David Daniel Lewis, 31, Houston, was arrested Wednesday by a trooper with the Texas Highway Patrol out of Howard County after the trooper noted there was no valid license plates on the car, DPS Sgt. Frank Woodall said today.

Budget eyed

BIG SPRING — A revised $16.65 million budget which shows a surplus of almost $60 in the general fund, will be considered during a regular 5 p.m. council meeting today at the Big Spring McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.

More than two months of budget meetings have finally yielded a budget which will be considered during a first reading tonight. An expected deficit of $62,001 in the general fund was erased when city management revised supplies expenditures, said City Secretary Tom Ferguson.

The council also will consider a controversial 3-cent tax increase. The group originally recommended the increase from 68 cents to 71 cents by a 4-3 vote and approved on the first reading by the same margin.

- Other agenda items include:
- Awarding a bid for underground storage tanks at the airpark.
 - Authorizing the mayor to sign agreements with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for various services.
 - Authorizing the mayor to sign various agreements with the Big Spring Correctional Center, the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the Big Spring Model Airplane Association, the Department of Public Safety and the Big Spring Rape Crisis Center.

Mayor Max fights back

Calls recall election an insult to council

By RUTH COCHRAN

BIG SPRING — Although he finds the situation distasteful, Mayor Max Green said he feels no animosity toward the councilwoman whose daughter is mounting a campaign to remove Green from office.

In a press conference early today, Green said he wasn't hurt that Councilwoman Pat DeAnda's daughter, 22-year-old Michelle Rodriguez, had filed an application for recall election petition.

"No, not really," Green said of having hurt feelings. "I guess possibly that I feel the majority of the council has been insulted. (But) everybody is entitled to their opinions."

In the application filed Monday with the city secretary, Rodriguez said she was seeking a recall election because Green has prevented the police and fire departments from receiving adequate funding and because he refused to listen to city residents who said they favored a tax increase.

Green, who has been on vacation and found out about the petition Wednesday evening, said the police and fire departments are receiving adequate funding.

"As far as I know, the budget level on these two departments are the same or pretty close to the same as they were last year," said the mayor, who appeared calm and in good spirits. "At the request of

Council faced recall in '71

BIG SPRING — Almost 20 years ago, Big Spring voters faced a recall election that divided the town in half and eventually turned ugly and downright vicious.

Three city commissioners faced that ordeal in 1971, and two remember the details vividly and sympathize with what current Mayor Max Green could face.

Wade Choad, the third councilman who faced recall in the '70s could not be reached for comment. Eddie Acri was a young businessman with a love for Big Spring and government in general. He had been on the five-member commission for all of one year when he suddenly found half the town calling for his head.

Arsonist hits two buildings

BIG SPRING — Fire Marshall Burr Lea Settles is calling for community support to combat an arson problem plaguing Big Spring.

Tuesday two fires were reported in the city, and while fire officials kept both blazes under control, they were listed as arson.

Arson has been a problem in the Big Spring area in the past according to Settles who is calling for community support to combat the problem now facing fire officials here.

The two fires that prompted a now ongoing investigation were reported at 409 NW 5th Street and 704 E 3rd Street.

The first fire at 409 NW 5th was reported to fire officials at 5:30 a.m., Tuesday, when police were asked to assist on the call.

"There were three real old structures on NW 5th Street, just a block past Lancaster," said Settles.

"Somebody set it on fire. The house had been vacant for some time... no utilities... nobody lived in it," he said. "We've been having mysterious fires for the last two weeks."

The same thing happened at 704 E 3rd Street, said fire officials, the address of the abandoned Motel Nine.

"Of course, it has been vandalized. This particular night somebody had come in and set fire to the contents," said Settles.

Settles has asked the concerned public to call if any information is available on the cause or persons associated with the cause of either or both of the above incidents.

BIG SPRING — The Howard County Fair sponsored the 1989 Open Santa Gertrudis Cattle Show Tuesday as breeders from around the state displayed their stock for judging.

"We try to present them (the cattle) to the public where they can really see some good animals," said Euel Hammett of Odessa.

The Reserve Champion Senior Bull and Reserve Grand Champion Bull were entered by Mr. and Mrs. Euel Hammett of Odessa. The bull's name was "Brother" and he weighed in at 2,375 pounds.

Hammett was satisfied with the results of the judging as he was loading his entries for the trip home yesterday.

"Well, I've been in the Santa Gertrudis chain for about 23 years now," he said.

Other champion entries shown by Phillip Couch included Champion and Reserve Champion in the Heifer Calf division from Triplecreek Farms; Champion and Reserve Champion in the Yearling Heifer division from breeder Paul D. Graham, of Abilene; and the Pat Welder Ranch

Mitchell County Courthouse facelift under discussion

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County commissioners agreed to seek engineering and architectural estimates for a facelift on the county courthouse during a specially called meeting Tuesday morning.

"You're looking at a $40,000-$50,000 job," County Judge S.L. "Mac" Morris estimated. "What we've got to do is apparently have new cap stones cast for the entire building," he said. "While we're at it, we're going to repair the mortar which has some cracks, the mortar which holds the bricks together," he said. "Mostly it's preventive work on the building."

He said Lone Star Construction Company of Dallas has already removed all 32 of the 30-by-18 inch cap stones from the roof of the building after parts of two of the weather-deteriorated stones had plummeted to the ground. The building, built in 1923-24, is worth $1.4 million according to an insurance policy, Morris said.

He said all renovations must comply with the Texas Historical Commission regarding courthouse restoration. "You cannot do anything to alter a courthouse without their approval," he said.

"We've had a number of construction engineers and architectural firms look at it and we're waiting on proposals from them to do it right."

Morris predicted that the county will be ready to accept construction bids in late October or early November.

In other action, commissioners authorized the county treasurer to begin looking for a computer program that will fit the reporting requirements of new state regulations, Morris said.

Commissioners also decided to allow another phone jack to be put in the county attorney's office.

In addition, they approved a yearly request from the Kiwanis Club for a dump truck to be used in the Kid's Day Parade tomorrow.

The truck is for the rinds left over from the anticipated huge quantities of watermelon which will be eaten, Morris said. "Every year we use a dump truck to pop their rinds into."

There's some kids who can eat a complete watermelon... In a hurry," he said.

Supplying the melons, as usual, will be Travis Turner and his son Tony, local commercial watermelon growers. "I think this is about the 15th year that the Turners have supplied watermelons to the parade," Morris said.

"The parade, which will assemble at the courthouse parking lot, begins at 10 a.m. It will go through Colorado City's downtown and end at 2nd and Chestnut.

But the point of it is that Max is his own man and if he would listen to me then I wouldn't be for him. He needs to listen to everyone and form his own opinion. I have input with him as with every one else on the council.

"Max Green is making his own decisions but he's devoting the time and effort and listening to every side. Then he evaluates the pros and cons.

Watkins asserts that every citizen has input with Green and the entire council, and while he hates to see a recall election, he feels it's a necessary part of the system.

"This is a Democratic system," Watkins said. "Everybody's got a right to do what they want to. If you object or disagree you have certain rights."

However, the recall isn't justified, Watkins said. "Mr. Green has not done anything that he didn't say he was going to do," Watkins asserts. "Now because he's doing what he said he was going to do... some people over there are finding criticism with him. I really don't think the criticism is justified or warranted."

Acri feels that since Green was elected by popular vote then if he's going to be removed, it should be by popular vote — in the next regular election.

"When I heard this last night... it kind of surprised me for the simple reason that here's a man elected by the popular vote," Acri said. "Instead of going through a recall, let the people vote. It wouldn't be fair not to let this man serve a full term."

Acri, who says his health was ruined by his eight years on the city commission/council, said the only thing Green can do is ride out the storm.

"I'd say to stick by his guns," Acri said. "He voted for a no tax... he needs to stick by his guns. I give the man credit. I appreciate him running for mayor. I appreciate (anyone) running for office because it's a thankless job."

"I'd never run again. If you do your job as an elected person... it's a lot of pressure."

"I'd rather not go through a recall election. It's a pity."

the majority of the council, we did ask management for a balanced budget. They assured us they could live with it with some very minor changes."

Also, although a majority of residents at an August public hearing over the budget said they supported any tax increase necessary, Green said he had received a petition which opposed an increase.

The petition, which he circulated among council members before the public hearing, contained from 125 to 150 names, he said.

Green has been accused by DeAnda of backing out of his campaign promise of no tax increases. DeAnda supported a larger increase, saying it was needed to improve city services. Green said his vote for a 3-cent increase, which the council passed 4-3, was a compromise.

"Yes I did go back on my word as far as no taxes," Green said. "I was just as surprised as some of the other members of the council. When the council came to an impasse, I had to compromise my position in order to get something going. It seemed the lesser of two evils."

Because the majority of the council approved that increase, Green said the rest of the council is obligated to support that decision.

Green also asserted that he has not been protecting special interests, nor is he under the thumb of any special interests.

"If there's anybody pulling my string, I sure would like to know about it. I'm my own man," he said.

Green said he has no idea if the petition will gain the 894 signatures needed to force a recall election, but said he has no plans to fight either the petition or an election.

"Whatever does happen, it's still going to be in the best interests of the community," he said.

The freshman mayor said he will not consider resigning "if I can get the electoral support."

Green said he's received numerous calls from supporters and "many of them absolutely do not approve of this at all."

Texans get high scores

AUSTIN (AP) — Army National Guard teams from Texas placed at the Sixth World Helicopter Championships this month in France, officials said.

The team of Edward Jones and Neil Whigham, both chief warrant officers from Austin, placed fifth.

Seventh place was taken by the team of Chief Warrant Officer Maris Stipnieks and 1st Lt. Brian Dickens, also of Austin.

In individual competition, the Texas Guard said Tuesday, Jones tied for top honors in the short and long navigation courses. Stipnieks tied for the top award for the hover course and won the top award in the slalom course.

Overall, the United States was the No. 1 country team at the international fly-off, placing flying teams in the first seven places, the Texas Guard said.

In another award, a six-man Texas Army National Guard team placed second at the International Parachute Competition on Sept. 9 in East Warwick, R.I.

The team was composed of the members of the 1136th Infantry Detachment, or Pathfinders, stationed at Camp Mabry, the Texas Guard headquarters in Austin.

They were 1st Lt. John Marshall, Sgt. Mark Erwin and Sgt. Mark Bartlett, all of Austin; Sgt. 1st Class Gary Swan of Marion; Staff Sgt. Caleb Roberts of Houston; and Staff Sgt. Daniel Stapleton of Webster.

ROUND ROCK — The state's first sign to promote anti-driving-while-intoxicated efforts stands near a highway reststop north of Round Rock on I-35.

Sign of the times

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials today were scheduled to post the first "DUI... You Can't Afford It" sign to kick off a pilot project prompted by fears that the anti-driving-while-intoxicated effort of recent years was losing momentum.

The new slogan is the foundation of a campaign by the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation and the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

Last year, 1,363 people died in wrecks involving drunken drivers statewide, a nine percent increase from 1987 when 1,250 people died in DWI wrecks.

"There was a big anti-DWI push a few years ago, but publicity has died down somewhat," said Bob Dickson, executive director of the Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

State officials said they believed that reminding Texans of the costs associated with drinking and driving may help get their attention.

DWI cost the state $450 million in 1988 in lost productivity and property loss, officials said.

A person convicted of DWI faces an average cost of $3,200 in attorneys fees, fines, probation fees and court costs, according to Jacque Branum, traffic specialist for the Highway Department.

Four red, white and blue signs — two each at two rest areas on Interstate 35 in Hays and Williamson counties — will carry the slogan in the Austin area.

The first sign was to be placed at the rest area off the north-bound lanes of I-35, north of Round Rock.

Branum said the program could be expanded statewide depending on its success.

School bus plunges into gravel pit; at least 18 killed

ALTON (AP) — At least 15 were killed and 49 injured after a Mission school district school bus collided with a soft drink delivery truck and plunged into a gravel pit this morning near Mission, authorities said.

The death toll had reached 15 by 9:30 a.m., said David Wells of the Texas Department of Public Safety in Austin.

The bus was "mostly submerged," said Mike Cox, a Department of Public Safety spokesman, and was reported at 7:40 a.m.

Five Texans killed in plane crash

By The Associated Press Families and friends of four Texas-based oil workers and a Peace Corps volunteer were mourning the loss of their loved ones today after a French airliner exploded over Central Africa, killing all aboard, officials said.

"You always think it's going to happen to someone else," said Janice Huff, whose son, Pat, was among 171 passengers aboard the UTA flight from the Congo to Chad to Paris.

A Moslem extremist group has claimed responsibility for planting a bomb on the flight that killed seven Americans, five of whom were Texans.

Huff, 38, of Franklin, was one of four Houston-area oilmen killed on the flight. Others were Mark E. Corder, 35, a Houston petroleum geologist with Exxon Corp.; James Turlington Sr., 48, of Bellville, a senior operation supervisor for Exxon; and Russell O. Jordan Sr., 29, an Esso Resources Canada senior projects engineer who listed his hometown as Houston. Huff was an employee of Tulsa, Okla.-based Parker Drilling Co.

Also killed on the flight was Peace Corps volunteer Margaret Schutzius, 23, of Dallas, who taught English in the Congo.

"She was a saint," said brother Christopher Schutzius. "She was a big fan of Rep. Mickey Leland (D-Houston) and his fight against hunger in Africa. It's tragic that both of them were victims of the same circumstances."

Mrs. Huff said her son, who has worked in overseas oilfields years and was returning to College Station after a 28-day shift on an Exxon project in southern Chad, was accustomed to flying and did not worry about crashes.

"He had no fears," Mrs. Huff said of her son, who was married and the father of two stepchildren.

Animal rights activists file complaint against Tech

WASHINGTON (AP) — Animal rights activists say they hope a formal complaint filed against a Texas Tech University researcher will prompt the National Institutes of Health to investigate and ultimately cancel research grants to the school.

The 15-page complaint filed by People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals alleges more than 15 violations of federal law took place at the Lubbock university's Health Sciences Center.

The group said 16 medical and veterinary experts examined the work of John Orem, whose research focuses on breathing in sleep, and found his experiments, methods and purpose to be scientifically flawed and "unnecessarily cruel."

PETA researcher Mary Beth Sweetland said Orem has no medical or veterinary training, yet "he is drilling holes into a cat's head to secure the head to a restraining device" that holds the animal still for experiments involving breathing.

Sweetland said PETA hopes the complaint will ultimately lead to a revocation of NIH grants for what it calls "cruel experimentation and an unconscionable waste of animal life."

PETA said the experts, who volunteer to conduct such reviews for the organization, criticized Orem, a professor of physiology, for failing to use appropriate anesthesia in painful procedures.

Kenneth L. Barker, vice president for research at the Health Sciences Center, said the school has received no notice from NIH about the complaint and has no response.

Riopedle, M.D., singled out Orem's use of steel sutures in cats' eyelids. Other categories of violations outlined in the PETA complain include allegations of inadequate veterinary care, unqualified personnel performing invasive procedures, Orem's failure to establish scientific merit, the use of unsuitable restraint devices and restraint periods of excessive duration.

two justices of the peace were summoned to the scene. When rescuers arrived at the scene, only the tip of the rear end of the bus was not underwater. An industrial crane was being used to lift the bus out of the pit.

Betty Baldwin, a spokeswoman at HCA Rio Grande Medical Center, said more than 40 people were on the bus, which was headed to Mission High School and was filled with students when the accident was reported at 7:40 a.m.

At Mission Hospital, 29 people were listed in stable condition, said Nora Martinez, a nursing supervisor. Seven were listed in good condition at HCA Rio Grande Regional Medical Center, Ms. Baldwin said. Another 13 were taken in McAllen Medical Center, spokeswoman Judy Gomez said.

According to a witness who was trailing the bus and a Coca-Cola delivery truck, the truck struck the bus from behind, knocking it into the gravel pit. The witness, who was not immediately identified, said he jumped into the water and helped in the rescue of three students.

The driver of the Coca-Cola truck remained at the scene.

Ten ambulances, six fire departments and four boats were helping in the rescue, said Capt. Rene Lopez Jr. He said the pit is 20 feet to 25 feet deep. Authorities could not immediately say how much water was in the pit.

Mission police said the ambulances had been dispatched from surrounding counties as far away as Starr County. The town is about four miles north of Mission and 75 miles northwest of Brownsville in the southern tip of Texas.

Dispatcher George Anzaldua said a woman saw the bus plunge into the pit in Hidalgo County.

"All (she) told me is the bus was going into the cañon pit and (she) was really scared," Anzaldua said.

Court monitor sees little relief for MHMR

AUSTIN (AP) — The lawsuit against the state's treatment of the mentally disabled may continue forever if lawmakers won't give more money to the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, the court-appointed monitor in the case said today.

The monitor filed a report saying state services for the mentally retarded and mentally ill must be upgraded to comply with court-ordered improvements in the 15-year-old lawsuit against the Texas MHMR Department.

David Pharis, the monitor, said in the document filed with U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders in Dallas, that the state has complied with many previous court orders.

But Pharis added, "It appears from the history of this case that defendants have never been provided sufficient funds for complete compliance."

Pharis said the mental health department requested $105 million for the 1990-91 budget years to comply with court orders. But lawmakers approved only $60 million, "leaving a deficit of $45 million," Pharis said.

He said "major unresolved issues" remain in the case. Those issues include individualized treatment and 30 hours of appropriate programming per patient; protection of patients' rights; and recruitment and retention of qualified psychiatrists.

Other unresolved issues, Pharis said, are placements for persons discharged from state mental hospitals; provision of relevant medical treatment and the adequacy of community aftercare services.

In response to Pharis' complaints, the state has said the monitor had prejudged its future compliance and that the monitor lacks the authority to review the adequacy of actual appropriations.

American Airlines has weighty problem

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines flight attendants are taking issue once again with a company weight policy that they call discriminatory and unhealthy.

The company defends the policy, which requires attendants to fall within certain weight guidelines or be fired.

"We are not fooling around this time," said Colleen Brenner, vice president of the American Association of Professional Flight Attendants, which represents 16,000 American employees. "We want the company to change its archaic, discriminatory and unhealthy policy."

Under the policy, a 5-foot-2 American flight attendant cannot weigh more than 118 pounds — 12 pounds less than the weight standards at Pan Am. A 5-foot-6 inch attendant can weigh a maximum of 133 pounds, 22 pounds less than Pan Am.

The policy requires overweight attendants to lose the excess weight at a rate of 1 1/2 pounds per week by a specified deadline. If the attendant does not, he or she is disciplined, then suspended and finally fired.

Attendants say the policy is the strictest among major carriers. They also complain that the standards are based on outdated tables for women of small or medium build, and don't take childbirth or age into account.

American spokesman Ed Stewart said the latest version of the guidelines resulted from a federal court settlement in the 1970s. He defended the policy as a grooming standard that is important to the airline's image. "It's a customer contact business," he said.

An impossible job

After the tanker Exxon Valdez spilled 11 million gallons of oil in Alaska's Prince William Sound, Exxon officials promised repeatedly to clean it up. That promise is impossible to keep.

As Exxon winds down its efforts for the winter, company spokesman no longer use the word "clean," referring instead to "treatment" and "environmental stabilization." Some of the hundreds of miles of soiled beaches that have treated and declared environmentally stabilized reportedly still have patches of oil muck 3 feet deep.

Complicating Exxon's no-win situation, the energy company is now being squeezed between Alaskan and federal officials who say Exxon hasn't finished the job yet, and others who say the massive invasion of boats, aircraft and workers has done wildlife more harm than good.

At the bottom line of this disaster are the $1 billion Exxon has spent on cleanup crews, the estimated 400,000 otters, eagles and seabirds who are dead or dying, and the growing but unspoken knowledge that only time and tide — not men with hoses and paper towels — can measurably improve the situation.

Campaign has issues

Lo and behold, some of the candidates for Texas state office in next year's election are actually raising legitimate issues, albeit in demagogic language.

In contrast to the personality vendetta marking the early stages of the Democratic gubernatorial campaign, Republicans Kent Hance, Clayton Williams and Jack Rains are arguing about taxes. And Democrats Bob Bullock and Chet Edwards, announced candidates for lieutenant governor, are warming up to a debate over lobbyists and legislative ethics.

It is early yet. Ideas being tossed out to test the political waters may sink before the primaries next March. But it is a healthy sign that substantive public policy issues such as taxes and ethics are being discussed in public by leading candidates.

Turning to self-help

You have to like the way New Waverly deals with its problems.

The volunteer fire department, hit by rising insurance costs, found itself in need of money. It went to the City Council and asked for help. The council didn't turn a deaf ear, nor did it open the public purse.

Instead, the council voted unanimously to put a line on city utility bills where a person could check off a dollar donation to help the department. Officials hope around $200 a month will be raised from among 350 customers.

The department gets funding help from the city and county and relies on fundraisers and donations for the rest.

The importance of a volunteer fire department to a community the size of New Waverly cannot be overemphasized. When utility customers are asked to check off a buck on their bills, they are being asked to help themselves, really. That's what the spirit of volunteerism is all about.

Based on how New Waverly folks have helped themselves in the past, we're willing to bet this idea gets the fire department the money it needs.

In there pitching

It already promised to be a colorful election year for Texas. Now it looks like going off the entertainment scale, if living legend Nolan Ryan responds to urging from the Texas Farm Bureau and files as a Republican candidate for agriculture commissioner. That's the post occupied by Jim Hightower, of course, who at one time considered running for the Senate against Phil Gramm, but backed off — maybe because Gramm already has $3 million in his war chest. In any event, a Ryan-Hightower matchup would please political junkies. Ryan has the hero factor going for him, but when it comes to throwing verbal high hard ones, Hightower's no slouch, either.

More reasons for ban

The case for banning the sale of assault-type firearms has been made in blood yet again.

This time it was at a printing plant in Louisville, Ky., where a mentally unbalanced former worker killed seven people and wounded 15 before taking his own life.

What happened in Louisville is convincing evidence, if further evidence was needed, that the federal government should outlaw the sale of rapid-fire weapons that can shoot many rounds in a few seconds.

The tragedy also provides convincing evidence that the federal government should require a substantial waiting period for firearm purchases and deny sale to anyone with a criminal record or history of mental illness.

How many more Americans must die like this before government officials have the courage to stand up to the national gun lobby and put meaningful controls on weapons capable of mass destruction?

El Paso Herald-Post

No word from middle America

There were numerous lobbyists for law and accounting firms, securities, real estate and other industries. The individual issues they were tracking intently were too numerous to count, which is not surprising considering the capital gains tax cut would affect everything from timber sales to excise taxes on ozone depleting chemicals.

Many companies sent "notetakers," junior employees armed with notepads and micro-cassettes and instructed to record everything that happened and to phone in constant updates. Out-of-town firms that can't send one of their own workers to hearings and other Capitol Hill events commonly have "temps" dispatched by a employment agencies.

In the face of the weeks-long lobbying onslaught for the capital gains cut, some Democratic opponents were still holding out hope.

"When middle America realizes that they're paying the tab for the wealthy, they'll start writing letters like they are on catastrophic," warned Rep. Marty Russo, an Illinois Democrat who did not join the "gang of six."

So far, however, the lobbyists have all been heard from on the capital gains issue, but middle America hasn't.

Capitol report

Republicans say everyone will benefit from an economy invigorated by more rapid asset sales, savings and investment.

Whichever side is right, the fight on Capitol Hill was largely one-sided in favor of the capital gains cut.

The failed congressional pay raise earlier this year and the current battle over catastrophic illness insurance show that the ultimate lobbying force is an angry public. But, despite Democratic efforts to arouse populist passions against a tax break for the rich, the intricacies of capital gains don't excite too many people.

That has left the real capital gains lobbying to professionals. The hallways outside the locked committee room — dubbed "Gucci Gulch" because of the lobbyists' high-priced shoes — teemed with advocates for people who would benefit most if the tax policy makes it through Congress.

Painless dentistry? Not yet

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

I like to consider myself a positive thinker, but I must confess that there are a few things that are impossible.

It is impossible, for example, to turn lead into gold, and it is equally impossible to foresee the future. And I challenge anybody to make sense of the new tax laws.

To this list of impossibilities, one may add that it is impossible to have a pleasant dentist's appointment.

It has nothing to do with dentists in general. My dentist, for instance, is a very nice man.

He is probably a kind human being.

He probably loves pets and little children.

He probably never swears.

He is probably reading this.

But, sweetheart of a guy that he is, not even he is capable of making tooth extractions or cleanings anything remotely resembling a nice experience.

I know, boys and girls, believe me I know.

After the past several weeks, my dentist and I are now on a first-name basis. He has poked, prodded, drilled and rinsed my mouth so much that if I don't get a Christmas card from him this year, I will be sincerely hurt.

With this wealth of experience to draw from, you would think that if anybody could devise a way to make sitting in a dentist's chair pleasant, I could.

Well, I've given it plenty of thought, but short of extra laughing gas — and we don't need any more drug addicts, right? — there's not too many options.

I thought that maybe if he played some very soothing music, that might divert my attention, but that won't work. As anyone who has gone through the experience can attest, when the dentist has a drill in your mouth, you wouldn't hear the Hallelujah Chorus if it was right outside the window.

And thinking pleasant thoughts won't work, either. Once the Novocaine has taken effect and the dentist goes to work, the only thoughts you're thinking are along the lines of, "Please, God, let me live."

In short, I don't think there's anything that can divert your attention from those evil-looking instruments on the dentist's tray. There's nothing quite like having a stranger put a sharp metal object into your mouth to concentrate your thoughts marvellously.

So, given the above facts, is there anything you or I can do to make visits to the dentists more pleasant?

Well, buckos, about the only thing I can suggest is to brace yourself for the worst. Convince yourself that this man is going to pull every tooth from your mouth and put you so far in debt that you'll have to work three jobs for the rest of your life just to pay the bill.

That way, if you walk out of the office with any teeth left, you'll be thinking that you got away lucky.

Yeah, you're real — heh, heh — lucky.

One visit to the fair not enough

By KAREN MCCARTHY Staff Writer

I stopped by the Howard County Fair last night to pick up the results of Wednesday's shows for the Herald, and I couldn't resist the chance to walk around and see the fair.

The first thing that struck me was how contented everyone seemed to be. If children were crying, couples were bickering and folks were anxiously rushing from one spot to another, I was not aware of it.

Instead people were meandering from one exhibit to another, stopping to chat or to sign up for a drawing or to take a closer look at something that caught their eye.

The second thing that occurred to me was how many people I actually know after four years in Big Spring. And most of them were also at the fair. It's a good place to meet your neighbors.

Naturally I stopped to eat. I'm one of many who can't resist fair food and I had a delicious shish kabob, followed by a funnel cake, followed by, well, never mind. I'll just admit to nibbling my way from one end of the fairgrounds to the other.

I stopped to visit with fair clown John Howlett of Splendor while he was delighting children with his fantastic balloon animals. Howlett (who says don't shout his name, howl!) came to the fair by accident — he had left Medina and drove until he was tired. He serendipitously wore out at Big Spring just before the fair opened. I am sure all the children who come to the fair are pleased that he didn't try to make it to the next town.

I had talked to Tom Koger

Around the rim

and his gait left me shifting wildly from one side to another, at the same time pitching me forward so that all that was keeping me on his back was the railing his owners thoughtfully provided.

Still, it was a great experience and I'm only sorry I didn't get a picture of me perched on his back. The ride was well worth the cost and I'm grateful to Horace for not taking no for an answer.

Obviously there is a lot of fair I missed. I fully intend to go back again tomorrow night, and Friday night, and Saturday. For the price of admission, the fair offers a lot of entertainment.

There were a few other things I missed, too. Not having any children with me was certainly one of them. Fairs and children went together for so many years of my life, it seemed like something was missing. Enough time has elapsed since I've gone to the fair with kids that I have almost blocked out the memories of how much time I wasted trying to find them when they invariably got lost, and how they squabbled at the carnival because one wanted only the wildest rides on the midway and the other thought the merry-go-round was pretty risky.

I missed something else as well. My car. I had forgotten to make a conscious mental note as to where I parked it when I entered the fairground. When I left, it was dark and I was forced to wander up and down rows of hundreds of cars looking for mine. I finally found it, of course, but not until I was about ready to report it stolen. You'd think, after 40-odd fairs, I'd remember to mark my parking spot.

Judge grants embryos to wife

MARYVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A judge ruled today that seven frozen embryos caught up in a divorce battle are children and should go to the woman who hopes to carry them to term, not the estranged husband who doesn't want to be a father.

Circuit Judge W. Dale Young ruled in favor of Mary Sue Davis over Junior Davis in the unprecedented case, which grew out of the decade-old technology of "test-tube babies."

He declared that the embryos created through in-vitro fertilization are not property.

"From fertilization, the cells of a human embryo are differentiated, unique and specialized to the highest degree of distinction," he said. Thus, he said, "Human life begins at conception."

He said Mrs. Davis could have temporary custody for the purpose of having the eggs implanted in her womb in the hope of becoming pregnant. Child support, visitation and final custody will be decided if one of the embryos results in a birth, he wrote.

In effect, the judge treated the case like a typical custody dispute, in which the overriding concern is the best interest of the child.

"It was the toughest decision of my life as a judge," Young said in an interview. "On a scale of 1 to 10, it was a 10. I have agonized over it."

Medical experts testified that the embryos have developed to between four and eight cells each, and that the cells have not yet begun to assume different characteristics.

AIDS high in male prostitutes

BOSTON (AP) — More than one-quarter of male prostitutes studied in Atlanta were infected with the AIDS virus, and the virus was especially common among those also exposed to syphilis and hepatitis, according to a report today.

Until now, most studies of AIDS among prostitutes have focused on females.

In the latest work, researchers took blood samples from 152 male prostitutes. Overall, 27 percent were infected with HIV, the AIDS virus, as were 55 percent who also had syphilis and 37 percent who had been exposed to hepatitis B.

Forty-six percent of the prostitutes described themselves as being heterosexual. The rest said they were bisexual or homosexual.

The survey was conducted by Dr. Kirk W. Elifson and colleagues from Georgia State University. It was published as a letter in the New England Journal of Medicine.

"The rate of HIV-1 infection in our sample suggests the need for continued educational, drug-treatment and outreach efforts for male prostitutes and their sexual partners," they wrote.

Hugo expected to hit U.S. today

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Hurricane Hugo's leading edge brought rain to the lower East Coast today, and thousands fled inland.

With landfall expected as early as tonight between Florida and North Carolina and the killer storm's winds rising to 110 mph, schools were closed, homes were boarded up, residents stocked up on emergency supplies and shelters opened.

The military brought aircraft inland and sent ships out to sea to ride out the storm, which has killed at least 25 people in the Caribbean with direct blows to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

South Carolina's governor declared an emergency, ordered the coast evacuated and called out the National Guard to help thousands move inland. As many as 490,000 people were being evacuated from Georgia's coast.

"All we can do now is watch and wait," said South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell.

Hugo sideswiped the Bahamas and accelerated as it moved over open water Wednesday. "An increase in forward speed increases the likelihood that it will strike the coast and not recurve, heading out to sea," said Bob Sheets, director of the National Hurricane Center in Florida.

Forecasters warned that waves could tower as much as 16 feet above normal because the hurricane could cross the coast at high tide, about 2:30 a.m. Rain of 5 to 10 inches was forecast.

Armed island residents await troops from U.S.

CHRISTIANSTED, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) — Residents of this popular American vacation resort toted guns as they waited for U.S. military police to arrive after widespread looting during Hurricane Hugo.

The Pentagon today began sending more than 1,100 troops to the islands to maintain order.

"Keep out or you will be shot," read a sign outside an electronics store in St. Croix that already was stripped of its merchandise Wednesday.

At one shopping center, armed guards stood on rooftops to ward off looters.

But at another, people wandered freely from store to store, loading up with shoes, clothes and bicycle tires.

"Everybody else is taking it. Why shouldn't we?" said Nora Rivera as she stood with her two young daughters beside a grocery cart loaded with clothes and shoes.

"Most of our clothes got wet," said her husband, Robert. People were taking damaged goods that merchants wanted to get rid of anyway, he said.

Shaher Abdallah, owner of a ravaged furniture store, disagreed.

"We didn't expect the public to do this to us," he said as his 15-year-old son, Saker, stood nearby with a pistol. "They have something bad in the heart."

Several residents said local National Guard troops had joined in the looting, but the guard's commander denied the charge.

"The National Guard trucks are being used to transport food supplies," said Adjutant Gen. Robert Moorehead. "People see that and they assume the worst."

A few National Guard members directed traffic; none was seen where stores were looted.

On the island of St. Thomas, Virgin Islands Gov. Alexander Farrelly said some looting occurred but that "there is no near state of anarchy."

He said preliminary reports indicated no one was killed in the U.S. Virgin Islands during the storm. No injuries were reported during the looting spree.

Ingrid Ellis, a resident, said prisoners had been released from jail because the building was damaged and no one was there to

ARMED RESIDENT guard them.

"I ran into a guy on the street yesterday, who was a convicted murderer," she said.

Amid the lawlessness, there were some acts of charity. Ken Lobo said he helped a friend who owns a restaurant hand out food.

Dr. Carlos Tejo worked quietly to clean up his one-story frame house that was flattened by the storm. He and his wife, Maria, moved into the basement laundry room and tool shop.

"I'm going to rebuild this with cement walls and a cement floor so this won't happen again," Tejo said as he looked through the rubble.

Mrs. Tejo, who was born a few months before the island's last major hurricane in 1928, said they never thought of leaving St. Croix.

"I have gone through a lot, and I am not leaving," she said. "We have survived."

The island remained without water, power and telephone service, and officials said it could take a month or more to restore the utilities.

Trees and downed power lines littered the highways. Hugo blew the roof off nearly every building on the island when it struck Monday.

Wrecked boats were piled on top of each other in a waterfront street.

NEW YORK — Rescue workers on a launch and rubber rafts take passengers off the wreckage of a USAir that splashed into the East River Wednesday night.

Jet skids into river after aborted takeoff

NEW YORK (AP) — A USAir jetliner with 61 people aborted a takeoff and skidded into the East River, killing at least two people and leaving three missing. About 10 people were rescued clinging to driftwood, and one survivor hailed a cab home, authorities said.

The pilot of the 9-month-old Boeing 737-400 decided to abort the takeoff from LaGuardia Airport late Wednesday for an unknown reason, authorities said.

"Something happened and he put on the brakes. The plane took a dip and the next thing I knew all hell broke loose," said passenger Larry Martin of New York City, who huddled in blankets with his wife, Valerie.

"People were on top of each other. People were screaming. There was the smell of gas. Everyone was saying 'Get out! Get out! Get out!'" he said. The Martins got out, and held fast to driftwood until a police boat plucked them from the water.

Officials said two passengers in the rear of the jet were killed. But 51 passengers escaped without serious injuries, said Mayor Edward Koch, who was at the scene.

There were reports of a third death, but Stephen Berger, executive director of the Port Authority, which operates the airport, said that could not be confirmed.

Two people were hospitalized in serious condition, and a third person was in stable condition after suffering a heart attack.

Authorities said early today that three passengers were missing. Berger said several people walked away from the scene, and at least one person took a taxi home.

Flight 5050 was bound for Charlotte, N.C., with 55 passengers and six crew members, said Susan Young, a USAir spokeswoman in Arlington, Va.

The flight, originally scheduled for departure at 7:27 p.m., was delayed because of heavy rain, as were all flights into and out of the New York area. Officials said, however, that weather was not a factor in the crash.

The plane was delivered new to USAir in January, and had no history of mechanical problems, said Nancy Vaughan, another USAir spokeswoman.

The plane split into three pieces, with the nose of the jetliner perched on a pylons about 10 feet above the water. The other pieces were partly submerged in 25- to 40-foot-deep Bowery Bay.

"What held it up was a (small) bridge," Koch said of the front of the plane. "The back section, God held that up."

Some survivors crawled onto the wing to await rescue, while others — some shoeless — slid out exits into the water.

"They were hanging from the pier, hanging on the wing, hanging from the front of the plane," said police Lt. Larry Johnston.

Coast Guard boats and planes, police vehicles, a cherry picker and divers responded.

Quayle denounces North Korea

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle today visited U.S. and South Korean troops near the demilitarized zone and denounced Communist North Korea as a fanatical dictatorship.

Quayle, who donned a U.S. Army camouflage jacket at one point, inspected a tunnel under the demilitarized zone that was unearthed in 1978 and said North Korea posed a grave threat to South Korea.

"If anybody thinks North Korea is a passive nation, I suggest they go down and visit this tunnel. I think it shows the fanaticism of that country and how far they are willing to go to export destabilization," he said.

The tunnel is one of several discovered by South Korean and U.S. troops leading from the North into the South under the zone dividing the nations.

South Korean officials say the tunnels were to be used in the event of an invasion.

Quayle visited the demilitarized zone on the last day of his visit to South Korea. He then flew to Tokyo, where he was to meet briefly with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain, who is there on an official visit, and to attend a reception beginning the International Democratic Union conference.

Activists defy conscription laws

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — More than 780 white men have pledged to defy South Africa's conscription laws, the largest challenge ever of mandatory military service, leaders of a draft resistance campaign announced today.

Names of the conscientious objectors were released at news conferences in six cities. Organizers said the protest was part of a nationwide defiance campaign waged by anti-apartheid groups since early August.

In Durban, police broke up a march by about 400 black high school students who were demanding that authorities act against a man they accused of kidnapping and killing some of their classmates.

Students at the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg held a rally to protest the detention of several fellow students involved in anti-apartheid efforts.

The men joining the draft resistance campaign include many who have yet to be drafted and others who have completed their initial two-year period of service but say they will refuse to attend mandatory call-up camps.

"We are not prepared to serve in a racist defense force to uphold a racist system," said Chris de Villiers, a lawyer who is acting chairman of the banned End Conscription Campaign.

Ten bombs explode in Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Ten bombs exploded early today in Bogota, causing heavy damage to nine offices of Colombia's main political parties and to one bank, police said. At least two people were reported injured.

Bombings have occurred almost daily since the government declared a crackdown on Colombia's powerful cocaine traffickers on Aug. 18.

The explosions came hours after lawmakers urged the government to publicize reported "black lists" of corrupt politicians and officials.

Colombian newspapers today published the names of 25 lawmakers and politicians, including a Liberal Party presidential candidate, who the papers said had their U.S. visas denied or canceled.

"This shows the total decadence we are living in in this country. It's a senseless war," said Emilio Barguch, secretary-general of the Conservative Party. He said one blast destroyed national party headquarters.

Liberal Party leader Julio Cesar Sanchez, a former Bogota mayor, called for an emergency meeting of the Congress to discuss additional security measures.

On Wednesday, the Senate asked the government for a U.S. list with names of politicians denied visas because of suspected drug connections.

It also passed a resolution urging the government to make public other lists with names of politicians and government leaders alleged to have links with the cartels. Barco has said he's not aware of any such lists.

Proud dentist claims he's old — but not old-fashioned

DEAR ABBY: Please allow me to respond to the letter in your column from "Zita," the registered dental hygienist from Hicksville, N.Y. She said she is "exhausted and emotionally drained" from treating patients who were formerly under the care of "two elderly dentists" who were "trained in an era of dentistry that did not understand periodontal disease and hadn't learned anything since," and that "dentures were something that were expected by most older people in the 1920s through the 1950s." She closed by stating that the vast majority of older dentists "have not kept up with the times."

Dear Abby

Zita, this year I will have completed 50 years in dentistry. I, and my colleagues, resent your statement that we did not understand periodontal disease (gum disease). I was a clinical instructor of periodontia at the University of California in the 1950s, and we used the same hand instruments for scaling under the gums that you use today. The modern cry about calculus, plaque, gum stimulation, mouthwashes and immaculate oral hygiene were given to patients then. You are very naive if you actually believe that you — in the so-called modern generation — developed all these new techniques, unknown to us "older" dentists.

We had local, state and national societies that were very well attended for any update not only in periodontics, but all phases of dentistry. I cannot tell you whether the dentists in Hicksville attend their society meetings, any more than I can tell you how many dental hygienists attend their component society meetings. But I assume that after spending the time, effort and money to get a degree, they will keep current in whatever field of endeavor they are in.

I do not want to be the exception in my profession as one of the "old" dentists who was informed. I just want to be one of the thousands of dentists who were, and still are, respected, qualified and well-educated. — JERRY RANDALL, D.D.S., PALM SPRINGS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: The recent article written by a dental hygienist prompts me to reply, as my experience was just the opposite of hers.

I consulted a new dentist for a routine examination and was shocked when he criticized the work of my previous dentist. He told me that I would need a lot of corrective work — full mouth restoration, replacing old fillings, capping teeth — at a tremendous price.

I decided to get a second opinion — this time with another "new" dentist. He said my mouth was fine, cleaned my teeth, and told me how to take care of my gums.

Now, years later, I have moved to a new city and consulted a "new" dentist. He told me my old fillings are still sound and nothing needs replacing.

So, I suggest a second opinion before undertaking extensive, expensive dental work, especially when recommended by a dentist who may have some fancy ideas. — J.L.E., NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., CANADA

DEAR J.L.E.: I recommend getting a second opinion if there is any question about the first. And just to be sure, consider a third.

Parenting with faith

EL PASO (AP) — Hispanic parents must break with the tradition of overprotecting their children to shield them from failure, says a woman who has raised three — including a recent graduate of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy.

Martha Jaramillo, a bus driver for the El Paso Independent School District for the past 13 years, said it isn't money that's important in raising a child.

"What is important is that you have faith in your children. You have to teach them to not crack under pressure. As parents, we must also understand that if we hold our children back, we will cripple them into a dependency they might never shake loose."

Mrs. Jaramillo, born and reared in El Paso and a 1966 graduate of Loretto Academy, said she is troubled by reports of youths involved in drive-by shootings and other gang activities.

Divorced six years ago, she said she has maintained an active lifestyle because she wants her children — Luis Felipe, 22; Mireya, 19; and Sergio, 17 — to learn by example.

Martha Jaramillo encourages other Hispanic parents to become more involved in their children's activities and in the community.

In September, she will become president of a group of school district employees, the El Paso Independent School District's Association of Operational and Maintenance Personnel.

"You have to be a role model for your children, and that can't be done if all you do is sit at home and worry about your problems, financial or otherwise," Mrs. Jaramillo said.

"I wonder why Hispanic parents, especially in El Paso, like to hold on to their children and protect them so much.

"Any young person, no matter what their economic background, can succeed. But that child needs the parent's support. Just be there to pat your child on the back when something good happens, or to punish when it's something bad."

Mireya Jaramillo, a sophomore criminal justice major at the University of Texas at El Paso, said her mother always told her if she wants something she has to work hard for it.

"She also taught me to accept change as a constant, because nothing ever stays the same," Mireya Jaramillo said. "She taught us responsibility and she taught us that if we are to succeed as a family we've got to help each other out."

Sergio Jaramillo is a junior at Burges High School, where his sister and brother graduated, and he wants to follow his brother into the Coast Guard Academy.

"My oldest brother has my role model, too, because he knew from a very young age that he wanted to attend a military academy."

"Everything he did was geared toward that end, toward that goal."

Luis Felipe Jaramillo graduated from the academy in May with a bachelor of science degree in math and computer science. He is an ensign stationed at Northampton, N.H.

"We all have learned from our mom," Sergio Jaramillo said. "She's our inspiration. Maybe she didn't have a college education, but she never gave up."

Their mother said it was tough getting divorced, because it happened at a crucial age for the children.

Students are furnishing homier dorm rooms

(AP) Even though a student's request for permission to install a whirlpool tub was turned down by the Rhode Island School of Design, dorm rooms have come a long way from the drab cells of the past.

As college students return to school this fall, they're furnishing their rooms with loft beds, sophisticated wall decor and area rugs. They're also bringing an ever-increasing array of home electronics products to supply creature comforts in rooms where austerity once reigned.

Loft beds, which turn the typical small dorm room into a more spacious environment, are popular around the country. At design schools like RISD, students are apt to make elaborate lofts and even to build in furniture as part of their school projects.

The same is true at Connecticut's University of Bridgeport. At UB, besides building lofts, some students have removed the university's furniture to bring in their own, said Allen Longendyke, assistant dean of student life.

Fairfield University will soon be supplying loft beds as standard issue furniture. New furniture that's on order will be stackable, according to Jeanne DiMuzo, director of orientation.

At least one of New York State's various campuses even stocks a ready-made loft bed. A 6-foot-high platform sells for about $200 at SUNY Plattsburgh, according to George Layman, manager of the college store.

Other furnishings Layman carries for rooms include area rugs, floor pillows, corduroy bolsters for the bed and school emblem blankets. But most popular of all at SUNY and elsewhere around the country are colorful plastic milk crates which students use as makeshift stepladders to those loft beds and to store records, tapes, books and even dirty laundry.

Those who have been out of school for some years might be surprised to learn that many schools allow quite a bit of leeway in decorating rooms, often permitting students to paint their own room, provided the color meets general bounds of livability for future occupants.

"The guideline is that when you leave the room it should be in the same shape as when you came," said Mark Orbe, assistant director of residence life at RISD. But when the improvement is attractive enough — a mural or perhaps a piece of built-in furniture — it is often left in place, he added.

Barbecued elephant for dinner

AKROTIRI, Cyprus (AP) — Around 10,000 years ago, the first known settlers on Cyprus barbecued small-sized hippopotamus and elephant in a cliff-side shelter overlooking the Mediterranean Sea.

American archaeologists studying their trash heap suggest the menu also included a turkey-like bird, snake and a soup made from seashells.

The dig, known as Site E, near the sprawling British military base at Akrotiri in southern Cyprus, shows that humans arrived on the island about 8,000 B.C., 1,000 years earlier than was previously thought.

Archaeologists believe the excavation may also explain how the pig-sized pygmy hippo and pony-sized dwarf elephant, once common on Cyprus, became extinct.

"It's a very important site... it's the first association of human material — chipped stone tools — with hippo and elephant bones," said Stuart Swiny, director of the Cyprus American Archaeological Research Institute which provides logistical back-up for the dig.

"People used to think they died out before man arrived on the island," he said. "Now it's a reasonable speculation that hunting helped drive them to extinction."

Experts had thought the miniature hippos and elephants failed to survive the last Ice Age, which ended around 12,000 B.C.

But Carbon-14 dating of burned soil and bone samples from the site gave consistent dates of around 8,000 B.C., excavation director Alan Simmons said.

A British air force officer, Brian Pile, alerted archaeologists to the site in 1980 after he found what he thought were human bones sticking out of a crumbling cliff.

During last summer's excavation, the archaeologists unearthed the remains of at least 120 hippos from the trash heap. They also found a handful of elephant bones, seashells that could have been boiled up to make broth and some small chipped stone tools.

Top children's entertainer back

TORONTO (AP) — In an obscure suburban rehearsal hall, Raffi prepared to return to his pre-school audience after a one-year sabbatical took the children's entertainer away from the grind of concert tours. He and his four-piece band ran through every chord and gesture certain to delight a young crowd, from "Shake My Sillyies Out" to the nonsense words that turn "apples and bananas" into "ooples and banoonooos."

Raffi has sold more than 4 million records and created a one-man cottage industry of children's books and videos based on the principle that little kids — and their parents — can be treated with respect.

He is slowly returning to work. Instead of the usual string of concerts, he has scheduled only six shows in September, four of them in Canada and two at New York's Carnegie Hall.

Then Raffi, who uses just his first name, plans to spend the fall recording his first album that won't be aimed exclusively to an audience five years old or younger.

The attempt to broaden his audience allows greater vocabulary and more difficult concepts than in his previous work, but doesn't mean he's not happy with his role as a children's entertainer.

The sabbatical, he explained en route to his office after the rehearsal finished for the day, was spent mostly at home in Toronto and consisted of "no concerts, no interviews, and no thinking about a next record."

"It took me out of the treadmill, out of the career demands," the 41-year-old folksinger said. "It allowed me to listen to my own inner voice again."

Howard County Fair presents singer Clyde Foley Cummins

By KAREN MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

Clyde Foley Cummins returns to the Howard County Fair this year with performances Friday and Saturday nights at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. in the entertainment booth.

He is here for the fifth year because of popular request, said fair board member Arnold Marshall, who added that as long as Howard County fairgoers enjoy him and attend the fair to see his performances, the fair board would certainly ask him to return.

Although Cummins is primarily known as a country showman, his repertoire includes a variety of musical styles, including sacred and patriotic songs and top hits. His performances are geared toward family entertainment and his shows offer something to please almost everyone.

Cummins grew up in a musical family. His grandfather was the late Red Foley. He is the nephew of singer Pat Boone and the cousin of Debby Boone, and frequently performs on his uncle's TV show.

After attending the University of Kansas, where he majored in music and was drum major for KU's "Marching Jayhawks" band, Cummins moved to Nashville. In 1982 he founded the five-member Clyde Foley Cummins Band. Cummins, besides being a highly-skilled vocalist, is proficient on 12 musical instruments.

"He is a fine entertainer," said Howard County singer Jody Nix. "Cummins has a wide variety of styles and he is very good in what he does."

Entertainment director Jewell Tubb said that crowd reaction to Clyde Foley Cummins has always been good.

"I watch the audience with each performer," she said, "and the audience's satisfaction with Clyde Foley each year tells me he's a good choice."

Cummins has performed at several state fairs, including the Texas State Fair, and has appeared in live performances with such singers as Lee Greenwood, Mel Tillis, Brenda Lee, Glen Campbell and B.J. Thomas.

Admission to the Clyde Foley Cummins show is included in the fair admission price.

Big Spring Fire Marshall Burr Lea Settles, left, is caught clowning around with John Howlett of Splendor. Howlett has been delighting children with his magic shows and his balloon animals this week at the Howard County Fair.

Jock-o delights children at fair

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Fuzzy green hair and size 16 shoes is a small price to pay for a child's smile — and a steady paycheck.

That's how Jock-o T. Clown feels anyway. A featured performer at this year's Howard County Fair, Jock-o literally walked into his job with the fair and stumbled upon his career as a clown.

When he was John Howlett in Illinois, he worked for International Harvester. That company fell on hard times seven years ago, however, and Howlett found himself out of work.

"My very good friend Yo-Yo the Clown lives in the Houston area," and I came to see him. Yo-Yo became Howlett's mentor, giving him the full benefit of 25 years of clown experience.

With seven years under his belt, Howlett/Jock-o (the T. stands for "the") has perfected an act that includes forming more than 150 animals out of balloons. He also does magic, juggles and has a patter that children love.

Howlett's career soared recently when he took over many of the dates Yo-Yo had contracted for. The Houston clown suffered a heart attack and went into temporary retirement to make a full recovery.

As Jock-o meanwhile, Howlett has been traveling from city to city. He had planned to stop in Big Spring for a six-day rest period between the Medina County Fair and his next date in Lubbock.

His original plan was to perform some charity work for the Muscular Dystrophy Association during his layover. While making enquiries, he was told about the Howard County Fair and in no time he was signed up for a four-day run.

Jock-o's last day is Friday, although Howlett said he would love to come back for next year's fair.

Gospel music night is new fair attraction

"For the first time, the Howard County Fair is having a "Gospel Night at the Fair", said Entertainment Director Jewell Tubb. "We think people are going to enjoy it."

Tim Thornton, music director of the First Baptist Church, has organized a program of gospel music, Tubb said. The program will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday evening in the Entertainment Tent. Admission is free to fairgoers.

Scheduled to perform are:

- 7:00 Jamie and Kelly Killion and Sheila Long;
- 7:30 Bud Shockey and Diane Posey;
- 8:00 Chris Ashley, Amy Storie and Beverly Warren;
- 8:30 Wade Burroughs and friends;
- 9:00 Carl Reynolds, Homer Wilkerson and Murry Vise Jr.;
- 9:30 Tim Thornton

"I think this is a show a lot of people will really enjoy," said Tubb, who added that it could become a regular feature at the fair if there is enough interest.

PUBLIC NOTICE BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS SPECIAL ELECTION NOVEMBER 7, 1989

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT
House Joint Resolution 102 proposes a constitutional amendment that would increase the salary of members of the legislature to one-fourth of the Governor's salary and increase the salary of the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker of the House of Representatives to one-half of the Governor's salary. The annual salary of members of the legislature, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives is currently $7,200. Under this provision, the annual salary of the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker would be $48,716, and the annual salary of members of the legislature would be $23,358, based on the Governor's current annual salary of $93,432. The increase for the Speaker and the members of the legislature would take effect when the legislature convenes for its regular session in January 1991. The increase for the Lieutenant Governor would take effect when the term of that office begins in 1991. The salary increase for the Lieutenant Governor would not make members of the legislature ineligible to run for the office of Lieutenant Governor.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to limit the salary of the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the house of representatives to not more than one-half of the governor's salary and to limit the salary of a member of the legislature to not more than one-fourth of the governor's salary."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT
Senate Joint Resolution 5 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the Texas Water Development Board to issue an additional $500 million of Texas water development bonds. The additional bonds are to be used as follows: $250 million of the bonds are to be used for water supply loans and facilities acquisition; $200 million of the bonds are to be used for water quality enhancement projects; and $50 million of the bonds are to be used for flood control. The legislature may provide that $100 million be used for subsidized loans and grants to economically distressed areas of the state for water and wastewater facilities.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to authorize the issuance of an additional $500 million of Texas water development bonds for water supply, water quality, and flood control purposes."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT
House Joint Resolution 51 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to provide for the issuance of general obligation bonds to provide money to establish a Texas agricultural fund, a rural microenterprise development fund, a Texas product development fund, and a Texas small business incubator fund in the state treasury. The Texas agricultural fund would be used to provide financial assistance to develop, increase, improve, or expand the production, processing, marketing, or export of crops or products grown or produced in Texas by Texas agricultural businesses. The rural microenterprise development fund would be used to stimulate the creation and expansion of small businesses in rural areas. The Texas product development fund would be used to aid in the development and production of new or improved products in this state. The Texas small business incubator fund would be used to stimulate the development of small businesses in the State.
The principal amount of bonds outstanding at one time could not exceed $25 million for the Texas agricultural fund and $5 million for the rural microenterprise development fund. The financial assistance offered by both funds could include loan guarantees, insurance, co-insurance, loans, and indirect loans or purchases or acceptances of assignments of loans or other obligations. To carry out the Texas product development fund, the legislature could authorize loans, loan guarantees, and equity investments, and the issuance of up to $25 million of general obligation bonds for initial funding. To carry out the Texas small business incubator fund, the legislature could authorize loans and grants of money, and the issuance of up to $20 million of general obligation bonds for initial funding.

Bonds authorized under this amendment would be paid out of the first money coming into the treasury in each fiscal year that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution, less any amount in any interest and sinking account at the end of the preceding fiscal year that is pledged to payment of the bonds or interest.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for the recovery and further development of the state's economy, with goals of increasing job opportunities and other benefits for Texas residents, through state financing of the development and production of Texas products and businesses."

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT
House Joint Resolution 13 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature, by general law, to exempt from ad valorem taxes property owned by nonprofit veterans organizations that are chartered or incorporated by the United States Congress.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to exempt property of nonprofit veterans organizations from ad valorem taxation."

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT
Senate Joint Resolution 11 proposes a constitutional amendment that would provide an exemption from ad valorem taxation for goods, wares, merchandise, other tangible personal property (including aircraft), and ores (other than oil, gas, and petroleum products) if the property is acquired in or imported into the state and is destined to be forwarded out of the state, regardless of whether the intention to forward the property existed when the property was acquired or imported into the state, if it remains in Texas for 175 days or less for assembly, storage, manufacture, processing, or fabrication. The proposed amendment would authorize the governing body of a county, municipality, school district, or junior college district to prevent the exemption of this tangible personal property from taxation by taking official action before April 1, 1990. A county, municipality, school district, or junior college district could rescind a decision to tax the property, in which case the exemption would become effective in the year of the rescission and the property could not thereafter be taxed.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment promoting economic growth, job creation, and fair tax treatment for Texans who export goods to other states and nations by restoring and allowing, on a local option basis, an ad valorem tax exemption for certain personal property that is in Texas only temporarily for the purpose of assembling, storing, manufacturing, processing or fabricating."

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT
House Joint Resolution 4 proposes a constitutional amendment that would enable the legislature to provide, by general or special law, that members of a hospital district board may serve terms not to exceed four years. Currently, hospital district board members' terms are two years.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "Authorizing the members of a hospital district governing board to serve four-year terms."

PROPOSITION NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

All elected and appointed officers would be required to take an oath and affirm to faithfully execute the duties of office and to preserve, protect, and defend the constitution and laws of the State and the United States. In addition, each elected and appointed officer would be required to sign a sworn statement that he or she had not paid, offered, or promised anything of value for a vote or to secure appointment to an office, as applicable. The written, sworn statement would be filed with the secretary of state. The information in the statement is currently contained in the oaths of office taken by elected and appointed officials.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to require that a member of the legislature, the secretary of state, and an elected or appointed officer, before assuming office, sign a written oath stating that the member, the secretary of state, or the officer did not engage in bribery to obtain the office."

PROPOSITION NO. 8 ON THE BALLOT
Senate Joint Resolution 24 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the legislature to authorize the issuance of up to $400 million in general obligation bonds. The proceeds of the bonds could be used to acquire, construct, or equip new correctional institutions, mental health and mental retardation institutions, youth corrections institutions, and statewide law enforcement facilities and to repair and renovate existing facilities of those institutions. The bonds would constitute a general obligation of the state. The bonds and interest on the bonds would be paid from the first money coming into the treasury that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution, less any amount in a sinking fund at the end of the preceding fiscal year that is pledged to payment of the bonds or interest.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds for projects relating to facilities of corrections institutions, youth corrections institutions, and mental health and mental retardation institutions and for the expansion of statewide law enforcement facilities."

PROPOSITION NO. 9 ON THE BALLOT
House Joint Resolution 101 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to pass laws to organize and combine state agencies that perform criminal justice functions. The legislature could combine into one or more agencies all agencies that have authority over the confinement and supervision of convicted criminals, that set standards for or distribute state funds to political subdivisions with authority over the confinement and supervision of convicted criminals, and that gather information about criminal justice administration. The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to organize and combine various state agencies that perform criminal justice functions."

PROPOSITION NO. 10 ON THE BALLOT
Senate Joint Resolution 4 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to enact laws requiring or permitting judges to advise juries that a defendant convicted of a criminal offense can receive credit for good conduct that results in a shorter prison term and that eligibility for parole or mandatory supervision can also affect the length of time a convicted criminal serves in prison.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to require or permit courts to inform juries about the effect of good conduct time and eligibility for parole or mandatory supervision on the period of incarceration served by a defendant convicted of a criminal offense."

The amount of per diem allowed during a calendar year would be equal to the maximum amount allowed for federal income tax purposes as of January 1 of that same year as a deduction for living expenses incurred by a state legislator. The per diem of $80 would increase to $81, which is the current maximum living expense deduction.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to set the amount of per diem received by a member of the legislature at the amount allowed for federal income tax purposes as a deduction for living expenses incurred by a state legislator in connection with official business."

If the permanent school fund were required to make payment as a result of its guarantee of bonds issued by the state, the fund would have to be reimbursed immediately from the state treasury. The amount of bonds guaranteed by the permanent school fund could not exceed $750 million unless a higher amount was authorized by a two-thirds vote of both houses of the legislature. If a school district were to become delinquent on a loan, the amount of the delinquency would be offset against other aid to which the district was entitled.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to provide for using the permanent school fund and its income to guarantee bonds issued by the state for the purpose of aiding school districts."

PROPOSITION NO. 13 ON THE BALLOT
House Joint Resolution 19 proposes a constitutional amendment that would provide a bill of rights for crime victims. This constitutional amendment would give crime victims the right to be treated with fairness and respect and to be reasonably protected from the defendant. On his request, the crime victim would have the right to notification of court proceedings, the right to be present at all public court proceedings unless a court determines that the victim's testimony would be affected by hearing other testimony, the right to confer with a representative of the prosecutor's office, the right to restitution, and the right to information about the conviction, sentence, imprisonment, and release of the defendant. The amendment would also permit the legislature to authorize the creation of hospital districts by general or special law in counties with populations of 75,000 or less and to authorize the commissioners courts of such counties to levy ad valorem taxes and issue general obligation bonds for the support and maintenance of such districts.
The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment granting to the people the right to decide whether to create and maintain hospital districts to protect the public well-being in a manner independent of the legislature."

The Herald will play the National Guard this Sunday afternoon.

Steers test physical 'Dogs'

By STEVE BELVIN

BIG SPRING — When the Big Spring Steers and Plainview Bulldogs clash Friday night, one thing is for sure — it will be a hard-hitting contest.

Both coaches agree, their teams are the aggressors when they get on the football field. Steers coach David Thompson has been preaching aggressiveness since he got to Big Spring, and it seems to be paying off.

Big Spring is playing much better defense than last year when it allowed 300 yards per game. In a win over Hobbs and a loss to Lubbock Estacado, the Steer defense is allowing 240 yards per game, including almost 400 in the Estacado game last week. The Steers fell to the big play; 140 of Estacado's yards came in two plays.

"I thought maybe we were not as aggressive in the first half against Estacado," said Thompson. "But we got with it in the second half," he said, indicating that Estacado only gained 140 yards in the second half; 70 of it coming on the winning TD pass.

"Plainview is a very physical team," Thompson said. "They're not that big, but they get after it. We'll see just how physical we are Friday night."

Coach Steve Parr's Plainview Bulldogs roll into Memorial Stadium sporting an impressive 2-0 record. Before having an open week last week, the Bulldogs defeated Clovis, N.M. 15-10 and Lubbock Estacado 34-21. Clovis is ranked No. 3 in New Mexico, and Estacado is picked to win District 1-4A.

Parr and Thompson are in similar surroundings. Parr, also in his second year at Plainview, came from Slaton, the same district Thompson coached in at Post.

BIG SPRING — Big Spring Steers backup quarterback Shane Myrick (12) hands off to running back Jim Rangel during pre-game practice last Friday before the Lubbock Estacado game. The Steers host the Plainview Bulldogs Friday at 8 p.m.

Last year was a rebuilding year for the Bulldogs, who went 4-6 in District 3-5A. This year the oddsmakers have the Bulldogs picked to get into the playoffs.

The Bulldogs return seven offensive and eight defensive starters from last year's team that beat Big Spring 34-16.

"Our biggest difference this year is experience," said Parr. "We're a lot like coach Thompson and his staff. This is our second year, the kids are adjusting to the new program. We're more familiar with the kids and they're more familiar with us."

The Bulldogs' Wing-T offense has rolled in its two wins, averaging 360 yards. "We've got a good group of young men, they get after it real well," said Parr.

The Bulldogs offensive attack is run by senior quarterback J.J. Smith, a 6-0, 180-pounder who was the starter last year. In fact, the Bulldogs return the whole starting offensive backfield.

"We haven't thrown much, only 13 times. But J.J. can throw the ball, we just haven't had too that much," said Parr. "But I know there's going to come a time when they stop our run and we have to pass. That might be this week."

Fullback Brian Brazier, a 5-8, 185-pound senior, heads the Bulldogs ground attack. He's averaging 140 yards per game. Tailback Stan Robertson, a 6-1, 185-pound senior, is also off to a good start, averaging 115 yards per game. Wingback Ellison Collins, a 5-9, 170-pound senior, has rushed for 100 yards.

The Bulldogs backfield certainly has Thompson impressed. "They're a good running team," said Thompson. "They run a lot of sweeps, traps, and the fullback off

What happened to the serve Pam?

DALLAS (AP) — Pam Shriver has decided she can't go on much longer without her big weapon: her serve.

Shriver's disappointing year continued Wednesday night when she was upset in the second round of the $250,000 Dallas women's pro tennis tournament. Her doubles partner of the week, Anne Smith of Dallas, feasted on Shriver's second serves to win, 3-6, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4.

Smith, once No. 12 in the world, came into the tournament ranked 62nd. Shriver had a match point at 5-4 in the second set, but Smith saved it with a perfectly placed wide serve.

"My serve weighed heavily on me," said Shriver, whose ranking has fallen to No. 9. "It's a very uneasy feeling when you don't have your big weapon. That's pretty much been the story the last 18 months. I'm like in golf where people go through a stage where their putting stinks."

Shriver said she usually doesn't practice serves because of the toll it takes on her shoulder.

"But now that it's not there when I need it, I'll have to practice it in buckets," she said.

Shriver rued a missed volley — "a floater that I ended up pushing horribly deep" — that would have put her up 3-0 in the second set. But she said of her opponent, "If Anne stays healthy, she looks like she can be a factor again."

This is only Smith's third tournament of the year after four months out because of shin splints.

"Very satisfying," Smith said. "I'm finally playing well here (in her hometown). I've had a tough year. But tonight I hung in. I wanted to get it close. Then interesting things happen. If I could get a crack at some second serves and make her stretch, I knew I could have a chance."

Also advancing to the quarterfinals were No. 2 seed Arantxa Sanchez of Spain, who overcame Rene Simpson of Canada, 6-4, 6-1; fifth seed Monica Seles of Yugoslavia, who beat Elise Burgin of Baltimore, Md., 6-2, 6-3; and No. 8 seed Rosalyn Fairbank, who lives in San Diego, Calif., a 6-3, 6-4 winner over Shaun Stafford of Gainesville, Fla.

Sanchez played her first match on Supreme Court indoors and experimented with occasional net play in a match that included nine service breaks.

"I felt very confident, because I practiced one week here," said the French Open champion. "I had to pressure the other player more in the second set so that she doesn't have a chance."

"My next match against Seles should be very good," she said.

No. 1 seed Martina Navratilova will start the tournament Thursday with a second-round match against Dinky Van Rensburg of South Africa. Each of the top four seeds had byes in the first round.

BIG SPRING — Pam Shriver, of Baltimore, Md., looks up between plays in her second round match of the Virginia Slims of Dallas against Anne Smith. Smith won the match 3-6, 7-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Runner says Flo Jo purchased steroids

NEW YORK (AP) — Sprinter Darrell Robinson said today that Olympic gold-medal winner Florence Griffith Joyner bought growth hormones from him.

Griffith Joyner, who has consistently denied taking any banned substances, described Robinson's charge as the remarks of a compulsive liar.

Robinson detailed alleged dealings with Griffith Joyner in the West German magazine Stern. He also told the publication that he was told to take anabolic steroids by Tom Tellez, coach of the Santa Monica track club and of Olympic champion Carl Lewis.

He repeated the charge today on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

"I never gave him a dime for anything," Griffith Joyner said on the show. She was in the network's New York studio, while Robinson, who had been scheduled to be in the studio with her, was interviewed from Toronto.

Robinson said Griffith Joyner had asked him to get growth hormones for her, because "I have connections," and paid him $2,000 in 20 $100 bills.

Griffith Joyner said: "Darrell, you are a compulsive, crazy, lying, lunatic."

Robinson, the 1986 national 400-meter champion, responded: "The truth will come out."

everything that was in this article."

Robinson alleges that Griffith Joyner asked him to look into the price of the hormones. He said that, when he told her it would cost "$2,000 for 10 cubic centimeters," she said "that's crazy."

Robinson quotes Griffith Joyner as saying, "If you want to make a million, you've got to invest a few thousand." Robinson says that a few days later, Griffith Joyner gave him a "wad of 20 hundred-dollar bills."

Robinson said he purchased the hormones and delivered them to Griffith Joyner on Venice Boulevard in Los Angeles in mid-March 1988.

"He claims in the article he met me once and I gave him money for drugs on Venice Boulevard. It doesn't say the date. It just says March of last year. That's why I want the date, because I keep a diary of everything I do",

— Florence Griffith Joyner.

Griffith Joyner said she read the entire article and found many inaccuracies.

"He said he was in law school at UCLA, and he wasn't," she said. "I listened to his problems and I was there to talk to him, but not about drugs. That's so far out. That he would make up a story about drugs is unbelievable."

Griffith Joyner was the Olympic champion in the 100- and 200-meter events and also won a gold in the 1,600-meter relay. Robinson was the 400-meter national champion in 1986.

During the Seoul Olympics, Canada's Ben Johnson was stripped of his gold medal in the 100 meters when tests detected steroids in his system.

Griffith Joyner's business manager, Gordon Baskin, said legal action against Robinson would be considered.

"We will not back off when it comes to slander in this situation," Baskin said. "We will have our attorneys pursue this. An article of this kind will do damage, great damage."

"This is so horrendously wrong. When are they going to stop hitting on this girl? This young lady has never used drugs. This man, from what they tell me, is a compulsive liar."

The manager said Robinson was paid $25,000 by Stern.

GOLF
HOUSTON (AP) — Wally Mizell of Jacksonville, Fla., and Harry Gunn of Olympia Fields, Ill., led a parade of upsets in the first round of match play at the 1989 U.S. Senior Amateur golf tournament.

Mizell beat defending champion Clarence Moore of Winnsboro, S.C., 3 and 2, and Gunn defeated Frank Tenfelz of West Bend, Wis., 3 and 1.

BOXING
MOSCOW (AP) — Sharp-punching Tonga McClain advanced at the World Amateur Boxing Championships, but two other Americans lost.

Six members of the young, 12-boxer U.S. team now have seen action, and three have lost. McClain, 19, of Racine, Wis., bombarded Oshio Osawa of Japan with head blows and scored a 38-14 victory under the new computerized scoring system in a 132-pound bout.

The U.S. losers were Paul Vaden, 21 of Puyallup, Wash. at 156 pounds, and Larry Donald, 22 of Cincinnati, a super heavyweight.

FOOTBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Marino of Miami, who reached the 200-touchdown pass mark quicker than anyone in history, was named the AFC's player of the week and rookie linebacker Derrick Thomas, who had 2½ sacks for Kansas City in only his second NFL game, earned defensive honors.

Marino had three touchdown passes to lead the Dolphins to a 24-10 win over New England, giving him 200 for his career in just 89 games, 32 games fewer than Johnny Unitas, who held the previous mark.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former University of Oklahoma quarterback Jack Mildren is off and running in a new arena — politics.

Mildren, 39, who was a Texas high school football star in Abilene, on Wednesday became the first candidate to announce for the 1990 lieutenant governor's race.

A Democrat, Mildren pledged to be "an aggressive advocate" for state businesses.

American East race tightens up

By The Associated Press
Finally, the Baltimore Orioles made up a full game on the Toronto Blue Jays. It only took a full month.

For the first time since Aug. 20, the Orioles won on the same day that Toronto lost. Baltimore routed Detroit 9-2 while Boston beat the first-place Blue Jays 10-3 Wednesday night, pulling the Orioles to within one game in the American League East.

Toronto had lost seven times in the last month, but Baltimore also lost on four of those days and was idle on the other three. Jeff Ballard, 18-7, won for the seventh time in eight decisions. The Orioles supported him with 17 hits, tying as season high. Mickey Tettleton contributed his 25th home run and four RBIs.

Ballard began the season with a 10-20 career record in the majors. This year, he is the winningest left-hander in the league.

The Orioles are averaging six runs in Ballard's starts and four runs in all other games. Tim Lulett contributed four hits and Tettleton and Craig Worthington got three each.

Baltimore won for the fourth time in five games. Detroit has lost four of five and fell to 20-58 on the road.

Frank Tanana, 9-14, took the loss. He gave up two runs in the first inning and has now allowed 28 earned runs in the first innings of his 31 starts.

Red Sox 10, Blue Jays 3
Dwight Evans homered and drove in three runs and Wade

Boggs snapped a 2-for-29 slump with a pair of RBI singles as Boston won at Toronto.

Roger Clemens, 16-10, gave up three runs on nine hits in eight innings. Jimmy Key, 12-14, allowed six runs on 10 hits in three-plus innings.

The Red Sox got 14 hits, including five doubles. They are 8½ games behind the Blue Jays.

Boston hit a triple, two doubles and a single in taking a 3-0 lead in the second inning. Boggs went 2-for-5 and raised his average to .323, third in the league. His average dropped from .336 to .322 during the slump.

Athletics 8, Indians 6
Rickey Henderson led off with a home run for the 40th time. Tony Phillips hit a bases-loaded triple during a five-run rally in the sixth inning and Oakland held its 2½-game lead over California in the AL West.

Storm Davis, 18-7, won for the ninth time in 11 starts as the Athletics completed a three-game sweep at Cleveland. Davis is 15-4 since coming back from a strained hamstring in June, and Dennis Eckersley got his 30th save.

Angels 9, Twins 1
Jim Abbott scattered nine hits and Tony Armas' RBI single broke a seventh-inning tie as California kept pace in the AL West.

The Angels won for the 10th time in 13 games and are 11-2 against Minnesota this season. The host Twins lost their fourth straight game.

Abbott, 12-11, struck out six and walked two in his fourth complete game, which came one day after his 22nd birthday.

Rangers 3, Mariners 2
Ruben Sierra broke a seventh-inning tie with a sacrifice fly, increasing his league-leading RBI total to 113, as host Texas won its fourth straight game.

Mike Jeffcoat, 9-5, got his fourth consecutive victory and Jeff Russell got his 36th save, giving the Rangers a team record-tying 42 saves this season.

Keith Comstock, 1-2, took the loss. His two-base wild pitch enabled the tying run to score in the seventh and Sierra followed with his go-ahead fly ball.

Jeffrey Leonard hit his career-high 24th home run, giving him a career-high 87 RBIs, in the sixth. Ken Griffey followed with his 16th homer for Seattle.

White Sox 7, Royals 2
At Royals Stadium, Ivan Calderon and Ozzie Guillen each hit two-run singles during a six-run second inning as Chicago chased Mark Gubicza and hurt Kansas City's hopes in the AL West.

The Royals lost for the fifth time in seven games and fell 4½ games behind Oakland. Gubicza, 15-11, lasted just 30 pitches and left with soreness behind his right shoulder. He leads the majors in starts and innings.

Melido Perez, 11-13, gave up six hits and struck out nine. He is 2-0 this season against his former team.

The White Sox loaded the bases with no outs in the second on two singles and a walk. Gubicza left after walking Robin Ventura and Guillen singled on Steve Crawford's first pitch.

TORONTO — Boston Red Sox Luis Rivera dives head first into third base during second inning action Wednesday night after hitting a triple.

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Reds shortstop Jeff Richardson makes a diving stop on a grounder hit by San Diego Padres batter Mike Pagliargulo in the fourth inning. Pagliargulo was given a hit on the play.

Hot San Francisco rallies to take 8-7 win over LA Dodgers

By The Associated Press
You really have to hand it to the San Francisco Giants, which is just what the Los Angeles Dodgers did.

"It's a crime to lose that one," Manager Tommy Lasorda said after watching his Dodgers blow a 7-0 lead en route to a stunning 8-7 loss to the National League West leaders Wednesday night.

For the fifth straight time, Dodger relievers blew a save opportunity, allowing the Giants to score five runs in the ninth inning without getting a single batter out.

Brett Butler's game-winning single capped a string of seven straight hits off three Dodger pitchers.

National League

"We've seen a lot of miracles this year, and we've just seen another one," said San Francisco manager Roger Craig, whose Giants reduced their magic number for winning the NL West to six.

The second-place San Diego Padres remained five games behind despite a 3-1, 10-inning victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Meanwhile, in the National League East, the St. Louis Cardinals made up ground on the front-running Chicago Cubs with a 5-3 win over the New York Mets. The Cardinals moved within three games of the Cubs, 9-8 losers to Philadelphia.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh beat Montreal 9-1 and Houston edged Atlanta 7-6 in 14 innings.

Kevin Mitchell opened the Giants' ninth-inning barrage with a home run, his 46th, off Dodgers relief ace Jay Howell. Ernest Riles singled and scored on Matt Williams' double to cut the lead to 7-5. Terry Kennedy singled to score Williams, chasing Howell and bringing in Mike Hartley.

ed, moving pinch-runner Mike Benjamin to third, and pinch-hitter Greg Litton singled to score the tying run and finish Hartley. Left-hander John Tudor came on to face Butler, who singled to cap the rally.

Hartley, 0-1, took the loss while Trevor Wilson, 2-3, earned the victory as the last of three Giants relievers who held the Dodgers hitless over the final 6-2-3 innings.

"The way things were going in the ninth, (Giants radio announcer) Hank Greenwald could have come out of the booth and got that game-winning hit," Butler said. "I just happened to be the guy up there at the time."

Padres 3, Reds 1
Jack Clark scored the winning run on third baseman Luis Quinones' throwing error in the 10th inning to lead San Diego over Cincinnati. It was the Padres' 23rd victory in their last 29 games and the Reds' ninth straight loss.

The defeat assured Cincinnati of its first losing season since 1984, when Pete Rose took over as player-manager.

Clark walked with one out in the 10th and moved to third on a single by Chris James off reliever Norm Charlton, 6-3. Quinones then fielded a sharply hit grounder by Benito Santiago and threw wide of home.

The error scored Clark and sent James to third, from where he scored on pinch-hitter, Carmelo Martinez's grounder.

Greg Harris, 7-8, allowed one hit in the ninth and got the victory, and Mark Davis pitched the 10th for his 41st save in 45 opportunities.

Phillies 9, Cubs 8
Von Hayes drove in four runs and Ricky Jordan's run-scoring single broke a sixth-inning tie as last-place Philadelphia held on to beat first-place Chicago.

Philadelphia's Darren Daulton went 5-for-5, but didn't score or drive in any runs.

The Phillies and Cubs combined for 36 hits, including 16 singles, a double and a triple by the Cubs. After four innings, the score was AUSTIN (AP) — Players in "fantasy football" leagues have something new to watch for besides opponents' defenses — the vice squad.

After raiding a make-believe football league at an Austin tavern, police said Wednesday such games constitute gambling and warned that other illegal leagues would be busted.

"We wanted to send a message out early in the season," Senior Sgt. Byron Cates said.

Eight men were free on bond and facing third-degree felony charges after a vice squad raid at Scholz Garten during Monday night's NFL game between the Denver Broncos and Buffalo Bills.

Those arrested were charged with engaging in organized crime, which Cates said is defined legally as three or more people taking part in a criminal activity.

tackle. A lot like we saw last week against Estacado.

"They are not as fast overall as Estacado, but they are more powerful, more physical. Both the halfback and fullback have good speed."

The Steers offense has moved the ball consistently also, mixing the run and pass well. So far Big Spring is averaging 280 yards per game.

Last week wingback Neal Mayfield had a big game, rushing for 96 yards in three carries, and catching two passes for 50 yards. Quarterback Rance Thompson had his usual consistent games, spreading out passes to Mayfield, tight end Joe Downey and fullback

He said the so-called "fantasy football" leagues are operating in a number of Austin bars, and are illegal.

"Anytime you place a wager or, any game of chance, it is a bet. It also could be considered a lottery since they paid $250 for a chance to win $3,000," Cates said.

Police said those arrested were accused of betting on performances of actual NFL players drafted into the make-believe leagues.

Cates said team "owners" paid $250 for a franchise in the fantasy league, then drafted real offensive players and tracked their performances in actual NFL games.

Each team had three quarterbacks, five running backs, plus wide receivers, tight ends and kickers. After each weekend's NFL games, the statistics for each player are tallied and the make-believe teams with the most points win their games.

Terry Bailey, for 11 completions in 19 attempts for 146 yards.

Coach Thompson still wants to get his running game in gear though. "We're still looking to improve our running game. It just hasn't been what we'd like it to be."

Mayfield is Big Spring's leading rusher, with 7 carries for 120 yards. Tailback Otis Riffey has 102 yards in 32 carries.

Big Spring safety Rye Bavin is expected to be available for action. Against Estacado, he suffered a sprained ankle. Defensive back Tim McQueary begins practice Monday, after recovering from a collarbone injury. Kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Singer-actress Laima Kazan said she is tired of playing mothers on television and film and fears that she is being typecast.

The 49-year-old Kazan, appearing at TropWorld Casino and Entertainment Resort this weekend with Jerry Lewis, received a New York Drama critic's Golden Globe Award in 1982 for her Jewish mother role in the film "My Favorite Year." In 1987, she was nominated for Emmy for playing the mother of comedian Howie Mandel on the television show "St. Elsewhere." And last year, she was in "Beaches," playing the mother of Bette Midler.

"I have to turn a lot of stuff down and it's really getting me down," said Ms. Kazan. "I really don't want to play another Jewish mother even though I do it well."

"Now I want to do mature leading lady roles," Ms. Kazan said.

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Ivan Lendl didn't have much time for a honeymoon.

The 29-year-old tennis star was married Friday to longtime girlfriend Samantha Frankel and played an exhibition match Monday in Vienna against Australian Thomas Muster. On Tuesday, he was in Barcelona, Spain, where he won a first-round doubles match in the County of Godo tournament.

The small, private wedding was held at Lendl's Greenwich home. Attending were Lendl's father, Jiri, who is a lawyer in Czechoslovakia, and his mother, Olga, who once was the No. 2-ranked woman player in Czechoslovakia.

Also at the small gathering of family and close friends was South African tennis player Christo van Rensburg, who is ranked 24th in the world.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Delilah Wallenda says she's proud to carry on the family circus tradition performing on the high wire, but she isn't sure her children ought to follow in her ever-so-careful footsteps.

"I'm torn," the sixth-generation high-wire artist said Tuesday between performances at the Tennessee State Fair. "I would like for them to carry on the tradition, but there is a lot of heartache in the circus."

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be prepared to work harder; channel your excess energy into constructive new outlets. Reassess a relationship. It might be better to cut your losses. Entertain in an unusual setting.

First Lady of Country Meadows

By STACY PAYNE

There are those very rare times when a person's character moves me so profoundly that when I think of the person I actually find myself wiping tears from my eyes. Honestly.

It was not a whole lot that Debbie Robinson actually did while I visited with her last week at Country Meadows, and it was much more than anything she said. It was her nature, her personality, her character. Quite frankly, I can't explain it, but while I was writing the article on the new nursing home earlier this morning, I began to cry when I remembered how she touched Nelie McMorries, how she smiled at Ted Stewart when she handed him the bread, how she laughed at his jokes.

I became a little teary-eyed when I remembered how she kissed her son and offered more mashed potatoes to Walter Kelly at the same time. And the woman is so relaxed the whole time you're talking to her that it makes you nervous. I'm not accustomed to being around someone who seems so at peace with the world.

Debbie is the administrator of Country Meadows. She is a wife and mother. She is a daughter and grand daughter. And she has a special purpose in this life: to serve the elderly.

And, oh, what a beautiful job she does!

She doesn't just take the vital signs of her residents, she doesn't just feed them delicious and well-balanced meals, she doesn't just present them with fresh, clean clothes and bed sheets everyday.

There are three residents there now, and room for three more. I checked out the whole house, and it is a lovely one. Louise Standefer, who owns the home, decorated it mostly with those lovely items given to her by children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. She is lucky enough to be the mother of Janie Linney, a prominent West Texas artist. Some of her work is displayed in the home as is the work of Brenda Standefer Driggers, her granddaughter, and also an accomplished artist.

The house is spotless. Everything is in place. And while beds are being made, the aroma of homemade brownies tickles your nose. Walk in the next day, and it is apple cobbler baking.

I was fortunate in that I was invited to lunch the day Debbie was making the cobbler. Get this: Steak, mashed potatoes, stewed zucchini and squash, gravy, bread, brewed ice tea, and the company of some very wonderful people.

As a matter of fact, I was seated between Debbie's husband, Robbie, and her grandmother, Louise. Robbie helped set the table, he helped clear the table, then he asked Debbie what else he could do to help her. Can you imagine?

Sitting next to Louise Standefer was just plain fun. She is a very witty person, and she loves to tease her great grandson, Mark. When he got up from his chair to do things that little kids do during a meal, she pretended to go steal his "no-nos" (mashed potatoes). He, of course, ran back to his plate to rescue them. They have a very special relationship. As a matter of fact, I found them together when I walked in. He was reading (or trying to) a book of Bible stories to her as they sat in her rocker.

In defense of Mark, I don't want to give the impression that he is in the way, or that he disturbs anyone, he most definitely does not. He is in and around just long enough to make

Country Meadows gives special care

The scent of brownies baking wafts through the air in a thick, rich stream as a visitor enters the house. A game show is on the television at low volume. A child draws pictures on his mother's writing pad. An elderly man snores softly as he naps just a little while before lunch.

In the back, Louise Standefer is having her hair rolled up by her daughter, Janie Linney. The house is owned by Mrs. Standefer, but it belongs, in spirit, to all who are living there. It sits off the highway, not quite out in the country, but neither is it in town. Cedar trees grow in the yard. Old chairs rest on the large porch.

"I walk every evening," Louise said. "I like it out here where no cars are buzzing by and there are no loud town noises."

Country Meadows is a relatively new nursing home in town. It is not a large, sterile institutional facility, rather, it is a "home away from home," Louise said, "for those in their retirement years."

Debbie Robinson, who is Janie's daughter and Louise's granddaughter, is the administrator of Country Meadows. She worked in a large nursing home in Big Spring for several years and though she loved working as a geriatric nurse, she said she longed for a more personal relationship with each resident there.

"Geriatrics is my cup of tea," Robinson said. "Yet I was doing so much paperwork at the nursing home in Big Spring that I didn't get to really see how all of the residents were doing. I didn't get to spend much one-on-one time with them.

"I was unable to deliver that personal touch."

The desire to give the personal touch is what gave Robinson the idea of turning her grandmother's house into a home for the elderly, one that would enable her to practice her chosen profession in a way that would affect lives in a significant way.

"My husband, Robbie, and I came up with the idea awhile after my grandfather had died, and then presented it to Granny," she said. "She thought about it for awhile. She was pretty tired of being out here by herself at that point, and then one night she was home alone, and became ill. After that, she really began to like the idea."

When asked about her late husband, Grady, the tears flow immediately, and out comes a hankie. Louise misses him very much.

"I love having people in my house," she said. "I like people. A while after everybody moved in and we got started, we got to be one big family. We all eat together, and visit, and when somebody leaves, we all miss them."

"The only regret I have, I guess, is that we didn't get this started earlier, so Grady could have enjoyed it with me as long as we could. I think this place would be ideal for a couple who wants to be together like this the last part of their retirement days — to read, watch t.v. or just enjoy quiet time together.

"We all have a popcorn feast sometime out on the porch, and we always enjoy our little snacks with coffee or drinks about 3 o'clock each afternoon. We try to be like a big happy family out here and we so enjoy visitors."

"I just love the togetherness of this place."

Much of that togetherness is the result of the hard work performed almost constantly by Debbie and Robbie. Debbie prepares all of the meals, each balanced, and with plenty to go around. She cooks, shops, cleans, does the laundry, prepares those 3 p.m. snacks, chases after her son, Mark, and then performs all those little extras needed by the individual residents.

Robbie, besides helping Debbie with many of the chores who cannot get to the table without assistance, does the yardwork, checks on everyone several times during the night, also chases after Mark, and even helps Debbie set the table like a real '80s man.

Mark, by the way, is no ordinary little boy. He doesn't entertain visitors with one, not even two or three, double flips, but he does it all around the house, from the living room to the dining room, through the kitchen to the utilities room, passes through a bedroom or two, then makes it back into the living room — that's without stopping

Stanton seeks landfill help

STANTON — City council members here asked the Martin County Commissioners Court to help fund an estimated $750,000 in costs to close a city dump.

The city, which made the request during its regular council meeting Monday, must close the dump because it does not meet new Environmental Protection Agency regulations.

Commissioners committed themselves to $25,000 that they allocated for landfill closings in their tentative budget for next year plus a 1-cent tax increase which would generate $36,671.

However, that money is for all landfill closings in the county, County Judge Bob Deavenport reported. There is at least one other county-wide landfill, in Ackerly, that needs to be closed and nobody knows the cost estimates for that.

"If we add an additional penny I guarantee you we'll get a rollback election," Deavenport said.

But after some prodding by council members for the county to accept a larger portion of the burden, he said that the court will further discuss the topic at their 9 a.m. Friday meeting when they plan to pass the county budget. For those discussions he asked for an itemized report on the closing and consulting costs from Gary F. Harris of the engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper Inc., a consulting firm hired by the city council.

"We'll take a real hard look this Friday and see what kind of commitment we can make," he said.

Council members, facing $100,000 bonds over a 12-month period, pointed out the landfill is half owned by the county. But Harris asserted the city is primarily responsible for closing costs.

"You will take care of it all," he said to the council. "Because they (county) own half the land they would be third party in a suit," and the city would be the first party. He added, "The buck stops with you."

Council members also said the dump is used by county residents. "We're just trying to divide it up so everybody pays for what they put in there," Councilman Gene Wheeler said. "If the county puts half of it in there, they should pay half of it. If they put 30 percent in there, they should pay for 30 percent."

"You know those things are hard to determine," Deavenport replied.

"We figured you would go with it," Councilman Ronnie Christian said. "We need to have a pretty good firm commitment on that."

He also wondered if the county's allocation was a one-time expense. "In future years are you going to include that or is that just a one-shot fix?" he asked.

Harris addressed commissioners, saying, "They need a long-term commitment. They have got to put their bond issue together and close out by the magic date (of July, 1990)."

Deavenport said there are restrictions on future commitments but did not specify what they were. He then asked for an itemized report on engineering fees.

Declaring an emergency during a Friday meeting, the Martin County Commissioners allocated $250,000 to be used to help Stanton close a city-county owned landfill.

Commissioners also agreed to supply $100,000 of labor and use of machinery and stipulated that it be equally matched by the city.

A written proposal mailed to city council members this weekend requires that it be accepted within 30 days. Mayor Danny Fryar said a council meeting will be called for the middle of next week to consider the proposal.

"It's great that they're interested in doing something," he responded. "I knew all along they would."

GHS's principal is accessible to students

By STACY PAYNE
Herald Editor

A little boy sat in the big chair in front of Grady Principal Richard Gibson's big desk. His bare foot held a festering thorn — the boy was in pain and Gibson was worried about it.

"Call the doctor, get him an appointment as quickly as possible, and if there is no insurance to pay for it, let me know and I'll take care of it," he said to someone in his office.

A few seconds later a high school boy walked into Gibson's office and said he wanted to drop Spanish. Gibson wouldn't do so without a call from the teenager's mother, even though he promised he would not be going to college someday.

Gibson still refused. "Have your mother call me," he said to the kid. "She can call me at home if she needs to, but have her call me if you really want to drop the course. It won't happen without her approval. Now, are you sure you aren't going to want to go to college someday?"

No sooner had the student left the office than the school secretary, Pat Romine, discovered that the copier was no longer working properly. Gibson jumped up from behind his desk, grabbed a screwdriver, and within a few minutes perfected whatever was wrong with the copy machine.

The machine is fixed, and with its repair arrives two adults looking for barbecue pits. They are Don McMorries and Jim Robertson, parents of Grady students who have come to help out for the next Friday's barbecue. No one can find the barbecue pits, so Gibson directs them to another person who probably knows where they've been all summer.

The bell rings and Gibson jumps out into the hallway to interact with students going to their next class. It would appear that he talked to all of them, but, of course, he didn't. Or did he? The man moves quicker and says more in a 15-second period than seems humanly possible.

"Can't let the grass grow under your feet," he laughs as he sees yet another student situation before the bell rings again.

Within the first five minutes of meeting Richard Gibson, many things are apparent: he cares about the individual student, he knows how to repair office machinery, he interacts exceedingly well with both adult and child, he will not let a student sell himself short, and he does move quicker and say more in a 15-second period than is humanly possible.

He apologized for keeping this reporter waiting so long. "It's a madhouse everyday," he said with a grin.

The madhouse, it appears, is a result of the principal's accessibility. This school administrator allows himself a real degree of interaction with everyone around him. He seems to genuinely care about everyone he's come into contact with this morning, and it's just barely 10 a.m.

Richard Gibson, along with his wife, Bernadine, joined Grady Independent School District 15 years ago. Bernie, as he calls her, teaches kindergarten.

He began his GISD career as head coach of football, basketball, tennis and track for both the high school and junior high school for eight straight years.

"Then when the elementary principal resigned, I took that position and just coached football," he said. Now he is starting his sixth year as GHS principal and athletic director.

Grady isn't so small to him as it might be to others who took the job. "I grew up in Toyah, Texas, a little town west of Pecos," he said. "They don't have a school system anymore. My daddy is still real mad about it. Toyah was annexed into the Pecos school district."

"There were 22 in the whole system. I am the graduating class of 1967."

School, he began his college career at Sul Ross University.

"I obtained three degrees from Sul Ross," he said. "I have a bachelor of Science in Social Sciences, a masters of physical education and a masters of educational administration."

He also met his wife there. "Bernie and I met in a Speech class." They dated a year and a half, broke up, and then found each other again after college. They married and have three sons, Bradley, Aaron and Gregory, all students in GISD.

The couple taught two years at Sierra Blanca, "eighty miles this side of El Paso," before arriving at Grady.

"We love it here," Gibson said. "There are definite advantages to living in a small community like Grady. You know what your kids are doing, and who they are hanging around with."

Bernadine, who had joined Gibson in the office, said, "This is a close-knit community, and it is small enough to where your kids aren't exposed to too many problems, like drugs, before they're able to cope."

"Right," Gibson said. "I don't want my kids to be around alcohol, drugs and sex when they aren't physically, emotionally or mentally mature enough to handle it. We cannot protect them forever, but we can do our best until they leave home."

There are other factors about the area that Gibson likes, and one of them is parental involvement in the lives of his students.

"We've always had lots of parental involvement," he said. "The parents here are committed to quality education, and since House Bill 72, which limits the extracurricular activities of our school youth was put into law, the parents have gotten even more involved."

"The parents looking for the barbecue pits, for example, will be helping out with the barbecue Friday night. We have a barbecue before every home game. This Friday, it will be the junior class's function. It is to help them earn money for their school trip."

"We have lots of parents who help out in these events. We literally couldn't do it without them. The barbecues are nice by the way, it is like going out to eat without ever leaving the campus."

(This reporter attended the barbecue before last Friday's game. There were more parents than students in the cafeteria at times, and even more impressive were the number of parents whose students had graduated long before, or those community members whose children were not yet school age. Community involvement in GISD is very apparent. The wives of the parents seen earlier, Mrs. McMorries and Mrs. Robertson, were hard at work helping to serve up the barbecue, as was Mrs. McKaskle, mother of a football player, as well as many others.)

Another element of the Grady community Gibson is proud of is the commitment of the teachers in the school system.

"We have very, very good teachers here at Grady High School," he said. "They are very committed to their profession. They want to see the kids do better tomorrow than today."

He isn't just bragging. Last year Grady won many UIL and other scholastic awards.

"We won a lot of awards last year, especially at the junior high and elementary school level," he said. "Our faculty made a concerted effort from the top to the bottom to improve our students' UIL performances."

"We did well in all areas. Our overall score placed us second in elementary and junior high, and third in high school."

"We had a firm commitment from our teachers to help with UIL. This was all done after school hours with no extra pay from teachers. They should all be commended."

Gibson explained that once a year, during their awards assembly, Grady presents the awards that have been won all during the year.

"Even if the awards were won earlier, we like to wait until the end of the school year to present them. We believe in reward our students for all their efforts."

"If you don't pat the kids on the back now and then, they may get tired and lay down, give up. We've got good kids here at Grady, really good kids. A few may get a little rowdy in the hallway, but we have good kids.

"As far as that goes, we have good parents, good teachers, good students, a good school."

One of those good parents, Joel Morales, stepped into Gibson's office in the few seconds after his last statement. He had come by the school to sign his son's football permission slip. He was the third parent seen that morning who had felt free to enter the principal's domain and discuss his son's situation, which wasn't a big deal, but he chose to come in to take care of it instead of waiting until the boy came home.

"We are all proud of what we do here at Grady," Gibson said. "We are not just talking about the administration or the teachers, but the secretary and the custodial staff. We all take a lot of pride."

The bell rings again and Gibson leaps out of his chair and into the hallway, and the earlier scene begins again. Students fill the hallway as he leans against the wall by his office door. Few do not stop to get a word with him, including teachers. He laughs with them, scolds them with a smile on his face and then heads back to his office to see what the next hour offers.

He is always having to deal with somebody's problem including having to run down the hallway to find batteries for a camera. Seems that this absent-minded reporter forgot to check her flash before appearing in Gibson's office last week.

First MC cotton bale

Joe Hodges is serious about rewarding the farmer who brings in the first bale of Martin County cotton. The bank president decided to call upon area businesses this year to sweeten the pot for the bale that reaches the gin first in 1989.

"Since we are primarily an agricultural area, we ought to show our support," he said in his office at Stanton National Bank. "Years ago there was prize money for the first bale, but last year was the first time it has been done in quite awhile."

Martin Countian Eddie Cook won $1,000 for bringing in the first bale in 1988. The event was significant enough to be picked up by several area newspapers and many others across the state.

"I happened to be in Dallas not long after the story on Eddie was written," Hodges said. "I picked up a copy of the Dallas TimesHerald and there it was again, the full story."

Local businesses which have already pledged their financial support to honor the lucky farmer are Wheeler Motor Company, Hughes Fertilizer, Farm Bureau, Bill's True Value Hardware and Texas Utility.

"More than anything, we want to recognize the farmers of Martin County," Hodges said, "and that bail is going to be coming in pretty quick."

"Without cotton, there is no Stanton. We want to recognize the efforts of the farmers, and in view of this year's short crops, the prize money is going to be more important this year."

you smile and remember the lovely laughter of children. I might go as far as to say that Walter Kelly would be most unhappy if Mark weren't around, and Ted Stewart would lose his best arguing buddy.

Country Meadows is a very special place. It is a home. A real home. With well-balanced nutrition three times a day, plus afternoon refreshments. As Louise Standefer put it, "We are a big happy family." Louise is not even close to the point where someone needs to be taking care of her. The woman has almost as much energy as Mark does. She does, however, love the company. She has her own living area, complete with kitchenette and her own entryway. I made the comment that she could sneak in late at night.

"Oh, no. I have to report in," she giggled. Louise is special, like Debbie. She opened up her heart and her home, so that those reaching their golden years could receive care and attention only a family could give.

If I had a loved one who had reached the point of needing that extra care, guess where I'd want them. You guessed it.

Country Meadows. I wouldn't worry about them a whit, and I'd know they were in excellent hands.

Go visit. Call Country Meadows (756-2331) and asked to tour the place. See for yourself what a neat person Debbie is and what a great place she runs.

By the way, you know how there are smiles, and then there are smiles? Well, maybe that's part of the beauty of Debbie Robinson. When she smiles, there is a sincerity that reaches out and lightly touches your heart, and the sparkle in her eye is not merely a sparkle, but a rich, loving glow.

As the paper was going to press this evening I finally opened the mail. I discovered a letter from Bernie Gibson, wife of GHS principal, Richard Gibson. Frankly, I'd forgotten that I had ask her for a couple of quotes on her husband for the article, and when I saw them after I'd written it, I still wanted to share them with you.

Bernie Gibson is a sweet, caring wife, mother and teacher!
Dear Stacy,
I hope this reaches you in time to be of some help to you in writing your article. Richard is a very hardworking and dedicated man to both his family and his profession. He strives to do what is fair and just for everyone.

Richard thinks that everyone should be given a chance to become the best that they can be. Most of all to become a productive and fine citizen. He encourages kids to further their education — if it means going to college or to trade school.

I love Richard and appreciate his many fine qualities that make him the great guy he is. The people that will take the time to really get to know him will be able to see his concern and care for others.

Thank you very much for taking the time to do this article on Richard and Grady School. The people in Grady School Community are very fine people, we feel the good times FAR outweigh the bad times we have experienced.

"The important thing in this world is not where we stand, but in what direction we move."
(Goethe).
Sincerely,
Bernie Gibson

WHAT SITS OUT BACK, RUNS SUMMER AND WINTER, AND SAVES YOU MONEY?

A heat pump. And there are three good reasons you should get one.

A HEAT PUMP COOLS, HEATS AND SAVES.

Replace your old air conditioner with a new electric heat pump. It's a high efficiency air conditioner in summer. While, in the winter, it's the most energy efficient heating system you can own. On even the coldest days, a heat pump system operates efficiently and will provide all the warmth you need.

A HEAT PUMP CAN SAVE $130 A YEAR.

Compared to a gas furnace, a heat pump is more energy efficient. And TU Electric's low rates make heating and cooling your home with a heat pump an even better value. Tests have shown you can save $130 or more a year by installing a heat pump.*

once — before he begins again on the same path. According to his Dad, he counted a six-times tour through the house once before Mark decided to stop, "flipping around."

Mark Robinson is almost three years old. "He's the boss of Country Meadows," his mother said. "In his mind, he is," Great Mama Louise said.

One thing is for certain, when it's time for Gumby on television, he runs and sits in Walter Kelly's lap and the young and old are entertained together.

Walter Kelly is one of the residents, and he loves Mark. He also loves Debbie's steak, mashed potatoes, and her stewed zucchini with squash, to say nothing of her homemade apple cobbler sprinkled with cinnamon. He and Louise decide to pour a little cold milk on their cobbler. "Makes it just a little better," she giggled.

In addition to Kelly, Ted Stewart and Nellie McMorries reside at Country Meadows.

Mrs. Ted Stewart, who does not live there, said that she likes knowing Ted does. "I like having him here very much," she said. "It is a good place, it is definitely a good place. I come here twice a day to check on Ted. They probably get tired of me."

"Oh, no we don't," Debbie interjected. "We love it when family members care enough to drop by and get involved."

"When I worked at Big Spring, a family would sometimes drop off a loved one, and then not appear for two or three months. We want family to come by, to stay involved in the lives of their parents."

Debbie and Robbie were so dedicated to the individual care of the residents that they finally had to hire a young lady part time just to give them two nights off a week.

"I have extra help in some of the cleaning, too," she said. "Our residents need round the clock care and attention, so hiring the girl gives us a little rest during the week."

"The most important thing, though, is the one-on-one care, the special attention they are receiving in their golden years."

"I believe we give super good care here. I have much more time to give to each of them. We are not ever going to get very big, we want to maintain a size where we can always give the very, very best care."

Robbie agreed. "I feel good about providing this kind of care, especially in a home environment," he said. "I have seen the self-imposed isolation of some folks in a large facility. It was really hard to see that. That's why it is so nice to know they're getting really good care, and at home."

Janie Linney joined in. "They get Debbie and Robbie's personal touch."

"Yes," Louise added, "it's a home away from home."

"It really has a home atmosphere," Janie said. "It has been a blessing to know my mother is being taken care. I know she is in good hands. Before Country Meadows, I worried about leaving town because she was by herself."

Louise added that she used to do all of the work that Debbie and Robbie now do, so it leaves her time to pursue her interests. She spends time at the Senior Citizens Center in town. She attends Sunday School and church. She also does a few little odd jobs to help Debbie out.

"I'll mend a shirt, make shoulder pads, just whatever is needed. I love every minute of it."

"You know, after we get old, we just enjoy being ourselves. Debbie and Robbie sure make it seem okay to do just that, at home."

Landfill

"The city council of Stanton wants to thank the people of Martin County for the proposal," he said.

Commenting on the proposal was County Judge Bob Deavenport. "I just hope it works," he said. "I think it will."

Because of new Environmental Protection Agency regulations going into effect this year, the old landfill must be lined with clayish soil and checked for pollutants twice a year for five years. The estimated cost, according to Parkhill, Smith and Cooper Inc., the engineering firm retained by the city, will be $799,500.

The county proposal, which expects the city to come up with $250,000 in matching funds, tabulates the total funding and in-kind services at $700,000. "I hope the costs won't run as much as they project it as being," Deavenport said.

At a city council meeting Sept. 12, City Administrator Jimmy

Mathis said that the city will have to sell bonds over the next year to raise money to close the landfill.

Also at that meeting, Gary Harris of the city-retained engineering firm, informed the council that Stanton was primarily responsible for closing the dump.

In addition, a new landfill, which will have to adhere to stricter precautions, will cost $247,500 to construct and $175,500 a year to run, stated a report supplied by the engineering firm.

Mark's mappings

By MARK HOELSCHER
MC Underground Water Conversation District

A commonly asked question involves the use of a water softener and what exactly it does. First, it does not appreciably change the total dissolved solids content of your water. What it does do is to rearrange some of the constituents so that most of the calcium and magnesium in the water is removed and replaced with sodium. Calcium and magnesium cause the water to be hard. Sodium causes the water to be soft.

Soft water, then, is much easier on your plumbing and fixtures. It also does a much better job washing laundry and rinsing soap out of clothes. Water-softened water is not good however for drinking. Sodium is the major constituent in table salt and because water-softened water is high in sodium it is not a good idea to drink, particularly for those on a salt restricted diet.

A water softener works by allowing the raw water to flow through a sodium-laden zeolite material. This is where the sodium-magnesium, calcium exchange occurs. Once or twice a week the zeolite is flushed with a solution containing sodium chloride (salt). This is when the zeolite is restored with sodium and the calcium and magnesium are flushed out as waste.

This is only one of several treatments available for your water, another is reverse osmosis which is a completely different matter. We will discuss it next week. If you have any questions or concerns about this or any ground-water issue, please call 915-756-2136 or come by our offices at 207 1/2 North St. Peter in Stanton, Texas and we will be happy to help.

Grady upset, 40-34

GRADY — The New Home Leopards ruined the Grady Wildcats' home-opener Friday night at Funnell Field.

New Home held off a fourth quarter Grady comeback, keyed by Scott Terrell as the Leopards escaped with a 40-34 win in non-district six-man action.

Terrell scored on runs of 1 and yards in the final quarter. The Wildcat came with 4:10 remaining in the game.

But the Leopards iced the game when Covy James scored his fourth touchdown of the game, a 1-yard plunge.

Terrell had a good night for the Wildcats, rushing for 159 yards in 15 carries. James led all ball carriers with 181 yards.

New Home is now 1-0-1 for the season while Grady falls to 1-1.

Grady will be on the road Friday when they play the state-ranked Loraine Bulldogs.

I would like to aim this article chiefly at students. I would like to make them aware of the fact that they learn much more than reading, writing, and arithmetic. Oh, you're versed in other subjects like social studies, science, etc., but you also pick up skills that you may not even be aware of. These skills help to determine how successful you are later on in life; they are what helps make you you.

Emily Dickinson once said, "Success is counted sweetest by those who ne'er succeed." This statement is probably so true. Completing school is a big factor in determining your financial future. According to the 1983 U.S. Census Bureau report on personal income, the 1981 average income for females over the age of 25 was approximately 40% more than the income of high school dropouts. Completing school can mean thousands of more dollars in your pocket over a working lifetime.

Students not only learn to play sports but they are learning to cooperate with each other. They are learning how to act as one. If they are to be a successful team, the group must not only act as one, but must also get along while doing it. They must also have a zest for what they are doing.

Along the same line, students have to learn to work well with not only their friends but with everyone. By participating in sports and other group activities students learn through trial and error and by adult guidance the proper ways to do this. They also have to be able to accept things they do not like. This is a valuable asset in the business world.

Students are also learning how to deal with figure authorities. They must learn how to deal with the teachers and administration. If they can do this successfully, they will probably have a better working relationship with their boss.

Another important life skill that students develop is self-discipline. In school, students are expected to turn assignments in on time, practice band instruments, learn play parts, etc. It is through all these things that they develop a sense of responsibility. If one doesn't meet the necessary requirements, then the whole group falters.

If they accomplish the above successfully, then the students are also learning to meet deadlines. They are establishing the habits necessary to become successful in anything they choose to do. They become aware of how important it is to follow a certain routine.

The longer you stay in school the more developed these skills become, thus ensuring a better chance later on in life for success to occur. Don't look at school as the same old boring subject but as a new lease on life. How successful you are in school (not just grades) determines partly how successful you can be forever.

Don't be a fool! Stay in school!

In conjunction with National Farm Safety Week, Governor William P. Clements, Jr. has proclaimed the week of September 17-23, 1989, as Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Week. This year's theme for Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Week, "SAFEing The Farm and Ranch," stresses the hazards involved with agricultural production and the effort into preventing injury and illness on the farm, especially during times of economic stress.

Each year this event is observed to initiate and promote safety on Texas farms and ranches. About 100 Texas rural families suffer farm and ranch related accidents and an estimated 10,000 disabling injuries and 100,000 injuries requiring medical attention occur annually.

A further look at farm accident figures compiled by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service show that most fatalities are caused by (in descending order) tractors/machinery, firearms, fires, other farm vehicles, falls, animal drowning, struck by object, electric current, lightning, exposure and insect bites. Over the past ten years, rural fatalities have been reduced by 50 percent due to increased awareness and improved safety design. I suggest taking the following steps to make your farm or ranch safer and more productive:

Be sure workers and family members are trained for the jobs they do.

Inspect all equipment and facilities periodically, making needed repairs and correcting hazards without delay.

Read and follow directions and recommendations in operator's manuals and on product labels.

Focus on each task at hand.

Most agricultural accidents and work illnesses can be prevented at little or no expense. These precautions and the use of safe work procedures can reduce the needless suffering of rural accident victims and prevent the financial burden of agricultural accidents on productivity and family income.

4-H was one of the sponsoring organizations of the ABC Barbara Walters Special "Survival Stories." The special addressed functional illiteracy, juvenile crime, school dropout, substance abuse, teen pregnancy and youth unemployment.

The local 4-H & Youth committee met Wednesday and discussed a town summit meeting. If you are interested in working on these issues as a community, please call the Extension office. I have a copy of the special on VHS format. It can be checked out.

Texas has one of the highest teen pregnancy rates in the nation. 15 percent of Texas babies are born to teenage mothers. Some 15 teenage pregnancies occurred in the Martin County this past year. Parents often feel insecure in helping children through the critical stages of infancy, childhood and adolescence. Less than four percent of Texas high school students are involved in pre-parenting or child development classes.

Let me commend our school systems. Homemaking classes are being offered for the first time in Stanton Junior High. The Homemaking Departments at Grady and Stanton High School are very strong. First Baptist Church has just started an adolescent program that addresses the issue of teen sexual responsibilities.

Other youth organizations in our community are addressing these issues, but is there something more we could be doing?

In the Stanton schools kindergarten and first grade classes have an average of 75 kids. Graduating classes have about 50 students. What is our dropout rate considering these estimates?

SHS Cross Country

By WILMA STIRL
SHS Cross Country Head Coach

Last Saturday, Sept. 16, on the UTPB campus, four Stanton runners competed in the Odessa Cross Country meet.

Kari Ruth and Jennifer Riddle were only one stride apart in seventh and eighth place at the one-mile mark. They encouraged each other as they ran side by side for most of the second mile, each wondering who would sprint first. Kari and Jennifer finished only one second apart in fifth and sixth place with excellent times of 15:30 and 15:31.

Ashley Graves ran a very good first race and finished 28th. Jeremy Stallings ran with the Division I group this week for tougher competition against 4A and 5A teams. He pushed out a 5:17 first mile and then held onto his position and finished 16th with an excellent time of 17:38.

The team travels to San Angelo next Saturday and will run on the Santa Fe golf course.

Did you know ... volunteer service counts as work experience for those applying for civil service positions in 36 states. Federal employment also provides a space to list volunteer experience.

The "Volunteers, the Importance of Volunteerism" Concurrent Resolution was passed by the U.S. Congress in 1968. It encourages employers to recognize volunteer experience and give employment credit for volunteering.

The service value of a volunteer hour is $10.80. This figure was developed by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

You may sign up for school volunteer work by contacting Ann Prough at 756-3853 or Morris Williamson at 756-2583.

VOLUNTEERING IS GOOD FOR YOUR HEALTH ... Ann Prough has known this for a long time, but now it's been documented. In its 1988 issue, American Health Magazine Publicized an article by Alan Luks, executive director of the Institute for the Advancement of Health in New York, and Eileen Rockefeller Growald, founder and president of the Institute, based on a ten year study of 2,700 people.

The Center concluded that "helping people brings real physical benefits as well as psychological ones." Researchers found that doing regular volunteer work dramatically increased life expectancy, reduced stress and strengthened the immune system. Taking time to help may be a basic step to protect health.

With evidence like this, what are you waiting for? Call Ann Prough, 756-3853 or Morris Williamson, 756-2583 and sign up today as a Stanton I.S.D. volunteer. It's better than vitamins and ranks right up there with exercise!
