On the side:

Missing mom found

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring woman and her two children have been found after a report in the Big Spring Herald told of her mother's concern for her safety.

Howard County sheriff officials said Mary Mathis and her two daughters, Brandi, 6, and Courtney, 5, had been located at Moss Creek Lake. Mathis told sheriff's department officials someone had brought her a paper and showed her the article. She said that she did not know she was missing until she read the paper.

Mathis and her two daughters had been missing since June 27 following an argument with her father over the use of his pick-up.

"She left everything she owned, all their clothes, and left her trailer's air conditioning on and the door unlocked," Mathis' mother Barbara Meriworth told the Herald.

Mathis told officials that a friend took her and the children to the lake Wednesday and left food and other items. She said people at the lake had been helpful.

She promised to contact her parents by telephone today and tell them that she did not wish to be found, officials said.

Sheriff's department officials also said Meriworth was contacted by telephone and advised that contact was made with Mathis and that it appeared she and her children were doing fine.

Midnight postmark?

BIG SPRING — If it absolutely positively has to be postmarked by midnight, then Big Spring residents need to get their letters to the post office by 5:15 p.m.

Big Spring Postmaster Howard Riche said he received a complaint recently because a letter dropped in a mailbox before midnight was not postmarked for that day. That's because the Big Spring post office must ship almost all of its mail to Midland for cancellation, he said.

Postal workers here collect mail then load it on a 5:30 p.m. truck to Midland, he said, where it receives a postmark. Because of that, the office's last collections time is 5:15 at two boxes at a corner outside the post office and one inside, he said.

"That's similar for any other post office unless you're a 24-hour facility," Riche said. "It (the time limit) is to meet the last truck going to Midland, and that has not changed over a period of years."

Anybody who absolutely needs a same-day postmark faces a drive to the area processing center in Midland if it's after 5:15 p.m., he said. "If they're that desperate, they would really have to take it over to Midland," he said. The only exception, he said, is April 15 when federal taxes are due.

"On that particular day, we will postmark stuff up to midnight."

Natural gas pitch

AUSTIN (AP) — Railroad Commissioner John Sharp said today the state of Texas is taking its sales pitch on natural gas to California — "to an anxious and aggressive audience." "California is a fast-growing market for natural gas," Sharp said. "The state's Energy Commission estimates they will require a trillion cubic feet more per year of natural gas by the year 2000."

"Even if Texas maintains only its current market share, we will realize a $225 million increase in annual severance tax revenue."

Sharp said Texas already has 60 percent of the gas market in Southern California.

A natural gas conference to encourage California utilities and consumers to purchase Texas natural gas is scheduled for July 12-14.

The University of Houston and University of Southern California are co-hosts of the conference, Sharp told a news conference.

Ringling doorbell saved family from fire

By KAREN HAYS
Herald Correspondent

COAHOMA — A ringing doorbell woke Jimmy Long, his wife Linda and their two children at approximately 4:30 a.m. Wednesday.

It may have saved their lives. Mrs. Long woke her husband by saying "Jimmy, there's someone at the door."

That "someone" was a fire — a fire that set off the doorbell when it burned through wires and erupted in the attic over the utility room, apparently from a short in the electrical wiring.

"A neighbor was on the way but the doorbell was going off, it could have saved our lives," Mrs. Long said. "We lost a lot but we thought we were real lucky."

At about the same time the doorbell began ringing, neighbor Dwayne Clawson was leaving his home to deliver newspapers. He noticed smoke billowing from the roof of the Longs home.

Clawson ran to wake the family and the fire department was called.

It was the first of two trips to the Long's house within a 24-hour period for the Coahoma fire department.

Firefighters from Coahoma worked for more than three hours to extinguish the fire, leaving the scene at approximately 8 a.m.

All charred materials were removed from the home and no sign of a rekindling was apparent when Long rechecked his attic at 10:30 p.m. for hot spots.

But at 12:20 a.m. Thursday, the Coahoma fire department was called to the Long residence again.

This time they were joined by fire units from Sand Springs, Silver Heels and one unit from Big Spring. The departments fought the blaze for four hours, according to Coahoma Fire Marshall Bobby Sullivan.

Big Spring Fire Marshall Burr Lea Settles said today that about $30,000 damage was done to the house; the cause of the blaze is undetermined, he added. "The neighbors, the fire department... they are all wonderful," said Mrs. Long. "I don't know how we could have made it without them."

"We wouldn't have gotten near the stuff out that we did... but my husband, my brother and the fire people kind of made a line and had things going from hand to hand out three doors.

"We just couldn't believe it. I didn't think we would get anything but they started getting it out... we were just lucky."

Rosebud Garden Club chairperson Suncha Christensen and County Extension Agent Don Richardson look over a mesquite tree that will be one of the 60 plants that will have a marker as part of a native plant trail at Comanche Trail Park. Funds are being collected through the sale of the markers which will be put in place sometime in September.

Native plant trail halfway there

By MARC SCHWARZ
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — More than two years ago, the County Extension Horticultural Committee joined hands with the Rosebud Garden Club to create a native plant trail in Comanche Trail Park. And according to County Extension Agent Don Richardson, the groups are "about halfway there."

The project is designed to place markers along the trail identifying various area flora.

"The idea came up about two years ago," said Richardson. "We proposed it to the garden club, and they were real supportive. So we traveled through the park to find a location for the trail, and found the current jogging path was just right. It was accessible to just about everyone, and we were able to identify over 60 native plants in that spot that are important to the area."

Although markers detailing the trees and grasses will be placed along the trail, no other changes will be made to it, said garden club committee chairmen Suncha Christensen.

"We're not planting any new trees, and we're not clearing away the brush," she said. "We're keeping it natural by just putting markers by trees. We just got the idea when we

"We're not planting any new trees, and we're not clearing away the brush. We're keeping it natural by just putting markers by trees. We just got the idea when we toured the trail and wanted to know the name of the trees, but there was no one to tell us. This way people, especially students, will know the names of the plants and maybe get closer to nature." — Suncha Christensen, committee chairman.

toured the trail and wanted to know the name of the trees, but there was no one to tell us. This way people, especially students, will know the names of the plants and maybe get closer to nature."

Funds for the project are being generated by the sale of the markers themselves.

"People can sponsor a plant for $20," Christensen said. "You can dedicate the marker to someone who has died, or in honor of someone, or just with your name on it as the sponsor."

In addition to the sponsor's message, the marker will contain the plant's scientific name, its common name, and a brief description of the plant or its use or history, said Richardson.

The Extension Horticultural Committee and the garden club hope to complete the project by September, and intend to have a ceremony marking its public debut.

"We have about 20 plants already identified by markers," said Richardson. "We need to mark about another 20 plants, so we're about halfway there."

Christensen said the September goal will be met no matter how many plants are left unmarked and unclaimed.

"People paid money for the markers and want to see the trail, so we'll definitely have the ceremony in September," she said.

Anyone wishing more information on the project should contact Christensen at 267-3237 or the County Extension Office at 267-6671 or 267-1821.

Feds bar 90% of assault weapons

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The government will permanently bar an estimated 90 percent of the assault-style weapons whose importation has been suspended since spring, administration sources said today.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, expected to announce the ban later in the day, has been studying the use of the suspended four dozen styles of weapons to determine if they fit the requirement that they be used for sporting purposes.

The Gun Control Act of 1968 bans the importation of weapons that are not used for legitimate sporting purposes.

The suspension involved a total of about four dozen individual gun styles, and the permanent ban covers most of them, the sources said.

In April, ATF Director Stephen Higgins said the weapons under study "are basically paramilitary in appearance, they are large-capacity magazines."

The ATF said recently that importers were preparing to flood the country with close to 1 million of the weapons should the suspension be lifted. The suspension covered new import permits as well as those weapons for which import permits already had been granted and which were en route to this country.

The bureau, which has the power to control imports, does not regulate domestic manufacture of weapons, so similar weapons made in the United States would not be affected by the action. Several bills pending in Congress would control or eliminate many of the U.S.-made assault-style weapons.

The ATF has estimated that domestic makes account for three-quarters of the 3 million semiautomatic rifles now owned by Americans. Colt Industries Inc. suspended sales of its AR-15, the most popular of the domestic assault-style semiautomatic rifles, in March.

President Bush, a hunter and a lifetime member of the National Rifle Association which opposes limits on weapons, came into office opposing any bans on the assault-style weapons.

A public outcry over the availability of the weapons was triggered in January, when a man opened fire with an AK-47 and other weapons on a schoolyard in Stockton, Calif., killing five

Senate set to consider overhaul

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Senate today was scheduled to take up a proposed overhaul of the state workers' compensation system, but a key senator said the votes aren't there to approve the bill.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, said Thursday he believed there were enough votes to block Senate approval of a House plan.

If the House plan is not adopted, the bill would go to a conference committee where House and Senate members would hammer out the differences in the two plans.

Gov. Bill Clements said changes to the workers' comp system, along with a number of other issues, may necessitate a fall special legislative session.

Lawmakers are currently in special session after having failed to reach a compromise on the method of compensating workers who are injured in on-the-job accidents.

"I'm not sure if the workers' comp thing is going to get settled. We'll just have to wait and see." — Gov. Bill Clements.

Clements met with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis briefly during the Senate session to discuss another possible special session.

Clements said Hobby told him he was "reasonably optimistic that we'll have a (workers' comp) bill reported out at this time next week."

But Clements also said, "I'm not sure if the workers' comp thing is going to get settled. We'll just have to wait and see."

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, has said if a conference committee is needed, lawmakers would not have enough time to resolve their differences during the special session that expires July 19.

The major dispute between the House and Senate is over jury trial review of disputed workers' compensation claims.

The House, backed by business, has been trying to eliminate jury review of workers' comp disputes, claiming litigation costs have driven up the price of employer-paid workers' comp insurance.

But the Senate, supported by labor and trial lawyers who represent injured workers, says jury trials are a fundamental right and are needed to offset what could be an unfair award.

The House version would allow jury trial review of workers' comp disputes concerning death benefits, severe injuries, and whether the injury was incurred during the course of employment.

Caperton, D-Bryan, described the proposed limitations on jury trials as "an absolute farce." He said that few of those cases are actually ever contested.

In related action, the Senate on Thursday approved a bill that would allow political subdivisions, such as cities, counties and school districts, to allow their employees to supplement their workers' comp benefits with accrued sick leave.

Weekly workers' comp benefits are two-thirds of an employee's salary with a maximum of $238. Under the bill, the employee would have the option of whether to use sick leave to supplement his salary while he is recovering from an injury.

Abortion debate possible

AUSTIN (AP) — Abortion opponents say they are encouraged by Gov. Bill Clements' comments that an abortion bill might be placed on the agenda if another special legislative session is called later this year.

"This is entirely consistent with the promise he made to our group and the people of Texas to do everything within his power to stop abortion on demand," said Bill Price, president of the Dallas-based Texans United for Life.

Clements, who opposes most abortions and controls the agenda for any special session, said Thursday he won't add abortion to the agenda of the current session, which began June 20 to address workers' compensation reforms.

But the governor also said abortion could be included if another special session is called later this year.

"The speaker, the lieutenant governor and I, we've all been considering when we might have another session — might, I said.

"If we do, then probably a study group would report in the interim. We'd be prepared then to consider what we might do with respect to our particular (abortion law) situation," Clements said.

The governor said he doesn't favor holding the session next spring, because it would come during the 1990 primary elections.

Anti-abortion leaders immediately hailed Clements' statement, but House Speaker Gib Lewis said he thought it "foolish" to put the topic before lawmakers until the U.S. Supreme Court has considered its several pending abortion cases.

"You don't just run in and start passing laws when the issue has not been finally resolved," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

"I think it's an issue that's still very cloudy. There's still decisions to be made, court opinions to be rendered. I think until all that's cleared up it would be very foolish to run out and try to introduce some type of abortion bill. I just think it would be very unwise," he said.

Clements acknowledged that concern, saying, "There are some pros and cons and differences of opinion... We haven't made our mind up."

Lewis earlier said he thought the next regular session of the Legislature, in 1991, would be the time to consider any abortion measures.

The Supreme Court this week upheld a Missouri abortion law.

Filibuster delays flag burning resolution

AUSTIN — State Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, debates a proposal to exempt desecration of the United States and Texas flags from constitutional protection of freedom of speech.

AUSTIN (AP) — A state senator got help from a Senate rule today in staving off passage of a resolution to exempt desecration of the U.S. and Texas flags from the constitutional protection of freedom of speech.

After the clock moved past 12:01 a.m. what under the rules had been a "House bill day" became a Senate bill day.

The resolution was declared ineligible for further consideration.

The rule was not used, however, until Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, had talked until 1:40 a.m., for a filibuster of 12 hours and 20 minutes.

It appeared uncertain today how much rest he would get.

Senate dean Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said the resolution could not be considered until Monday. But Senate sponsor J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, said a two-thirds vote could bring up the resolution again today.

"Every hour we can delay it is an opportunity to keep it from passing," Washington said. "I was prepared to go the rest of the night. I don't think I could have gone much longer than noon."

"I'm ready to go again," Brown said.

The resolution passed the House last week, when members stood and recited the pledge of allegiance, in response to a 5-4 decision by the U.S. Supreme Court in which it was held that flag burning is protected under the First Amendment.

The case on appeal to the court was argued by the attorney general, Gregory Johnson at the 1984 national Republican convention in Dallas.

Washington said the difference in Johnson and Oliver North — who was fined $150,000 for his crimes in the Iran-contra affair — is that Johnson "hid behind the Constitution and desecrated the flag, and Oliver North hid behind the flag and desecrated the Constitution."

Washington, who said he opposes flag burning, had urged his colleagues in the filibuster to stay clear of the issue of flag burning lest they be burned themselves. He said the other 22 Democrats in the 31-member Senate should vote for the resolution so the vote could not be used against them politically.

"This filibuster effort cannot be a futile one since a test vote went against him 23-2.

Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, told Washington, "You are a brave man, and may you wave as long as Old Glory."

A few House members supported Washington's effort by standing or sitting near him in the Senate Chamber to keep him company.

At one point, Rep. Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston, got on her feet and addressed the House on the issue.

Rep. Larry Warner, D-Houston, was at Washington's side for hours. "He has a lot of courage. He has taken on physical strain and political heat for this," Warner said. "I would not burn the flag, but I don't think I'd change the First Amendment over one flag burner."

Washington, wearing small American flag stickers on both lapels, said the issue is not flag burning but protection of the First Amendment. He wiped tears from his eyes as he spoke of his deep respect of the amendment.

Brown, who also wore an American flag on one lapel, said to many people "who engage in an intellectual discussion of First Amendment rights, this is a high-level debate involving constitutional scholars."

First City officials may buy back FDIC stock

HOUSTON (AP) — The chairman of First City Bancorp. of Texas Inc. said he and other senior officers may try to buy back stock held by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. if the government agrees to give up its stake in First City.

First City said Tuesday that the FDIC had agreed to negotiate the sale of its 18.06 percent stake in the bank to either First City or to a third party.

And Chairman A. Robert Abboud hinted Wednesday the development has cooled First City's interest in a possible bid for troubled Texas American Bancshares Inc.

and National Bancshares Corp.

"The posture we're taking is we've got (the stock buyback) on the table and we don't want to devote any attention to anything else," Abboud told The Houston Post.

Abboud confirmed Wednesday that he and other senior officers are among those interested in buying the 2.06 million shares of First City preferred stock now held by FDIC, plus warrants for another 1.03 million shares.

"(Management) might like to (buy) as well," Abboud said. "But we'll have to wait to see how things come out."

Abboud gained control of Houston-based First City in April 1988 following a $1.6 billion restructuring of the bank's predecessor, financed with $970 million from the FDIC.

His investor group raised another $500 million in private capital to finance the restructuring.

Abboud said he had approached the FDIC with "at least two firm bids" to buy their First City stake "well before" First City launched a bid to buy the former MBank system, awarded June 28 to Banc One Corp. of Ohio.

He said part of First City's preparation for its bid on the MBanks was to be assured that the FDIC's ownership in First City wouldn't affect its offer to acquire the 20 MBanks, which the agency had owned 100 percent since March 28.

Abboud and Vice Chairman Frank Cihak would benefit greatly from a management purchase of the FDIC's interest in First City.

Federal housing funds used for purchase of luxury items

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Prosecutors are considering possible criminal action in the loss of $2 million of federal housing funds in Alabama that apparently were used to buy luxury items such as a Mercedes, a speedboat, jewelry and furs.

Department of Housing and Urban Development documents obtained by The Associated Press allege that Montgomery real estate broker Cy Walker spent the money over a three-year period by using a stack of blank wire transfer authorization forms.

HUD's Birmingham office, without a system to double-check on the receipt of funds from HUD closings, thought the $2 million from 63 sales closings went to its central office account, according to agency records. In fact, the money was in a First Alabama Bank account controlled solely by Walker, according to a HUD audit.

Housing officials in Alabama tightened controls over HUD money on Nov. 9, 1987, after they discovered the money was missing. That same day Walker closed out the First Alabama account, withdrawing the last $136,54.

The FBI has turned its investigative file over to the U.S. attorney for possible prosecution. U.S. Attorney Jim Wilson said he plans to meet with HUD officials this month to discuss possible criminal cases.

Officials with HUD and First Alabama Bank in Montgomery declined comment on specific allegations in the case. However, bank official Dave Gordon said it appeared that First Alabama "has done nothing wrong, nothing out of the ordinary."

AP interviews and HUD records, including canceled checks, show some of the money was spent by Walker for the following purchases:

- A $50,000 Mercedes. Laurens Pierce III, spokesman for Jack Ingram Motors in Montgomery, said salesmen recall that Walker bought a Mercedes 560 SL convertible. The HUD audit listed nearly $180,000 in checks written by Walker to car dealers.
- An $18,870 speedboat from Kowaliga Marina. The office manager at the marina said Walker bought a Stingray — "the Cadillac of speedboats," she said.

- $21,000 was paid to High School Video Memories, a business enterprise in which Walker hoped to sell video yearbooks to high school pupils across Alabama. The venture apparently folded.
- Also, he is accused of spending $5,246 on jewelry, $8,255 on furs, $9,571 on travel and $2,200 for a saltwater aquarium and accessories.

HUD is trying to recover the money through administrative procedures.

A HUD audit covering August 1984 to November 1987 indicated some of the money in Walker's account also was spent on HUD-related expenses such as grass-cutting and maintenance on foreclosed homes, as well as attorney's closing fees.

The wire transfer forms were provided by an apparently unwitting bank employee, according to documents.

A memo written by Robert E. Lunsford, acting manager of the Birmingham HUD office in November 1987, said the forms led the office to believe the bank had wired the money properly to the agency's central office.

At the time, the agency had no procedure in place to check whether it had received the money or not.

Walker handled sales of HUD's foreclosed homes in the Mon-gomery area while he was an associate broker for Rick's Lind-Davis Real Estate Inc. The firm was sold in 1986 to Johnny M. Portis, who closed business operations last year. His attorney said Portis was not aware of what Walker was doing with the HUD money.

Walker did not return a phone call made to the recording device on his beeper telephone. The number listed for his residence phone has been disconnected and Walker has moved from the apartment listed in the current phone book.

Montgomery Real Estate Commission records show that he still has a valid real estate license, but it is listed as "inactive status."

WARSAW, Poland — A worker prepares a monument to the first American president, George Washington, in anticipation of President George Bush's visit to Poland July 9-11. The Polish

Bush expected to request pay hike

WASHINGTON — President Bush plans to ask Congress to give most senior federal officials pay increases of 25 percent, matching a salary hike he has already advocated for federal judges, White House officials said today.

An official announcement of the president's pay package was expected by day's end.

The president also was prepared to call for a phase-out of congressional honoraria over a two-year period, said the officials, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity.

The limit on outside income would open the way for a congressional pay raise. However, Bush would suggest that a ban be phased in over a two-year period.

Both The Washington Post and The Washington Times reported that Bush would formally ask Congress today for the pay raise for top officials and would couple it with a proposed ban on congressional honoraria.

Bush has advocated pay raises in general for Congress, but has decided to steer clear of becoming ensnared in what is always a politically treacherous issue on Capitol Hill, deciding instead to let Congress resolve the matter itself, the sources said.

The Washington Post said Bush's pay package would include an increase of as much as 25 percent for members of Congress in today's package, the sources said.

While White House officials said the plan was expected to be announced by day's end, participants at a senior staff meeting in the morning said Bush had yet to decide on some details of the package, such as higher pay hikes for federal employees with special skills, such as scientists and physicians.

Sources said that, rather than calling for an immediate ban on congressional honoraria, Bush would suggest that a ban be phased in over a two-year period.

children. The man, Patrick Purdy, later killed himself.

Semiautomatic versions of assault weapons such as the AK-47 and the Uzi carbine have become popular with drug gangs, and their use in illegal activities has skyrocketed in the past year, according to law enforcement officials. The Uzi carbine has been imported since the late 1970s.

A study by The Atlanta Journal Constitution found that an assault-style gun is 20 times more likely to be used in crime than a conventional firearm.

However, the NRA has opposed limits on the rights of law-abiding citizens to own the weapons, saying the solution to any problem is to lock up criminals. NRA members noted that Purdy had been convicted of numerous offenses but spent relatively little time in custody and was able to evade regulations in order to buy the guns he used in his murderous attack on the school yard.

The NRA has argued that the inner workings of the weapons in question are identical to those of weapons that have been around for decades, and that limits on them could adversely affect those who own semiautomatic hunting rifles.

The study to determine how the imported weapons were being used began in March when Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, who oversees the ATF, imposed a suspension on imports of five categories of the weapons, including the semiautomatic version of the AK-47 and Uzi carbines.

Brady took the action at the urging of William J. Bennett, the director of National Drug Control Policy, who had been told by Bush to determine what should be done about the weapons.

Bush widened the suspension on imports a month later to include two dozen additional styles of guns.

At the same time, he called for a limit on magazine size to 15 shots. Legislation introduced by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, called for a magazine limit of 20 shots.

Mired in HUD sleaze

Four Congressional committees, a number of local grand juries, the Department of Housing and Urban Development's own auditors and every single U.S. attorney in the country are now trying to find out what went on for the past eight years at HUD.

What has already been exposed is appalling: federal housing grants and subsidies unfairly bestowed on developers with political pull; big-name Republicans — former Interior Secretary James Watt, former Attorney General John Mitchell, former Reagan aide Robert Weinberger, Republican National Chairman L. ESCROW AGENTS ACROSSALL TO HUD that produced this largesse; HUD escrow agents across the country ripping off the federal treasury for millions of dollars, with no one at the agency checking up on them, even after repeated alerts by auditors.

And that could well be just the tip of the iceberg, according to Rep. Tom Lantos of California, chairman of one of the House committees now holding hearings. "There is a degree of mismanagement, fraud, abuse, waste, influence-peddling that we have just barely begun to touch."

Fortunately, the chances also are good that all this will be cleaned up in the future. The new HUD secretary, Jack Kemp, sounds committed to a thorough overhaul of the agency, and all the investigations now going on seem guaranteed to keep his efforts in the public spotlight.

But, before things start to get better again, there's old business to attend to here, old facts to face — like the fact that the same people who insisted it was in the public interest to cut HUD programs for the poor by 70 percent during the last administration, had very different notions about what they themselves and their friends were entitled to swill from the public trough.

And the fact that in an era that unabashedly celebrated personal greed, such thievery didn't just thrive in the interstices of the federal bureaucracy, but was accommodated and abetted by those at its very top. Maybe nothing like this will ever happen again, but the circumstances in which it did happen need to be noted, and distrusted in the future.

Republicans could be crushed if party takes up arms on abortion

By GEORGE F. WILL

WASHINGTON — Since the emphatic and supposedly definitive and argument-ending Supreme Court ruling on abortion in 1973, abortion rulings have flowed from the Court like water from a fountain. It was inevitable that this would be so, although a majority of the justices may not have understood this. It was inevitable for cultural, constitutional and scientific reasons, and because a Court ruling can be emphatic yet pregnant with trouble.

The ruling on Monday may seem anti-climactic. Actually, it may be pre-climactic. It did not reach, because it was not necessary for the purpose of ruling in this case, the heart of the 1973 decision. But Monday's ruling increases the odds that the Court one day will reach it in a case generated by this one.

Monday's ruling will fuel the dynamic of litigation — the dialectic — that the Court let loose in 1973. By significantly enlarging the scope for state regulation of abortion, the decision turns 50 state legislatures into laboratories for testing the blurry and evolving limits. This testing will generate a gusher of cases for the Court. In one of them, the Court (or the Court with a one-ninth change in its composition) may reach, and remove, the heart of the 1973 ruling.

That heart is the assertion that the right to an abortion is an aspect of the constitutional right to "privacy" which, although nowhere mentioned in the Constitution, has been located by various justices in the "penumbra" of other rights.

Such analysis is not sufficient to justify constitutional law can supplant philosophy, but it is necessary. Live by the sword, die by it. Pro-abortion forces who have lived by the sword are now dying a death of a thousand cuts at the hands of the Court. It is cynical, crackpot "realism" to say the Court follows the election returns, but it is simple civics to note that the Court is slowly shaped by the results of presidential elections. Recent elections have been influenced by the provocation of pro-abortion groups that energized an anti-abortion constituency.

It was provocative enough that pro-abortion forces used judicial fiat as a scythe in 1973 to mow down the abortion laws of 50 states. They should have practiced the patience of democracy, arguing their case in legislatures, where they had been succeeding. Fourteen states with 41 percent of the population had liberalized abortion laws before 1973. Since then, pro-abortion forces, including some on the Supreme Court, have been imprudently provocative and overreaching in rulings that have, for example, held that almost any parental involvement in, or delaying of, an abortion decision is an unconstitutional burden on the right.

On the other hand, the Republican Party has prospered by harnessing the smug but intense anti-abortion constituency. The party could get crushed if the 1973 ruling is overturned and the party finds itself committed, as it is today, flatly against a right — fairly free access to early abortions — that a substantial majority of Americans endorse.

By turning up the temperature in the abortion argument, Monday's decision makes trouble for George Bush, who deserves it. His smarmy pandering to the passions of the moment regarding flag-burning — a constitutional amendment to stop what hardly ever happens — will cause the right-to-life movement to clamor for similar exhibitionism on behalf of their amendment.

Let us hope the Court soon drives out of the intellectual cul-de-sac it took a wrong turn into in 1973. It should restore to the states the right to regulate abortions. Let's have a 50-state row over this, remembering (it seems to slip some judicial minds) that democracy is as American as French toast and English muffins.

Hanging up on dial-a-porn

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

There's a lot of talk in Washington about how to somehow regulate or get rid of the dial-a-porn business.

In case you're not familiar with dial-a-porn, it is where you dial a telephone number for a fee and somebody on the other end answers the phone and talks dirty to you.

Kids can call. That's caused a lot of the concern.

Personally, I have no interest in using such a service. After they took out the party lines back home and I could no longer listen in on other people's conversations, I sort of lost interest in telephone titillation.

However, I do think I know a way to put dial-a-porn out of business, thus ending concerns and complaints, not to mention all the fun kids are having. Here's my theory:

Who likely keeps dial-a-porn in business are men who enjoy being talked to dirty by women, and that there is such a market in dial-a-porn indicates to me some men are not getting such desires fulfilled at home.

It follows then that if more women would learn to talk dirty to the men in their lives, there wouldn't be a need for dial-a-porn. I put my theory to the famous sex expert, Dr. Norma Feeligood, to see if she thought it had any merit.

"Most certainly," she said. "It is true that many men are excited by bawdy language and it is also true that many women are not comfortable speaking in such a manner."

Before I went any further, I asked Dr. Feeligood if all sex experts spoke with an accent.

"It worked for Dr. Ruth," she replied. "I figure vat do I have to lose."

Feeligood, "do some women feel uncomfortable talking dirty to their lovers?"

"Because many women are never exposed to such a thing in their early years and feel inadequate in zis area," she replied. "What advice would you give to women such as this who would like to learn more about such language?"

"Maybe zey should join zee Navy," she answered.

"Somehow," I said, "that doesn't seem to be much of a solution. What other ways can women learn filthy language?"

"Hang out vit carpenters, maybe," answered the doctor.

I also wanted to know if there was anything harmful about men wanting women to speak to them in such a manner.

"Only if men vant women to dress up like drill sergeant first," she answered. "Zat very sick."

My next question was, "If a woman is willing to learn a more erotic vocabulary, are there certain do's and don'ts in zis area?"

"First," said Dr. Feeligood, "a woman should make sure to use correct grammar."

"I don't understand," I said.

"If a woman use, say, wrong tense or incorrect antecedent, zis could break the mood," she explained.

"Anything else?" I asked.

"Best to whisper."

"Why?"

"Don't want to draw a crowd," said Dr. Feeligood. "And one more thing," she continued.

"Please, go ahead," I said.

"Never say to your lover, 'Make me feel like a woman, big boy.'"

"Why not?"

"Man might stop lovemaking and say, 'OK, go make my dinner.'"

I thanked Dr. Feeligood for backing up my theory, and she wanted me to mention if you want to know more in this area, be certain to read her forthcoming book, "Sex: An Oral History."

Cemetery needs better care

To the editor:

On a recent trip to Big Spring, I paid a visit to the two cemeteries where I have loved ones buried.

The one south of town is beautifully kept. I was heartsick at the condition of Mt. Olive. My father's headstone had been knocked off the pedestal. I could see where lawnmowers had run over and chipped and grooved the footstones. Many other graves had broken flower vases and chipped stones.

Years ago my grandfather was caretaker at Mt. Olive and I assure you that it was well taken care of.

Isn't there any pride in doing things right anymore?

Many citizens call for military to free hostages

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — In an outcry heard all the way to the White House, 146,630 angry Americans took to their telephones the other night and called for military action to free the nine remaining American hostages. Or if a rescue is not feasible, most Americans want military retribution against the captors.

This was their thunderous response to our recent television report on terrorism, the results of which we sent to the White House. Only 9,831 callers wanted to continue relying on diplomacy to gain the hostages' release.

From intelligence reports and briefings, we have learned that the American hostages have been singled out for special abuse. Usually they are confined to dark cells, chained to their beds and blindfolded. When they are moved to new locations, they are sometimes wrapped like mummies and transported in wooden coffins.

One hostage has gone mad and babbles incoherently. Two escaped but were caught; they were beaten so mercilessly that they haven't fully recovered. The hostage with the most time in custody, Terry Anderson, once became so frustrated that he smashed his head repeatedly against a wall until blood streamed down his face.

Jack Anderson

this inhuman treatment, ironically, call themselves the Party of God (Hezbollah). They look to Iran for guidance. Iran's Speaker of the Parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, has jurisdiction over the terrorist underground. He communicates with them through the "Office of Support for Lebanon," which is located in the Revolutionary Guards' central headquarters in Teheran.

President Bush does not disagree with those who want action to free the hostages. "If I could rescue hostages by use of U.S. force and feel that the odds were reasonably good that they would be saved alive," he told us, "I certainly would."

Sources who have studied the possibility of a rescue mission tell us it would be impossible. The hostages are guarded by the Musawi clan, whose members are related to one another and, therefore, cannot be infiltrated. At any sound of commotion outside their makeshift prison, the guards also rush into the cells and put guns to the heads of the hostages.

But military retribution remains an option. We reminded the president that U.S. intelligence agencies possess positive evidence, including intercepted messages, that the Party of God takes orders from Teheran. Why, we asked, doesn't the United States retaliate against Iran?

"I learned long ago, when I was director of the Central Intelligence Agency, not to comment on intelligence matters," said Bush. But he added quickly: "If the fingerprints of state-sponsored terrorism are found on hostage-taking, that state should be expected to pay a price."

The typical American attitude was expressed bluntly by Col. Leland Holland, himself one of the 52 original hostages taken in Iran, and who was abused by his captors. Even when his life was on the line, he said, he would have liked to see his government react more forcefully.

"The Russians do that," he said. "The Iranians haven't picked on the Russians." In his opinion, "there needs to be some kind of program sold firmly and swiftly that if they take an American, it doesn't matter who does it or where it occurs, we're gonna do something about it. We're not a bunch of pushovers," he said angrily.

HONORING HEE HAW

Although Congress faces a platter of major issues, it always finds time to waste. Lawmakers spend as much time promoting pet causes and constituents as they do tackling the tough problems facing the country.

It's all geared to generating votes for the next election. Sugary statements honoring leading citizens and high school athletes, and bragging about home state fruits, are good P.R.

The torrent of statements occupies reams of paper in the Congressional Record — the daily transcript of proceedings on the Senate and House floors. One recent day, a lawmaker lauded the new president of an auditor's association in Texas. Another rose to pay tribute to the 50th anniversary of a high school in New York.

But one of the more curious statements was submitted by Sen. Jim Sasser D-Tenn. He rose to recognize what he said is one of the truly remarkable television series — "Hee-Haw." The show is produced in Sasser's hometown of Nashville.

MINI-EDITORIAL — The Old Men of China really know how to fill their state coffers. Three young dissidents were recently shot in the head for torching a train during the democratic uprising in China. The families of the three young men were charged for the bullets that killed their sons.

Protesting nun leaves monastery

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — The last of five cloistered Roman Catholic nuns has left her monastery after spending nine months barricaded in the infirmary to protest liberal changes. Sister Teresita, who with four others locked herself in the room on Oct. 4, left the Carmelite monastery Thursday, leaving no word on her destination, said Tim Manning, a spokesman for the diocese of Paterson. Last Friday, three other nuns ended their self-imposed exile, leaving only Sister Teresita in the infirmary. The three left with an Akron, N.Y., priest, according to laywoman Betty Sutton, a spokeswoman for the rebellious nuns. The five nuns began their protest quietly last October at the monastery about 25 miles from New York City but soon found themselves in a bitter struggle with Paterson Bishop Frank Rodimer and their prioress. The five held out through threatened evictions by Rodimer, hoping their appeal to the Vatican would overrule the bishop's order to leave the monastery. But in February, the Vatican affirmed Rodimer's authority and the bishop ordered the nuns to leave.

Coast Guard ecstatic over bust

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard uncovered more than a 1½ tons of cocaine in a hidden compartment of a Panamanian freighter in one of its biggest drug busts ever, a spokesman said today. "This is a tremendous seizure for us. We're ecstatic," said Coast Guard Lt. Jeff Karonis. The freighter Barlovento left Tampico, Mexico, earlier this week headed for the Dominican Republic and following a major drug trafficking route. It was intercepted about 350 miles southwest of Miami after Coast Guard and Customs aircraft tracked it with the help of a ship-mounted radar balloon. "The U.S. State Department went to the Panamanian Embassy in Washington and we were given approval to go ahead and board the ship," Karonis said. The Coast Guard cutters Shearwater and Citkinak failed to find contraband in their initial search so they brought the 162-foot vessel to Key West, he said. The cocaine was found Thursday night hidden between fuel and water tanks in a sealed compartment, Karonis said.

Contra fund-raiser gets probation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public relations executive convicted in the Iran-Contra affair must perform 120 hours of community service and serve two years' probation. Richard R. Miller, one of the first defendants convicted in the scandal, was sentenced Thursday for his guilty plea to illegally using a tax-exempt foundation to collect donations for the Nicaraguan rebels. Conservative fund-raiser Carl R. "Spitz" Channell, who pleaded guilty to the same charge, faced sentencing today by U.S. District Judge Stanley S. Harris. Channell and Miller both cooperated with independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh's investigation of the Iran-Contra affair and testified as prosecution witnesses at the trial of former White House aide Oliver L. North. They both entered guilty pleas early in the investigation to charges of conspiring to defraud the Treasury by using a tax-exempt foundation to raise money for the non-deductible purpose of buying weapons for the Contras.

First wildcat strikers fired

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — A coal company whose contract with the United Mine Workers includes a no-strike clause has fired 29 wildcat strikers who refused to return to work, the first firings of wildcat strikers in the industry, officials said today. UMW international executive board member Howard Green said the 29 were released Thursday and branded the firings "another intimidation tactic by the coal companies." The UMW planned a meeting this afternoon to discuss the firings at Toney's Branch Coal Co.'s mine near Racine. The dismissals are the first during a four-week wildcat sympathy strike by UMW members backing colleagues at the Pittston Co. who have been on strike since April. Pittston, unlike most other coal companies, has a contract with the UMW, and the union has sanctioned that strike but not the wildcat walkout at other companies. As many as 46,000 miners in 10 states have stayed off the job at one time or another since the unauthorized walkouts began June 12. Today, about 37,000 miners in eight states were off their jobs.

ABU GHOSH, Israel — Soldiers, air crewmen and civilians place a wounded passenger into a helicopter at the scene of a bus crash caused by an Arab terrorist. Eleven passengers were killed and at least 27 wounded after the bus plunged down a 200-foot ravine and burst into flames.

U.N. Security Council criticizes deportations

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council passed a resolution saying it "deeply regrets" Israel's continued expulsions of Palestinians from the occupied lands. With the United States abstaining, the 15-nation council on Thursday voted 14-0 for the resolution that cited the deportations last month of eight Palestinians. "This proves once again the irrelevance of the whole institution," Ambassador Johanan Bein of Israel said after the meeting. "On the day of a major terrorist attack, in which 14 people are dead and 27 wounded, the Security Council finds fit to deal with expulsions." He was referring to an attack in which a Palestinian shouting "God is great!" seized the steering wheel of an Israeli bus on the highway outside Jerusalem and caused it to veer into a ravine where it exploded in flames. U.S. Ambassador Thomas R. Pickering said the United States opposes expulsions but abstained from voting on the resolution because it did not take into account the violence and security problems facing Israel. Israel has expelled about 55 Palestinians since the Palestinian uprising against Israeli rule of the Gaza Strip and West Bank began 19 months ago. The United States, Israel's staunch ally, frequently votes in favor of Israel. By not exercising its veto power as one of five permanent members of the Security Council, the United States delivered a rare, but mild, chastizing of Israel. The resolution was adopted after days of negotiations in which the United States succeeded in changing its language from "deplores" to "deeply regrets." "In the absence of incitement and violence, expulsions would not be necessary," Bein said. "Should quiet be restored, the possibility of allowing the return of the expelled persons will be considered." Since the uprising began, 550 Palestinians and 23 Israelis have been killed. Bein said the expelled were involved in activities ranging from throwing fire bombs and hand grenades to attacking Israeli soldiers, blocking roads and imposing a reign of terror on the local population. "Expulsions, therefore, were the only means left to curtail these activities," he said. The resolution, sponsored by Syria and the Arab League, demands that Israel ensure the immediate return to the territories of deported Palestinians and stop deportations.

China intensifies assault on U.S.

BEIJING (AP) — China intensified its assault on Washington today, saying the United States tramples human rights and accusing foreign powers of providing passports for Chinese student activists so they could flee the country. "During the process of quelling the recent counterrevolutionary rebellion the American government and Congress under the pretext of 'protecting human rights' meddled with China's domestic affairs," said the People's Daily, the official publication of the Communist Party. "When the Chinese government on June 4 used firm methods to quell the counterrevolutionary rebellion, the U.S. government became furious and were the first to impose 'sanctions' on China to exert pressure on us," the newspaper said in a commentary. In a separate piece titled "How America Tramples On Human Rights," the Communist Party mouthpiece printed a chronology of civil rights and antiwar protests in the United States, complete with numbers of arrests and deaths of demonstrators. The press also published a draft of a strict new law on demonstrations and rallies approved by the National People's Congress this week. The 24-article law places tight restrictions on the subjects and participants of protests and prohibits them from taking place near Communist Party or government facilities.

Fate of ousted leaders questioned

LONDON (AP) — Officials of Amnesty International said today they are worried about the fate of Sudanese leaders who were toppled in a military coup last week. The London-based human rights group said it was seeking assurances "that all those detained are not being ill-treated and that they are being allowed prompt access to legal counsel, relatives and independent medical examiners." It also said in its statement that if the detainees were not being charged with a crime, they should be released without delay. The Sudanese army said late Thursday that soldiers surrounded the hideout of ousted Prime Minister Sadek el-Mahdi and captured him when he tried to escape. El-Mahdi, who led a civilian government, went into hiding after the coup. Soon afterward, the junta arrested about 45 senior politicians and members of the ousted regime.

Reunification talk angers Poles

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party newspaper reacted angrily to remarks by West Germany's finance minister that Germany should be reunified within its 1937 borders, which include about a third of Poland. Finance Minister Theo Waigel said in Hanover on Sunday that the German Reich in its borders of 1937 did not cease to exist with the German army's 1945 capitulation to the Allies. Waigel said his party, the Christian Social Union, would never allow the demand for reunification of the two Germanies to be stricken from the West German Constitution. If the old German borders were recognized, Poland would lose some of its largest cities, such as Wroclaw and Szczecin, and its biggest industrial region in southeastern Silesia. "Questioning at a revisionist rally the map of postwar Europe and the irreversible character of the border on the Odra and Nysa rivers, Minister Waigel, as a government representative, strikes at our fundamental national and state rationale," said the editorial in the Polish Communist Party's Trybuna Ludu on Thursday.

Kissinger calls for debt cuts

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Industrial nations should join Venezuela to help it reduce its foreign debt, Kissinger said. "Realistically, banks alone cannot bear the burden of what creditors have to do," he said Thursday. Kissinger, who came to this country on Wednesday for a three-day visit at the invitation of President Carlos Andres Perez, denied reports he would be paid by Venezuela to help it reduce its foreign debt. Perez's efforts to impose austerity measures in this country, backed by international creditors, prompted riots in February that killed about 300 people. Kissinger called for reducing Third World debt by up to 50 percent, "depending on the performance of the debtor country."

Rain follows typical pattern

WASHINGTON (AP) — The intense rain flooding the East Coast from Washington to New York this week is part of an unyielding weather pattern aided by remnants of tropical storm Allison, meteorologists report. The weather pattern is unusual, the meteorologists said, but resembles patterns that flooded parts of Virginia and West Virginia four years ago and drenched the East Coast in 1972 — both in the wake of damaging storms. This week's rain disrupted train service between New York and Washington, swept away a camper in North Carolina and created generally miserable conditions in the region. "Something like this is somewhat unique because it's a slow moving pattern... just kind of stagnating here," said David Miskus of the federal Climate Analysis Center. Intense rain drenched a relatively narrow strip from suburban Washington to suburban New York on Wednesday, meteorologists said Thursday. From 2 to 6 inches of rain fell in most areas. "It's not a frequent occurrence, but it happens," said storm specialist Bob Case of the National Hurricane Center.

Dizziness usually no cause for alarm

By NYU MEDICAL CENTER
The unpleasant sensation of dizziness is generally not a sign of a serious underlying disorder and often responds to self-treatment, according to a physician at New York University Medical Center.

"In the rare cases when dizziness is severe, persistent or recurrent, evaluation is necessary," said Dr. Ronald A. Hoffman. "When dizziness involves the ear, a number of treatment options are available, depending on the nature of the problem and the degree of disability."

An article in an upcoming issue of the center's Health Letter says most cases of vertigo, as physicians refer to dizziness, do not involve underlying causes.

"Vertigo is the false sensation of motion," Hoffman explained. "Sufferers may think the room is spinning or the ground is tilting. They may feel lightheaded or woozy, and nausea and vomiting may occur. The feeling usually lasts for only a brief period of time and then goes away."

Vertigo can be a symptom of problems in the ear, eye, circulation or nervous system. It may result from alcohol or drug use, motion sickness or psychological factors. Some metabolic disorders, infections and trauma may also induce vertigo.

Medications that may ameliorate dizziness include antihistamines such as meclizine (Antivert) and dimenhydrinate (Dramamine), which is available without a prescription.

"These can be taken on a long-term basis and work well for some people," noted Hoffman, a clinical associate professor of otolaryngology. "Some sedatives may also help. If a particular position or change of position brings on dizziness, efforts can be made to avoid the aggravating posture or movement."

Hoffman advised investigating recurring episodes of vertigo, or a single episode if it lasts more than 48 hours. If vertigo is accompanied by pain, hearing loss, or buzzing, ringing, or whistling sounds, it should be checked regardless of duration. Any episode that includes numbness, changes in vision, and difficulty swallowing or speaking also requires evaluation.

"It is often possible to pinpoint the underlying problem by the person's own report," he noted. "Physical examination and various tests can identify abnormalities in the ear."

Girl finds ring decorating the wrong finger

DEAR ABBY: I am in a quandary as to how I should handle the following situation: Last December, my daughter (I'll call her Bonnie) was involved in a single-car accident on our neighbor's lawn. During the accident, Bonnie lost her ring. It was a small sapphire, which is her birthstone.

At the time of the accident, Bonnie told the neighbor on whose lawn she landed that she had lost a ring with a blue stone in it. (We'll call the neighbor Mr. Jones.) He said he would keep an eye out for it in the spring after the snow melted.

Well, yesterday, Bonnie bumped into Mrs. Jones in the drugstore, and guess what she was wearing on her finger? A ring with a blue stone. She said she was too flabbergasted to say anything to Mrs. Jones at the time, but our problem is how to handle this.

To complicate matters, Mr. Jones is a deputy sheriff with the local sheriff's department. This bothers me because I thought if anyone would be honest, it would be a civil servant.

What should we do — if anything? — SMALL TOWN IN OHIO

DEAR SMALL TOWN: Call the deputy sheriff and tell him that perhaps his wife was not aware that Bonnie had lost her ring last winter on their property during an accident. Then advise him that Bonnie had seen Mrs. Jones wearing the ring and name the place and time.

After that, I doubt if Bonnie's ring will be "missing" much longer.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: It happened today. And it will happen again and again and again.

When a mother has lost a child in death — whether it was yesterday, last year or many years ago — if someone asks her how many children she has, what should she say? There are more questions to answer — then the person who has inquired looks as though she is sorry she asked. If the mother doesn't include the child she lost, was his or her life of no consequence — and not worth mentioning?

So how should the mother answer that question? — FAITHFUL READER IN FLINT, MICH.

DEAR FAITHFUL READER: Obviously, only those who don't know the mother very well would ask how many children she has, so unless the mother is fully prepared to answer some follow-up questions about her tragic loss, she should count only those children who are living.

Or children she has lost in death in no way diminishes their importance.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever a woman writes about her drinking problem, you recommend that she seek help from Alcoholics Anonymous, which is a wonderful organization. But, Abby, A.A. doesn't work for everyone. I speak from experience. I attended a few meetings and left feeling depressed and alone. Then I heard about a group for women called Women for Sobriety. They have weekly meetings, so I attended one. I felt so at home with these women and was able to open up with them far more easily than in the A.A. group with both men and women.

I have had a happy sobriety for six years now. Women for Sobriety concentrates on mind power, making the best of the present instead of dwelling on the past. Interested women can write for information to this address: W.F.S. Inc., P.O. Box 618, Quakertown, Pa. 18951. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, as this is a non-profit organization. — SOBER AND HAPPY

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a young woman who has a 2-year-old son from a man she never lived with, but had a brief encounter with. The man pays child support, but he makes no effort to see his son or have any kind of relationship with him. My wife sends this man gifts for his birthday and Christmas, and says they are not from her. They are from her father.

I say, she should wait until her son is old enough to decide whether he wants a relationship with his father, then he can send him gifts if he wants. What do you say? — SOMEWHERE IN THE USA

DEAR SOMEWHERE: Perhaps the boy's father is paying child support because the court demanded that he do so, but he has no real interest in "knowing" his son. Time will tell. Meanwhile, if your wife wants to keep the lines of communication open between her son and his father, two gifts a year as small reminders that the relationship exists can do no harm. And it may do some good. Don't discourage it.

DEAR ABBY: Why will a married man pick up a tramp and treat her like a lady, then turn around and treat his wife like a lady like a tramp? — MINNIE

DEAR MINNIE: A man picks up a tramp because he wants a female companion who is no better than he is. In her company he doesn't feel inferior. He rewards her by treating her like a lady. He treats his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp because he feels that by degrading her he will bring her down to his level. This makes him feel guilty, so to get even with his wife for making him feel guilty, he keeps right on punishing her.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Plan a Wedding." It's available for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

House-sitting a profitable business

From MATURE OUTLOOK
House-sitting has something for just about everyone.

For people who like to travel, a house sitter cares for their home, plants and pets while they're away. And for those who don't enjoy traveling, the Mature Outlook newsletter reports, house-sitting is a great way to get paid for staying home. Managing a house-sitting business can also be rewarding and profitable.

Jane Poston, 66, sells a handbook on how to run a house-sitting business and ran one herself in Tucson, Ariz., for 10 years before she sold it last year.

Poston says retirees are the perfect candidates for house-sitting jobs. She says she found them to be reliable and trustworthy. They are people like the Blantons. Verda, 75, and her husband, Maurice, 85, work for Housesitter Security Service. They have been house-sitting since they moved to Tucson in 1982.

The Blantons have never had major problems while house-sitting. But the job does have its challenges, especially when pet care is involved.

The Blantons have gotten some house-sitting jobs on their own but they prefer the convenience of using a service, which does the legwork and a lot of the paperwork for them.

There's a wide range of services available to people looking for a house-sitter.

Paul Sauer knows convenience is the backbone of the house-sitting business. He started a business, Homewatch, in Denver 16 years ago. In response to client requests, the business has expanded and now offers companion care, personal care and handyman services in addition to basic house-sitting services.

People thinking of hiring a house-sitting service should keep in mind that the level of protection and the number of pets and plants that need to be cared for determine the price. Homewatch offers four levels of house-sitting services to its clients:

- House checking: Someone goes to the house a couple of times a day to care for pets and plants, bring in mail and open or close drapes to make the house look lived in. Prices start at $10 per day.

- Overnight house-sitting: Someone stays in the home at night, cares for pets and plants and brings in mail. Prices start at $20 a night.

- 24-hour house-sitting: Someone stays in the home round the clock. Prices start at $27 per day.

- Personal care: Someone stays in the home to care for a convalescing patient. The care giver can do light housekeeping and meal preparation. Prices start at $65 per day.

Sauer's way of doing business has been very successful. His service company has developed an appreciative and loyal client base. To care for those clients, Homewatch now employs about 130 people, many of them retirees, and Sauer has started selling franchises. Homewatch Corp. has 25 outlets in eight states and Canada.

Bulls still run through Pamplona streets

PAMPLONA, Spain (AP) — The bulls once again thundered through Pamplona's cobblestone streets today, and police said 30 of the 1,000 daredevils who ran ahead of the animals suffered minor injuries in the race made famous by Ernest Hemingway.

This year's running of the bulls came a day after two bombs exploded in the city, wrecking two cars but injuring no one.

During the run 29 people suffered bruises and scrapes after falling or being trampled by the bulls and the steers guiding them through a half-mile of narrow streets in Pamplona's old quarter. Police said one young woman fainted and hurt herself when she fell to the ground.

The weeklong festival is held annually from July 6-14 in honor of San Fermin, Pamplona's patron saint.

Hemingway's 1926 novel, "The Sun Also Rises," describes in detail the rowdy, round-the-clock festival that starts daily with the morning runs of the bulls. Each evening, matadors kill the six bulls that ran that morning.

In the first running today, the bulls covered the half-mile from their pens to the bull ring in three minutes, 10 seconds.

Thursday's bombs wrecked the cars of two politicians who belong to the Popular Union party, police said. The group is widely believed to be the political arm of the Basque separatist group ETA.

No group claimed responsibility for the attacks.

Pamplona is the capital of the autonomous region of Navarre, which borders the Basque region. ETA also seeks the annexation of Navarre.

During the festival, the city's population of 200,000 balloons to double its size because of the influx of tourists from around the world.

The event, first held in 1394, has been held each year since 1591. Since then, bulls have gored 52 people to death, including 13 since 1924, according to city records.

PAMPLONA, Spain — Merrymakers run the bulls on the first day of the week-long San Fermin Festival in Pamplona Friday. The bulls ran the half-mile stretch through the city's old quarter to the bull ring with more than 1,000 youths racing ahead of the sharp horns.

Bomb detectors will take years to install

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is ordering airlines to install expensive bomb detectors at 40 American and foreign airports, but officials say it will take two to three years to put them all in place.

Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner on Thursday announced draft Federal Aviation Administration rules requiring the devices capable of detecting plastic explosives in checked luggage.

The order is one of several steps taken in response to the Dec. 21 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland that killed 270 people. Investigators concluded the bomb was a plastic device hidden in luggage, although they have not determined who planted it.

Screening devices currently used at airports cannot detect such plastic explosives.

The FAA said installation would be as fast as manufacturers can produce the detectors. Some airports will need more than one device, and installation at the first 40 airports is expected to take two to three years, said FAA spokesman John Leyden.

Congress has been considering legislation that would have the government pay for the units, which cost from $750,000 to $1 million each.

Airlines say the government should pay for such extraordinary security, since the terrorist threat is aimed against the United States, not the airlines.

The FAA, in making the rule that will become final at the end of August, also called for comment on whether the order should be extended to all domestic airports.

The busiest U.S. international airports and some major facilities used by U.S. carriers abroad are the first to be covered.

The FAA said the first device will be installed at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport by the end of the month. A second is to be placed at London's Gatwick Airport, the FAA said.

Murderer wins fight against extradition

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The European Court of Human Rights ruled today that a West German accused of killing two people in Virginia should not be extradited to the United States because he could receive the death penalty.

The court said the threat of the death penalty is a violation of the man's human rights. He is now being held in Britain.

Rulings by the court do not technically bind the members of the Council of Europe, but they are rarely ignored.

Court officials called the judgment a landmark ruling because the court normally issues such decisions only after a human rights abuse has occurred.

The court said if he is found guilty in Virginia, Jens Soering faces years on death row and capital punishment. Such punishment would breach his rights under the European Human Rights Convention, it said.

Article 3 of the charter says: "No one shall be subjected to torture or to inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment."

Sending 22-year-old Soering to Virginia "would expose him to a real risk of treatment going beyond the threshold set by Article 3," the court ruled.

It said a promise by Virginia justice officials to ask the courts to spare his life if he is found guilty was insufficient because it "did not eliminate the risk of a death sentence."

The ruling drew a quick protest from Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-New York, who was in this eastern French city to attend Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's speech Thursday. In an interview with The Associated Press, D'Amato called the ruling "indefensible" and a "confrivance."

Soering, who moved to the United States in 1977, was charged in the March 30, 1985, killings of William and Nancy Haysom in their Bedford County home. They were the parents of Elizabeth Haysom, his girlfriend at the time.

She is serving a life sentence for her part in the killings.

The parents of Soering's girlfriend were stabbed to death in an argument over Soering's relationship with their daughter, which the parents opposed.

Soering evaded arrest in Virginia, but he was arrested in Britain in 1986. In 1988, Britain agreed to extradite him, but Soering took his case to the human rights court, an arm of the 23-nation Council of Europe.

Britain is likely now to send Soering back to West Germany, which requested his extradition in 1987 to let him stand trial there for the Virginia murders.

The court did not say what Britain should do with Soering.

But Judge Rolf Ryssdal of Norway, the court president who read the ruling, said trying Soering in West Germany "would not involve suffering of such exceptional intensity or duration."

He said the average prisoner condemned to death in Virginia spends six to eight years on death row.

"Sending Mr. Soering to be tried in his own country would remove the danger of a fugitive criminal going unpunished as well as the risk of intense and protracted suffering on death row," Ryssdal said.

West Germany abolished the death sentence in 1949. Under its laws, nationals can be tried for crimes in another country if convicted in West Germany. Soering faces a maximum prison sentence of between 10 to 15 years.

Why Was It Written?

The Declaration of Independence

Trouble with England

King George III

Early in our history, our country was made up of 13 colonies ruled by England. They had to obey the laws passed by the English Parliament. They had no one to speak out for them in this lawmaking body, yet they were forced to pay taxes to King George III.

The Boston Massacre 1770

British soldiers fire on the colonists.

The king ruled that the colonists could buy things manufactured only in England. Many British troops were sent to Boston to stop the smuggling that followed. In March, five citizens were killed in a fight with British soldiers.

Boston Tea Party 1773

"Indians" dump tea overboard.

Parliament passed a law saying that only English tea could be sold in America. A group of angry citizens dressed as Indians climbed aboard a British ship and dumped chests of tea into the water. The British sent more troops to Boston.

First Continental Congress 1774

The Congress met in Carpenters' Hall.

England passed even stronger laws against the colonists. Something had to be done. Delegates from 12 of the 13 colonies met in Philadelphia. They agreed not to buy any English goods unless the king changed the laws. They decided to meet again if he didn't.

Lexington and Concord 1775

The colonists take up arms.

In April of 1775, fighting broke out when the colonists took up arms against the British at Concord, Mass. The colonists were called "Minutemen" because they were ready to fight in a minute. They drove back the British later on that day at nearby Lexington. After that time, the war spread.

Second Continental Congress 1775

This Congress met at Independence Hall.

The Second Continental Congress met in May. All 13 colonies sent delegates. Many still hoped that the colonies would not have to break with England. They sent the king a final message asking him to listen. He would not. They then wrote the Declaration of Independence.

Questions and Answers about . . .

The Declaration of Independence

The Declaration is on one sheet measuring about 30 inches by 24 inches. It has 1,458 words, including the signatures.

The committee that drafted the Declaration presents it to John Hancock, the president of the Congress.

Q. What is the Declaration of Independence?
 A. A document or official paper in which delegates from 13 colonies declared to the world their independence from England. It is made up of four parts:
 1. The preamble, or introduction, setting forth the objectives. It begins with the words "When in the course of human events."
 2. The declaration of rights of the people. " . . . all men are created equal . . . with certain rights . . . among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."
 3. A list of the complaints against King George III.
 4. A pledge by the signers of "their lives, fortunes and their sacred honor" in the cause of freedom.

Q. Was signing it a dangerous thing to do?
 A. Yes. The signers were brave men who took a great risk in the name of freedom. If the revolution had not been successful, they could have been shot for treason.

Q. Who wrote the Declaration?
 A. Thomas Jefferson was on a committee with four other men, including Benjamin Franklin and John Adams. They asked him to write it. It took Jefferson two weeks. Franklin and Adams made a few changes to his first draft. Congress made other changes.

Q. Was it signed on July 4?
 A. No. It was approved by all the colonies except New York on July 4. John Hancock, as president of the Congress, signed the draft. After New York approved it on July 15, it was hand-printed on parchment, and signed by 50 members on Aug. 2. Six more delegates signed later, making a total of 56.

Q. Why is John Hancock's signature so big?
 A. The story is that he wanted to sign it so big that King George III could see it without his glasses.

Q. Did George Washington sign the Declaration?
 A. No. He was not a delegate to the Continental Congress. He was busy serving as commander in chief of the Continental Army.

Q. Where is the Declaration today?
 A. At the National Archives building in Washington, D.C. It is very hard to read because it is so faded. It is on display alongside the Constitution.

Time for Showdown III

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It's the third edition of the ultimate showdown. Whatever happens this time, it will make tennis history.

"I want it badly and Steffi wants it badly," Martina Navratilova said Thursday. "This is what you live for. It should be a great match."

"It" is the women's singles title at Wimbledon, something Steffi Graf holds and Navratilova wants back.

After Chris Evert's probable farewell to Wimbledon's ivy-covered walls and six rounds of toil and sweat, the goal is in sight for Navratilova and Graf.

The men's finalists were to be decided today, although play was threatened by morning rain.

John McEnroe, in the last four for the first time since 1984, takes on defending champion Stefan Edberg in the first semifinal. Then comes a rematch of last year's semifinal between two-time titlist Boris Becker and Ivan Lendl.

McEnroe's injured left shoulder was showing signs of improvement today.

"He's better than he was," John Matthews, trainer for the All England Club, said shortly before the match started. "I just finished treating him and he's in good spirits."

Matthews said McEnroe practiced for about five minutes this morning to test the shoulder, which he injured in a doubles match on Wednesday.

McEnroe received laser, ultrasound and muscle stimulation treatment for a tear in the posterior rotator cuff of his left shoulder Thursday. Trainer Bill Norris said the injury would hinder McEnroe in his semifinal match.

"If he had to play today, forget it, he wouldn't have been able to," Norris said Thursday. "A day's rest will help him but he'll be limited to what he can do, particularly on his serve."

Navratilova, a 32-year-old from the United States, and Graf, just turned 20 from West Germany, have split the last two women's singles titles here. Last year, Graf won 5-7, 6-2, 6-1.

When they meet again on Saturday, it will be the first time since 1921 that the same women have met for the championship three years in a row.

Navratilova is aiming for an even greater landmark.

If she beats Graf, Navratilova will become the winningest Wimbledon singles champion of all time, beating the eight titles she shares with Helen Wills Moody.

"I don't think it makes any difference what happened last year, two years ago or 10 years ago," Navratilova said. "I have been in more finals than Steffi but she has been in all of them lately."

Both had straight-set semifinals victories Thursday, Navratilova 7-6, 6-2 over unseeded Swede Catarina Lindqvist and Graf 6-2, 6-1 over three-time champion Evert in what the American said was "90 percent" certain to be her last ap-

Bulls give Collins ax; philosophical reasons

CHICAGO (AP) — Doug Collins lost his job, and although the Chicago Bulls won't say exactly why, the unexpected move has led to plenty of speculation.

The 47-year-old Collins, who in the third season of his first head coaching assignment led the Chicago Bulls to the NBA Eastern Conference finals last season, was fired Thursday. The team cited "philosophical differences."

"We know this will be an unpopular decision, but we truly believe this will be in the best interests of all parties," team owner Jerry Reinsdorf said in a statement released by the club.

The club quickly moved to squelch speculation that superstar Michael Jordan, who had locked horns off and on with Collins, was behind the decision, a scene reminiscent of Magic Johnson's role in the firing of Los Angeles Lakers coach Paul Westhead.

"There is totally no truth to that. Michael has had nothing to do with our decision regarding Doug's position. I want to firmly put that to rest," general manager Jerry Krause told reporters Thursday evening.

Jordan, interviewed at a basketball clinic in his native North Carolina, said he and Collins "were getting closer and closer as time went on."

"Doug and I were great friends. I'm in the dark as much as anyone," said Jordan, NBA scoring champion the past three seasons and the league's most valuable player in 1988.

Collins also had run-ins with other players, as well as with Krause and Reinsdorf.

DOUG COLLINS

"I'd love to be playing under." Collins didn't always see eye to eye with management, and he gave the team's 1988 top draft choice, Will Perdue, the fewest minutes on the court of any first-round selection in the league.

Collins, who replaced Stan Albeck before the 1987 season, had one year remaining on his contract. He had a 137-109 record in regular-season play and was 13-17 in the playoffs.

The Bulls led eventual NBA champion Detroit 2-1 in the Eastern Conference finals before losing the series in six games. It was only the third time in team history, and the first since 1975, that the Bulls had gotten as far as the conference finals.

Investigators looking for Val

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball's investigators want to know more about the mysterious bookmaker in the New York area who supposedly took bets on behalf of Pete Rose.

The bookmaker used the code name "Val" and accepted bets for the Cincinnati Reds manager over a two-month period of 1987, including bets on Reds' games, a former Rose associate has told baseball investigators.

Authorities are declining to say whether they believe Val was one of the 34 people indicted last October as part of a major bookmaking ring in Staten Island, Brooklyn and Queens.

However, they did say that Rose isn't under investigation there because he's not relevant to the case against the gambling ring.

"It has nothing to do with Pete Rose or baseball at this juncture," David Lehr, the chief assistant district attorney in Staten Island, said. "It's not part of our case, not part of the evidence we have to prove. We have to prove these people were promoting gambling."

According to published reports, Val was a code name for Richard Troy, 33, one of those indicted last October. Troy has pleaded innocent and is free on his own recognizance awaiting trial.

Lehr declined to say whether authorities believe Troy is the bookmaker linked to Rose. Francis T. Vincent Jr., baseball commissioner, also declined to say whether baseball had any information that Troy was the Val referred to by Paul Janszen, who claims to have run Rose's bets.

Vincent confirmed that baseball's investigators are looking into the alleged link between Rose and the Staten Island bookmaker. The bookmaker's identity wasn't revealed in a report by baseball investigator John M. Dowd that was made public June 26. Dowd's investigation is continuing.

Still no NFL commissioner

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Finks spent one endless day waiting to become NFL commissioner, but now faces what could be an endless summer.

The endless day was Thursday, when Finks spent 12 hours in a hotel near O'Hare Airport waiting for the expected unanimous vote of the owners ratifying the unanimous choice of a six-man screening committee.

Instead, after a 6-hour, 25-minute meeting, a group of 11 dissident owners blocked the election by abstaining in order to get "further information" about Finks and other candidates.

Finks finished with 16 votes, three short of the 19 needed for election. Now he'll have to wait until the owners reconvene sometime later this summer. The owners will be given seven days' notice of a meeting by outgoing commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The finalists, in addition to Finks, included former Green Bay All-Pro defensive end Willie Davis, now a successful businessman; Robert Mulcahy, executive director of the New Jersey Meadowlands Authority; Paul Tagliabue, the NFL's Washington lawyer; former Democratic National chairman Paul Kirk, and the chief executive officer of a major corporation who asked to remain anonymous.

Another potential candidate, Jack Kemp, the former quarterback and now Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, took himself out of the running, saying he preferred to stay in the cabinet. Kemp was known to be the candidate favored by Braman and DeBartolo, among others.

"This was not a vote against Jim Finks," said Norman Braman, owner of the Philadelphia Eagles and one of the three men who, according to several sources, led the revolt against the NFL's old guard that made up the selection committee. "We felt we simply did not have the relevant information necessary to make such an important choice."

In fact, the move was something of a rebellion of the new guard against the old, represented by the six members of the committee. Each of the six had been in the league for at least 20 years and there was grumbling even when they were appointed on March 23, the day after Rozelle announced his resignation.

The dissidents were mostly newcomers, like Jerry Jones of Dallas, Victor Kiam of New England and Ken Behring of Seattle, all of whom entered the league in the past year, or owners like Georgia Frontiere of the Los Angeles Rams and Robert Irsay of Indianapolis, who rarely have been included in the NFL's inner circle.

According to sources, the group was put together during a meeting Wednesday night by Braman, Mike Lynn, president of the Minnesota Vikings, and Edward DeBartolo Jr., owner of the San Francisco 49ers.

Braman, who came into the league in 1985, and Bowlen, who entered in 1984, are considered closest of the dissidents to the league's decision-makers.

They were joined for a meeting early Thursday by Behring, Kiam, Jones, Irsay, Patrick Bowlen of Denver, Joe Robbie of Miami, John Shaw as representative of Frontiere, and Hugh Culverhouse Jr., son of the Tampa Bay owner.

Ryan gets All-Star invite

NEW YORK (AP) — Nolan Ryan is coming back to Anaheim as good as ever.

Ryan, 42, was one of 10 pitchers selected to the American League All-Star team on Thursday.

The league presidents and managers Tony La Russa of the American League and Tommy Lasorda of the National League filled out the remaining reserves and pitching staff for the midseason classic to be played Tuesday night at Anaheim Stadium.

The starting squad, selected by the fans, was announced on Wednesday.

On Thursday night, Ryan pitched a three-hitter and struck out 12 as visiting Texas beat California 3-0.

Ryan, 10-4, leads the major leagues with 148 strikeouts and threw his 56th career shutout against the Angels. For Ryan, it's his seventh All-Star selection and first since 1985.

Joining Ryan on the AL staff is teammate Jeff Russell, one of four relievers on the squad. The other relievers chosen are Detroit's Mike Henneman, Cleveland's Doug Jones and Milwaukee's Dan Lieke.

Other pitchers on the team are Mike Moore and Dave Stewart of Oakland, Chuck Finley of California, Mark Gubicza of Kansas City and Greg Swindell of Cleveland.

Houston's Mike Scott, 14-4, heads the NL pitching staff and is joined by starters Orel Hershiser of Los Angeles, Rick Reuschel of San Francisco and John Smoltz of Atlanta.

For his selection, Scott gets an additional $150,000. The right-hander receives a $50,000 bonus and will have $50,000 added to his

"Everything has been going great for me so far this season," Scott said. "The team is scoring runs for me and I hope it continues. You need some help."

Dwight Gooden, who started last season's All-Star Game in Cincinnati, is sidelined for at least a month with a muscle tear in his right shoulder. Gooden was 9-4 for the New York Mets at the time of the injury.

Team says: no pay, no play

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — This time, the line about the check being in the mail wasn't good enough.

Citing another late payday, the Vancouver Canadians, top farm club of the Chicago White Sox, walked out Thursday night rather than play a scheduled Pacific Coast League game against the Albuquerque Dukes.

The players left the Albuquerque Sports Stadium about 1½ hours before the scheduled 7 p.m. MDT start of the game, returned to their hotel and held a meeting, and then issued a statement.

"The reason for the walkout is delinquent salary payments out of Chicago," the statement signed by the players said. "We have in the past tried to resolve this issue through complaints to management and the Major League Players organization."

The walkout spiked "Bob Feller Night," but the Cleveland Indians' Hall of Fame pitcher was understanding.

"If wasn't paid on time, I wouldn't have played either," Feller said. "In the big leagues, if you're not paid on time, you're a free agent the next day. In the minors, you could be out of a job."

Canadians vice president and general manager Brent Imlach said in a telephone interview from Vancouver that the checks — due June 30 — had been mailed but apparently had been delayed by the July 4 holiday.

"My understanding is that they were sent on Friday for delivery on Saturday, the first," Imlach said. "The checks were sent out when they were supposed to be sent out" from Chicago.

Imlach, in his first year as general manager, said team officials would track down the checks and have them delivered Friday "so there's no more difficulty."

He said that, to his knowledge, it was the first time the checks had failed to arrive in time.

"It has occurred for the past two seasons," infielder Jeff Schaefer said.

"We have players with wives and babies back home, and if they don't have the rent and grocery money, they're in trouble," Schaefer said. "We have obligations to meet just like everyone else."

Marc Sullivan, a former Boston catcher and son of Red Sox co-owner Hayward Sullivan, said the players decided to stage the walkout regardless of the possible repercussions.

"There's no question we're taking a chance. A lot of us aren't exactly dazzling," said Sullivan, who is batting .196 with 11 RBIs this season.

Sullivan said the team decided on the walkout because prior complaints to management had failed to get the twice-a-month paychecks delivered on time.

"We have no individual rights in the major leagues, unless you're a member of the 40-man (major league) roster," Sullivan said. He added that he favored creation of a union for minor league players.

HOOP CAMP

Howard College will be hosting a single girls basketball camp this summer at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum instead of two.

Scheduling problems have forced the cancellation of the girls day camp which had been planned for July 17-21. Day campers will join the girls overnight camp set for July 10-14.

The fee is still $150 per participant for the overnight camp and $175 for the day camp. Overnight camp fees include room, meals, equipment, tuition and camp T-shirt. A $25 deposit is required with the remaining amount due upon registration.

Day camp fees cover tuition, equipment and a T-shirt. A $25 deposit is required.

Campers will be separated according to level of expertise and age. Competitors will be categorized as: Seniors, Juniors, Mid-Level and Little Dribblers.

Members of the staff will be under the direction of Howard coaches Steve Green and Royce Chadwick. The staff will consist of Howard assistant coaches, high school coaches and members of the Hawks and Lady Hawks basketball teams.

For more information call Teri at the athletic department at 263-4211.

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Stu Jackson, an assistant under Rick Pitino the last two seasons, will become the new coach of the New York Knicks, the New York Daily News says.

The News reported in its Friday editions that a "high-level Paramount Communications source" confirmed Jackson will formally be named to the post on Monday to replace the departed Pitino.

Pitino was freed from his contract with the NBA team on May 30 to take the University of Kentucky coaching job.

The News also said that Jackson's assistants would be former Knicks Eric Snowfield and former NBA star Paul Silas.

Jackson has never been a head coach at any level. He was an assistant at Washington State, and a graduate assistant at the University of Oregon, where he played for Dick Harter, now coach at Charlotte.

GOLF

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Mark McNulty of Zimbabwe and Australian Peter Senior shared the lead after the second round of the $450,000 Monte Carlo Open.

Senior, who won this event in 1987, had a 3-under par 66 to reach the halfway mark at 6-under 132. McNulty had a 64.

British player Denis Durnian fired a 62 — one off the course record — to share second with countrymen Mark Mouland, Peter Mitchell, Grant Turner and Robin Mann.

CYCLING

RENNES, France (AP) — American Greg LeMond, the only American ever to win the Tour de France cycling race, left his competitors behind in an individual time trial to take the lead in the overall standings.

LeMond, who won the Tour in 1986 but has been beset by injuries and accidents over the past three years, has a five-second margin over Laurent Fignon, the 1983 and 1984 winner, who finished third in the time trial.

MACCABIAH GAMES

KFAR MACCABIAH, Israel (AP) — Rick Aronberg set a meet record in the 200-meter freestyle of 1 minute, 52.51 seconds as American swimmers captured 12 of 18 medals and broke four records in the Maccabiah Games at Tel Aviv University.

Rangers ground Angels

By The Associated Press
Nolan Ryan has never pitched a perfect game, but he had a perfect homecoming.

Ryan pitched a three-hitter for his 56th career shutout in his first appearance at Anaheim Stadium in nearly 10 years as Texas beat California 3-0 Thursday night.

A crowd of 37,867 gave Ryan a standing ovation as he left the bullpen following his pregame

Ryan pitch for pitch until, with one out in the seventh, Steve Buechele hit his fifth homer. Buechele's homer was the first by the Rangers in 11 games, snapping a 98-inning drought.

The Rangers added two runs in the ninth on Ruben Sierra's 13th homer and Jeff Kunkel's RBI double.

A's 3, Royals 1

Mike Moore, named a first-time All-Star, pitched a 7-0 shutout that allowed four hits in seven innings and struck out a season-high 12 as Oakland beat Kansas City at the Coliseum.

Two other Athletics' All-Stars, starters Mark McGwire and Terry Steinbach, drove in all the runs Moore needed in the first inning against Luis Aquino, 3-4.

Todd Burns pitched the final two innings for his sixth save, allowing no hits.

Yankees 6, Tigers 5

Jesse Barfield tied the score with an 11th-inning homer and Steve Sax hit a sacrifice fly for the game-winning run, lifting New York past Detroit at Yankee Stadium.

Lou Whitaker's 18th homer, on the first pitch by Eric Plunk, tied the score, but Barfield homered off All-Star Mike Henneman to tie the score.

Plunk relieved Dave Righetti to start the 11th and Whitaker, who has never hit more than 21 homers in a season during his 13-year career, reached the lower deck in right field.

Blue Jays 4, Orioles 1

Fred McGriff, snubbed for the All-Star team, hit his 20th home run as Toronto beat Baltimore at the SkyDome.

McGriff, who has 51 RBIs, hit a three-run homer in the third off Jeff Ballard, 10-4, to give the Blue Jays a 4-0 lead.

American League

warmups.

Ryan, 42, pitched for the Angels from 1972 through 1979, leading the American League in strikeouts seven times during that span. Earlier in the day, he was selected for the All-Star team for the seventh time.

Ryan, who still holds most of the Angels' career pitching records, last pitched in Anaheim on Sept. 24, 1979.

Ryan, 10-4, walked two and struck out 12 in his fourth complete game and first shutout of the season. The 56 shutouts tie Ryan with Bob Gibson and Bert Blyleven for 12th place on the all-time list.

It was the 189th time in his career that he struck out 10 or more batters. Ryan leads the majors with 148 strikeouts and now has 4,923 in his career, the all-time high.

"The first couple of innings, I was too pumped up. I was rushing, trying to overthrow. It was only appropriate that I would walk the first guy," Ryan said.

"But then I settled down. I didn't feel as strong in the ninth as I have in other games."

Kirk McCaskill, 9-5, matched

The NL staff has five relief pitchers: Tim Burke of Montreal, Mark Davis of San Diego, John Franco of Cincinnati, Jay Howell of Los Angeles and Mitch Williams of Chicago. Franco leads the majors with 22 saves.

On the AL squad, 11 players were selected for their first All-Star Game.

On the pitching staff, Finley, Henneman, Moore, Stewart and Swindell are going for the first time. Willie Randolph and Steve Sax, second basemen who exchanged uniforms, were selected as reserves.

Randolph, a five-time All-Star with the New York Yankees in the AL, signed as a free agent with the Dodgers and is hitting .289.

Sax, who helped the Dodgers to a world championship last season, signed with the Yankees and is hitting .324. While a member of the Dodgers, Sax was a member of the NL All-Star squad three times.

Don Mattingly of the Yankees was selected to back up Oakland's Mark McGwire at first base. The other AL infield reserves are third

Reds take Rose out of spotlight; drop champions into fourth place

By The Associated Press
Danny Jackson came off the disabled list, moved Pete Rose out of the spotlight for a night and dropped the New York Mets into fourth place in the National League East.

The left-hander looked like the pitcher who won 23 games last arm ailing, will miss even more than the month originally announced.

"Five weeks from tomorrow would be optimistic," Johnson said of Gooden, who went on the disabled list Sunday with shoulder problems. "He needs complete rest."

In other NL games Thursday night, it was Chicago 7, San Diego 3; San Francisco 2, Pittsburgh 1 in 10 innings; Philadelphia 4, Atlanta 0 and St. Louis 14, Los Angeles 2.

Rose, who has been the center of attention since spring training, sounded like a manager whose problems have been lessened.

"He threw it well, got some support and that makes everyone's job easier," Rose said of Jackson, who allowed three hits. "It worked so well, I'll probably go with the same lineup tomorrow."

He won't have Jackson in that one, however, and that could hurt the offense. Jackson, a career .161 hitter, scored twice and had a double and single.

"I hoped I would pitch well," Jackson said, "but I don't think anybody expected me to hit well, too. That was extra."

Luis Quinones hit two home runs, Rolando Roomes hit a two-run homer and Marty Brown doubled and drove in three runs for the Reds, who had 14 hits and led 10-0 before the Mets scored twice in the bottom of the ninth off Kent Tekulve, who earned his first save of the season by pitching the last three innings.

Quinones, batting only .213, hit a leadoff home run in the third inning and a two-run shot in the fourth that made it 7-0. Quinones had hit one homer in 301 at-bats before this season. He has five home runs in 66 at-bats this year.

"I did it but I don't think anybody else but me would believe it," he said.

Cubs 7, Padres 3
Ryne Sandberg and Andre Dawson homered as Walt Terrell lost his seventh straight decision and the Cubs completed a three-game sweep of the Padres.

National League

season as he threw six shutout innings Thursday night while Cincinnati pounded the Mets 10-2.

"It's always nice to get a lot of runs early, especially after coming back from the DL," said Jackson, 6-9, who was bothered by shoulder and wrist problems and had not pitched since June 17. "If it had been a tighter game, who knows what would have happened."

What did happen was that attention usually aimed at Rose, the Reds manager embroiled in a gambling investigation, turned toward Jackson. It came on national television and in New York, a city in which media is known to target those in trouble — like the Mets' starting pitchers.

The Mets, 3½ games behind division-leading Montreal, lost their third straight and seventh in 10 games and again saw a starter get pounded. This time it was highly touted rookie David West, who gave up seven runs in four innings and lost his first major-league start of the year.

The last three Met starters — Bob Ojeda, Ron Darling and West — have given up 21 runs on 24 hits with seven walks in 91-3 innings.

"Three in a row like that puts a strain on the bullpen," Mets manager Dave Johnson said. "They have to turn it around in the second half or it's going to be a long second half."

It may have gotten longer when the Mets announced after the game that ace Dwight Gooden, his right

Missouri hoop coach will return

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Norm Stewart, the longtime Missouri basketball coach who had to leave the team last year in one of its finest hours, will be back next season, athletic director Dick Tamburo said Thursday.

Stewart is recovering nicely from colon cancer, Tamburo said during a luncheon for sponsors of the Missouri radio network.

"I sat down with Norm about two weeks ago and had a discussion with him," Tamburo said. "I said, 'You're going to be our basketball coach next season, right?' He said, 'Hell, yes, there's no reason why I shouldn't be.' Norm has got his game face on."

Tamburo said Stewart was looking fit and tanned, was working more hours in his office and was playing golf frequently.

The media and his plans had been unknown.

Tamburo also said the school was continuing to investigate allegations that NCAA rules have been broken in the basketball program. Any NCAA penalties probably will not be announced until this fall, Tamburo said.

He said the length of the investigation does not mean problems in addition to the uncovering of the purchase of an airline ticket for a recruit. Assistant coach Bob Sundvold reported in December that he had bought the ticket for P.J. Mays, who never played for Missouri.

pearance here. However many dramas are still to unfold, this year's championships will be remembered for the day Chris Evert got trounced on Centre Court and then waved goodbye.

"I'd be really shocked if I came back next year," Evert said. "It would take a transplant or something ... a couple of different parts."

With the Centre Court dripping with sentimentality and searing heat, Evert made one final effort to win the grass-court title for a fourth time.

But Graf, upset in the final of the French Open by 17-year-old Arantxa Sanchez after five straight Grand Slam tournament titles, was in no mood for nostalgia. She made her intentions clear from the start as she dropped only one point in the first two games.

Evert had six break points in the match but couldn't convert any of them, and wilted under Graf's fearsome forehand.

As Evert left the court to a rousing ovation, a ball boy stopped her and asked for an autograph. Evert obliged, in the same way she has thousands of others. Evert, the winningest player in Wimbledon history with 96 singles victories, said that if Thursday's match turned out to be her last here, she was pleased Graf was her opponent.

Navratilova had to work hard to overcome Lindqvist, the first unseeded player to reach the women's semifinals in six years and the first Swedish woman ever to get that far.

Lindqvist gained the upper hand in the tiebreaker by taking a 5-4 lead with two serves to come. But she lost them both and once Navratilova won the set, there was no challenge from Lindqvist.

FOR A REAL EDUCATION, TAKE TIME TO READ YOUR BIBLE

In that busy life of yours, so rigidly apportioned among work, home maintenance, TV, PTA meetings, the bowling league or whatever, try to find time to read your Bible; even if it's only one chapter at a time. It contains a great many elements for our education and well-being. It's history, with the story of the earliest days of the world, faithfully handed down through the generations. It's geography, inviting fascinating comparison between the Middle East and Mediterranean lands, then and now. It's a prescription for better living, with its rules for behavior toward our fellow human beings. It's a great comfort, bringing us guidance and solace in times of trouble or sorrow. All in all, it's the world's most perfect collection of writings, and if we know how interesting and helpful it can be, we will surely find time to read it.

'God wants to help us'

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am in pain most of the time, due to severe arthritis. I'm so discouraged because the doctor says the problem will most likely get worse and worse. Do you have any word of encouragement for me? - Mrs. V.W.
DEAR MRS. V.W.: The most important thing I can do is point you to the promises of God's word that can encourage you.

First, God has promised that no matter what occurs, he has not abandoned us and he wants to help us with the problems we face. Yes, at times life gets difficult or painful; God has not promised that we will necessarily be delivered from life's trials. But He has promised to uphold us in the midst of those trials.
 Take time each day to thank God for his blessings in your life; that will keep you from just being preoccupied with your problems. Then take time each day to read through a portion of the Bible (such as the Psalms, which tell us of God's unchanging love for us in every situation). When you know God is with you, you can say with Paul that "I have learned to be content whatever the circumstances."

... I can do everything through him who gives me strength" (Philippians 4:11,13).
 Then be encouraged each day by the hope we have of heaven, when we know Christ. In heaven, "He will wipe every tear from their eyes. There will be no more death or mourning or crying or pain, for the old order of things has passed away" (Revelation 21:4). Yes, some day the pains and sorrows of this life will be over when we go to be with Christ.
 Do you know Christ, and do you have that hope of heaven in your heart? If not, make your commitment to Christ today by a simple prayer of faith. Then no matter what the future holds, you will know that Christ will help you overcome whatever you face.

Religion roundup

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The National Baptist Convention U.S.A. Inc. plans to launch a cable TV news magazine on black life and achievements, says the denomination's president, the Rev. T.J. Jemison.

It will deal with "education, politics, civics — not just religion — all the problems of the world," said Jemison, who was in Nashville for the denomination's annual meeting and dedication of its new $10 million Baptist World Center.

The 7.5 million-member denomination is the country's third largest Protestant denomination, after the Southern Baptists and United Methodists, and is the largest mainly black denomination.

Jemison of Baton Rouge, La., said the cable program, "The Black World Today," would emphasize "good news regarding the black community" instead of "reports of drugs, crime and violence on the nightly news."

The program is to be carried on the new Vision Interfaith Satellite Network, an interdenominational cable network that reaches 7 million homes.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The Knights of Columbus, a Roman Catholic lay organization, reports that in 1988 it gave $85 million to charitable causes, plus 27 million hours in personal service.

That was $6 million and 220,000 hours more than in 1987, it says.

Church briefs

Rev. Terrell slated to speak

Rev. Robert Terrell will speak today and Sunday at Living Water Christian Fellowship, 3401 E. 11th Place.

According to a news release, Terrell has started more than 20 churches in the Southwest, Pacific northwest, Canada and most recently in Mexico.

He heads Southwest Ministries from his home in Azle, and is also president of World Ministry Fellowship, headquartered in Dallas.

Terrell will speak today at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 10:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend and a nursery will be provided.

Hendrickson gives program

Women of First Church of God met July 3 for a monthly meeting.

Glenda Hendrickson directed the stewardship program titled "Stewardship of Summer," written by Edie Newton, a former member of the WCG national board.

The program was designed to increase awareness of summer stewardship opportunities and to challenge women to reach out in new ways to serve others.

Members presented a skit titled "Lazy Daze" to show possible areas of summer service.

Linda Lindell, Spiritual Life coordinator, directed a quiet time and said the closing prayer of commitment to service.

Christian concert

Servant Heart, a five-member vocal ensemble from Anderson University, Anderson, Ind., will appear in concert Sunday at the First Church of God, 2009 Main St. at 10:45 a.m.

Darrell Hendrickson, host pastor, invites the public to attend the admission-free event.

Servant Heart sings a variety of music, featuring favorite old hymns, contemporary Christian music and praise songs.

The group, sponsored by Anderson University's office of admissions, will present more than 60 concerts throughout the Midwest to the West Coast, according to a news release.

The university, a four-year, liberal arts institution, was founded in 1917 by the Church of God, and offers more than 60 majors and programs of study.

Evangelicals hope to spread message worldwide

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Evangelicals, a growing force in Christianity, open a global conference next week to refine strategies for spreading the faith, some aiming for it to be offered to everyone by A.D. 2000.

That widely asserted target sometimes is considered more as a stimulus than a potentially accomplishable task. But the fervor for working at it is mounting in many church quarters.

"The Countdown Has Begun" goes the title on a book of interdenominational planning discussions held early this year in Singapore. But the mission's success was seen to require some course corrections.

"We see afresh that cooperation and partnership are absolute necessities if the Great Commission is going to be fulfilled by the year 2000," the participants said.

Up to now, they said, "pride, prejudice, competition and disobedience have hindered our generation from effectively working at the task of world evangelization."

The "Great Commission" refers to Christ's parting instructions to present his message to all peoples. Evangelicals have a special passion for proclaiming that message and eliciting belief in it.

Advancing that task beyond any particular time frame is the objective of the International Congress on World Evangelization, which is meeting Tuesday through July 20 in Manila, the Philippines.

Evangelist Billy Graham had been scheduled to give the opening address, but canceled his Sunday appearance in favor of extending his "Mission '89" in London, his office said.

More than 4,000 evangelical-minded Christians of both mainline, historic churches and smaller evangelically oriented groups in 190 countries are expected to make the Philippines gathering one of the largest of its kind.

It has been dubbed "Lausanne II," a successor to a similar gathering in Lausanne, Switzerland, in 1974, which was convened by Graham's organization and spawned a continuing, interlinked movement.

The Rev. Leighton Ford of Charlotte, N.C., chairman of the Lausanne committee that is sponsoring the this year's congress, says the session will address new, crucial issues that are affecting evangelization.

"Secularism is rampant and we're suffering from a lack of evangelical cohesion," he said.

He said the meeting will "bring together the many streams of evangelism," examine "new issues and challenges" and "plan strategies for a great new thrust of evangelization in the closing decade of this century."

Planners say participants are coming both from major Protestant and Orthodox churches in the World Council of Churches and also those outside it, plus some Roman Catholic evangelization specialists.

About 200 organizations have set the timeclock, at least symbolically, on getting the Christian message spread worldwide by the year 2000, but that is only one note in the more broadly concerned Manila conference.

While emphasizing evangelism and cooperation in it, the conference also is to grapple with social issues such as poverty, urbanization and the challenge of other religions.

It also may set up a central clearing house for coordination and exchange of information in the final decade drives to present the gospel to those who have not yet heard it.

Already, an "A.D. 2000 Global Service Office" has been established in Rockville, Va.

Gathering begins Sephardic Renaissance

SEATTLE (AP) — Almost 500 years ago, the 250,000 Jews who had flourished in Spain for hundreds of years were forced to convert to Christianity, flee the country or be burned at the stake.

Called Sephardic Jews, whose ancestors had lived in the centuries, they never lost their passion for their old folk songs, food and Ladino, a Spanish-Hebrew language mixture that served as their counterpart to Yiddish.

Now they're nurturing their culture in America.

After leaving Spain, many went to North Africa, Italy, Turkey and Greece, where they learned the customs and language of new homelands, often faring better in Moslem nations than under Christianity. Many Sephardic Jews eventually moved to Europe, South America and the United States.

A recent meeting of more than 500 of them in Seattle, called "Emergence: American Sephardic Jews," has been the first of an American coming out affair for them.

Hal Lewis, the new executive vice president of the American Sephardi Federation, says the conference was the largest gathering of Sephardic Jews in the nation's history and marks the beginning of a Sephardic Renaissance.

"There was a time when Sephardic traditions were the shining light of Jewish life and tradition," Lewis said in an interview.

"The Jewish community in Spain, pre-expulsion, were leaders in Jewish life. They were scientists, poets, artists, philosophers, advisers to kings. It was the Golden Age of Spain."

Today, the Jewish community in America, including 60 percent of those who have settled in Israel.

Also considered Sephardim are Jews who trace their ancestry to the Middle East and northern Africa. They lack Spanish ancestry and speak Arabic but share religious practices with the Spanish descendants because both groups looked to the religious center of Babylonia for rabbinic leadership and rituals.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Bloom County" cartoonist Berke Breathed, the 1987 Pulitzer Prize winner for editorial cartooning, says his outlook on politics is changing. "I'm finding I'm now less and less interested in political commentary, even though I like politics," Breathed says in an interview in the July-August issue of The Animals' Agenda, an animal-rights magazine. "I'm finding politics harder and harder to write about, because most political happenings end as soon as they come up, and their impact is minimal," he said. Breathed, who will end "Bloom County" before unveiling a new DENNIS THE MENACE

Sundays-only strip in September, says his work was shaped somewhat by the work of another Pulitzer winner: Garry Trudeau. "Doonesbury" is the only one that had an active influence on me, especially in my college years," he said. "I hadn't read strips before

'Doonesbury.' Others had an influence on me later: 'Pogo' in its drawing, 'Peanuts' in more subtle things such as characterization and pacing."

SANDIEGO (AP) — Former college football star and Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers should be re-sentenced on an illegal gun possession conviction because an accompanying conviction was reversed, an appellate court ruled. The ruling came from justices of the 4th District Court of Appeal, who earlier overturned Rodgers' 1987 conviction for assaulting a table television technician with a gun.

"IT MUST BE AN OLD MOVIE... NOBODY NEEDS A HAIRCUT."

"It's an educational toy, P.J. If Daddy trips over it, you'll learn plenty."
