DA eyes fire probe

BIG SPRING — An inquiry by the city's arson investigator into a fire that destroyed a downtown building Friday is completed, and results of the investigation have been submitted to the Howard County District Attorney's office for further study.

"We have concluded the investigation into a Sept. 22 fire at 208 Main Street," Fire Marshall Burr Lea Settles said today. A converted apartment and the office of an optometrist were destroyed by the fire. No one was injured.

Settles said he could not say whether the fire appears to be the work of arson or an accident. "I'm saying it happened a certain way, (District Attorney Rick Hamby) may look at it and say 'No.' He may look at it differently," Settles said.

Hamby could not be reached for comment on any decision his office might have into the fire.

Settles said he does not believe officials with the district attorney's office have had the opportunity to review the case yet. He said he hopes to have an opinion from the office next week, possibly Monday or Tuesday.

The fire marshal said his investigation indicates a Coleman Latern was responsible for the fire.

The fire caused an estimated $100,000 damage to the building and officials have called the burned out building "a complete loss."

Man faces trial

BIG SPRING — A local man indicted for a 1987 sexual assault is likely to face trial next week in 118th District Court, said William Dupree, Howard County assistant district attorney.

"If we don't have something worked out by five o'clock today we'll try it," Dupree said. Jury selection for 118th District Court begins Monday.

John Michael McMurray, 23, Sterling City Route, Box 6B, is charged with using threats and physical force in the sexual assault of a woman.

McMurray was arrested Dec. 18, 1987 on a charge of aggravated sexual assault. He was indicted in June on a lesser charge of sexual assault.

Many of the other 34 criminal cases on Tuesday's docket call have been dismissed after the defendants pleading guilty, Dupree said today. More pleadings could take place today, he said.

An official with the 118th District Clerk's Office said today none of the nine of the civil cases originally scheduled for trial next week will be heard in district court. The cases were settled, dismissed or rescheduled, the official said.

Wreck injures teen

BIG SPRING — A 16-year-old boy was taken to the hospital Thursday night after the motorcycle he was driving was struck from behind by a car.

Anderson's 1983 Honda CX-650 was northbound on Gregg Street and was attempting to turn left into a private drive when it was hit by a 1980 Ford Fairmont.

Andrea Suzanne Chamberlain, 17, 538 Westover, was cited for following too closely. Anderson was cited for no driver's license and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

55 new jobs added to state hospital

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — A $2.6 million increase in funding will allow the Big Spring State Hospital to expand its services, officials announced today, with the addition of 55.5 new jobs.

The hospital also stands to gain almost $3 million for construction if Proposition 8, a bond proposal for new prisons, is passed on the November ballot.

State Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, and hospital officials said during a press conference this morning the facility received the bulk of increased funding for mental health granted by the Texas Legislature.

"This increase in funds is a result of the State Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation's recognizing the outstanding record of achievement of the hospital," Fraser said, "even though it has been historically underfunded."

Hospital Superintendent Robert von Rosenberg said the increase will allow the hospital to fund 55.5

new positions immediately and another 10 positions to be phased in over the next several months. Von Rosenberg said 43 of the new jobs will be in Howard County and the rest will be at out-patient clinics in various communities.

Fraser said $1.2 million of the funds have been allocated to inpatient services, $56 million to community services, and $88 million to a 5 percent salary increase for current employees.

Von Rosenberg said most of the new positions will be for therapist technicians, as well as professionals such as psychologists. The outreach program will account for 33.5 positions, he said, with 11 of those placed in Howard County.

"This increase in funds is a result of the State Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation's recognizing the outstanding record of achievement of the hospital . . . even though it has been historically underfunded." — Troy Fraser, R. Big Spring

The staff expansion, which is expected to begin immediately, should improve hospital services, von Rosenberg said.

"The bulk of these in-patient funds will be for therapists," he said, with the rest going for supervisory positions. "We won't limit the search for qualified applicants just to this area."

Fraser said the salary increase and the additions to the staff will have an $18 million impact on the area's economy.

"I think we'll see an influx of highly paid professionals," to the area, he said.

If Texas voters pass Proposition 8, they not only will grant the funding for six new prisons, they also will fund almost $3 million in construction and repair at the hospital, Fraser said.

Von Rosenberg said the hospital is planning construction of an activity therapy building at a cost of $2.4 million. The remainder of the bond money will fund roof repairs on other facility buildings, he said.

The activity building is desperately needed, von Rosenberg said, because the hospital is short on space and various activities have been farmed out to existing buildings that are old and inadequate.

"One of the biggest needs we have now," he said, "is for space — space to house groups of patients." ● HOSPITAL page 2-A

Pigging out

BIG SPRING — Local water department workers ran an operation on water lines in the Greenbelt area Thursday to experiment with a new method of clearing the lines of sludge and metal deposits.

Workers used a bullet-shaped device known as a "pig" to remove the deposits. Public Utilities Director Tom Dozell said that "initial results . . . indicate a dramatic improvement of the inside of the pipes."

He added that the department will continue testing the "pig" for about two months before deciding whether to use it city-wide.

Workers capture a "pig" coming up from a hydrant on videotape after the "pig" had worked its way through the water lines.

Ice cream highlights Mitchell fair contest

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Herald Editor

COLORADO CITY — The Mitchell County Fair opened its arms to the public yesterday. Visitors were greeted by a menagerie of rides, food, display booths and contests at the fair which runs through Saturday.

Aside from the 20 grand champion ribbons given in the 10 departments of food and craft entries, there was also an ice-cream freeze-off contest Thursday.

The zesty flavors entered were a parody of the fair itself. "We didn't have any chocolate or vanilla," said Joy Morris, who was in charge of the contest.

"We were real suprised. They were all exotic," she said. "The judge seemed quite pleased."

The entries: Fresh Peach Slush, Pink Passion, Hawaiian Luau, and Big Red. The creator of the peach slush, Peggy Ratliff, took home the grand champion ribbon.

Gambling probe still underway

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Gambling raids conducted here by the FBI in early January are still under investigation by the federal agency, an official said today.

"The investigation is still underway, it has not been completed," said Tom Clark, FBI agent with the agency's Abilene office.

A nine-month coordinated 1989-90 investigation by the FBI, Internal Revenue Service, state law enforcement and the Big Spring Police Department allegedly uncovered a six-state gambling operation working out of Big Spring.

Unlike other local undercover operations — which result in arrests for those involved — no arrests were made at during the gambling raids.

Among the gambling related paraphernalia reportedly seized by authorities at the time were records including names and addresses of people involved in the operation.

The investigation originated when police responded to a citizen's complaint, Joe Cook, Big Spring police chief, said previously. Police contacted the FBI for assistance after learning the scope of the operation, Cook said.

Cook contacted the Herald the day after the Jan. 2 raids to ask that publicity be withheld so that the investigation, which was continuing, would not be jeopardized. The Herald published a story eight

Attorney probes FOI request on flood suit

By BRADLEY WORRELL

BIG SPRING — An attorney who defended the city in a $1.75 million lawsuit brought by local residents is making an investigation to determine whether terms of the settlement can be released to the Big Spring Herald, a city official said today.

City Attorney Jean Shotts said he personally does not know whether the information requested by the Herald can be released to the newspaper because he is not aware of the terms of the settlement. But Shotts said that Terry Rhoads, the attorney who defended the city in the March lawsuit, is reviewing the case.

Rhoads could not be reached for comment today.

Shotts said if Rhoads decides terms of the settlement are not subject to the state open records act Shotts will contact the Texas Attorney General's Office for an opi-

City Council agrees to repaving of four West Side streets

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — Four West Side streets could be rebuilt as early as December, since the city council agreed Thursday to commit excess bond money to the project.

City council members also accepted the 911 emergency call system budget for 1989-90 and approved a renegotiated agreement between the city and Howard County for 911 call-taking during a called meeting at the Big Spring McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.

The council approved advertising for bids for the repair of four streets on the West Side, including San Antonio, Presidio, Galveston and San Jacinto. City officials said funds from the project will come from monies leftover from a street improvements bond.

Tom Decell, director of public works, said rebuilding the four streets will cost the city about $100,000.

"They were paved years ago," Decell said of the streets. "They're in terrible shape."

Decell said he hopes to have the streets finished by mid-December. After bids are opened during the second regular council meeting in October, it should take another 45 days to complete the project, he said.

"The big variable is going to be the weather," he said. "If we get a wet season, we're just going to have to wait."

The council's approval of a much-delayed agreement between the city and county for 911 call-taking means the system can still be ready for testing by the proposed Dec. 26 deadline, according to the 911 Director Carl Dorton.

Dorton said all of the emergency service entities in the county will be able to begin the testing starting Dec. 26. The system will be tested for about four and one-half months, he said, and should be fully operational by the target date of March 24.

Although the system is on schedule to become operational in March, Dorton said certain areas of the project are behind because of problems during negotiations between the city and county.

"It's put me behind in addressing for rural areas," Dorton said. "We're catching up, but we will not have the addressing completed," by March.

The 911 board also is behind schedule for planned renovations at the police station, he said. Remodeling at the station to make room for 911 dispatchers was supposed to be completed Oct. 10 but the 911 board just recently completed revisions to the project specifications.

The delay in signing an agreement between the city and county was caused when Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard expressed dissatisfaction with the contract, Dorton said.

"When we initially negotiated, we kind of got caught in a trap," because county commissioners wanted to cut one of the sheriff's dispatchers, he said. "Sheriff Standard used that person for more than dispatching."

After the commissioners agreed to keep that position, Standard agreed to the contract, Dorton said.

The council also approved a $183,000 budget for 1989-90. Because of one-time equipment costs, the annual budget will be reduced to about $100,000 starting in 1990-91, he said.

In other agenda items, the council:

- Approved the final reading of the $16.65 million budget for 1989-90 on a 5-1 vote. Councilwoman Gail Earls voted against the budget and Councilwoman Pat DeAnda was not at the meeting.

- Approved the final reading of a resolution authorizing an agreement with Xerox for a copier at the Big Spring Correctional Center.

- Approved the first reading of a resolution authorizing the city to establish a line of credit for Big Spring State Hospital for contract financing.

City Manager Hal Boyd said the city will ask the four financial institutions in Howard County for loans totaling about $275,000. The money will be used to make improvements to the state hospital's water system to fulfill terms of a recently renegotiated contract between the city and the hospital, he said. Money the city earns for providing water to the city will be used to repay the loans, Boyd said.

The council set workshops for Oct. 10 and Oct. 20 to review proposals from the financial institutions.

- Approved a request from the Heritage Museum to move a windmill from the community center at Comanche Trail Park to the museum. It will be the museum's responsibility to move the windmill, Boyd said.

- Approved agreements with the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce for industrial promotional advertising, general promotional tourist advertising, and encouragement, promotion and improvement and application of the arts.

- Approved a resolution designating city use of unmarked vehicles.

- Approved a resolution authorizing an agreement between the city and the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

- Approved a resolution authorizing an agreement with the Big Spring Model Airplane Association.

- Approved a resolution authorizing Dr. J.M. Woodall, acting director of the Big Spring/Howard County Public Health District, to sign a local health services contract between the Texas Department of Health and the city and county.

- Approved the final reading of an agreement between the Texas Department of Public Safety and Howard County.

Top Democrat to switch

AUSTIN — A top Democrat in the Texas House was expected to surprise Texas Democrats today, according to State Rep. Troy Fraser, with the announcement that he is switching to the Republican party.

Fraser, R-Big Spring, said Rick Perry of Haskell was expected to announce today at the state capitol his move from the Democratic party. Perry was to be joined by U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, as well as Fraser, during the 3 p.m. announcement on the capitol steps.

Fraser said Perry's switch will be a definite boost to Texas Republicans.

"He's been one of the real powers in the House for the Democratic Party," Fraser said of Perry. "It's a big thing and of course numbers are everything. The more numbers you gain put you in a better position. It helps you in the statewide election. It speaks very strongly of Senator Gramm and our leadership in Texas.

"His statement was that the ship is about to leave the dock and he wants to be on it."

Fraser said Perry feels Gramm is ready to assume a dominant role in Texas and that the next Texas governor is likely to be a Republican.

Perry was a leader in the House during the worker's compensation legislative battle, and he was co-author of the worker's comp bill, Fraser said.

BSISD OKs insurance

BIG SPRING — Big Spring ISD trustees unanimously approved an employee insurance package that will raise individual rates an average of 15 percent.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield was chosen over four other insurance carriers during the trustees' special meeting at the district bus barn.

Although employee rates will increase, Assistant Superintendent for Business Ron Plumlee said the increase will not be as much as previously feared. Preliminary insurance estimates showed increases in the neighborhood of 23 percent, Plumlee said.

Killer gets 45 years

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A drifter convicted of first-degree murder in the beating death of a Texas woman working as an intern reporter at the local newspaper was sentenced to 45 years in prison.

But the defendant, 28-year-old Rodney Woidtke, who was found guilty in August of killing Audrey Cardenas, maintained his innocence Thursday before Judge Richard Aguirre imposed the penalty.

"I didn't kill this young lady," said Woidtke. "I didn't have anything to do with it, believe it or not. I've never hurt anyone. I just want to say I'm not guilty."

Ms. Cardenas, 24, who recently had graduated from Texas A&M University, had been in town only 11 days when she vanished June 19, 1988.

A week later, a custodian at Belleville Township High School East discovered her nude body in a dry creek bed. Ms. Cardenas, of College Station, had come to Illinois to work for the Belleville News-Democrat.

Early releases increase

AUSTIN (AP) — The number of convicted felons who were released from county jails has increased 550 percent because of overcrowding in state prisons, officials said.

The parole in absentia program — in which eligible prisoners awaiting transfer to the Texas Department of Corrections can be paroled directly from county jail — has become one of the major safety valves to ease overcrowding in state prisons, officials said.

More than 5,700 inmates were paroled directly from county jails during the past fiscal year. "It's just another example of the general malaise in the system. The early release has moved from prisons to (county) jails," said Rider Scott, who serves as Gov. Bill Clements' general counsel.

Hearing request filed

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin man whose case is the first to be pursued under the state's new drug tax law won't have to pay the approximately $40,000 levy immediately.

Officials said Thursday that Larry Dockwiler, 33, filed a request for an administrative hearing on the question. The request came on the last day the tax could be paid, said John Bender, an official with the state comptroller's office.

Bender said a date would be set for a hearing on whether Dockwiler owes the money.

Dockwiler was arrested earlier this month after a traffic stop near Round Rock during which a state trooper allegedly found 24 pounds of marijuana in his vehicle.

'New and improved' fair opens today

DALLAS (AP) — A revamped State Fair of Texas opens for a 24-day run today with laser shows and pig races, Broadway plays and livestock competitions, football games and a sheep dog demonstration as the 103-year-old affair tries to become "the Disney of state fairs."

An estimated 200,000 people are expected on opening day at Fair Park, a 227-acre site east of downtown Dallas. Overall attendance is projected at 3.3 million, said president Error W. McKoy, hired last year to put his 25 years of amusement park experience to work revitalizing the event.

That would be far from a record, but would still be a 400,000 increase over last year.

The event that was to become the State Fair of Texas opened in 1886, and has been held every year since, except for some war-time years when Fair Park was used as temporary army encampment.

The fair has a storied history, sprinkled with visits by presidents and performers ranging from William Howard Taft and Woodrow Wilson to John Philip Sousa and Carrie Nation.

Several Dallas area school districts even take a holiday during the fair's Sept. 29-Oct. 22 run.

DALLAS — Jeannie Sullivan, left, and Ron Langley share a laugh as they relax on the midway at the State Fair of Texas Thursday. The state fair officially opens today.

The fair retains its old standbys: 52-foot-tall Big Tex who greets fairgoers as they enter with announcements of the events; the Texas Star, a 212-diameter ferris wheel; and two college football games, including the Texas-

Oklahoma battle on Oct. 14. But expansions and additions give should give the fair a more amusement park atmosphere, McKoy said. The popular automobile show has been doubled, a laser light show in Cotton Bowl stadium is more elaborate and lights have been added to the nightly parade.

"It'll be the creme de la creme of state fairs, the Disney of state fairs," McKoy said.

Besides enlarging and upgrading the exhibits, McKoy has expanded the advertising and promotion budget from less than $150,000 last year to almost $1 million this year.

"The executive committee of the state fair board has encouraged me to promote aggressively and advertise aggressively," he said.

McKoy, who spent most of his career with Six Flags Corp., was hired in June 1988. He made few changes in last year's fair except to conduct a marketing survey.

The survey sought to find out why people came to the fair, what they liked, where they came from and, once there, who decided what to do.

Fairgoers also were asked to rank the fair against such parks as Six Flags Over Texas and Sea World in San Antonio, McKoy said.

While the fair held its own in cleanliness and food, "the area we did not score well in was the show area," McKoy said. "People told us they wanted more sit-down kind of shows."

McKoy responded with the laser show and others; for example, the bird-of-prey show by the Dallas Zoo will take place in an amphitheater that hasn't been used in about 15 years.

Trial postponed while defendant given evaluation

MARFA (AP) — The 17-year-old defendant accused of fatally shooting a Rio Grande rafter last year testified he has only a third-grade education.

Eduardo Rodriguez-Pineda's inability to understand questions and apparent confusion during pretrial hearings forced his murder trial to be delayed at least a week.

During pretrial hearings Thursday, District Judge Alex Gonzalez ordered a psychiatric evaluation of Rodriguez-Pineda and postponed the trial. Testimony was to have started next Monday.

Questions about Rodriguez-Pineda's competency arose when he took the stand as the defense attempted to prevent the use of two written statements by the defendant as evidence in the trial.

Rodriguez-Pineda is accused of fatally shooting Michael Hefley from atop a 300-foot cliff as Hefley, his wife Jamie, and their guide, Jim Burr, rafted down the Rio Grande last year.

Mrs. Hefley and Burr were wounded by the shots that authorities have said came from a group of teen-agers standing on a cliff above the Colorado Canyon.

Rodriguez-Pineda gave conflicting answers when attorneys posed similar questions Thursday. He had difficulty answering questions, even though they were repeated in Spanish by a court-appointed translator.

He cannot speak or read English, can read a few words in Spanish and speaks limited Spanish. He testified that he began the fourth grade last year.

"The question has come up about the defendant's competency," said Michael Rodgers, Rodriguez-

Pineda's attorney. "We're not happy about it. Neither side is happy about it."

Rodriguez-Pineda, a resident alien from Mexico, was unable to recall his birthday and had to write his name in the air when asked to spell it. When asked how he signed a statement when he was arrested, the defendant testified he copied it after a U.S. Border Patrol agent spelled it for him on another piece of paper.

Rodriguez-Pineda will be evaluated at Texas Tech Medical Center in El Paso and the psychiatrist who examines him will deliver an oral report to the court on Oct. 9.

"I fully expect the court-appointed psychiatrist to find him fully competent," said prosecutor Richard Barajas. Barajas said he believes Rodriguez-Pineda was confused because attorneys are not communicating with their client. "You have to speak to him in the vernacular," Barajas said, noting Rodriguez-Pineda's age and education level.

Dallas press roasts plaid-clad governor

DALLAS (AP) — The good, the bad and the plaid in multi-colored Gov. Bill Clements at the Dallas Press Club Roast, where the motto was, "Lame Ducks Don't Wear Plaid."

About 500 people, many sporting gaudy plaid jackets, scarves, and belts, gathered here Thursday night to poke fun at Texas' top executive's sartorial taste.

In a videotape, several state luminaries questioned the fashion habits of the Republican governor, who has said he will not seek reelection next year.

On the tape, U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, talked about Clements' recent safari in Africa. Saying Clements had to cut short his trip because "his jackets were scaring the lions."

U.S. Senator Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said, "I have been asked to say something funny about Bill Clements. I personally don't know anything funny about Bill Clements."

Guests at the roast then took turns skewering Clements, who sat on stage in a plaid chair and laughed at the remarks.

Corporate takeover specialist T. Boone Pickens, who was wearing a bright red plaid jacket, said Clements is an environmentalist and had toured an oil spill site shortly after taking office. Pickens recalled that Clements hoped for a hurricane to blow the spill out to sea.

"I'm glad Bill wasn't the governor of Alaska for the Valdez spill," he said. Pickens presented to the Dallas Press Club a plaid stuffed jacket in a frame as the William P. Clements Fashion Award.

Throughout the event, First Lady Rita Clements modeled some of her husband's most memorable jackets, including one Clements wore in a photo of him next to President Gerald Ford that appeared on the front page of the New York Times.

Secretary of State George

Byoung recalled joining Clements in 1978 to campaign. "Some say Bill Clements is not a funny person ... Now you tell me, isn't he the funniest looking guy in Texas?"

Former U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright was the last roaster of the evening. He said people sometimes think of the governor as "Sweet Old Bill," but added, "Sometimes we just use the initials."

Wright closed by praising Clements' work for Texas. "No man can ever question Bill Clements' loyalty."

Clements ended the evening with barbs at his roasters.

Capitol fire causes minor damage

AUSTIN (AP) — Timing — and a little luck — helped quickly stop a smoky fire that caused evacuation of the 101-year-old Texas Capitol but no injuries and relatively minor damage.

The fire occurred Thursday in a basement air-handling unit and pumped enough smoke up air vents to fill the two-story-tall House chamber with a foul-smelling haze.

But firefighters, who arrived 90 seconds after the first call, cleared the building and extinguished the three-alarm fire within an hour.

"We were lucky that the fire was detected early, it was during daytime hours and people were in the Capitol (to report it)," said Lt. Scott Reynolds of the Austin Fire Department.

That contrasted with an early morning blaze in February 1983 that gutted parts of the Senate wing of the historic building and nearly claimed the entire structure.

"Knowing our previous history with the Capitol — the fire we had about six years ago — the potential for having a large fire spreading through all the hidden cracks and crevices of the Capitol could make it a pretty large fire," Reynolds said.

Demographic common sense

The United Nations Fund for Population Activities has increased its budget by about 20 percent since 1986, no thanks to U.S. churlishness. The Reagan administration that year cut off $25 million in annual support for family planning programs through the U.N. agency, and the Bush administration has continued that myopic policy.

Yet despite the fact that UNFPA, with help from others, has survived, Washington's return to the fold would be salutary, both financially and to give a morale boost to global efforts to control population growth.

Last week, the Senate took a modest step in that direction by approving $15 million for UNFPA as part of a mammoth foreign aid bill. Unfortunately, the measure must still survive a House-Senate conference committee and win the assent of President Bush, neither of which is certain.

Congress acted in 1985 to deny U.S. funds to any country or agency that coerces women into having abortions, a response to reports that China, as a means of implementing its one-child-per-family policy, was doing just that.

Independent researchers found that, to the extent that China has engaged in such practices, it was as a consequence of unauthorized actions at the local level by overzealous officials.

Moreover, UNFPA finances barely 1 percent of China's family planning budget and bars the use of its funds to pay for abortions. But with anti-abortion hawks like Sen. Jesse Helms breathing down its neck, the Reagan administration disregarded all of that and cut off UNFPA without a penny.

Family planning experts say one reason U.S. support for UNFPA is so vital is the timidity of many smaller countries in the face of such controversial questions as the use of condoms or birth control pills, without the protective cover that U.S. leadership can provide. The Senate has recognized that obligation in seeking to reverse a shortsighted and harmful policy.

An angry, dissenting look back at 'the last good war'

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Just in time to serve as an antidote to the wave of sentimental reminiscence arising from the 50th anniversary of World War II, scholar Paul Fussell has written an angry book with this startling proposition:

"The whole truth about the war is still not known and never fully will be known because it is too horrible to tell."

"For the past 50 years the Allied war has been sanitized and romanticized almost beyond recognition by the sentimental, the loony patriotic, the ignorant and the bloodthirsty," writes Fussell. "I have tried to balance the scales."

The result is "Wartime: Understanding and Behavior in the Second World War," an iconoclastic, opinionated and bitter rebuttal of the heroic version that's making the newspapers these days.

His book does not address the war's morality, necessity or inevitability.

Instead, his purpose is to dig out the untold fragments — untold because they were suppressed by propagandists and censors at the time, romanticized by the survivors or still too discomfiting to tell — that make his point.

Some of Fussell's truths:

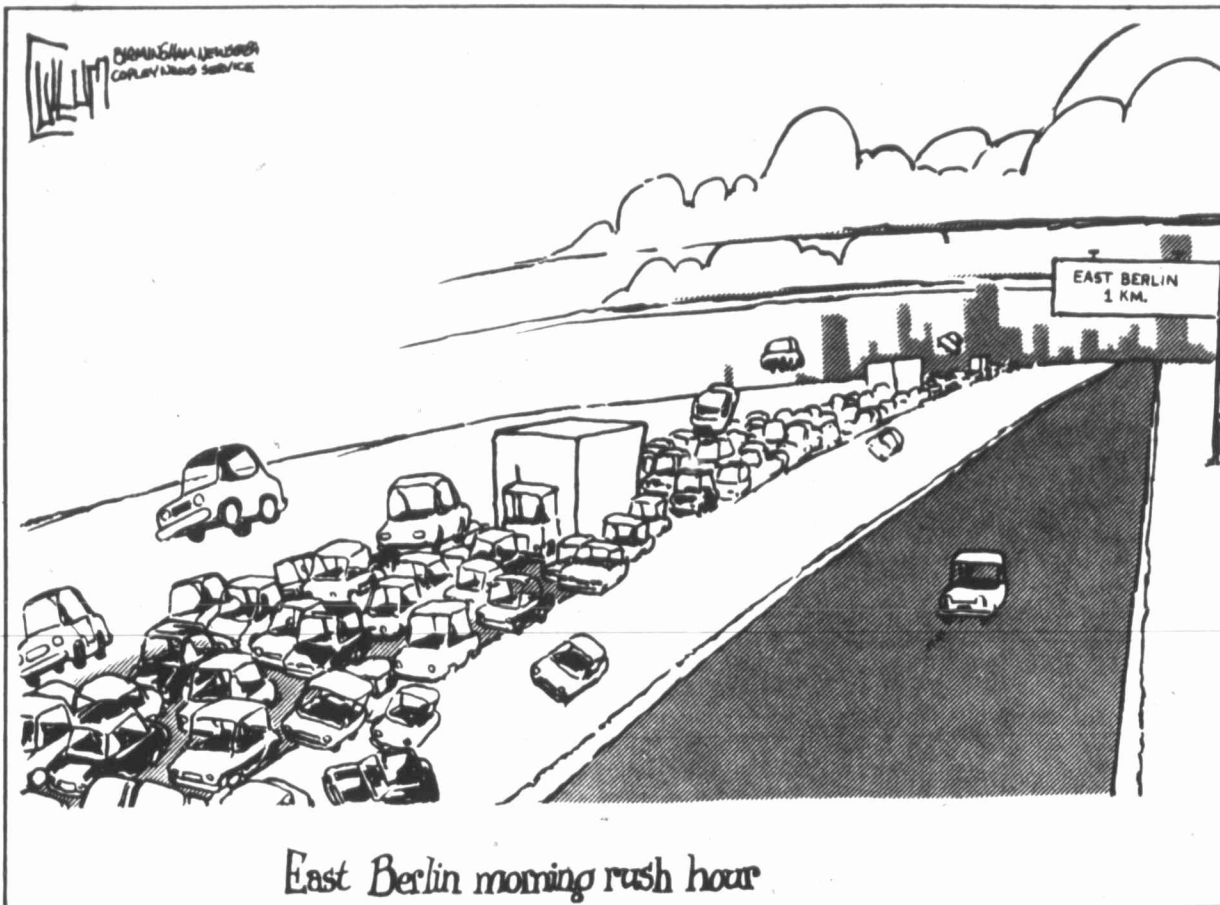

- Wars are fought by boys, innocent of life's experiences.
- "Boys who had never shaved machine-gunned other boys creeping up with Panzerfausts in their adolescent hands," is Fussell's description of what World War II combat sometimes came down to.

"Among the horribly wounded the most common cry was 'Mother!'"

At the start, men had to be 21 to be drafted but that soon dropped to 18. By late 1944, these boys were facing, across the front, the Hitler Jugend, consisted of boys age 16 or 17, sometimes as young as 12.

- Death comes not as cleanly as the mind imagines. Soldiers are just as likely to have their belly blown open as to be shot neat, clean and noble, where the movies

Generic scandal rocks FDA

By JACK ANDERSON
and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Some officials at the Food and Drug Administration have reacted to the news of a generic drug scandal like Hamlet's mother denied a murder rap — they protest too much.

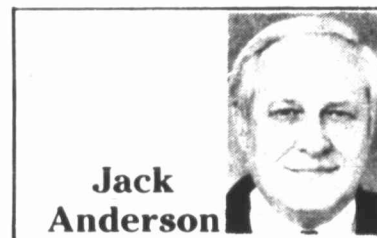

Rumors about favoritism and collusion in the approval of generic drugs have been bouncing around the FDA since 1981, when a drug company sent a fur coat to an FDA chemist as a gift to his wife.

The rumors turned to urgent complaints more than two years ago when a handful of drug companies alerted FDA officials that bribery was rampant in the agency's generic drug division — that some companies were greasing palms and, in return, their applications for approval were greased too.

Yet top officials in the FDA would have you believe that the scandal was born last spring when someone was finally caught.

Drug companies with a front-row seat on the FDA's drug approval process describe repeated attempts to get the agency to investigate itself. They say they butted up against an agency with no system to field complaints and a rogue generic drug division with invisible leadership. Those close to FDA Commissioner Frank Young describe him as a tentative leader, a consensus man who consults everyone before he makes a decision.

When the generic drug scandal went public, one of Young's advisers told him he should "out-kemp Jack Kemp" — in other words, clean house at the FDA with the same gusto that Housing and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp is purging HUD. But instead of blaming his own agency,

Jack Anderson

Young decided to blame the drug companies for taking advantage and Congress for passing laws which he says swamped his staff.

Interviews and documents obtained by our associate Jim Lynch indicate that Young and others in the FDA had plenty of warnings. Agency officials overseeing the generic division apparently chose to do nothing or felt powerless.

In the spring of 1987, two pharmaceutical companies — Mylan Laboratories Inc. and Barr Laboratories — met with top FDA officials to blow the whistle. They complained about Charles Chang, chief chemist in the generics branch, and alluded to collusion between Chang and other drug firms.

Barr and Mylan knocked on plenty of doors, but say they got no cooperation. Barr finally took its serious allegations directly to Young in July 1988, and accused the FDA of sharing Barr's trade secrets with a competitor. The company got no response to its detailed letter.

Mylan took the investigation into its own hands and found enough evidence on Chang to shake up the FDA. Chang and two other chemists have since pleaded guilty to accepting gratuities from drug companies.

Barr finally did hear from the FDA. On the day that Barr's president testified before Congress about problems inside the agency, FDA inspectors showed up at Barr's plant for a surprise inspection. The FDA now claims the timing was a mistake, not retaliation.

Young has hardly out-kemped Jack Kemp. He reassigned one official who had early warnings about the problem and he rerouted the chain of command around another. Young's boldest move has been to order "bribery awareness" classes for his troops. If they needed the classes to recognize a bribe, they shouldn't have been hired in the first place.

BRANCHING OUT — The Medellin cocaine cartel of Colombia has launched an underground marketing campaign in Europe. Our sources say the drug lords have been encouraged by European affluence to open Western Europe to crack and cocaine. The cartel already has an efficient smuggling operation in Spain. An estimated 90 percent of the illegal cocaine has eluded Spanish police. The drug plague has not reached the dimensions in Europe that it has achieved in the United States, but the drug lords have proved themselves to be astute marketers.

MINI-EDITORIAL — At the Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala., Army VIPs are living in luxury. In the newly remodeled guest quarters, they sleep in $1,000 beds under $1,600 worth of fancy linens. always have soldiers shot, in the shoulder or the chest.

"You would expect front-line soldiers to be struck and hurt by bullets and shell fragments, but such is the popular insulation from the facts that you would not expect them to be hurt, sometimes killed, by being struck by parts of their friends' bodies violently detached," writes Fussell.

"In the face of such horror, the distinction between friend and enemy vanishes, and the violent dismemberment of any human being becomes equally traumatic."

- Home-front propaganda to the contrary, allied troops were not the best armed in the history of warfare.
- "They knew that their automatic rifles (World War I vintage) were slower and clumsier, and they knew that the Germans had a much better light machine gun. ... They knew that their own tanks, both American and British, were ridiculously under-armed and under-armored, so that they were inevitably destroyed in an open encounter with an equal number of German Panzers. ... And they knew that the greatest single weapon of the war, the atomic bomb excluded, was the German 88-mm flat-trajectory gun, which brought down thousands of bombers and tens of thousands of soldiers."

- Far more often than is known, soldiers are killed by blunders on their own side, hushed up to preserve homefront morale.

Fussell devotes a chapter to such disasters, telling, for example, how nervous Navy gunners shot down 23 planes carrying paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division during the invasion of Sicily.

A Canadian soldier tells of an American who confused him for the enemy at Normandy and wouldn't stop firing. "It's him or me. So I shoot that boy even though I know he's a Yank. ... Poor bugger. A corporal from some Texas outfit."

After the Normandy landing, the Americans ordered up a round of bombing to soften Nazi fortifications inland. Accidentally, American planes dropped their bombs on American lines, killing 25. The next day the American line was secretly pulled back to avoid a disastrous repeat. This time the planes killed 110 GIs and a general. Fussell quotes an eyewitness:

"Some enraged American units opened fire on their own aircraft, a not-uncommon practice among all the armies in Normandy when suffering at the hands of their own pilots."

So much for "precision bombing" or its latter-day equivalent in Vietnam or Libya, the "surgical air strike."

Fussell's book is going to dispense some who would prefer to remember the courage and forget the carnage.

His own biography denies such critics ammunition. The author is professor of English literature at the University of Pennsylvania but, more pertinently, was a young army lieutenant in the 103rd Infantry Division in France in World War II. He was severely wounded in combat.

The war that author Studs Terkel calls "The Good War" is his war, too. But his word for it is "stupid."

The "terrible fact," he says, is that "military successes are achieved only at the cost of insane violence and fear and agony, with no bargains allowed."

You just can't beat the bookie

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

I'm not like Pete Rose. I am going to admit that I did in fact once make a bet on a football game with a bookie.

It was about 20 years ago. My roommate at the time, Frank, said to me, "I've got a lock on the Monday night football game."

Green Bay was playing Philadelphia, if my memory is still capable of recalling facts from two decades ago.

Frank said the Packers were giving up only 9 points and would thrash the Eagles easily.

I was bringing home about a hundred a week at the time and could have used the money. So I put down $50 and began to plan what I would do with my extra cash.

Frank and I watched the game together. The Packers had the ball with only seconds left to play. And they had the 9 points covered by 4.

But then something happened. There was a fumble and an Eagles' lineman picked up the ball and ran it and my 50 into the end zone.

I never bet with a bookie again. You can't beat them. And I've heard too many stories and know too many guys who, when football season arrives, bet the ranch each weekend and have to suffer the consequences.

Some true stories: Another friend of mine, Charles, lost every bet on Sunday pro football. The last defeat came from the West Coast as he watched his money go down the drain on TV.

He became so infuriated with his bad luck he picked up his TV and threw it out of a second story window and it hit his dog.

He was out what he bet, out his $300 TV set and the vet charged him $200 to put his dog back together again.

A fellow walks into his office on Monday morning and tells a coworker he was wiped out during the weekend.

"I'm never going to bet again as long as I live," he said.

"Of course you will," argues his coworker. "No, I won't."

"Yes you will."

"I've got a hundred says I won't."

A guy has loaded up on a Monday night game. His wife has asked friends over for dinner.

Dinner is over. And the guy says to his guests, "Excuse me, I've got to go up on the roof."

"What for?" asks his wife.

"I've got to fix the antenna so I can get perfect reception on the ball game."

He goes up on the roof, falls off and breaks his leg and the '49ers don't cover.

And this one: A man bets on 13 pro games on Sunday, and like the guy who threw his TV out the window, loses all 13. My dog could probably pick one winner out of 13. But not this unlucky soul.

He goes to see his bookie Monday and painfully hands over the cash.

"I've got hockey games, too," says the bookie. "Why not try that?"

"Are you kidding?" says the guy. "I don't know a thing in the world about hockey."

Amtrak train hits firetruck, 3 die

CALVERTON, Va. (AP) — An Amtrak train smashed into a firetruck at a railroad crossing Thursday night and derailed, killing three firefighters and injuring more than 150 passengers.

The two other firefighters on the truck and two train passengers were listed in critical condition in area hospitals.

Both engines and 11 cars of the southbound Crescent, bound from New York to Atlanta and New Orleans, derailed when the collision occurred about 7:40 p.m. in this northern Virginia town about 40 miles southwest of Washington, D.C. said Amtrak spokesman John Jacobsen in Washington.

The train was carrying 379 passengers and a crew of 20, he said. Five cars of the 16-car train remained on the track, said Pat Jeffrey, another Amtrak spokesman.

Two firefighters died at the scene and a third died later at a hospital, said Sgt. Butler Grant of the Fauquier County Sheriff's Department. The firetruck with five men aboard was responding to a call from the nearby town of Catlett when the accident occurred, Grant said.

Baryshnikov resigns as director

NEW YORK (AP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov, the Soviet-born ballet star, has resigned abruptly as artistic director of the American Ballet Theater in a dispute with the company's management.

Baryshnikov resigned Thursday after the board refused to rescind a decision by the company's new executive director to place an assistant to Baryshnikov on a year's leave of absence.

Baryshnikov, who defected from the Soviet Union in 1974, had announced in June he planned to resign from the ABT in 1990 to further personal endeavors, including an acting career.

Jane Hermann, the new executive director, said in a letter Wednesday that the former star of the Soviet Union's Kirov Ballet gave the company an ultimatum.

The dispute also involved financial problems and Baryshnikov's refusal to sponsor fund-raising efforts for the institute, The New York Times said today.

Baryshnikov also threatened to withdraw the ballets he staged if the casts he directed during his tenure are not used.

"I'm not taking orders from anyone, especially unfair ones," he told the Times in an interview. "I left one country for those very reasons."

Bush tours storm damaged area

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — President Bush today toured areas of South Carolina devastated by Hurricane Hugo, viewing scenes of flattened buildings and forests and signing a $1.1 billion relief package for its victims.

"I'm here trying to mobilize the resources of the federal government," Bush said, standing in front of a school bus demolished by a fallen tree in nearby Summerville.

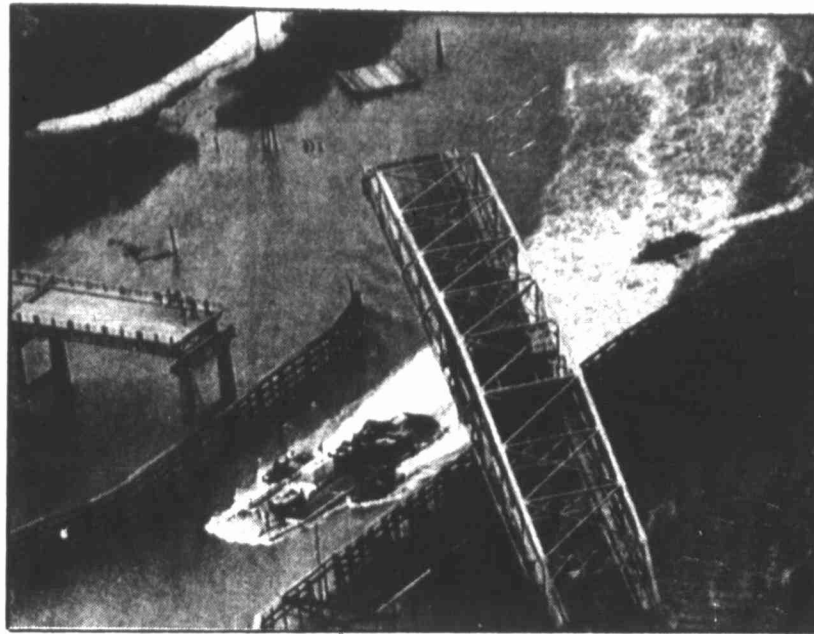

Bush was shown around the grounds of the Dorchester County Courthouse — littered with fallen trees, smashed vehicles and twisted metal — by Summerville

Mayor Berlin Meyers, who called the Sept. 21 storm "the worst storm that ever happened to our state."

The president, patting the mayor on the shoulder, said, "Why am I here? I'm here to give a little encouragement to a courageous man."

The overcast skies cleared long enough for Bush to take a 15-minute helicopter tour toward the coast, flying low over some of the hardest hit areas of downtown Charleston.

At the end of his trip, the president told a small crowd at the air base. "You couldn't help be impressed to hear the people say, 'we're going to bounce back.'"

Feds losing ground on Superfund cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is losing ground in its program to clean up the nation's most dangerous hazardous waste dumps.

In eight years cleanup work has been completed on only about three dozen sites, and on Thursday the Environmental Protection Agency added 93 new properties in 32 states that need to be cleared of hazardous waste and debris.

The additional sites bring to 1,194 the waste dumps scheduled to be decontaminated under the Superfund program, which is aimed at dealing with the nation's most hazardous waste problems. EPA officials have said the program likely will cost tens of billions of dollars and take decades.

The national priority list for cleanup projects would have grown even more, except for a decision by the EPA to also delete 31 sites that had been on the list.

Of the 31 sites, 27 are to be shifted to another cleanup program within the agency. Cleanup activities were to continue at those 27 sites, but not under the Superfund program, said EPA spokeswoman Mary Mears.

The other four sites were deleted because the health risks associated with them no longer were considered sufficient to meet the Superfund criteria, said Ms. Mears.

The national priority list represents the worst of an estimated 30,000 hazardous waste dumps in need of treatment nationwide.

Since 1980, Congress has appropriated more than $8 billion for removal of toxic and radioactive materials from contaminated sites under the Superfund program.

Earlier this month, a study by the Rand Corp. concluded that the Superfund program has been "superslow" in dealing with the toxic waste dump problem and that the EPA has not been aggressive enough in getting polluters to pay for the cleanup.

During the program's first eight years, cleanup was finished on only 34 of the 1,175 sites on the priority list at the time of the study, the Rand Corp. analysis said. The report also criticized the agency for not spending more of the money provided by Congress for cleanup.

Israelis celebrate new year

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jews throughout Israel today began their celebration of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish new year, with prayers, picnics and tight security.

The beginning of the Hebrew year will not be marked by blowing the traditional ram's horn, or shofar, in Israel's 8,000 synagogues because the holiday falls on the Jewish Sabbath, when it is forbidden to sound the horn.

Instead, the shofar will be blown on the second day of the new year festival Sunday.

The new year 5750 was interpreted by some religious scholars as the "year of miracles" because 50 stands for the letter "n" in Hebrew. The scholars linked the "n" to the word "nisim," or miracle.

But some newspapers interpreted the new year as the root to the word "tashan," or sleep, suggesting weariness over the 21-month Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation of the territories.

To prevent the uprising from interfering in the holiday, the army blocked travel into Israel by residents of the Gaza Strip.

Party leader rules out pluralism

BEIJING (AP) — Chinese Communist Party leader Jiang Zemin urged vigilance against forces hostile to socialism and ruled out political pluralism in a nationally broadcast speech today marking 40 years of Communist rule.

Jiang's speech in the Great Hall of the People opened a weekend of festivities marking revolutionary leader Mao Tse-tung's Oct. 1, 1949 proclamation of the People's Republic of China after decades of civil war.

"Only socialism can save China," Jiang declared in a speech thick with traditional socialist rhetoric and praise for the party's crushing of massive, student-led, pro-democracy protests in June.

Since then, supporters of liberal change have been purged, including then-party chief Zhao Ziyang, and hard-line attacks on capitalism and pluralism, such as Jiang's speech, have become the norm.

"History has proven the socialist system has great vigor and vitality," Jiang said. "The replacement of capitalism with socialism is the great historical trend."

Calls for a multiparty system, he said, are "extremely destructive to our cause and (are) liable to be exploited by a small handful of reactionaries." One cannot oppose socialism and be patriotic, he said.

Philippine troops on alert

MANILA, Philippines (AP) —

Troops and police were put on alert today and a wave of panic-selling hit the country's two stock exchanges after President Corason Aquino banned the burial of Ferdinand Marcos in the Philippines.

Mrs. Aquino ordered Philippine flags flown at half-mast until Sunday on all government buildings in respect for the 72-year-old former president, who died Thursday in Hawaii.

The president ruled out allowing Marcos to be buried in the Philippines in the interest of national security. But a senior official said the government might allow Marcos' ashes to be flown here.

Security was reinforced today at all radio and television stations, electric power plants, telephone exchanges and other essential installations in the Manila area.

In a statement Thursday, Mrs. Aquino expressed her condolences to Marcos' family but said she would not allow the former president to be buried in the Philippines.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said the Federal Aviation Administration would seek to prevent any flight from the United States to the Philippines.

'Do not consult the dead'

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think it's possible to communicate with the spirits of the dead? I've become very interested in this subject, and feel that we could gain much knowledge if we are able to communicate with them (as some friends of mine claim). I would be interested in your ideas on this. — Mrs. M.N.

DEAR MRS. M.N.: I urge you as strongly as I know how to not dabble or get involved in anything to do with occult practices, including this one. At best, they are deceptive and fraudulent; at worst, they can involve you in matters which are satanic in origin. The Bible is very clear that such things are false and will only lead you away from God and his truth. In the Old Testament God commanded, "Let no one be found among you... who is a medium or spiritist or who consults the dead. Anyone who does these things is detestable to the Lord" (Deuteronomy 18:10-12). Among the early Christians those who had formerly practiced such things renounced them and burned their scrolls (books) which instructed them in their rites (see Acts 19:18-19).

Instead, the Bible urges us to turn in faith to Christ and to seek the truth he has given us in the Bible. God's word alone gives us spiritual truth; any other path will lead us astray. Only one person ever came back from the dead, and that was Jesus Christ. Occult practices will never tell us with finality what is beyond the grave, but because of His resurrection we can know from Christ everything we need to know.

Have you ever asked yourself why you are so interested in this? I suspect the real reason is that down inside you have a hunger for spiritual truth. Don't try to satisfy that hunger in a false way, but turn to Christ, "in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge" (Colossians 2:3).

Religion roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — A Jewish leader called for the international community to work for an end to hostage-taking during the Jewish new year that begins at sundown Friday.

"Judaism teaches that the saving of one life is equivalent to saving the entire world," said Sholom D. Comay, president of the American Jewish Committee. "May the Jewish year 5750 witness the freeing of those still held hostage, and a concerted effort to eradicate from the face of the Earth the practice of taking hostages."

Rosh Hashana, the Jewish new year, begins at sundown Friday and ends with the conclusion of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, at sundown Oct. 9.

The High Holy Days are a period of self-examination, repentance for faults and rededication to God's goodness, compassion and justice.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Avery D. Post, the first three-term president of the United Church of Christ, retired Friday.

The 65-year-old Post, who was first elected president in 1977, said he is proud of the church's leadership in peace and ecumenism movements.

Church growth

Area pastors share their opinions

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The news isn't good for many "mainline" Protestant denominations.

While the Roman Catholic Church and several conservative Protestant churches continued to grow in 1987, "mainline" churches experienced another year of membership losses.

Local clergy say it's because people are looking for something — but exactly what that something is causes a difference of opinion.

Why do some churches lose enrollment while others gain? According to Bishop Hulse of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas the answer is not clear cut.

In responding to loss of membership in the Episcopal Church (down 1.69 percent) Hulse stated, "I don't think there is one reason. I do believe so many people want really simple black and white answers. In our church we try to use the mind for answering questions... there are a lot of gray areas. We are not into easy simple answers."

Hulse believes that changes in the church such as women priests have also had an effect on the membership. He did not say whether he believed it to be for the better or the worse.

According to the recently released 1989 "Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches" by the Religious News Service, total membership figures for 1987 (latest available data) shows that American Church attendance is up from 142.8 million to 143.8 million. The yearbook lists some 219 religious bodies. This represents 58.6 percent of the U.S. population.

The Roman Catholic Church reported a 1.14 percent increase in 1987. The Southern Baptist Convention, the country's largest Protestant denomination, grew from 14.6 million to 14.7 million, a 0.74 percent increase. While the second largest Protestant denomination, the Methodist church, decreased in enrollment an exact 0.74 percent. Other churches with enrollment declines are Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Episcopal Church, Presbyterian Church and the United Church of Christ.

Some of the largest percentage increases were recorded by small conservative denominations such as the Christian and Missionary Alliance (up 2.33 percent), the Church of God (up 5.24 percent), Church of the Nazarene (up 2.42 percent) and International Church of the Foursquare Gospel (up 3.28 percent).

Royce Clay, pastor of 14th and Main Street Church of Christ, Big Spring, pastors a denomination that has seen growth.

The Church of Christ (not to be confused with the United Church of Christ) has seen gains in membership. Clay said, "Over the last decade the more conservative churches have seen growth. Our church is totally with out ritual. We feel Christians are bound to a literal translation of the Bible."

This trend of people moving from

STEVE COMSTOCK

ROBERT LACEY

ROYCE CLAY

CARROLL KOHL

"liberal" churches to more "conservative" churches is also recognized by Steve Comstock, pastor of First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Comstock, who doesn't agree with the terminology "liberal and conservative" does agree with the concept. He agreed that there has been a definite trend the last 10 to 12 years.

Comstock says people are seeking a more dogmatic creedal church.

People don't want to think about what they believe, this makes religion easier," Comstock said.

He said that people are seeking churches that meet special needs or fit individual personalities such as churches that have strong youth programs, special family programs and programs for single adults. He also believes a preacher's personality will have an effect on enrollment.

Robert Lacey, pastor of Hillcrest Baptist Church, doesn't accredit the growth of his denomination so much to a trend as to the fact that the Southern Baptists believe "in aggressive evangelism, the starting of new churches, strong Sunday Schools and the atmosphere of a warm and loving fellowship."

Carroll Kohl, pastor of the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Big Spring, says mainline Protestant churches have been hurt by the advent of "megachurches."

"People that study these things say baby boomers have a different philosophy (than their parents). They're looking for something different."

"They are looking for something large, program oriented and something that meets their needs. They want something that has a worship service like what they have seen on TV. Today's young people were raised in an era of modern music and modern assembly. They don't want to go to a church that doesn't have the professional performance they're looking for... they want a choir and a number of ministers... they want a Sunday morning service on an equal with any television service."

But Kohl says Big Spring does not have any of the megachurches — nothing with 3,000-4,000 people attending.

"Yet even in Big Spring there is an emphasis on a higher degree of professionalism," Kohl said. "People are looking for a... worship service that is well done, uplifting and inspirational... that gives the feeling there is still hope in the world when society doesn't give that impression. People are looking for churches that offer an alternative — that preach there is a higher God still in control."

Kohl also said he thinks that independent charismatic churches have peaked, even though they have observed the fastest growth in the past.

"In Big Spring they have pretty well leveled off even when they had a real heavy growth about 10 years ago."

Kohl, who says his church is growing, compared his congregation to another area church in style and growth.

"A lot of people think the Nazarenes are a charismatic church, but they aren't," Kohl said of the denomination which is one of the fastest growing churches in Big Spring. "But they aren't a traditional church. Lutherans are. We are caught in a situation where we are expected to do certain things because we are such an old denomination."

"People are looking for different ways to preach the same old gospel."

That kind of attitude has caused the Big Spring Lutherans to change their worship service, Kohl said. "Our services are different now. We still have a liturgy, but we use many more gospel songs and have a different approach to worship than you find in most Lutheran churches."

In a section highlighting trends in giving, the 1989 yearbook reports that nine U.S. Protestant denominations that regularly record giving and membership statistics experienced a total giving increase of 6.2 percent.

That compares to a 4.4 percent inflation rate — despite a total drop in membership of more than 40,000. The average gift to churches per person went up an even $42 — from $320.76 in 1986 to $342.76 in 1987.

The American Baptist Churches led the denominations reporting giving increases with 8.8 percent. Other denominations reporting giving increases were Episcopal Church (up 4.1 percent), Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod (up 1.7 percent), Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) (up 2.6 percent), Southern Baptist Convention (up 4.3 percent), United Church of Christ (up 5.2 percent) and United Methodist Church (up 5.4 percent).

Another analysis in the yearbook reveals that Americans gave an average 2.74 percent of their disposable income to churches in 1985. That compares to 3.05 percent in 1968.

Watson to sing Sunday

Johnny Ray Watson, a musical ambassador for Priority Living, an outreach ministry to the business and professional community based in Southern California, will sing Sunday during the 10:50 a.m. worship service and the 6 p.m. service at First Baptist Church, Big Spring.

Raised in Lorenzo, Watson was the only surviving child of a black family living in a predominantly white, segregated community. When the civil rights wave hit Lorenzo, he became a prime player on the newly-integrated high school basketball team, according to a news release.

Picked to be on the Texas All-State Team, he had athletic scholarship offers from 32 different colleges. Despite the 83 percent white majority, he was named "Mr. Lorenzo High School" by his classmates in his senior year.

His Christian faith was severely tested in the following years. A spiritual renewal resulted in Watson's commitment to serve God through his singing gift.

Thank-you note fails to make a good grade

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a sample of the card I designed as a thank-you note for those people who were kind enough to send my son money for his high school graduation.

As you can see, it's a printed postcard with the following message: "Thank you for your thoughtfulness and your gift of money. Yours truly, John Paul Jones" (not his real name).

Abby, I realize that this is not the usual kind of thank-you note one sends, but why must one be "usual"?

Actually, I was very proud that I had been so innovative. Knowing my son, if I had relied on him to write his own thank-you notes, they would never get done. So what would be better: this, or no thank-you at all? I even typed the addresses on stick-on labels, so all he had to do was sign the card with his initials.

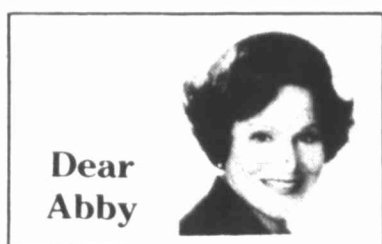

After all his "thank-yous" were sent off, I received one of the cards back with the following typewritten message: "This is really shabby — keep your thanks!" I have no idea who sent it, so I can't even apologize to the person who thought my son's thank-you card was offensive.

Now I'm concerned that more than just one person thought his card was offensive, and I wonder if my husband and I should send an apology to everyone we sent the thank-you cards to. What is your advice? — JOHN PAUL'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Sorry, but I do not share your enthusiasm for the "quick n' easy" thank-you postcard you designed for your son. He's old enough to write a proper thank-you note for each and every gift he received, which is what he should have done. By making it easy for him to evade this responsibility, you are encouraging laziness.

Do not compound your gaffe by sending apologies from you and your husband. Your son should write and apologize for not having sent a personal thank-you in the first place.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I'm not sure too many people have. My boyfriend and my best friend are both 17. They are both males. My best friend, Edwin, and I have lived next door for 13 years.

Dear Abby

We are very, very close, but there was never a romantic relationship — not even a kiss. He's like a brother to me.

My boyfriend, Jayson, and I have been dating for almost a year. We are very close, but he is extremely jealous of Edwin. When Edwin and I go out with his family or even spend time together, Jayson calls it a "date." This really irritates me. I've tried to tell Jayson that I don't like Edwin as a boyfriend — only as a best friend — but he doesn't believe me.

Abby, I have never cheated on Jayson and I never will, but he doesn't trust me at all. When I ask him why he doesn't trust me, he has no answer. He just repeats that he doesn't trust me.

I need to build trust with Jayson and still remain best friends with Edwin. I don't want to give either friend up. They are both the best things that ever happened to me. — FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You don't need to build "trust" with Jayson — he needs to build confidence in himself. If Jayson mistrusts you for no reason whatsoever, that's his problem. Don't make it yours.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Maggie in Manhattan," who asked if sex on Sunday morning before Mass was sinful.

I once attended a seminar in Tucson in which a priest was asked the same question. He replied: "Of course not. Just don't block the aisle." — HAPPILY WED IN CLOQUET, MINN.

The facts about drugs, AIDS and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy are all in Abby's new, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Old jewelry making comeback

(AP) The bold, glitzy costume jewelry of the 1930s and 1940s is making a comeback, and the prices are rising to match.

A reasonably nice double clip pin would have cost $45 two or three years ago, according to an article in the current issue of Connoisseur. Today the same piece will fetch $80 or $100.

At the top of the line, prices have soared and a fur clip made by Eisenberg that would have cost $120 a couple of years ago now commands more than $1,000.

The Italian fashion elite, including Laura Biagiotti, the Fendis and the Missonis, have been rushing to New York flea markets to buy this marvelous fake jewelry.

Their mania has been sparked by a new interest in American movies of the '40s. More important, the jewelry looks spectacular on such designer clothes as Giorgio Armani suits.

Finally, the materials of the jewelry may have been inexpensive, but the workmanship was superb; the pieces were handmade and unique, worthy of the best jewelers.

Several currents came together in the United States in the late '30s and the '40s to produce fabulous costume jewelry.

There was a new democratization and freedom in fashion, led by the fashion and women's magazines and Hollywood.

Women, confronted with the Depression and World War II, were eager to lighten the gloom. Even the cocktail party, with its opportunity to dress up, helped create a demand for jewelry.

The answer came from Europe, which exported not only style and design direction but also fine jewelers. Costume jewelry companies such as Hobe, Trifari, Miriam Haskell and Eisenberg sold inexpensive materials arranged in upbeat designs by skilled craftsmen.

After the war, tastes changed, the costs of materials and labor rose and the moment for this type of jewelry passed.

The brassiere marks its 100th birthday

By SUZY PATTERSON
PARIS (AP) — It was as revolutionary as the storming of the Bastille, as beautifully engineered as the Eiffel Tower. That great French achievement — the brassiere — is 100 years old this year.

As the Eiffel Tower was going up, an enterprising French lady named Herminie Cadolle was constructing the first bra — called "soutien-gorge" in France, literally "throat support," a euphemism for bosom uplift.

While her invention has become a wardrobe fixture, her descendants are still serving up "couture" bras and other lingerie in the quietly exclusive house of Cadolle on the Rue Cambon in Paris just off the fashionable Rue du Faubourg Saint-Honore.

"My great-great-grandmother was very liberated," said Poupie Cadolle, 43, an ebullient blonde who carries on the family's custom lingerie trade with her mother, Alice.

Elegant women had long suffered the constraints of bust bandeaus or body corsets, culminating in the sculptured naughty Nineties torso-cincher aptly called the "waspie."

As a working woman — she was widowed at a very young age — Herminie was distressed by the currently fashionable straitjacket.

So she came up with a frilly two-part garment — the first beribboned "bra." It was attached to the corset by net, but freed the abdomen, and soon became an altogether separate item.

Suspended from its two shoulder straps, this revolutionary contraption was colorfully called the "bien-etre," or well-being. Although rooted in the French word for arm (bras), the term brassiere is the English usage. The French still call the garment a soutien-gorge.

PARIS — A customer looks over a black and white satin-like bra at the house of Cadolle in Paris Thursday.

The soutien-gorge was a boon to women who were fainting dead away as their whaleboned corsets socked them in the sternum and literally knocked the air out of them.

Herminie patented her invention, but it was soon copied widely.

Since then, the bra has had its ups and downs.

With the boyish looks of Chanel after World War I, the bra was reduced to little more than a band, as women strove for flat chests.

But it surged back gloriously in the sweater-girl years after World War II, epitomized by busty movie stars like Jane Russell and later Jayne Mansfield, inspiring the less well-endowed to look for an artificial uplift.

Bra manufacturers fell all over themselves to give breasts "sexy" shapes that sometimes looked like cannon shells rather than bosoms.

In France, sex kitten Brigitte Bardot showing her perky bosom in "And God Created Women" did a lot for the bra. And, like many other stars, she bought hers at Cadolle.

But concerns for a shapely bosom were deflated to an all-time low after 1968, when militant women's libbers symbolically burned bras or stopped wearing them.

Poupie Cadolle said she was horrified by all this.

"It was a catastrophe to let bosoms sag that way."

Her bra sales sagged, too, by at least 30 percent.

"But they've popped up recently," she said, welcoming the recent return to sexier dress that gives bras and bustiers a boost.

Nevertheless, she is leery of courtiers.

"I think they hate bosoms, deep down," she said.

However, some designers like Chantal Thomass and Jean-Paul Gaultier see bras as real fashion items. Gaultier has even used metal "bullet-tip" bras with old-fashioned garter belts to titillate audiences at his showings.

Now Poupie Cadolle plans her own "underwear-outerwear" collection of sweet nothings dolled up for party wear, feeling that the time is ripe for bringing silk and lace out of the lingerie closet.

About half Mrs. Cadolle's clients are Americans, and she gets a kick out of them.

"They're likely to yell greetings to each other between dressing rooms," she said. "Whereas French women sneak around perhaps not wanting to show that they spend that much money."

Americans have bigger bosoms than the French, she said, but she's using more fabric for everyone these days, "since the average size has risen from about 34A to 36B, mainly due to the birth-control pill."

Stolen bike

MOUNT VERNON, Ohio (AP) — Hank Snow was amazed when police told him they had recovered his son's three-speed bicycle, which was stolen 10 years ago. His amazement grew when he tried to get it back.

In 1979, he bought the bike for his son, Brad, then 14. It soon was stolen from his yard, and when police didn't locate it immediately, Snow figured it was gone for good.

But police called to tell him the bike was found Aug. 31. They had traced a registration sticker to Snow.

Police said, however, that it would take 30 days to turn over the bike. It turned out the bike had been stolen that month from a 16-year-old boy.

The boy said he bought the bike from someone out of town. A sheriff's deputy looked for the seller, but couldn't find him. Authorities then decided to return the bike to the boy.

"That made me very unhappy," Snow said.

Police said the boy had ownership rights because he paid $15 for it, and that if Snow wanted the bike he would have to buy it back.

"I didn't think that was right. That's when I contacted the city law director's office. Our whole family went up — my wife, myself and my son — and we gave written statements about the bicycle."

Law Director William Smith eventually decided that the evidence made Snow the owner.

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Corvallis met Corvallis, and he liked what he saw.

Corvallis Ramey, 54, of Chesterfield County, Va., and his wife, Gertrude, drove 3,300 miles in their mobile home to visit his namesake this week.

Ramey said his father, Venis, picked his name after spending hours looking at maps for a name "he hadn't heard of. And a place on a map that there weren't two of."

Ramey said he and his wife talked about the trip for more than 30 years. He called the city recently for advance information.

"Of course, they couldn't believe my name was Corvallis," he said. "But I said, 'I'll be there to prove it.'"

The Rameys spent Tuesday visiting local landmarks, including City Hall, the Benton County Courthouse, Central Park and the Cannery Mall, where they bought T-shirts proclaiming "Man ... I love this town, Corvallis, Oregon."

City Manager Gerald Seals shook his hand. The Rameys captured the moment on videotape.

Told there's a Corvallis, Mont., Ramey just smiled. "This is the one I was named after," he said. "That's the only one I care about."

Valley dudes, move on

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sherman Oaks Galleria used to be, you know, like, a totally awesome place for Valley girls to hang out and check out Valley dudes.

Back in the early to mid-1980s, the Galleria was the Valley Girls' mall. Featured in Moon Unit Zappa's 1982 satirical hit single "Valley Girl" it drew teens from throughout San Fernando Valley.

Two movies, "Valley Girl" and "Fast Times at Ridgemont High," were shot there.

But those days are over, says Jonathon Alpert, general manager for the Galleria. The mall's reputation as a teen-age hangout kept serious shoppers away.

"We want those kids to come here and enjoy the center and shop," he said. "But we do not want them to come out here and loiter and hang out. Our customers are 34-year-olds who make $50,000 a year."

Geothermal area is running out of steam

THE GEYSERS, Calif. (AP) — The nation's biggest geothermal complex is literally running out of steam, casting doubts on a clean technology that had been the very symbol of alternative energy.

During the past year, The Geysers, a 30-square-mile region in the isolated mountains 90 miles north of San Francisco, has seen steam pressure drop at a rate much faster than expected.

The decline is so dramatic it eventually could halve electricity production at the 28-plant site, which is owned by several utilities, according to state Energy Commission Chairman Charles Imbrecht.

That could cost the companies hundreds of millions of dollars, Imbrecht said. California taxpayers also stand to lose millions because the state collects royalties that are tied to electricity or steam production.

Government and private experts say the most likely single cause of the decline is the high number of wells sunk into the region, which have drawn down the steam supply more quickly than anticipated.

But conflicting interests among landowners, utilities and at least 10 competing steam suppliers have slowed attempts to respond to the problem. As a result, the Energy Commission has called a hearing for today to seek ways to extend the life of the steam reservoir, Imbrecht said.

The Geysers is the largest of the 19 geothermal fields producing electricity in the nation, said David Anderson, director of the Geothermal Resources Council, a non-profit foundation funded primarily by the geothermal industry. Other fields are in California, western Nevada and southwestern Utah.

Worldwide, there are 67 geothermal fields producing electricity or under development to make power, Anderson said.

The rest of the industry is keeping a close eye on how companies cope with the problems at The Geysers because of the field's size and nearly 30-year operating history, said John Mock of the U.S. Energy Department.

"The wealth of operating experience at The Geysers makes it the most complete source of information of any U.S. geothermal system," Mock said. Plants in the area are designed to produce enough electricity for 500,000 average households, representing 38 percent of the world's geothermal capacity.

But Mock said at least 400 of the region's 1,900 megawatt generating capacity have been idled because of insufficient steam. Over large portions of the region, the steam pressure that was expected to decrease gradually has dropped below 200 pounds per square inch from 500 pounds at the beginning of development in 1960, he said. And the rate of decline quickened during the past year.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. gets 10 percent of its generating capacity from 19 geothermal units that account for about two-thirds of total generating capacity at The Geysers. PG&E officials said the steam shortfall has idled more than 20 percent of its generating capacity at The Geysers.

Among the possible remedies are injecting water from the surface so the underlying layer of molten lava creates more steam; drilling additional and deeper wells; improving plant efficiency, and running plants only at peak demand periods rather than around the clock.

But the nature of geothermal energy means that the actions of one company can affect another in the zone. For example, wells drilled as deeply as two miles into the underground steam reservoir from separately owned properties have been compared by geologists to straws being dropped into the same container.

In addition, production agreements among the various parties differ, with only some emphasizing steam conservation. And some agreements tie steam prices to those of other fuels whose price has declined in recent years. As a result, in some cases it may not make sense financially for a steam supplier to drill new wells.

"Obviously if we're unable to rely on The Geysers ... we'll have to take steps to make sure there is adequate generating capacity in the early and mid-1990s in Northern California," Imbrecht said.

Still, despite the field's decline, many in the industry remain optimistic.

'Doomsday clock' shifts to environmental focus

CHICAGO (AP) — The Bulletin of Atomic Scientists, for 44 years a barometer of relations between the superpowers, is shifting its editorial focus to include environmental and economic concerns, its editor said Sunday.

The change, signifying a thaw in the Cold War, is depicted in the revamping of the journal's famous "Doomsday clock" logo. The new logo shows the clock image superimposed on a globe, said editor Len Ackland.

"It's a recognition that international security has to be thought about in more than simple military terms," he said. "It doesn't mean in any way that military security is less important."

The "Doomsday clock," which first appeared in 1947, has hands set at six minutes to midnight. It represents an estimate by the journal's editors and an international board of scientists of the world's proximity to the final midnight of nuclear destruction.

The hands have been reset 12 times, and was moved up to 11:57 when U.S.-Soviet arms-control talks were suspended in 1983. It has remained at 11:54 since January 1988 after the United States and Soviet Union signed the treaty to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

The new logo makes its debut this week in the October issue.

"In the past year and a half, we have certainly seen progress in improving the U.S.-Soviet Union arms control negotiations," Ackland said in a telephone interview from his suburban Oak Park home.

"Once tensions dropped down it enabled us to take a look around and recognize there are many other dangers that threaten our survival, and environmental concerns are probably the most conspicuous."

The first Bulletin, six pages long, was published Dec. 10, 1945. Today's journal, about 50 pages, is published 10 times a year.

Farmer's almanac forecasts generally mild winter

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — Rest easy America! Abe Weatherwise, prognosticator of the Old Farmer's Almanac, says it'll be a mild winter across most of the country. And New Englanders can expect a white Christmas.

Abe, who claims 80 percent accuracy in "America's oldest continuously published periodical," says only the northern third of the country will have more snow than usual.

The 198th edition of the 224-page almanac hits the newsstands and supermarkets this week with its familiar planting and tide tables, anecdotes and other tidbits, such as 100 ways how to avoid untimely death. (No. 49. Avoid combing hair in the dark; No. 77. Never whistle in a coal mine.)

Abe, a collective pseudonym, says the almanac's predictions are "based on state-of-the-art analysis of recurring solar cycles." He predicts that a cold, wet and snowy spring in the North will be balanced by warm, dry spring weather west of the Mississippi.

The summer of 1990, says Abe, will be hot and dry in many areas east of the Rockies.

In Canada, where 300,000 of the 4 million copies of the customary yellow-covered almanac will be sold, heavier than average snow is forecast from Quebec through the prairie provinces.

"The more serious the weather, the larger percentage we sell," says Executive Editor Tim Clark. "They count on us more in Alberta than in Alabama."

The Old Farmer's Almanac is the legal document for tides and sunrises and sunsets in most states. In addition to giving readers weather predictions, advertisements for hernia appliances, secrets of winning lotteries and rules of thumb for rhubarb pie, the almanac advises that cows and pigs bred for leanness will boost the popularity of red meat and inflation will run at 6 percent.

The almanac also predicts the return of 4-inch-wide neckties for men, short hair for women and lower prices for videocassette recorders.

The Old Farmer's Almanac is not to be confused with its upstart rival, the Farmer's Almanac, which is about a third as thick, 23 years younger, and is given away to businesses for advertising purposes.

The distinguishing trademark of the Old Farmer's Almanac is a hole in the corner, put there at great expense and inconvenience, its publishers say, to preserve the tradition of hanging the book on a nail in the pantry or outhouse.

Faulty sniffer

WESTMINSTER, Calif. (AP) — A court bailiff with a sensitive but faulty sniffer turned court proceedings upside down when he mistook a lawyer's cigar for a marijuana joint.

Lawyer Brent Ayscough was outraged Wednesday when bailiff David Loaliza alerted a judge about smoke from a two-inch cigar stub that Ayscough discarded while hurrying to court.

The bailiff told Superior Court Judge Luis Cardenas the cigar smelled like marijuana. Cardenas stopped a trial when Ayscough demanded a police narcotics expert be called in. The expert inspected the cigar butt, concluded there was no marijuana present, and the trial resumed.

Air Pollution

Clean air

Clean air is made up of invisible gases. We can't see, taste or smell air, but it is all around us. Air is very important.

- All living things, plants and animals, need air.
- Most sounds travel through air.
- A layer of air protects us from the sun's rays.
- Wind is moving air.

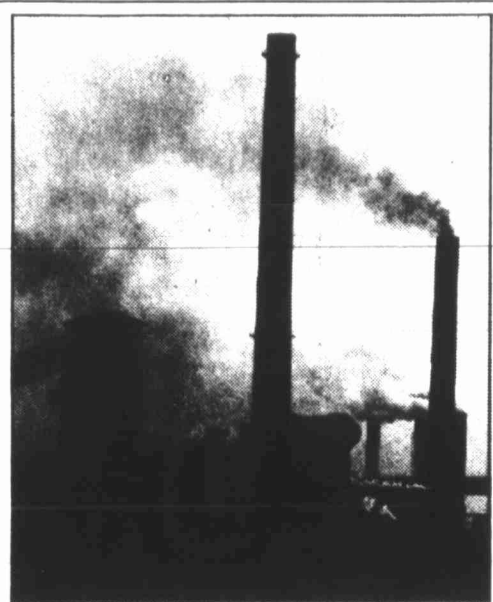

Dirty air

Many parts of our country have a problem with air pollution, or dirty air. Most dirty air is caused by combustion (burning fuel).

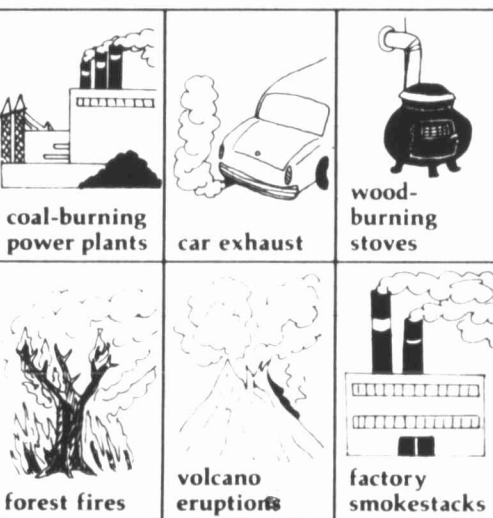

When we burn things, we can release pollutants (harmful substances) into the air. We would like to think that they disappear, but they don't.

Today there are more people burning more trash, driving more cars and using more fossil fuels (oil, coal and natural gas made from decayed plants and animals).

Pollution from this smokestack might travel hundreds of miles to another state or even another country before it falls back to the ground.

Where it comes from

The Mini Page thanks the Office of Air and Radiation of the Environmental Protection Agency for help with this story.

Air pollution...

harms crops and farm animals.

eats away at statues and buildings.

makes paint peel.

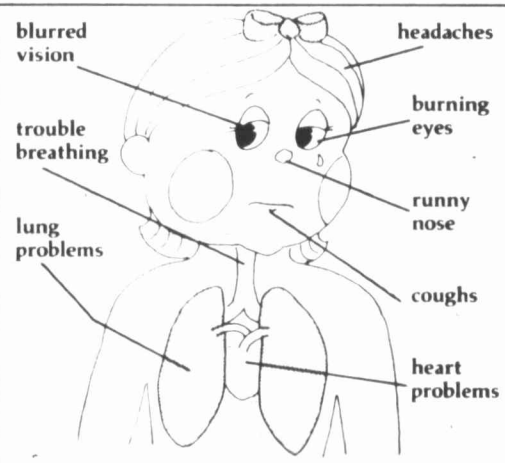

makes it harder to see.

costs us a lot of money.

cracks tires.

kills some fish and water animals.

reduces food sources for wildlife.

When air is polluted, humans suffer, especially those who have health problems to start with.

The main pollutants

Here are the main pollutants, what they are, and some of their sources.

Carbon monoxide . . . gas . . . source: automobiles.

Sulfur dioxide . . . gas . . . source: coal- and oil-burning electric power plants.

Nitrogen oxides . . . gas caused by burning fuel at very high temperatures . . . source: emissions by planes, buses, trucks, and cars and power plants.

Lead . . . metal . . . source: to make better, lead used to be added to gas. Today, all new cars must use lead-free gas. Some old cars still use gas with lead in it.

Particulate matter . . . fine drops of liquid or solid bits of stuff, such as dust, smoke, mist, fumes or smog . . . source: factory smokestacks, coal-burning power plants, wood stoves, forest fires, volcanos.

Inside pollution

There is air pollution in some buildings and homes. Below are the sources:

- smoking
- stored fuels
- household chemicals (some of which might be toxic or poisonous)
- gas stoves
- fireplaces
- Radon is a colorless, odorless gas that is found naturally, usually at very low levels. When it becomes trapped in houses, the amount of radon builds up. The main source is the soil and rock on which most homes are built. Breathing radon gas over a long time may cause cancer. Your family can get special kits to test your home for radon.

Ozone

Ozone is a gas. There are two kinds of ozones. The good ozone exists naturally and forms a shield way up in our atmosphere about seven or more miles up, circling the Earth. This shield protects us from the sun's rays. It helps keep us from getting skin cancer.

The bad ozone is closer to Earth, mostly in or near cities. It is formed by a chemical reaction that takes place when vapors called hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides are released into the air.

They rise in the air and mix with the atmosphere. When sunshine hits a special mix of these pollutants, a chemical reaction takes place, forming bad ozone, often called smog.

Some of the sources of hydrocarbons are:

- motor vehicle exhaust
- oil refineries
- gasoline storage tanks
- chemical plants
- emissions from trees and other plants
- chemicals called solvents

Our air is cleaner than it used to be. However, the government has set up certain standards and asked states and cities around the country to clean up their air. The shaded spots on the map above show areas that have not met these standards. They still have an ozone problem.

Acid rain

Pollutants from coal-burning power plants have created a special problem. When they go up into the sky and mix together in sunlight, they form an acid. When the acid falls back to Earth in whatever form — snow, rain, hail or haze — we call the problem acid rain.

Acid rain can be very bad for fish and other water animals and plants in lakes and streams. The acid-causing pollutants can travel for miles before they fall to Earth, far away from the smokestack they came from. Acid rain causes the biggest problems in some parts of the eastern United States and Canada.

What can we do?

To keep gas fumes from escaping at gas pumps, some areas have passed laws saying that special rubber nozzles are required.

TURN OFF LIGHTS
RECYCLE TRASH
WALK!

President Bush has asked Congress to pass new clean-air laws. Our country's businesses have spent a lot of money trying to do their part and still keep the factories running. Kids can help by saving energy so we won't have to burn so much fuel. They can collect glass, paper and cans to be recycled. It takes less energy to recycle old ones than to make new ones.

Garden City (3-0) at Stanton (1-2)

The Stanton Buffalos really picked a tough one for homecoming. The Garden City Bearkats might have finally found themselves, as they played a very inspired game against Roby last week. The Stanton Buffs may have found themselves an offense in the Wing-T. That will help a lot, but it won't help enough. This won't be a happy homecoming.

GARDEN CITY 20, STANTON 8

Highland (3-0) at Sands (3-0)

This battle of the unbeaten could very well be the Game of the Week. The Highland Hornets are a much-improved team from last year. Quarterback Cody Burke and Greg Wright are legitimate game-breakers.

The Sands Mustangs return home after three weeks on the road. The Mustangs have a few game-breakers themselves in Jay Johnston, Albert Franco and Co.

The Mustangs are t-o-u-g-h at home. SANDS 45, HIGHLAND 32

Colorado City (2-1) at Sonora (3-0)

This will be a good test for the seven-point underdog Colorado City Wolves. The Broncos have rolled over three Class AA opponents this season, while the Wolves have struggled in two of three games, against fairly tough AAA teams.

Colorado City has a good defense, and this week the offense will get in gear. C-City's tougher non-district schedule will pay off. The Upset Special of the Week.

COLORADO CITY 21, SONORA 14

Grady (1-2) at Blackwell (1-2)

This is very IMPORTANT game for the Grady Wildcats. Not that it's district or anything, but the Wildcats are coming off two lackadaisical performances. If Grady wants a return trip to the state playoffs it must get itself together not only physically but mentally.

Personnel-wise, Blackwell is a lot like Grady, lots of experience; but not much size. This is the fork in the road for the Wildcats, the wrong turn means a very long season.

Grady isn't ready for that. GRADY 55, BLACKWELL 29

Crane (0-3) at Coahoma (2-1)

Another big step towards establishing a winning attitude for the Coahoma Bulldogs. Coahoma is off to one of its best starts in recent years. The Bulldogs looked awesome in last week's 49-0 slaughter of Tahoka.

The Crane Golden Cranes have to be one of the best 0-3 teams in the state. They have played a rugged non-district slate so far, losing to Reagan County, McCamey and Seminole. They are thirsty for a win.

But the Bulldogs aren't used to winning, and they're not about to lose that feeling. A real head-knocker, but the Cranes will have to wait another week to taste the water.

COAHOMA 14, CRANE 13

Christoval (3-0) at Klondike (2-1)

This is going to be a rough one for the Klondike Cougars. The Christoval Cougars are rated No. 2 in the state, and rightly so — they return 20 lettermen from a 10-1 team last year.

Christoval has so much talent that it uses seven different running backs. Last week Klondike only had nine players suited out.

Even with another super-human effort by QB Corbett Foster, Klondike will have trouble playing four full quarters.

CHRISTOVAL 65, KLONDIKE 28

Sterling City (0-3) at Forsan (0-3)

If anybody deserves to win a game, it's the Forsan Buffalos. The Buffs may be few in numbers, but big in heart. The question is — have the Buffs recovered from an heartbreaking loss to Roscoe last week?

The Sterling City Eagles went 8-3 two years ago, but are trying to recover from losing so many veterans. They still haven't, and yes, the Buffs have recovered from last week.

It's a fun homecoming. FORSAN 28, STERLING CITY 7

Borden County (1-1-1) at Wilson (1-2)

The Borden County Coyotes are coming off a 51-point loss to Jayton last week. The Wilson Mustangs got their first win of the season last week over Dawson.

But there's a big difference in Jayton and Dawson. Jayton will be in the state playoffs and Dawson will be a cellar-dweller in its league. Such is the difference in B-County and Wilson.

The Coyotes will howl. BORDEN COUNTY 42, WILSON 21

Cuba dominating boxing championships

MOSCOW (AP) — Cuba, denied the showcase of the Olympics since 1980, is trying to hog the spotlight at the World Amateur Boxing Championships.

Cuba sent a full complement of 12 boxers to the 236-man, 224-bout tournament, and eight of them will fight Saturday and Sunday nights for gold medals.

The Soviet Union, which had 11 semifinalists, will have seven boxers in the finals, and East Germany will be represented in five title bouts.

Eric Griffin, 22, of Houston, will be the only U.S. boxer in the finals. He will meet Rogelio Marcelo of Cuba for the 106-pound title Saturday night.

Reyes will box European champion Yury Arbahakov of the Soviet Union.

In addition to Griffin, the United States won two other medals, bronzes for semifinal losers Tonga McClain,

Hot Red Raiders test Bears

By The Associated Press
The Texas Tech Red Raiders have whipped teams from the Pacific-10, The Western Athletic Conference, and The Big Eight Conference the last three weeks. They find out on Saturday if they can terrorize the Southwest Conference like they did non-conference opposition.

Tech's unbeaten Red Raiders, who received enough votes in The Associated Press national poll to be rated as the 28th best team in the country, visit the Baylor Bears in a noon (Raycom) regionally televised SWC opener for both teams.

Baylor coach Grant Teaff is calling it a "championship" game.

"This being both team's league opener, if you win, you're in the thick of things and all you have to do is win the rest of your games and you go to the Cotton Bowl," Teaff said. "The loser Saturday is automatically struggling and both teams have a rugged road schedule for the rest of the year."

In the other league game on Saturday, Texas Christian tries to stay alive in the SWC race by hosting Southern Methodist. The Horned Frogs lost their SWC opener to Texas A&M University.

The SWC is 11-7 against non-conference opposition and will try to improve that record on Saturday when Rice is at Wake Forest (noon), Temple is at Houston 4 p.m., Southern Miss is at Texas A&M 6 p.m., Penn State is at Texas 7 p.m., and Arkansas entertains Texas-El Paso in Little Rock at 7 p.m.

Teaff said Tech is perhaps the surprise of the year.

"Tech has beaten two traditionally good teams in Arizona and Oklahoma State and New Mexico is probably better than most people thought they would be when the season opened," Teaff said. "Their confidence and momentum concern me the most. They have a win on the road and we failed to accomplish that against Oklahoma and Georgia. And, they also know they waxed us last year in Lubbock from one end of the field to the other."

Teaff said Baylor's 46-3 victory over Kansas was much needed.

"We needed it to face a team that's playing as well as any team in our league," Teaff said.

SMU has defeated TCU 15 consecutive years but the Horned Frogs are catching the rebounding Ponies in a year that 17 freshmen are starting because of a two-year absence from the game after the NCAA death penalty.

TCU coach Jim Wacker is wary.

"The only thing that is for certain is that we are in for a dog fight," Wacker said. "SMU wouldn't let Texas intimidate them."

SMU held Texas to a 14-7 edge at halftime before wilting in a 45-13 loss. "We did well in the first half against Texas and in the second half against Rice and Connecticut," said SMU coach Forrest Gregg. "We showed we can play with teams but we have to do it for 60 minutes."

TCU's last victory over SMU was an 18-16 decision at the Cotton Bowl in 1971.

"Our players know the intensity they have to maintain," Gregg said. "TCU would love to whip us."

Texas A&M returns after an idle week against Southern Miss which opened Florida State in its opener then lost three consecutive weeks including a 19-17 loss to TCU last week.

Houston has caught the eye of the nation after compiling 744 yards in total offense during a 36-7 slaughter of Arizona State. Quarterback Andre Ware's 41 of 69 passes for 503 yards broke a school record.

COAHOMA — Coahoma Bulldogs halfback Carlos Cervantes (33) scampers away from Tahoka Bulldog defenders during action last Friday night in Coahoma's 49-0 homecoming win. Tonight the Bulldogs will go for their third straight win when they host the Crane Golden Cranes at 8 p.m. at Bulldog Stadium.

Red Sox, Brewers still battling

By The Associated Press
The Boston Red Sox and Milwaukee Brewers are out of the pennant race but there's still something to play for — third place.

And that race is just as tight as this weekend's Toronto-Baltimore battle for the American League East championship.

The Red Sox drew first blood and took a one-game lead over Milwaukee with a 12-6 victory Thursday night in the opener of a four-game series.

"You know, they have a solid team, and we're pretty much alike," Boston's Wade Boggs said. "It's too bad we aren't fighting for the division title. I think the race for third, though, is going to go down to the ninth inning of the final game on Sunday."

Elsewhere, it was Oakland 5, Texas 3, California 1, Kansas City 0, Seattle 6, Cleveland 2. The Orioles and Blue Jays begin a three-game series tonight at Toronto.

Nick Esasky extended a career high with his 30th homer and Rick Cerone hit a two-run shot for Boston while Kevin Romine had three singles and three RBIs as the Red Sox won for the 11th time in 13 games.

Boston's Mike Boddicker, 15-11, allowed nine hits, including a two-run homer by Robin Yount, and four runs in five innings. The 15 victories are the most since he won 20 games for Baltimore in 1983. Mike Smithson gave up a two-run homer to Joey Meyer.

The Red Sox tagged Don August for seven runs on five hits and four walks in less than three innings. Bill Krueger allowed five runs and seven hits in two innings.

"This is not the easiest place to pitch," Milwaukee manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "To get third place we have to beat them three out of four. I'd have liked to have beaten them four out of four. But we're not thinking about third place; we're thinking about winning every game."

Milwaukee's Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 18 games with a double and two singles. Yount's 20th homer gave him 101 RBIs, the third time in his career he has gone over the 100 mark.

Athletics 5, Rangers 3
Dave Stewart, making his final start before the playoffs, pitched five shutout innings for his 21st victory, matching his career high set last season. The right-hander, who is scheduled to start the first game of the American League playoffs on Tuesday, gave up four hits.

Todd Burns pitched two scoreless and Matt Young was charged with all the Texas runs in the ninth, including Ruben Sierra's 29th homer and club-record 119th RBI. Dennis Eckersley got the last three outs for his 33rd save.

Oakland's Dave Parker hit his 22nd homer off loser Brad Arnsberg in the second inning and singled home a run in the A's four-run third.

Angels 2, Royals 0
Bert Blyleven capped a fabulous comeback season with a seven-hitter for his league-leading fifth shutout as California ended a six-game losing streak.

Blyleven, 17-5 after going 10-17 with Minnesota a year ago, walked one and struck out six in pitching his eighth complete game and the 60th shutout of his career, one behind Tom Seaver, who is eighth on the all-time list.

Blyleven's winning percentage of .773 set an Angels single-season record and his 2.73 ERA marked the first time he finished a season below 3.00 since 1984 when he pitched

Trainer arraigned

ABUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An El Paso veterinarian with extensive ties to New Mexico's racetracks has pleaded innocent to charges of illegally distributing and dispensing controlled substances. Dr. Sidney Zarges, 53, pleaded innocent during his arraignment Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Sumner Buell, who released Zarges on his own recognizance.

The case was assigned to U.S. District Judge James Parker. Zarges was charged in an eight-count indictment that stemmed from a two-year federal investigation into the alleged drugging of race horses in New Mexico.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration investigation began at the request of the state Racing Commission.

Zarges has worked as a veterinarian at Sunland Park, Ruidoso Downs and the New Mexico State Fair meet, a commission spokeswoman has said. Seven of the eight counts allege Zarges illegally distributed the drug oxymorphone, while the eighth count involved distribution of the drug mazinol.

Oxymorphone is a synthetic narcotic that acts as a stimulant in horses. Mazinol is an amphetamine, which also acts as a stimulant in animals.

The federal grand jury indictment covered alleged violations from Aug. 20, 1987, to Sept. 20, 1987.

Students want mascot

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston students participating in a referendum this week voted to replace the school's cougar mascot as soon as enough money is raised to build a new cage for the animal.

A third of the 2,090 university students who took part in the non-binding referendum wanted to perpetuate the 43-year-old tradition of live mascots, student officials said Thursday.

Meanwhile, interim President George Magner said he likely will decide within two weeks whether to replace Shasta, the cougar who died last May from complications due to kidney failure.

During the referendum Wednesday and Thursday, 33.1 percent of the voters, or 698 students, voted to replace Shasta as soon as three-fourths of the funds needed to build a new cage on campus are raised.

In addition, 31.5 percent, or 665 students, opted to do away with the tradition and not replace Shasta; 22.8 percent, or 481 students, voted to replace Shasta immediately; and 11.7 percent, or 246 students, voted to sponsor a cougar at the Hermann Zoo, election commissioner Vikram Bhatia said.

Approximately 6.6 percent of the university's record enrollment of 32,000 participated in the election.

Magner said he will keep the results of the referendum in mind when he decides the fate of the tradition, which has faced continuous opposition from animal rights activists. He said he also has received input from the faculty — via a Faculty Senate resolution that opposed replacing Shasta — and from alumni, in the form of letters and calls.

Cooney-Foreman bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Gerry Cooney says he wants to fight, wants to hit somebody, wants to get in the ring again. That's why he's coming back after more than two years to fight George Foreman.

"I want to hit George Foreman," he said. "I want him to feel something, too." Foreman knows what Cooney means, "and that makes Gerry Cooney dangerous."

Foreman was out of the ring and in the pulp as a Baptist minister for 10 years after losing his world heavyweight title to Muhammad Ali.

Foreman is a 2-1 favorite with the legal books in Las Vegas to beat Cooney when they meet on Jan. 15 at the Atlantic City Convention Center. Foreman is 19-0 with 18 knockouts since he began his comeback in 1987.

"I'm not overconfident," the 40-year-old Foreman said. "I tried to leave boxing. I didn't like the way I did it, and I can understand why he's coming back."

"But I was out 10 years. He was out — two years? Hey, it takes that long for some ocean cruises."

Things don't get easier for Spartans

By The Associated Press
The saying is "out of the frying pan, into the fire," but Michigan State is doing it in reverse. Having been burned 21-13 last week by No. 1-ranked Notre Dame, the Spartans jump from the fire to the frying pan Saturday when they entertain second-ranked Miami, Fla.

College Roundup

"It's an honor that our football team has the chance to play the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the country," Coach George Perles said. "I think these are great opportunities. This doesn't happen very often. We would like to win one of these games and, since we lost last week, we've got to do it this week."

Saturday's schedule features four games between members of The Associated Press Top 25 — No. 4 Auburn at No. 12 Tennessee in an early-season Southeastern Conference showdown; No. 5 Colorado, trying to recover from the death last weekend of cancer-stricken quarterback Sal Aunese, at No. 21 Washington; No. 10 Pitt at No. 9 West Virginia at night in another of those famed "backyard brawls," and No. 11 Southern Cal at No. 19 Washington State, the only Pac-10 team that hasn't lost a game yet. Meanwhile, No. 1 Notre Dame visits Purdue, No. 3 Nebraska entertains Oregon State, No. 6 Michigan plays host to Maryland, No. 7 Clemson visits Duke and No. 8 Arkansas meets Texas-El Paso under the lights at Little Rock.

Elsewhere, No. 13 Alabama is at Vanderbilt, Temple is at No. 14 Houston, Kent State is at No. 15 North Carolina State under the lights, No. 16 Oklahoma is at Kansas, No. 17 Arizona is at Oregon, Southern Methodist is at No. 22 Texas A&M at night, South Carolina is at No. 23 Georgia and No. 24 Air Force is at Colorado State.

Syracuse, Illinois and Florida State, the Nos. 18, 20 and 25 teams, are not scheduled.

Michigan State gave Notre Dame a run for its money and Miami coach Dennis Erickson believes the Spartans are capable of an upset. "They could have just as easily won that game at Notre Dame as well as lost it," he said. "We have not even come close to facing a team like Michigan State this year."

The Hurricanes, 3-0, have blown out Wisconsin, California and Missouri.

"Everybody talks about the Miami offense, and all their fine quarterbacks over the years, but they've also got a very good defense," Perles said. "They know what they're doing. They've only given up one touchdown this year."

Miami's latest quarterback star is Craig Erickson, no relation to the coach. He has completed 65 of 126 passes for 548 yards and eight touchdowns with five interceptions.

No. 4 Auburn at No. 12 Tennessee The last time Tennessee beat Auburn was in 1985, and if you're looking for omens it was just after Hurricane Gloria blasted part of the East Coast.

That time, the Vols handcuffed Bo Jackson, who went on to win the Heisman Trophy. This time, Tennessee's Reggie Cobb gets a chance to avenge two of the most miserable days of his career.

Cobb has gained only 78 yards in two tests against an Auburn defense that hasn't yielded 100 yards to any runner in the last 24 regular-season games. The Tigers crushed Tennessee 38-6 last year en route to their second straight SEC title, taking advantage of two fumbles by Cobb, who gained only 12 yards on nine carries.

No. 5 Colorado at No. 21 Washington

Getting Colorado emotionally ready following Aunese's death was a problem for Coach Bill McCartney.

"We all knew he was dying, but we didn't know when he was going to die," McCartney said. "We all had high hopes he would make it through the season. So when he died, it caught everybody hard. Our players took it extremely hard."

No. 9 Pitt at No. 10 West Virginia It might be the most important game in the 94-year rivalry but coaches Mike Gottfried of Pitt and Don Nehlen of West Virginia are cautioning their players not to make it too big.

No. 11 Southern Cal at No. 19 Washington State

Pullman, Wash., holds few pleasant memories for USC coach Larry Smith. The Trojans were ranked ninth three years ago when they visited Washington State but the Cougars jumped out to a 17-0 halftime lead and snapped a 16-game losing streak against Southern Cal with a 34-14 victory.

Bears slight favorite over Eagles

AP Football Writer
The last time Randall Cunningham and Buddy Ryan went to Chicago a lot of bad things happened to them.

Their only consolation was that nobody could see it — at least in the second half. That was last January in the Eagles' first playoff game since 1981. The Eagles dropped passes in the end zone, had TDs called back by penalties and then disappeared into the fog that rolled in off Lake Michigan just before halftime.

Philadelphia returns to Chicago on Monday night, not only for a taste of revenge, but to try to get Ryan his first coaching victory in three starts against Mike Ditka, his ex-employer and long-time adversary. The odds-makers are laying 3 1/2 points that he won't get it.

The Cunningham miracles ended temporarily last Sunday when the quarterback of the '90s was taught a lesson by the quarterback of the '80s, Joe Montana. Actually, it was the Philadelphia defense that learned the lesson — no matter how much you pressure the quarterback, you've got to cover people, particularly in the fourth quarter. Mike Tomczak isn't exactly Montana. But they'll be at home, fired up by the Ditka Ryan feud and ready to contain Cunningham.

BEARS, 27-23
Los Angeles Rams (plus 5) at San Francisco

The Rams were probably thinking about this one after they went up 24 points at halftime over the Packers and almost blew it. But after San Francisco's three games on the road, Candlestick looks sweet.

49ERS, 31-22
Denver (plus 5) at Cleveland

The Broncos and Browns are both surprises, primarily because of defenses turned hostile by Wade Phillips and Bud Carson. The Dawgs in the Cleveland Stadium end zone are hostile too and Denver is due to lose.

BROWNS, 24-20
Tampa Bay (plus 8) at Minnesota

At some point, the Vikings will explode but the Bucs are legitimately improved and there's a lot of bickering about money in Minneapolis.

VIKINGS, 20-14
Washington (minus 1) at New Orleans

Do the Saints have any quarterbacks left? Do the Redskins have running backs? Will Jim Finks get elected commissioner just in time to escape disaster in Who Dat land?

REDSKINS, 24-17
Atlanta (plus 7) at Green Bay

Chris Miller is out for the Falcons, so they simply change one letter — Hugh Miller is now the starter. One letter won't do it.

PACKERS, 24-14
New York Giants (minus 7) at Dallas

This SHOULD be more pain for JJ, JJ and Stroy Walshman. Funny things usually happen to the Giants here, but given the state of the Cowboys, they won't be funny enough.

GIANTS, 27-7

Seattle (plus 2) at Los Angeles Raiders

Even this early, the loser's in trouble. If it's the Raiders, so is Mike Shanahan.

RAIDERS, 30-24
Cincinnati (-5 1/2) at Kansas City

Apply a simple rule here: home field or not, the better team wins, even without Boomer Estacion.

BENGALS, 28-11
Other games (Home team in CAPS)

NEW YORK JETS (minus 3) 24, Indianapolis 20

HOUSTON (minus 7) 44, Miami 38

BUFFALO (minus 7) 31, New England 10

DETROIT (minus 2 1/2) 5, Pittsburgh 2

San Diego (plus 4) 24, PHOENIX 23

Defensively, Robert Lopez and Luis Bustamante played well.

Snyder 22, Runnels A 20

Runnels fumbled five times, losing three, as they lost a close contest Thursday at Blankenship Field. Runnels had moved the ball to the Snyder 4-yard line, when time expired.

Quarterback Ricky Gonzales scored for Runnels on a 25-yard gallop. On Runels next score, Gon-

Despite problems; Boggs delivers

BOSTON (AP) — Early in spring training, as details, rumors and innuendo of a steamy affair with Margo Adams made headlines, Wade Boggs kept his cool.

"I'm a professional and I've got a job to do," he said then. He said that despite the distraction of his ex-lover and persistent trade rumors, he would do his job. He did, and though he fell a little bit short of his standards he was still impressive in the world of mere mortals.

"I'm human," Boggs said earlier this month. "I'm not an android."

Boggs had a poor start, was inconsistent. He failed in his bid for a fifth consecutive American League batting championship. But he became the only player this century with seven straight 200-hit seasons. He broke Lou Gehrig's major league record by getting 200 hits and 100 walks for a fourth consecutive year.

"Getting 200 hits and 100 walks again is quite an accomplishment," Boggs said. "But hitting 20-25 points below my lifetime average (.356) makes it kind of a bad year for me."

Boggs, signed a $7.3 million, three-year contract extension on July 7. He said he "just blocked everything out of my mind" this season. But, there were "too many peaks and valleys."

"I knew it was going to be tough back in May," he said. "This year I've been hot one week, cold one week. I'd go up, then I'd go back down. Usually I hit .300 in April, then — bang! — .380 in May. Then — bang! — .350 by the All-Star break. But I never really got going this year. It never started."

The 31-year-old Boggs batted .293 in April and dipped to .292 at the end of May. He raised his average to .325 at the end of June, .332 at the end of July and .338 by the end of August.

He appeared to be on his way to a sixth batting title in seven years before going 9-for-35 on Boston's 1-8 September West Coast trip. Then he went into a 1-for-20 slump and dropped to .322. Not that he disappointed Boston manager Joe Morgan.

"A lot of base hits and a lot of playing time," Morgan said. "You can't get 200 hits on the pine. It's unbelievable. You'd think there'd be one year when you'd hit 60 lines drives right at somebody."

Morgan admitted, though, that he didn't think Boggs would get 200 hits a few months ago because "he was scuffling early in the season."

"I was too impatient, I was swinging at everything in April and May," Boggs said. "Once I got patient again everything started falling into place."

Boggs says the secret to getting 200 hits is playing "150 games or so."

That meant playing through pain in September after he jammed his right knee.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Glenda Jackson, winner of two Academy Awards and two Emmys, says she is dismayed by the roles being written for actresses today, but sees hope in a pair of situation comedies.

"I would like to think that contemporary dramatists and screenwriters would write more about women as they are, and not the adjunct of the male," Miss Jackson said in a recent interview.

The British performer, who won Oscars for "Women in Love" and "A Touch of Class," said she likes the female characters in the TV sitcoms "Golden Girls" and "Roseanne." She said she's pleased to see performers like Roseanne Barr who, with her plump figure, doesn't conform to Hollywood beauty standards.

"In their different ways, it seems to me they're trying to break through the concrete molds of what it is to be a woman," she said of the two series.

NEW YORK (AP) — Elmar Oliveira, the only American violinist to win the Tchaikovsky Prize, will return to the Soviet Union next month for the first time since capturing the prestigious award there in 1978.

The 38-year-old Oliveira will play with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in Leningrad on Oct. 5 and in Moscow on Oct. 10, according to a release Wednesday from publicist Margaret Carson.

On both occasions, he will play Samuel Barber's Violin Concerto.

Big Spring businesses open, change

Sandwich shop

BIG SPRING — Sante Fe Sandwiches opened in the Big Spring Mall — the first Sante Fe sandwich shop for a company that hopes to make good with franchises.

"We couldn't ask for any better business," said restaurant manager Sharon Dodson. "It's great."

Dodson says the slogan for the shop is "The best food that's good for you", but don't think it's a health food restaurant.

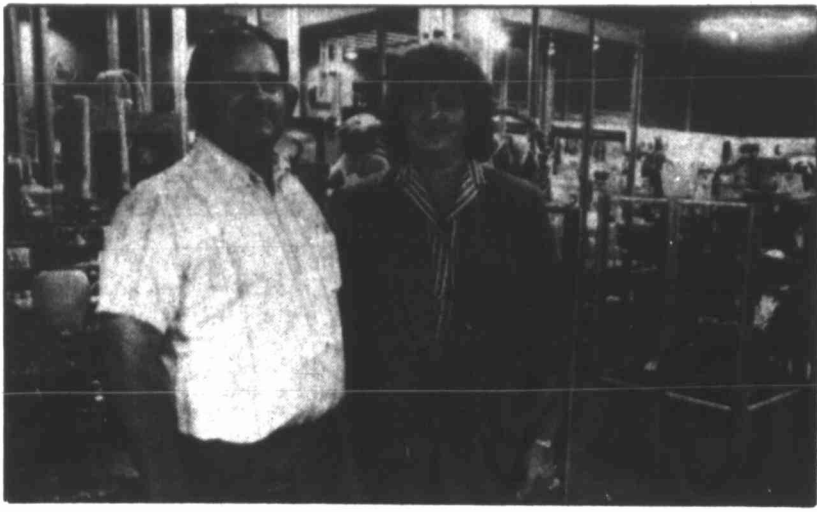

"It's not health food, it's healthy," Dodson says. That healthy food includes a salad bar filled with salads, fruit and soup to go along with a wide menu of sandwiches.

The restaurant also features low fat Columbo yogurt and what Dodson says is their most popular item — fruit shakes.

The best selling meal is the Comanche Combo, Dodson says, which consists of a half sandwich, and a choice of soup or salad.

"A lot of people are coming in just to eat at the restaurant," said Dodson, who said many of these customers are also mall employees. "It started out just great Friday and Saturday, and on Sunday we're open from 12 to 5 p.m., an hour earlier than the mall hours."

Sante Fe Sandwich shops are owned by Tim Jewett of Midland. Ron Morgan was designer for the stores, and Dodson said the next Sante Fe Sandwich store is scheduled to open in the Lubbock mall in the near future.

BIG SPRING — Henderson's Hallmark in the Big Spring Mall has changed hands and is now called Suggs Hallmark. The new owners are Ricky and Deborah Suggs, who officially took over the business on August 1.

BIG SPRING — Sharon Dodson is the manager of the Santa Fe Sandwiches in the Big Spring Mall which serves soups and salads as well as sandwiches. The shop opened September 1 and is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Hallmark owners

BIG SPRING — New owners of the Hallmark store at Big Spring Mall say business has been good. Ricky and Deborah Suggs took over ownership of the business on August 1.

They purchased the business from Ralph and Jeannette Henderson, who owned both Hallmark stores in Big Spring at one time.

"Hallmarks aren't really a franchise store," Deborah said. "You agree to buy the Hallmark cards exclusively and you have to carry the majority of Hallmark products in your store."

The Suggs store features "lots of gifts," cards, albums, stationery and a "big selection of other things."

"We're adding new merchandise all the time," Suggs said. "We want to do some minor remodeling. I definitely think Big Spring Mall is growing... with the opening of Sears and Sante Fe Sandwiches it will continue to improve."

Investment market Just like the super market

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Compared with a couple of decades ago, Americans know a lot more about consumer rights and such marketplace complications as warranties, variable interest rates, hidden charges and poor labeling.

But they might not be much better off. Markets change, especially financial markets, and some of today's products and techniques are beyond the comprehension of anyone who doesn't make a career of keeping abreast.

In effect, it creates in some marketplace areas the identical problem that two decades of legislation and education have sought to correct, i.e., an information and knowledge gap between professional sellers and amateur buyers.

The situation exists despite various studies supporting the view that product quality, especially among manufactured items, is probably higher today than it has been at any time since World War II.

That might or might not be true of investments, but what is completely clear is that never before in history have investors been challenged by more sophisticated products, aggressive marketing techniques and high technology.

A study by the American Association of Retired Persons observes that many people today are first-time investors, neophytes whose previous savings patterns were restricted to passbook savings accounts or U.S. Savings Bonds.

These days, however, they are in common stocks and mutual funds and, if not already, may soon be in tax-free municipals, Treasury bond options, commodities futures, time sharing, currencies, condos, franchises and mineral rights.

And more. As they grow older they might be faced with understanding reverse home mortgages, pensions, annuities, estate law and inheritance taxes, while trying to keep abreast of changes and proposals regarding Social Security.

The AARP's Public Policy Institute, which recently studied the situation, estimates investment fraud now costs $1 billion a year. It blames not just lax regulation or investor indifference, but marketing techniques and technology.

Magazines and newspapers, television, computer software and specialized newsletters promote enticing opportunities and provide more information than could ever be assimilated by the average private investor, it says.

The widespread use of 800 numbers and WATS lines has, it says, "made it economically feasible to telephone large lists of prospects and keep them on the phone at little expense until a sale is consummated."

It adds that the widespread use of the credit card in telephone sales has also had an impact on the investment market.

It claims that with some 233.3 million Visa, Mastercard and American Express accounts in force at the end of 1987, the major credit card issuers have embarked on an aggressive marketing strategy to produce even more.

This strategy, it says, includes increased emphasis on telephone sales with payment via credit card. Already, coins, land and precious metals are marketed by phone, with the buyer's credit card number used for billing.

Big Spring Mall

It's past, present and future . . .

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD
BIG SPRING — The complete story of Big Spring Mall is a story of a dream. A dream of a company whose belief in smaller communities is alive and well right here in Big Spring, Texas.

Big Spring Mall opened in early 1982. With JC Penney and Bealls as the anchors, it was not long until many more retailers followed the dream of owning their own business. The Candle Shop opened shortly after that as did Gordon's Jewelry and Zales. Regis and Royal Optical opened as the first service-type shops to be in the mall. Henderson Hallmark which recently was purchased by Ricky & Debra Suggs opened in Big Spring Mall in September of 1982. It was not long until shops like Radio Shack chose to join the Big Spring Mall family.

Just when Big Spring and Big Spring Mall felt as if things could not get any better the price of oil took a plunge. Many people felt the pain and suffering of the oil bust. The retail industry took a painful plunge downward and Big Spring Mall, like many other shopping centers in Texas, saw its share of store closings. The occupancy rate going into early 1988 was a mere 50 percent. The reason Big Spring and Big Spring Mall survived the oil bust is a simple one: everyone involved in the community and involved in Big Spring Mall knew there was potential and strived to achieve it.

The goal is not totally met, however, the future for Big Spring Mall appears to be a positive one. Bramalea Centers believes in Big Spring and hopes to bring the best of shopping variety to the area.

Currently the occupancy rate is at 83 percent. The mall has grown by leaps and bounds this year. The addition of Sears Appliance and Catalog Store, Santa Fe Sandwiches, The Look, Gales Cakes and Cookies, Jeannie Babes, the relocation of Stagecoach Gifts to a larger location and the addition of several stores scheduled to open for the Christmas season, is a commitment to the entire area by Bramalea Centers.

Having leased 22,000 sq. ft. of space in 1989 the future is a bright one. Bramalea Centers is proud to be in Big Spring and hopes the future is bright for the community.

Big Spring Mall events

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD
BIG SPRING — The Grand re-opening of Big Spring Mall holds lots of fun for the entire family. Many events are planned for the Friday and Saturday celebration.

The Big Spring Mall merchants invite everyone to attend the customer appreciation reception on Friday evening from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Flutist Karen Lee and Myra Harrell will provide musical entertainment in addition to complimentary cake and punch. Upon entry to the mall you may register for many door prizes and receive a free shopping bag.

On Saturday beginning at 10 a.m. the fun will continue. Ms. Pac Man and clowns will be entertaining the children and handing out free balloons.

Beginning at 1 p.m. The Look, Jeannie Babes, Bealls and JC Penney will take you into the magical world of freeze modeling. Presenting the latest in fall fashions, these fine merchants are eagerly awaiting the first freeze of winter.

At 2 p.m. the senior citizen band "The Hot Potatoe Band" will provide musical entertainment in front of Cowtown Boots.

Beginning at 4 p.m. Gales Cakes and Cookies will be serving a replica model cake of the Big Spring Mall.

In addition to the events planned for the day door prizes ranging from Jewelry Cleaner to a $50 shopping spree will be given away.

Christmas trees can be ordered from Sears

This Christmas season, for the first time, you can order your Plantation-Fresh-Direct (PFD) Christmas tree by contacting any Sears catalog department or by calling Sears' toll-free 800 order number. What could be easier than that?

The PFD Fraser fir trees marketed by Sears are grown, packaged and shipped by Booger Mountain Tree Farms, Jefferson, N.C. Hal Johnson, owner, was national champion tree grower in 1982 and 1985. He supplied the Blue Room Christmas tree for the White House both years. Johnson is also four-time North Carolina champion Christmas tree grower.

The idea of shipping Plantation-Fresh-Direct Christmas trees by UPS was originated by David Larsen and Michael Zeigler of Brookfield Christmas Tree Plantation, Floyd, Virginia, in 1979. Brookfield developed the mail order technology and has been supplying PFD trees to its own customers and through other mail order companies for the past ten years. Brookfield will be designing the setup, order processing and shipping system for the new Sears Christmas tree mail order program at Booger Mountain Tree farms. "The new all-electronic order processing system will allow any order placed with Sears to be shipped within 24 hours," says David Larsen, owner of Brookfield.
