Man sentenced

BIG SPRING — A local man was sentenced to 30 years in the Texas Department of Corrections Tuesday after pleading guilty to injury of a child and had his probation revoked on a burglary charge.

MENDEZ

Victor Mendez Jr., 20, was originally arrested by city police in connection with the July 10 abduction and assault of a four-year-old girl. He was charged with aggravated kidnapping and burglary with intent to commit sexual assault. Mendez Tuesday received 30 years for the injury charge and 20 years for revocation of probation on burglary of a building. He will serve the sentences, concurrently, or both at the same time. "He pled to the strongest case we had," said William Dupree, assistant district attorney for Howard County. Both offenses — aggravated kidnapping for which he was not found guilty and the injury to a child offense he pleaded guilty to — are first degree felonies, Dupree said.

Budget review

BIG SPRING — A review of departmental budgets for the 1989-90 fiscal year began today during a special session of Howard County Commissioners Court.

"There's no large dollar amounts as far as requests go," County Auditor Jackie Olson said today of departmental requests for the upcoming fiscal year. County fiscal years run from October 1 through September 30.

Olson said it's still early to tell what the departments are going to request or what the public can expect the overall budget to be. Most departments will seek larger budgets this year over last year, she said.

To prepare for the budget workshop today, department heads were given a list of their previous budget and how much they've spent this year, Olson said. The county judge and Olson have also spent time with individual department heads to consider budget items.

Convicts escape

BIG SPRING — Two inmates walked away from the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp Monday evening, according to federal officials.

Associate Warden Anne Beasley said Luis Rosario-Arias and Medesto Perales were discovered missing during the 10 p.m. count. Both had been present during the 5 p.m. count, she said.

The escape, the first in a year, was a simple walk away from the minimum security facility, she said, and no weapons were involved. Officials, however, are sketchy on the details, she said.

"We really don't know," how the pair escaped, Beasley said. "It was something they were planning. We have no way of knowing if they had someone waiting outside the parameter or not."

U.S. marshals are investigating the escape, she said, but currently have no leads.

Rosario-Arias, 47, of El Paso, was serving a 51-month sentence for distribution of marijuana and aiding and abetting. He is Hispanic, 5-foot-9, 170 pounds, and has black hair and brown eyes. His tentative release date was Sept. 2, 1991.

Perales, 40, of Anaheim, Calif., was serving a 51-month sentence for distribution of cocaine. His mandatory release date was Feb. 19, 1992. He is Hispanic, 5-foot-7, 160 pounds, and had brown hair and brown eyes.

Anyone with information on the two is asked to contact federal marshals by calling 1-800-336-0101 or the warden of the camp by calling (915) 263-8304.

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

AUSTIN — Several key lawmakers and Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot decried a state judge's decision that the education commissioner was wrong to find a high school football player failed a class.

But two area educators don't believe the decision will have a major effect as far as their districts are concerned.

The ruling "just brings further deterioration to the public school system," said Perot, a major force in 1984 education reforms.

"It's unfortunate when we rank in the bottom portion of the industrialized world that we are still putting the focus and emphasis on play instead of pass," he said Tuesday.

Too area educators, however, disagree with Perot's forecast.

"I think it'll have no effect on anybody else," James McLeroy, superintendent of Borden County schools, said today. "This was an individual case... and I don't think it'll affect no-pass, no-play."

"Our (no-pass, no-play) policy is still in effect. That judge ruled on a particular case, and I don't think it'll affect us locally. We're going to abide by the no-pass, no-play policy until that time that the legislature tells us differently." — Murray Murphy, assistant BSISD superintendent.

Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for the Big Spring school district, agreed with McLeroy that the decision shouldn't have a major effect on the local district.

"Our (no-pass, no-play) policy is still in effect," Murphy said. "That judge ruled on a particular case, and I don't think it'll effect us locally. We're going to abide by the nopass, no-play policy until that time that the legislature tells us differently.

"We believe that it's a good law," Murphy added. "We have no intention of backing off no-pass, no-play at this time."

McLeroy said that the lawmakers' condemnation of the ruling might be a case of over-reaction on their parts.

Alligator 1; Alise 0

BIG SPRING — In an effort to beat the 100-plus degree heat Tuesday afternoon, nine-year-old Alise Goillandau attempts to float on an inflatable alligator at the Comanche Trail Park swimming pool. Despite setting herself carefully on top of the raft and making it to the middle of the pool, the creature flipped over, taking Alise with it.

LULAC, C-City near compromise

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Attempts by LULAC supporters to change the current method of at-large voting with single member districts in city and school board elections may be near a compromise, LULAC supporters said Tuesday.

"We think the city will work with us. If they don't the only thing to do will be (to file a) lawsuit," said Oscar Ortiz, president of the Colorado City LULAC chapter.

The Colorado City Council has yet to approve the switch to single-member districts, but LULAC supporters met with a single-member district committee for the city Tuesday evening, Ortiz said.

League of United Latin American Citizens supporters have argued that the current method of at-large voting discriminates against minorities and have sought to have the voting system replaced with a seven district system for the city and school board. They filed a suit against the school board earlier this year and threatened

Temperature hits 111°

By MARC SCHWARZ
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Tuesday's daytime temperature soared to 111 degrees, according to field measurements by the local U.S. Department of Agriculture research station.

The triple-digit reading broke the previous record, 105 degrees, set in 1936.

Some local businesses recorded even higher temperatures than the official mark, notably Big Spring Cable TV. The company, located toward the southern end of Birdwell Lane, reported a 116 degree reading.

"We use a type of thermometer — it's more elaborate than a regular thermometer, but it has a probe to measure the temperature," manager Larson Lloyd said.

Lloyd said other nearby businesses recorded similarly high temperatures.

"The gas station up the street had 115 degrees, and Howard College had 118," he said.

A spokesman for the college denied the reading, however.

"It seems whenever it gets to 109, the (readout) board goes crazy," the spokesman said. "It's been like that for the past four or five months. It is not an official temperature."

Lloyd attributed the difference in his reading and that of the USDA to location.

"The pavement around here can raise the temperature by around five degrees," he said. "Besides, it can rain two inches here, but it won't rain a drop across town. Temperatures can fluctuate in the same way."

The USDA predicts the weather to remain hot, though cooling off a few degrees for highs in the lower 90s.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Thomas Warren plays with his dog as he sits chained to a 280 lb. sofa in his home Tuesday. Warren, who has tried to quit smoking several times, vows to remain chained for three weeks in order to quit the habit.

Chained smoker wants to kick habit

By JERRY NACHTIGAL

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Thomas Warren tried several methods, including acupuncture and Smokers Anonymous, to break a 20-year nicotine addiction.

Nothing worked.

Now, the 42-year-old Springfield man has had himself chained to a 280-pound sofa in his living room and rid his home of tobacco. He intends to remain on the leash for three weeks in a drastic attempt to kick the habit for good.

"I had my friends come over here and take a crescent wrench and tie me up so there was no way of getting off," Warren said Tuesday, his eighth day of being connected to the thin, 30-foot steel cable. "I admitted that I was powerless over cigarettes and that they had made my life unmanageable."

"I had to take control of the situation."

Warren describes himself as an artist, dog trainer and drug counselor who beat a cocaine addiction 11 years ago. A pack-a-day cigarette habit sticks with him, however.

"It's a crazy habit that's ruining my life," he said. "It's self-destructive, it's unhealthy. I used to run marathons, but I've got respiratory problems now

Groups present petitions

AUSTIN (AP) — Protesters on both sides of the abortion issue used petitions to duel at the Capitol over whether another special session should be held to consider abortion legislation.

The president of Texans United for Life on Tuesday released a letter to Gov. Bill Clements with the names of 19 lawmakers who support presenting abortion legislation to a special session at the earliest opportunity.

The Texas Abortion Rights Action League displayed a petition, purportedly with the names of 50,000 people, pledging to keep government from interfering in private, personal decisions.

The 30-day session Clements called on workers' compensation ends at midnight.

Consul dies in fall

AUSTIN (AP) — The Mexican consul to Austin was killed after stepping over a retaining wall and falling 20 feet, authorities said.

German Castaneda, 60, was found about 9 a.m. Tuesday near the home of an Austin restaurant owner, said Curtis Weeks, spokesman for the Travis County Sheriff's Office.

His death, due to injuries he received in the fall late Monday, was ruled accidental, said Norm Carmack, a spokesman for the Travis County Medical Examiner's office.

Weeks said Castaneda parked his car and walked up to the home of Javier Corona, who lives outside Westlake Hills, a small community near Austin.

Before the house is a concrete and rock retaining wall and a lighted footbridge that crosses over a 20-foot drop, Weeks said.

Artists to try again

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Artists say they will make a third try to cast a head that looks more like slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King for the statue that stands in a San Antonio plaza.

The decision to try again was made Tuesday after a wax model of the replacement head met with a cool reception when it was unveiled during a news conference.

"I wouldn't buy that," said George Clark Sr., a consultant on the project. "I understand they will make more improvements before they accept it."

Session ends today; business unfinished

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers today face a midnight deadline to pass a workers' compensation bill before the 30-day special legislative session expires.

A House-Senate conference committee, at odds over how to overhaul the insurance system that compensates workers for on-the-job injuries, planned to meet early today in a last-ditch effort to salvage a compromise.

The issue has pitted powerful special interests against each other since January when the Legislature met in a 140-day regular session. Six months later, the debate continues.

On Tuesday, in an apparently unprecedented move, some state senators tried to recall their own colleagues from a joint committee negotiating workers' compensation reform.

The move was an attempt by conservative senators to bring the House version of the workers' comp package to the Senate floor.

But the bid failed, 10-21, after a bitter debate, and the conference panel continued its work off and on until around 10 p.m. when the members vowed to try one more time today.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said the conferees should continue discussions, if necessary, until the midnight deadline, and then if the House and Senate are near an agreement, he said he would ask Gov. Bill Clements to immediately call another special session.

Clements said if the House and Senate get close to an agreement, he might call another quick overtime session to wrap up business. "If they get that close, I wouldn't be adverse to that," Clements said.

Sen. Kent Caperton, co-chairman of the conference panel, said if a settlement isn't reached by noon, the Legislature will not pass a bill before the session ends.

Complaining of high workers' comp insurance rates, reform of the system has been a top priority of business. Meanwhile, employees say their injury benefits are too low and job-safety laws are lax.

The House, backed by business, wants to reduce the amount of litigation in the process of resolving workers' comp disputes between the insurance carrier and the employee.

But the Senate, supported by trial lawyers and labor, wants beefed-up job safety provisions. And they say the House proposals on litigation would make it difficult for an injured worker to receive fair judicial review.

In the Senate on Tuesday, all eight Republicans, joined by two Democrats, sought to essentially disband the conference committee.

AUSTIN — State Sen. Carl Parker expresses displeasure with a move by conservative lawmakers to remove Senate conferees from negotiations on workers' compensation. The effort eventually failed by a 21-10 vote, allowing the committee to resume work.

Kilroy: U.S. drug policy not working

HOUSTON — Federal drug czar William Bennett meets with the press and members of the Houston Police Department Tuesday in an effort to better understand Houston's drug problem. Bennett also met with community leaders and attended several anti drug functions.

HOUSTON (AP) — The father of a Texas student killed during a ritual slaying in April told federal drug czar William Bennett that current drug policy standards are not working.

Jim Kilroy told Bennett that if drugs were not so prevalent, his son Mark would not have been kidnapped and killed during a spring break outing in Matamoros, Mexico.

"If those people hadn't been high on marijuana, Mark would still be with us today," Kilroy said after he and his wife Helen met with Bennett Tuesday evening.

The Kilroys are heading a nationwide petition drive to demand a change in the current national drug policy. So far the couple has acquired about 20,000 signatures.

"I told him that what they're doing right now doesn't work," Kilroy said.

Bennett, who is in charge of writing President Bush's national drug policy, told the Kilroys he is still putting the drug policy plan together. He would not elaborate how the military would be used to combat drugs or how much money would be allotted towards Houston's drug woes.

Bennett visited Houston at the urging of Mayor Kathy Whitmire. Mrs. Whitmire has been lobbying Bennett for more money to fight Houston's street drug problem, particularly crack cocaine.

The director of the office of National Drug Control Policy addressed about 1,000 religious leaders attending a Strategic Drug Initiative convocation at the George R. Brown Convention Center Tuesday afternoon before visiting with several community leaders of the Acres Home subdivision.

Thelma LaStrap told Bennett about her senior citizen neighbors being afraid to sit on their front porch and scared to walk to the grocery store.

"They get killed or mugged on the way to the store or to cash their (Social Security) check at the first of the month," Ms. LaStrap said.

Now, however, she said because of her civic group's efforts, her neighborhood is returning to normal.

The neighborhood, she said, declared war on drugs and developed various workshops involving schools, churches and community organizations.

The drug dealings in the Acres Home area was so congested that on any given day people were selling drugs on street corners and in the parks, Ms. LaStrap said.

"Houston has a very serious drug problem," Bennett said after the meeting. "But Houston is doing pretty well" in trying to combat the problem.

The purpose of his trip to Houston, he said, was to find out how serious the problem is and what is being done to curtail it.

"I want to get reaction to find out what's effective," he said. "You want to make sure that what you're doing isn't going to hurt the programs that are working."

"If you can make progress in this community, then you can make progress in any community," Bennett said. "It's a small front, but it's a very important front."

Bennett also addressed about 1,000 people gathered for a community rally at the convention center.

He ended his busy day by being honored at a dinner by the Houston Area Urban League for his work while he was Education Secretary.

Tornado damages buildings

THROCKMORTON (AP) — A geologist said he was blown out of his trailer when a tornado moved through this north Central Texas town damaging homes and businesses on the same day the area logged 100-plus temperatures.

Steve Rezaie, 40, of Plano, suffered possible fractures to his leg and ribs when 90 mph winds hit his mud logging trailer stationed at an oil rig site.

"I was in the trailer working and then it started rolling," Rezaie, a geologist, told the Wichita Falls Times Record News from his Throckmorton County Hospital room. "It rolled over four times and I didn't know what was going on. I was scared to death. It threw me out of the trailer and that's the last thing I remember."

The tornado, packing up to 90 mph winds, struck the northeast part of town at 6 p.m., officials said. Although the National Weather Service only reported high winds and thunderstorms, a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper and two other authorities reported seeing the tornado, said John Jones, Lubbock DPS dispatcher.

"In lots of places it appears it was a straight wind," said Ed McCluskey, county civil defense coordinator. "In other places wreckage piles have been twisted off 6 and 8 feet in the air."

"If it wasn't a tornado, that's the closest I want to come," he said.

The area was under a severe thunderstorm warning, but no tornado warnings were issued at the time. Throckmorton, about 150 miles northwest of Dallas, recorded temperatures near 107 degrees before the storm blew in.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents Tuesday:

- A person reported criminal mischief that caused damages to wooden doors and a fence totaling $250.
- A person reported the burglary of a vehicle in which gasoline was stolen.
- A person reported a burglary with intent to commit felony kidnapping. According to police reports, a person known to the complainant tried to take a 19-month-old child from the custody of his parent. No arrests were made and no charges were filed.
- The department reported the following incidents Monday:
 - A 1988 Firebird driven by Leslie D. Alexander, 19, 2400 Gregg, was involved in a one-car accident early Monday morning. The Firebird was westbound on Third Street when it ran off the road and struck a utility pole on the north side.
 - Alexander was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center with injuries.
 - A car driven by Dennis Alan Dunagan, 38, 804 Edwards Blvd., was westbound on East 15th Street Sunday, when it struck a bicyclist at the 1400 block. Donathen Rudell Hill, 12, came out of an alley on his bicycle and the driver could not stop in time. Hill was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center with nonincapacitating injuries.

DVA eases ruling for claiming benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Veterans Affairs today proposed changes in regulations that will make it easier for Vietnam veterans to make benefit claims based on exposure to the herbicide Agent Orange.

The regulations, subject to public comment and final approval, are expected to take effect Oct. 1. The new regulations were drafted after U.S. District Judge Thelton E. Henderson of San Francisco ruled that the VA too strictly interpreted the 1984 Veterans' Dioxin and Radiation Compensation Standards Act.

Nearly 35,000 veterans have filed claims for disabilities they believe have been caused by the dioxin-containing herbicide, which was used to remove enemy cover. Of those claims, only five have been allowed as due to Agent Orange exposure.

Veterans blame Agent Orange for a variety of ailments in themselves, including cancer, and for miscarriages in their spouses and birth defects in their children.

Government scientists say there is no conclusive connection, largely because they have been unable to find groups that lend themselves to an accurate study. Outside scientists contend there is ample research material.

The regulations proposed today govern the criteria used by the department's Advisory Committee on Environmental Hazards to review available studies. Those in turn will have an effect on claims determinations.

The department said the proposed new regulations specify that the secretary of veterans affairs can decide in favor of claimants "when there is reasonable doubt as to whether a significant statistical association exists between exposure and a particular disease."

Henderson's opinion, according to the department, said Congress had intended for there to be a finding of a statistical association rather than a strict cause-and-effect relationship between dioxin exposure and disease.

The herbicide, made by seven chemical companies, was contaminated with dioxin during manufacture, the department says. Dioxin is one of the most poisonous substances known, the Environmental Protection Agency has said.

A class-action lawsuit against manufacturers has been settled, and veterans are receiving payments as a result, but the settlement included no assignment of responsibility.

similar action against the city. Ortiz said the committee told LULAC supporters it would cost $7,000 to implement the change in voting methods. "We got the feeling they were trying to discourage us," he said.

But committee members argued "a lawsuit was not necessary" to cause the city to implement a change in its voting system, he said. Ortiz said he feels confident the committee will ask the city council to approve single-member districts.

"It looks pretty good," he said.

City Manager Brenda Hammon was unavailable for comment today on the state of negotiations between the city and LULAC.

LULAC attorney Rolando Rios and school district appointed attorney Mike Morrison also confirmed that negotiations between LULAC and the school are progressing.

"Yes, things are progressing very satisfactorily," Morrison said today.

"I feel like both groups can make a satisfactory settlement," he said. A settlement would likely result in the creation of a single member district system, he said.

If the settlement is reached, the next step would be to submit the proposal to the U.S. Justice Department in Washington D.C. for their approval and then before the U.S. district judge who suspended the elections, he said.

Morrison admitted the difficulty involved in defending the case on legal grounds. "Generally that's the case. Suits like this are hard to defend."

Asked why the school didn't voluntarily switch to single member districts, Morrison replied, "Quite frankly, the school was in the process." The appointment of a Hispanic trustee to the board is evidence of the school's good faith.

LULAC supporters have charged the appointment was made to appease them.

Morrison said he believes LULAC supporters filed the lawsuit because they felt the school board wasn't moving fast enough. "I guess the plaintiff felt the school was not moving as quickly as it should. They (the school board) were in the process."

The current method of voting was not set up with any sort of racial intent, he said. "They really weren't set up that way."

Rios called the current system the "good ol' boy method" and said the school system has stayed with the current voting method "because that's the way they've been doing things for years."

Morrison said he does not know how much the settlement will cost the school district, but said it would be in excess of $7,000.

grades of classroom teachers without any analysis of the work performed by the student," he said. "I am extremely concerned that this decision will cause widespread controversy and confusion during the coming school year."

McLeroy and Murphy both said they don't believe that will be the case.

"I don't think a principal has a right to change a teacher's grade," McLeroy said, "but he should have some sort of authority, in certain circumstances, to intervene on behalf of the student."

"We feel, that once the grade has been given and recorded, then there's no backing off," Murphy said. "That's the policy of the Big Spring school district."

"I think the student should be informed about what grade he'll be receiving, but any action to change that grade should be taken before it's sent to the counselor's office and recorded — which is what happened at Carter," Murphy added.

Kirby had overturned Carter principal C.C. Russeau's finding that running back Gary Edwards had not failed a class. That decision would have made Carter's football team ineligible for the championship, because a student who fails a six-week period may not participate in extracurricular activities.

Davis said local schools are "vested with substantial discretion" in setting grades, and that discretion was not abused in the Carter case.

Kirby disagreed, saying discretion was abused.

"This order, if allowed to stand, says that any principal can change the grade on a star athlete's paper without ever seeing the paper, over the objections of the student's teacher," he said.

In his ruling, the judge defined abuse of discretion as affixing the grade "by fraud, by improper motive, or by considering the facts other than the appropriateness of the grades."

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said the ruling means "we have one district judge that thinks football is more important than academics."

Murphy said that it was unfortunate that the case was decided "in a football setting, because it affects all areas, not just football. It affects all of the students, not just the football players."

Sen. Bill Haley, who authored the landmark education reforms in 1984 while a House member, was dismayed by the court decision.

"What message does this send to the students and the kids? It sends the totally opposite message we're trying to send with all we're trying to do with respect to education," said Haley, D-Center.

Legislation that would have given the education commissioner complete authority in determining such eligibility disputes died during the regular legislative session.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said such a bill was not pursued because lawmakers did not want it to be interpreted as "a slap" at Carter or other schools with minority students. But he said he thinks there would be enough votes in the Legislature to pass the bill.

Davis' ruling "certainly doesn't help" the no-pass, no-play rule, Lewis said. He said the Legislature intended to give the education commissioner broad authority when it reformed the public education system.

But Rep. Fred Blair, whose district includes Carter, said he did not think the ruling affected the no-pass, no-play requirement.

"I all along believed that the commissioner of education had overreacted, first of all, and secondly, that his action was not proper," said Blair, D-Dallas.

"The question was never no-pass, no-play, but the question was whether or not the grading system that had been in place was given an opportunity to work," he said.

Carter's grading system — which gives weight to class participation, homework and test scores — was "an attempt to improve education, not destroy education," Blair said.

Weather

Severe thunderstorms and a tornado blasted north-central Texas, flipping a trailer over four times and blowing a barn into a road. Heavy rain early today drenched parts of five Southern states.

Rains also poured on Chicago, with nearly 4 inches falling in a suburb.

In Throckmorton, Texas, geologist Steve Rezaie suffered possible broken legs and ribs after he was blown out of his trailer when a tornado moved through the area about 6 p.m. Tuesday. He was being treated at a hospital in Throckmorton, about 150 miles northwest of Dallas.

"I was in the trailer working and then it started rolling," said Rezaie. "It rolled over four times and I didn't know what was going on. I was scared to death. It threw me out of the trailer and that's the last thing I remember."

A Haskell County Sheriff's Department dispatcher said the storm also moved through the southern part of that county, blowing a barn into a road.

A squall also hit Monahans, about 220 miles west of Throckmorton, about 10 p.m., a local radio station reported.

The most widespread area of thunderstorms this morning was in Arkansas and northeast Texas, and into parts of northern Louisiana, Mississippi and western Tennessee.

Predicted highs: 80s or 90s across much of the nation; 70s from the Great Lakes and middle Mississippi Valley into northern New England, and along the Pacific Coast; 100 to 110 degrees in parts of south-central and southwest Texas.

Smoker

and can't run anymore. I can't do a lot of the exercises that I'm used to doing."

Warren, who lives alone, roams about his small, secluded home with the thin cable fastened at his neck by a bolt, like a dog collar. His golden retriever, Rachel, can roam the yard, but Warren's leash limits him from stepping much past the front porch.

Warren, a Vietnam veteran, began smoking when he was in the Army. He said it's especially important to quit smoking because of his involvement with drug education.

"I'm going on the drug-lecturing circuit in September. I don't smoke cigarettes and sit there and tell people how to get off drugs," he said.

He said he sought help to quit smoking from the Veterans Administration, but was told VA hospitals didn't offer such a program. Acupuncture, Smokers Anonymous, meditation, cutting back to a quarter-pack and trying to quit cold turkey also failed.

"I felt the only way I could whip this once and for all and take control of my life was to chain myself up," he said.

Warren decided to chain himself for three weeks to guarantee a modification of behavior, even though his body probably was free of nicotine after three days.

He said the urge to smoke in the first few days of confinement was intense, adding, "If you offered me a cigarette right now, I'd say no way."

He had to chase away friends who smoked when they stopped by because the temptation to ask them for a cigarette was too great.

One man who saw a news report about Warren offered to sell him herbal cigarettes, which he claimed contained no nicotine.

"I didn't want anything to do with those," Warren said with a laugh.

Seattlites want more than just an ordinary cup of coffee

Janet Wilson samples her latte from an espresso bar on a downtown Seattle street tended by Michael Callahan, rear. Espresso, a thick, rich brew, is made in a special machine where 200-degree water is pressured through dark-roasted coffee beans that have been ground to a dust-like consistency.

SEATTLE (AP) — Some say Seattlites drink more espresso than water. In a city as wet as Seattle, that's saying a lot. For 10 years or so, the thick, rich brew has been found in department stores, theater lobbies, ice cream shops, even at newsstands.

Seattle has espresso bars lining downtown streets. Street vendors hawk an aromatic cup the way hot dogs and pretzels are sold in Manhattan.

When it comes to coffee, Seattle is in a class by itself.

"People there don't realize how well off they are until they travel," said Jerry Baldwin, owner of Peet's Coffee in Berkeley, Calif., and co-founder of Starbucks Coffee in Seattle.

"Seattle is spoken of in reverent terms in the specialty coffee industry now," said Baldwin.

Dan Sampson, owner of a Danken's Ice Cream parlor near the University of Washington, has watched as espresso shops "just keep opening up. It's unbelievable."

Sampson joined the craze. His store serves nearly a dozen kinds of espresso drinks and specialty coffees.

"We put the machine in here because there's not any place in town that people don't come in and ask for espresso," Sampson said. "I would have been scared to open a place in Seattle without an espresso machine."

At the Varsity Theater, the menu includes Milk Duds, popcorn and espresso.

"You should see it in the winter-time. It's a madhouse in here, all the espresso we make," Carol Teixeira said from the ticket booth.

Visitors sometimes don't know what to make of the drink, said James Egan, who serves espresso from a cart on the Space Needle's observation deck.

"The people from Montana and Wyoming want to know what it's about, and I try to explain it to them, but then they usually don't want to have anything to do with it. They say, 'Give me a cup of coffee.'"

Originally a Middle Eastern drink, espresso was transported to Italy, and from there all over the world. Today's version is brewed in a special machine, where 200-degree water is pressured through dark-roasted coffee beans that have been ground to a dust-like consistency.

The result is a concentrated, syrupy brew that can cost from 70 cents to $2 or more for an exotic drink.

"It's the best coffee in the world," said Kristen Barry, sipping a tall espresso drink at Espresso Roma Cafe. "I only hope the rest of the United States catches on to espresso, because you can't get it outside Seattle."

Barry said her favorite drink is an espresso variant called iced chocolate almond latte. Seattle shops feature several varieties on the latte theme, which in its most basic form is a shot of espresso in a glass of steamed milk. The more familiar cappuccino is espresso in foamed milk.

From there the combinations are limited only by the server's supplies and the drinker's imagination. Add nutmeg, mocha, lemon, cinnamon, raspberry, almond and on and on.

To purists, such flavoring is fluff. "The good places are the ones that will automatically put two shots in. Ask for a double and you get three," said Angie Autio, who drinks espresso along Seattle's Capitol Hill.

Shoppers often browse with a cup in their hands. And espresso carts are rarely more than a block away from any downtown office.

Theories abound on why Seattle has become so coffee-conscious. Baldwin said people in Seattle were receptive to new coffee tastes.

"They're not smug. Nobody ever thought Seattle was the be-all and end-all of everything," he said. "People in San Francisco and New York have a tendency to think that they already have everything."

Autio has her own theory. "This place is very laid-back. There's not a lot to wake you up," she said.

Greenpeace launches new Rainbow Warrior

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Greenpeace launched a new Rainbow Warrior on last week, four years after the international environmental group's flagship of the same name was sunk by French intelligence agents in New Zealand.

Greenpeace said the new ship, a 32-year-old Scottish trawler, would continue the mission of its predecessor and sail to the Pacific to protest French nuclear tests in the region.

The sinking of the Rainbow Warrior at Auckland caused a scandal in France and forced the resignation of Defense Minister Charles Hernu.

Monday's ceremony in Hamburg harbor began with a minute of silence for Fernando Pereira, a Greenpeace photographer who died in the Auckland attack.

The Rainbow Warrior, which leaves Wednesday, will stop in Copenhagen, Stockholm, Leningrad, Amsterdam, London, Dublin and New York before sailing on to the Pacific.

The 540-ton vessel has three masts for modern sails and two diesel engines, and cost $3.5 million to renovate. The renovation was paid for by the French government and from donations, Greenpeace said.

Bush's family tree shows Pilgrim links

LEIDEN, Netherlands (AP) — President Bush traces his ancestry to religious dissenters who fled here for the New World, according to a city archivist who says the president also is a distant relative of Vice President Dan Quayle.

The archivist, Theo Schelhaas, presented Bush with a copy of his family tree Monday, showing his links to an English couple who married in Leiden in 1603. The president was in the Netherlands for a 24-hour stop, the last in his 10-day journey.

Bush "appreciated very much that his lineage had been fleshed out," said Pieter de Baar, a research assistant for Schelhaas.

A small community of English Protestant dissenters lived in Leiden for more than a decade before setting sail for America in the early 17th century.

Bush is a direct, 12th generation descendant of Francis Cooke and his Canterbury-born wife, Hester Mahieu, according to Schelhaas' records.

Little is known about the Cookes except their marriage date, June 4, 1603, and that they had three children, including their daughter Jane Cooke, a Bush ancestor born here in 1615.

According to the Leiden records,

Bush's roots can also be traced to another Pilgrim family, the sisters Abigail and Sarah Jenney, both born in Leiden and daughters of a brewer's apprentice, John Jenney, and his wife Sarah Carey.

Bush's father was related to Abigail Jenney as well as to the Cookes, and his mother is a descendant of Sarah.

Bush, in his remarks at St. Peter's Church in Leiden, joked: "I'm glad to be back with my cousins because we fondly remember Aunt Abigail back there those many years ago."

De Baar said the records show the president also is a distant relative of Vice President Dan Quayle, with some branches of their ancestry going back to a 14th century family living on the Isle of Man, and of archivist Schelhaas himself.

"You might say they're cousins in the 35th degree," De Baar said, referring to Bush and Quayle.

Leiden's mayor, G.H. Goekoop, also mentioned Bush's roots, and pointed out that two other American presidents, William Howard Taft and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, had ancestors in Leiden.

Black rhino

MILWAUKEE — Rutase, a female Black Rhinoceros weighing nearly 2,646 pounds, checks out her new home at the Milwaukee County Zoo Tuesday morning after traveling from Zimbabwe. She, along with Makuti, a male Black Rhino, will be new exhibits at the zoo. Rutase broke off her front horn during treatment for insects in Dallas, prior to arriving in Milwaukee. The horn is expected to grow back.

Testimony divided on flag amendment issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Flag burner Gregory Johnson "will have succeeded beyond the wildest dreams of his fetid imagination" if the nation adopts a flag-burning amendment shrinking basic rights, a constitutional scholar testified today.

"He will have succeeded in making the greatest nation on earth, if we give him this amendment, look just a little silly, a little less brave and a little less free," said Walter E. Dellinger III of Duke University law school.

He testified at the beginning of two days of hearings by the House Judiciary Committee's constitutional law subcommittee on the Bush administration's proposed constitutional amendment to ban flag burning.

Dellinger said the nation should beware of any stampede toward an amendment curtailing the rights of dissidents. He said many Americans have tolerated freedom of speech when it was painful to do so and changing the system now would be unfair to them.

Johnson "will have succeeded beyond the wildest dreams of his fetid imagination," Dellinger said.

Johnson was arrested in Dallas during the 1984 Republican National Convention following a protest that ended with demonstrators igniting an American flag. Authorities said it was taken from a pole outside a bank building.

He denied he actually ignited the flag, but said he approved the action and gave speeches during the protest. He claimed he was singled out for prosecution because Dallas police knew he was a member of the Revolutionary Communist Youth Brigade.

The Supreme Court threw out his conviction in ruling that flag burning is a form of free speech protected by the Constitution.

In a statement at the outset of the hearing, Rep. James F. Sensenbrenner Jr., R-Wis., urged lawmakers to "be serious and frame the issues as they are in reality — whether we really want to carve an exception out to the First Amendment and hold our honored and revered flag above all else or whether we want to let the flag burners have their way."

A man who might have made the ruling come out differently, if the Senate had not rejected his nomination to the Supreme Court, is scheduled to testify on Wednesday.

Robert Bork has said he would have upheld the Texas statute if he were on the court. The man who took the seat Bork would have had — Anthony Kennedy — provided the fifth vote in the 5-4 majority that overturned the flag ruling.

Bork, who is now with a Washington think tank, contends Congress must now go ahead with a constitutional amendment if it wants to overcome the court's decision.

There's near total agreement in Congress that something must be done about the ruling. However, there are some, mostly Democrats, who are hesitant to amend the Constitution and especially in a way that restricts individual rights guaranteed by the First Amendment.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., plans to bring a simple statute before the chamber before the August recess. Supporters of that approach hope the issue which seemed so urgent at the time of the court decision as the Fourth of July holiday approached will fade.

However, President Bush, as behind a constitutional amendment that has already been introduced in the House by Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., and that Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas planned to introduce in the Senate.

Many Democrats, remembering last year's presidential campaign in which Bush visited a flag factory, fear that voting against the constitutional amendment will let Republicans portray them in the next election as somehow less patriotic.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, last week promised that both the statute and the constitutional amendment would see Senate action. He and Dole have agreed to hold those votes in October.

Divorcing couple battle for custody of embryos

MARYVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Attorneys for a divorcing couple who are battling over control of seven frozen embryos have established key differences over the donors' rights in an in-vitro fertilization program.

In a brief filed Monday, J. G. Christenberry, an attorney for Mary Sue Davis, who is seeking the right to have the embryos implanted in her, said that males have never had any control over the reproductive process once they have fertilized an egg.

"The fact this case represents an artificial method of fertilization and conception and that the gametes are in artificial storage only allows the opportunity to artificially change a law of nature which has been determined since the beginning of history," he wrote.

But Charles Clifford, attorney for Junior Lewis Davis, said in a brief filed in Circuit Court Friday that that to give Mary Davis the sole right to decide what to do with the embryos would leave Junior Davis "only to ponder when and if he will be a father and what his legal, emotional and psychological relationship will be with any children (Mary Davis) may elect in her sole discretion to bear."

The trial is scheduled for Aug. 7. Junior Davis, 30, sued his 28-year-old wife for divorce in February. In that suit he asked the court to ensure that his wife could not have any of the seven frozen embryos that he had fertilized implanted without his permission.

Mary Davis has since countersued, and claims she can have the embryos implanted if she so decides, regardless of her husband's wishes or their marital status.

Clifford, in his brief on behalf of Junior Davis, said the embryos, which are in storage at the Knoxville hospital where the Davis couple participated in an in-vitro fertilization program, are not "persons" under the law and thus can be treated as property.

He also argued that both Junior Davis and Mary Davis "have a fundamental right to control" the reproduction process, and the decision should not be made by one party alone.

Christenberry said that Junior Davis consented to his wife's pregnancy when he entered the in-vitro fertilization program with her.

And he said Mary Davis' contribution to the in vitro program was greater than her husband's because "the process involved in removing egg cells from her body is much more disconcerting than the sperm donation process."

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Herald opinion

Separation of church and state

Little wonder the U.S. Supreme Court justices sharply divided 5 to 4 in declaring a Christmas nativity scene unconstitutional. On an emotional level, many Americans would agree with Justice Anthony M. Kennedy, who wrote the opinion for the four dissenting members of the court. He declared the majority opinion showed "an unjustified hostility toward religion, a hostility inconsistent with our history and our precedents."

Indeed, many Americans might wonder why the highest court in the nation should concern itself at all with a seemingly harmless religious display, let alone ban it. The answer, in this case, was the court's collective judgment that a weighty fundamental principle ought to be examined and ruled upon: The constitutionally required separation of church and state. On a strictly legal level, which governs in such matters, the Supreme Court would appear to have acted correctly in drawing a fine line between what is and what is not constitutionally permissible in holiday displays.

In the first of a pair of cases from Pittsburgh, Pa., the court ruled 5 to 4 that the traditional nativity scene displayed on the steps of the Allegheny County Courthouse was unconstitutional because it clearly endorsed Christian principles. It stood alone as a foremost religious symbol on that government site.

In a second case, the court found no reason to object to a display that consisted of an 18-foot Jewish menorah, the nine-branched candelabrum used during the Hanukkah festival, alongside a secular Christmas tree and a non-sectarian message from the mayor of Pittsburgh saluting liberty and freedom. The city of Pittsburgh erects the tree and provides storage for the privately owned menorah.

The menorah was judged to be permissible because it was part of a larger, more culturally diverse display.

What this boils down to is that governmental use of religious symbolism is unconstitutional if it has the effect of endorsing a given religious belief. That is how it should be. Meanwhile, other religious groups should be invited to participate in the displays on the principle that a plurality of views enhances rather than erodes the American guarantee of religious freedom.

Punishment too late to help

By KAREN MCCARTHY Staff Writer

Florida and California have recently passed controversial laws that would punish parents for the actions of their children.

Under Florida's child gun act, it is a third degree felony, punishable by 5 years in jail and a $5,000 fine, to keep a loaded gun where a child could reasonably have access to it. The law takes effect Oct. 1.

California, in an effort to control youth gangs, enacted a "gang mother" law that holds parents, who do not control their children, responsible for contributing to their delinquency. The offense is a misdemeanor, punishable by one year in jail and a $2,500 fine.

On the surface, both of these seem like reasonable laws that will force parents to be more responsible with their children. Both are, in fact, attracting a great deal of attention from other states that are considering similar legislation.

Both laws, however, share a major shortcoming in that they are designed to punish after a tragedy. Both laws deal with problems that can, in large part, be better dealt with before there is any need to arrest a parent.

Safe storage of loaded guns is a matter of education and common sense. Education we can provide, from childhood through adulthood, in the schools, on television, and on billboards, if need be. Common sense is a little more difficult. Some good indications of a lack of common sense are: jail and prison sentences, multiple traffic tickets, a record of misdemeanor charges and financial records.

Does it constitute good judgment on the part of civilized society to allow guns to be freely purchased by people whose lives demonstrate repeated maladjustment? Is it reasonable to expect a person with a history of speeding tickets and DWI, for instance, to handle a gun cautiously? I don't think so.

Surely a precautionary background check on gun purchasers is not an unreasonable restriction.

As far as punishing "gang mothers" — who are these people? In California they are either black or Hispanic, poor, living in crowded conditions and are mostly single parents. Where is the societal support they need to raise law-abiding children? Parents need jobs at decent wages, they need reliable child care at a price they can afford. They need enough food and medical care and clothing to take care of their children.

Money pouring into the ghettos won't solve all the problems; it would be naive to expect that. But shortages in low-income housing, punitive welfare programs, inadequate child care, and a lack of affordable medical care perpetuates ghetto problems, including lawlessness.

It is typical of the white middle-class in the United States to dismiss the problem poor as "trash." I hear it from friends, from educators, even from social workers. But what I see in the poor single mothers I come in contact with is simply a lack of hope. They don't have one or two problems to overcome, they have an overwhelming number — serious enough singly, insurmountable when they all come at once.

How many parents can do an adequate job with their children when their wages are so low that housing takes over 50 percent of their check? When their car is so old that transportation to and from work is iffy? When child care costs so much that even very young children stay home alone while the parent(s) work? When insurance is not available or too expensive to buy? When they know their job is a dead end and they're never going to get a better one? When their children want things that other children have and there's no money?

How long can we as a country go on giving the minimum of support to the poor and their children while ignoring the fact that crime is a major effect of poverty?

Both the Florida law and the California law are trying to convey a message of responsible parenting. But parenting is not an easy skill at best and, without a firm foundation of basic necessities, almost impossible.

Possibilities in lieu of a Lewis Jr.

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

I don't have any children. There are many reasons why not, one being I'm afraid if I had a son, he would come home one day wearing an earring and I would have to strangle him.

Unless hearing impairment is involved, I stand firmly against male ear adornment. Isn't that covered in the Bible somewhere?

Doesn't the Bible say something like thou shalt not wear an earring unless thou is the same sex as the woman at the well?

But that's not what this is about. This is about the fact that a number of my over-40 friends suddenly are having babies and, with no children of my own in sight, I have tried to convince each of them to name their newborns after me.

I think it would be a wonderful gesture of kindness and friendship.

At least two of these new dads have already turned me down. They both had girls.

"What kind of name is Lewisiana?" one said to me.

"It's a fine name," I said. "It's a very American name, too. Not only does it reflect my friendship with you, but it also makes reference to one of our states."

"If I were going to name my child after a state," he said, "Rhode Islandia would be my first choice."

Lewis Grizzard

to at least have one named after me.

I could see the concern come over my friends' faces when I put a little guilt on them.

"OK," said B.A., "give us some ideas but forget Lewette."

"How about Leween?" I suggested.

"Putrid," said Nancy.

"Lewzeenia?"

"Sounds too much like a Third World country," said B.A.

I was not about to give up.

"Lewzandria?"

"Now that sounds interesting," said B.A.

"Are you out of your mind?" said his wife.

I was running out of time and ideas for names. I got desperate.

"Lewalsindra. She might grow up to be a basketball player."

"No."

"Lewpolia? She might want to go into law."

Now I was past desperate. I was dead in the water.

"Grizzinda?"

They both laughed uncontrollably. But I'm still not giving up.

Anybody out there with a new baby daughter? "Grizzenthia" is such a lovely name, don't you think?

He who speaks first is going to get the best publicity

By BILL STERNBERG
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON Leave it to Congress to repeal the laws of physics.

I'm referring to the principle that for every action there is an opposite and equal reaction.

In Washington lately, every action seems to produce a clamorous and disproportionate reaction.

Then again, Sir Isaac Newton never had the privilege of observing Washington's politicians and interest group leaders in motion.

The Supreme Court's controversial decisions on flag-burning and abortion evoked eruptions of impassioned rhetoric from lawmakers and lobbyists clamoring to establish their leadership on the issue involved and get their views (and their names) in the news.

The reaction ritual today is more elaborate than ever. Nearly all members of Congress have staff members whose duties include churning out statements "blasting" or "lauding" the latest development and distributing the pronouncements faster than you can say "fax machine."

By reacting loudly and quickly, members of Congress protect themselves from later criticism that they didn't speak up forcefully and promptly at the time of an important event, notes Steven S. Smith, a political science professor at the University of Minnesota.

"A lot of this (reaction) is creating a record so they can't be challenged later on for not being committed to the cause," says Smith, author of two books about Congress.

One rule of the reaction game is that the most emotional and colorful outbursts tend to obscure the more thoughtful and well-reasoned ones.

The "member who has the best turn of phrase and 15-second sound bite" is the one most likely to get attention, Smith points out.

When the High Court overturned flag desecration laws, politicians of all stripes raced to wrap themselves in Old Glory. But perhaps the most widely quoted response came from Rep. Douglas Applegate, a relatively obscure Democrat from Ohio.

"I'm mad as hell," Applegate declared during one of the 60-second floor speeches set up to allow House members to vent their spleens and get their faces on C-SPAN. "Are there any limitations (on free expression)? Are they going to allow fornication in Times Square at high noon?"

This outburst was so widely reported that it evoked a rare tribute: a reaction to the reaction. ("The answer is that fornication would blend into the background there...," replied columnist George Will.)

The second rule of the reaction game is that speed counts. The first to react are usually the ones quoted. Those who take the time to analyze an issue carefully find a smaller audience for their opinions.

Many "reactions" are planned well in advance of the event being reacted to. Several groups notified me they were prepared to respond within minutes to the Court's anxiously awaited decision on the abortion case from Missouri — whatever the decision happened to be.

The decision was originally expected the last Thursday in June, and emotionally charged spokesmen for pro- and anti-abortion groups gathered that morning outside the front entrance. When word filtered out that the decision was delayed until the following week, the spokesmen did what came naturally — they reacted to the fact there was nothing to react to.

First to the microphones was Randall Terry, national director of the anti-abortion Operation

Rescue. With his skillful playing of the reaction game, Terry catapulted himself into the national spotlight and eclipsed leaders of other, more established anti-abortion groups.

Playing the reaction game can be hard work. One of the most oft-quoted "reactors" to Supreme Court actions, conservative lawyer Bruce Fein, is said to spend up to 19 hours a day, seven days a week, reading, writing and talking to the press in a deliberate effort to dominate the market for quick legal analysis.

It's a shame all the effort expended here can't be channeled into more productive pursuits. One of the most serious problems in the District of Columbia has been slow emergency response time: the D.C. ambulance service is rated among the worst in the nation. Managers of the ambulance service might be able to learn a thing or two from the capital's opinion leaders, who've mastered the art of the instant response.

Bush considers space proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal before President Bush calls for building a manned moon station and sending astronauts to Mars, an administration official says.

Bush was expected to make a final decision today on whether to adopt the proposal. He is scheduled to make a major space policy speech Thursday on the 20th anniversary of man's first steps on the moon — which were taken by Apollo 11 astronaut Neil Armstrong on July 20, 1969.

A return to the moon to set up a permanent station is the centerpiece of recommendations he is reviewing, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Bush's space advisers, led by Vice President Dan Quayle, are urging him to sign off on the speech draft that calls for a permanent human outpost on the moon, from which man's first mission to Mars would be launched, the source said.

Union, Pittston holding talks

DUFFIELD, Va. (AP) — The striking United Mine Workers and the Pittston Co. were far apart on key issues as they entered today's federally mediated contract talks, the first negotiations in six weeks.

Both sides spent four hours behind closed doors with a judge Tuesday before agreeing to resume negotiations. Talks had broken down June 8.

At today's talks, the two sides were to sit in separate rooms with federal mediators shuttling messages between them. The 3½-month-old strike has been marked by occasional violence and triggered wildcat walkouts by tens of thousands of miners.

UMW President Richard Trumka, speaking to reporters at a southwest Virginia motel where the talks were to begin, said the way to solve the strike would be for Pittston Chairman Paul Douglas to participate in the negotiations.

"I'm disappointed that's not going to happen," Trumka said.

Geologist disputes N-dump report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department is underestimating the chances of a volcanic eruption near a Nevada site proposed to entomb high-level nuclear waste that will remain radioactive for 10,000 years, a senior government geologist says.

Department officials say the analysis by John Trapp, a staff geologist at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, is flawed. But they acknowledged Tuesday that more study is needed before determining whether the site can be used.

Trapp, in what he called preliminary calculations, said his review of the Yucca Mountain site and assessments by Energy Department scientists show the chances of an eruption in the area during the next 10,000 years are about one in six, not the one in 30 odds suggested in department studies.

The proposed site is about 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Unknown gunman kills actress

REBECCA SCHAEFFER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man shot and killed actress Rebecca Schaeffer in her doorway after asking neighbors for her address and waiting outside her apartment for nearly four hours, police and witnesses said.

Miss Schaeffer, who co-starred in the TV sitcom "My Sister Sam," was shot Tuesday morning as she answered the door. The gunman fled on foot.

Police questioned a former boyfriend of the 21-year-old actress but said he was not a suspect. They haven't ruled out the possibility that Miss Schaeffer knew her attacker, Detective Dan Andrews said.

Authorities also found no indications of harassment against Miss Schaeffer, but the possibility that the killer was a deranged fan "is a motive that we definitely have not ruled out."

Nicaragua

Ten years later, little to celebrate

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leftist Sandinista government marks a decade in power today, but many Nicaraguans have little to celebrate in a country that now ranks among the poorest in the world.

Banks, businesses and government offices closed to commemorate July 19, 1979, when the victorious Sandinista rebels marched into Managua to take power two days after dictator Anastasio Somoza fled.

The government said it expected more than 300,000 people for an anniversary rally at the Plaza of the Revolution. That would be about one-tenth Nicaragua's population and nearly one-third of the capital's.

predicted most of those at the rally would be Sandinista militants or public employees afraid of losing their government jobs if they failed to attend.

"Five years ago, people were still very enthusiastic about the revolution," a technician who did not want his name used said Tuesday. "People would paint and fix their houses, and neighbors would tell each other, 'Let's go to the plaza.'"

"But Managua has been deteriorating. People are now feeling the weight of the revolution."

"The people you're going to find at the rally tomorrow are the Sandinistas and those who have to go because they work for the state."

An economic report underwritten by Sweden, Nicaragua's main non-communist supporter, said last year's per capita output was $300, making Nicaragua poorer even than Haiti, long the poorest country in this hemisphere with a per capita gross national product of $330.

When the Sandinistas marched into Managua 10 years ago, huge numbers of people surged through the capital to give them a joyous reception after a civil war that claimed an estimated 50,000 lives.

Party chief faces opposition

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — On the eve of a National Assembly vote on whether to elect Communist leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski to the newly powerful presidency, Solidarity lawmakers could not agree on a unified position.

After a long and emotional debate Tuesday, many remained bitterly opposed to the candidacy of the man who tried to crush their free trade union movement in 1981 with a martial law crackdown and has presided over economic decline.

"I feel he is responsible for all of the mistakes. He is responsible so I cannot support him," said Zofia Kuratowska, deputy speaker of the Senate.

The meeting of the opposition's 259 lawmakers ended with caucus members being asked to vote their consciences today.

"I think it was a good decision," said Deputy Bronislaw Geremek.

U.S., Cuban diplomats meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal official says the United States wants decisive action by Cuba against drug-smuggling, as that country makes overtures for a joint anti-drug campaign, including a reported meeting with a State Department official.

Word of the meeting between a top Cuban diplomat and Michael Kozak, deputy assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, came Tuesday from Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., and was confirmed today by a Cuban official.

However, another State Department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said, "We have raised (the issue of) narcotics with the Cubans on many, many occasions over the years."

"We certainly think there's ample room for the Cubans to take action," he said.

Switzerland extradites financier

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Adnan Khashoggi, the Saudi financier and arms dealer, was extradited to the United States today to face charges he helped hide assets Ferdinand Marcos and his wife allegedly plundered from the Philippines.

Under the extradition agreement, the United States will drop racketeering and conspiracy charges against Khashoggi.

Khashoggi, escorted by two police officers, flew first-class on a Swissair plane for New York three months after he was arrested in a Bern hotel on a U.S. warrant, said Justice Ministry spokesman Joerg Kistler.

Khashoggi, the Marcoses, five other people and the California Overseas Bank in Los Angeles were indicted in October by a U.S. District Court in New York. The indictment accuses the ousted president and his wife, Imelda, of stealing more than $100 million from the Philippine treasury to buy real estate and art in New York.

Taiwan to hold primary elections

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — The ruling Nationalist Party holds its first primary election Sunday in a sign that further democratic change is coming to Taiwan, once the exclusive political domain of party elders.

The primary will select candidates for general legislative elections in December, when the Nationalists will for the first time face a challenge from a legal opposition party.

Opposition parties were forbidden under martial law, which until two years ago had been in effect since 1949, when the Nationalist government fled to Taiwan after losing a civil war on the Chinese mainland.

Martial law was lifted as part of a political liberalization program begun by former President Chiang Ching-kuo, son of former Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek.

The littlest Arvin packs a lot of cool.
179.88

Other than its good looks, you might think there is nothing unusual about the Arvin Air Cooler. Until you turn it on. When you feel its cooling power, you'll know there is definitely something unusual. Because the Arvin Air Cooler packs more cool than any other comparable product.

Arvin's design innovations (shown above) permit higher air velocity for greater cooling efficiency.

The Arvin Air Cooler is so small and light, you can take it anywhere. Because the Arvin Air Cooler operates with either a water hook-up or its own reservoir, you can use it two ways; freestanding or installed in a window.

And the Arvin Air Cooler is quality built for years of trouble-free service. Its galvanized steel body is protected by POLYBOND, an electrostatically applied, appliance-quality finish that won't crack, chip, tarnish or rust.

Call or stop by and we'll be glad to tell you more about the Arvin Air Cooler. It's the best portable evaporative cooler you can buy. Just what you'd expect from Arvin, the leader in energy-efficient cooling for more than 35 years.

Light and luscious low-calorie summer dessert recipes

Light, less, reduced — the buzz words of food conversation. Food is a topic in magazines and on talk shows as science shows us more about the relationship between eating healthy and our daily well being.

Even luscious desserts have a slightly different make-up with lowered fat, reduced calories and reduced sodium replacing the heavy butter, cream and eggs we've used so freely in the past.

This week's Recipe Exchange features dessert recipes from Keebler that are full of flavor and long on convenience and ease of preparation.

Iced coffee and chocolate pie

ICED COFFEE AND CHOCOLATE PIE
 1/4 cup cold skim milk
 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
 1 cup skim milk, heated to boiling
 1/2 cup sugar
 2 tbs. instant coffee granules
 1 tbs. coffee-flavored liqueur
 2 cups vanilla ice milk
 1 chocolate-flavored pie crust
 Reduced-calorie whipped topping
 Chocolate curls

In a blender container, add 1/4 cup milk. Sprinkle gelatin over milk and mix on low. Let stand 3-4 minutes. Add hot milk, cover and process on low until gelatin dissolves, about 2 minutes. Add sugar, coffee granules, liqueur and ice milk. Cover and process until smooth. Pour into crust. Chill at least 2 hours. Garnish with whipped topping and chocolate curls, if desired. Serves 8.

Calories: 226; carbohydrates: 5.12G; protein: 5.12G; and fat: 6.49G.

ALMOND-CHEESE TART

4 ounces light cream cheese
 2 cups skim milk
 1 package (6.9 ounces) sugar-free vanilla instant pudding
 1/2 tbs. almond extract
 6 single serving graham tarts
 Assorted fresh fruit, sliced for garnish
 3 tbs. low-sugar apricot jam, melted

In a blender container, place cream cheese, milk, pudding mix and extract. Cover and process at medium until smooth. Pour immediately into tart crusts. Top each tart with sliced fruit in a decorative pattern. Suggested fruits include: kiwi, fresh berries, bananas, oranges or peaches. Brush arranged fruit with melted apricot jam. Chill 30 minutes before serving. Serves 6.

MARGARITA PIE

1 quart frozen vanilla yogurt or ice milk, softened
 1/4 cupo fresh lime juice
 1 oz. pretzels, crushed
 1 tbs. tequila
 1 tbs. triple sec
 Grated peel of 1 lime
 1 graham cracker crust
 2-3 drops green food color
 Reduced-calorie whipped topping
 Lime slices

In a mixing bowl, combine softened yogurt, lime juice, tequila, triple sec, food color and lime peel. Spoon into crust. Sprinkle crushed pretzels in a 3-4 inch circle in center of pie. Freeze at least four hours. Garnish with whipped topping and lime slices, if desired. Serves 8.

Calories: 227; carbohydrates: 35.5G; protein: 3.39G; and fat: 7.13G.

IT'S THE BERRIES PIE

1 quart fresh strawberries, washed and hulled, reserve 8 for garnish
 1/2 cups fresh or frozen raspberries (without sugar)

 2 tbs. sugar
 1 cup boiling water
 1 butter-flavored pie crust
 1 package (0.3 ounces) triple berry or raspberry-flavored sugar-free gelatin
 Reduced-calorie whipped topping

Place prepared whole strawberries, hull side down, in the pie crust. Puree raspberries and sugar in a blender or food processor. Press through a sieve to remove seeds. Set raspberry puree aside. Prepare gelatin according to package direction using 1 cup water. Chill until slightly thickened. Stir raspberry puree into

CHOCOLATE-BANANA CREAM PIE

1/4 cup sugar
 1/4 cup cornstarch
 1 chocolate-flavored pie crust
 2 cups skim milk
 1 tsp. vanilla extract
 2 bananas, sliced
 2 tbs. baking cocoa
 Reduced-calorie whipped topping
 Additional banana slices for garnish

In a saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch and cocoa. Whisk in cold milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until the mixture comes to a boil. Boil and stir 3 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in vanilla. Remove to a bowl, cover surface with plastic wrap. Refrigerate until cool, about 1 hour. Slice bananas into crust. Spoon cooled chocolate mixture over bananas. Cover with plastic wrap, touching filling surface. Refrigerate at least 2 hours. Garnish with whipped topping and banana slices, if desired. Serves 8.

Exotic island salads

By PAPA JOE REED

You know, sometimes our thoughts get away from us. They take us to exotic places that physically we will never visit. Take the daydream I was having this morning. One you've probably had many times.

The scene: a South Sea island, palm trees gracefully swaying in the breeze, broad white sandy beaches sloping gently down to be kissed by a gentle surf. Then reality set in. Time for lunch.

It was then that I had the brilliant idea. If I couldn't go to a South Sea island, I would do the next best thing. I would bring part of the island to me. So today for lunch, we are going to have "Papa Joe's South Sea Island Salad." It has everything. Well, nearly everything. No hula dancers. Let's start with getting our ingredients together:

PAPA JOE'S SOUTH SEA ISLAND SALAD
 Pineapple chunks (1 can, diced)
 Brown sugar (1/2 cup)
 Vinegar (2 tbs.)
 Cornstarch (2 tbs.)
 Luncheon meat (1 can)
 Water (1 cup)
 Green pepper (1 cut in strips)
 Rice (3 cups, cooked)

Combine the brown sugar with the corn starch and the syrup from the pineapple, with the water and vinegar. Cook, stirring constantly until it's clear and thick. Now stir in the luncheon meat (cubed), the pineapple and the green pepper strips. Keep cooking until hot and serve over the cooked rice.

You may not be able to go to a South Sea island, but as you eat this salad, just close your eyes,

How to open an egg and you can feel the trade winds blowing gently across your brow. Now that we've had a salad with meat, let's have a meatless salad. It will be just as delicious. This time we will have "Papa Joe's Waldorf-Souffle Salad." That's right! A souffle salad. Let get out ingredients together.

PAPA JOE'S WALDORF-SOUFFLE SALAD
 Jello (1 pkg., lemon flavored)
 Cold water (1/2 cup)
 Lemon juice (2 tbs.)
 Apple (1 delicious, diced)
 Celery (1/2 cup, chopped)
 Boiling water (1 cup)
 Salad dressing (1/2 cup)
 Salt (1/2 tsp.)
 Walnuts (3/4 cup)

In your large mixer bowl, pour the boiling water over the jello and stir until the jello is dissolved. Now add cold water, salad dressing, lemon juice, and salt. Beat at a low speed until blended. Freeze this mixture for about 25 minutes or until firm about one inch from the side of the bowl, but still soft in the center. Beat at medium speed in mixer until fluffy. Now fold in the diced apples, walnuts and celery. Now pack into a one quart mold or individual molds. Refrigerate about one hour or until firm. Unmold on plate and garnish with the apple slices. Not only a beautiful salad, but delicious. You know, if you keep this up, you will be known as the "Salad Master."

Papa Joe's Kitchen Tips: If you want crisp French fried potatoes, let the raw potatoes stand in cold water for about 30 minutes before frying.

The only safe sex is no sex for teens risking pregnancy

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago there was a letter in your column about a virgin who got pregnant through her jeans.

My friends say it's impossible, but I'm sure I read it correctly. Is there some way you could verify this or reprint the letter? This means a lot to me, as several of my teen-age friends are sexually active, and I want them to be safe. — SAFE SEX IN ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR SAFE SEX: The safest sex is abstinence — no sex at all. But here's the letter:

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old college student, and even though I've dated quite a bit, I'm rather naive about sex. I am still a virgin and hope to remain one until I marry. Don't get me wrong, I'm no "Goody Two Shoes," but I don't want to risk an unwanted pregnancy.

I'm dating a guy right now who has been around. He knows how I feel about sex before marriage, so he's never pressured me to go all the way, but I've come closer with him than I have with any other guy. I'm ashamed to tell you how far we've gone, but I'm still a virgin (I think).

A long time ago you explained how a virgin could get pregnant. I'm sorry I didn't save it, but I never dreamed I'd need it.

Well, last night I was with this guy and things really got out of hand. Everything happened so fast. Please run that piece again about how a virgin can get pregnant. I'm worried. — B., ST. PAUL

DEAR B.: The piece is from my booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." Many junior and senior high school teachers wrote to say that they had read it aloud to their students.

HOW TO GET PREGNANT
One of the questions I have been asked often by teens is: "How far can I go without getting pregnant?"

That is not a dumb question. It's a very intelligent one. A lot of kids get aroused by just lying close to each other while kissing. Then they just naturally proceed to the next step, which is petting.

Sometimes they remove some of their clothing because it's "in the way," or they burrow underneath it to explore each other's bodies with their hands. This is known as heavy petting, or "doing everything else but."

The technical (and legal) definition of sexual intercourse is "penetration." (The male's sex organ must penetrate the female's.) However, as impossible as it may sound, in the medical literature can be found cases where there has been no penetration — the girl remained a virgin, but after engaging in heavy petting, she found herself pregnant.

How can that be? Simple. The boy and girl were lying very close to each other (unclothed), doing "everything but," when a small amount of sperm leaked out . . . near (not inside, but very close to) the girl's vagina. The sperm got into the moisture around the vagina and found its way up into it, and fertilized the egg!

Center offers workshop

The Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas Inc., is offering two weekly group workshops on beginning Thursday.

These groups will help youngsters in their developmental process by focusing on areas such as: discovering more about themselves, increasing self-esteem, developing effective communication skills, improving problem-solving abilities and dealing with relationship issues.

Participants are asked to make a six-week commitment of their time to better facilitate the goals of the group. Each group will be utilizing relaxation-meditative techniques, fantasy, sensory experience, drawing/painting activities, music, games and role playing as avenues to the path of self-discovery.

The groups will be lead by Joan Pace, who is a staff counselor working on her internship to acquire licensure as a licensed professional counselor.

For registration information, please call the Center at 563-4144.

Slow-pitch softball teams are rocking in Spring City

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

I like summertime. Warm weather, shapely ladies in bathing suits, and softball — not necessarily in that order mind you.

There is one softball team in Big Spring that has more than likely made slow-pitch history. The Big Spring Indios have earned different towns in the last three years.

Sounds crazy? Well check this out. In 1987 the Indios, who are comprised of Big Spring and Stanton players, won the Big Spring league with a 15-1 record. Last year in Stanton the Indios cruised to a 21-1 record. This year under the direction of manager Mike Martinez, the Indios won the Midland Pioneer League, sporting a 19-2 mark.

It's not that the team likes moving around. In '87 the team played in Big Spring because there were mostly Big Spring players on the squad. Last year there was no league in Big Spring so they played in Stanton. This year it was questionable if there was going to be a league in Big Spring, so the team decided to not take any chances and play in Midland.

It just so happens that I'm a member of the Indios, and I'm proud to wear the burgundy and grey. This extra hitter-first baseman-catcher enjoys playing on a base-hitting team that plays good defense. So far the Indios overall record is 40-17, including two seconds, a third and a fourth in tournaments.

The team is comprised of manager Martinez, James Walker, Gabriel Romero, Ricky Uranga, Oscar Perez, Pablo Martinez, Selestino Hernandez, Tommy Martinez, Nune Morales, Freddie Hernandez, Larry Ramirez, Andrew Martinez and Johnny Villa. And your's truly.

My softball career is probably over after this season. But I wonder if the next stop for the Indios is Colorado City or Snyder?

Another local slow-pitch softball team that is on a roll is the Kings.

The Kings have been around for about 12 years. They aren't winning the league in Big Spring as of now, but they're a model of consistency when it comes to tournament play. In four tournaments, the Kings have done this: won tournaments in Stanton and Big Spring; finished second in another tournament in Big Spring, and third in a tough Midland tourney last weekend.

Their top players this year have been pitcher Pano Rodriguez, out fielders Frankie Rubio and Rudy Hilario and first baseman-third baseman George Solis.

Another local slow-pitch softball team is Bowlin, formerly known as Kwik Silver and L. G. Nix. This team has been around for a long time, and they are still one of the best teams in West Texas.

Bowlin finished seventh overall in the Triple Crown Softball series, and has already qualified for the state 3-2 tournament in San Angelo. A 3-2 tournament is when every batter goes to the plate with a 3-2 count.

Bowlin, which just missed a bid to the National Class C tournament last year, has tournaments wins in Colorado City, San Angelo and Stanton under its belt.

One more top team is the Sandstormers, a fast-improving team. No longer are the Stormers considered upstarts — now they are contenders.

The Sandstormers currently lead the Big Spring league with an unbeaten record. They have placed in several tournaments, including winning one in Colorado City. Last week they finished fourth in C-City.

So there's some pretty tough slow-pitch softball teams in the Spring City. And the word is getting out — if you play a Big Spring team — don't come half-stepping.

Against the odds

U.S. golfers not given much chance of winning British Open

TROON, Scotland (AP) — At first, there was open-mouthed amazement and disbelief, then growing acceptance of the long odds against an American winning the 118th British Open Golf Championship.

"Get to the bookies before they change their minds," Tom Watson advised when informed that Britain's legal bookmakers have set odds of 5-2 against an American — any American — winning the oldest of the world's golf titles.

"I'm tired of hearing about how they're better than we are. They're good players, yes. Some great players. But I don't think they're any better than we are," Mark Calcavecchia said Tuesday after a practice round for the tournament that begins Thursday at Royal Troon.

"They don't make many mistakes, but I wonder if that is realistic," said Tom Kite, the year's leading money-winner on the American tour. "We're not a bunch of dogs. We can play the game a little, too, you know."

But Curtis Strange, the two-time U.S. Open champion and one of the leading contenders for the old claret jug that goes to the winner of this ancient event, took a different view.

"Maybe," Strange suggested after some consideration, "those are the right odds."

"For one thing, the numbers work against us. There's 156 in the field and, what, 40 Americans? So the numbers are not in our favor." And there are at least two other factors, Strange said, that work against American chances. Actually, there are three, if recent history is included. Americans, who once dominated this event, have not won the British Open since 1983.

There are five players, Strange said, generally considered to be in a group by themselves at the top of the world standings.

They include defending champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain,

TROON, Scotland — Britain's Nick Faldo, 1987 Open winner, and this year's U.S. Masters, spots his nose with protective cream against the hot sunlight Tuesday. Faldo was in practice for this year's Open which begins Thursday.

Masters champion Nick Faldo of England, Sandy Lyle of Scotland, Australian Greg Norman and Strange.

"There's five and there's only one American among them. So the numbers work against us there, too," Strange said.

And there are the unusually dry, hard conditions, the result of a drought and heat wave on the Ayrshire coast along the Firth of Clyde.

It was at this point that Watson, who scored the fourth of his five British Open titles here in 1982, agreed about the odds.

"These are links courses and links conditions," Watson said. "You have to play a different game, play the low shot and run the ball into the green, play the bounces."

"How often do we play these conditions? Not often. How often do the Europeans play these conditions, play links courses? A lot more than we do."

"So if there is an advantage, it has to go to people more familiar with the conditions."

Norman agreed, calling it "a home court advantage."

"We just don't play these conditions that often," Strange said. "If it favors anybody, it favors someone from over here."

He quickly added, however, that the entire situation — Americans vs. non-Americans — is one that interests the public, press and oddsmakers much more than it does the players.

"It doesn't matter," Strange said. "You don't think of it like that. If I come down to the last hole on Sunday, with one man to beat, I don't care if he's British or Australian or Spanish or American. I don't even think of that."

"I don't care who it is or where he comes from. I just see one man standing between me and the trophy and I'm going to try to beat him."

Donnie Moore dead at 35

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Tormented by the memory of one pitch and despondent over his failing career and marital troubles, former California Angels pitcher Donnie Moore shot his wife numerous times before killing himself.

All indications are that Donnie Moore and his wife, Tonya, became involved in an argument, and during the argument, Mr. Moore produced a handgun, shot his estranged wife and then turned the gun on himself, Anaheim Police Lt. Marc Hedgpeth said. Tonya Moore, 35, was in critical condition early today suffering from at least three gunshot wounds in the upper chest and stomach. Hedgpeth said after the shooting Tuesday afternoon at the couple's home in the affluent Peralta Hills area of Anaheim.

Their 17-year-old daughter drove her wounded mother to nearby Kaiser Permanente Hospital. The couple's two sons, ages 7 and 10, also were at the house during the shooting, but none of the children were hurt.

The 35-year-old Moore was a pitcher for the Los Angeles Angels' minor league team in Omaha. He had been plagued by injuries during his last years in the majors and saw yet another comeback attempt dissolve when he was released by the Royals' organization.

He also had separated from his wife of 16 years about a month ago, said Moore's New York-based agent, Dave Pinter. Moore was released from the Angels in 1988, two years after he carried California to within one strike of the 1986 World Series, a loss that tortured him through the years.

With the Angels ahead three games to one in the best-of-seven American League playoffs, Moore, pitching with a sore right shoulder, had a 5-4 lead, with two outs and two runners on base. He gave up Henderson in the top of the ninth inning of Game 5. But Henderson then hit a Moore forkball for a two-run homer that gave the Red Sox a 6-5 lead.

The Angels sent the game into extra innings, and once again Henderson victimized Moore, with a sacrifice fly in the top of the 11th that lifted the Red Sox to a 7-6 victory.

The Red Sox won the next two games in Boston and moved into the World Series, which they lost to the New York Mets.

"Everything revolved around one ... pitch," California veteran Brian Downing said in a somber Angel clubhouse in Toronto, where the players heard of their former teammate's death after their 1-0 victory over the Blue Jays.

"You'd reporters destroyed a man's life over one pitch. The guy was just not the same after that," Downing said. "I never

Georgia swimmer cops two golds

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Many of the swimmers taking part in the U.S. Olympic Festival are using this meet as a primer for the upcoming national championships.

Paige Wilson, it would appear, is primed.

Wilson won gold medals in the 200-meter freestyle and 100-meter butterfly Tuesday night as the festival got under way. She added a bronze later in the night as part of an 800-meter freestyle relay team.

"I think this meet is more of a team meet. We're here to swim fast, but also have fun and have a lot of team spirit," Wilson, of Athens, Ga., said. "This has given me a lot of confidence going into nationals."

Especially when considering some of Wilson's physical problems this year. She broke a hand in the spring, which meant she could only work mainly on her kick. Then she had a leg problem.

"I just started kicking last week again," she said. "I was really worried about my leg. I trained really well in the spring, but then everything started happening. I just trained through it and tried to keep a positive attitude, and this has really boosted my confidence."

Wilson said she dropped a half-second off her best time in the 200 freestyle, but was still about a second off her personal best in the 100 butterfly.

Even so, in the 100 she came from behind in the final 25 meters to nip Angela Fariss of Roanoke, Va., to win in 1 minute, 25.0 seconds.

OKLAHOMA CITY — Trip Zedlitz of Oklahoma City swims to victory in the men's 200 meter individual medley during swimming competition at the U.S. Olympic Festival Tuesday. Zedlitz won the first gold medal of the festival.

"In practice I've been working on going into the wall without any air the last 10 yards or so," Wilson said. "I tried to do that and I think it helped."

She won the 200 freestyle coming out of the consolation heat, which she had asked to swim because she had the butterfly coming up. The medal ceremony for the 200 had to be held up while a representative of the West team tracked her down.

"I thought it would take a 2:03 to win, so when I went for 2:04, I was surprised I won," she said.

"I'm not really a freestyler. My best race is the fly. I had no idea I was going to win."

Another surprise winner was 15-year-old Amy Walker of Des Moines, Iowa in the 400 individual medley. Her time of 4:56.32 was about 15 seconds better than her previous best of 5:12, set earlier this year.

"I just wanted to do well here," Walker said. "I didn't think I would place."

Her goal, she said, was to make the cut for the nationals, which is 5:02.

Trip Zedlitz of Oklahoma City had another goal, that of swimming in front of his hometown fans. He got that chance and took advantage, winning the first gold medal of the festival, then adding a silver and bronze.

Zedlitz won the 200 IM, picked up a silver in the 200 backstroke and got a bronze when his West team finished third in the 400 medley relay.

Dodgers, Reds wheel-and-deal

CINCINNATI (AP) — Kal Daniels will get a chance to bloom in the lush outfield grass at Dodger Stadium.

The Los Angeles Dodgers sent pitcher Tim Leary to the Cincinnati Reds on Tuesday for Daniels as part of a four-player deal between National League West rivals struggling to reach 500.

The teams also swapped utility infielders, with the Reds getting Mariano Duncan and the Dodgers receiving rookie Lenny Harris. But Daniels and Leary were the key players.

The Dodgers hope to put some punch into the league's least-productive offense with the acquisition of Daniels, a cornerstone in the Reds' rebuilding this decade. The Reds hoped to fill some injury-created holes in their starting rotation and infield with the acquisition of Leary and Duncan.

The trade will give Daniels and Leary a second chance.

"I guess it's good for me," Daniels, who is coming off his fourth knee operation, said. "I get to play on grass because of my knees. I like playing out there."

Daniels was considered by former general manager Bill Bergesch to be one of the Reds' untouchable "crown jewels." Manager Pete Rose has repeatedly said he thought Daniels could be a batting champion someday.

Moore left mark on Texas baseball

LUBBOCK (AP) — Before Donnie Moore emerged as baseball's premier reliever in the mid-1980s, the former All-Star left an indelible mark on baseball in Texas.

Moore died Tuesday in Anaheim, Calif., apparently of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. His wife was listed in critical condition Wednesday in connection with the apparent murder-suicide attempt.

The 35-year-old Moore was released last month by the Kansas City Royals' minor league team in Omaha. Arm troubles and depression over the 1986 playoffs plagued Moore during the final years of his career.

Moore was born Feb. 13, 1954 in Lubbock. He led Midland in 1972 Class 4-A state championship, pitching in all nine of the team's playoff games.

"He was just an outstanding talent," said Bobby Moegle, Moore's high school coach. "He was always a success wherever he went."

Moore played for Ranger Junior College in 1973, when he went 18-1 and led the team to the National Junior College tournament championship.

He signed with the Chicago Cubs that year. He compiled a 14-8 record for Midland in 1974 and was selected to pitch in the league All-Star game.

He compiled a 43-40 won-loss mark with 89 saves in 13 seasons in the major leagues. His best year came in 1985, when he was selected to the All-Star game. He finished with a 1.92 earned run average and 31 saves, both career-bests.

He followed his best year with 21 saves in 1986, despite arm problems.

Moore was released from the Angels in 1988, two years after he carried California to within one strike of the 1986 World Series, a loss that tortured him through the years.

"He was just a strike from getting the Angels in the Series. I hate that that's how he'd be remembered," said Matt McAlexander, sports information director at Lubbock Christian University who covered much of Moore's amateur career as a reporter for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal in the early 1970s.

"I always remember Donnie as a workaholic," McAlexander told the Avalanche-Journal. "He had one goal in mind in high school, and that was to be a professional baseball player. He knew what he wanted and he knew how to get there."

Moore

everything in general. He was running, lifting weights, just trying to get his comeback in order. He was having domestic problems, having problems with his career."

Pinter said he had been talking with the Houston Astros about finding a place for Moore in their organization.

"Bob Watson (Houston assistant general manager) was interested and said that he would get him a AAA spot as soon as something opened up and bring him up maybe in September for the pennant race," Pinter said.

Moore had also discussed going to Puerto Rico this fall for the winter leagues.

Moore set Angel records in 1985 by recording 31 saves and finishing 57 games.

The native of Lubbock, Texas, also played for the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals, Milwaukee Brewers and Atlanta Braves during a major league career that spanned 13 years.

Before he was released by the Royals' organization, Moore appeared in seven games with their AAA affiliate at Omaha, with a 1-2 record. He had a 6.39 ERA in 12 2-3 innings before being released June 12.

Because of injuries, he appeared in just 14 games for the Angels in his final major league season, 1987.

Names in the news

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Easy Riders Peter Fonda and Dennis Hopper joined 900 others for a 20th anniversary reunion and retrospective showing of the classic biker film.

About 50 motorcycles were parked outside the Sweeney Convention Center on Friday, and Fonda called "Easy Rider" "the best motorcycle film ever made."

He also called it "one of the greatest Westerns of all times."

The $25-a-ticket gala drew fans in attire ranging from bell-bottom jeans, black T-shirts, leather vests and chains to Santa Fe chic.

Asked how things have changed since 1969, when the movie was released, Fonda said: "Things have gotten... worse."

Hopper disagreed.

"We're not at war... We can all drink from the same water fountains. Women have more rights. Blacks and minorities have more rights. Basically, today, most people have become involved. But there are still lots of problems, especially inside urban cities. So it's the same old stuff," Hopper said.

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Expatriate ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev is thinking of visiting the Soviet Union for the first time since he defected 28 years ago.

Nureyev, 51, said he would like to visit the Kirov Theater, where he began his career.

He said that many dancer-defectors eventually returned to the Soviet Union because they could not adjust to new lifestyles.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"Mrs Wilson says she's real liberal and that Mr Wilson is a preservative!"

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: former Cabinet member Elliot Richardson, film star Natalie Wood, golfer Betty Burnfeind, explorer Sir Edmund Hillary, actresses Diana Rigg and Donna Dixon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work demands the lion's share of your attention today. Dealing effectively with employers is a top priority. Look for surprises to crop up on the home scene. Handling your finances shrewdly prevents confrontations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Share your thoughts with those in a position to give you expert advice. Do not give any great significance to idle speculations. Pursue solo projects that will inform as well as entertain you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep one eye on a brighter future, and the other on today's tasks. Use your intellect, not passion, to solve a small unexpected crisis. Your calm approach proves contagious. Avoid hasty words.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone may misinterpret your words or intentions today. Avoid those who engage in idle gossip. Do not neglect that special person in your life. Plan a small surprise for tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A marital partnership or business venture is in the spotlight. Powerful forces are at work. A level head will guard you against the temptation to go overboard. Build a new relationship with great care.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Keep any disagreements private, especially at work. Travel proves particularly rewarding if you take day trips. Important documents surface in an unexpected place. To prevent embarrassment, avoid asking too many questions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stay in touch with old friends. They could provide important information if you are expanding a business operation. Be tactful when trying to resolve differences with your co-workers. Keep other people's confidences to yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

The pace slows, allowing you to work on a pet project. You feel good knowing that you are building a more secure future. Romance turns serious. You may be ready to make a commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): People out of your past play a major role in a new financial success. Do not neglect your health; keep dental and medical appointments. Romance sizzles when you least expect it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Use your intuition to full advantage. Important papers stimulate your career ambitions or lead to an increase in income. Be precise when talking with those in authority. Leave nothing to chance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discuss any problems with co-workers, employees or middlemen tactfully. Look into a special offer that comes your way; there could be strings attached. A romantic interlude gives you new hope. Go slow.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not overreact to what seems like an unreasonable request. A cherished personal project will get off the ground soon. Enjoy fun and games. You can show emotional maturity without being stuffy.

Tidbits

By LEA WHITEHEAD
Staff Writer

The Big Spring High School Class of 1959 has set a goal for its 30th reunion: raise the money to replace the legendary mosaic that once graced the entrance to BSHS.

It was this class that gave the mosaic — in the shape of the senior ring crest — to the school in 1959. It became a tradition that no one was to step on the colorful tiles.

Alas, when the school was remodeled some years ago, the mosaic was sacrificed to progress.

Toni Hamby and Katie Grimes are busy contacting exes. Call them if you are a '59 graduate or know someone who is. Reggie Cranfill is in charge of the Return the Mosaic project.

Julia Lerma and Rosie Montanez have just returned from a five-day trip to Washington, D.C. "We rented a car and got a map and went everywhere," Julia says.

They saw the Vietnam Memorial, the Washington Monument, the Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials. And toured the Capitol, the White House, the Library of Congress, Mount Vernon, the Bureau of Engraving and the Museum of Natural History.

"We got up early and went to bed late!" Julia says.

Friends will be glad to learn that Pearl Bruton is home after a nine-day stay in the hospital. Pearl, who had a heart attack, is now able to do anything she wants to except drive a car.

Her niece, Edna Vern Phinney,

Tidbits

Stephenville, is here to help her aunt as long she's needed.

"Pearl wants to thank everyone for the cards and letters and especially the prayers," Edna Vern says.

Dr. Debbie Irwin, daughter of Bill and Charlotte Irwin, moved from Abilene to Galveston this week.

Charlotte went along to help Debbie get settled.

Debbie is a new assistant professor in the Family Medical Department, UT Medical Branch at Galveston, among other duties. And she will also open a personal practice through the Family Medical Clinic.

Debbie, who was valedictorian at BSHS in 1973, is a 1977 graduate of Hardin-Simmons University, and a 1982 graduate of UTMB-Galveston. She served her residency at Hendricks Memorial Hospital at Abilene; she was associate director of the hospital's residency program until accepting her new position.

Charlotte says the pair relaxed after unpacking by taking a ride on the Bolivar Ferry, which runs from Galveston Island to the mainland and back.

Tony and Martie Geanopulas, and daughter Kristi, are just back from a two-week vacation in Daytona Beach, Fla. They visited Tony's brother, Chris, and Lois Geanopulas.

"We just lay on the beach and ate," says Martie. "Tony kept saying, 'Do you hear that? The phone isn't ringing. No one is calling Kristi!'"

Doris Vierrege, Ruby Bruns and Pam Bruns spent several days in Dallas at the gift market recently.

They stayed at the Hyatt-Regency, and of course, dined in the revolving restaurant atop Reunion Tower.

"We ate one night in the Butcher Shop — a side of beef hangs in full view, and the chef just cuts off your steak and cooks it!" Ruby says.

They ran into former Big Spring resident, Jim Lewis, who operated the Lewis Variety Store on Main Street for many years.

Gary Don Carey has just been on his first scuba diving trip — "And I love it!" he says.

Gary Don joined a group of divers from Dallas for a five-day trip to Cozumel. He had just completed his training and certification in Midland.

"We made nine dives in five days!" he says.

Greg McDonald, son of Dr. and Mrs. Don McDonald, Sterling City, has just completed a month-long internship in the Washington, D.C. office of Congressman Charles Stenholm.

Greg had the opportunity to attend sessions of the House of Representatives and subcommittee hearings. He heard remarks by Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter and former Speaker Jim Wright.

Greg, a junior at Texas A & M, served as an intern under the Omar Burleson Intern Program, which each year allows two young people from the 17th Congressional District to see how things work in the nation's Capitol.

GARY DON CAREY

QUICK PROFILE:

Gary Don Carey moved to Big Spring in 1960 as a teenager and graduated from Big Spring High School. He owns and operates La Contesa Beauty Salon which he opened 20 years ago. He holds an instructor's license in cosmetology. Gary Don has two children, Bill, 16, and Kendra, 13.

WHAT ARE YOUR HOBBIES?

Gary Don has many interests — dancing, reading, scuba diving and working at his salon.

WHAT DO YOU DO TO KEEP IN SHAPE?

Gary Don says he's "just naturally born skinny." But he frequently walks Scenic Mountain and does back exercise four times a week.

WHO IS A PERSON YOU ADMIRE?

"I admire lots of people," Gary Don says, "including my mother, Jane Thomas, Martie and Tony Geanopules, any president of the United States, all of my customers, Betty Condray, all owners of businesses, Dorothy Garrett, Dennis Smiley and many more."

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE TELEVISION SHOW?

Gary Don enjoys watching "Perfect Strangers," "Roseanne," "The Wonder Years," — and sitcoms in general.

WHAT MAGAZINES DO YOU SUBSCRIBE TO?

Gary Don subscribes to "Playboy."

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE LEISURE THING TO DO IN BIG SPRING?

"I enjoy swimming and lying by the pool ... walking the mountain and going out to dinner with an interesting woman."

WHAT DID YOU DO ON YOUR LAST VACATION?

Gary Don recently vacationed in Cozumel, Mexico, "to scuba dive."

WHAT ARE YOUR FUTURE GOALS?

Gary Don's goals are to "improve my self-image, continue being a decent father, continue attending Howard College — and hopefully graduate. Everybody will be invited to watch me be pushed across the stage in a wheelchair!"

Sheep, goats highlight of field day
By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Sheep and Goats will be the main topics of interest at a field day July 18 at 6:00 p.m. at the Middleton Farm, northwest of Big Spring, just off Hwy 87 on FM 846. A special session on individual plant treatment (IPT) control of mesquite also will be featured. This should be of special interest to those with fence line brush problems and smaller acreages of mesquite infested pasture and ranges.

When the Long Range Extension Plan (LREP) was developed in 1986 to assist local Extension agents in directing their educational program efforts, one of the critical issues identified by the agricultural committees was the need for diversification by county agricultural producers. Members of the Extension Livestock and Range Program Area Committee believe that sheep and goats offered promise as diversification practices that local producers could incorporate into their agricultural operations and might consider.

Harry and Johnny Middleton have been serving as result demonstrators for the past two years utilizing stocker lambs in several ways in such diversification practices. These programs will be discussed and viewed at this field day, along with other possible enterprises suitable for West Texas conditions. Extension Livestock Specialist Dr. Rick Machen, Fort Stockton; Dr. George Ahlschwede, Extension sheep and goat specialist, San Angelo; Johnny Middleton and the local agents Mike Bragg and myself will lead the discussion.

Included in the discussions will be cashmere and angora goats, colored sheep and various other alternative sheep and goat enterprises. Ahlschwede will discuss lamb types vs. the lean lamb theory that is so popular now. Dow Chemical Co., Big Spring Farm Supply and Ezell-Key Feed Co. will be hosting a complimentary bar-b-que at the Middleton farm during the event, featuring mesquite flavored lamb and cabrito prepared by Al's Hickory House Bar-B-Que of Big Spring. If you plan to attend, please contact the Howard County Extension Office at 267-6671 or 267-1821, by noon Monday.

Abortion issue may come up in special session

In a 50-state survey by The Associated Press of abortion-related activities since the Supreme Court's ruling in the Missouri abortion law case, Gov. Bill Clements said abortion may be considered this year. Clements, who is against abortion, said he probably would ask the Legislature to consider abortion restrictions if another special session is held later this year. House Speaker Gib Lewis said he would prefer to wait until the next regular session, in two years.

Oil & Gas Report

AUSTIN — Texas crude oil production averaged 1,806,946 barrels daily in April, according to preliminary figures released by Railroad Commission Chairman Kent Hance. This figure compares with preliminary March production of 1,810,711 barrels daily. Final production reports for March indicated average production at 1,818,072 barrels daily. Hance said the preliminary Texas oil production figure for April is 54,208,392 barrels, down from 56,132,054 barrels in March.

Hance also announced that Texas oil and gas wells produced 460,664,392 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas in April, compared to the March gas production total of 481,556,435 Mcf. April production was up 0.65 percent compared to April 1988's production of 457,648,905 Mcf. The state's top producing counties, rank ordered by preliminary April production were: Webb, 25,131,849 Mcf; Zapata, 24,461,806 Mcf; Pecos, 19,172,792 Mcf; Hidalgo, 16,198,844 Mcf; Panola, 11,135,492 Mcf; McMullen, 8,642,842 Mcf; Hemphill, 8,296,672 Mcf; Crockett, 7,285,440 Mcf; Moore, 6,741,767 Mcf; and Matagorda, 6,334,494 Mcf.

Texas gas production in April came from 189,927 oil wells and 46,406 gas wells.

MARTIN COUNTY
Pumping 30 barrels of oil per day plus 128 barrels of salt water, the No. 1 Beulah has been brought on line in Martin County's South Phoenix Field. Drillrite was about 2.5 miles northwest of Lenora. The Durham Corp. of Midland is the operator. Production will be from a set of perforations at 4,003 to 4,006 feet into the hole.

An ill-fated developmental well has been plugged and abandoned in Martin County's Lacoff Field, 13 miles northwest of Lenora. The well was known as the No. 1 Tahoe Holt "A." It probed to a dry bottom at 9,886-ft. TD.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY
Flowing 261 barrels of oil and 442,000 CF gas per day, the No. 4 Glasscock "L" Fee has been completed in the Southeast Blalock Field, seven miles west of Garden City, Glasscock County. Texaco is the operator. Located in Block 35 Section 35 of the T&P Survey, the well will produce from a perforated interval in the Wolfcamp Formation, 8,181 to 8,196 feet into the wellbore.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Edited by Lea Whitehead

Transmissions may need service in hot weather

Summer driving can take its toll on automatic transmissions, according to Billy Smith, owner of Smith's Automatic Transmission, 2900 E. FM 700.

Owners of cars, pick-ups, RV's and 4-wheel drives should have those transmissions serviced prior to going on vacation, he recommends. If vacation-goers are going to pull boats, trailers or other loads, Billy suggests they consider coming by for installation of a transmission oil cooler.

"It's safe to say that the majority of transmission failures are caused by overheating," the owner says.

Owners of late model cars with overdrive transmissions should pay special attention to their service schedule, Billy advises.

"I recommend that the fluid and filter be changed every 20,000-25,000 miles. That's about every 1.5 to 2 years for the average driver."

"The new cars have to run cleaner," explains Smith. "If you go to 50,000 or 60,000 miles without regular service, you're going to run into trouble. The better and more frequent the service, the longer the transmission will last."

Transmission service ought to be a year-round consideration, not just something you think about when you're going on a trip — or worse, when you have trouble. Car owners who regularly drive great distances, drive on mountain roads or pull heavy loads have added reasons for regular transmission inspections.

Billy Smith will personally inspect your transmission and give you a firm estimate on any service or repairs needed. "Our estimates are free and without obligation."

Transmission work is a specialized field, according to Billy. "This is the work we do day in and day out. We have specialized training in this field, and stay on top of the latest techniques and equipment. We can guarantee our work because we know we've done the job right."

For information or to make an appointment, phone 267-3955, or just drive your vehicle — car, pickup, 4-wheel drive or RV — over to the roomy shop just east of Big Spring Mall.

SUMMER TIP — Transmissions merit attention in hot weather, particularly if you are driving a great distance, going to the mountains or pulling a load. Smith's Automatic Transmission, 2900 FM 700, specializes in transmissions, including 4-wheel drives and RV's.

Wedding

Markus-Mancill

Catherine Lynn Markus, Plano, and Christian Edward Mancill, Big Spring, were united in marriage June 17, 1989 at a 7:30 p.m. ceremony at Southfork Mobile Home Clubhouse, Wylie, with Rev. Eva R. Hanke officiating.

The bride is the daughter of John and Judy Markus, Plano.

Bridegroom's parents are Jerry and Violet Mancill, Big Spring.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with rose and ivory candles. A fireplace was decorated with a floral arrangement.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a tea-length gown, fashioned of ivory lace with a scalloped hem.

She carried a silk bouquet of ivory carnations and pink roses,

Everything for the Bride

Wedding

Niehues-Halfmann

Sharon Niehues, San Angelo, and Gary Halfmann, Garden City, were united in marriage July 15, 1989 at a 3 p.m. ceremony at St. Ambrose Catholic Church, Wall, with Rev. James Plagens officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Niehues, San Angelo.

Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ross Halfmann, San Angelo.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with fresh pink flowers and greenery.

Organist was Johnnie Mae Stice. Vocalists were Johnnie Mae Stice, Rory Niehues and the St. Ambrose men's choir.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown adorned with pearls and iridescent lace. The gown also featured a cathedral-length train.

She carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and English ivy.

Maid of honor was Terri Kvapil, Dallas.

Bridesmaids were Donna Niehues, Eola; Beth Niehues, Dallas; Renee Niehues, Garden City; Tibby Niehues, Garden City;

MRS. SHARON HALFMANN
 Brenda Cavness, San Angelo, bride's sisters-in-law; and Jennifer Stice, Alpine, bride's cousin.

Flower girls were Kristi Schkade, bridegroom's niece, San Angelo; and Megan Niehues, bride's niece, Garden City.

Best man was Roland Halfmann, bridegroom's brother, St.

Lawrence. Groomsmen were Rory Niehues, bride's brother, Garden City; Kevin Hirt, Wayne Hirt, Scotty Halfmann and Darrell Halfmann, all of St. Lawrence; and Douglas Plagens, Garden City.

Ushers were Carey Niehues, Garden City; Kevin Niehues, Eola; and Brent Niehues, Dallas, bride's brothers; and Henry Chudej, St. Lawrence.

Candlelighters were Kevin and Brent Niehues.

Ringbearer was Heston Schkade, bridegroom's nephew, San Angelo. After the wedding, a reception was hosted at the church. The bride's white cake was decorated with iridescent grapes and fresh flowers. The bridegroom's chocolate cake was decorated with a monogrammed cotton boll surrounded by ivy and cotton bolls.

The bride, a graduate of Wall High School and Angelo State University, was employed as a teacher and coach at Lubbock High School. She is a housewife.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Garden City High School, is a self-employed farmer.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Barbados.
