Howard eyes NCO club

BIG SPRING — Howard College trustees will consider acquiring the NCO Club at the old airbase for use as a student union building during their special meeting at 12:30 p.m. Friday at the college board room.

If acquired, the building will be used as a student union building for students at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the deaf, according to Mary Dudley, assistant to HC president Bob Riley.

Although the action is not anticipated to cost the district anything, the trustees must pass a resolution stating such intentions before any further action can be taken, Dudley said.

Since the airbase closed in 1977, the NCO Club has been used as a private club and, most recently, by a local church, but is currently vacant.

SWCID officials plan to use the building as an auditorium and student activity center, Dudley said.

In other business, the trustees will consider:

• Bids on dormitory construction. The trustees passed on about nine specific bids at an earlier meeting, and will reconsider at least some of those Friday as to facilitate construction of the new dormitories, Dudley said.

• Bids on dormitory renovation at SWCID. These will be basically for bathroom and hallway renovation at Dorm 2, which is currently vacant, she said.

• Bids on copier equipment for the San Angelo campus, computer software for the drafting department, telecommunications equipment for the Big Spring campus and farm equipment for the agriculture department's plot of land in Martin County.

Questionable requests

BIG SPRING — Two reportedly pro-law enforcement agencies have been making phone solicitations to Howard County residents, and local authorities are urging people to be careful in responding to requests for money.

"Law enforcement needs all the support and goodwill it can get. This sometimes includes financial support. However," Sheriff A.N. Standard said, "There are some questionable solicitations going on outside of our jurisdiction."

Standard said he has been informed that some Howard County residents have recently received phone solicitations from the Texas Deputy Sheriff's Association and the Texas Narcotics Officers Association. A check of the agencies has determined that the deputy sheriff's association is a questionable agency currently being investigated by the FBI, but that the narcotics officers' association is legitimate, Standard said.

Captain Lonnie Smith with the Big Spring Police Department said he is not familiar with the deputy sheriff's association, but said he is aware of the narcotic officers association.

"The T.N.O.A. is legitimate; they're supposed to be selective on memberships," Smith said. The agency usually only solicits support from people who have strong support for law enforcement, he said.

"If they're picking names out of a phone book I'm not sure how credible that makes it," he said.

Smith advised calling an official with the Permian Basin Drug Task Force for more information about solicitations from the T.N.O.A., but calls to that office were not returned as of presstime.

Standard said people who receive solicitations from agencies claiming to be law enforcement-affiliated can contact the sheriff's department.

C-City student loses round 1

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff writer

COLORADO CITY — A Colorado City High School senior has lost the first round in a fight to be allowed to keep his hair long and attend regular classes.

A district judge refused to grant a temporary injunction Tuesday which would have removed 17-year-old Mike Lara from the in-school suspension in which he sits all day in a three to four-foot cubicle where his teachers have his work sent to him.

Lara was placed on suspension Oct. 13 for the second time this year because school officials say his hair, which reaches past his collar, is too long.

A court date to decide on a permanent injunction against the Colorado Independent School District has been set for 9 a.m. on Nov. 10 in 32nd District Court in Mitchell County.

At Tuesday's hearing, Lara's lawyer, Pat Barber, argued that the school dress code violates the Equal Rights Amendment of the Texas Constitution in that it does not equally apply to both sexes in regards to hair length. He also said that a person has a right to personal privacy.

"If it has constitutional dimensions, I am not aware of it," said 32nd Judicial District Judge Weldon Kirk after hearing the case.

Raising minimum wage back on track

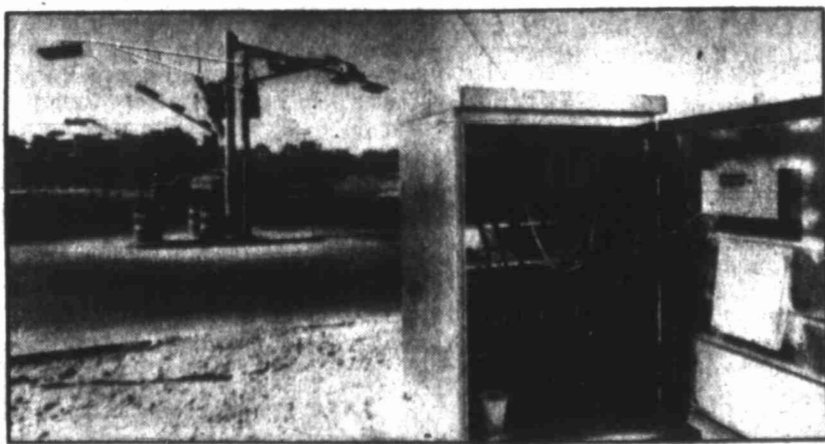

By JOHN KING Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Legislation raising the minimum wage to $4.25 an hour by April 1991 is on the fast track in Congress, following a compromise between the Bush administration and Democratic leaders that ends an eight-year stalemate.

The House planned to vote on the proposal today and Senate leaders promised action before Thanksgiving. Barring unforeseen problems, President Bush could sign the bill by then as well, triggering the first minimum wage increase in nine years on April 1, 1990.

The measure would create a new "subminimum wage" for teenagers with little job experience, allowing them to be paid 85 percent of the minimum wage for their first three months in the work force. The lower rate could be extended for another three months if an employer showed that the youths were receiving specific skills training.

Both sides made significant concessions in an effort to avoid a repeat of Bush's veto of minimum wage legislation earlier this year, which was sustained by the House.

Reporter Brad Worrell decided to do something he hadn't done in several years Tuesday night — go trick-or-treating.

Reporter tricks people for an old time treat

By BRADLEY WORRELL Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — I approached the first house: tension mounting, palms sweating, eyes roving uncomfortably from side to side. Would anybody know me? I was doing something I haven't done in 12 years.

I was trick-or-treating. Why? Perhaps a desire to take a fond look back at past Halloweens. Perhaps it was something my editor said about not to come back without a story — and milk duds. And maybe it was because I assumed I could get away with it. (It helps being 5-foot-2 tall.) After all, how many 24-year-olds do you know who can don a costume and look about half their age?

First house — I had all the nervousness of a first date. Knock, knock — An older lady opened the door and looked at me with piercing eyes. "A little old for this aren't you?" she said. Maybe it was my car she saw parked in her front drive that gave me away. "Trick-or-treat?" I replied. She skeptically gave me a handful of walnuts.

Next house — Several jack-o-lanterns were placed on the porch and a pinup of a large black cat was on the front door. "Ah," I thought. "These people have the spirit of Halloween. Pumpkins, spooky stuff... Lots and lots of candy."

Drought could cost county $45 million loss

By JOHN McMILLAN Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — The worst drought in about five years could mean an economic loss to the county of $45 million, an agriculture official said Wednesday.

The official, Don Richardson, Howard County extension agent, said the drought is expected to reduce cotton crop yield in the county from an average of one bale an acre to an average of one-quarter bale an acre.

"There's been so little cotton harvested so far, and a lot of cotton has been destroyed because of the drought," he said.

Rick Liles, county executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said he expects the crop yield this year to be "significantly less" than in 1988. He declined to offer a prediction, however, saying, "It's too soon to tell. We really won't know (the extent of decline) until the crops have been ginned and we get a final count."

Cotton is raised on about 80,000 acres in the county, making it the largest crop in Howard County. Cotton is generally planted in May and June, and harvested in November. Even though planting began later than usual this year, Richardson said cotton harvesting began in October because the crops had stopped growing. A freeze on Oct. 18 contributed to the problem by halting maturation of the cotton bolls, he said.

A few weeks ago, some of the crop insurance companies allowed farmers to destroy their crops to qualify for the crop insurance, Richardson said. About 80 percent of cotton farmers in Howard County have crop insurance.

Richardson termed the drought "very serious."

"We had two relatively good years" in 1987 and 1988, he said, "but previous to that we had four or five bad years (because of drought and bad weather). Farmers were really needing this year to get back on their feet."

Bill Fryrear, research leader for the U.S. Big Spring Field Station, said the 12.01 inches of rainfall recorded at his station from January to Nov. 1 compares with the average rainfall of about 17 inches for that period. Howard County averages about 18.5 inches of rain a year.

The most recent comparable drought years were 1984 and 1983, Fryrear said. In 1983, the station recorded 12.3 inches of rainfall for the entire year, he said. Fryrear warned that lack of moisture in the soil will cause soil erosion, which removes the fertile topsoil, and more sandstorms.

"When we get into February and March, we're going to see an awful lot of dust," he said.

Richardson noted that livestock in the county will suffer because of damage done to forage sorghum in the Oct. 18 freeze. There are about 25,000 acres of forage sorghum in Howard County. The drought has

2,000 expected at Health Fair 1989

By JAMES FLEEHR Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — The Howard County Health Fair will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday, with about 30 exhibitors expected at the Highland Mall location.

The Health Fair is in its seventh year, and Alice B. Haynes, DDS, anticipates about 2,000 people will attend this year's cooperative event.

"The fair is a cooperative project between the health community and the health and safety committee of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. The most recent one was done in 1987," said Haynes, chairwoman of the Health Fair.

Among the many features will be: a middle ear test by the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center; a United Blood Services drive; a lab with free cholesterol tests by the Veterans Administration Medical Center and co-op effort; and full chemical panels, hematology and thyroid screening for $20 by David Wylie, executive director at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. Cars send signals to lights

By RUTH COCHRAN City Editor

BIG SPRING — Drivers may not know it, but their cars are sending signals to the city's traffic signals.

Since the Texas Department of Highways took over maintenance of traffic signals, lights on Gregg Street and FM 700 have been replaced with newer, "smarter" signal lights.

Mike Chetty, resident engineer with the department, said the new signals change from red to green according to the flow of traffic. "They're activated by traffic as opposed to the old where it's on a time basis," Chetty said of the new lights. "We put wires in the ground that detect whether there's a car above it or not. If it gets a signal that there's a car sitting above it, then it sends a signal (to change the light). If there's not a car above it, then it won't change."

The signals, which are computerized, are programmed to stay green along Gregg Street and FM 700 until a car pulls up to a side-street signal, Chetty said. When the sensors detect the car, the side-

WASHINGTON (AP) — The protester who started the furor over flag burning says it's "a miscarriage of justice" that he won't be part of the first court test of the nation's new flag protection law.

"This is a case of selective non-prosecution," attorney William Kunstler complained Tuesday after the government decided not to charge Gregory Johnson, who was arrested with three other demonstrators during a flag-burning protest Monday on the Capitol steps.

Johnson's conviction for burning a flag at the 1984 Republican National Convention led to the Supreme Court ruling in June that such activity is protected under the First Amendment.

Charges were filed Tuesday against the other three protesters, but the U.S. attorney's office said there was insufficient evidence to charge Johnson.

"I was there," complained Johnson. "I am outraged" at not being prosecuted, he said, adding that the government's decision was a "miscarriage of justice."

Dinosaur find thrills scientists

JORDAN, Mont. (AP) — A Tyrannosaurus rex skeleton discovered by a pair of amateur fossil hunters is yielding new insights on the fearsome carnivore because it includes the only complete arm yet found.

Paleontologists unearthing the fossilized skeleton in the badlands of eastern Montana say it appears to be the most complete yet found of the biggest species of predatory dinosaur.

"We're pretty excited," said Patrick Leiggi, one of those at the site. "T rex" may be a household name among dinosaurs, but no one's ever found a complete one, and that's what we've done."

T-rex skeletons are rare — only nine nearly complete skeletons have ever been discovered and all but two came from Montana. Only three complete skulls have been found.

Although an adult T-rex could be to 35 feet long, 18 feet high and weigh as much as an elephant at nearly 6.5 tons, the arms were no longer than an adult man. Researchers had theorized that the arms were either used only for mating, or perhaps were slowly evolving away.

Devil's Night vandalism limited

DEVIL'S NIGHT FIRE

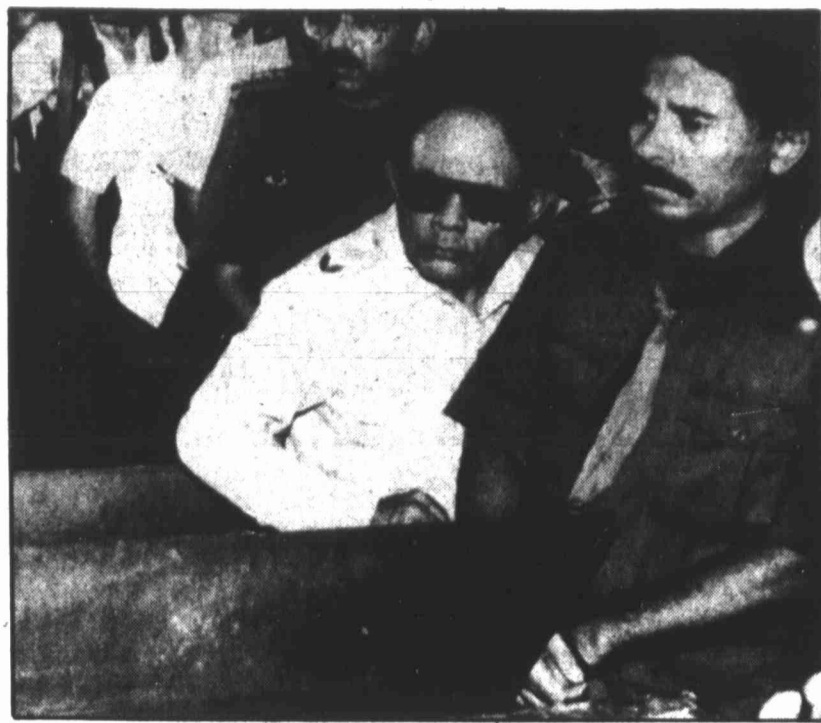

DETROIT (AP) — Police rounded up 64 youths on the last night of a dusk-to-dawn curfew, and firefighters got some rest after scrambling 24 hours earlier to douse fires set by Devil's Night mischief-makers.

The 6 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew for minors began Sunday, netting 169 arrests Sunday and 165 on Monday, police spokesman Sgt. Christopher Buck said. The arrests included four suspected of arson.

One house fire was confirmed Tuesday, the final night of the three-day Devil's Night period.

"It's a lot better tonight (Tuesday) than last night," said east side resident Gerald Badgett, one of about 30,000 volunteers who joined the battle against Devil's Night arson this year. "Last night was the worst night I think in the last two years."

Detroit's one reported arson fire on Halloween contrasted sharply with Monday night when several homes were torched and dozens of blazes flared in trash bins and garages. Fires Monday left at least five families homeless.

Ortega ends 19-month truce with Contras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega today ended his leftist government's 19-month truce with the Contras, citing continued rebel attacks. He accused President Bush of "supporting terrorism in Nicaragua."

By suspending the truce, Ortega has invited renewed U.S. military aid to the Contras.

Ortega made the announcement this morning at a news conference that was broadcast live on a nationwide radio chain.

On Friday, the Sandinista leader stunned a summit of Western hemisphere leaders when he announced he would not renew the truce, which the government has done monthly. He had since softened his stance after widespread criticism.

By going through with the threat, he could trigger international condemnation and loss of support of Western European friends, who have defied U.S. pressure and aided Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Bush said Tuesday he would review U.S. policy toward Nicaragua if Ortega ends the cease-fire.

"We are waiting for that reevaluation," said a Contra leader, Adolfo Calero, in Miami. "For our part, we have to defend ourselves. Every man has the right to survive, and we have to look for the way to survive."

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said today: "We'll consider the situation, analyze the options, determine the appropriate response, but at this point, no decisions have been made one way or another."

Asked if this might prompt the administration to seek renewed military aid for the Contras, Fitzwater said, "We haven't even considered (that). We haven't considered any response, except that we were trying to preserve the ceasefire and preserve the peace process."

Fitzwater added that he did not expect the administration to make "any immediate response" to the move by Ortega.

At the news conference, Ortega referred specifically to the latest reported attack by the Contras, on Monday night, that left four civilians dead and five wounded.

"We have the responsibility of defending the lives of Nicaraguans," Ortega said at the news conference. "Therefore, we can't allow assassinations to be committed" against civilians, Ortega said.

Calero denied that the Contras participated in the attack. "It's too coincidental not to have been staged," he said.

Ortega blamed Bush in part for his decision, saying Bush was "supporting terrorism in Nicaragua."

Dozens killed in train derailment

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — An express train traveling from New Delhi to Calcutta derailed today, killing at least 36 people and injuring 78 others, a government spokesman said.

Press Trust of India said there were unconfirmed reports of 100 dead and 200 injured, but a spokesman for the Railways Ministry said the reports were incorrect.

Ten of the Toofan Express' 18 coaches derailed outside the railroad station at Sakaldaha, about 435 miles southeast of New Delhi, the spokesman said.

The cause of the derailment was not known, he said, speaking on condition of anonymity in keeping with government practice.

He said he did not know how many people were aboard the Toofan Express. Trains between New Delhi and Calcutta are usually crowded, carrying several hundred people.

Press Trust and United News of India said one of the derailed cars plunged into a water-filled ditch. The agencies' initial reports said eight cars had fallen into the ditch.

Officials hint of sweeping reforms

BERLIN (AP) — East German officials acknowledged that the country's rigidly planned economy is in serious trouble and that sweeping reform may be on the way.

Guenter Schabowski, a member of the policy-making Communist Party Politburo, told a West German magazine the government must lift a wide range of subsidies on goods and services.

"We subsidize even flowers and taxi fares. That's an impossible situation," Schabowski was quoted as saying. "Subsidies are not sacred cows."

Schabowski, in the interview published today with the magazine Wirtschaftswache, or Economy Week, was quoted as saying the leadership also was considering an overhaul of the country's industry.

The exodus of tens of thousands of East Germans has added to the mounting problems for the nation's industry, while continuing protests have increased pressure on the government to institute reform.

Bhutto survives no-confidence vote

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto weathered the first major political test of her 11-month-old government today, surviving a no-confidence motion in Parliament.

The opposition failed to secure the necessary majority in the 237-seat National Assembly, mustering just 107 votes. Ms. Bhutto's governing Pakistan People's Party has 116 seats in the chamber.

"I have no rancor nor any ill will against those who have moved the no-trust motion against me," Ms. Bhutto said after House Speaker Meraj Khalid read the count. "With today's clear vote of confidence in the government of Pakistan, this chapter is closed."

The no-confidence motion, the first in the government's 42-year history, stemmed from brutal ethnic violence in this nation of 109 million people.

The violence has chipped away at Ms. Bhutto's power base, turning the slums of Karachi — Pakistan's largest city — into virtual war zones and creating a big business in illegal arms.

Bush, Gorbachev plan December summit at sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is drawing bipartisan praise with his announcement of a seawater summit Dec. 2-3 with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to discuss "dynamic change" in the communist world.

Bush, making the announcement Tuesday, said the meeting will not focus on strategic arms reduction talks but instead will allow the leaders "to put up our feet" and "deepen our respective understanding of each other's views."

"I don't want to have two gigantic ships pass in the night because of failed communication," Bush said. "I just didn't want to — in this time of dynamic change — miss something, something that I might get better firsthand from Mr. Gorbachev."

The December meeting, to be held on U.S. and Soviet warships on alternate days in the Mediterranean Sea, would be the first presidential meeting between Bush and Gorbachev. They met previously in New York on Dec. 7, 1988, when Bush was vice president and president-elect.

Bush and Gorbachev still plan to meet next spring or summer to discuss arms control in a more formal setting, said the president and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who made a simultaneous announcement in Moscow.

The decision to meet less formally before the end of 1989 "is a very positive thing," said House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., adding that he hoped the meeting would "stimulate greater speed in moving on the arms control proposal."

"I think a saltwater summit is a good idea," said Sen. Lloyd Bent-

One of Bush's most vocal critics, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, applauded the meeting, but repeated his charge that Bush was too "timid" in responding to Gorbachev's domestic reforms, the democratic changes in Poland and Hungary, and the demands for freedom in East Germany and be it," said Bush. "I've elected to remain very quiet in the face of a good deal of sentiment that we were missing an opportunity."

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu, asked what country Bush would use as the staging area for the talks, said, "We don't know yet." However, sources suggested that Naples, Italy, a major seaport, was the most likely area.

Officials said they did not know if first ladies Barbara Bush and Raisa Gorbachev would accompany their husbands.

The idea for the informal meeting began when Bush visited Poland and Hungary in July and reformers there urged him to support Gorbachev's efforts to change the Soviet bloc. On the plane home, he wrote Gorbachev a letter proposing the meeting, aides said.

Although Gorbachev responded "immediately and enthusiastically" in August, said Bush, the planning was secret, known only to top White House advisers, Secretary of State James A. Baker III and a few of his senior aides.

"It was a bolt from the blue" to working level officials, said one administration source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Bush and Gorbachev are expected to hold the talks only with a handful of senior aides rather than the cumbersome working groups typical of earlier summits, said administration sources.

"I just didn't want to — in this time of dynamic change — miss something, something that I might get better firsthand from Mr. Gorbachev."

sen, D-Texas. "An informal meeting at sea could provide the right atmosphere to get things moving in several channels, including trade as well as arms control."

The deputy GOP leader in the Senate, Alan Simpson of Wyoming, said, "It is a good time to have a meeting."

But the senior Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said it was "more public relations" by Gorbachev.

"I hope that no fundamental decisions of any sort will be made," said Helms, one of the few members of Congress to criticize the announcement.

Czechoslovakia.

Bush, who earlier had rejected calls for an early meeting with Gorbachev, told a news conference that "what changed my mind on it was consultation with our allies; the rapidity of change in Eastern Europe; the emergence of democracies in this hemisphere; and this concept of... dynamic change is something that I might get better firsthand from Mr. Gorbachev."

The president rejected suggestions that he proposed the informal meeting to deflect domestic criticism and to help Gorbachev fend off rivals.

Man's identity taken by deserter

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ron Ferguson never learned how to salute or put on a military uniform properly, because the only time he spent in the Army was after he was arrested as a deserter and threatened with court-martial.

Ferguson, who has sued the Army for $5 million, says the whole mess began when someone "stole his identity," by taking his name and Social Security number and enlisting.

The Army admits the arrest was in error, but claims it was Ferguson's responsibility to clear up the confusion before it got that far. Ferguson says he notified a recruiter, whose name he can't remember, several years before the impostor deserted.

Now Ferguson, 35, of Louisville, is awaiting a judge's ruling in the case after a non-jury trial earlier this month in U.S. District Court here. The judge has not indicated when he will rule.

After Ferguson's arrest in June 1985, he spent two days in the Jefferson County jail and nine hours at Fort Knox before his wife, with the assistance of U.S. Rep. Romano Mazzoli's office, got him released.

Ferguson said he was frightened when an officer said he was to be sent to a military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for court-martial.

"All this was new to me," said Ferguson, who said when he was told to put on an Army uniform, he didn't know he was supposed to tuck his pants into his boots. "And just because I didn't put it on right, they made me do push-ups."

Failing to salute a lieutenant brought more push-ups, he said.

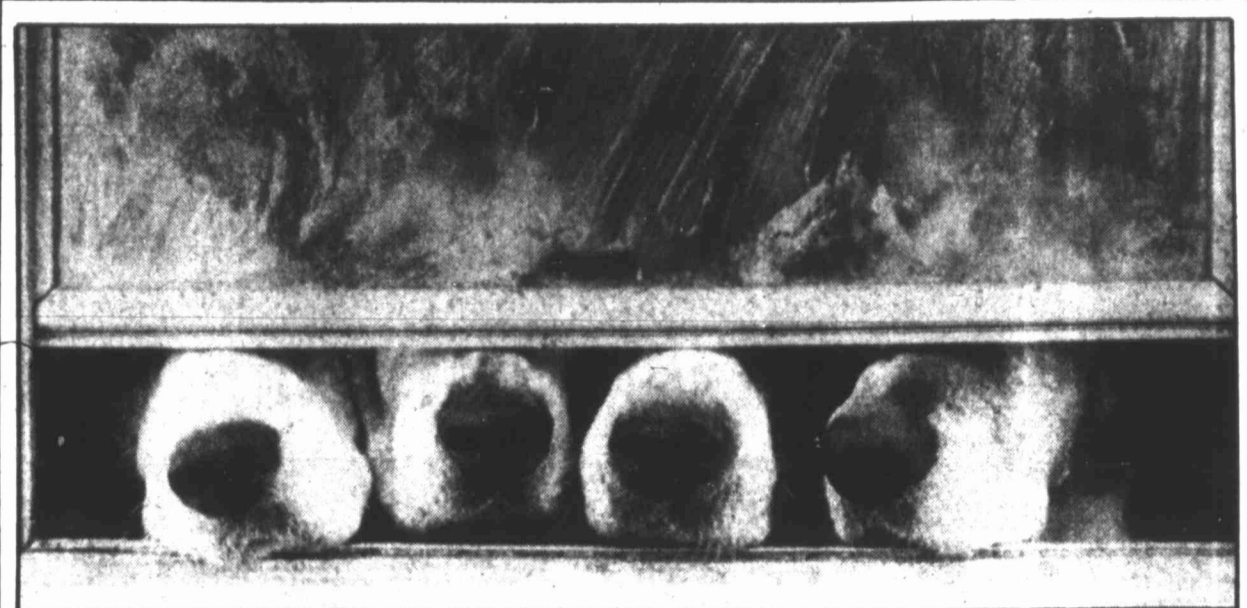

A man calling himself Ron Ferguson and using Ferguson's Social Security number joined the Army at Memphis, Tenn., in 1975. He was sent to South Korea, where he eventually deserted, Ferguson said.

The non-military Ferguson found out about the impostor in 1981 when the IRS said he had not been paying taxes on military income.

"There's no question that he had a rough time, spending 48 hours in jail and another day down at Fort Knox," said Scott C. Cox, the assistant U.S. attorney who is handling the Army's case.

But Cox said the responsibility was Ferguson's.

"He's the one who had the potential to be harmed by the mistaken records, so I think he had an obligation to follow up and make sure action was taken," Cox said.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov, who resigned recently as artistic director of the American Ballet Theatre, is beginning to feel gravity's tug on his 41-year-old legs. "I worry a lot about the future," Baryshnikov told Life for the magazine's November issue. "When will I dance my last ballet? ... Maybe I already did. I still can dance parts much better than a lot of people, but I set a standard for myself. And once I stop reaching that standard, I can't — I won't — allow myself to do it."

He remains fit. His orthopedic surgeon, Dr. William Hamilton, said that Baryshnikov "may be in the best shape of any 41-year-old person in the world."

But the dancer thinks a lot about his mortality. "I catch myself watching old people now and then, and thinking, 'Well you know, Misha, this is how it is going to be.' It really hits me that my life is ... almost over!"

NEW YORK (AP) — Deborah Norville, the successor to NBC's "Today" co-host Jane Pauley, says she's relieved the uproar over the show appears to be ending, but she's also defended it started in the first place. A skit on NBC's "Saturday Night Live" last week compared the situation at the show to "All About Eve," the movie about a young actress scheming to oust an aging theater star, played by Bette Davis. "It's sexism, pure and simple," said Norville, 31, who began in TV news 11 years ago while attending the University of Georgia and anchored at NBC-owned WMAQ-TV in Chicago before joining NBC news in January 1987.

"As a woman and a reporter, I'm offended that the suggestion would be made, that two capable, competent women can't work in a collegial way on the same program. In 1989, that's nonsense."

Pauley, 39, told "Today" viewers: Friday she will leave the program at year's end, but her contract at NBC extends through 1992. Pauley has co-hosted the program for 13 years. She hugged Norville and gave her an alarm clock.

Bananas and Big Spring

The two go together like bikinis and Baptists

By JAMES FLEHR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Bananas and Big Spring.

If the two words sound like they go together about as much as bikinis and Baptists don't despair. That could all change if Todd Road resident Marie Tompkins has her way.

Tompkins is the proud owner of what may be Big Spring's only banana plants — plants that reached 14 feet in height this year and bore fruit for the first time in the four to five years Tompkins has raised them.

For Tompkins it is probably a crop she'll never get to taste.

"It's the first time they ever had bananas," Tompkins said. "But you couldn't eat them. It's not warm enough climate here for them to grow large enough to eat." Tompkins explains that she has to take the plants out of the ground in the winter to keep them from freezing. She keeps them in a warehouse during the colder months and puts them back in her yard in the spring.

"I started with two little bitty ones, possibly four or five years ago," she said.

Banana plants are usually found in much warmer climates such as Acapulco, Mexico or California. Tompkins got her banana trees from a woman in Kingsland and she says there is really no trick to growing them here in the Lone Star State.

"I just put them in the ground, love 'em and water 'em," she said. "They're like anything else. They have to be a certain age to bear fruit. They are also sensitive to frost," she said.

Before the frost Tompkins says it is time for the wrapping procedure to let the plants go 'dormant.'

According to Tompkins, all that must be done in the dormant stage is to water them and wait for the return of spring to replant. That way the trees survive the winter months with no problems, she said.

Tompkins also has a large orchard and garden. Included among the other fruits she grows are plums, peaches, grapes, apricots and pecans.

"The bananas are just something different," she said. "They're pretty and have large leaves and get real tall. I put them in the yard, and they just keep multiplying."

Wink remembers it's favorite son — singer Roy Orbison

"He was a good ole boy. Just a good ole Wink boy." That's how Bill Beckham remembers Roy Orbison. Bill and Roy were in the Wink Wildcat band together.

"Roy was always practicing on his guitar and tryin' to learn how to sing and make a name for himself," says Bill, who publishes the Wink Bulletin. "On Saturdays he'd go down to the drugstore on Main Street in Wink to play and sing. People would pitch coins to him. That was when he was a little kid."

An oilfield worker taught Roy guitar chords.

When Roy started making it big, people in Wink were thrilled. He became known as Wink's most famous citizen. "As far as I could tell, Roy never changed," says Bill. "He was always glad to run into people from Wink."

Tumbleweed

Roy played his last gig in the Permian Basin in the Spring of 1987. The occasion was an Oil Aid concert. "A bunch of us from Wink and Kermit stayed backstage with him. He hadn't changed," says Bill. "He was quiet and good-natured just like he always was." Bill is one of the people working to build a bigger than life-size bronze statue of Roy in Wink. Last August 26, Wink was the site of Roy Orbison day and raised over $10,000, about a third of the amount needed for the monument.

Some 3,000 people attended. Another Roy Orbison day is planned for next summer in Wink. If things go as planned, next summer's event should provide enough money to build the statue.

The money was raised by selling tickets to a concert featuring some of Roy's fellow musicians and a Roy Orbison imitator. And of course people are donating. Checks may be made out to the Roy Orbison Memorial and mailed to the Chamber of Commerce in Wink, Texas 79789.

Roy had a three octave voice and could use it well. One reviewer said his voice could cut diamonds. During his heyday in the 60's Roy had 27 straight hits. He toured with the Beatles in England in 1963.

His trademark was his sunglasses. He started wearing them in 1963 when he accidentally left his regular glasses at home and had to wear shades while in London.

On Jan. 21, 1987, Roy Orbison was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in New York.

Roy's first band was called the Wink Westerners. When he switched from country to rock the band became the Teen Kings. Most of the original band members were in Wink for Roy Orbison day.

Roy died on Dec. 7, 1988. "All kinds of radio stations called me that day," recalls Bill. "I even had a call from a station in Australia."

Roy Orbison day in Wink a couple of months ago made the Los Angeles and New York Times newspapers.

Saturday, Aug. 26 was quite a day. The concert and other events took place at the Wink Wildcat Football Stadium. Things got underway at 2 p.m. and lasted well into Sunday morning. The event was heralded as one of the most memorable and festive days in the colorful history of the West Texas oil town.

The Prime Time Band, The

Sparkles, Billy Dee and the Debonaires, The Marbles, Showdown, The Stuart-James Project, North Star Band, The Wink Westerners and The Teen Kings all played. Then Kenny Morrill, who looks and sounds like Roy Orbison, and who has been a headliner at the Legends in Concert Show in Las Vegas, entertained the crowd with Roy Orbison songs like "Ooby-Dooby," "Oh, Pretty Woman," "Cryin'," "It's Over," "Only the Lonely" and "Blue Bayou."

Roy Orbison was 52 years old when he died of a heart attack in Hendersonville, Tenn. He once said he always felt secure and peaceful in Wink. He moved there with his family when he was ten years old. His father worked in the oil patch.

Ex residents ride out the California quake

"It was the most frightening experience of my entire life," writes Travis Brackeen from his home in Livermore, Ca. "I would take the tornadoes anytime rather than a 'quake'."

Travis, a former longtime resident, says he was just sitting down to watch the World Series at Candlestick Park when the earthquake hit.

"I jumped up to run outside — it threw me to the left and then to the right." As he struggled to get out the door he saw his Chevy van swaying from side to side — "I thought it was going to turn over!"

To get an idea of how it felt, he says, picture "Howard County picked up and moved three feet back and forth for about 15 times in 60 seconds!"

Loretta Rush Yates, Concord, Cal., was able to make it to her BSHS Class of '45 reunion last weekend, in spite of the earthquake.

She phoned her brother L.E. Rush to say that she "was coming even if she had to hire a helicopter!" The Oakland Airport was damaged but fortunately still in operation.

Lorita was at work in a convalescent home at 5:05 that day, and reports it was the "roughest 30 minutes" she'd ever lived through trying to help the aged patients.

Meanwhile Tom and Dottie

Tidbits

Mullins' nephew, Nick Stanfel, who lives in San Francisco, was in Candlestick Park when the earthquake hit! He was unhurt, as were his sisters Angela and Rose, also residents of San Francisco.

The Mullins family had many other relatives in the disaster area, including Tom's sister, Ann, and her husband Frank Pisciotto, who live in Concord. Frank works in San Francisco and couldn't get home until the next day; he found no damage to their home, but the water had splashed out of their swimming pool!

Tom and Dottie's daughter, former resident Mary Longmire (BSHS Class of '74), felt the quake at her home in Los Angeles, according to her sister, Annie Mullins.

Annie says the family was unable to get immediate information about another cousin, Kevin Walsh, who lives in San Francisco, so Tom phoned Kevin's parents in Hawaii to see if they had heard any news. Kevin was OK.

Former resident Julian Patterson, now chief of social work service at the Olin E. Teague Veterans' Center, Temple, received a national honor recently.

An Excellence in Leadership award was conferred at a national convocation of Veterans Administration social work chiefs at Beckley, W. Va.

Julian held a similar position at Big Spring's Veterans Administration Hospital in the 1960's. He and Ann were very active in civic work while here, and Julian had a hand in developing the out-patient clinic at Big Spring State Hospital.

Former resident Calvin Boykin writes from Lesotho in Southern Africa that he's not yet having all the success he'd like with his range management recommendations in that locale. Calvin, assigned by the USAID as a specialist in agricultural economics in Lesotho, reports that "So far, the Principal Chiefs are arguing about a grazing fee and a proposal to impound water and import it to South Africa."

Calvin's wife Rosemary recently hosted a reception at the Resource

Store named changed

BIG SPRING — Auto Parts of Big Spring has officially changed hands and is under new ownership and carries a new name — AUTOTREND.

"We want to tell everybody just because we got a new name, we are still the same people that have been here," said co-owner Terry Wegman.

Wegman and his partner, Jimmie R. Jennings, bought the Auto Parts of Big Spring operation in June 1989 from Homer Tomerlin and moved to the present location.

Prior to the buyout, the two co-owners were involved with Meads Auto Supply, Inc. since 1961 through family ties. Meads was incorporated in 1953 and later in 1963 the present AUTOTREND owners took over the Meads operation.

"When we purchased this we were Meads Auto Supply, Inc. and really we still are Meads. We are going to operate as AUTOTREND," said Jennings.

The grand opening of the new business was held Saturday at 507 E 4th St.

The auto parts company carries "just about anything in the auto market for automobiles, light pickups and trucks. And we do have some merchandise for heavy trucks," said Jennings.

"I guess we have a pretty wide market. We have the typical things you find in auto parts supply, but we also have two extensive paint lines.

"All the lines we carry are major manufacturers - all household names. In a small town (comparing Big Spring to Dallas) you have to be a one-stop shopper for everyone," added Wegman.

Lean beef is in — fat is out

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

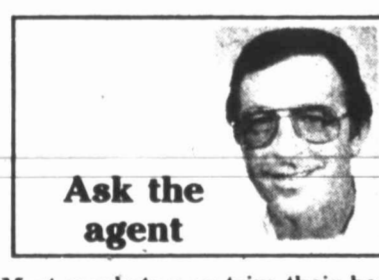

The national emphasis on beef, either on the rail, on the hoof or on the plate appears to be a fact of life today.

This fact was emphasized in the show ring at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas last week which had three Howard County 4-H members exhibiting their beef cattle projects in their junior market steer show.

Dallas has always been a rather controversial show among the stock show crowd in that the judges they have selected have always picked cattle that have not necessarily fit the traditional "Show Steer" pattern. Dallas is perhaps the most upbeat metropolitan city in Texas and stock show officials there are very sensitive to the trendy ways of these urbanites.

With the health-conscious awareness of the general public, and particularly with those in such urban situations as Dallas a vast majority of the consuming public may have never seen a beef cattle operation. Actually, in some cases they may have not associated a steak or pot roast they buy at a restaurant or in a super market with a live steer! The one thing they do know and demand is less fat on that piece of meat!

Super markets are aware of this and today they are trimming more and more fat off their display beef products. The consuming public, with their ideas on cholesterol, has forced them to do it. This, of course, makes that cut of meat more expensive per pound as someone must pay for that waste fat.

Ask the agent

Most markets now trim their beef to about a 1/4 inch, with some to a mere 1/8 inch. A few years ago 1/2 inch of fat was the standard.

To complicate things a little more, packer buyers still demand the choice grade for top prices and feedlot operators and cattle producers still prefer to sell live cattle.

Identifying choice cattle with high yields while they are alive is still a difficult thing to do. We have advanced enough in animal breeding to realize that some sires have the capabilities of producing these desirable characteristics in their offspring and have been identified.

But to date there have not been rewards for this service on a commercial basis, but education in all production phases of beef cattle is continuing and no doubt will play an important role in the breeding and marketing of cattle in the future.

Now with these facts in mind, we can return to the Dallas steer show ring. Dallas is unique among stock shows in another way.

Many of the steers sold through their premium auction are bought for actual consumption by the buyers and are not resold on the market. Dallas, being the type city it is, is aware of the market demands and most are not foolish flamboyant types that buy these cattle. They know that today's market demands a steer that will dress about 725-750 pounds, about a 62% dress weight. To obtain these figures, if you are mathematically inclined, this means that this must come from a 1150-1200 pound live animal. Its carcass is also demanded to yield about 50% in trimmed high quality cuts.

These are the type cattle Dallas asks its judges to try to find for its top placings. With other shows in Texas that traditionally use a little larger type cattle, around 1250 pounds, in about a 55 inch hip height range.

This proves a little confusing to a lot of exhibitors, but successful ones are savvy enough to realize that to achieve success in the show ring, take the type steer (or lamb, pig, chicken, etc.) that is the type that show or judge wants... which in many cases may not be the type we, ourselves, particularly like... then hope for a lot of just plain old fashioned luck!

Congratulations to Dane Driver for his first place steer at the State Fair, John Paul Nichols and Leslie Fryar for their 8th place winners. All three steers were awarded blue ribbon market grades and sold in the premium auction well at the fair following the show. Thanks to their dads, Larry Fryar, Bob Nichols and Skipper Driver, for all the help and cooperation they extended our county group at the fair this year. It was a real enjoyable experience and, in spite of the unseasonably cold weather, was a lot of fun. We hope for continued success at the future shows.
