BIG SPRING — City Manager Hal Boyd, right, watches as Raymond Phillips attempts to remove an American flag from a light post along Gregg Street Saturday evening. The Big Spring Rotary Club put the flags up earlier in the day in honor of Veterans Day and are expected to be in place five times a year. Despite the flag being temporarily stuck, Phillips managed to get the flag free.

Football contest

In a clear victory, Roy New named 21 of 23 winning teams for first place in the Big Spring Herald weekly football contest last week.

Recent previous winners were determined by use of a tiebreaker, but New, 2511 E. 24th, finished ahead of the 20 correct picks by Sharon Cregar, 2605 Cactus, and Danny Sherman, 1103 N.W. 3rd St.

New receives $35 in Herald Bucks, good for spending like cash with any advertiser participating in the football contest. Cregar was second, thanks to the tie-breaker, for $15 in Herald Bucks, while Sherman gets $10 in Herald Bucks.

The Sonic Drive-In was the winning business in the prediction contest, winning a free onequarter page advertisement.

The contest appears in the Tuesday Herald each week, and the Herald's sister advertising publication, the Howard County

AUSTIN (AP) - The state mental health department no longer can keep secret audits that show whether community programs run by state mental hospitals are properly caring for the mentally ill, a federal judge

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas, in an opinion made public Monday, ordered the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation to release the performance audits to anyone who wants them.

"The reports must be made available to the public upon request," Sanders said.

The department has refused to release the audits to lawyers for mentally ill plaintiffs in the 15-year-old federal lawsuit challenging the Texas mental health system and to the Austin American-Statesman newspaper.

The lawyers said the department's refusal to release the audits was an illegal impediment to their job of determining whether Texas provides adequate community service to people with mental illness.

"All we get are individual complaints and horror stories,' said John Heike, a lawyer for Texas Legal Services Center.

County could win new state prison

HERALD STAFF REPORT

BIG SPRING — State funds exist for the construction of two more 2.250-bed prisons as a result of the passage of Proposition 8 earlier this month, according to County Commissioner Bill Crooker, who headed up the Howard County prison effort.

Charles Terrell of Dallas, TDCJ board chairman, made the announcement in a radio program after the prison board meeting Monday in Austin, Crooker said.

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice selected six sites for new state prisons Monday, but Crooker said that funds are available for the two additional sites.

Four of the prisons will be built with $200 million in bonds approved by voters last Tuesday. The other two units will be built with $138 million remaining in the 1987 bond issue, said prison board spokesman David Nunnelee.

Terrell said that the Governor would have to place it on the agenda for the Legislature to OK the spending of the funds for two additional units to be financed through the bonds approved during the Nov. 7 election

Terrell also stated that if it were to be opened up to construct two more units, the TDCJ would consider all of the 20 proposals that did not make the final cuts but were in the "semi-finals" Crooker said. That list includes includes Big Spring

"I think this is encouraging," Crooker said. "We have the possibility of being reconsidered and the proposal we offered is still an excellent one. This will give them more time to consider all the enhancements we had proposed during the last 10 days of the selection.

"It would be the same package that we had proposed to the state before," Crooker said. "I feel that in the last 10 days or two weeks their work became quite hectic and they didn't have sufficient time to make a complete and total analysis of the costs that came in at the last; I minute

BIG SPRING — The American Red Cross of Howard and Glasscock counties will hold a fundraiser chili supper at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Scurry Street First United Methodist Church.

The submission of photographs which detailed the injuries drew protest from Dunn's attorney, Robert Moore III, who did not obiect to the first two photographs but argued subsequent pictures did not enhance details of the injury and were done soley to prejudice the minds of the jurors.

Hamby disagreed, saying once the first pictures had been admitted as evidence any other similiar photos he would offer should also be allowed to be entered into evidence. The objection was overruled by 118th District Court Judge James Gregg, and Hamby submitted a total of five pictures of Mrs. Dunn before dismissing Rember.

When Hamby attempted to have Rember testify concerning the type of weapon used and what its effects would be, Moore objected, saying he wanted more qualifications from Rember as a gun expert if he was to testify as a gun expert. Rember himself earlier told Hamby he was a gun hobbyist, but added, "I don't consider myself a firearms expert.'

Hamby responded, "I'll withdraw the question. I don't want toy do anything to upset Bob (Moore).

Dunn, who remained on the police force on probation after his wife's shooting, was later dismissed after he was arrested on a charge of public intoxication.

Court officials say Dunn's trial is expected to last about three days. If Dunn is convicted, he could face a maximum of 20 years in prison.

But he said the process of narrowing the field of 44 proposals to six winners was open and fair to all applicants.

Four of the prisons will be built with $200 million in bonds approved by voters last Tuesday. The other two units will be built with $138 million remaining in the 1987 bond issue, said prison board spokesman David Nunnelee.

Criminal Justice Board names new prison sites

Nunnelee said bids for the first units should be taken in May or June, with construction starting in August.

The large units should take 18 to 24 months, the smaller units 14 to 18 months, he said.

Groups making presentations included a woman dressed as a bee in the Beeville section and a rap song by a supporter in the Freestone County delegation.

Most cited the need for economic development as the reason for seeking a prison. Incentive packages included up to $2 million in cash from Angelina County, hundreds of acres of land, lower utility rates, hospital space, homes for prison employees and scholarships for their children.

In the voting on the larger units, Abilene with six votes and Beeville with eight were selected on the first ballot.

Jefferson County won a runoff with Bell County for the third prison.

In the competition for the smaller units, Freestone County topped the balloting with seven votes. Childress and Dilley each had six to round out the winners.

Lamesa did not win a prison despite support from two political heavyweights - Rep. Jim Rudd of Brownfield, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and

Sen. John Montford, chairman of the Senate State Affairs Committee.

Mayor threatened

ALTON (AP) - Police have placed the mayor of this South Texas town under protection because of threats made against her since a September school bus accident in which 21 students died.

The threats against Mayor San Juanita Zamora recently have increased in volume and intensity, authorities said.

"I just wish I could have some peace of mind," said Ms. Zamora.

She said rumors and anonymous letters circulated in the Hidalgo County community of about 2,000 have affected her personal, business and political life.

Acting Police Chief Manuel Martinez said the case is under investigation.

An anonymous letter written in Spanish was circulated to homes early Sunday morning in Alton, lodging various accusations against her.

Twenty-one junior and senior high school students died in the Sept. 21 accident in Alton, after a soft drink truck ran into a school bus, knocking the bus over a 40-foot cliff into a flooded pit.

Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co. officials have hired 24-hour security protection for the truck driver, Ruben Perez of Mission, because of threats he reportedly received after the wreck.

A new Texas Poll released Sunday showed that more than 80 percent of Texans believe there should be limits on free trips given logislators by lobbyists and that there should be limits on the value of gifts offered by lobbyists. More than 70 percent also said there should be limits on meals purchased for lawmakers by lobbyists.

But Clements said no. "I think a subject as sensitive as ethics - and it is sensitive within the legislative bodies — is best left to a regular session," the governor told The Dallas Morning News.

In addition, Clements, who describes himself as anti-abortion, disappointed pro-life forces last month when he ruled out allowing the Legislature to consider stricter regulations on abortion.

So what's left? Plenty.

Heading the list of possibilities. according to several lawmakers, is the method of choosing state judges.

A federal judge last week ruled that Texas' at-large system of electing state judges in the nine largest counties was illegal. U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton III prescribed no specific remedy, but he urged the Legislature to revise the current election system during this special session.

The current system in the largest counties was challenged as discriminating against minorities. Anglos hold 155 of the 172 trial judge seats in the nine counties.

Lawmakers also said reform of the Public Utility Commission may be considered.

The three-member panel that regulates telephone and electric utilities in Texas has been highly controversial, and Clements has voiced disapproval with the public squabbling among members.

In the wake of a South Texas truck-school bus collision that killed 21 children when their bus was knocked into a water-filled gravel pit, Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, has filed a bill to require more highway guard rails and toughen regulation of such pits breakthrough they say may be a major step toward creating a natural rubber industry in Texas and the Southwest.

Scientists have found a way to increase the rubber-producing capability of a native desert shrub. The discovery may help reduce America's dependence on rubber grown in Southeast Asia, said Dr. Chauncey Benedict of the A&M Biochemistry and Biophysics department.

The shrub, guayule, produces high-quality natural rubber during cold winter months. The shrub is a gray-green and grows wild in the Chihuahuan Desert, which includes the Big Bend area in West Texas.

Groups object

to Hampton report

AUSTIN (AP) - Three groups, including the Texas Civil Liberties Union, today filed formal objections to a special master's report on state District Judge Jack Hampton of Dallas, who said a mitigating factor in sentencing a murder trial defendant was that the victims were "queers."

In a report to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct, special master Robert Murray didn't find bias or misconduct on Hampton's part. He found only that Hampton had violated the Code of Judicial Conduct by talking about a case that was pending appeal.

The TCLU, Texas Human Rights Foundation and Austin chapter of the National Lawyers' Guild today urged the commission to reject that report and find that Hampton violated rules of conduct for judges.

"In order to preserve the integrity of the Texas judiciary and the Commission on Judicial Conduct and to ensure public confidence and trust in those institutions, this commission must reject the conclusions of Special Master Robert Murray," the groups said.

The special master's report has shaken public confidence in the judiciary, the groups added.

The whole idea of the research is to find ways to make rubber cheaper by improving the crop that produces it.

The project is being funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Texas Advanced Technology Research Program.

"Establishing a natural guayule natural rubber industry in Texas can lessen the United States' dependency on about a million tons of rubber annually imported from Third-World countries which is used for making tires and medical supplies," Benedict said.

The new industry would use thousands of unused acreage in the Permian Basin and South Texas,

Commonsense precautions

Don't write it off as mere coincidence that November has once again been declared Child Safety and Protection Month by the National Parent Teachers Association. This is the month when the number of accidental child deaths from handgun wounds increases dramatically.

Death by firearms, already the fourth-leading cause of accidental death among American children aged 14 and under, rises sharply with the approach of the holiday season. According to the Center to Prevent Handgun Violence, a large number of shootings occur during November and December when children are at home on vacation. Many shootings throughout the school year happen in the afternoon when children arrive home from school and are left unsupervised.

The tragedy is that the vast majority of these child deaths are avoidable and would never occur if all parents strictly observed these three simple precautions:

Never store a loaded handgun.

Always keep it under lock and key.

Check that the same precautions are followed at all places where your child might play.

Incredibly, these common-sense rules are too often neglected by otherwise responsible parents. It seems almost illogical to lock up prescription drugs and other potential hazards such as poisonous chemicals, matches and sharp tools if loaded handguns are left in places where small children can find them. Even unloaded guns are lethal if children can also lay their hands on ammunition.

Today, more than 25 million American households own handguns, and half report keeping them loaded. A nationwide survey of junior and senior high school students showed that nearly 9 million youngsters have access to handguns in their homes. Little wonder that a recent study in The New England Journal of Medicine found that a gun in the home is 43 times more likely to kill a family member or friend than to kill an intruder.

Unfortunately, small children are strongly attracted to mechanical objects such as handguns. It is only natural that they should experiment and copy the adults they see shooting guns on television, in films and in comic books.

*At least once a day, this innocent play leads to the death of a child somewhere in the United States. It shouldn't. And it wouldn't at if every parent followed the simple safety precautions.

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." - Voltaire

The appeal of vegetarianism

By JOHN MCMILLAN Staff Writer

Last weekend I attended the annual Martin County Capon Show in Stanton and saw evidence that birds are intelligent.

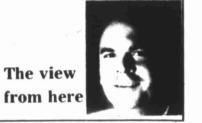

Many of the castrated roosters on display were nervous, either squawking or struggling under the grip of their owners. They apparently sensed that regardless of whether they earned their owners a prize, they'd be rewarded by a visit to the executioner.

Executioner is a strong word for the slaughterhouse. Perhaps it sounds like overkill, though, because we hear so many euphemisms regarding the fate of meaty birds. It would not even surprise me if a grocery store owner claimed that chickens benefit from being slaughtered, since they are given air-conditioned quarters once they roost in the poultry section. The capon show's director, County Extension Agent Greg Jones, employed a euphemism of his own when he noted that the Finally, just as Hindus spare the capons were destined for

It's egocentric in the extreme to conclude that animals exist on this planet solely for the sake of lending variety to humans' meals. If that were the case, why wouldn't bald eagle salad be popular in this country?

There are several reasons why it isn't. It so happens that the bald eagle is an endangered species. And bald eagles do not whet our appetite for flesh; they're less sumptuous than chickens or turkeys. cow from slaughter, it seems heretical to devour our national

But if the bald eagle is sacred in this country, and it surely ranks splitting feathers here, I doubt as one of our uglier birds, why isn't very seriously that I would have the quail, in all its captivating referred to the birds' desperate beauty, sacred? Why isn't the mourning dove left alone to confinal squawks and bloodshed as tinue its plaintive but lovely song? As much as we debate the ques-"But you're missing the point," a farmer might protest. As a vegetarian-at-heart, I sympathize with the plight of cattle. Shopping at the grocery store is always an ambivalent experience for me: I feel a distaste for meat, but have failed to develop a vegetarian alternative to my carnivorous lifestyle. The ambivalence is especially pronounced when I confront hamburger or steaks, in which the blood tells of a violent ending for some animal.

But implied blood is also distressing. I remember talking with a Sleepy Eye, Minnesota, woman about 10 years ago, who told me she had worked in a "kill room" at a meat packing plant. One of the few issues that differentiate the parties

By GEORGE F. WILL

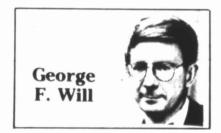

WASHINGTON - Time crawls when you are not having any fun at all, so for Democrats it must seem a century rather than a mere decade since Ted Kennedy launched his first and last presidential campaign (Nov. 7, 1979). Ten years to the day later, Democrats had fun in New York City, New Jersey and Virginia.

On any given Election Day, the party that does best talks about national trends and the other party says, plaintively, "All politics are local. In the aftermath of Tuesday's results, Republicans are sounding plaintive, although they have a small slice of a point.

The fact that New York will have yet another Democratic mayor is not momentous news, even if he is black. Virginia's new Democratic governor, who is black, will replace a popular Democrat who in turn replaced a popular Democrat. In New Jersey, people are probably more intensely interested in the issue of auto-insurance rates than anything else.

Still, the Republican Party is suffering a severe case of hamhandedness, beginning with its Maximum Leader. In September in New Jersey, President Bush said the gubernatorial election there was a referendum of the national party's values. The Republican candidate, Jim Courter, caught the spirit: "If you liked Michael Dukakis, you'll love Jim Florio." Florio beat Courter with 61 percent of the vote.

Republicans had won five victories in New Jersey in the 1980s -

Reagan carried it twice, Bush once, and Tom Keane twice won the governorship. How important was the abortion issue there and in Virginia?

There is ample evidence that most Americans spend most waking hours thinking about sex. But abortion? Most voters will not pull the voting lever for or against a candidate solely because of his position on that issue. But it can change the way voters think about an entire party. It may make the Republican Party look frivolous and cynical.

Abortion is one of the relatively few issues on which the parties are explicit and diametrically opposed. Democrats are for abortion as a fundamental constitutional right. The last three Republican platforms have called not merely for overturning the 1973 Supreme Court ruling - not merely for restoring the abortion issue to the political arena - but for a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortion. Probably 80 percent of the electorate opposes the Republican view.

Courter's campaign collapsed early when he was unprepared to comment intelligently on last summer's Supreme Court ruling that expanded states' powers to regulate abortions. Then he waffled about his previous anti-abortion views, saying he still held them but would not let his convictions influence public policy. The Republican gubernatorial candidate in Virginia, Marshall Coleman, might have won in a walk instead of losing narrowly to Douglas Wilder had he not been so strongly anti-abortion.

So from coast to coast, Republicans are tinkering with what they smilingly call their convictions. They are seeking graceful, or at any rate the least disgraceful, ways to say, "Er . . . um . . . well . . . on-theother-hand, that stuff we said about abortion being the murder of 'preborn babies'? We never meant it.' That will be the first truthful thing many of them have said on the subject for years. This party-wide exercise in, shall we say, clarification will require presidential leadership.

This decade dawned with candidate Bush unburdening himself on the subject in the pages of Rolling Stone (March, 1980). There he said of the Court's 1973 decision: "I happen to think it was right." He happened to think that saying so would help him politically. It did not then, but it may now. So look for yet another U-turn, like the one he took in late summer 1980 to get from pandering to Rolling Stone readers to running with Reagan.

The Republican Party prospered in the 1980s because it was accord-— sometimes grudgingly — the ed respect that comes to institutions that have moral gravity. It had a seriousness that seemed admirable even to many people who were skeptical about its wisdom. Now, as the party begins the entertaining spectacle of wriggling off the hook on which it has impaled itself, it is in danger of sounding simply silly

Today the President, hero of last month's successful struggle to prevent public aid from reaching impoverished victims of rape and incest, sounds somehow softer. The day after the election, he said he would never, ever, change his position. But what is it this week? "I just come down more on the side of the life." Wriggle, wriggle.

We who opposed the 1973 ruling when we read it rather than when we read polls about it have always seen the synthetic nature of much Republican opposition to it. Now everyone shall see the insincerity as the political bill comes due for a decade of opportunism. More and more Republicans are going to say, "'Murder'? No, actually we meant 'mistake.'" And; "Outlaw abortion'? Where did that cockamamie idea come from?' More and more voters will say, 'Be serious. No, come to think about, don't. We like you better the way you are."

Private pension funds vulnerable to abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) - The instances of fraud and abuse that enormous size of the nation's private pension system is frustrating government watchdogs, who warn that the retirement savings of millions of working Americans are vulnerable to fraud and mismanagement.

The most alarming reports come from the Labor Department's inspector general's office, which says failure to shore up the laws and bolster enforcement could result in a taxpayer-funded bailout dwarfing the recent savings and loan crisis.

"There's an insidious and steady siphoning off, which ultimately affects the employees," says Raymond Maria, acting inspector general for the Labor Department. 'I am convinced there is substantial fraud and abuse.

An Associated Press investigation found that at least one-fourth of the private pension plans audited by the government are in violation of the law – yet the odds of any individual program being checked are less than one in a hundred

In others, employers never made required contributions, with pensioners discovering only upon retirement that the money was missing. Still other companies have simply dumped their pension obligations on a government insurance program that already is $1.5 billion in the red.

What makes the system most vulnerable, officials say, is its size. Frequently described as "the largest lump of money in the world," the nation's private pension plans hold assets of $2 trillion, or roughly $8,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Those funds cover some 76

SWAPO fails in bid for control

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) -The black nationalist movement that waged guerrilla war against South African rule won the most votes in Namibia's preindependence elections but not enough to claim total power, according to unofficial results today.

According to tentative final figures, the South-West Africa People's Organization won 332,538 votes, just under 50 percent of the 670,273 votes cast. Its main rival, the Democratic Turnhalle Alliance, won 165,430 votes, or about 25 percent.

At stake in the election, conducted last week under U.N. supervision, were 72 seats in an assembly that will write a constitution and declare independence for Namibia sometime next year after 74 years of South African rule.

SWAPO's leaders had predicted their leftist movement, which took up arms against South Africa in 1966, would easily win the two-thirds majority that would have enabled it to write the constitution without consulting other parties.

Instead, it will need to bargain with its rivals, notably the Democratic Turnhalle Alliance, a multi-racial coalition that served in the South African-installed transitional government and favors a capitalist economy.

The real thing

PLUM, Pa. (AP) - Animal rights activists figure they got the last laugh on nightclub operators who offered a fulllength raccoon coat as a prize in an Elvira look-alike contest: A protester won the contest wearing a costume donated by the real Elvira.

"This is going to be one less fur on the street," said Aileen Linhard of Animal Care and Welfare, after fellow activist Jeanie Brown, 38, of Pittsburgh won the contest Saturday at Nikki's, a club in this Pittsburgh suburb.

About 35 people protested outside while 350 watched the contest

Cassandra Peterson - an animal rights activist who adopts the Elvira persona on late-night television in a low-cut black dress - donated the winning costume to a group called Mobilization for Animals.

At one point, an activist who infiltrated the audience at Nikki's yelled, "Elvira hates furs.

Ms. Browne didn't say what the fate of the coat would be.

Club manager Nick A. Veltri said he thought she entered the contest under false pretenses, but still planned to turn over the fur.

"Whatever she does with it is her business," he said

Garden eyesore

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — One man's garden can be another's eyesore, especially when the landscaping is a 6-foottall, front-yard patch of wildflowers

Some residents of this tony Cleveland suburb want Joseph Gyurgyik's lawn returned to a more traditional decor, particularly now, as the oncecolorful display is turning brown and wilting.

"I think it's an absolute eyesore," said neighbor Carolyn Wallace.

The city's Architectural Board of Review has declared the display in violation of a ban on inappropriate landscaping, but Gyurgyik said he will fight that ruling and any others.

The controversy has prompted city officials to try to tighten up the definition of what's appropriate in matters

By SUE ANN JONES Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO (AP) – Ulysses Barnes planted an idea last spring in the Sharondale Addition. And it's been growing ever since.

Louis Mooney, another Sharondale resident, said it was Barnes who thought a weed-choked lot in the neighborhood could become a community garden.

"I'd always had a little garden behind my house," Mooney said. "I don't know why I didn't think of it before.

"This is one of the few vacant lots out here, and a lot of times it was full of weeds, six feet tall. The neighbors would have to call the city to come out and mow it, and the owner would have to pay. We have a very nice neighborhood, and we didn't like the weeds," said Mooney, who teaches earth science at Tennyson Middle School in Waco.

"Mr. Barnes got the idea to turn this lot into something productive. He got together with four other men out here, and we planted our first crops the first week in April." he said.

Incollu

Besides Barnes and Mooney, the other Sharondale gardeners are Roscoe Booker, a 20-year service technician for Sears: Bertrand Williams, a medical technician; and Robert Jordan, a carpet layer and substitute teacher.

The men and their families have lived in the Sharondale Addition on Waco's north side from 15 to 22 years, said Mooney.

After getting permission from the landowner, the men had the acre lot cleared and plowed, then they shared the labor - and the produce.

That's the fun of it," said Mooney. "That's the number one thing, the pleasure of learning and working together. Some of the men didn't know anything about gardens. I didn't know that much about it myself. But it was the cooperation among the men. It wasn't hard at all, because each one did his part. We shared the tillers and the hoes and things.

The men did all the gardening.

"The women helped with the canning and freezing and eating," said Mooney. "We had bushels and bushels. We didn't keep track or pay much attention to how much we raised. We just gave it to our neighbors and friends. We made sure we didn't waste anything. Now I've got a freezer full of blackeyed peas. They planned four 150-foot rows of peas and corn, two rows of cucumbers, two rows of okra, two rows of okra, two rows of tomatoes and five rows of watermelons. The watermelons "just took over — you couldn't even see the ground for all the vines," Mooney said.

The gardeners shared their produce with other neighbors, too. 'They've all been very supportive; they love it," he said.

'It's all voluntary. We didn't all go there at once. When a person had time to go, he would go, and when another person had time, he went. Sometimes, we were fortunate enough to all be there together," he said.

The men now are tending a fall garden of collards, purple-hulled peas, Swiss chard, beets, cabbage, string beans, spinach, onions and other crops, and plan to continue their project year-round.

Archaeologists want sites to be preserved

EL PASO (AP) - Two archaeologists have discovered four area sites abundant with well-preserved ancient Indian rock art and are asking federal officials that they be designated as national monuments.

the standard for any service and a

Gerald X. Fitzgerald and Alex Apostolides hope the designation will save the art from vandalism and ensure their preservation. Some of the art is located at a Fort Hancock site where the government is considering building a fow-level nuclear dump.

The petroglyphs, or rock carvings, and pictographs, or rock paintings, are estimated to range from 3,000 to 6,000 years old.

The archaeologists found the art in the Alamo Canyon near Fort Hancock, about 50 miles southeast of El Paso; Coranudas Peak near El Paso; Alamo Mountain in southern New Mexico; and in Three Rivers, about 30 miles north of Alamogordo, N.M.

The four sites are tied together by the same art styles, Apostolides said. Together, they contain more than 30,000 carvings and paintings.

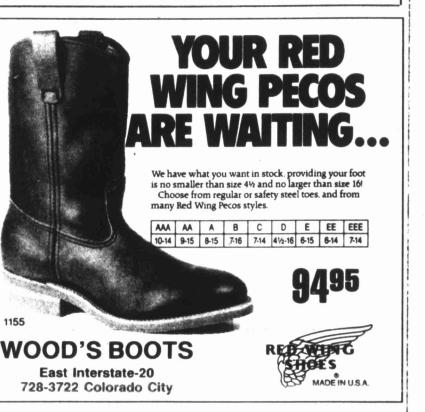

"I call them ancient art galleries," said Apostolides, curator of the El Paso Wilderness Park Museum. Kay Sutherland, an Austin anthropologist who helped discover many of the carvings and paintings at the sites, said they are unique because the art is so wellpreserved and not vandalized, unlike rock-art sites in California The Fort Hancock site contains the largest single concentration of archaic hunting scenes in the United States, and Three Rivers contains hundreds of carvings of masks, which are not commonly found, Ms. Sutherland said. The masks represent gods, she said.

"The artistic quality of the petroglyphs and pictographs rivals patterns and motifs of bowls, blankets and masks that are in national museums," Ms. Sutherland said.

U.S. Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, has asked the House Interior Committee to approve the archaeologists' request for national monument designation.

Congress must make the designation.

DEAR ABBY: You recently ran a letter from a widow whose daughters, meaning to be helpful, had gone to her home and cleaned out all the evidence of her deceased husband. As a rather recent widow. may I comment on those who are carrying on without their partners?

It gives me much comfort to have my late husband's pictures around me. I "talk" to them. Yesterday I even scolded him, saying, "You know I hate being alone. Why aren't you here to help me?"

I am always pleased when I see my young adult son wearing one of his father's good shirts. (He wore his dad's favorite tie at his recent graduation.) If all those things had been given away, I would miss reliving so many happy memories. My husband was an avid sailor and had many books on sailing. Had I given them to a rummage sale, they would have meant nothing. I gave them as gifts to his sailing friends who treasure them, knowing they came from a real sailing expert. His notes and comments scribbled in the margin enhanced their value. Even an old dish that was his is on my desk holding paper clips and rubber bands. Why should I discard useful objects because they were his and he is gone?

It's true, those things can be painful reminders, but one way to Officially, it was Tony Zendejas' fourth field goal of the game, a 28-yarder as time ran out, that won the game. A game that through three quarters was a penalty-filled roughhouse affair became in the final period a duel between Moon and Boomer Esiason

Moon won the duel with his Cincinnati counterpart with a 15-play, 70-yard drive to the winning field goal. Moon milked the clock, hitting Haywood Jeffires for 20 yards to start the drive and scrambling for 10 on a key third-down and 10.

"It was a great way to win it," Houston coach Jerry Glanville. "If you go ahead of them with two or three minutes left, you're in trouble. This is probably the only way we could have won it."

"It was just a matter of not turning the ball over and not trying to force anything," said Moon, who finished with 17 completions in 33 attempts. He had a 23-yard touchdown pass to Leonard Harris in the fourth quarter that gave the Oilers a short-lived 23-21 lead.

Crossroads O Chalk Talk

What was the final regular season week for most Crossroads Country football teams turned out to be a good one. Of the 10 area teams, seven won, including two who won over other area teams.

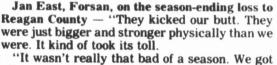

Three area teams head into the state playoffs this week. Sands (10-0), a 36-30 winner over Borden County (6-3-1), and Grady (6-4), a 55-2 winner over Dawson, are the District 6A, Six-Man candidates. Runnerup Grady will play Fort Hancock in Wink Friday at 8 p.m., and champion Sands will play Marathon in Imperial at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The other team headed to the playoffs is 5-2A champ Stanton (8-2), a 49-6 winner over Marfa. Stanton will play Ozona in Ozona Friday at 8 p.m

Big Spring (7-2) and Garden City (7-2), two other playoff teams, have one game left in regular season play. Big Spring outfought Snyder 28-16 and Garden City whipped Sterling City 69-0.

The Coahoma Bulldogs and Colorado City Wolves both finished the season with 4-6 records by virtue of Colorado City's 8-2 win. Klondike (5-5) finished the season by drubbing Loop 42-8, and Forsan (3-6) ended the season on a losing note - falling to Reagan County 33-20.

Here is what area coaches had to say about those games, and the future.

all we could get out of the kids. We had 17 kids that could play, and they all played. The record wasn't that good, but we did what we could and had fun coaching the kids.

Tom Ramsey, Colorado City, on the big win over Coahoma - "It was a defensive battle on both sides. Both defenses played well. Two keys that stand out in my mind: In the second quarter, on fourth down, Cervantez (Coahoma punter, Carlos Cervantez) couldn't get the kick off, we trapped him at the at 23. We had to go 23 yards for our score. "Mike Boatwright's interception down at 5-yard line in the third quarter was the other key.

Sam Scott, Garden City, on the slaughter of Sterling City, and this week's game with Robert "We took care of business in prime form. Lee. -We scored 10 touchdowns in 10 possessions, no turnovers and no punts. That's very unusual. "I didn't know we'd score 10 touchdowns, but I knew we could move the ball. We're playing well. the kids hit another gear, they've turned it up a notch. Now's a good time to do it.

'Robert Lee played pretty well early in the year. Now they've played one good ballgame in last four. They haven't been real consistent. The SAM SCOTT kids (G-City) are ready to go to the playoffs."

Steve Park, Coahoma, on the tough loss to Colorado City. - "We weren't quite ready to play, and Colorado City got after us. They came out ready and we weren't. We didn't block their down people too well. They came through us pretty much. "The kids accomplished some things, we have some success and really gave the program a boost. It's something to build upon. David Thompson, Big Spring, on the win over Snyder, and this week's regular finale against winless Fort Stockton - We played real well defensively; offensively we played sporadic. They (Snyder) had something to do with it. As far as hitting, we hit good and swarmed on the ball. It just wasn't that good offensively. "It was probably the first time all year that we've gotten whipped on the offensive line. We need to throw a little better. But when we had to have it, we did it. We'll know someting about Joe UNLV, which added junior college player of the year Larry Johnson to a deep, veteran roster, was the easy choice on Monday as the No. 1 team in The Associated Press' Top 25 college basketball poll.

The Runnin' Rebels, which finished last season 29-8 and one victory shy of the Final Four, received 30 of 65 first-place votes and 1,555 points from the nationwide panel of sportwriters and broadcasters to easily outdistance Louisiana State for the top spot.

"I just hope they're all right," UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian said when told of the No. 1 ranking. "I like our team very much, I like our LSU, which will feature sophomore sensation Chris Jackson as well as a frontline bolstered by freshman Shaquille O'Neal and Prop 48 sophomore Stanley Roberts, had 14 first-place votes and 1,447 points, 16 more than Syracuse, which had eight firstplace votes.

Defending national champion Michigan was next with seven firstplace votes and 1,415 points, just three ahead of Georgetown, which had four first-place votes. Arizona, North Carolina, Illinois, Arkansas and Duke rounded out the Top Ten.

Arizona, the No. 1 team in last season's final poll, had one firstplace vote, the same number as Arkansas, the seventh and final team to be No. 1 on a ballot.

Missouri was 11th and was followed by Louisville, UCLA, In-Seton Hall, the national runner up last season, was the highest ranked team from last season not to be included in the preseason voting. The Pirates lost all five starters from last year's team.

Eighth-ranked Illinois and No. 10 Duke were the other members of last season's Final Four, while St. John's was the NIT champion.

Three conferences each had four teams in the preseason poll: Big East (Syracuse, Georgetown, Pittsburgh and St. John's), Big Ten (Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota), and Atlantic Coast Conference (North Carolina, Duke, North Carolina State and Georgia Tech)

"One of our goals was to be in the Top 25 this year," Duke coach Steve Spurrier said. "It's an honor for our program and a credit to our players that we made it. But what we really want is to be ranked at the end of the season.

While there were changes at the bottom of the rankings, the top seven remained unchanged -Notre Dame, Colorado, Michigan, Alabama, Florida State, Nebraska and Miami.

Notre Dame, which clobbered Southern Methodist 59-6, received 57 first-place votes and 1,497 of a possible 1,500 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Colorado, which beat Oklahoma State 41-17, received the other three first-place votes and 1,439 points.

Michigan defeated Illinois 24-10. On the next series, however, Alabama downed Louisiana State William Fuller sacked Esiason for 32-16, Nebraska routed Kansas 51-14 and Miami beat Pittsburgh

24-3. Florida State did not play. Rounding out the Top 10 are Southern Cal, Tennessee and Arkansas. Southern Cal moved up one spot after beating Arizona 24-3, Tennessee went from No. 11 to No. 9 after crushing Akron 52-9 and

Arkansas remained No. 10 following a 19-10 win over Baylor. Auburn is No. 11, followed by Illinois, Houston, Texas A&M, Clemson, Virginia, Penn State, West Virginia, Pittsburgh, Texas Tech, Brigham Young, Ohio State and Fresno State. Ohio State moved into the Top 25 after blanking Iowa 28-0, while Florida, N.C. State and Arizona dropped out following losses.

Of the teams still ranked, Illinois, Pitt and Penn State fell the farthest. Illinois dropped from No. 8 to No. 12 after losing to Michigan, Pitt plunged from No. 14 to No. 19 after losing to Miami and Penn State went from No. 13 to No. 17 after tying Maryland 13-13.

NEW YORK (AP) - Singer Michael Jackson spent an evening at the circus with a 4-year-old leukemia victim whose father earlier triggered a court-ordered manhunt when he spirited the child away from chemotherapy treatment.

Darian Pagan of Brooklyn, and his family spent Saturday evening in Santa Monica, Calif., with Jackson, 31, courtesy of a Long Island-based charity, New York Newsday said in Monday's editions.

Jackson, 31, his shoulder-length hair in curls, wore a black hat and a black jacket with black-sequined cuffs and epaulets.

'He's shy, just like me," said the reclusive entertainer. "It makes me proud that this is his dream. I'm happy to fulfill it.

"It's part of my gift to make everybody happy and to bring joy to everyone, especially children like this," Jackson said. "My dream is to do a tour and see all the world's children, all the hungry kids. Imagine that," he said. 'Just seeing his reaction made my

When officials from the charity, Wish is Granted, called, the child's mother, Migdalia Pagan turned down offers of a bedroom set or a Nintendo game. "He wants to meet Michael Jackson," she said she told them.

Darian mimics Jackson's moonwalk dance step and watches his music videos over and over, she said. Attention, anglers: Toll-free number available By BILL SCHULZ

Associated Press Writer

Anglers who want up-to-theminute reports on fishing conditions on the East Coast can dial a toll-number to find the best places to cast their lines.

Appropriately called The Fishing Line, the information service covers the Northeast and expanded to Florida this fall. It will soon cover the entire East Coast.

Tips and daily reports on fresh and saltwater fishing can be obtained through a 900-number that costs $1.25 for the first minute and 75 cents for each additional minute.

"It was really conceived from

'I found it was very handy once I got past the people who told me, 'My God, they're just knocking them dead out here.' Then when I got there, "they'd say," You should have been here three hours ago.'

When he found some shops were receiving 300 calls a day, he thought, "If we could hook them together into an accessible system, we'd have something.'

The system could work, he said.

For the service, Schroeder put together a stringer system of newspaper outdoor writers, bait shop operators and well-known fishermen.

The Northeast operation is the pattern for the service. Here's how it works

The angler dials 1-900-740-7474. A recording gives the cost per minute and tells the caller if he wants to continue, press 1 for fresh water, 2 for salt and 3 for famous fishermen.

If the choice were saltwater

if it could be made accessible simp-ly by "banging some numbers into a touchtone." fishing, Ben Callaway of the Philadelphia Inquirer would give a short overview of fishing along his part of the coast. Then Callaway might say "for more on that blue fishing surf action off Ocean City, press 1212," Schroeder said. Pushing 1212 brings a report from a bait shop correspondent at the scene

Nine writers provide overviews of the Northeast.

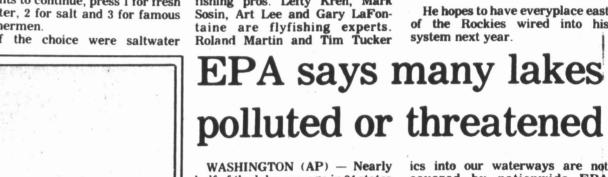

Punching 3 allows the caller to get tips from one or more of nine fishing pros. Lefty Kreh, Mark Sosin, Art Lee and Gary LaFontaine are flyfishing experts.

angling.

"I couldn't be competitive with a newspaper, but I wanted to sort of act like the old-time radio shows, a very personal conversation with somebody," Schroeder said.

Florida was added to the Northeast because of its tremendous recreational fishing, Schroeder said.

He hopes to have everyplace east of the Rockies wired into his system next year.

half of the lake acreage in 34 states is badly polluted or likely soon to become that way, the Environmental Protection Agency said today.

The EPA's latest survey of lake water quality shows that serious pollution problems have impaired about one-fourth of more than 12 million acres of lakes examined in those states. Pollution threatens similar impairment in another 20 percent of the lake acres.

While the causes for the lake pollution varied, three-fourths of the pollution was attributed to agricultural and urban runoffs. Another 11-percent was blamed on industrial or sewage releases and the remainder to natural causes.

Meanwhile, the EPA was named in a lawsuit Monday charging that the agency has failed to develop national standards for toxic pollution of public waterways.

Two environmental and public interest groups, the Natural Resources Defense Council and Public Citizen, claimed in the suit filed in U.S. District Court that the EPA was violating the Clean Water Act by allowing millions of pounds of unregulated toxic waste to be released into waterways.

"Over two-thirds of the industrial facilities that release toxics into our waterways are not covered by nationwide EPA regulations," said Robert Adler of the Natural Resources Defense Council.

The suit claimed that at least 70 million pounds of unregulated toxic wastes are released directly into waterways or through public sewage systems by sources ranging from pharmaceutical companies to the mining and textile industries.

The EPA had no immediate comment on the lawsuit.

The agency's lake quality report said the most significant cause of lake impairment was excessive plant and algae growth resulting from high levels of nutrients being released into the water. Often those releases came from sewage facilities or agricultural runoff, the study said.

Such unwanted plant and algae growth often harms recreational activity and reduces a lake's scenic value. But more importantly, the growth depletes necessary oxygen and chokes off other life, including fish, said Erik Olson, an attorney with the National Wildlife Association.

Olson said the EPA findings understate the true problem with water pollution nationwide

3 hunters killed

AUSTIN (AP) - Three unters were mistaken for game and killed the first veekend of deer season in lexas, it was reported thursday.

Terry Erwin of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the department also has received preliminary reports of n o woundings and injuries over the weekend.

I believe every accident is preventable, every one," Erwin, hunter education represenative, told the Austin American-Statesman. "All these were mistaken for game and if they'd had on blaze orange vests it probably wouldn't have happened." Blaze orange clothing for hunters is required on state wildlife management areas but not on private land, where most uniting takes place.

Texas has approximately 1.2 million hunters, according to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Steve Hall, hunter safety coordinator, said the three most recent deaths bring to six the number of hunting-related fatalities in Texas in 1989. One of the first three occurred toward the close of the 1988-89 deer season, another in duck season and the third in a spring raccoon hunting accident production

AUSTIN - The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's fish hatcheries had an excellent production year in 1989, with more than 17.7 million fingerlings of 18 species and about 95 million fry stocked in the state's waters. Gene McCarty, assistant hatchery chief for the department's Fish Hatchery Branch, said most of the game fish species stocked have seen increases in numbers over 1988. "Overall, the system has worked well, especially since the new A. E. Wood Hatchery in San Marcos and new ponds at the GCCA-CPL Marine Development Center went on line," McCarty said.

He added that another successful program was the firstever stockings of more than 34,000 paddlefish into B.A. Steinhagen Reservoir in the department's only scientific area as part of the paddlefish restoration program.

The department has stocked almost 2.8 million Florida largemouth bass this year, Mc-Carty said. New reservoirs such as Richland-Chambers and Ray Roberts received more than 1.8 million of the fingerlings.

"Production was extremely good again this year, allowing us to stock excellent-quality fingerlings," said Pat Hutson, Florida bass program leader.

Bill Bowling, native fish program leader, said overall production of catfish, sunfish and crappie increased by some 30 percent over 1988.

"More than 1.2 million channel and blue catfish fingerlings and about 1.6 million sunfish and crappie fingerlings have already been stocked, and more stockings of some sunfish species will be added later," he said

Production of striped bass and hybrid striped bass fry and fingerlings was also higher this year. Joe Warren, hatchery striped bass program leader from the Dundee Hatchery at Electra, said the striped bass program has improved every year in some way what has increased numbers and quality of fingerlings produced.

"This year's total striped bass production exceeded 10.2 million fry and fingerlings, and hybrid (white/striped) bass fry and fingerlings were over 4.4 million," Warren said.

suing their obscure sport amid the skyscrapers of Manhattan have decided to do something about the acute shortage of cliffs: They've built an indoor climbing wall.

Clambering across a plywood crag may lack the visceral thrills of scaling a 300-foot cliff in upstate New York or a soaring spire in the Rockies. But the fake wall that opened Oct. 12 offers climbers a chance to practice most of the basic rock moves.

And more important, it's close to home.

'It's great,'' said Pierre Vaz, one of about 60 climbers who turned out for opening festivities. "This is a perfect time for it to open, because it's starting to get nippy outside.'

The wall, in a little-used city recreation center on West 59th Sreet not far from the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, occupies one end of an old paddleball court.

Bolted to the wall are knobby holds cast of sand and plastic resin in a variety of shapes, from easily grasped "buckets" to pockets just big enough to grasp with one finger, to narrow, sloping edges that offer minimum purchase for fingertips or toes.

Protected by safety ropes, climbers puzzle out routes to the top, or move delicately from one side of the wall to the other in that vertical ballet mountaineers call traversing.

Installing the wall was more a political feat than a technical one. About 18 months ago, climbers who keep their skills sharp by working out on boulders in Central Park found the rangers seemed to be making a special effort to chase them away. Normally a disorganized lot, they formed a loose alliance called the City Climbers Club of New York to lobby parks officials to call off the troops Organizer Ralph Erenzo says he was pleasantly surprised to find city officials receptive to the new club's overtures.

They quickly agreed to call off the rangers if the climbers would agree to avoid a few well-traveled spots.

Then, when the climbers mentioned they were worried about twisting their ankles on rocks sticking out of the ground at the base of their favorite 20-foot cliff, "Rat Rock," the city sent in a backhoe to clear the ground and laid in a layer of shock-absorbing wood chips.

designing and building exhibits for trade shows. "It showed them we weren't a bunch of yahoos.'

It turned out Erenzo's contact in the parks hierarchy was anxious to encourage off-beat sports. William Castro, the Parks & Recreation Department's assistant commissioner for recreation, already had helped organize frisbee championships, skateboard contests and BMX bicycle exhibitions.

And Castro had dabbled with climbing in an Outward Boundstyle confidence-building program the city offers for teen-agers.

"There's a thrill from it that I don't think you get in many organized sports - you're challenging yourself and seeing what you're made of," Castro said. 'It's a real test of the individual.'

When Erenzo started talking about artificial walls, the city's biggest worry was the risk of someone falling and filing a lawsuit.
