Forecast for the Big Spring area: Mostly sunny and windy Saturday. Low tonight near 25. High Saturday in the upper 50s. The high Thursday was 68, with a low of 29.

ON THE SIDE:

Injured man arrested

BIG SPRING — A major accident apparently involving alcohol sent a local man to the hospital Thursday night.

According to a Big Spring Police Department report, Kenneth Evans McGruder, 43, 4111 Parkway, was taken to the Veterans Administration Hospital by ambulance with slight injuries. McGruder later was arrested and charged with felony driving while intoxicated, failure to maintain a single lane and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

McGruder was driving a 1978 Cadillac westbound in the 1800 block of Third Street at about 8:30 p.m., according to the report. His left the roadway, crossed a lane of traffic, hit a dirt embankment, struck a tree and finally came to a stop, the report said.

Oil spill victim

KIEL, Wis. — Volunteer Mike Hoeffler uses detergent to scrub one of over 100 ducks contaminated when 1,000 gallons of fuel oil seeped from an underground storage tank at the Lake dairy processing plant in Kiel, and made its way to the Sheboygan River nearby.

1989 fire report

BIG SPRING — Overall fire damages decreased by nearly $90,000 in 1989, while the number of calls firefighters responded to grew, according to recent findings of an annual fire report.

Big Spring ended the year with a $935,450 loss from fire damage, down from the $965,710 damage the previous year, according to the report. But Fire Marshall Burr Lea Settles said today it's difficult to draw conclusions from yearly fire damage reports.

"A lot of the dollar amount depends on what kind of fires you had" during the previous year, he said. A $375,000 fire at the State Park Reservoir contributed to the larger loss due to fire in 1988, he said.

Big Spring had five major structural fires in 1989, causing $325,000 damage, Settles said in the report. Causes for those fires range from undetermined to one that was believed started intentionally to cover a burglary, he said.

Settles also noted there were two downtown fires, one of which destroyed the second established Moffatt Carpet Store for an estimated $100,000 loss, and another fire in the same block that destroyed another $100,000-valued building.

Leslye Schulze was convicted for felony criminal mischief in the second offense.

Settles said in an effort to decrease fires and resulting damages the fire department intends to begin a new fire inspection program beginning in Spring. Settles said he hopes the inspections can point out fire hazards to businesses and make people more fire conscious.

Tax increase predicted to fund schools

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — Restructuring the state's school finance system, which was ordered by the Texas Supreme Court in October, will require a tax increase, according to Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield.

An idea by Gov. Bill Clements to consolidate school districts to avoid a tax increase won't work, said Rudd who addressed the annual Martin County Chamber of Commerce banquet Thursday night.

Labeling the inequities of poor and rich school districts in Texas as unfair, he said, "A tax bill is the only answer."

"I'll vote for a tax bill and I told the governor I would," said Rudd who admitted that could make him unpopular. "He (Clements) says he will not sign a tax bill."

However, Rudd, who just returned from a meeting of the Govern-

"A tax bill is the only answer. (Some schools are) paying three times the taxes and getting half the results. It is not fair. What we need to do is get everybody better and not get half better and half worse." — State Legislator Jim Rudd on the issue of funding for Texas school districts nor's Task Force on School Finance, predicted that a bigger 1992 tax bill will be passed than in 1986. "Whoever is governor will sign it," he said.

Rudd, who was appointed to the task force in November, said he is also inclined to vote against having a state lottery which would bring in a projected $6-$8 million a year.

"That puts me, in my district, in a bind," he acknowledged. A survey of his district shows that people want the lottery, he said.

"I have always voted against a lottery and it'll pass in this district," he said. He noted that he also voted against having bingo and horse racing, both of which passed.

The task force will attempt to devise a new state school finance plan before the Legislature convenes in special session Feb. 27. That session has been called to address school financing and a single-member district judicial election plan for nine state counties.

Rudd, illustrating the unfairness of the present school finance system, cited figures on the Morton and Whiteface school districts in Cochran County. There are 28 school districts in his legislative area.

Morton collects 96 cents per $100 valuation while Whiteface collects 30 cents. However, an average of $4,000 is spent on each student every year in the Morton district while an average of $9,600 is spent on each student in the Whiteface district.

"They're paying three times the taxes and getting half the results," he said. "It is not fair."

Rudd also criticized a recent California school reform plan, saying that children in rich districts lost more than children in poor school districts gained.

"What we need to do is get everybody better and not get half better and half worse," he said.

Another strain on the budget will come from the workmen's compensation bill which was passed by the Legislature in November, he said. It will cost $60 million the first year and more in the following years.

"It's going to continue to rise, no doubt about that," he said. "I'm not going to say it's good. I'm just going to say it's over," he said referring to five years of study that went into the bill.

He said increased costs will also

Quayle tries soothing Latins

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Vice President Dan Quayle's mission to soothe Latin American ire over the U.S. invasion of Panama is on a stormy course even before his itinerary is set, diplomatic sources said.

"People are very skeptical about it. You invade and then you try to convince us that an invasion is not an invasion. He tries to patronize us," said a Costa Rican official, referring to President Bush.

Quayle's office said no Latin countries have refused to talk to the vice president, but other sources said sentiment in Venezuela is such that Caracas could signal it does not welcome a visit at this time.

"Maybe the government will say, 'OK, you are welcome, but in two or three years,'" said one diplomatic source, laughing to indicate he was exaggerating the Venezuelan sentiment to the Quayle trip.

Most area people will work on King holiday

By RANDY WYNN
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal workers, nearly all state employees, most local government officials, many teachers and students, but few private sector wage earners will be given a day off Monday for the fifth annual celebration honoring the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

In the Crossroads Country, employees of Howard, Martin, Mitchell and Glasscock counties will be on the job Monday, as will city employees in Big Spring, Coahoma, Ackerly, Stanton and Colorado City. Students and staff at Big Spring, Coahoma, Sands, Westbrook, Stanton, Sands, Forsan and Colorado City school districts will also work on Martin Luther King Day. State offices in Crossroads Country will be open for business. Only bankers and federal employees in the area, including post office workers, will have the day off.

Earlier controversy surrounding the federal holiday has gradually subsided and its observance is steadily increasing.

However, unflattering allegations earlier this year about the lifestyle of the slain civil rights leader in a book by his former protegee, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, have been a minor setback for efforts — now government-funded — to encourage observance of the holiday.

The Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center will present "Celebrating the Dream," a commemoration program in honor of King, at 2 p.m. Friday in room 212, said Conrad Alexander, director of the medical center. Elroy Green, case manager of Big Spring State Hospital, will be the keynote speaker at the event, which is open to the public.

King's birthday will be officially observed this year by 46 state governments, up from 44 last year, 43 in 1988 and 40 in 1987. Among the four holdouts, New Hampshire's state legislature is scheduled to consider the issue later this year and Digital Corp. is working in the Granite State with the NAACP to promote the holiday. In Idaho, King admirers — including Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, who will unveil a King poster in the capitol rotunda — have scheduled events next Wednesday including a speech by Martin Luther King III.

Arizona's on-again off-again King holiday is off, at least for this year. Former Gov. Evan Mecham's 1987 cancellation of the King holiday helped undermine his popularity. Current Gov. Rose Mofford supports the holiday, but her effort to restore it has been stalled by a referendum. The issue will be decided by Arizona voters this fall, but in the meantime some Arizona cities and school systems are taking the day off.

The commission established by Congress to coordinate the holiday acknowledges that prospects are dim for observance of King's birthday in Montana.

And not every state marks the holiday exactly as the King holiday's backers intended. Kentucky state workers' day off will come without pay. And in Virginia, the date is celebrated as a three-way honor for an unlikely trio — King and Confederate generals Robert E. Lee and Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson.

No statistics are available on observance of the holiday by local governments and school systems, but the National League of Cities says a great majority of municipalities will follow the lead of their state governments and give employees a day off.

BSISD board changes policy

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Board members of the Big Spring Independent School District approved policy changes, a 1990-91 school calendar and two new teachers in their Thursday meeting.

The policy changes are mandated by the 71st legislative session and State Board rulings. Local updates in policy include directions for board elections, meetings, special programs, admissions and attendance. Superintendent Bill McQueary said the school district was already in compliance with most of the new policies.

One change involves write-in candidates for the Board of Trustees positions, who must now declare their write-in candidacy prior to the election. Write-in votes for people who have not publicly indicated their interest in running for the board will not be counted.

In another new policy directive, remedial and compensatory programs have been expanded to include "at risk" children from pre-kindergarten through 12th grade. Remedial programs for grades 9-12 will add reading improvement to the current line-up of math fun-

Worker hospitalized

BIG SPRING — A Fina Oil and Chemical employee was hospitalized overnight following an accident at the plant, Plant Manager Jeff Morris said today.

Del Roy Buchanan, pipefitter at plant, was kept at Malone and Hogan clinic overnight but is expected to be released today and should be back at work soon, Morris said. Buchanan did not appear to have any side-effects but was kept at the hospital for observation, Morris said.

"The employee was exposed to a chemical release" of hydrophloric acid vapor, used as a catalyst in the alkylation process, he said. Morris said it was "a small release contained within a few minutes."

The employee "was not in any danger at any time," Morris added.

Morris said the leak did not affect plant operations and the plant — which experienced a powersurge and partial shutdown Tuesday — should be in full operation soon. The chemical release did not hamper operations at the plant, he said.

Morris said the two incidents are "completely unrelated" and denied that the plant is experiencing a rash of bad luck.

"No, I don't think we hit a streak of bad luck," he said. "Any business has problems, what's important is how its managed."

Morris said the power surge the plant experienced Tuesday was unavoidable. "I don't feel bad about that, I feel good about how the men and woman at the plant responded," he said.

Sheriff's log

The Howard County Sheriff's Department reported the following incidents:

- Jennifer Abreo Herrera, 21, 1100 Pickens St., was released on $1,000 bond after being arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated.
- Martin Sosa Puga, 25, 1402 W. Second St., is being without bond after being arrested on a charge of revocation of probation.

For the record

A City Council story in Tuesday's Herald incorrectly reported that councilmembers Gail Earls and Chuck Condray voted against offering a deal to the cities of Coahoma and Forsan for landfill services. Earls and Condray voted for the measure, while councilmembers D.D. Johnston and Pat DeAnda voted against it.

New lake will begin filling with water in March

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

BIG SPRING — Impoundment of water in Lake O.H. Ivie may begin March 15, directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District decided Thursday.

Work on the earthen embankment may be completed within a fortnight, Gen. Manager O.H. Ivie told the board, and the job completed in early March.

Since last October, the Colorado River has been diverted through a 60-in. outlet works at the base of the dam, and at mid-March the valve will be closed.

The board also ordered that the new lake be opened to the public for aquatic recreation when the level reaches elevation 1,500 ft. above sea level. At this point approximately 50,000 ac. ft. will have been impounded. This is less than 10 percent of capacity. The matter of fishing limits or regulations will be left up to the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife, which will stock the lake.

An ordinance governing Lakes J.B. Thomas, E.V. Spence and O.H. Ivie was amended so that permits, revocable at the option of the district, may be issued for use of off-road vehicles on district properties.

Bear-Stearns, Inc. was named as lead underwriter in event interest rates decline to the point that interest savings would meet district parameters. This pertains only to part of the 1985 refunding issue.

An advance of $1,300,000 from the Water Rate Stabilization Fund to cover the cost of completing the Lake Ivie project was approved.

Actually, the project will be under original estimates, but a declining bond market caused a short-fall of more than $5.5 million in interest anticipated on bond proceeds during construction, Ivie reported.

Authorizations from the Contingency and Improvement Fund included up to $50,000 for water royalty payments from the Ward County well field during 1990, also $15,000 for cathodic protection of a section of 36-inch pipeline near the Buzzard Draw Crossing in western Howard County.

The cloud seeding program, begun in 1970, will be resumed after a one-year lapse in 1989, provided a qualified pilot can be located, Ivie reported. He also anticipated that the Texas Water Commission will formally receive the district's application within a week for a 1,500-acre holding pond or lake in western Mitchell County. He hoped for approval before mid-year, clearing the way for construction of the $6,800,000 project designed as a quality enhancement program.

Assistant general manager Rodney Lewis projected that for the sixth time the district will have to resort to pump-back operations, this time at Lake Thomas in early February. He also projected some "worst case" scenarios on quality and quantity of Lakes J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence should there be no inflow during 1990.

Presently Lake Thomas at 2244.40 has 32,360 ac. ft. or 18 percent of capacity; Lake Spence at 1864.5 has 158,457 ac. ft., or 32.4 percent of capacity.

Dale Reber, foreman of the Lake Ivie maintenance crew, was recognized as the district's Employee of the Year, an honor which carries a $500 stipend.

Ivie reported that the district, as its own underwriter for employee health insurance, had effected a savings of approximately 40 percent, despite heavier premiums for an umbrella policy against catastrophic losses. Aside from this, the board authorized the employment of Risk Management Group, Inc. of Austin to make an evaluation of the district's insurance coverage, premiums, etc.

damentals, consumer math, language arts, biology and physical science under the guidelines.

The district has gained the right to decide whether a student who has been expelled from another district can attend school in Big Spring Independent School District, based on the student's records. Currently the district does not allow expelled students from outside the district to attend classes here.

The new policy also changes the procedure for student complaints about failing marks for absenteeism. Students may now appeal through three levels of school hierarchy: the principal, the superintendent and finally the board.

The board approved the changes without comment, except for seeking clarification on a ruling by Attorney General Jim Mattox which stated that a meeting of the board was not a meeting if board members do not talk to each other during the conference.

The board determined that the Texas Open Meetings Act, as interpreted by Mattox, authorizes the board to meet with employees to ask questions or receive information without public notice. However, notice must be posted when one or more board members meet to discuss public business.

In other business, the board decided that the 1990-91 school calendar would include 12 vacation days for Christmas and New Year, three days for Thanksgiving and five days for spring break. The school year will begin Aug. 27 and end May 31. Faculty and staff voted overwhelmingly for this version of the calendar.

"Christmas we think is a little too long but it's what they wanted," said McQueary. He added that the spring break was uniform throughout Howard County and most of the Permian Basin. McQueary reminded the board that since the school year might be extended after the special legislative session in February, the calendar was not binding.

The board accepted the resignation of Cody Wallace, an earth science teacher at Runnels Junior High School, who has made a career change. Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy told the board that he planned to move Ranae Lawrence to Runnels to fill Wallace's position. She is certified in science and currently teaches physical education at Kentwood and Moss elementary schools.

The board approved the employment of Evangelina Arriola and Leslye Sanders. Sanders will replace Lawrence at Kentwood and Moss and Arriola will work in the Chapter 1 program at Marcy and Bauer Elementary Schools.

KBST station owner David Wrinkle presented the board with a check for $2100 from Elmore Chrysler-Dodge-Jeep. The company earmarked $100 for the district's general fund for each new car sold while the Steers were in the playoffs.

The board approved the Steer Band's participation in the South Coast Band Festival in Corpus Christi on May 4-5 and excused the two days' absences for students and staff.

They also approved Assistant Superintendent Ron Plumlee's request for a Mastercard for board members to use when traveling on district business.

After approving the financial statement for December 1989, the board entered into an executive session to evaluate the superintendent.

Board president Dan Wise said the session went well. "He (McQueary) got a good evaluation and we extended his contract through the 1992-93 school year."

harsh critics of the military action.

Some countries welcomed Bush's gesture in sending Quayle to explain the invasion of Panama. "It's a gesture, no?" asked an official from one nation.

But other Latin diplomats predicted Quayle will have a tough time succeeding at what Bush termed "very, very important diplomacy" in presenting the U.S. rationale for the military invasion.

The Costa Rican said in a telephone interview Thursday from San Jose that his country, because of its pro-U.S. stance, will welcome Quayle, but predicted reaction in some South American nations will likely be "very icy." The White House has not announced what countries Quayle will visit or a timetable for the trip other than that he will keep a previous commitment to attend the Jan. 27 presidential inauguration in Honduras.

Stops in several Central American and South American nations could come in a subsequent trip, as well as further opportunities for discussions with heads of state during Quayle's expected attendance at the March presidential inaugurations in Brazil and Chile.

Bush and other officials have acknowledged the invasion of Panama strained U.S. relations.

Holiday

School Administrators likewise lacks statistics, but says most school systems close on federal holidays including King's day. "You will see the holiday observed more and more in the schools," says Gary Marx, the group's associate executive director. "There is an increase in discussion of Martin Luther King in the schools... He is a legend who lived in our own time."

The private sector, however, is generally observing business as usual Monday.

Acceptance of the holiday in the business community is the biggest problem facing the commission Congress established in 1984.

Olen Eugene Haddock

Mr. Olen Eugene Haddock, 73, of Colorado City, died at 6:04 p.m. on Jan. 10, 1990 in Mitchell County Hospital.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Kiker-Seale Funeral Home in Colorado City, with burial in Trinity Memorial Park in Big Spring.

Mr. Haddock was born March 29, 1916 in Dekalb County, Texas. In 1928, at the age of 12, he moved with his parents, John and Lizzie Haddock, to Ackerly, Texas. As a young man Olen worked at Paymasters Gin and farmed for a period of four years in Lomax, Texas. He farmed for himself in and around the Ackerly area for 30 years. Upon retirement in 1977 he and his wife of 41 years, Esther Alline Forester Haddock, moved to Lake Colorado City, where he spent his remaining years.

Olen was a man of varied interests and talents. He loved playing his guitar and singing with his friends at local social functions. He and his wife enjoyed fishing in the lake behind their home.

Olen and Alline had been regulars at senior citizen functions for the past seven years, driving to Robert Lee, Sweetwater, Snyder and Big Spring. He lived a good Christian life and will be missed by his family and friends.

Mr. Haddock is survived by his wife, Esther Alline Forester Haddock; one daughter, LaJean Cooper, Lubbock; one brother, Hollis Haddock, West Brook; four sisters: Alma Stafford, Robert Lee; Fanny Honeycutt, San Angelo; Imogene Neidig, Elgin; Cootsie Rolff, Austin; two grandchildren, one great grandchild.

Child abductions

DALLAS (AP) - North Dallas residents are taking extra precautions to protect their homes and children in the wake of a sixth incident in which a man abducted a sleeping girl from her bed and sexually assaulted or attempted to sexually assault her.

The latest incident came Wednesday night when an 8-year-old girl was snatched from her bed while her parents slept in the next room, police said. The girl was not harmed because the man dropped her in the alley behind her home after she started screaming.

Lt. David Clary says police believe this was the sixth such incident since Sept. 17. In two of the cases, girls were assaulted and in two others, they were taken from their homes but the man was scared off, Clary said.

All of the victims have been between the ages of 7 and 10 and in several of the cases, the assailant covered the girl's head with a pillow case before carrying her out.

Residents of the area say they have purchased alarm systems and guns and in some cases have changed sleeping habits to be closer to their children.

Oprah show sold out

DALLAS (AP) - Oprah Winfrey's one-woman benefit show will probably be played before a capacity crowd Saturday at the Dallas Convention Center, event organizers say.

Tickets for the show nearly sold out Wednesday, and the only seats still available for the benefit have obstructed views.

With tickets for "An Afternoon With Oprah" priced at $20 apiece, the show will raise more than $100,000 for the Dallas Chapter of Save the Children, said Martha Jones, a spokeswoman for the organization.

Ms. Winfrey has declared 1990 the "Year of the Child" on her television program. Her weekend performance will include readings, discussion and characterizations to illustrate the needs and problems of children.

Pot shots

FORT WORTH (AP) - Word on the street in Fort Worth may be just say no, then duck.

Police in Fort Worth said five people reported they were shot early Tuesday after they refused to buy marijuana from two men.

Two were seriously injured and the other three slightly wounded. They said drug dealers at an apartment sprayed bullets at them.

Investigators said the residents of the apartment complained the two men came to them and tried twice unsuccessfully to sell them marijuana.

One event only

WASHINGTON (AP) - The annual economic summit has ended its chances for the 1992 Republican National Convention, a published report said Thursday.

President Bush announced Dec. 1 that his adopted hometown, Houston, would host the annual Economic Summit of Industrialized Nations July 9-11.

That decision effectively erased the city's chances of winning the GOP convention, according to a top Republican familiar with convention planning.

"We understood - there was a consensus among a group of people involved in the process - that if Houston were to host the economic summit, it would preclude its getting the Republican Convention," said Donald Ward, special markets director for the Houston Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Ministers, rabbis publicly support freedom of choice in newspaper ad

AUSTIN (AP) - Dozens of local ministers and three rabbis are publicly supporting women's right to abortion, saying life and freedom of choice are two divine gifts.

Clergy for Responsible Reproductive Choice purchased a newspaper advertisement to air that views because it's time to "end the silence of the mainline churches" on the issue, said the Rev. Jim Rigby, a Presbyterian minister.

"No one here is pro-abortion. We all believe in preserving life whenever possible," Rigby said at a Thursday news conference.

However, he said, "Many people get in situations where pregnancy takes a woman beyond her resources. We believe that women are capable of making their own ethical choices."

State board asks for more money for schools

AUSTIN (AP) - A school finance reform plan that would increase spending by $945 million next school year and $5.2 billion in five years was endorsed with an 11-3 vote by State Board of Education members.

The board, which met as a committee Thursday, developed the plan after the Texas Supreme Court ruled the current finance system is unconstitutional.

The plan, which has a five-year price tag of about $15 billion, will be considered again by the board Saturday before a recommendation is made to the Legislature, which convenes in special session Feb. 27.

"I don't think that we realistically can ask for everything that we have in our plan today and expect the Legislature to feel like it's realistic to ask for it," said board Chairman Monte Hasie of Lubbock, who voted against the plan with Jane Nelson of Lewisville and John Shields of San Antonio.

Board member Will Davis of Austin said new funding is essential to address the ruling by the Supreme Court, which found large disparities between property-rich and poor school districts. The court gave lawmakers a May 1 deadline for action.

"We can either put money into the low-wealth districts and raise them up to an acceptable level, or you can lower the level of those districts that are spending in excess of a substantially equal program," Davis said, calling the latter choice "disastrous."

Davis noted that the plan includes an inflation factor; without it, the fifth-year increase would be $3.6 billion. The school finance system currently costs about $11 billion a year and relies on state funds and local property taxes.

The board's plan would guarantee districts $3,700 to $3,900 per pupil next school year, and $4,400 in five years, if they continued the current local property tax rate. The current average for districts with below-average wealth is $3,296 per student, and $3,720 per student in districts with above-average wealth.

The plan also would begin a summer school program for students at risk of not graduating, and establish a $100 million emergency grant program for facilities next school year.

In subsequent years, the proposal includes such items as increasing the school year from 175 to 180 instructional days; creating incentives for year-round school; and raising school personnel salaries and benefits.

A public school administrators' group, which has not endorsed a plan, launched a campaign Thursday to convince Texans more money is needed for reforms.

Denominations represented by 77 clergy signing the half-page ad to run in Friday's Austin American-Statesman include Episcopal, Methodist, Jewish, Presbyterian and United Church of Christ, Rigby said.

"The matter of abortion inevitably involves a conflict between the gift of life and the gift of freedom to choose, regardless of the precise point when one believes a human embryo becomes a human being," says the statement by the group.

Making such ethical decisions for another person is not "in keeping with the message of the Bible as a whole, nor in harmony with God's gift of freedom that is inherent in the sanctity of human life," it says.

The statement sets boundaries on the group's support of the right to abortion, saying it is not ethical to choose abortion to select a child's sex or as a primary means of birth control.

It says that "the gift of life should take increasing primacy over the gift of freedom" as a pregnancy comes closer to term, and gives support to legislation that restricts abortion after viability, when the fetus is able to survive outside the womb.

The statement to appear in the ad also says the state is responsible for providing abortion to the poor, in the same manner as it provides other medical services.

Unwanted pregnancy, and the accompanying conflict, "may usually be prevented by the prudent use of birth control," the statement adds. It supports sex education and the availability of birth control.

A U.S. Supreme Court ruling last summer gives states broader powers to regulate abortion.

Anti-abortion activist Bill Price of Dallas said the ad is unusual and called the churches supporting it "a bunch of liberal denominations."

"I don't think they're coming from the kind of churches that are growing and making things happen in the Bible Belt," said Price, president of Texans United for Life. He said the Southern Baptist and Roman Catholic denominations are the largest in the Bible Belt and support the pro-life movement.

The Rev. Karen Vannoy, a Methodist minister, said Price's comments were unrelated to the clergy's message. She added, "I'm the pastor of a church that continues to experience growth."

Inside Texas

One tree per Texan

AUSTIN (AP) - Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower wants Texans to plant trees. Lots of them.

Hightower celebrated his 47th birthday Thursday by planting a Texas mountain laurel on the Capitol grounds and urging fellow Texans to do the same during the 1990s.

"There are some 17 million people in our state, and the Trees for Texas Task Force is calling on everyone to join in achieving the goal of one Texan, one tree," Hightower said.

"A tree is a thing of beauty, but it also happens to be the most efficient environmental purification technology the world has ever known. If we plant 17 million new trees across our state, one for every Texan, we will be planting a healthy environment for future generations," he said.

Oil rig sold to Iran

DALLAS (AP) - J.R. Ewing would do anything for a profit, but it took the real life owner of Southfork to sell an oil rig to Iran.

Since 1986, the Oilwell E 2000 at Southfork has been a prop on the TV show "Dallas" and an 18 story beacon for the thousands of tourists trying to find the ranch in a small town north of Dallas.

Mike Mullen, a rig broker, says it will be shipped to Iran this summer, just one of the many surplus oil drilling pieces leaving the United States for foreign countries.

Southfork's owner, Terry Trippet, plans to purchase another rig, said Joy Johnson, the ranch's director of tourism.

Opinion

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Herald opinion

Does Pentagon need our land?

Uncle Sam wants land. He wants millions of acres, most of it in the West, for military-training purposes. If Uncle Sam gets what he wants, rangeland, wilderness acreage and environmentally sensitive desert areas would become bombing ranges, tank-training areas and electronic battlefield sites.

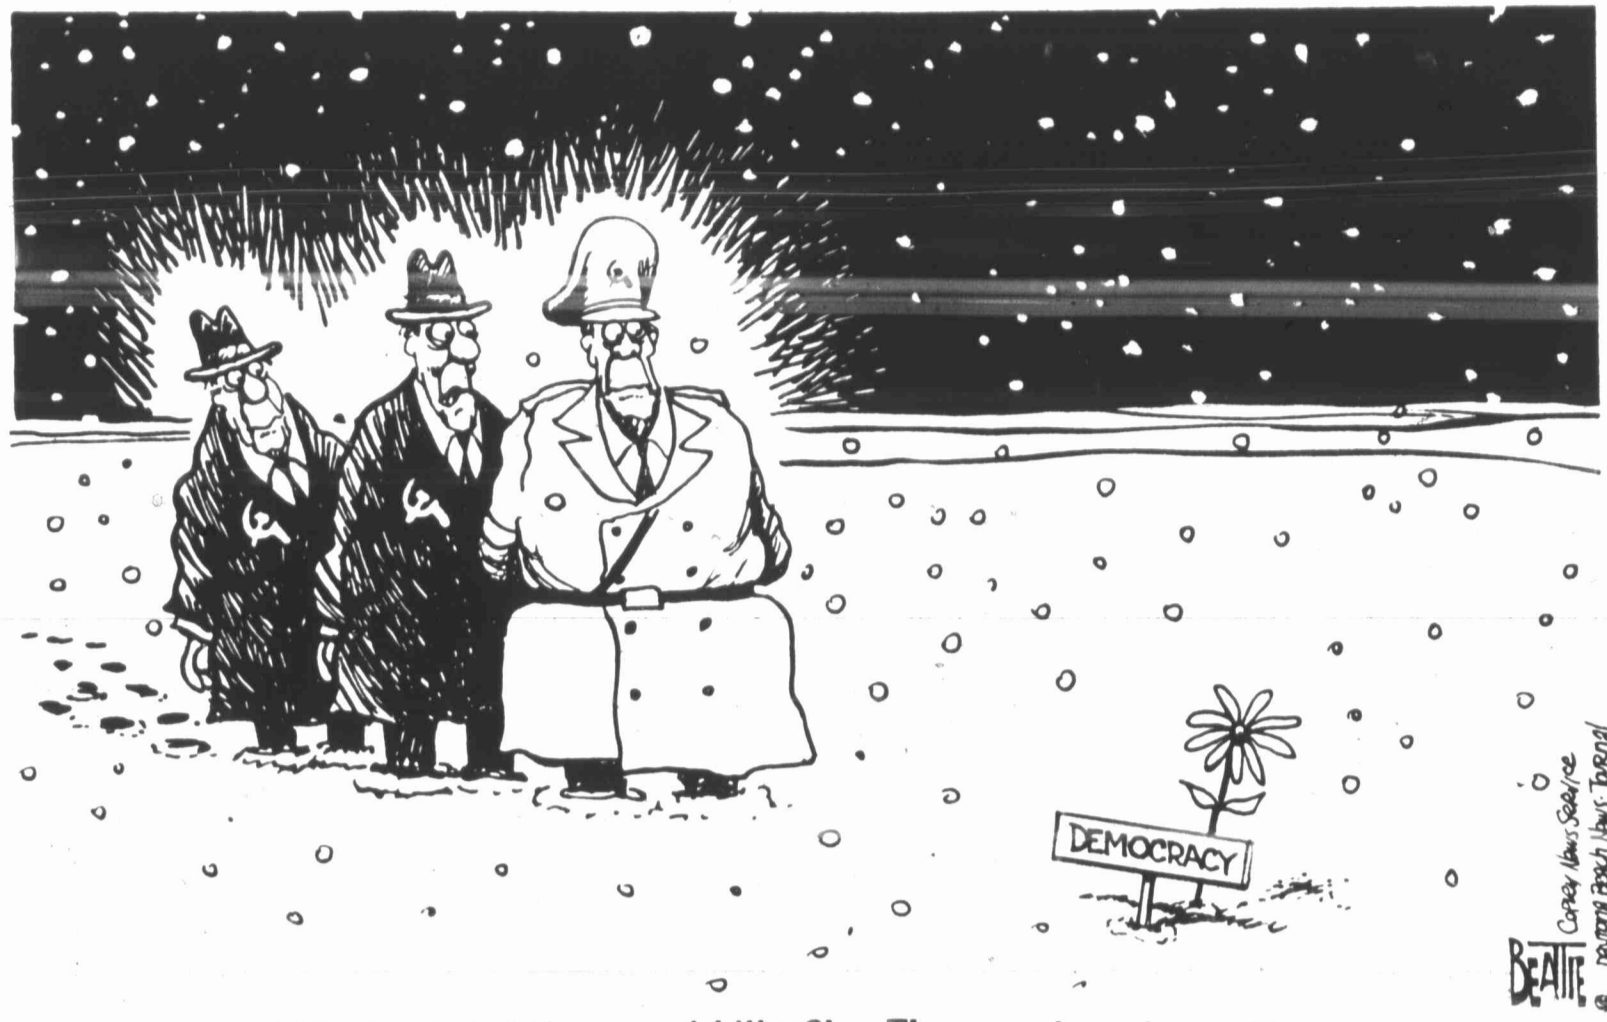

Obviously, the Defense Department has land requirements, but whether it needs to add more than 3.4 million acres of public land to the 19 million it already holds is highly questionable. Congress should be skeptical.

The land the Pentagon covets is in a number of states, including California, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Nevada and Mississippi. The Air Force, for example, wants to expand its Saylor Creek Bombing Range in Idaho from 150,000 acres to 1.5 million acres. The Army wants an additional 265,000 acres of desert land at Fort Irwin, Calif. The Army also wants to acquire 500,000 additional acres along the Nevada-Utah border for a new "electronic battlefield" for jet fighters and to use 240,000 acres of public land in Nevada for range and air-crew training by the Navy.

Congress should be stingy. Not one acre of the public's land that can't be justified ought to be given to the military. Congress also must insist that the Pentagon use the land it has as creatively as possible. That might mean that the various branches share current training sites.

Congress also must assess the environmental impact of the Pentagon's request. According to Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., chairman of the House National Parks and Public Lands Subcommittee, the Defense Department too often pays little more than lip service to environmental concerns.

Pentagon officials told Vento's subcommittee that modern technology requires the additional training areas to provide the realism of combat. Unfortunately, modern technology is not making any more land. Military needs must be considered within the context of a multitude of other needs that are just as valid.

Moynihan proposes budgetary candor

By GEORGE F. WILL
WASHINGTON — The first tick of the clock on New Year's Day triggered another phase of one of the nine tax increases of the nine Reagan-Bush years. And this year will be just 23 days old when Sen. Pat Moynihan proposes a bill to repeal this most recent tax increase, and thereby begin to stop "the leakage of reality from American life."

He would repeal the Social Security tax hike. That increase was proposed by the 1983 Greenspan Commission, of which Moynihan (D-N.Y.) was a member. He also would further cut the Social Security tax rate on Jan. 1, 1991. This would sharply increase the reported budget deficit (by $62 billion through 1991 alone), but only by revealing what the government's real operating deficit is.

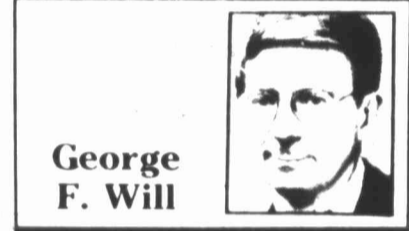

Moynihan's measure would stop the swelling of a huge Social Security surplus. By including that surplus (and those of other trust funds) in the unified budget, the real deficit — approaching $300 billion — is cut in half, cosmetically.

The Greenspan Commission proposed the Social Security tax increases to build reserves for the population "bubble" of baby-boom retirees next century. But the reserves are not being reserved. They are being spent, masking the real deficit. So either way, large tax increases will be needed in the future. By making it official that Social Security is an intergenerational transfer-payment program, on a pay-as-you-go basis, Moynihan would make the real deficit — the gap between government outlays and non-Social Security revenues — visible.

Moynihan is practicing saucer for the gander politics, doing for Democrats what Reagan and Stockman did to Democrats. In 1981, Reagan and Stockman said, to themselves, in effect: Maybe our tax cuts will be self-financing — so stimulative to the economy that no deficit will occur. But if not, the deficits will serve a political good by applying pressure for restraint on the growth of government.

such as this: After five years under Gramm-Rudman, the government's operating deficit is growing.

Some liberals may flinch from Moynihan's radical budget surgery. Because taxophobia is the strongest political passion today, some liberals believe the flow of Social Security tax dollars is necessary for domestic spending programs. But liberals cannot re-than the income-tax burden for 74 percent of all taxpayers.

George F. Will

What the "Reagan revolution" changed radically is the incidence of taxation. Income taxes were cut and made less progressive. The regressive Social Security tax rate increased 25 percent in the 1980s. Now the burden of the Social Security tax is larger than the income-tax burden for 74 percent of all taxpayers.

Moynihan denounced this reckless abuse of fiscal policy for political purposes. But now he, too, is willing, and rightly so, to reduce the revenue base of the government for therapeutic purposes. In 1983, he supported the schedule of Social Security tax increases on the assumption that the surpluses would be put to some use other than the perpetuation of fraud, the disguising of the government's operating deficit.

Ideally, Moynihan's proposal would confront the government with the need either to make politically difficult spending cuts or to seek more equitable and equitable revenue sources to shrink the real huge deficit, suddenly made visible. Alas, as the 1980s showed, there is a third course — a borrowing binge to finance the deficits. However, a necessary pre condition for sound policy is a willingness to face facts, main liberals and remain collaborators in the current process whereby Social Security revenues are used for the slow, surreptitious semi-repeat of a great liberal achievement: the 16th Amendment, and heavy reliance on the income tax.

That has been happening, with the connivance of a Democratic-controlled Congress. Federal taxes in the first year of the Bush administration are about what they were in the last year of the Carter administration, around 19 percent of GNP. What the "Reagan revolution" changed radically is the incidence of taxation. Income taxes were cut and made less progressive. The regressive Social Security tax rate (the same rate for all payers; and income above $51,300 is exempt) increased 25 percent in the 1980s. Now the burden of the Social Security tax (including the employer's share) is larger Conservatives, too, should rally 'round Moynihan, and not just because some of them have never met a tax cut they didn't like. Thoughtful conservatives fear that the Social Security surplus, perhaps supplemented by a "peace dividend" carved from the defense budget, may be used by liberals to fund new government programs, perhaps addressing the most pervasive anxiety of the 1990s — health care for an aging population, parents who caused the baby boom.

Spending, say, $50 billion on a continuing basis for a politically well-crafted program could, says Texas' Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, "move millions of votes." Gramm fears a paradox: The anti-communist rebellion against statism in the Soviet bloc could give rise to a defense-cutting euphoria that, combined with Social Security surpluses, results in too much government here.

That is one possible choice. But before the cheering begins, Moynihan's bill, a blow for candor and equity, should be passed. It would deprive Democrats and Republicans of the choice of continuing the pretense that the deficit is disappearing.

Why teachers are tempted to play hooky

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Recruiting season for top high school football players is over.

Young men who were offered scholarships have made their choices as to which institutions of higher or lower learning they will attend in the fall.

Due to the heightened academic and character requirements for incoming athletes at most universities, however, some athletes who would have been eligible for signing under last year's requirements were not eligible this year.

I have managed to obtain a list of some of the high school athletes who would have been able to sign had they not been boneheads and social outcasts.

Here are some of the examples from the list:

Marvin Toodler, wide receiver, Corn Silk, Nebraska: Caught 417 touchdown passes and two known venereal diseases during his high school career.

Unfortunately, when he took his SAT exam, that's all he did. Sat Marvin now plans to work for his father, Mr. Toodler, in the family worm-farm business.

Leon (Neon) Devon, running back, Corpus Christi, Texas: What made recruiters suspicious that Leon might be academically deficient was the questionnaire he sent back to interested schools. On each questionnaire, he not only misspelled his name, he also doodled in the margins with a yellow crayon and listed his home town as "Korpus Kraspy."

Plans to remain in Texas and seek work repairing anvils.

Norman Glovenmeyer III, quarterback, Palm Beach Florida: Starred at Palm Beach's private Ralph Lauren Academy. Was run over by a polo pony during the off-season, however, and suffered head injuries that made him think he is a cocker spaniel.

His father, a wealthy Eastern industrialist, plans to buy him his own Gucci shop as soon as Norman stops chasing Mercedes 380SLs down Worth Avenue.

Lewis Grizzard

Arnold (Stumpy) Wordsworth, linebacker, Why-not, Georgia: 6'3", 290. Got the nickname "Stumpy" from his instructors. Not only did he not answer any questions correctly on his SAT, he ate his pencil. Wants to become air-traffic controller.

Gauntler Dappleman, defensive tackle, Shade Tree, Missouri: Stands 7'3" and weighs 416. Ineligible because of steroid addiction.

Alfonidius Johnson, defensive back, Slick Snake, Florida: Was courted by over 250 schools until it was learned he was given a frog to dissect in biology class and the frog talked him out of it. Plans career wrestling alligators at Crazy Al's reptile farm and discount fireworks.

Ramundo Santiago Omamata Diego Francisco (Earl) Zapata, soccer-style placekicker, Bogota, Colombia: Approached by many U.S. schools, turned down all offers, however, to take better paying job in family export business.

Sal (Meathead) Monella, 6'2", 240, linebacker, Thickneck, New Jersey: Currently at Penn State Prison. Convicted of mail fraud, writing bad checks, and trying to rob a Roto-Rooter van he mistook for a Brink's truck. Plans to become television evangelist after parole.

Editor's note: Lewis Grizzard is on a two-week vacation. This column is an excerpt from his most recent book, "Chill Dawgs Always Bark at Night."

Truth about Pan Am flight 103 downplayed

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — President Bush and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher secretly agreed last spring to downplay the truth about who blew up Pan Am flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland.

After both leaders had intelligence reports pointing the finger at a terrorist hired by the Ayatollah Khomeini, Thatcher called Bush on the telephone. In that conversation, they agreed that neither could stand the political heat of making the evidence public because both were impotent to retaliate.

Highly placed White House sources told us that the phone call took place about mid-March. By that time, both the British and American intelligence services had followed the trail of evidence to terrorist Ahmed Jibril as the hit man who was paid by Iran to blow up the plane. The intelligence services had evidence that Khomeini and his successor, Hashemi Rafsanjani, had approved the bombing.

Pan Am 103 originated in Frankfurt, Germany, stopped in London and was bound for New York when a bomb exploded at 30,000 feet over Scotland on Dec. 21, 1988. All 259 passengers were killed, along with 11 people in the village of Lockerbie.

Iranian sponsored terrorists quickly claimed credit, but the

Jack Anderson

British and American governments put out the story that there were several suspects. Behind the scenes, all the evidence pointed to Jibril. He had been shopping for money for his terrorist group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — General Command. His usual sponsors, Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi and Syrian President Hafez al-Assad, were short of cash.

The intelligence reports told Bush and Thatcher that Jibril went to Iran in July 1988 and struck the deal with Khomeini and Rafsanjani to blow up an American plane in retaliation for the accidental U.S. downing of an Iranian airliner earlier that month.

When the intelligence reports began to leak last March, Thatcher called Bush to discuss their dilemma. She said no purpose would be served by making public the evidence against Iran because neither the United States or Britain could respond.

Bush knew that Khomeini had proved the undoing of Jimmy Carter and had nearly proved the undoing of Ronald Reagan. Carter lost an election because he couldn't get American hostages back from Iran, and Reagan suffered the biggest blow of his presidency when he tried to trade arms to Iran for American hostages.

So Bush didn't argue when Thatcher suggested that they "low-key" the findings — say that the investigation was inconclusive and long term.

After the phone call, word was quickly passed to top officials conducting the Pan Am investigation that they were not to make any off-the-record remarks implicating Jibril or Iran. In Britain, when the press speculated about possible perpetrators, the investigators called the speculation "wild" and "irresponsible."

The American intelligence sources who told us about the telephone call thought the decision was political cowardice.

Thatcher, the "Iron Lady," earned her tough reputation in a war with Argentina over the Falkland Islands. But, by last March, her popularity was on the wane and she didn't need to be embarrassed by Khomeini. Bush, still fighting his "wimp" image, didn't want to face the ultimate calls for retribution. He has now thrown off the wimp label with the invasion of Panama — mere war games when compared to a brawl with Iran.

WHO CALLS THE SHOTS? —

Who really controls the stock market? A handful of super money managers control $2 trillion in stocks, buying and selling them on behalf of pension funds, insurance companies, mutual funds and other major investors. That concentration of power ensures volatility in the market. This so-called "institutional money" grew by 14 percent a year in the 1980s. Investing is no longer a matter of picking quality companies for the long term. Instead, the market has taken on the appearance of a casino. That makes it even more difficult for American industry to reinvest and retool as it must to remain competitive.

MINI-EDITORIAL — China is full of righteous indignation because the British are helping people get out of Hong Kong before the city converts to Chinese rule in 1997. The British are violating a "solemn commitment" by granting British citizenship to some Hong Kong residents, according to China. The Chinese government showed its colors clearly last summer, and it should come as no surprise that residents of Hong Kong would rather live somewhere else. Best for the city to empty out by 1997 so no one is left when the Chinese move in with their style of government by-tank.

Court blocks part of abortion law

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal court blocked principal sections of Pennsylvania's 1989 abortion law, the most stringent in the nation, but abortion foes claimed victory because other sections were left intact.

The injunction was issued Thursday, just five days before the abortion law takes effect. It struck down requirements that women notify their husbands before having an abortion and wait 24 hours for the procedure after requesting it.

Attorneys representing the American Civil Liberties Union, Planned Parenthood-Pennsylvania Affiliates and the Women's Law Project said the injunction would preserve women's rights to legal abortion.

But abortion opponents noted that sections banning abortions because of a fetus' sex and prohibiting most abortions after 24 weeks of pregnancy were not challenged. They said the injunction could be counted as a victory for their cause.

Hot line established for homeless

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — A toll-free 24-hour hot line has started to help homeless people across the United States find shelters and other social service agencies.

The Findlay Area Native American Indian Center set up the hot line, which opened Monday, said Michael Michaud, the group's spokesman.

"There are many people out there who are hungry, cold and living on the streets, with little hope that things will get better,"

he said Wednesday. "We have information for every state in the union, for the shelters, soup kitchens, different social service agencies, to help people in need."

Since October, the center has provided food and clothing and emergency shelter. It has helped about 500 people in the Findlay area. The center, which is supported by donations, also helps people find jobs and provides transportation to job interviews.

The hot line number is 1-800-526-5414.

Black caucus calls for investigation

BOSTON (AP) — Black state legislators want a commission to look into the huge dragnet police conducted in black neighborhoods for the man who shot Charles Stuart and his wife — a man now thought to have been Stuart himself.

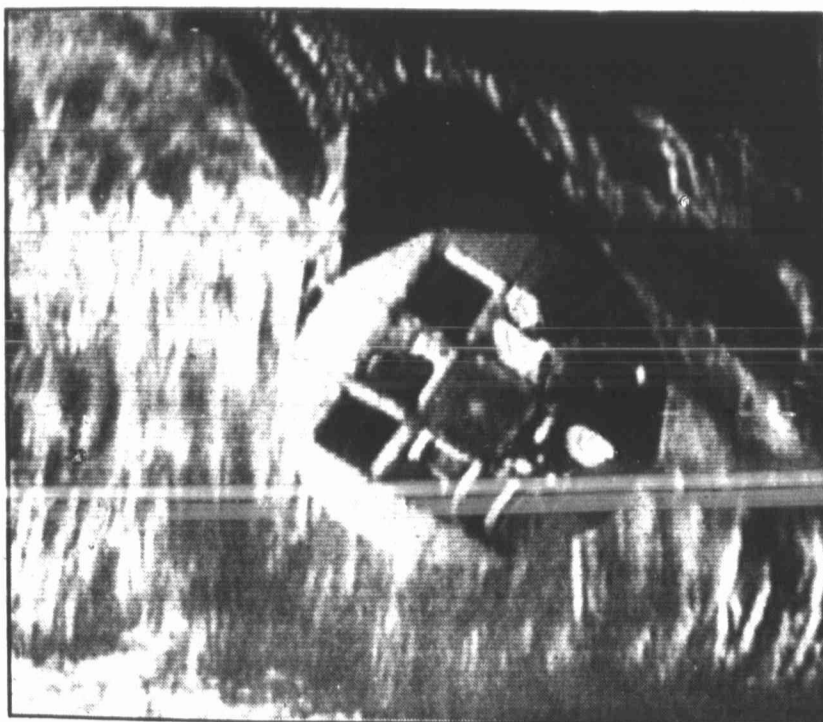

"We are interested in having the truth be known, as much as possible, about why, after the Carol Stuart murder, the only suspect that was put forward was a black male," said Rep. Byron Rushing of Boston.

He and other Black Caucus members met with Democratic House Speaker George Keeverian Thursday to ask for a special legislative commission. Gov. Michael Dukakis said the commission would be a good idea as long as it did not interfere with the probe into the case.

Last week Matthew Stuart told investigators that his brother was involved in the murder. After learning he was a suspect, Stuart jumped to his death off a bridge.

Astronauts manage to grab space lab satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts salvaged a valuable space laboratory today, snaring it with a 50-foot robot arm and saving it from a fiery doom in the atmosphere.

"We have LDEF," commander Dan Brandenstein reported. "Congratulations on a job well done." Mission Control replied. "You've made several scientists quite happy. LDEF is finally coming home."

The astronauts made the dramatic rescue when they steered Columbia alongside the bus-sized Long Duration Exposure Facility and mission specialist Bonnie Dunbar reached out and grabbed it with the wire fingers of the spaceship's mechanical arm.

Capture was made 201 miles above the Earth as the two spacecraft raced in formation at more than 17,400 mph.

While Brandenstein held the shuttle steady, Dunbar used a television camera on the end of the robot to guide the fingers to a grapple device on the side of the satellite.

The same TV picture she used was beamed to Mission Control and it showed some of the tense final minutes as Dunbar took her time gingerly moving in to locate the grapple fixture.

Columbia was not in position to show the actual capture on TV.

The successful retrieval ended a celestial chase that began with Columbia's launch on Tuesday and covered 1.3 million miles during which the astronauts circled the globe 50 times.

LDEF had traveled 854 million miles since it was launched by another shuttle crew in 1984.

Astronauts have recovered orbiting satellites before, but never one as big as LDEF, which is 30 feet long and weighs 11 tons.

Had they failed to rescue LDEF, trackers said it would have been pulled by gravity to a flaming re-entry into Earth's atmosphere about March 9.

Brandenstein reported the astronauts first spotted LDEF Thursday night. It was glinting in the sunlight nearly 200 miles away, he said, and was "as bright as could be."

When the crew awakened early today, LDEF was 108 miles in front of them and Brandenstein and Wetherbee gradually narrowed the gap with a series of intricate engine-firing maneuvers.

World War II vets return to Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Two elderly Japanese have emerged from 45 years in the jungle, becoming the most recent of a group of Japanese for whom World War II stretched on for decades.

Shigeyuki Hashimoto, now 71, and Kiyooki Tanaka, 77, were employees of a Japanese company in Malaysia at the end of the war, but they joined Communist guerrillas fighting for Malaysia's independence from Britain, one of Japan's former enemies, rather than return home.

The group, the Communist Party of Malaysia, continued its insurgency after the country became independent in 1957 but officially laid down its arms Dec. 2.

Japan's Ministry of Health and Welfare still is investigating the case of 49 former Japanese soldiers who could be living in the vast areas of Asia controlled by Japan during the war.

Minister critical of settlement

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The new government said today its predecessor was wrong to agree to absolve Union Carbide of criminal liability in the 1984 Bhopal gas disaster, and it called the $470 million settlement inadequate.

Justice Minister Dinesh Goswami said the 6-week-old government of Prime Minister V.P. Singh would support gas victims and activists in Supreme Court petitions challenging the right of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's government to settle the case. However, Goswami did not say whether the government would try to reopen legal proceedings.

"An important point made in the review petitions is that... India has no authority or right to arrive at a settlement which extinguishes all rights of the affected victims in respect of criminal liability," Goswami said at his news conference.

"The government is also of the view that human life in India is not so cheap that the worst industrial disaster of the world... could be compensated by an amount of $470 million," he added.

Endara seeks to replace militarism

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — U.S. military engineers are replacing combat soldiers, and Panamanian officials are trying to sweep away the vestiges of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's militarism.

On Thursday, President Guillermo Endara and Vice President Ricardo Arias Calderon began demolishing Panama's old Defense Forces headquarters.

"From the ashes of militarism, a new era is born in which the state is for the well-being of the people," Endara said as he swung a sledgehammer at what had been the heart of Noriega's six-year dictatorship.

In another sign that the old order had crumbled, the leader of Noriega's paramilitary troops, the Dignity Battalions, surrendered to U.S. troops. Benjamin Colamarco, an economist, had been in hiding since the invasion.

Odes to outlaws: Corridos romanticize drug traffickers

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Like their country-and-western counterparts in the United States, these songs are filled with girlfriends and gunplay, betrayal and bloodshed.

The heroes of the popular Mexican songs, however, are cocaine traffickers. And the villain is often U.S. drug enforcement policy.

The exploits of drug traffickers — and sometimes their tragic fates — are romanticized in ballads such as "Death of a Snitch," "The Mafia Dies," "White Load," "The Red Car Gang" and "Contraband and Treason."

"The Mafia Dies" by Pepe Cabrera is a classic "corrido," or Mexican storytelling ballad, filled with nostalgia for the way things were before a great shootout in Sinaloa state wiped out whole families of "narcotraficantes."

"Tierra Blanca is so sad and its streets are deserted," goes the refrain to a slow oom-pah-pah beat and an accordion's lamenting counterpoint.

"New cars don't cruise there and the roar of machine guns is heard no more. The mansions of those who were kings are today abandoned."

The popularity of ballads about smuggling illustrates how attitudes can differ on the supply side of the drug problem. Mexico is a shipper, not a consumer or even much of a producer. The drug trade has bestowed wealth, not crack houses and cocaine babies.

In the supply-side subculture, cocaine kingpins can be popular heroes, Robin Hoods who take from rich, decadent gringos and give to poor Mexicans. They are often philanthropists who command their community's loyalty like benevolent feudal lords. Their foot soldiers are daring men who brave hail of bullets, fierce "federales" and treachery.

By tradition, corridos comment on current events, on the famous — and the infamous. Many of the old songs are about revolutionaries.

The smuggling corridos are a contemporary variation that coincides with the rise in the drug trade in Mexico.

Shortly after Rafael Caro Quintero was arrested in the 1985 murder of a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent, a "corrido" to him appeared.

"It took 10 federal agents to guard him because he was a fine fighting cock," the song goes. "Guys like that aren't born every day."

Caro Quintero, a key Mexican link with the Colombian cartels, also is compared to the lion, a king of beasts even when caged: "The beast is now behind bars, but you can hear his roar in the midnight hours."

MEXICO CITY — A montage of album and cassette covers point to the romanticizing of drug traffickers and other miscreants. Many celebrate the exploits of Rafael Caro Quintero, convicted in the 1985 killing of DEA agent Enrique Camarena.

Although traditional Mexican music is popular in Colombia, smuggling songs are not, perhaps because they are of more recent vintage.

But collectors and music industry executives believe they have a select following in Colombia, where one cocaine kingpin, the billionaire Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha of Medellin, is such an aficionado of things Mexican that his nickname is "El Mexicano."

Some smuggling corridos are distinctly anti-American in tone. One corrido about Caro Quintero — who was convicted and sentenced to 40 years in prison on Tuesday — laments thousands of peasants losing their jobs when one of his huge marijuana plantations, Hacienda Bufalo, was dismantled at the insistence of U.S. authorities.

There is also a corrido about the Honduran drug kingpin Juan Ramon Matta Ballesteros, whose 1988 extradition sparked anti-American riots in Honduras that left at least five dead and a U.S. Embassy annex burned.

Matta, a member of Colombia's Cali cartel, was convicted of cocaine smuggling Sept. 6 in Los Angeles.

There have been attempts to squelch the smuggling corridos in Mexico, where the war on drugs has been vigorously pursued under the administration of President Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

In 1987, Gov. Francisco Labastida Ochoa of Sinaloa, a state famous for its drug trade and the birthplace of Caro Quintero, called on broadcasters to stop airing smuggling corridos.

"He argued that this type of song is really an apology for crime, something that encourages the narcotrafficking subculture," said Labastida's spokesman, Mario Busio.

The Sinaloa broadcasters and the governor signed an accord, Busio said, sealing the pact with a ceremonial shattering of several offending records.

"Since that date, the accord has held," Busio said.

Elsewhere in Mexico, however, the hands play on. As long as there is a demand, there will be a supply. "This is a company that has to sell records to survive, no?" said Miguel Angel Medina, a producer for the Mexican division of EMI Capitol. "If the market demands a particular type of music, we'll do it."

Galaxy's most distant star found

BALTIMORE (AP) — Astronomers have spotted the most distant known star in the Milky Way, and say the accidental discovery could help determine the total mass of the galaxy. That includes mysterious invisible matter that astronomers know exists but are unable to identify, an astronomer with the Space Telescope Science Institute said Tuesday.

"Astronomers suspect that there is a lot of additional material surrounding our galaxy that doesn't give off light," said Howard Bond, who along with two others discovered the distant star last spring.

"We don't know the mass of the Milky Way, but if we can find objects that are far out and measure their speed, it will help us determine the galaxy's total mass — the visible areas and the dark areas."

Astronomers use the speed of stars to determine gravitational pull upon them, and from its gravity, the mass of the galaxy.

Astronomers theorize the galaxy's dark matter could be dim stars that are too faint to be seen, black hole remnants of massive stars that exploded early in the galaxy's history or some unknown type of subatomic particle, Bond said.

"We used to think that the majority of the mass of the Milky Way was stars, but now we suspect stars may only be 10 percent of all the mass," he said. Once the mystery of the dark matter is solved, he said, "we may find something completely unexpected that could revolutionize our thinking about physics."

The scientists stumbled upon the star while studying a distant galaxy. The star is located 160,000 light years from Earth in the direction of the constellation Virgo.

The Milky Way was once thought to be only about 100,000 light years across. Since the Earth is about 30,000 light years from the center of the Milky Way, the discovery means the galaxy is larger than even more recent estimates indicated.

"It was just dumb luck that this star was in the way of what they were looking at. It was totally serendipitous," said Ray Villard, a spokesman for the institute.

Physicians prescribe town cleanup

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A cleanup was prescribed and then administered by doctors who said city residents were collectively down in the dumps because of its litter.

Dr. Ben Singletary said the two or three dozen doctors who collected 3,800 pounds of trash in November along Interstate 20 plan another pickup Jan. 20 because "today, it looks like a hog pen."

The Shreveport Medical Society decided a year ago that the city's slovenly appearance was psychologically harmful because it was a constant reminder of hard economic times, said Singletary, president of the society.

"About this time last year we began looking at our city and surrounding area," Singletary said Tuesday. "What is wrong? We know we were economically depressed."

"Finally, after weeks of looking at this we came up with the conclusion that we're all emotionally depressed, a little whipped down, a whipped dog."

In addition to the trash pickup, Singletary said, the society plans to raise an 11-flag display at six entrances into the city limits.

Club reunion

The USS Lexington (CV2) Club will conduct its 37th reunion in Sparks, Nev. May 9-12 at John Ascuaga's Nugget with daily social functions, a business meeting, and a banquet and dance.

This meeting of old shipmates commemorates the ship's sinking on May 8, 1942 in the battle of the Coral Sea. The aircraft carrier and other ships of its Task Force were largely responsible in preventing the Japanese invasion of Australia.

Contact: Walt Kastner, secretary-treasurer, USS Lexington (CV2) Club, 466 Ivy Glen Drive, Mira Loma, Calif. 91752, or call (714) 681-1101.

Marine Pvt. David J. Escovedo, a 1989 graduate of Big Spring High School, has completed recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 13-week training cycle, Escovedo was taught the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill.

Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

He joined the Marine Corps in July.

PHILADELPHIA — With rain and snow creating an icy passage on most Philadelphia roadways, 2½-year-old Michael Leahy had some time to practice driving his battery-operated four-wheel drive truck.

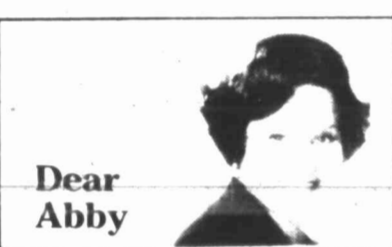

Alzheimer's also hurts spouse

DEAR ABBY: Our mother has gone from a loving, caring wife, mother and grandmother to a mean, vindictive, bitter woman. I am one of five children. Our parents raised us all in a loving home, not poor, not rich. All five of us are healthy and successful and have wonderful families. One would think our mother would be proud and grateful for such a loving family. She's not. There is nothing good about life now.

The problem: Our father was diagnosed eight months ago with Alzheimer's, and although he still has most of his faculties, the disease is starting to progress. This has been a terrible blow to all of us, and we realize that it has been a strain on our mother.

Mother's attitude toward Dad frightens us. She resents him and treats him badly — refusing to take him places when she knows he can't drive; refusing to take walks with him when she knows he needs the exercise; refusing to prepare the foods he likes and criticizing everything he attempts to do.

We have offered to hire someone to come in and help, but she refuses our offers. We have offered to stay with Dad so she can get out, but she refuses to leave the house. When our father's illness was diagnosed, we prepared ourselves to deal with him. But how do we deal with her? Have any of your readers found that the caregiver sometimes needs more help than the Alzheimer patient? — THE KIDS

Dear Abby

DEAR KIDS: You are right it's possible that your mother needs more help than your father. To find an Alzheimer's support group in your area, or to get a free informative booklet, send a postcard with your name and address to: Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, P.O. Box 5675, Department DA, Chicago, Ill. 60680-5675.

A final thought: When a loving, caring person suddenly becomes mean, vindictive and bitter, there could be a physical reason. I urge you to put your mother in the hands of a physician — if possible, one who specializes in geriatrics. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: Please clear up a family disagreement for me. I am the mother of identical twins. My husband's great-aunt had twins, and my in-laws are sure that it is the male that determines the sex of the child. I have always been under the impression that the female determines the number of children in one pregnancy.

Abby, being a twin yourself, maybe you can set me straight so I can explain this to my twins when they are older. — TWICE AS CONFUSED

DEAR TWICE: According to Dr. Ronald S. Ostrowski, our genetics expert, the male determines the sex of the child, but in the case of multiple births (twins, triplets, quadruplets, quintuplets, etc.) the credit goes to the maternal side of the family.

Interestingly enough, sisters of twins are more likely to produce twins; brothers are not — but their daughters are more likely to have twins. (Are you still with me?) The bottom line: Multiple births are hereditary on the mother's side.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: "The ultimate in bad manners is to look at your watch while someone is talking." (Forbes magazine)

"How to Write Letters for All Occasions" provides sample letters of congratulations, thank-you, condolences, resumes and business letters — even how to write love letters! It also includes how to properly address the clergy, government officials, dignitaries, widows and others. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Teaching children etiquette

By ROGER MUNNS

Associated Press Writer
-DES MOINES, Iowa — She teaches telephone manners to businessmen and social graces to college grads, but etiquette expert Marjelle Young Stewart says teaching hard-luck kids at a juvenile home where she once lived gives her the most satisfaction.

"These social skills will take them places that money or power won't go," she says. "You don't have to have a good upbringing, but you have to have the look of it."

Stewart, 52, left the home in Council Bluffs, now called Children Square USA, at age 10 and never looked back until appearances on talk shows to promote her books or talk about her work made her realize she needed to face her past.

"... I had all those feelings of desertion, loneliness," she recalls.

At age 6, she and three siblings were removed from their parents' custody and placed in what was then known as the Christian Home Association.

Their father had walked out and their mother, a songwriter and inventor, couldn't afford to keep the children, she said.

They were in the juvenile home for four years. Stewart, remembering the place as "grim," didn't return until three years ago.

"I was a basket case when I first went back. I remember being so frustrated and embarrassed when Donahue or Griffin would say, 'Oh, I'm sure you must have had a wonderful upbringing.' So I went back there and confronted my feelings."

She offered to teach a short course in manners and etiquette, and school director Andy Ross accepted. So residents — there are about 80 who stay an average of 18 months — learn the fine art of holding a fork correctly, sending thank-you notes to the hostess, tucking in shirts and closing mouths while chewing.

"Etiquette is a set of traffic rules, how to get from one point to another gracefully," she says. "And they love it. We give them a high that's healthy."

Howard sweeps Thunderbirds

Lady Hawks get defensive in 64-51 victory over NMJC

Hawks rally in final minutes to hold off stubborn T-Birds

HOBBS, N.M. — Shannon Lawson provided the scoring punch and the Howard College Lady Hawks displayed fine defense down the stretch to hold off the New Mexico Junior College Lady Thunderbirds, 64-51, here Thursday.

Lawson scored 20 points, Linda Waters 12 and Kim Robinson 11 to lead the Lady Hawks, now 18-2 for the season and 2-0 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference action. NMJC falls to 10-11 and 0-3 with the loss.

"I'm happy to go in there and come out alive," HC coach Royce Chadwick said. "That's a difficult place to play."

Chadwick added that the victory should give the Lady Hawks momentum in the WJAC race.

"I think we have to win as many road games as we can and make sure we don't lose any home games," he said. "Every road game we win is a big plus."

This road win did not come easy for the Lady Hawks. Howard led by as many as 10 in the first half, but NMJC, traditionally tough on its home court, rallied to trail by only two, 28-26, at halftime.

The second half was more of the same. The Lady Hawks again extended their lead to about 10, only to have the Lady Thunderbirds rally to tie the game with about five minutes remaining. The Lady Hawks' defense, however, rose to the occasion, Chadwick said.

"We played pretty good defense; that's what saved us," he said. "We still aren't hitting well from the floor... I think we're still suffering from Christmas break."

Still, Chadwick had words of praise for his team members, beginning with Lawson.

"Shannon pretty much dominated the inside game; that's what she needs to do for us to win," Chadwick said. "She can do that. She's got the capability."

"Ana Carroll (who scored nine points) had three bad games at the Odessa College tournament last weekend, and she played really good for us last night — as did Lisa Moore," Moore, a reserve forward, had 13 rebounds against NMJC.

The Lady Hawks will return to action Monday when they take on Clarendon Junior College. Because of structural difficulties in the Clarendon gym, the game will be played at 6 p.m. at Pampa HOBBS, N.M. — Johnny Dangerously bulled his way into the New Mexico Junior College gym and proceeded to shoot the lights out in machine gun-quick bursts.

The movieland gangster — he looked suspiciously like the Howard Hawks' Johnny McDowell — harrassed, mauled and generally manhandled the opposition. And like any smart gangster, he was backed by an equally tough bunch.

It wasn't the St. Valentine's Day massacre, but the McDowell and the Hawks finally managed to dominate the NMJC Thunderbirds, winning 115-105.

The win preserved Howard's undefeated record and certainly their number four national ranking in the junior college polls.

The Hawks jumped to 18-0 on the year and 3-0 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference. The Hawks are just one game behind South Plains at 4-0.

McDowell scored just six points in the first half, going to the bench early with three fouls. In the second half, however, he took charge and made life under the basket dangerous for any T-Bird who dared to challenge.

The 6-foot-5 freshman was everywhere: He grabbed rebounds, he stole passes, he blocked shots, and he scored.

And he scored some more.

When he finished, McDowell had canned 29 points in the second half alone for a game-high 35.

Howard coach Steve Green said McDowell has emerged as a leader who refuses to let his team down.

"He was the heart of the team. He refused to be denied,"

Jeff Malone shines

By The Associated Press

Throughout his career, Jeff Malone has been the "other" Malone in the NBA.

Despite a 19.6 scoring average going into his seventh season and two All-Star appearances, Jeff Malone has been overshadowed by Karl and Moses Malone.

Jeff took the spotlight Thursday night, scoring the 10,000th point of his career on the way to a season-high 39 points as Washington beat Miami 100-89. It was the Washington Bullets' first road win in 14 games and the Heat's 12th consecutive loss.

Malone reached the milestone with a reverse layup in the second quarter, then scored 22 points in the third quarter, hitting nine of 12 from the floor and four of four free throws during the period.

"It's a great feeling when you start scoring like that," Malone said. "You just want to take the shot every time."

"We couldn't stop him," Heat coach Ron Rothstein said. "He got on a roll and broke our backs."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 109, Charlotte 101; Portland 82, Minnesota 80; Denver 141, Orlando 105; Seattle 98, Dallas 87 and Houston 90, Sacramento 87.

Malone began to assume control of the game late in the second quarter, scoring 10 points in the final 4 minutes, 14 seconds of the period, including Washington's last eight points of the half, which ended with Miami ahead 52-50.

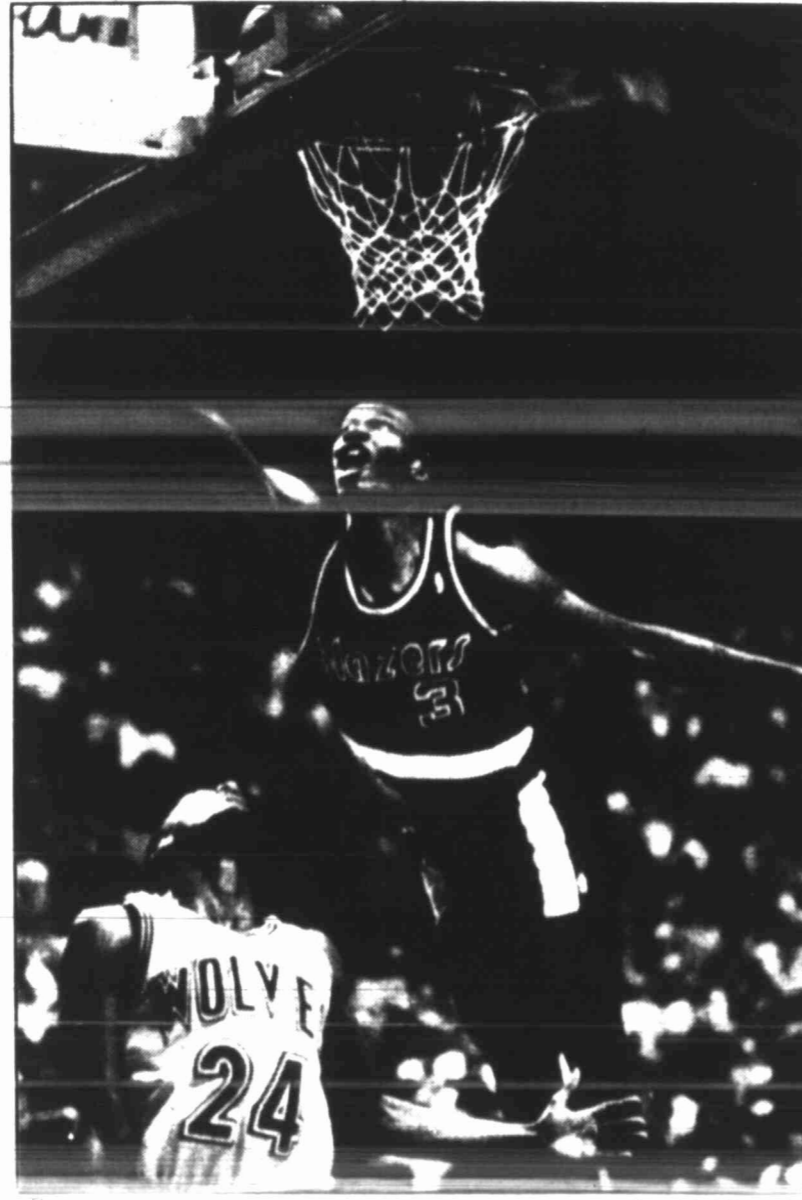

"Basically, Jeff Malone just got hot," Washington coach Wes Unseld said. "I'm smart enough not to start coaching when Jeff gets hot."

Malone scored the Bullets' first two baskets of the second half and finished the third period with Washington's last 13 points in the final six minutes of the quarter, which concluded with Washington leading 82-75.

The Heat, who were led by Rony Seikaly with 25 points and 17 rebounds, got no closer than five feet of Malone.

"He was unconscious," Heat guard Rory Sparrow said. "He was in that zone. He's an All-Star player and he showed it."

The 22 points is the most ever scored by a player in one period against the Heat. It was six shy of Houston won its fourth straight game and snapped a 10-game road losing streak as Akeem Olajuwon had 27 points and 18 rebounds and Mitchell Wiggins had a successful return to the lineup at Sacramento.

Wiggins, who missed the previous 16 games with a sprained left knee, scored nine points in the last 5½ minutes as the Rockets overcame a 76-63 deficit with a 19-2 run in the fourth quarter. Wiggins finished with 15 points.

Kenny Smith had 23 points and Wayman Tisdale 20 points for the Kings, who have lost 14 of 16 games.

Tourney begins Saturday

BIG SPRING — Ed Garza, head coach of the Howard County Boxing Club, has made public final details relative to the club's first annual Jaime Baldwin, Jr. Memorial Tournament.

The tournament will be at the National Guard Armory on FM 700 Saturday and Sunday. Bouts will start at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, and at 2 p.m., Sunday.

The tournament is in honor of Jamie Baldwin Jr., a promising young boxer who drowned in a fishing accident in Colorado City in 1988.

"All of us at the boxing club, boys and coaches alike, who knew and loved him, simply had to name this tournament after him," said Garza.

Trophies will be awarded to all first and second place winners in all divisions and weight sizes. Ages of participants will vary from 8- to 37-year-old fighters, according to Garza.

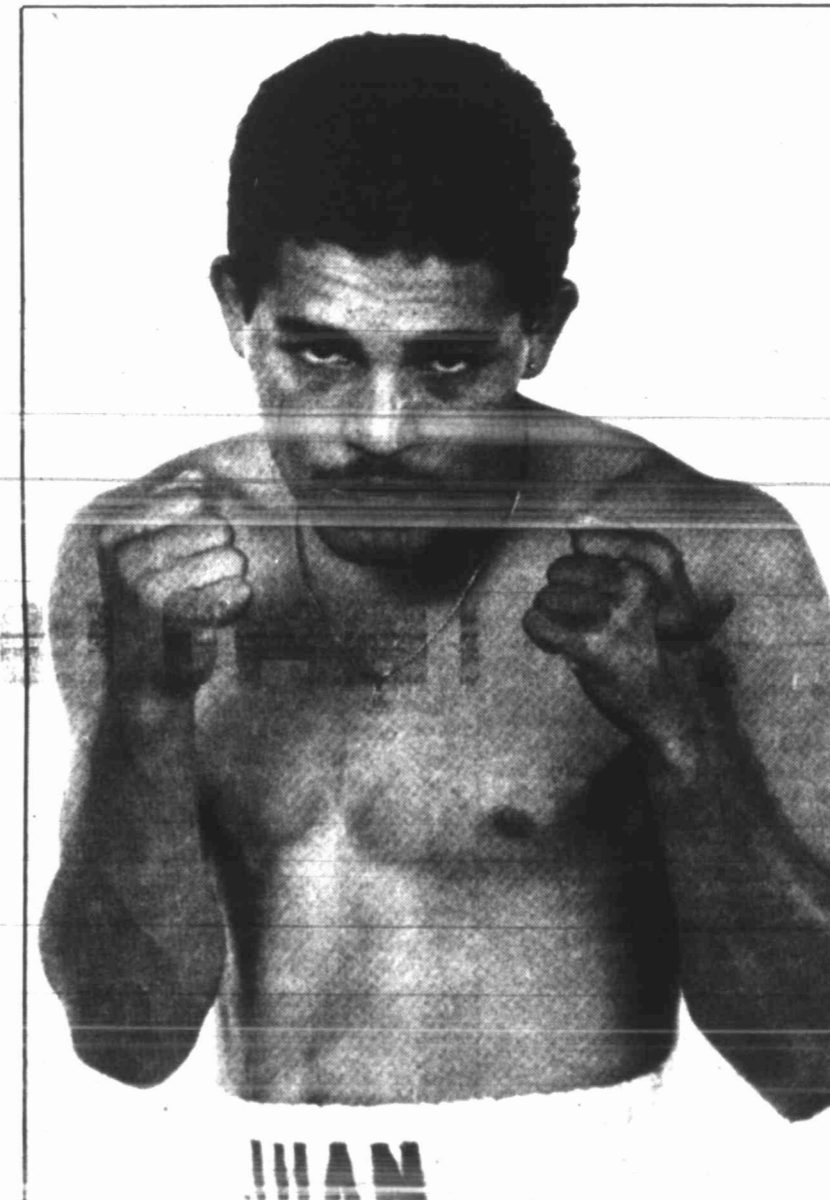

Raul Marquez, chairman of the club's Ways and Means Committee said, "This tournament will generate a lot of interest as far away as Oklahoma because Ed is well known and respected in amateur boxing circles, not only in West Texas but throughout the state."

"He has qualified boxers to state tournaments since the club was founded in 1981, qualified boxers to the Olympic Trials and has compiled respectable numbers of winners at all tournaments where he has entered his boys."

Marquez added, "One of the reasons I am so pleased to be involved with this club is because it unselfishly serves any boys and young men who come through its doors, many of whom are identified as risks by the school district."

"The Howard County Boxing Club takes individuals who are nobody at school and makes them somebody. It doesn't just keep them off the street — it promotes healthy living and provides them with options. Ed Garza teaches his boxers discipline, and respect for authority."

"He and his staff of volunteers turn negative competitiveness into healthy competitiveness, in a positive atmosphere. The club operates on charity and spends whatever money it raises very carefully."

Former Big Spring boxer Juan Baldwin, now living in Odessa, will highlight the Jaime Baldwin, Jr. Memorial Boxing Tournament here Saturday and Sunday. Juan Baldwin, a professional featherweight, will have an exhibition bout against Richard Abila.

Other clubs competing in the tournament are Plainview, Floydada, Amarillo, Snyder, Colorado City, Midland, Lubbock, Odessa, Olton, Pecos, Fort Stockton and Levelland.

Garza also said that professional scouts from California will be in attendance.

A special highlight of the tournament will be a professional exhibition between former Big Spring boxer Juan Baldwin and Richard Abila. Juan is the brother of Jamie Jr., and now lives in Odessa.

Baldwin, a 125-pound featherweight, is managed by Marc May of Odessa. Baldwin has a 7-1 professional record and May says he's currently having troubles getting bouts.

"It hasn't been going good because we can't get any fights and we don't know what to do," said May. "We've tried to get fight promoters to guarantee us fights, but we can't. Juan's had a couple of fight offers, but the other fighters have turned it down. We had a fight scheduled in New Orleans Jan. 27 against Jamille Hinton, but he pulled out."

May says there are two main reasons that has slowed down Baldwin's pro career — his location, and the time he turned pro (1988).

"There's been a general boxing decline in the economy in Texas," said May. "If he was boxing out of California or some other place, it would be easier for him to get fights. Also Juan turned pro during an Olympic year. Now most of those Olympic boxers are getting all the fights."

The price of admission to the tournament is $3 for adults and $2 for children under 12.

Former Dallas coach among Hall of Fame finalists

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Two years ago, owner Al Davis of the Los Angeles Raiders said if Pittsburgh Steelers fans didn't quiet down during the Pro Football Hall of Fame induction ceremonies, he would move the hall to the West Coast.

Last year, Davis patched things up by telling Steelers fans, "You showed me. You moved the Hall of Fame to Three Rivers Stadium."

The assault on Canton continued Thursday, when three more former Steelers were named as finalists for induction into the 1990 class of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Running back Franco Harris, linebacker Jack Lambert and wide receiver Lynn Swann were among the 15 former players or coaches selected as finalists by a media committee.

The Steelers, winners of Super Bowls in 1975, 1976, 1979 and 1980, have had four players inducted in the last three years — each in their first year of eligibility.

Harris and Lambert are both eligible for induction for the first time. Swann became eligible last year.

Other candidates eligible for the first time are Oakland Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler, Los Angeles Rams defensive end Jack Youngblood and Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry.

Davis was also among the finalists, joined by eight other players — defensive tackle Buck Buchanan, offensive lineman Dan Dierdorf, quarterback Bob Griese, linebacker Ted Hendricks, offensive guard Larry Little, tight end John Mackey, offensive tackle Ron Yary and tackle Bob St. Clair.

The class of 1990, which will include as few as four or as many as seven members, will be announced Jan. 27 at New Orleans, the day before the Super Bowl.

Former Steelers Joe Greene (1987), Jack Ham (1988) and Mel Blount and Terry Bradshaw (1989) were elected to the hall the last years.

Harris spent a dozen years with the Steelers and one with the Seattle Seahawks before retiring in 1984. He ranks fourth in career rushing with 12,120 yards and ran for over 1,000 in eight seasons. The former Penn State player holds Super Bowl career records for points (24) and rushing yards (354).

Lambert, unheralded coming out of Kent State, became the prototype for the active, sideline-to-sideline middle linebacker. He spent his 11 NFL seasons with the Steelers, playing in nine consecutive Pro Bowls and twice was named NFL defensive player of the year.

Stabler, a standout quarterback at Alabama, played with the Houston Oilers and New Orleans Saints from 1980 to 1984, but is best known for his 10 seasons with the Oakland Raiders. The left-hander was named the AFC player of the year twice. His career completion percentage of 59.85 ranks third, behind San Francisco's Joe Montana and Miami's Dan Marino. He led the Raiders to a 32-14 victory over Minnesota in the 1977 Super Bowl.

The durable Youngblood missed only one game in 14 seasons with the Los Angeles Rams. An All-Pro four times and All-NFC six times, he played in 201 consecutive games, a team record. The Florida product had a sack, forced a fumble, blocked an extra point and scored on a 47-yard interception return in a 1975 playoff game against St. Louis. He broke his left leg in a first-round playoff game in 1979 but was fitted with a plastic brace and played every defensive down in the NFC title game and in the Super Bowl.

Landry spent 29 years as coach of the Cowboys before he was forced out a year ago. He was a defensive back, punter and kick returner for seven years in the pros, moving to the sidelines in 1956 as defensive coach with the New York Giants.

Lions say no

HOUSTON (AP) — New Houston Oilers coach Jack Pardee will have to look for someone other than June Jones to become his offensive coordinator since the Detroit Lions declined to grant Jones permission to interview with the Oilers.

"I would have liked to have talked to him, but I won't be able to," Pardee said Thursday. Jones had been mentioned as the No. 1 candidate to become the Oilers offensive coordinator.

Oilers General Manager Mike Holovac confirmed Thursday that Lions General Manager Chuck Schmidt refused to give the Oilers a chance to talk to Jones, the Lions quarterback coach.

Under National Football League rules, Jones had to get permission from the Lions before he could interview with Houston.

Jones, 36, left the Oilers for the Lions because his mentor, Mouse Davis, was hired by Detroit to install the run-and-shoot offense. He has one year remaining on a two-year contract.

Jones and Davis are in Houston this week to attend practices leading up to the Freedom Bowl, a black college all-star game which will be played Saturday in the Astrodome.

"June would be a great selection for the Oilers," Davis said. "He knows the personnel. He has a great rapport with the quarterbacks. He would be excellent."

Pardee said he and Jones are friends and would have liked to have worked with him.

Wilson busted again

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — Former Cincinnati Bengals running back Stanley Wilson, banned from the NFL for life for alleged drug use, was arrested today for investigation of drug paraphernalia, authorities said.

A year ago, on the eve of the Super Bowl, Wilson was suspended by the Bengals for alleged cocaine use, the last in a series of suspensions that led to his lifetime ban.

Authorities determined Wilson, 28, wasn't under the influence of drugs or alcohol when he was arrested today, Deputy George Ducoulombier said.

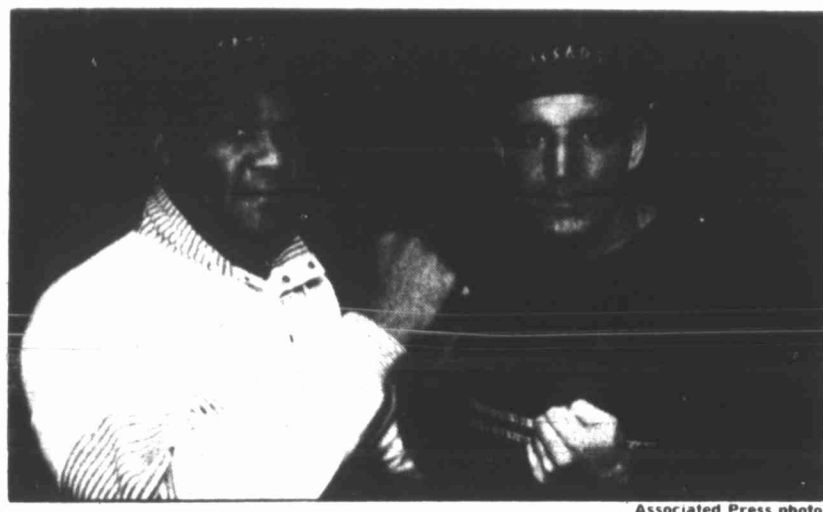

Deputies patrolling an unincorporated area near Gardena about 1:30 a.m. found Wilson stopped in his 1989 Chrysler LeBaron in the middle of an intersection, Ducoulombier said.

As deputies approached the car, they spotted a pipe sitting between the two front seats, Ducoulombier said. The pipe apparently was used to smoke marijuana, he said.

Wilson got out of his car and scuffled with deputies, the sheriff's spokesman said. After a brief struggle, Wilson was arrested and booked at the Lennox station, where he was being held in lieu of $1,000 bail.

McGowan leads pack

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Pat McGowan led a massive assault on a little municipal course with a 10-under-par 62 for a three-shot first-round lead at the Tucson Open.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Heavyweight boxers George Foreman (left) and Gerry Cooney pose for photographers at a final press conference Thursday to promote Monday's fight.

Foreman-Cooney; is it fight or farce?

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — George Foreman decided a couple of years ago to practice what he preached.

"I tell people it's never too late to start all over again," said the former heavyweight champion who retired in 1977 and became an evangelist.

In 1987, Foreman, embarrassed by what he considered to be begging to obtain operating funds for his youth center in Houston, decided to resume boxing.

Foreman will make at least $1 million Monday night when he fights Gerry Cooney in a scheduled 10-round bout at the Convention Center. Cooney also will get $1 million.

Cooney retired after an inept performance in which he was knocked out in the fifth round by Michael Spinks on June 15, 1987.

He sees this fight not as a chance at redemption but as a fresh start. Pushed into boxing by a father he says he could never please, Cooney often worried about pleasing other people.

When he was stopped in the 13th round of a title bid against Larry Holmes in 1982, he grabbed the ring microphone and sobbed, "I'm sorry."

This time, he said, he's fighting for himself.

New attitudes and past reputations, however, do not necessarily add up to a good fight.

Foreman vs. Cooney. Fight or farce?

Critics note that Foreman, who will be 41 or 42 Jan. 22, depending to whom you talk, is too old to be engaging in a risk sport such as boxing. Cooney is 33.

It is a matchup that offends boxing purists — two aging fighters whose skills have had to suffer the erosion of time. To some, it smacks of the burlesque of professional wrestling.

Criticism has been a companion of Foreman since he began his comeback. He's been called too old to fight, while at the same time being criticized for not fighting tougher opponents.

Cooney is the best known and, because of his punching power, also appears to be the most dangerous opponent for Foreman.

Hail

He took over the Cowboys when the franchise was formed in 1960. He introduced the flex defense and multiple offense and also restructured the shotgun or spread offense. He was also the driving force behind "situation substitution" which came into vogue in the 1980s.

Known for his dour expression and ever present hat, he guided the Cowboys to 20 consecutive winning seasons, 13 division titles, five NFC championships and Super Bowl victories in 1972 and 1978. His 270 career victories (with 178 losses and 6 ties) is topped only by Don Shula and George Halas.

Buchanan, who spent all 13 years on the defensive line with the Kansas City Chiefs, was one of the most intimidating pass rushers ever. Dierdorf, born in Canton, played with the St. Louis Cardinals throughout his 13 seasons and saw action in six Pro Bowls. Griese passed for more than 25,000 yards during 14 seasons with the Miami Dolphins and engineered the Dolphins' 14-7 victory over Washington in the 1973 Super Bowl that capped a 17-0 season.

Hendricks, who spent 15 years in the NFL with the Baltimore Colts, Green Bay Packers and Raiders, was a standout on defense in eight Pro Bowls, seven AFC championships and four Super Bowls. Little, a free agent out of Bethune-Cookman, became one of the most who has a comeback record of 19, 0, with 18 knockouts.

"Of the criticism, Foreman said, "You've got to know yourself, enjoy yourself. Skepticism is a necessity, but I'm not going to be converted. I'm an optimist."

Anger was very much a part of the makeup of the George Foreman who was the heavyweight champion in 1973-74 before being stripped of his cloak of invincibility when he lost the title on an eighth-round knockout by Muhammad Ali in 1974.

Foreman retired after being knocked down and outpointed over 12 rounds by Jimmy Young on March 17, 1977, in Puerto Rico.

Foreman was hospitalized for heat exhaustion which, a physician said, caused him to hallucinate. Foreman saw it as a religious experience, retired from boxing and founded the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ at Houston. He continues to preach.

"This time around it is more of a pleasure," said Foreman, who often was sullen in his dealing with press and public when he was champion.

"One of my role models — now think about this — was Sonny Liston," Foreman said.

The late Sonny Liston, an ex-convict who became heavyweight champion was a menacing figure.

Foreman recalled that Liston once asked him if he wanted to become champion and that he replied that he did.

"I thought he was going to give me some good advice," Foreman said, "but he told me, 'When you're champ you can spit on the sidewalk.'"

"I'm not in the anger thing anymore. I never throw a shot in anger. It's more of a competitive thing now. The idea is to win and it's easier to win by a knockout. I try to land a proper punch to get a knockout."

Brooding, not anger, was a hangup for Cooney.

"I've gotten rid of a lot of things that were holding me back," Cooney said.

He has a new manager in Tom Mara while remaining in litigation with former managers Mike Jones and Dennis Rappaport.

recognized guards in history, playing 14 seasons with the San Diego Chargers and Dolphins. Mackey caught 331 passes for 5,236 yards and 38 touchdowns during 10 seasons as the prototype tight end with the Colts and Chargers.

Swann, best known for his 161 receiving yards and four catches in the 1976 Super Bowl, caught 336 passes for 5,462 yards and 51 touchdowns in nine seasons with the Steelers. Yary spent 14 seasons with the Minnesota Vikings and one with the Rams and played in seven Pro Bowls and four Super Bowls.

St. Clair, who spent 11 seasons with the San Francisco 49ers, is the candidate of the Old Timers Committee. He excelled as a blocker who also played defense early in his career and was renowned for his special-teams play. He blocked 10 field-goal attempts in 1956.

Davis, nominated as a contributor, is the only man to be a scout, assistant coach, head coach, general manager, a league commissioner and principal owner of an NFL team. He had a 23-16-3 record as coach of the Raiders for three years. Two months after he became commissioner of the American Football League, it merged with the NFL.

In the first 26 years of the Davis era, 1963 to 1988, the Raiders' .678 winning percentage was the best in pro sports. He also engineered the Raiders' controversial move from Oakland to Los Angeles in 1982.

Hula Bowl Saturday

HONOLULU (AP) — It's tough to name defensive honors Michigan State's Percy Snow hasn't won. Beyond two-time All-American, the Lombardi and Butkus awards and All-Big Ten Conference, there's little left.

Yet the 6-foot-3, 244-pound middle linebacker says even an All-American has something to prove in Saturday's Hula Bowl, a game featuring 68 outstanding seniors.

"I'm out here to impress the scouts, too, you know. I haven't made it yet," said Snow, projected as a first-round pick in the National Football League draft.

"I'm looking it just like everybody else. I'm out here to do what I have to do and show my abilities," Snow said.

Snow led the Big Ten in tackles this year with 163, one short of the Michigan State record he set in 1988. He had 464 tackles, including 272 solos, in his career.

Snow is the only player ever to win both the Butkus Award, presented to the nation's top linebacker, and the Lombardi Award, given to the best lineman or linebacker.

He even finished eighth in the 1989 Heisman Trophy balloting.

"We all know Percy is going to be a high first-round draft choice," Michigan State coach George Perles said. "He blocks field goals, he intercepts passes, he makes big plays. He's a well rounded player."

"I can't imagine there's anyone who does more things or has had a finer career in college football that is playing right now than Percy."

Snow considers it a good sign the Hula Bowl will be played at Aloha Stadium, where Michigan State walloped Hawaii 33-13 in the Aloha Bowl last month. He had nine tackles in the game.

Snow is one of six All-Americans in the all-star game. Another is teammate Bob Kula, a 6-5, 282-pound left tackle.

"I'm here to win the game and show off my talent for the scouts," Kula said. "If I'm a (projected) third-rounder, I'm hopefully going to get into the second. If I'm in the second, I want to get in the first. I just want to remove any doubts they might have."

Other All-Americans are Miami defensive end Greg Mark, New Mexico receiver Terance Mathis, Southern Cal defensive end Tim Ryan and Baylor linebacker James Francis.

Francis said the quality of players should make for an even matchup.

Howard had jumped to an early 15 point lead before allowing New Mexico to creep back into the game.

Thompson, Reggie Collins and Will Scott led a T-Bird charge that pushed his team to a 50-46 halftime lead. Collins and Thompson finished the game with 22 points each, while Scott scored 21 before fouling out.

New Mexico's play was no surprise to Green, who said the T-Birds are far better than their 9-10 record.

"I was extremely happy with the way we came back and fought in the second half," Green said. "We were in a very difficult situation and held together. We made the plays when we had to and pulled the game out of the fire."

Green said the Hawks had trouble in the first half even before McDowell went to the bench.

"Their zone defense slowed us down a little bit," he said. "We didn't get as many transition baskets as we wanted. So the second half we went to the press to break the floor up."

Howard regained the lead just minutes into the second half, but a wild New Mexico crowd wasn't about to let its team get blown out. The T-Birds kept scratching back, swapping leads with the Hawks for the next 10 minutes.

Seattle led 70-69 with 6:45 left and went on a 15-2 run for an 85-71 advantage with 3:29 remaining.

Green said he warned his team that New Mexico would be tough.

"I told the guys before the game that when you're having the kind of season we're having when you go play someone, you've got to be prepared to take their best shot," he said. "I told the guys before the game it was going to take a 120 points to beat them. We scored 115. We've got a lot of firepower this year."

Neither team was able to get much more than a five-point lead, until McDowell and Howard took over in the final three minutes. The Hawks spurred to a 112-102 lead and the T-Birds just couldn't make up the difference.

Green hopes New Mexico will be able to make it up in other games.

"I think they're going to be a factor down the road," he said. "I hope they play as well against everybody else as they did against us."

The Hawks return to conference action Monday when they play Clarendon in Pampa. The Clarendon game has been scheduled for Pampa because of problems with the college gym. On Tuesday, the Hawks face Frank Phillips College and coach Kelly Green, brother of Steve Green.

Green Wave rolls over Memphis St.

By The Associated Press
It's Carnival Season in New Orleans and Tulane's basketball team provided unexpected cause for celebration.

The Green Wave resumed the sport this season after a four-year suspension in the wake of a point-shaving scandal. On Thursday night, they upset No. 20 Memphis State 81-80 on Michael Christian's 3-point shot with 28 seconds left. It was only the third victory in 11 tries for Tulane and the first in three Metro Conference games.

The last time the teams met, in 1985, was one of the games the conspirators said they fixed. In a repeat of the 1985 game, Tulane students threw Mardi Gras beads onto the floor after the Green Wave's first field goal.

"Look at the face of President (Eamon) Kelly. Look at our students. That's what this is all about," Coach Perry Clark said after Tulane sweated out the final seconds. "Even with the ball and two seconds left I was nervous as heck."

Memphis State wasn't the only ranked team to lose Thursday night. Ninth-ranked Georgia Tech bowed to No. 10 Duke 96-91 and Purdue knocked off No. 16 Minnesota 86-78.

Elsewhere, it was No. 11 Louisville 79, South Carolina 66; No. 13 Indiana 77, Northwestern 63; No. 18 Arizona 90, Southern Cal 75; No. 19 UCLA 62, Arizona State 53 and No. 23 Loyola Marymount 113, Santa Clara 100.

Tulane's Christian was only 2-of-6 from 2-point range but hit three of five 3-pointers, including his game-winning shot with two seconds left on the shot clock.

Anthony Reed led Tulane with 25 points. Memphis State (9-4, 1-1) got 18 from Elliott Perry.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Purdue's Loren Clayburn (right) stretches for the steal against Minnesota's Melvin Newbern in first half

The Tigers took an 80-78 lead on Perry's jumper with 1:14 left but Tulane broke a full-court press and held the ball until Christian's game-winning shot. Perry missed a shot following a Memphis State

Big 10 action at Mackey Arena. The Boilermakers of Purdue beat the Gophers of Minnesota 86-78.

Phil Henderson scored 26 points and Christian Laettner 23 for Duke, which overcame a 10-point deficit in the final nine minutes. Henderson scored seven points and Laettner hit five free throws in a 17-2 run after Tech had built a 78-68 lead.

the lead on two free throws by Laettner with 3:52 to play, and built the lead to 85-80 on Henderson's 3-point basket with 3:22 remaining.

Tech (10-1, 1-1) fell one victory shy of tying the school record for the best start in a season. The 1962-63 Jackets won their first 11 en route to a 21-5 campaign. Dennis Scott scored 30 points to lead Tech, Brian Oliver had 24 and freshman Kenny Anderson 19.

No. 11 Louisville 79, S. Carolina 66
Keith Williams made eight of nine shots and scored a career-high 24 points. Williams, whose previous high was 19 against Virginia Tech a year ago, scored eight of Louisville's first 14 points to help the Cardinals take a 36-18 halftime lead over error-prone, cold-shooting South Carolina.

Midway through the first half the Gamecocks had eight turnovers and only seven points. They finished the half with 17 turnovers while shooting 25 percent.

No. 13 Indiana 77, Northwestern 63
Eric Anderson led an 18-2 second-half run with 11 points as Indiana turned a six-point deficit into a 10-point lead and made Bob Knight the winningest coach in Big Ten history.

Purdue 86, No. 16 Minnesota 78
Ryan Berning scored all 13 of his points in the final nine minutes, including six free throws in the final 71 seconds, as Purdue snapped Minnesota's 10-game winning streak. Purdue (10-2, 2-0 Big Ten) led 43-30 at halftime and stretched it to 71-53 before the Gophers (10-2, 1-1) rallied in the final seven minutes.

The Boilermakers overcame 23 turnovers, including several during Minnesota's charge. The Gophers' Willie Burton led all scorers with 22 points.

TSU routs Dillard

By The Associated Press
TEXAS SOUTHERN 124, Dillard 65
HOUSTON (AP) — Charles Price scored 25 points to lead the Texas Southern Tigers to a 124-65 non-conference rout of Dillard.

Darrion Applewhite added 22 points for the Tigers, now 5-6. Dillard dropped to 6-8 following Thursday night's loss.

The 59 points represented the second-largest margin of victory in TSU history. The 1968-69 Tigers defeated Texas College by 72. Texas Southern held a 41-11 lead with 7:44 remaining in the first half and held a 69-25 lead at halftime.

Hardin-Simmons 56, Mercer 53
MACON, Ga. (AP) — Rick Nickerson scored 21 points, inwith 2:52 left in overtime, but BYU, 11-3 and 2-1, pulled even when Steve Schreiner hit a pair of free throws. Schreiner converted the front end of a two-shot opportunity with 1:25 left, then hit the front end of a one-and-one with 46 seconds left in Thursday night's game.

UTEP called a timeout with 16 seconds left to set up the final shot, but Haws foiled the plans by stealing the ball from Henry Hall. Hall recovered in time to prevent a layup, but Haws hit both ends of his one-and-one.

The Miners' Prince Stewart then missed a shot from near midcourt, with the ball banging high off the iron as time expired.

Andy Toolson led BYU with 24 points while Haws had 15 and Schreiner had 14. Marlon Macey led UTEP with 24 points and Hall added 21.

UTEP led 34-28 at the half, but BYU used a 13-3 run to open the second half and led 41-37 with 14:45 in regulation play.

BYU eventually moved to a 29-20 advantage with 4:41 left in regulation. UTEP used a 12-2 run to take a 62-59 lead with 56 seconds left in overtime.

Toolson brought BYU to within one with 40 seconds to go and Haws gave BYU a 63-62 lead on a layup with 11 seconds left.

Hall tied the score with two seconds left when he hit the second of two foul shots with two seconds left in regulation.

Southwest Texas St. 100, North Texas 83
SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Sinking seven 3-pointers, Rodney Hill scored 26 points to boost Southwest Texas State to a 100-83 victory against North Texas in the Southland Conference opener for both teams.

North Texas is winless after 14 games. Southwest Texas is 4-7 following Thursday's victory.

Stacy Bennett had seven assists and 19 points for the Southwest Texas Bobcats.

Ray Schufford's 17 points led North Texas, while Octavius

Martin had 12.
Ronnie Morgan of the Eagles had a game-high 16 rebounds.

Southwest Texas trailed early in the game, taking its first lead at 18-16 midway through the first half on a drive by Lance Harper. The Bobcats stretched their lead to 49-37 at the half.

Sam Houston 60, Texas-Arlington 52
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Michael Champion scored 20 points as Sam Houston State defeated Texas-Arlington 60-52 in a Southland Conference game Thursday night at Texas Hall.

It was the SLC opener for both teams. Sam Houston is 3-11 for the season, while UTA's record dropped to 5-8 following Thursday's game.

Champion scored four points to put his Bearkats ahead 51-46 with 3:52 remaining. The Mavericks never got closer than three points the rest of the game.

Willie Brand of UTA also scored 20 points. David Allen had 12 points and 12 rebounds for the Mavericks.

SW Louisiana 104, Prairie View 80
LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Sydney Grider and Kevin Brooks combined for 56 points to lead Southwestern Louisiana to a 104-80 victory over Prairie View.

Southwestern Louisiana is 12-1; Prairie View is 4-7 following the loss Thursday night.

NW Louisiana 95, Stephen F. Austin 89
NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Jethro Owens scored 18 points to lead Northwest Louisiana to a 95-89 victory over Stephen F. Austin in the Southland Conference opener for both schools.

The victory Thursday night marked the Demons' first win over the Lumberjacks in Nacogdoches since 1965.

It's nice when you win

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — The day after New Mexico State beat No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas, Aggies coach Neil McCarthy's arrival at a local restaurant was greeted with applause from every table.

Inside the Pan American Center, the Aggies' home court, several students hung a banner: "We Love You Coach McCarthy."

In this part of the country at this time of year, few things tug harder at the heart than a 10-game winning streak and a shot at March Madness.

New Mexico State, which reached the NCAA Tournament's Final Four in 1970 and slowly went downhill from there, has made another U-turn. Monday's 83-82 victory over the fearsome Runnin' Rebels gave the Aggies a 12-1 record and the credibility the school has chased since that 1970 season, when Coach Lou Henson and stars Sam Lacey, Jimmy Collins and Charlie Criss led the school to a third-place national finish at College Park, Md.

This season's Aggies also own two victories over New Mexico and one over Texas-El Paso, the preseason title choices in the neighboring Western Athletic Conference. UTEP is the only team to beat the Aggies, winning 75-72 in El Paso on a last-second 3-pointer. Two weeks later, the Aggies pinned a 62-49 beating on UTEP in Las Cruces.

McCarthy noted that beating UNLV carries a little more clout with the NCAA selection committee, a group New Mexico State hasn't heard from since 1979.

"When you get a win over Vegas, it expands your exposure nationally," he said. "A win like this should help you in the (NCAA) computer in March."

"We've tried to recruit kids from winning programs," he said. "We went looking for kids with good basketball mentality."

In the process, McCarthy got players who know how to communicate, on and off the court. Three of his four top recruits — point guard Randy Brown, forward Reggie Jordan and 3-point specialist Rick Fluckey — are journalism majors. Forward Michael New, who played for the Howard College Hawks last year, is majoring in broadcasting.

"We like each other," said Brown, a playground player from Chicago whose 1-on-1 moves against UNLV got him a season-high 27 points. "Once a team gets a lot of cohesiveness off the floor, it makes it easier to play together on the floor."

Brown and New, teammates at Chicago's Collins High School, signed with Houston. Brown played two seasons with the Cougars before deciding to transfer. New, redshirted his first year, played briefly in the 1988 season and transferred to Howard.

Texas Hoops

cluding four free throws in the final 1:37, as Hardin-Simmons snapped a six-game losing streak with a 56-53 Trans America Athletic Conference victory over Mercer.

It was the fifth victory in a row for the Cowboys (4-9 overall, 1-3 TAAC) on Mercer's home court.

The Bears (5-7, 1-2) had taken a 53-52 lead when Scott Bailey hit a free throw with two minutes remaining, but Nickerson had the rest of the scoring in the game.

Bailey led Mercer with 19 points Thursday night.

Brigham Young 69, UTEP 67, OT

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Guard Marty Haws stole the ball with eight seconds left in overtime and converted a pair of free throws to lift Brigham Young to a 69-67 Western Athletic Conference win over Texas-El Paso. UTEP, 8-6 and 1-2, led 67-65

Tribal religions seen akin to biblical faith

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NORMAN, Okla. — After an aged Indian woman, Bessie Snake, lost her husband when he and his two mules were killed by lightning while plowing, his younger brother dutifully married the widow.

DUANE HALE

That obligation is part of the religious traditions of the Delawares and some other tribes, matching a responsibility laid down in the biblical laws of ancient Judaism.

"The similarities of early native American religions and ancient Hebrew religion are astonishing," says historian Duane Hale of the Creek tribe, a researcher of the American Indian Institute at the University of Oklahoma.

He also notes congruent strains with early Christianity, such as Indian expectations of a Christ like benefactor and emphasis on communal sharing of everything in common and on modesty by not calling attention to oneself.

"All American Indians were and most are today deeply religious and devoted to their belief in one supreme being," Hale said in an interview. He discounted past characterizations of some old tribal rites as pagan.

"I don't think it's pagan to go up on a mountain and pray to try to get a vision," he said, describing the "vision quest" of the Sioux and some other tribes. "It's similar to what the biblical prophets did."

Hale, 47, former co-chairman of the Department of Navajo and Indian Studies at Navajo Community College in Arizona and now with the university's institute here, researches and writes tribal histories.

Since 1983, he has completed them for six tribes. He also conducts training workshops to help Indians across the country learn how to preserve tribal lore. Participants have come from about 200 of the nation's 300 recognized tribes. Thirty-seven of them have tribal headquarters in Oklahoma, which remained mostly Indian territory until 1907. The university's Western History Collections library is considered the best existing on the plains tribes.

While Indians generally have depended on handing down their religious traditions orally, "there's a great danger they will be lost," Hale said. "In many cases they have been."

"There are not enough Indian histories. Many of the elders are dying, and I try to teach them to write their histories. Some are beginning to record it and put it in locked files only for the tribe."

While Indian religion sometimes is portrayed as highly distinct from biblical faith, Hale sees definite resemblances, judging on the basis of his advanced biblical studies as well as first-hand inquiries into Indian religion.

"Christianity and early Indian religion have been so interwoven that it is often difficult now to tell which came first for them," Hale said. Of 1.4 million U.S. Indians, most are Christians but many also retain tribal insights, he said.

The Native American Church, which combines both Christianity and native religion, stemmed from the "ghost dance" religion started in the 1890s by a Paiute Indian from Nevada, Wewoka, preaching return of the buffalo and Christ to lift up the downtrodden.

"It spread like wildfire," Hale said, adding that it uses the hallucinogenic peyote bean "as a sacrament," which also is used in a "limited way" in some other tribal religions.

He said these also make extensive use of chants, the drum, the four directions, the circle, the smoked pipe and smoke from burning cedar waved about by a feather to ward off evil.

However, religious details vary from tribe to tribe, and often remain obscure, since there were no reliably balanced accounts of Indian concepts for the first 100 years of contacts with Europeans, he said.

At a distance it looks much like a large Indian tepee. Up close however, it reveals itself as a church. Built 40 years ago, the church at Edmond, Okla. is closing due to problems with flooding and other defects.

You can deal with anger

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My home life was the pits when I was growing up. We never knew what our father was going to be like when he came home from work, and the weekends were worse because he was always drunk and abusive, and all my parents did was fight. I grew up hating my parents. But now I realize that my anger has really done something bad to me and I need to get rid of it. But how can I erase all those memories? —A.Y.

What is the key? First of all, face the fact of what your anger and hatred and bitterness have done. They have not solved anything; they have not changed your parents, apparently, nor have they changed the past. Nor have they changed the emotional scars you bear; in fact, they have scarred you even more. Modern psychologists have discovered what the Bible taught centuries ago: Anger will twist us and hurt us if we do not deal with it. Jesus even compared anger to murder (see Matthew 5:21-22).

DEAR A.Y.: You can't necessarily erase the memories of what happened in the past (although you may be surprised how they can fade as the years go by, with God's help). But you can deal with your anger and even forgive your parents for what they did to you. Secondly, turn your anger over to God. Confess to him that you can't conquer your bitterness on your own, and you need his help.

Reflections for the next decade

Pastor's corner

By DARREN SKINNER
Special to the Herald

As I look back at what the past 10 years has brought us, I can't help looking at this coming decade. This is the last decade before the next millennium. What will it hold for us? Is our future promising or bleak? Can we take on the challenges that are ahead in the '90s?

Technologically, expect advancements to equal or exceed the past 30 years. Expect continued dominance from the Orient and Europe, especially Germany. We will watch the rise of Eastern bloc nations and the continued decline of communism worldwide. We have already seen the excitement and vigor with which they have embraced democracy and their attempts to solve their problems through the people and not the government. Will we as Americans be able to rekindle our excitement for the freedom we have or become complacent captives to our own passive culture?

What about the church? How can we compete with TV, sports and movies? Can we make a difference? Of course, truly the past 10 years the church has experienced success in many areas. And certainly, we will take up the challenge of the '90s. More and more people will become involved in ministry and not just the pastor; others will be praying, visiting, teaching and even preaching along with other pastoral duties.

Individuals will recognize the need for community and not just coming together once a week. People will be able to express their feelings and opinions without fears of put downs or rejection. Evangelism will not be feared, but become the natural expression of our daily lives. Love and fellowship will be experienced at every meeting of the church.

Concern and prayer going out to those who hurt. Help will be given to those who are sick, unemployed, homeless, and dying of cancer, AIDS and other terminal diseases.

The church will take up the challenges that lie ahead! If not, it then slowly will die and become a fading glow in the past. Heaven forbid, as Christians in the church let us take up the challenge to respond to the needs of those around us, to minister to each other and those worldwide.

Lord, help us to accept this challenge. To respond to the needs of those in my church and worldwide. Help me to catch the vision of ministry to all people. Let us see your face in those who need help and see you smile as we minister to them in your name.

The Rev. Darren Skinner is pastor of First United Methodist Church, Big Spring; and First United Methodist Church, Coahoma.

Christian drama

Youth Quake, featuring Christian youth from the Klondike and Ackerly community, will present "Why Should You Go In," Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Bethel Assembly of God Church, Ackerly.

The production is an original Christian drama written and directed by Michael Riggins. This story asks that each person search for the real meaning of Christ and Christianity.

A cast of 20 and a crew of 18 will present this performance.

Bible conference

Hillcrest Baptist Church will begin its January Bible Conference Sunday at 11 a.m. and at 5 p.m.

Monday through Wednesday services will be conducted at 7 p.m. Herman Hendrix, a well-known Bible teacher, conference leader, and pastor of MacArthur Boulevard Baptist Church, Irving, will lead the conference.

This year's conference will be the study of II Corinthians.

Caring ministry

Group reaches cancer patients around the world

By ROY A. JONES II
Abilene Reporter-News

ABILENE — Caring. That, in a word, describes Randy Becton. Courageous. Committed. Faithful. Talented.

Each also describes the 45-year-old Abilene man, but none reflects the depth of his compassion quite like "caring."

Cancer. At one time that was the word most closely associated with Becton, but no more. Although he's still a cancer patient, that fact becomes insignificant in his zeal to help others who similarly are stricken.

Appropriately, "Caring" is the name of Becton's non-profit, Abilene-based ministry which has been a compassionate support group to thousands of cancer patients around the world for nearly 12 years.

"Everybody is terminal, not just those of us with cancer," he said. "But the nature of Christian compassion is to never give up, and so we call our ministry, 'Caring.'"

Besides, he added, his eyes sparkling, "In Jesus, the giver of eternal life, terminal becomes eternal! We are going to have the victory over death."

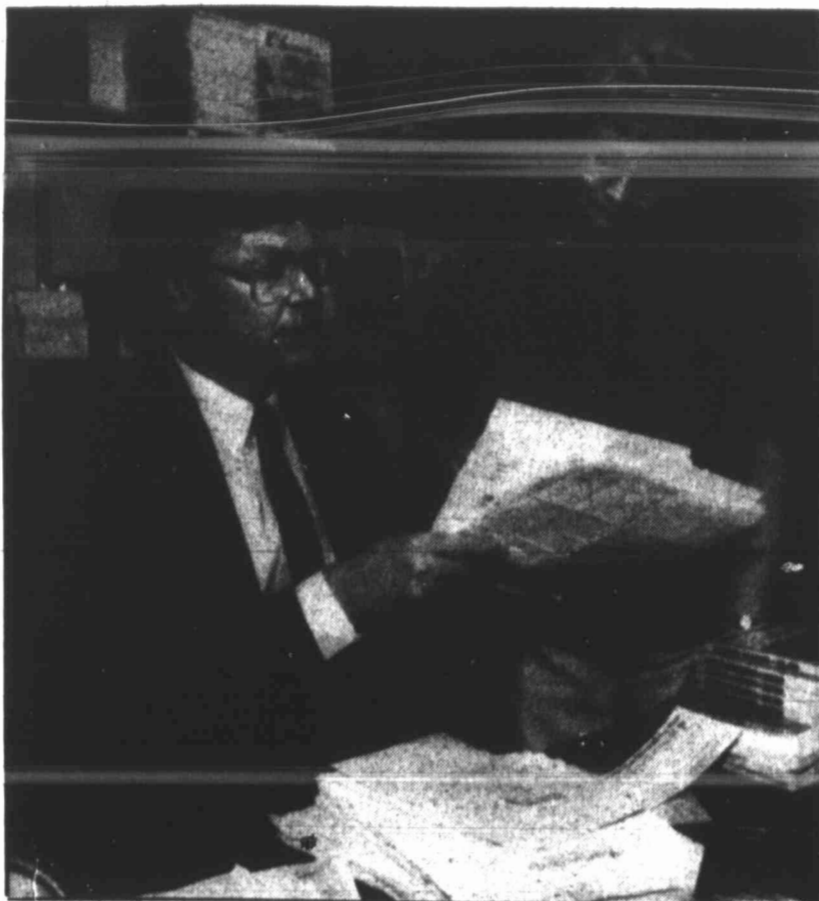

"Caring" seeks to minister to anyone in grief, but cancer and leukemia patients make up more than 90 percent of the 3,000 to 4,000 persons who write each year seeking encouraging words from Becton and a staff of a dozen volunteers.

That encouragement may take the form of one or two of the dozen books and many more pamphlets which Becton has written out of his own experience. And every communication with a patient includes a personal, handwritten letter or note from Becton or one of the volunteers.

"When you are in a cancer situation you are in grief," he said. "We really didn't want to be but we are."

His most recent book is entitled, "Everyday Strength: A Cancer Patient's Guide to Spiritual Survival."

Randy Becton's life changed in November 1973 when his doctor told him he had cancer of the lymph system, and at an advanced stage.

ABILENE — Randy Becton and charter volunteer Ann Franklin look over mail, received from all over the world by the Caring cancer ministry.

Suddenly, at age 29, he was plunged from joy to despair.

Only six months before, he and his wife, Camilla, had shared in the joy of the birth of their third child. He was doing what he perceived to be the Lord's work, as a counselor for Herald of Truth broadcasts, and he "couldn't have been happier," he said.

"I felt like you probably did: shocked, frightened at first, later quietly desperate — and only faintly hopeful," he shared later with fellow cancer patients.

Adding to his desperation was the fact that he knew what to expect. His mother had suffered with cancer for three years. He also knew the doctors called his type of cancer, lymphoma, incurable.

Through three surgeries, dozens of tests, and two years of chemotherapy, he and his young family struggled with the disease.

And they survived mentally and spiritually.

"My Christian faith has been the anchor of my health, and my greatest source of comfort and hope," he said. "It helped me hang on and keep fighting."

In 1975, doctors determined that he was in remission, not cured, but his disease was inactive.

That wasn't the first answered prayer, he said. But it was the answered prayer which enabled him to make definite plans for a ministry that would allow other cancer patients and their families to learn from his experience.

His mother, a longtime hospital administrator in Nashville, played an important role in that decision, too. Inspired by her seven-year bout with cancer, he wrote her daily — volumes of prayers which grew out of viewing the deadly disease from two intensely personal perspectives.

Shortly before her death, in 1977, she handed him back all his letters, tied together with a red ribbon, and encouraged him to share them with others.

"She said she didn't think anyone else could understand her feelings, but it was like Randy had a window to her soul," said Ann Franklin, a family friend.

Those prayers and meditation comprised Becton's first book, "Coming to Grips With God," which is now in its fourth printing.

His first and most popular pamphlet is "You're Not Alone," which tells what it's like to have cancer and how to learn to lean on the Lord for strength.

In 1978, Ann Franklin, Nadine Stephens, Maude Milstead, and about six other women became the first volunteers in the Caring ministry.

In the first year, they received more than 4,000 letters from cancer patients and their families, and they answered every one.

"Some I've written to for several years. We get to know each other's families pretty well just through the letters," Mrs. Stephens said. The experience of being around Becton helped her deal with the cancer deaths of her mother and brother, too, she added.

Mrs. Franklin, who does some traveling for the ministry, said, "It gets heavy sometimes, but there is such a great need. The patients and their families are so appreciative. That makes it all worthwhile."

Over the years there have been about 40 volunteers. They have mailed out more than 300,000 pieces of literature — letters, pamphlets, books and now audio cassettes and videotapes.

No cancer victim is charged for the materials. Churches, hospitals and other helping agencies which request the literature are charged only for printing costs. The ministry has an amazingly small annual budget of about $20,000 — most of that for printing and postage.

Becton returns all royalties from his books to the ministry, all but that last one, that is. "It is helping put my daughter through Abilene Christian University," he said proudly.

Director of missions to preach

Harold D. Scarbrough has been named director of missions for the newly formed Big Spring

Lamesa Baptist area, which includes 41 churches in surrounding communities.

To allow the director of missions to live in Big Spring, Scarbrough said, Big Spring and Lamesa chose to combine areas and withdraw from the Concho Valley Association Baptist area in San Angelo.

Scarbrough's duties will include working with pastors in programming of activities, evangelism, missions and in training of church members. He also will serve as a liaison for the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Scarbrough said his goals are to "Unite the churches in the proclamation of the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ and to create a spirit of fellowship and togetherness in that task."

He said "The ultimate purpose is to assist the churches in accomplishing their mission in their setting."

Scarbrough, who began his duties Jan. 1, formerly pastored First Baptist Church, Alpine; Temple Baptist Church, Amarillo, and has pastored churches in Abilene, El Paso and Kermit. He earned a bachelor's of science degree from Sul Ross State University in 1952, and in 1957 he received a bachelor's degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Ft. Worth.

He served as director of missions of the El Paso area from 1968 to 1972.

Scarbrough said he has plans to visit all 41 churches in the area by February.

He will preach at College Baptist Church in Big Spring Sunday during the morning and evening worship services.

Perrine is new chaplain

George Perrine has been named as the new chaplain at the Big Spring State Hospital and will begin his duties in March.

Perrine has a master's of divinity degree from the Lexington Theological Seminary in Kentucky and a master's of science degree in clinical psychology from Kansas State University. He became an ordained minister of the Christian Church in June of 1967. He has had articles published by theological publications.

Perrine's wife Jane also has a master's of divinity degree, a master's in education and is fluent in Spanish. She has been working in the mental health field.

Perrine is currently a pastor of a church in Savannah, Ga. The couple has one grown son.

The public is invited. A nursery will be provided for each service.

Nazarene news

First Church of the Nazarene will conduct a "Night of Prayer" Saturday at 7 p.m. Participants will pray for church and community needs.

The church will conduct Baptist services during the 6 p.m. Sunday worship service.

Sunday School is at 9:45 a.m.; morning worship begins at 10:45; evening worship is at 6.

After the morning worship service, lunch will be served in the fellowship hall.

Dad's ordination

NEW YORK (AP) — A former Anglican priest with a wife and four children will be ordained a Roman Catholic priest on Saturday, making him the 12th married man admitted to the priesthood under a 1980 Vatican ruling.

Trevor Nicholls, 47, will be ordained by Cardinal John O'Connor, according to the Archdiocese of New York.

Unlike most Christian denominations, the Roman Catholic church insists that its priests be single and celibate. But 10 years ago the Vatican said it would allow the ordination of some Anglican or Episcopalian priests who were married and who had left their churches and converted to Catholicism after being ordained.

NFL playoffs

On the side

Playoff picks

By The Associated Press
Los Angeles Rams (plus 7 1/2) at San Francisco

Considering that the Rams beat the 49ers by one point at Candlestick and lost by three at home, the odds makers don't seem to have much faith in them. Perhaps that's because the Rams have to travel only 450 miles or so to get to the game after logging nearly 18,000 air miles each over the last three weeks in roundtrips to Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

What we have here are two similar offenses.

If Jim Everett isn't yet Joe Montana, he's getting there, and Henry Ellard and Flipper Anderson are pretty good approximations of Jerry Rice and John Taylor. Add Greg Bell (well, Roger Craig is more versatile) and you leave the defenses to deal with similar problems.

Ah, the defenses.
The biggest problem for the Rams is finding healthy bodies for the defensive line. Ottis Anderson, he of the tired, old legs, ran for 120 yards against it last week and Craig, whose legs are younger and fresher, should do as well. On the other hand, the 49ers have sacked Everett only once in their last three meetings, hardly the formula for keeping the score down.

What will happen? Probably the last team to have the ball will win.

In that case, don't bet against Montana. But make it close.

49ers, 31-28

Cleveland (plus 4) at Denver

Cardiac Bowl III (Denver won the first two) between two defenses that made household names of Ronnie Harmon and Merril Hoge last week.

Assuming the snow doesn't cascade in from the Rockies, this could be a replay of the AFC title game of two years ago, won by Denver 38-33 with help from Earnest Byner's last-minute fumble at the goal line.

Byner has been dispatched to Washington, in part for that transgression, but his old pal Kevin Mack seems back in form after a jail stint and a knee problem. Look for the Browns to use Mack and Eric Metcalfe to run over and through the Broncos the way Hoge did last week for Pittsburgh.

Cleveland has been aching for this rematch for two years, so much so that the Browns have sometimes failed to keep their mind on other business.

The Browns face two problems.

One is the Denver crowd that probably will remember that missiles from the Cleveland Dawg found forced Tom Dooley to turn the teams around in a 16-13 Browns' victory this season. The other is the same one the Rams face and the one the Browns remember so well from the 1986 AFC title game — you don't want to give Elway the ball with time left for him to do damage.

So
Browns, 38-33

DENVER — Denver Broncos wide receiver Ricky Nattiel peers from a head stocking as he stretches at practice Thursday. The temperature, in the low 40s, was in sharp contrast to Wednesday's balmy 70s temperature. Denver faces Cleveland Sunday in the AFC Championship game.

Browns, Broncos battle for respect

DENVER (AP) — The Broncos don't win the big one. The Browns don't get to the big one.

That's been the perception of the teams who meet Sunday for the AFC championship. It is the third time in four years that Denver and Cleveland have played for the title, with the Broncos taking the 1987 and '88 games, only to be routed in the Super Bowl.

At least the Broncos got there. "The idea is to play for the championship and we have a chance to do it for the third time," Denver safety Dennis Smith said. "I'd rather be in New Orleans than watching two other teams there."

And, who knows, the Broncos might win one of those Super Bowls someday. They are 0-3 so far, but they are 3-0 in the AFC Championship game.

"The way I look at my career is I've got a long way to go," said quarterback John Elway, who was most responsible for getting the Broncos to the Super Bowl in 1987 and 1988, "and I'm not sitting here concerning myself that we'll never get a chance to win a world championship. We're on our way right now and if we can win this week, we've got a chance for another one."

Elway really gets annoyed when he hears people say the Broncos shouldn't bother, that they'll be squashed by the NFC champion, either the San Francisco 49ers or Los Angeles Rams.

"It's the easy way out for people who say that. To those people who say, 'Why do they want to go back?' they ought to hide in their closets."

"We've heard that, 'Hopefully, the Browns won't go back because we don't want to go and lose again.' I want a chance to go to bat."

The Browns would like nothing better than to get to the plate at the Superdome. One of the storied franchises in league history, the Browns have been in the playoffs 22 times and have won more games since 1950 than any team.

But they've never won the title for current owner Art Modell. The two losses to Denver in the AFC championship were particularly galling because of "The Drive," and "The Fumble."

"We've had some extraordinary games," Modell said. "We look back on two of the most debilitating losses this franchise has suffered in the Denver games of 1986 and 1987. When you get so close to the ring and you don't come up with it, it's a shock to your system."

Those defeats came under Coach Marty Schottenheimer, who left the Browns for Kansas City after last season. Bud Carson has taken over and he knows something about Super Bowls, having helped build Pittsburgh's Steel Curtain in the 1970s.

"I've heard enough about the Browns and Denver in the playoffs to know what this game means to this organization and the veterans who played in those two championship games," Carson said.

Rams-49ers to feature preeminent quarterbacks

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — First, it was Dan Marino and John Elway who challenged Joe Montana's position as the NFL's preeminent quarterback. Then Randall Cunningham emerged as the "quarterback of the '90s" for about a month in 1989.

Jim Everett is the latest contender, and Montana and the San Francisco 49ers think the Los Angeles Rams leader may be the genuine heir apparent.

"He's having a great year, and I think he's up in the top (echelon) there," Montana said as the 49ers prepared for Sunday's NFC title game against the Rams at Candlestick Park.

"I look for him to have even more great ones down the road. He can only get better, unfortunately."

Five months ago in Tokyo, the 49ers shared a hotel with the Rams for a week before playing the American Bowl-Japan. Players and coaches on both sides agreed that Everett needed only to pull out some game in the final moments, a la Montana, to prove his greatness.

Everett, who turned 27 last week, gave the 49ers a double dose of clutch quarterbacking soon thereafter by leading the Rams on winning field goal drives in a 16-13 victory in Japan and a 13-12 regular-season win at Candlestick.

San Francisco also took notice of his late-game heroics that helped pull out games against Green Bay, New Orleans and Dallas en route to leading the league with 29 touchdown passes.

"The pressure doesn't seem to bother him anymore," said 49ers coach George Seifert, comparing him to former San Diego Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts. "His poise, his delivery and his confidence in where his receivers are right now are as good as I've ever seen them."

"Even though he might take a sack early in the ballgame, he has the ability now to come back late and still win the game. He's done it again and again. So I can see why people would say he's the heir apparent."

Everett's numbers against the 49ers in the Candlestick victory and in a 30-27 loss at Los Angeles last month are good but not brilliant. He completed 61 percent of his passes for 489 yards and three touchdowns.

Toss in his statistics from the Rams' 38-16 rout of San Francisco on Dec. 18, 1988, and he has seven touchdown passes for the three games, with 53 completions in 94 attempts.

Everett uses a quick, three-step drop on a majority of his passes and he operates behind a line anchored by All-Pro Tom Newberry and Jackie Slater.

"The hardest thing about getting to Everett is they have a great offensive line," San Francisco tackle Pierce Holt, who dumped Everett for an 8-yard loss in the Dec. 11 game, said.

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco 49ers safety Ronnie Lott, shown here arguing with officials in a file photo, will lead the San Francisco defense in trying to stop Jim Everett and the rest of the Los Angeles Rams Sunday in the NFC Championship game.

Players, coaches recall Nagurski

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP) — Bronko Nagurski's name and style epitomized what it meant to play in the formative years of the National Football League.

Just the name brings images of a 235-pound fullback who'd much rather run over an opponent than run around him.

Nagurski, who died Sunday at 81, apparently of natural causes, "transcended the sport of football," former Minnesota Vikings coach Bud Grant said.

Nagurski was born Bronislav Nagurski in Rainy River, Ontario, in 1908, but was known as Bronko since childhood.

He was a football legend at the University of Minnesota and for the Chicago Bears. He was with the Bears from 1930-37 and again in 1943 and was a charter member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Many of his contemporaries considered Nagurski the greatest football player ever.

Ernie Nevers once said: "Tackling Bronko was like trying to stop a freight train running downhill."

Mel Hein called him "the toughest fullback I ever met. If you hit him low, he'd run over you. When you hit him high, he'd knock you down and run over you."

"He was the most bruising runner ever," Clark Hinkle said. "The first time I tackled Nagurski, I had to have five stitches in my face. My biggest thrill in football was the day he announced his retirement."

Nagurski was also a superb linebacker. In fact, he said that had he played in modern times, when players chose either offense or defense, he probably would have been a linebacker.

"Running into him was like running into an electric shock," Red Grange, pro football's other marquee name of that era, once said.

With Nagurski, the Bears won the NFL title in 1932 by beating the Portsmouth Spartans 9-0 in pro football's first indoor game.

Nonetheless, Nagurski said, "After the 1938 season I asked him to stop the game was played on a makeshift 80-yard field inside Chicago Stadium.

The Bears repeated in 1933, beating the New York Giants 23-21. The Giants avenged that defeat in 1934, overcoming a 13-3 halftime deficit by wearing sneakers in the second half to get better traction on an icy field. New York won 30-13 in what became known as the "sneakers" game.

The Bears were beaten 28-21 by the Washington Redskins in the 1937 title game, but Nagurski got another title when, in his comeback season of 1943, the Bears beat the Redskins 41-21.

Despite his fame and talent, Nagurski was shy, almost reclusive.

His parents moved to International Falls, a small Canadian border town known as "The Nation's Icebox," when he was 4. He died at Falls Memorial Hospital 77 years later.

He shunned publicity and, despite repeated requests, never allowed the city to hold a day in honor of its most famous citizen.

Nagurski said in 1984 that he was still 235 pounds. But arthritis eventually hunched his 6-foot-2 frame, forcing him to use crutches.

According to football lore, he was discovered in 1925 when Minnesota coach Doc Spears drove past a farm and saw a muscular boy plowing a field — without a horse. Spears supposedly asked Nagurski directions, and Bronko picked up the plow and used it as a pointer.

At Minnesota, Nagurski played fullback on offense and tackle on defense and in 1929 he became the only player ever named All-America at two positions in the same year.

Soon after, Nagurski met football innovator and Chicago Bears founder George "Papa Bear" Halas, whom he remembered as "a great guy, the best coach, and a very generous man."

He turned down an offer to open a restaurant in Chicago, opting instead to open a gas station in International Falls.

Chicago remembers his legend, however.

"To me he was a player of mythical performances," Bears president Michael McCaskey said Monday. "He was so far above everyone that you measured all players against him."

"My grandfather (Halas) used to tell the story of how Bronk crashed into the wall in the end zone at Wrigley Field. He asked Nagurski how he felt and Nagurski said, 'Fine, how's the crowd taking it?'"

"He played in the same backfield with Red Grange. Grange once said Nagurski was the best player he had ever seen. He said Nagurski had the power of (Larry) Csonka but was faster, and he was as great or better than (Dick) Butkus on defense."

Although no one has ever said he was less than great, his statistics paled compared to history's other great backs. The NFL didn't keep good stats in his era, but it is believed he rushed for fewer than 4,000 yards.

"The Bears believed in spreading the workload, and Halas always stocked lots of good backs," Nagurski told Sports Illustrated in 1984. "They considered me valuable on defense. Then, for my last three years, I had a back problem."

Though his numbers weren't as great as those of Jim Brown, Walter Payton and Eric Dickerson, "He was big beyond his times," Grant said. "He would be a big man today."

Survivors include four sons and two daughters, 15 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Nagurski's wife, Eileen, died in 1987.

Services will be Saturday in International Falls.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Henley and Glenn Frey have settled a decade-old feud and will reunite the Eagles, the popular band that epitomized California rock music in the 1970s, according to a trade publication.

The singer-songwriters will regroup this spring to record an album, the Hollywood Reporter said Monday. The album likely would be followed with a concert tour, the newspaper said.

It wasn't clear if other former Eagles members would reunite with Henley and Frey. Joe Walsh, Don Felder and Timothy B. Schmit were in the band when the Eagles broke up in 1981.

Henley, 42, was touring in Japan on Monday in support of his Geffen former aide to President Nixon who spent seven years in prison for the Watergate scandal, said his life bottomed out when he started treating Nixon like God.

Magruder, executive minister of the First Community Church of Columbus, Ohio, was a special assistant to Nixon and deputy campaign director for the Committee for the Re-election of the President in 1972.

He helped cover up the Watergate scandal.

"After I left Washington, my life was a shambles. My marriage fell apart. There was so much pain," Magruder, 54, told 100 worshippers Monday at Westminster College.

Watergate came about because "we started to treat Nixon not as president but as God," he said.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

SATURDAY, JANUARY 13, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: author Horatio Alger, brush salesman Alfred Carl Fuller, writer Jay McInerney, actor Robert Stack.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Adopt a low-key approach to a family matter. Discuss finances with loved ones. Some of them may not share your priorities. Keep spending within reason. Make temporary sacrifices.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Welcome an opportunity to assert yourself in a group situation. Others look to you for leadership. Avoid sparring with loved ones over money. Make intelligent concessions when revising the family budget.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Showcase your organizational skills to attract higher-ups' attention. A loved one who is demanding may be feeling neglected. Express more affection and concern. Plan a special evening out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tie up loose ends at home so you can play this afternoon. You could get a golden opportunity to mix business with pleasure. If traveling today, check your car before starting out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Devote more time to your family. Too much work makes you a dull companion. Look for bargains during the January white sales. Begin gathering tax materials now to avoid last-minute panic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A social encounter should go according to plan. Rely on your intuition when it comes to handling a parent-child problem. Keep your spending within reasonable bounds. Postpone making luxury purchases.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Come to grips with a family problem early in the day. Divide domestic chores. Include small fry in your social plans. An older person's recollections brighten your day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You will have to evaluate a situation before you can make a logical decision. Be practical; stick to the facts and figures. A child or parent is unusually demanding. Show more affection.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Seek new outlets for your artistic and creative talents. A weekend job could be the best answer to a temporary cash shortage. Meanwhile, enlist family members' help in cutting expenses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Compassion and compromise are your strongest assets today. Others are moved by your obvious sincerity. An important relationship improves. Continue to keep a close eye on your spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seize a unique opportunity to further the interests of those closest to you. You should be able to combine business with pleasure. Choose traveling companions with special care.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make a special effort to spend time with an old friend, discussing your plans for the future. You can rely on this person to give you an honest opinion. Complete major household chores.
