Flag lowered

BIG SPRING - The Big Spring Post Office joined U.S. Post Offices across the country in flying flags at half mast Monday to honor four postal employees killed in the crash of a DC-10 in Sioux City, Iowa last week.

Four postal employees were killed in the fatal crash out of Denver, Big Spring Post Master Howard Riche said. The men were part of a six man postal employee contigent on the flight headed for a training seminar in Chicago when the accident occurred, he said.

Although the accident that claimed the lives of more than 100 of its passengers occurred last week, Monday was the day set aside to honor the four employees who died.

The alleged murder by hanging of U.S. Marine Lt. Colonel William Higgins in Lebanon by Muslim extemists was not a consideration in the flag lowering, he said.

Tax rate eyed

BIG SPRING - Howard County Commissioners will convene today to review the proposed 1989-90 fiscal budget and possibly consider a county tax rate.

Commissioners set a tenative budget figure of $6.5 million for the upcoming fiscal year, just slightly above the current year's budget, Howard County Auditor Jackie Olson said Monday.

Commissioners still have the opportunity to make any cuts, additions or changes before finalizing the budget. Olson said she expects that if the budget is changed at all it

Decell: Reorganize utility department

By RUTH COCHRAN Staff Writer

BIG SPRING - A reorganization of the city's utility department would upgrade skill levels and decrease the high turnover rate within the department, according to the city's public works director.

The Big Spring city council is currently reviewing a proposed $18 million budget for the 1989-90 fiscal year. With expected revenues of $16.1 million, the proposed budget represents a $1.8 million deficit.

During the city council's budget workshop Monday afternoon, public works director Tom Decell told council members that the new program he is proposing, at a cost $3,600, would help the department avoid the "three men in a tub sydrome" where two city workers watch one work.

It'll basically put a twoman crew on most repair jobs in the city ... so you don't have that constant syndrome of somebody watching." - Tom Decell, Big Spring public works director.

By teaching personnel new skills, Decell said, work crews could be reduced from two to three. The change would improve the public's percecption of the department, he said, but of more importance, it would improve work quality and help reduce the department's 32 percent turnover rate.

We want "a higher class of employee skilled in their work so they can do it right the first time." Decell told the council. "This is the program ... we are most interested in presenting to you."

If each crew member has more than one skill, the size of each work crew could be reduced, he said.

"It'll basically put a two-man crew on most repair jobs in the city . . . so you don't have that constant syndrome of somebody watching," Decell said.

The reorganization of personnel in plant operations and distribution and collection will reduce the number of workers from 34 to 31, said Decell. No workers would lose their jobs, he said, because there are vacancies in the department and personnel can be transferred. The council also heard pitches for other new programs, including:

• Merit raises for all city employees based on five performance levels.

• Pay increases for utility department personnel who are on standby for emergencies such as waterline breaks and sewage blockages

• Pay increases for personnel working the less desirable nights shifts.

• Ten 9mm semiautomatic pistols for the police department. • Ten new vehicles for the police department fleet.

• An electronic postage scale and postage allocator for city use. Increased contribution to the ambulance service. A secretary for the patrol division in the police department.

• Repairs to the 56-year-old city

BIG SPRING - A 13-year-old Midland girl who apparently decided to do some cruising Sunday evening was taken to a local hospital after being injured in an. auto accident outside of Big Spring

According to a Texas Department of Public Safety report, the young woman, Wendy Gardner. was traveling westbound on Interstate 20 less than a mile outside of Big Spring when the right front tire of the 1979 Grey Buick Park Avenue she was driving blew out and came completely off. It caused the vehicle to collide with a north guardrail, flip, and land on the roof on the center of the westbound interstate lane.

Witnesses said the pair was traveling in excess of 70 mph at the time of the accident. "It had to have been a tremendous force because a human body was hurled through a brick wall and an inside wall (sheeting covering the bricks)," said Sgt. Gene Keesee, the traffic division commander with the Abilene Police Department. He estimated the damage to the house to be at $5,000.

The four-lane highway the pair were on connects most of southwest Abilene to the main flow of traffic. The section where the accident occurred is lighted and in a residential area.

Keesee said that results from blood tests, which are routinely taken in accident cases, are not available yet.

Gaskins, who was born June 10, 1967, in Lamesa, grew up in Big Spring and attended school at Elbow and Forsan. He had been a resident of Abilene the past year where he was employed by Avis Lube.

EASTLAND - A man convicted by a 118th District Court jury for the sexual assault of a local woman has filed a motion to appeal his case to the Court of Appeals in Eastland.

Delinquent attorneys

HOUSTON (AP) - When city officials began trying to clear up 520,000 delinquent traffic ticket cases, they made a surprising find.

Forty-one of the top 100 offenders were attorneys. City officials were hesitant to release the list for fear of being sued, the Houston Post reported Sunday.

Although the average number of tickets held by each of the attorneys was 88, city officials said one had 327 parking tickets dating back to 1985 - all unpaid.

That attorney had Canadian license plates on his car, causing all his tickets to go into a file for foreign addresses. Four years passed before it was discovered. The Houston attorney owes the city roughly $30,000.

Everyone on the top 100 list has at least 20 outstanding tickets.

Parking tickets accounted for nearly all the backlog, but a few of the delinquent tickets were issued for moving violations.

Also listed on the top 100 offenders was a Houston Police Department officer whose personal car has been festooned with 123 parking tickets over the last four years. The list also includes a Harris County Sheriff's Department deputy who has run up a total of 77 unpaid tickets.

Three constable's deputies received, respectively, 101, 73 and 27 tickets each, records show

Hunger strike ends

LAREDO (AP) - Cubans detained here by the Immigration and Naturalization Service have ended their protest hunger strike, an official said.

Eighty-one men stopped eating on July 20 in an effort to win release from detention. The INS was holding 124 Cubans at the Webb County Jail at the time the hunger strike began.

The situation eased considerably on Friday, when 10 of the Cubans were transferred to federal prisons at El Reno, Okla., and Leavenworth, Kan., said Mario Ortiz, regional spokesman for the INS.

"By Saturday morning, everybody had begun eating, Ortiz said.

The Cuban detainees committed crimes and served prison time after arriving in the United States during the 1980 Mariel hoat lift when tens of thousands of Cubans came to this country, said Ortiz.

GALVESTON - Eric Tabbert works to get the windows boarded up on his friend's house on the west side of Galveston Island Monday. Customs planes force landing of drug aircraft

CHILDRESS (AP) — The seizure of nearly a ton of cocaine from a plane forced to land in the Texas Panhandle is evidence of the steadily increasing air smuggling traffic between northern Mexico and one of the state's remotest areas, federal authorities say.

U.S. District Attorney Marvin Collins said officials found 1,940 pounds of cocaine aboard the Queenaire Beechcraft and said it was the largest cocaine seizure ever in northern Texas.

U.S. Customs planes forced the twin-engine aircraft to land at the Childress municipal airstrip shortly after midnight Monday, said Ron Hall, resident agent in charge of the Oklahoma City Customs Service.

Authorities arrested the pilot, Robert Joseph Belmar, 57, and seized the plane.

Belmar appeared before U.S. Magistrate Clinton E. Averitte and was charged Monday with a federal complaint of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute. If convicted, he could face a maximum fine of $4 million and life imprisonment.

Bond will be set at a hearing on Thursday. Meanwhile, Belmar will be held in the Potter County Jail pending a detention hearing.

The Panhandle's remote level farm roads have long been favorite clandestine landing sites for Mexico-based smuggling rings, authorities said. Restrictions on flights through Cuban air space in recent months have prompted smugglers to turn increasingly to West Texas routes, Hall said.

The Cuban crackdown is an apparent backlash from a recent scandal linking senior Cuban military leaders with the Columbian Medellin drug cartel, authorities said.

'Now they've got to go around Cuba - either east or west of the island - and some of the planes they've been using don't have the range required for the trip," he said. "We believe cocaine is now being shipped and warehoused in Mexico for a hop across the border into the Southwest.

HIGH ISLAND (AP) - Hurricane Chantal came ashore this upper Texas coastal community about 8:15 a.m. today bringing heavy rains and strong winds as most residents waited for the first Atlantic hurricane of the year to

The hurricane had highest sustained winds of 80 mph, barely qualifying as a hurricane. It developed so fast officials were confused about its potential.

High Island has a population of about 500. A spokesman for the Galveston County Sheriff's Office said he had no idea how many people remained in High Island, noting that no evacuation order had been issued for the village and surrounding area

At 8 a.m. CDT today, the storm's center was near the High Island coast, near 29.6 degrees north latitude and 94.3 degrees west longitude. It was moving to the northwest at 12 mph.

Residents in High Island were hit by a power outage shortly after 7 a.m. But the few businesses in town remained open and one grocery store employee said the storm has been good for business as residents stock up on canned goods, bottled water and batteries.

"This is a quiet one so far," said Betty Barrow, a 28-year resident of High Island who works at the Little be another one out there forming Pair Grocery store. "We get worse thunderstorms than this. People are always casual about these things here. The old-timers don't worry about these things; they just stay.

However, some of the residents along the Bolivar Peninsula between High Island and Port Bolivar said rising water and increasing winds prompted them to leave their homes early this morning after waiting overnight expecting a later landfall.

At Galveston, officials said about 1,000 people had been evacuated from an area of the city unprotected by a seawall.

Port Arthur-area officials were the first to request voluntary evacuations. Other coastal residents were taking precautions, but there were no reports indicating panic buying of supplies such as batteries or bottled water. Dorothy Wells and her husband, Bubby, left their Kaplan home about 5 a.m. and traveled to Winnie where they had breakfast and were waiting for a room opening at a local motel.

The hurricane has been blamed for the death of a man who fell from a Chevron oil platform in the Gulf of Mexico south of New Orleans. No injuries have been reported in Texas.

Forecasters said the eye of Chantal was about 10 to 15 miles in diameter, an average size. A hurricane is generally more intense with a small eye.

Chantal was a Category 1 storm, the smallest on the Saffir-Simpson scale of strength, but was gaining momentum Monday evening, a signal that worried forecasters.

In late June, Tropical Storm Allison came ashore at Freeport, southwest of Houston, dumping heavy rains and flooding large parts of southeast Texas, causing millions of dollars in damage.

Texas hormone-free beef scheduled for shipment to Europe

HOUSTON (AP) - The first shipment of domestic beef to Europe since a January embargo halted trade progress was scheduled to leave a Houston port this morning and arrive in England in about three weeks.

The refrigerated container of Texas hormone-free beef was boarded onto the Nedlloyd Hudson Monday during a news conference in which Texas Agriculture Comnissioner Jim Hightower said the shipment could signal an economic boon for the state's beef producers. "This is the start of a modern day cattle drive that can put millions of extra dollars into the pockets of enterprising Texas ranchers, feedlot operators and meet packers," Hightower said, citing the creation of jobs while satisfying a new European market niche.

European countries banned imports of hormone-treated beef because of health concerns over the growth stimulant. The action cut off a $100 million market to U.S.

The United States claimed Europe was using the hormone issue as a way to restrain trade and retaliated by setting $100 million in higher tariffs on a variety of European products.

Since then, Hightower has tried to export hormone-free beef from Texas. His effort sometimes met resistance from federal trade officials who said Hightower was undermining their negotiations with European countries.

The biggest blaze, a 18,240-acre fire five miles south of Baker, kept residents of about 15 homes from their houses.

In California's Sierra Nevada foothills, firefighters today declared they had contained a fire that blackened 11,700 acres of brush and grassland and destroyed seven homes. Crews finished cutting a line of bare earth around the blaze early today and expected full control Wednesday, said Forest Service spokeswoman Margie Clack.

The fire, which last week had forced nearly 2,500 residents to flee, destroyed about 15 sheds, barns and outbuildings in addition to the homes. Most evacuees returned home Sunday and Monday

Many of the firefighters have left the site, about 30 miles east of Fresno, to battle a fire 25 miles southeast at Balch Camp. That blaze has burned more than 2,000 acres of rugged terrain and was only 15 percent contained. Both fires were believed to have

A second group of kidnappers later Monday said Cicippio would be killed if the Moslem cleric, Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, was not freed by 6 p.m. today (10 a.m. CDT)

Israel has refused to release Obeid but has said it would swap him and other Shiite Moslem and other foreigners held hostage in Lebanon.

Cicippio's wife, Ilham, tearfully pleaded with his captors today to spare his life

'Please don't execute him, please," she said at a news conference at the press center in east Beirut's Jedeideh area five hours before the deadline

She read out a message to her husband: "Joe, I know the difficulty of the situation in which we are but all I ask you is to keep your hopes high."

was acting comptroller at the American University of Beirut when he was kidnapped on the campus on Sept. 12, 1986. Mrs. Cicippio, 34, works at the American Embassy in east Beirut and lives on the campus

The Revolutionary Justice Organization issued its threat to kill Cicippio in a note, handwritten in Arabic and delivered to the newspaper An-Nahar with a photograph of Cicippio smiling.

The group did not mention Edward Auctin Trac ington, VL, another American hostage it claims to hold. Tracy disappeared in October 1986.

This morning, an anonymous caller claiming to speak for Oppressed on Earth said in a call to a Beirut radio station that Waite would be killed by midnight (4 p.m. CDT) unless Israel frees Obeid.

There was no way to determine the authenticity of the threat, made to the Moslem-controlled Voice of the Nation.

Governors try to ignore abortion issue

CHICAGO--Abortion is the most added

volitle and emotional issue facing state governments today, but it's an issue the nation's governors are trying to ignore at their annual meeting here.

The Supreme Court's Webster decision early this month cleared the way for state governments to restrict abortions and fierce fights over the issue are starting to erupt in state capitals across the country.

Both pro and anti-abortion groups are demonstrating and lobbying during the National Governors Association meeting here, but Virginia Gov. Gerald L. Baliles, chairman of the Association, said the issue would not be on the agenda during the three-day meeting which opened Sunday.

The NGA operates by concensus, and there is no way two-thirds of the governors could agree on an abortion resolution, said Baliles in defending his decision to keep the issue off the agenda at this NGA session. If the Supreme Court should further restrict abortion during its next term, or even repeal Roe v Wade which legalized abortion, then the governors might want to consider the issue, Baliles this year.

The fact that it's not on the agenda, has not kept abortion out of the governors's deliberations here. Whenever governors meet with the press, there are numerous abortion questions.

Most governors try not to take a position on the issue.

Asked about abortion at the end of a press conference on coastal pollution, Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer called it "A difficult, emotionally charged issue, which can be very disruptive' when the Maryland General Assembly meets.

Deleware Gov. Michael Castle said abortion is an issue "which will polarize feelings in the legislature, and will be a dominant issue in the coming years.

Virginia Gov. Baliles was one of the few who made clear his own feelings on the issue, saying it is a question that should be left up to women to answer for themselves without government interference. Under the state constitution, Baliles can not seek another term and will leave office at the end of speak for the group told The Cicippio, 58, of Norristown, Pa., Associated Press on Monday that the group would kill Waite at 3 p.m. (7 a.m. CDT) today, but the deadline passed with no immediate word from the captors.

It could not be immediately verified if that caller was from the organization, which had not made previous calls to the AP office in yprus.

Waite, 50, disappeared Jan. 20, 1987, while seeking the release of foreign hostages after leaving his west Beirut hotel to negotiate with ic titud Hais eved held Thed

Higgins' reported hanging was clouded by doubt because of previous reports he may have been killed months ago, and Lebanese police said they could not confirm the claimed Higgins killing on Monday. Nevertheless, the claim and the videotape that accompanied it met with revulsion worldwide.

Bush condemned the reported killing of the U.S. Marine and called on 'all parties' holding hostages in the Middle East to Space program: Pie in the sky?

The president's efforts to restore a sense of mission to America's space program are certainly long overdue. But is he serious?

In calling for the establishment of a space station followed by manned expeditions to the moon and then to Mars, George Bush offered not a clue as to how he proposed to pay for any of it. Experts differ as to the scientific value of each of those objectives. But there's no doubt that accomplishing any of them is going to require a commitment of hundreds of billions of dollars. As one congressman pointed out, there's no such thing as a free launch.

NASA's problems, however, involve more than money. What the agency really needs is a definition of purpose and, more critically, of priorities. In this respect, Bush's remarks did more to illustrate the confusion that has characterized America's space program in the 20 years since the moon walk than it did to point toward a resolution. The mission he described for a new space station, for example, has nothing to do with the $24 billion project that NASA is currently trying to persuade Congress to fund, which would go into an entirely different orbit and has been designed to serve completely unrelated purposes

If the United States is to become what Bush calls a 'space-faring nation'' that will mean restoring NASA's capacity for unmanned exploration. It means continuing to diversify the rockets that are available for different kinds of launches so that the mistakes NASA made in betting everything on the shuttle will never be repeated. And it means continuing to encourage international and private-sector involvement in the development of new technology. America went to the moon in a race with the Soviet Union, but it may take a partnership between the two to reach Mars.

Almost as important, NASA needs overhauling internally. During the Reagan years, the agency's longtime commitment to scientific exploration and the peaceful uses of space became subordinated to the military's interest in turning the so-called high frontier into a killing ground. At the same time, NASA stopped encouraging the kind of innovation within the aerospace industry that helped to make the moon walk possible -- instead, contractors in recent years who came up with better ideas or otherwise departed from NASA's own version of orhodox design were quickly squelched.

Bush has a special opportunity to bring a new generation of leadership to NASA. That's because the engineers responsible for the original Apollo program are now

Capital gains tax cut not elitist

By GEORGE F. WILL

WASHINGTON - The arguments about whether to cut the capital-gains tax are piled up on one of those plates of intellectual spaghetti served in Washington when the real reasons for doing or not doing something are gorgeously tangled and smothered beneath a sauce of politics.

The loyal opposition, the Democrats, are making opposition to the cut a test of party loyalty. Lenin once defined communism in terms of electrification of the countryside. North Korea is dotted with signs saying "Communism is Rice." Odd how hard it is to define political creeds. But not for the world's oldest party, the venerable Democrats. Rice is boring and America's countryside has been electrified, but being a Democrat means dying on the barricades in opposition to a capital-gains cut.

course, immutable principles are not. Immutable, that is. President Kennedy tried to cut the capital-gains rate. In 1978, President Carter signed a bipartisan

Thus, there would be a gusher of revenues - billions - to the Treasury, easing restraints on domestic spending for the non-rich. And the gusher will help the next evasion of what are amusingly called the Gramm-Rudman deficit

that argument to win the cut, but he should have the grace to blush.

Actually, the best argument for the capital-gains cut is futureoriented, but it cannot be uttered in polite society because it is elitist, as trickle-down arrangements must be. This argument is:

A restless, capital-acquiring, A cut would be, in the short run, capital-moving elite makes the economy's motor hum, for the benefit of society generally, although not for all sectors of society equally. The increase in the capital-gains rate, as a trade-off in 1986 for reductions in personal income-tax rates, contributed to the continuing anemia of American investing, which is now the worst (relative to GNP) among industrial nations. Cutting the capital-gains rate would churn the economy. It would impart a of capital surging hither and yon in pursuit of the most productive investment. And let there be no nonsense about a "yo-yo" cut,

Exxon: Mr. Clean of the sea

By ART BUCHWALD It was an environmental dream come true. The Exxon oil company announced it had completed its Alaska oil spill cleanup to everyone's satisfaction and by September would close up shop.

The man responsible for the Exxon success was Joe Sludge, who has personally shined 90 percent of all the rocks in Valdez. Joe was in Washington to testify in front of a congressional committee, and I found him sitting by the reflecting pool, cleaning oil sludge from between his toes.

"No one thought you could do it," I said.

Joe replied, "I couldn't have done it without the help of the captain of the Valdez and his merry crew, as well as my superiors in the home office. A company like Exxon doesn't operate in a vacuum.'

"Are you permitted to tell me how you won the environmental battle?'

"We just took a page out of Vietnam. We fought the good fight and then we said, 'The hell with it - we'll finish up next spring.' "

"How many rocks did Exxon polish up after the spill?'

"A lot more than anyone can imagine. But it isn't just cleaning them that we should get credit for. There are rocks in Valdez you can eat a smoked salmon off of - that is, if you can find a salmon in Valdez. But the main point is that Exxon gave it its best shot and now it's Mother Nature's turn to do some reaching retirement age at the same time that many of the top administrators who presided over the agency's subsequent decline are quitting because of NASA's tough new conflict-of-interest requirements.

If the president's vague declarations of intent the other day manage to set off the kind of national debate on our objectives in space that American leaders have been avoiding for the past 20 years, that will be one small step in the right direction.

"Joe, everyone knows you have been diligent in saving the shoreline of Alaska, but you have to admit there wouldn't have been a spill if it hadn't been for Exxon. Shouldn't a neutral party decide when it's time to hang up the towel?"

"The only ones to judge such an important matter are the stockholders. After all, the cost of the cleanup is coming out of their pockets. Most of our stockholders care more about the environment than Exxon critics.

"Why is that?"

"Because they have a vested nterest in how much Exxon spends to clean up its mess. Unlike environmentalists, stockholders don't let sentiment interfere in tough crude oil decisions. Exxon management could waffle at any time, but the pragmatic stockholder never will.

"I can see that the stockholders are less sentimental about Alaska's environment, but doesn't a non-negotiable pullout jeopardize the good name of Exxon?'

"No, because the American people are fair. They know good spills from bad spills. Valdez could have been a disaster if we hadn't cleaned up the rocks. The Alaskan shoreline is far more spic and span now than it was before the spill. If Exxon hadn't had such a top-flight training program, the brave captain of Valdez might have beached his ship in San Francisco harbor.'

"Or perhaps in one of the Great Lakes," I added.

Joe said, "If you want the truth, the reason Exxon is signing off is that we're sick and tired of doing everybody else's laundry. Do you know that I have personally cleaned rocks along the shore, and I am certain that the oil on them did not come from our ship?"

"If you were so sure, why didn't you just throw those rocks back in the sea?" I asked.

"Because Exxon doesn't operate that way. When it comes to oil spills, our policy has always been to clean every stone - with no questions asked. That's why we're known in the oil business as Mr. Clean of the Sea.

Search postponed for rig workers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Hurricane seas forced rescue workers to stop their search for 10 crewmen aboard a capsized offshore oil rig as swells rose as high as 25 feet.

The self-propelled rig Avco 5 with 14 people aboard was headed to shore early Monday when it capsized about 20 miles off the Louisiana coast, near Morgan City, Chevron spokesman Jonathan Lifa said.

Hurricane Chantal's 12-foot seas, 70 mph winds and heavy rains prevented divers from making a search.

Israel refuses to free kidnapped cleric

JERUSALEM (AP) - Israel says' it will not free a pro-Iranian cleric despite the claimed execution of a U.S. Marine officer and a threat to kill another American, but is offering to swap the Moslem leader for hostages in Lebanon.

Deputy Foreign Minister Benjamin Netanyahu urged Shiite Moslem radicals in Lebanon to accept Israel's offer to exchange Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid and other Shiite prisoners for the three Israeli soldiers and foreign hostages they hold.

Israeli commandos abducted Obeid from his home in south Lebanon on Friday.

An army spokesman said Monday that Obeid had confessed to directing the kidnapping of U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins and disclosed the identities of the captors to his Israeli interrogators. Higgins' kidnappers said they Israeli officials refused to say whether they would consider taking action against Higgins' abductors.

"We have made a proposal," Netanyahu said on Israel televi sion's midnight news show. "They can answer it, but they must understand that we will not give in to the dictates of their blackmail." Netanyahu rejected criticism from the United States that Israel did not take into consideration the fate of American hostages when it abducted Obeid. 'We must first understand that

Lawyer guilty of murder scheme

PIRAEUS, Greece (AP) - A the European Economic Comlawyer was sentenced to death today for masterminding the murders of eight elderly people as part of a sophisticated scheme to forge their wills and acquire their wealth.

Christos Papadopoulos, who called his white-collar crime ring 'Murder Inc.'' and whose mother-in-law was among its victims, laughed when his sentence was announced. He had been convicted of murder on Monday.

Despite the decision, Papadopoulos is not likely to be executed. Greece is a member of munity and the trade group prohibits capital punishment.

Although the death sentence remains on the books, it has in practice been abolished and condemned prisoners remain in jail for life. The last execution took place in 1972.

Authorities say Murder Inc.'s members included notary publics, lawyers, a doctor and a police officer.

Authorities said that between 1979 and 1986, the gang members forged wills worth at least $18.7 million.

Philippine employees protest pay

MANILA, Philippines (AP) -Thousands of government employees launched a nationwide protest today to demand higher pay. President Corazon Aquino said the country cannot afford to pay better wages.

About 12,000 striking workers rallied in front of the Senate building to press their demand. police said, joining public school teachers who walked off the job eight days ago over salary demands.

Officials said the extent of the walkout was unclear. Organizers said the walkout affected at least 28 government agencies, including the University of the Philippines, the weather service, the social security system, the Central Bank, the National Food Authority, and the Department of Labor.

Thousands view uprising exhibit

BEIJING (AP) - Thousands of people jammed into a military museum today to view a new exhibit devoted to the prodemocracy uprising, while citizens generally ignored celebrating the anniversary of the army.

Crowds gathered four or five deep in front of the displays of the seven-week student movement, pointing at black-and-white photos of marches that drew up to 1 million people.

The pro-democracy movement was crushed June 3-4 by the army, which killed hundreds of unarmed civilians in clearing central Beijing of protesters. The government has since portrayed the army as having heroically ended an uprising organized by thugs

CITY OF FORSAN

This notice concerns 1989 property tax rates for City of Forsan. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Babies and bathwater do not mix without adult supervision

DEAR ABBY: I must reply to the letter in your column in which a Newark, N.J., writer stated:

"A child of 2 months can be placed in an inch of water in the bathtub, and taught to turn itself over, put its hands under its chest, and get its face out of the water so it can make a noise.

Abby, this is absolutely untrue, and impossible! I am an infant development specialist and have worked in the pediatric department of a university center for many years. The erroneous belief that infants can be taught to save their own lives in the bathtub or a pool is not true. A 2-month-old child face down in an inch of water for even a few seconds can lead to aspiration or even death!

Everyone who works in and around a pediatric emergency room or intensive care unit dreads the coming of summer because of all the accidents that can befall a child. Drownings and neardrownings, which can leave a child severely brain-damaged, are the most preventable.

Many of these accidents occur in backyard pools or at parties with many adults present, all of whom thought "someone else" was watching the child.

Every child deserves supervision around any kind of water, and it is the adult's job to provide that supervision. - CAREY E. HALSEY, LOYOLA UNIVERSITY MEDICAL CENTER, MAYWOOD, ILL

DEAR CAREY HALSEY: You are right, of course. I was too trusting and naive to have printed that letter without checking the facts as stated. Thanks for setting the record straight.

* * * DEAR ABBY: I was recently widowed, and learned a lesson I would like you to pass on to friends of other widows or widowers. On the evening of my first wedding anniversary without my husanniversaries of both family and invited to a dinner with some friends of many years. I had calls from my children that day remembering the day and chatting about memories they had of their dad. It was wonderful. I thought my friends were thinking of my anniversary also, and I looked forward to talking about many happy events we had shared. Abby, nobody mentioned that it was my anniversary, so I did. There was dead silence for a moment, then the subject was quickly changed. I was very hurt, and pondered "why" for a long time afterward. Finally, I concluded that they assumed that mentioning it might make me sad. Then I recalled that I had also ignored the

to say.

A few days later, another widowed friend had an anniversary. I called her first thing in the morning to let her know I was thinking of her. She was delighted. A few days later she wrote me a note saying my call was the only one she had received, and how much it had meant to her.

From now on, I will not shy away from such occasions. I hope you will think the lesson I learned worth passing on to your readers. A WIDOW

Coates preparing for Texas Games' races

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ For the Herald

COAHOMA - In the summertime, most teenagers usually are looking for a place to cool down from the scorching hot summer sun, but Matt Coates uses the hot weather to get in shape and concentrate on the start of a new year and run a little track on the side.

"I've been running in the summer to get ready for football and stay in shape. This is my first year to compete," Matt said.

Coates, along with other state qualifiers, will compete in the Texas Amateur Athletic Federation Texas Games in LaPorte Thursday; he is entered in the 3.000 meter run.

Other cities that will be represented in the Texas Games will be Deer Park, Pasadena, Baytown, Beaumont, Texas City, and Rosenberg. The first Games were held in San Antonio in 1986, followed by the 1987 games held in Ft. Worth and Bryan/College Station last year. *

He won the region X meet in the 15-16 division with a time of 11:08 to earn a trip to the state event. Counties in Region X are: Andrews, Martin, Howard, Mitchell, Nolan, MATT COATES Winkler, Ector, Midland, Glasscock, Ward, Crane, Upton and Reagan.

Little brother Rocky Coates, running in a younger age division, placed fourth in the mile with a time of 6:20. He, along with parents Linda and R.L. Coates, will be pulling for Matt when he takes the field Thursday night.

"We are really pround of our kids. They have worked hard and they continue to run every day and with a 15-year-old and a 11-year-old, that's all you can ask for," Linda said.

"I started running in the seventh grade and I guess that helped a lot," Matt said modestly

Coates placed first in the mile at district in the junior varsity division. "He has finished in the top in every track meet he has participated in this past year," said older brother Dale. "If he would have been running for the varsity, he could probably have finished in the top four in our district."

But, Matt is not just a one-track man as far as sports is concerned.

He also is involved in different sports. He plays football, basketball, track and cross country.

loss to Boston increases O's woes

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Right now, the American League East is a race in reverse for the Baltimore Orioles. And manager Frank Robinson still can't figure out what's going wrong after so much had gone right for most of the season.

"If there was an answer I'd be a millionaire," Robinson said of his team's slump, which has seen the Orioles lose 11 of the last 12 games. "I'd go to every team that's in a slump and sell it to them."

The Orioles' latest loss was a 9-6 defeat to the Boston Red Sox Monay night. That trimmed their lead three games over Boston and foronto in the ever-tightening AL East race.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) • For 14 years they've been poking fun at Tom Rafferty.

Laugh as they might, he's still in the NFL and the merrymakers are elsewhere.

Rafferty, slow and small for a center, endures for the Dallas Cowboys like the star on the team helmet, two of the few things that haven't gone the way of the passenger pigeon at Valley Ranch.

Roger Staubach and Bob Breunig used to plot ways of making sport of Rafferty. The most famous incident occurred one year during the boredom of training camp.

They mixed dog food in a peanut bowl and asked Rafferty over for snacks. Naturally, he ate the dog food with the peanut mix. He was then nicknamed "Ruff, Ruff" by his hilarious teammates.

"I'll pay them back some day for it," said Rafferty whose patience knows no bounds

Well, 'Ruff,Ruff'' has been rough for the Cowboys

He hadn't missed a game in his career until last year when he got a severe thigh bruise. He took over as starting center in 1984 and has been there since. Rafferty played guard until then.

Under new coach Jimmy Johnson, Rafferty is trying to fend off younger players.

'They keep trying to get rid of me and I keep trying to fool 'em,' strong but I don't make mistakes. I can still play."

Last year Rafferty was tested by new offensive line coach Jim Erkenbeck, noted for testing his players physically

"Erkenbeck wanted a bunch of 300-pound 20-year-olds playing but I think I showed him you have to have experience at the position I play," Rafferty said. "You don't want mistakes at center. You want somebody steady in there and that's me.

Rafferty and defensive end Ed Jones are the only two Cowboys who have played in a Super Bowl.

"I think Johnson still knows big Ed and I can compete," Rafferty said. "We wouldn't be out here if they didn't think we could compete. The bottom line is to get the job done not how old you are. We have Super Bowl experience.'

Rafferty said he was surprised by a 40-play scrimmage the second day in camp.

"The wake-up call came early." Rafferty said. "We're going to have a more aggressive team that's for sure. Johnson also wants us to cut down on mistakes. Mistakes are what killed us last year. Johnson has made the point that a big part of the game is mental. We beat ourselves a lot last vear."

Rafferty said it was strange not having Tom Landry as the coach, but added, "We pretty well got over that in three mini-camps. The change wasn't that difficult when we got out here because of the camps.

NL roundup

On April 16, the last time the teams met, Pittsburgh led 4-3 in the eighth when Bonilla booted an apparent inning-ending grounder by Wallach. Nelson Santovenia singled in the tying run and Montreal went on to win in the 11th.

It happened again Monday night. With the game tied 2-2 and two outs in the eighth, Wallach reached when Bonilla booted his grounder, Bonilla's third error of the game. Santovenia followed with his 26th home run, a drive off the foul-pole screen in left.

"It happens sometimes Bonilla said, "but you can't let it get you down. You just try to keep on giving 120 percent.'

In other games, St. Louis beat New York 3-2 and Chicago and Philadelphia split a doubleheader. The Cubs won the first game 10-2 and the Phillies won the second game 7-4.

Mark Langston, 9-3, won for the seventh time in eight starts. He allowed seven hits in eight-plus innings, struck out five and walked five. Tim Burke got the final three outs for his 22nd save in 29 opportunities.

"He struggled for the first four DeLeon, 11-9, allowed three hits and is 3-0 against the Mets this year after losing nine of his first 10 decisions against them. Ron Darling, 8-9, lost for the third time in his last four starts and had his four-game winning streak against St. Louis snapped.

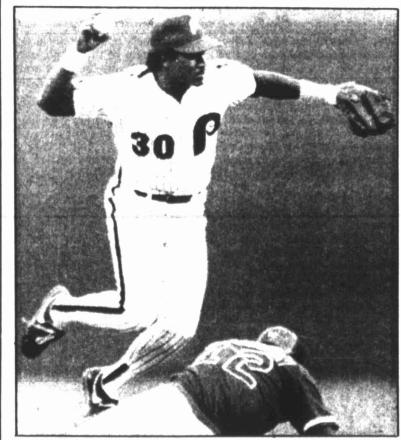

After Dave Magadan doubled in two runs with two outs in the eighth, Ken Dayley relieved, walked Howard Johnson intentionally and got Darryl on a llyout. Todd Worrell finished for his 15th save.

Cubs 10, Phillies 2 Phillies 7, Cubs 4

Rick Sutcliffe pitched a three hitter, Ryne Sandberg homered twice and Dwight Smith hit a grand slam off Greg Harris in the first game at Veterans Stadium.

Don Carman won in his first start since April 12 and Steve Lake drove in three runs in the second game. It was only the second loss in the last 10 games for the Cubs, who made four errors. Sutcliffe, 11-9, won for the first

NFL training camp notes

By The Associated Press

William "Refrigerator" Perry's bulk has always been a weighty issue with the Chicago Bears. However, right now the Bears are more concerned with his skill rather than his size.

"It's not any exact poundage, it's how he's performing on the field," defensive coordinator Vince Tobin said Monday after watching the Refrigerator work out for the first time. "As long as he's playing effectively, we don't care about exact pounds. And if he's not playing effectively, then we'll play somebody else.'

terms over the weekend before starting workouts on Monday. The one-time media darling, known as much for his appetite as his ability, was forced to stay out of camp last year because of weight problems. Perry made sure that didn't happen this year.

"If you come in with the right frame of mind, you're going to play," said Perry, who signed a three-year contract. "Whatever it takes the Chicago Bears to win, I'm happy to do it.

Coach Mike Ditka had given Perry a tough warning about his attitude during the contract talks. Perry, an early holdout, came to But Tobin said he expected no problems from the defensive lineman who was an integral part of the Bears' Super Bowl championship team of 1986.

"There's never been a problem with his attitude on the playing field," Tobin said. "We've just had some problems when he's not around

As for his weight, the Bears are still a little concerned about that. Perry, known to weigh well over 300 pounds throughout most of his career, wasn't talking about any specific figure this time. Nor were the Bears.

'He knows where he has to be. He's old enough to stay there,'

Tobin said. "When he gets too heavy, he can't play effectively." Meanwhile, safety Shaun Gayle, another key contract holdout with the Bears, came to terms Monday. The Bears said Gayle agreed to a multi-year contract. Also Monday, the Bears reac-

Twins, Mets swap pitchers just before trading deadline

NEW YORK (AP) - Frank Viola was traded Monday night by the Minnesota Twins to the New York Mets, who hope they got the ace that can pull them back into a pennant race that is slipping away. The Twins received pitchers Rick Aguilera and David West and three players to be named later. The teams met all day and completed the deal shortly before the midnight trading deadline.

Earlier in the evening, the Mets acquired reliever Jeff Musselman from Toronto. That move made the Mets more willing to trade pitchers.

Viola, 29, has struggled after winning the Cy Young award last season. He is 8-12 with 3.79 earned run average Viola was born in New York and was a star at St. John's University. He will fly to St. Louis on Tuesday and it is expected he will start for the Mets on Wednesday night against the Cardinals.

'It's a shock for me. It's the first time it's ever happened. I have a lot of fond memories for Min- ing five Mets players. nesota, the fans and the championship, but this is coming home,' Viola said in New York, where the Twins were to play the Yankees Tuesday. "Now, I'll have a chance to play for a team I grew up with."

The Mets, who missed a chance to get Mark Langston earlier this season, had been looking to fill the void left by Dwight Gooden's injury. Gooden is recovering from a torn muscle under his right armpit and will not be ready to pitch again until late August.

The Mets are in fourth place in the National League East and lost their seventh straight game Monday night. New York is seven games behind Montreal, which got Langston from Seattle in May. Langston has gone 9-3 for the Expos. "I know we're giving up a lot for Viola, he's one of the premier pitchers in baseball," Mets manager Davey Johnson said. "Anytime we can get a player of this caliber, you have to make the trade.

Kelly said. "Any time a player starts with you in the minor leagues and comes up to the majors, he's always special to you."

Aguilera, 27, is 6-6 with seven saves and a 2.34 ERA. He had been ineffective recently as a reliever and had wanted to return to a starting role.

West, 24, is a promising lefthander who was called up from the minors to take Gooden's spot in the rotation. He was hit hard in two starts and is 0-2 with a 7.40.

The three other players in the trade will be announced later. It is expected one of them will be pitcher Kevin Tapani, 25.

LONDON (AP) - Actor Jack Lemmon said he's glad to be back on the London stage and would 'much rather play here than on Broadway, frankly.

The Oscar-winning actor appeared Thursday at a news conference with Michael Gambon and Robert Flemyng, his co-stars in Donald Freed's "Veterans Day," and extolled Britain's well-known

"British audiences know how to listen. They know how to be there when the damn curtain's going to go up. They understand theater,' said the 64-year-old Lemmon, sporting a crewcut from filming his role in the upcoming film "Dad."

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The only way to handle pressure now is to kick back and relax. You may feel that things are coming at you from every direction. Set your own timetable; refuse to be rushed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Follow where your heart leads you in a close relationship. Long-term commitments enjoy favorable influences. Use the telephone frequently and the bottom line will improve. Distant contacts need encouragement. Be supportive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Surround yourself with luxury, even if it is only for the moment. Do your best to please a special loved one. Family members need to know that they are important to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This is a very family-oriented time for you. Getting the whole gang together for a holiday is the best idea you have had in a long time. Ask a brother or sister to help.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Unexpected developments get your life moving again. You have a golden opportunity to meet a true soul mate. Take a chance on a blind date arranged by friends. Dress to impress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Long overdue recognition comes your way. The job picture becomes clearer. Plan to go out this weekend and celebrate! Invite a good friend to join a family outing. Repay favors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Return phone calls promptly. Some opportunities come only once in a lifetime. Do not lose out! A fine evening for an intimate dinner with the one you love. Share your innermost thoughts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You will soon be sitting pretty if you play your cards right. Relationships take time to mature, but mature they will. Fresh financial gains are part of the picture. Diversify your investments

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Not a good day to announce major changes. Bide your time. Plan ahead so you can settle in for a romantic weekend. Clearing away overdue paperwork will improve your concentration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have an extra share of charisma now. Use it to advance your goals and obtain financial backing. Selfcontrol should be your byword all week. Resist the temptation to say something flippant.

AQUĂRIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You find yourself in a quieter mood today. Productivity rises! Your home is the perfect setting for entertaining friends this evening. Go ahead and wear your heart on your sleeve in romance

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A phone call could leave you with a feeling of contentment. Go along graciously with the suggestion of a friend or business partner. Trust your instincts in business. Financial security remains a top priority.

Working on the cutting edge

By DAWN BUTZ Amarillo Daily News

HAPPY - Artists toil for hours over their creations, hoping to adequately convey their ideas. Frank Briscoe also spends hours at his art, but he doesn't worry about people getting the point.

Briscoe's signature goes on the sharpened edge of a knife blade

"It's an art. Just like drawing a picture" Briscoe said. "You have to have it in you mind before you start.'

Briscoe has been molding steel into cutlery for more than 25 years and has turned out several hundred unique products, each just a little bit different, and all distinguished by his engraved signature.

"I didn't really learn, it's just natural — something that comes to you" he said. "To me, it's a gift from the Lord. I've always been able to do things with my hands.

Briscoe, a native of the Brownfield-Littlefield area, has been a welder since high school. In fact, it was this trade that brought him to the cheerfullynamed Panhandle town.

"I was welding for a man who was building an elevator around Tulia," he said. "I liked it here, so I stayed."

That was 31 years ago, and he's been doing a little bit of everything since then. But when he's not welding or running cattle, it's almost a given you'll find the self-proclaimed jack of all trades in his little shop behind his house thinking up a new knife design.

Unlike some knife makers who make pattern knives with a machine, Briscoe's knives are all handmade and most are original designs, he said.

I very seidom make two knives alike. I make one, then lose interest. After you've made one, you could make 5,000 just

Officials gambling on ferret's future

SYBILLE CANYON, Wyo. (AP) Tucked beneath the ridge of rattlesnake-infested Sybille Canyon, a barbed-wire fence and burglar alarms guard a growing colony of black-footed ferrets, once viewed as the rarest mammal on Earth.

Low-light TV cameras feed the ferrets' nocturnal frolicking and mating to 14 monitors and video recorders. Nearby, an enclosed prairie dog town is ready for the day humans teach the ferrets how to kill their natural prey.

If all goes well, the weasel-like animals will be returned to the wild in 1991, starting with recolonization of the prairie dog community near Meeteetse where ferrets were found in 1981 after having been thought extinct.

Success would be the payoff to a gamble begun by the Wyoming Game and Fish Department in 1985 despite the failure of other breeding programs. Thirty-four births last year let state veterinarians Tom Thorne and Don Kwiatkowski set up colonies in Virginia and Wyoming; more than 60 kits have been born this year.

"Counting the animals from this year, there's 100 in the world," said Kwiatkowski. "Any other species, people would still be highly concerned over their survival. But most people figure they're on their way to recovery and that's it. No big thing anymore. But there can be a setback at any time.'

"We're still pretty precarious, tenuous, whatever you want to say," said Thorne. The other colonies are "life insurance, if you want to call it."

The ferrets didn't always need such insurance. They once roamed the West from southern Canada to Mexico, inhabiting colonies of tunneling prairie dogs. As ranchers poisoned the prairies to kill predators, prairie dog populations fluctuated and the ferrets became more susceptible to disease.

In 1982, just 61 ferrets were thought to be in the Meeteetse colony in north-central Wyoming. The population hit 129 by 1984, but tailed off to less than two dozen in 1985 when the decision to breed the animals was made.

The breeding program started dismally. Six ferrets brought in from Meeteetse the first year died of canine distemper, prompting a 1986 decision to capture the colony's remaining 18 ferrets. Those included Scarface and Becky, a father and daughter, who in June 1987 gave their species a fighting chance with a litter of six kits here. Their offspring and those of other "founders" are dominant as Thorne and Kwiatkowski try to diversify the gene pool.

"We have what we think were eight founder animals, because seclusion at the complex here.

they were brought in from geographically different areas, and they were observed in the wild before being caught so we know they aren't at least full sibs, and some of them ... haven't been related for a couple generations," said Kwiatkowski.

"We follow a genetic plan each season for breeding, which makes it a little more difficult. You can't just put the female in heat with the best male you have." So far, the 1989 pairings have been between unrelated ferrets.

'Last year was just about the same. Only the first year we had a father and daughter breeding, because those were the only animals that would mate," he said. 'We should end up with an animal for release that's much more diverse than was ever in the population" at Meeteetse.

Gator season coming

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials have announced general boundaries within which alligators may be legally hunted during the Sept, 1-17 hunting season this year.

Alligator tags for the 1989 season will be issued on a quota basis to landowners or their authorized agents.

Tag quotas are based on estimated alligator populations. Some 2,008 tags will be available for issuance in 1989. That is a slight increase from 1988, when 1,885 were available on a smaller total harvest area

The areas to be hunted and numbers of tags in each are as follows:

Brazoria County: Manor-Eagle Nest Lake Complex (29), Brazos River Club (8), Big Slough (10), Harris Reservoir (6), W.H. Black Lake Reservoir and Slough (5), Bar X Lakes and Slough (3), Tennecot Hunting Club (5), Mallard Lake (3), Austin Bayou Reservoirs (2), Bell Lake (1), Lake Mojo (4), Columbia Lakes (3). Chocolate Bayou Canal Co. (4), Griffith Ranch (1), Peltier Lake (2), Sims Lake (1), Cow Creek Reservoir (2) and Lake Jackson

- Calhoun County: Guadalupe Delta Marsh (18), NW of Powderhorn Lake (12), Black & Jones Bayou (5) and Coloma Creek (6)

- Colorado County: Eagle Lake Complex (23)

Fort Bend County: Dry Creek (6), Worthington Lake (9), Pecan Bend Subdivision Lake (5), Harrison and Anderson Oxbow Lakes (4), Lake Olympia (15) and Meyers Lake (3).

Henderson County: Koon Creek area (12).

Matagorda County: Donaldson Lake (5), Big Boggy (4), Peyton Creek (5), Canoe Bayou Lakes (10), Mad Island Complex (30), Robbins Slough (25), Little Boggy (10), Texas Gulf (2), Oyster Lake (3), Matthews Lake (2), Runnels (3), Yelderman (3), Vineyard (1) and Canals (7).

like it. But after I get one built, I'm ready to try another one.'

Briscoe puts his ideas for each knife on cardboard and then traces the pattern onto the steel with chalk. Then he uses a torch or a saw to cut the pattern from the metal.

After he gets the shape, Briscoe drills holes for the handles and starts grinding the blade using a belt sander or an emerv rock

Briscoe said he flat grinds most of his blades, an equal amount on each side, until he gets the blade to the point he Wabls

"The closer you get, the more careful you get" he said. "If I get tired I'll quit and go do something else. If I don't, I'll mess it up. It may be a day or a week before I get back to it.

"After I get my blades ground out and finished real well, I go ahead and polish them. Then I temper them.

Tempering hardens the blades, he says, and therefore is a delicate process where a craftsman really has to know his trade

Briscoe uses oil or water, depending on the kind of steel, to cool his blades to the right hardness

"I bring the blade — by sight – to the right heat temperature: a cherry red color" he explained. "Then I put it in oil to cool and make it hard. You have to be real careful with water. If you cool it too quick, you'll make the blade brittle."

After tempering, Briscoe repolishes the blade and adds the handles.

There are two kinds of finishes, he said.

"Some like the satin finish that doesn't have a glare. And some of them like a real pretty shine. Me, I don't care. But it sure takes a lot of work to put a high polish finish on them.

Although the blade is the most difficult part of the knife to craft, Briscoe says the handle is what really makes a knife.

He uses a variety of materials for his handles, including hardwoods, laminated woods, a pearl imitation and some skins, but his trademark is dyed horns.

"I'm about the only one who does that" Briscoe says of his process of boiling the horns in dyes

"A lady at a gun show a while back asked me where I got those red horns. I told her I cut them off a red deer.'

first in 40 years

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) - The sighting of killer whales in the Gulf of Mexico for the first time in about 40 years has been confirmed by an Alabama biologist.

Bob Shipp, professor of marine science at the University of South Alabama in Mobile, agreed the whales were killers after viewing a videotape taken by fishermen participating in last weekend's Pen-

Tournament.

The whales were sighted about 80 miles south of Perdido Bay, which separates Alabama from the Florida Panhandle.

"We don't know how they got here, but they are a migratory species," Shipp said. "It's possible they migrated to the warm water in the winter and got trapped here when they turned back to head north.'

He said there were at least four and possibly six whales in the group.

Skip Grizzle, 31, of Mobile said he and five others were aboard a charter fishing boat when they saw the whales. The video was made by Leslie Shape of Atlanta.

"We immediately recognized them as being killer whales," Grizzle said.

Killer whales, most commonly found in colder waters, have distinctive black and white coloring, are 20 to 30 feet long and a large fin on their backs. They eat anything from small fish to seals and walruses

About 15 to 20 species of whale inhabit the gulf, with pilot and beach whales the most common, Shipp said. There was an unconfirmed sighting of killer whales last year near the Chandeleur Islands off the Louisiana coast, Shipp said.

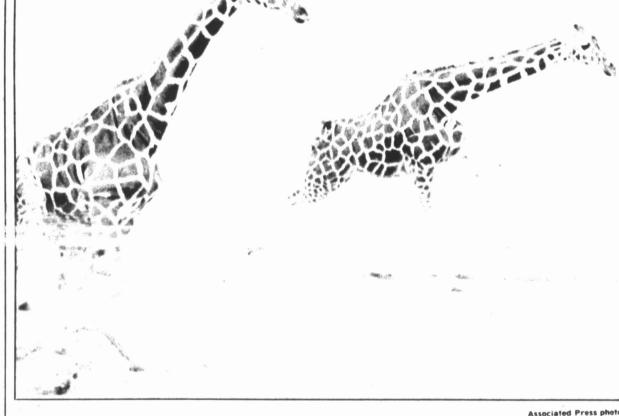

He said he received a call Monday from Grizzle but refused to believe him until seeing the video. "I told my secretary, 'That guy's crazy," Shipp said.

But he changed his mind after watching the 10-minute tape that included three minutes of what he called good footage of the whales that ranged in size from about 6 feet to 20 feet long

"No doubt about it," Shipp said. "They're killer whales.

"It appears that they have taken up residency and are actually surviving in the gulf," Grizzle said.

Shipp agreed and added that he thinks they may become a common sight in a few years.

'Something magical'

CNN anchor creates wildlife from carvings

ATLANTA (AP) — During the piece of wood afternoon Don Miller can be seen in millions of American homes. At night the Cable News Network anchorman can be found at his kitchen table, carving memories from his childhood in the Canadian wilderness out of wood.

'There's something magical about the way they emerge, it's not just a technical exercise," Miller said, explaining how he brings a just-startled otter or a hunting bobcat out of the block.

'Even when you make a mistake, the magic's there. That bobcat was supposed to be looking the other way, but I cut too much off. The animal seems to have a life of its own as it emerges. Even I am amazed sometimes how it comes out.

Each piece, a beaver carrying a log, a mother bear and cubs walking over a rock pile, or a pair of mountain sheep scrambling down a rocky slope, is carved from a single

"I prefer jelutong, a South American wood very similar to basswood," because it's soft and seldom splits, Miller said. The wood must be kiln dried for three to four months before its ready to use. Miller buys 4x4 beams which are pressure-glued together to create a block big enough for the piece he sees in his mind.

As a child, the son of an English-Scotch father and Ojibway Indian mother "did a lot of lying on my stomach, watching beavers build their dams or deer coming down to drink" or other animals earning their livelihood in the forest

"It's kind of a cleansing feeling, watching animals going about their business undisturbed," he said.

As he prepares to carve, Miller visits zoos, collects picture and tries "to fill my mind with the image.

"I try to do the pose from that, to find some subtle little something about the animal, the thing that makes it look natural," he said.

To do that, he goes back to his childhood, the day, for instance, he saw a moose crashing up a hill after being startled.

"It was just the way he moved," Miller said. "There's nothing like seeing animals in the wild to get the natural movement.'

The first step of the carving is a line drawing on paper.

"It's amazing how close you have to be. You can be onesixteenth off and it shows that something's wrong with it. If I don't get the drawing right, I can't proceed," he said.

Then the drawing goes on the block of wood and Miller cuts out the animal's silhouette with a hand saw and bores out open spaces with a brace and bit.

"I do everything between my legs at the kitchen table. I have an old pine table. The light's best in the kitchen. So I do it there and sweep up the shavings when I'm finished.

He works at night, using chisel, two scoops and a 2-inch knife, after his wife and 7-year-old baby are asleep. Sometimes he'll work all night. Other nights he quits when

"I've gotten up in the middle of the night and taken a couple of whacks at it and all of a sudden it's there," he said.

Miller inherited his talent and his love of wilderness from his father, Bruce Miller, one of Canada's bestknown woodcarvers, who died of cancer in 1968.

The family lived off the land and a small garden. Miller's father worked part time as a game warden in Ontario's Algonquin Provincial Park and as a carver.

He taught the craft to his son, beginning with sharpening tools, polishing horns, sanding carvings.

Refugio County: Negley (4). Victoria County: Adler Lake (2), Linn Lake-McDonald Bayou (3), McFaddin Marsh (3), Fordyce Gravel Pits (2) and Elm Bayou (2). In Atascosa, McMullen and San Patricio counties, there will be limited quotas and tag issuance on scattered rural wetlands as verified by department staff.

Additional areas in Chambers, Jefferson, Galveston, Liberty and Orange counties will be eligible for tag issuance and hunting.

Other limited areas also may be onsidered by the department for alligator tag issuance, if additional information substantiates the presence of alligator populations that can be harvested, said Bruce Thompson, the department's alligator program director.

Thompson said the quota of 2,008 tags for 1989 is calculated as a percentage of the estimated population of alligators four feet and longer within the designated

Although alligators are numerous in much of Texas' habitat, alligators of the size that produce marketable hides generally four feet and longer represent only an estimated 13.5 percent of the alligator population,
