Heat relief

West Texas Opportunities, Inc., is administering this year's Texas Heat Relief program, a plan which helps people with their electric bills.

To be eligible for the program, the household must be within the 120 percent poverty level guidelines and have a family member that has a medical condition which is aggravated by heat. A written income verification statement for the past month and a medical need certificate signed by a doctor or registered nurse are required.

Applications for the program are available at Westside Community Center, Northside Community Center, Howard County Welfare, senior citizens, various churches and West Texas Opportunities, 1000 11th Place.

The completed applications and paperwork should be brought to West Texas Opportunities where an interview to determine eligibility will be scheduled.

The program is for August and September only. Anyone needing more information can call West Texas Opportunities at 267-9536.

Flying elephant

SAN ANTONIO — The head of a stuffed seven-ton African bull elephant is lifted by crane to the fourth floor of a mall here, where it was lowered through a hole in the roof to its new home. The elephant will join a stuffed giraffe and more than 300 stuffed animals as part of a new wildlife exhibit.

J.R. Ewing tactics

DALLAS (AP) — In a case of real life mirroring fiction, the producer of the "Dallas" television series has sued the owner of Southfork Ranch seeking to keep the owner of the ranch from using the Southfork name or making any other reference to the series and its fictional Ewing clan.

It's a suit that would make the J.R. Ewing proud. The suit, filed Wednesday by Lorimar Distribution Inc. against Terry V. Trippett and his businesses, CollinCommodore Ltd. and Collin County Ranch Corp., alleges that Trippett and his companies failed to renew a 1988 licensing agreement requiring royalty payments of at least $500,000.

Trippett missed a Dec. 31 deadline to renew the contract with a $100,000 down payment on the ranch's 1989 royalty obligation, which is calculated as a percentage of the property's quarterly income. Southfork Ranch, owned by Trippett, a former Odessa oilman, is located near Murphy in adjacent Collin County.

Phillips, Pickens suit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal appeals court has ordered a retrial of charges against raider T. Boone Pickens' investment group, claiming violation of securities and racketeering laws in a takeover bid for Phillips Petroleum Inc. five years ago.

A three-judge panel of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals threw out a lower court's summary judgment in favor of Mesa Partnership and sent the case back to U.S. District Court in Delaware.

The lawsuits brought by Phillips shareholders accused Mesa of deception in its $9.1 billion attempt to take over the Bartlesville, Okla., oil company.

The appeals court threw out the lower court ruling favorable to Pickens' group.

Area school districts finalize budgets

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

August means more than just preparing for another school year as far as area school districts are concerned.

It also means that school boards must adopt their budgets for the coming year and decide how much money taxpayers will have to shell out to finance their children's education.

Area trustees have been busily working on details for the budgets, and following is a district-by-district look at what changes might be made for the 1989-90 school year:

Big Spring

School trustees will conduct a public hearing today at 5:15 p.m. to adopt the budget and tax rate for the coming school year.

Board members tentatively approved an 8 percent tax increase during July budget workshops, Superintendent Bill McQueary stated recently.

Loss of state revenue and additional mandated expenditures were cited as the main reasons for the proposed increase.

"For the 1989-90 school year, we're looking at a $400,000 loss in state revenue, coupled with about $700,000 in state mandates," McQueary said. "After much debate... we decided that we'd probably have an 8 percent tax increase for the coming school year."

The tax rate, if approved Thursday, will rise 9 cents from 1988-89's rate of 99.2 cents per $100 valuation to $1.08 per $100 valuation, McQueary said.

The major expenditure increase will be in the area of teacher salaries. The trustees approved the increase to prevent further erosion in the teacher base and to provide instructors with an $1,800 pay raise, McQueary said.

Roundtable eyes child care study

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Results of a feasibility study into the needs and existing provisions for child care in Big Spring were presented Wednesday to members of the Communications Roundtable.

The study, which took form recently after roundtable members discussed problem areas with current day care service and possible options, showed there are 14 day care providers in the area but that there are still some needs not being met by the centers.

Concerns roundtable members raised in the previous meeting include: provision for after-hour care for children of working parents; before and after care school for children; transportation of children (between school and child care facilities); care for ill children of working parents; provision for handicapped children; infant care; child care needs of students; consideration of an on-campus child care center at Howard College or on-site care at certain Big Spring businesses.

All of those issues, as well as consumer preferences in selecting child care and costs were addressed in Wednesday's presentation.

Results of that preliminary study — culled from 545 replies to 5,380 surveys distributed to 44 local businesses and 30 responses from a 7,500 community survey distributed through the Herald — indicate that the majority of people who need day care services are mostly white, married, female, have two children and are members of two-career families.

Roundtable members in the previous meeting discussed the possibility of forming one large cooperative program such as converting the dilapidated former K-Mart building into a day care center and having roundtable businesses contribute to the project in their area of expertise.

"The first idea, the big center, was a time of brainstorming," said Cheri Sparks, vice president for student services at Howard College, after the meeting Wednesday. Now what the study is doing is to determine "what the needs are (and) make sure the private sector has a chance to meet the needs," she said.

Rather than have roundtable businesses create their own cooperative day care center, Sparks said planners are placing emphasis on "making it work with what we've got first."

The focus is now on the existing day care facilities and "looking at areas they can't meet," she said.

Specifically, Sparks mentioned the possibility of having Scenic Mountain Medical Center provide a

Cancer victim's invention helps bald women wear wigs

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Cancer is not a pretty thing. It wrenches beauty from some and drains the emotions and life from others.

But for Geneva R. Dunagan it led to the invention of a device to hold wigs in place for bald women.

Dunagan decided to get a patent for it, a project that is still ongoing. And now, because of the work involved in getting a patent, she has decided to someday write a book on how to get one.

It all started Dunagan in 1982 when she had a breast removed. Chemotherapy followed. Then her hair fell out, a typical side effect of the cancer drugs.

She began using wigs to cover her nearly bald head but became frustrated because the wig would not stay in place.

"I discovered when you lose hair, there is a space in your wig," she explained. "Wigs are for people with hair."

She said women with hair simply tie it in a bun on the top of their pate. That fits into the hollow area of the wig, helping keep it in place.

The new frustration that compounded the trauma of Dunagan's situation was soon channeled into a burst of creative problem solving. It happened one afternoon when she left work determined to do something about the embarrassment of her wig always sliding off.

"I came home from work in a hysterical state. My wig had been sliding all day," she said. The solution was simple, so simple that she cannot understand why nobody else ever thought of it. Dunagan got some old lingerie and nylon hose, sewed the lingerie into a small cushion and filled it with the nylon hose.

It neatly fit into the hollow area on the top of the wig so that it fit snugly on her head.

"I wore it to work that day," she proclaimed. "It works!"

"The interesting thing about this is there's nothing like it in the world on the market," she said. "Most (bald) people that wear a wig wear double stick tape."

She told a horror story of a woman in Florida who paid $2,000 for a custom-made wig but became infected from the tape that held it on. "She used double stick tape. It fit her head perfectly," Dunagan said. "The doctor told her he could not cure the infection until she stopped wearing the double-stick tape."

Dunagan's discovery soon began spreading with her generosity. "I had another friend who's head was very small and she was crying," she said. "We used two (cushions) in hers."

Dunagan says those are the kinds of people she wants to help. "She would have just stayed home," she said. "As time went by I began to fit other people."

In 1986 her generosity took on an entrepreneurial twist. It started when her chemotherapy and follow-up physician, Dr. Raj Patel, of Midland, became interested.

"He heard me talking about it and he asked me what I wanted to do," she said. "In 1986 he wanted to know what I had done about it."

Dunagan sought advice from a Big Spring inventor who has 25 national patents. She got more advice and encouragement from other friends such as Doug Moore.

Inside Texas

Texas plant toxic?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ALCOA plant in Point Comfort, Texas, leads the National Wildlife Federation's list of 500 plants nationwide with the largest releases of toxic chemicals into the environment.

Six Texas companies were among the top 18 plants on the federation's "Toxic 500" list, four of them in the top 10. Only one other state, Louisiana, had as many plants in the top 25, with six.

The federation said the Aluminum Company of America plant in Point Comfort released more than 465 million pounds of toxins. Most of the toxic chemicals were buried, and the greatest single toxin was aluminum oxide, which the federation said appears to irritate and damage the respiratory system.

Other Texas plants in the top 10 were ALCOA's Rockdale plant in Milam County, ranked third with releases of 329 million pounds; Monsanto Co.'s plant in Alvin in Brazoria County, ranked seventh with releases of almost 176 million pounds; and the E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co.'s Du Pont Beaumont Works plant in Beaumont, ranked eighth with releases of 169 million pounds.

Store clerk killed

DALLAS (AP) — A 19-year-old man was fatally shot on his third day as a convenience store clerk, police said.

The victim was identified as Jeffrey Saunders, who had moved to Dallas four days ago from Maryland.

Dallas police said Saunders died at 9:16 a.m. Wednesday of gunshot wounds at Parkland Memorial Hospital, about five hours after two witnesses had found Saunders lying in a pool of blood behind the counter of a 7-Eleven store in North Dallas.

Dallas police detective Stan McNear said it does not appear robbery was a motive for the slaying, but he said some property had been taken from the store.

Dyess plane crashes

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Investigators were expected to begin probing today the crash of a military cargo plane that killed one crew member and injured six.

Seven people were aboard the C-130 Hercules when it crashed during an exercise Wednesday night, officials said. The plane belonged to the 463 Tactical Airlift Wing based at Dyess Air Force Base near Abilene, Texas.

The crash occurred at the Sicily Drop Zone at the Fort Bragg Army base about 7 p.m.

Searchers still hopeful of finding Leland alive

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The United States sent a fleet of rescue and military aircraft to Ethiopia to help in the third day of a search for a plane carrying U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland and 13 others.

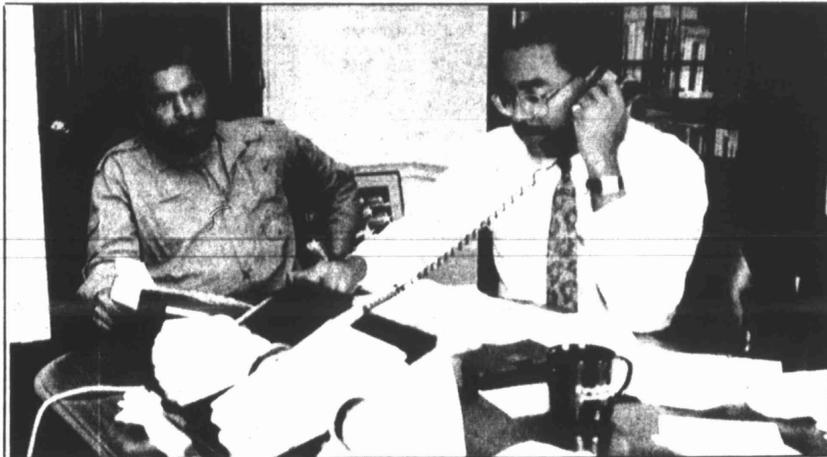

Officials said they remained optimistic because a master bush pilot was at the controls when the plane disappeared in bad weather Monday shortly after leaving this capital for a refugee camp near the Ethiopian-Sudanese border.

President Bush called Leland's disappearance a matter "of great concern to us" and said Ethiopia is "going to get all the cooperation we can give them."

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Wednesday that Marxist Ethiopia "agreed to an overflight of the area by a U-2 photo-reconnaissance plane."

She said an Air Force C-141 Starlifter medical evacuation plane was sent from West Germany carrying a 20-member medical team and search and rescue, weather and communications personnel. The C-141 is scheduled to arrive today.

National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft reported in Washington that Ethiopia had requested U.S. help and said: "They're going to get all the cooperation we can give them."

WASHINGTON — Gaston Leland, right, brother of Rep. Mickey Leland, and Houston City Councilman Rodney Ellis man the phones in the congressman's Capitol Hill office Wednesday. Leland and 13 others vanished in a small plane while enroute to a refugee camp in Ethiopia Monday.

Wednesday's search ended at dusk without a trace of the De Havilland Twin Otter plane, but Robert Houdek, U.S. charge d'affaires in Addis Ababa, said, "There are a lot of aspects that give us cause for hope." Houdek said the plane was a "great bush aircraft" capable of landing in close, rough terrain.

He said the pilot, Assefa Gebre-Giorgis, was "the best damn bush pilot in Ethiopia." Gebre-Giorgis, a former Ethiopian air force pilot, "knows Ethiopia like the back of his hand," Houdek said.

Leland, 44, a Democrat from Houston who heads the House

Select Committee on Hunger, has great interest in Africa's refugee problem. He was flying to the Fugnido refugee camp, which is 480 miles southwest of the capital of Addis Ababa and houses 300,000 Sudanese who have fled famine and civil war.

Officials said nine to 10 Ethiopian search planes were in the air at any one time Wednesday, surveying an area of about 24,000 square miles. Police, security officials and farmers have conducted ground searches.

The congressman arrived on Monday and hours later boarded the Twin Otter — a high-winged, short takeoff and landing aircraft powered by two turboprop engines. With him were eight other Americans and five Ethiopians, including the pilot and co-pilot.

The plane took off in bad weather and Gebre-Giorgis made his last radio contact 15 minutes out of Addis Ababa.

Houdek said another cause for hope was "that we haven't found any wreckage" in the rugged mountains and high plateaus along the intended flight path.

The search area was expanded Wednesday to parts of Sudan south of the Fugnido refugee camp.

National drug policy will target rural, suburban areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drug policy director William J. Bennett says his soon-to-be unveiled national strategy for fighting illegal drugs target the suburbs and rural areas, not just the inner cities.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he is encouraged by Bennett's promise, which follows Bentsen's request in July that measures be included in the plan that address "the serious and growing problem of drug abuse in smaller towns and the rural countryside."

"Certainly, we'll want to see details of his plan and one of the big questions is whether he'll propose adequate resources to get the job done in rural areas or anywhere else, for that matter," Bentsen said Wednesday.

In a report released last week by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, based on separate reports from all 93 U.S. attorneys, federal prosecutors in Texas said drugs, dealers and violence had found their way into the state's rural reaches.

Bennett is to release the nation's first comprehensive anti-drug strategy Sept. 5.

In a letter to Bentsen released by his office Wednesday, Bennett said drugs and the problems they cause are not confined to urban areas.

"Rural and suburban areas will not be forgotten when we unveil the strategy on September 5," Bennett told Bentsen.

Bentsen had warned Bennett that the focus of the drug strategy must not be solely on drugs in the urban areas "if we are to make real progress."

In a report released last week by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, based on separate reports from all 93 U.S. attorneys, federal prosecutors in Texas said drugs, dealers and violence had found their way into the state's rural reaches.

U.S. Attorney Robert J. Wortham of the Eastern District of Texas said in his report that the heavily wooded forests of East Texas are excellent for secluded marijuana growth and especially suited for clandestine labs to produce methamphetamines.

Wortham said the highway system in the district, which runs from Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange northwest to Plano, "provides a tremendous opportunity for narcotics traffickers to enter and travel through the district in furtherance of their unlawful objectives."

"The district is overrun with organizations from Miami, Los Angeles and Houston who traffic through the district either with money from their activities or drugs," the report said.

Marine and air smuggling are also problems in the district, the report said.

Foreigners account for only 1 percent of farm ownership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign ownership of American farmland is remaining steady, with overseas investors accounting for about 1 percent of agricultural acreage in the United States last year, the General Accounting Office says.

A total of 13,215 parcels comprising almost 12.5 million acres with an overall value of $9.5 billion were held by 7,790 foreign individuals and corporations, said the report prepared by the congressional research arm.

That overall picture has not changed much for a decade, although there have been significant fluctuations in holdings by specific countries, the GAO said in a report to Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D.

British owners had the largest share of foreign holdings last year, with 2.78 million acres, or 22.3 percent, the report said. It said Canadians were next with 2.5 million acres, or 20 percent.

Then came the French with 1.14 million acres, or 9 percent, and

Business

West Germans, with 1.13 million acres, or 9 percent.

The report measures farmland ownership by "foreign persons," which it defines as foreign individuals or corporations holding interests of 10 percent or more. The threshold is 50 percent or more if several foreigners own shares of less than 10 percent and are not acting in concert.

Britain, Canada, France and West Germany were the only countries whose nationals held 1 million acres.

The GAO did point out that one obstacle to uncovering the ultimate beneficiaries of foreign ownership is that the Department of Agriculture places limits on how deeply it inquires into the maze of subsidiaries and holding companies.

Bush expected to name new chairman of Joint Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is expected to nominate former White House national security adviser Gen. Colin L. Powell as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, administration sources say.

Powell, 52, would become the youngest man, and the first black, to become the nation's top military officer.

The four-star Army general, who now heads the U.S. Army Forces Command at Fort McPherson, Ga., would take over the prestigious position from Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., who is due to retire Sept. 30.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the White House was expected to make the announcement today.

The position requires Senate confirmation.

Gen. P.X. Kelley, who worked with Powell in the Pentagon before retiring as Commandant of the Marine Corps, once described him as "a very extraordinary guy."

"He can handle stress extremely well. He never gets rattled. He was always a cool head," Kelley said.

In the post of chairman, Powell would act as the principal military adviser to the president and the secretary of defense.

During the most recent hostage crisis, Crowe was a frequent visitor to the White House, offering his assessment of the military options available to Bush.

Under a new management reform program instituted by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, the chairman wields greater influence over the Pentagon's budget and is able to advise the secretary of defense on "the full range of issues" that come before him.

The chairman also is allowed to offer his own opinion to the president and defense secretary, eschewing past practice of only passing on the opinion of the joint chiefs, who are in charge of the various military branches.

The selection of Powell would mean that the Army general would leap over numerous more senior, and more experienced, military officers. A leading candidate for the position has been Air Force Gen. Robert Herres, the vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs.

Powell distinguished himself in the highly visible White House roles of national security adviser and deputy national security adviser and was well-known to Bush during his tenure as vice president.

Powell was the first black to be named chief of the NSC when President Reagan tapped him for the post in November 1987.

He rose to the White House post after working with his predecessor, Frank Carlucci, to reform the scandal-racked office in the days after the Iran-Contra affair.

Pentagon officials expressed hope that Powell will be warmly received in Congress. But his selection was expected by Pentagon insiders to cause some ripples of discontent because he was named only recently to the four-star level and lacks the broad experience of many senior military officers who have held the post in the past.

In speaking to groups of young blacks, he often warns them of their duty to help others and to protect the gains of the civil rights revolution.

"Don't squander the blood, sweat and tears of those who paved the way for you," he told Clark Atlanta University graduates this spring. "The greatest danger... is complacency."

In heading the U.S. Army Forces Command since April, he was charged with keeping the 1 million active, reserve and National Guard troops in the United States ready for combat in defense of the continental United States.

Before his stint at the NSC, Powell commanded the Army V Corps in West Germany for six months. Earlier, he was Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's senior military assistant from 1983-86.

Powell was born of Jamaican immigrant parents in New York City and raised in the South Bronx.

He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1958 after earning a bachelor's degree in geology at the City University of New York, and later earned a master's degree in business administration from patent you have to have someone back you," she said. "Then you have to have a lot of patience."

George Washington University. He served in the Office of Management and Budget in 1972 during a term as a White House fellow.

So far one company has purchased Wig Anchor pillows. Mediquip Company, a prosthesis company in Plano, bought 50. In Temple, a social worker in the pediatric unit at Scott and White Hospital has agreed to explore the feasibility of fitting children with wigs using the device.

Dunagan also plans to talk to volunteers at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston about selling them in a gift and beauty shop there. But her eyes are bigger than the cottage industry she now operates. She would like to be marketed by the biggest wig company in the world — Eva Gabor International.

She is awaiting word from the president following the completion of a leverage buyout the company is currently undergoing.

"I have heard from the president several times and he said keep in touch and keep reminding me. I've always worn their wigs so they're the ones I like," she said of the company which sells through catalogs.

"I think cataloging is the way to go. This is what has been suggested to us by other marketing people," Dunagan said.

She would sell an exclusive right to buy, manufacture and market Wig Anchor for a certain number of years, and she would also collect a royalty on sales.

But negotiations are also being conducted with a Florida prosthesis company called Jodee's Bra, another option.

"We're trying to decide if they're just going to make them or if they're going to do the entire packaging," Dunagan said.

A few real estate and business courses have helped Dunagan in her worldwide marketing saga but mostly it has been a learn-as-you-go life experience. The haphazard education prompted the beginnings of Dunagan's next project: writing a book about how to patent and market a new product.

"Incidentally, I'm keeping notes and I'm going to write a book," she said. "There are so many things and nobody tells you. You just have to figure it out."

"But I listen to what people say," she continued. "There's a way and I'm going to figure out a way."

Weather

Yuma, Ariz., received 3½ inches of rain Wednesday night, almost 1½ times its normal rainfall for the entire year. Average annual rainfall there is one of the lowest in the nation — a little more than 2½ inches.

The thunderstorm began with gusty winds that stirred up dust and sand and reduced visibility to half a mile at times. The heavy rain that followed further reduced visibility to a few hundred feet.

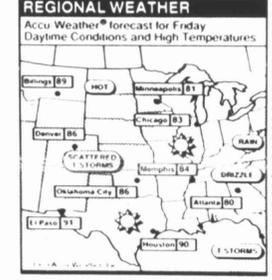

The storm severed communications in much of Yuma and caused major flooding. About a foot of standing water covered the runway at the airport.

In east-central California, roads in the Benton area of Mono County had to be closed after they were covered with water 2 feet deep. Some people had to be rescued by helicopter, officials said.

Elsewhere, showers and thunderstorms were widely scattered over western sections of the central Plains, especially near the Kansas-Colorado line. Showers also extended along coastal sections of the south Atlantic states.

High pressure over the north Atlantic states dominated the weather across most of the eastern half of the nation. Skies were clear early today from New England across the Ohio and Tennessee Valleys to much of Texas.

Today's forecast called for scattered showers and thunderstorms from Florida to the southern and Middle Atlantic coast states; showers and thunderstorms across the Rockies, the central and southern Plateau and the Desert Southwest; and sunshiny throughout the rest of the nation.

"To raise the same amount of money as last year — what's called the effective tax rate — we'd have to go to $1.04 (per $100 valuation)," Poyner said. "I'm sure we'll have to raise the rate, but how much, I'm not sure... We've cut almost everything we can cut."

He added that a deficit will, in all likelihood, be included in the budget.

Garden City

GARDEN CITY — Glasscock ISD trustees have tentatively approved a 21 percent decrease in the school's budget for the coming school year.

Superintendent Donn Stringer declined to give specifics on the budget, but said it would be approved at a public hearing Aug. 21 in the board room.

Colorado City

COLORADO CITY — Budget details for the Colorado ISD have not been finalized, but Superintendent James Ramsey said trustees are hopeful that they will be able to avoid a tax increase for the coming school year.

"It looks like, after cutting back a lot... that the budget will be $5.8 million — somewhere in that neighborhood," Ramsey said.

About $40 million has been added to the district's tax rolls. Facing a mandated pay raise for teachers, along with a loss of about $200,000 in state revenue, trustees are hoping they will be able to approximate last year's budget figures, Ramsey said.

The budget will be approved at a public hearing Aug. 21, but the tax rate will not be decided upon until later, Ramsey said.

Stanton

STANTON — Stanton ISD trustees are still putting the final touches on the district's 1989-90 budget, Business Manager Rob Roberson said.

"At this point, I'm presenting three different proposals to the board," he said. "It all depends on which one they pick."

The budget will be adopted at the board's Aug. 21 public hearing, Roberson said.

Sands

ACKERLY — Sands ISD trustees will hold a public hearing tonight to formally adopt the district's 1989-90 budget.

Board members tentatively approved a $1.56 million budget last week. That figure represents a slight increase from the previous year, Business Manager Sherryll Johnson said.

To finance the budget, trustees are expected to approve a $1.15 tax rate sometime in September. The rate for the previous school year was $1.08, she said.

Shrimping plan won't do the job

Before Congress amended the Endangered Species Act to require turtle excluder devices on all shrimping vessels, the bay shrimping law in effect then required shrimpers without TEDs to limit their trawling time to 90 minutes.

As you might expect, it was unenforceable. U.S. Coast Guard officials said it was impractical to try to observe shrimpers to see if they pulled nets up after 90 minutes.

The new (105-minute trawling) compromise is also unenforceable, even if all shrimpers were required to trawl for the same periods of time, because the Coast Guard does not have the manpower or resources to closely monitor shrimping operations.

You have to wonder if there's a tacit understanding that the 105-minute rule will not be enforced. Otherwise, why would shrimpers be ecstatic over a solution that would give them 25 percent less trawling time, and reduce their catches by a comparable percentage, rather than use a turtle excluder device that, on the East Coast, has resulted in an average catch loss of only 4 percent?

Call it a Lowe blow for justice

Actor Rob Lowe has escaped prosecution on allegations that he videotaped a sexual liaison with a 16-year-old girl.

The star of "St. Elmo's Fire" got what amounts to a slap on the wrist under an agreement with a Georgia court that he provide 20 hours of community service, warning high school students about the dangers of drugs.

The community service deal was arranged under a program for first-time offenders. But the court and attorneys involved in the case seem to feel the rehabilitation of Mr. Lowe is not an issue.

Twenty hours of community service combatting drug use is admirable, but the punishment doesn't fit the (alleged) crime.

The court would have done better to require the actor to appear in nationally televised public service advertisements warning about AIDS, herpes and teenage pregnancy.

Actors and other celebrities must be held to the same high standards as average citizens.

NTSB decision a 'bad blunder'

The National Transportation Safety Board blundered badly when it voted unanimously to support a move to keep recordings of cockpit conversations secret. The move comes not long after State District Judge Terry Canales ordered the release of the tapes of the crew of Delta Flight 1141 just minutes before it crashed at Dallas-Ft. Worth International Airport last year.

If it were a case of national security, an argument can be made that perhaps the information should be restricted.

But the public's right to know — and to sue for damages — is abridged by the kind of action taken by the NTSB. The action should be reversed.

Maintain no-negotiation policy

No matter what option President George Bush selects to respond to the new terrorist activities in the Middle East, that option must not involve negotiation with the terrorists, under any circumstances.

Bush began weighing his options after the reported hanging of Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins, a member of the United Nations peacekeeping force, by his Lebanese kidnappers, even as the terrorists threatened other murders.

Our president made an urgent call for all parties holding hostages in the Middle East to release them immediately, "to begin to reverse the cycle of violence in that region."

In Bush's policy crisis over the new terrorist activities, he confronts the same problems his two presidential predecessors encountered in relation to Middle East atrocities: An enemy in large part unseen, splintered into many religious factions with many different names, embracing a culture in which these splinter groups play by rules with which we are not familiar.

It would be easy to invoke a knee-jerk reaction of an eye for an eye in relation to the activities of terrorists, but that kind of retaliation is not effective against such a mysterious enemy. A diffused target is difficult to hit.

Because each situation of Middle East terrorism is unique, it is difficult for this nation to establish one national policy to cover all. The no-negotiation policy, however, must be retained.

Texas needs the bullet train

The (Texas) Legislature did something smart this spring, laying the groundwork for high speed train travel that could have a big impact on Texas transportation.

The legislation set in motion a process to bring the 185-mph so-called bullet trains to Texas, specifically to link the San Antonio-Houston-Dallas triangle as early as 2015.

Bullet trains are virtually unknown in the United States.

In a recent article, "The New Supertrains," Newsweek detailed how far across the Europeans, especially, are in crisscrossing the continent with superfast trains. The magazine called it a challenge for America.

Texas is one of only seven states that has accepted this challenge even though Congress has granted tax-free status to bonds issued to finance supertrains.

The Legislature was wise to illustrate Texas' move into the high-tech arena with this futuristic transportation system. May it be built on time.

Ways to clean 'the combat zone'

Twenty-eight years ago, when Federal Communications Commission Chairman Newton Minow characterized television, he called it "a vast wasteland." Today, he might call it "a combat zone."

American youngsters are exposed to 12,000 violent acts each year on TV, and that is a conservative estimate.

Both houses of Congress have passed bills allowing television industry officials to get together to draw up guidelines to curb violence in programming without running afoul of antitrust laws. The Senate measure would permit the industry to address restrictions on sex and drug use, too.

However, the legislation might not produce the desired result. Violence may be such a powerful ratings generator that some networks and television stations would be reluctant to give it up.

That is why, even with such a law on the books, viewers would need to continue exerting whatever influence they have. Sometimes, that influence is greater than what people think.

Like other industries, television responds to market pressures. We viewers hold the key to curbing the mayhem we and our children see on the tube. If you don't like what is being shown, turn the knob and let the network or station know.

Bush's approach most striking in crisis

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — From the outset, President Bush said his administration would work patiently, persistently — but probably not very dramatically — in the long, agonizing effort to gain freedom for Americans held hostage in Lebanon.

That applies even in time of crisis. It fits the restrained, low-key approach the president and his lieutenants are taking in the current situation, even toward the apparent killing of a kidnapped American Marine.

There is no lack of anger, outrage and frustration at the White House. But venting it with threats of retribution would do nothing to help the eight Americans still held captive of Shiite Moslem kidnapers.

Indeed, the dilemma confronting Bush, as it confronted his predecessors, is that reaction, even retaliation, serves the purposes of the terrorists who set out to create crisis in the first place.

The options are few anyhow.

Guest column

When he was vice president, Bush headed an administration task force on terrorism which observed in its report that American principles do not permit random retaliation.

Bush said he was outraged beyond words when the captors of Lt. Col. William R. Higgins claimed to have hanged him on July 31 in revenge for the kidnapping of Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, a Shiite cleric, by Israeli commandos.

The president's voice broke with emotion as he praised Higgins on Monday, calling him "one who stands as a symbol of the courage that burns in the breast of every American in uniform."

Hours later, the FBI said its experts had concluded that the man shown hanging in a videotape issued by the kidnapers probably was Higgins, but did not say how or when he died. Higgins was taken hostage Feb. 17, 1988, while serving with a United Nations peacekeeping unit.

Bush talked with Higgins' wife. He made no public statement on the FBI report.

The administration says it is actively pursuing diplomatic efforts to gain release of the remaining American hostages. At the same time, it has reinforced the U.S. fleet in the eastern Mediterranean. On Aug. 1, with Joseph Ciccioppo under death threat, word was relayed to Tehran that if any more hostages were killed, the United States would hold Iran responsible.

But the White House has been purposefully vague about what action might follow, saying only that there has been planning for every option. So, too, on speculation about possible ways out.

"There are a lot of ideas being floated, a lot of exchanges being made, but it's primarily a matter of talking and listening and not signaling your moves," said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater. "We will be careful not to respond to every new development, new statement, new idea. . . . He said there are going to be a lot of them.

Fitzwater also said the administration does not expect a quick resolution of the hostage situation, which already is measured in years.

Militant Moslem groups now hold at least 16 foreign hostages. The American held longest is Terry Anderson, now 41, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, seized in Beirut on March 16, 1985.

Now the administration is trying to transform a crisis into a solution.

Offering advice is easier.

The Senate adopted one resolution saying Bush should determine whether the United States can retaliate against the killers of Higgins "in a manner that would reduce the risk to Americans from terrorism." Then it adopted another asking the CIA and the Pentagon for a report by Sept. 1 on how best to locate and rescue the remaining American hostages.

Neither is realistic but then, neither is binding.

The news and more

By ART BUCHWALD

TV news is getting more exciting than ever. The reason is that there has been a breakthrough. It is now possible to simulate a news story that is as good or even better than the real thing.

The person who invented the SNS (simulated news story) is Arch McGarry, an independent special effects TV producer who is now one of the most sought-after men in television journalism.

"Where did you get the idea to simulate the news?" I asked.

"I was watching an oil spill off California on the evening news. The film was so grainy that you had no idea what was going on. The thought occurred to me that I could simulate a better oil spill than that. So I went to my bathtub and with the help of my kids re-enacted the spill and all the damage that followed. When I showed it to the producer at the evening news show, he was flabbergasted. Now whenever there is an oil spill in the world they use my film instead of the real thing."

"That's great. What other news stories have you simulated?"

"We do a lot of murders. In the past TV news reporters were restricted in showing a crime of passion because their cameras usually got there too late to tape it live. They came to me with the problem, and with models I can simulate any crime 20 minutes before air time."

"Do some people think they're seeing the real thing?"

"Most people believe they are. The advantage of simulation is that you can see a crime from start to finish so you can get emotionally involved."

"Do you simulate political stories in Washington?" "Yes, we do. The other day one of the networks heard that President Bush had playfully dunked Vice President Quayle's head underwater a half-dozen times in the Jacuzzi at Camp David. They had no film of it so they asked us if we would re-enact the dunking."

"How about sports? Do you simulate football or basketball events?" "Not yet, but we're working on it. When it comes to faking it we want to stick with hard news, such as train wrecks or Poland."

"You've simulated Poland?" "We've simulated what has been going on in Poland. We have a fellow who looks more like Walesa than Walesa, and we have the best Jaruzelski in the re-enactment business. When we stage a fight between them, it's 10 times better than what happened in Warsaw."

"Do you ever talk about Bloch, the alleged spy?" "I'm very proud to have been the first one to simulate the Bloch spy caper. To do it right I built the entire city of Vienna in our studios in Brooklyn. Not one news organization has ever done so much simulation on a story."

"I couldn't dispute him. When I saw it I felt I was sitting in the FBI's suite at the Sacher Hotel. 'Did you base the swapping of the briefcases on the real thing?'"

"Everything we simulate has to have authenticity or the networks couldn't call it news."

Raisa — the first lady of Gucci

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

MOSCOW — In the contest for the most unpopular person in the Soviet Union, there is only one contender — Raisa Maximovna Gorbachev, the first lady of Gucci.

She is about as beloved as a bread line. "We call her the queen," one young Muscovite mother told us. "She is more concerned about haircuts than us."

Populist leader Boris Yeltsin couldn't resist taking a crack at Raisa during an interview with us. We asked him about his home life. He said his wife stays home, where "she is prime minister, finance minister and every other minister." And, Yeltsin smiled, "She never travels abroad or within the country with me or gives sweets to children."

It was a deliberate, though unnamed swipe at Raisa, who usually accompanies her husband on official visits. She made headlines by simply showing up at the Reykjavik arms summit, when Nancy Reagan stayed home, and by sweetly distributing chocolates to children there while the cameras whirred.

But Raisa didn't earn a bad rap at home simply because she refuses to stay home. Her stylish excesses in a country of shortages have made her just a little more appreciated than Imelda Marcos at a soup kitchen.

The turnabout from initial public pride to public disdain happened quickly. Raisa inherited first ladyship from a succession of no-shows. Victoria Brezhnev surfaced briefly to greet the Nixons at a 1972 summit and then disappeared. Few people knew Yuri Andropov had a wife until she showed up at his funeral.

Raisa made her debut by accompanying her husband Mikhail Gorbachev to London in 1984. Fleet Street was captivated. The London press said that instead of looking like a "Siberian dam builder," Raisa was "the Bo Derek of the steppes." She and Mikhail were called "the Gucci comrades."

A Soviet artist proudly said at the time, "You Westerners must have thought all our women were barrel-shaped babushkas like Brezhnev's wife."

Raisa gave form to one of socialism's oldest maxims — equality of the sexes — that has never found its way into the Soviet government hierarchy. And she has brains. She is a graduate of Moscow University with a doctorate in philosophy and three books to her name. She can hold her own in a conversation with Pierre Cardin or a Smithsonian curator.

But by early 1987, Soviets were figuring out that Raisa didn't shop at the local K-Martski. KGB enemies of Gorbachev who wanted to bring the premier down a peg or two produced a clandestine video of Raisa's shopping habits and her expensive wardrobe.

There was the hidden-camera proof of her excesses — Raisa

Mother sentenced to jail term

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A woman who abandoned her newborn in a jetliner bathroom after giving birth on a flight from New Jersey to San Francisco was sentenced to six months in jail. San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Margaret J. Kemp said that despite claims of remorse, 25-year-old Christina LoCasto "wished the baby was just going to go away; that the baby would not be found, not be found alive and not attributed to her... it is extremely fortunate that the child lived."

The child, Alyssa, is in the custody of her paternal grandparents, John and Frances LoCasto of New York City's Staten Island, where the girl's mother also lives. The brown-haired, blue-eyed baby was discovered July 13, 1988, under the bathroom sink of a United Airlines jet shortly after it arrived at San Francisco International Airport from Newark. San Mateo County sheriff's deputies traced LoCasto the next morning through a passenger list. Mrs. LoCasto originally pleaded innocent to felony child endangerment.

Blind author wins writing contest

ACWORTH, Ga. (AP) — Tonya Robinson has never seen a book, but the blind 12-year-old wrote well enough to win an award at this year's Georgia Young Author's Writing Exposition. Tonya was to receive the award for best writing by a fourth- or fifth-grader during a state Board of Education ceremony today. She attributes her talent to her father, Thomas, who reads to her virtually every day.

"When I was real little, my dad would teach me vocabulary, and I loved that," Tonya recalled. "And now, me and him will just talk for hours and hours about history and all kinds of things. When I try to understand something in school, I'll ask him about it and he'll explain it and tell me even more about it." It was Robinson who first pegged his daughter's winning story, "The Mannerless King," as outstanding material. The story is about a village's efforts to reform the rude and selfish King Herdman.

Old Faithful is losing steam

JACKSON, Wyo. (AP) — Old Faithful is losing steam, according to a Yellowstone National Park geologist who says the geyser may some day shut off. The interval between eruptions has lengthened by about 14 minutes in recent years, said Rick Hutchinson. "There could come a day in the far distant future, or not too distant future, when Old Faithful will become less faithful and may become a dormant geyser," Hutchinson told the Jackson Hole News in an interview Tuesday. The geologist said there was no way to predict when that might happen, but scientists can tell from the geyser's cone that Old Faithful has been dormant in the past.

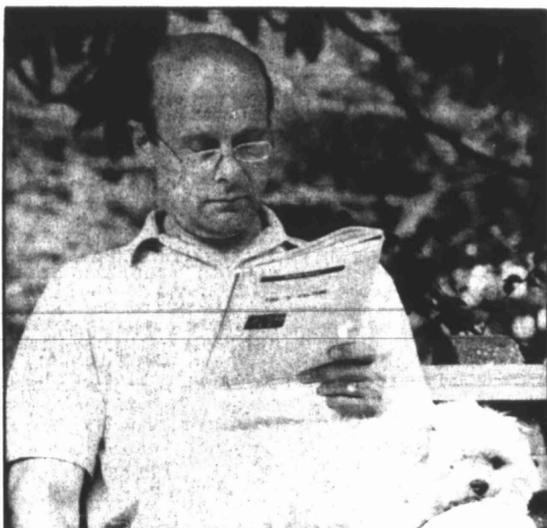

Hutchinson, who has monitored geysers in the park for years, said that for the first 100 years since Old Faithful's discovery in 1870, the average interval between eruptions was 65 minutes. Last spring, it was 78.9 minutes.

First woman heads cadets

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — For the first time in West Point's 187-year history, the captain of the Corps of Cadets is a woman. Kristin Baker, a self-proclaimed "Army brat" from Burke, Va., confidently marched onto the U.S. Military Academy grounds Wednesday afternoon after leading a regiment of new cadets on a 13-mile march from Lake Frederick, where they'd trained for six days. The 5-foot-4-inch, 112-pound Baker told the panting plebes to get some chow and then waded into a horde of reporters and photographers. "Now, my first objective is 'Ring Weekend,' then the first football game, then graduation on the 31st of May. Beyond that, I really don't know," she said. Commanding a brigade of more than 4,400 cadets will be Baker's primary concern for the coming academic year, which starts today. Women, admitted as cadets since 1976, make up 10 percent of the cadets at West Point.

KRISTIN BAKER

WASHINGTON — Suspected spy Felix Bloch, with his dog Mephisto on his lap, reads a magazine during an outing in Washington Wednesday afternoon. "I've developed a real symbiotic relationship with the media," Bloch said earlier. Bloch has, not by choice, been leading a caravan of FBI and news people since it was revealed he is suspected of spying for the Soviet Union.

Spy suspect leads media on merry chase

WASHINGTON (AP) — People in Felix Bloch's position often put a coat over their heads or run the other way whenever a news camera is pointed at them. But Bloch, the most visible spy suspect ever, uses a different approach. He makes himself available to every lens and microphone. "I've developed a real symbiotic relationship with the media," said Bloch, who has — not by choice — been leading a caravan of FBI and news people since it was revealed he is suspected of spying for the Soviet Union.

Bloch's walks around Washington are attracting attention the way Harry Truman's used to. Bloch made a trip to the cleaners Wednesday and it was recorded by cameras. He went for a 22-mile hike Tuesday and caused a coterie of Bloch watchers to go huffing and puffing along. Wednesday was an easier day. Bloch sat on a park bench for two hours enjoying the cool, bright day as much as anyone — can with microphones brushing his lips. He reached down to pet his poodle, Mephisto, and a dozen cameras whirred. He stretched back, hands behind his head, and microphones stretched out, too. People stared, but Bloch paid them no mind. "It's lovely," Bloch said. "I assure you that were it 95 degrees and 70 percent relative humidity, I would not be out here."

But: "I won't say anything about the allegations." Will there come a time when he will? "Possibly." It's that possibility and the summer doldrums that causes TV networks and other news organization to continue the expensive stakeouts. The government has brought no charges, and Bloch is free to do what and when he pleases. "I'm amazed that people have nothing better to do," he said to a reporter who was doing what his editors expected him to do. Bloch, a high-ranking diplomat at the U.S. Embassy in Vienna for much of the decade, is on leave from the diplomatic service while the government investigates his conduct. His new bond with news people was cemented Tuesday when he hiked into the Maryland countryside, trailed by his entourage. "I normally don't take walks like that, but I had the time and the weather was propitious," Bloch said. "I had the inclination. It was time to prove to myself perhaps that I could outlast the media and the FBI." What did his walk accomplish? "I never asked myself that question, whether it accomplishes anything or not," said Bloch. "If I have time on my hands, I like to mix it up. I read, I cook, I clean the house, I write, I work on this or that and I want to get my fresh air." Does he have any idea when there will be any kind of resolution of his case? "You are going to have to speak with people other than myself." Was he being kept twisting in the wind, to use John Ehrlichman's famous phrase? "Well, I think I'm sitting pretty firmly on the bench," he said. "Now, unless the Fourth Estate will buy me lunch, I'm going home." The offer was made, but Bloch declined and took Mephisto home.

Shamir, Bush agree to cooperate

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and President Bush agreed to coordinate efforts to release foreign hostages and Israeli prisoners held in Lebanon, a Shamir aide said today. The decision came in a 10-minute telephone call by Shamir to Bush on Wednesday night. Avi Pazner, a top aide to Shamir, described the talk as "warm and friendly."

Israel's kidnapping of Moslem cleric Sheikh Abdel Karim Obeid from southern Lebanon on July 28, Israeli reports said. A spokeswoman in Pazner's office said said Bush made no mention of Obeid's abduction, which the United States has criticized, but that the two leaders decided it was best to join forces on the hostage-prisoner issue. Shamir assured Bush that Israel would include the eight American hostages in any deal to trade Obeid and other Shiite prisoners in Israel's hands.

Contra officers request asylum

MIAMI (AP) — The Contra chief of staff and eight other top Nicaraguan rebels requested political asylum in the United States, but said they were not running because of the Central American pact to disband anti-Sandinista forces. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials said Wednesday that three of the requests were approved, but their names were not released. Perry Rivkind, INS district director in Miami, said the claims were given "special action" status and reviewed on the spot. INS officials said the other six requests were being given top priority.

The applications came two days after five Central American presidents signed an accord in Tela, Honduras, calling for the dismantling of the Contras within four months. Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega said the pact marks the death of the rebel movement. Israel Galeano, the rebel chief of staff known as Comandante Franklin, told The Miami Herald the group sought asylum to obtain travel documents and weren't planning to move to the United States.

Six killed in Lebanese fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Six people were killed and 25 wounded today when Syrian and Christian forces exchanged artillery fire in a barrage that pounded the residence of the Christian army commander and Moslem neighborhoods. Police said gunners deployed in the Druse mountains southeast of Beirut fired 240mm mortar rounds at the bomb-damaged presidential palace of the Christian commander, Gen. Michel Aoun, in Baabda, a Beirut suburb. The attack came one day after Aoun urged Moscow to suspend arms supplies to Syria. Beirut took the brunt of devastating shelling duels that have forced all but 200,000 of its 1.5 million population to seek refuge in safer areas in south Lebanon.

Mexican train plunges off bridge

LOS MOCHIS, Mexico (AP) — A local train on a milk-run from Mazatlan to the California border plunged off a bridge into a river in northwestern Mexico, killing at least 99 people and injuring 107, officials said. Jose Pena Galanza of the Pacific Railway told the government news agency Notimex that bodies had been pried from the wreckage of an engine and two passenger cars that fell early Wednesday into the San Rafael River, 59 miles southeast of Los Mochis. The site is 730 miles from Mexico City.

Reconstructing the past

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Memory is not like a file cabinet, says a University of Rochester psychologist who has studied the way people remember their lives.

When people think of their past, Craig Barclay says, they behave more like authors writing autobiographies, reconstructing the past so it meshes with current ideas of who they are.

"As we go through life, we may delete a chapter here, embellish an episode there, creating a narrative," Barclay says.

When people come to terms with painful episodes of their past and form new understandings, he says, "they are reworking their memories and, in the process, their very self-image."

Nursing shortage

BOSTON (AP) — American hospitals and nursing homes are short of nurses as demand outstrips supply by as much as 6-to-1 in some cities.

Yet, the number of working nurses — more than 2 million — is at an all-time high.

Nursing school enrollments have declined 27 percent since 1983 and many nurses are choosing other careers, leaving an estimated 11 percent of nursing positions in hospitals unfilled.

In an effort to ease the situation, hospitals are using firms such as Kimberly Quality Care, a supplier of nurses and therapists for institutions. It recruits and retains nurses by offering flexible and varied assignments.

Tourism a mainstay

ANDORRA LA VELLA, Andorra (AP) — The tiny, prosperous Principality of Andorra, bordered by Spain and France, covers 185 square miles, about half the area of New York City.

Andorra, located in the Pyrenees Mountains, has 49,000 inhabitants and a 100 percent literacy rate. Since it has free port status — trading in duty free goods — tourism is the country's mainstay. About 10 million visitor-shoppers come here each year.

Fly us to the moon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private firms increasingly are providing space transportation and other services that only a few years ago were only available from the government.

American firms that once built rockets under government contract are now developing private launch vehicles and offering commercial launch services to satellite owners, says the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Business partner

AUSTIN (AP) — Many corporation presidents cannot use a computer. Yet, many now have on their desks a small computer monitor screen with a remote-control instead of a keyboard.

The simplified system gives executives fingertip access to company data, says Execucom Systems Corp., which developed and markets the software.

About 15 minutes of instruction is needed to operate the system, which includes "artificial intelligence" that helps interpret raw facts and figures.

Writing a plan

NEW YORK (AP) — If you need to write a business plan, here's a tip from the New York State Science & Technology Foundation.

The "executive summary" is a critical component of the plan and it should not take more than one page.

The summary should cover such items as company objectives, the product, markets for the product, competitive advantages, projected financials, size of financing, timing and size of anticipated return on the investment. Repeat and expand upon these points within the document.

Many happy returns from Operation Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Your Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers campaign has made a fifth-grade class in Solon, Ohio, very proud of their country and the servicemen and women who are helping preserve the peace. We sent holiday greetings all over the world, and one extraordinary helicopter pilot, Lt. Arnal Cook, aboard the USS Nimitz, wrote us a thank-you note and sent us a two-hour videotape explaining what the crew on the Nimitz does, and why they are so proud to be serving their country. He narrated this educational masterpiece and even set it to music. How exciting it was for our class to be at sea with the Nimitz!

Lt. Cook's comments were so full of pride in his country and the job the Nimitz is doing that we have a new definition of "defense." No longer do we think of nuclear warheads and armaments, but of the fine men and women whose first mission is not war — and I quote Lt. Cook, "Our first mission is to prevent a war!"

We fifth-graders of Orchard Middle School salute you, Lt. Cook, and the crew of the USS Nimitz. Thank you, Dear Abby, for making this wonderful experience possible. — MRS. CAROLE ST. PETER AND FIFTH-GRADE CLASS, ORCHARD MIDDLE SCHOOL, SOLON, OHIO

DEAR MRS. ST. PETER AND FIFTH-GRADERS: Thanks for letting me know about your exciting experience with the USS Nimitz.

what happened when a Mississippi girl wrote to a lonely sailor on that ship. Read on:

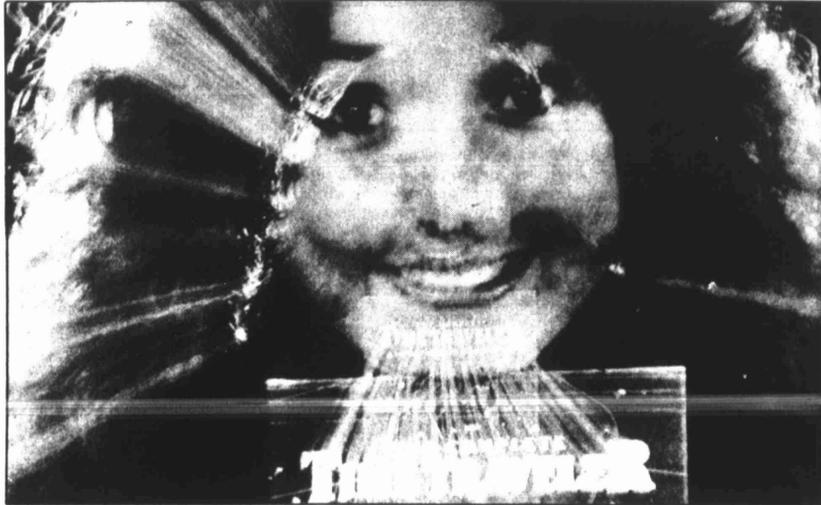

DEAR ABBY: While I was aboard the USS Nimitz, which was deployed to the Pacific and Indian oceans, I was feeling depressed because the holiday season was approaching, and I was far from friends and family.

I heard an announcement over the loudspeaker saying there was more than 500 pounds of mail in the public affairs office that had just arrived from Operation Dear Abby. I decided to go and find out what they were talking about.

After waiting in line for about 30 minutes, I then walked into the office and saw letters stacked everywhere. I picked one from Rebecca Winterstein of Florence, Miss. (It was in an attractive envelope and had a nice scent to it.) Choosing that letter changed my life! We corresponded for several months, and in April of 1989 I went to Mississippi to meet her. It was love at first sight, and the rest is history.

We were married on May 16 in Anniston, Ala., where I was attending school, and are looking forward to a lifetime of happiness together. Thanks, Abby! — MA 2 BRIAN KRAMER

Camera angles

By SANDY COLTON AP Newsfeatures

When we use our cameras, it is usually to shoot a pretty scene, or a posed group shot of the family as they stare into the camera.

It's one shot of this and one shot of that. Rarely do we think in terms of taking a group of pictures that relate to each other — a picture story.

Remember that old saying, "A picture is worth 10,000 words"? Why not put your imagination to work and create your own picture story? If you think about it, the possibilities are enormous. And, it's a lot of fun.

For youngsters who will soon be going back to school, a picture story provides the chance to report pictorially on your summer vacation or some special project you may have undertaken.

We grown-ups ought to consider how much more interesting the family photo album would be with an occasional picture story. When my children were young, I used them frequently to create little picture stories. Today, now that both boys are grown, married and away living their own lives, those old picture stories bring back many fond memories.

Shooting the stories was usually a spontaneous thing triggered by something the boys were doing at the time. One series started when I noticed my older boy, Jay, looking through the bars of a crib at his crying younger brother, Jim.

"Maybe he's hungry," I suggested to Jay, who was then about 3. "Why don't you make him something to eat."

That led us into the kitchen, where Jay, with the help of his father, pulled out a pan, spilled flour all over himself and everything else, and tried to prepare something. It ended with Jay trying to feed some of the mess to a perplexed Jim, who would have none of it. It also ended with my getting a real bawling out from the boys' mother when she saw the mess we made in the kitchen.

Another time, Jay was playing with his toy phone. I asked him why it didn't work, and gave him a tool box and suggested he fix it. The phone gradually wound up in small pieces as I documented its destruction. I then asked him why he broke his phone, and he broke into tears for the final shot. I did buy him a new phone.

A picture story is like a written story: It has a beginning and an end.

Suppose, for example, that you wanted to document Mom baking a cake. You would start at the beginning, with her mixing the batter. Then you would take shots of her pouring the batter into cake tins, putting the tins into the oven, pulling the tins out when the cake was done, and frosting it. Then, you might end with a shot of Pop happily wolfing down a piece of Mom's cake.

When creating a picture story, vary your position and angle. Take an establishing long shot, perhaps a picture of Mom standing at the counter with her mixer that also takes in the whole kitchen or, at least, the oven.

A heavy metal summit

NEW YORK (AP) — Bon Jovi will interrupt its tour for the album "New Jersey" to headline a "heavy metal summit" in Moscow.

The first Moscow Music Peace Festival will be held Aug. 12 and 13 at the 140,000-seat Lenin Stadium.

"We've been out since Halloween," leader Jon Bon Jovi said by telephone from Atlanta, where the group was performing. "We're 150 shows into the tour. We plan on being out till March of next year. We're the hardest working band in show business, self-proclaimed. We typically do 225 shows a year."

"We come back from Moscow and do the States for a month, New Zealand, Thailand, South America, Mexico. Anywhere they have electricity, we'll play. If they don't have electricity, just tell us in advance. We'll bring a real long extension cord."

Also on the Lenin Stadium bill are Ozzy Osbourne, Motley Crue, Scorpions, Cinderella and Skid

Row and, from the Soviet Union, Gorky Park, CCCP and Nuance. The shows will be broadcast in 30 countries.

The shows are benefits, not for peace as its name implies, but for an educational approach to fighting drug and alcohol abuse in the United States and Soviet Union. Ticket sale profits will be divided between the Make a Difference Foundation of Raleigh, N.C., and similar organizations in the Soviet Union. The foundation uses music and sports figures as role models to get its anti-substance abuse message across.

In America, the concert will be on pay-per-view TV for four hours the evening of Aug. 13. Those in the 11.5 million U.S. households equipped for pay-per-view can contact their cable operator to find out how to order it. Westwood One will simulcast the music.

Make a Difference Foundation receives money from that TV presentation — the concert won't be broadcast on any other channel for at least four months — and from a Polygram recording.

The record won't be live. Each group will record a song by a star who died of substance abuse. Bon Jovi recorded "The Boys Are Back in Town," written by singer-songwriter-bassist Phil Lynott of Thin Lizzy, an Irish band.

"He was a big influence on my career," Bon Jovi said. "That was a wonderful band. That song was its only hit, in the mid-1970s. The guy had problems with drugs and it killed him. They broke up before he died."

"It's our first show for drug abuse. What started as a snowflake has turned into an avalanche."

The band decided to do a concert somewhere for Make a Difference Foundation. The somewhere came to be Moscow and the concert became an East-West festival.

Summit

HOLLYWOOD — Jon Bon Jovi, left, lead singer for Bon Jovi, Tommy Lee, center, drummer for Motley Crue and Jan Inenkov, of the Russian rock group Gorky Park announced a two-day "heavy metal summit" during a press conference here last May.

Film review

By The Associated Press
"Cookie" — A Mafia comedy may seem as contradictory as a Mick Jagger lullaby or a Pee-wee Herman tragedy.

Yet several filmmakers have tried to combine laughter and mayhem, mostly with dismal results ("The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight"). Only John Huston succeeded with the sublimely black comedy, "Prizzi's Honor."

"Cookie" is not in the same league with "Prizzi's" but it is still an enjoyable romp, through the New York underworld credit is due to an inventive script by Nora Ephron and Alice Arlen and two major-league performances.

Peter Falk is Dino Capisco, a mobster coming to the end of a 13-year rap in Sing Sing. He is visited, much against her will, by his daughter, Cookie (Emily Lloyd), a foul-mouthed teen-ager whose style is early Cyndi Lauper. She reviles him for having neglected to marry her mother, Dianne Wiest. He'd like to, but he is irrevocably bound to his wife, Brenda Vaccaro.

After leaving the slammer, Falk tries to re-establish himself in his trade. He receives a warm greeting but a shruff from his former partner, Michael V. Gazzo. Falk also seeks to balance the demands of his wife and mistress and to seek some understanding with his combative daughter. He fails in all endeavors.

But Falk does a lot of calculating in his downtime at Sing Sing. He devises a scheme to outwit his murder-prone former associates, and he struggles to win over his scornful daughter. The plan is almost too complex to understand, but it all ends amazingly well.

In less talented hands, "Cookie" could easily have crumbled. But Susan Seidelman ("Desperately Seeking Susan") is accomplished at this kind of urban action-comedy. After the disastrous "Vibes," Peter Falk returns with one of his most inventively original characterizations.

The English actress Emily Lloyd is phenomenal as the streetwise Cookie Voltecki. She is on the brink of a brilliant career. Both Wiest and Vaccaro shine as Falk's wildly divergent ladyfriends.

Jerry Lewis seems to be building a new career of playing Mafia dons. He skillfully underplays his role as an Atlantic City boss, with the result that he commands attention in his every scene.

"Cookie" is one of the Lorimar films which Warner Bros. acquired following their merger. Laurence Ark was the producer.

The rating is R, mostly for language and some violence. Running time: 95 minutes.

Hillcrest, Sandstormers win slow-pitch softball crowns

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The regular season is now over in the Big Spring Industrial and Church softball leagues at Cotton Mize Field. In fact, the season is completed for Church League teams.

In Church League play, Hillcrest Baptist won the league with a 13-1 record, and also won the post-league tournament. Hillcrest's only loss came to Crestview Baptist.

Following Hillcrest in regular league play was the Church of God (11-4). Third was Crestview Baptist (10-5); followed by 14th and Main Church of Christ (8-6); Church of Nazarene (6-8); Big Spring Police Department (4-10); East 4th Baptist (4-10) and Big Spring Fire Department (3-11).

Thursday notes

In Industrial League play, the Sandstormers won going away, finishing with an 18-0 record. The Kings were second with a 14-4 mark, followed by the Outlaws and Trio Fuels with 11-7 records.

Finishing out the pack were Permian Research (9-9); Feds (9-10); Texaco (7-11); Fina (6-12); Elrod's Furniture (4-14); and McMahon Concrete (2-16).

The Industrial League post-league tournament begins Monday. Monday's games has McMahon Concrete playing the Feds at 6:30 p.m. The winner of that game will play the Sandstormers at 8:30. Fina will play Elrod's Furniture at 7:30 and Texaco plays the Outlaws at 9:30.

Manager Cotton Mize and his Fina Oilers have done it again. The Oilers tuned up for their regional tournament two weeks away by tying for first place in a 15-team tournament in Austin.

The Oilers began the tourney on an fascinating note, thanks to pitcher Johnny Mize. In their 6-0 win over the Austin Chiefs, Mize hurled a perfect game masterpiece. But in the second game the Oilers dropped a 7-6 decision to Austin Manor in 10 innings.

The Oilers then followed with a 4-0 win over the San Antonio Blue Jays, as Johnny Mize hurled his second shutout. The following game the Oilers romped San Antonio Motorola 8-1 as Bobby Doe got the win.

This set up a showdown with the Class B national champions San Antonio Jayhawks. Again Johnny Mize hurled a shutout, leading the Oilers to a 4-0 win.

Next it was pay-back time as the Oilers met Austin Manor, the team that had beaten them the second game of the tourney. Again it was a 10-inning affair, but the Oilers won this one 10-6.

This put the Oilers up against San Antonio Bud Light. Johnny Mize kept up his remarkable show, pitching his fourth consecutive shutout as the Oilers won 3-0.

This set up a match against Austin Rues Antiques. With the scored tied 6-6 in the bottom of the seventh inning and two outs, Oilers' Mize walked. Mize went to third on a single by Rick Barker. With David Altom at the plate, the Austin pitcher made a wild pitch, allowing Mize to score with the winning run.

This gave the Oilers and Rues Antiques 7-1 records in the tournament. But the two agreed not to play a title game because all the players were tired.

As a team the Oilers batted .344 in the tourney. Doe led all hitters with a .428 average. Barker batted .400, Rick Martinez .357; Eddie Martinez, .344, Jeff Jones, .333; Abel Gomez, .304; Altom, .304 and Burl Roberts .217.

Coach Mize thinks his Oilers have a chance of repeating as regional champs. The top two teams qualify to the national tournament in Bloomington, Ill.

The regional tournament is Aug. 18-19 in Pasadena.

Aggies coach knows pressure

HOUSTON (AP) — R.C. Slocum scoffs at the idea he'll be faced with more pressure now that he is Texas A&M's head football coach instead of the Aggies' defensive coordinator.

"When it's fourth and goal and Bo Jackson is carrying the ball in the Cotton Bowl and I'm calling the play on defense, I don't know how you can get more pressure than that," Slocum said.

"When you're a defensive coordinator, you don't say to yourself 'I'm under pressure now but I'm saving 30 percent so when I get to be a head coach, I can really be under pressure.'"

The Aggies lost to Auburn and Jackson, the Heisman Trophy winner in the 1986 Cotton Bowl, but Slocum survived the pressure and now he's starting his first year as head coach.

Jackie Sherrill resigned last December during an NCAA investigation of the school's athletic program.

Slocum, an A&M assistant 16 of the past 17 years, got the job of keeping the Aggies in contention for the Southwest Conference title.

Three-fourths of one of the best college linebacking corps in the country is gone but linebacker Aaron Wallace and safety Gary Jones are back.

Wide receiver-returner Rod Harris is gone, taking with him eight school records. Running back Darren Lewis, the No. 2 rusher in the nation last season, is back.

So what does it all add up to for the 1989 Texas Aggies?

It means they'll once again figure in the SWC title race.

Slocum has designated Lance Pavlas as the starting quarterback and brought in Bob Toledo as offensive coordinator to give the Aggies a more balanced attack.

Slocum expects to be a successful replacement for Sherrill and he expects Pavlas to run the offense.

"Jackie did an outstanding job at A&M, there's a legacy there to live up to," Slocum said. "But the school will go on and all I can do is be R.C. Slocum."

Darren Lewis will still be the big threat in the Aggie backfield, but Slocum wants the passing game to be more effective.

That's where he hopes Pavlas, less than spectacular in his two previous seasons, can help.

Pavlas will get the starting nod over injured Bucky Richardson, who will red-shirt this season. Pavlas will be backed up by Chris Osgood.

"He (Pavlas) reminds me of (Gary) Kubiak (former Aggie quarterback)," Slocum said.

"There were times I wondered if he'd ever even played high school football but he became good football player and he's still playing for the Denver Broncos."

"Lance has similarities to Kubiak and I feel he's going to really help us this season. The offense doesn't depend solely on him making the play every time.

"He does have some help." Lewis set or tied 13 school records last season and gained 1,672 yards, accounting for 38 percent of A&M's offense.

Lewis was second in the nation in rushing to Oklahoma State's Barry Sanders, the Heisman Trophy winner.

The Aggies lost linebackers John Roper, Dana Bastiste and Adam Bob, but a strong secondary, headed by Jones and cornerback Mickey Washington, should help pick up the slack.

The Aggies have non-conference games against Louisiana State in College Station and at Washington before opening SWC play Sept. 16 against Texas Christian.

Quarterback Phil Simms, who led the New York Giants to a Super Bowl championship three years ago, has raised his contract demands to the neighborhood of $1.4 million a year.

Offensive lineman Tony Mandarich, who has never played a down of professional football, has lowered his demands to the same high-rent district.

The 315-pound tackle, the No. 1 draft choice of the Green Bay Packers and No. 2 overall, told the Milwaukee Journal he no longer insists on getting as much as quarterback Troy Aikman, the top pick, who signed an $11.037 million, six-year deal with the Dallas Cowboys.

"He should make more than me because he was one pick better, but it shouldn't be $5 million more," Mandarich said.

Two more signings Wednesday — defensive end Wayne Martin by New Orleans and safety Louis Oliver by Miami — left 19 of the 28 first-rounders unsigned, along with two of the three players picked in the first round of the supplemental draft.

Simms is holding out for an increase in this year's $800,000 salary to a reported $1.4 million, plus a two-year contract extension. The Giants reportedly have offered $1.2 million for 1989, the last year on Simms' current contract. Linebacker Lawrence Taylor is the highest-paid Giant at $1.1 million.

Oliver ended a three-week holdout when he signed a four-year contract with the Dolphins for an estimated $2.05 million. The 25th player selected in the April draft, Oliver reported to training camp in time to join the afternoon workout.

Martin, an All-American from Arkansas, was the last of the Saints' draft choices to come to terms. Still unsigned are veteran kicker Morten Andersen and starting outside linebacker Pat Swilling.

Coach Jim Mora was asked when Martin would run the 1½-mile conditioning checkup required of all players before they begin practicing with the team.

Meanwhile, players were almost begging to sign with the Phoenix Cardinals.

Veteran linebacker Reggie McKenzie signed a three-year, $950,000 contract with the Car-

Phoenix's two remaining unsigned veterans, says he may sign a new contract by this weekend. Sharpe earned $415,000 last season and is seeking a multi-year contract with a annual salary of about $700,000.

Buffalo Bills Starting free safety Mark Kelso could be out five weeks because of a hamstring injury. Kelso, who has led the Bills in interceptions the last two years, was injured in Tuesday's practice.

Kansas City Chiefs Mike Elkins, the second-round draft choice, began practicing after agreeing to a four-year contract. Three key veterans — wide receiver Stephone Paige, kicker Nick Lowery and defensive back Albert Lewis — have not reported. Neither had No. 1 draft choice Derrick Thomas.

Washington Redskins Defensive end Dexter Manley returned to practice but defensive tackle Dean Hamel remained among the missing. Manley, who bruised a knee two days ago, dumped quarterback Stan Humphries during practice. Hamel left camp Monday because he feared for his wife's health. She had previously battled thyroid cancer and last week developed symptoms of a relapse, the Washington Post reported.

Philadelphia Eagles Reserve linebacker Ty Allert ended his holdout, reducing the team's count of unsigned players to just three veterans — defensive tackle Mike Pitts, offensive tackle Matt Darwin and wide receiver Mike Quick. In addition, defensive end Reggie White has not reported, contending the team is mistaken about an option year remaining on his contract.

After DWI arrest, Iceman worries about reputation

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Maintaining his innocence in the wake of drunk driving and marijuana possession charges, former San Antonio Spurs star George Gervin is worried most about keeping his reputation intact, his spokesman says.

"We're not concerned about the legal end," said Gervin's publicist, Jerry Barisano. "We're worried about his reputation being tarnished. It's the reputation he's built up all over the world with his personality and his exploits."

Gervin, 37, played guard for the Spurs from 1974 to 1985 before he was traded to the Chicago Bulls. The former NBA All-Star was arrested about 2:30 a.m. Tuesday on Interstate 410 in north-central San Antonio after he was stopped by a Bexar County sheriff's deputy.

According to the officer, Gervin's 1985 Porsche was traveling 66 mph in a 55 mph zone and was weaving. Gervin was charged with driving while intoxicated and possession of marijuana of 0 to 2 ounces, both misdemeanor charges. Each carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a possible $1,000 fine.

Big East to experiment with six fouls

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The Big East, a conference already known for its aggressive basketball style, added to that lore when the coaches voted to approve an experimental rule to allow players six fouls per game.

Boston College coach Jim

O'Brien, said the rule — approved Wednesday along with another to use the 45-second clock to count down 10-second violations — will just make it harder for the underdogs to win.

"It's just another case of the rich getting richer," O'Brien said. "The lesser teams work hard trying to get the other team's big men out of the game and now this just increases the better team's chances."

The Big East's final vote on the six-foul rule was not released. Several reports, however, said six schools had planned to vote for the rule change.

St. Louis stayed five games behind Chicago as Joe Magrane held Pittsburgh to six hits and hit his third career homer.

Magrane, 14-7, joined Mike Scott, Orel Hershiser and Ed Whitson as the only NL pitchers with at least 14 victories by handing Pittsburgh its 10th loss in 13 games.

Braves 6, Dodgers 3 Dale Murphy drove in five runs with a pair of homers and Pete Smith recorded his first victory since June 17 as Atlanta beat Los Angeles.

Murphy hit a three-run homer off John Wetteland, 3-4, in the first inning, the 34th of his career against Los Angeles.

Twins 7, Orioles 0 Allan Anderson remained unbeaten in six career decisions against Baltimore.

Rangers 4, Blue Jays 3 Harold Baines and Fred Manrique, each obtained in a recent trade with the White Sox.

Indians 7, Yankees 4 Brook Jacoby's two-run double put Cleveland ahead in the fifth inning and Joe Carter followed with his 22nd home run at Yankee Stadium.

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco Giants Will Clark congratulates teammate Kevin Mitchell after Mitchell hit a two-run homer against the Cincinnati Reds in the fifth inning Wednesday night.

National League

Matt Williams hit the fourth homer of the game for the Giants, who snapped a three-game losing streak and moved two games ahead of Houston atop the NL West.

Mitchell homered off Rick Mahler, 9-11, in a four-run first inning that also included run-scoring singles by Will Clark and Terry Kennedy.

Mitchell's second homer, on a broken bat, was against Norm

Angels move back into first place

By The Associated Press The California Angels see a change in Kirk McCaskill and he saw it, too. So for now, they lead the see-saw American League West.

McCaskill pitched seven strong innings Wednesday night as the Angels beat the Seattle Mariners 4-1 for a one-game edge over Oakland.

American League

McCaskill, slowed by injuries, won a total of two games after July in the 1987 and 1988 seasons.

The Angels moved ahead of Oakland, which lost to Chicago 3-2 in 11 innings.

McCaskill, 12-6, gave up six hits at home. Bob McClure pitched two scoreless innings and Bryan Harvey struck out the side in the ninth for his 16th save.

The Mariners have scored just two runs in 23 innings against McCaskill. He is 3-0 versus Seattle this season, but just 4-4 in his career.

The Angels scored two runs with two outs in both the fifth and sixth innings against Brian Holman, 4-5.

White Sox 3, Athletics 2 Carlton Fisk singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 11th inning and Chicago beat Oakland for its 14th victory in its last 16 home games. The Athletics lost for the fourth time in seven games.

Jose Canseco, who did not start for the second straight day because of a strained quadricep muscle, opened the Oakland ninth with a pinch-hit double.

Twins 7, Orioles 0 Allan Anderson remained unbeaten in six career decisions against Baltimore.

Anderson, 13-9, beat the Orioles for the third time this season and won his fourth decision overall.

Rangers 4, Blue Jays 3 Harold Baines and Fred Manrique, each obtained in a recent trade with the White Sox.

Indians 7, Yankees 4 Brook Jacoby's two-run double put Cleveland ahead in the fifth inning and Joe Carter followed with his 22nd home run at Yankee Stadium.

Cincinnati Bengals The Bengals will give rookie free agent Kevin Simons some playing time at right tackle in Sunday night's preseason game against Buffalo.

Seattle Seahawks Kelly Stouffer will be the starting quarterback when the Seahawks open their exhibition season Friday against Phoenix.

What's wrong with Chang?

LIVINGSTON, N.J. (AP) — Two months after winning the French Open, Michael Chang has become a question mark in the tennis world.

The question is: what's wrong? Chang, the 18-year-old ranked fifth in the world, was eliminated in the second round of the Swiss Army Knife Open on Wednesday night by little known Australian Jason Stoltenberg, 6-3, 7-6 (7-4).

The performance came just one day after Scott Warner, ranked 199th, extended Chang to three sets in the opening round, and less than a week after Jim Grabb, No. 65, beat Chang in the quarterfinals of the Volvo International at Stratton Mountain, Vt.

Stoltenberg is ranked No. 113. "It's always a learning experience every time you lose," Chang said. "I don't know what to say. After Stratton I worked hard and here my result is not as good. So it's kind of confusing.

1989 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN SANDS ISD

This notice concerns 1989 property tax rates for SANDS ISD. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$594,374
+ Last year's debt taxes	$135,085
= Last year's total taxes	$729,459
- Last year's tax base	$67,542,550
= Last year's total tax rate	$1.08/$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$720,387
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting taxes on new property)	$69,302,080
= This year's effective tax rate	$1.03948/$100
x 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing	$1.07066/$100
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$586,982
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$69,302,080
= This year's effective operating rate	$.84699/$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$.91474/$100
+ This year's debt rate	$.31420/$100
= This year's rollback rate	$1.22894/$100

SCHEDULE A: Unencumbered Fund Balances

The following balances will probably be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Sands CISD
Maintenance & Operation	$220,000.00

SCHEDULE B: 1989 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description or Debt Building	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid	Interest to be Paid	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
	$185,000.00	$32,526.00	$250.00	$217,776.00

Total required for 1989 debt service - Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A - Excess collections last year = Total to be paid from taxes in 1989 + Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 100% of its taxes in 1989 = Total Debt Service Levy

This notice contains a summary of actual effective and rollback tax rate calculations. You can inspect a copy of the full calculations at Martin County Appraisal District.

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Metropolitan Opera star Jessye Norman and violinist Isaac Stern will pay homage this weekend to Marian Anderson, the black contralto who once was banned from performing in Washington.

Fifty years ago, the Daughters of the American Revolution refused to let Anderson sing at Washington's Constitution Hall and first lady Eleanor Roosevelt resigned from the organization in protest.

Within days, Anderson was invited to sing on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial and her concert attracted a racially mixed audience of 75,000.

ANDERSON

Anderson went on to become the first black singer to perform in a leading role at the Metropolitan Opera. She sang at the inaugurations of Presidents Roosevelt and Kennedy and before kings and queens.

DETROIT (AP) — Soul singer

Aretha Franklin is offering to sing in a benefit in a last-ditch effort to restore music programs in Motown's public schools.

"They are already working on it," said Franklin's publicist Tuesday.

Superintendent John Porter said Franklin offered to do a benefit to help raise $1.25 million for Detroit's middle and elementary schools' instrumental music programs.

The classes were eliminated in June when the deficit-riddled school board approved $50 million in cuts to balance its budget. School officials earlier set a Monday deadline to raise the money.

Miss Martin County to be selected

By PAM TOLLISON
Miss Martin County Pageant
Director

Do you remember... "From Here to Eternity" winning the best movie award? ... gas costing 29 cents a gallon? ... flared skirts with a can-can... when Cleveland beat the Boston Braves for World Series?

Your memory will be sparked as the Martin County Fair Association, in conjunction with the Stanton Evening Lions Club, sponsors the annual Miss Martin County and Junior Miss Pageants Saturday night in the Stanton High School auditorium. The pageants begin at 7:30 p.m. and admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12. This year's theme is "A Sentimental Journey".

Judges for the pageant will be Linda Conway and Tim Haynes from Howard College, Laurie Churchwell from Snyder, and Brenda May from Midland College. Janet Storie, co-news anchor from KTPX-Channel 9, will be the emcee.

Contestants in the Miss Martin County contest and their sponsors are Kim Adkisson, Farm Bureau; Raquel Castro, Bill's IGA & True Value Hardware; Kaki Elmore, Cap Rock Electric; Patricia Gillum, First Bankers & Trust; Jana Heidleberg, White Motor Company; Nora Keele, Stanton Drug; Heather Madison, Stanton Herald; Sherrie McMorries, Swinson's Contractors Inc. and Cherise Williams, Stanton Evening Lions Club.

Junior Miss contestants are Crystal Adkisson, First National Bank; Tyshawn Barnes, Bill's IGA & True Value Hardware; Brittany Brown, Thriftway; Nancy Chapa, Stanton Herald; Shawna Clark, Monarch Video; Courtney Epley, Stanton Chemical & Seed Company; Lisa Keele, Farm Bureau; Cindy Lerma, Mark Bevers Chevrolet; Casey Robertson, Tunnel Insurance; and Kari Ruth, M&M Meter Service Company, Inc.

Crowning their successors will be Stacy Long, Miss Martin County, and Angela Hagins, Junior Miss Martin County.

Miss Martin County contestants will compete in interviews, talent, swimsuits, poise & personality and evening gowns. Junior Miss contestants will also compete in those divisions with the exception of swimsuits and talent. Instead they will be judged on stage presence and performance. Miss Congeniality for each pageant will be selected.

Awards will also be given to the top point receivers in the interview, talent, swimsuit, evening gown and stage presence and performance categories. Contestants in the Miss Martin County pageant will be competing for the chance to represent Martin County at the Miss West Texas Pageant next summer. Scholarships and other prizes will also be awarded.

The audience will be treated to special entertainment provided by Bertha and the Bell Tones and Julia Jones' Dance and Tumbling Troupes. Julia's students who will be participating are: Alayna Smith, T.J. Coggin, Laurie Adams, Kassie Graves, Meagan Mims, Erin Wheeler, Marti Kay Mims, Traci Moore, Leslie Stewart, Matthew Tollison, Haley Tollison, Sally Averitt and Bill Joe Averitt. Members of the troupes also include Stephanie Walton, Karyn Cook, Keith Cook, Danielle Bedingfield, Alison Montgomery, Krystal Christon, Casey Ireton, Kayla Cook, Kevin Cook, Nicole Blocker, Laura McCampbell, Stacy Tollison, Amy Moore, Rachel Burnett, Suzi Ruth, Julie Rigol and Jacob Reid.

Admission for the pageants are $4 for adults and $2 for children.

Granting wishes

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

If my wish before I died was to pilot the space shuttle throughout the universe, Ellna Willingham and Denton Hines would somehow make that wish come true.

Not long ago they helped a teenager see Shamú at Seaworld in San Antonio. They assisted in purchasing a whole new wardrobe for a young girl. They brought in a whole convention of clowns to entertain another young girl. Then they talked about the boy in Arizona who got to be a highway patrolman for a whole day because that's all he'd ever wanted to be.

These youngsters died not long after their dreams came "Seeing those kids with cancer down there broke my heart. When I got back and heard about the Make A Wish Foundation, I knew I had to get involved."

Ellna is the treasure of the Make A Wish Foundation of the Permian Basin, while Denton serves as vice president for the whole West Texas area. They dropped by my office last Monday to tell me about the Midland Sheriff's Department rodeo which will be held on August 19 and 20 out at the D&D Corral.

Ellna and Denton, raised in Stanton, are sister and brother. Their father died of cancer. Ellna lost her husband to the disease. Denton was treated for cancer for over two years. Now Ellna has it.

When they told me this I just sat there dumbly while they continued talking about "the kids." Always "the kids." I had to force myself to quit dwelling on how they coped so I could hear the rest of the story.

When Denton was in and out of M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston a few years back, he found himself worrying more about the children there than about himself.

"Seeing those kids with cancer down there broke my heart," he said. "When I got back and heard about the Make A Wish Foundation, I knew I had to get involved."

It was the same for Ellna. "When my husband was sick, we were also in Houston," she said. "He would always tell me to quit worrying about him so much and go take care of the kids."

One of their first projects was for a little girl in Andrews. It was also one of the most expensive.

"A little girl wanted a two-story play house and it ended up costing $10,800," Denton said. "Mind you, we didn't have to actually put out that kind of money. We used only $360 out of the treasury. The rest of it came about by companies donating lumber, nails, paint, material, you name it."

"That shows you how the foundation works," Ellna interjected. "It's a lot more than just having the funds."

Denton said that the Andrews girl lived with her family in a crowded trailer and believed that if she had a two-story play house, she would not suffer so much.

But the cost was enormous, I said.

"It doesn't make any difference if a dying child is rich or poor," Denton said. "It doesn't matter at all. All that does matter is that their wish comes true. No matter what it is, we will try our best to see that they get what they want."

Ellna and Denton explained that the national foundation

Reid's Clip Joint is Stanton landmark

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

Stanley Reid was cutting Charlie Christopher's hair last Thursday at the Clip Joint downtown. Charlie had turned 95 years old Sunday before last, and was having his latest of many haircuts at Stanley's place.

"I've been coming to Stanley for about 47 years," Christopher said. "I came here in 1944 from Palestine. He's pretty good. I never went somewhere's else."

"First time I let Stanley cut my hair was in September of '41. Do you remember that Stanley? That was when I was pickin' cotton for Red Koonce — back in the good ole days when everyone was friendly."

Roland Myrick, 85, and longtime Martin County farmer, was waiting his turn while Charlie's white snippings fell to the floor.

"Stanley's the best, the very best," Myrick said. "I've come to him for as far back as I can remember. Yes, ma'am, he's the best."

Reid opened shop in Stanton in 1937 and has been barbering, as he called it, ever since.

"Before '37 I did some for free," he said. "I barbered everybody out on a stump in the backyard."

Reid's hair clipping days go back even farther than that. When he was a kid in Valley View, around age 15, he even tried his scissors on some of the women's hair.

"I'd be walking by the neighborhood and a woman would holler out the window at me to come cut her hair," he said. "And she paid me with cakes and pies and a glass of milk. After I cut her hair, I'd get dessert."

"I was fifteen then, but I'd already been cutting hair for two years."

Stanley Reid, long time-owner of the Clip Joint, takes his electric razor to Charlie Christopher, 95, who has been coming to Reid since 1941.

"First time I let Stanley cut my hair was in September of '41. Do you remember that Stanley? That was when I was pickin' cotton for Red Koonce — back in the good ole days when everyone was friendly."

When Reid was around 13, his uncle and nine cousins would drop by, all at once, and ask him to cut their hair.

"I wasn't real glad to see them coming. My uncle paid me 50 cents for the whole group," he said. "Then I'd take the money and buy me a store bought haircut."

There were also the times when he would talk a friend into coming to him for a haircut, so they could both go to the movies.

"The parent would give their boy 50 cents," he said. "I'd cut their hair for free, and we'd both go to the show. It only cost 15 cents to get in, so we'd have sodas and popcorn, too."

In 1936, Reid decided to get serious about the whole thing. He began working with the government relief program in order to earn the money to go to barber school.

"This was a program to help out poor folks during the Depression," he said. "We had to be 18 in order to participate. We had a little military training, some flag raising and marching, and we could come take some junior college level coursework. The people in our program built the park over at the scenic wall in Big

Exciting schedule offers fun for everyone

Karen Graves (right) Little Miss Martin County Pageant director, delivers entry forms to various places around town, including Stanton Drug, where Winona Foster mans the counter.

As plans begin to finalize for the Martin County Fair so do preparations for the Little Miss Martin County Pageant, Karen Graves, pageant spokesperson said. The pageant is held each year in conjunction with the fair and this year will be Friday, August 18 at 7 p.m. at the Community Center, with judging to start at 6 p.m. There will be a dress rehearsal the morning of the pageant.

Previous winners have been Rainnie Hull and Carrie Crow. Sheree Cox is the reigning Little Miss Martin County.

To be eligible for entering, girls must be between the ages of 4 and 9 as of August 1, 1989, and must live in Martin County, or attend a Martin County school. The girls should wear a short party type dress.

There will be three age divisions: 4-5 years old, 6-7 years old and 8-9 years old. Rosettes will be awarded to the overall winner and the top winner of each age group. Little Miss Martin County will receive $25 and the top winners in each age group will receive $10.

The deadline for entries is August 16. Entry forms are available at several area businesses and in this edition of the Stanton Herald. Forms should be mailed to Karen Graves, P.O. Box 122, Stanton, Texas, 79782.

Did you ever wonder who the best domino players in Martin County are? The Fair Association is offering the opportunity for the curious to find out at the upcoming county fair.

A domino tournament will be an added attraction this year, Fair Association member Bob Deavenport said. Registration for participation will continue until 7 p.m. Friday. Play will begin at 7:30 p.m. Entry fee is $5 for a two-person team. It is open to everyone — beginners to masters from the county domino players.

"We hope to have old and young, male and female, anyone who would enjoy some fun and good natured competition," Deavenport said.

Prizes will be given for first and second places. Three games played to the score of 150 will constitute a set. All games will be played in Barn Number 2 on the northwest corner of the block.

"Now, maybe on Saturday evening, August 19, we will know who the best domino players in our county are," Deavenport added.

Spring. "We were paid 30 dollars a month. We kids got five dollars and the government sent the rest to our parents. In my case, my folks saved it all for me so I could go to barber school as soon as the program was over."

Reid attended barber school for the next six months on the money saved and found that his early do-it-yourself barbering paid off.

"When we first started, the instructors put you on the back chairs" he said. "You were moved up according to the length of time it took to learn how to do a quality cut and shave. I was moved up to the first chair in just two days. We rotated every day and got to keep half of what the cut cost."

"In order to graduate, the instructors painted a face on a balloon. Then they lathered him up. We were using straight razors then, and if you popped the balloon while you were shaving, you did not pass the test."

Reid passed the test over 50 years ago, and Stanton has been the benefactor ever since.

"It was a tussle when I first started in business because of all the competition," he said. "Later, when I was the only one, I really began to enjoy it because I wasn't having to worry about building up my business."

In 1965 Reid had built up his clientele so well that he moved into a larger shop, now on the corner of St. Peter and St. Anna, also known as the downtown intersection in Stanton.

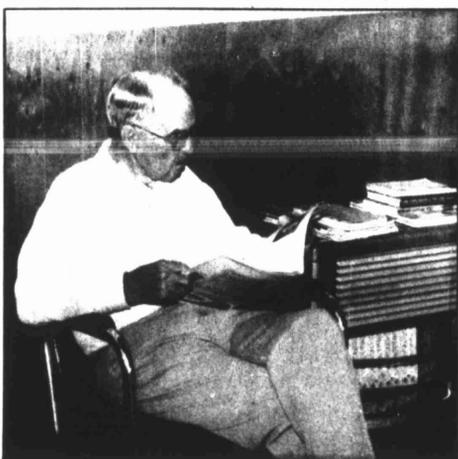

Waiting patrons can read magazines or novels, watch television or peer at the gerbils in their glass house. Youngsters have their own little table and chairs with reading material for their age groups. The only thing missing is the young man who is NOT stationed over at the shoe shine stand.

"People just don't wear the kind of shoes that need shining anymore," Reid said. "If anyone wants a shine, they are welcome to do it themselves. Some do. All of the stuff to do it is over there."

"Over about a 20-year period, the Jones kids took care of the shiners. They were great. I had Pete Jones first, then Chubby, then Richard, then David, then Larry. As they would get grown and go into high school, they would turn the stand over to their little brother."

"The last one I had was Coy Blocker. He sure was a good one." Though the shoe-shine boys are gone, and more and more men are turning to the blown-dry look, Reid still has his long time regulars.

"I love visiting with all my old pals," the 74-year-old barber said. "I hope I've got several more years left. I tell my friends that I won't retire as long as they keep sitting in that chair." 95-year-old Charlie Christopher was probably glad to hear that, because Reid also tells his long time customers friends that they will get the Senior Citizens' discount as long as they are older than he is.

"I got to where every one of my customers was 65 and older, so I made a new type of Senior Citizens discount. They have to be older than me."

Whether or not they are older, there are those few who are too feeble to come in to town for a haircut, so Stanley takes his scissors to them. "Some people are sick and simply cannot come in," he said. "And, there are folks at the nursing home who are never able to come in because they're bedridden. I have to take two hair cloths, and it's kind of difficult, but they need haircuts like everybody else."

What Reid doesn't say is that he does it for free. He also drives to the nursing home regularly to bring those that can travel down to the Clip Joint. "They really enjoy coming down here," he said. "They need to get out of the nursing home for awhile, so I cut their hair here instead of there."

Stanley Reid, after 60-some years of barbering, is still standing behind the chair ready to cut hair. "I enjoy this so much," he said. "If I had to, I'd pay the customers to come in just because I love it so much."

Sharks, nouns and verbs, ancient Egypt, Shakespeare, the Constitution, dinosaurs, algebra, tie-dye — yes, even football. What do these things have in common? School, of course. Teachers and students alike can recognize these.

This is the first of what I hope to be many columns on the events and happenings in the Martin County schools. Publicity-wise, education is down; however, education has never been better.

Yes, fall is rapidly approaching. Teachers are gearing up for all the shiny new faces, our young are buying new duds to show off the first school week, and parents — well, they can soon sit back and relax. The kids will once again be away for another nine months.

Seriously, school is just around the corner. The education of our young is of prime importance. The bulk of publicity on a nation-wide basis aimed at education is generally negative. I would like to change that, at least in Stanton.

This column will have a three-fold purpose:

1. To provide a better insight as to what is happening in our schools.
2. To generate more interest in the education of our local youth.
3. To shed a more positive light on education in general.

Each week I will bring you the latest news around the schools. The type of news I hope to bring is rarely found in the paper, but should be there. I want to share with the community our finest moments as well as our better ones. Education is everyone's concern, and that is what I hope to convey to our community.

Editor's note: The Herald staff is delighted to welcome Pam as one of our new weekly columnists. She teaches English at Stanton Junior High School, and is starting her fifth year there. Her husband, Frank, is employed with Chevron, and she has three children, all of whom attend SISD public schools: John, 14; Milanda, 13 and Mandy, 11.

1989 Property Tax Rates in CITY OF STANTON
This notice concerns 1989 property tax rates for City of Stanton. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.
Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$ 238,841.19
Last year's debt taxes	$ 0
Last year's total taxes	$ 238,841.19
Last year's tax base	$ 22,746,780.00
Last year's total tax rate	$ 1.05 / $100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 238,841.19
This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting taxes on new property)	$ 23,610,201.00
This year's effective tax rate	$ 1.0120 / $100
1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing	$ 1.04236 / $100
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 238,841.19
This year's adjusted tax base	$ 23,610,201.00
This year's effective operating rate	$ 1.0120 / $100
1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$ 1.0926 / $100
This year's debt rate	$ 0 / $100
This year's rollback rate	$ 1.0926 / $100

SCHEDULE A: Unencumbered Fund Balances
The following balances will probably be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.
Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
General Fund-Maintenance & Operation Fund	$0,000.00

SCHEDULE B: 1989 Debt Service
The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

began when the Arizona Department of Public Safety heard about a seven-year-old boy with leukemia who wanted to be a highway patrolman.

"This unfortunate boy, Chris Griecius, had a dream that he knew would never be fulfilled," Denton said. "He wanted to be a law enforcement officer. These good men of the Highway Patrol had an official uniform made for him, complete with a badge, head gear, and shoulder patches."

"They took him with them in a patrol car and helicopter and made him an honorary member of the highway patrol."

Six months later, his tombstone read Chris Griecius, Arizona Highway Patrol. From that beginning grew the Make A Wish Foundation.

Ellna said that there are chapters in almost every state now.

"The Permian Basin division was started about three years ago, and has granted 18 wishes to date," she said. "We have no paid employees. A group of volunteers channel contributions directly to the child with the wish."

Denton said that wishes are granted to children from ages four to 18, and his wish is to fulfill the dream of every child with a life threatening illness.

"If you know of a child in Martin County who you think might have a terminal illness, please call us," Denton said. "If you aren't sure, call us anyway and we will make arrangements to determine the situation."

He reminded me that if a family doesn't want any publicity, that wish will be granted also.

"All we care about is fulfilling a child's dream in the few days he or she has left," Denton said. "Don't worry about publicity, just call 563-WISH, and we'll send an interview team out without any publicity."

"What I would like to publicize is the fact that we always need volunteers. We need those who can offer their time and materials, not just money. That's how we get playhouses made."

The motto of the upcoming rodeo is "Watch a Star and Grant A Wish." Tickets are $5, and that price includes the rodeo and the dance afterward. The D&D Corral is midway between Midland and Stanton.

"We feel that each contestant in the rodeo, regardless of whether he be first or last in an event, is a Star, because his or her time, talent and efforts will help in granting a wish to a terminally ill child," Ellna said.

Denton added that the Make A

Wish Foundation of the Permian Basin is as interested in finding terminally ill children whose dreams can be fulfilled as they are in selling tickets for the rodeo, if not more so.

"We cannot search out these children," he said. "Folks have to come to us. So we need to make it known to families that we are not only available but that we are always ready to grant that wish. Always."

Ellna Willingham and Denton Hines are very special people. They visited with me for a little less than an hour and told me of many wishes that had been granted, and I didn't want them to leave. But they had to, they were on their way to San Angelo to attend a Make A Wish Foundation meeting.

"We are retired," Denton said, "so the granting of wishes is all that we do, it's all that we want to do."

If you want to volunteer, call 563-WISH. If you know of a terminally ill child in Martin County or anywhere else for that matter, call the number. If you think that a child between the ages of 4 and 18 may be terminally ill, call Ellna and Denton — they are always ready to grant a wish. Always.

A recent renewal of the old practice of dumping oilfield drilling wastes into unused caliche pits is currently causing serious concern among residents in Martin and Howard counties. The Martin County Underground Water Conservation District views this practice as being very dangerous and potentially harmful to the quality of our groundwater. We go on record as being emphatically opposed to it.

Through our research, however, we have found that the Texas Railroad Commission has in the past issued miners permits to dump into these pits. We plan to object to all future such permits and to strongly encourage all landowners to do the same.

Our reasons are four-fold. First the caliche pits tend to concentrate waste from many wells to be buried at one site. Secondly, by placing the waste already 10 to 20 feet deep into the pit, a large portion of the soils filtering mechanism is already lost thereby greatly increasing the chances of the contaminants in the waste of reaching our groundwater and polluting it. Third, many if not all, of the pits are situated in such a way as to act as catch basins for area rainfall. All of this water then percolates through the waste on its way to our water table as well. And fourth, because of rising water tables in an already shallow aquifer system in the area, many of these pits are below groundwater level. This would mean that the waste in these pits would be in continual contact with our groundwater.

As you can see, the reasons are many why we should not allow this oilfield waste to be dumped into our caliche pits. The Martin County Underground Water Conservation District actively encourages you to not allow this to happen and to report to this office or to the RRC any instances where you observe it to be happening. Your help is needed. If you have any questions on this or other groundwater issues affecting Martin County, please free to call this office for more details.

Here are a few safety tips worth remembering.

Out and around.

Pad mounted transformers, large metal boxes that are usually green or cream colored, are safe when they are closed and locked. However, if one is opened or damaged, it can be deadly. Call TU Electric immediately to report the situation and warn others to stay away until the repairman arrives.

Billie Miles and Verla Doggett will be performing musically for the residents of Stanton Care Center on Saturday, August 12, at 7 p.m., Mary Rodriguez, Activities Director said.

"We will have homemade ice cream for sale," she said, "along with hand made arts and crafts by our residents. We want the community to come out and join us."

She added that Jessie Glaze hand-knitted an aghan which will be raffled off during the event. "Jessie donated the aghan just for this purpose. All proceeds will go toward our activities funds in order to better serve our residents."

James and Lesa Johnson, and Gwen and Baxter Brown, returned from a motorcycle trip on July 22nd from San Antonio. On route to San Antonio, they visited lots of small towns including Fredericksburg, New Braunfels, San Antonio and Lukenbach.

Johnson said the group went sightseeing, shopping "and did some other fun things" upon arrival in San Antonio.

Martin County Commissioners, in a meeting Monday, July 31, discussed replacing four older Road and Bridge Department pickups that date back to 1970. The court will formally advertise for bids for the pickups and for replacement vehicles for the Sheriff's Department on August 14.

The court visited with Jerry Zobne and Dr. Herb Grubb of HDR Engineering, Inc. from the firm's Austin office, concerning the continuing flooding problems in northern and eastern Martin County. The Court authorized the firm to prepare a proposal to submit to the Texas Water Development Board for a planning grant.

Season tickets for reserved seats to 1989 Stanton Buffalo home football games may be purchased at the superintendent's office, 200 North College. Those who purchased season tickets in 1988 will have an opportunity to reserve the same seats for the 1989 season through August 18. Sales on remaining season tickets begin August 21.

The Noon Lions Club met on Aug. 1 with Boss Lion Victor Taylor presiding. The members voted to purchase vests with Lions emblems. Matters concerning the sports programs by the club were resolved.

Angie Oldaker, spokesperson for the Martin County Country Club, said that the club is sponsoring the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation's Great Waves swimming event. She said that Stanton youngsters could win "exciting prizes while fighting the number one genetic killer of children and young adults."

The event is set for Monday, August 14, 1989, at the Martin County Country Club. All money raised will help the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation fund the research that is closing in on a cure for CR.

"People of all ages who want to swim for health, fun and prizes can register," Oldaker said. "Participants will collect pledges for each lap they swim during Great Waves and can win prizes ranging from T-Shirts to VCRs."

"Cystic Fibrosis clogs the lungs and pancreas with a thick, sticky mucus, making it hard to breathe and digest food. But recent scientific advances offer new hope for a cure."

"Your participation in Great Waves could make the difference in the lives of the 30,000 people who have Cystic Fibrosis in the United States."

For a sponsor form or more information on Great Waves, call Angie Oldaker at the local country club at 756-2556.

"Together, we can make cystic fibrosis history," Oldaker said. "There will be a trophy for the most money collected and a trophy for the most laps. There will be door prizes, too."

The Martin County Convent Foundation will be having buggy rides on Saturday, August 20, from 1-4 p.m. during the county fair.

Miles Tollison, MCCF, president, said that the buggy rides will include a tour of the town.

"This is for children, old and young. Funds will go toward the local convent's restoration and preservation," Tollison said.

For more information call Tollison at 756-2801 or Kathryn Burch at 756-3316.

Prices have not been set yet, but will be very reasonable, Tollison said.

Patty Ruth, Stanton public school teacher, attended the National Conference of Independent Professional Education Associates July 22, in Washington D.C.

According to Ruth, independent educators are professional educators, and professional educators nationwide need to know that they have a choice.

In a recent news release from the Association of Texas Professional Educators, it was written that NCIPEA will provide all independent educators with a national identity and vehicle for the continuous exchange of solutions to the critical problems all educators face.

"It is imperative that independent educators know they are not alone," Anne Calhoun, Associate Director of Public Relations for ATPE said. "They need to know that there are other educators across the country who share common goals and concerns. We sincerely hope that the NCIPEA can help bring all independent educators together."

Ruth, immediate Past President of ATPE, explained that the Washington D.C. conference was held to announce the formation of NCIPEA.

Stanton was the scene for the Hull family reunion last Saturday, August 5, 1989.

Earl Hull, Big Spring, and Floyd Hull, Coahoma, and 11 grandchildren were present, along with a host of great grandchildren.

64 relatives attended from

Houston, Denton, Odessa, Big Spring, Coahoma and Stanton. Family members enjoyed barbecue and a day long visit. The family will meet again next year on the first Sunday in August.

Actual fair events begin on Thursday at the Community Center from 1-7 p.m. when entries for Culinary, Textile, Art, China, Photography and Agriculture products are accepted in the North building.

"The main building will also be open so people can start erecting their booths," Cox said. "There will be people around to help if you need it."

On Friday the judging of all entries in the women's building and the agricultural products begins at 9 a.m. Also, at 9 a.m., the entries will be accepted for the flower show, with judging at 10:30 a.m.

The official grand opening of the fair, complete with the newly crowned Miss Martin County and Fair officials, takes place at 11 a.m.

"The rest of that day includes the Little Miss Martin County pageant, the ice cream freeze-off and auction, catered meals and a dance on the concrete slab outside the Community Center," Cox said.

Saturday morning starts another day of Fair activities.

"Hopefully, we will have a petting zoo for the kids," Cox said. "Something new this year will be the inaugural Martin County Domino Tournament, beginning at 10 a.m."

Other fair activities include the food show and auction, an open fiddlers contest, the catered meal and another dance on the concrete slab.

"We look forward to seeing each and everyone of the Martin County public at the Fair," Cox said. "We hope you will come out and take part by entering one of the many divisions to be judged or playing dominoes, eating great barbecue, dancing, or just visiting with friends, both old and new."

"Whatever the reason, just come and enjoy the fun of the Fair. If you are interested in taking part in the Fair, we would be glad to have your help."

Following is a list of committee chairmen:

Martin County Fair Co-chairmen, Morgan Cox and Lester Baker; Booth Sales, Steve Garlington; Womens Building Chairwoman, Zella Graves; Miss Martin County Pageant chairman, Pam Tollison.

"Please mark your calendar for Aug. 12 and then for Aug. 18-20 for the Martin County Fair. Let's work to make it the best ever," Cox concluded.

member of the class told some of the things that had happened in his or her life since the last reunion. Following is a list of the class members present and some of the things they said:

Mary Edith (Sloan) Nutter: had a light stroke two years ago, from which she has made a good recovery; has slowed down and rests a lot but still quite active; has one greatchild.

Henry Donelson: has had a stroke and surgery since last reunion but is able to be active; recently retired after working 40 years as a veterinarian at Houston.

Robert Smith: moved from Big Spring to Abilene, where he is living in a retirement home, shortly after our last reunion; lost a son last December.

G.B. Shelburne, Jr.: began to preach in the fall of 1931 and has continued in the ministry since that time (almost 58 years); has lived in various places in Texas, preached in 18 states and two foreign countries; recently observed 55th wedding anniversary; now lives in Houston and still active in church work following retirement in 1980.

Cecil Hamilton: now retired and not flying; works for Greyhound Bus Company; has lived most of his life within 40 miles of Stanton, having resided at Big Spring since 1945.

Casey Jones: thinks he is in good health; has been in the car business in one way or another for many years; enjoys traveling, which he does in connection with his work of driving repossessed cars from various parts of the country; still lives at Midland.

Pauline (Cathy) Smith: has fair health in spite of a stroke; has fun living and doing what she can; likes to travel; thankful for her blessings.

Billie Houston: thinks that things are not much different from the last time we met; lives at the same place in Stanton and does the same work on the ranch; still a director of the First National Bank in Stanton.

Ernest Epley: first of our class reunions he has attended; greatly enjoyed this one, not knowing what he had missed; married in 1934; has lived intermittently at Stanton, at Pecos, and in California; now manages a 20,000 farm in California that raises many crops; has lost a son and a granddaughter in auto accidents; has 13 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Obera (Hazelwood) Angel: has had spinal and nerve trouble for three years with surgery several times but is doing well; Jess (Obera's husband) has had a lot of bad health but is better; thankful for their improved health and they could host the reunion.

Otelia Fortune: living in Big Spring; has attended one other of our class reunions (the 40th anniversary reunion in 1971); busy doing volunteer work for older and younger people, and at the hospital.

In addition to the remarks made by members of the class, Grace (Loveless) Jones said that she still lives at the same place in Stanton. She lost her husband in 1986, following the last class reunion. She has begun to adjust, travels some, and visits relatives.

Other surviving members of the class unable to attend are C.S. Williams and Maurice Cochran. Two members, Clark Hamilton and Agnes (Louder) Whitson, died since the last reunion. Other deceased members are Modelle (Melvin) Chessser, Herma Clements, Stanley Whitson, Sarah (Henson) Adams, Edward Pollock and Zelma Lee Moore. Earl Eubanks, who was in this class but did not graduate in 1931, is also deceased.

Others who attended the 1989 reunion were Mrs. Casey Jones, Mrs. Robert Smith, Floyd Smith, Mrs. Cecil Hamilton, Don H. Nutter, husband of Mary Edith, and their daughters, Mary Jane Christian of Charleston, West Virginia, and Margaret Graham of Zanesville, Ohio and Jess Angel.

The class of 1931 had three previous reunions: to observe the 40th anniversary of their graduation, 1971; their 50th anniversary, 1981; and their 55th anniversary, 1986. The tentative date for the next reunion was set for the day before the Old Settlers Reunion in 1991. In charge of local arrangements for the reunion this year were Obera Angel and Billie Houston.

editor's note: At the request of the Herald, Shelburne reported on this 58th Class reunion, the longest standing reunion in the history of SHS.

Fishing: A tough job

Catch-and-release survival of striped bass studied

DENISON (AP) — Bruce Hysmith says it is a tough job, but he is willing to make some sacrifices. He is going fishing.

Hysmith, a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fisheries management coordinator whose responsibilities include managing Lake Texoma's striped bass fishery, will use his rod and reel to spearhead a hooking mortality study on strippers at the Texas-Oklahoma border lake. And his Denison-based Parks and Wildlife Department crew of biologists will get a chance to get in some fishing action, too.

"It will be time-consuming ... a tough job, but we are guys who are willing to make sacrifices," Hysmith said jokingly. "I have to remember to refrain from calling them fishermen. They are researchers."

Hysmith said the study is being conducted to determine the death and survival rate of striped bass caught and released. A new regulation on striped bass goes into effect Sept. 1 at Lake Texoma, allowing fishermen to keep 15 striped bass per day but no more than one longer than 20 inches.

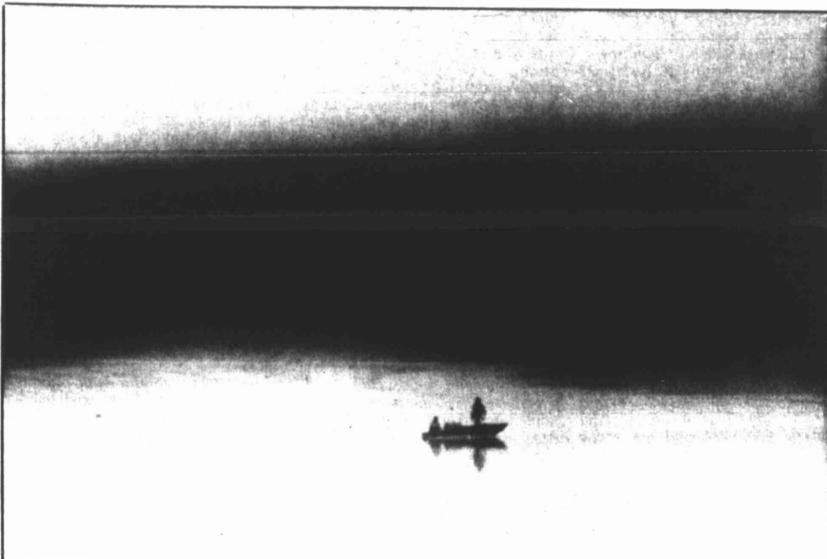

The limit on striped bass in the rest of the state is five per day with an 18-inch minimum length.

"The results of this study will provide valuable information not only for Texoma but also for the fate of fishes under 18 inches that are released in all other lakes in Texas," Hysmith said.

"If you have some length requirements that cause you to go in to catch and release, then you should know what effects that has on the fish. You need to know what the fate is of those fish under 18 inches that are released," Hysmith said.

The fisheries biologists will fish from two boats equipped with net pens that measure 4-feet wide, 6-feet long and 4-feet deep. Each fish caught will be measured, marked for later identification and then placed in the holding pen.

Another boat equipped with a circular tank capable of pumping cool lake water from as deep as 20 feet will be used to pick up the fish and transport them to a pair of 18-by-40 foot holding pens at lakeside facilities where the fish will be monitored for at least three days.

WARSAW, Ky. — Two fishermen make their way across the Ohio River near Warsaw, Ky. recently. Heavy haze in the river valley obscures all but the closest hills. In Texas fisheries biologists are facing a "tough job" without the haze. They're catching fish and then throwing them back.

"We want to mimic what actually takes place when a fisherman catches and releases a striper. We want to look at that critical three-day period following a fish's release. If there is a prolonged effect past 72 hours, we will be able to detect it." — Bruce Hysmith, fisheries coordinator.

"We want to mimic what actually takes place when a fisherman catches and releases a striper," Hysmith said. "We want to look at that critical three-day period following a fish's release. If there is a prolonged effect past 72 hours, we will be able to detect it."

Hysmith said it has been somewhat difficult to get everything ready for the study.

"The logistics of getting equipment together has been difficult," Hysmith said. "The nets were specially fabricated for us by a company in Memphis, Tenn. And it also required a lot of time to put on huge floats and lead lines. We had to fabricate PVC pipe frames to keep the nets rigid as they form a column down into the water."

Hysmith began the first of the three-phased study this week, attempting to catch the strippers on top-water lures. "We will study the effects of fish caught and released using lures with treble hooks the first week, single hooks the second week and live bait the third week," Hysmith said.

Hysmith and a friend fished Lake Texoma one day last week and caught 30 strippers in less than an hour on Pico Pops. He said he is hoping the fishing will be just as good for the actual study.

"At first, some of the guides were against the new regulations because they said they believed it would ruin their business by limiting people to only one fish over 20 inches," Hysmith said. "But when we made a creel survey last week and talked to 46 fishermen, including several guides, we didn't find anyone who was against them."

Hysmith said he hopes fishermen who catch their 15-striper limit at Texoma keep all fish under 20 inches. "We want to encourage them to keep those 14 smaller fish because what we are faced with here is an expanding striper fishery," Hysmith said. "Each year, the striper spawn here gets bigger and bigger. If you don't reduce their numbers, the result will be a slowed growth rate."

Hysmith said he will do an identical hooking mortality study in the fall, winter and spring.

Outdoor briefs

Plenty of doves

AUSTIN (AP) — There should be plenty of targets for mourning dove hunters during the season that begins Sept. 1 in the North and Central zones and Sept. 20 in the South Zone, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Ron George, dove program leader, said dove numbers appear to be at least on par with last year although surveys earlier indicated populations were down.

"Call-count surveys showed a 19 percent decline in resident populations from last year, which would be about 8 percent below the long-term average," George said in a statement.

George said high winds during May and June hindered the ability of biologists to hear the birds. "Field reports since then appear to indicate there are lots of birds, especially in Central and South Texas," he said.

Crappie improve

FRITCH (AP) — Length and bag limits established for crappie in Lake Meredith in 1985 apparently have improved the crappie fishery, said Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Joe Kraai.

Anglers are allowed to retain 25 crappie per day, with a minimum length of 10 inches.

During 1986, anglers harvested 9,350 crappie during April 1-June 30. The harvest increased to 27,570 in 1988.

Updated directory

AUSTIN (AP) — An update to the 1989 Texas Hunter's Clearinghouse Directory is available from the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The June edition of the directory lists nearly 900 available leases, covering a total of 5.3 million acres in every region of Texas, the department said. Directory listings cover all types of game, including white-tail deer, turkey, javelina, pheasant and quail.

Hunting rules similar

NORTH PLATTE, Neb. (AP) — This year's hunting regulations will probably be similar to last year's rules, the chairman of the Central Flyway Council said Thursday.

The council's technical committee worked Thursday on recommendations to be made to the council Friday.

"The important point is we do not expect the hunting season framework to be a great deal different from last year," said Bill Bailey, Central Flyway Council chairman. "There is no improvement in the waterfowl population status based on what the (U.S.) Fish and Wildlife Service" has said. "We do not expect any relaxation" in the rules, he said.

The Central Flyway Council includes representatives of game and parks commissions from the central flyway region, a major path of migratory birds. Areas represented include: Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming as well as the Northwest Territory, Alberta and Saskatchewan in Canada.

Bailey said he personally anticipates a duck-hunting season framework similar to last season's framework.

License sales up

AUSTIN (AP) — The state followed a nationwide pattern of modest gains in sales of hunting and fishing licenses during fiscal year 1988, said the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

In 1988, compared to the previous fiscal year, increases occurred in the number of paid hunting and fishing license holders; the numbers of licenses, permits and stamps sold; and gross expenditures by sportsmen for licenses.

Similar figures were reported by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, indicating that hunting and fishing license sales nationwide increased some 7 percent.

Seaweed invasion

PALACIOS (AP) — An invasion of seaweed called sargassum may be on the wane along Texas coastal waters.

Biologist Jim Dailey of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Palacios Field Station said the floating weed has been more prevalent in offshore waters this summer than anytime in the past 20 years.

"This definitely has been an exceptional summer for sargassum, similar to an invasion in 1965," said Dailey. "However, it appears that much of it has washed ashore by now and less is being seen offshore."

Doctor abandoned as infant continuing year-long search for roots

By PAMELA WARD
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — Jane Wray was 6 years old when she asked her mother the question all inquisitive children do:

"Where did I come from, Mommy?"

Her mother told a story, fashioned in fairy-tale language, about a pretty little baby, wrapped in a pink and white blanket, who was found on the steps of the Nolan County Courthouse in Sweetwater.

"You were that little girl," Ms. Wray's mother said.

She didn't mention the word "abandoned."

Today, Jane Wray is 44 years old, a pediatrician in private practice in Austin. She is a woman pleased with her life, with one exception: For years, she has longed to meet the woman who, on May 22, 1945, just hours after giving birth, left her on a basement stairway of a West Texas courthouse. No explanation, no clues.

She read with keen interest the news of the last two weeks — two infants abandoned in Austin. There was the baby dubbed David James Casey, discovered July 10 in front of the HCA Professional Building in South Austin, and Baby William, left in the pastor's study during Sunday morning services at Faith United Methodist Church. The two babies are now in foster care.

Ms. Wray read those reports with a mixture of hope and sadness.

On one hand, she said, "I can't help but looking at it this way: This is not some tragic beginning for these babies. When you are healthy and white and an infant, there are hundreds of people out there that want you, people that are dying for a baby and will love you."

She holds that hope for David James Casey and Baby William. It happened to her.

But, on the other hand, she knows that, at some point, David James Casey and Baby William will find something missing in their lives. This, too, is her fate.

Ms. Wray knows they may begin to wonder about the circumstances that pushed their mothers to acts of desperation. They will ponder all the unknowns, all the whys, all the questions that have shadowed Wray for years, and do still.

A couple of years ago, after Ms. Wray's adoptive parents had died, she decided to search for her real mother.

In her mind, as if grasping for the cheeriest of scenarios, she has decided that "my mother loved me very much, but she knew she couldn't provide for me, and she decided to put me there in the courthouse. Perhaps she was too ill to really care for a baby."

On her 43rd birthday, Ms. Wray placed an ad in the Sweetwater Reporter, seeking information. The Reporter also ran a story about her search.

Nothing came of it. All these years later, the police officers, welfare workers and doctor are deceased. Maybe her mother is, too. Or maybe she left Texas. Or maybe she just can't face the child she left for strangers.

Ms. Wray would just like to tell the woman who gave her her life this one thing: "I turned out very happy and wonderfully well. And I would like to tell her 'thanks, for letting me be born.'"

So serious was she about searching for the truth, she even underwent hypnosis in hopes of rediscovering a trail that might lead her to her mother.

Thus far, the highlight of her search was meeting the person who discovered her at the courthouse. Mozell Neepers was just 12 when she stumbled upon a newborn 10-pound baby wrapped in a newly laundered blanket.

Ms. Wray learned of Mozell Neepers from a newspaper article and traced her to Colorado, meeting her face to face a year ago.

"She had worried about me for ever so long. Here was this 12-year-old farm girl, and it was quite a shock for her to find an abandoned baby. It was a big event in her life. She finally talked her mother into calling the welfare department to ask about me, but they couldn't tell her anything about who was raising me, other than to say I was well."

"She had never dreamed she would meet me."

World War II was ending when Ms. Wray was born, at the beginning of what would become known as the baby boom. W.J. "Buck" Matthews and his wife, Vera, of Winters, had recently lost an infant, and when they read of the surprise find at Sweetwater, they rushed to the courthouse with an attorney. Three weeks later, adoption proceedings began for "Jane Doe, Whose Real Name Is Unknown, A Minor."

Ms. Wray accepted the story of her courthouse arrival as a perfectly reasonable explanation. "For a long time, it didn't really click in that there was a big difference in this event. I figured about half of all children are just found somewhere, and that the other half grow inside their mommas."

As she grew older, the circumstances of her "arrival" began to gnaw at her, but out of respect to her adoptive mother, she pretended to have no particular interest in her natural mother, or the possibility that she might have brothers and sisters.

Ms. Wray and her adoptive mother were bonded immediately, she said. "Always before, the story goes, when my mother would pick up babies, they would start crying when she would try to hold them. But when she first saw me, I was crying, and when she picked me up, I stopped. The relationship was sealed."

AUSTIN — Dr. Jane Wray, a pediatrician, holds Juliana Garcia, 4 months old, after Garcia's examination. Wray has a special interest in recent stories of abandoned babies because she herself was left on the steps of the courthouse in Sweetwater in 1945 when she was only one day old. (Juliana Garcia is not an abandoned baby, but is a patient of Wray's.)

Stanton guard signs with Howard College

Howard College Lady Hawks basketball coach Royce Chadwick recently signed a guard and forward for this season's basketball team.

Chadwick, in his first year at Howard, after coming from Sam Houston State University, inked a Crossroads Country athlete in Stanton guard Kelli Glaspie.

The 5-7 Glaspie was one of the major reasons the Stanton Lady Hawks made it to the state playoffs. Stanton was defeated in area play by Hawley 56-47. In that game Glaspie scored 17 points, got seven rebounds, dished out four assists and got three steals.

Stanton finished the season with a 19-11 mark.

For the season Glaspie averaged 17 points, five rebounds and nine assists. She made the all-district team

KELLI GLASPIE twice, and was selected to the All-Crossroads Country team last year.

Chamber notes

The Martin County Chamber of Commerce has a copy of the new "Big Spring - Stanton" highway InfoBord that the Travel & Information Division of the Texas Highway Department is placing in "major" highway rest areas along I-20. These colorful vinyl-clad panels will be seen at the rest areas east of Abilene, between Abilene and Sweetwater, near Midland, and near Pyote. The panels give information on points of interest to travelers along Interstate I-20 east and west and is designed to persuade more visitors to stop and seek out Stanton attractions. While traveling, stop and see what these attractive InfoBords are featuring.

It has been a busy year for the Old Jail so far. The Old Jail Museum Volunteer Report for the period of January, 1989, through July, 1989, shows a total of 797 registered visitors. The most unusual were from Johannesburg, South Africa, and Stavanger, Norway. Visitors also registered from the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Washington. Fifty different towns and cities in Texas were represented from all sections. There were many from nearby places with Odessa leading with 33 different registrations.

Special meetings in the Old Jail included a Lions Club Zone meeting, Stanton Study Club, Community Development Committee, Hospital Auxiliary, Community Development Conference meeting with a UTPB Regional Analyst for Energy and Economic Diversification, and a Brown Bag Youth Bible Study group for a noon meeting. There were also seven group tours including 31 people from Discovery Day Care Center in Midland and 200 people attending the Old Settlers Open House.

Recently, six members of a Denver, Colorado family visited because the grandfather, who was with the group, had spent some time in the Old Jail in 1943. The family took movies and pictures and "locked" him up again. They all had a fun time.

Faithful museum volunteers who keep the Old Jail and Visitor Center open after Chamber of Commerce hours and on Saturday afternoon are Colleen Holloway, Mary Kathryn Bristow, Frances Biggs, Lora Bell Tom, and Dorothy Deavenport. They have been credited with a total of 438 volunteer hours for 1989.

Yard of the week

The home of Albert and Dutchie Johnson, 700 North St. Paul, was selected by the Stanton Chamber of Commerce for Yard of the Week.

Every week during the summer, the Chamber selects one beauty spot in the city for this honor.

Jones' jottings

Martin Co. Extension Agent
4-H equine enthusiasts from across Texas displayed their horsemanship skills during the State 4-H Horse Show held July 24-29 in Abilene.

More than 800 entries were on hand testing their abilities with other 4-H members. The show is one of the largest and most competitive youth activities held.

The show had two parts, the open invitational and qualifying levels of competition. The qualifying show is for 4-H contestants who competed and placed in the top 25 in district competition.

Stacy Tollison, Martin County 4-Her, competed in the qualifying show in Abilene at the Taylor County Coliseum. Stacy competed in the registered mare's Five Years and Over, Showmanship at halter, Western Pleasure and Western Horsemanship.

The Martin County 4-H Horse Club's regular meetings are on Monday nights, 7:30 p.m. at the County Arena until school starts. Then we will have monthly meetings. A 4-H Horse Clinic is set for Aug. 26-27 at the County Arena featuring Rebecca Merchant, Abilene, and Robin Devin, Canyon, past southern regional qualifiers that promises to be a really good opportunity and learning experience.

For further information about the 4-H Horse Program or other Extension related activities, call the County Extension Office at 756-3316.

Convent Cooking

By PAM TOLLISON

A few weeks ago, Stacy approached my husband about me writing a column for the Herald. Even though I was flattered, my first thought was that I didn't want to start that again!

I was raised in a newspaper office. My father was editor and publisher of an award-winning paper for nearly 18 years in Stratford. Instead of playing paper dolls, I played with newsprint and put together my own newspaper.

My senior year in high school and my first year in college, I had my own column. It was work, but I have fond memories of working with my parents.

How did I come up with "Convent Cooking?" The Convent Restoration Project is a frequent topic of conversation at our house, and if I ever need to find my husband, the Convent is one of the places I check out.

The other day I went into the basement for the first time with Miles and Matthew. The work that needs to be done is very apparent and this project is one that will take all of us to finish. Recently, the idea just popped into my head. Why not combine the Convent and a column?

This column will be used to keep everyone updated on the Convent project, to showcase recipes from the Cookbook "Cookin' for the Convent" and to share other recipes and domestic hints. Another use of the column is to print any corrections that need to be made in regards to the recipes in the cookbook.

The cookbook committee did a terrific with the project. The cookbook pages were read by 2-3 people, but some mistakes crept in.

Have you ever tried to proofread hundreds of recipes? After a while, all the measurements and ingredients start to look alike. There were only a few mistakes that I know of, but if we have missed any, call and let us know, and we'll include them in future columns.

If you have not obtained your copy yet, stop by Kathryn Burch's or Jim McGilvray's offices in the courthouse, M&M Meter Service or the Extension Office in Garden City. They are $6 each. Remember, they make terrific gifts for wedding, graduates, birthdays, etc.

CORRECTION: On page 40, there is a recipe for Mexican Pie submitted by Ruth Reul. Do you know her? This would make a great trivia question. The real Ruth is none other than that galloping gourmet herself, Ruth Reid. I had this recipe at a brunch last week and it is delicious. Be sure and try it and the other recipes that you will see in this column!

MEXICAN PIE
2 frozen deep-dish pie crusts
1 1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
1 cup evaporated milk
4 eggs
1 med. onion, chopped
1 cup picante sauce
1 small can chopped black olives
2 tbs. chopped green chilis
2 cups shredded Monterey mack and Cheddar cheese

Bake pie crusts for 5 minutes at 350 degrees. Brown beef and pour off grease.

Beat eggs. Add eggs and remaining ingredients to beef. Pour into one pie shell and cover with remaining pie shell. Trim edges and press top crust and bottom crust edges together. Bake approximately 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Remove and top with shredded cheeses and picante sauce.

Editor's note: The Herald staff is delighted to have Pam, who was born with journalism in her blood, write a weekly column for us. Not only will Martin County readers be able to enjoy her writing talents, but we will be kept abreast of the Convent Restoration Project. Pam is married to Miles Tollison; they have two children, Matthew and Haley.

Protect and care for furniture's wood finish

Chances are that much of your furniture is made of wood. While attractive and durable, wood is vulnerable to scrapes, scratches and stains.

Here are some tips to help keep your wood furniture looking its best.

Cleaning

- If you dust wood furniture often with a slightly dampened lint-free cloth containing a small amount of furniture polish, you won't have to polish as frequently.

- Choose a polish that matches your furniture's finish rather than its wood. Liquid polish, oil finish and paste wax produce high luster; cream polish and spray wax provide moderate luster. No matter which type of polish you choose, apply it sparingly. The real secret to a good shine is more rubbing, not more polish.

- Avoid switching back and forth from a polish containing oil to one containing wax. Applying both kinds to the same surface could cause blotches or smudges.

- To remove wax buildup, wipe the surface with a soft cloth dampened with synthetic turpentine or mineral spirits. Or use a liquid polish.

Removing Stains

- To remove water stains from wood, place a heavy, thick blotter over the spot, then press with a warm iron until the stain disappears. If the stain persists, rub it with lemon oil and let it set overnight.
