Forecast for the Big Spring area: Clear tonight and not quite as warm on Tuesday. Low tonight middle 40s. High Tuesday lower 80s. Yesterday's high was 83 with a low of 44.

ON THE SIDE:

One-car accident

BIG SPRING — A one-car accident injured a girl Saturday who apparently was driving without a license.

The Big Spring Police Department reported that Syreeta Dian Shellman, 16, 1425 E. 6th, sustained possible injuries after the Ford Maverick she was driving struck a brick wall at about 2:30 p.m. According to the report, the girl was pulling the car into a parking space, lost control and hit the wall.

The owner of the car, Abner Hollis Shellman Sr., 1425 E. 6th, was cited for leaving the keys in the ignition. The 16 year old was cited for no drivers license and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

SALEM, Ore., the case of Alfred Smith, a Klamath Indian who maintains his ancient religious beliefs in a house of illegal peyote should be protected by the U.S. Constitution, goes before the nation's highest court today.

Yahoo!, it's chili

TERLINGUA (AP) — A chili cookoff co-sponsored by an antacid maker attracted entries from as far away as Iowa and Hawaii, but it was a Texan's "Yahoo Chili" that drove the judges wild.

Barbara Benton of Dallas beat 204 other entrants Saturday in the 23rd Annual Terlingua International Chili Cookoff in this Mexican border town.

"Like my grandson says, 'It's just awesome,'" Ms. Benton said after being handed the prize, a 50-pound trophy shaped like a chili pepper.

The saucy beef and bean concoctions were judged on taste and texture by members of the Chili Appreciation Society International, said Ravi Dasari, spokesman for the group based in San Antonio. The Texas event was open to winners of regional contests.

A co-sponsor of the event the past four years, Gaviscon antacid, passed out liberal samples of its product to the 4,000 people attending.

Pay raise wanted

AUSTIN (AP) — A majority of legislators responding to a newspaper poll say they should have their salaries tripled and living expenses increased.

The Austin American-Statesman, in a copyright story, said 60 percent of the senators and 75 percent of the representatives in the House in the Texas Legislature support the proposed constitutional amendment on Tuesday's statewide ballot that would more than triple lawmakers' $7,200 annual salary.

Approximately 95 percent of the lawmakers back another proposition on the ballot to increase their daily living expenses.

A majority of legislators responding to the newspaper's poll published Sunday also said there should be changes in regulations covering lobbyists, and most of them support limits on how much lobbyists can spend on them.

That follows reports of some legislators taking lobbyist-financed vacations and using political donations to buy homes and subsidize living in Austin.

Twenty-one of the 31 senators responded to the poll.

Prison effort draws strong support

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Efforts to secure support for locating a state prison in Howard County have met the expectations of local planners, but more work remains.

More than 5,000 signatures in favor of locating a state prison in Howard County have been gathered, and about 75 people have reserved seats on chartered buses to Austin, said Betty Schoenfield, office manager for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber has been coordinating activities in support of locating a prison here in conjunction with county, city and civic leaders.

Petitions in support of a local prison will stay in area stores until the last moment to allow more signatures to be collected, she said.

Absentee-voter turnout down

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

CROSSROADS — The voter turnout at this year's constitutional amendment election is likely to be lower than the last one held in 1987, according to absentee voter figures in a four-county area.

So far 416 people in a four-county area have voted absentee in this year's election, which will be held Nov. 7 to decide 21 state constitutional amendment propositions, according to the four county clerk's offices. They reported a total of 24,636 registered voters in those counties.

About 20 more seats remain unfilled on two, chartered buses that will take supporters to Austin Nov.

That number of participating absentee voters is down from 473 in the 1987 election when voters decided on 25 propositions and a statewide referendum on parimutual gambling on horse and dog races.

In Howard County, 337 of the 16,411 registered voters in the county voted by the Nov. 3 absentee voting deadline, a deputy county clerk said. There are eight more mailout ballots that may come in by Tuesday, she said.

That number is down from the 375 people who voted in the 1987 amendment election when there were 16,224 registered voters and three referendums on the ballot, including one for the 911 system which voters passed. There are no referendums on this year's ballot.

In Mitchell County, where there is a referendum on the ballot to deadline for reserving seats, Schoenfield said, "but after the seats are gone that's it."

Those people who still want to ride one of the free-of-charge chartered buses to Austin should call the Chamber before the last seats are taken, she advised. One bus will leave Big Spring at 1 p.m. Sunday and the other at 3:30 a.m. Monday.

"They need to call in and let us know," Schoenfield said of people's desire to ride the bus. "I think they're waiting (until after the Nov. 7 state election), but they need to call in and tell us."

Schoenfield said about 15 people have called the Chamber to say they will travel by car and about five people have said they will fly planes to Austin to be part of a Howard County group traveling there Nov. 13 to express their support for a state prison. Those who

KBYG radio taken off the air Sunday

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Local radio station KBYG was abruptly taken off the air Sunday morning after a trustee of the federal bankruptcy court decided to close down the station, the radio station's news director said in a press release.

"After 40 years of service to the surrounding area, KBYG 1400 AM was abruptly taken off the air Sunday at 8 a.m. by the trustee of the federal bankruptcy court. Although the staff has been locked out of the building, they have not given up the fight," said Courtney Calloway Murphy, news director of the station, in the press release issued Sunday.

Station manager Chris Hutson said the staff's abrupt forced evacuation of the station came as a big surprise to station employees. "Yes, it was," he said.

Hutson said they were basically bottled out of the building by federal agents. "They didn't give us long at all, gave us a few hours," he said.

The KBYG staff spent the night outside the building as show of support, he said.

"It's just our way of getting behind the station, showing we're not going to give up this easy," Hutson said.

Murphy appealed for community support to help restore the station to its on-the-air status. She said the staff of KBYG will hold a press conference at 6 p.m. today in Comanche Trail Park in front of the radio station office.

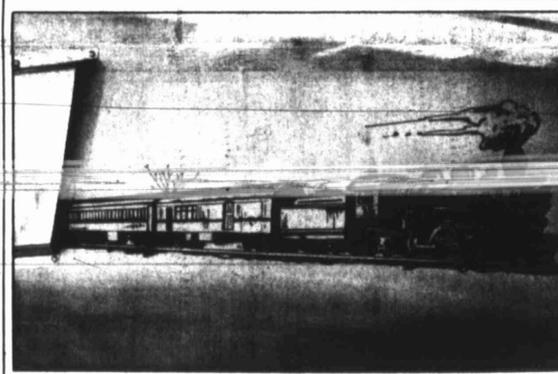

Hutson promised to go into greater detail on the events surrounding KBYG's status and the hopes of the employees at the press conference this evening.

Murphy said the staff invites all interested parties and supporters to attend.

Murphy said, "For 40 years this Big Spring business has served and supported this area and now it needs your support."

United Way goal gets closer

By JAMES FLEHR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring Independent School District United Way Campaign already has collected 30 percent more than it did last year, according to campaign officials.

Collections total $13,791, up from the $10,000 collected last year, of officials said.

BSISD's share helps push combined collections to $160,881, which is about 75 percent of the $212,000 goal.

"Big Spring ISD began the 1990 United Way Campaign in August to set the tone for the rest of the major employers in Big Spring. The teachers responded tremendously this year with their donations to the United Way," said Roland Atkins, Big Spring ISD coordinator for the campaign.

"It's great to have six campuses giving 100 percent. Our continued goal will be to have a steady increase in donations on a yeaply basis."

The six elementary campuses each posted 100 percent donations by the faculty for 1990, Atkins said. He said they were: Bauer Magnet, College Heights, Kentwood, Marcy and Moss Elementary Schools and San Aderson Kindergarten Center.

"During the last two campaigns, donations from the public school to the United Way have increased by 100 percent," he said. "The key to this success comes from education through materials and films. Programs presented by United Way volunteers show our staff that the 10 agencies funded in part by the United Way need their support.

"Also, public school employees see the results of the good work done by the various agencies that deal directly with the children of Big Spring."

The largest increase in donations from the previous year was Big Spring High School, which raised its donations 40 percent from $2,380 to $3,840, Atkins said.

The largest donation increase by percentage from 1989 to 1990 was at Washington Elementary, he said. The number increased from 435 in 1989 to 1,112 in 1990 — approximately 60 percent.

BIG SPRING — How special are the Special Olympics?

D'Lene Wylie, 29, of Big Spring, has one answer. In her home, she said, she displays her awards from Special Olympics events beside an autographed photo of Josh Taylor, the television actor who appeared in "Days of Our Lives." The Special Olympics awards are the only awards she owns, she said.

"I enjoy it," Wylie said of the event. "It's fun and it's something for me to do. That's for sure."

Wylie has been competing in the annual sports competition for

BIG SPRING — A firefighter with the Big Spring Fire Department eyes what's left of a pickup truck Sunday after the vehicle caught fire about at about 2:30 p.m. on West Interstate 20. The truck's driver, Jerry Overby of Midland, said he was switching from one gas tank to another when it caught fire. Fire department officials blamed a slow leak in the switch at the cause of the blaze.

the mentally retarded since junior high school. She has twice received a first place in state bowling competition. Her best score in bowling before Saturday was 165; a perfect score is 300. About three years ago she was the second best athlete in state track and field competition.

Wylie was among 136 competitors Saturday in the Special Olympics area bowling competition, which represents 33 counties in the region. The competition was held at Highland Lanes. A total of 27 Big Spring athletes are competing in this year's Special Olympics, which also includes basketball, baseball, track and field. The state competition this year will be held December 10-12 in Fort Worth.

Wylie's mother, Kaye Wylie, a coach of the Big Spring team, said the Special Olympics participation has "helped her make friends from other towns... I think it's helped her self-esteem, that she can accomplish this."

Asked about the role of competition in Special Olympics, Kaye Wylie said "the motto is 'Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt.'"

"Yes, we do want them to compete and we do want them to win, but if they can't we want them to have a good attitude about the bowling."

Marty Thurston, 25, from Big Spring, who has been competing in Special Olympics for about 10 years, said "I love the Special Olympics. I love the fun — being around the people to make friends."

"It gives them activities and exercise and being with a group to participate," said Dorothy Earhart of Big Spring, whose son, Fred, competed Saturday.

Local recreation specialist attends national meeting

HERALD STAFF REPORT

BIG SPRING — Elizabeth Moltz, a resident of Big Spring, joined the more than 6,000 parks and recreation specialists from across the country recently at the Congress for Recreation and Parks.

The congress, sponsored annually by National Recreation and Park Association, was held Oct. 19-23 in San Antonio, according to a NRPA news release.

Moltz, a certified therapeutic recreation specialist with the Veterans Administration Medical Center, participated in building workshops and educational programs and exhibits focusing on the most up-to-date issues and techniques in parks, recreation and conservation.

"I'm the West Texas therapeutic recreation representative for the Texas Recreation and Parks Society (the state entity). So I was down there not only for VA purposes of training but also to attend the board meetings involved with being a state representative," she said.

Prison

 have not called but plan to be in Austin should call the Chamber to give planners an idea of how many people to expect, she said.

The show of support so far is encouraging, Schoenfeld said, but "We still need more (people)."

Absentee balloting in Howard County for a state constitutional amendment election that includes Proposition 8, which — if passed — will allocate $400 million for the construction of four more prisons, has received 337 absentee votes as of this morning, said Margaret Ray, Howard County clerk. There are still eight mail-in absentee ballots that are out and could be valid if mailed in by 7 p.m. Tuesday, she said.

Ray said there were 395 votes cast in a similar, state amendment election in 1987, but said that election included a local referendum with the 911 system, making a comparison between the two elections difficult.

State prison officials have said they will monitor the results of elections where counties are attempting to attract a prison facility in an attempt to gauge support for a prison. County officials have said the local turnout at the polls could be crucial in deciding whether Howard County or another county is picked for a 1,000-bed or 2,250-bed prison.

Howard County is one of 26 possible sites for one of six state prisons. A reduced list of about 10 or 12 sites is expected to be picked Wednesday by Texas Department of Criminal Justice board members.

 fund an economic development committee, 44 of 5,106 registered voters have turned in their ballots, the county clerk said.

In 1987, 69 people voted absentee, she said. Pari-mutual betting was the only referendum on the ballot that year.

In Martin County, 20 of the 2,564 registered voters have voted, the county clerk said. Three of those were mailed in.

That number is down from the 29 absentee voters in the 1987 election when there were 2,519 voters, she said. There are no referendums in this year's election.

In Borden County, 15 of 555 registered voters have cast their ballots, the county clerk said. That compares to 36 people who voted absentee in the 1987 election.

There are no referendums on this year's ballot, she said.

The county clerk in Glasscock County said they were not allowed to give a count of absentee voters until after 7 p.m. Tuesday. There are no referendums on their ballot for this year, she said.

Health Fair

BIG SPRING — Volunteers at the Howard County Health Fair prepare to run tests on everything from cholesterol levels to eye and hearing tests. The fair was held Saturday at Highland Mall.

She said she attended the training and development sessions to maintain her certification.

"I came back with some very good ideas and am working to implement them," she said.

This year's theme, which reflects the rich history of the host city, San Antonio, was "Leisure, Legends and Landmarks," said the report from the NRPA.

The keynote speaker, Malcolm S. Forbes Jr., editor in chief of Forbes magazine, spoke of his involvement in parks and recreation, the release said. Also addressing participants was syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

National issues, according to the release, were examined for their impact on parks and recreation, including: the economic impact of parks and recreation; resources protection; and senior/rehabilitation involvement.

As an active member of the NRPA, Moltz is teamed with more than 20,000 park and recreation professionals from across the United States and abroad, who represent a wide-range of fields and specialties.

NRPA is a nonprofit, professional, service, research and educational organization, serving as the one, united voice of the park and recreation movement, the release said.

For almost 100 years, this group has been dedicated to the wise use of leisure time, conservation of natural and human resources, and beautification of the environment, it said.

The association serves federal, state and local governments, as well as private organizations and citizen efforts.

Campaign

 All schools maintained the rate of donation or increased the rate of donation for the 1990 campaign.

"This is another example of success from organized campaign structure and dedication of the people in the school system. The employees of the school district are seeing the need and wanting to do something about the need," said Sherrie Bordofsky, executive director of United Way.

"It is a tremendous improvement not only for the United Way but for the image of the school employees and the concern for our community. To all of these who contributed, we want to say a super 'thank you.'"

The list of the updated United Way collection campaign follows:

- Out-of-Town, $7,273.95.
- Pacesetters, $42,620.
- Commercial, $8,171.
- Golden Age, $12,691.28.

S&L industry posts $2.5 billion in losses

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's savings and loans lost at least $2.5 billion in the July-September quarter, a large loss but still likely the best performance in a year, a government economist said today.

James Barth, chief economist of the Office of Thrift Supervision, said preliminary figures indicate that S&L red ink will be at its lowest point since a $1.8 billion loss in the third quarter of 1988.

Thrifts last year lost a record $13.4 billion. Official figures for the July-September period of this year will not be released until next month, but if Barth's projection proves correct, losses for the first nine months of this year will total $9.7 billion, on track for a slight improvement for all of 1989.

Barth, speaking at the annual convention of the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, said losses in the latest quarter were concentrated heavily in the approximately 260 institutions under government control, although the rest of the industry also lost money.

In Washington, meantime, the thrift supervision office announced toughened capital standards designed to prevent further S&L failures. It estimated that 800 thrifts with assets totaling $600 billion would not be able to meet the new requirements when they take effect Dec. 7 and would be subject to restrictions on growth.

Weather

Showers and thunderstorms developed this morning from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. The wet weather followed a cold front crossing the Mississippi Valley. The showers and thunderstorms were most numerous from eastern Wisconsin and northern Illinois to Indiana and southern Michigan. Scattered showers and thunderstorms were over Arkansas and southeastern Missouri.

Showers and thunderstorms were also reported in south central and southeastern Texas in response to an upper level weather disturbance moving out of Mexico.

A few rain showers were scattered across Montana, while snow was reported in northeast Minnesota, near Lake Superior, on Sunday evening.

The high for the nation Sunday was 91 degrees at Kingsville, Texas.

Inside Texas

Price ceiling allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today allowed federal officials to place price ceilings on natural gas recovered from a vast underground reservoir in the Texas Panhandle.

The court, without comment, rejected appeals by Texas state officials and gas producers who challenged orders of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

At issue were gas reserves under a panhandle area 124 miles long and 20 miles wide.

The commission in 1984 identified 37 oil well operators it said were interfering with the interstate sale of gas found under the same land as the oil wells.

Because of the underground formations in the Panhandle, oil well operators often must drill through gas-bearing rock to reach the lower-lying oil deposits.

The commission said the oil well operators were taking gas intended for interstate sales and selling it within Texas for higher prices.

The Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 permits some hard-to-produce gas to be sold at higher prices to encourage gas production. The law requires gas previously committed to interstate commerce to be sold at lower prices.

The Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates gas production in the state, joined the oil well operators in claiming the federal agency exceeded its authority and mistakenly classified the Panhandle gas.

Baby alligator caught

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Nervous spectators cheered as a game warden and a fisherman snatched a three-foot alligator from the San Antonio River.

The baby reptile was captured with a net Sunday near the Espada Dam after it had been spotted Saturday. After its capture, the alligator was taken to an undisclosed site in South Bexar County, authorities said.

"To be honest with you, I'm glad we captured him because he was in an area where people picnic and swim," said Game Warden Danny Villalobos of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The alligator's small size proved a bit of a disappointment for some of the 50 onlookers who witnessed the capture.

"I thought it was a big one, but when they got it out it was a little bitty one," said 12-year-old Reyna Barrera.

While alligators are native to South Texas, they rarely become a public nuisance because they usually stay away from populated areas, officials said.

Fergie's visit

HOUSTON (AP) — The Duchess of York, Sarah Ferguson, was scheduled to visit an elementary school today to observe how America is telling its youth to say no to drugs.

The duchess was to be briefed at Blackshear Elementary on anti-drug programs, capping a five-day visit to Houston.

Sarah, known as "Fergie," braved the rain Sunday afternoon to watch her father and the British polo team defeat Texas in the Royal Invitational Cup.

The duchess stood on the soaked polo field without an umbrella to present the winners' trophies to the Great Britain team, which defeated Texas 11-6.

"My daughter wanted to do it without an umbrella so everyone could get photographs," said Sarah's father, Maj. Ronald Ferguson, captain of the British team.

The duchess is married to Britain's Prince Andrew. She is 5 months pregnant with their second child.

Voter apathy

Houston area could determine election outcome

AUSTIN (AP) — A hot mayoral race and fierce fight to replace the late Rep. Mickey Leland are combining to make the Houston area the pivotal player in Tuesday's statewide elections, Secretary of State George Bayoud said.

A low voter turnout across the rest of Texas likely will mean that Harris County will determine for the state whether legislators' salaries are tripled and whether $1.4 billion is added to the state's debt.

With only about 12 percent of the state's 8.2 million registered voters expected to go to the polls, Bayoud has predicted that one-third to half of all votes cast might come from Harris County.

Turnout is expected to be better in Harris County because of the mayor's race and the special election to fill the 18th congressional seat, vacant since August when Leland was killed in a plane crash ballots. The low forecast for the statewide turnout is based on off-year elections in the past 12 years,

Polls show the issue running even, or slightly ahead in Harris County. But strong opposition elsewhere prompted House

Investors cut costs to save track

BRADY (AP) — Investors have taken a series of cost-cutting steps to ensure the long-term survival of G. Rollie White Downs, and concerns that the state's only pari-mutuel track might fold are invalid, a track official said.

Elimination of the Friday race card and a one-third reduction in purses were the first moves to ensure the track's future, said Richard Lerma, general manager at G. Rollie White Downs.

Construction work on the private club also has been suspended and some workers have been laid off.

The track owners' cost-reduction decisions fueled speculation among horsemen and others in the industry that the track was on the verge of collapse, only one month after pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing resumed in Texas after a 52-year hiatus.

"I don't really know how it got blown out of proportion," Lerma told the San Angelo Standard Times. "What made such a fuss was cutting our Friday's (racing) and cutting purses... people started to say then that 'Brady's going down.'"

Investors with Heart of Texas Racing Inc., the pari-mutuel license holder and operator of the Brady track, decided to implement the measures during a series of meetings last week.

Lerma has said the track was losing about $25,000 a week because betting handles have been below projections since the track opened Oct. 6, and because of unexpected expenses associated with Texas Racing Commission-ordered changes.

Investors expected an average daily handle of $200,000. But the average handle has fallen short of that projection, and extra security personnel and improvements required by the racing commission have pushed start-up costs substantially higher.

The track was on the verge of turning the corner, Lerma said Saturday.

"Our projections were $200,000 and we're knocking on that door," he said. "We feel we'll get that figure up."

The betting handle has topped the $200,000 mark just twice — the first Saturday and Sunday the track was open — and averaged nearly $156,000 for 12 racing dates in October.

Excluding Fridays, the average was close to $180,000.

"The handle was not what we expected on Fridays, so the best thing was to run on Saturday and Sunday," Lerma explained.

Lerma said Friday attendance was low, averaging 1,089 after opening day, because people have to work.

Despite the cutbacks, track officials have been unable to cut corners in regards to Texas Racing Commission-mandated drug testing and other regulations.

while on a famine mission in the jungles of Ethiopia.

Eleven candidates are on the ballot in District 18, a disparate conglomeration of downtown oil company headquarters and slums in central and northeast Houston.

School board elections and a controversial bond issue to deepen a manmade seaport also are on the said Mark Toohey, press spokesman for Bayoud.

"The way Harris County goes is probably going to be the way the propositions are going to be going," said Robert Parten, Tarrant County elections administrator.

The largest impact may be felt by Proposition No. 1, the legislative pay raise, officials said.

Speaker Gib Lewis of Fort Worth, the measure's co-author and biggest booster, to say last week. "It's dead."

The measure would raise state lawmakers' pay from $7,200 to about $23,000 annually.

Robin Cooper, executive director of Texans for Financial Responsibility, a campaign committee opposing the pay raise, said he feels confident, but is worried that last-minute appeals by legislators and the impact of Houston's vote could skew the outcome.

"Houston is still going to be the final decision," said Cooper, a political consultant and Wise County Republican chairman.

In Houston, incumbent Mayor Kathy Whitmire faces strong opposition from former Mayor Fred Hofheinz.

Outside of the pay raise and Proposition 11 — a companion measure to raise lawmakers' daily expense allowances from $30 to $81 — the proposition drawing the most attention is a $500 million bond issue for state water projects.

Toxic waste march the Environmental Protection Agency's plans to clean up the 65-acre Superfund site rather than purchase the real estate.

Packed house hears abortion debate

EDINBURG (AP) — Two influential voices in the abortion issue squared off in a debate before a packed auditorium in this South Texas town.

"If a mother doesn't want (her baby), she can terminate it," Phyllis Schlafly, a national spokeswoman for conservative political causes, said during Sunday night's debate. "There are a lot of unwanted people in this world. Do we say therefore that they have no right to life? That's the conclusion in Roe vs. Wade."

Ms. Schlafly argued against abortion while Sarah Weddington, who argued the winning side for the landmark Roe vs. Wade abortion case in 1973, supported a woman's right to an abortion.

The debate was held at the Fine

Arts auditorium on the University of Texas-Pan American campus.

The Roe vs. Wade case legalized abortion on demand in the United States. A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision in a Missouri case, however, has opened the door for state legislatures to restrict a woman's right to abortion.

Ms. Weddington said the court's decision "has transformed the issue from primarily a courtroom battle to primarily a political battle."

Ms. Weddington compared the decision to have an abortion to divorce.

"I don't know of anyone who's for divorce," she said. "But we do not prohibit divorce as some nations do. Instead, it is an individual choice for that person to make."

The central issue is not are you for abortion, but who should make the choice, the individual or the state," she said.

Ms. Schlafly said the United States is unique because the Constitution says the right to life and liberty comes from God, not the government. The government is responsible for protecting "that right to life and liberty," she said.

Ms. Schlafly argued that life begins almost from the moment of conception.

She said that after the first month of pregnancy an unborn baby "has already grown 10,000 times" and that by the second month it has all the features of a human being.

"Its brain is sending out signals and its heart beats," she said.

Audience and TV aging together; programming follows suit

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES — Our star, recently turned 50, is waking up, smelling the coffee, and starting to give up that infatuation with young love. But memories linger...
Sound like the plot for a TV movie?
It's actually the plot for television itself, advertising and TV executives say, as shows like "The Golden Girls" draw big audiences and stars like Bob Newhart, Andy Griffith, Angela Lansbury and Carroll O'Connor shine.
"The audience is getting older," said David Poltrack, CBS senior vice president for planning and research. "The major population shift is the aging of the baby boomers. When they were young television was very youth-oriented."
"Gradually, the television networks are recognizing that the advantage is to go with this aging baby boomer generation."

Johnny Carson, at 64, is still the most popular talk show host. And when CBS' "Lonesome Dove" bowled over the competition last spring with aging Texas plainsmen Robert Duvall and Tommy Lee Jones, "Perry Mason" took the case and saved NBC from disaster. The Raymond Burr role appeals mainly to older viewers.
While the population is aging and older people have more disposable income, advertisers are slow to recognize the changes.
"We don't go as far as CBS would like us to go," said Betsy Frank, a vice president of Saatchi & Saatchi, the world's largest ad agency. "CBS has always been more successful when it programs for a more mature audience. Even ABC is making some concessions toward older audiences. Its 'ABC Mystery Movie' has older stars and should do well with older viewers on Saturday night. But Fox Broadcasting has succeeded by targeting a very young audience."

Nonetheless, Frank sees a shift to buying demographics of age 25-54.
Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, agrees the audience is aging and has more money, "but you also have to look at consumer habits."
"Is the person who is 61 years old who's bought Maxwell House Coffee for 40 years really a good target for your new Vienna Roast? I recognize that they have more income but I would be careful about their buying habits."
"Our standard approach is to come up with a good show that has as widespread an appeal as possible. 'Golden Girls' is a show that recognizes the graying of America but it's universal in its appeal. It attracts teen-agers and young people as well. It defies advertisers who thought it would be a show that would appeal to only people over 50."

Tartikoff believes older viewers will be more of a factor in the 1990s.
"The phenomenon of shows about older people is quite new to television," said Michael Dann, a consultant who formerly headed programming at CBS and NBC. "We always had older people in family shows, but the shows were always about kids and their problems. What you have now are shows built around the problems that older people face. The remarkable thing about 'The Golden Girls' is that its audience cuts through all age groups. One show is a hit, two is a trend. You clearly have that taking place today."
The problems older characters face aren't geriatric. They're the usual mix of romance, sex, appearance, divorce, and the con-licts of human nature.

Although favorable demographics is still the preferred method of advertiser selection, audience size is important and becoming more so, Dann said. "Years ago I personally canceled Jackie Gleason with a 37 share and Red Skelton with a 36 share. You won't find a television executive doing that today."
"Things are so competitive today with new delivery systems and a fourth network that it's difficult to get a large rating for a new show. I don't know of anybody today who would cancel a show with a 30 share."
Poltrack said Fred Silverman has become adept at producing hit shows that appeal to older viewers. "In the Heat of the Night," "Matlock," "Jake and the Fatman," and the "Perry Mason" movies all have older stars. "The Father Dowling Mysteries" was dropped by NBC but has been picked up by ABC.

In the new season, CBS' "Island Son," "Snoops," "Wolf," "Major Dad" and "Peaceable Kingdom" are aimed at older viewers. So are ABC's "Chicken Soup" and NBC's "The Nutt House," "Hardball" and "Mancuso FBI."
Movies and miniseries also lean heavily toward the older audience.
"The networks are sticking with stars and shows that have worked in the past," said Frank. "It's not that we're seeing the graying of television. What we're seeing is each network concentrate more on the things they do best. Because older viewers do watch more television, you may be seeing more older stars that appeal to that audience."
"When people pass 40 they become more interested in news and information-based shows."

Federal mortgage program provides relief for elderly

By SALLY STREFF BUZBEE
Associated Press Writer
FAIRWAY, Kan. — Marjorie Mason always wanted to go to Hawaii, but fear of burdening her family led the 79-year-old widow to pinch her pennies.

Dreading the financial drain of a future illness, she kept a tight budget. Paying to have the lawn mowed in front of the house she's owned for 34 years was about as close as she came to a frill.

But thanks to an experimental federal program that allows her to get a monthly check from the equity in her house, the trip to Hawaii is in the offing.

Mrs. Mason on Wednesday became the first beneficiary of the "reverse mortgage" program sponsored by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"I'm not going hog wild," Mrs. Mason said Friday. "I'll still budget my money. I always have. "But I've never been able to go on trips, and I've always wanted to go to Hawaii. I've got one friend who keeps pestering me to go there, and I've been using all kinds of excuses. Now I think I'm going to say yes."

In a reverse mortgage, homeowners over 62 who own their property outright or have only a minimal mortgage debt can take out a new mortgage. Instead of receiving a lump sum, they either draw on a line of credit or get monthly payments. When they die or move, the loan is repaid by selling the home.

The program is designed for older people who have equity in their home but need additional money for monthly living expenses, property taxes or serious illnesses.

For Mrs. Mason, the program is ideal.

"Your biggest asset is your home, and it's just sitting there," she said. "You can't do anything with it as long as you're alive, and when you're dead it's too late."

The three-bedroom house that she and her husband bought new in 1955 has been paid off for 20 years.

She has been a widow since 1970 and has never worked. Her only son died last year, her daughter-in-law remarried and her two grandsons are both grown.

She gets her income from Social Security, a small pension from the company where her husband was an engineer and a few stocks and certificates of deposit, she said.

"The problem is my income doesn't go up with inflation," she said.

More than anything, she feared making her family pay if she contracted a long illness.

"If you have cancer or something, it can really deplete savings, and then you become such a burden on other people," she said. "I just didn't want that."

She also wanted to stay in her home in this quiet Kansas City, Mo., suburb, where she enjoys working in the yard, cleaning her house and occasional forays to a restaurant or the movies with friends.

"I can use this to spend on nursing care in my own home if I ever get sick," she said.

Mrs. Mason was one of about 300 people who made inquiries about the program to the Kansas City HUD office, said Coral Eberly, spokesman for James B. Nutter & Co., the local lender for the program. Fifty games finally were pulled out of a hat containing 150 eligible homeowners.

FAIRWAY, Kan. — Marjorie Mason, 79, will be the first person in the country to become a beneficiary of the reverse mortgage program sponsored by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Aging incremental, not gradual

By DAVID S. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Aging is characterized by abrupt declines in mental ability often caused by personal experiences like forced retirement or a heart attack, according to a long-term study that suggests some precautions.

The 33-year Seattle Longitudinal Study has tracked the intellectual ability of more than 4,000 people ranging in age from their 20s to their 90s.

"What we have to do now is document scientifically what anecdotally we have seen all along," said K. Warner Shaie, head of Penn State University's Gerontology Center.

"That people don't age the same way."

Most aging studies have looked at group averages for different age groups, rather than tracking changes in individuals over time, Shaie said. Every seven years, the Seattle study researchers test five areas: verbal meaning, spatial orientation, inductive reasoning, and number and word fluency.

People maintain their mental abilities, on average, into their 60s, Shaie said. "From then on, on average, you can find some decline."

By 67 more than half the participants showed declines in reasoning ability, though verbal ability didn't decline for most until their late 70s.

"Inductive reasoning tends to decline sooner, because it involves speed of response," Shaie said. "Between age 20 and 60, reaction time approximately doubles, so any skill requiring high levels of speed is vulnerable."

Researchers recently looked at 838 participants who had suffered a significant drop in one or more of the five abilities over the previous seven years, and found a link to jarring events in their lives, such as the death of a spouse and mental decline, Shaie said. People who are open to change, active and continue to learn either formally or informally tend to age more slowly.

"It's more of a use it or lose it proposition," he said.

Some of the major risk factors are an unstimulating or sedentary life, low education level with no effort to continue learning and heart disease, he said.

As part of his research, Shaie also studied 120 people age 60 or older who had shown significant declines in mental ability.

Their abilities in many cases could be improved by five hours of cognitive training sessions, in which trainers led subjects in a series of increasingly difficult mental exercises. For example, to improve spatial orientation, the subjects were told to mentally rotate increasingly abstract objects.

Opinion

Opinions from across the U.S. Expensive ex-presidents

The next time members of Congress insist they are earnestly trying to save money, taxpayers should ask them why they continue to vote for outrageously generous stipends to ex-presidents.

There is a certain amount of irony in the fact that the same week that automatic spending cuts went into effect to conform to the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction act, the House voted 383-30 to give $1.8 million to four ex-presidents and one ex-president's widow.

The money is to cover pensions, office costs and other expenses. When the $1.8 million is added to the $12.5 million that the Secret Service will spend to provide security for former presidents and their families, the price tag is sizable.

Rep. Paul Kanjorski, D-Pa., was on target in complaining that, "This Congress should examine whether we are too great in our largesse in providing services and costs to former presidents who engage in personal income endeavors."

He was specifically referring to Ronald Reagan, who is to receive $559,500 in pension and expense money to add to the $2 million he was paid by his Japanese sponsors to make two speeches in Japan recently.

That kind of expenditure is an absurd expense for a government that is billions of dollars in debt. Former presidents deserve a reasonable pension, but common sense should dictate that what they are receiving now exceeds reasonable by a healthy amount.

Fort Worth (Texas) Star-Telegram

About the Reagans, Japan

We were all taught about the presidents in grade school. Our respect for the presidency came from the towering example set by such great men as Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and FDR, people of intuitive dignity.

Forget it. The role model our children are watching is Ronald Reagan, shill.

Reagan is stuffing his pockets with money, presumably his reward for being entertainingly incompetent for eight years. Neither he nor his loyal hangers-on see anything remotely strange or inappropriate about his accepting $2 million for two 20-minute speeches and a promotional tour for a Japanese entertainment company specializing in quiz shows.

It is easy to understand the Japanese affection for Reagan. He is a charming old guy. Besides, his administration developed the $50 billion annual trade deficit with Japan that has made so many of his hosts even richer than his friends are. Gratitude is a powerful force.

Reagan makes money. So do his hosts. The only loser is the United States.

All about Nancy as author

The clatter over Nancy Reagan's book, "My Turn," finally is beginning to subside. Victims of the former first lady's criticism are still returning verbal fire. But people in the media, at least — seem to be tiring of the nonsense.

Nancy may have settled some old scores, but it's costing her some dignity. . . . Don Regan angered and embarrassed Nancy by revealing in his book that the first lady consulted an astrologer to help plan the president's schedule. Nancy strikes back by saying that Regan often acted as if he were president. . . . Nancy admits that she wanted Regan out, but she claims her role in forcing him out was exaggerated.

It's interesting stuff, but it's so trivial. The book comes off sounding like another chapter of soap-opera details from an administration that already has been relegated to history. . . . With due respect to the former first lady, we'll pass on buying her book.

Presidents, line-item veto

Members of Congress tackle the job of creating spending bills like children decorating a Christmas tree with ornaments. They pile items on willy-nilly, and dare the others to touch their part of the masterpiece. Then they show the president what they've wrought.

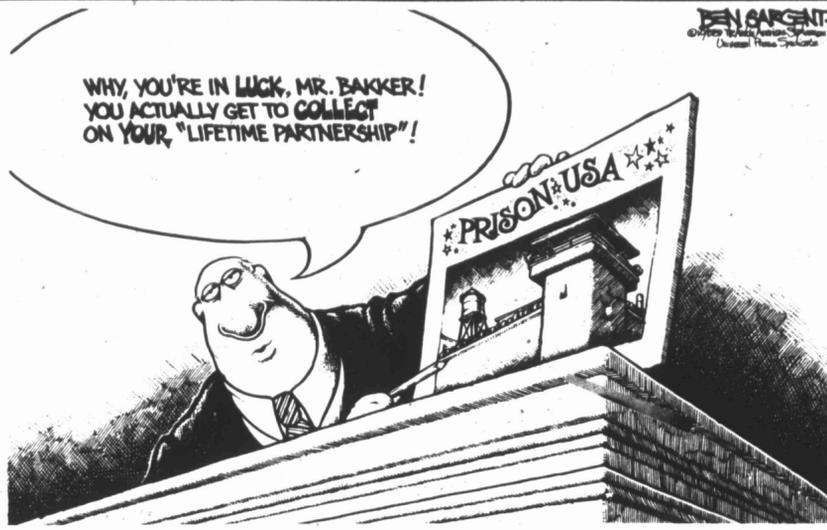

President after president has wanted to trim the excess without stripping the tree bare, but Congress has been adamant about denying presidents that privilege. No changes are allowed; the tree must be accepted as is or rejected entirely.

Does the president have the right to pull a single item out of a bill and veto it, sparing the remainder of the legislation, or is it a right that must be conferred by Congress? Vice President Dan Quayle suggested this week that President Bush thinks the answer will never be clear until a president tries it, and said the president reportedly is seeking a test case to give it a shot. By mid-week Quayle was backpedaling, but if Bush is contemplating the idea, he has no reason to apologize for it.

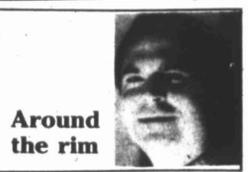

This argument over the president's authority to veto specific line items will not be decided in Congress; it has languished there for years, at least since the Grant administration. It is time to let the courts have their say.

Fresh starts beget insight

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Big Spring is more than an oasis in West Texas. For me, it's a fresh start.

As someone who has lived in 14 other cities around the country, I happen to believe in fresh starts. The perpetual newcomer is constantly in the midst of adventure and discovery. His life can never be boring, since he devotes so much of it to memorizing the names of new streets and acquaintances.

It's true that much of America looks the same these days. McDonald's and Wal-Mart have homogenized our national landscape. But not even chains can destroy the uniqueness of each town. Its character may be blander than in the days when hometown charm dominated, but there's always something distinctive.

Big Spring, for instance, appears to be the only town of 23,000 that boasts a college for the deaf, a state park and a city park with a golf course. St. Louis has its arch; Boston, its uncommon Common; and Fort Lauderdale, canals that make it the Venice of America — without, perhaps, the artistic merit of its Italian cousin.

A town is far more than its physical attributes, however. It ultimately becomes a state of mind, since residents' identities merge with the town in which they live. When I recently asked an older woman from Big Spring what makes her town special, she answered, "I guess the fact that I live here."

Call it egocentrism if you like, but people who love themselves tend to be kind toward the cities where they choose to live. People who don't love themselves complain bitterly about their towns, which raises the question of why they remain there. Perhaps because staying gives them a chance to air grievances on a daily basis. "Worcester never did anything for me, as a city," one resident of that Massachusetts community complained to me in 1984. Another Worcester resident launched into a tirade against that city's transit system — the worst she'd ever seen, the woman told me — and she did it while riding a city bus.

Location does make a difference, of course. Ten years ago, I spoke with a journalist who said that when she moved from St. Petersburg, Florida, to Austin, she was amazed to see so many young people. The effect was rejuvenating. To hear her tell it, the scenery of St. Petersburg consisted of a sea of gray heads. Had I stayed in Minneapolis, where I lived from 1981 to 1984, I might still be waiting for my lips to thaw before I attempted to speak.

Still, the person who moves a lot finds it hard after a while to envision a new place as a panacea. New York City may offer a wider selection of novels to purchase than Big Spring, but it also presents more tragic endings in real life — among them muggings and confrontations with King Kong-like monsters. "Escape to Wisconsin," a bumpersticker message I saw often in Minnesota, may well prove illusory — in whatever form the message occurs. Escape from what, and to what?

The person who believes in fresh starts should ask himself whether he's trying to leave behind certain people from the previous town. If so, the odds are quite good that he'll run into equally trying souls in the next city. He who pursues fresh faces might benefit from a refresher course on human nature.

He also might benefit from a more tolerant approach to other people. Inevitably movers tend to drop the names of their various cities the way some people flout the colleges they attended — a case of sophistication by association. It's as if the fullness of an individual's life could be measured by the places he once called his own. The truth is often quite the opposite, the mover's life being that of a wanderer and a dabbler — a restless malcontent who would be unhappy even in Xanadu. But cities offer credentials, and they can impress in a superficial sort of way.

In my case, I can boast of previous residences in Lincoln, Nebraska; Austin; Berkeley; Clayton, Missouri; Fort Lauderdale; Naples, Florida; New Ulm, Minnesota; Minneapolis; Worcester; Boston; Cambridge; Quincy, Massachusetts; New York City; and El Campo, Texas. All of them are special, of course.

Congratulations on Air Show

To the editor:

The Vietnam Memorial Air Show last weekend showed what coupling a good cause, good planning, and good work can accomplish. The Air Show reminded the people of Big Spring of the wealth of talent available in this city.

Everyone praised the staff and workers of the two-day event and I add my congratulations and thanks to the people who planned and worked to bring us a wonderful and exciting event enjoyed by the whole family.

Will those responsible please stand up and take a bow.

She denounces interference

To the editor:

I refuse to be silent any longer and let the Government interfere in my life and take away my rights!

Our Conservatives continue to decrease and cut funds for Social Services, Medicare, Social Security, and food and housing programs. There is a rising gap between the rich and the poor and the shrinking of our middle class continues.

They do not want their taxes raised, yet they want to force women to have children that no one wants or can afford to take care of. If these people are so concerned about innocent children let them adopt the thousands of minority, handicapped, abused-neglected and older children who pray nightly to be adopted.

The simple truth is that there are not enough white newborn babies to go around. Shame on our Moral Majority. Are we not supposed to care about the whole human race?

Where is their morality and consciousness? It is certainly not reflected in their pocketbook or so called christianity.

If my method of birth control fails and I have an abortion, I am willing to be judged by God on judgment day for all of my sins and not by the Moral Majority.

With the multitude and magnitude of social and economic problems that are facing not only our country but our state as well I am sure our legislators are aware of all these problems.

It is my opinion that our first priority should be for living human beings who are already born and suffering.

I will work politically at all levels of Government to prohibit Roe vs. Wade from being overturned and regulated.

Thanks: Red Ribbon help

To the editor:

One final word on Red Ribbon, National Drug Abuse Awareness Week, October 22-29.

We appreciated the outstanding support of this community during Red Ribbon Week. We would like to thank Southwestern Bell, Wal-Mart Department Store, for donating decorations and paper for the float, Bob Brock Ford for the use of a 1989 Ford pickup to pull the Red Ribbon float on the Homecoming Parade. Thanks to our radio and newspaper for their publicity support.

We want to thank Murray Murphy, Assistant Superintendent of BSISD for allowing our (ACT) Apprehension, Corrections, and Treatment teams into the Elementary and Junior High schools to present our program.

We want to publicly salute our ACT team of Drew Bavin and Mike Pearson of the Big Spring Police Department, Cruz Olague and Ricky Smith of the Federal Prison Camp and Fredda Arney of the Big Spring State Hospital and Art McKay of the VA Medical Center for presenting this program to all the schools.

We thought this program was a huge success and look forward to next year's program.

She supports Proposition 8

To the editor:

The passage of Proposition 8 will have tremendous impact on our local community. Not only will we be sending a message of support to the state prison system, but our local state hospital will receive approximately $3 million for additional growth and development. With the state hospital being the largest employer in Big Spring, these additional funds would be an infusion to the local economy.

I urge you to vote for Proposition 8 Tuesday. Most importantly, I urge you to vote.

Jimmy Bakker: Getting ahead in prison

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

The Lewis Grizzard Fantasy Column. Fantasies about obnoxious people in the news:

Clunk! The cell door slams shut. "Well, hi there, my name is Jimmy Bakker and I'm your new roommate — I mean, cellmate."

No response. "Maybe you didn't hear me, I said, 'Well, hi there, my name is Jimmy Bakker and I'm your new cellmate.'"

"They call me Mad Dog." "What an interesting name. Why do they call you that?"

"Because I bite the heads-off cats."

"Very interesting. Is that why you're in prison?"

"You writin' a book?"

"No. It's just that if we're going to have to share this small space for the next 45 years, I thought it might be nice if we knew something about each other."

"What you in for?"

"They say I defrauded some people out of some money."

"You're a thief."

"Well, not in the strictest sense. You see, I was a televangelist and . . ."

"A what?"

"A televangelist. I preached on television and people sent me a lot of money to help me with the Lord's work."

"Like I said, you're a thief."

"Wait a minute, Mad Dog. It was just that my wife has expensive tastes and you take a few million here and a few million there and, pretty soon, you're talking about a lot of money."

"Last cellmate I had was a thief. I hate thieves."

"And what happened to your last cellmate?"

"I bit his head off."

"I see. Well, do you want me to take the upper bunk or the lower?"

"Lower's mine."

"Fine, then I'll take the upper."

"Upper's mine, too."

"OK. Then I'll just get over here in the corner in the fetal position. I hope you don't mind some light whimpering."

"You got a funny face."

"I beg your pardon."

"I said, 'You got a funny face.' My brother had a funny face."

"What a coincidence. And what happened to your brother?"

"I bit his head off. He looked like

Bush to keep Quayle on '92 ticket

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle says he's happy that President Bush is keeping him on the 1992 ticket, but says it's too early to talk of having any presidential ambitions of his own.

Bush, in an interview published Sunday by the Dallas Morning News, said Quayle "absolutely" will be his running mate again. His comment appeared to be an offhanded way of acknowledging his own hat will be in the ring for a second term — something the first-year president has not said publicly before.

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu, asked Sunday if Bush had meant to end any suspense about his own intentions, said, "I think they've been thinking in terms of an eight-year team all along. I hope that's not a surprise to anybody."

Sununu, speaking with reporters on the tarmac at Westchester County Airport in White Plains, N.Y., added with a laugh, "I need the job."

Quayle, appearing on the NBC-TV program "Meet the Press," said, "I am very pleased that the president is pleased with the job that I am doing." Asked whether he had thought about running for president himself, he said, "What has crossed my mind is just doing a good job right now."

Tammy Faye asks for money

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Tammy Faye Bakker asked worshippers to help pay off her storefront church's $400,000 debt and find new quarters for the ministry that's facing eviction from a suburban shopping mall.

The wife of jailed evangelist Jim Bakker urged about 100 people at a Sunday service to be "faithful in your tithings," suggesting God is more likely to answer the prayers of those to contribute to their churches.

"That is what God can do for you if you are faithful to him," she said.

Mrs. Bakker said next week's services might be held in the rented space in the Shoppers World mall, even though mall owner Stewart Gilman is demanding she move out.

Sunday night, an angry Gilman threatened legal action.

"I'm disgusted," he said. "You cannot have someone stay in a property indefinitely."

He refused to reveal financial details of the dispute.

Bakker, who was convicted Oct. 5 of federal fraud and conspiracy charges for diverting money invested in enterprises connected with his PTL television ministry, is serving a 45-year sentence at the Federal Medical Center in Rochester, Minn.

Yugoslav freighter seized by feds

MIAMI (AP) — A Yugoslav freighter that destroyed part of a coral reef when it ran aground in the Florida Keys has been seized at the order of a federal prosecutor, who plans to seek $3 million in damages against its owner.

The 475-foot Mavro Vetrarick arrived Saturday at the Port of Miami after 66 hours swinging back and forth on the reef about 65 miles west of Key West.

The vessel, which carried a cargo of phosphate and 390 tons of fuel, destroyed between two and three acres of living coral, environmental officials said.

The ship was seized Sunday by U.S. marshals.

A federal lawsuit was to be filed asking about $3 million in damages, Cossin said. The ship and its cargo have been valued at $9 million.

"We've ordered the seizure of this asset because it assures us that the claim we are alleging will be satisfied," Cossin said.

Karl Mueller, an agent for the ship's owner, Atlantska Plovidba in Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, said company officials weren't happy to hear the freighter had been seized.

"They were upset. Naturally, everybody's upset. The ship costs money. Lying idle, the ship costs money," Mueller said.

Civil rights era martyrs honored with memorial

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Most people remember Martin Luther King Jr. and the ultimate price he paid in the struggle for racial equality. But few know of William Moore and his one-man march against segregation. Or Emmett Till, who was shot, mutilated and dumped in a river for speaking to a white woman.

The creators of the nation's first monument to the martyrs of the civil rights movement hope to change that, preserving the memories of fallen heroes and inspiring young people to carry on their work.

The stark black Civil Rights Memorial was dedicated Sunday in Montgomery, the "Cradle of the Confederacy" and the city where King began the national movement for racial justice with a boycott of buses in 1955 and 1956.

"I'm really thankful that he's there," said Mary Moore Birchard of Birchardville, Pa., Moore's wife when he was gunned down near Atlanta in 1963. "This is the first recognition Bill has received in 26 1/2 years."

"I was just overwhelmed," said Mamie Till Mobley of Chicago, whose 14-year-old son was slain during a visit to Money, Miss., in 1955. "I knew it would be moving, but it's something where you can't anticipate how you will feel."

Several of the 5,000 people who attended the ceremony broke down in tears as they touched the cool water that flows across a circular black granite slab engraved with a timeline of events of the civil rights era.

The slab, which bears the names of 32 blacks and eight whites who died in the struggle, sits in front of a black granite wall 9 feet high and inscribed with the words King chose from the Bible for his first speech of the Montgomery bus boycott: "...Until justice rolls down like water and righteousness like a mighty stream."

The $700,000 monument at the headquarters of the Southern Poverty Law Center was designed by Maya Lin, architect of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

"It shows what did happen and what can happen," said Julian Bond, Georgia's first black state legislator since Reconstruction. "I think it's important that when you lean over to touch a name, you see your own face reflected in the water."

Others attending included Ethel Kennedy, widow of Robert Kennedy; Rosa Parks, whose refusal to give up her seat to a white man prompted the Montgomery bus boycott, and Myrtle Evers, widow slain civil-rights leader Medgar Evers.

Communist leaders to allow travel

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's Communist government today published the draft of a new law allowing citizens 30 days a year of free travel in the West after 19,000 East Germans joined the westward stampede over the weekend.

A Cabinet minister urged the Communist Party's ruling Politburo to resign, and activists planned to stage another pro-democracy rally in Leipzig tonight to maintain pressure on the government for reforms.

An opposition leader reacted coolly to the new travel proposal and said authorities will need to do more to gain public trust.

"Travel is not the primary problem in East Germany," said Sebastian Pflugbeil, a co-founder of New Forum, the largest opposition group. "Too many have left the country already."

"The leadership must make other steps to prove it is earnest in its reform efforts and to win the trust of the people," Pflugbeil said in an interview with West Berlin's RIAS radio station.

"The tension between the people and the party has never been so great as today," he said.

85 crewmen missing on drilling ship

SONGKHLA, Thailand (AP) — The Thai navy today rescued two crewmen from an American oil drilling ship that capsized in a typhoon, but four other crewmen were found dead in the wreckage and 85 were missing, the company said.

Six crew members have been rescued from the 362-foot Seacrest since it overturned in the Gulf of Thailand early Saturday when Typhoon Gay swept through. Officials said searchers would keep working as long as there was hope of finding more survivors from the ship, owned by Unocal.

The American company's Thai subsidiary said two Thai crewmen were rescued in the gulf today and divers recovered four bodies from the wheelhouse area of the 5,373-ton vessel.

Thai fishermen on Sunday rescued four crewmen, identified as an Indonesian and three Thais and reported in good condition. The fate of the other 85 crewmen from 13 countries was unknown.

"We will carry on with the search as long as we think there may be some people alive," said Boonrich Chaiyuan, deputy commander of the Thai navy base at Songkhla, the main base for the search and rescue operation.

The Seacrest capsized in the gulf's Platong field, one of several being exploited for natural gas by Unocal. It is 270 miles south of Bangkok.

Israel tentatively accepts U.S. plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — The decision-making inner Cabinet has accepted an American plan for preliminary Israeli-Palestinian talks but demanded written U.S. assurances on several points, including that PLO members be excluded.

"Without these assurances, we will not enter into these talks," said Yossi Ahimeir, a spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

The vote came 10 days before Shamir plans to visit the United States to meet with Jewish groups and senators. He hopes to meet with President Bush, but the two sides have not yet agreed upon a meeting.

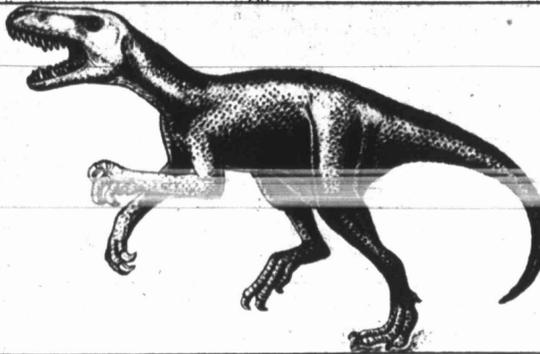

Ahimeir said Israel will ask for six assurances.

He said Israel wants guarantees there will be no talks with the Palestine Liberation Organization and that talks be limited to Israel's elections proposal, which offers limited autonomy in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Israel Television said another of the six assurances was that Washington would support Israel if it left the talks because ground rules were violated.

Peres and a spokesman for Shamir said Israel expects the U.S. assurances in writing.

Should the PLO approve the plan, the next step would be for Baker to meet with Egyptian and Israeli officials to work out the composition of a Palestinian delegation acceptable to Israel.

This artist's sketch shows a Herreriasaurus which scamped the earth on the toes of its rear feet some 230 million years ago.

Scientist depicts 'first' dinosaur as fairly small

CHICAGO (AP) — The oldest dinosaur may have been shorter than former basketball star Wilt Chamberlain and lighter than football star William "Refrigerator" Perry.

It was puny for a dinosaur. It scamped along on the toes of its rear feet but had "large claws on its forelimbs, used to grasp prey," said University of Chicago paleontologist Paul Sereno.

More importantly, Sereno and other scientists said Thursday they believe the first drawing of the ancient Herreriasaurus may reveal important clues into the evolution of dinosaurs.

"Before, only a few bones of Herreriasaurus were known," said Sereno. "Now, we have everything. Basically we have the first relatively complete idea of what the primitive form of the dinosaur looks like. This will help us in trying to figure out the pathways of evolution that proceeded over the course of many millions of years after that."

Scientists welcomed Sereno's work, presented Thursday in Austin, at meetings of the Society of Vertebrate Paleontologists.

"I think it's extremely important to know what the thing looks like in detail," said Nicholas Hotton, curator of fossils, amphibians and reptiles at the Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History. "If you've got that kind of information, you can tell which way evolution is going."

Sereno said the artist's reconstruction of the dinosaur — named after an Argentine goat herder — was based largely on the recent discovery of a skull and two nearly complete skeletons in South America.

Working with South American colleagues Alfredo Monetta and Jose Bonaparte, Sereno discovered the fossils in the foothills of the Andes.

The Herreriasaurus, which scamped the Earth some 230 million years ago, was Earth's first true dinosaur. "Basically, you go back further and you get dinosaur-type things but not a dinosaur."

Decoys and collectors

NEW YORK (AP) — Waterfowl decoys — ducks and fish — first created centuries ago by American Indians to lure wild birds and one of the few original forms of American art — have become increasingly popular in recent years as collectibles, reports a local gallery.

Proof of the decoy's longevity was discovered in 1924 when excavations in Nevada's Lovelock Cave uncovered a dozen decoys under an accumulated debris of 1,000 years, all perfectly preserved in the dry climate, according to researchers at Grove Decoys.

Present demand by collectors for old and increasingly rare hand-carved decoys has grown considerably. A pair of merganser diving ducks were sold at auction for over $93,000 and in that same auction in 1986 a preening pintail was auctioned for a record $319,000.

Air samples

NEW YORK (AP) — Trial-size product sampling — once confined to mailboxes, door knobs and shopping malls — has taken off and gone skyward.

Passengers on airlines are now being handed trial-size deodorants, shampoos, snacks, shaving systems, fragrances, mouthwash, breath mints and other products, reports SampleAir, Inc., which started the practice on regional feeder air carriers and now has gone international.

More than a giveaway, the samples represent the latest effort by packaged goods manufacturers to capture the public's attention — and few audiences are as captive and demographically well-heeled as airline passengers, which number some 418 million each year.

Passengers like the idea, too. More than nine in 10 of passengers surveyed reported the distribution of the sample kit as a good idea, attractive and a nice "bonus."

Eight in 10 thought the sample provided a useful purpose because it usually involved something the passenger had neglected to pack himself.

Frequent shoppers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Like the airlines' frequent-flyer programs, a Des Moines supermarket has introduced a "frequent-shopper" plan that utilizes smart-card technology to keep track of shopper purchases, reports MIS Week.

The program awards points to shoppers for grocery purchases, and the points are redeemed for brand-name catalog merchandise.

According to the management information services journal, the smart card allows shoppers to accumulate points each time they shop by simply inserting their "card" in the special card-reader at each checkout lane.

The shopper's current point total is then shown on a color video screen and increases as corresponding items are purchased.

In addition to redeeming points for a wide variety of gifts including jewelry, audio-visual equipment toys and home accessories, the smart card can also be used for financial services, including electronic check clearing and direct debit-and-credit card functions.

The overall program is sponsored by some of the nation's major consumer goods manufacturers.

Why switch a 'v' for a 'w'?

DEAR ABBY: Many of my friends and relatives of Scandinavian origin switch their v's and w's. For example, they say, "Wiolet vent to Wancouwer to work for vun veek in November."

This puzzles me. I have asked a few people who speak that way why they do it, but they just smile, which is no answer, so I don't mention it again for fear of hurting their feelings.

This seems to be a peculiarity common to Swedes, Danes and Norwegians. But the letter "w" doesn't even exist in their alphabet, so how does a "v" become a "w"?

Perhaps you, or someone in your reading audience, can explain it. — VONDERING IN WICTORIA

DEAR VONDERING: I, too, am "vondering." Perhaps some Northern European or a linguist (one proficient in languages) can provide an answer.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from "Missing Out in St. Louis," the woman who complained that her husband always wants to leave early from ball games, the theater, etc. in order to save time getting out of the parking lot. Maybe this will change his mind.

Last year, my husband and I and our two children were lucky enough to get tickets for the first game of the '88 World Series between the L.A. Dodgers and the Oakland A's — for us, like many, a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. It was a fairly uneventful game and our team, the Dodgers, was losing. Since the stadium was packed, we decided to head out to the parking lot at the bottom of the ninth inning and avoid the rush. What a mistake!

Once outside, we heard the surprise announcement that Kirk Gibson was coming to bat. Well, of course the rest is history, and when Gibson hit that now very famous game-winning home run, we were on the freeway on-ramp, cleverly beating the crowds home. We had to wait for the evening news to see the home run. Now, whenever they show the replay of that "great moment in baseball history," we just cringe.

So, show this to your husband and tell him that Abby's right... the best is often last, so stay put and let some other poor slob miss out! — JANET IN HACIENDA HEIGHTS

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column about a woman named Jane whose husband was killed in an accident and left her with two little boys. The letter said, "Jane has no intention of marrying again because she doesn't want to lose the $500 a month she gets from Social Security as a widow."

Abby, that is a very popular misconception held by many women. Jane gets $500 from Social Security because she has two underage sons — not "just because she's a widow." A widow has to be 60 years old to collect Social Security. I know because it happened to me!

I was 53 when my husband died suddenly. I went right down to the Social Security office to sign up for that nice Social Security check I thought I was entitled to. After all, my husband had worked steadily since he was 17, and he passed away at 55. Guess what? I found out I was entitled to a big fat zero!

Needless to say, I had to go to work at age 53. Thank God I found a pretty good job, and three years later I found a man who married me and I didn't need to work anymore.

Please let women know that Social Security does not give benefits to widows until they are 60 years old. — MRS. G.L.W., TEMPE, ARIZ.

DEAR MRS. G.L.W.: Thanks for setting a lot of folks straight. Including me.

Inside Sports

Home-opener

BIG SPRING — Coach Royce Chadwick will unveil this year's version of the Howard College Hawk-Queens to the home fans when the Queens host the Cisco Junior College Lady Wranglers tonight at 6 p.m. at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Queens are coming off three wins in the South Plains Classic this past weekend. Howard beat Panhandle State 67-44, Northern Oklahoma 82-61 and Western Oklahoma 63-39.

Forward Linda Waters led Howard in the tournament, averaging 12 points a game. Post player Shannon Lawson 10 points and guard Kim Robinson averaged 9 points.

Cisco brings a 3-3 record into the game. The Lady Wranglers are coming off a 115-102 win against the Cisco-exes. Cisco's leading scorer this season has been 6-foot-1 post player Claudette Ford, who's averaging 14 points per game.

Hawks hosting CJC

BIG SPRING — The Howard College Hawks go for win number five when they host the Cisco Junior College Wranglers tonight at 8 at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Hawks, who have yet to play on the road this season, are coming off two big wins in the Hawk Classic this past weekend.

Howard beat Panhandle State junior varsity 116-59 as Johnnie McDowell and Terrance Lewis scored 19 and 17 points respectively. Howard placed five players in double figures in the win.

The Hawks also destroyed Ranger Junior College 126-94 in the Classic. Lewis led the scoring with 25 points, followed by Harvey Petty with 19.

Cisco is 1-2 after playing in the Chaparral Classic this weekend in Midland. CJC beat Murray St., Okla. and lost to Jacksonville and South Plains.

Guard Eric Brown is Cisco's leading scorer, averaging 24 points per game.

Mack serves month

WYOMING — Judge Richard J. McMonagle of Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court granted Mack a two-year shock probation, effective immediately, along with several requirements, including regular urine testing for drug abuse.

"There's something I want you to know. You have one dirty urine and I'll send you back to prison," McMonagle said. Mack, wearing orange overalls and running shoes, told the judge:

"Your honor, I feel I learned a valuable lesson from the mistake I made — being involved with drugs."

"While I was in the institution I've just been around people that I've never seen before and never really confronted before. It really scared me."

"And I just feel that, given another chance, I can turn my life around with the help of God and the friends I have and the program I'm trying to work with."

The judge prohibited Mack from speaking publicly about his experience for the first year of his probation.

Wallace gets bumped

PHOENIX (AP) — Rusty Wallace has a million reasons to wish Stan Barrett had been some other place, doing something else this weekend. Wallace thought he was on the way to clinching the Winston Cup title and the $1 million that goes with it before he and Barrett had an unexpected meeting at Phoenix International Raceway.

Barrett, the former "rocket man," who set a land-speed record in a rocket-powered wheeled vehicle in 1979, rammed the rear of Wallace's Pontiac as the race leader drove past with 57 laps remaining in Sunday's Autoworks 500 NASCAR race.

The accident also opened the door for Bill Elliott, who overcame early handling problems and drove his Ford Thunderbird to a $57,900 victory in the 500-kilometer, 312-lap event.

But the tightening championship fight, with only one round — the Atlanta Journal 500 on Nov. 19 — left in the 31-race season, drew the attention away from Elliott's third victory of the season and 32nd of his career.

No joke; Cowboys win!

WASHINGTON (AP) — One victory does not a season make. But for Jimmy Johnson and the Dallas Cowboys, it's a start.

"I'm happy to get the win, but I'm realistic to know we have a lot of work to do," Johnson said Sunday night after his 0-for-the-NFL ordeal ended when the Cowboys beat Washington 13-3. "We've got a long way to go, though. The rocky days are not over for the Cowboys."

But the winless ones are. The Cowboys lost their first eight games under Johnson — the second-worst start in the franchise's 30-year history. Only the expansion Cowboys of 1960, who started 0-10 under Johnson's predecessor, Tom Landry, were worse.

"It's such a big weight lifted off our shoulders," said quarterback Steve Walsh, who played for Johnson at Miami of Florida and led the Hurricanes to the national championship in 1987. "This is something you can absolutely build on. We got past the first barrier of getting a win. Now you get a feeling of what it's like to win and what you need to do to win."

The victory was the Cowboys' second in their last 21 games. Both wins have come against the Redskins at RFK Stadium.

"This football team turned around today. There's confidence here now," said Dallas defensive tackle Dean Hamel, who was obtained from Washington during the preseason.

Another recent acquisition, running back Paul Palmer, did most of the damage offensively for Dallas. Palmer, picked up from Detroit after being cut in training camp by Kansas City, ran for 110 yards and the game's only touchdown.

"This is the best game I've had as a professional," said Palmer, who played high school football in the Washington area. "You dream of a situation like this." Palmer also said the error-free victory — the Cowboys made no turnovers and took no penalties — should loosen things up. "Everyone was so tight and tense. All we needed was a win to get us to relax and loosen up," he said. "Now that we've got that win, I think there's going to be a lot more confidence here."

Johnson agreed that getting win No. 2 may be easier than No. 1.

"It's been a frustrating year. You might say it's a relief, a good feeling, to get this win," Johnson said. "We're starting to come together, although we know we have a lot of hard work to do."

By winning, Johnson averted the embarrassment of losing as many games in consecutive weeks in the NFL as he did in five years at Miami.

The victory spoiled the return of Washington quarterback Doug Williams, who played for the first time since undergoing back surgery in August. Williams, the hero of the Redskins' Super Bowl victory in January, 1988, stepped in for Mark Rypien but showed the effects of the long layoff. He completed 28 of 52 passes for 296 yards but was intercepted twice and was unable to get the NFL's top-rated attack into the end zone.

"Doug was off tonight," Redskins coach Joe Gibbs said. "But I still feel good about my decision to start him, and he wasn't the only one who was a bit off."

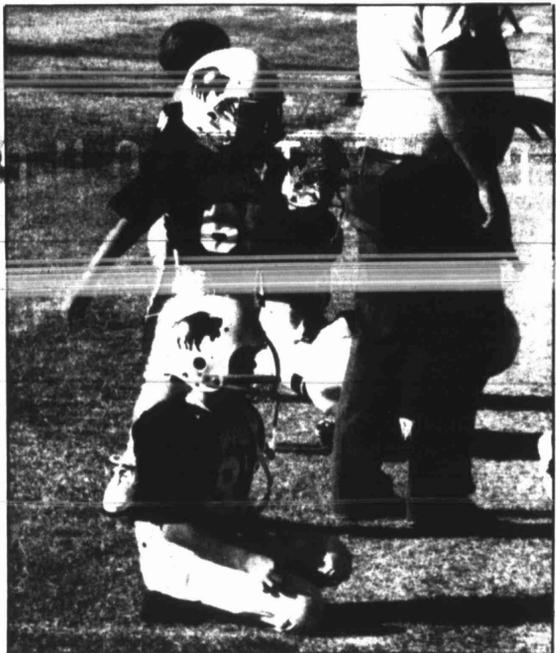

"I don't think I was out of sync," Williams said. "I felt myself throwing off the wrong foot at times, but overall I felt pretty good after getting hit a few times. I didn't play well, but as a whole, we didn't play well."

Dallas broke a 3-3 tie late in the third quarter when Palmer, following a block by guard Crawford Ker, burst through the middle for a 47-yard gain to the Washington 6. Two plays later, Palmer went over the top of the pile for a 2-yard score.

It was the Cowboys' second touchdown in the third quarter this season. Entering the contest, Dallas had been outscored 50-7 in the third period.

BIG SPRING — Forsan Buffaloes Gerald King (87) and Jason Mims (65) concentrate on the action on the field Saturday at the Little Football League Division I Super Bowl at Memorial Stadium. The Steers beat the Buffaloes 22-14. In the Division II Super Bowl, the Packers beat the Forsan Buffaloes 34-0.

Steer tankers win home swim meet

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring boys flexed their muscles as they dominated a tri-meet here Saturday at the YMCA pool.

The Steers tankers won the meet with 80 points. Fort Stockton edged with 78 points, Big Spring 70, Pecos 62.

The Lady Steer tankers finished second behind Pecos. Pecos scored 70 points, Big Spring scored 63 and Fort Stockton scored 62 points.

The Steers swimmers were led by Chris Fuqua, who won the 50 yard freestyle and 50 yard breaststroke. Fuqua, a senior swimmer of 18.20 and 22.13 respectively. He edged out teammate Chase Fraser in the 50 freestyle. Fraser swam 18.39. Webb and Fuqua also went 2-3 in the 50 butterfly.

Christy Card of Fort Stockton stole the show in the girls division, winning the 50 breaststroke, 50 butterfly, 100 individual medley and 50 freestyle.

Big Spring's top finisher was Christy Webb, who placed second in the 50 breaststroke (26.95) and 50 freestyle (22.00). Erica Clarkson was third in the 50 breaststroke and Debra McMillian was fourth in the 50 breaststroke.

HOUSTON — Houston Oilers Chris Verhulst and Detroit Lions Jimmy Williamson (59) exchange heated words in the second quarter Sunday afternoon at the Astrodome.

Oilers withstand Lions

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers agreed there will be no stigma attached when they win their 35-31 victory over Detroit in the record books.

"There isn't an asterisk next to a win anyway," Oilers guard Bruce Matthews said. "In terms of our team's development, criticizing wins should be on the past."

The Oilers (1-8) took Sunday's game on to the final 56 seconds before finally committing the error that beat them.

It was a gift the Oilers (5-4) gladly accepted.

Safety Tracy Eaton intercepted rookie Rodney Peete, and the Oilers ran out the clock for a victory that was closer than anticipated.

"It doesn't matter how you win as long as you do," said Oilers wide receiver Drew Hill, who caught nine passes for 101 yards. "We came out on the best end, probably because we had better athletes and a better team."

Detroit, operating the run-and-shoot offense this season, took a 17-14 halftime lead on a 1-yard run by Barry Sanders, a 16-yard pass from Peete to Robert Clark and a 47-yard field goal by Eddie Murray.

Houston stayed close on 1-yard touchdown runs by Lorenzo White and Mike Rozier. Rozier fumbled on the first play of the third quarter and the Lions turned it into a 24-14 lead.

Defensive lineman Kevin Brooks scooped up the ball and ran 3 yards before he fumbled. William White covered the final 20 yards for the touchdown.

Moon, who completed 30 of 38 passes for 345 yards, then went to work, hitting touchdown passes of 6 yards to Ernest Givins and 7 yards to Hill and running 2 yards for the final Oilers touchdown.

"Warren Moon is the best quarterback I've played against this year," Lions linebacker Chris Spielman said. "He can throw the ball on a dime."

The Moon-led rally was enough to withstand a 14-yard touchdown run by Sanders with 1:41 left.

"We stopped ourselves more than they did," Moon said. "We still felt that our offense could score every time we went out on the field."

The Oilers lost three fumbles and Moon suffered his first interception in 100 passing attempts.

"All that matters is that you graduate. Who cares about your GPA (grade-point average)?"

Oilers fullback Alonzo Highsmith said. "We made it difficult on ourselves but we're 5-4 and we overcame adversity."

Peete completed 18 of 29 passes for 273 yards, and Sanders carried 19 times for 91 yards. He ran for 184 yards in a 23-20 loss to Green Bay last week.

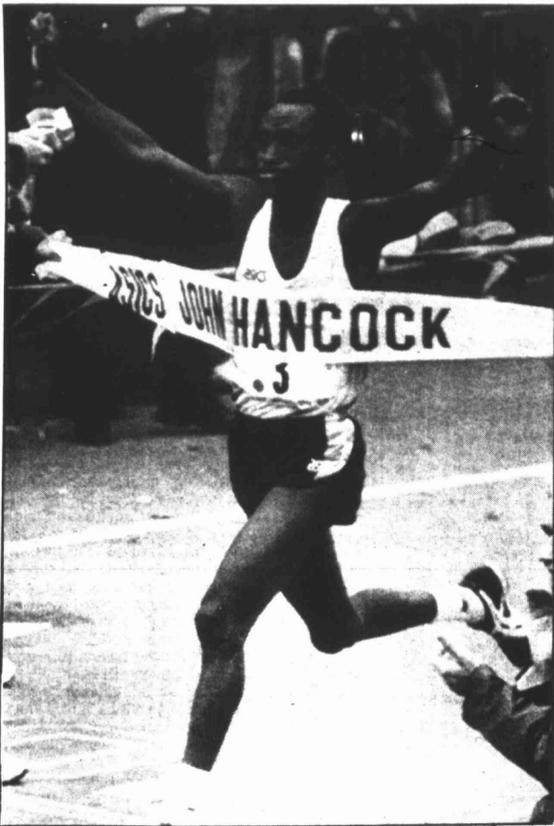

"We played well enough to win," Detroit coach Wayne Fontes said. "Our defense got three turnovers. We just need to get better and make some big plays. I think we're getting better because of the guy under center. He made some plays on his own."

Peete was sacked three times and threw the interception that ended the Lions' chances.

"We've been in too many close games," Peete said. "Sooner or later we're going to start winning these games. I still say we're better than 1-8."

But there will be no asterisk beside the Lions' record either and that bothers Sanders.

"It's tough, that's what people look at," Sanders said. "They see your record and they don't look at how well you've played. Most of the games we've played in, we've had a legitimate chance to win."

NEW YORK — Juma Ikangaa, of Tanzania, crosses the finish line to win the New York Marathon Sunday in a time of 2:08.01. Ikangaa trained in Colorado to prepare for the marathon.

Tanzanian, Norwegian win New York Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — Juma Ikangaa and Ken Martin proved the importance of training in altitude for a marathon. Ingrid Kristiansen and Kim Jones proved that running marathons frequently is no deterrent to doing well.

Ikangaa, who trained in the approximate 7,500-foot altitude of Alamosa, Colo., in an effort to improve his finishing strength, won the New York City Marathon on Sunday in a course-record 2 hours, 8 minutes, 1 second.

He was followed by Martin, whose time of 2:09:38 was nearly two minutes faster than his previous best. To prepare for the race, Martin trained in Santa Fe, N.M., where the altitude is nearly 7,000 feet.

Kristiansen, of Norway, the fastest women's marathoner in history, became the first woman in eight years to win the Boston and New York City Marathons. Her time of 2:25:30 was only one second off the woman's course record.

And Jones, winner of the Twin Cities Marathon last month, second in the Houston Marathon in January and third at Boston in April, took second among the women in 2:27:54, more than 1 1/2 minutes under her previous best.

Ikangaa, a major in the Tanzanian Army, said it was difficult to train in Alamosa because of the flat terrain and the inconsistent weather. But he emphasized the importance of training in altitude.

"Where I train in Tanzania, in Arusha, it is 3,750 feet above sea level," he said. "But where I run, it is up and down, up and down ... lots of hills."

He said a lot of his training there was down at Mount Kilimanjaro, which is less than 30 miles from Arusha.

In Tanzania, he had become an exceptionally skilled marathoner, who had won races at Cairo, Melbourne (Australia), Tokyo, Fukuoka (Japan) and Beijing.

But he had become dismayed at a series of second-place finishes — in the 1982 Commonwealth Games at Brisbane, Australia, at Fukuoka in 1983, and in his last three marathons, at Boston and Tokyo in 1988 and at Boston this year.

Most often, Ikangaa would take the lead with a blistering early pace, then get outkicked at the finish. A prime example came in the 1988 Boston Marathon, when Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya beat him by one second.

Those performances told Ikangaa that he needed to have endurance at the finish.

For that reason, he agreed to go to Alamosa, where he trained for three weeks in cold, rain and snow.

The decision paid off. For winning in the fastest time in the world this year and the 10th-fastest ever, he received $26,385, a new car valued at $32,500 and a $10,000 bonus for breaking Alberto Salazar's course record of 2:08:13.

"I could have gone another five miles," said the smiling Ikangaa, showing he still had much energy by jumping up and down three times after crossing the finish line.

In the women's race, Kristiansen broke away early and kept building her advantage. After 16 miles, she led by more than two minutes and was on pace to break her world best of 2:21:06.

But stomach problems slowed her considerably, and though she won by more than two minutes, she just missed breaking the course record of 2:25:29, set by Allison Roe of New Zealand in 1981.

That was the year Roe also won the Boston Marathon — the last time a woman had swept both races until Kristiansen did it.

"I didn't know what the course record was," Kristiansen said after recording her 13th victory in 21 marathons but her first in five tries in New York. Her best previous finish was second to Roe eight years ago.

"It was tough to regain my speed after slowing down," she said. Overall, Kristiansen finished 52nd.

Jones also gave American marathoning a major boost with her gutsy performance.

It was the first time she had run two marathons so close together, and before the race she approached the task by saying, "I am going to explore the unknown."

"If my legs have recovered, I should be able to run under 2:30," she added. "I have nothing to lose."

Jones said she conserved her energy early, running in eighth or ninth place, before picking off runners in the late stages.

"I've been trying to improve my strength all year," she said. "After a while, I was passing people at every mile."

Laura Fogli of Italy, who had finished fourth or better in seven New York City Marathons, was third in 2:28:43.

Tech throws kink in SWC

By The Associate Press
Just when you think it's safe to try to decipher the Southwest Conference football race, the Texas Tech Red Raiders turn everything topsy turvy again.

The Raiders, who won their first game in Austin in 21 years by beating Texas 24-17 on Saturday, threw the standings into a jumble.
Texas A&M University leads with a 5-1 mark, followed by Arkansas (4-1), Texas (3-1) and Texas Tech and Baylor (both 3-2). Houston (3-2) isn't eligible to win the title because of NCAA probation.

The Aggies appear to have the best shot. They beat Southern Methodist 63-14 on Saturday and have three weeks to prepare for a Nov. 24 nationally televised game against Arkansas at Kyle Field.
A&M also plays host to Texas on Dec. 2.

In other games on Saturday, Arkansas downed Rice 38-17, and Houston's Andre Ware threw six touchdown passes and Manny Hazard caught 19 passes in a 55-10 victory over Texas Christian.

"If you find someone smart enough to figure the race out, I'll put in with them," said Tech coach Spike Dykes. "It's wild and we're still in there."

Tech has defeated three Top 25 teams: Arizona, A&M, and now

Texas.

"This team is so crazy they think they can win every game," Dykes said. "There are not many prima donnas or anybody famous on this team, but they are a bunch of good guys. It will be interesting if any bowl reps call this week. You would think 6-2 and three wins over nationally ranked teams would interest somebody."

In games this week, Baylor plays at Arkansas in a 3 p.m. nationally televised (ESPN) game at Fayetteville, Texas Tech hosts TCU at 2 p.m. Texas is at Houston in a 4 p.m. clash, and SMU takes on top-ranked Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind., in a noon (Raycom TV) renewal of their old rivalry.

A&M coach R.C. Slocum is worried about not playing a game for the next two weeks.

"I think there are some big, legitimate concerns with so much time between games," he said. "We've got to get some people healthy but we wanted to be able to maintain the tempo of the passing game."

Slocum added, "The conference championship is within our control."

The Aggies have won 19 consecutive conference games at Kyle Field.

Ware set a single-season SWC passing record in the Cougars' victory over TCU. Ware's 3,413 yards, in eight games, surpassed the previous record of 3,317 set by Tommy Kramer of Rice in 1976.

TCU coach Jim Wacker said Ware should win the Heisman Trophy.

Holyfield shows Stewart "Real Deal"

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — They call Evander Holyfield the "Real Deal," and that's exactly what he's after.

Holyfield wants a deal with Mike Tyson, the undisputed heavyweight champion. He'll get it soon, possibly by next June.

"I'm thinking about two things," Holyfield said as he left the Convention Center after stopping Alex Stewart in the eighth round Saturday night. "A rest. And Mike Tyson."

Holyfield had earned his shot at the title long before meeting Stewart. None of the boxers Tyson has annihilated recently are in Holyfield's class.

But the 1984 Olympic bronze medalist and former junior heavyweight and cruiserweight champion has had to watch Tyson fight Carl Williams and make plans for Razor Ruddock and Buster Douglas.

After his performance against the previously unbeaten Stewart, Holyfield finally heard the reaction he wanted from Tyson's promoter, Don King.

"We're thinking about Holyfield for 1990," King said. "We're thinking about June or the early fall. It's a fight that has to happen."

Holyfield will believe it when he steps into the ring. Then he'll know the deal is real.

As for Stewart, he didn't prove much about his record string of 24 knockouts at the start of a career. Holyfield, though bothered by a cold that limited his stamina and agility, was much tougher than anyone Stewart had fought.

Stewart was not completely outclassed and established himself as a possible contender, although not on Holyfield's level. His biggest problem was not being able to protect a deep gash to the side of his right eye that opened in the sixth round.

"He showed a lot," Holyfield said. "He's quicker than I thought and he gets off his punches. He's a good fighter."

Stewart seemed satisfied that his first excursion into world-class heavyweight competition was anything but a flop.

"I'll be back because I know I can fight," he said. "My left hand had no power. I couldn't use it because it was hurt. I tried my best to keep using it."

"He's a strong, smart fighter. I learned a lot in the ring with him."

While Holyfield waits for Tyson, Stewart has no idea what's next. Manager Mike Jones also was hazy about who might be on Stewart's schedule.

"We're just going to recover from this disappointment and move on," Jones said.

Stewart is the kind of opponent most highly ranked fighters want to avoid. He's ranked second by the WBA but only 10th by the IBF and 13th by the WBC. He has the power to knock out anyone who gets sloppy, and he showed against Holyfield that he can take a punch.

If Stewart has any ideas about Tyson, he probably looked too good Saturday night. Tyson figures to stick with the Ruddocks and Douglases as lucrative tuneups for Holyfield. It's not risky. Stewart would be.

On the undercard Saturday, former two-time world champion Hector Camacho toyed with Raul Torres in a junior welterweight fight. Camacho won all 10 rounds.

Pokes

3-3 in the third quarter," Johnson said. "I just didn't want us to turn the ball over. We have a young team and we've had a problem with turnovers."

Roger Ruzek iced the victory with his second field goal, a 43-yarder with 4:05 left.

The Redskins, who played most of the game without three starting offensive linemen, also lost running back Gerald Riggs in the first quarter because of a foot injury. Washington finished with only 50 yards on the ground in 21 attempts.

"We're just not playing winning football," Gibbs lamented. "As a football team, we're not getting the job done, and it all starts with me. I'm not doing the things that are getting us wins."

The Redskins' expansive injury list got longer as a result of the physical contest. Offensive tackle Mark May might be lost for the year with a sprained knee; guard Russ Grimm aggravated his sprained knee; tight end Don Warren suffered a sprained right shoulder and special team standout Reggie Branch sprained an ankle.

"The good teams play well despite injuries," Gibbs said. "That's no excuse."

Ruzek gave the Cowboys only their second halftime lead of the season when he kicked a 20-yard field goal with five seconds left in the half.

The Redskins knotted the score with 4:58 left in the third quarter when Chip Lohmiller capped a 58-yard, 13-play drive with a 35-yard field goal. But it was the only scoring from an offense that entered the game averaging 26 points per game.

Bo leads Raiders to fourth straight win

By The Associated Press
Bo Jackson made history again. Jackson, showing the same speed-and-strength ability that made him an All-Star in baseball, set a team-record with a 92-yard touchdown sprint and also scored on a 7-yard smash Sunday as the Los Angeles Raiders beat the Cincinnati Bengals 28-7.

"Today was just another day at the office," said Jackson, who set the Raiders' record last year with a 91-yard run against Seattle.

The Vikings never got the ball into the end zone against the Los Angeles Rams. But Rich Karlis tied a league record with seven field goals and Minnesota won 23-21 in overtime when Mike Merriweather blocked Dale Hatcher's punt through the end zone for a safety.

It was the first time a safety had ended an NFL sudden-death game.

The Cowboys, finally, did some smiling, too. After eight straight losses, they won their first game under Coach Jimmy Johnson, winning 13-3 in Washington.

Tonight, New Orleans plays at San Francisco.

Raiders 28, Bengals 7
Jackson gained 159 yards in 13 carries as the Raiders ran past visiting Cincinnati. He rushed for 144 yards last week and has three 100-yard games in his NFL career.

The Raiders (5-4) have won three of four games since Jackson ended his season with the Kansas City Royals and resumed his hobby. Los Angeles is 4-1 since Art Shell replaced Mike Shanahan as head coach.

Especially Bo
Jackson scored 3:38 into the game, bulling over safety Ricky Dixon for a 7-yard score. Then, late in the first quarter, Jackson turned the corner on a sweep to the left and was gone, covering 92 yards without being touched.

Jay Schroeder's 25-yard touchdown pass to Vance Mueller made it 21-0 midway through the second quarter and his 84-yard TD pass to Gault made it 28-0 with 47 seconds left in the third quarter.

Vikings 23, Rams 21
Minnesota sent the game into overtime on Karlis' 40-yard field goal with eight seconds left in regulation and won it on Merriweather's first-ever blocked punt.

Karlis connected from 20, 22, 24, 25, 29 and 36 yards and tied the record set by Jim Bakken on Sept. 24, 1967. Karlis missed five of his first 10 attempts this season, although only one was inside 44 yards.

Wade Wilson, starting for the first time since breaking a finger on Oct. 1, completed 20 of 39 passes for 281 yards. Herschel Walker gained 206 total yards.

The host Vikings (6-3) lead the NFC Central. Los Angeles (5-4) lost its fourth straight game.

Greg Bell's 2-yard TD run put the Rams ahead 21-18 with 28 seconds left. Wilson's 43-yard pass to Hassan Jones set up Karlis' tying kick.

Los Angeles won the coin toss in overtime and elected to receive. After three plays, Hatcher's punt was blocked.

Packers 14, Bears 13
Don Majkowski's 14-yard, fourth-down touchdown pass with 32 seconds remaining at first was disallowed by the officials, then allowed when the replay official reversed the call as Green Bay won at home.

The field officials ruled that Majkowski crossed the line of scrimmage at the 14 before passing to Sterling Sharpe. The replay, however, showed Majkowski released the ball at the 15.

The Packers ended an eight-game losing streak to Chicago with their first victory over the Bears since 1984. Both teams are 5-4.

Falcons 30, Bills 28
Paul McFadden kicked a 50-yard field goal with two seconds left as Atlanta seasawed past visiting Buffalo. The lead changed hands three times in the last 82 seconds before the Falcons won.

Atlanta (3-6) took a 27-21 with 1:22 left on Keith Jones' 3-yard touchdown run. Don Beebe returned the ensuing kickoff 85 yards, setting up Larry Kinnebrew's 1-yard run with 29 seconds to go that put the Bills ahead 28-27.

The Falcons came back when Chris Miller's 41-yard pass to Stacey Bailey moved the ball to the Buffalo 33, and McFadden connected.

Jim Kelly returned to quarterback for the Bills (6-3). They are 3-3 with Kelly and 3-0 under his replacement, Frank Reich.

Jets 27, Patriots 26
Pat Leahy kicked a 23-yard field on the last play of the game as New York rallied to end a five-game losing streak.

DENVER — Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway (7) runs from the pocket as Pittsburgh Steelers defenders A.J. Jenkins (99) and Gerald Wallace chase him during action Sunday at Mile High Stadium. The Broncos beat the Steelers, 34-7.

Marc Wilson, playing for the first time in almost two years, threw a 65-yard touchdown pass to Cedric Jones with 11:59 remaining and an 11-yarder to Hart Lee Dykes with 1:03 left that gave New England (3-6) a 26-24 lead.

Leahy's winner came after Ken O'Brien's 36-yard pass to backup tight end Greg Werner moved the ball to the New England 6. O'Brien completed 22 of 29 passes for 386 yards for the visiting Jets (2-7).

Browns 42, Buccaneers 31
Bernie Kosar outplayed Vinny Testaverde in the duel of former University of Miami quarterbacks as Cleveland won at Tampa Bay.

The Browns intercepted Testaverde four times, including consecutive passes that were returned for touchdowns in the second quarter. Felix Wright scored on a 27-yarder and Thane Gash picked off Testaverde's next attempt and brought it back 15 yards.

Kosar threw three touchdown passes as Cleveland (6-3) won its third straight game. The Buccaneers (3-6) have lost four in a row.

Dolphins 19, Colts 13
Rookie Sammie Smith ran for 123 yards on 25 carries, Miami's first 100-yard rushing day since 1987, as the host Dolphins won for the fourth time in five games.

Miami (5-4) has won just two of its last 14 against AFC East teams. Indianapolis fell to 4-5.

The Colts played without Eric Dickerson, who missed the game because of a nagging injury to his right hamstring. His replacement, Albert Bentley, carried 21 times for 73 yards.

Chiefs 20, Seahawks 10
Christian Okoye, the NFL's leading rusher, gained 126 yards and increased his season total to 933 as Kansas City won at home.

The Chiefs (4-5) completed their first sweep against Seattle since 1981. Quarterback Steve Pelluer scrambled for 69 yards and scored a touchdown.

Seahawks quarterback Dave Krieg fumbled in the fourth quarter and Kansas City recovered, setting up a 33-yard field goal by Nick Lowery with 5:37 left for a 10-point lead.

Seattle lost four of eight fumbles.

The Chiefs lost two of three.

Giants 20, Cardinals 13
Jeff Hostetler, replacing the injured Phil Simms, passed for 177 yards and one touchdown and ran for two more scores as New York won in Phoenix.

The Giants won their fourth straight game and are 8-1, their best start since 1930. The Cardinals are 4-5.

Hostetler, making the second start of his six-year NFL career, completed 12 of 24 passes, rushed for 47 yards on 5 carries and scored on runs of 19 and 3 yards.

Phoenix closed to 20-13 on Al Del Greco's 46-yard field goal with 5:43 left. The Cardinals drove to the Giants 46 at the two-minute warn-

Occult drawings among few clues in mystery girl's case

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — A possible birth date, a California connection and a few drawings of occult symbols are among the few clues to the identity of a deaf teenage girl who may have spent years in the hands of kidnappers.

The girl — who turned up, frightened and confused, at an elementary school seven weeks ago — has been in protective custody while the FBI tried to piece together her story and find any relatives or friends.

"From some of the drawings she was able to provide, it is believed that some of the people she was with since her abduction may have been tied to the occult," FBI agent Paul Cavanagh said Wednesday.

The frightened girl appeared Sept. 18 at William B. Jack

Elementary School and told a teacher through sign language she needed help. The teacher took her to a school for the deaf, and in the following weeks, psychologists and investigators have been gathering bits of her story through sign interviews and her drawings.

She says her name is Toby Cole, but adds that may just be the name given her by her kidnappers.

It appears she was kidnapped from a foster home in California about three years ago by a man in a van, Cavanagh said. She was moved around the country, and perhaps into Canada, he said.

She has drawn symbols associated with the occult.

"With the emotional stress she was under, she can't be pushed," Cavanagh said from Boston.

"She's communicated that she's been abducted, and we have no reason to believe otherwise."

She believes she was born Dec. 25, 1974, which would make her 14. She's described as Caucasian, about 5 feet tall and 105 pounds, with wavy blond or light brown hair and blue eyes.

The FBI is checking clues in northern California and elsewhere, but there aren't any missing persons reports that seem to match the case, Cavanagh said.

"Toby seems to possess a good vocabulary and is far ahead of children in her age bracket in intelligence and communication skills," he said.

Experts believe the girl was abused.

Academia

Robert Kite, president, Dallas Institute of Funeral Service, is pleased to announce that Eric Sanchez of Stanton has been accepted for enrollment in the fall class.

Blackwell to receive recognition from FFA

COAHOMA — Stanley Blackwell, agricultural education instructor and Future Farmers of America advisor at Coahoma High School has been nominated to receive the Honorary American FFA Degree.

Blackwell was nominated for the degree by the Texas FFA Association and the nomination was approved by the National FFA Board of Directors at their recent meeting in Alexandria, Va.

The Honorary American FFA Degree is the highest honorary award presented by the FFA. This year, 53 teachers of agricultural education were nominated to receive the degree during the 62nd National FFA Convention Nov. 9-11 in Kansas City, Mo.

Blackwell has been an agricultural education instructor for 31 years. During that time he has had seven students who have earned the American FFA Degree, 55 students who have received the State FFA Degree, three students who have earned state proficiency awards and 14 former students who are teachers of agriculture.

Each year at least 50 of the 11,200 teachers of agricultural education in the nation are awarded the Honorary American FFA Degree. The degree is awarded on the basis of points scored by a teacher for his accomplishments as an agricultural instructor, FFA advisor and participant in professional agricultural teachers' organizations.

Teachers are awarded points for each student they have supervised who has earned state or national FFA awards. Teachers also receive points for serving as officers and committee members of the National Vocational Agricultural Teachers' Association and for their participation in national meetings of the FFA and other professional associations.

Blackwell plans to attend the 62nd National FFA Convention in Kansas City for presentation of the degree pending final approval of the nomination by the student FFA delegates who must vote on all honorary presentations of the National FFA Organization.

The degree is presented during the Friday morning session of the convention. FFA is a national organization of 404,900 students in 7,800 local chapters preparing for agricultural careers. FFA activities and award programs complement instruction in agricultural education by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge gained in classes. Developing agricultural leadership, cooperation and citizenship are FFA's major objectives.
