WASHINGTON - President Bush holds a four-month-old unidentified baby as he visited a ward at D.C. General Hospital in Washington for babies abandoned by drug addicted mothers. Syphilis cases rise

AUSTIN — A large increase in the number of syphilis cases reported in Texas has raised concern among state health officials, who fear a similar rise in such sexually transmitted diseases as AIDS.

There were 1,809 cases of infectious syphilis in the first six months of 1989, the Texas Department of Health said Thursday. That is a 29.9 percent increase over the number of cases reported in the same period last year.

The increase causes particular concern because syphilis is transmitted through sexual intercourse, said Joe Pair, director of the sexually transmitted diseases control division at the department.

"Perhaps some people, knowing that syphilis is treatable and curable, are taking dangerous risks. They may be ignoring the fact that, whereas the disease they contracted was syphilis, it might just as easily have been AIDS," Pair said.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is a fatal disorder in the body's immune system, leaving people who have it susceptible to many infections and cancers.

AIDS can be transmitted through sexual contact, blood transfusions and the sharing of contaminated hypodermic needles or syringes by drug abusers

Lost revenues

AUSTIN (AP) - Austin has lost at least $73,000 in parking fine revenues this year because hundreds of parking meters were not lawfully installed by past city councils.

In March, the Austin American-Statesman reported that virtually every parking meter in downtown Austin was illegitimate because of a technicality: They were installed by resolution of the city council rather than by ordinance.

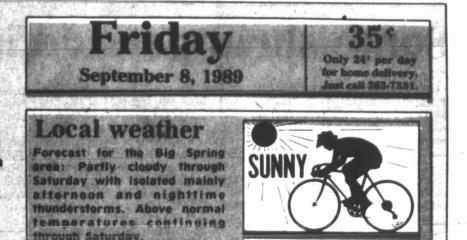

Since then, hundreds of people have demanded dismissal of thousands of parking tickets, the newspaper reported today. 'This has just been incredible," said Marsha Gray, an employee in the City Clerk's office who has been processing citizens' requests for paperwork to void the citations. "I've worked overtime and even come in on the weekends to keep up with requests.' Municipal Court employee Angela Barba estimated that since March, 4,866 parking tickets - or $72,990 worth of potential fines - have been dismissed.

C-City board OKs minority school plan

By BRADLEY WORRELL Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY - School board elections in this Mitchell County town could take place in January after attorneys for the school district and LULAC recently single-member voting districts. The agreement between attorneys for the school district and Colorado City League of United Latin American Citizens will now go to the district judge for his review, to the U.S. Justice Department for their approval and then be cleared through the Texas Election Codes, said Jim Ramsey, school superintendent. The entire process should take a little more than three reached an agreement to create months, he said.

Asked what the chances are the justice department will approve the school board-LULAC settlement in its current terms, Ramsey replied, "Excellent, I have no knowledge of the justice depart- all seven school board trustee posiment ever rejecting a settlement where both parties agreed.'

Attorneys for LULAC filed suit in January in U.S. District Court in Abilene, charging that the current method of at-large voting discriminates against minorities. The federal judge in the case resolved.

tions will be up for election at once, probably in January. In May three of those positions chosen by lot would go up for election again, Ramsey said.

The school district will actually have 10 "mini elections" in a short time, Ramsey said. "I'm kind of suspended school elections in frustrated by this," he added. "It's March until the matter could be not practical. It (requires) a tremendous amount of effort by the Ramsey said the suit has been an "anchor on the necks of the administration" and said he worries the suit may have hurt the overall effectiveness of the school district. Ramsey also noted the school district will have to pay a $12,500 bill for the LULAC attorneys and the cost for implementing the changes in the voting system.

"If they would have just agreed to it it would have been a lot less. ● LULAC page 2-A

No action taken in seduction lawsuit

HERALD STAFF REPORT

BIG SPRING - A lawsuit against a priest at a local parish who faces allegations of using his influence as a clergyman to seduce a then-married woman remains on the court docket, but no action has been taken since the case was originally filed in May, said James Gregg, 118th District Court judge.

In a case Gregg previously called unusual because of its failure to name the parties involved, an anonymous local divorced couple filed suit against the Catholic Diocese of San Angelo and Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church in Big Spring where the priest pastored, charging the institutions failed to instruct the priest in the proper religious and ethical codes.

The priest is referred to in the suit only as "X.

The suit charges the priest "inflicted himself on those he had a . . . spiritual relationship with," which led to the couple's divorce. The two were identified in the suit as "A" and "B."

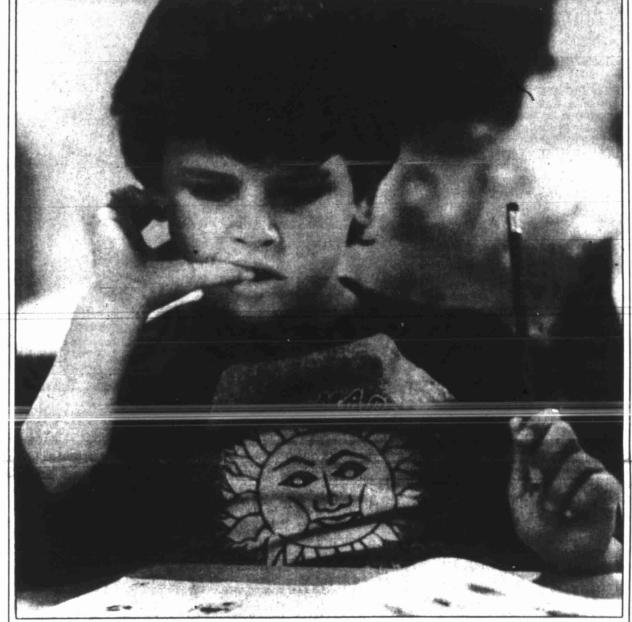

The suit specifically charges the priest of having sex with the woman while she was under heavy sedation at a local hospital and on a separate occassion when the priest convinced the woman to rent a motel room at an out-of-town location.

The suit also charges the priest with other attempts to have sex with the woman and with having a liaison with a cocaine addict.

San Angelo Bishop Michael Pfiefer could not be reached for comment today, but said previously the church was investigating the allegations. The priest in question is still ordained, he said at the time, stressing the charges are unproven.

Attorney Louis Fonte, legal representative for the diocese, said Thursday there are "no new developments" to report in the four-month-old case.

Gregg said if no action is taken in a case within a year he typically takes action to dismiss a case.

Child care turf battle heats up

By MATT YANCEY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - House Democrats are rekindling a turf battle over who will control a massive expansion of federal subsidies to help parents pay for child

On a voice vote Thursday, the House Ways and Means Committee rejected a competing version written by the Education and Labor Committee that would have established a new program of direct subsidies for child care.

Instead, the tax law writers on the Ways and Means panel want to provide the bulk of the new aid indirectly by increasing existing tax credits for low-income families with children.

Their measure also would increase direct subsidies by $200 million a year in 1990 and 1991 and by $400 million thereafter, but through an expansion of an existing entitlements program for the poor

By using existing entitlements rather than establishing a new program, proponents say they will be able to protect child care from future budget cuts.

But it also would give the 37 members of the Ways and Means Committee and its chairman, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., rather than the 34 members of the Education and Labor panel and its chairman, Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., control over the bulk of the program.

With the legislation a key priority for members of both parties, the chief Democratic sponsors of the competing versions said they hoped to reach a compromise and avoid a politically damaging fight on the House floor.

"We're not that far apart; we want to avoid Democrats fighting Democrats," said Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y. chief author of the Ways and Means version.

Because of its reliance primarily on tax cuts for poor families with children, the Ways and Means version is more agreeable to Republicans and the Bush administration.

In June, the Senate approved a shotgun marriage of the two approaches totaling about $13 billion over the next five years, including $11 billion in new tax credits for poor families.

Attorney says cereal ads mislead consumers

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — The Texas Attorney General's office sued the Quaker Oats Co. Thursday, saying the No. seller of hot cereal has misled consumers in ads that claim its product can help reduce the risk of heart disease.

"We are in the middle of an oat brán craze in this country that was primarily started and prompted by Quaker in order to sell its products," Attorney General Jim Mattox said at a news conference.

'Consumers have been duped. Quaker's claims are largely not true," he said.

But spokesmen for Chicagobased Quaker Oats defended their ads and said they may seek legal action against the attorney general's office

'We expect to prevail in this litigation," said Luther C. McKinney, senior vice president of law and corporate affairs for Quaker defended this case, we are considering taking action against the Texas attorney general's office if we believe our products have been damaged by the attorney general's inflammatory statements,' McKinney said.

In the lawsuit, filed on behalf of the Texas Department of Health in a Dallas state district court, the state blasts Quaker Oats' ads as "replete with exaggerations, halftruths, and misinformation.

One of those ads reads, "Studies say that just two ounces of Quaker Oats a day, along with a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, can help lower your cholesterol almost 10 percent. Other studies say that's enough to reduce your risk of heart attack by nearly 20 percent.

But the state claims Quaker's own tests showed that only a 3 percent reduction in risk could be realized if oatmeal was added to a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. And that reduction applied only to women if they ate 25 percent more

Jerry Sansom, executive director of Organized Fishermen of Florida said Thursday he thought compliance with the TEDs rule would be better among Florida shrimpers than those in the western Gulf of Mexico.

The Commerce Department on Tuesday reinstated the TEDs rule under a court order to protect the turtles under the Endangered Species Act.

Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher temporarily blocked the TEDs requirement after shrimpers along the Gulf Coast blockaded ports July 22-23 to protest excluder regulations. Mosbacher allowed shrimpers instead to limit their trawling times tion with shrimpers, and that's not to 105 minutes, with the idea that most turtles wouldn't drown in that time, a method found to be ineffective.

Another local service is providing emotional support and small items such as toothbrushes and toothpaste for Veterans Administration Hospital patients. Rickey explained it as, "doing a few nice things for them.'

First aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation classes are also sponsored by the local office, she said. Fall classes are being scheduled.

This year's budget for the Howard-Glasscock counties chapter is $20,555, Rickey said. United Way of Big Spring has pledged $9,064 out of the $212,000 they hope to collect during their fund drive Sept. 6-Oct. 31.

Other funds come from sources such as fees for water safety courses, which net about $2,500 yearly, and an annual chile sale which brings in about $600 a year, Rickey said.

About $500 is expected to be raised through a mailout campaign and membership fees may bring in another $450. "Our goal is to sell 450 (memberships) this year in Big Spring," she said. "It costs $1 a year to join.

More than $6,000 of this year's budget is expected to be funded by individual and foundation donations. "From time to time we get donations from businesses and individuals," Rickey said. "It might be in memory of someone or in the honor of someone.

In addition, Rickey said, "We are applying to several foundations for funding but one never knows."

Asked if they will be able to get their whole budget funded this year, she said, "That's our hope, our goal.

 ${\bf AUSTIN}\;({\bf AP})-{\bf A}\;{\bf small}\;{\bf col}$ ony of bats has taken up residence in the cracks of the 101-year-old state capitol and authorities are concerned about the "smell problem" but others say the flying rodents will draw

"What a great tourist attraction," said Mark Shapiro, an Austin bat-watcher who spotted the bats at the Statehouse two weeks ago.

"This is the first time I've ever heard of them roosting at the Capitol," he said.

At dusk on recent days, several hundred of the Mexican freetail bats swarmed from the cracks in the stonework on the Capitol's north side and from holes in the dome's sheet-metal exterior.

Shapiro and Gary Graham, associate science director at Bat Conservation International in Austin, said the bats probably split off from the 750,000-member colony living under the Congress Avenue bridge, about one-half mile south of the Capitol.

The bats will probably migrate to Mexico for the winter, Graham said.

Allen McCree, architect of the Capitol, hopes Graham is right. "Bats will probably be less damaging than pigeons have been, but if they stay very long, I'm afraid there'll be a smell problem," McCree said.

"Bats got into the attic of the old Travis County Courthouse years ago, and the smell got so bad that they eventually had to tear off the original mansard roof. They never got rid of that smell," he said.

Graham said if the bats become a nuisance they can be encouraged to leave by plugging up the holes in the Capitol while they are out at night eating insects.

Meanwhile, McCree said, the bats could provide a service. "Maybe we can have more concerts on the Capitol grounds. Bats are great at controlling mosquitoes.

FORT WORTH (AP) Animal and health authorities tried today to determine what caused hundreds of bats to descend on downtown Fort Worth in broad daylight

Scores of the bats were dying as they covered streets and sidewalks just before evening rush hour Wednesday.

"I have never seen bats on the sidewalk at 4 o'clock in the afternoon before," said Chris Farkas, who estimated there were between 50 and 100 bats on the ground outside his restaurant.

Jeff Derosa of the Humane Society of North Texas found another 100 bats on a sidewalk nearby and said at least 1,000 were hanging from the eaves of a building

Another Humane Society official, Lynn Buffington, said today no one was sure whether the bats had been poisoned or were suffering from heat stroke.

"My concern was that we got this call at 4:15 yesterday and most of the employees in these downtown buildings would be coming out and there would be these tiny little things on the ground," Ms. Buffington said. 'I was concerned about a health problem.'

Bats become disoriented in daylight, but if they are not too sick they probably could regroup after nightfall, said Dudley Brown, assistant director of the Fort Worth Zoo

House-Senate panel agrees on $225 million for SSC

WASHINGTON — The Superconducting Super Collider cleared its last major hurdle Thursday when members of a special House-Senate conference committee agreed to budget $225 million this year to begin work on the massive $4.4 billion atom smasher.

Working out the differences between the House and Senate versions of the Energy Department budget, the conference panel agreed to the Senate's recommendation of $225 million for the project - $25 million more than the House initially recommended.

"This was a signal that Congress wants to commit itself to this project and get work underway," said Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Texas, and the only Texan on the conference committee.

In fact, the SSC was not even a topic of discussion at the conference meeting Thursday as House and Senate members argued over other details in the $18.7 billion budget package that will pay for Energy Department and Army Corps of Engineer projects.

The additional $25 million will pay for initial tunneling work on the 53-mile-long underground atom smasher. The appropriation also includes $90 million for other construction at the SSC site near Wax- he said ahachie. Ground-breaking is scheduled for Oct. 1.

The House and Senate are expected to vote on the conference committee report sometime next week, but those final reviews are largely routine votes.

Chapman credited the state's congressional delegation, Texas' SSC task force, and the lobbying by an association of 100 universities with quieting critics of the high energy physics project.

'Last February, I only had two colleagues in my subcommittee who would vote for the SSC, but now the project has solid support,"

The conference committee, however, drafted language in the bill calling for close monitoring of the SSC construction budget. Chapman said that language was added because of concerns the $4.4 billion laboratory could eventually cost much more by the time it's completed in 1996. The cost estimate is

"But the Energy Department has assured us they can build the SSC on time and on budget. That language in the bill doesn't worry me," he said.

Critics have claimed the SSC could cost as much as $9 billion to build. Texas officials have already committed $1 billion in state money to the project.

The Bush administration originally requested $250 million to begin work on the SSC, but the House trimmed that proposal. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, persuaded the Senate to include an extra $25 million for tunneling work when that body approved its budget package earlier this year.

Chapman said the tunneling will not actually begin until next year, but lawmakers were willing to make that additional financial commitment to the project.

Extortionist sentenced

GALVESTON (AP) — A Texas City man who attempted to extort $10,000 from the family of Mark Kilroy, who was killed by a drug cult in Matamoros, Mexico, was sentenced to 70 years in prison.

Robert George Miller, 25, one of five people charged in the extortion plot, pleaded guilty to theft stemming from the Kilroy case and two unrelated burglary charges, Tim Weatherly, an assistant Galveston County district attorney, said Wednesday

Miller will be eligible for parole in six years, Weatherly said.

Kilroy, a University of Texas student from the Galveston County town of Santa Fe, disappeared last March while on a spring break outing in Matamoros. He was found slain on a ranch near the border city on April 11. Investigators said he was the sacrificial victim of a drug

During the weeks of Kilroy's disappearance, Miller, who was in the Galveston County Jail on burglary charges, and another inmate telephoned Kilroy's parents and said they could arrange his return for $10,000, police said.

At one point, officers said the inmates threatened to cut off Kilroy's fingers and mail them to the family if police arrested or followed people who would pick up the ransom money.

Although Kilroy's mother made two trips in April to meet with alleged accomplices to the inmates, no money was exchanged. No connection was found between the alleged conspirators and the drug smugglers accused of abducting and killing Kilroy.

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." - Voltaire

Herald opinion

China counts on a fickle West

China's vengeful gerontocracy has learned — to its relief, no doubt — what South Africa's white minority regime discovered a few years ago. That is, Western outrage over human rights abuses is of extremely limited duration. It usually sputters out almost as soon as television's restless eye roves elsewhere. Once that happens, ruthless regimes can go about their business relatively unhindered by protest from abroad.

According to Amnesty International, the London-based human-rights organization, that is exactly what has happened in Beijing. After the Tiananmen massacre in June, Amnesty charges, the Chinese government made a deliberate decision to carry out secret executions, but also to publicize certain death sentences to cow the Amnesty says it has received reports of a directive known as Document No. 3 — approved by the Communist Party's central committee that calls for executing those 'counterrevolutionaries' who had committed the "most serious crimes." The "number of executed and imprisoned people is not to be published," the directive states, but certain death sentences are to be published "in order to make examples.'

Dozens of executions have in fact been acknowledged; it's quite likely that many more people have been put to death in secret. Thousands of people remain in detention Amnesty said it also has received reports that beatings, torture and humiliation are commonplace, and in some instances death has resulted.

Amnesty estimates that at least 1,300 people, most of them civilians, were killed by security forces in early June. China claims that only about 200 "counterrevolutionaries" were killed in June and that only 4,000 are in detention. None are political prisoners, government spokesmen insist.

The Amnesty report says otherwise and should be taken seriously, particularly by those in Washington who advocate relaxing sanctions against Beijing. After the June massacre, the Bush administration halted arms sales and other military exchanges and suspended high-level contacts. The administration also has urged international lending organizations to delay providing new credit to the Beijing government.

Sanctions should remain in place — and not merely as an expression of moral outrage. As columnist James Hoagland suggested, tough sanctions against Beijing might serve as a warning to any hard-liners in the Soviet Union contemplating a "Tiananmen Square" in the Balties or in Eastern Europe. They need to know "that repression would exact a cost," Hoagland wrote.

A U.N. human-rights panel approved a mildly worded resolution Aug. 31 expressing concern "about the events which took place in China and about their consequences in the field of human rights." The resolution is welcome, despite its milguetoast language.

Much more useful, however, would be continued tough sanctions from China's Western trading partners. We do have leverage, after all — and a sense of right and wrong.

The politics of waging a war on drugs

BY WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON - In President Bush's renewed war on drugs, there's no political argument about the enemy, the objective or even the weapons — but partisan skirmishes already are flaring over priorities, price and the way to pay

Stripped to essentials, there really is no Republican way to combat the drug menace and no Democratic way. The argument between the parties, which means between the White House and Congress, is over how fast and how

And it also is over new taxes. Bush says no; the Democrats say the cost of the drug war means at least maybe.

*Political infighting about the war on drugs probably was inevitable. It is ranked atop the current list of voter concerns, it figured in the last campaign, and it may be the common denominator issue in next year's congressional elections

Bush saw it coming. "But those who judge our strategy only by its price tag simply don't understand the problem," he said in his Tuesday night address to the nation. "Let's face it, we've all seen in the past that money alone won't solve some of our toughest problems.

The Bush strategy points to a guns and butter sort of a war, although the president said that there would be hard times and high costs ahead. He said he wants to add $2.2 billion to the war on drugs. In budget terms, all but $716 million already is included in proposals the administration has sent to Congress. The White House would offset that by cutting other programs, one at the Pentagon, the rest on the domestic agenda.

"We can pay for this fight against drugs without raising taxes or adding to the budget deficit,' Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, who delivered the Democrats' televised response, said the Bush plan would wage a limited war, on the cheap. "We don't oppose the president's plan," said Biden, who as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee wields legislative power over major portions of it. "All we want to do is strengthen it.

While the president asked support and commitment of a united, angry America, he did not spell out costs in terms of sacrifice. That war," he said. word turned up in a public opinion In his televised response, Biden poll conducted as part of the proposed sharp spending increases

House Speaker Thomas Foley said the drug war eventually will lead to increasing pressure for a tax increase. Even Rep. Robert H. Michel, the Republican leader, said there might have to be another look at financing for the program after a vear.

That flowed into the debate over the budget, the deficit and the taxes Bush ruled out in every speech of his campaign for the presidency. That continuing struggle may embroil facets of the drug program just as it threatened to snarl the legislation bailing out the shaken savings and loan system.

Bush said Congress should offer leadership and bipartisan support to the strategy it asked the new president to prepare in the first place. "And our citizens deserve cooperation, not competition; a national effort, not a partisan bidding

Tears in their beers

By LEWIS GRIZZARD Get this:

According to a wire story I read the other day, a University of Minnesota researcher has told the American Anthropological Association that, after a 10-year study, he has determined that country music will make you drink

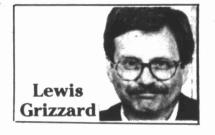

What was your first clue, Dick Tracy? The researcher, James Schaefer, told the anthropologists that he and a group of associates studied a bar in Missoula, Mont., and supported it by investigating 65 similar bars in the Minneapolis

"No doubt about it," said Mr. Schaefer, "country and western music can be a prescription for trouble among people with little self-control.

Want another flash? Mr. Schaefer said that country lyrics sad songs about love lost, hard times and drinking — were the main cause of the listeners' faster consumption of alcohol, and he even specified which country singers are most likely to push a listener into ordering another

and Waylon Jennings. It took 10 years to come to those conclusions? Where did this guy hang out before he decided to study country music bars, the Christian Science Reading Room? What did he expect to find while studying patrons of a country music bar in Missoula? That when somebody played Willie Nelson singing 'Yesterday's Wine," they were going to switch to iced tea? Did he expect some cowboy who just rode in on a broken heart and punched up Hank Williams and Hank Jr. doing

"I've Got Tears in My Beers for Cryin' Over You'' to sit at the bar until closing time nursing a bottle of Seven-Up?

Country music titles alone should have tipped off the researchers and saved them a lot of time developing their conclusions

A lab rat could figure out Jerry Lee Lewis's "What Made Milwaukee Famous Has Made a Fool Out of Me" is a drinking song. And what about Willie's "Whisky River," and "I Gotta Get Drunk, But I Sure Do Hate It"? And there's even a country song titled, "I'm Gonna Hire a Wino to Decorate Our Home," and another called "Pop-a-Top Again," and 'Set 'em Up Joe and Play 'Walkin' the Floor" and George Jones's haunting, "If Drinkin' Don't Kill Me, Her Memory Will probably pronounce it, too. The problem with too many people in the research field is they research things that are too obvious. Tell me something I don't know — like does listening to loud rock music lead to larger pimples on teenagers' faces, or why rap music doesn't appeal to white Presbyterians. Meanwhile, gimme another beer, Sarah, and play anything by George Jones.

And I almost forgot Merle Haggard's "Think, I'll Just Sit Here and Drink," although he doesn't say "drink." He says "drank," which is how people in Missoula

Ice Cream announced it will not use BST milk until it has a full FDA approval. The hormone has been in limited use in research for six years, and the milk from those research herds is sold without any special labeling. FDA approval rests in part on the studies done by chemical companies that make BST. They give their studies to the FDA, which keeps them under wraps. A source inside the FDA told our reporter Tim Warner that the review process for approving BST has been less than stellar.

We obtained copies of the confidential studies done by the three BST manufacturers — Monsanto Agricultural Co., American Cyanamid and Elanco (a joint venture of Dow Chemical, Upjohn and Eli Lilly). Their public relations campaign to sell BST to farmers says the hormone poses no threat to humans or cows. But some of their studies show that a small number of cows injected with BST lost weight, suffered lower fertility rates or anemia or came down with mastitis (inflamation of the mammary researchers didn't count the BST cows that got mastitis, because they didn't think it had anything to do with BST. Some studies found large fluctuations in the milk fat and protein of BST milk.

Dr. Samuel Epstein, of the University of Illinois School of Public Health, did his own study of BST and didn't like what he saw. Epstein, who has long been concerned about the FDA approval process, told us, "The chemical industry has a long, distinguished track record of manipulation, suppression, distortion and destruction of data submitted to the FDA, regardless of possible health ramifications."

Epstein faults the FDA and the chemical industry for inadequate research on the effects of BST in humans. Among the possibilities Epstein is concerned about are the potential for premature growth in infants, abnormal growth of infant sexual organs and a greater risk of breast cancer. Monsanto and American Cyanamid scientists published a point by point refutation of Epstein's concerns.

Dr. David Kronfeld, a veterinarian at Virginia Polytechnical Institute, told us the FDA should take Epstein's warnings seriously before it allows any more BST milk on the market. Kronfeld claims he was not allowed to work on Monsanto's BST study, because he was overly concerned about the effects on cows. A Monsanto spokesman told us Kronfeld has "a major axe to grind" because he was left out of the research.

The chemical companies all glands). In some cases, Monsanto say, for the record, that genetically engineered BST is close enough to natural hormones to be safe. They cite studies done on human dwarfs in the '50s and on lab rats, but those studies used natural growth hormones, not man-made BST.

panies is not only American use of BST but millions of dollars in worldwide sales to countries that are more likely to buy it if it has FDA approval. The irony of BST is that while the chemical companies are pushing for quick approval of a hormone that increases milk production, the U.S. government is paying dairy farmers to produce less milk and is buying surplus dairy products to keep prices up.

STANDING UP TO ASSAD -Other Arab nations could stop the carnage in Lebanon if it had the courage to stand up to the intimidating president of Syria, Hafez al-Assad. Saudi Arabia has been subsidizing Syria with grants totaling $12 billion over the past 10 years. Yet the Saudis have been unwilling to confront Assad over his brutal war against Lebanese Christians. The efforts of the Arab League have failed too. The Soviets, arms suppliers to Syria, could also bring pressure on the bully Assad, but they have been reluctant to offend him. Even President Bush handles Assad with kid gloves.

MINI-EDITORIAL - A biotechnology company in California has come up with a genetically altered tomato. That will come as a surprise to those who thought the tomatoes in the grocery store were already genetically altered. Au contraire. They are merely picked green and sold when they are a bland pink ball of mush. The new genetically altered tomato is far superior. It won't turn mushy after time. That means you can soon buy a bland rock. Ain't progress grand?

Measles cases on the rise

ATLANTA (AP) - More measles cases have been reported in the United States already this year than in any since 1980, as a decline in the childhood disease has come to an abrupt halt.

The national Centers for Disease Control, in its weekly report Thursday, said 10,115 cases of measles had been reported through last week. That's nearly five times the 2,170 cases reported at the same time last year and is the highest total

Federal health officials coincidentally issued their final measles report for 1988 on Thursday, showing that the disease

Austria has a policy of giving asylum to all political refugees. About 6,000 East Germans have fled to West Germany, taking advantage of Hungary's decision in May to remove border fortifications with Austria. Hungary has been seeking closer ties with the West as it reforms its Communist political and economic system. Another 6,000 East Germans, many of them people vacationing in Hungary, flooded refugee camps in recent weeks to take advantage of a one-time sanctioned migration apparently tacitly agreed to by Hungary.

The prospective exodus has worsened tensions between Hungary and East Germany. which has spurned the liberal reforms embraced to varying degrees in the Soviet Union, Poland and Hungary.

Vatican-Soviet meeting likely

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has written to Pope John Paul II to express his interest in meeting the pontiff for a full review of Vatican-Soviet relations, a Vatican official said today.

In Moscow, Soviet sources said Gorbachev is expected to visit Italy on Nov. 25.

A meeting between Gorbachev and the Polish-born pope has been viewed as likely during the Soviet leader's stop in Italy, but there had been no confirmation by either side.

Such a meeting would be of historic proportions, the first between the head of a Soviet Communist Party that disparages religion and the leader of the world's 850 million Roman Catholics.

Chief topics for a Gorbachevpope meeting, the Vatican official said, would be the Baltic states of Latvia and Lithuania, where there are large numbers of Roman Catholics, and the Ukrainian Catholic Church, which is a major stumbling block to improved Vatican-Moscow ties.

Public outrage halts military rule

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) -President Virgilio Barco was dealt a setback in his war on drugs when public outrage forced him to back off from imposing military rule on two cities believed to be strongholds of cocaine traffickers.

Barco replaced the mayors of the cities with military officers on Thursday but rescinded the orders in the face of charges the action was unconstitutional and anti-democratic.

Under emergency measures imposed by Barco, authorities have seized millions of dollars in real estate and other property believed to belong to the drug lords. The president also revived Colombia's extradition treaty with the United States, where many of the leading traffickers face charges.

The first extradition took place on Wednesday when Eduardo Martinez Romero, an economist alleged to be the money launderer for the Medellin drug cartel, was flown to Atlanta. He will be tried on charges of laundering $27 million worth of illicit cocaine

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington said Thursday that U.S. attorneys are preparing extradition requests for the 12 most-wanted Colombian drug traffickers.

The drug lords have said they would rather die in Colombia than inside American prisons and have vowed to kill 10 judges for every drug suspect extradited.

Mother Teresa hospitalized

CALCUTTA, India (AP) -Mother Teresa, the Nobel Prizewinning Roman Catholic nun known for her work with the world's poor, suffered a heart attack this morning,

The 79-year-old nun's condition had stabilized and was improving, however, said Dr. A. Bardhan.

Mother Teresa became ill Sunday night but insisted on attending Mass on Monday. Her condition continued to deteriorate and on Tuesday she was admitted to the intensive car unit at Woodlands Hospital, suffering a high fever and an irregular heart Born in Skopje, Yugoslavia,

Mother Teresa became known for her work with the poor in Calcutta, an eastern Indian city. In 1950, she founded the Missionaries of Charity, an order of 3,000 nuns

Recycling efforts cause newsprint glut ago, Boy Scout troops could expect to earn $1,000 by holding a drive to pick up old newspapers and taking them to recycling

Now, "you're lucky if you break even," says Eric Duhnke, who heads a Scout district in Milwaukee County

The problem for the Scouts is that they are not alone in the recycling business. States and local communities are promoting mandatory and voluntary initiatives, and the result is a newspaper glut that has pushed down prices and forced people to rethink their plans for disposing of yesterday's news.

"Before, people were selling it for more than $25 a ton," he said. "Now in some instances, people are paying to have someone take it away.

The glut appeared first on the East Coast, where several areas have mandatory recycling laws. But the trouble has spread to the Midwest, where communities increasingly have joined the recycling bandwagon.

For example, the Indianapolis Clean City Committee on Aug. 1 stopped accepting newspapers at its recycling centers around the

"We'd be getting $35 a ton for it and it went down to $5," said Beth Bugbee, executive director of the non-profit group. "It wouldn't nearly cover the costs."

The American Paper Institute says that the collection and recycling of old newspapers reached 4.5 million tons in 1988, up 31 percent from 1983. The total amount recovered for recycling represents about a third of the newsprint used in the United newsprint, experts say, demand must be increased.

Several states are considering plans to require newspapers to use more recycled newsprint.

But James Burke, president of Garden State Paper Co. of Garfield, N.J., which has been making recycled newsprint since 1961, said it is unrealistic to expect used paper to become the sole source of new newsprint.

With each recycling, fibers are lost from the pulp, he said. 'There's always going to have to be a mixture of virgin and

Iraqis seek garden solution

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — President Saddam Hussein has offered $1.5 million to any Iraqi who can solve a 3,000-year-old puzzle — how King Nebuchadnezzar managed to water the fabled Hanging Gardens of Babylon.

Archaeologists are divided over whether the gardens, said to have graced terraces hundreds of feet above the palm-fringed Euphrates existed. They reputedly were built by Nebuchadnezzar in the 6th cenury B.C. to enchant his homesick queen, the Median princess mytis.

The ancient Greeks considered he gardens one of the seven vonders of the world, but Vebuchadnezzar made no mention f them in his detailed writings, nd no conclusive evidence they xisted has been uncovered.

But the Iraqi government, which rebuilding the city where Vebuchadnezzar ruled ancient Mesopotamia from 604 B.C. to 562 3.C., believes they did exist based on findings by German arhaeologists who first excavated Babylon more than 75 years ago.

Hussein, who is known as Saddam in Iraq and the Arab world, announced a $1.5 million prize for whomever comes up with the most plausible watering system, and 750,000 to the runner-up.

The winning system likely will be used if the Iraqis decide to go ahead and reconstruct the hanging gardens as part of their effort to restore the crumbled city in what is ow central Iraq.

No modern technology can be mployed in the watering system, only the primitive tools available in 6th century B.C. Mesopotamia.

Hussein said the contest is for Iraqis only and will be judged by Iraqi archaeologists, but Iraqi empassies around the world reportedy have been flooded with telephone calls, cables and letters from oreigners eager to participate.

Archaeologists have been exeavating Babylon for decades but never have been able to figure out now the Mesopotamians, without modern pumping systems, watered the gardens that reputedly were on terraces high above the Euphrates

Legend says the terraced gardens had seven levels, and the most likely method of watering them was a type of system that hauled buckets up from the Euphrates.

Some scientists believe the gardens may have been as high as 365 feet above the ground.

Officials said scores of Iraqi engineers and architects have deas on how the Babylonians did t, but they refuse to give details.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported last month that Leonid Khasenevich, an engineer from Minsk, claimed to have solved the mystery and wanted to take part in the Baghdad contest.

"A hitherto unstudied hydraulics phenomenon, which I discovered in 1982, helped me solve this puzzle,' he was quoted as saying.

Khasenevich, a hydrologist for 30 years, said that after experimenting with models, "I came to the conclusion that parts of the construction may be unearthed on the Hill of Babel" near the biblical tower where God punished the presumptious children of Abraham by making them speak in different toungues

He refused to give details of his findings, but noted: "I believe the technology of water inlets was primitive and did not require large mechanisms, which would have spoiled the beauty of the famous gardens.

Robert Koldewey and Walter Andrae, the German archaeologists who excavated Babylon before World War I, believed that underground chambers beneath what were once the towering walls of Nebuchadnezzar's palace were the foundations of the hanging gardens.

Georges Roux of France, who spent years in Iraq, wrote in his book "Ancient Iraq," a respected general history of the country, that in the cellars beneath the palace, excavators found "an unusual well with three shafts, side by side, probably used in connection with a chain-pump.

"It is extremely tempting to see in this construction the understructure of the roof gardens, the famous Hanging Gardens of

Babylon. Other experts believe the chambers were for storage and that the gardens may have been west of the palace in an unexcavated area

Cattle drive offers romance, convenience

ROUNDUP, Mont. (AP) - The Great Montana Centennial Cattle Drive began Monday in the golden light of sunrise as the lead longhorns crested a ridge in single file and then all 2,700 animals formed an undulating, bawling river of beef.

The six-day, 60-mile journey from this small community on the high plains of eastern Montana to the stockyards of Billings is the largest spectacle in Montana's year-long celebration of its birthday as a state.

The cattle, herded by a band of 105 drovers, was joined south of here by a contingent of about 300 covered wagons and 3,000 riders prepared to spend the next week on the trail.

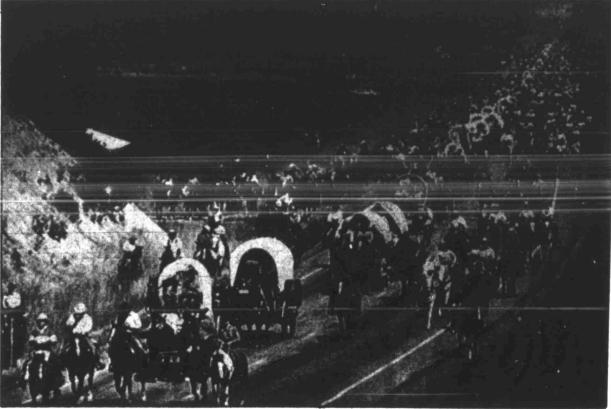

Shortly before daybreak, the cattle were headed up east of town along the Musselshell River where they had been bedded down overnight.

As the sun broke over the horizon and lightened the clear sky, the first longhorns trotted over the hill. Steam jetted from the nostrils of cows and horses in the crisp air and the cattle kicked up a haze of dust that drifted through the morning light.
Whistling and whooping drovers in bright yellow slickers and waving lassos and bullwhips, urged the complaining, reluctant herd southward into a small canyon and between fields of brilliant green alfalfa.

From there, the cattle were moved onto open range.

At late morning, cheers greeted the sight of huge longhorns being herded through Roundup, leading

Study: You eat more in a crowd

ATLANTA (AP) — A roomful of diners is probably a roomful of people eating more than they would if they were alone, according to research indicating that people on diets might do well to decline invitations to eat out.

"Eating in a social setting increases the duration of the meal You're eating at the same speed but you're eating longer," said John de Castro, who reported on his work in August's American Journal of Clinical Nutrition.

De Castro, a Georgia State University psychologist, hired 43 adults in the Atlanta area to keep seven-day diaries of their how much they ate, what they ate, where they ate it and how they felt physically.

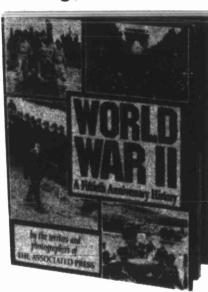

People tend to eat 44 percent more food when eating with others than when eating alone, and the bigger the group the bigger the individual's appetite. In addition, the food eaten in social settings was often higher in fat and that eaten when alone was more healthful, he

Contrary to de Castro's expectations, he did not find many instances of people stuffing themselves out of the watchful gaze of others. "I had expected to see people become closet eaters. That wasn't the case," he said.

The three-year study of nutritional habits is continuing at Georgia State, with more people to be hired to keep diaries.

The Global Conflict That Changed the World

On the morning of Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler's armies blitzed across the Polish frontier to start the most destructive war in history

By the time World War II ended six years later, an estimated 50 million people had perished, millions more were homeless and large parts of the world lay in ruins.

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of that conflict, The Associated Press, the world's oldest and largest news agency, has produced a book that this newspaper is proud to offer to its readers. It is called "World War II: A 50th Anniversary History.' The book, produced by the writers, editors and photographers of AP, will contain more than 300 pages with more than 100,000 words of text and some 400 memorable war photos culled from Associated Press archives. The book focuses primarily on America's participation in the events that changed our lives —before, during and after U.S. entry into the war following the Japanese attack on Pearl

The book will sell to our readers for only $14.95 — considerably below what the volume will be selling for later through book clubs and other retail outlets.

The volume already has been designated as an Alternate Selection by the Literary Guild Book Club and as a selection of the Military Book Club.

Technology

NASA-developed tilt rotor technology can provide efficient medium and short-haul air transportation. By taking off and landing vertically, like a helicopter, such aircraft do not require large airport runways. This would relieve congestion at major airports by diverting crafts to downtown "vertiports.

Missions

Among the primary missions of the Federal Aviation Administration are: to regulate air commerce to promote its development and safety while fulfilling the requirements of national defense; to control the use of navigable airspace and regulate both civil and militay operations for safety and efficiency.

one thing that unnerved Maria Harding at the recent New Orleans-based National Flutists' Association, it was the carpeting.

"When I heard it was in a ballroom, I panicked. I thought, 'Oh, great. It will be a huge carpeted room that will just swallow up flute sounds," the 18-year-old Lubbock resident recalled.

But as Harding finished the third note of her piece, she looked up from her music and saw the judges, who had been listening to competitors for more than two hours, straightening up in their chairs.

"She started with three long notes and there was a ripple. It was visible, audible. That's what is known as capturing your audience from the beginning," said Margaret Redcay, Harding's teacher.

It was the same effect a "tall, skinny girl with an awful flute" had on Mrs. Redcay five years ago.

'She came on a recommendation from David Matthew, the organist at First United Methodist Church. He said, 'She's one of the most talented people I know.' I get so many calls I want to hear them before I accept them. She played with the most immediate, unusual talent," Mrs. Redcay said.

"After a year, I realized I was faced with an awesome responsibility. When people are talented like she is, they develop themselves. You just keep them from doing the wrong thing. The problem is getting yourself out of the way," she said.

Harding, who beat the other seven finalists at the New Orleans competition to be named Best Young Flutist in the United States is now enrolled in the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y. She'll be among 110 freshmen and one of about 20 flutists among the school's undergraduate degree in applied music. Half of her year's costs — nearly $20,000 - will be covered by scholarships. She also just agreed to serve as a Yamaha flute spokeswoman. Her service may include a television video with several young flutists, she said.

Sometimes, Harding said, she wonders how she can make a career out of music. Then she'll start to play — three hours a day, on the average - and she can't imagine how she couldn't try.

She is a brunette whose nearly 6-foot frame captures the same willowy effect as her music. Her wide eyes grow even wider when she recalls meeting the former New York Philharmonic musician Julius Baker, who told her she was "(Music is) a labor of love. It's like I feed off of (the audiences') energy and it becomes a natural high. Afterward, I really shake,

'(Musicians are) kind of lonely sometimes, but we find each other. To be able to express music accurately, you have to have really deep emotions. Musicians relate well to each other," she said.

That seems to be the case in Miss Harding's family, at least. Though she has played the flute for only six years — including a stint in the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra her mother, Carla Beardmore Harding, said she was weaned on music.

Mrs. Harding and her husband, Bruce, a saxophone player who is now in the oil field service business, used to perform in dance bands when the family lived in Omaha, Neb. And Harding's 13-year-old brother, Christian, is a concert cellist who also composes

Harding said she wants to expand her repertoire of instruments to include the guitar and piano. She's excited about learning new theories. But mostly, she's looking forward to meeting other serious musicians. "People who are like me, who won't look at me funny," she said.

While it's the season opener for the Steers, the Hobbs Eagles will be trying to snap a 15-game losing streak, dating back to 1987. The Big Spring offense can move the ball; in two scrimmages it has exhibited the potential to move it well in the air, but on the ground, it's still lacking.

The Big Spring defense will be trying to prove it can hold opponents to less than 300 yards per game.

The Eagles are hungry, their program is slowly gaining steam, indicated by last weeks' 16-14 last-minute loss to Artesia. A vocal home crowd will spur them on.

This game will be closer than most think, but in the end, it will be Big Spring's passing attack that will prevail. BIG SPRING 28, Hobbs 20

Stanton (0-0) at Seagraves (0-0).

The Buffalos are fresh off a state play-off year. The Seagraves Eagles just missed the playoffs last year. Stanton returns six starters, including talented option quarterback

Randy Navarez. Seagraves returns 10 starters, including running back Steven Henderson, who almost gained 1,000 yards last year, and receiver Michael Cavazos, who averaged 31 yards per catch last season.

The Eagles will win this one. SEAGRAVES 21, STANTON 8

Colorado City (0-0) at Alpine (0-0).

The Wolves were hit hard by graduation, but still return 14 lettermen from last year's state play-off team. C-City may struggle offensively, but coach Tom Ramsey said the defense could very well be better than last year's, which allowed a mere eight points per game.

The Alpine Bucks return almost everybody from last year's 2-8 team. The Bucks have had a rough time of it the last four years but seem on the verge of turning things around. But it won't be enough to beat the Wolves.

COLORADO CITY 20, ALPINE 6

Both of these teams return a host of starters and lettermen. The Seminole Indians went 5-5 last year and are gunning for a play-off ting to challange for a play-off spot.

This one will be a real head-knocker, but give it to Seminole because of more experience.

SEMINOLE 14, COAHOMA 7

This is always a hotly contested game.

The Forsan Buffaloes are a much better team than last year's 1-9 club. The Buffs have quality, but not much quanity.

The Garden City Bearkats were one of the best Class A teams in the state last year. And though they lost a host of quality players, the Bearkats still know what it takes to win.

Forsan will put up a great fight, but Garden City will prevail in the

GARDEN CITY 26, FORSAN 17

Grady (0-0) at Ropesville (0-0).

This will be a good opening test for the high-flying Grady Wildcats. Ropes went 4-3 last year in its first season as a six-man team. The Eagles have a huge weapon in 170-pound fullback Mikey Fiero, who averaged more than 200 yards per game last year. But the Wildcats have more weapons, starting with Scott Glaze,

Scott Terrell and Danny Valle. GRADY 44, ROPESVILLE 32

The Klondike Cougars are coming off a state play-off season last year. The Coogs are hungry for more.

Wilson lost the majority of its players from last year's state playoff team. Only one starter returns. The Coogs return big-play personnel such as quarterback Corbett Foster and running back Jose

The Coogs have too much talent for the Mustangs. KLONDIKE 47, WILSON 20

The Sands Mustangs barely missed a state play-off berth last year and are going to try to make sure it doesn't happen again, especially with eight starters coming back, and a very stingy defense.

The Hermleigh Cardinals are hurting. Last year they went 0-8 and return just four lettermen. The losing streak goes to nine games. SANDS 30, HERMLEIGH 6

Borden County (0-0) at New Home (0-0)

The Borden County Coyotes will face a stern test against the Leopards, a team that generally produces good football programs. The Coyotes will be much better than last year's 2-8 record; 10 returning lettermen indicate that.

The Leopards have one of the best six-man athletes in the state in QB-DB Colby James, who was an all-state performer last year. James and Co. are just a bit much for the Coyotes.

Youth wins over age

NEW YORK (AP) - The noise started in the upper reaches of the National Tennis Center, then tumbled down section by section until soon Andre Agassi was standing in the middle of a maelstrom.

His baleful eyes seem to plead for help. He might as well have been trying to hail a taxi on a rainy night in Times Square. This crowd was not going to let up. Not with Jimmy Connors battling for survival against the teen-aged heartthrob with the frosted shoulderlength hair and denim shorts.

Agassi knew this would happen. New Yorkers are emotional tennis fans when it comes to old favorites. They shook the place for Chris Evert's exit a couple of days ago. Agassi watched that and said to himself, "Andre, you're in for it."

When Connors got into a fifth-set jam against the kid in Thursday's U.S. Open quarterfinal, the fans rallied to the side of their old pal. For awhile, Jimbo responded, breaking Agassi's service and holding his own, pushing the final set score to 4-5 and cheering

"Give this guy a chance to choke!" Connors shouted, pumping his fists, urging himself on through

"I could just feel the pressure," Agassi said. "I've never felt it like that in my entire life. The crowd wasn't helping, but I can understand why.

Connors responded, with a little help from his shaken opponent. "He was gagging, but I started out too late in the fifth to give him a chance to," Connors said. "He was starting to. You feel it. The sting was off his shot. He was just playing the ball back, not doing anything with it. He gave me every opportunity in the last game. He did nothing exceptional.

But the 0-4 mountain was just too tall to climb. "I drew my final burst of energy, but I let it go one game too late," Connors said. "I wish it was 1-3 instead of 0-4. One game earlier in the fifth and it could have been a different story.

"If I had won that game to go 5-all ... I'll dream about that. That would be a fun dream. That would crowd and Connors for the first five-set victory of his career, 6-1, 4-6, 0-6, 6-3, 6-4. That put him in the semifinals against top-seeded Ivan Lendl, who eliminated No. 9 Tim Mayotte 6-4, 6-0, 6-1.

Lendl's victory was his 14th straight against the outgunned Mayotte, who was suitably impressed.

"He's just too good," Mayotte said. "Nobody else combines that consistency and power. He seems to get better all the time. My serve doesn't penetrate him at all. I don't have any weapons that could hurt Lendl wasn't so sure about that. "He can hurt me at times," he said of Mayotte. "But I can adjust to Lendl shrugged off his domination of Mayotte. "You start every match from zero," he said. "You don't get points for playing previous matches."

Connors rode a roller coaster throughout the match against Agassi. He lost the first set 6-1 and was in trouble in the second, battling dizziness and nausea that almost took him out of the match. Somehow he survived to win that set and the next when Agassi's game suddenly disappeared.

"I played on automatic pilot and guts," Connors said. "I wasn't feeling my best. I didn't think I could continue. It was like I was there but I wasn't there.'

Just as suddenly, the momentum swung back to Agassi in the fourth set and by the time Connors got it back in gear in the fifth, it was just

"I played a good match," Connors said, "and he had to beat me by my forceful aggressiveness in the end to win.

Agassi did that and conquered the crowd as well, although the experience left the young man slight-

"I just hope," he said, "when and if I ever get to 37 years old, still playing tennis, I would hope the people stand behind me like they did him.'

And if they do, some poor 19-year-old is liable to be the victim on the other side of the net.

NFL Notes

BY The Associated Press Tex Schramm got in a nice parting shot at the NFL ... with some help from

For years, the former president of the Dallas Cowboys had been trying to legislate against excessive crowd noise that prevents teams on the road from hearing the quarterback's calls.

One year, he tried a system of putting miniature mikes and receivers in helmets, but there were too many bugs. Last spring, he finally got owners to approve a measure that imposes penalties for crowd noise — starting with the loss of times out, then adding 5-yard penalties when those are up. It vas enforced three times in exhibitions all in domed stadiums — New Orleans. Seattle and Indianapolis.

The irony is that Schramm was pro bably most concerned about Washington - which was in his division. RFK Stadium and Denver's Mile High are probably the noisiest of the

Yet it never would have happened had Minnesota president Mike Lynn been a little more vigilant. The vote on crowd noise was taken after Schramm noted that Lynn had left the meeting room, leaving Burns, the Viking coach, as its lone representative. Burns voted for the noise con-annoved "He told me to vote my conscience," Burns said later. "I did. I don't think noise should interfere with the game.' Coaches of other dome teams aren't as happy about it. "It's going to be disastrous. It's going to cost us a ball game," says Indianapolis' Ron Meyer, whose crowd caused five straight penalties Saturday night."I'd rather play on the road to be honest with you

And the man it was presumably aimed at isn't happy either "We think it's a step backwards, but we've got to teal with it, because evidently it's going to stay in." says Washington coach Joe Gibbs, who has formally requested that the rule be changed — so pen this year. something that won't hap-DYNASTIES

How often do players come and go in The three best teams of the 1980s were probably the 1985 Bears, the 1986 Giants and the 1984 49ers, in that order Going into the 1989 season, they hardy exist anymore. There are 14 players from the '84 49ers still on the San Francisco roster. The Bears have 18 players left on their 47-man roster from their Super Bowl team and the Giants have 23.

But the Washington Redskins, the NFL champions just two years ago, are closing in — they have just 25 players left who were on their Super Bowl roster. And Timmy Smith, who set a Super Bowl record with 205 yards rushing as a rookie is no longer in the league - he was waived this week by an Diego, which had signed him as a Plan B free agent.

OLD GUYS Even if Mike Webster has lost something, he's still highly valuable to the Kansas City Chiefs. So is 38-year old Ron Jaworski.

The 36-year-old Webster, who coach, will be the starting center when the Chiefs open in Denver Sunday Jaworski, picked up from Miami, will be the backup quarterback

"You can't believe what kind of an example these guys are for our young players," says general manager Carl Peterson. "Some of these guys see this old man doing wind sprints and they say 'if that's what it takes to win

MOST VALUABLE CUT In last January's Super Bowl, Jim Breech made all three of his field goal tries, from 43, 34 and 40 yards. The last gave the Bengals a 16-13 lead over San Francisco with 3:20 remaining.

If Joe Montana hadn't driven the 49ers 92 yards and thrown the winning touchdown pass to John Taylor with 34 seconds left, Breech might have been the Most Valuable Player. If so, he then would have been the first Super Bowl MVP to be cut the next year - he was released by the Bengals Monday in favor of Jim Gallery, who can kick

"If that's the way I have to go out, that's not a bad way," said Breech, who was accurate but not a long-range kicker and had to fight for his job every

AGENT GAMES

A year and a half ago, Art Wilkinson was out of the agent business, trying to organize a new NFL players union claiming nearly every week that he would soon have the more than 500 signatures to force an election against the NFL Players Association. A few months later, the new union had a new head — Thom Gatewood. And while the union still hasn't been heard from, Wilkinson has - he's representing Mike Rozier, whom he first had as a client when Rozier left college. Rozier had been holding out in raining camp, seeking a $1 millionplus contract from Houston, but finally agreed to one for $600,000

Wilkinson thought he had good news this week when Joe Morris broke a foot and was lost to the Giants for the season. He immediately said the Giants had "great interest" in Rozier

Don Mattingly's two-run single keyed a six-run rally in the eighth to beat Seattle for their eighth straight victory

The Mariners held a 3-0 lead before the Yankees rallied in the eighth for their winning runs. Mattingly's hit with two out broke a 3-3 tie and Steve Balboni followed with a sacrifice fly for the Yankees' Rich Gossage, 1-0, pitched one-third of an inning in the seventh to earn his first American League win since Oct. 1, 1983.

Women meet

Women of First Church of God met Monday for their monthly meeting.

Betty Reagan, Mission Resource Program coordinator, directed thefirst of three studies on South Africa, titled "Hidden From Our Eyes," written by Kay Shively, associate secretary.

The objectives were to introduce the country of South Africa by map; to identify religious issues, and to recognize its political and historical background.

The union of South Africa is one of the few remaining countries in which Christianity is the state religion, according to a club report

The report stated that there is only one doctor for every 19,000 people of South Africa's 24 million blacks. The average family income is $30 per month. Nearly one of four babies will die in South Africa, and 60 percent of those who don't die will be malnourished.

The October study will be titled 'South Africa — Question for the

Give of yourself

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. (AP) President George Bush says that 'to live a life of real meaning'' includes "loving your neighbor enough to give of yourself."

Appealing to churches to help ease America's social problems, he writes in the monthly evangelical magazine, Christian Herald: "The work of many American hurches and related groups has already accomhished much. The Christian community already knows the value of engagng in the lives of those in need.

"That's why I ask you to 'let your light shine' a thousandfold," ne wrote, quoting Scripture.

Child poverty

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) 'Our children are growing poorer while our nation is growing richer." Beverly Jackson told 15,000 United Methodists seeking action to alleviate child poverty. Ms. Jackson of the Children's Defense Fund said the nation's security "teeters atop an overstocked, overpriced suicidal arsenal" while $40 billion has been cut from programs for poor children since 1980.

Robert Buford, chairman and chief executive officer of Buford Television Inc., poses outside his office near Tyler. Buford has undertaken a second career — bringing better management to large churches with Leadership Network.

TV exec is on a mission for God

TYLER (AP) — After years of preparation and realigning his family's multimillion dollar television business, Robert P. Buford undertook a second career — one that spends money instead of making it but better fulfills the motto engraved on his desk nameplate: "On A Mission For God."

Buford, a management aficionado, has turned from television to a different kind of network -Leadership Network — where he brings together pastors of large churches to talk about running their huge organizations.

"We found that there's more . . . in common or more similarity between a (large) Methodist, a Presbyterian and a Bible church, or charismatic service and I'll be 50 in September church even, in the leadership function than there is between a large church and a small church in the same denomination." Buford said

The skills needed to run such an organization - staffing, organizing, motivating, budgeting — are largely ignored in seminaries and are usually treated as "continuing education.

In the five years since Buford began his crusade to bring better management to large churches those with more than 1,000 attending weekly - he has brought together the 400 senior pastors from various denominations, plus other church and organizational staff in separate meetings — most of them at a conference center in

Colorado Springs, Colo. "What we hope to accomplish is to provide an environment where they could hear how to help one another operate in those circumstances," Buford said, adding that there are 10,000 large churches in the country.

The discussions at the three-day long sessions generally revolve around three areas, Buford said: how to set a vision so that the church is cohesive, how to manage staff and how to retain their personal, spiritual vitality.

And it's all free, except for the transportation, because Buford foots the bill.

"It struck me that a man's life does not consist of bread alone, that I should live a life of service as well as a life of accumulation, said Buford, a member of a midsized Episcopal church where he teaches some Bible classes.

"I had, in my middle 30s, a clear desire to at some point lead a life of and I feel that I'm embarking on that parallel career."

Buford is chairman and chief executive officer of Buford Television Inc., which owns WMBB-TV, a VHF station in Panama City, Fla., and cable systems in 120 cities and counties in six states.

A private man, Buford has deliberately kept a low profile in his own community; a recent interview at his office tucked away on a wooded lot outside of Tyler is the only one he has given and he has declined repeated offers to become involved in various local civic organizations. Buford, who says his model is industrialist-philanthropist Andrew Carnegie, only reluctantly agreed that he could be described as a millionaire, although he owns a third of BTI. Buford said he has spent "six or seven years" preparing his family and realigning BTI to allow him to spend about half his time dealing with Leadership Network.

Presbyterian news

The Presbyterian Church USA, through its Peacemaking Program, has been asked by the All Union Council of Evangelical Christians of the U.S.S.R. to provide Bibles in the Russian or Armenian language for distribution in the Soviet Union. The Russian Orthodox Church and the Armenian Orthodox Church have joined in the request and would ike to receive Bibles by Christmas

The Session of the local First Presbyterian Church, Edward Runnels, has noted the request to make a gift for the project to do so. For $10, three Bibles can be purchased, and the Soviet government will permit the receipt of more than 1 million Bibles through the American Bible purchased, and the Soviet govern-Society.

Donald Gene Peacock recently became an active member of the local Presbyterian congregation. He was received upon profession of faith and was baptized at the Session meeting before church. Session meeting before church.

Heather Elizabeth Peacock, daughter of Donald and Keri Peacock, was baptized recently during worship service and was received as a baptized member of Christ's church.

Sunday, Morning worship will center on the educational Sunday is Christian Education center on the educational work of the congregation. A special part of worship will involve children and young people, all of whom are invited to be present for the 11 a.m. service following Sunday School.

GENEVA (AP) — A meeting of the executive committee of the Lutheran World Federation has accepted the 106th member denomination — the German Evangelical Lutheran Church in the Soviet Union. An "occasion of great joy, said the Rev. Gunnar Staalsett LWF general secretary, and added: "The reconstituting of this church is a powerful sign of God's power to heal the broken, to reconcile the estranged and to gather into community those who have been scattered.''

Full communion

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and United Church of Christ are partner denominations in "full communion."

Both denominations acted at their recent conventions to formally affirm their new relationship, which involves mutual recognition of memblership and ministers

Disciples, acting at their assembly, declared that "the Gospel of Jesus Christ unites Christ's followers in a single community of faith and compels us to make our unity visible so that the world may believe."

'Jesus Christ will not disappoint you'

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have never met a person who claimed to be Christian who wasn't a hypocrite. They all claim one thing, but never live up to it. I'm disillusioned with religion, and don't see any reason to have anything to do with it. - Mrs. V.T. DEAR MRS. V.T.: There is only one perfect person who ever lived - and that was Jesus Christ. The that said, "Christians aren't perfect - just forgiven!" No, Christians aren't perfect, and I have no doubt you have met those who claimed to be Christians but turned you off because their lives did not measure up to what a Christian should be. But God condemns hypocrisy even stronger than you do, and some of Jesus' phanages, fed the hungry, worked for social justice, etc. Some years ago I had a historian in England tell me that every social advance in the last century had come about because of the love and concern of Christians.

Second, I urge you to look at Christ and not just at people who may or may not really have committed their lives to him. You see, God loves us, and he accepts us just strongest words were directed as we are when we turn in faith to against hypocrites. "If anyone Christ. And God loves you, also. says 'I love God,' yet hates his Yes, people may disappoint you — brother, he is a liar'' (1 John 4:20). but Christ will never disappoint I hope you will consider two you, for he alone can forgive your done many good works in his name is worthy of your life. Turn to him

LONDON (AP) - Prince Charles has renewed his attacks on soulless modern buildings, writing that architects are creating Frankenstein's monsters. The fashionable architectural theories of the 1950s and 1960s have spawned "deformed monsters which have come to haunt our towns and cities, our villages and our countryside," the prince said in PRINCE "A Vision of Britain," as excerpted CHARLES in the Sunday Times.

The 40-year-old heir to the British throne has harshly criticized modern buildings that he believes fail to meet the needs of the people who must live and work in them.

DENNIS THE MENACE

GABOR

"As a result of 30 years of experimenting with revolutionary building materials and novel ideas, burning all the rulebooks and purveying the theory that man is a machine, we have ended up with Frankenstein monsters, devoid of character, alien and largely unloved, except by the professors who have been concocting these horrors in their laboratories - and even they find their creations a bit hard to take after a while," the excerpt
