Bonfire on again

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring Steers bonfire was prematurely torched Wednesday and the culprit is still at large.

"We don't want to blame it. We don't want it to cause suspicion because we don't want any trouble," said Booster Club President Dick Helms.

Most of the bonfire has already been reassembled to the same, if not greater, stature of the one before, Helms said.

"It's just amazing how many people have called wanting to help. It's going to work. We're going to make it," he said.

The event will go on as planned at 8 p.m. today.

"It was set last night. We don't really know. It could be other towns or just because it was there. We just don't know and don't want to blame anyone," said Ocoee Moore, receptionist at Big Spring High School.

The new bonfire is under a 24-hour guard.

Drug-free day

COPPERAS COVE (AP) — Officials say Friday is "drug-free day" here as part of a red-ribbon campaign to fight abuse.

The red ribbon has become a symbol to reduce the demand for drugs after the 1985 murder of federal drug agent Enrique Camarena Salazar, organizers said.

The campaign is sponsored by Texans' War on Drugs and the National Federation of Parents. They want to present a united and visible commitment toward a drug-free Texas and spotlight students who are good role models.

Dog calls 911

WAUWATOSA, Wis. (AP) — Dispatcher Cheryl Ann Heck says the incoming call to the city's 911 emergency number sounded like it could be the work of a prankster — but she wasn't about to take any chances.

"We could hear some clunking and clicking on the phone, and every once in a while you would hear the tones, like someone was depressing the push buttons," she said.

She traced the call and sent police, medical and fire department personnel rushing to the address.

Rescue workers broke into the locked house but found nobody home except the apparent emergency caller: a 1-year-old basset hound named Mandy.

"We've played back the tape several times," Ms. Heck said. "Once you know it's a dog, you can hear it gnawing on the phone and running down a hallway."

Crime Stoppers pays off

BIG SPRING — Crime Stoppers is paying up.

The Big Spring advisory board recently approved an award of $750 to a Crime Stopper caller who provided information to the Big Spring Police in July. The tip resulted in the arrest of three people, who eventually were sentenced to prison terms. The same tip also helped police seize a large quantity of cash, as well as a controlled substance.

The latest reward was just part of an on-going effort by Crime Stoppers to help fight crime in Big Spring. Recently the advisory board changed the Crime Stoppers number to 267-TIPS, bringing the local program in line with the national Crime Stoppers.

Whayne Moore, advisory board secretary, said the board hopes the number change will boost calls to Crime Stoppers.

"TIPS, that's the national number. It sticks in people's minds," Moore said. "We encourage people who have tips to please call. Obviously there is money available for information."

Moore said Crime Stoppers already has paid off six times this year in Big Spring. The board hopes to make even more payoffs with changes such as the naming of police Detective Fred Schroyer as Crime Stoppers coordinator.

Schroyer, who took the position a month ago, said his job is to act as a liaison between the advisory board, the police department, and the news media. He attends the board meetings, presents solved cases and writes Crime Stoppers news releases, he said. The ad-

Lawyer: State may pay for jail overcrowding

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

AUSTIN — The state might be inspired to take inmates awaiting transfer to prison if it had to finance their upkeep in local jails, says an attorney for counties suing Texas over jail crowding.

State District Judge Joseph Hart, who is overseeing the lawsuit, said last week he will consider whether it is proper for him to order counties to be reimbursed for the cost of keeping state-bound prisoners. He said he will provide time for the state to present evidence against such action.

Twelve counties have sued the state in an effort to force the removal of an estimated 6,000 felons from their jails. The state has set up a quota system for taking the inmates because it is under a federal court order against prison crowding.

"It's not any surprise to anybody that the counties are incurring an enormous amount of expense in taking care of the state's prisoners, and the judge is simply asking, 'Would it be proper for me to look at that as some way to encourage the state to carry out its duty?'" said Ann Clarke Snell, the attorney representing the counties.

Locally, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said Tuesday he does not foresee Howard County joining the other counties in suing the state but said the county does incur a sizeable expense for holding inmates who have already been sentenced to the Texas Department of Corrections.

"It seems only fair counties should be compensated," Standard said.

Standard described the problems the larger counties face attempting to hold inmate populations of 2,000 to 3,000 as "monumental" in comparison with smaller counties such as Howard, but said it can be a source of difficulty for the small counties as well.

Howard County's allotment of four inmates it is allowed to send to the TDC each month rarely covers the actual number of county prisoners awaiting transfer to the TDC, he said. Standard added that if the state prison system becomes overcrowded and chooses not to accept any inmates for a month, the county is responsible for holding those inmates and the number of inmates they should have been allowed to transfer is lost forever.

Standard said he believes the problem is that for too long legislators and others have the felons. In the hearing that began Monday, he is considering whether it is possible for the state to do so.

"The state's witnesses said that the state complied with the Ruiz case when the judge started saying, 'I'm going to fine you $800,000 a day,'" said Snell, referring to the federal lawsuit against Texas over prison conditions. "Within a very short time, they got in compliance."

Snell said she did not have an estimate of how much the state might be required to pay. The 6,000 felons at issue in the state lawsuit developed an array of plans for dealing with crime and criminals while ignoring the lack of prison space.

"What we've needed all along is a place to put these people," he said. Only recently, as people at the county level have seen their county prisons swell with county inmates, have people started to realize how serious the problem is, he said.

Standard said he hopes for some relief if Texans pass Proposition 8 on the November state-wide ballot, which would open up the possibility of providing funding to build several more prisons. Standard said he believes the situation will eventually resolve itself.

"It's got to eventually," he said. Hart already has ruled that the state has a responsibility to take represent about half of those estimated to be in jails.

Assistant Attorney General Bob Ozer said additional hearings would be required on the funding issue.

"I don't know whether the state can pay it or not" if the judge rules for the counties, he said during a break in Wednesday's proceeding. "I don't know if there's enough money."

Legislation that would have provided for state compensation to counties holding felons failed this year, Ozer added.

The suit initially was filed by Nueces County. It was later joined by Collin, Dallas, El Paso, Hidalgo, Hunt, Galveston, Lubbock, Tarrant, Travis, Victoria and Bexar.

College OKs bids on dorm supplies

BIG SPRING — Howard College awarded $665,012 in bids for new dorm supplies and many more items have yet to be bid on, Howard College officials said today.

In a specially-called meeting Wednesday to accept bids, the Howard College board awarded bids on 15 different items but rejected nine others, saying that the bids were too high, said Bob Riley, Howard College president.

The board turned down some of the items for consideration Wednesday after the management company advising the college advised the price for some of the items was too high, said Mary Dudley, assistant to the president. The management firm was

Earthquake

Texas pitches in to help

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT

Texas relief agencies abruptly moved their emphasis from victims of Hurricane Hugo in the Caribbean and the Carolinas as they prepared to begin helping victims of the nation's second strongest earthquake.

Texas was sending emergency supplies and money to the victims in the San Francisco-Oakland area as they continued to hear stories of the terror in the seconds following Tuesday evening's earthquake.

A field kitchen unit that can feed thousands was on its way to California from Dallas Wednesday. It is the Texas Baptist Disaster Relief Mobile Unit and was accompanied by a team of 11 volunteers.

Wadley Blood Center sent 80 pints of blood on an early morning flight from Dallas to help Bay area hospitals.

Many of the charitable organizations were left financially strapped by their efforts to aid victims of Hurricane Hugo in the Caribbean and in South Carolina and North Carolina.

"Hugo has been the largest single most costly disaster in our 108-year history," said Beth Ullinger of the Dallas office of the American Red Cross. "The hurricane, coupled with the disaster in the Bay area, has placed serious demands on our financial resources."

Waiting for water

EL PASO — Crescencio Chavez fills his bucket with a hose at the Sparks subdivision near El Paso. Thousands of people along the Texas-Mexico border could get running water and enclosed sewers in their neighborhoods if Texas voters approve Proposition 2 on the Nov. 7 ballot. The proposition would allow the state to issue $500 million in bonds, with $100 million earmarked for basic water systems in the colonias.

Bids

specifically hired to help the college watch over costs and secure low bids, Dudley said.

Riley said the board also reject some bids because the cost would have put construction expenses above the $1.55 million the school has secured a bond for, Riley said. The costs for all items at lowest bids was more than $1.6 million, he said.

The board wants to make sure that students have a quality dorm to live in but also that a reasonable price is paid for the buildings, he said.

Those items rejected by the board will probably be re-submitted for bids in another board meeting/work session Nov. 3, Riley said.

Riley said the construction management firm advising the college has assured board members the dorms can still be completed by a Mid-August goal if most of the other bids are approved at the November meeting.

The board awarded a demolition contract to Quality Contractors of Cleburne with a low bid of $8,629; a contract for sitework to Price Construction of Big Spring with a low bid of $6,440; a contract for soil poisoning to Southwest A-1 of Big Spring with a low bid of $3,090; a contract for rough carpentry to Quality Contractors of Cleburne with a low bid of $6,370; a contract for roofing and sheet metal to Lydick-Hooks Roofing of Midland with a low bid of $54,380; a contract for hollow metal doors and frames to H.B. Blake of Hewitt with a low bid of $10,350.

The board also approved bids on a contract for drywall to Tierra Company of Midland with a low bid of $28,870; a contract for plaster and stucco to R.E. Kendrick with a low bid of $2,800; a contract for an acoustical ceiling to Tierra Company of Midland with a low bid of $9,246; a contract for painting with Dean Hagler Painting of Abilene with a low bid of $71,931; a contract for carpet and flooring with Moffitt Carpets of Midland with a low bid of $46,574; a contract for toilet accessories with RMS Builders Supply of Lubbock with a low bid of $3,063; a contract for fire extinguishers with Packard Company of Kress with a low bid of $1,225; a contract for plumbing and HVAC with Bosworth of Midland with a low bid $386,850; and a contract for paving with Price Construction of Big Spring with a low bid of $25,194.

The board rejected all bids on concrete, masonry, metals for erection, metals for material, finish carpentry (millwork), finish carpentry (doors), glass, hardware and electrical.

Dudley said she has not really analyzed the number of bids awarded to Big Spring companies, but noted some contracts were awarded to local companies. Three of the 15 items approved for bids were local companies, and Dudley said more bids could be let.

"Some bids haven't been taken that could be Big Spring bids," she said.

Crime

visory board, in turn, reviews the arrests and decides how much money will be awarded.

Schroyer said he hopes to improve the news releases and eventually he would like to have a crime of the week featured on cable television.

Although he is the coordinator of the program, Schroyer said Crime Stoppers is not a part of the police department. The private, non-profit organization forwards the information it receives "to the appropriate investigative agency," he said.

"What Crime Stoppers basically does is it provides an outlet for people who don't want to give their address and phone number, and it provides an outlet for us to solve cases," Schroyer said. "A lot of people in our society don't want to become involved. What they fail to realize... is they may become involved as a victim sooner or later."

Schroyer, who has been in law enforcement for almost 12 years, said Crime Stoppers provides valuable help to police and sheriff's departments.

"Locally I worked with the program several years," he said, "and it's always been a good program if you can get your community to cooperate - to participate in it."

And of course, the main incentive to participation is the cash reward offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction or grand jury indictment of any person involved in a criminal activity. Schroyer said all information given to Crime Stoppers is strictly confidential and the caller never gives an identity, address or telephone number.

Instead, the caller is assigned a number, and if a cash award is recommended, it is awarded to that number. The person assigned that number can arrange to pick up the cash without ever revealing his or her identity, Schroyer said.

Crime Stoppers has remained true in court, he said, as the organization cannot be made to reveal an identity.

Reward offered

BIG SPRING — Crime Stoppers needs community help with solving a recent crime.

On Sunday, Oct. 8, at about 10:50 p.m., a young female was leaving Highland Grocery at 410 E. Marcy when a man approached her from the west side of the store. He struck her once in the face with his fist then pushed her to the ground.

Once she was on the ground, the man took her book bag, which was black with an Indian-type design on the straps. The bag contained two college textbooks, several cassette tapes, some I.D. cards and about $20 cash.

After the man grabbed the bag, he ran southwest from Highland Grocery. He's described as being Hispanic, 5 foot 10 inches tall, of stocky build, 30 or 40 years old and having wavy black hair. He was wearing a long-sleeved white shirt, blue jeans and a dark-colored bandana over the lower part of his face.

Crime Stoppers will pay up to $1,000 on any information leading to the arrest and conviction or grand jury indictment of the robber.

Anyone with information on the crime or any other murder, robbery, sexual assault, burglary or felony crime, including narcotics, can call Crime Stoppers at 263-TIPS. All calls will be kept confidential.

Locally, the Big Spring group has made the maximum cash award of $1,000 on several occasions, he said, and $750 on many other occasions.

"That's a pretty good chunk of money," Schroyer said. "Of course, we encourage anybody to call for any motive."

Inside Texas

Telephone rates

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell's annual rates should be cut by from $200 million to $700 million, parties opposing the telephone company at the Public Utility Commission said in filed testimony.

The Office of Public Utility Counsel, which represents residential ratepayers at the commission, proposed a $515 million rate reduction for Southwestern Bell.

Expert witnesses for 80 cities proposed a $702 million annual rate reduction for the telephone company in testimony filed Wednesday. MCI Communications recommended that Bell's rates be cut by $196 million a year.

The testimony was filed by opponents of Southwestern Bell's "Texas First" proposal to freeze local phone rates for five years. The telephone company also has proposed making $327.5 million in technological improvements to its network.

Southwestern Bell filed the plan after the staff of the Public Utility Commission started an inquiry into the company's rates early this year.

The PUC staff contended that the phone company is overcharging customers by an estimated $100 million annually.

Poor timing

CARROLLTON (AP) — It was either vanity or bad timing that proved to be the undoing of a bald ex-convict from Florida.

Carrollton Police Sgt. Gary Anderson said the man allegedly robbed a savings and loan association office of an undetermined amount of cash and then stopped at a nearby barber shop for a haircut.

He was arrested as he walked out of the barber shop by officers who observed a car matching the description of one driven by the man who robbed Gibraltar First Texas Savings in the Dallas suburb.

"It's a mystery why (the robbery suspect) stopped for that haircut," Anderson said. "He's mostly bald. But the place is called Clip Me, and he sure got clipped."

"He really picked the wrong haircutting place," Anderson said. "You can almost see that shop from the police department."

Police recovered a pistol, a pistol and a note that had been handed to the teller at the thrift from the car driven by the man, Anderson said.

The 32-year-old man had been released from a Florida prison Sept. 25 after serving four years for armed robbery and the car he was driving had been stolen in Smyrna, Ga.

Challenger victory

MIDLAND (AP) — It was the "Challengers" in a landslide over the "Eagles," "Coyotes," "Bombers" and "Americans" when students at the new George H.W. Bush Elementary voted on their school nickname.

The school's mascot will be a space shuttle.

First Lady Barbara Bush suggested the Challenger mascot when she helped dedicate the school last month.

Mrs. Bush "wanted a mascot which meant the future," principal Toby Ward said. "She said boys and girls are our future."

The school held the election after the school board denied an administrative recommendation Tuesday to approve the "Challengers" nickname.

Accident prompts lawsuits

EDINBURG (AP) — The state's worst school bus accident has prompted lawsuits from families of more than 50 students, including some who were not on the bus when it plunged into a water-filled pit.

A San Antonio lawyer is accused in one petition of trying to bribe a family $700 to keep him involved in the case against Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co. Inc.

One of the company's trucks on Sept. 21 knocked a Mission Consolidated Independent School District bus over a 40-foot cliff into a roadside pit in the Hidalgo County town of Alton, killing 21 junior and senior high students and injuring 59.

Unspecified actual and exemplary damages are sought in the lawsuits, some accusing the company of "conscious indifference for the rights and well-being of the public."

An attorney designated as spokesman for attorneys representing Valley Coca-Cola was not in his office Wednesday and did not return a phone call by The Associated Press.

Families for at least 15 of the 21 dead students are represented in the lawsuits. Most of the cases are consolidated in 27th District Court in Edinburg, but cases also have been filed in three of Hidalgo County's other state district courts.

Most of the cases are on behalf of relatives who lost loved ones, or on behalf of students who escaped the bus and suffered various physical or emotional injuries.

One suit states that "Normalinda Perez was at the scene of the accident in question and observed the bus under the water in the pit as her daughter, Veronica Perez, still trapped in the bus, drowned."

At least five of the students for whom suits were filed were not on the bus. Those children allegedly suffered mental and physical anguish after arriving at the scene while their friends and family members were drowning.

The family of 12-year-old bus wreck survivor Nora Manriquez last week filed for a temporary restraining order to prevent San Antonio attorney Roberto Guerra from contacting them.

The Manriquez family hired Guerra Oct. 4, but chose to terminate their relationship with him and have another attorney represent them, according to the petition.

They accuse Guerra of trying to bribe the family $700 to refrain from filing suit.

The petition also alleges that Guerra threatened to "harass and pressure" the family by seeking to have an attorney appointed to ensure that parties are acting in the minor's best interest.

Guerra said the $700 was a loan the Manriquez family had asked him to provide. He said he had a written contract with the Manriquez family "obtained at their initiative."

Guerra said he had the impression the Manriquez family was unhappy with him because he brought the loan a day late.

No ruling had been issued on the restraining order.

Organized labor vows safety is first concern

AUSTIN (AP) — Job safety will remain a top concern for organized labor when the Legislature meets next month to consider for a third time reform of the workers' compensation system, labor leaders say.

"We don't have arms and legs and eyes and fingers for sale. We want the whole person going home" from the job, said Joe Gunn, president of the Texas AFL-CIO.

"Safety will be our No. 1 target, as it was during the regular session and the (first) special session," he added.

Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, has declared workers' comp reform his top priority — but the Democratic-controlled Legislature has twice killed reform efforts this year.

Clements has called the Legislature back into session beginning Nov. 14 for another try to change the system that pays benefits for workers injured or killed on the job.

The current system has been criticized as too cumbersome, too bureaucratic, too expensive for employers and too cheap with worker benefits. Labor has also charged that the state's dismal record in on-the-job safety is a major contributor to high workers' comp costs. But Gunn said he believes lawmakers are coming around.

"I think there's people (in the Legislature) that will be more sensitive to it," he said.

The AFL-CIO leader also blasted the State Board of Insurance again Wednesday for failing to include labor in its current hearings on workers' comp rates. But he said labor would be heard in the Legislature.

"Our voice was stilled yesterday, but our voice will not be stilled in the legislative halls of Texas," Gunn said.

The insurance board, by a 2-1 vote Tuesday, barred from its hearing the state's largest labor organization, which represents 230,000 workers. The AFL-CIO was the only group rejected by the Insurance Board to participate as a party, or intervenor, in the hearing.

Rick Gentry, a spokesman for the insurance industry, criticized Gunn for his comments.

AMARILLO (AP) — Police investigating a restaurant burglary arrested a suspect who was on a cookout with the stolen items in a nearby park.

The suspect was also wearing sneakers whose prints matched the ones tracked all over the restaurant, officers said.

Someone threw a rock through a window of Arnold's Family Restaurant sometime before 10 a.m. Monday and stole meat, cookware and money, according to police.

Police investigating the burglary walked around the vicinity and noticed some people cooking in Ellwood Park. An officer identified the stolen items and arrested a 31-year-old man and charged him with burglary.

Views from across Texas

Commitment required

President Bush didn't waste a moment in accepting an invitation from the presidents of the cocaine-producing nations of Colombia, Peru and Bolivia to attend a "drug summit" within the next 90 days.

There's certainly nothing wrong with that... but he and his advisers should take pains to ensure that there will be more to the drug summit than photo opportunities and rhetorical variations on the theme that the traffic in illicit drugs is a Really Bad Thing.

Bush must carry to the meeting... proposals for aiding the governments of Colombia, Peru and Bolivia in their struggle with the traffickers — proposals including economic incentives, law enforcement assistance and, if requested, military aid.

Bush should be prepared to present them with evidence that the United States is serious about curbing demand for drugs in this country — through tougher law enforcement, intensified educational programs, and rehabilitation facilities that give more than lip service to addicts' urgent need for help in breaking the stranglehold of drug abuse.

Corpus Christi Caller-Times

Overhaul is necessary

The League of Women Voters is right when it says the Texas Constitution should be rewritten. But it must be done cautiously, in a way that keeps the public in control of the politicians.

The problem is that the wording is so outdated, and restrictive, that frivolous amendments sometimes are needed.

Fort Bend County, for example, has established a new office of district attorney, effective Jan. 1, 1991. Under current wording of the constitution, the vacancy must be filled by a gubernatorial appointee until after the 1992 election. Amendment 14 on the Nov. 7 ballot would give that county the authority to fill the post in the 1990 election.

It's silly for Fort Bend County to have to ask the rest of the state for permission to do that.

But the constitution's weakness — its wordiness — is also its strength. It leaves nothing to the imagination. Because the state constitution is very specific, a lot of power is vested in the voters. Without their approval, many fundamental changes are not possible.

Texas' constitution should be refined so fewer technical revisions are needed on the ballot each year. But the populist thread must remain intact.

Amarillo Sunday News-Globe

Our children's future

When the Texas Legislature meets in special session to revamp state education financing, there will be pressure to follow the historical trend of placing the burden of education on local school districts.

The Supreme Court decision in Edgewood vs. Kirby states that the formula currently used to distribute state aid to Texas' 1,100 public schools is unfair. With two-thirds of those schools spending less per student than the state average, we find little room for argument.

Precedent dictates that the Legislature will want to avoid raising state taxes at any cost, particularly at any cost to legislators' popularity with the voters. The Legislature can avoid increased taxes simply by giving less money to schools that are able to raise more local tax money, and turning the savings over to those that have less.

We cannot let our legislators put their political futures ahead of our children's futures. We must put pressure on our legislators to do the right thing, not the easy thing.

Bryan-College Station Eagle

Bentsen hypocrisy

If Congress wants to know why people do not hold it in high regard, the Senate Finance Committee's cynical dumbfounding performance on taxes... provides a splendid illustration.

The main issue before the committee and its chairman, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was a proposed reduction in the capital-gains tax. Democrats roundly denounced the proposal as a windfall for the rich, and the committee narrowly rejected it, despite the House of Representatives' approval.

Then Bentsen opened the floor for other proposals, which set the committee off on a frenzy of tax-break creation that would primarily benefit — you guessed it — the wealthy.

One loophole would allow rich Americans to give huge, tax-free inheritances to grandchildren. Millionaire Bentsen, a grandfather of five, denied any intention to help himself.

How hypocritical can Bentsen & Co. be? After sand-bagging the reduction in the capital-gains tax, his committee proceeded to open dozens of loopholes that benefit special interest and the rich.

Bush's 'evolving' position on abortion

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Few domestic issues give President Bush more apparent agony or political grief than coming to grips with abortion.

"It's an issue he's very uncomfortable with," conceded a senior Bush aide as the president's position took its latest twist — a Tuesday announcement that he would veto a bill expanding federally funded abortions to cases of incest and rape.

Bush urged Congress not to use tax dollars to "compound a violent act with the taking of an unborn life" just days after he told a news conference there may be "room for flexibility" in his stand.

The dispute involves a House-passed provision that would expand Medicaid coverage for poor women to include abortions in cases of rape and incest.

The present law — which Bush wants retained — only permits public funding when the pregnant woman's life is in danger.

White House aides were backing and filling this week to show that Bush's position has remained unchanged — almost — for many years.

The president's "position's not the same — I mean is the same — is the same. Freudian slip," said presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, fielding one question after another on the subject.

In fact, Bush has wavered several times on critical abortion issues, and many Bush loyalists were privately conceding that the president may now have painted himself into a political corner as public opinion polls seem to reflect growing resistance to tighter restrictions.

Although saying he has long morally opposed abortion, Bush as recently as his 1980 Republican presidential campaign voiced clear opposition to a constitutional amendment to overturn the Supreme Court's Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortions.

That position put him at odds with Ronald Reagan, and sometime after Bush joined the GOP ticket as Reagan's running mate he abandoned his opposition to an amendment. Since then, he has embraced just such an amendment.

"You know, there has been — I have to make a confession — an evolution in my position," he told a 1984 campaign debate with Geraldine Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential candidate. In a campaign debate last year with Democrat Michael Dukakis, Bush said his opposition to abortion was hardened as he watched the christening of adopted granddaughter Marshall — now 3 years old — in a Virginia church.

"I was very pleased indeed that the mother had not aborted that child, and put the child up for adoption," he said.

Bush experienced another apparent shift — this one overnight rather than over the years — after suggesting in another 1988 debate with Dukakis that women who have abortions could be subjected to criminal penalties if the procedure were outlawed.

His top lieutenants circulated the next morning insisting that Bush, upon reflection, had decided that such penalties should not be imposed.

Bush's current position is one of flat opposition to federally funded abortions for poor women except when their lives are endangered.

But this does not seem to square with his general view in support of a "human life" amendment that would also allow abortions in the case of rape or incest.

Bush, in a letter on Tuesday to Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., tried anew to explain this apparent contradiction, claiming the nub of the matter was who was paying the bill.

"Abortion is a difficult, often painful, and very personal decision for all Americans. It is made even more difficult when the underlying issue is whether the government — and ultimately the American taxpayer — is asked to pay for abortions and under what circumstances," he said.

But Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., said that position showed a "timid president who wouldn't lift a glove to get rid of (Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio) Noriega... who now tries to show his political backbone by pushing around poor women who are the victims of rape and incest."

In defense of the president, Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., who also favors sharp abortion restrictions, said the president took "a very principled, albeit very difficult, stand."

Professional lifesavers

To the editor: The EMS professional. That's right, professional. We come in all shapes and sizes, from basic to paramedic, volunteer and paid, but one word describes us best, professional.

You see us as load-n-go, speed devils with a band-aid, but you don't see the real work done behind closed ambulance doors. You say we're speed demons and complain when you are late for your golf game because you had to wait at a light to let us pass, but have an accident and you wonder what took us so long. You say we're slow and that we don't know what we're doing, but wake up with chest pain and call us, all of a sudden we're experts. You say we enjoy death, and blood doesn't bother us, but fail to see our sickness and sorrow over the life we could not save, or the exhaustion from trying.

Life is a very delicate miracle, and we take one step at a time. Ours is not an easy job, but we accept it this way. Modern medicine has given us the ability to do more and more in the field every day, and we do it all for you! So, go ahead and talk, because the tears in a mother's eyes for the child we just saved, is a feeling you can never touch. I'm proud to be one of those load-n-go, speed devils with a band-aid, EMS professionals. ## Why the stock market took a tumble recently

By ART BUCHWALD

You ask the hard questions, and I'll give you the easy answers as to why the stock market just took a tumble.

"Why did it?" "The prevailing wisdom is that the people trying to buy United Airlines couldn't get the financing they needed."

"What the bleep has that got to do with the stock market?"

"You will have to remain civilized if you want me to answer your questions. It all started when Marvin Davis, the billionaire, who used to own 20th Century-Fox, tried to buy Northwest Airlines. He was unsuccessful, so he decided that he would grab control of United Airlines instead. The management of UAL hated the idea so much that it got together with the airlines' pilots and announced that they were purchasing the company. The price offered was $7 billion."

"Did they have $7 billion?"

"If you're going to ask stupid questions, I'll discontinue this briefing. Of course they didn't have $7 billion. They didn't even have 7 billion baggage claim checks. Like everybody else they planned to go into the junk bond market and raise the money."

"This is the way the system works. You acquire a profitable company you don't own with money that isn't yours and drive it into the ground by paying unbelievable interest rates that you cannot afford."

"So what happened when the people who wanted to buy UAL couldn't get their $7 billion?"

"The word was immediately flashed to Wall Street that United Airlines was not flying in very friendly skies. A 24-year-old Wall Street trader named Sidney, fresh out of Wharton, saw the flash. He told his superior, Gloria, aged 21, that he was worried because if UAL raiders couldn't get a lousy $7 billion loan in junk bonds, it meant the entire market was weaker than his assistants, Larry, 22, and George, 23, had been forecasting.

Art Buchwald

Gloria panicked and ordered Sidney to sell $5 billion worth of securities which they were holding for the Septic Tank Workers' Pension Fund."

"How did Sidney do it?"

"He pushed a button marked SELL on his computer, which lit up every pinball machine in America."

"It was Sidney who started the panic!"

"No, but he anticipated one. Everybody expects the market to either go up or down. They pay Sidney $1 million to know this. They also expect him to be aware that the people who deal with the financial fortunes of the country panic easily — if it isn't Braniff Airlines today, it's United Airlines tomorrow."

"So Sidney sold his securities. What did he do with the money?"

"He bought stocks of other companies that Marvin Davis hinted he might be pursuing in the next two weeks."

"And those stocks went up?"

"No, they went down."

"Why was that?"

"I told you, dummy, because no matter what happened in the market, it all boiled down to the fact that United Airlines could not raise $7 billion. What makes this all so sad is that it could signal the end of junk bonds as we know them."

"You mean the takeover moguls will no longer be able to acquire healthy companies with other people's money and turn them into debt-ridden cripples?"

"I'm afraid so. We have a new saying on Wall Street, 'When Marvin Davis sneezes, the Japanese yen catches pneumonia.'"

Floods wipe out Kentucky roads

MYRA, Ky. (AP) — Dozens of residents were stranded in remote hollows as floods from the remnants of Hurricane Jerry wiped out bridges and roads in eastern Kentucky, and officials feared more rain could trigger flash floods.

But in West Virginia on Wednesday, the high waters eased hostility at least momentarily in the bitter United Mine Workers coal strike: Strikers rescued three non-union coal company workers whose van slid into a flooding creek. "We really hate these guys, but we couldn't let them die," striking miner James Justice said Wednesday.

Up to an inch of rain was expected in southeastern Kentucky early today, renewing a flash-flood watch, the National Weather Service said.

In both states, state disaster assessment teams toured flooded areas on Wednesday and found hundreds of residents with homes damaged by the flood.

Senate defeats flag amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today defeated a proposed constitutional amendment to ban burning and desecration of the American flag, delivering a sharp rebuff to President Bush on a high-profile issue.

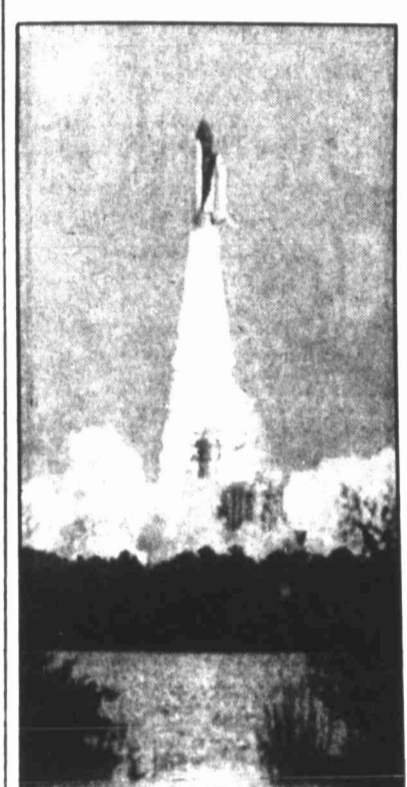

The vote was 51-48 in favor, but constitutional amendments require approval by a two-thirds margin in both houses of Congress and the Senate vote thus fell far short.

"We can support the American flag without changing the American Constitution," Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, declared before the vote.

The measure would authorize the state and federal governments to ban burning and

Astronauts release Galileo probe

ATLANTIS LAUNCH

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The nuclear-powered Galileo probe raced across space today on its long voyage to Jupiter, while the five orbiting Atlantis astronauts who released it began a day of other experiments.

Zooming along at about 9,600 mph, the probe was more than 150,000 miles from Earth at mid-morning, NASA said. Galileo was deployed Wednesday night about six hours after the space shuttle thundered into orbit.

"Galileo is on its way to another world," Atlantis commander Don Williams said shortly after the 6,700-pound probe was gently ejected from the shuttle's cargo bay by springs.

The shuttle crew today ran some checks and pronounced the primary cooling system "healthy." It had shut down automatically Wednesday when it became overheated, shifting to a backup.

NASA said the problem was associated with the power needs of Galileo when it was in the cargo bay.

SAN FRANCISCO — A police dog is lead through the rubble of apartments in San Francisco's Marina District as the search continues for anyone who may have been trapped when Tuesday's quake destroyed much of the area.

Aftershocks continue to shake California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three strong aftershocks rattled an already shaken Northern California today as relief poured into the earthquake-devastated Bay area and an army of workers hunted for people feared buried under a highway.

Hope was fading that anyone might still be alive under the tons of concrete, two days after a 1.4-mile-long slab of a double-deck freeway collapsed in Oakland. Authorities fear more than 250 were killed in the cave-in.

There were signs of life slowly returning to normal. Power was restored in San Francisco's Financial District early this morning, setting off thousands of alarms. Airports were open, and the region's subway system was working.

The third game of the World Series, which was within minutes of the opening pitch when the quake struck, was tentatively rescheduled for Tuesday at Candlestick Park in San Francisco. Still, many offices remained closed. The Bay Bridge, the lifeline that links Oakland and San Francisco, was expected to be closed at least one or two more weeks while a collapsed section is repaired.

An aftershock that measured 5.0 on the Richter scale of ground motion struck at 3:15 a.m. and was centered near Watsonville, 10 miles south of Santa Cruz, according to the state Office of Emergency Services.

Two other aftershocks measured

4.5. The aftershocks collapsed the damaged steeple of a Watsonville church, and further damaged buildings in Santa Cruz, near the epicenter of Tuesday's 6.9 earthquake, state officials said.

As of early today, more than 1,400 aftershocks were recorded. The strongest, 5.2 on the Richter scale, struck within 40 minutes of initial jolt, according the U.S. Geological Survey.

Gov. George Deukmejian demanded an investigation into the collapse of Interstate 880 in Oakland, saying it should have been built to withstand the devastating force of Tuesday's earthquake.

The collapse "raises troubling questions for the entire state in terms of the construction of our freeways," Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson said. Largely because of the collapse of I-880, known as the Nimitz Freeway, the quake was the second-deadliest in U.S. history. It killed an estimated 270 people — 250 of them in the rubble of the Nimitz — and crippled transportation, electric power and commerce in the nation's fourth-largest metropolitan area, a region of more than 6 million people.

Besides the commuters crushed in the freeway collapse, at least 21 people died in San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara and Santa Cruz counties. State officials said 1,400 people were injured throughout the Bay area, although hospitals said they treated 2,750 people, many for chest pains.

Spanish novelist wins Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Spanish novelist and essayist Camilo Jose Cela, who drew on his experiences in the Spanish Civil War to produce some of his country's most compelling literary works, today won the Nobel Prize in literature.

Cela, 73, was cited by the Swedish Academy for his "rich and intensive prose, which with restrained compassion forms a challenging vision of man's vulnerability."

Cela's best known work was the 1942 novel "The Family of Pascual Duarte," which was censored and banned in his native country. The book was a first-person account of a murderer awaiting execution.

His masterpiece is considered "The Hive," which captures three days in the life of Madrid four years after the civil war.

Cela, a longtime member of the Spanish Academy, a literary group, lives in Guadalajara, a small town northeast of Madrid. He has written 10 novels

Earthquakes hit Northern China

BEIJING (AP) — Five earthquakes shook a largely rural area of northern China before dawn today, killing at least 18 people and flattening about 8,000 homes, the official Xinhua News Agency said.

Officials of the State Seismological Bureau said the quakes, which injured at least 28 people and struck less than 24 hours after the devastating quake in northern California, were not related to that tremor.

The temblors — registering between 5.0 and 6.0 on the Richter scale — hit an area along the Shanxi-Hebei provincial border and at least one was felt in Beijing, Xinhua quoted the bureau as saying.

Opposition criticizes new leader

BERLIN (AP) — Opposition leaders today criticized East Germany's new leader, Egon Krenz, for his dedication to hard-line conservatism that has caused dissent across the country. A pro-democracy protest was reported hours after Krenz was appointed.

Krenz, who took over from Erich Honecker on Wednesday, made it clear in a speech that the Communist Party will resist pro-democracy movements.

The change in leadership was praised in other East bloc countries, but opposition leaders here said Krenz's style will not end dissatisfaction that has caused street protests and driven tens of thousands of East Germans to flee West.

Activists said today that about 1,000 people held a peaceful protest in the northern city of Greifswald hours after Krenz was named party chief. The protesters reportedly demanded democratic reforms and the release of those detained during demonstrations earlier in the month.

MIDLAND — Midland Opera Theater opens its tenth season with its annual Opera in the Park event Sunday.

Familiar hits from traditional classical opera, as well as highlights from Gilbert & Sullivan will be performed informally on this fun filled evening.

Free tap beer and a cash bar will begin the evening at 5:30 p.m. at Centennial Plaza, followed by an Italian buffet at 6 p.m. and a 7 p.m. program at Midland Center. Cost for the entire evening is $10.

For further information and reservations call 684-4101. Advance reservations are recommended due to limited seating.

Symphony grant

MIDLAND — The Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale, Inc. has announced it recently received a $5,000 grant from The Brown Foundation Inc., of Houston, toward the educational concerts for primary and secondary schools during the 1989-1990 school year.

"The Brown Foundation is a philanthropic organization which uses its funds primarily to support and encourage the visual and performing arts and education. This year in particular the Foundation is focusing on funding primary and secondary public education endeavors in the state of Texas," said Katherine B. Dobelman, Executive Director of the Foundation.

The Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale Youth Music Education Program is an annual series of 38-40 in-school ensemble concerts for all 4th, 5th and 6th grade students in both Midland and Ector counties. Over 15,000 youth enjoy these free performances, in addition to free Master Classes for Music students by visiting guest artists, and free admission to the Symphony Classical Series concerts for Music students.

The Symphony's Youth Education Program is a major contributing factor to the exceptionally high music class enrollments in both Midland and Odessa. "This very worthwhile program is consistent with the objectives of the Brown Foundation," says Dobelman, "we're pleased to be able to provide essential support."

Dressing for success

NEW YORK (AP) — Take the same care in dressing for fitness class as you do for work or lunch with a friend and you'll not only feel better about yourself but you'll perk up the rest of the class, too.

Molly Fox of Molly Fox Studio says that when women exercise, their fashions should be functional and motivational. Leave the oversized T-shirts, disco clothes and see-through garments at home. Pack leotards and leggings in one of those wonderful opaque colors, instead. It shows you've made a lifetime commitment to fitness and that you're not ashamed of your body.

"Black is 'in' outside the gym," she says, "but colorful leotards and tights add energy."

There are times, however, when black or dark colors are best, particularly to camouflage the body flaws you want to work on — big tummy, big hips, heavy legs, thick arms. If you try to cover up those "sore spots" with sloppy clothes, the instructor can't see if or how much you are improving.

- G-strings, thongs and roll-ups are fun — only if treated with respect, preferably as accessories worn over dark leotards, tights or workout pants.

- Save the star-studded, glitzy stuff for the discos.

- Pair up light, white and flesh-tone tights and unitards with more demure leotards. Otherwise, when you begin to sweat, the clothes become transparent.

- Leave underpants in the locker. Once you start moving, the leotard starts to hike up and the underwear hangs out. Also, it's a good idea to keep a sports bra handy. Not only is it more comfortable, but you'll be sure you don't wind up with black lace peeking through day-glo yellow workout clothes.

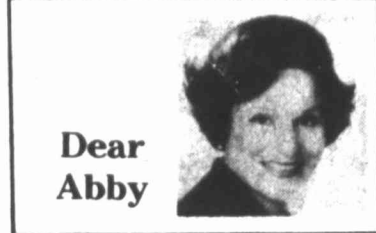

Says Fox, whose studios feature aerobics, muscle toning, dance and weights, "We have mirrors lining the walls because we want people to look at themselves and feel good about what they see."

Widower wants to be an escort

DEAR ABBY: I am in need of some information and help in finding a licensed escort service or companionship service for persons who have been widowed or are single for reasons of their own. I lost my wife of 39 years two years ago and am now to a point that I would like to get on with my life. I have a very small income and cannot do much traveling, although I would like to do so. Having just returned from my first ship cruise, which was very enjoyable, I realized that there are ladies out there who would pay for a companion for a short period of time. I am not interested in a long-term relationship at this time.

I am a 71-year-old male (look 60), non-smoker, social drinking OK, average physical condition. I consider myself a Christian and prefer a Christian lady. I would like to explore the possibilities of being an escort, and I think I should try to find an agency that specializes in this sort of thing because of the pitfalls that could be encountered. I would value highly any information you could give me. — CALIFORNIAN

DEAR CALIFORNIAN: I appreciate your desire to travel and see the world, but if you intend to do so by hiring yourself out as a paid escort, I hope you know how risky it is these days. I'm sure there may be some very decent people in that line of work — but there are also some kinky, kooky folks among their numbers.

However, if you're determined to become a hired escort, make yourself available for interviews with the escort services in your area. Another thought: Inquire at the travel agencies and cruise lines. And keep your fingers crossed.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 71-year-old woman. Recently, when I went for an eye appointment, the doctor's greeting to me was, "Hello, young lady!"

As I have stated, I am not a young lady and prefer not to be addressed condescendingly. What's wrong with, "Hello, Mrs. Jones?"

Along the same line, I went to a nursing home to talk business with the administrator who was in her early 30s. I was not in her office five minutes before she was calling me by my first name!

Since we were doing business and she was so much younger, she should have known that she owed me the courtesy and respect of adressing me as "Mrs. Jones."

What is your opinion? — "MRS. JONES" IN SAVANNAH, GA.

DEAR MRS. JONES: People who address strangers — particularly older strangers — by their first names (or anything other than "Mr." or "Mrs.") may be perceived as rude or disrespectful, but actually they are just trying to be friendly.

If such familiarity bothers you, simply request that strangers call you "Mrs. Jones."

DEAR ABBY: A 33-year-old woman died today. She was applying mascara when she missed a turn, her car hit a concrete curb and flipped over. She suffered skull and chest injuries, was on life support for two weeks and then died. With her was her young son, who suffered only a broken arm. She left four young children without a mother.

Abby, please print this to remind people who drive that driving requires their full attention. — A FRIEND OF A FRIEND

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address, plus check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Kitchen no longer belongs to mom

(AP) The kitchen used to be mom's domain, but now each member of the family is likely to take a turn at cooking and cleaning up.

A recent survey by the Maytag Co. found that almost 40 percent of today's teen-agers cook at least once a week, and 25 percent of the pre-teens help in the kitchen daily. Slightly more than 3 percent of American husbands cook on a daily basis, a significant number, says James W. Kregel, head of Maytag's Kitchen Idea Center.

Now that the family has discovered the kitchen, the kitchen needs to be adapted to accommodate the family. One of the best ways, says Kregel, is to install counters of varying heights. While the 36-inch-high counter is ideal for the average woman, 30 to 32 inches would better suit children and short women, and a 42-inch counter works best for tall people, says Kregel.

One way to meet the need for varied heights is to install a large center island. The back portion might be raised to 42 inches, the front set at 36 inches and one end at 32 inches.

"We have found that this works in practice, looks interesting and the function is terrific," says Kregel. "Another advantage is that the entire family can work together at the island, facing one another."

If an island isn't practical, vary the counter heights along the sink wall. Next to the sink, install several feet of counter space at 36 inches. Then step up the counter to 42 inches and place the dishwasher beneath. Install a pull-out table at 30 or 32 inches at the end of the counter. It can be pushed out of the way when not in use.

With the dishwasher higher than usual under the 42-inch counter, you'll have to bend less — a real boon to older family members. According to a University of Minnesota survey, 42 inches off the floor is an ideal height for a microwave oven, says Kregel, so put the microwave on this counter top.

Varied-height counters can serve other functions as well. For example, a 42-inch high counter is ideal for serving buffet meals. The 30- or 32-inch is a good height for an average size adult to roll out dough or use for other baking preparations.

Kregel says it pays to rearrange storage from time to time. Where there are young children, put everyday dishes and glassware on below-counter shelves so it is easier and safer for kids to set the table and empty the dishwasher. When the children are grown, return the dishes to the upper cabinets.

Just because major appliances are traditionally placed in the work triangle doesn't mean they have to be.

"One of my favorite ideas is to store dishes and have a dishwasher right near the dining table," says Kregel. "You don't have to prewash with the newer dishwashers, so you can easily scrape the dishes at the table and then load them into the dishwasher."

Having an extra sink near a second dishwasher would be ideal.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company hereby gives notice that on August 29, 1989 the Company filed an application with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas to revise its Texas intrastate Digital Link Service Tariff. This service utilizes several existing network services in combination with packet switching capabilities. A MICROLINK II Primary Market Area is the service area from which subscribers may reach public dial access to the service by dialing a local seven digit number. NEW YORK (AP) — During her 54 years in show business, Jane Wyman has answered calls for 86 movies and nine years of "Falcon Crest." But the actress says she doesn't answer any calls as Ronald Reagan's ex-wife.

"I don't have to be known as that," said Wyman, who ended an eight-year boycott on interviews by speaking to Vanity Fair for its November issue. "I've been in this business longer than he has. It's such bad taste."

"They wouldn't say it if I was Joe Blow's ex-wife. It wouldn't even be mentioned."

Wyman and the former president were married from 1940-48.

The Oscar-winning director of "Rain Man" had obtained a fireworks permit to film a recreation of a 1914 Fourth of July celebration in the picturesque neighborhood by the harbor.

After receiving numerous complaints from sleepless residents, the Baltimore Fire Department placed an 11 p.m. curfew on the film company's permit.

"We did get permission by the city to show fireworks, but the vintage fireworks for the 1914 scene were a lot noisier than we had envisioned," said Marie Rowe, a spokeswoman for Rowhouse Productions.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1989

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: humorist Art Buchwald, actress Arlene Francis, Yankee legend Mickey Mantle, actor Jerry Orbach.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your personal plans will meet with little opposition. Catch up on correspondence. A telephone call about an old friend is very intriguing! Think about rejuvenating your relationship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Steer a conservative course where finances are concerned. Missing a meeting will cause tensions but bring basic differences out into the open. Postpone making a major family decision.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Humanitarian efforts will boost your standing in the community. Avoid speaking in a headstrong fashion. A change in diet will give you more energy. Complete all work assignments on time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stay with those who have proved reliable. A casual, indirect approach works wonders when discussing touchy subjects. You gain new confidence when you solve your own problems. Plan ahead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Guard against carelessness. Do not exaggerate when describing an agreement. Save funds for travel. A student receives good news regarding employment or a scholarship. Romance beckons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Someone is more interested in what you are thinking than in what you are saying. Use your writing or public relations skills to promote a pet project. Guard against neglecting your loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Exciting people or events could distract you from important work. Postpone social engagements. You will gain nothing from bickering with an authority figure. Romance is fulfilling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Investment income grows. Settling into a new environment or job is easier than you expected. Mate will be supportive if you are honest. The media influences some of your decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spend money for something that will bring you peace of mind. You need to protect your mate's feelings. Lost items resurface when least expected. A free-lancer gets a lucky break.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Secrecy is essential now. Partner's demands could be more than you can handle. A heart-to-heart talk helps prevent embarrassment or resentment. Make intelligent concessions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A wonderful day for self-improvement. A work assignment requires more time and attention than you thought. Ask for an extension. Emphasize your special talents.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take action on an important matter only after consulting partners. Soften up a difficult member of the opposite sex with flattery, but back your statements with facts. Keep loved one's secrets.

Former Grady runner doing well

EDINBURG — Shanna Hale knows what it takes to win. Just a pinch of diligence, experience and a little bit of luck were the right ingredients for Hale's cross country win for The University of Texas-Pan American here two weeks ago.

Hale, 21, was running behind fellow Lady Bronc Thelma Morales when she pulled up at the 2 1/2 mile mark with an injured foot.

"I was five yards behind her,"

SHANNA HALE

Hale recalled, "I was catching up with her when she dropped out." Hale finished the 3.1 mile (5,000-meters) race in 19 minutes, 12 seconds — first overall by 10 seconds in the women's division at the Monte Cristo Golf Course.

Last year, Hale was second at Monte Cristo. She's made steady improvement here just as she's made steady progress throughout her athletic career.

"I came from a 1-A (high) school," she said. "I grew up in the middle of nowhere, in the boonies, so I played tennis, volleyball and basketball to stay busy."

Raised on a farm in Stanton, in West Texas, the 5-foot-5 senior used to raise steers for livestock shows.

"We always placed in the top 10," Hale remembers.

A sprinter in junior high school, Hale was influenced by her freshmen track coach Ted Bedwell at Grady High School to try long distance.

"My new coach said I had a lot of endurance," she said. "He said I should try the mile."

Hale quickly discovered her forte as she missed qualifying for the state meet by one place that year. Her sophomore year was different. She not only qualified but finished second in state 1-A.

Hale was second again her junior year, this time in the two-mile run. Finally, as a senior, she won the two-mile with the third fastest time in the entire state (11:12) while again nailing down second in the mile.

"My family was real excited. They never missed a meet."

After three years of dorm life at UT Pan American, Hale now lives in an off-campus apartment.

"Dorms are fun," she admits. "You get close to the team because everyone is staying there."

Hale believes the Lady Broncs have an excellent chance of capturing another American South Conference Championship. She earned All-Conference honors to help the Lady Broncs win the 1988 cross country title.

"We realize we have a lot of work ahead of us," she said. "We know it won't be easy. None of us have a big head about it even though we won two years in a row."

There can be no doubting that as long as Shanna Hale's recipe for success continues to flourish.

Stanton OKs sale to build landfill

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — The Stanton City Council approved a notice of intention to sell $350,000 in certificates of obligation to help acquire, construct and equip a sanitary landfill.

The council made the decision during a regular meeting Monday. The landfill will enable the city to conform to new Environmental Protection Agency regulations going into effect this year.

Last month county commissioners agreed to provide $250,000 in funds and $100,000 in labor to help close the old city-county landfill and conduct studies to open a new one.

The city's combination tax and revenue certificates will be considered for approval at the Nov. 13 meeting. If approved, they should be sold by mid-December, City Manager Jimmy Mathis said.

He said a bond election is not required for certificates of obligation. "It's cheaper because you cut out all those election expenses," he said.

"On the face of the thing it's a tax obligation," said a representative of Southwest Securities Inc., who attended the meeting.

"You have to have some type of revenue coming in," the representative, Bob Davis, said. "These are located just like bonds but you don't have an election on them."

The city council also approved the employment of Southwest Securities Inc. as financial advisors on the certificates. Davis reported that the fee would be $7,500.

He estimated that the interest rate may be under 7.5 percent for unrated bonds. "Costs (for the city) to get rated (lower) wouldn't be recovered," he said.

An eight-year payment schedule with a 10-year option could bring the interest up to $100,000, he said at the meeting.

A decision was also made to hire a bond attorney. Mathis said it would cost "no more than $400 out of pocket expenses."

In other business, the council:

- Approved a resolution authorizing participation in the Permian Basin 911 Telephone System. It is scheduled to be implemented in July, 1991.
- Will cost telephone consumers an extra 50 cents a month on their telephone bill probably starting in January, Mathis said.
- "That won't cost the city, county or any government units anything," he said.
- Accepted a $12,995 bid from Nelson and Sharp Supply Inc., of Andrews to install another surface aerator at the wastewater treatment plant.
- An aerator turns and mixes air with water, Mathis said.
- "We don't have quite enough oxygen in our number three lagoon," he said. "We have three (aerators) out there now. We'll have four out there then."

He said the bid showed a two week delivery time. "It'll probably be three weeks before it's installed."

Concerning a 1988 Texas Department of Commerce Grant for paving and drainage on the Southside of the city, the council entered into a contract with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper for engineering and administration services.

Mathis said the grant is for about $200,000 and it stipulates that it be used for street improvements in a low to moderate income housing area. The city will provide matching funds of $30,000.

"There's a bunch of half-paved streets over on the Southside," he said. "They'll try to draw up those plans this winter."

If your child is having difficulty in school with spelling or pronunciation, this might be a great time to test his or her hearing ability. Don't pass up this opportunity. The hearing truck will be parked at the front entrance to the Community Center.

Several clubs and organizations will be having booths to encourage healthier eating, exercise and regular check-ups.

Grady Young Homemakers will be checking your taste buds. Can you tell the difference between whole milk, low fat, or skim? And what's all the fuss over 3% butter fat? Stop by their booth to find out.

The Fourth Grade 4-H Foods project will have a display disclosing the latest findings from Consumer Report on breakfast cereals. This group is under the direction of Gigi Phillips.

The Fifth Grade 4-H Foods Project group will be doing a computerized nutrient analysis of what you eat in one day's time. It will tell you about vitamin and mineral intake, fat intake, and fiber intake. Don't miss this opportunity; similar analysis cost about $25. This analysis will be free. Doris Holland works with this group.

The Stanton High School Health Class will be doing a booth on emergency first aid. Stop by and brush up on your first aid. They will also have an exhibit on fat in the diet.

What are your alternatives to caffeine and sugar? Stop by the Stanton Future Homemaker booth and find out. What can you drink that has no sugar and no caffeine? Is it a riddle? Is it water? Could it be something else?

Saturated fat, unsaturated fat, coconut oil, canola oil, who knows the scoop on oils and fat today? Stop by the Grady 6-8th Grade 4-H Foods project group and beef up on your fat I.Q. Jill Tubb and Carla Peugh are the adult leaders for this group.

The Martin County Undergound Water District will be doing water tests.

Exhibitions will start at 11:30 a.m. with Rhonda's Rocking Horse Ranch doing circle activity. Celia Payne's exercise group will do a demonstration.

I'm one of those strange people. And as dangerous and terrifying as Los Angeles is, I will be returning there very soon. I wish I could explain it, but I can't. I'm already afraid of all the things that haven't even happened yet, and may never hap-

There is an underworld of wacky, weird writers in L.A. and I am on my way to join them even as you read this column. Sometimes I hear a whispering, and when I stop to listen, the whispering ceases.

Isn't it about time we gave Stanton the business?

 listener, it seems that he conceptualizes each step in his head as he tells about them.

"I consider bootmaking an art form," he said. "It takes a lot of patience and practice. It takes a certain kind of artistic ability to make boots."

Holt restores saddles, and has created one.

"Saddles are as important to a cowboy as anything," he said. "We got saddles from the Spanish, though they have changed in style some according to cowboy needs. But not boots. Boots belong to us here in the U.S. They are unique to America."

"Nothing is written down anywhere on bootmaking, so you just have to learn it on your own, or get it from an old bootmaker."

"The art of bootmaking has passed down since the Great Leather Act of 1770 (or around then). People who make custom boots make them the same way they were made before the factories got to making them."

Holt admits that his customers are satisfied. "They keep buying them, paying for them," he said.

"Some folks really appreciate a good pair of boots, and other folks like things just because they are exotic or high dollar. A man came in and paid me money to call a certain friend of his, measure him and make him some boots. Then he had a pair of boots made for a daughter who went to a certain university."

"I make boots out of just about anything people want if I can get it. I've used ostrich, lizard, sharkskin and alligator. The most exotic, I guess, was the ostrich. Some skins are harder to get than others. It's getting pretty hard to obtain elephant skin."

While Holt talks of boots, it is hard for an observer to miss a bronze of a Texas Ranger over his shoulder. It is intricate in detail, the artist having captured the weary hardness of a lawman on the Texas border years back.

Mitch Holt repairs a pair of boots as part of his daily routine at Holt's Boot and Saddle Shop in Stanton.

"I started working on this after I'd read a book on Frank Hamer," Holt said. "He was an older Texas Ranger, one of those in charge of catching Bonnie and Clyde. At one time he was in charge of 90 miles of border all by himself, kind of like his own border patrol. He was pretty rough, had cold blue eyes that look through you."

"I guess he is who I had in mind while making the bronze. I think it would take a pretty good hombre to take care of that. He was told that if he caught anybody, to bring them back to the courthouse, but it was such a long ride that he only did that a few times. After awhile he would just hang one man and the next man he'd stake out over an ant bed — he came up with different punishments. He was the judge, jury and executioner."

As Holt talks, the observer looks again at the artwork and sees what he is describing in the face of the bronze. (In this writer's opinion, the bronze is incredible, if not unsettling. It is worth entering Mitch's boot shop just to view it).

There's more. At present he is hard at work on a bronze of a grizzly bear, a cowboy jumping through his own lasso and others pieces of art.

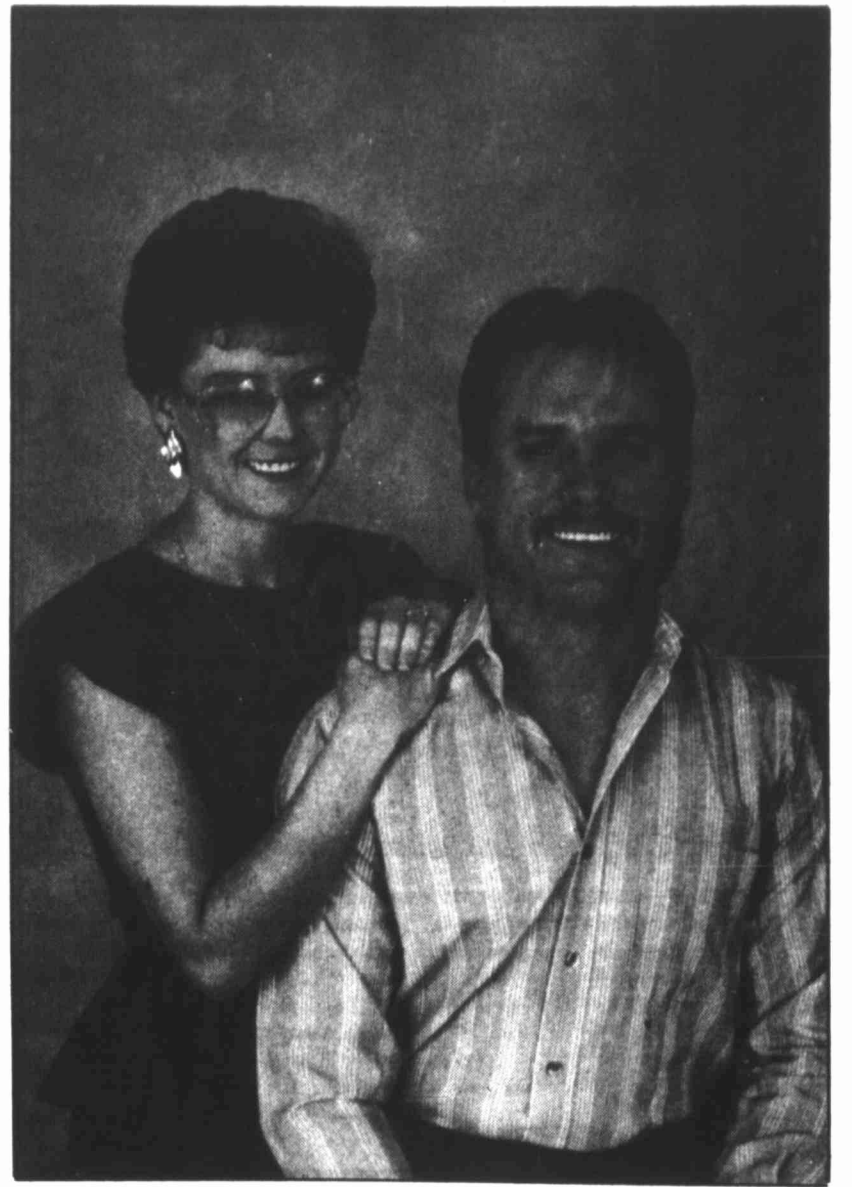

"When I first started doing bronzes I tried to do every little detail of the object I was creating," he said. "But the more I went the more I kind of liked just being loose with it. When you are loose, it looks more natural."

"I just get out of the way and let creativity have its own way."

He has sold his work in art shows and in galleries, yet what seems to please Holt most is the subject of bootmaking.

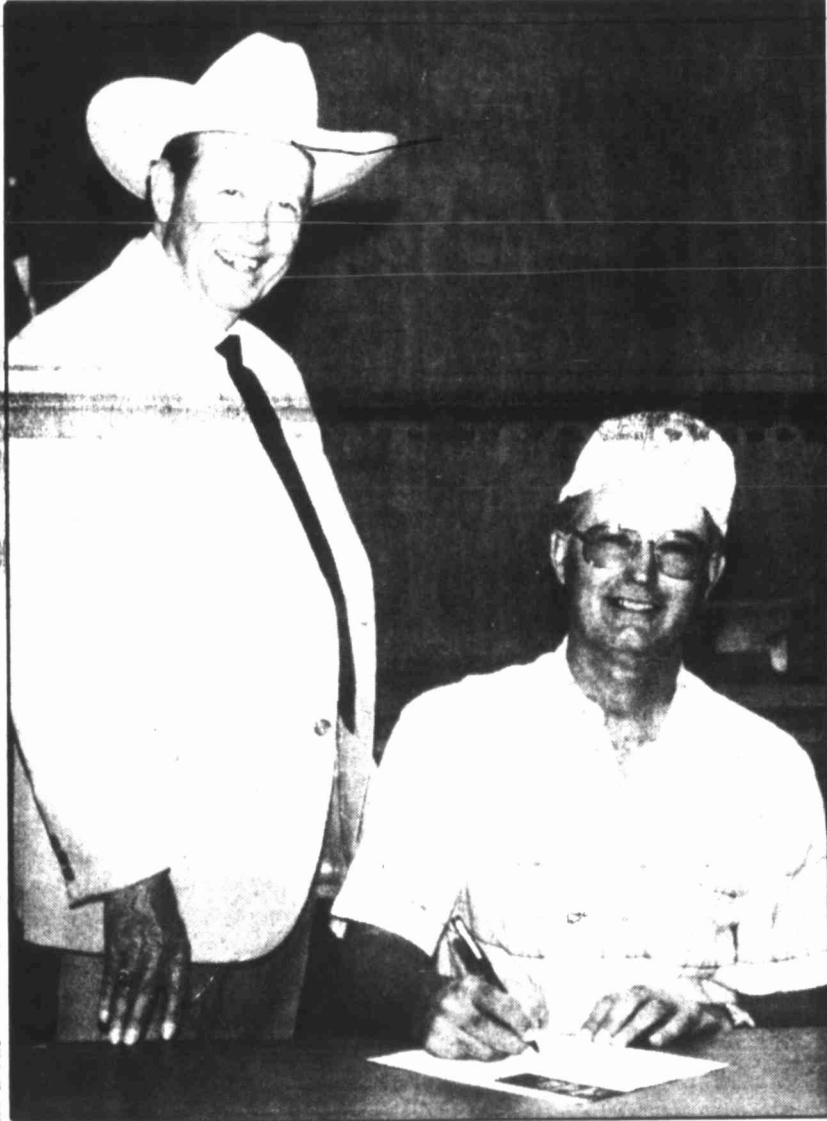

"Bootmaking is a lost art," he said. "I love making boots. I make belts and saddles and bronzes, too. But I love making boots."

Holt's Boot & Saddle Shop is located at 106 E. Santa Anna in Stanton. Even if you don't need boot repair or a new pair of custom made boots, stop by to see Mitch, and ask if you can observe while he practices his crafts. It will be a treat.

ACKERLY — Grady Wildcats quarterback Scott Glaze (44) puts a move on a Sands Mustangs defender as Sands Bill Grigg (42) come up from behind during first half action here Friday night.

Mustangs stampede the Wildcats

By SCOTT ROBINSON

Grady Sports Correspondent
ACKERLY — The Grady Wildcats traveled to Ackerly Friday night to battle the Sands Mustangs in an opening District clash that has been building in importance all season. With both teams battling hard from the opening kickoff to the final buzzer, the Sands Mustangs edged out the Wildcats 32-28.

Wildcat turnovers played an important role in the Mustang victory. Grady Coach Leandro Gonzales said, "The kids played really hard, but the Sands big pass plays really hurt us. Offensively, our inability to convert on fourth down and short hurt the team."

In the opening quarter both teams were forced to punt on their first possessions. Grady started their second drive at their own 8-yard line and after moving the ball out to the 36, Sands recovered a Grady fumble. Taking advantage of good field position, Mustang quarterback Albert Franco passed to Brandon Riddle to open the scoring. The play covered eight yards and Jay Johnston kicked the extra point to put the Mustangs ahead by eight with 53 seconds remaining in the quarter.

Turnovers again struck the Wildcats when Johnston intercepted a Wildcat pass from Scott Glaze to Scott Terrell to give the Sands offense the ball back at their 34-yard line. With 8:41 remaining in the half, Mustang back Bill Grigg ran the ball in from 10 yards out to up the score to 14-0. The extra point kick was blocked.

The Grady offense finally got on track with their next possession. After making an impressive drive from their own 39 yard line to the Sands four, Glaze passed to David White for a Wildcat touchdown. The conversion attempt failed and Sands led 14-6 with 5:03 remaining in the half.

Sands was unable to move the ball and forced to punt by a hard hitting Grady defense. The punt was mishandled and Charles Rhodes recovered to give the Mustangs the ball at the Grady 33-yard line. The Wildcat defense again held up when Terrell intercepted a Johnston pass in the endzone. After bringing the ball out to the Grady 20, Glaze connected with Gilbert Cortez on first down for a sixty-yard touchdown play.

Sands finished off the first half scoring with nine seconds remaining on a pass from Franco to Johnston from ten yards away. The point-after-touchdown was unsuccessful and Sands led at the end of the first half by a score of 20-12.

The Mustangs were first to get on the scoreboard in the second half. Starting from their own 20 yard line, the drive was completed on another Franco to Johnston scoring reception that covered 59 yards. The Mustangs increased their lead to 26-12 with 8:29 on the clock in the third quarter.

The Wildcats came racing back on their next possession. Glaze passed 35 yards to Danny Valle on fourth down. From there the Wildcats moved the ball to the Sands' eight. Gilbert Cortez carried the ball in from that point, Terrell kicked the conversion and Grady cut the Mustang lead to 26-20.

Both team defenses held on the opposing offense's next possession. Then with 2:48 remaining in the third quarter, the Franco to Johnston connection teamed up again from eleven yards out to move the Mustangs ahead 32-20.

Each team gave up the ball on turnovers at this point. Johnston intercepted for the Mustangs but Chad Wells got some revenge when he recovered a Mustang fumble giving Grady another shot from the Mustang 23-yard line.

The Wildcat offense struck hard and fast as Len Garza passed to Valle on first down for the touchdown. Following the 57-yard play and Terrell kick the score was changed to Sands 32, Grady 28.

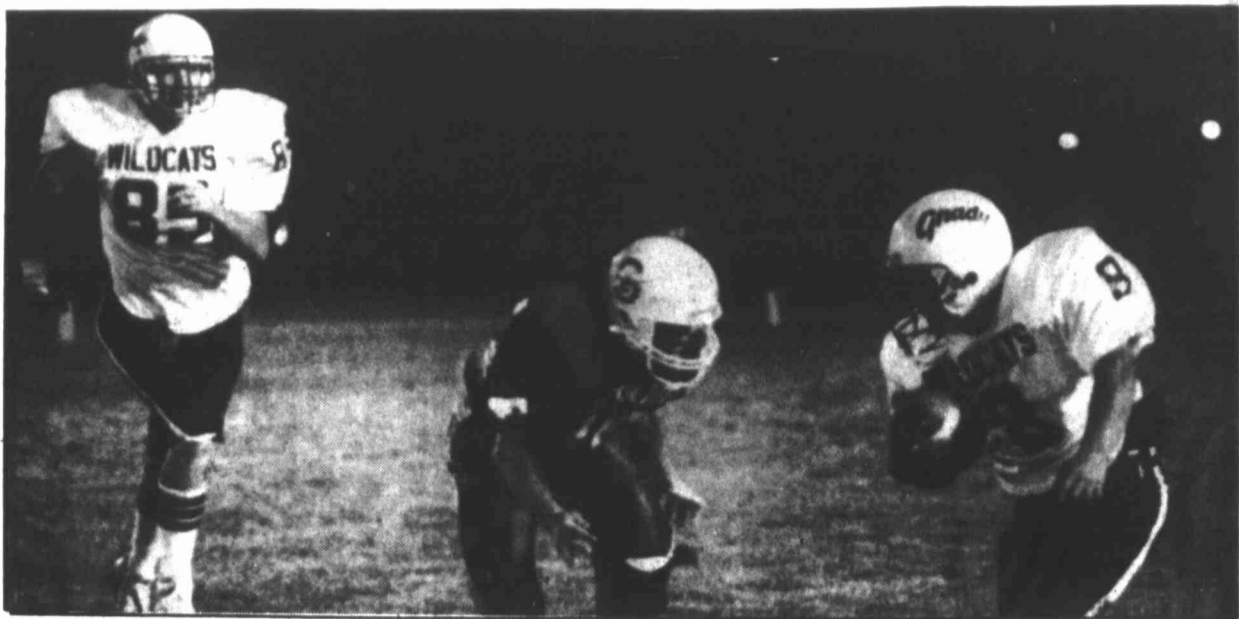

With a little over nine minutes left to play, both the Grady and Sands defenses dug in and refused another score. Each offense was forced to punt or give up the ball on downs with their final possessions. The fans grew louder as did the fierce hitting on the field, but the Wildcats were never able to cross the goal again before the final buzzer was heard.

Mustang running back Bill Grigg led all rushers with 36 attempts for 186 yards. Grady used many different players during the game but Scott Glaze led the team in yardage with 8 runs for 42 yards and seven pass completions for 93 yards. Garza completed two of five attempts for 58 yards.

Receiving, Gilbert Cortez caught four passes for 110 yards. On defense Chad Wells had six tackles and 13 assists while Mike McKaskle added three more tackles and 13 assists. The defense relied on gang tackling to bring down the large Mustang running back.

Grady's record now stands at 2-4 for the season and 0-1 in District play. The Wildcats will face Loop Longhorns this Friday in a Homecoming battle at Lenora.

Wildcat David White, #85, goes after a Sands tackler while #8 Baldomar Cortez barely squeezes by.

#8 Baldomar Cortez has the way cleared by #44 Scott Glaze during last Friday night's game.

Year of many firsts for Barbara Thomas

By PEGGY LUXTON For THE HERALD

The year 1989 was a year of "firsts" for Barbara Thomas of Stanton. The first "first" for her was the first time she ever won anything. The name of everyone who visited Cap Rock Electric during its 50th Anniversary Open House earlier this year was placed in a hopper. When David Pruitt, Cap Rock's General Manager, was handed the winning name, that name was Barbara Thomas. She had won an all-expenses-paid vacation trip for two to the resort city of Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

The second "first" was when Barbara boarded a plane early in September for the first leg of the trip. This first plane ride was anything but a thrill for Barbara. When the plane reached Dallas, it was in the midst of a storm and after circling the airport several times, the flight was diverted to Austin. Barbara's husband, Rosco, had a hard time getting her back on the plane when it was time to leave Austin.

The Thomases reached the Mexican peninsula just in time for Mexican Independence Day. There were parades and fiestas every day for their first three days in Mexico. Barbara took her first cruise on a boat that traveled the length of the peninsula. The first time she ever stepped foot in the ocean was in the tropical waters along the beachfront of their hotel, the Club Meza del Mar.

Iguanas are kept as pets in Mexico, much as dogs and cats are kept as pets in the states. Barbara said, "We only saw four or five dogs and cats while we were in Mexico." Then she laughingly added, "Someone told me when we got back that we had probably all the other dogs and cats for breakfast."

Concerning the food in Mexico, Barbara said, "There was so much food you wouldn't believe it. There were shrimp, lobster, fish, and melons and papayas at every meal. There were also refried beans at every meal, even breakfast."

Though the Thomases tried to limit their intake of strange foods, Barbara still became ill on the trip. She said, "If I didn't know what it was, I didn't eat it." But she attributed her illness to the spicy foods. They were served jalapeno peppers, picante sauce, and sampled at least one Mexican dish every meal. "I don't touch that stuff over here," Barbara said, "I don't know why I ate it over there." But even with her illness, she gained five pounds while on the trip.

Barbara recovered from her illness after a day or so, then discovered Mexican shopping — from flea markets to shopping centers. She said that on the beach, vendors vied madly to make a sale.

"One man might be carrying 200 t-shirts. He would show you one and if you shook your head, he would throw it on the sand and show you another one."

The Mexicans love to trade. Rosco was given a Cap Rock baseball cap before his trip. There's a Mexican T-shirt salesman plying his trade along the beach now, sporting the cap with the Cap Rock logo.

Several rolls of film taken by Barbara attest to the beauty of the Mexican coast. One of Rosco's favorite past-times on the trip was to sit and look at the ocean. Barbara didn't share his enthusiasm for the sea, saying when she got up and walked away, she still had the impression of swinging back and forth with the ocean waves. She preferred to spend her time in the market square, watching four- and five-year-old youngsters weave rugs from yarn strung from car bumpers parked on streets bordering the square. She also visited the lovely old churches in the town and film sets where the movies "Night of the Iguana" and "The Predator" were shot.

Rosco found the trip both interesting and educational. He learned all sorts of things he didn't know, like how to barter with foreign currency and the potency of "Tequila Slammers," a local specialty.

"It was fun — but I know one thing for sure — I'd never try to drive in that part of the world," Rosco said.

Barbara said she would return to Puerto Vallarta if she had a chance — only she wouldn't go tomorrow. Experience has taught her that such trips should be taken with adequate rest periods in between.

We would like to thank everyone for your concern, thoughtfulness, cards, food, flowers & your support, and especially your prayers.

Change is inevitable. No matter how we feel, the world must, and will, change. Education plays an important role in the changing world. Thus, education must change. And, it is changing — even in Stanton.

A major change will be instituted at the middle school level beginning this week. The change will be in the revision of the schedule. The school day will be lengthened by 15 minutes — for good reasons. The new schedule will be as follows:

- 8:15-9:05, First Period
- 9:10-10:00, Second Period
- 10:05-10:55, Third Period
- 11:00-11:50, Fourth Period
- 11:55-12:15, Activity Period
- 12:15-12:50, Lunch
- 12:55-1:45, Fifth Period
- 1:50-2:40, Sixth Period
- 2:45-3:30, Seventh Period

The administrators and teachers are extremely excited about the schedule change. In the past, the tutorial period was after school. Now, it will be during the activity period, prior to lunch. Hopefully, more students will be reached for tutorials. Also, this time will be devoted to other activities such as pep rallies and club organizations (pep club, student council, etc). This time will not be used for student lounging. Students who are not assigned to tutorials will have to remain in their designated classes. However, parents, this time can be devoted to studying or working on homework assignments. (This should be beneficial, huh?) In other words, if the student uses this time wisely, heshe just might have less homework.

T.S. Eliot once wrote, "Time present and time past are both perhaps present in time future, and time future contained in time past." This sounds like something I have been trying to teach — or so my students tell me. We have been studying verbs and verb tenses — you know, past, present, future, past perfect, present perfect, and future perfect, (makes about as much sense, huh?). Well, no matter, one six weeks (that you were once looking forward to) is now past; and the next six weeks, will soon be past, that you are now looking forward to. (Now I'm lost!). What I'm really trying to say is that there are only five more six weeks left. The first one certainly went quickly! (I hated poetry in school, now I know why).

The whole point is that time certainly goes by quickly. Before you know it, Thanksgiving will be here, then Christmas. After that, a new year (and we all know that age creeps upon us EVERY year that comes around).

The theme of this article - TIME (time is change). To quote T.S. Eliot once more, "Ridiculous the waste sad time stretching before and after." (Verbs again, I don't think so).

Depot news

By SALLY CARROL
Senior Citizens Center Director
Ola Mae Maxwell has returned from another trip. This time she went to Lubbock to visit her sisters. She is originally from that part of the country so she really enjoyed her visit. Lurline Morrison has had company over the past few weeks. She has now resumed her activities here at the Center. We missed her not coming to exercise, band and singing.

I am happy to report that Virgie Johnson is doing well after her surgery in Big Spring. Virgie is one of our most dedicated volunteers. She helps serve lunch every day that she is here. We sure do miss her and we wish her a speedy recovery.

Southwest Airlines is once again sponsoring "Home for the Holidays." One senior citizen from each surrounding county is selected for a round trip to any city that Southwest services. To be eligible, you must be 65 or older and be on a fixed income. We will select a winner and two alternates in case the winner cannot go for some reason. If you are interested, please call me at 756-2791 for more information. The deadline for signing up is Oct. 25. This is a great opportunity if you have relatives or friends you would like to visit for the Christmas holidays.

I would like to remind everyone of our transportation program. We have a 15-passenger van available for different transportation needs. We pick people up every morning to come to the Center and to pay bills, go to the grocery store, post office, or wherever else someone might need to go in town.

We also deliver meals to those who are not able to come to the Center. The van is also available to take people to in-town doctor's appointments or other appointments. We do make occasional out-of-town trips if we have at least 24 hours notice. It is best if out-of-town trips are scheduled for after lunch. If you can use any of these services or know anyone that can, please call and let us know.

Martin County Hospital Representative

Martin County Hospital will be taking appointments for mammograms at the Fitness Fair Oct. 21, from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. If you make an appointment on that day you are able to take advantage of the discounted Fitness Fair rates.

The appointments can be scheduled at your convenience for the following two weeks during or after regular business hours. The fee will be $45 which will need to be paid when the appointment is made. The fee does include an interpretation by radiologist Dr. Stanton Kremsky. Your doctor will be notified of your results within 48 hours.

According to the American Cancer Society, the breast is the most common site of cancer among women. Approximately one out of 11 women will develop breast cancer in her lifetime. If breast cancer is found early, 91% of the patients are cancer free in five years. In many instances, mammograms have detected a tumor in the breast before it could be felt.

What motivates a person to spend 100 hours in a classroom training, another 20 hours in hospital clinics and hours in an ambulance station waiting. If you have ever served as an E.M.T., you know it isn't the thrill of missing meals and sleep and going out in all kinds of weather day or night.

To become an Emergency Medical Technician you must take a course which includes training in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, management of shock, fractures, plus training in medical and environmental emergencies. You must pass a state skills exam as well as a written exam.

Knowing proper emergency care not only decreases pain and reduces the possibility of shock but will also improve the patient's chances for rapid recovery. This is what motivates an E.M.T. Martin County Hospital's E.M.T.s are on call to meet your needs. They will be manning an exhibit at the fitness fair Oct. 21 to answer any questions the public might have.

Cholesterol and glucose screening will be made available at the Fitness Fair Oct. 21 through Martin County Hospital.

It hardly seems like it has been four months since the first blood drive for 1989. It was so successful, we at Martin County Hospital are still smiling! The final blood drive for this year is scheduled for Oct. 21 in conjunction with the Fitness Fair. Due to the success of the first drive, only 25 units are needed to reach our goal of 100 units for the year. We are confident that with your support our goal of 100 units can be obtained.

This last year 55 patients have undergone surgery at Martin County Hospital, 96 individuals have had outpatient surgery and 838 patients have been treated in the emergency room. There is a definite need to keep a safe and healthy blood supply on hand at Martin County Hospital.

Blood cannot be manufactured. Its only resource is the public. Please help support your local hospital by attending the blood drive Oct. 21 at the Stanton Community Center from 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m.

For more information concerning these topics and/or the Fitness Fair, contact Janice Bundas, Martin County Hospital, 756-3345.
