings, and if we know how interesting and helpful it can be, we will somehow manage to find the time for it.

Facing marital problems

By Billy Graham
DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We've only been married a few years, but it seems like we spend all our time arguing. We had a child and I thought maybe that would bring us together but it hasn't. I'm sick of arguing, but I don't want to get a divorce. Please tell me how to handle this. - Mrs. B.F.

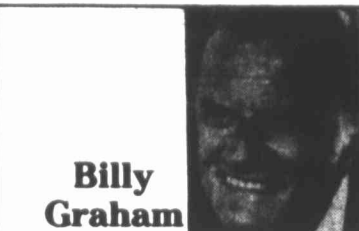

DEAR MRS. B.F.: One reason I wanted to reprint your question is that it spotlights an important principle about troubled marriages: Unless a husband and wife face their real problems and work to resolve them, those problems will remain and the marriage will still be in trouble. That sounds simple, and yet many couples hope somehow that having a child - or moving to a new house or a different city, or changing jobs, or any number of other things - will smooth over the problems and make them go away. This is seldom true.

Have you ever asked yourself what the basic problem really is? On the surface there may be many problems you could list. But beneath them all, I suspect the problem is that you both want your own way. And when two people demand their own individual ways and refuse to compromise, always trying to control the other person - then there is trouble.

But listen to what the Bible defines as the marks of real love: "Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs" (1 Corinthians 13:4-5).

Your love can be rekindled - if you will turn to Christ and ask him to take away your selfish spirit and give you true love for each other - the kind of love He has for you. Yes, your marriage can be saved, and can become the source of joy God intended for it to be - if you will build it on Christ and his love.

Billy Graham

Church ties seen as lasting

NEW YORK (AP) - Through delicate diplomacy, the doors gradually had opened between American and Chinese Christian leaders, but now a questionmark hovers over those associations.

So far, contacts between church officials in the two countries continued, but seemed increasingly uncertain as China's ruling regime widened its suppression of democratic impulses.

In the long run, the situation "cannot do anything to Chinese and Western Christian relations except deepen the solidarity," says Cynthia McLean, a specialist in the China program of the National Council of Churches.

"But in the short run, it may become difficult to keep up contacts we've had if the situation turns anti-Western and anti-foreign," she added in an interview.

She said mutual expressions of support during the current crisis, coupled with accumulated trust developed between American and Chinese church leaders, would make for a long-range strengthening of ties.

Southern Baptists advance on The Strip

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Hundreds of Southern Baptist conventioners marched down the heart of the nation's gambling capital, leaving behind thousands of religious pamphlets with bewildered tourists and gamblers.

"We need to show Las Vegas that we are not scared of them and we do not condemn them and we need to show them the love of God," said Ken Render of Lexington, Ky., as he handed out New Testaments on a thoroughfare known simply as The Strip on Wednesday afternoon.

But some tourists didn't know quite what to make of the sight of more than 200 Baptist evangelists following a man carrying a 12-foot wooden cross marching to Caesars Palace in 109-degree heat.

"I don't think they belong in Las Vegas," said Darlene Klemm of Oconomowoc, Wis.

The two-mile march came after an evangelism conference at the midpoint of a three-day meeting of Southern Baptists, the nation's largest Protestant denomination with 14.8 million members. The convention ends today.

Led by Arthur Blessitt, a Hollywood evangelist who has carried his 80-pound cross in more than 100 countries in the past 20 years, the evangelists left religious literature in casinos, in the place of circulars advertising sex shows, and in the hands of tourists, gamblers and casino workers.

R.B. Chandler, pastor of Mount Airy Baptist Church in Mount Airy, Md., said: "The point-blank truth is that everybody in the world is either born-again or not. The idea is hopefully we would catch some people and tell them about Christ for the first time."

Chris Martin of Park Forest, Ill., got off a bus in an unscheduled stop when he saw the Baptists in front of Caesars Palace.

As they prayed, "I accepted the Lord," he said. But he has no plans to give up gambling.

LAS VEGAS — Members leave a meeting of the Southern Baptist Conference Pastor's Conference at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

Other tourists viewed the evangelistic effort differently.

Dwain Moore said he thought the Baptists were "a little too pushy" in trying to evangelize people on the street.

His wife, Thelma, said they were both Methodists and, "The Methodists don't do it."

Las Vegas residents took the evangelism in stride.

"These are nice, decent people, but I don't think they can do much to change our image, or our thinking," said Don Capaldi, a cab driver.

Larry Williams, a bellman at the Stardust, said: "What can it hurt to give people the Bible? We need to go back to more of that."

Some Southern Baptists have already revised their opinion of the city.

"Sodom and Gomorrah" was how George Mitchell, the mayor of a small town in western Colorado and a member of the Rifle Southern Baptist Church, envisioned Las Vegas.

But he said Wednesday he discovered average residents of the gambling mecca "seem to be all God-fearing people."

The decision to meet in Las Vegas evoked controversy within the Protestant denomination, with some Southern Baptists deciding to stay home rather than bring their families to a city built on vices they condemn.

Leaders of the denomination, which has pledged to evangelize the world by the turn of the century, responded by emphasizing evangelism at this year's convention.

A series of revivals were held last week in Las Vegas churches, and nearly 2,000 people participated in a door-to-door evangelization effort that led to more than 350 confessions of faith, church officials said.

The denomination hopes to start 25 new churches in Nevada by year's end. About 22,000 Southern Baptists in 71 churches are in Nevada.

Once one of the nation's fastest-growing churches, more than doubling in size in the past quarter-century, the Southern Baptist Convention has grown by barely more than half a percent each of the last two years, the lowest growth rate since 1937.

Blessitt said the community sometimes known as Sin City was not being singled out: "We're not picking on Las Vegas. We want it known, 'Look out world, we're going everywhere.'"

Spirit Wind 1989 set to perform

Spirit Wind 1989, the Northwest Texas United Methodist Annual Conference Youth Choir, will perform Saturday at First United Methodist Church at 7 p.m.

The 120-member choir is a select group of United Methodist senior high youth from the Panhandle and West Texas area. Representing communities and churches of all sizes, the members were selected after auditioning in Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene and Midland in January of this year.

The Spirit Wind program is inclusive of many different styles, forms and periods of music. Selections from large choral works such as "The Creation," by Franz Joseph Hayden; "Gloria" by Antonio Vivaldi; and "Requiem" by John Rutter, will appear on the program along with music composed by Lloyd Pfautsh, Allen Pote, George Lynn and Gabriel Faure.

Spirit Wind is under the direction of Bert W. Bostic, director of program/music at the St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Midland, and Jon Johnson, director of music at First United Methodist Church, Levelland.

The choir will be accompanied by Debby Vester, music assistant/organist at St. Luke's, and Amy Vandever, a former Spirit Wind singer, presently a student at Texas Tech. Other leadership for the group includes: Patsy Giles, technical director; and Wayne Hyde, Mike West, Debbie del Llano and Willow Dell Johnson.

This year's tour will include 13 performances throughout West Texas, the Panhandle and into the Dallas/Fort Worth area.

Participating from Big Spring are: Christy Alexander, Michael Powell and Daniel Andrews.

Man to minister through music

Craig Smith, Fort Smith, Ark., will minister through music Wednesday at Hillcrest Baptist Church at 7 p.m.

The church's adult choir will sing "Jehovah" with Smith, and Kelly Killion will sing the part that was originally sung by Twila Paris on Smith's album.

Born and raised in Louisville, Ky., Smith was a drummer and vocalist in a rock band for six years, when he and his wife, Diana, were introduced to Jesus Christ through the conversion and witness of the group's Jewish manager.

A few months after the Smiths became Christians, they moved to Missouri to attend Bible college, where Craig majored in Bible and theology.

In 1976, Smith began sharing his ministry through music in churches throughout the United States and Canada.

For the past four years, he has

CRAIG SMITH continued ministering in local churches and meetings throughout the nation.

In addition to his worship album, Smith has recorded three other albums, "The Grand Arrival," (1978), "Maker" (1981) and "Hymns" (1983).

The Smiths conviction and belief is that all traveling ministries should be sent from, covered by and accountable to a local church, according to a news release.

Gay congregation breaks ground by joining mainline Christian church

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Though churches have condemned homosexual activity for centuries, gay men and women are beginning to find a home within a mainline Christian denomination.

The Spirit of the Lakes Ecumenical Community Church became the nation's first openly homosexual congregation to join a mainline church when it was accepted into membership of the United Church of Christ in April, according to its leader.

"As far as we know, we're making history," said the Rev. Dan Geslin, pastor of Spirit of the Lakes. "We see ourselves as a prophetic voice."

"We hope that we're breaking ground and leading the way for other churches and other denominations to open up and recognize gay and lesbian people's rightful place in the church."

Spirit of the Lakes has grown from 18 people meeting in a living room in May 1987 to 150 members. It was voted into membership by more than 80 percent of the delegates attending the annual meeting of the Eastern Association, the largest of the United Church of Christ's three associations in Minnesota with 71 churches and 24,000 members.

Spirit of the Lakes is considered a "developing" church while the association reviews the group's constitution and development plan. Those are likely to be approved at the association's 1990 annual meeting, formalizing the congregation's admission, association officials say.

Samuel Loliger, co-coordinator of the United Church Coalition for Lesbian-Gay Concerns, an Athens, Ohio-based special-interest group within the church, said the acceptance of Spirit of the Lakes is a first for mainline denominations.

"This one is certainly very different than anything we have encountered before," he said. "It is an openly gay and lesbian congregation, and they have sought to become a church with that right up front."

Most Christian churches accept homosexuals as members, equally beloved by God as others, but condemn the practice of homosexuality.

But the United Church of Christ, a 1.8-million-member Protestant church formed in 1957 when the Evangelical and Reformed Church

MINNEAPOLIS — The Rev. Dan Geslin talks about his church, Spirit of the Lakes Ecumenical Community Church, which became the nation's first openly homosexual congregation to join a mainline church.

merged with the Congregational Christian Churches, often has been at the forefront of progressive social movements.

In 1969, the church's general synod approved its first resolution supporting civil rights for homosexuals, and three years later it became the first mainline denomination to ordain an openly gay minister.

In 1983, the general synod passed a resolution stating that "a person's sexual orientation is not a moral issue" and that sexual orientation should not be the basis for discrimination within the church. The synod encouraged United Church of Christ churches to openly accept homosexuals as members.

That inclusiveness is what attracted Spirit of the Lakes to the denomination.

Geslin, 39, who grew up in Anoka, a Minneapolis suburb, received a master of divinity degree from the Pacific School of Religion, a United Church of Christ-affiliated school in Berkeley, Calif. He took over as pastor of Spirit of the Lakes in September and immediately began pursuing membership in the denomination.

"The discussion was, 'Why bother to affiliate at all?' Most (homosexuals) look at established churches as oppressive institutions," Geslin said.

But the membership was attracted by the United Church of Christ's structure, which allows autonomy for each congregation.

"This is the best of both worlds for us," he said. "We can remain an autonomous congregation ... and still associate with a larger Christian body. That allows us to be a community of gay-lesbian Christians and at the same time not be ghettoized."

He described the congregation as college-educated professionals who come from Catholic, Lutheran and Episcopal backgrounds and are interested in social justice, peace, liberation and feminist theology.

Although Spirit of the Lakes has generally met with quiet acceptance, some have voiced reservations.

"I do not think that any congregation should come in with a sexual or a racial orientation," said the Rev. James McCutcheon, senior minister of the United Church of Christ-affiliated Wayzata Community Church. "I would be bothered if somebody proposed a church just for men, or a church just for women, or a church just for married couples, and so on."

Thousands attend Lubbock district convention

A total of 5,300 persons attended the final session of the "Godly Devotion" district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses conducted Sunday at the Lubbock Civic Center.

The principal address of the convention was delivered by Frank R. Garig. Speaking on the subject

"Deliverance Near of People of Godly Devotion," Garig pointed to the present crisis affecting humanity: crime, violence, terrorism, economic panic, environmental problems and moral decay as a sure sign that divine intervention in human affairs is near.

Garig told participants that it is not merely a general disregard for divine law but a defiant attitude toward God himself. As a result, Garig said, God will act in judgment by ending the world and instituting a new world of righteousness and peace. This reaction, he said, is near.

LONDON (AP) — Actor-director Sam Wanamaker celebrated his 70th birthday at a ground-breaking ceremony for a replica of William Shakespeare's Globe Theater.

After 20 years of planning and fund-raising, Wanamaker signed a $30 million contract with a construction company to build his project close to the theater's original site on the south bank of the River Thames.

"This is the second most important day of my life," the American-born Wanamaker said at the ceremony Wednesday.

The most important day, he said, will be April 23, 1992, the scheduled completion date for his project, to

WANAMAKER IACOCA will be called the International Shakespeare Globe Center. April 23 is Shakespeare's birthday. The complex will be a center for Shakespeare studies and will house two theaters, one of them a replica of the Globe, where Shakespeare's plays were performed in the bard's lifetime. It will also include an exhibition area, offices, restaurant, apartments and shops.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Iacocca told television executives to start censoring their shows, or advertisers, including his own Chrysler Corp., may pull out their commercials.

The Chrysler chairman said Tuesday that viewers are tired of trash TV and are venting their rage on the big advertisers with angry letters and boycotts.

"I don't want to be the censor; I want you to do it," he said.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

SATURDAY, JUNE 17, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Methodist leader John Wesley, entertainer Dean Martin, comedian Joe Piscopo, actor Ralph Bellamy, Cincinnati Reds infielder Davey Concepcion, musician Sammy Fain, author John Hersey, football's Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch, music superstar Barry Manilow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An important club or organization pursues you as a member. Put your personal goals first for a change. Exercise programs started now are likely to succeed. Ask a friend to join you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A wonderful day for romance. This may not be the best period to relocate. Get family members' views. You may find yourself searching for answers. Enjoy the time you spend at home with loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A relative or longtime friend may pop back into your life. Soak up as much of the outdoors as possible. Fresh air and exercise leave you feeling rejuvenated. Host a small gathering.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep away from "losers" or their ways could start to rub off on you. You have too much to offer to settle for less than the best. Aim high in everything you do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be flexible. A mix-up will only add spice to your day. If young and single, you could walk into an explosive new romance. Be careful not to rush into making a commitment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do what you can to enhance your social image today. Too many things may be happening at once for your own good. Find time for a short nap if going out tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work isn't everything. Put those papers away and spend time with your children or friends. A surprise could lead you to change your weekend plans. Take advantage of an unexpected opportunity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today could bring you great love and many laughs. An unhappy episode will turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Protect your health by eating right and getting more rest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work out peaceful agreements with family members or neighbors so that you can enjoy a fun-filled weekend. Build up your strength with regular exercise. A young person relies on your guidance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Climactic emotional events make this a special time. Be wary of promises made by people who have let you down in the past. You need to put your own interests first now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Family finances may require more of your time than expected. The experience you gain now can be a springboard to a brighter future. Curling up with a good book has special appeal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Act bright and sunny, and people will flock to your side. Welcome an opportunity to travel or visit a museum. Look for ways to promote your personal goals without seeming too obvious.
