Firing agenda

BIG SPRING — The possible termination of a teacher's contract will be the sole order of business when the Big Spring school trustees meet in special session at 5:15 p.m. Monday at the high school board room.

The trustees will decide whether to dismiss Dave Hay, high school tennis coach and physical education teacher, during the meeting.

BSISD officially notified Hay of their intention to terminate his contract in June. Since then, the board has discussed the situation twice in closed session, with no resolution reported.

Superintendent Bill McQuary said it is unknown whether the hearing will be open to the public, saying that aspect is Hay's decision.

College hearing

BIG SPRING — Howard College's Board of Trustees will conduct a public hearing on the district's 1989-90 operating budget when it meets at 12:30 p.m. Monday at the Student Union Building Board Room.

The trustees also will hear a report from local attorney Drew Mouton on the progress of the district's delinquent tax collections and an update on the proposed dormitory construction.

In other business, trustees will consider:

- The district's supplemental retirement plan.
- Handbook changes.
- Bids on the college depository, athletic insurance, telephone system and a heating/air conditioning system at SWCID.
- Resignations and employments.

Drug charges

BIG SPRING — A local man is in custody this morning after being arrested on drug charges late Wednesday.

Jerry Paul Carter, 26, 808 Creighton St., was arrested at 10:48 p.m. Wednesday on a charge of aggravated delivery of a controlled substance, according to Big Spring Police Department records.

Law enforcement officials seized a powdery substance believed to be cocaine during the arrest, Police Capt. Lonnie Smith said today. The substance will have to be submitted for analysis before it can be positively identified.

Officers from the Permian Basin Drug Task Force, Howard County Sheriff's Office and Big Spring Police Department participated in the arrest.

Smith said the arrest was the result of an on-going investigation by area law enforcement agencies, and that a warrant has been issued for one other individual in the case.

That person had not been arrested as of this morning.

Power loss

BIG SPRING — An early morning electrical cable failure resulted in a two-hour power loss at the Federal Building on Main Street today.

The cable failure occurred at 8:35 a.m. and power was restored at 10:47 a.m., according to Bob Goodwin of TU Electric Service Co.

The power loss temporarily closed most offices in the building, such as the Social Security office, and severely curtailed operations at the post office.

"We've had to temporarily shut down because of the power failure," Postmaster Howard Riche said during the blackout. "We don't even have window service right now."

Some officials with the Soil Conservation Service office were still at work this morning, but other agencies housed in the federal building are closed pending restoration of power.

Today's mail deliveries will be slightly delayed because of the power failure, Riche said. Most of today's mail had been sorted prior to the blackout, including those destined for post office boxes, he added.

"Deliveries won't be too late," Riche said. "We were able to get our carriers out before the power failure."

Outside play!

BIG SPRING — With slightly cooler weather in the mornings, children at the Westside Day Care Center were able to play outside Thursday without overheating. Indians go on warpath over ousted chairman

By LARRY LOPEZ
Associated Press Writer

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. — Hundreds of supporters of an ousted Navajo Indian chairman clashed with police and took over a tribal building, leaving two men dead and nine wounded, witnesses and officials said.

Supporters of suspended tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald occupied the tribe's business and finance building for five hours late Thursday after a pro-MacDonald rally that turned violent, authorities said.

Tribal police, federal agents and state police sealed off the area today. In Albuquerque, N.M., U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs area director Sid Mills said he had dispatched as many agents as available to the reservation. A federal Bureau of Indian Affairs tactical team was working with tribal police and the FBI was expected to arrive at the remote reservation this morning, said Steve Goldstein, a spokesman for Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Jr. in Washington.

The violence in this tribal capital near the Arizona-New Mexico line was the latest episode in the struggle for power on the Navajo Reservation. With 200,000 members the Navajos are the nation's largest Indian tribe.

The two victims, Jimmy Dixon and Arnold Begay, were MacDonald supporters, officials on both sides said.

Four of the other 10 hospitalized suffered gunshot wounds, and the others were treated for cuts and other injuries, said Rosalyn Curtis of the Indian Health Hospital in nearby Fort Defiance.

According to Goldstein, tribal Police Chief George John was in Washington and pro-MacDonald forces were trying to reinstate former Police Chief Wilbur Kellogg.

In January, MacDonald was accused during U.S. Senate hearings of accepting kickbacks and personally sharing in the $7.2 million profit realized by non-Indian businessmen who sold the tribe a ranch for $33.4 million in July 1987. He was placed on administrative leave by the Tribal Council on Feb. 13.

After a rally at the home of a MacDonald booster about a mile from the government buildings, a throng of 300 members of the MacDonald-backing Pro-Dineh Voters group and others marched or drove early Thursday evening to the seat of government.

Proposed center seen as boost to area tourism

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

BIG SPRING — In an effort to attract more visitors and their dollars to Big Spring, the Convention and Visitors Bureau wants the city council to approve construction of an information center on Interstate 20.

The center, which would be located on the parking lot of Rip Griffin's Truck Stop, has a proposed start-up cost of about $58,000 for the first year, according to Toni Eagle of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. Operating costs thereafter would be around $38,000 annually, she estimated.

The center would be staffed by three salaried employees; one full-time and two part-time, she said.

The Chamber has already made contacts concerning acquisition of a caboose to house the center, and Eagle said the center would be operable as soon as possible after council approval is received.

Under the Chamber's proposal, the center would be entirely financed through city occupancy taxes.

Eagle said two benefits would be derived from an information center on I-20.

"With people stopping at the center and getting information, motel occupancy and tourism dollars for the city would greatly increase," she said.

"An indirect benefit to the center would be that it would give us a good foothold as far as leads for future business expansion goes," Eagle added. "We could pick up some information and get leads on the future economic development of Big Spring.

A local motel manager agreed with Eagle that the center would be of benefit to the city.

"The information center would most definitely help with those people who go straight through Big Spring," Days Inn Manager Jan Howard said. "The potential of getting those people to stop is far greater with the center. If you get people to stop, you have a chance of them having a meal or utilizing Big Spring's facilities."

Having the center at the truck stop parking lot will help in reducing parking congestion. CENTER page 3-A

Pilot had no control in deadly DC-10 crash

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

SIoux CITY, Iowa — United Airlines Flight 232 pilot had almost no control as he struggled to land a DC-10 that had lost an engine fan and sustained holes in the small wing of the tail, investigators said.

The jumbo jet's hydraulic system, which is routed through the tail and allows the pilot to manipulate wing and tail controls, contained no fluid as Capt. Al C. Haynes tried to bring the plane into Sioux Gateway Airport, National Transportation Safety Board officials said Thursday night.

"The aircraft could only be turned to the right. They made three 360-degree turns" before Wednesday's crash landing, NTSB member Jim Burnett said. At least 76 people were killed and up to 43 others were missing and believed dead in the crash. United released the names of survivors Thursday but withheld a list of casualties while relatives were notified.

As workers continued to search wreckage strewn through a cornfield and across a runway, investigators released details of the harrowing last hour of the flight bound for Chicago and Philadelphia from Denver.

The chief flight attendant told the NTSB an explosion rocked the jet over western Iowa, knocking flight attendants to the floor, Burnett said. The attendant, who was unidentified, went into the cockpit and found the flight crew struggling to regain control of the plane, he said.

Not much can be said for session's accomplishments

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — In the end, it ended.
That's about all that can be said for the special session of the Legislature that lurched to a halt Wednesday night after 30 fruitless days of bickering over workers' compensation reform.
This failure followed the 140-day stalemate of the regular session, which ended May 29 with no workers' comp solution. And that impasse had followed a $450,000 study of a workers' compensation system that almost everyone said needed help.

Two days before the special session ended, Gov. Bill Clements judged the session harshly.
"We met here for one purpose and one purpose only, and that's for workers' compensation. If we don't tend to that, then I would term the session an absolute failure," Clements said.

It was the governor who has insisted since January that an overhaul was needed of the system that pays benefits for workers killed or injured on the job.
It is the governor who says lawmakers will be back in November to try, try again.
"The problem is just what it's always been," Clements said.

So is the impasse.
Business says the system is too costly. The House agreed. It wanted to reduce the amount of court involvement in the process of resolving workers' comp disputes between insurance carriers and employees.
Lawyers and organized labor said the system doesn't pay enough, that injured workers have a right to go to trial, and that worker safety in Texas is a disaster.

Their cause won the Senate, which demanded beefed-up job safety provisions and said the House proposals on litigation would make it difficult for an injured worker to receive fair judicial review.
The two chambers negotiated. And negotiated. Then, they negotiated some more.

When the final gavel fell, they still hadn't settled the three biggest differences — how to resolve disputes between the insurance carrier and injured worker when there is a disagreement over benefits, devising a method to calculate those benefits, and job safety.
Maybe the special session was ill-fated from the start.

Police kill hospital gunman

AUSTIN (AP) — Police thought they were close to negotiating a peaceful resolution to a hostage-taking that ended in the death of a man who held a hospital secretary captive at gunpoint.
Terry Lee Primus, 30, of Austin was shot to death by police after taking Marsha Anderson hostage at Seton Medical Center Thursday.
The shooting ended a two-hour standoff that began when Primus seized Ms. Anderson at random in a first-floor office.

Ms. Anderson was not harmed physically, but was shaken up, hospital officials said.
One police officer who spoke on condition of anonymity said tapes of telephone conversations indicated Primus wanted to commit suicide by confronting police.
Primus, police said, made comments such as, "It's going to take a lot of nerve to do what I'm about to do," and "This lady may be the last person I'll ever see. I'm counting on you to do your job."

Deputy Police Chief Ken Williams said Primus, who was not a patient, was killed after charging police officers as he carried a handgun.
"He came out with a gun in hand. As soon as he saw where our officers were located, he pointed the weapon at them, charged towards them, and we ended up shooting him," Williams said.
Seven shots were fired, all apparently by the officers.

Senate panel may delay SSC funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts may be made in the Senate Appropriations Committee to hold up construction funds for the super collider until foreign governments agree to share the cost of the particle accelerator, according to Sen. Bennett Johnston.
But Johnston, a Louisiana Democrat and chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on energy and water development, said he would fight any amendment requiring foreign governments to agree to specific participation.
Johnston said he would oppose the amendment because he does not want to hold up the project, which would be built south of Dallas.

Also, "there's sentiment in our committee to adopt report language which will, in effect, say don't give away the great technological contracts to the Japanese or to any other participant. That's the sentiment of our subcommittee," Johnston said.
Johnston's subcommittee voted Thursday to spend $225 million on the collider in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. The appropriation is $25 million more than the House has approved, but is $25 million less than what President Bush had sought.

Johnston said the $4.4 billion collider is the most important basic research project in the country and pledged to support it in subsequent years.
"It unlocks the secret of what we're made of, what the universe is made of, what energy and matter and all of the basic stuff of the universe is made of, and it's exciting," Johnston said.
Johnston, however, said he has "limited enthusiasm" for sharing the cost of the project with foreign countries.

Other than its good looks, you might think there is nothing unusual about the Arvin Air Cooler. Until you turn it on. When you feel its cooling power, you'll know there is definitely something unusual. Because the Arvin Air Cooler packs more cool than any other comparable product.
Arvin's design innovations (shown above) permit higher air velocity for greater cooling efficiency.
The Arvin Air Cooler is so small and light, you can take it anywhere. Because the Arvin Air Cooler operates with either a water hook-up or its own reservoir, you can use it two ways: freestanding or installed in a window.
And the Arvin Air Cooler is quality built for years of trouble-free service. Its galvanized steel body is protected by POLYBOND, an electrostatically applied, appliance-quality finish that won't crack, chip, tarnish or rust.
Call or stop by and we'll be glad to tell you more about the Arvin Air Cooler. It's the best portable evaporative cooler you can buy. Just what you'd expect from Arvin, the leader in energy-efficient cooling for more than 35 years.

Austin firm to train Soviet officials

AUSTIN (AP) — In an example of the newfound openness in the Soviet Union, a business consulting firm has received a $250,000 contract to teach Yankee management skills to Soviet government officials.

Austin-based Scientific Methods Inc. will begin a series of week-long classes in February at the Kiev Management School, a central training center for top government ministers and managers who oversee more than a dozen state-run agencies.

Paul McDonald, president of the 28-year-old firm, said the classes attempt to realign the "corporate cultures" of Soviet government and industry to include input and criticism from lower-level managers.

Scientific Methods was awarded the contract — the first of its kind aimed at improving the massive Soviet bureaucracy — after a company client introduced McDonald to Kiev officials this spring, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

McDonald predicted the reaction to the program in the Soviet Union will be much like the liberalization of management styles in the United States in the 1960s and 1970s.

"I expect the reaction will be tremendous," he said. "They don't have to unlearn so much, and they're willing to learn."

Sheriff's log

The Howard County Sheriff's Department reported the following incidents:

• Luis Hernandez Jr., 23, 311 Aylyford St., is being held in Howard County Jail after being arrested on a charge of revocation of probation by aggravated assault on a peace officer and resisting arrest.

• Bill Junior Loftis, 37, 1707 Aylyford St., is being held on $7,000 bond after being arrested on a grand jury indictment charging him with possession of a controlled substance.

Senate kills Helms' bid to curb U.S.-PLO contacts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, responding to a last-minute appeal from President Bush, on Thursday killed an amendment that would have sharply restricted the U.S. dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The vote to shelve the amendment offered by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was 75 to 23.

The Senate then turned to consideration of a more-flexible compromise sponsored by the Senate's bipartisan leadership.

The Helms amendment would have halted the U.S.-PLO talks unless the president could certify that the PLO diplomats present for such discussions had no links to terrorist activities in which Americans were killed, injured or kidnapped.

The compromise offered by Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine and Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas would stop the dialogue only if the president knew that one of the PLO negotiators was a direct participant in an act of terrorism and only if Bush chose to advise Congress.

Helms called that "nothing but a fig leaf to permit the State Department to continue to do what they've been doing."

"There's no requirement whatsoever that the president actually advise Congress," Helms said. "It is totally illogical to propose that the president cut off his own funds by advising Congress. Forgive me, dear colleagues, this doesn't even make good nonsense."

Before the Senate acted on the Helms amendment to the State Department authorization bill, which it approved by voice vote early Friday, Bush said the proposal to sharply curb U.S.-PLO dialogue would "interfere significantly with, if not destroy" the U.S. role in the Mideast peace process.

In a letter read to the Senate by Mitchell, Bush said the Helms amendment would be an unwarranted and unconstitutional intrusion into his ability to conduct foreign policy.

"It tells the president whom he can talk to," Mitchell said. "I believe that is a totally unwarranted intrusion." The Maine Democrat read Bush's letter as lawmakers took up the Helms amendment to a $4.6 billion State Department authorization bill.

Helms, however, complained that a compromise drafted by the White House was "so full of loopholes that two Mack trucks could have driven through it abreast."

"It's a very clear choice," he said. "Are we or are we not going to reward terrorists? Are we or are we not going to bestow respectability upon them?"

Mitchell said the issue is not terrorism, which he said every member of the Senate condemns.

Rather, he said, the issues before the Senate are whether there will be a continuing effort to achieve peace in the Middle East and "whether the president of the United States is to be permitted to conduct the foreign policy of the United States."

"Passage of this amendment will end the dialogue with the PLO," said Mitchell.

Earlier, Helms scoffed at White House and State Department complaints that the amendment would disrupt the peace process.

"That is a big roll of baloney," he told the Senate.

"This amendment has terrified the bureaucrats at the State Department to the extent they are climbing the walls and issuing a lot of ridiculous statements," Helms said.

Helms offered the amendment after two unannounced meetings between Robert Pelletreau Jr., the U.S. ambassador to Tunisia, and PLO representative Saleh Khalaf.

Khalaf is accused of masterminding the massacre of Israeli athletes at the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich and is a suspect in the 1973 assassination of the U.S. ambassador to the Sudan, Cleo Noel Jr.

The United States opened talks with the PLO in December after Chairman Yasser Arafat publicly renounced terrorism and accepted Israel's right to exist. Pelletreau has met periodically with PLO officials without evidence of headway toward settling the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Center

ing potential operating costs, Eagle said. Rip Griffin's will provide public facilities and 24-hour security to the site.

In addition, Rip Griffin's will allow the Chamber to "piggy-back" advertisement of the center on the truck stop's billboards, further reducing potential costs, Eagle said.

Big Spring and Howard County annually receive about $22 million from tourism. With the addition of the information center, the potential for more revenue is significant, officials stated.

Hooper Sanders, president of the Area Chamber of Commerce, said he sees a real need for the information center, despite initial misgivings about the project.

"You can count me among those who did not see the potential of this project for our area," Sanders said. "However, the work of this committee... has made a believer out of me. An information center on I-20 will directly benefit our total community with increased opportunities for jobs and visitor dollars. I encourage the mayor and city council to add this project to our arsenal of tools in economic development."

The location, staffing, and potential impact the center might have on the local economy have been researched by a committee created to persuade city fathers to set aside funding for the proposed center.

The committee has submitted a tentative budget draft for the project to the city council.

Committee members are: chairman, Jerry Worthy, Bob Moore, Polly Mays, Susan Knous, Katie Grimes, Jan Howard, Wayne Farrington, Loran McDowell III, David Mitchem, Wayne Moore and Eagle.

Weather

Temperatures dipped into the 40s this morning in New England after heavy rains that drenched parts of the country from Boston to Arizona.

Winds gusting up to 63 mph knocked a mobile home off its blocks Thursday night in the Great Falls, Mont., area, and hail cracked the window of a car.

Thunderstorms were scattered in parts of Arizona and New Mexico, and dust was swept up in 40-mph gusts in Utah.

Rain caused flooding in central Indiana and Centre County, Pa.

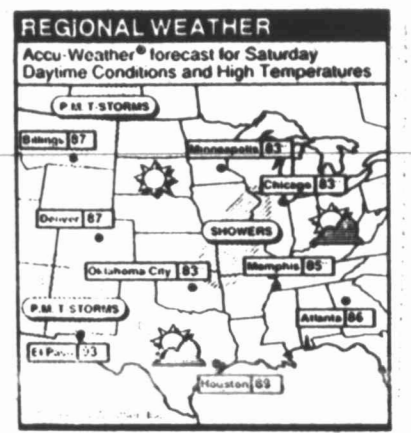

Clear skies spread across most of the Great Plains, but a lone thunderstorm crept Thursday evening from southwest Iowa across Nebraska to northeast Kansas.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending at 2 a.m. EDT included 1.35 inches at Jacksonville, Fla., an inch at Ozark, Ala., 0.77 inches at Chicopee Falls, Mass., and 0.41 inches at Peoria, Ill.

Temperatures this morning were in the 40s and 50s across northern New England and northeastern New York state; and in the 50s in northern Michigan, parts of Nebraska, the Rockies and the Pacific Northwest.

The high temperature in the nation Thursday was 123 degrees at Death Valley, Calif.

The forecast Friday called for showers and thunderstorms from the Atlantic Coast across the Ohio and Tennessee valleys and the Gulf Coast to the lower Mississippi Valley, from western Montana across the plateau region and portions of Arizona and New Mexico to western Texas and along the Washington coast.

Highs were forecast in the 60s and 70s along the Pacific Coast, in portions of New England and from lower Michigan to Missouri; above 100 in eastern Montana, the Great Basin area and interior California; from 105 to 115 degrees in the Desert Southwest; in the 80s and 90s elsewhere.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 42 degrees at Houlton, Maine, to 97 degrees at Glendale, Ariz.

Other reports:
—West: Albuquerque 70 partly cloudy; Anchorage 54 rain; Las Vegas 92 cloudy; Los Angeles 71 foggy; Phoenix 95 partly cloudy; Salt Lake City 79 cloudy.

Oil imports hit 45 percent and rising

WASHINGTON — Foreign oil supplied 45 percent of the nation's oil consumption during the first six months of the year and could hit 50 percent by year's end, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

The oil industry association said foreign suppliers will probably capture an even larger share of the U.S. market unless Congress permits domestic producers to drill for oil in the coastal waters off California and Florida.

Edward Murphy, director of finance for API, said congressional efforts to boost domestic production by offering new tax incentives would do little if the offshore reserves are kept off limits.

"If you can't drill where the oil is, it won't make much difference what the incentives are," Murphy said.

The offshore issue is among the hottest topics in Congress. Both Democrats and Republicans in California have closed ranks to oppose offshore drilling along that coast while a similar coalition has blocked oil lease sales in the Florida Keys.

President Bush promised during his 1988 campaign to delay any offshore leases until extensive environmental studies have been completed. He appointed a special task force to review the issue earlier this year.

Congressional lawmakers have not waited for the results, however, and the House approved another one-year moratorium on offshore drilling earlier this month. The Senate is expected to take similar action.

Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan criticized the moratorium in a speech before the Western Govern-nor's Conference this week, saying Congress was also blocking research and environmental studies to determine if drilling is possible.

"By imposing moratoria, Congress is saying that we should blindly reject even the possibilities before us," Lujan said, arguing that offshore drilling is environmentally safer environmentally than shipping oil in tankers.

Murphy said domestic crude oil production has fallen to 7.6 million barrels a day, down 1.5 million barrels a day from 1986 production levels.

Although oil prices have risen from $13 a barrel to $19 a barrel, Murphy said domestic producers have not revived some capped production because they are uncertain the higher prices will hold steady or increase.

The homeless of the world

During the last decade, the globe's population of refugees more than trebled, from 4.6 million to 14.4 million. As the flood of refugees has risen, so has resistance by most industrialized nations to accepting asylum seekers escaping from political persecution or economic deprivation.

Consequently, millions of displaced persons have been piling up in squalid, makeshift camps from Southeast Asia to the Rio Grande Valley.

In Thailand, for example, 300,000 refugees from Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos are being detained behind barbed wire — in some cases for a decade, now — with nowhere to go. On a tiny island off Hong Kong, some 5,000 Vietnamese boat people are stranded, living in cramped cubicles stacked three high. In south Texas, authorities earlier this year had to relocate the offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service after thousands of Central Americans, mostly from Nicaragua, camped out amid unsanitary conditions seeking to apply for asylum.

The 1951 United Nations convention on refugees grants refugee status to anyone who suffers "a well-founded fear of persecution for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group or political opinion." The 6 million Afghans waiting out the war in settlements in Pakistan fit this definition and constitute 41 percent of the world's refugee population.

For decades, a number of Western nations, led by the United States, have provided asylum to victims of persecution on a case-by-case basis. Now, however, the deluge of refugees displaced by civil wars, ethnic clashes, and other conflicts has made some countries, particularly in Western Europe, reluctant to accept even persons who clearly would face persecution or death if returned to their homelands.

An even larger problem, though, are the millions of homeless persons whose plight is economic, not political.

The United States remains one of the few countries willing to accept large numbers of impoverished immigrants searching for a better life. (Under the 1986 immigration reform act alone, legal residency was extended to 3.1 million workers who immigrated to the United States illegally.) But in Western Europe and elsewhere, the doors are closing even as the numbers seeking economic opportunity in the affluent industrialized countries are steadily growing, with an endless stream of other desperately poor people behind them.

This dismaying resistance to provide for the world's homeless has been aptly labeled "compassion fatigue." The only permanent solution to the global refugee crisis is the long-term economic development of the Third World. But the rich countries also need to be far more generous in accepting political refugees, in particular, and in supplying humanitarian relief and relocation assistance to the millions of economic refugees who are left without a home in any country.

Sidney Hook — A man for his time

By GEORGE F. WILL

WASHINGTON—Sidney Hook, the political philosopher whose exemplary life ended last week in its 87th year, was a combative man who died knowing that his side had won. It is wonderful to lead a life such that your autobiography is a survey of the intellectual vitality of your time.

Such is Hook's "Out of Step: An Unquiet Life in the Twentieth Century." Hook liked to say that passions make for keen observations but defective conclusions. His is the story of a reasonable man's passions and a passionate man's reasonableness.

Born in Brooklyn and educated at City College when New York was intellectually vibrant, he was young when the Russian Revolution was, and like many intellectuals of his generation he read in that Revolution an ethical imperative. However, he was too good a philosopher not to soon reject Marxism, and too honest a man not to be energized against the mentality required of those who support a false philosophy for political purposes. From the mid-1930s on, his life had the golden thread of anti-totalitarianism.

In the 1930s he was a leader, with John Dewey, in exposing Stalin's show trials that preceded the assassination of Leon Trotsky. One of Hook's students, who occasionally visited Trotsky in Mexico, was one day in New York given a ticket to Paris by another leftist who claimed to be unable to use the ticket. In Paris, there was a "chance" meeting with a dashing "Belgian" who charmed her. Actually, he was a Spaniard, Ramon Mercador, who used Hook's student to insinuate himself into Trotsky's household, then murdered him.

In the 1940s, with Raymond Aron and others, Hook combated the communist and fellow-travelers' hegemony in cultural institutions.

George F. Will

In the 1950s, he was fiercely anti-communist and anti-McCarthyite. He paid a price in personal relations for being prematurely correct about so many things. It would have been nice, but uncharacteristic, for his critics to denounce Stalin before Khrushchev did.

Once in the 1960s — like the 1930s, a low, dishonest decade — Hook was in an audience for a lecture by Herbert Marcuse, a bad philosopher and darling of the New Left. It was Marcuse's usual harangue against the "repressive tolerance" of American culture and the "bourgeoisement" of American workers.

Hook asked: Did not the Voting Rights Act and other improvements in the civic standing of blacks indicate America's capacity for improvement? Marcuse answered that such improvements were useless because blacks were choosing the tawdry middle-class values of American civilization. Hook asked: "Which would you prefer, a situation in which the blacks had no freedom to vote or one which they had the freedom to vote but chose wrongly?" Marcuse replied: "Since I have gone so far out on the limb, I may as well go all the way. I would prefer that they did not have the freedom to vote if they are going to make the wrong use of their freedom."

Using logic to saw off such limbs was Hook's life work. In the 1970s, he was a critic of the detente that preceded the surge of Soviet expansionism.

In the 1980s, he was a critic of reverse discrimination, saying his opposition "goes back to the days and words of Hubert Humphrey." Hook, like Humphrey, was a liberal whom liberalism left by turning left.

Engagement in political controversies has often been fatal to the quality of intellectuals' work and to intellectual integrity. Hook showed that it need not be so. Most of the participants in his controversies are gone and it is hard to recollect the intensity of the arguments. If many of the controversies seem far removed from the way we live, thank Hook and others like him. Their efforts at intellectual hygiene helped make many maniacalities into mere museum pieces of intellectual history, rather than the orthodoxies of regimes.

Marx's grave in London's Highgate Cemetery bears Marx's words: "The philosophers have only interpreted the world, in various ways: the point, however, is to change it." Marx, having misinterpreted reality, changed the world for the worse. Hook helped better it by understanding that the great argument is not between capitalism and socialism (an avalanche of evidence settled that) or between religion and secularism (Hook was a secularist), but between friends and foes of freedom.

"The older I become," he wrote at 85, "the more impressed I am with the role of luck or chance in life." The biggest intrusion of chance is the earliest. It decides when and where one is born. America and Hook were mutually lucky 86 years ago in Brooklyn. At the end, the author of "Out of Step" found himself in step with his century — or it with him. That satisfaction, not accorded many, was hard-earned by Sidney Hook.

Sweet revenge, Southern style

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

A reader named Louise Penberthy of Atlanta, who described herself as a Northerner, was concerned about a recent column in which it was my intent to get even with some dimwit in Chicago who circulated a bogus "Application to Live in North Carolina." This putrid piece went the rounds among the employees of Sears in Chicago after it was rumored the company might be moving to Charlotte.

The move has since been called off, but it was a nasty little thing, the bogus application. As a Southerner, it offended me.

The application dealt in numerous Southern stereotypes and in my offended and wounded state, I decided to do the only sensible thing. Take revenge.

So I wrote a column dealing in Northern stereotypes (Northern women don't shave their legs, etc.), and reader Penberthy responded: "As a Northerner, I was appalled to read the nasty stereotypes put forth by Northerners concerning Southerners." However, there was no reason for you to turn around and do what you decried so loudly and at such length.

Lewis Grizzard

Au contraire — which is French for an American word involving the horned bovine.

In the first place, taking revenge is the best way I know to get even, and getting even is one of life's greatest pleasures.

After I wrote the aforementioned column, my spirits lifted and I celebrated by burning a copy of The New York Times, which the Supreme Court recently ruled was OK as long as you weren't pregnant and thinking of having an abortion.

In the second place, the stereotyping and insulting balance has hung in favor of the North for over a century.

It was H.L. Mencken who described the South as an "intellectual Gobi," or words to that effect. (You aren't reading George Will here.)

I was reading a book recently by a man from the North who traveled the country by train. In one section, he dismissed the South as the rest of the country's "poor cousin."

Southerners have been called rednecks, hicks, hillbillies and worse. We've been humiliated in movies that depict us as one great collection of drawing, drooling, dregs of the earth.

And I'm tired of all that, so no matter what Louise Penberthy has to say, I wasn't about to miss out on the opportunity to demonstrate two can play the game of peering-down-a-nose.

Charlotte's a nice town. The roads are paved there and I doubt a single resident allows pigs in his or her home.

You can even fly nonstop to London from Charlotte. There's a major league basketball franchise there, and from the mountains in the west to the shore in the east, North Carolina is filled with good people who do not deserve the treatment that came out of Chicago.

Suddenly my spirits are lifted again. One of my neighbors in Atlanta is originally from Milwaukee. I think I'll go over to his house and kick his dog.

The new Soviet revolution

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

MOSCOW — It's 1776 in the Soviet Union. The United States and France have already celebrated the bicentennials of their respective democratic revolutions. But what the Soviets lack in timing, they more than make up for with enthusiasm.

Political dissidents and ethnic minorities are demanding more glasnost and perestroika than Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev had in mind. The Baltic States are agitating for autonomy. Elsewhere in the Soviet Union, democratic expression has taken the form of violent protests.

There is a sense here that openness may be short-lived, and the Soviets we met — officials, dissidents and common citizens alike — seem eager to exercise their new freedom of speech before they lose it. There is a compulsion to tell the truth. They volunteer confessions about the atrocities of the past and criticisms of the present government.

Soviets have good reason to spill their emotions now because they may be gagged again. The hardliners who oppose Gorbachev's reforms are warning bitterly that freedom could lead to anarchy. The democratic reforms have brought to the surface social, political, ethnic and economic conflicts that could tear the Soviet Union apart.

Every nation should belong to the people who inhabit it, but the "people's republics" of the communist world are ruled by an elite. They govern in the name of, but without the consent of, the people.

No government is likely to agree to its own termination, and the communist regime that rules the Soviet Union is no exception. Gorbachev's reforms have caused repercussions that he didn't anticipate. But he reportedly believes that perestroika, like pregnancy, cannot be done half-way.

On his recent tour of China, Gorbachev witnessed a preview of what could happen here. The scenario was familiar: China's aging leader, Deng Xiaoping, introduced economic reforms that stirred demands for political reforms. When the outcry threatened party rule, he ruthlessly suppressed the demonstrations.

Gorbachev closely watched and analyzed the tumultuous events in China. Our sources think that if Gorbachev had been in Deng's place, he would have granted more political freedoms. His strategy is to endure the ups and downs of perestroika and adjust to the changes.

But Gorbachev concedes this much to his critics in the Kremlin: Too much freedom could fracture the Soviet Union into 15 independent republics. He has no intention of allowing perestroika to go that far.

The winds of democracy, meanwhile, have swept a new parliament into Moscow. It is still called the Supreme Soviet, but it is nothing like the old one that used rubber-stamp party policies.

The new Supreme Soviet is exploding with democratic debate. At first, the refreshingly contentious sessions were watched on live television by so many people that Soviet productivity dropped off by 20 percent. The authorities had to shut off the television cameras so people would go back to work.

The parliamentary chambers still ring with open debate. The voices of opposition are heard loud and clear. But Gorbachev has developed a simple device for controlling democracy in the Supreme Soviet. When the people's elected representatives start to speak the unspeakable, he turns off their microphones.

RIDING HIGH — The Commerce Department keeps a fleet of limousines that sit around burning up money. Federal investigators recently inspected the motor pool and found that the chauffeured limos were being used about 20 percent of the time. Many of the government drivers are idling their time away. When the cars were on the road, they usually carried bureaucrats to places that are within Washington's central taxi zone, where the fare is $3. In contrast, the taxpayers spend about $30 every time a limo pulls out of the Commerce garage. The cars were often used after hours when the drivers were on overtime.

Bush lobbying for stealth funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is stepping up his lobbying campaign for the B-2 stealth bomber even as a key House Democrat is calling for a "cold turkey" freeze on funds for the plane.

House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Thursday that Congress needs more information on the costly radar-evading plane before deciding whether to kill it or spend more money.

"The problem this year is... we don't really know what we got," he told reporters.

Bush got personally involved in his administration's push Thursday, calling Aspin and other members of the House Armed Services and Appropriations committees to the White House. He pressed them to back his budget proposals for the B-2, as well as the strategic defense initiative, the MX missile and the Midgetman missile.

Another session was scheduled today for members who were unable to attend Thursday's session.

The House and Senate are scheduled to vote next week on those programs and a package of Pentagon cuts the administration proposed to meet a $10 billion reduction target in the defense budget agreed to by congressional and administration negotiators.

Teacher pay shows little increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Average teacher salaries are at an all-time high this year but still amount to just $737 above 1972 levels when adjusted for inflation, the American Federation of Teachers said today.

The union released an annual 50-state survey that put the average 1988-89 salary at $29,629. That compares with a $9,705 average salary in 1972, which translates into $28,892 in 1988 dollars, according to the group.

AFT President Albert Shanker said the bottom line is that all the raises teachers have received between 1972 and 1989 amount to about $41 a year.

"That's obviously not enough to pay a mortgage or provide for one's family, and it's certainly not enough of an incentive to enter teaching," he said in a statement.

The AFT survey, based on information from state education departments, showed that the average teacher salary has increased 5.5 percent over 1987-88. Alaska had the highest average salary at $41,832 while South Dakota was at the bottom with $20,525.

Bush nominee losing support

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Lucas is losing ground in his bid to become the Bush administration's civil rights enforcer, with a key lawmaker executing a stunning about-face one day after delivering his support.

"It obviously hurts the Lucas candidacy — how much I can't quantify," Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said Thursday after Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., told the Senate Judiciary Committee he could no longer support the nominee.

As civil rights leaders renewed criticism of the nominee, committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., said he was not satisfied with Lucas' testimony and added he was inclined to oppose the nominee when the committee votes, perhaps as early as next Thursday.

Lucas, 61, a former Wayne County, Mich., sheriff and county executive, is seeking confirmation as assistant attorney general

Philippine airliner crashes on highway

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A Philippine Airlines plane carrying 98 people today overshot a runway, plowed into a concrete wall and bounced onto a highway, killing at least eight people on the ground, officials said.

The dead were crushed in their cars when the twin-engine BAC1-11 jet careened onto Manila's 12-lane South Expressway, said witnesses and officials at nearby hospitals. The plane then came to rest on a railroad track.

Airline spokesman Enrique Santos said 91 people were injured, four critically. The critical injuries occurred on the ground, Santos said. Eighty-five people on the plane, including two crew members, were hurt, he said.

Santos said the plane was arriving in Manila from Zamboanga City, 540 miles southeast of the capital, when it crashed at about 3:23 p.m. (3:23 a.m. EDT).

Air traffic controllers said the pilot, Capt. Ricardo Misa, reported that visibility was poor because of heavy rain and that he could see only half the runway as he approached.

"It was raining at the time, but weather conditions were above the minimum for landing, so he was cleared to land," Santos said. "He landed and he ran out of runway."

The aircraft overshot the runway, hit the ground, crashed through a concrete highway wall and bounced across the road.

"We came down and went up again about 150 feet. Then we went down again very steeply," said passenger Beverly Spilman, a British teacher who works in Austria and is vacationing in the Philippines. "I did see we were nearing the end of the runway... then we hit the highway, plowed through a railroad track and landed on the opposite side of the highway."

Spilman, who spoke to reporters at the Manila airport clinic, suffered minor cuts.

"We landed, three, four, five, six times on the runway. We were actually bouncing," said David Tillson, a tourist from Tacoma, Wash.

Another passenger, Roberto Mendoza, cried as he recounted in a radio interview how he thought he was going to die.

"People started shouting. We were expecting that at any moment the plane would explode," he said. "When it stopped, the windows shattered and I jumped out. I thought I landed on the wings but then I found out it was the roof of a house."

Part of the belly of the British Aircraft Corp. jet was ripped open.

Officials closed the highway to facilitate the rescue operation, which was hampered by the heavy rain and traffic jams on streets leading to the scene.

Warning issued to Hong Kong

BEIJING (AP) — China said today it will not tolerate continued support by Hong Kong residents for the mainland's crushed democracy movement and that Hong Kong will be allowed to remain capitalist only if it stops interfering.

The warning was made in a strongly worded commentary in the Communist Party newspaper, the People's Daily, that apparently was written by a high-level official. It immediately triggered widespread publicity in the tiny British colony, scheduled to return to Chinese rule in 1997.

"We will not allow people to use Hong Kong as a base for subverting the central people's government, this has been the Chinese government's consistent policy," it declared.

The commentary noted that China has promised the enclave can remain capitalist for at least 50 years, but said: "Not engaging in activities to overthrow (the Chinese government) is a precondition for allowing (Hong Kong) to retain its capitalist system."

It also said any participation by Hong Kong residents in affairs of the mainland would have to be in keeping with mainland laws.

Hundreds of thousands of usually apolitical Hong Kong residents joined in protest marches and petition drives after the June 3-4 army attack on pro-democracy student protesters in Beijing and other Chinese cities.

Tour offers views of vandalism

LONDON (AP) — A new tour of London will skip Big Ben and focus on dark alleys, smashed windows and graffiti-scarred walls — places where vandals ply their questionable craft.

The less-than-scenic tour is part of the "Vandal Trail," a seminar designed to help building trades workers, civil servants and others battle vandalism, organizers said Thursday.

"A guide will take them to typical danger spots like unlit alleys, underpasses and underground garages and show them examples of damage," said

Hony Snell, spokesman for the Building Center, a study institute run by the construction industry.

"There is lots of vandal damage to see in London: graffiti sprayed on walls, smashed doors and houses in housing projects, broken glass in telephone booths and bus shelters and smashed park benches," she said.

Speakers at the free Sept. 13 seminar will include a psychologist who has studied vandals, a crime prevention expert and an architect who designed vandal-proof buildings and fittings.

Siberian miners return to work

PROKOPYEVSK, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Coal miners in Siberia ended their strike today after exacting promises of better food, housing and working conditions, but the wave of unrest they launched continued in other key coal regions.

Some of the 150,000 miners who went on strike last week in Siberia's Kuznetsk coal basin region returned to work Thursday and the rest went back today, strike leaders and the official Tass news agency said.

Despite announcements that President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's sweeping concessions — including granting miners greater control over their industry — apply nationwide, tens of thousands remained off the job elsewhere.

Strikes continued in Russian republics, the Ukraine, the northern city of Vorkuta and the Karaganda coalfields of Soviet Central Asia, official media said.

Debate looms as everyone wants share of federal highway funds

WASHINGTON — Faced with run-down roads, rickety bridges and burgeoning bumper-to-bumper traffic, everyone from truckers to township clerks wants more highway money.

Although federal highway programs are scheduled to stay in place until 1991, a handful of lawmakers and interest groups have already begun drawing roadmaps detailing their views of how government funds should be spent in the 1990s.

Spurring the interest of local officials, state transportation planners and a variety of lobbying groups is the prospect of additional federal funds coming available with the pending completion of the $100 billion interstate highway program next decade. "The issue is, when you've got that major system finished, what's next?" said Norm Walzer of Western Illinois University, who studied highway funding for the National Association of Counties.

Almost everyone agrees on the areas that need to be addressed. They include maintenance of existing highways, repair and improvement of rural roads and bridges and relief of suburban traffic congestion woes.

With the scheduled completion of the interstate system, which has been the major federal priority during the past 30 years, lawmakers have a chance to make important changes in highway policy, said Rep. Bud Shuster, R-

Pa. the top Republican on the House Surface Transportation subcommittee.

"If we do our job right, this could be a historic bill," Shuster said.

Despite general agreement on what the problems are, there is less consensus on how to pay for them. The average motorist helps pay for federal highway programs with a 9-cent per gallon gasoline tax. In addition, most states levy their own gas taxes, which average 15.5 cents per gallon.

State gas taxes went up in 18 states and the District of Columbia this year, said Stephen Lockwood, executive director of the Transportation Alternatives Group, a Washington-based transportation research organization.

Lockwood said almost everyone agrees more road and bridge spending is needed and that Congress should be willing to spend the $10.5 billion in unobligated highway money sitting in the federal highway fund.

"Beyond that, there are varying views as to whether there should be a federal gas tax increase or whether there shouldn't be, and how states and local governments should increase revenues," he said.

Nevertheless, the nation's roads and bridges face an expensive series of problems that the anticipated extra federal funds won't be able to cover alone, said Lester Lamm of the Highway Users Federation.

At the center of the coming tussle over highway dollars is the federal aid program for highways, which spent $10.5 billion in fiscal 1988 on interstate programs, bridge maintenance and a variety of other road programs.

Federal funds are disbursed to states, whose policies for determining how local road projects are funded vary widely, with some states deciding which projects get funded and others passing money along to cities or counties.

About $4.6 billion of 1988 federal highway funds were earmarked for interstate construction or maintenance. The remaining $4.1 billion went to help states, cities and counties pay for building and maintaining roads and bridges.

Overall federal, state and local spending on highways totaled $66.4 billion in 1987, but experts say that money isn't targeted to handle new problems facing the nation's road networks.

Those problems include the deterioration of rural roads caused by heavy truck traffic serving customers who once depended on railroads. An estimated $5 billion will be required annually for the upkeep of the interstate system.

In addition, the condition of the nation's bridges is causing alarm among local officials. The most recent study by the Federal Highway Administration found that 16 percent of the nation's most heavily traveled bridges don't meet existing design or safety standards.

Aspen groups wants to ban bans

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — A group of Aspen residents is fed up with restrictions and insists its time to "ban the bans."

Aspen has one of the state's toughest laws on smoking in public places. Residents recently considered bans on air-conditioned rental cars and sales of fur and ivory.

"What is next?" asked furrier employee Mark Kirkland. "Red meat? Leather? Eggs?" Kirkland is president of the Aspen Concerned Citizens coalition, a newly formed group that believes the local government's time and money is being wasted on global concerns. The group maintains that Aspen leaders should be focused on more provincial issues such as housing, parking and transportation problems.

"How in the world can they tell people what they should or shouldn't buy, what they should or shouldn't sell?" Kirkland added. "I think it is a ridiculous infringement on civil liberties."

Panel approves drugs for poor AIDS victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee on Thursday approved a three-year program to provide low-income AIDS victims with life-prolonging drugs.

If enacted, the measure would avert disruptions that have marked the current program, which has been funded by a series of one-time appropriations over the past two years.

The three-year program was proposed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and approved as part of the main budget bill, which gives it better chances of full passage than if it stood alone.

The measure would authorize $30 million for fiscal year 1990 for distribution to states based on reported AIDS cases. States would have to match the federal funding.

The money would be used to help low-income AIDS victims buy AZT, currently the only government-approved drug to treat acquired immune deficiency syndrome, and other drugs that prolong life or prevent serious deterioration of health resulting from the fatal disease.

Kennedy said that including the measure in a huge deficit-reducing bill ensures that it will be considered "before another abrupt termination of assistance to those whose lives depend on this program."

The current program is due to expire Sept. 30. It was continued last March when the Bush administration granted an 11th-hour request from Kennedy and other senators to transfer $5 million in federal AIDS funds into the program.

The committee approved the reauthorization budget bill on an 87-7 vote. The panel did not vote separately on Kennedy's measure, a committee staffer said.

Hotel ideal habit for peregrine falcons

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The number of pigeons in this gambling capital will likely decrease soon, but it has nothing to do with changing casino odds. The Nevada Department of Wildlife has introduced four pigeon-eating peregrine falcons in the urban jungle, roosting comfortably on the top of the Las Vegas Hilton hotel-casino.

The endangered birds of prey, now about 40 days old, were hatched in Reno and flown to Las Vegas, where they took up residence 300 feet above the ground on July 5.

"It might sound like some silly publicity stunt, but actually the Hilton is a tremendous man-made cliff that very much resembles what might be found in a natural environment for these birds," Wildlife Department spokesman Geoff Schneider said Friday.

"A second advantage is there's lots of prey around — domestic pigeons, grackles... and there are no real predators to eat them. They've even got overhangs for shade on the building."

"We want to do this every year until we have a pair that will come back to nest there," Schneider said. "We're trying everything to save this species, which is making a comeback after almost becoming extinct."

Real-life private eyes not so glamorous

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The glamorous and grimy private eye of detective novels and mystery movies doesn't exist, according to an organization of investigators who say they're no Sam Spades or Jim Rockfords.

"The private investigator has always had the image of a carefree, devil-may-care individual, someone who sometimes skirts the law," said Alan Crowe, an investigator from Portland, Ore.

But that image doesn't stick to a private eye's trenchcoat, or whatever kind of coat they wear chasing down the mundane details they say make up the bulk of their work.

"People think we're a bunch of ex-police officers," said Kitty Robinson, an investigator from Haddonfield, N.J. "with a brush cut, a pot belly, a double-knit polyester suit with two rows of white stripes in a green background, and chafe marks under the left arm to show people we've been wearing a gun."

Robinson and Crowe are among 225 members of the National Convention of Legal Investigators meeting this weekend in Philadelphia to network, attend seminars and conduct testing for a continuing program of certification.

Most of their work is too tedious to make a best-seller, the investigators said.

Characters change with times

BOSTON (AP) — They still have titles like "Tender Conquest," "Prince of Fire," and "The Lion's Lady," but the characters of romance novels have undergone a subtle transformation, say the women who create them.

Heroines, once repressed, virginal and more likely to surrender to sex than initiate it, are now likely to be more assertive on the job and in the bedroom.

Even more alarming, for those who like their women meek and virtuous and their men rough-and-ready, is the unmistakable sensitivity creeping into what was once the brooding, dangerous hero of the past.

"The men used to be misogynistic, sadistic types, now they're sometimes sweet, nice guys who own hardware stores," said romance writer Anne Stuart Ohlrogge, 41, of Greensboro, Vt., who has published 32 titles in 15 years.

Exhaustively descriptive sex, taboo in the romance novels of the 1940s and 50s, is said to have peaked in 1986. Predictions for the 1990s hold that such novels will return to gentler feelings and familial values.

But traditionalists can take heart, according to some of the nearly 1,000 romance writers, editors, agents and booksellers who were gathered in Boston today for the ninth annual Romance Writers of America national conference.

Some staples of romance book fare, they say, will never change.

Couples will always live "happily ever after," said Laura Parker, 40, of Dallas, who has published 16 books.

The only concession to more complex times is that "there are some loose ends that don't get tied up," Ohlrogge said.

And the love scenes are as likely to contain as many smoldering looks, heaving bosoms and ripped bodices as before.

"Graphic, flaming love sex is always a turn-on and once the characters start, there's nothing an author can do to stop them," said Helen Mittermeyer, 59, of Rochester, N.Y., who sold the first of her 34 books in 1980.

Mittermeyer said her career flourished during the Reagan era, although it was a time when "Reagan stifled everything," and work and careers took precedence over matters of the heart.

BOSTON — Author Helen Mittermeyer of Rochester, N.Y., stands at a book display of romance novels Thursday in Boston at the 9th Annual Romance Writers of America conference. She holds three of her 34 published books.

"I think we have to push against the tide," said Mittermeyer. "We're not going to be smothered. There's been this macho, bogus career attitude. But there's real feeling under all that."

Some writers at the convention said they have to ignore politics and reality to concentrate on creating the kind of characters they want.

"I didn't want to read 'Women Who Love Too Much,'" said Ohlrogge, referring to a recent self-help book for women. "I was afraid it might hurt the way I write."

Romance book editors at the convention said the industry has changed along with its authors and books.

Hilary Ross, associate executive editor of New American Library, remembers the years when "Gothics were big and we had all those student nurse books. And I can recall when we couldn't write about Australia or the Middle Ages. Now the Middle Ages are in."

Gothics are now "out" and heroines are more likely to be doctors than nurses, Ross said.

"Ten years ago, we had heroines who would faint," said Ross. "Now they're much more feisty."

Committee's decision angers abortion foes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anti-abortion forces in Congress are preparing to battle a House panel's decision to lift abortion funding restrictions for the District of Columbia.

The House Appropriations District of Columbia subcommittee voted Thursday to allow the city to use its own money to pay for Medicaid-funded abortions.

The district had financed abortions from 1980 until last year, when congressmen attached an amendment to the city budget banning the use of federal or local money for abortions.

Abortion opponents quickly said Thursday they will try to restore the ban when the city's budget reaches the House floor.

City officials, who have called the anti-abortion measure an intrusion on their right to self-governance, said they will fight efforts to renew it.

Area briefs

RV club to meet July 28 and 29

The West Texas-Eastern New Mexico regional chapter of the National Lovers of America RV Club will meet July 28 and 29 in Big Spring at the recreational vehicle campground on Hwy. 87.

All singles, including widows, widowers, divorced or otherwise unmarried persons of all ages are invited to join the "Sage Brush Lovers."

Members meet every two months, with time and place to be announced at each meeting.

Officers are: Estelle Wallace, president, Lubbock; and Rosalee Wilhoit, secretary/treasurer, Lovington, N.M.

Local members who are working on this rally are Mildred Sevey, 263-8864, and Frankie Coleman, 263-2484.

Johnson is named best loser

TOPS Tx. 21 Club met Tuesday at Canterbury South. Shirley Jenkins, who called the meeting to order, led the group in songs.

Jana Smith led the TOPS pledge. Edith Roberts, weight recorder, called the roll and 20 members answered by sharing their weight loss for the week.

Kathy Johnson, who was recognized as best loser for two consecutive weeks, received $1 and a "best loser" certificate for each week.

Visitors, Lynn Criswell and Eunice Nix were welcomed. Jane Gilmore was received as a new member.

Members voted on a new contest, which will be a "money tree." Each member will place $1 on the tree to participate. Weight gainers will be eliminated each week and the person going the most weeks without a weight gain will win all the money. Frank Sikes will be in charge of this contest.

Edith Roberts presented a program on the TOPS method of weight loss.

Anyone interested in learning more about TOPS, please contact Shirley Jenkins at 263-0391, or Virginia Collins at 263-1340.

Teen appointed representative

Shawna Tidwell, past worthy advisor of Big Spring Assembly #10, was appointed as "Grand Representative from Hawaii to Texas," Grand Assembly of Texas, I.O.R.G. at the Grand Assembly Session of the Annual Meeting held in Fort Worth in June.

SHAWNA TIDWELL

Shawna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Tidwell and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tidwell and Mrs. Faye Rice.

A sophomore at Big Spring High School, Shawna is an honor student and member of the National Junior Honor Society. She is active in sports, a member of the volleyball and track teams.

Shawna was an officer in the Minnie Singers Choir from 1988-89. She attends Wesley United Methodist Church, where she is a member of the youth group.

Woman to celebrate birthday

Mrs. Fannie Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McClanahan, will celebrate her 90th birthday Monday at her home with friends and family.

FANNIE KENT

1959, she married Vernon Kent in 1963.

Despite several illnesses and surgeries, she still leads an active life. According to family members, she has four children, 10 grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren, two great-great and one fifth generation grandchild.

Mrs. Kent was in retail sales for 17 years, was 50-year member of the Home Extension Club, Rebekah Lodge, Order of the Eastern Star, Senior Citizens and a member of First Methodist Church.

Angel presents club program

Howard County Lionesses met Monday at Wesley Methodist Church, Monday, with President Kay Clark presiding.

Nancy Dickens gave the invocation and led the pledge.

Betty Schramm introduced Annie Matt Angel who gave the program.

Angel, who said "the greatest medicine and cure that's been found is laughter," gave a humorous talk as she quoted Jerry Clower, Erma Bombeck and Robert Schular books. Schoenfield presented her with a gift of appreciation.

The treasurers report and the proposed budget, which had been approved by the board, was given by Leta Kirby.

Jan Noyes reported on the International Convention, held in Miami, Fla. that she and Lion Governor Bob Noyes attended recently.

Members discussed the adoption project.

A plaque of appreciation was presented to Leta Kirby and Connie Ramirez for their services rendered since the club was chartered.

Kay Clark gave her goals for 1989 and 1990, and Pat Dupree reported on the audit.

A visit to the Lion's Camp at Kerreville was reported on by Jay Noyes.

Lions observe anniversary

The man who once headed the world's largest service organization saluted the Downtown Lions Club on its 60th anniversary Tuesday evening.

"Your club is proof that the key to success is individual involvement," declared Everett J. Grindstaff, Ballinger, who served as president of the 1,300,000-member world-wide Lions International.

Officers also were installed during the festivities at Howard College.

Dan Conley provided a display of scores of pins from Lions districts around the world.

Grindstaff called attention to the rapid winds of change and challenged the club to "think globally, but act locally." Real effectiveness comes from individual involvement mixed with inspired leadership for "belief turns into attitudes that make you successful," he said.

District 2A-1 Gov. Bob Noyes installed the following officers: Lynn Hise, Ford Farris, and Doug Morris, vice president; Hervey Perry, lion tamer; Jean Shots, Donnie Baker and Kirk Davis, tail twisters; Larry Ray, Royce Clay, Howard Salisbury, Ron Plumlee, directors.

Dick Cunningham, president of Big Spring Evening Lions, and Jimmy McCain of Sand Springs Lions, both sponsored by the anniversary club were guests, as was Mrs. Grindstaff.

Children and family secrets

DEAR ABBY: A number of us were having a discussion at work about whether children should be asked to keep family secrets. Since we couldn't agree, I thought I would submit the matter to you.

The subject came up when a co-worker told us that he knew of a little boy whose parents smoked marijuana openly at home. Rather than hide it from the little boy, the parents told him that they didn't think smoking pot was wrong, but many people did, so he was not to tell anyone that his parents smoked pot. It was to be their secret.

Abby, putting aside the question of drug abuse, I think it's wrong to force a child to bear the burden of a family secret — especially a shameful one. Learning right from wrong is hard enough as it is without the notion of an at-home morality and an out-of-home morality. What do you think? — J.C. IN ALAMEDA, CALIF.

DEAR J.C.: These parents are giving their son a dangerous message when they smoke marijuana in his presence and tell him it's OK. It's not OK. Marijuana is illegal in all states. Furthermore, studies have concluded that its habitual use can be physically damaging and psychologically addictive.

I agree, it's unfair to force a child to bear the burden of keeping this kind of family secret.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I love each other and have a very good marriage. However, he twitches, wiggles and thrashes around in his sleep. I happen to be a very light sleeper, and I just don't sleep well with all that going on.

Should we sleep together for convention's sake, or is it all right to sleep apart? We are in our 30s and have two small children. — TIREDD IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR TIREDD: If I had a husband who twitched, wiggled and thrashed around in his sleep, as well as two children to raise, I would opt for twin beds with a single headboard. A tired wife makes a poor bed partner. And a twitcher, wiggler and thrasher is no bargain, either.

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I was a divorcee with a small son to raise alone, so I struggled through three years of nursing school. After graduation, I went to work as a registered nurse in a local hospital.

I met a wonderful man while working at the hospital. We dated for two years, fell in love and were married. We have been married about a year and couldn't be happier.

This wonderful man is a doctor. Don't get me wrong — he is not wonderful because he is a doctor. He is wonderful because he is the kindest, most considerate person I have ever known, and he couldn't be a better father to my son if he were his own flesh and blood.

My problem: People constantly tell me, "I knew you'd 'get' a doctor."

Abby, it is hurtful and offensive that people think I took up nursing to "get" a doctor! I went into nursing because I had to support myself and my son, and the field of nursing appealed to me.

What can I say to these cruel people to shut them up? — MARRIED TO A DOCTOR

DEAR MARRIED: Say nothing. Just because a dog barks doesn't mean you have to answer it.

Anyone with his head on straight knows that the nursing profession is no piece of cake — the training is rigorous and the work is demanding. True, many nurses marry doctors because they meet in the workplace and have a common interest — caring for the sick.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

DEAR ABBY: It never ceases to amaze me how quick people are to argue or debate an issue that has absolutely no relevance. This point is illustrated by the recent flurry of letters you've run regarding whether baseball managers should wear a three-piece suit or the team's uniform. Let's face it, if a manager has such a big potbelly that he looks "ridiculous" in a uniform, would he really look much better in a suit or a bikini? Who cares?

Of far greater importance is the fact that it's impossible to watch a professional baseball game without seeing at least one (and usually several) players with a huge wad of chewing tobacco in their mouths. Not only do they look ridiculous with their faces distorted by the sheer volume of the stuff, the act of chewing and

DEAR ABBY: I have a question about my marital status. After my husband and I were divorced, I legally reclaimed my maiden name. Our daughter uses that name for her school records, medical treatments, etc.

A few years ago, my ex-husband died, so I now call myself "a single parent." However, since I now use my maiden name, what do I say when I go to a hospital and the admissions clerk asks me what my marital status is?

Am I widowed, divorced or single? — EENIE, MEENIE, MINEY

DEAR EENIE: Since your husband died after your divorce, you never were, and are not now, "widowed"; you are divorced.

The Anniversary of a Great Space Event

First Men on the Moon

Astronaut Neil Armstrong shows how he took the first step on the moon. His first words were, "That's one small step for a man... one giant leap for mankind."

At 10:56 p.m. on July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong became the first man to set foot on the moon.

This year, Americans can proudly celebrate the 20th anniversary of this event.

The Apollo 11 crew: Neil Armstrong, mission commander, Michael Collins, command module pilot, and Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin Jr., lunar module pilot.

Astronaut Edwin Aldrin Jr. was the second man on the moon. Armstrong took this picture as Aldrin came down the lunar module's steps. Armstrong and Aldrin collected rocks and did experiments.

The Mini Page thanks the Office of Education at the National Air and Space Museum, Washington, D.C., and NASA for help with this story.

The Apollo 11 Mission

The Apollo 11 mission spacecraft was boosted into space by the Saturn V rocket on July 16, 1969.

1. As each rocket stage fell away, the next stage fired up, or ignited.
2. The command and service modules turned around and docked with the lunar module.
3. The spacecraft orbited the moon. Two astronauts moved to the lunar module.
4. The command/service modules remained in orbit. The lunar module separated.
5. The lunar module landed on the moon. Two astronauts walked on the moon.
6. The top part of the lunar module blasted off from the bottom part.
7. It docked with the command/service modules. The two astronauts returned to the command module.
8. The lunar module was released and the command/service modules returned to Earth.
9. The service module containing rockets and other equipment blasted away.
10. The command module turned around and entered Earth's atmosphere.
11. The parachutes opened and the command module splashed down.

The Moon

This is a photo of the Apollo 11 mission. It shows astronaut Buzz Aldrin with the American flag. Since there is no wind on the moon, the flag had to be wired to stand out.

Our moon is the only planetary body that astronauts have visited. We have made six manned missions to the moon. The first landing was in 1969. The last was in 1972.

There is no air, wind or moisture on the moon. The temperature ranges from 280 degrees Fahrenheit below zero during the lunar night to 260 degrees Fahrenheit above zero during the lunar days.

The moon is very mountainous, rocky and dusty. It has many craters. Some have sides that rise thousands of feet.

The moon turns on its axis in such a way that the same side always faces Earth.

The gravity of the moon is one-sixth that of Earth. The best way to get from place to place is to hop!

Since there is no air on the moon, sound does not carry. The astronauts used radio waves to communicate with each other and Mission Control.

Junior League 'Stars' lose 'ugly'

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Evidently, the Big Spring Junior League All-Stars saved their worst for last as their season ended with a 12-7 licking by Midland National Thursday night at Roy Anderson Complex in District III tourney play.

Normally a solid ballclub, it seemed if as Big Spring could do nothing right. The home team bobbled and stumbled its way to 10 costly errors. Eight walks by three different pitchers didn't help much, either.

There was one small consolation for Big Spring; it outlit Midland 10-6. But Midland hurler Joe Uriquede pitched a masterful game, working out of several jams. Although he and his teammates made four errors, the burly right-hander fanned nine and issued only two walks while going the distance.

Giving Uriquede the most problems was Big Spring infielder-pitcher David Akin. The sly leadoff hitter singled twice, doubled and tripled in four trips to the plate. He stole two bases, including home plate in the seventh inning.

Starting pitcher Todd Parrish singled twice against Uriquede.

On the mound, however, Parrish and Akin had their problems. The two were bombarded for 11 runs on a mere three hits. Seven walks and half-dozen errors doomed them in three innings.

Greg Biddison pitched the final four innings and did a good job, allowing one run on three hits.

Things looked good in the early going, as Big Spring led 3-1 going into the top of the third. Midland scored in the first when Big Spring catcher Brandon Hamblin's pickoff attempt got past third baseman Akin, allowing Brian Rounding to score.

Big Spring tied it in the bottom of the first. Akin got the first of his four hits by beating out a high-chopper in front of the pitcher's mound. Parrish singled and Akin scored on Hamblin's base hit.

In the second, Big Spring broke the tie by adding two more runs. Mike Jones walked and stole second. Jeff Phernetton faked a bunt, then socked a single to right field, scoring Jones.

One batter later, Akin singled to right, scoring Phernetton and giving Big Spring a 3-1 lead.

Unfortunately, it would be the local's last lead of the game.

Midland plated four runs in the third, taking a 5-3 lead. The only hit in the inning was a bunt single by shortstop Joseph Golding.

It was three errors, and two walked-in runs, that hurt Big Spring.

Big Spring made it interesting for the last time by working for a run in the bottom of the inning. With one out, Wes Hughes got an infield hit. A few pitches later, Uriquede's pickoff attempt sailed in to right field. Hughes scored from first, cutting the deficit to 5-4.

But the dam busted in the fourth. Big Spring committed three more errors and the visitors plated their final seven runs. This time Midland got three hits; singles by Abel Sanchez, Rounding and Kerry Doan.

The damage was done, and Midland had a comfortable 12-4 lead.

Big Spring got a run back in the fifth on the feet of Parrish. He singled, stole second and third. He scored when the catcher overthrew the third baseman.

The home team scrapped for two final runs in their last at-bat. Akin again made things happen by rifling a triple into the right-center

STEVE RAMOS

Hawks sign infielders

Howard College assistant baseball coach Frank Anderson has been busily recruiting, and has landed two infielders for next year's team.

Committed to Howard are Steve Ramos and Todd Toledo. Ramos hails from Vancouver, Wash. and Toledo is from Boulder, Colo.

Ramos is a 5-8, 160-pounder. He plays second base or shortstop and is a switch-hitter. This past year he batted .448 and was an all-league, player of the year selectee, as well as making the all-state team.

Toledo stands 6-3 and weighs 170. He played for Boulder High School. Coach Anderson says the third baseman-first baseman, "has a chance to be a real good player."

This past season Toledo was first team All-League Centennial League and All-County. He was also a second team all-state selection.

Last year the Hawks were 44-19, earning a spot in the state tournament.

Local favorite thrills crowd

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Festival's swimming competition featured a shining local favorite, the closest team race in festival history and large crowds all three nights.

"It's not a bad way to kick things off," said Clay Bennett, executive director of Oklahoma Centennial Sports Inc., the group putting on this year's festival, which begins officially with tonight's opening ceremonies.

A crowd of 2,382 turned out Thursday night to see Oklahoma City's Trip Zedlitz win his second gold medal and become the men's top scorer in individual events. In all, 5,806 attended the three-day meet at the Oklahoma City Community College Aquatic Center.

The North won the team title with 342 points, only seven more than the runner-up South. The East was third with 323 and the West was fourth with 286.

"We had some glitches the first night, but after that everything ran like clockwork," said Jeff Dimond, information services director for U.S. Swimming.

"I thought we'd have a few more meet records go, but it was so close in a lot of events," he said. "We rewrote the top 10 (festival) times totally. There were a lot of top-3 and top-4 finishes."

The only individual record fell Wednesday, when John Kennedy won the 200-meter freestyle in 1 minute, 53.10 seconds. Festival records also were set Wednesday in the men's 800-meter freestyle relay and the women's 400 freestyle relay.

Zedlitz thrilled the crowd with his victory in the 100 backstroke Thursday night, which gave him two gold medals. His time of 57.86 was .02 seconds faster than Brian Retterer of Sparks, Nev., and was just .35 seconds off the festival record.

"I sort of felt guilty because Brian said it's kind of hard to beat the guy with 2,000 people behind you," Zedlitz said, smiling. "I guess I can handle the guilt — but there's not that much guilt, don't get me wrong."

OKLAHOMA CITY — Mary Edwards, 17, of Portola Valley, Calif., leaps from the starting block during the 100 meter freestyle competition. Edwards won the race to secure her third gold medal in the U.S. Olympic Festival.

Going nowhere fast

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Pete Rose's lawsuit isn't going anywhere fast. Neither is the Cincinnati Reds' manager.

A federal judge in Columbus won't have a decision in Rose's case for at least another 10 days, leaving Rose to manage the Reds under court protection. The investigation of gambling allegations against Rose is five months old — and there's no telling how long it will be before there is a conclusion.

A baseball lawyer who argued the case Thursday before U.S. District Judge John D. Holschuh said a quick resolution isn't baseball's top goal at this point.

"It's more important now that we get this matter straightened out," lawyer Louis Hoynes Jr. said. "Getting this straightened out and getting the right result is more important than the time it takes to get it straightened out."

One thing is certain: the case will drag on at least until the dog days of August.

The next step in the case is a ruling by Holschuh on whether Rose's lawsuit against Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti should be heard in state court, as Rose has requested, or in federal court.

Aussie second round Open leader

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Payne Stewart of the United States broke the course record with a 7-under par 65 today, but it wasn't enough to keep Australian Wayne Grady out of the early second-round lead at the 118th British Open.

On a day of chilly rain and low scores, Tom Watson also was among the leaders. Aiming for a record sixth Open title, the American veteran shot a 4-under par round of 68 that included an eagle at the par-5 16th to move into second-place tie with Stewart at 137, two shots behind Grady.

The play of the leaders was indicative of the whole field. Of the first 45 finishers, 24 were at par or better, and it looked as if the cut for the final two rounds could be as low as 146 — just 2-over par.

Grady, who plays on the U.S. PGA Tour, had a 5-under par round of 67 for a 36-hole total of 135.

That was enough to hold off Watson, the last American champion of the Open in 1983, and Stewart, who never has won a major tournament but has been the most successful American at the Open in those five barren years.

And on a day when unusually warm weather gave way to more traditional British summer fare, he was better for one round than anyone who ever struck a club at Royal Troon.

Stewart's round over the 7,067-yard, par-72 links course included an eagle, six birdies and one bogey. The 65 was one stroke better than the old course mark, tied most recently in Thursday's first round by English surprise Wayne Stephens.

It left Stewart one stroke in front of two journeymen from the European tour, Eduardo Romero and David Feherty, after 36 holes. Stewart held the lead briefly before Grady, playing in the following three, finished his own torrid round.

TROON, Scotland — Britain's Wayne Stephens punches the air after making a birdie on the 17th, going six-under-par to become one of the front runners in the British Open.

Joining Stewart at 137, Watson birdied the second, sixth, 11th and 12th holes, and eagled the 542-yard 16th. He took a bogey-5 at 13 and missed a chance for sole possession of second when he bogeyed the final hole.

Stephens, meanwhile, was holding his own, staying 6-under through 32 holes for the tournament with three birdies and three bogeys in his second round.

But in the gathering gloom of a midsummer day, Stewart outdid all of their rounds.

The 32-year-old Floridian, known as much for the clothes he wears as the golf he shoots, was as sharp as the black-and-white checked plus-fours in which he toured the course.

Starting the day at even-par 72, Stewart birdied the second and fourth holes, then eagled the par-5 sixth — the longest hole in Open golf, a 577-yard monster.

Another birdie came at another famous hole, the par-5 11th known as the Railway. Stewart stayed on track with a birdie-2 at No. 14, bogeyed the par-4 15th, then birdied the 16th and the 18th, capping the record round with a 20-foot putt.

Grady birdied the second, fifth, seventh and eighth, bogeyed the ninth, then birdied Nos. 10 and 11 and matched par from there to the clubhouse.

It was another solid round for the Australian, who recorded his first U.S. tour victory last month at the Westchester Classic.

Weeks of warm sunshine gave way to clouds and drizzle, then to pelting rain as the first half of the 156-player field took to the course.

Norman was in at 139 after a second-round 70, 2-under par.

Winds stayed calm and temperatures were cool, and golfers continued their assault on par by the Firth of Clyde.

Feherty started the second day with birdies on five of the first eight holes and stood 8-under through the first 35. But he then bogeyed the 16th and 18th holes to fall into a tie with Romero, who started the day at 4-under par in a pack one stroke behind Stephens.

Romero bogeyed the first two holes, then got those back with birdies on Nos. 6 and 8 and dipped to 6-under after a second-round 70 with birdies at Nos. 11 and 12.

Zedlitz previously had won the 200 individual medley and finished second in the 200 backstroke. That gave him 25 points (nine for gold, seven for silver, six for bronze) in individual events, the most among the men.

The women's high-point winner was Paige Wilson of Athens, Ga., who won gold medals in the 200 freestyle and 100 butterfly and a bronze in the 200 butterfly. She also won two bronzes on relay teams.

Two swimmers won six medals apiece, Sarah Perroni of Bristol, R.I., and Geoff Cronin of Sunnysvale, Calif. Cronin had gold medals in the 200 backstroke and two relays, picked up two bronzes Thursday night and won a silver in the 100 butterfly.

Perroni won a silver in the 100 freestyle and anchored the South's gold medal-winning 400 medley relay team Thursday night. She had earlier won a gold in the 800 freestyle relay, along with two silvers and a bronze.

Perhaps the most satisfied swimmer was Joey Rossetti of Santa Rosa, Calif. Unlike many of the swimmers competing, Rossetti will not be going to the Long Course Nationals that begin July 31 at Los Angeles. Rossetti won the gold medal in the 200 butterfly Thursday and chopped nearly 1.5 seconds off his best time. He wound up with five medals overall. "It was great to finally win a gold," Rossetti said. "I wasn't sure how I would swim here because my training has not been what I would like over the last year. I was pointing toward this meet and wanted to at least swim to my capabilities."

TUCSON, Ariz. — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman leads a crowd of autograph seekers to chants of "Tyson, Tyson" after he won a unanimous decision against Everett "Big Foot" Martin.

King George goes distance; runs comeback slate to 19-0

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman, whose appearance belies his success, has gone the distance for the first time since starting a comeback two years ago.

Foreman won a 10-round decision Thursday night over Everett "Big Foot" Martin, improving to 19-0 his record since coming out of retirement following a 10-year absence from the ring.

The 40-year-old Houston resident, who weighed in at 256 pounds, has gone the distance only four times, the last against Jimmy Young in a 12-round bout in 1977. "I didn't want to hurt the guy, and I needed to get the rounds," Foreman said. "I wanted to prove that I'm not just a one-round or two-round fighter, that I can go farther."

Foreman earned $50,000 for the fight, while Martin received $15,000. Foreman, 64-2 overall with 60 knockouts, knocked down Martin in the eighth round and dominated the bout before 1,000 at the Tucson Convention Center Arena.

Judge Jerry Maltz gave Foreman a 99-91 edge, Greg Hughes scored it 98-91 and Joe Garcia had it 97-92.

Martin, 228½, of Tyler, Texas, couldn't match Foreman's power as his record dropped to 17-8-1. Martin held his own only in the seventh round, when he connected with several left jabs.

Foreman got control after the second round, landing a series of body punches, and staggered Martin in the third.

Less than a minute into the eighth, Foreman scored with a left and a right upper cut, sending Martin to the canvas for only the second time in his career.

But Martin rebounded with a series of lefts, scoring several times in the remainder of the bout.

A's hurler first to win 14 games

By The Associated Press
 Dave Stewart usually pitches against the Baltimore Orioles like he did against the National League All-Stars — poorly.

That was the case until Thursday night, when Stewart did what he usually does to the rest of the American League.

Stewart won his 14th game, tied for most in the majors, by ending a five-game losing streak to the Orioles in the Oakland Athletics' 5-2 victory.

"On any given day, I'm capable of beating any team in this league," said Stewart, hit hard last week in his All-Star Game start.

Those given days have rarely come against Baltimore, a team that turned Stewart down for a tryout when he was temporarily out of baseball in early 1986. Stewart, a 20-game winner the past two seasons, had not beaten the Orioles since Aug. 29, 1986.

AL

Even last year, when the Orioles were the worst team in the big leagues at 54-107, Stewart went 0-2 with a 5.82 earned-run average against them. This season, he made one start versus Baltimore and was tagged with a loss.

Stewart, 14-5, joined Mike Scott and Ed Whitson as the top winners in the majors. He is 9-1 at home this season.

"The only streak I know about right now is that I haven't lost two games in a row all season," he said, "and that's one streak I'd like to continue all year."

The victory kept Oakland tied with California atop the AL West. The Orioles remained 7½ games ahead in the AL East.

In other games, Texas beat New York 6-2, Cleveland stopped Kansas City 4-0, California got past Detroit 4-3 and Seattle defeated Toronto 5-2.

Stewart gave up two runs on seven hits in seven-plus innings. Mickey Tettleton, a former catcher for the Athletics and now Baltimore's surprise slugger, said his former batterymate showed something new.

"I thought the first time we saw him, his forkball was up in the strike zone," Tettleton said. "Tonight, he had it down. He adjusted. That's why he's the best pitcher in the league right now. Tonight, he was typical Dave Stewart."

Dennis Eckersley pitched one inning for his 15th save. It was his first save since May 21, just before he hurt his arm and went on the disabled list.

Dave Schmidt, 8-9, lost for the first time in six career decisions against the Athletics. He is 1-4 with a 6.17 ERA in his last six starts and could be headed back to the bullpen.

Carney Lansford hit an RBI single in the third inning. Jose Canseco's run-scoring single helped make it 3-0 in the fourth.

The Orioles broke an 18-inning scoreless streak with two runs in the sixth, but Dave Henderson hit a two-run single in the Oakland seventh.

Rangers 6, Yankees 2
 Nolan Ryan struck out 11 in 7 1-3 innings and won his 28th career game, pitching Texas past visiting New York.

Ryan, 11-6, gave up five hits and did not walk a batter. He leads the majors with 166 strikeouts, and fanned at least 10 batters for the ninth time this year and the 190th time in his career.

Kenny Rogers relieved with one out, the bases loaded and the Rangers ahead 4-1 in the eighth. Steve Balboni hit an RBI single, but Don Mattingly grounded into a double play, although replays appeared to show Mattingly was safe at first base.

Steve Buechele, who had three RBIs, hit a two-run single in the eighth and Rogers finished for his first save.

Andy Hawkins, 11-9, extended his scoreless-inning streak to 23 before Pete Incaviglia hit a solo home run in the fifth for the game's first run. It was Incaviglia's 10th homer this season and fourth in his last eight games.

Indians 4, Royals 0
 Greg Swindell got his 13th victory, pitching two-hit ball for seven innings as Cleveland won at Royals Stadium. Kansas City leads the majors with a 32-13 home record.

Swindell, 13-2, won for the ninth time in 10 decisions. Jesse Orosco and Doug Jones each pitched one hitless inning.

Bret Saberhagen, 9-5, had his six-game winning streak stopped.

Joe Carter, who had hit five homers in his last six at-bats, singled in four tries. He failed to tie the major league record of six home runs in three consecutive games, done seven times. Mike Schmidt was the last to do it, in 1976; Gus Zernial was the last AL player to accomplish the feat, in 1951.

Carter's leadoff single in the seventh inning started a three-run burst that broke open a scoreless game.

Mariners 5, Blue Jays 2
 Scott Bankhead set a team record with his eighth consecutive victory — also an AL high this season — as Seattle beat Toronto.

Bankhead, 10-4, has won seven straight starts and eight of his last 10 outings. He gave up two runs on six hits in 7 2-3 innings and Dennis Powell went one inning for his second save.

Greg Briley hit his fourth home run in four games, a three-run shot in the third against Dave Stieb, 9-6. Briley, who hit two solo homers Wednesday in Baltimore, has eight home runs this season, but only one at the homer-producing Kingdome.

The Mariners, who have never had a winning season in their 11-year history, are 47-47. This is the second-latest date Seattle has been at .500, having been 59-59 in 1982.

Fred McGriff hit his 23rd home run for the Blue Jays.

Giants lose in extra innings

By The Associated Press
 As a hitter, Les Lancaster is a thinking man's pitcher. "Believe it or not, I was looking for it," Lancaster said after shocking the San Francisco Giants with a two-out, run-scoring double in the 11th inning that gave the Chicago Cubs a 4-3 victory. It was only his sixth hit in 71 career at-bats.

NL

"The pitch was a hanging slider," Lancaster said. "I didn't over-swing."

Lancaster, whose hitting feat made him the winning pitcher, batted because the Chicago bench was depleted of all reserves but a backup catcher. His first hit of the season scored Curtis Wilkerson from first and capped a most improbable comeback. In the ninth, Wilkerson had a two-run single in a three-run rally that tied the game.

Lancaster, batting for just the second time this season, hit a hard grounder off the glove of third baseman Ken Oberkfell that rolled down the left field line. Wilkerson scored easily as the Cubs snapped San Francisco's five-game winning streak.

Expos 4, Reds 1
 Mark Langston continued in his role as Montreal's stopper with 13 strikeouts. "This was a big ballgame coming off two tough losses," Langston said after reaching his season high for strikeouts while pitching a four-hitter.

"The most gratifying thing is to pick the club up, but that's the way it is with our staff," Langston said. "We won't have too many losing streaks."

The same can't be said for Reds, losers of five straight games and 10 of their last 11. Ironically, Langston, who dropped a 5-3 decision Saturday at Cincinnati, was their last victim.

Langston, 7-3 since his acquisition from Seattle on May 25, reached double figures for the fourth time in 11 National League starts. He led the American League in strikeouts three of the last five seasons.

The only run Langston allowed came in the first inning on Todd Benzinger's 10th home run.

The Expos scored all their runs in the fourth against Rick Mahler, 9-9, who allowed six hits in six innings while losing to Montreal for the first time in four decisions this season. He beat Langston on Saturday.

Tim Wallach had a two-run single and Tim Raines and Hubie Brooks also had RBI singles.

Cardinals 7, Padres 1
 Tom Brunansky hit a three-run homer and Joe Magrane allowed five hits in eight innings for his sixth straight victory as St. Louis snapped a four-game losing streak.

Magrane, 11-6, walked four and struck out five while shutting down the Padres, who had scored 26 runs in their two previous games. Todd Worrell pitched a hitless ninth inning.

Brunansky hit his sixth home run in nine games at Jack Murphy Stadium, a three-run shot which highlighted a four-run third inning off Walt Terrell, 5-13. Brunansky leads St. Louis with 13 homers.

Pedro Guerrero hit his eighth homer for the Cardinals, who had 15 hits.

Terrell has lost eight of his last nine decisions and has won only twice in 14 starts since April 29.

Mets 4, Braves 1
 Darryl Strawberry hit his 21st homer and drove in three runs as New York won a game delayed twice by rain for a total of 1:48.

Bob Ojeda, 6-9, gave up two hits in 5 2-3 innings to win for the first time in five starts since June 26. Both hits off Ojeda — who walked six — were singles by Andres Thomas, the second driving in a run in the sixth.

 field gap. He finished it off by stealing home two pitches later.

The other run came when Brandon Rodgers singled, and eventually scored on the catcher's second overthrow to third.

Midland National will now play undefeated Midland American tonight at 7:30.

SENIOR LEAGUE
 El Paso 6, Midland American 0
 Rocky Coppinger fired a no-hitter and El Paso earned the right to play undefeated Big Spring tonight at 7:30. If El Paso wins, the final game will be Saturday at 7:30.

Coppinger, who also doubles as catcher, fanned 10 and walked only one. Mario Rodriguez took the loss for Midland American.

Charley Rizzo led El Paso by hitting two singles and a double.

'There are answers to life's problems'

By BILLY GRAHAM

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our whole school is shocked, because a person in my class committed suicide a few days ago. He was always a nice person — never in any trouble or anything. In looking back I can see he didn't have any close friends, and I feel guilty because I didn't pay any attention to him. Why would someone like this do such a drastic thing? — C.P.

Billy Graham

DEAR C.P.: Teen-age suicide is truly one of the greatest tragedies in our society, and is one of the leading causes of death among teen-agers. One reason I wanted to print your question was to alert both parents and teens to the danger of suicide, so all of us could be more sensitive to the warning signals.

betraying Christ; see Matthew 27:1-5). The tragedy is not only that life is cut short. The tragedy is that there are answers to life's problems and God can give hope — but this goes undiscovered by the person.

People turn to suicide for all kinds of reasons, but underneath most of them is a profound feeling of loneliness and despair, feeling there is no hope for the future. At times, of course, a person's judgment may be distorted by mental illness; at other times suicide is a deliberate act by a person who is fully responsible for his or her actions (as was the case with Judas, who committed suicide after

What should you learn from this event? First, learn of God's forgiveness. Yes, perhaps you could have done more to help this person — but don't be bound by guilt for the past. Instead, turn to Christ and receive the forgiveness he offers. Make him the center of your life.

Then ask God to help you be more sensitive to others. All around you are people who need love and hope — and God wants to use you to point them to his love and hope. Ask God to use you in their lives.

UCC president retires

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Rev. Avery Post, retiring after 12 years as president of the United Church of Christ, says that "obsessive devotion" to the American flag is among national "signs of pathos and vulnerability."

In his parting keynote address to the denomination's recent general synod, Post urged it not to get bogged down in conflict over subsidiary issues, but also not "to sit at ease in Zion."

More worrisome, he says, are "those who are exploiting this insecurity and vulnerability for political ends."

"Biblical faith introduced me to a justice lifestyle at the beginning of my ministry, and I expect to stay on the case for God's justice until the end of my days," he said.

FOR A REAL EDUCATION, TAKE TIME TO READ YOUR BIBLE

In that busy life of yours, so rigidly apportioned among work, home maintenance, TV, PTA meetings, the bowling league or whatever, try to find time to read your Bible; even if it's only one chapter at a time. It contains a great many elements for our education and well-being. It's history, with the story of the earliest days of the world, faithfully handed down through the generations. It's geography, inviting fascinating comparison between the Middle East and Mediterranean lands, then and now. It's a prescription for better living, with its rules for behavior toward our fellow human beings. It's a great comfort, bringing us guidance and solace in times of trouble or sorrow. All in all, it's the world's most perfect collection of writings, and if we know how interesting and helpful it can be, we will somehow manage to find the time for it.

Church briefs

Baptist church plans concert

Two concerts of praise will be presented Sunday at East Fourth Street Baptist Church. The general public is invited to attend during the 6 p.m. worship service. A Teen-College Student Rally will be conducted at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Holy Spirit Conference slated

Spring Tabernacle Church, 1209 Wright St., will conduct its inaugural Holy Spirit Conference Sunday through Wednesday. Conference theme will be "Leading a Spirit-Controlled Life." Guest speaker will be J.D. Bilbro. Prior to the beginning of each teaching session, a time of praise and worship will be conducted. Sessions will conclude with a time of body ministry. Times are as follows:

- Sunday — 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.;
- Monday through Wednesday — 7 p.m.

An evening of praise and song

The public is invited to an evening of praise and song with Big Spring's own Los Mensajeros Del Rey. Activities will be conducted at Iglesia Bautista Central, 2105 Lancaster, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Performing will be Brian Spencer, San Antonio; and High Praises, Plainview.

Vacation Bible School slated

First Baptist Church, Big Spring, will conduct Vacation Bible School July 24-28, from 9 a.m. to noon. Children entering kindergarten through children entering sixth grade are invited to attend. Activities include Bible stories, crafts, music, recreation and mission study. Children need to meet outside the chapel doors before 9 a.m.

Black priest conducts service

WASHINGTON (AP) — A black priest, defying warnings from Roman Catholic church leaders, recently celebrated what he said was the first Mass in his new "African American Catholic Congregation." About 2,000 persons attended the celebration by the Rev. George A. Stallings Jr., at Howard University Law School. Stallings, 41, said he was creating the Imani Temple because he believes the establishment Catholic church had failed to meet the spiritual and cultural needs of blacks. Imani means "faith" in Swahili. Stallings' service began with an entrance procession that included one participant wearing "dreadlocks" and others who shook bells and used rattles traditionally used in African ceremonies. The ceremony included Catholic prayers and liturgy, along with words borrowed from African and Southern black revival traditions. Black representatives of other faiths, including Baptists and Muslims, attended to show support for Stallings' move. At one point, Stallings chanted, "We can't wait. How much longer does the Roman Catholic church need?" Later, he told his audience, "We can't just be sitting on the pew anymore. We've got to start standing up on the promises." Cardinal James A. Hickey of Washington has condemned Stallings' plans, which were announced two weeks ago, and forbade Stallings to celebrate Mass. "In spite of his claims to the contrary, Father Stallings' action is a serious step toward separating himself from the Roman Catholic Church," Hickey said recently in a statement. "This situation has more to do with the needs and expectations of Father Stallings than with broader questions about the adequacy of Catholic ministry within the black community," Hickey said.

Major's rugged look belies mission

FORT BLISS, (AP) — Maj. James Winn looks dangerous in his camouflage fatigues and black combat boots.

In fact, at 6 feet 4 inches tall and 195 pounds, he looks downright deadly.

But if the Fort Bliss officer is ever sent off to war, he'll be carrying a Bible, not an M-16.

"My only weapon is the word of the Lord," he said. "If it came between me and the enemy, I would have to be killed."

"I would never carry a weapon. First of all, it's too heavy."

That doesn't mean he or other Army chaplains avoid combat — they follow the troops.

Winn, 41, said he knew he might be called to war when he joined the Army 13 years ago as a minister of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

"I had to make a very clear decision that one day we might have to get the bombs and guns and whistles out and I would have to do my part," the Chicago native said. "And I've always known that wherever the soldier goes, I'll go."

"But we all have a mission, the artilleryman, the infantryman, the chaplain. And mine is to preach the word of God. Not only do I believe it, the soldiers expect it."

Winn, who's married and has two children, said the life of an Army chaplain is filled with challenges, many of them unique to the military.

"The chaplain must know that, yes, I'm a child of God, but I'm a soldier, too. We have to keep our boots shined and meet all the physical requirements of other soldiers," Winn said.

He does almost an hour of aerobics every day to keep trim since "the cav (armored cavalry) troopers aren't going to listen to someone whose belly is out to here."

Most of his Army time, including duty in West Germany and Greece, has been spent in the field serving "a troop ministry. I never had a congregation, where I was the man."

That changed when he came to Fort Bliss last year.

He was appointed the post chaplain staff resource manager in charge of money, supplies and people — and named pastor of a special congregation.

"At Centurion Chapel, the other side of my dream came true," Winn said. "After 13 years of FT. BLISS — Chaplain Maj. James Winn has served in the Army 13 years as a minister of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. He also is pastor of one of the largest congregations on Ft. Bliss.

troop time, I had a congregation."

The congregation is unusual, he said, because it's mostly retirees. About half his congregation has attended the same chapel for a decade, unlike some Army chapels filled with transient soldiers.

Winn's boss, post chaplain Col. Clyde Brown, said Centurion is the largest Protestant service on post, averaging about 500 people.

"I think they're one of the most vital congregations," Brown said. "It includes 15 to 20 denominations, has five choirs, and has a parish council organization of retired and active people."

Brown said Winn personifies what the Army wants in a chaplain — and those requirements are stringent:

"First, a chaplain must be fully ordained by his denomination. He must have 120 hours of undergraduate study and 90 hours of graduate study, so he will usually have his master of divinity degree."

Then each chaplain candidate is selected by an endorsing committee of his denomination. Next, he must be interviewed and recommended by a military post chaplain.

Then his credentials and medical information are given to the Army's chaplain headquarters.

Once in the Army, Brown said, the chaplain goes to school for nine weeks. Then he faces 18 months of evaluation.

"It's about three years before they are prepared for full military chaplain duties," Brown said.

"Our chaplains' primary mission is to go where the soldiers are," he said. "We try to do our best to serve families, but that's not our main effort."

Winn said it's a life he never wants to leave.

"I know I want to be around soldiers the rest of my life. It gets in your blood after a while," he said. "I guess I love to be around soldiers because I am one."

"It is a service — serving your fellow man and keeping the peace. I believe God smiles on our peacekeeping."

Races exchange bows in new hymnal

NEW YORK (AP) — Blacks pay respects to whites and whites pay respects to blacks in a new United Methodist hymnal being distributed to congregations across the country.

The hymnal consideration is reflected in the lyrics as well as in the broad range of selections, from European-derived classics to slave spirituals.

Female also gets included along with male in the language about people, such as substituting "all" for "men." But references to God and Jesus remain mostly male.

"There were trade-offs," says the Rev. Carlton R. Young, editor of the hymnal, whose repertoire of 625 numbers includes 300 new ones. Many are evangelical-style gospel songs and black spirituals.

"It was a process of give-and-take, which is how Methodists have stayed Methodists all these years," he said in a telephone interview from his Nashville, Tenn., office.

For example, in the newly included black spiritual "Every Time I Feel the Spirit," the ethnic pronunciation is "Ever Time Ah Fil de Spirit," but the book puts the song in standard English.

"To put it in dialect would have been very ill advised," said the Rev. William Farley Smith, a Harlem pastor and member of the hymn committee that compiled the new book, replacing a 1966 version.

"That would have turned off whites and made it so only ethnics would sing it. This would detract from the original intent and be discrimination in reverse. It would have left out all the Anglos."

There is no need to use the ethnic pronunciations. But blacks know it already and sing it. In the book, we put the words in proper English so as to accommodate whites."

On the other hand, several hymns were modified to eliminate anti-black implications, such as getting rid of metaphors equating "white" with purity or godliness.

However, the big change is the inclusion of 122 revival-style gospel songs and black spirituals, many of them widely popular but new to the book, and also 17 Hispanic hymns, 14 of Asian origin and seven from American Indians.

About 4 million copies of the new hymnal are expected to be in hands of most of the 38,000 congregations of the 9 million-member denomination by October.

It's the first time for Spanish-language hymns to be included, songs such as "Camina, Pueblo de Dios" (Walk On, O People of God,) and "Mantos ye Palmas" (Filled with Excitement). Lyrics also are given in English.

Smith, pastor of Harlem's St. Mark's United Methodist Church, said the book's emphasis on spirituals and gospel hymns will help regain the evangelistic fire marking Methodism's origins.

"We started out as a tent-revival church but have tended to become cathedrals of liturgical formality," he said. "Now we're going to recapture our old spirit and the book will help do that."

Among familiar but newly included gospel songs are "I Surrender All," "Nothing But the Blood of Jesus," "In the Garden," "Pass Me Not O Gentle Savior" and "Shall We Gather At the River."

Among newly included spirituals are "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Go Down, Moses," "This Little Light of Mine," "It's Me, It's Me O Lord, Standing in the Need of Prayer" and "Oh Mary Don't You Weep."

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Soul singer James Brown may have hurt his chances for parole by having almost $40,600 in checks and cash in his prison cell, a state spokesman said.

Brown, 56, is serving a six-year sentence for aggravated assault and failing to stop for police. He was moved Wednesday from minimum-security State Park Correctional Facility to Stevenson Correctional Institution, a medium-security prison, for violating a rule limiting prisoners to possessing $50.

"That could affect the length of time he'll serve on his sentence," said South Carolina Corrections

BROWN Department spokesman Francis Archibald.

BERGEN The rule is intended to prevent inmates from bribing their way out, or commissioning new crimes.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Candice Bergen considered her ventriloquist father's dummy, Charlie McCarthy, a rival when she was growing up in Beverly Hills.

But you wouldn't know it from her Manhattan apartment, where she lives with her husband, French film director Louis Malle, and their 3-year-old daughter. It is filled with mementos of Edgar Bergen's dummy — including enamel pins with movable mouths.

"When I was born, the papers called me his sister," Bergen, 43 and star of TV's "Murphy Brown," told Parade magazine in an interview to be published Sunday.

SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: pitcher Scott Sanderson, Sen. Robert Dole, psychiatrist Dr. Karl Menninger, singer Margaret Whiting, fashion designer Oscar de la Renta, matriarch Rose Kennedy, jockey Ron Turcotte, actor Willem Dafoe.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Variety rules the day. Spend time by the pool or head for the shore. When seeking pleasure, you overlook any difficulties in making reservations. A picnic lunch delights friends of all ages.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A health matter will command your attention early in the day. Do not neglect family members for friends. A visit with an older person is very rewarding. You glean new insights after sharing confidences.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Go over your social plans, consulting mate and family members. Major decisions are best postponed until more data is available. Patience is your strongest ally. Romance needs more time to mature.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pay bills on time to preserve your credit rating. Keep all lines of communication open. A real estate venture could prove highly lucrative. Investigate. Romance holds few surprises. Count your blessings!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Face up to an embarrassing situation before it gets completely out of hand. Tackle unfinished chores before indulging in pleasurable activities. Postpone pursuing romance until partner gives you a positive sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Resist someone who is keen on spending your money. Remember your upcoming vacation. Others respond favorably to your serene approach. Both reading and sports hold great appeal this weekend. Ask loved one's preferences.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Think twice before acting in opposition to loved ones' wishes. Channel your efforts into beneficial ventures. A platonic relationship intensifies. Be honest if you are not yet ready to make a commitment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be careful when dealing with someone who shows an immature attitude. Your energy level will rise if you remember to follow a diet-and-exercise regimen. An older person offers some sound advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your conversation wins you a favor today. Accept all invitations. Meditation helps you come to some startling conclusions. Romance lifts your spirits. You receive public praise when you least expect it!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you procrastinate, you will harm your own cause. Clarify your aims before seeking assistance from others. An excellent evening for socializing. You and your date share some interesting insights. Be tactful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Think before you act and you will prevent embarrassment. Be wary of someone who flatters you just to win your favor. Your cash could be involved. Be discreet in every way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good time to set your sights in the right direction. Pursue your aims with conviction. A telephone call or letter lifts your spirits. Your enthusiasm is contagious. Others respond in a positive way.
