Man arrested

BIG SPRING — The local war on drugs continued Wednesday when city police officers arrested a Big Spring man at the Golden West Motel and charged him with possession of a controlled substance.

The Big Spring Police, along with a Howard County Sheriff's deputy, arrested Raymond Ramirez, 32, 400 N. Gregg, room 32, at midnight Wednesday. Justice of the Peace William Shankles set bond at $10,000 on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

According to a police department news release, officers executed a search and arrest warrant at room 32 of the Golden West Motel. The officers recovered six 1/4 gram baggies of a white, powdery substance believed to be cocaine.

Grady accepts bids

LENORAH — Grady Independent School District trustees voted to retain two of their insurance plans and accepted a bid for two vehicles at a meeting Monday night, said Superintendent Gerald Singleton.

They retained Paige Eiland and Associates and raised their coverage from $3,250 to $5,000 for vehicle accident coverage. Singleton said the premium was raised another $1,356.

They also decided to keep Gary Tate for their health insurance after hearing a proposal from Steve Newton and Colton Wright of National Family Care Life Insurance Company.

"We're very satisfied with the service that we have," Singleton said. "The new company would not take everyone due to existing conditions."

The board accepted a bid of $20,000 for the trade-in of a car and pickup from Pollard Chevrolet-Buick-Cadillac of Big Spring. Two other bids for the sale of a green pickup were rejected, Singleton said.

Texas 18 in AIDS funds

WASHINGTON — Texas allocated $2.3 million in state funds for AIDS programs in the 1989 fiscal year, the 18th highest amount among states, according to a national survey released Wednesday.

Texas spent $0.14 per capita — 25th among states — to prevent AIDS and assist victims, according to figures compiled by the AIDS Policy Center of George Washington University's Intergovernmental Health Policy project.

California spent the most money on AIDS programs, incurring costs of $76.9 million, followed by New York, which spent $52.9 million, according to the national survey.

Nationwide, states budgeted $252 million for AIDS programs, while the federal government provided $233 million to states, according to the survey. The figures exclude state and federal expenditures for AIDS victims under the Medicaid program.

Eight states, including Vermont, rely solely on federal funds to finance AIDS programs, according to the study. A state-by-state breakdown of federal funds wasn't available.

Of state funds allocated for AIDS programs in Texas, $761,095 went for education, $718,336 for patient care and $620,963 for support services. Another $236,178 was spent on administrative expenses.

Mona Rowe, co-director of the AIDS Policy Center, said states like New York and California will find it difficult to continue growth in AIDS prevention and treatment programs in coming years.

"AIDS is going to increase budgetary tradeoffs that states make," she said.

City restores funding to police, fire

By RUTH COCHRAN
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — In an surprising change of heart yesterday, the city council here reversed direction and restored much of the funding it had cut from the police and fire departments.

During a budget workshop Wednesday night, council members increased the $62,000 deficit on the proposed 1989-90 budget to $188,400 with the addition of several capital outlay items requested by the police and fire departments.

The council tacked on another $6,000 to the deficit when it approved $6,000 in funds for the Big Spring State Hospital's out-patient service, the Corral.

Although the items were deemed necessary by the council, the equipment currently is not funded and still could be cut from the proposed budget. The items, which had been included in the original proposed budget, were deleted from the revised proposed budget to help erase a $1.5 million deficit.

Items restored to the budget include:

- Five new police cars at a cost of $80,000. In the original proposed budget, Chief Joe Cook had requested 10 new cars at a cost of $160,000.
 - Five new light bars and control boxes for police cars at a cost of $2,600. Cook originally requested 16 light bars and control boxes at a cost of $8,000.
 - A body transmitter for the police department at a cost of $1,950.
 - A Hurst tool, commonly called the jaws of life, for the fire department at a cost of $14,000.
 - A crew cab pickup for the fire department at a cost of $14,000.
 - Two hose control devices for the fire department at a cost of $1,000.
 - A deluge gun for the fire department at a cost of $3,000.
 - A 1-inch, 400-foot hose for the fire department at a cost of $1,060.
 - A 3-inch, 2,000-foot hose for the fire department at a cost of $6,000.
 - Two 1/2-inch nozzles for the fire department at a cost of $1,800.
- The council would not approve adding $39,000 for police department radio equipment. It also rejected the addition of a $10,000 air compressor and a $22,000 engine for the fire department, as well as requests for funds made by the Humane Society and the Downtown Steering Committee.

Nine new positions added at refinery

By RUTH COCHRAN

BIG SPRING — Nine new positions will be added at Fina Oil and Chemical Big Spring Refinery, plant officials have announced.

Plant Manager Jeff Morris said today the Texas Employment Commission is accepting applications for nine positions at the plant in maintenance and operations.

Morris said the plant is not expanding, but after slight reductions in the workforce for several years, the refinery — after a 13-year freeze — is planning to hire nine people to maintain its workforce.

"We reached the decision recently to add to our staff of craftsmen and operators by hiring nine more people locally," Morris said.

The refinery periodically has bolstered its employee numbers with engineers and similar positions, "but this is the first time in quite a time that we've hired operators and craftsmen and we feel very good about it and look forward to it," Morris said. "It's been a long time... and during that time the staff has been down-sized to competitive levels. We're not planning any significant growth at the plant," but the refinery needs to hire local people to replace any personnel who may retire within

BIG SPRING — The Boys Club of Big Spring is still located downtown and gets some of its funding from the United Way.

Boys Club bustling center of activity

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — The Boys Club of Big Spring, 212 E. 3rd, is a bustling center of activity for boys ages 6-17.

"We have about 400 members," said Director Bert Andries. "Attendance is about 50 a day."

It took $54,000 during the past year to keep open the building with its basketball courts, weight room, wood shop, pool room, arts and crafts room, study room and small library and computer, he said. Two full-time staff members and three part-time high school students operate the club during the school year.

United Way of Big Spring funded about 60 percent of that budget, he said. The other 40 percent came from private donations such as the Dora Roberts Foundation and interest from a savings account.

This year, $30,186 has been pledged to the club by United Way, which hopes to raise $212,000 during its Sept. 6-Oct. 31 fund drive.

Activities at the club range from games and physical activities to tutoring programs, woodshop classes and arts and crafts projects. The only cost is a $1-a-year membership fee for boys through the eighth grade, Andries said. They pay it every June 1.

"Each member gets a card and a membership number," he said. "The whole point of that is to reinforce the idea of membership."

The only other costs are the 20 cents that are charged for hot dogs, milk, ice cream or snack cakes and the 30 cents charged for cokes or chips. The snack bar, included because, as Andries says, "the boys do get hungry," makes no profit.

During the school year, the club is open Monday through Friday from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturdays and holidays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It is also open during the summer and includes swimming and camping activities during those months. It has been closed this week but will reopen today.

"The primary purpose of the Boys Club is to provide a program of guidance for school-age boys," Andries said. "A lot of our activities are of an educational nature whether they know it or not," he said with a slight smile.

During the week the center was closed, Andries was busy taking care of "little odds and ends" such as replacing a pane of glass near the door. He said he also had plans to replace some air conditioners and the top of an air hockey game.

Inside Texas

Brits like Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — About 230,000 British visitors traveled to Texas in 1988, which surpassed by 63,200 the number of Canadian visitors, according to the Texas Department of Commerce.

The 230,000 tourists "now ranks second only to Texas' neighbor to the south, Mexico," said Bill Taylor, director of the department's tourism division.

The department, relaying figures from the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration's annual survey, said Texas was the fourth most popular travel destination in the United States for British visitors in 1988.

Not a candidate

DALLAS — Oilman T. Boone Pickens speaks at a Dallas Rotary Club Wednesday where he announced that he will not run for governor. Pickens said he could not give all his attention to the state's problems.

Handicapped get help at gas stations

AUSTIN (AP) — People driving automobiles with handicapped license plates, as of Friday, will be able to get full service at gas stations, yet pay lower self-service prices.

Rep. James Hury, sponsor of the legislation, said the benefits would be offered only at stations that provide full service.

Hury, D-Galveston, said the new law is patterned after a California statute.

Lobbyists may be asked to testify in ethics probe

AUSTIN (AP) — Some of the lobbyists who spent more than $1.8 million entertaining members of the Legislature this year may be testifying before a committee that is looking into campaign finance and lobbying laws, the panel's chairman says.

"If we don't get any lobbyists who want to testify, we'll ask some if they will come and testify," said Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center.

Laney's House State Affairs Committee on Wednesday began looking at campaign finance and lobbying. A Senate committee is scheduled to do likewise.

The investigations follow months of news reports about lobbyists who spent some $1.86 million on entertainment and gifts for members of the Legislature during the 1989 regular session.

That money — an average of more than $12,000 per day during the 140-day session — was used for food, drinks, hunting and fishing outings, golf games at exclusive private clubs, ski trips, vacations to Mexico, and even a trip to a championship boxing match in Las Vegas.

In addition, recent news reports showed that some powerful legislative committee chairmen used contributions to their political funds, called officeholder accounts, to pay for everything from home mortgages to airplane leases.

Laney said he wasn't certain what problems may exist with the current laws on lobbyist regulation and political financing.

However, he said all the news reports had raised questions in the public's mind.

"Anytime there's a perception there's a problem, there's a problem," Laney said. "I don't think anyone on this committee or in this Legislature wants to do anything illegal, immoral or unethical."

"I think the issues themselves (for his committee) will cover all the lobbyist reporting, all the campaign disclosure, all the way down to the local offices' disclosure. If we're going to look at it, we're going to look at it all."

Laney said he won't call any legislators to testify but may hear from them, too.

"I'm not going to call any members (of the Legislature), but if any want to testify they'll sure be welcome," he said. "This is all of the members' business and the lobbyists' business, so I think they're going to be very interested."

Some 800 lobbyists registered for the 1989 Legislature.

State law requires they report total spending each month on entertainment and gifts for lawmakers, but it doesn't require them to say how much they spent on each legislator, or exactly what they spent the money to purchase.

The law is vague in many areas, and Laney said the committee probably will examine such ambiguities.

"It needs to be very clear what needs to be done (in reporting) and how it needs to be done," he said.

Laney said he would have no objections to requiring lawmakers to report on what they received. "I don't see anything wrong with it. It doesn't make any difference to me, personally," he said.

Two other committee members, Reps. Bruce Gibson, D-Godley, and Lena Guerrero, D-Austin, suggested that some lobbyists may be reporting too much of their expenses as going for lawmakers' entertainment.

AUSTIN — State Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, left, talks to Rep. Lena Guerrero, D-Austin, during Wednesday's meeting of the House State Affairs Committee in Austin. Laney chairs the committee which is examining state laws on campaign finance and spending by lobbyists.

LULAC chairman won't resign

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The chairman of the LULAC Foundation board says he will not resign under pressure in the wake of an investigation into alleged financial irregularities and called the national president of the nation's largest Hispanic rights group a "young whippersnapper."

In an interview Wednesday with the San Antonio Express-News, Eduardo Morgia called national League of United Latin American Citizens president Jose Garcia de Lara of San Antonio a "young whippersnapper."

Morgia, of Los Angeles, made the remark in response to a call from de Lara that ten former national presidents of the Hispanic organization should resign.

Others asked to resign their foundation board posts were Hector Godinez of Santa Anna, Calif.; Manuel Gonzales of Waco; Oscar Laurel of Laredo; Ed Pena of Washington, D.C.; Roberto Ornelas of Dallas; Pete Villa of Seattle; Paul Garza of Laredo; Mario Obledo of Sacramento, Calif.; and Oscar Moran of San Antonio.

If the board members do not resign within five days from Tuesday, de Lara has the authority to strip LULAC's name from the foundation. That would remove the non-profit status from the foundation.

Morgia's claim that de Lara does not have authority to take that action was disputed by LULAC lawyer Ruben Sandoval.

"We certainly can remove the LULAC title from the foundation," Sandoval said. "The foundation is a creation of LULAC. We can and will contact the Internal Revenue Service and contact the corporate donors."

"We would show that the foundation is no longer a LULAC affiliate and no longer entitled to non-profit status as such. This, of course, would mean contributions to them would not be tax deductible."

Morgia told the San Antonio newspaper by telephone that de Lara had denied him and other foundation board members due process under the LULAC constitution.

Sandoval disputed the claim, saying that Morgia and the others had been invited to appear before the committee that conducted the investigation.

"They chose not to be there," Sandoval said.

The investigation into financial irregularities was prompted by a news report in May that Moran had a bank account in LULAC's name at Plaza National Bank in San Antonio, league officials said.

The account was maintained without the knowledge of de Lara and LULAC national treasurer Jose Botello of Dallas.

Bank records revealed Moran wrote checks on the account after he was national LULAC president

Four hurt when crane collapses

LA PORTE (AP) — Four workers were treated and released from an area hospital after being injured when a crane apparently collapsed on a bridge being built across the Houston Ship Channel.

The four injured workers — the most serious with a broken leg — were treated Wednesday and then released from Baytown Humana Hospital.

"There were no serious injuries," said Doug Pitcock, a spokesman for Williams Brothers Construction Co. Inc., which is building the bridge with Traylor Brothers Inc.

The accident occurred at about noon Wednesday when a crane fell about 330 feet from a derrick and landed on the ground, Pitcock said. The men were on the derrick when the crane fell.

The bridge will connect La Porte and Baytown.

Water bond proposal has widespread support

AUSTIN (AP) — A $500 million water bond proposal on the November statewide ballot has something in for most everyone, not just residents in poorer pockets of the Texas-Mexico border, bond supporters say.

State elected officials joined religious and other organizations Wednesday in support of the proposed state constitutional amendment.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he knew of no organized opposition to the amendment, which would authorize the state to issue bonds backed by the state for water supply, water quality and flood control.

"Without adequate water and waste water systems, Texas simply has no economic future," Hobby told a news conference. "Without those water supplies, our state can't grow."

Convincing voters that Proposition No. 2 on the ballot would help more than just one region of Texas could be the key to its passage.

But $100 million of the $500 million has been earmarked basically for border colonias, or subdivisions without water and sewer service.

Jan Wilbur, co-chairwoman of The Metropolitan Organization in Houston, said that city is "still drying out from (Hurricane) Gilbert. This bond sale will help finance flood control projects which would have minimized the damage Houston suffered."

Under a bill tied to the constitutional proposal, the state would pick up costs that local governments could not pay for services to the colonias.

The bill passed by the 1989 Legislature also would establish regulations to help prevent more colonias from springing up.

"We're just 10 years from the 21st century and yet many of us live without running water or indoor plumbing. We can do something about this at the polls on Nov. 7."

much needed assistance to not just the colonias that are in the Rio Grande Valley, but similar-type disadvantaged housing throughout the state of Texas.

Mattox said approval of the bond issue is "the moral thing to do, the proper thing to do in every way."

He added that $100 million "is actually a very small drop in the bucket as it relates to the colonias."

Deputy State Agriculture Commissioner Mike Moeller said a colonias population he estimated at 200,000 is expected to double by the year 2000.

Comics war postponed for few days

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Dallas Times Herald Wednesday won two days to continue publishing features and comics that were scheduled to move to its rival, The Dallas Morning News, next Monday.

The Times Herald, the Morning News' parent company and Universal Press Syndicate agreed to the extension during a telephone hearing conducted by U.S. District Judge D. Brook Bartlett.

The three groups decided the Times Herald can use the columns and comics — including Dear Abby and The Far Side — until a hearing rescheduled for Sept. 5.

The hearing, originally scheduled for Friday, will decide whether a temporary restraining order Bartlett granted to Universal Press last week should be lifted. The restraining order prevents the Times Herald from doing anything to infringe on Bartlett's jurisdiction.

The squabble involves two suits — the federal suit filed by Universal Press against the Times Herald in Kansas City and a state suit the Times Herald filed to keep The Morning News from seizing publication rights to the Universal materials now published in the Times Herald.

The Morning News gained exclusive rights to the items in a television programming venture between its parent company, A.H. Belo Corp., and Universal Press.

State District Judge David West in Houston said Monday that his issuance of the restraining order could mean no Dallas newspaper will be carrying the features and comics. "Until the logjam is broken, that's what the result is," he said.

Judge orders Bakker to undergo psychiatric testing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — PTL founder Jim Bakker was ordered to undergo psychiatric testing at a federal corrections facility today to see if he is competent to continue his trial on fraud and conspiracy charges.

U.S. District Judge Robert Potter ordered Bakker's trial suspended in its fourth day after a psychiatrist testified in a brief hearing that Bakker suffered hallucinations and was covering in his attorney's office this morning. "He was lying in the corner of his attorney's office with his head under a couch, hiding," Dr. Basil Jackson testified in the brief competency hearing out of the jury's presence. "He was expressing thoughts that someone was going to hurt him."

Jackson, who has been treating Bakker for nine months, said Bakker suffered hallucinations after breaking down Wednesday when a witness collapsed while being cross-examined.

"Mr. Bakker reported that when he left the courthouse, suddenly people outside took on the form of frightening animals which he felt were intent on destroying him, attacking him and hurting him," Jackson said.

Jackson, who sat behind the defense table during jury selection last week but has not been present for the trial, said he had not completed a formal diagnosis. But he said his initial diagnosis was that Bakker suffers from "acute depression and confusional reaction with episode decomposition in which he loses the ability to adequately judge and relate to reality."

Jackson asked that Bakker, who was not in the courtroom, be sent to an unidentified private hospital in North Carolina, but Potter instead ordered marshals to deliver Bakker to the Federal Correctional Facility in Butner.

Jackson, a clinical psychologist from Milwaukee, said Bakker was not capable of appearing in court. "Yesterday he was actively hallucinating," Jackson told Potter. "At this time, he is not able to adequately help counsel in his defense or participate in a rational manner in these proceedings. He would not be able to participate for at least two weeks."

Jackson said admitting Bakker to a state or federal facility could further damage his psychological condition, but "being admitted to a private hospital might be helpful."

George T. Davis, one of Bakker's attorneys, told Potter that Bakker wanted to come to court.

"I want to go to court. I want to be on trial. I want to be in court," Davis quoted Bakker as saying. Davis told the judge Bakker was lying, "on the floor in a fetal position."

If convicted on all 24 counts, Bakker could be sentenced to 120 years in prison and fined $5 million.

Prosecutors say Bakker and other PTL executives diverted for their own use more than $4 million of the $158 million raised from PTL "partners."

In the "partnerships," $1,000 contributors were guaranteed three free nights' lodging each year for life at PTL. The ministry had one hotel and others under construction, but prosecutors say those lodgings could not support the more than 66,000 partnerships sold by the time Bakker resigned.

Feds fund space grant colleges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government will send money to a consortium of 21 Texas universities and 18 companies for research into space, NASA announced Thursday.

The money is the first to be distributed under the National Space Grant College and Fellowship program, which creates "space grant" universities along the lines of land grant universities of the last century. Those land grant colleges encouraged research into agriculture.

The "space grant" concept was first proposed in 1985 by former Texas A&M President Frank Vandiver to encourage private space research, said U.S. Rep. Joe Barton, R-Tex.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's office said the grants will total $225,000 for the consortium, plus $100,000 in fellowships.

"It's not going to be big money at first," Barton said, "but it's impact is going to be much greater."

Texas A&M spokesman Ed Walraven said the money will go to the consortium itself for distribution to the university projects.

Seventeen consortiums were selected nationwide for the program. Bentsen said NASA received 25 proposals.

The Texas colleges included in the Texas Space Grant Consortium are:

Texas A&M, University of Texas at Austin, Baylor University, Lamar University, Prairie View A&M University, Rice University, Southern Methodist University, Texas A&I University, Texas A&M University at Galveston, Texas Christian University, Texas Southern University, Texas Tech University, University of Texas at Arlington, University of Texas at Dallas, University of Texas at San Antonio, University of Texas at El Paso, UT Health Science Center-Houston, UT Southwestern Medical Center-Dallas, UT Health Science Center-San Antonio, University of Houston-Clear Lake.

The chairman of the consortium is Texas A&M Space Research Center Director Oran Nicks. The director is University of Texas aerospace engineering professor Byron Tapley.

the next few years. "Throughout the future years we will be hiring people to maintain our workforce," Morris said.

"I think this is indicative of how good we feel about the refinery here in Big Spring. It's a competitive plant now. We are on a successful route and this is an indicative of that."

"The refinery is successful, and we're feeling successful. I'd like Big Spring to feel as successful."

Morris said the nine positions currently being added will include day jobs, as well as shift work.

"We're taking all applications through the Texas Employment deleting items in the budget, it will ask the city staff to compute the latest bottom line and then decide what steps to take.

"The overall plan that myself and Mr. (Sidney) Clark have sort of tentatively put together is number one, that I want to work on seeing if the citizens approve increasing the sales tax one-half of 1 percent in order to reduce the ad valorem (property) tax burden."

Green said. "If they agree to that, then we will come back and call for a bond issue."

"At the time of the election on the bond issue, the taxpayer will be advised on how much of an increase will be required in ad valorem taxes to pay for these additional bond issues. We will raise taxes by those amounts if the bond issue is approved."

"Probably the bond issues will be broken down into units so the citizens themselves can pick and choose on what they want to pay for."

Green said a sales tax increase election can be held in November, although the increase, if approved, would not go into effect until Oct. 1, 1990. A bond election could be held sometime in 1990, he said.

"These are all tentative proposals that have not been officially brought to the council for a formal vote," Green cautioned.

The mayor said the council, with the restoration of the capital outlay items to the budget, is acknowledging the needs of the city.

"There's no question about it. Everybody recognizes that we've got problems," Green said of the city. "It's not an insurmountable problem. We can get our city back in good financial shape. It'll just take some time to do it."

Commission," he said, where the TEC will perform a preliminary screening. "We will do the secondary screening. Our current intent is to interview at the refinery at least three people for each job available."

Morris said the TEC, located at 310 Owens, already has received numerous applications.

The plant, which used to be the Cosden refinery, currently employs 280 people with Fina Oil and Chemical. Additionally, it employs about 60 persons through contract personnel, Morris said.

The refinery contributes about $12 million annually to the Big Spring economy.

Drug battles won and lost

Fewer Americans are using illegal drugs, but of those who take them, more are addicted. That news, reported the other day in the results of the 1988 National Household Survey on Drug Abuse, is at once encouraging and alarming. It shows that most people respond rationally to sound information and education about the dangers of drug use. But it also demonstrates that the nation has yet to commit adequate efforts and resources to helping those most seriously addicted.

According to the survey, the government's most accurate measure of drug trends, casual use of illegal drugs fell sharply from 1985 to 1988. The number of people reporting they had used cocaine in the previous month fell by half, the number using any illicit drug by one-third. Why? Certainly not because law enforcement efforts have worked to stem the flow of drugs; between 1985 and 1988, cocaine prices actually fell and availability continued to be high. The answer seems to be, instead, that attitudes toward drugs changed. In the early 1980s, cocaine was a trendy drug popularly believed to have no serious effects. When the facts got out that cocaine is, in fact, highly addictive, middle-class Americans abandoned it in droves.

With continued government and private efforts to educate people about the risks of drugs, casual drug use in the middle class should continue to fall. But education can't cure addiction. The survey reveals a disturbing growth in the number of people who regularly use crack cocaine, the drug's most dangerous form. Much of this use is by the young and the unemployed in the nation's minority neighborhoods, where drug addiction is part of a bundle of pathologies that includes poverty, crime, AIDS and family disintegration.

That kind of drug use presents a policy challenge government has not yet met. To get people off crack will require more than exhortation, education and prisons. It will take more drug treatment, a process that is both expensive and uncertain in its results. And it will take a concerted effort to give young people in underclass neighborhoods opportunities for fuller lives. In past drug epidemics, there has been a tendency for concern about drugs to disappear when middle-class use trailed off and drugs retreated to the slums. The nation can't afford to repeat that mistake.

Nuclear holocaust won't stop taxman

Time was when you could count on two things — death and taxes. But now there's an apocalyptic twist to that old saw. These days, you can count down to death or taxes. Put another way, if The Bomb doesn't get you, the taxman will.

Yes, take heart in the fact that even a wartime nuclear holocaust won't keep the government out of your pocket. According to Common Cause magazine, the IRS has a dandy new plan to collect taxes following a nuclear war. As our nation swaps bombs with another, the taxman will be calmly in his bunker, sharpening his pencils. The new guidelines call for the "assessing, collecting and recording" of taxes to resume within 30 days of disaster. By then, presumably, the dust will have settled and the glow will be off your wallet.

But let us allow the bureaucracy to speak for itself: "On the premise that the collection of delinquent accounts would be most adversely affected, and in many cases would be impossible in a disaster area, the service will concentrate on the collection of current taxes. However, in areas where the tax-paying potential is substantially unimpaired, enforced collection of delinquent accounts will be continued."

Stirring words. Yes, America, the IRS will dispatch tax cheats in the cool air of a nuclear winter. You can count on only death to save you. No death, no excuse. Pay up. After all, those bombs weren't cheap.

The reason behind the party

By ART BUCHWALD

The recent Malcolm Forbes mega-zillion-dollar junket to Tangier once again raises one of society's most pressing questions: "Was it good or bad for the Nouveaux Riches?"

It came at a time when instant millionaires have been under tremendous fire for spending their money with gay abandon, while the middle class are trying to find the wherewithal to get their pipes fixed under the kitchen sink.

But there is a lot more to this junket than the tabloids would have you believe. The Forbes bash was really designed to be a diplomatic mission of extreme urgency and importance.

This is how they tell it around the water fountains at the State Department. This summer U.S. relations with Morocco had reached such a low point that neither country could be civil with the other. To make matters worse, Morocco had agreed to sell the Soviet Union 100,000 tons of Sahara sand, which because of agricultural failures had become a delicacy in Armenia and Georgia.

The president had decided to send a high-ranking emissary to Tangier to try to get top-level talks going with Hassan, the king of Morocco. The natural choice was Henry Kissinger, who knows the king on a first-name basis. But

Art Buchwald

Henry complained that because everyone recognized him it would be impossible to go to Morocco secretly. He needed a cover story.

"Why not have Malcolm Forbes organize a flying carpet for the rich and famous on his 70th birthday?" he suggested. "I could be a guest on that. It would be a perfect cover because no one would guess I was doing anything more than romping with the Nouveaux Riches."

The CIA man liked the plan, though he objected to Forbes being let in on it.

"Then I won't tell him. We'll have him think the party was his idea. We'll let him invite all the people who have it made, and they can play in Tangier while I take the king for a walk in the Casbah."

"How many rich and famous do we need to make your presence credible?" Henry was asked.

"I figure a 747, a DC-8 and the Concorde ought to do it," Henry said. "But we can expect flak from the press for me being part of a junket to nowhere. I am used to getting flak for serving my country."

The CIA man asked, "How can we be sure all the rich and famous will agree to go to the bash?"

"Because the rich and famous are always worried that they will be in wrong place at the wrong time. Once the word is out that I am on the trip, everyone will fall in line," Henry told him. "To make this work we don't want the rich, we want the super rich — people who fly to the Mayo clinic to go to the dentist."

"Once you get to Tangier, you will be whisked away to have a tete-a-tete with the king," the CIA man told him.

"That comes in time. I have to toast Malcolm and Elizabeth Taylor first, so as to alleviate any doubts why I came. Then they can sneak me off to the palace."

"Good thinking," the CIA man said.

Henry said, smiling, "I will not fear to negotiate or negotiate out of fear."

Everything went as planned with one exception. When Henry got to Tangier the king up and left for other business in Rabat and poor Kissinger never did have a chance to negotiate anything with Morocco, except to make Tangier a duty-free port for any future parties Malcolm wants to give in Morocco.

Will the communists let Poland survive?

By GEORGE F. WILL

WARSAW — Poland's president, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, is also Poland's sphinx. His eyes hidden behind tinted glasses, the usually stony set of his mouth betraying no emotion, he certainly does not smile promiscuously. But at a recent meeting with five Americans, the stone cracked and he smiled, even laughed.

A man, he said musingly, is on a tightrope stretched high above a street, with no net below. It is raining, the wind is gusting. And he is playing a violin. (Jaruzelski crooked his left arm and with his right he vigorously drew an imaginary bow across an imaginary violin.) "And people say, 'He's no Paganini!'" The general laughed at his jest.

The tightrope metaphor is a tantalizing exercise in reticence, a quality essential to survival in the Soviet orbit. Toward what is the tightrope walker edging? Democracy? The general, dressed like a banker, does not say that.

But he sounds like a Polish patriot as he favors his American guests with a litany of the difficulties — civil war, racial strife, depression — American democracy has experienced in 200 years.

Again, his message is — at most — implicit. It seems to be: We are doing, quickly and stealthily, what you have done with much turmoil when you were less constrained by time and circumstances.

Jaruzelski sounds like a conservative Republican when giving examples of excessive entitlements — long, paid pregnancy leaves, for example — that must be pruned if Poland is to become productive.

The rococo system of controls must be dismantled and the thick fabric of subsidies must be unraveled. But this means a blast of inflation.

Because things must get worse before they can get better, Jaruzelski speaks like a Chicago alderman bent on assembling a broad social base for the government.

George F. Will

Poland is suffering shortages of almost everything — meat, machinery, poetry — but perhaps its most pressing need is a new, more inspiring metaphor to replace the medicinal metaphors.

Everyone here talks about the coming doses of "bitter medicine."

When necessities such as milk and meat are, in a blink, four to ten times more expensive, it may seem unfeeling, even fatuous, to call for a more cheerful vocabulary. However, another name for the bitter medicine Poland has just begun to taste is: freedom. And over the long haul, freedom is fun. It works.

A foreign-ministry official, pausing with a forkful of Baltic herring, reminds a visitor, "We are not alone in the world." Reticence about the Russian bear to the east comes naturally in a nation that has had the misfortune to exist (when it has existed: it disappeared from the European map from 1795 to 1918) near large, voracious neighbors.

Someone once said, rather hardheartedly, of Poland's history: If you pitch your tent in the middle of Fifth Avenue, you should expect to be hit by buses. Tanks, in Poland's case. Europe's northern plain is perfect for blitzkriegs.

But today East German's population is leaking westward through the porous papier-mache curtain between Hungary and Austria. And between Poland and Russia, the Baltic states are in a roiling boil.

They are reminding the world, at exactly the right moment, of this exquisitely embarrassing — to the Kremlin — fact: The Soviet Union is the only nation that was allied with Hitler when the war began but did not as a result suffer a rupture of its regime.

The Soviet regime, with all the troubles piled on its plate, probably cannot afford to think much about, let alone intervene in, Poland. But Soviet pressure need not come noisily, with clanking tanks. It could come silently, in reduced flows of iron, oil and cotton.

And Solidarity now faces an identity crisis. It cannot be both what it has been and what it now is: both a trade union and a government, a militant arm of an interest and a conciliating institution.

Poland's Communist Party has acquiesced, so far, in Solidarity exercising power. Is Poland still a communist country? If by that phrase one means a country with a majority of convinced communists, there never has been a communist country, anywhere.

Moreover, today the aims and values of Poland's government more closely resemble those of all the NATO governments than those of any Warsaw Pact government, with the possible exception of Hungary's.

However, Poland's communist apparatchiks still control enough institutions to cause the new government to fail. Do the communists want it to? We come back to the sphinx, The Man Who Is Not Paganini.

One longs to insinuate this thought in among Jaruzelski's information about the United States: The eyes of visitors to Washington are drawn irresistibly to a towering monument to a general.

His greatest act was one of renunciation, a refusal to keep or receive powers that would have had a stunting effect on his nation's nascent democracy.

Beyond the realm

A pleasant office and garlic, too

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random notes while trying to stay out of the heat:

At last, I have found a kindred spirit.

Les Francoeur, a self-styled "smileologist," is trying to spread the gospel of humor into the business world.

Francoeur, from Rockport, Maine, works as a consultant for companies, both big and little, encouraging people to laugh, according to an Associated Press report.

"People like a fun place to work," he told AP recently.

Amen, Les. Life is full enough of work and worry without the workplace being a source of depression and drudgery. Francoeur says that people who have a good time at work and enjoy their companions often work into their 70s.

I don't know if I want to endure the stress of trying to beat deadlines until I'm 70, but one has to admit there is a benefit from actually looking forward to work.

And 95 percent of the time, I count myself among the lucky few. Most of the time, my fellow newshounds are some of the most pleasant folks you'd ever want to spend time with.

However, the other 5 percent of the time can be a killer — but that's another story.

Anyway, let's all take a cue from Les and try a little humor at the workplace. Smile a little more and tell some jokes — but let's keep it clean, OK?

Now that we've gotten the pleasantries out of the way...

The following, also courtesy of the Associated Press, should be filed under the "give-me-a-break" department.

Eating is one of my favorite activities, and my spouse will swear that I will eat almost anything, but I absolutely draw the line at garlic brownies.

Garlic brownies? Stifle the gag reflexes, folks, I'm serious. Garlic brownies, garlic fudge sundaes and other delectable fare were served at the recent West Hollywood Garlic Festival. It would be in California.

A crowd estimated at 15,000 attended the event for a chance to savor such delights as shrimp dumplings and cold garlic shrimp remoulade.

I'm not quite sure what remoulade is, but I'm almost willing to bet that I wouldn't like it with garlic.

Garlic is like almost everything else in life — it has its place. It's perfectly acceptable in Italian foods and as seasoning on steaks, but, please, keep it the heck out of my sundae.

If we don't stop this nasty proliferation, before long we'll be seeing all sorts of strange things on our dinner plates. If garlic brownies are accepted, can fudge pizzas be far behind?

Sure, laugh if you want, but remember: There are otherwise sane individuals walking the streets who think bean curds are an acceptable dish.

Bridge collapse over major road

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — A bridge being built over a major roadway collapsed during rush hour this morning, raining debris on commuters and injuring at least 14 people, state police said. One woman was critically injured in the collapse of the Route 198 overpass over the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, which came while workers were pouring concrete, said Maryland Police spokesman Chuck Jackson.

U.S. Park Police Deputy Chief Richard Kusick said four of the injured were in a car that was crushed under the overpass. Another of the injured was in a second car that was hit by debris, while the other nine were construction workers.

The collapse occurred just before 7 a.m. as workers poured concrete, which they had been doing since 2 a.m.

Helmsley guilty of tax evasion

NEW YORK (AP) — Leona Helmsley, the queen of a $5 billion empire who stood accused of even billing $8 worth of underwear as a business expense, showed no emotion upon her conviction of evading $1.2 million in federal income taxes.

After Wednesday's verdict, juror Michael Clark said the jury decided to acquit Mrs. Helmsley of the most serious charge, conspiracy to commit extortion, because they were unclear on what constituted extortion.

The charge, which carried a 20-year sentence, alleged that the 69-year-old Mrs. Helmsley and her aide, Frank Turco, conspired to extort payoffs and goods from vendors doing business with the Helmsley organization — which has far-flung real estate holdings, including some of New York's most luxurious hotels.

After a two-month trial and five days of deliberation, the jurors convicted Mrs. Helmsley of 33 of 41 counts, including conspiracy to defraud the Internal Revenue Service, tax evasion and other tax fraud charges.

Court declares woman black

DENVER (AP) — A light-skinned woman has won her battle to be designated black, even though her parents listed her as white on her birth certificate in an attempt to help her overcome racial bias.

A judge on Wednesday directed Kansas officials to issue a new birth certificate for 39-year-old Mary Christine Walker, who was born in Great Bend, Kan.

"I'm glad it's over," said the former Denver Public School teacher, who always called herself black.

Her attorney, Penfield Tate II, said Kansas' current birth certificates do not designate race, so her new one will have no race on it at all.

Her father, who's black, and her mother, who had a white mother and a black father, endowed their daughter with a fair complexion, green eyes and a light brown hair that would allow perpetuation of the secret.

"My parents wanted their kids to make it, and they picked the easiest way possible," Walker said. "They knew what it was to be black. They knew the problems."

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Hundreds of stationary cars jam all lanes of Lebanon's only coastal highway leading south out of Moslem west Beirut. The panicky citizens fled their homes at noon after shells fell on residential areas.

Lebanese leader supports kidnapping

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian and Christian forces battled with artillery and tanks around Beirut today, killing two people and wounding 16, police said.

A pro-Iranian Moslem cleric was quoted as calling for the kidnapping of Pope John Paul II if the pontiff visits the beleaguered Christians.

The casualties raised the toll since March to at least 807 killed and 2,334 wounded. More than 90 percent of Beirut's 1.5 million population has fled the ravaged city since the latest round of fighting began.

Sheik Said Shaaban, leader of Lebanon's Sunni Moslem fundamentalists, was quoted as saying in Beirut's Ad-Diyar daily that Moslem zealots also should kidnap President Bush and French President Francois Mitterrand to halt alleged French aid to the Christians.

"If the pope comes to Lebanon and we manage to hold him for the sake of salvaging Palestine, I wouldn't be against such an act," said Shaaban, the only Sunni cleric in Lebanon to support Shiite Moslem Iran, Syria's ally.

Shiite fanatics carried out suicide bombings against U.S., French and Israeli forces in Lebanon between 1983 and 1985, killing hundreds of servicemen, and have kidnapped scores of Westerners.

The pope said Aug. 19 that he intended to visit Lebanon to help end the country's 14-year-old civil war. The Vatican has said the final decision on a trip depends on security in Beirut.

"I support the abduction of Bush and Mitterrand to serve the purpose of ousting Israel from Palestine and stopping the French intervention and the naval warships that came to rescue France's children in Lebanon," Shaaban said. He was referring to six French warships in the eastern Mediterranean sent to evacuate French citizens if the fighting worsens.

Syria's Moslem allies charge that the French, who ruled Lebanon from 1918 to 1943 and have traditionally been the Christians' protector, plan a military intervention to aid the Christians besieged in their enclave north of Beirut.

Fighting has raged since March 8 between the Syrian army and Christian forces led by Gen. Michel Aoun.

The Moslems demand the formation of an inter-Lebanese committee to monitor arms deliveries to ensure that Aoun does not get shipments from his main backer, Iraq, which is Syria's archrival in the Arab world.

Syria, which has 40,000 troops in Lebanon under a 1976 Arab League peacekeeping mandate, has refused to pull its forces out.

Moldavian now official language

MOSCOW (AP) — Moldavian leaders today declared their native tongue the official language of the republic but agreed to allow the use of Russian in some circumstances, a compromise aimed at appeasing Russian-speaking minorities.

The Moldavian Supreme Soviet, meeting in the republic's capital, Kishinev, approved the language law overwhelmingly, a Moldavian activist and a reporter for the republic's official news agency said by telephone.

The initial proposal to make Moldavian the official language caused widespread strikes and protests by ethnic Russians and other Russian-speaking ethnic groups in the southern republic bordering Romania.

The choice of language is an important issue for many of the diverse Soviet ethnic groups. Many have felt they were forced to adopt Russian even though their native tongues are vastly different and represent a distinct cultural heritage.

U.S. dependents advised to leave

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Soldiers in northern Colombia killed five members of a paramilitary squad reportedly run by drug traffickers, and police today said more than 500 people were arrested for violating a curfew in Medellin.

American dependents of U.S. Embassy employees were advised by the State Department to leave the country.

The 10 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew was imposed in Medellin and eight other cities as part of a nationwide crackdown on cocaine traffickers who have waged a campaign of assassinations, bombings and arson in recent weeks.

Medellin is considered the headquarters of the cartels that supply 80 percent of the cocaine to the United States.

In Medellin, a police force of 4,000 was on full alert and 18 special anti-terrorist units were stationed throughout the city.

Princess Anne, husband separate

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, the only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, is separating from her husband Mark Phillips after 15 years of marriage, but they do not plan to divorce, Buckingham Palace announced today.

"Her Royal Highness, the Princess Royal, and Capt. Mark Phillips have decided to separate on terms agreed between them," the announcement said. "There are no plans for divorce proceedings."

The couple's children, Peter, 11, and Zara, 8, will live with their mother at Gatcombe, and Phillips will have full access to them, the palace said.

It was only the second formal rupture of a marriage within the immediate royal family in this century, said Sue Goddard, manager of Burke's Peerage.

Ms. Goddard could not recall another instance since George IV attempted to divorce his wife shortly before he ascended to the throne in 1820. Before that, she said, there was no royal divorce since Henry VIII and his six marriages in the 16th century.

MCT comedy

MIDLAND — Midland Community Theatre's September play, The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940, is first of all, not a musical. It is, instead, a comedy-murder full of secret passages, espionage, romance and disappearing bodies adding up to a blizzard of mayhem and outrageous comedy. It is co-produced by the law firm of Cotton, Bledsoe, Tighe and Dawson, P.C.

The play opens Friday, Sept. 8 with a party from 7 to 8 p.m. in the theatre lobby complimentary of The Plaza Club. This play is about a group of people who want to put on a theatrical production. There are several surprising twists and turns as the actors, director, producer and lyricists try to convince the owner of an old, weird house to invest in their musical comedy.

The comedy, MCT's fifth membership show of the 1989 season, is on stage every Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. with a matinee Sunday, Sept. 17 at 2:30 p.m.

Tickets for the handicapped or disadvantaged are available for that matinee through the REACH OUT! program sponsored by the Abell-Hanger Foundation. For reservations or information call 682-4111.

Art exhibits

MIDLAND — Four exhibits are on the fall schedule at Midland College's McCormick Gallery. All exhibits at the college are free of charge and open to the public.

Opening the fall season is "Gothic Churches of France," a photographic survey of French religious art and architecture. It will be shown Sept. 2 through Sept. 29.

The display is based on the collections of the Caisse Nationale Des Monuments Historiques in Paris. The exhibit is being obtained from the Exhibitions Department of the French Cultural Services, New York.

The 12th annual Midland Arts Association's Juried Show returns to McCormick Gallery Oct. 2-Nov. 3. A reception is scheduled on Oct. 5 at 7:30 p.m. This show traditionally attracts the top artists, sculptors, and photographers in the area.

Three persons associated with Southern Methodist University are presenting a show Nov. 6-30. Included will be Frances Merritt Thompson, photographer and art faculty member; Julie Shapiro, printmaker and painter on the SMU art faculty; and Gigi Lambert, a Dallas artist who is on the faculty for SMU's Taos, N.M. workshops.

Closing out the fall season will be the Midland College Student Show, which is slated Dec. 2-17 with a reception Dec. 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Located in the Allison Fine Arts Building, the McCormick Gallery hours normally are: 8 a.m.-10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, and 1-6 p.m. Sunday. The gallery will be closed Labor Day and Thanksgiving Day.

Dan Buckley serves as exhibitions director for the gallery.

Englund riding the Freddy merry-go-round

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert Englund recalls some advice Mel Brooks dispensed when Mark Hamill fretted about being typed forever as Luke Skywalker as a result of the "Star Wars" movies. The gospel according to Brooks: "Never get off the merry-go-round while it's still turning."

Says Englund: "I remember Mark, drinking a beer and watching an old 'Mary Tyler Moore Show' with me up in Laurel Canyon. He was so worried until Mel Brooks gave him that advice at 20th Century Fox. It really made sense to me, watching Mark and seeing his angst. I said to Mark, 'What's your problem? You're starring in 'Star Wars!'"

"I've used that advice all through the Freddy craze, and it's really kept me focused. The merry-go-round's going to stop pretty soon. I'll get off nice and gently and go on to other things."

The "Freddy craze" is having another go-round this summer with "Nightmare on Elm Street 5: The Dream Child." It's yet another encounter with Freddy Krueger, that charmer with the prune face and the steel-bladed fingers. However, the film has opened quite poorly, falling a staggering 57 percent in its second week of release for a take of only $3.5 million. It looks like this could be Freddy's last stand.

For an actor who has performed Shakespeare and Ibsen, Englund retains a healthy attitude about the character who has dominated his career for the past five years.

"I do Freddy once a year," explained Englund. "People accuse me of doing it for the money now. But I've had a decent career, and I'm still doing a lot of other things. I'm even turning down jobs because of conflicts in schedule."

"I enjoy doing Freddy. I don't enjoy putting the makeup on anymore; it's a real (2½ hour) drag. Once it's on, it's wonderfully designed, porous so it can breathe. I love being able to kid around with the crew as Freddy on the set. I love that it's the one time in my life on film that I can really be larger than life, I can exaggerate. It's the kind of acting that's generally reserved for the theater."

The "Nightmare" series is the kind of bonanza of which small film companies such as New Line Cinema dream. The original film was the creature of the poor man's Alfred Hitchcock, Wes Craven, who created such throat-grabbing terror that the $1.2 million investment returned $26 million in tickets sold. The cost has risen with each sequel, but so has the gross: $30 million for No. 2, $45 million for No. 3, $50 million for No. 4.

Who attends the slice and dice teen-oriented movies?

"I think the original audience were punk rockers and heavy metal kids," said Englund. "They discovered the movie on their own; there was no hype at the beginning because New Line didn't have any money to advertise."

"There was a certain subversiveness, a certain anarchy to Freddy, a slight attack on middle-class complacency. After all — 'Elm Street.' What does that stand for? Picket fences and mowed lawns."

"With the budgets increasing, we changed to more of a fantasy and a special effects film. The audience has grown with it. We've gotten the 'Poltergeist' audience. We've gotten the kid brother and sister of the heavy metal and punk kids. And their parents, too."

Without the Freddy makeup, Englund is a pleasant, even bland looking 40-year-old with a short beard and curly blond hair. He was a California boy who attended Northridge State University and the University of California at Los Angeles before studying at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London.

Man wants to live life as a woman

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old male nurse. I love sports and excel in track. I was saved by the grace of Jesus Christ two years ago. I read the Bible daily and sing in the gospel choir.

Even though I am a born-again Christian, I am miserable. All my life I have wanted to be a woman. I would love to be on the U.S. Women's Olympic Track Team. I can cook, sew and type. I have never cared anything about mechanics, engineering, or any of the so-called masculine careers. I hate hunting and fishing. I could never kill a living thing.

Abby, this secret desire to be a woman is about to destroy me. I am not a homosexual, but I'd give anything to have a sex-change operation. Where is this done? Is it against the law? I will go anywhere. I'd rather be dead than continue living like this.

Abby, if the Lord really loves me, why did he give me a man's body when I feel and think like a woman? I have been this way all my life. Please help me! — SAVED BUT DIFFERENT you "different" I do not know. Nature sometimes makes biological blunders, as is the case when one's body does not conform with his (or her) natural feelings. You are not alone. Don't feel guilty. One cannot help what he feels.

I believe that knowledge, skill and talent are divinely inspired, and that those scientists, physicians and surgeons whose combined efforts have made sex-change operations possible, do so with God's guidance. For information about sex-reassignment surgery and related problems, inquire at the nearest medical school that has a human sexuality program.

Well, last year he had an operation that left him practically impotent, and since then I couldn't ask for a more devoted husband. He phones me if he knows he's going to be half an hour late. He buys me presents, sends me flowers, and even takes me on business trips, which he never did before.

Of course I'm enjoying all this, but why in your opinion has my husband suddenly turned over a new leaf? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Probably because there's not much left under the old one.

The low-fat, low-salt, low-cholesterol pain in the neck

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Shoppers at the biggest supermarket chain in the Baltimore-Washington area are accustomed to getting advice from Odonna Mathews, whether they want it or not.

She is the consumers' ombudsman, advocate and confidante at Giant Foods, and what's good for customers turns out to be good, too, for the prospering chain, the country's 12th largest supermarket company.

Twenty thousand times a year, customers write or call Mrs. Mathews to ask for a recipe, to request that stores stock an old familiar brand or to complain about the checkout clerk who put the eggs at the bottom of the bag.

When Giant started selling live lobsters, two customers asked for a merciful way to cook the crustaceans.

Mrs. Mathews consulted animal rights people, the National Aquarium and the fish industry and wrote into a guidebook two alternative methods — severing the spinal cord or starting out with cool water. The experts said lobsters feel less pain than when they are plunged into boiling water.

On Giant's commercials, Mrs. Mathews brims with advice. She tells how to combat cholesterol, compare costs of different brands or opt for healthful snacks ("choose pretzels, plain or fruit-filled shredded wheat or matzo.")

"Lower The Fat," urges a sign over the stores' meat counters. "Choose chicken. Remove the skin. Eat more white meat than dark."

On the shelves, green arrows point out foods that are high in fiber or low in fat and cholesterol.

Three ounces of meat in a serving is really enough, Mrs. Mathews advises budget-minded shoppers. "Slice the meat thinly and fan it out on the plate."

"Everyone in the Washington area can tell you who Odonna is," says Lou Garcia of the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals, which represents 1,000 firms that employ consumer advisers. "Not many of them have her kind of recognition."

The only woman among 22 Giant vice presidents, Mrs. Mathews says she is free "to openly disagree with company policies when they are not in the consumers' best interest."

She pestered Giant's bakers until they finally agreed to forswear highly saturated palm and coconut oils in baked goods, except for in whipped toppings — and she's working on those.

"Some people think I'm a pain in the neck," she says. "If I am, I'm doing my job."

Another idea came from Giant's consumer board, on which customers volunteer to serve. At their urging, she pressed Giant to create one checkout lane in each store with no candy to tempt kiddies. The chocolate industry protested in vain, she says.

In an interview in Giant's nothing-fancy corporate headquarters in a warehouse neighborhood outside Washington, Mrs. Mathews spells out her philosophy:

"People are going to eat their hot dogs and their chocolate chips. But choices should be there. Consumers have the right to choose, and they have the right to be informed."

A native of Washington, she started as an intern to the company's first consumer adviser, Esther Peterson, who also served as consumer adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Carter.

"Giant was ahead of the curve," says Guy Ford, who analyzes supermarket stocks for Investment Corp. of Norfolk, Va. "The industry is just coming around to what Giant's been doing for years."

Clemson TB suspended

WALHALLA, S.C. (AP) — Clemson tailback Terry Allen will miss Saturday's game against Furman after being suspended following an arrest on charges of driving under the influence.

Allen, who could become the school's all-time leading rusher this season, was suspended from the team Wednesday. Athletic Director Bobby Robinson said.

Allen, a junior, was an all-conference selection last year after rushing for 1,192 yards, second best in the league.

The Atlantic Coast Conference leader in rushing as a sophomore with 973 yards, Allen needs 750 yards to break the school's career rushing mark of 2,914 yards held by Kenny Flowers.

"Terry Allen has been suspended for violation of our student-athlete discipline policy."

The policy states in part that a student athlete may be suspended from participation in intercollegiate athletics for the "arrest for any crime other than a minor traffic offense."

The policy also states "the suspension may range anywhere from one day to one or more semesters depending on the severity of the misconduct, and surrounding circumstances."

Defending champion ousted

NEW YORK (AP) — Boris Becker used pluck and luck to survive in the U.S. Open. John McEnroe and Mats Wilander weren't as fierce or fortunate.

Becker saved two match points in the fourth set — one on a net cord that was the turning point of the second-round match — then dug down in the fifth to beat Derrick Rostagno 1-6, 6-7 (1-7), 6-3, 7-6 (8-6), 6-3.

Wilander, the defending champion who won three majors in 1988 and none this year, didn't make it to midnight, losing 5-7, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4 to 18-year-old Californian Pete Sampras.

And McEnroe, the four-time Open winner in the midst of an outstanding comeback, could not hang on against a player he'd never seen and knew nothing about.

"It's one thing if a guy plays really well. It's harder to take if I play as poorly as I did," McEnroe said after a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 loss to Paul Haarhuis of the Netherlands, the 115th-ranked player in the world and No. 3 in his country. "I can't think of the last time that I played that poorly throughout an entire match in terms of getting it going."

So McEnroe is gone. And Wilander, the fifth seed who was 14-1 in Grand Slam five-set matches, is out after what he called a "terrible match" against Sampras, ranked 91st.

"I think it was disappointing to be playing that badly," Wilander said. "I lost in all of them (the Grand Slam events), which is what matters. But it was worse the way I was playing tonight."

Becker would have been history, too, if not for that net cord.

Rostagno, a 23-year-old from Brentwood, Calif., who is ranked 65th, held two match points in the fourth-set tiebreaker against the world's No. 2 player. He blew the first one with a forehand volley that went long.

On the second match point, Rostagno pinned Becker at the baseline. He rushed toward the net for Becker's return, ready to put away the biggest victory of his career.

The ball struck the tape, changed

NEW YORK — Defending U.S. Open champion Mats Wilander of Sweden throws his racket on the ground after losing a point to Pete Sampras at the U.S. Open Wednesday. Sampras upset Wilander 5-7, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4. direction and Rostagno could do nothing with it. He returned the ball almost in self-defense and it went wide.

"I was thinking, 'If that didn't use up all his luck, nothing would,'" Rostagno said. "He must have had the feeling nothing could go wrong after that."

Becker certainly recognized how lucky he was. He also knew he had the fortitude to take advantage of the break.

"In a match like that, many shots sometimes go in your favor and sometimes against it," Becker said. "When you get a shot like that on match point, it is quite sweet."

"When you are at two match points in a tiebreaker and you get a shot like that, it could break his spirit. I figured his spirit was not that good at the beginning of the fifth set and I broke right away."

Rostagno couldn't recover. "I almost had it," said Rostagno, one of the true non-conformists on the tour — he once traveled the circuit in a minibus. "I felt I played two solid shots on the match points and he was lucky to come up with a very big shot."

Seeded players who came up with enough big shots to advance on Wednesday included top seeds Ivan Lendl and Steffi Graf, Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova, Michael Chang and Zina Garrison. Today, Lendl, Chang, Gabriela Sabatini, Stefan Edberg, Jimmy Connors and Tim Mayotte were in action.

McEnroe seemed to be primed for a serious run at the Open title for the first time since 1985. He lost in the first round in 1986 to Paul Anacone, fell to Lendl in the quarterfinals the next year and was beaten by Mark Woodforde in Round 2 last year.

The loss to Haarhuis, the first qualifier ever to beat McEnroe in a Grand Slam event, was hard for McEnroe to swallow.

"I played like a poor player, to be perfectly honest," McEnroe said. "I just didn't feel that great. Sometimes, you don't feel great and you play well. Sometimes, you play lousy."

HOUSTON — Houston Oilers center Jay Pennison sets the line during a practice session in Houston. The 6-1, 285-pound Pennison has gained a niche on the Oilers offensive line by dedication and hard work.

Oilers center is blue-collar worker on the offensive line

HOUSTON (AP) — Looking across at the Houston Oilers offensive line, opposing defenses see Pro Bowl guards Mike Munchak and Bruce Matthews and powerful tackles Bruce Davis and Dean Steinkuhler.

And the short guy at center is Jay Leslie Pennison, who has been fighting to gain weight since he was an undersized walk-on at Nicholls State and became a four-year starter.

Pennison, a 6-1, 285-pound native of Houma, La., has finally found his niche and is getting respect with the Oilers as the starting center.

"Jay is the blue-collar worker on our line," line coach Kim Helton said. "His work ethic has made him the player he is now. Jay always does what's right and he doesn't shun away from responsibility."

Pennison will be at his regular station Saturday when the Oilers close out the preseason against the Dallas Cowboys in Texas Stadium. Lining up beside his elite teammates has helped make Pennison better, Helton said.

"They set a high standard for each other," Helton said. "There is a kind of peer pressure between them that helps make each man a little better."

Pennison has been getting better since coming out of college as a 255-pound offensive lineman.

He played at 265 in the U.S. Football League in 1985 and kept working at the weights when he came to the Oilers as a free agent in 1986.

"I worked out in the gym six days a week after that," Pennison said. "I knew I had to get my weight up if I was going to compete with the guys in the NFL."

"Every single game you go up against a guy that is 280 to 300 pounds right in your face. And everyone is stunting and trying to confuse you."

Helton appreciates Pennison's versatility in the Oilers' wide open offense.

"We ask Jay to do a lot of things that other centers around the league don't have to do," Helton said. "His work ethic has made

Pokes give vet FB, smurf walking papers

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson could not give 10-year fullback Timmy Newsome a starting job. So he gave the veteran player the next best thing — his walking papers.

In a meeting Wednesday morning with Coach Jimmy Johnson, Newsome requested his release if he could not be a starter.

Cowboys officials tried to trade Newsome but found no interest. So they released him along with rookie Tyrone Thurman, a 5-3, 145-pound wide receiver-punt returner formerly of Texas Tech.

Newsome, who played in the same backfield with Tony Dorsett and later with Herschel Walker, is ranked ninth overall and third among running backs on the Cowboys' career receiving list with 212 catches.

His best rushing season came in 1984 when he carried 66 times for 268 yards.

The development of free agent Broderick Sargent and rookie Daryl Johnston made Newsome expendable.

"They were performing better so we felt it was in Timmy's best interests to give it a shot with another club," Johnson said. "We're set at the fullback position. Timmy would have been 50-50 as far as making the team (if he hadn't requested his release)."

When asked if Newsome could still play in the NFL, Johnson said, "There weren't a lot of people jumping up and down wanting to get a 10-year veteran who was talking about retiring. I think Timmy's got talent and I'll leave it at that."

Newsome's best season came in 1986 when he caught a career-high 48 passes. With 32 receptions last season through the Cowboys' first nine games, he was on pace to better that mark when he was sidelined.

Sargent said Newsome's departure came as a surprise.

"When you lose a veteran guy like that, it hurts," Sargent said. "He really helped me."

Center Tom Rafferty, a 14-year veteran, said he didn't believe Johnson was trying to rid the team of its long-time veterans in his first season since replacing Tom Landry as coach. "I really don't read anything like that into it," Rafferty said.

PETE ROSE
CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose originated an alleged conspiracy to defraud the Internal Revenue Service on a $47,646 parimutuel ticket in 1987, three witnesses said at the trial of his former housemate.

Bruce Battaglia, the oddsmaker at Turfway Park in Florence, Ky., testified in U.S. District Court that he picked the horses for the Pick Six ticket and said the former Cincinnati Reds manager was the owner of the ticket.

Paul G. Janszen testified that Rose conceived the idea to have Thomas P. Gioiosa, who lived with Rose from 1978 to 1983, falsely claim the ticket as his own. He quoted Rose as saying he didn't want the IRS to know about his track winnings. Danita Jo Marcum, Janszen's fiancée, also testified that Rose owned the ticket.

All three witnesses agreed it was Rose's idea to have Gioiosa cash the ticket and claim it for tax purposes. Gioiosa is accused of claiming the winnings because he was in a lower tax bracket than Rose.

OLYMPICS
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Juan Antonio Samaranch was unanimously re-elected president of the International Olympic Committee, then held out an olive branch to seven nations who shunned the 1988 Olympics at Seoul.

Samaranch, a 69-year-old Spaniard whose business and diplomatic skills helped turn the Olympics from a disaster area into one of the biggest successes in sports, was given a second term by acclamation, after the nominations closed with no other candidates at the IOC's 95th Session.

His re-election was never in doubt. In nine years, he steered the IOC from an organization beleaguered by political boycotts and empty pockets into a unified community with millions of dollars in television revenue and respect throughout the world.

PRO BASKETBALL
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — George McCloud, the seventh pick overall in this year's NBA draft, signed a multiyear contract with the Indiana Pacers, the club announced. McCloud becomes the highest of the first-round draft picks to sign an NBA contract. Specific terms of the agreement were not announced.

McCloud played both point and shooting guard as well as small and power forward in four years at Florida State and finished as the school's third leading all-time scorer with 1,574.

BASEBALL
CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs traded pitcher Calvin Schiraldi, outfielder Darrin Jackson and a minor league player to be named later to the San Diego Padres for outfielder Marvell Wynne and infielder Luis Salazar.

Wynne, 29, batted .252 with six home runs and 35 RBIs in 106 games this season. Salazar, 33, was hitting .268 in 95 games with eight homers, including three pinch-hit blasts, and 22 RBIs.

Schiraldi, 27, was 3-6 with four saves and a 3.78 ERA in 54 relief appearances while Jackson, 25, had been used sparingly, batting .229 with one homer and eight RBIs.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Oakland Athletics slugger Jose Canseco agreed to plead no contest to a misdemeanor charge of having a loaded pistol in his car, and will perform 80 hours of community service as his punishment, his lawyer said.

Canseco, whose semi-automatic pistol was found on the floor of his car in April, will make 10 visits to hospital pediatric wards or children's hospitals. He'll also buy tickets to an A's home game next season for 100 underprivileged children, and will provide their transportation to and from the event, his lawyer said.

BOWLING
TEXAS CITY (AP) — Allan Chodor took advantage of a ninth-frame disaster by John Handegard and won the Hammer Senior Open 216-202, his first career PBA title.

Reds whitewash Cards in 13-inning marathon

By The Associated Press
It didn't take any of Whitey Herzog's managerial genius to figure out why the St. Louis Cardinals didn't beat the Cincinnati Reds.

"You can't win if you don't get a run," Herzog said. Cincinnati, held to one hit over 12 innings, snapped a scoreless tie in the 13th on pinch-hitter Dave Collins' RBI single, and the Reds beat the Cardinals 2-0 despite a brilliant pitching performance by Jose DeLeon.

Over 11 innings, DeLeon faced the minimum 33 batters, allowing one hit, striking out eight and walking none.

"DeLeon and Rick Mahler were amazing, and DeLeon can't pitch any better than that," Herzog said.

DeLeon retired Cincinnati's first 10 batters before Luis Quinones' one-out, line-drive single in the fourth. A double play erased Quinones, and DeLeon set down the next 22 batters.

After Quinones' single in the fourth, The Reds did not get another hit until he doubled with one out in the 13th off Todd Worrell, 2-5.

Eric Davis, who was intentionally walked, stopped at second on Collins' RBI single and scored the Reds' second run when Zeile threw wildly on Davis' steal of third.

Rob Dibble, 8-4, pitched two innings and struck out five for the victory. John Franco pitched the 13th for his 29th save.

St. Louis, which stranded 16 baserunners, left the bases loaded in the 10th and 12th innings.

Mahler, who had lost five straight decisions, pitched 10 innings, allowing nine hits.

Astros 8, Cubs 4
Mike Scott pitched a four-hitter for his 18th victory, tying the major-league high, and added a run-scoring single as Houston rebounded to beat Chicago at Wrigley Field. On Tuesday, the Astros blew a 9-0 lead and lost to the Cubs 10-9.

Gerald Young had four hits, three RBIs and scored a run and Rafael Ramirez, who had seven RBIs on Tuesday, added three hits and scored twice.

Scott, 18-7, had failed in four previous attempts to match his career high of 18 victories.

Scott gave up home runs to ST. LOUIS — St. Louis Cardinals third baseman Terry Pendleton goes high in the air for the baseball while Cincinnati Reds Eric Davis slides into third base during the 13th inning Wednesday night.

Dwight Smith in the first inning, Ryne Sandberg in the fourth and a two-run shot to Mark Grace in the ninth. He struck out nine and walked one in his eighth complete game.

Rick Sutcliffe, 13-11, lasted only 1-3 innings and allowed eight hits and five runs.

Expos 5, Padres 1
Dennis Martinez pitched a six-hitter for his 15th victory and visiting Montreal beat San Diego, snapping the Padres' six-game winning streak.

The loss dropped the Padres seven games behind first-place San Francisco in the NL West, while the Expos moved within three games of Chicago in the East.

Martinez, 15-4, struck out eight and walked one for his fourth complete game. Ed Whitson, 15-10, allowed seven hits and three runs in five innings.

Dave Martinez had two hits and drove in two runs for the Expos.

Mets 9, Dodgers 3

Kevin McReynolds hit New York's first grand slam of the season and Sid Fernandez won for the sixth time in his last seven decisions as the Mets beat Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium to complete a three-game sweep.

Fernandez, 10-3, pitched 7-2-3 innings and allowed five hits. Jeff Hamilton hit his 12th homer in the seventh to end the shutout and Mike Marshall added a two-run shot in the eighth, his 11th. Don Aase finished, allowing three hits.

Giants 3, Phillies 2
Kelly Downs won for the first time since April 11 and San Francisco snapped a three-game losing streak by beating Philadelphia at Candlestick Park.

Downs, 3-5, pitched six strong innings to win for the first time in four starts since coming off the disabled list following a shoulder problem. He allowed one run and four hits in six innings before being lifted after Charlie Hayes led off the seventh with a homer.

Abbott fires four-hitter

BY The Associated Press
After his teammates gave up 30 hits and 21 runs to the Boston Red Sox in a doubleheader the night before, California's Jim Abbott gave them nothing but grief.

"There's not too much you can do about that one," Boston manager Joe Morgan said after Abbott pitched a four-hitter to key the Angels' 4-0 victory Wednesday night. "We were hogtied all the way."

The rookie left-hander, born without a right hand, was given for the AL East-leading Orioles and kept them one game ahead of Toronto.

Ballard, 15-6, gave up six hits in seven innings, including a pair of two-run homers by rookie Joey Belle. Gregg Olson pitched the final two innings for his 22nd save.

Blue Jays 2, White Sox 1
Nelson Liriano's two-out, run-scoring single in the sixth lifted the Blue Jays to their eighth win in nine games.

The victory was Toronto's 19th in August, a club record.

Jimmy Key, 10-13, allowed one run on four hits, and Duane Ward pitched the final two innings for his 14th save.

Twins 7, Rangers 3
Kirby Puckett singled home two runs and pinch-hitter John Moses doubled home two more in the eighth inning as the Twins rallied for six runs to defeat the Rangers.

Texas starter Mike Jeffcoat took a 3-1 lead into the inning before the Twins erupted. They did most of the damage off reliever Jeff Russell, who blew a save opportunity for the sixth time in 36 chances.

Puckett, who also doubled in the fourth inning for his 59th multiple-hit game, tied the score 3-3 with his single. Brian Harper followed with a single to score Puckett with the go-ahead run.

Royals 6, Tigers 1
Jim Eisenreich doubled twice and had three hits and Mark Gubicza pitched a four-hitter over seven innings as the Royals handed the Tigers their 11th loss in a row.

Gubicza, 13-10, had a streak of 17 scoreless innings snapped when Detroit scored in the first. He then stopped the Tigers until Terry Leach came on to finish up.

Mariners 7, Brewers 3
Ken Griffey Jr. drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Randy Johnson and Mike Jackson combined on a six-hitter, leading Seattle over Milwaukee.

Griffey hit his 15th homer leading off the second inning against Brewers' starter Jeff Peterek, 0-2, to tie the score 1-1. He later singled home two runs to give the Mariners a 4-2 lead in the top of the third.

U.S. rolls on final day

Associated Press Writer
DUISBURG, West Germany (AP) — It was a golden final day for American athletes in the World University Games.

Coming hot on the heels of the United States' 88-0 victory over the Soviet Union in the basketball final on Tuesday, Wednesday's track and field events capped a string of good performances by Americans in the Games.

The U.S. won three of four relay events and also got a gold-medal performance from world record-holder Roger Kingdom in the 110-meter hurdles as the Games came to an end.

The U.S. and the Soviet Union each finished with nine gold and eight bronze medals. Soviet athletes had 11 silver to nine for the U.S.

Cuba was third with eight gold, seven silver and four bronze medals. Kingdom and world high jump record-holder Javier Sotomayor of Cuba were the stars of the final day of competition.

Kingdom cleared the last hurdle well in front and had his arm raised in triumph before crossing the finish line in 13.26 seconds, well outside the world mark of 12.92 that he set two weeks ago.

"I was very stiff this morning and I was concerned about that," Kingdom said. "I just didn't have enough."

Sotomayor, who said he has had a flareup of the knee difficulties he experienced last month, easily cleared

7 feet, 8 1/4 inches after the competition had fallen out at 7 1/2. Sotomayor, the only jumper to clear 8 feet, failed in three attempts at 7-11 1/4, which would have been a Games' record.

The program wound up with the relays, and strong collection of American sprinters combined to win three golds and a silver in the four races.

The women's 400-meter quartet set a blistering pace and finished in 42.40 seconds, a Games record. The U.S. men won the 400 relay in 38.58.

American women combined to win the 1,600-meter relay in 3:26.48, but Jamaica captured the gold in the men's race. Jamaica was timed in 3:02.58, 17 faster than the United States.

U.S. Open

"I worked myself into being No. 4 in the world. I had beaten Lendl twice and Edberg twice and Becker the whole year. Then to lost a match to a guy I hadn't even seen play before is pretty bad."

It was great for Haarhuis, who had to win three qualifying matches just to get into the tournament.

"I beat Dean Goldfine, Ronnie Bathman — or Batman or whatever. Yeah, Batman. This guy grosses a million over the summer and he still plays the qualifier." Haarhuis said, drawing a huge laugh from his interviewers. "The last round, I beat Ned Caswell."

"I didn't know what to expect. ... He's one of the all-time greats of tennis."

But he was no match for Haarhuis, who answered "I've come from Mars," when asked his background. His best previous showing, the Dutchman claimed, was the "quarterfinals of the nationals in 18s in my country."

He has a lot more to remember

now. As does Sampras, who carried a 15-14 record this year into the match with Wilander.

"I think people will be surprised to see a young, 18-year-old beat Mats," he said. "At first, I didn't think I could beat Mats Wilander myself. I knew I would have to win it because he wasn't going to lose it."

Sampras nearly lost his chance when he double-faulted on match point in the final game.

"I choked, I've got to admit it," he said. "It was nerves for sure. It was a bad double-fault."

But he overcame that critical mistake moments later.

Becker, a three-time Wimbledon champion who rarely does well here, overcame plenty of errors, too.

"The only thing that I was doing well was that I had a very good spirit on the court," the West German said. "I wanted to try for every ball and I guess that is what gave me the match in the end."

That and the net cord.

Center

said. "We have the direct snap (to the running back) and we have rollout blocking patterns that aren't easy to do well. Besides, Jay has to play well every time out because the guy playing behind him (George Yarno) is a mighty tough player also."

Pennison has been the Oilers starting center since Helton came to the Oilers in 1986 and demoted veteran Jim Romano.

"Jay is a totally unselfish player," Coach Jerry Glanville said. "I don't think there will be a problem on Jay getting recognition."

"Since I've been in the league you get rewarded as an individual for what you did two or three years earlier. That's who makes the Pro Bowl."

The Oilers will enter their preseason finale without their top rusher and receiver from last year.

Running back Mike Rozier is still trying to work out a contract with General Manager Mike Holovak and wide receiver Drew Hill is demanding that his 1988 contract be renegotiated.

Rozier is represented by his brother Bill, who thinks a contract can be worked out before the season opener Sept. 10 against Minnesota.

Rozier's demand for a $250,000 signing bonus has caused the impasse. The Oilers have a $25,000 limit on bonuses.

"That's negotiable," Bill Rozier said. "Mike Holovak and I have talked about restructuring the contract differently."

Davis, who strained a muscle in his chest while lifting weights Monday, says he'll be ready for the season opener.

Notre Dame QB has nothing to prove

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Tony Rice has quieted his critics, on the field and in the classroom.

When he first came to Notre Dame, Rice was labeled as a running quarterback who couldn't pass. Last year, he ran and passed the Fighting Irish to the national championship.

Back in 1986, some people felt Rice didn't even belong at Notre Dame because of low test scores that forced him to sit out his freshman year. Since then, Rice has gone to school year-round to keep up with his studies and stay on course for graduation. Next year, he expects to receive a degree in psychology.

"I guess a lot of people were wrong about Tony Rice," he said Wednesday at Giants Stadium, where Notre Dame plays Virginia in the Kickoff Classic tonight.

"First they said I would never make it as a student at Notre Dame. Then they said I would never make it as a quarterback. But when they said those things, it just made me more determined to succeed."

In three years, Rice has gone from question mark to exclamation point. As he enters his final season, the 6-foot-1, 200-pound South Carolina native is being touted as one of the leading contenders for the Heisman Trophy.

Notre Dame has produced seven Heisman winners, more than any other school. The last was Tim Brown in 1987.

RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Notre Dame's quarterback Tony Rice (left) and Virginia's quarterback Shawn Moore, handle a football Wednesday at Giants Stadium as they talk about tonight's game. Notre

It would be a great honor to win it, but it's not something I worry about," Rice said. "I just want to go out and help the team win. Individual awards don't mean anything if the team doesn't do well." Notre Dame is expected to do well this season despite losing seven projected starters or backups in the last month because of injuries, rules violations, poor grades and other problems.

Dame and Virginia will kickoff the collegiate football season in the Kickoff Classic.

"A lot of things have happened to us lately, but I think we can overcome it," Rice said. "We had a team meeting last night and I said, 'No matter what happens, we've got to stick together.'"

Rice emerged as the team leader last season when he passed for 1,176 yards and rushed for 700, more than any of the Notre Dame running backs.

And he played his best against the best.

When Notre Dame met Miami, Southern California and West Virginia, quarterbacks Steve Walsh, Rodney Peete and Major Harris got most of the pregame attention. After those games, Rice was the hot topic.

"He's not a good athlete playing quarterback. He's a good quarterback, period," Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz said. "He can run, he can pass and he can lead."

Just how valuable is Rice? "Let me put it this way," Holtz said. "I don't think there are too many insurance companies who would sell me a policy that would cover his worth to Notre Dame."

If Rice has another banner season, he'll be worth a lot to an NFL team.

"I'm not worried about that now," Rice said. "If I have my day in the pros, I have my day. Right now, I just want to get through my senior year of college."

"I know he's trying to change his image, and I can appreciate that," she said, "but my heart will always belong to the old Donny."

DALLAS (AP) — Stacy Keach, appearing here in "The King and I," is driving against the odds in a loaner program that puts stars in a borrowed Cadillac.
Two of the cars landed in the repair shop and another was stolen.
"Thank goodness no one has been hurt," said Cadillac dealer Al DeSanders, who persists in loaning cars to visiting stars of the Dallas Summer Musicals.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: conductor Seiji Ozawa, comedian Lily Tomlin, country singer Conway Twitty, boxer Rocky Marciano, actress Yvonne De Carlo.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The emphasis today is on being more practical. Reappraise your priorities and obligations. Recycling old projects could increase profits. Meet partner halfway and your relationship will continue to grow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get to work early today and you will accomplish more. Stick to tried-and-true methods; newer ones proposed by others could prove longer on promise than performance. Show more consideration.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If someone appears inclined to argue, find a reason to go elsewhere. With a little ingenuity, you can work things out. The presence of a dear one is sheer delight. Stay home tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can expect your partner to occupy center stage this month. This arrangement should please you both. Follow up employment leads provided by experts. Update your resume before going on interviews.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Adopt a "can do" attitude. Doing your share of the household chores will help restore domestic harmony. Teamwork is to everyone's advantage. Dig into the past to come up with the right answers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Following your instincts now could lead to extraordinary accomplishments. The road ahead will be smoother. Excesses make you uncomfortable. Steer clear of someone who enjoys emotional scenes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You discover something about your partner that you never expected. Now is not the right time to have things out. Voice your artistic ideas. Short business trips can be highly profitable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A legal affair comes to a startling conclusion. The outcome could have a ripple effect on your finances. Start a new savings program. A timely apology helps heal a wound. Be sincere.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Express your sincere thanks to those who have done so much for you. The details on an upcoming meeting may escape you. It is important you get them right. Romance holds new promise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Discuss financial problems with the family. A young person has good ideas; follow through. Let bygones be bygones. A former competitor could become your strongest ally. Listen to constructive suggestions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your ability to influence others will impress those in authority. A promotion or raise is possible. Greater insight comes through a unique experiential scene. Use insider knowledge wisely.

Giving back to community

Maybe it was during the first-grade Christmas play that I began to notice. Mrs. Harrell was the teacher. She selected Morgan Cox to play Santa Claus. She picked me for Mother Goose. (The only other character I remember is Little Miss Muffett, played by Elizabeth Ann Saunders.)

After I recited every nursery rhyme known to children-kind while classmates acted them out (Elizabeth Ann was supposed to scream when a spider sat down beside her, but she was too afraid of the audience to be afraid of the spider) Morgan-Santa was to pass out the candy and gifts to all those little siblings in attendance.

Morgan, as usual, rose to the occasion, even though he was angry at his mom because he thought his suit looked too much like red pajamas. I remember him going all around the classroom, reaching into the candytoy sack and giving gifts to visitors while the rest of us sang Christmas carols. He had been afraid at the beginning of his performance, but when it came to reaching out, Morgan stole the show.

After I came back to Stanton and began to cover civic activities, it seemed that every time I asked who was in charge or who should I talk to about publicity, the answer was always the same: talk to Morgan Cox.

So I always did. And whatever I needed, he provided. A few times he even wrote up the whole press release and/or complete article himself. My only problem was getting hold of Morgan. He was either too busy planning an event, coordinating an event, or cleaning up after an event.

I finally asked him why he was involved in everything, and he said, "When I was growing up, there was always an adult who reached out to me in some way, and I guess I'm giving back to the community by helping out in a lot of activities."

Lester Baker, a city councilman and very community-oriented himself, said, "If there is a project, such as the county fair, the Old Settlers Reunion, the Miss Martin County Pageant, Morgan Cox is going to be there to put it all together."

Danny Fryar, Stanton mayor, and also someone who is usually running here and there trying to coordinate one or two civic events at once, said that Morgan really needed to be commended.

"Cox is very dedicated to Martin County — and that's why he does the things he does, because of that dedication. He does a great job in any activity."

I found out that he doesn't just help out in a lot of community-based organizations, he's involved in a great many other things.

Morgan has been on the Farm Bureau Board for six years, serving two of those years as president. He doesn't stop at local involvement here, though, he has been on various statewide Farm Bureau committees.

He is an active member in the Texas Hereford Association, the Concho Hereford Association and the American Hereford Association.

I asked Morgan what one does as a member of a Hereford association, and he told me "to show and promote Hereford cattle throughout the United States." Thankfully, he didn't roll his eyes at my ignorance.

Morgan was the 1989 Old Settlers Parade chairman, which really doesn't surprise folks who know his mother, JoJon Cox, and his grandmother, Beulah Mae Hall. Beulah Mae has been active in this community almost since its birth. JoJon, following

Grady coaches wild about Wildcats

By STACY PAYNE AND STEVE BELVIN

Leandro Gonzales coached the Grady Wildcats for the first time last year, and took them all the way to bi-district play.

LEANDRO GONZALES

He doesn't appear much older than his players, but he's got more enthusiasm than the whole team put together, and they have a lot.

"Though Dave Campbell picked us to be first in District, it is going to be a challenging year," Gonzales said while watching his team dash to the cold water kegs after a mean two-day practice.

Assistance coach Tommy Terrell, also keeping an eye on the preseason Wildcats, added that "Sands and Borden County will be our biggest challenges."

"Klondike is going to be really tough, too," Gonzales said. "And Sands is out for revenge."

"Yeah, they thought they were going to mop up the ground with us last year," Terrell said. "But we beat them 32-18."

Watching the two coaches watch their team race for the locker room is like observing two children see the ice cream truck head off in the opposite direction.

Neither Gonzales or Terrell want to see the practice end. They've been having too much fun. In fact, every time the last play of the morning was accomplished, one of them would shout, "just one more play!"

And the high-schoolers would give them one more play. And then one more, and then one more — it was also obvious to those watching the practice that the students love the two men that coach them.

"You've got to have excitement, it rubs off on the students," Gonzales said when asked about the enthusiasm and excitement displayed out on the practice field by both coaches and players.

"We have 24 kids," he said. "That creates a challenge for six-man team members because if a kid doesn't do the job, there are 18 left who could take his place. That situation tends to create some added enthusiasm."

Terrell added that most of the young men playing for Grady are seniors that were 0-10 as freshmen.

"They really got trampled a lot back then, and they have worked very hard to get where they are," Terrell said. "We're very proud of them."

"Experience says a lot," Gon-

"It also sounds like we are expecting a lot, and we are, but I think our kids are going to rise to the level of our expectations."

"We are going to be more aggressive on defense this year and more flexible on offense."

Both coaches begin to talk about the six-man type of offense and defense plays. One starts a sentence, and the other finishes. The conversation overlaps, and as it does, their enthusiasm for the sport builds again.

Both Terrell and Gonzales played high school football. Gonzales, in fact, was a starter for Grady High School only a few years back. Terrell played baseball in college and with the NBC League in Lubbock and Amarillo.

Gonzales teaches Government and Health, and also serves the District as the high school track coach. Terrell acts as guidance counselor for GHS and is father of one of the returning seniors, Scott, who is a wide receiver and, according to Gonzales, a prime candidate for all-state this year.

"Scott caught 69 passes last year for 922 yards," Gonzales said. "I'm sure he will have a great season." Two quarterback backs will be vying for the starting position.

"Len Garza is a junior, and has a good arm, and good arm mechanics," Gonzales said. "Scott Glaze has excellent agility. He reads defenses well, and, therefore

School is just around the corner

Members of the Stanton Herald staff remember what it was like that last week of summer, the week you squeezed everything you hadn't done all summer until this week into the week your mother dragged you to a clothing store and warned you not to give her any lip, just try on the clothes and hush.

We decided to find out if things had really changed all that much, and they, of course, had not. We realized that girls still think about clothes and seeing their friends, and guys don't even want to think about it, unless they're in the first sport of the season, football.

Also, the big kids thought about such future things as what classes will be the hardest, who is going to be in their classrooms, what's in as far as fashion goes and what's out as far as habits go.

Smoking is out. Drugs are definitely out. Straight hair is out. Mini-skirts will not be tolerated (even after school hours). Having lots of boyfriends/girlfriends is out — seems that even high schoolers want commitment these days — no indiscriminate 'meet-you-at-my-locker' romances and then you don't see them again until after school.

This is we-will-eat-in-the-cafeteria-together-every-day-and-feed-each-other-lime-jello type of relationship. And that's another thing, high school kids do not go steady anymore, they have relationships just like people who read self-help books do.

Even the guys are saying strange things these days. One said he wanted to get married and have children in just a few years. When asked why, it was because he didn't want to be an old father, even though that was in these days. Usually, at least in this writer's experience, high school guys will laugh in your face if you ask them a "serious" question. One high school boy even asked me for a job, he said he would take any kind of pay and would work hard for it. The Puritan work ethic is back in — for a few.

Some things never change, though. For example, Chad Smith, an upcoming third-grader, said that school "is the pits!" He did say he wanted to know who his teacher was going to be, though. We sometimes forget how important the teacher is, especially if it is one you heard stories about the year before.

Aimee Pardue

There are other things that will most likely never change. Both Kari Ruth and Ashley Graves are going to be freshmen this year at SHS. They both said they are eager to view the larger selection of guys.

Cross Country season begins

By CARLA WELCH
Staff Writer

If you are out and around early in the morning and you happen to see 15 girls running or race-walking, it is because cross country season has started.

You will probably notice Coach Wilma Stirl riding beside them on her bicycle with words of encouragement.

Coach Stirl is in her seventh year of coaching. Besides cross country, she also coaches junior varsity girls' basketball, and is assistant coach to the girls' varsity basketball team. She teaches geometry and a basic skills class.

Stirl said that off-season workouts include "anything that works on endurance and helps the students stay active. Aerobics, three or four times a week, is good."

Stirl said she really enjoys working with young people.

"I like anything where I work with kids," she said. "Coaches are the most influential people in a young person's life. They help you learn how to accept life's ups and downs, and how to pick up the pieces and go on."

"A lot of kids want instant gratification. Sports help them set and achieve long-range goals by teaching them the responsibility and discipline it takes."

While some parents and friends may want to come out and view the races, there are a few things to consider.

"It depends on the course, itself, to see how hard it may be to observe the running," Stirl said. "Some meets are held in parks and golf courses. They are marked off in one and two mile routes."

Girls run two miles, and boys run three miles in the long distance races. Cross country meets are large, according to Stirl. "There may be as many as 100 to 150 runners on the starting line in each of four divisions."

Stirl said that off-season workouts include "anything that works on endurance and helps the students stay active. Aerobics, three or four times a week, is good."

In addition to coaching and being sports-minded, Coach Stirl has been involved with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes since 1976.

"Being involved in FCA helps you, as a coach, to see just how influential you are," she said. "It helps you to see how important it is to be a good Christian example in the lives of those you coach."

The principles of FCA show athletes that success is not always measured in one's win/loss record, but by doing your best with the talent God gives you. It helps student athletes to accept defeats and setbacks as learning experiences."

Stirl said that the local chapter of FCA has an average of 15 members.

Around town

There will be a Grady Independent School District community reception in the Grady School Cafeteria at 7 p.m., Aug. 31.

All parents, teachers, students and community members are invited to attend.

The GHS Booster Club and Spirit Club will be sponsoring the Honor the Wildcats sandwich supper on Friday, Sept. 1, at 6:30 p.m. following the scrimmage against Buena Vista.

Lynn Smith, GHS teacher and club spokesperson, encourages all interested supporters to come and "catch the fever!"

The Lee family will have their reunion for family and friends of the family at the Martin County Community Center, Sept. 9, 1989.

The reunion will honor the late John Wesley and Ruthie Lee, Sr., parents of Calvin W. Lee, Sr., of Stanton.

The Martin County Rifle Club entered the Five Star State Shooting Sports Competition at the 4 H Center in Lake Brownwood, Saturday, August 26.

Coaches and adults attending were Gary Reid, Doyle and Clarise Hale, Theodore and Vickie Wells and Neil McMorries.

Martin County 4-Hers who attended were Casey Reid, junior; Matt Hale, sub junior; Dusty Wells, sub junior; Wesley Hardin, sub junior; Scott Peel, sub junior; Jacob Reid, sub junior and Kyle McMorries, sub junior. All entered the silhouette division, and all but two entered the light rifle competition.

In the silhouette competition, Kyle McMorries entered the "sudden death" shoot-off for fourth and fifth place. He lost by one silhouette, and placed fifth.

Wesley Hardin found himself in a "sudden death" match for ninth and 10th place. He won the shoot-off and placed ninth.

In light rifle competition, Casey Reid placed fourth in state in the junior division, while Wesley Hardin placed sixth in state in the sub junior division.

All shooters did an excellent job for their first time at competition and their first year in silhouette. Gary Reid, club sponsor said "All shooters were commended for their safe handling of guns on range. Plans are being made to go to two shooting events next summer."

Nancy Holt, Bike-a-thon coordinator for Martin County, asked residents to join the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels for Life" Bike-a-thon slated for Saturday, September 16.

"Barring rain, the event will begin at 10 a.m.," she said. "The southside of the courthouse is our tentative starting place."

Holt said that the ride this year honors Ellen Marie, a 50ld tumor patient at St. Jude.

calls audibles well." Gonzales added that Gilbert Cortez is a running back who he thinks will be a district contender.

"Danny Valle, Mike McKaskle and Chad Wells are all strong and aggressive returners," he said. "They all read offenses very well, and are all district contenders."

"Most of these kids go back and forth between offense and defense — they work hard, they see a lot more playing time than guys on 11-man teams."

While the two coaches are cautiously optimistic, one gets the impression that they are already wondering who they'll be playing for the state title and the Stanton Herald staff hopes to be at that game.

What a difference experience makes. Three seasons ago this year's group of Grady Wildcats were just a timid group of gangly freshmen. With three years of varsity football under their belts, the Wildcats are the team to beat in District 6-A Six Man.

Second year coach Leandro Gonzales returns 14 experienced lettermen; a team that experienced postseason play last year. Last season the Wildcats went 1-3 in non-district play, and finished it up by going 4-1 in league play, capturing second place behind Klondike.

In bi-district play, Grady trailed eventual state champion Fort Hancock 12-8 at the half. But the bottom fell out in the second half and Fort Hancock romped, 62-16.

"That was a positive experience for us," said Gonzales of his team's venture into the state playoffs. "It was Grady's first time in the playoffs in six years, and it was the first time Grady has made the playoffs outright — without having to win a coin flip."

Gonzales makes sure his Wildcats aren't going to rest on their preseason laurels. "Just because they're picking us to win... we don't hold that high. Last year Loop was picked to win district, they had two key players injured and they finished third. We're going to work hard to make the playoffs again."

"This group of seniors went 0-10 as freshmen and 2-8 as sophomores. So they have gained success both mentally and physically. It really came into form last year when we came from behind in three games to win."

"That's the hardest ingredient to achieve, to come from behind and win. It makes you have a sense of accomplishment. We're starting to learn the concept of teamwork."

The Grady offense is in good hands. The main objective will be to replace all-district and all-area running back Julian Valle.

The leading candidates are 5-6, 132-pound junior Baldomar Cortez, 5-11, 157-pound senior Tim Stone, and Bryan Payne, a 5-10, 150-pound senior.

"It will be hard to replace Julian," admitted Gonzales. "He was such a devoted kid, he was very disciplined. All three of these guys will make a strong push for the job."

Two people that will definitely carry the wide-open Grady offense are seniors Scott Glaze (6-0, 147) and wide receiver Scott Terrell (5-11, 155). Both are all-district and all-area players. Last season Glaze passed for 1,702 yards and Terrell caught 72 passes for 791 yards.

"We look to these guys for leadership," said coach Gonzales of the duo.

Gonzales said Glaze will have a ample backup in junior Lynn Garza. "Lynn has an excellent arm," said Gonzales.

The Wildcats have two experienced centers coming back also. Gilbert Cortez started last year as a freshman, and David White was there to relieve him. Gonzales said that Victor Garza, up from the JV, is also a candidate.

Another returner is tight end Danny Valle, a 5-11, 132-pounder.

Defensively, Danny Valle will be switched from end to linebacker. Last year he led the team in tackles with 77. "He's (Valle) our most dependable and aggressive defensive player," said Gonzales.

Chad Wells, a 5-9, 155-pound senior, is back to fill the other linebacker spot. He was the second leading tackler last season. "Chad gets people fired up," said Gonzales. "He's a real go-getter; a very emotional player."

Stone and Gilbert Cortez will probably man the end positions, and Terrell is back at safety.

Grady has two capable noseguards in Baldomar Cortez and 5-11, 220-pound Matt Edwards.

"Matt is our biggest boy. He amazes me how quick and fast he is," said Gonzales.

Gonzales knows his team is a contender, and ranks Sands and Borden County right up there with them.

"With the people we've got coming back, if they give that 110 percent, and if we coaches play our cards right — we'll be fighting for the title."

Stirl

at its meetings, and recently sent six to the National Conference this past summer in Colorado.

"FCA gives athletes a support group and encourages each other when social pressures tempt them," she said.

"God is the headcoach of my teams and my goal is to treat my teams with patience and understanding in handling situations as Christ would have."

District competition includes Eldorado, Ozona, Iraan and McCamey.

The Stanton High School Cross Country racing schedule is as follows:

Sept. 16 Odessa

Sept. 23 San Angelo
Sept. 30 Big Spring
Oct. 7 Lubbock

Oct. 23 District (Here)
Nov. 4 Regionals
Nov. 11 State

The District meet will be held in Stanton. Should the SHS team qualify, they will go to Lubbock for Regionals. The State meet will be held in Georgetown.

Let's set the record straight. I am not quitting my job as County Extension Agent in Martin County. Glascock County hired a full time Home Economist and Martin County put me on full time in Martin County. Prior to this I have, as have my predecessors, divided my time between the two counties. As of July 10, I have been working in Martin County only.

I've been asked by Martin County residents in the past, "Why are you always going to Glascock County, St. Lawrence & Garden City?" The answer was that I was a dual County Agent. I had as many responsibilities down there as I do here.

This situation has changed and Martin County now has my undivided attention.

Partners for Parenting

Kathryn's korner

Several Martin County residents are planning to participate in the Partners for Parenting training to be held October 24 in Odessa.

After returning from this training, we will be trying to involve other interested organizations and groups in parenting education in our community. With our fast paced society, it is easy not to take time to interact with children. Do we really listen? Do we hear what our children are saying? Do we share what is important to us with them? Do we laugh with them?

Does your child know you? Do you know him? As your organization makes plans for 1989-1990, plan to get involved in parent education.

The 4-H Foods project will start in September. Leaders are now being recruited to work with these groups. If you are interested in working with a group, please call the Extension Office (756-3316). Cooking and learning about good nutrition is fun with a small group of kids. Don't miss out on this opportunity.

Now that the memory of Jessica McClure's rescue from an abandoned water well hole is fading perhaps it's a good time to talk about just how dangerous these uncapped abandoned water wells really are.

An 8" diameter casing seems small to us as adults, but to a smallchild it can be cavernous, always ready to swallow them up and plunge them down into what must be a truly terrifying situation. Not only does rescue come (if it comes at all) at a tremendous cost of capitol and community resources, but such a child would carry the terrifying memory of his or her ordeal for the rest of his life.

These holes also provide a constant avenue for all sorts of con-

Mark's mappings

Everything from small animals falling in, chemical containers being thrown down there, surface runoff flowing in and even situations where sewer hoses are run down them; all done by well meaning but misinformed people.

If you're land contains any abandoned unplugged or uncapped water wells please avoid these dangers and tend to the problem. If you need help please call our office at (915) 756-2136. We will see to it that you get the necessary information to tend to the problem. You will be performing a public service to your neighbors as well as complying with a State Law that directs all abandoned wells to be either plugged or capped and you will be closing the door on another potential pollution source. Anyway you look at it, it's the right thing to do.

What You Don't Know Can Hurt You.

But not if you take a few minutes to learn about electrical safety around your home or business.

Here are a few safety tips worth remembering.

Overhead.
Never fly a kite, or raise an antenna or place a ladder where it can come in contact with a power line. Touching power lines with any object can result in serious injury or even death. Stay clear of all overhead power lines.

Underground.
Know before you dig. Some neighborhoods have underground power lines. If you don't know whether you have underground power lines, or if you need to know their location, call TU Electric.

Out and around.
Pad mounted transformers, large metal boxes that are usually green or cream colored, are safe when they are closed and locked. However, if one is opened or damaged, it can be deadly. Call TU Electric immediately to report the situation and warn others to stay away until the repairman arrives.

Be safe around electricity.
Being aware of the location of power lines can save your life or the life of a loved one. So take time now, before you start your next fix-up project, to learn the location of power lines near your home or business. Because what you know about power lines can make the difference between being safe or being sorry.

DON'T LET A POWER LINE BE THE END OF THE LINE.

Morgan was a member of the Old Settlers Reunion committee for 12 years before he served as its chairman, meaning that the day Morgan graduated from high school, he became a CIA, a community-involved-adult. He has been part of the Junior Livestock Show for 13 years, serving as steer superintendent several times. Earlier this month, Morgan served as chairman of the Martin County fair for the third time. Probably Morgan's only gripe is having had to spend a lot of time and effort on the Miss Martin County pageants for the past six years. Must be eye strain or something like that. When the JayCees were around, Morgan was there. When somebody said it was time to restore the Convent, Morgan said he'd serve as vice president of the foundation. He's involved in 4-H and FFA as a sponsor. He's been seen helping out during the Special Olympics. "When I was growing up, Martin County adults reached out to me. I'm just returning the favor."

Shame, shame!

To the editor:
I would like to thank the Stanton Evening Lions Club for sponsoring the Martin County Fair. Also, the volunteers who worked with the various events are to be commended for their fine work. All of these people put in innumerable hours of HARD work. And now, SHAME, SHAME, SHAME on those of you talented people, you gardeners, homemakers, crafts-people, farmers who did not participate! I have heard comments like, "Well, I went down there but they did not have much there." The commentator had NOTHING down there. I hope that next year a greater number of Martin County citizens will participate so we can have an even better fair in 1990. CARLENE MURRAY

'Lela Shankle was friend to all'

By HOPE SCHUELKE
For The Herald

Lela Pinkerton Shankle was born into a poor family just after the turn of the century in 1907, second in a family of eight. She had three brothers and four sisters. The oldest of the four younger girls was ten years younger than Lela.

Much was expected of the older ones in large families, and Lela's life certainly wasn't easy. She quit school and went to work housekeeping on a ranch for awhile, then came home to help out in the family cafe. In the afternoons when business was slow, she would sew by hand, making clothes for her younger sisters. The fabric came from a friend in the dry goods store who traded it for hamburgers.

I was born when Lela was 18, so in many ways, she was like a second mother to us younger kids.

In 1930, at age 23, Sis married and moved to Texon, a little oil camp down by Big Lake, to the oilfields. She didn't forget us though. Seems somehow that she always managed to send us a dress each on special occasions, birthdays, graduations and proms. She even crocheted long dresses for two sisters.

The Depression was on and Dad was out of work. He'd been injured in a job accident. In those days there was no job insurance. We had to break up housekeeping and go to live with relatives.

Mom and my sister, Judy, and I went to Lela's to live. When Dad got a job, I stayed on and went to school for two years. I helped out with the house and children while Sis helped out in the family service station and "took in" sewing.

One thing Lela always stressed to us was "do and be the best that you can in anything you do." She never doubted that we would, and I think her expectations always made me try real hard.

Lela's marriage failed and in 1945, at age 38, she came to Stanton, bringing one daughter and two sons to raise. She had very few personal things and was untrained but immediately went to work as a maid in Zimmerman's hotel.

When Zimmerman's closed soon after, she washed dishes and cooked in the Ross cafe. She also cooked and catered meals for the Odd-fellow Lodge meetings. The children helped out in any way they could.

The old hospital in downtown

Stanton re-opened after the war in 1946. Lela went to work there as a maid and an aid. With the help of family and friends she rented an apartment upstairs where Dr. Bristow had his office. My sister, Ellen, and I also lived there in an apartment. Our husbands were overseas. My infant daughter, Karen, was born while we lived there.

When the new hospital was opened in 1950, Lela went to work there, first in the laundry and then to the kitchen, then as an aide. Dr. Nell Sanders had convinced Lela to study on her own and helped her as much as she could.

She had found her "niche" in life. She learned nursing by practice and in 1952 was one of the first LVNs to receive her license by special dispensation without attending school. She was very proud of that.

In 1954 the Stanton hospital closed and Lela went to Midland to Western Clinic Hospital. It closed when Midland Memorial was opened. Lela moved on to Memorial where she worked until she retired at age 66 in 1973.

Nursing was her life. She worked the late shifts, holidays and weekends so that nurses with families could be at home with them. Anytime she heard of anyone needing help she was always willing to help out. She attended all the seminars and meetings that might help her do her work better.

During her years at Memorial, she filled practically all nursing spots. She liked working with new mothers and babies very much, but also liked emergency room work. She even delivered one baby when the doctor was slow to appear. She always had a smile, a pat on the shoulder, a hand to hold to ease the fear and pain of her patients.

Over the years Lela met with many adversities. She had almost every kind of surgery possible. I saw her go to work with a walking cast two days after breaking an ankle because "they were short-handed at the hospital."

She just wouldn't let life get her down. After moving back to Stanton in retirement, she worked at the local nursing home and performed some private duty work.

When her eyesight began to fail, she gave up one of her biggest pleasures — she couldn't drive anymore.

Lela was a friend to every one she met, to her co-workers, she was always dependable and helpful. She was the daughter who locked up her home and moved in with her mother to care for her when her mind began to fail.

She was my big sister and I shall miss her. She passed away in July, 1989, and left behind many precious memories.

Ruth sticks to wishbone

By STEVE BELVIN
For The Herald

Last year SHS Coach Dale Ruth changed offenses. It was the first time in six years Ruth had changed from his offensive game plan of the wishbone.

It took him only a few weeks to realize the move wasn't good. It was back to the wishbone and the buffs went on to win District, advancing to zone pay in the state playoffs.

This year Ruth will stick to his wishbone and let the pieces fall where they may. Last year's 9-3 record is indicative that his team responds to the wishbone. The Buffalos were beaten by a good Eastland team 20-6 in zone play.

"Being in the playoffs has gotten the kids excited," Ruth said. "We had a good spring training and all of them worked out in the summer. We don't have a whole lot of talent, but we've got an excellent attitude."

The Buffs lost 20 seniors last year and return only six lettermen. Ruth puts a lot of trust in returning quarterback Randy Nevarrez, a 5-7, 160-pound senior. Last year when the Buffs went back to the wishbone, Nevarrez became the starter.

In Stanton's 24-12 Bi-District win over Winters, Nevarrez scored on a 72-yard touchdown run. He led all rushers with 84 yards. He's also a good passer, completing 11 of 16 passes for two touchdowns last season.

The fullback will be Allan Prough, a 5-9, 180-pound sophomore who Ruth calls "a good tough kid."

As usual the Buffs will have speed at the halfback positions. At one halfback will be Gary Don Thompson, a 5-11, 170-pound senior. Thompson is the fastest on the team, running a 4.65 40-yard dash. At the other halfback is senior Jesse Montez, a 5-7, 155-pounder who has a 4.7 speed.

One drawback is that all three running backs have no varsity experience. "We always seem to come up with some speed," Ruth said. "The only thing is they're a little small and they don't have any experience."

At split end will be Kelly Inman, who will step in for departed brother, Anthony Inman, who was an all-district and all-league performer. Anthony is attending the University of Arkansas on a track scholarship.

Kelly Inman is a 5-10, 160-pound senior. Also vying for the receiver job is 5-7, 150-pound Junior, Allan Carby. Ruth said that both have decent hands.

Tight end Brian Cain, a 5-9, 160-pounder "is a good blocker with good hands," Ruth said.

Two returners are back on the offensive line. David Mendez, a 5-10, 190-pound senior, will be moved from guard to tackler, and Christ Carder, a 6-1, 215-pounder also returns as tackle. Ruth did say that Carder could see some action at tight end though.

"Our line could be as big as the one we had last year, but there's very little experience," Ruth said. "They'll have to learn to pick up the blocking schemes."

At one guard position is senior Tony Moses, 5-11, 200 pounds. Last year Moses was an All-District soccer-style kicker. The other guard is sophomore Jesse Garcia at 5-11, 210 pounds. He's the strongest on the team, bench-pressing 300 pounds. The other tackle spot will be decided by 5-9, 170-pound Chris Carrol and 5-9, 175-pound Edward Armendarez.

Offensively, Mendez, and All-District and All-Area selection, is back to head the crew at middle linebacker.

"David is quite a hitter," Ruth said. "He doesn't have that much size, but he's quite aggressive. He took on a leader's role since his sophomore year, and he wants to see that winning tradition keep going."

Another returning starter is Cain at an outside linebacker. The other linebacker spot will be decided between Prough and Thompson.

Upfront, the two tackles will be Garcia and Carder. They will be flanked by ends Fryar, Lance Hall and Moses.

The other returning starter lies in the secondary. Nevarrez, who played an outside linebacker last year, will be moved to safety. Junior Mike Graham will play the other safety spot.

"We've got a lot of seniors this year who played on junior varsity last year. They got good playing experience and that's really going to help. Once the season gets started, we get our offense going and our defense comes around, we can at least finish in the top three."

icipating in a variety of extracurricular activities," one of them said, and apparently was speaking for both.

Jana Heidleberg spoke for many people when she said, "I look forward to having the authority of a senior." We all remember that wish we had during the first three years of high school.

Joey Foley, soon-to-be seventh grader, put it clearly, "I wish school were starting and I wish it weren't." We couldn't have said it better here at the office.

Carla Welch, top investigative reporter for the Herald finally caught up with a group of cheerleaders hiding out at the pizza place next door.

Angie Bundas said she was very excited about being a cheerleader. "I am looking forward to a great football season, too," she said.

"I am glad to finally be an upperclassman," Heather Newman said. "I get to see everyone soon and I am excited about being a cheerleader because it is my first year to be one."

Aime Pardue is going to be a sophomore next week. "I am excited about cheerleading and basketball, but I dread school and the homework."

Melissa Franklin is, as are the others, excited about being a cheerleader. "There's a whole new squad this year and that will make it lots of fun as well as a challenge. "I am also excited about becoming a junior, because that gets me closer to being a senior," she said. Stacy Tollison, a freshman-to-be, was more matter-of-fact about the whole thing. "High school is going to be different than junior high school."

Jolynn Graves said she is ready for the high school experience, but not ready for school, itself. She will also be entering the freshman class.

Stacy Long is a senior. "I am sad that it will be my last year, but I'm excited about getting closer to my career."

Reney Padilla can't wait until school starts, he said, because "it is boring at home."

Sam Ellis said he could use a couple of more weeks before school begins, and Gerald Ruiz said he simply cannot wait to be back at school with all of his friends.

Jamie Williamson said "I really don't mind school starting, but I just wish it would be a while longer."

Perhaps Cory Williams said it the way most of us would really rather have had it: "I wish there were three months of school and nine months of summer."

Nestor's notes

By NESTOR HERNANDEZ

Before announcing the 1990 Feed Grain Program in September, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will review foreign and domestic supply and demand for feed grains, and consider public comments received by September 5. Ideas and recommendations from farmers and other interested persons can help determine the direction of the program, said Keith Bjerke, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The Department seeks public comments on the percentage reduction level, land diversion provision, marketing loan provisions, target prices and other provisions necessary to carry out the Feed Grain Program.

"The public is increasingly called upon to help establish food and agricultural policy because it is in the best interest of all farmers and other concerned citizens to play a role in developing the programs that directly affect them," Mr. Bjerke said.

He encourages feed grain producers to suggest a level to be established under an acreage reduction program, express their opinions on proposed and established target prices, state whether they prefer an optional land diversion program and whether an inventory reduction program should be in effect if a marketing loan provision is implemented.

Because 1990 beginning corn stocks are expected to be more than 2 billion bushels, Mr. Bjerke said the acreage reduction level can not exceed 12.5 percent. The minimum corn target price is $2.75 per bushel. The proposed target price per bushel for grain sorghum is $2.61, oats, $1.45 and barley, $2.36 if designated by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Other program Features open for public comment include whether malting barley should be exempt from an acreage reduction program, whether loans and purchases should be available when cutting corn for silage, and whether combined or separate feed grain crop acreage bases should be used for purposes of implementing acreage reduction and paid land diversion payments.

Could this week perhaps be the calm before the storm? The Stanton I.S.D. teachers returned to work on Monday to prepare for the new year. By the time Tuesday morning rolls around the teachers will have everything in place and all plans made for the first week.

Parents, Mr. White, the elementary principal, would like to remind you of the new dismissal time for K-3. Kindergarten through third grade will be dismissing at 2:45 this year, not at 2:30. Fourth and fifth grade will dismiss at 3:15, the usual time.

Mr. McGregor would also like to remind the middle school students of a couple of changes. Seventh and eighth graders are to meet on the east side by the practice field in the mornings. Sixth graders will be meeting on the south end. He asks that on Tuesday morning everyone report to the cafeteria when the bell rings. Students will attend a brief assembly before reporting to home rooms. Students, please remember to pick up your schedules at the designated time. The student council will have the student store open during registration.

The high school football team have completed one scrimmage and have another one scheduled for Friday. That game will be played in Wink. If you can be there c'mom out and support the team.

Tuesday night, Sept. 5, is "Meet the Buffs" night. According to Steve Stallings, the Booster Club will begin feeding around 6:00 p.m. This is an activity well worth attending. Please plan to be there to "Meet the Buffs" and help support the team.

Teachers, I would like to make you aware that this is your article. If you are doing anything interesting, just let me know. Also, if you are doing anything unusual or out of the ordinary, let me know.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Stanton will hold a public hearing on the Budget for Fiscal year 1989-1990 at 7:00 p.m., Sept. 11, 1989 in the Council Chamber at City Hall, 6278 August 31, 1989.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The COMMISSIONERS COURT OF MARTIN COUNTY will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1989 by 6.94 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on Friday, September 8, 1989, at 10:00 A.M. in the Commissioners Courtroom of the Martin County Courthouse.

FOR the proposal: James Biggs, Don Tollison, Ronnie Deatherage, E. D. Holcomb and Bob Deavenport

AGAINST the proposal: None

PRESENT and not voting: None

ABSENT: None

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the effective tax rate that the unit published on August 17, 1989. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

Table with 2 columns: LAST YEAR, THIS YEAR. Rows include Average home value, General exemptions available, Average taxable value, Tax rate, and Tax.

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $ 5.99 or 7.6 percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by .02 percent per $100 of taxable value or 6 percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.
