Business briefing

AUSTIN — Business financing programs and how to obtain state contracts are just some of the topics slated for discussion at a "Special Briefing for Big Spring Businesses" Thursday.

The briefing will be presented by the Small Business Division of the Texas Department of Commerce from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m., at Howard College in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, 1001 Birdwell Lane.

The program is aimed at people interested in starting a business or already in business. Presentations will include local and state resources available, state finance programs, alternative sources of capital, how to do business with the state and the state's tourism marketing programs.

The event is also co-sponsored by Howard College, the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce and the Permian Basin Bid Resource Center.

"This briefing is an excellent opportunity for individuals interested in starting a business or already in business to learn first-hand what programs and services the Texas Department of Commerce has to offer," stated J. William Lauderback, executive director of the agency.

"We find that information about these resources, for whatever reason, is not reaching the small business person at the local level," he continued. "These briefings are an effort to reach out and let Texans know what Commerce has to offer and how we can assist, either directly or through various support organizations like the college."

Cost to attend the briefing is $10. For more information or to register, contact Tommy Tune at Howard College at 915/267-6311 ext. 213.

Reading party

BIG SPRING — Preparations are underway at the Howard County Library for the closing parties for the Summer Reading Program and the Read-To-Me Club members.

Members who read and had recorded ten books by Saturday, July 8, are eligible to attend.

Certificates and prizes will be awarded at the Read-To-Me Club closing party which will be held Wednesday at 10 a.m. The Kingdom Klowns will entertain and present a program.

The Summer Reading Program closing party will feature the annual costume contest. Any members who wish to may dress up to be judged in the following categories: most original, most interesting, most unusual, most authentic, funniest and best looking.

Awards, certificates and prizes will be awarded at the party. There will be refreshments and a movie.

Comptroller visit

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Tuesday that a representative from his agency will be in Big Spring Thursday to answer questions about Texas taxes and assist taxpayers with paperwork and problems.

Debra Hamilton, Enforcement Officer from the Odessa field office, will be at the Howard County Courthouse, Tax Assessor-Collector's Office, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. The doors will be open to the public and there will be no charge.

"I'm sending my employees out to help people with questions, filling out forms, and working out problems on a local, one-to-one basis. There's some things you just can't do as well over the phone or through the mail," Bullock said.

Big Spring area taxpayers who can't attend the courthouse seminar can still get individual tax assistance by calling the Comptroller's toll-free telephone number, 1-800-252-5555, from anywhere in Texas.

BIG SPRING — Howard County Commissioners spent nearly 20 minutes touring the county jail today in an effort to address concerns raised about the facility in a recent state jail standards report.

The jail standards commission has the authority to close the county jail if the facility does not meet state jail codes.

Commissioners made a detailed inspection of the jail's heating and cooling unit and also toured the jailer's office, trustees room, holding cells and kitchen unit.

During the tour, Commissioner William Crooker noted several improvements that have already been made to the facility in recent years. "There's a lot more regulations now than there used to be," he said in noting the improvements.

Of major concern to the commissioners was that the facility has proper air conditioning in preparation for the warm summer months. Failure to provide an acceptable temperature control level was one of the areas mentioned on the jail standards report, which listed seven other areas of concern.

Several large fans are tied to windows or placed on the floor throughout portions of the jail in an attempt to cool the facility. Thermometer units — which read from 81 to 83 degrees — are placed on the walls in various parts of the jail. State jail standards call for the temperature to read between 65 and 85 degrees.

Commissioners and County Engineer Bill Mims discussed how the existing unit could be improved with a minimum of cost and effort. The commissioners and Mims did not reach an accord on the best way to fix the problem but did approve Mims' request that a professional consultant be hired to look into the problem.

The condition of asbestos insulation in the room which houses the jail's air conditioning unit was also noted by Mims and the commissioners. The covering over the asbestos was cracked in one place and the pink asbestos could be clearly seen.

Mims said he wants to see something done about the asbestos in the jail and in the courthouse basement at the first possible opportunity.

In other business, commissioners:

- Approved a motion to accept bids for county vehicles. Mims said he was looking for two maintainers — vehicles used in road repair — to replace a 1968 and a 1979 maintainer. Mims estimated the cost of

Council to discuss downtown

HERALD STAFF REPORT

BIG SPRING — The city council here will consider repealing a resolution which supports participation in the Texas Main Street program as a self-initiated project during their regular 5 p.m. meeting Tuesday at McMahon Wrinkle Airport.

The program, awarded to five Texas cities each year by the Texas Historical Commission, is designed to provide economic development in the context of restoration.

City Manager Hal Boyd said the council wants to rescind the resolution "because it had no date of expiration."

The original resolution, he said, called for an application to the historical commission in 1985 for funds. When the city was turned down, the city, county and chamber came up with their own monies to fund the downtown restoration, he said.

Other items on the agenda include:

- Consideration of a resolution petitioning U.S. Senator Phil Gramm to exercise his authority and influence in the prompt selection of Big Spring as a program site for Department of Defense related projects.

Boyd said the city just wants to be considered for projects that periodically are awarded by the U.S. government.

"When Senator Gramm was here he just encouraged us to write him and ask him for his support in getting projects here," Boyd said. "We've been working on a project since last February."

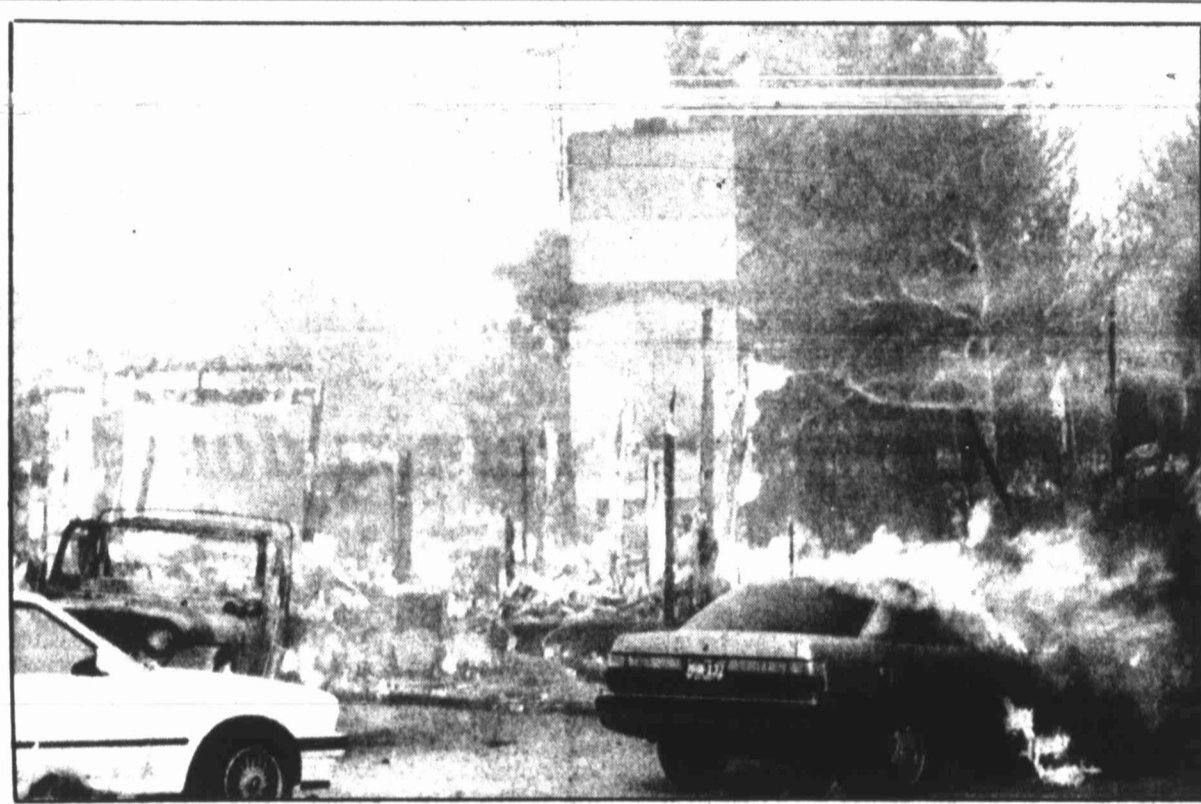

Boyd said he could not divulge any specifics on the project the city is pursuing.

• Consideration of a resolution supporting a constitutional amendment banning desecration of the American flag.

• Consider approval of plans and specifications for improvements to the Big Spring State Hospital water system, and consider advertising for bids for the work.

The improvements stem from an agreement made between the city and the hospital earlier in the year in which a contract between the two for water and sewage was renegotiated after years of litigation. The state hospital agreed to pay more equitable rates, and the city

Fires ravage 8 states

By ARTHUR ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

Fires raged out of control in eight states and more than 600 people fled a Nebraska park where a lightning-sparked blaze today burned to within a half-mile of the historic fort where Sioux Chief Crazy Horse was killed.

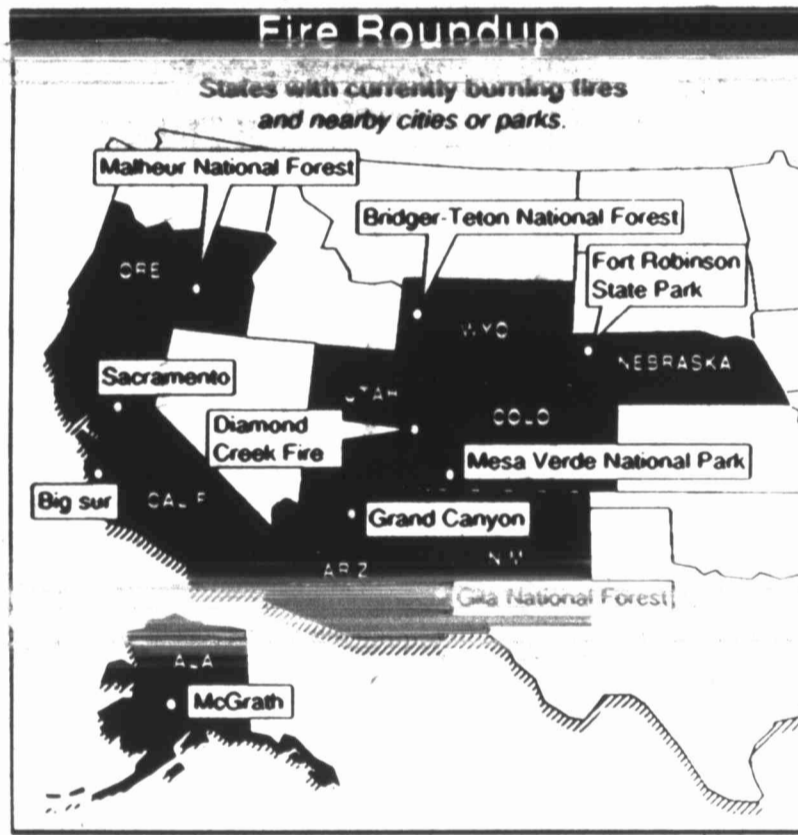

A blaze also threatened the ancient Indian cliff dwellings at Mesa Verde in Colorado, and an arson fire swept toward the Ventana wilderness in the mountains rising from Big Sur, 120 miles south of San Francisco.

Major fires also were burning in Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Oregon and Wyoming.

Cooler temperatures and rain helped nearly extinguish wilderness fires in Montana and Alaska.

In northwestern Nebraska, about 150 firefighters battled the biggest fire in the West, a 50,000-acre blaze that leapfrogged along a 20-mile front at Fort Robinson State Park. About 30 National Guardsmen entered the fray after Gov. Kay Orr declared a disaster area.

The flames leapt through the rugged canyons, leaving spot-ches of charred ground mixed with stretches of grass and stands of timber.

"There's a limit to what humans can do to fight a fire when it's in those canyons," said state Sen. Sandy Scofield, who lives nearby. "Those pine trees are like kerosene-drenched torches."

Four patients were evacuated from a hospital and 25 from a nursing home in Crawford, a nearby town of 1,300 people. One firefighter was treated for smoke inhalation, but his condition was not serious, said deputy state fire marshal Jerry Larson.

"What we're fighting right now is fatigue," Larson said.

Early today, the fire had con-

Carol Carney, medical technician at Planned Parenthood, offers free, confidential AIDS tests in Big Spring.

Clinic offers free, secret AIDS tests

By LYNN HAYES

If you're sexually active, you may be at risk for a variety of sexually transmitted diseases, including Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

According to Carroll Carney, medical technologist at Planned Parenthood of West Texas Inc., AIDS, although not easy to contract, is also transmitted through sharing needles and syringes.

If you think you're at risk, you need to be tested, Carney stressed.

"The only way to be sure that you're not infected with the HIV (Human Immunodeficiency Virus) virus is to be tested," Carney said.

Planned Parenthood, which began offering free, confidential AIDS tests in May, will test again July 19, from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Carney counsels men and women before they are tested to make them aware that they are being tested for the HIV virus.

Individuals infected with the virus, which breaks down the immune system, may develop full-blown AIDS, Carney said.

However, some individuals may only carry the virus and may not get the disease, she said.

The test, which is from 98½ percent to 99 percent accurate, may show a false negative because the antibody may not be high enough in the bloodstream to be detected at the time of testing, Carney said.

If you are in a high risk category and the test is negative, Carney suggests testing again in 60 to 90 days.

Because some individuals may

Classified information

DALLAS (AP) — A number of patrons regularly flock to a downtown Dallas library not to check out books, but to check out jobs.

About 75 people come daily to sift through the classified ads of newspapers from across the nation, said John Nordstrom, who supervises out-of-state newspapers for the J. Erik Jonsson Library.

The crowds get a little bigger and arrive a little earlier during the middle of the week, when Sunday newspapers begin showing up.

"They're out there every day," Nordstrom said. "They're not really down and out. They're just wanting to go."

Nordstrom said some are recently unemployed while others have jobs but hope to do better away from the sluggish Texas economy.

The most popular newspapers among the job-seekers are those from Boston, Atlanta, Chicago, and cities from Florida.

The Jonsson Library inserts its classified sections into display holders so they won't be carried out of the building, Nordstrom said.

Town honors top band

SUNDOWN (AP) — It may have rained on the parade, but members of Sundown High School's marching band obviously didn't let it bother them at the National Independence Day Parade.

The Roughneck Marching Band billed as the "Pride of the Oil Patch" lived up to its nickname, being named best band in the July 4 parade and festival in Washington, D.C.

The West Texas town gathered Saturday to salute the band for its victory.

"We were floored," said Sundown band director Barry Hurt. "We didn't go up there with the notion to compete to win. We were ecstatic over the invitation to participate."

Joe Craddock, mayor of the town of about 1,200 some 40 miles west of Lubbock, proclaimed Saturday as Roughneck Band Day and gave band members the key to the city.

The annual two-mile parade on Constitution Avenue in the heart of the nation's capital was held this year in a downpour.

"We had fun in the rain. People were cheering. We didn't know we were being judged," Eva Schumeyer, a Sundown drum major, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Shelter workers return donated water with beer logo

DAM B, Texas (AP) — Saying local church-goers don't take kindly even to the appearance of what they consider evil, rescue shelter workers in this tiny Texas town sent back a shipment of canned water meant for flood victims.

Elton Trumble of the Dam B volunteer fire department said officials at the fire hall decided to return cans of water emblazoned with the logo of a Houston beer distributor because the containers were creating a stir.

"It just got all blown out of proportion," Trumble said. "Rumors were flying that we were giving away beer."

"When people going by saw people at the shelter drinking the water and eating food donated by the Red Cross, they thought they were drinking beer," explained Bob Kilgore, who was helping flood victims at the Spurger First Baptist Church.

The white cans were marked "drinking water (not for sale)." but also carried the familiar logo of the Anheuser-Busch distributor in Houston.

Lyle, Plainview native, wins 1989 Miss Texas competition

FORT WORTH (AP) — Leah Kay Lyle, 22, of Plainview, was crowned Saturday night as the 1989 Miss Texas.

The 5-foot-6, 110-pound blue-eyed brunette, who competed as Miss Haltom-Richland Area, graduated last year from Baylor University, where she was a communications specialist major with a 3.7 grade-point average.

First runner-up was Leslie Chambers, 24, of Lubbock, Miss Dallas.

Behind them, the judges selected Rhonda Morrison, 19, of Cold Spring, Miss Southeast Texas, second runner-up; Lisa Tyree, 22, of Arlington, Miss Greenville, third runner-up; and Gayle Ross, 26, of Plano, Miss Jack-Young Area, fourth runner-up.

Others among the 10 finalists were Sandra Dornak, 22, of El Campo, Miss Houston; Amy Jones, 20, of Hurst, Miss Hurst-Euleless-Bedford; Toni Martinez, 22, of Houston, Miss Longview; Johanna Ogden, 25, of Dallas, Miss Denison; and Monica Perry, 19, of Spring, Miss Lake O' The Pines.

Contestants in the pageant had a diversion after Friday night's preliminary competition.

Because of a drug raid at the hotel where they stayed, contestants returned from the pageant early Saturday and stayed until 4 a.m. in two big meeting rooms downstairs while federal officers staked out and arrested two people on drug charges on the third floor.

The new Miss Texas measures 35-24-34 and was first runner-up last year.

A concert pianist, Miss Lyle was filmed in a television commercial with George Burns in 1967. She has been studying the piano since she was 6. She also had two years of voice training, two years of flute, seven years of ballet, four years of gymnastics.

She has been working as a research associate for the Texas Legislative Council. She wants to receive a law degree and pursue a career in politics, possibly as a lobbyist, she said.

It is her fourth straight Miss Texas pageant. Besides being first runner-up last year, she was selected as fourth runner-up in 1987 and in the top 10 in 1986.

Judging for Miss Texas is based 40 percent on talent, 30 percent on interviews, 15 percent on evening gowns and 15 percent on swimsuits.

The new Miss Texas was a preliminary winner in the talent winner, as were Miss Houston and Miss Denison. Preliminary winners in the swimsuit competition were Miss Greenville, Miss Hurst-Euleless-Bedford and Miss Southeast Texas.

Miss Lyle was crowned by the 1988 Miss Texas, Cathy Castro, who came into last year's pageant as Miss Duncanville.

She will compete later in the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City, N.J.

The pageant was televised statewide, and about 3,000 people were on hand for the pageant in the Convention Center.

The winner receives $25,000 in scholarships, $25,000 in jewelry to wear during her reign, and use of a new car equipped with a mobilephone.

Competitors must be 17 to 26 years old, and have never been married nor pregnant.

Pilgrim says controversy won't change him

PITTSBURG, Texas (AP) — Lonnie Pilgrim isn't troubled by the investigation or criticism concerning the $10,000 checks he passed out to a handful of state senators in Austin last week.

And the 61-year-old head of a poultry empire said he doesn't plan to change his ways in the wake of the controversy.

"I've nothing to worry about. Truth will win out," Pilgrim said of the checks, which he passed out Wednesday after lobbying senators on workers' compensation laws.

His actions sparked criticism and prompted an investigation by the Travis County district attorney, but Pilgrim isn't making any apologies.

"I think giving large amounts of money to a politician is All-American as far as I'm concerned," Pilgrim told the Houston Chronicle. "And what you get from it is name identification. If you give them money, they return your calls or talk to you."

The donations weren't the first made by the Texas businessman, who is described as a nice corporate neighbor in this Camp County town, the Chronicle reported Sunday.

After a security guard at his Mexican farm was killed, Pilgrim learned that the Mexican government has no death benefits for family survivors. So Pilgrim said he told the widow and her three children they could continue picking up the man's paycheck every two weeks as though he were still alive.

That was a year ago, and the offer still stands.

In another case, Pilgrim bought an abandoned store for local church leaders before they met to decide if they wanted to obtain a $27,000 bank loan to buy the building for a student center near the local junior college.

And when a resident needed $200 for air fare to be with his ailing wife at an out-of-town operation, Pilgrim gave the man $1,000.

"He doesn't walk around acting like a millionaire," said Dr. Marvin Mosley, a local church leader. "When he gives money, his motives are as pure as any man's can be — he just wants to help."

Pilgrim attends school graduations, Chamber of Commerce banquets and civic club luncheons. But he doesn't frequent the drug store, post office or coffee shops.

Border area preferred smuggling route

SARITA (AP) — Efforts to shut down drug smuggling in South Florida worked so well that South Texas is now paying the price, says a U.S. Border Patrol supervisor.

Juan Escobar, agent in charge of the patrol's Kingsville office and Sarita checkpoint, said smuggling has continued to increase along the entire U.S.-Mexico border following the crackdown on the narcotics trade in South Florida during the early years of the Reagan presidency.

At this far South Texas checkpoint alone — about 40 miles south of Kingsville on U.S. Highway 77 — the dollar value of drugs confiscated has skyrocketed more than 1,400 percent in the past three years: from $9.6 million in fiscal year 1986 to $140 million between Oct. 1, 1988, and June 30, 1989, according to Border Patrol figures.

In the patrol's McAllen Sector — which includes offices in McAllen, Brownsville, Falfurrias, Harlingen, Mercedes, Rio Grande City and Kingsville — agents had seized more drugs in the first three months of fiscal 1989 than they did during all of the previous year. And in the Laredo sector, which covers the rest of South Texas, authorities have seized more drugs in fiscal 1989 than in the previous four years combined.

"(Officials in South Texas) have valid reason to be concerned," said Mike Sheehy, an assistant chief in the Border Patrol's Miami sector who was among the agents temporarily assigned to the McAllen sector four months ago as Central Americans seeking amnesty poured across the border in record numbers.

"Even with the number of officers we had down there, narcotics were really flowing through there heavily," Sheehy said.

Congress faced with increasing revenue without obvious taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raising taxes by $5.3 billion and putting the final touches on President Bush's $157 billion bailout of the savings and loan industry dominate the focus of lawmakers returning from a long July Fourth holiday.

Before recessing again in four weeks for its annual month-long August vacation, Congress also must look at raising the $2.8 trillion statutory ceiling on the federal debt.

But first, the House likely will vote this week on an administration-opposed moratorium on new offshore oil leasing in the wake of the Exxon Valdez tanker spill in March. The White House and congressional Democrats also face the likelihood of another bruising fight over the transfer of U.S. aircraft technology to Japan for the FSX jet fighter.

Bush has threatened to veto a resolution passed by Congress last month approving the FSX deal but placing restrictions on negotiations for further stages in the joint project.

Opponents, led by organized labor, fear that Japan may use the technology to develop a commercial aerospace industry to compete with U.S. plane makers. They claim to have increasing support among lawmakers, making an override of the anticipated veto possible.

The biggest tasks for lawmakers over the next month are the S&L bailout and coming up with $5.3 billion in additional federal revenue — a euphemism for tax increase — next year as part of a deficit-reduction deal cut between Bush and congressional leaders in April.

The S&L rescue is likely to be the easiest. Lawmakers hope to complete within two weeks a compromise package acceptable to the Senate and House as well as the administration.

Senate negotiators are expected to yield to administration-endorsed provisions in a House-passed bill that would make S&L owners put up billions of dollars more of their risky loans and the government's deposit insurance fund.

The fund now has an estimated $35 billion to $55 billion deficit that is growing by $30 million a day because of overly risky and often fraudulent loans that S&L operators made using federally insured deposits.

Congress and the administration acknowledge that taxpayers are going to have to cover most of the losses, but they disagree on the mechanics of how to spread the burden over the next three decades rather than force a tax increase now.

The House bill does it by borrowing the money over the next three years directly through the Treasury Department, swelling the deficit for each year but exempting the costs from deficit reduction targets now in the law.

Bush and the Senate would raise the bailout's costs through private 30-year bonds that avoid swelling the annual deficits but carry an extra interest charge to taxpayers of at least $4.5 billion.

At one time, Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady had vowed to recommend that Bush veto any S&L legislation that raises the deficit significantly. Brady, however, has not repeated the threat in recent weeks.

The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee will begin work this week on raising revenues by $5.3 billion next year without violating an understanding with the administration over what would constitute a violation of Bush's "no new taxes" campaign pledge last year.

Among the measures under consideration are a proposal by the panel's chairman, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., to repeal the 50 percent exclusion on interest income for employee stock ownership plans.

Also on the revenue-enhancing chopping block are some $300 million in tax breaks for banks that forgave Third World loans and $250 million in tax breaks for acquirers of ailing S&Ls.

replacing the vehicles to be about $165,000 with the trade in of two aging vehicles.

Approved a measure to allow Federal Express to establish a drop box in the courthouse. The drop box would allow local businesses to have a central place to bring packages and save customers money over the regular rate, a spokesperson for the company told commissioners.

Fires

sumed nearly half the 22,000-acre park and was half a mile from Fort Robinson, the former cavalry post where Crazy Horse was killed by guards in 1877. The fort now serves as a lodge.

The fire made a mushroom-shaped cloud of smoke that could be seen from Scottsbluff, about 90 miles away.

"It's not a pretty sight, but these people have things well under control," said Orr, after flying around the edges of the blaze.

"We could see whole lines of trees exploding," said Marc Anthony, a state game and parks commissioner who also flew over the area.

More than 600 people were evacuated from the park because of the dense smoke, said Fort Robinson Superintendent Vince Rotherham. Most were campers.

Near Big Sur, in California, 600 firefighters using bulldozers, helicopters and air tankers struggled with heavy brush on the steep, roadless hillsides. They expected to have the blaze controlled by tonight, said Lonnie Smith, a forestry spokesman in King City.

The fire was set with an incendiary device, Smith said Sunday. "There was no fog this morning, so that helped the fire just romp all night," he said.

A wind-fanned wildfire charred 3,500 acres of remote brush and destroyed seven buildings in Lassen County, about 300 miles northeast of San Francisco, and another consumed 2,000 acres of timber in the nearby Plumas National Forest.

A brush fire scorched more than 2,000 acres Sunday in the Laguna Mountains, 40 miles east of San Diego.

In Arizona, rain helped firefighters contain a 9,200-acre fire in and around the Saguaro National Monument east of Tucson, and four other fires were nearly under control late Sunday. But about 40,000 acres of forest and range land, from the Grand Canyon to Mexico, burned on. A 1,000-acre blaze briefly threatened Roosevelt's hunting cabin in Grand Canyon.

A brush fire eight miles west of Boulder, Colo., destroyed 41 structures and forced 200 people to flee. Two firefighters were treated for smoke inhalation.

Gov. Roy Romer issued an executive order Sunday night banning all open fires west of Interstate 25, which bisects the state.

In Mesa Verde National Park, archaeologists were helping firefighters protect ancient Indian cliff dwellings from a fire that had grown to 2,350 acres. The 12th century structures are among the oldest in the United States, built by an unknown people who later disappeared.

The Diamond Creek fire, which consumed some 12,500 acres in eastern Utah, was 80 percent contained by Sunday morning, said Mary Plumb, a spokeswoman for the Bureau of Land Management's Moab District.

Higher humidity and less wind helped firefighters get the upper hand on a 10,000-acre fire in the Gila National Forest in southwestern New Mexico.

A fire in the Bridger-Teton National Forest in Wyoming slowed thanks partly to cooler weather Sunday.

More than 350 firefighters fought two blazes in Fremont National Forest in Oregon.

Child bitten by shark in Gulf

LAKE JACKSON (AP) — A 9-year-old Houston girl remains hospitalized after she was bitten by a shark while playing in the Gulf of Mexico off Matagorda County.

Rene Richbourg is saying little about the attack in 3 feet of water on Friday, her mother, Teresa, said Sunday.

The girl was playing near the mouth of Chaney Creek when the shark, estimated to be about 4 feet long, grabbed her leg.

The bite left a large gash, bone-deep, in the girl's leg near her ankle, Mrs. Richbourg said.

AIDS

carry proteins similar to the HIV virus, the test may indicate a false positive. If this occurs, the individual will be tested again to identify which antibodies cross-react to cause the false positive, Carney said.

For test accuracy, Carney said, you must consider your risk factors:

• Have you been sexually active with more than one partner since the late 1970s? Since the virus is known to have a long incubation period, you could be infected and not know it.

• Have you or your partner used IV drugs, or received a transfusion or blood products since 1978? Although blood and blood products are tested for the virus, it is possible to contract AIDS if the virus is not detected. By sharing needles and syringes, it is possible to contract the disease through blood.

• Do you practice safe sex? The correct use of a condom can help prevent the spread of AIDS.

Carney noted common symptoms of the disease.

The first indication may be unexplained loss of weight, Carney said. Chronic or acute diarrhea, fever, persistent cough, yeast infections, fatigue and Kaposi Sarcoma, which is skin cancer, may also indicate the possibility of AIDS if the individual does not easily overcome their illness.

"Naming the symptoms causes hysteria... People with these symptoms don't necessarily have AIDS," she said.

Because data is not complete, Carney said the time frame of when an infected person will show signs of the disease is not known. "It varies with the individual. A person can carry the virus for years before developing full-blown AIDS," she said.

Since the organization's free AIDS testing began, Carney, whose territory covers West Texas, said the results of the more than 70 individuals that have been tested are negative.

Few AIDS cases in area

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Figures released from the Texas Department of Health indicate that there have been few reported cases of AIDS in this area.

Darla Metcalf, TDH data manager for AIDS surveillance, said that she could not comment on the actual number of AIDS cases, but confirmed that that less than 10 incidences of the disease have been reported in Howard County as of June 30.

Mitchell County also has had less than 10 AIDS cases reported, while Martin County has had no reported incidences, she said.

She also noted that the numbers reflect those cases that fit the Center for Disease Control definition of the disease, and not AIDS-related cases.

Metcalf said no data was available on whether there has been an increase of AIDS cases in this area during the past few years. TDH officials reported in the Aug. 6, 1987 Herald that at least five cases of the disease had been reported in Howard County.

"It's a good sign — if we're getting to the people who need to be tested," Carney said.

"Some people are afraid — they don't want to know if they have the virus."

Because there is no cure, Carney said, "The biggest prevention of the disease is education."

If an individual is diagnosed with AIDS, Carney stresses the importance of wellness, and adds that an infected person is a good candidate for tuberculosis.

"We also offer encouragement and advise the use of safe sex methods."

For wellness, an infected individual should stay on a good diet and good exercise program.

For testing dates, please call Planned Parenthood at 263-8351.

TV remote lets viewer call tune without paying the piper

DEAR ABBY: About "The Clicker" — the fellow who made a practice of muting the sound during TV commercials: It reminds me of a story I used when I was a disc jockey and the commercial load got extra heavy. Actually, I stole it from Alfred Hitchcock, who said:

Dear Abby

"When I was in college, my Uncle Frank used to take me out for dinner now and then. We'd go to an expensive restaurant, and while we ate, Uncle Frank would tell me these long, boring stories about himself. But no matter how boring or self-serving the stories were, I always listened politely, because, after all, Uncle Frank was paying for the dinner. Now I don't know what reminded me of all this, but it's time for a commercial." — STEVE A. GLASER, CHAMPAIGN, ILL.

man, and judging from his famous ample profile, he enjoyed a good meal. But what kind of message did he send with his clever segue? That he felt obligated to listen politely to his Uncle Frank's boring, self-serving stories because he loved to eat and Uncle Frank picked up the tab.

Now, thanks to the invention of the TV clicker, today's television viewers need not tolerate boring, inane, offensive commercials as payment for having watched a television program. And who's to say we should?

DEAR ABBY: As the author of "To Remember Me," I feel I must respond to the comments made by T.G. Hayes in which he says the essay was "positively gruesome."

While I agree he's entitled to his own opinion on the question of organ donation, I feel that, by the same token, he should give me, and others like me, the same right to choose.

Like Mr. Hayes, I believe the physical body is the temple that houses the soul — but only during our temporary stay on Earth. At death, I assume our soul leaves the body; therefore, why not use some of the body parts to help continue to house other souls? After all, our bodies were created from dust and so to dust they shall return... but who is to say when? To paraphrase Shakespeare, "Dust by any other name shall remain the same." I certainly hope Mr. Hayes will think things over and realize that since the body is the temple of the soul, we should continue to make it as beautiful and enduring as possible, and that by the time the millennium arrives, organ donation will be a "way of life." — ROBERT N. TEST, CINCINNATI

DEAR MR. TEST: My mail was overwhelmingly supportive of the views expressed in your beautiful essay.

DEAR ABBY: The suggestion you recently made for brides to "break in" their wedding shoes before the big day was especially appreciated by me. It also reminded me of something I clipped out of your column many years ago and saved to enjoy:

would you? I'm confused. What should I do?"

Your reply was "I'd rather have a pair of shoes that didn't fit than have a pair that was worn by everyone in town!"

Abby, it's nice to know that you handled "breaking in" shoes for our younger citizens a long time ago. — THE WIDOW MCCOY, DENNISVILLE, MAINE

DEAR ABBY: I am divorced and the mother of one child. I recently took a job as manager of an apartment building in order to support myself and my little one. It doesn't pay much, but I can live in this apartment rent-free, which helps a lot. It is a nice apartment with good security, and I never could afford to live here without this arrangement.

My problem: There is a man in this building who is legally separated from his wife. He is nice-looking, polite, gentlemanly and he lives alone. I have no car, so he gives me rides to the grocery store, laundromat, etc. He is very kind and caring, but guess what? According to the tenants, the word is all over this building that this man and I are having an affair!

Abby, that is not true. Why can't people of the opposite sex be friends without sleeping together? A couple of tenants made some snide remarks about it to him, too, and I feel terrible about it. He said he couldn't care less what people say. Abby, why do people gossip? And what can I do about it? — IRATE IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR IRATE: People gossip for a variety of reasons — among them jealousy, malice and boredom. Ignore the talk and the talkers. Just because a dog barks doesn't mean you have to answer it.

Cartoonist picked the job where he 'could starve in the shade'

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH
 Ace Reid's cartoon "Cowpokes" is featured in newspapers all across the western United States.

When he got out of the service after World War II, he figured he could do cartoons and starve to death or go back to being a cowboy and starve to death. He picked the one he could do in the shade.

Ace loves to play jokes on people. Sometimes he wakes up guests in his hunters' cabin by having chickens eat corn he has sprinkled over their bed covers.

Once Ace went into the sweaty hat business. While he was having a couple of hats made at Texas Hatters in Austin, he noticed some young people were buying a hat called "the dude." It sold for $35. The customers who bought the hats would go outside and slap them against the side of the building, rub them on the ground and stomp on

Tumbleweed Smith

Sales of the hats were good in New York, Canada and Europe. However, sales weren't good in Fredericksburg. "Those Germans in Fredericksburg believe in putting their own sweat on hats and taking 25 years to do it," says Ace.

Ace had a newspaper friend who wrote a book and Ace wanted to have an autograph party for him. It took place at an old German beer joint in Comfort, called Bruno's Curve. Bruno only had one tooth but he was still Ace's friend.

them, trying to make the hats look old.

At the time, a movie director was wintering with Ace. He asked the director how he got sweat stains on hats to make them look old. The director explained how it was done and soon Ace was selling hats with sweat stains on them. Playboy magazine did a story on the hats. The article featured a naked girl wearing one of Ace's hats. "I think everybody noticed the sweat," comments Ace.

Two other men came in, began drinking beer and got into a fight. The table with the books on it turned over, causing the books to fall in every direction. Bruno got out his baseball bat, broke up the party and threw everybody out. Ace and his author friend had been in Bruno's for two hours and never sold a book.

Ace loves to cook goat. He has a special recipe. "You take your goat meat, wrap it in foil, then fill this foil with about an inch of water. Salt and pepper the goat. Rub some garlic on it. Put it over the coals, close your smoker, go into town to the nearest beer joint and stay there until five o'clock in the afternoon. Then come home, raise that lid, unwrap the goat and you'll have something that's out of this world."

Once at a fancy event at the Ker-ville Country Club, Ace changed the menu to list coon, clabber and collards along with toasted cowpich with cream gravy.

Ace wears a tie tac but no tie. The tie tac portrays two horned toads mating. He wants the horned toads to be plentiful again and heads up an organization to bring them back.

Ace called a friend of his in Idaho and asked him to send a shoebox full of horned toads. Now when Ace starts something, he gets a lot of people upset. This was no exception.

Idaho state officials said they would not let them be shipped. Texas officials said they would not let them into Texas. Idaho horned toads have smaller horns. The federal government said the horned toads could not get on an airplane.

Ace wants some land set aside to start a horned toad breeding program. "Maybe they'll eat some of those fire ants," says Ace. "I'd like to stake out each horned toad over a fire ant bed so they'd have plenty to eat." Ace had requested 98 mares and 4 studs shipped to Texas. "Tony Lama told me he wants to buy the skins so he can start making boots out of them. Charlie Shreiner wants to start an artificial insemination program and make the horns curve out like longhorns."

Because of Ace's proclivity at story telling, he occasionally makes after dinner speeches. "These bars around Kerrville have got right at $7 billion worth of stories from me and never paid a dime," says Ace.

Nobody in Texas has more fun than Ace Reid. Few people have provided the humor he has. Ace hasn't grown up yet. I hope he never does.

According to the treasurer's report, the club has a balance of $140.53. Twelve members answered roll call. Fran Riley and Gayle Covner were welcomed as guests. Rhodes reported on the "Aluminum Can" scholarship. The first recipients are Vance Christie and Tonya Rock. Rhodes also presented the program on refinishing furniture. She told members to ask themselves the following questions before beginning a project.
 • Is the piece solid in construction, or does it need small repairs?
 • Is it worth the effort of refinishing?
 • Is it solid wood?
 • Veneered? If so, is it broken or lifted from the back surface? If you find it to be veneered with many broken places or lifts, you should consider antique finish, which will not require the removal of the old finish. Just follow directions on the antique kit.
 • What new finish do I want?
 Rhodes explained how to remove the old finish, repair, and apply the new finish. Members were shown several pieces of refinished furniture. The next meeting will be July 20 at the home of Ruth Morton.

Opinions from across the U.S.

Court's abortion ruling guarantees more litigation

It's easy to see why the Supreme Court of the United States took so long to announce its opinion in the latest abortion case. It took that long to jury-rig a majority out of some of the most specious reasoning in the annals of making the law fit the desired conclusion.

Although the parties in the suit and others who chose to join the fight based much of their arguments on the right to privacy, Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and his accomplices found that line of reasoning entirely too clear, too far from the conclusion they wanted to reach. Instead, they used the astonishing conclusion that the Constitution does not specifically mention the magic words "trimester" and "viability." Seldom has such an intelligent group used such pinheaded logic.

The claim that the old law is undisturbed is an elegant judicial lie. There will be legislation introduced in this state and others to make abortion as uncomfortable, risky and expensive as possible.

The difference between before Monday and after is that the enemies of privacy now know that the fix is in.

Philadelphia Daily News

It was tragic to see the U.S. Supreme Court knock its first chip out of the 1973 Roe v. Wade ruling that guarantees women the right to an abortion.

There is no doubt that the court's ruling will give impetus to the anti-abortion forces. People in every state will push for the most restrictive state laws the courts will allow.

Lawmakers should remember that safe abortions have always been available — and always will be available — to women with the money to pay for them. The states can't write a law that can't be bypassed with enough dough.

Wealthy women will be able to shop around for a sympathetic physician or travel to a state with less restrictive laws. But what about women who can't afford to take off work and leave their families for a sudden "vacation" to New York? What about women who don't have adequate health care and certainly can't afford to shop around for a doctor who will give the necessary approval?

Those women — the poor and middle-income, the uninsured and the unemployed, the young — will do what they did before Roe. They'll seek out illegal, unsafe abortions. Some of them will have their babies and give them up. But some of them will just give up their lives.

The Tennessean, Nashville, Tenn.

The worst fears of pro-choice advocates did not materialize in the fractured, and fractious, Reagan Court's abortion ruling. But the anti-abortion repression of the pre-1973 years now has a detectable heartbeat that it has not had since Roe vs. Wade. For women's liberty and equality, that inchoate viability is indeed evident, ominous, and chilling.

If abortion were not already a heated issue, the Supreme Court now has made it white-hot. The Court's long-awaited decision on a Missouri law challenging the epochal 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision guarantees years more of political turmoil and emotional litigation. It in effect told women that they leave their control of their lives at the door if they must consult a public clinic or hospital.

While the prohibition on using tax money for actual abortions can be defended, the prohibition on counseling at public facilities cannot. Moreover, this prohibition will deprive poor and rich woman alike of their choice of doctors because so many physicians practice at public hospitals.

Such a willingness by the Court to permit legislative tinkering is a clear invitation to the states to reduce abortion rights inchmeal. What strictures will the Court next approve? Will it allow legislatures to ban sterilization or dispensing of birth-control information at public facilities, even for paying patients? And if a legislature now may mandate fetal-viability tests, will it next be permitted to mandate procedures? To outlaw abortion beyond the first trimester or altogether?

The Miami Herald

The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the right of women to choose abortions, but it also has invited opponents to keep fighting to persuade the court to strike down the right. The Monday decision was a setback to freedom from government intrusion in intensely private decisions.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist acknowledged the basic political nature of the controversy and the fact that the court was opening the way for the battle to move to the states. Justices in the minority (in the 5-4 vote) seemed to suggest, he wrote, that in a nation where women are in the majority, state legislators "will treat our decision today as an invitation to enact abortion legislation reminiscent of the Dark Ages."

He said that gives too little credit to the legislators or the court majority. Yet that is precisely the end to which zealous opponents of abortion will now turn their energies. Perhaps the most important thing that was decided Monday is that the fight will go on.

Odds are against a flag amendment

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Over the last two centuries there have been 10,393 attempts to amend the U.S. Constitution and only 26 successes.

President Bush isn't bothered by those odds as he presses for an amendment to protect the Stars and Stripes from destruction by political protesters.

The president says he's outraged over the Supreme Court's decision permitting flag burning as an acceptable, if unattractive, expression of the free speech guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Bush wants a 27th amendment permitting Congress and the states to pass laws banning the "desecration" of Old Glory.

A check of the records shows that more attempts are being made now than ever before to change the Constitution, with actual changes just as infrequent as ever.

No change has been made since the 26th amendment giving 18-year-olds the vote was ratified 18 years ago.

In the first hundred years — 1789-1889 — 1,736 proposed amendments to the Constitution were filed with Congress.

From 1963 until the House adjourned last Thursday, 5,001 amendments have been offered.

Those figures include, of course, multiple submissions of the same ideas and repeat filings, Congress after Congress after Congress.

About two dozen resolutions have been filed in the House and Senate to forbid flag desecration since the Supreme Court handed down its decision on June 21.

Such an amendment would have to be approved by the House and Senate by two-thirds majorities.

The amendment would be ratified and made part of the Constitution only with the approval of three-fourths of the 50 states.

The difficulty of hurdling the barriers erected by the Constitution's authors have not kept people from trying.

Former President Reagan campaigned for eight years for an amendment to require a balanced federal budget. As a private citizen, he is campaigning still.

Reagan also wanted an amendment allowing a president to line-item veto individual sections of appropriations bills instead of dealing with them on an all-or-nothing basis. He didn't get that either, at least not yet.

President Bush now has endorsed four amendments to the Constitution: Flag desecration, anti-abortion, balanced budget and line-item veto.

The Equal Rights Amendment forbidding discrimination based on sex was first introduced in 1923. Congress finally approved it in 1972 and sent it to the states for ratification. Its highwater mark to date came in 1982 when the number of states voting to ratify reached 35, three states short of the required 38.

Proposed amendments are pending in various forms to ban busing to achieve racial balance in schools, to set a single six-year term for the president, to set terms for House members at four years, to forbid abortion, to make the District of Columbia the 51st state, to make English the official language of the United States, and to permit prayer in public schools.

Other ideas floated over the last 20 years or so include: Requiring a three-fifths vote for Congress to borrow money, requiring a two-thirds vote to approve appropriations and budgets, abolishing the income tax and limiting congressional immunity for traffic offenses.

Until now, the hurdles have proven too steep for all of the above.

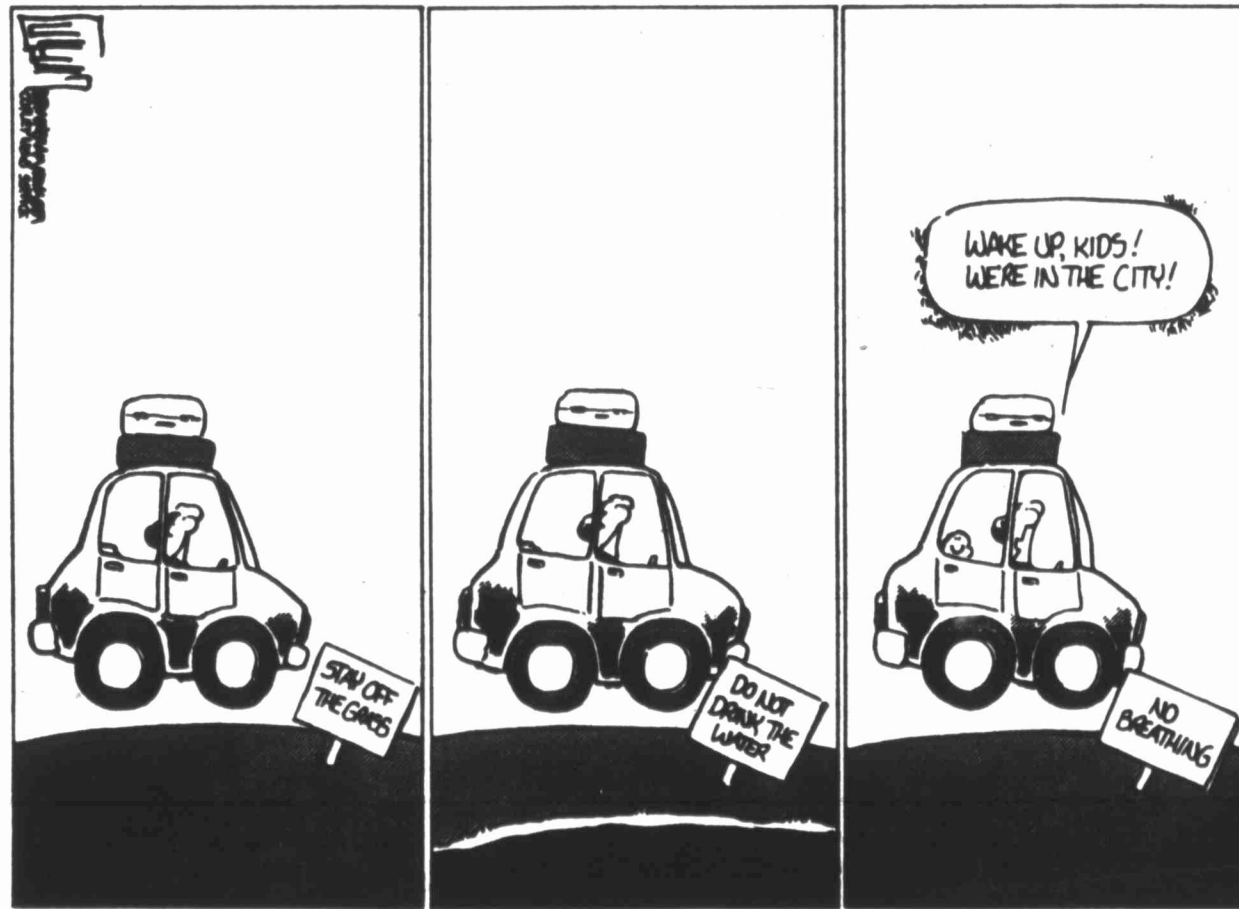

But one of the earliest proposed amendments — it appeared to have died on the vine early in the 19th Century — is showing new signs of life because of 20th Century controversy over congressional pay raises.

Drafted by James Madison and submitted to the First Congress, it states: "No law varying the compensation for the service of the senators and representatives shall take effect until an election of representatives shall have intervened."

Its effect would be to give the voters a chance to retaliate before a legislative pay raise takes effect.

Congress approved the proposition on Sept. 25, 1789, and sent it to the states. Only six states voted to ratify, until a drive began a few years ago to breathe new life into it.

In recent years five additional states have voted to ratify it. That brings the total after two centuries to 11 and holds out at least a slim chance that Madison's idea may someday become a part of the Constitution.

Did these bets ever a-rose?

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

News item: An investigation into Cincinnati Reds Manager Pete Rose's gambling habits alleged he made bets on the Atlanta Braves.

Could this conversation have ever taken place?

"I want a dollar (a thousand) on the Braves tonight," Pete Rose said to his bookie.

Normally bookies are excited when they get an obvious sucker bet, but this bet was such an obvious loser Rose's bookie felt he had a duty to offer some advice.

"Peter," he began, "nobody bets on the Atlanta Braves. Wouldn't you like to rethink all this?"

"Who's the future Hall-of-Famer here, me or you?" asked Rose. "I want a dollar on the Braves."

"Pete, Pete, Pete," said the bookie, "base hits are one thing. Bets are quite another. Nobody has won a cent on the Braves since they moved out of Milwaukee 20 years ago."

"They have no hitting, they have no pitching, they have no fielding, they're slow, and their bat boy is into science projects in school. Why don't you consider the Mets against the Dodgers tonight instead?"

"Whose money is this," asked Rose, "mine or yours?"

"Soon to be mine if you stay with the Braves," said the bookie, who continued, "The Braves are the same team who traded Steve Bedrosian to the Phillies for Ozzie Virgil."

"Bedrosian promptly won the Cy Young award as the league's best pitcher and Virgil promptly went into a coma."

"Haven't you been paying attention to baseball?"

"And there's more, Pete. Here's a team that traded two of the best young players in baseball, Brett Butler and Bruce Jacoby, to the Cleveland Indians for pitcher Lynn Barker."

"Barker's arm fell off the next day and Butler and Jacoby are still playing. You want to bet on a team that will do something that stupid?"

"But I like the Braves uniforms," said Rose.

"Uniform? You'd bet on a team because of its uniforms?" asked the startled bookie.

"Argentina had great uniforms when it fought the British in the Falkland Islands war and it didn't do them any good."

"And remember how Napoleon dressed? Like he just stepped off the cover of GQ. But did that help him at Waterloo?"

"Look," said Rose, "you want to take my money or not?"

"Sure, I want to take your money," said the bookie, "but I know better ways for you to throw it away. Why don't you flush it down the toilet? You'll see it a lot longer than you will if you bet on the Braves."

"Or, why don't you put it in a nice saving and loan? That would be a lot safer. Or why don't you invest in some real estate in Texas or buy a used DeLorean."

"Look," said Rose, "I just like to gamble, and it doesn't matter whether or not I win. I just like the action."

"Who knows that any better than me," said the bookie. "But betting on the Atlanta Braves isn't gambling. It's gambling only when you have a chance to win. This is a team that couldn't win so the front office fired the team mascot."

"This is a team that thought Sonny Jackson was a major league shortstop, a team that once had a one-eyed pitcher and a catcher who closed his eyes when he swung, a team that drug Dale Murphy down to its own level, a team that leads the major leagues in the number of fans that avoid them like the plague. And you still want to bet on them?"

"OK," said Rose, "then give me a dollar on Jimmy Carter returning to the White House."

"Now," said Rose's bookie, "you're making some sense."

Majority opposes abortion ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans oppose the U.S. Supreme Court ruling that allowed states to restrict abortions, and say they do not believe Roe vs. Wade should be overturned, according to a Time magazine-CNN poll.

In the poll released Sunday, 61 percent said they disagreed with the July 3 ruling on a Missouri abortion law, and 57 percent said the 1973 Roe vs. Wade, which legalized abortions, should not be overturned.

Thirty-two percent said they would never vote for a candidate who advocates restricting the right to an abortion, compared with 24 percent who said they would never support an office-seeker who favors abortion.

In a poll released Saturday by Newsweek magazine, 53 percent disapproved last week's Supreme Court ruling and 37 percent approved.

Public gets first look at bomber

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — The B-2 stealth bomber emerged from its super-secret research hangar today and was displayed to the public for the first time since its unveiling in November.

Half an hour after sunrise on the Mojave desert, the sinister-looking flying wing, capable of penetrating enemy radar defenses without being detected, taxied slowly from its hangar at Air Force Plant 42.

This morning's test was the first time that the radar-evading bomber had been shown to the public since its unveiling on Nov. 22 to a small group of reporters, aerospace industry representatives and Pentagon officials.

Congressional critics have complained that the plane is too costly, with an estimated cost of $70 billion dollars for 132 aircraft.

But Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney has defended the nation's newest and most sophisticated bomber, saying that the sleek, all-wing bomber is an important technological breakthrough, using composite fuselage materials to absorb enemy radar waves.

Sitting near a pair of B-1 bombers, the aircraft in profile appeared less than half as long. In fact, the fuselage length of the B-2 is only about as long as an F-16 fighter plane.

WARSAW, Poland — President George Bush, right, follows the honor guards as he lays a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Warsaw Monday morning.

Bush proposes aid package for Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Bush today proposed a $100 million aid package and promised to seek new loans and debt relief for Poland, declaring that the Communist nation's moves toward democratic freedoms "show the way toward a new era throughout Europe."

In the first address by an American president before the Polish parliament, Bush hailed recent political and economic reforms and said: "This generation's calling is to redeem the promise of a free Polish republic. Poland has not been lost so long as the Polish spirit lives."

The Polish deputies interrupted Bush's speech five times with polite applause, but gave him a standing ovation at the end.

The speech was the dramatic high point of the first day of the president's 10-day European tour, which included 2 hours and 40 minutes of talks with Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Bush was cheered by about 4,000 flag-waving, chanting Poles who shouted "Long Live, Long Live" when he attended wreath-laying ceremonies at memorials to Polish war dead and the Jewish victims of the Nazi Holocaust during World War II.

At a luncheon, the president urged Polish Communist leaders and representatives of the once-banned Solidarity trade union movement to "rise above the mistrust to bring the Polish people together for a common purpose."

In view of Poland's $39 billion foreign debt and other economic woes, Bush's aid proposals seemed modest. But Secretary of State James A. Baker III said, "This is really not a trip to bestow economic largesse."

Bush, in his parliamentary speech, said, "The reform of the Polish economy will be an historic challenge. There can be no substitute for Poland's own efforts."

Warning that Poland must accept austerity measures, the president said: "I must speak honestly: economic reform and recovery cannot occur without sacrifices."

The six-point aid package announced by Bush included a request to Congress for a $100 million "enterprise fund" to support private entrepreneurs in Poland.

Algae limits swimming in Italy

ROME (AP) — Sunbathers on Italy's Adriatic coast can stay in the sun, but may well have to keep out of the water due to an explosion of thick, slimy algae.

Last August, the algae growth prompted authorities to call bathing uninviting. This July, they're calling it potentially dangerous.

Autorities in the Romagna region, which includes popular seaside resorts such as Rimini, on Saturday called bathing "impractical," and urge tourists to wait for the results of an algae analysis due today.

If the tests confirm that the waters are dangerous, bathing will be banned, tourism officials said.

Last year, the algae invaded Italy's northern Adriatic coast, scaring away tourists and killing fish. The algae thrive on raw sewage and chemical pollutants that dirty the Italian waters.

An official prohibition on bathing could deal a heavy blow to the tourism industry.

Peres opposes hard line of Likud

JERUSALEM (AP) — Finance Minister Shimon Peres urged today that his left-leaning Labor Party quit the governing coalition because of the right-wing Likud bloc's new hard line on peace negotiations with the Palestinians.

Such a move could bring down the government and, seven months after the last elections, force a new vote.

Peres, the Labor chairman, told his party's 120-member leadership bureau that he wants to convene the its governing Central Committee "as soon as possible" and to ask it to endorse the move. Last week, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc met and toughened its conditions for elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip for Palestinian leaders who would negotiate greater autonomy from Israel.

Under the initial election plan, Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza would choose representatives to negotiate with Israel on limited self-rule.

But, under Likud's new conditions, no elections would be held until the 19-month Palestinian uprising ends.

Austerity measures imposed

CARLOS S. MENEM

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Utility and gasoline prices soared and the national currency's value was halved today as the new government began imposing measures it hopes will end the worst recession in Argentina's 173-year history.

"Argentina is bankrupt," Economy Minister Miguel Roig said Sunday night in a nationwide address. Policies to nurture the country to health "will be exceptional and, lamentably, very harsh."

The plan also envisions cutting back drastically on government spending, selling off many state-run industries, scaling back subsidies and tax breaks for private companies and enforcing widely ignored tax laws.

"We have to conduct major surgery without anesthesia. If not, Argentina has no future," said President Carlos Menem.

Rioting prisoners burn buildings

BANNING, Calif. (AP) — Inmates rioted at a prison camp, injuring at least 19 people and leaving seven buildings in flames early today, authorities said.

At least 100 law enforcement officers were involved in quelling the three-hour riot, ended around midnight Sunday at the Banning Road Camp Rehabilitation Center, a minimum- and medium security prison with 772 inmates.

"We still do not know what precipitated this, but it appears to have been racial in nature," said Riverside County Sheriff's Capt. Jake Bowser. "We had some fighting break out between barracks. After that it just broke out in general pandemonium."

Sheriff's deputies transported about 350 of the prisoners to other jails today to "defuse the situation," and the remaining inmates were locked down.

Martinez, Sanchez tournament champions

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Golf Tournament concluded Sunday afternoon and Comanche Trail Golf Pro Al Patterson said that 73 teams participated in the partnership event.

The "top guns" of the tournament were Felix Martinez and Knobby Sanchez, who won the championship flight with a 125, four strokes better than a pair of Randys, Reeves and Crockett.

Byron Harris and Royce Cox were one stroke behind Reeves and Crockett.

In the first flight, Doug Parker and Mike Poyner were tops, and Doc Wilson and Don Benedict were second flight winners.

The third flight championship went to Bob Bell and Chris Christopher while Ruby Honea and Betty Ray Coffee won the fourth flight.

Dora Roberts Executive Director John Yater termed the tournament a "big success." Yater said his organization is still working on compiling the proceeds made from the tournament, and will probably have exact figures by Wednesday.

"I'm real pleased with the way the tournament went," said Yater. "The cocktail party and barbecue went well. We learned a lot of things and we'll make it better next year. We intend on making it an annual event."

Broncos want Dallas DT

DALLAS (AP) — Weaknesses in the Denver Broncos' defensive line and the team's need for a proven pass rusher has led coach Dan Reeves to Dallas, where he has expressed an interest in Cowboys defensive tackle Kevin Brooks.

Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said Sunday that he expected to trade Brooks, 26, on Monday. Bob Ackles, the Cowboys director of player personnel, said the team would be looking for two 1990 draft choices in return for Brooks.

The Cowboys likely would get a pick in the third and fifth rounds in exchange for Brooks. Reeves arrived in Dallas Friday to talk about a trade.

But Ackles said a Brooks-to-the-Broncos deal wasn't a sure thing.

"There is no assurance we will trade him, much less that we will trade him to Denver," Ackles told The Dallas Morning News.

But a source close to the negotiations told the newspaper that Denver has emerged ahead of five other teams — believed to be Cleveland, Minnesota, Tampa Bay, Detroit and the Los Angeles Raiders — as Brooks' foremost suitor.

West Germans rule on grass

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova says she still has time to break Wimbledon's ultimate record. Unless Steffi Graf gets there first.

After losing the women's championship to Graf for the second year in a row, Navratilova still is stuck on eight singles crowns at the All England Club, the record she shares with Helen Wills Moody.

Next year, Navratilova will be 33. But, she says, that won't stop her coming back to the oldest Grand Slam tournament for another crack at a place in tennis history.

"I absolutely think that I can win," Navratilova said after Graf beat her 6-2, 6-7, 6-1. "If I thought there was no chance I would win, or even a 50-50 chance, I wouldn't be playing any more."

It was the first time the women's championship, postponed from Saturday because of rain, ever had been held on a Sunday, and the first time in the modern era that the same women had met in the final three years in a row.

The match preceded the men's final between Boris Becker and Stefan Edberg on a day when four of the five main titles were settled.

Becker avenged his defeat by Edberg in last year's men's final with a 6-0, 7-6, 6-4 victory that made the West German the youngest man ever to win three Wimbledon singles titles. He also won in 1985 as an unseeded 17-year-old, and in 1986.

Becker, 21, flung his racket into the stands at the end of the 2-hour, WIMBLEDON, England — West Germany's Steffi Graf and Boris Becker pose with their trophies at the All-England Lawn Club Sunday after winning their respective Wimbledon singles finals.

12-minute match, the most one-sided final in five years.

"After a couple of seconds, when you realize you have won it, you explode," Becker said. "Thankfully, I didn't hit anybody."

Becker's victory gave West Germany a sweep of the singles crowns.

Graf wept tears of joy after halting Navratilova's bid for a history-making ninth singles title and re-asserting her dominance of the women's game.

The 20-year-old Graf was upset by Spanish teen-ager Arantxa Sanchez in the final of the French Open last month. On Wimbledon's grass and in front of another mass audience, Graf wasn't prepared to have her pride dented again.

"I wanted it so badly that I put a little more pressure on myself than usual," Graf said. "I wanted to show I can do better. I knew I could do it but I had to prove it on the court. It's an overwhelming feeling."

On a cool, overcast day, Graf started strongly in contrast to last year, when she rallied from a first-set loss to take 12 of the last 13 games and beat Navratilova.

Moving Navratilova's aging legs around the court with her pounding groundstrokes, Graf took the last five games of the opening set and seemed on course for a straight-set victory.

Navratilova dug in, served stronger and moved up 5-2 in the second set. She blew that lead but sprinted through the tiebreaker 7-1.

Walking wounded compile All-Star list

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Fame can be fleeting. It can also be painful.

The 1989 All-Stars have a variety of aches and pains, and some of last season's squad haven't even played a game this year.

The real All-Stars this season may be the major-league trainers.

This year's All-Star Game may have just lost a little luster before the first pitch was thrown or even the first ballot cast.

Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda picked four starters and five relievers for the National League pitching staff. It looks like he'll be using the phone a lot on Tuesday night.

Houston's Mike Scott, 14-5, started against Montreal on Sunday in the Astrodome and sustained a slight leg muscle pull.

"It's not a serious injury, but it would be better if Mike didn't pitch on Tuesday," Houston manager Art Howe said.

Lasorda's Dodgers are in fifth place in the NL West, 11 games behind San Francisco. On Sunday, he tried to pull out all the stops to beat Chicago and used All-Star Orel Hershiser in relief.

So don't count on Hershiser for much on Tuesday night against the American League.

That will leave it up to San Francisco's 40-year-old Rick Reuschel and Atlanta's John Smoltz, 22.

The relievers are Tim Burke, Mark Davis, John Franco, Jay Howell and Mitch Williams.

Yes, it's a good bullpen. But it's not Lefty Gomez, Red Ruffing and Mel Harder.

"I'm not worried about that," Lasorda said. "I can't control injuries."

Lasorda said he would have selected Dwight Gooden, but the New York Mets' right-hander sustained a muscle-tear in his pitching shoulder.

Gooden's batterymate, catcher Gary Carter, was an All-Star in every year of the 1980s except this one. Carter got off to a woeful start and it was discovered he had eight pieces of floating cartilage in his knee.

Two of the outfielders voted to this year's starting squad will miss the game because of injuries.

Darryl Strawberry of the Mets is recovering from a broken toe and Oakland's Jose Canseco, the AL MVP, has not played a game this season because of a wrist injury.

"I'm concerned the wrist may not improve all year," said Canseco, who recently completed a rehabilitation stint at Huntsville.

Yankees was an All-Star last season but has been sidelined all of 1989 after back surgery.

Last year's All-Star Game was played at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium and the hometown hero was Reds third baseman Chris Sabo. Right now, Sabo is on the disabled list with an ankle injury.

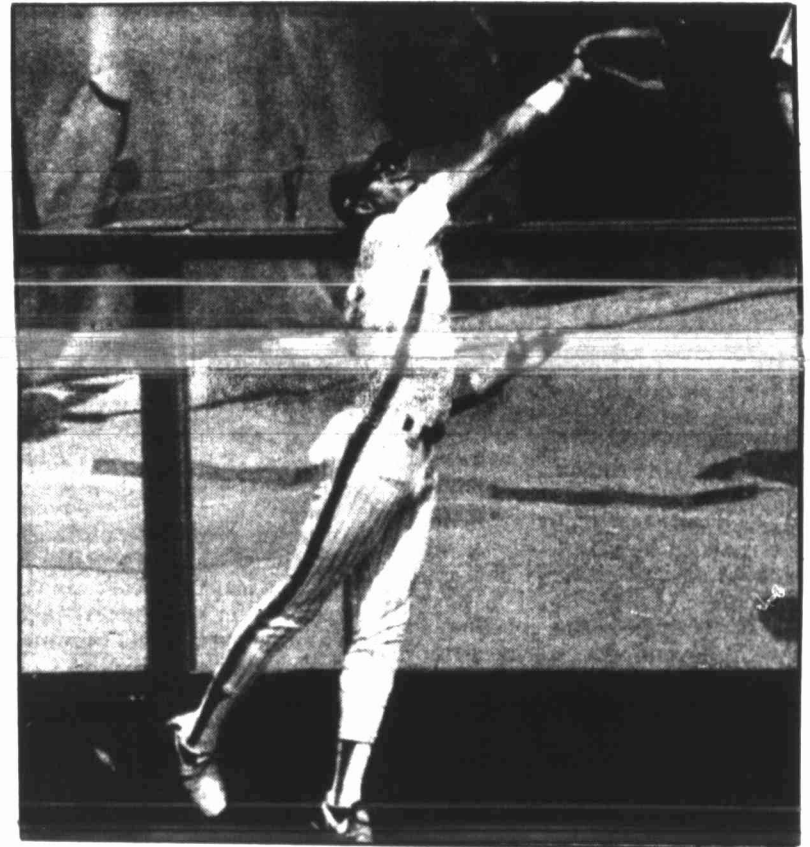

Last season, Atlanta first baseman Gerald Perry contended for the NL batting title and was an All-Star. This year, he has been plagued by injuries and a year-long batting slump. On Sunday, things got even worse when he separated his left shoulder and will need surgery.

St. Louis center fielder Willie McGee was another victim of the All-Star hex this season, out since June 4 with a rib-cage injury.

Potential All-Stars like Keith Hernandez, Andy Van Slyke, John Tudor, Ellis Burks, Alan Trammell, George Brett, Kent Hrbek, Jack Morris, Andre Dawson, and Kirk Gibson have all been sidelined for extended periods this year.

Tony La Russa's AL pitching staff seems to have a big edge this year — in talent and health. Starters Nolan Ryan, Mark Gubicza, Mike Moore, Dave Stewart, Chuck Finley and Greg Swindell are rested and healthy.

In the bullpen, the AL has Mike Henneman, Doug Jones, Jeff Russell and Dan Plesac.

home run from Cincinnati Reds Jeff Reed in the fourth inning Sunday. Strawberry, a starting outfielder in the All-Star game, is recovering from a broken toe.

Azinger hangs on

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Paul Azinger doesn't consider himself a choker. His victory in the Greater Hartford Open may have swayed others to his view.

Azinger lost a four-stroke lead on the back nine Sunday, then sank a 40-foot pitch shot for a tie-breaking birdie on the final hole and a one-shot victory over Wayne Levi.

PGA

"I still wonder," Azinger said after shooting a 6-under-par 65 Sunday to finish with a course record 17-under 267, "am I ever going to let myself run away" with a tournament?

He seemed ready to do that after shooting a 6-under-par 30 on the front nine. That put him at 17 under for the tournament and gave him a four-stroke edge with just nine holes left.

"It was my tournament to win or lose starting on the 10th hole," he said.

While Azinger played cautiously, trying to protect his advantage, Levi, who shot 67, made birdies at the 9th, 10th, 12th and 13th holes to tie for the lead. Azinger then broke his string of 37 bogey-free holes on the 15th, but Levi bogeyed the 14th, leaving them at 16 under.

On the par-4, 420-yard 18th hole, Azinger hit his first shot into the right rough and his second into the rough to the right of the green.

"I would never consider myself a

Hammel becomes first to win Farr Classic twice

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) — Perhaps the Jamie Farr Toledo Classic is misnamed. The Penny Hammel Open, maybe?

Hammel became the first to win the Toledo Classic a second time by withstanding challenges from Nancy Lopez and Betsy King over the final nine holes Sunday. The Toledo victories are the only two Hammel has posted in five years on the LPGA Tour.

LPGA

Hammel became the five-year-old event's first repeat winner by following rounds of 69 and 66 with a closing even-par 71 to finish at 7-under-par 206 over the 6,270-yard, par-71 Highland Meadows Golf Club.

"Somebody came up to me and said to come back and try to win a third," Hammel said. "That would be great, but I'd like to win something in between."

Lopez, with a final-round 68 after consecutive 70s, shared second place with reigning U.S. Open champion Liselotte Neumann and three-time Open champion Hollis Stacy at 5-under 208.

Neumann, who will defend her Open title this week at the Indianwood Golf and Country Club in Lake Orion, Mich., finished with a 71 after starting the day two strokes back of Hammel and alone in second place.

Stacy closed with her second straight 68 after a first-round 72.

The victory was worth a career best $41,250 for Hammel from a purse of $275,000.

Hammel, 27, came from behind to win the Toledo tournament in 1985 with a closing 65 at Glegarry Country Club, edging Lopez by one stroke.

Hammel said she won by overcoming self-doubt.

Hammel said the key was not listening to any footsteps behind her. She started the day two shots ahead of Neumann, with King and Lopez also in position to make a final-round charge.

"I was aware" of who was behind me, she said, "but going in today, I said, 'I'm not going to think about Nancy Lopez or Betsy King or how many birdies they're making or how close I am to them. I'm just going to play the golf course.' ... I wasn't going to worry about who was trailing me or trying to catch me."

She took a three-stroke lead over Neumann with a birdie on the second hole, but her advantage dropped to one stroke when she bogeyed the par-3 sixth hole while Neumann birdied.

Hammel, who had one bogey in her first 41 holes, picked up her second bogey in five holes at the 10th to fall into a tie with King at 6-under. King bogeyed the 12th and 13th holes to fall out of contention.

Lopez gradually moved up the leader board by picking up three shots on par on the front nine. She birdied the 15th to pull within a shot of Hammel, but bogeyed the next hole.

After a bogey at the 15th, Ham-

LE CASTELLET, France (AP) — France's Alain Prost captured his fourth French Grand Prix with a 44-second margin over Britain's Nigel Mansell in the 80-lap race on Sunday.

Prost, who leads the world driving standings with 39 points, averaged 115.34 mph and finished with a time of 1 hour, 38 minutes, 29.411 seconds.

Highlands Regional Medical Center said the 39-year-old speed enthusiast died from internal injuries suffered in the accident on Sebring's Jackson Lake.

If confirmed, the speed was well beyond the world water speed record of 317.6 mph held by Australian Ken Warby.

Pitchers do number on Astros and Rangers

Expos 6, Astros 1
HOUSTON (AP) — Montreal Expos manager Buck Rodgers has no qualms about his team being the Eastern Division front-runner at the All-Star break.

The Expos, boosted by the pitching and hitting of newly acquired left-hander Mark Langston, defeated the Houston Astros Sunday 6-1, and hold a 1 1-2 game lead over the Chicago Cubs.

"We feel good about the second half. The key down the stretch is to play consistent baseball and not to get too high on wins or too low on losses," Rodgers said.

The Astros, like the Expos, are 49-38, but they trail San Francisco in the Western Division by two games.

"I am very pleased with our first half," said Astros Manager Art Howe. "I am very happy that we were able to bounce back from a rocky start."

Langston, 6-2 since joining the Expos, pitched eight innings and allowed one run while striking out nine.

"My velocity was real good and I had control of all four pitches," said Langston. "I started getting tired in the sixth and seventh innings, but you can be more aggressive when you get behind the hitters in this league."

"He (Langston) throws really hard. He has a sneaky fastball," said Astros shortstop Rafael Ramirez.

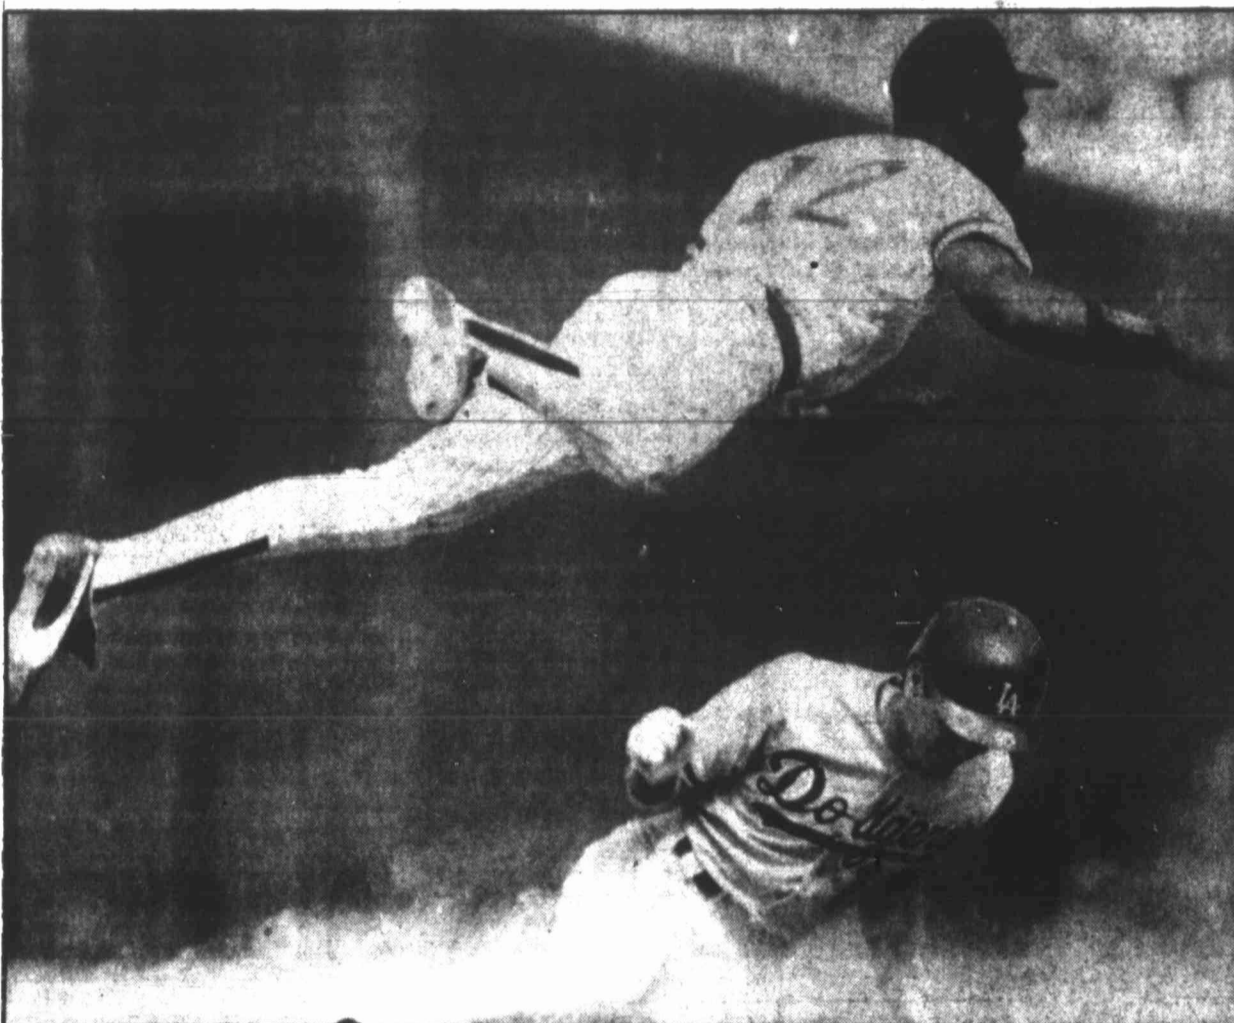

Langston has an assortment of pitches and throws them all well," said Astros second baseman Bill Doran.

The Expos took the lead for good against Astros starter Mike Scott, 14-5, in the second inning as Hubie Brooks led off with his sixth home run and Mike Aldrete followed with his first of the year.

"The pitch was a split-fingered fastball. I don't believe it was where he wanted it," Aldrete said. "You don't expect that pitch up."

Scott took himself out of the game after three innings with a strained left hamstring injury, but the injury doesn't appear to be very serious.

"I felt like I'd better come out,"

CHICAGO — Chicago Cubs Shawon Dunston soars over Los Angeles Dodgers Jeff Hamilton after forcing him out at second base during eighth inning action Sunday. Dunston completed the double play and the Cubs beat the Dodgers 11-4.

said Scott, who is on the National League All-Star roster. "I strained it against the Mets in the eighth inning on Tuesday, but you really have to be in a game situation to find out the extent of the injury."

The Expos added a run in the fourth inning on the first of two doubles by Nelson Santovenia, a ground ball by Langston and a sacrifice bunt by Dave Martinez.

The Expos increased their lead to 5-0 in the fifth inning on a double by Aldrete, singles by Tim Wallach and Santovenia and a double by Langston. They finished their scoring in the eighth inning on a triple by Spike Owen and a sacrifice fly by Langston.

The only Astros run came in the fifth when Billy Hatcher drove in Ramirez.

A's 7, Rangers 1
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Oakland pitcher Bob Welch spent 15 days on the disabled list last month, and the thought of spending another 10 days between starts alarmed him.

So Welch was thrilled when manager Tony LaRussa shifted his rotation to allow him one last start before the All-Star break. He made the most of it, going 6 1-3 innings to beat the Texas Rangers 7-1 Sunday and finish the first half with a 10-4 record.

"I needed to pitch," said Welch, making his third start since returning from a groin injury. "I'm glad Tony gave me the opportunity, especially after my last start."

Welch gave up six runs and eight hits in only 3 1-3 innings last Wednesday against Kansas City, his shortest outing of the year. The A's rallied back to tie the game and give a no-decision to Welch, who hasn't lost since May 28 at Boston. In his first start off the DL, Welch pitched five scoreless innings in a win over Greg Swindell at Cleveland.

"He's come back to get two quick wins for us," said La Russa. "He made the good pitch when he was trying to make one."

The A's need a healthy and effective Welch in the rotation in order to repeat as division champs. When the A's have used a starter other than the Big Four — Welch, Dave Stewart, Storm Davis or Mike Moore — they've lost nine straight games.

Going into the All-Star break, the A's are 1 1-2 games behind California. Only four games separate the second-place A's, Kansas City and Texas.

"It's a big difference when you have to jump over three teams," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine, whose club has stayed in the race with a 24-22 road record.

"California looks real good right now — their pitching is awesome," said Valentine. "And as soon as Oakland gets healthy, they'll be awesome. (Kansas City outfielder) Bo Jackson is awesome. We're going to have to be awesome."

The Ranger defense, however, was not awesome Sunday. The A's managed only one bloop hit off Texas starter Charlie Hough, 5-10, in the first three innings, but four Ranger errors, two passed balls and a wild pitch parlayed it into a 3-1 A's lead.

Hough lost to the A's for the first time in 12 starts. He was 8-0 in 11 starts against the team since his last loss to Oakland on June 30, 1985.

McGwire drove in three runs, one on his 17th homer of the year, to lead the A's attack. The Rangers' only run was unearned, scoring in the first inning on a passed ball.

The A's helped La Russa celebrate the day he signed a contract extension through the 1992 season.

"The (contract) might guarantee money, but it won't guarantee I'll be in the dugout," said La Russa.

Knicks will hire 32-year-old coach

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks are ignoring questions about inexperience in hiring Stu Jackson as head coach of the team.

The Knicks called a press conference for 2 p.m. EDT today to announce the promotion of Jackson, 32, a Knicks assistant under Rick Pitino the last two years. Jackson, who has never had a head coaching job at any level, would become the youngest coach in the NBA.

The Knicks did not officially confirm that Jackson is the choice, but a spokesman said, "We all know what the press conference is for."

The imminent hiring of Jackson has been widely reported in recent days.

Despite Jackson's inexperience,

Knicks officials said he has several assistants with acknowledged skills in dealing with players —

Paul Silas and Ernie Grunfeld.

Silas is a former coach of the San Diego Clippers and a star forward for the Hawks, Celtics and Super-Sonics. Grunfeld was the team's radio analyst the last two seasons after retiring as a Knicks player.

When Pitino left in May to become coach at Kentucky, Jackson said he didn't think he was a candidate for the job.

"They want me to get more experience, maybe two or three more years as an assistant," he said then.

Jackson often was an intermediary between the players and Pitino, whose hard-driving style was a major factor in Jackson's selection.

Knicks. That was apparently a major factor in Jackson's selection.

Young gymnasts impressive

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The tiny and elegant Brandy Johnson highlighted a youth movement in the U.S. Gymnastics Championships this weekend, emerging as the country's best hope for an immediate medal in world competition.

"When you have a hot star like Brandy, you don't want her to hit a plateau, and she's not," said Mike Jacki, executive director of the U.S. Gymnastics Federation.

Johnson, 16, of Altamonte Springs, Fla., dominated the women's competition at Met Center Friday and Saturday to win the national championship with a combined adjusted score of 77.02. On Sunday she showcased her graceful 4-foot-11 frame by winning three of four events in a parade of individual events.

With a summer of intensive training, including a week in France, Johnson said she hopes to capture a medal in the world championships this fall at Stuttgart, West Germany. She finished 10th overall among women in the 1988 Olympics, the highest finish of any American gymnast.

The U.S. men's title went to Stanford University's Tim Ryan, who at 18 is the youngest national men's champion since former U.S. Olympian Bart Conner won as a 17-year-old in 1975.

Four of the eight who made the men's team are 20 or younger. While the 1989 men's team is poised to make an impression in Stuttgart, it has a better chance to score medals in 1990 and beyond, said Ryan, whose combined adjusted score of 112.22 in the all-around competition edged the 1988 U.S. Olympian Lance Ringnald, 18, of Albuquerque, N.M.

"By 1991 I think we'll look more like the (U.S.) team in 1984 that won the Olympic gold medal," Ryan said. "We'll be gaining experience."

Ryan, a sophomore at Stanford, won one gold medal, two silver medals, and a bronze Sunday while competing in five of the six men's events. He won the gold with a 9.7 score on the high bar, the final routine in the three-day event, which drew about 18,000 spectators.

Two of Sunday's individual event winners did not make the national men's team, which is made up of the top eight finishers in the all-around competition. The two were men's vault champion William Roth, 19, of Temple University, and pommel horse champion Kevin Keswick, 19, of UCLA.

 mel parred out to close the door, as no one challenged her on the difficult finishing holes.

Lopez finished in a tie for second, the fourth runnerup finish in as many Toledo starts for her. That parallels the kind of year she's had, with nine finishes of third or better in 13 starts.

"It's tough to finish second four times," Lopez said. "But I have made a lot of money here. I really don't mind finishing second. If I can't win, second's not so bad. But I'm getting tired of it. It would be fun to win here."

At 4-under 209 were 1984 Toledo winner Lauri Merten, Chris Johnson and King, who was looking for her fifth tournament victory of the year.

Johnson set a tournament and course record with a 7-under 64.

 choker," he said, "but people write that and you don't want that written and that's a hurdle."

He cleared it when he pitched the ball from about 10 feet off the green, dropped it about 20 feet from the cup and watched it roll in.

Sunday's victory was the fifth on the PGA Tour for Azinger and his second in the GHO in three years. But he's known as much for the tournaments he didn't win.

He led the 1987 British Open by one stroke with two holes to play but bogeyed those holes and Nick Faldo won by a stroke.

Wimbledon

 to tie the match.

The key game in the final set was the fourth. Navratilova made three uncharacteristic volleying errors to drop her serve at love and trail 3-1.

She had one chance to break back in the next game but made another backhand error, this time sending her approach shot long.

Graf held for 4-1 and was on her way to another victory over the American in an arena where Navratilova reigned supreme for almost a decade. Before Graf beat her last year, Navratilova never had lost in a singles final on Wimbledon's grass. Despite having her drive for another title stopped, Navratilova was all smiles at the end.

"I enjoyed the hell out of it," she said. "Steffi is the fastest player on the circuit, but I think I'm right behind her. I still think I can beat her on a good day."

But Graf, who has won seven Grand Slam tournaments in two years, said she also could play a lot better. That would make Navratilova's task a lot harder.

"When I practice, I hit much harder and go for more shots than I do when I go on the court," Graf said. "If I can transfer that a little bit more, then I say I can be much better."

Becker had a day less than Edberg to prepare for the men's final after playing his rain-delayed semifinal against Ivan Lendl on Saturday. But he blasted Edberg off the court and took advantage of several uncharacteristic volleying errors by the Swede.

Becker lost to Edberg in last month's French Open semifinals but came back at his favorite tournament to win $313,500, becoming the sixth men's player to top $5 million in career earnings.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duchess of York has cut a $125,000 deal with Redbook magazine for serial rights to her first two children's books about a heroic helicopter.

"Bugdie The Helicopter" will appear in the magazine's September issue, which will be on newsstands next month, Redbook Editor in Chief Annette Capone said Friday.

The wife of Prince Andrew has penned one other "Bugdie" adventure: "Bugdie at Bendick Point." The title character's name comes from the nickname the duchess gave to the chopper in which she learned to fly.

Capone described the books as

DUCHESS DALAI LAMA about "the adventures of a feisty little helicopter named Bugdie who heroically risks his life to come to the aid of children who find themselves in a jam."

The books, illustrated by John Richardson, will be published in September. Part of the duchess' income will be donated to charity.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The Dalai Lama, who was chased from his Tibetan homeland 30 years ago by Chinese troops, said the recent massacre of students in Beijing mirrored the repression Tibet has suffered.

"Of course, it is a very sad event, a kind of self-destruction," the Dalai Lama said Friday of the army assault on Tiananmen Square last month. "We have experienced the same since last March in Tibet. It has been a tragedy."

The religious leader revered by most Tibetans as a living Buddha is on a 17-day visit to Los Angeles.

Just how far can Bo go?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bo Jackson's barrel chest and lumber-jack shoulders look as if they were chiseled in marble, and one day they probably will be.

Statues have been erected in honor of lesser men.

"Bo has the potential to be the greatest baseball player who ever lived," said Buck O'Neil, an all-star in the Negro Leagues in the 1930s and 1940s and a respected major-league scout. "Right now, he doesn't even know how to play."

As an almost daily visitor to Royals Stadium, O'Neil has had a front row seat for the fascinating, unfolding saga of the only man to: — Lead the American League in All-Star voting.

— Win the Heisman Trophy, college football's highest honor.

— Rush for 221 yards and two touchdowns in a record-smashing NFL Monday Night game.

— And do it all within four spectacular years while still ripening into what ought to be his physical prime.

By any fair measure, Jackson has established himself as one of the greatest athletes in the world. He hits home runs to spots nobody has ever reached and makes outfield plays that defy belief.

Foot speed? Two days after clubbing a Royals Stadium-record 475-foot home run, he beat out three infield singles in one game.

"I saw the young Mantle," O'Neil said. "I saw the young Mays. I saw the mature Williams and Ruth and DiMaggio, and I've never seen anybody like Bo. This is the kind of athlete who comes along not once every generation, but once every two generations."

Jackson is on track to join Oakland's Jose Canseco as the only player in history to hit 40 home runs and steal 40 bases in a year. Yet, his own manager is willing to speculate publicly that 40-40 may not be the highest plateau on the horizon for Vincent Edward Jackson.

"Why not 50 home runs and 50 stolen bases?" John Wathan asked.

"I know managers aren't supposed to say things like that about their players for fear of setting them up for a fall. But nobody puts pressure on Bo but Bo. And I honestly think that someday he could be capable of doing it."

As brilliantly as he has played at times in his third full season of professional baseball, the feeling persists that the 26-year-old Jackson is only scratching the surface.

"Bo is phenomenal," Dave Parker said after Jackson hit two home runs in a 10-1 rout of Oakland. "I don't know if he even knows the game's fundamentals yet."

At 6-foot-1 and 225 pounds, Jackson may be both the strongest and fastest man in the major leagues. He headed West on Sunday for his first All-Star appearance, with half-season numbers of 21 home runs, 23 stolen bases, 59 RBIs, 56 runs, 163 total bases, a slugging percentage of .526 and a batting average of .263. He is tied for the AL lead in home runs and ranks among the leaders in RBIs, runs, total bases, slugging percentage and extra base hits.

One characteristic he does not share with some All-Stars is a penchant for self-promotion. He is cooperative but generally disdainful of the media and does not care much for talking about himself.

"It's a great honor, something I can tell my grandkids about," he said of his All-Star election. "But as a baseball player, I'm not satisfied with the way I've been playing. But I'll know it's time to quit whenever I do get to the point that I feel satisfied."

Fingers are crossed all over Kansas City in hope that Jackson's ascent to baseball's elite will persuade their two-sport star to abandon his dangerous "hobby" of playing running back for the Los Angeles Raiders.

As his baseball career blossoms, Jackson holds fast to his rule of not talking football during baseball season. But Raiders owner Al Davis must wince every morning when he reads last night's box score. Although injury slowed him last season, Jackson's 221-yard effort against Seattle in November 1987 was a team record for the Raiders and included a club-record 91-yard jaunt.

KANSAS CITY — Bo Jackson, who will be appearing in his first All-Star game Tuesday, takes a swing during batting practice recently.

Whether the 1985 Heisman Trophy winner could be a great NFL player was never in question. But there was grave doubt in some quarters that he could ever catch up with major league baseball skills. When the Royals gambled a fourth-round draft choice on him in 1986, Jackson's entire experience in organized baseball consisted of just 89 college games at Auburn.

But now, three years after he jauntily walked into the clubhouse of the defending World Series champions and passed around autographed pictures of himself, he is the starting left-fielder for the American League All-Stars.

"He is the greatest athlete I ever played against," said Parker, himself several times an All-Star with the Pittsburgh Pirates. "He has an extremely quick bat. He's strong as a bear. He's a world-class runner. He has good instincts in the outfield with a tremendous arm.

And he's still learning."

An assortment of running and diving catches are among the feats Jackson has turned in already this year. A 402-foot shot made him the only right-handed batter to hit a home run into the upper deck in right field of the Metrodome.

But what he did in Seattle was probably the most eye-popping achievement to veteran baseball men. Standing on the warning track in left field, he threw a perfect strike to home plate — about 300 feet — to nail Harold Reynolds trying to score.

"Bo actually stood on the warning track and threw somebody out at the plate," Royals centerfielder Willie Wilson said. "That's the most impressive thing I have ever seen in baseball."

At Oakland last week, Jackson led off the ninth with an infield hit and appeared to be caught off first base by catcher Ron Hassey. But as Hassey fired the ball to first baseman Mark McGwire, Jackson exploded into high gear and shot to second base.

A bewildered McGwire made a sweeping tag at empty space.

● A parents' rebellion will seize the public schools in a major city to force reforms in a corrupt education system.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

● President Bush's biggest headache will be Panama. More evidence of Gen. Manuel Noriega's corruption and drug-dealing will lead to an international crisis over the future of the Panama Canal.

Dusty Springfield, '60s star, going strong in '80s

By The Associated Press

Another rock comeback seems to be happening.

Dusty Springfield, Britain's leading girl singer in the mid-1960s, sings "Nothing Has Been Proved" in the new film, "Scandal." Capitol released it as a single and she made a performance video. On the strength of that, she's making an album for EMI.

She was in a folk trio, the Springfielders, from 1959 to 1963, then had a string of solo hits, the biggest of which was "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me" in 1966. Most recently, she has helped an animal rescue facility in Southern California.

A year ago, the Pet Shop Boys — Neil Tennant and Chris Lowe — were looking for a woman singer for "What Have I Done To Deserve This?" a duet about the end of an adult affair. They wanted, Tennant has written, "a voice suggesting both experience and vulnerability, warmth but also a tough take-it-or-leave-it attitude." Their manager's assistant suggested Springfield.

The record became a hit in England and America.

The duo called on her again to sing "Nothing Has Been Proved" in the film about England's 1963 Profumo scandal. "I didn't approach this as a record," she says. "I don't think it was supposed to be a record. What works in a film doesn't necessarily work outside it. They told me it has been a most-added record at radio stations. I sat with my mouth open, amazed."

The Pet Shop Boys came into her life "out of nowhere," she says.

● The Arab rebellion within Israel will grow stronger this year. By 1995, it will be the most serious threat Israel has ever faced.

THE ECONOMY

● The remainder of 1989 will be a slow season for the U.S. economy, but we will avoid a real recession. Interest rates will be fairly high and inflation will stay fairly low. In early 1990, however, some major breakthroughs in dealing with the national budget deficit will at last start to bring interest rates down.

● Unemployment will stay low, and many areas of the country will have a surplus of jobs. Large numbers of retired persons will re-enter the labor market to take up the slack.

Tot found safe after two nights in forest

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A 3-year-old boy spent two nights lost in the forest with three dogs for company, then walked up to a police post and asked for a cookie.

The dogs probably saved Joseph Edwin Leffler's life, said Dr. Robert L. Norton, who examined the boy at University Hospital. The canines kept the boy alive by sleeping next to him through the 40-degree nights.

The toddler became the object of an intense weekend search by about 300 people after disappearing Friday. He came out of the woods with the three dogs trotting alongside him, shortly before noon Sunday.

The boy had told his mother he was going on a "pretend fishing trip" after lunch Friday. His parents assumed he was going to play in the backyard of the house about 25 miles southeast of Portland.

Norton, an emergency room physician, said the boy was hungry and had wet feet but his vital signs were normal. The child spent the afternoon at the hospital before being sent home, hospital spokeswoman Lee Husk said.

"I knew that if any 3-year-old could survive, Joe could do it," said his mother, Judy Leffler, as the boy gave a "thumbs up" sign from his small stretcher.

The boy came into view about three-quarters of a mile from where he was last seen, said Lt. Neil James of the Clackamas County sheriff's office. James said the boy asked for a cookie.

"I couldn't believe this little boy was just walking toward me," said Judy Magill, who had helped in the search. "He stretched out his arms, and I picked him up."

Girls. I don't think there are any coincidences in life. I was really intrigued with the Pet Shop Boys' sound. A couple of years later I got to experience it."

Now she'll put two beloved cats in quarantine for six months and move back to England and cut an album. The recording will be produced by several contemporary writers and producers, including Phil Collins. He had put one of her songs, "Just Don't Know What To Do with Myself," in the movie "Buster."

HEALTH AND SCIENCE

● Tomatoes will be a wonder food of the 1990s. Millions of smart eaters will improve their health with this common food.

● Low-alcohol beer will bubble up in popularity. Safer drinking will be a hallmark of the 1990s.

● New evidence of the healing power of garlic will boost consumption of that powerful bulb and make American cuisine much more forceful.

● Electric cars will be a reality by 1998.
