Crosby pleads guilty

BIG SPRING — A local man was sentenced to six years in prison after pleading guilty to a possession of a controlled substance in a last minute pleabargained agreement Wednesday afternoon.

Danny Ray Crosby, 29, 508 N. San Antonio, pleaded guilty to a possession of cocaine charge in plea-bargained agreement that "went down to the wire." Assistant District Attorney William Dupree said today. The district attorney's office realized there was an opportunity for a plea-bargained agreement about 2 p.m., he said.

The court also sentenced Crosby to a five year concurrent sentence for revocation of probation.

911 'hot testing'

BIG SPRING - The 911 emergency call system will begin a "hot testing" Monday and should come on line as a service beginning March 24, a Southwestern Bell spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The 911 emergency system, already in place in Abilene, Amarillo and Midland, should come into full operation in Howard County by March, said Cindy Gray, a spokeswoman for Southwestern Bell. Gray called the emergency phone system "the most exciting thing Southwestern Bell has to offer."

The hot test period will allow the phone company to determine if there are any problems with the computer system and provide further training for the 911 operators already hired, 911 Director Carl Dorton said.

Gray showed how the system will work and answered questions from 911 board members who gathered Tuesday for a meeting and demonstration. Gray noted that all it takes is a call to 911 for the 911 computer system to instantly access information about the call on the other end, including the phone number, address, and the homeowner's name.

Dorton said work is continuing to provide addressing for all area residences.

Wife arrested

BIG SPRING - A family dispute on the city's north side escalated into violence.

According to a Big Spring Police Department report, James B. Williams, 710 Pine St. sustained a gunshot wound to the chest at about 7:40 p.m. Williams, who was taken to the Scenic Mountain Medical Center emergency room, was listed in stable condition today by a spokeswoman in the intensive care unit. Williams was shot with a .22-caliber handgun, according to the report.

Police arrested Williams wife, Ishell Louette Williams, 21, 710 Pine St., in connection with the incident. Ishell Williams was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, according to police reports.

Machine helps injured workers

BIG SPRING - If the Baltimore Theraputic Equipment Work Simulator was an employee, corporations would be offering it all sorts of perks to come work for them. The machine, which looks somewhat like gym weight training equipment, can perform any kind of work-related task an employer might want.

The sophisticated gadget is Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center's latest purchase. It will be used in the center's physical and occupational therapy programs to help injured workers get back on the job sooner.

The machine rehabilitates recovering employees, from secretary to refinery worker, with the aid of attachments that fit into the main tool head and a computer program that recreates the action and force exertion of the task. The attachments include a steering wheel that becomes a valve handle, several gripping handles and levers, and a vindmill-like device that simulates ladder and rope climbing. It can retrain muscles to open desk drawers, swing a bat, iron, use a trowel, operate a jackhammer and countless other tasks a worker performs without thinking before an panies have expressed interest in the work simulator, not only to rehabilitate injured workers but to provide work-hardening

"If a company has a job that has a high accident level, say back problems, we can teach the workforce how to pick things up properly and cut down on those accidents,"

"It's also good for job screening, if an employer has specific task abilities he's looking for. It's hard to fool the machine because it knows the norm for each task," he added.

Since a doctor must refer a patient for therapy with the machine in order for insurance to pay for it, corporate contracts for job screening and work hardening may take up most of for the machine's time.

Non-injured clients will have to sign a waiver releasing the center from liability before using the equipment. Yater said the center will be able to work with four or five people a day in 30-minute sessions on the BTE Work Simulator.

Fina refinery manager Jeff Morris, who is a member of Dora Roberts' board, said Fina will use the work simulator to help employees that are injured on and off the job.

'Work hardening can simulate tasks at the refinery, so by doing therapy they can strenghten muscles and joints. It helps them to get back on the

Recall petition effort

City Editor

BIG SPRING - Four more people, including two City Council members, have filed affidavits with the city to carry recall elections petitions aimed at removing Mayor Max Green from office.

The city secretary's office reported that councilwomen Gail Earls and Pat DeAnda both were issued pages of a recall election petition. Gary F. Smith and Karen Shirley Fraser also were issued iges, the office reported.

The four join Craig Olson and Carie Dunnam, who initiated the recall effort Tuesday when she filed an affidavit for a petition.

The six petitioners must collect a combined total of 894 signatures of registered voters living within the city limits, according to City Secretary Tom Ferguson. The petitioners have until Feb. 22 to gather signatures, after which Ferguson said his office will have to validate the petition before a recall election

Dunnam has said the mayor's recent actions in revealing allegament and incompetence in the police department sparked her efforts for a recall election. All six affidavits state the same reason for seeking to remove the mayor from office. They read:

"In my opinion, Mayor Max Green has failed in his duty to successfuly represent our community responsibly. Leaders must exhibit leadership qualities - which Mayor Max Green has not exhibited during his time in office. This community must be governed by a bodyof elected officials and each segment of our community must be equally represented. BIG SPRING - Bob Noyes, district governor of the Lions Club, recently honored several students at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf for their work as counselors at the Texas Lions Camp last summer.

Brad Bennett, Tara McCarthy and Michael McCarthy were three of seven counselors from SWCID who spent the summer working with handicapped kids at the camp in Kerrville alongside the Guadalupe River.

"We were unique in Big Spring to have seven student counselors down there. We had the most of any town because of SWCID. Because they are deaf or have worked with the deaf, they understand the handicapped,' Noyes said.

The four other counselors, Sharon Lewis, Cody Ratliff, Bennie Clark and Dirk Hill were not at SWCID to receive their Lions certificates, which will be mailed to them instead.

Kids can swim, ride horseback, practice archery, work at the rifle range, do arts and crafts and learn about nature at the 500-acre camp. Surprisingly, many parents are hesitant to send their children there, worried that they won't cope well with an unfamiliar environment, Noyes

"The Lions have to do the footwork to find kids. Our biggest obstacle is finding ones their mamas will let go. Anyone who wants to go can go, just ask a Lion," Noyes said.

About four kids from Big Spring went to the camp last year and some return year after year, including Mike McCarthy, who was a camper before he became a counselor. Applications for this year are due in March.

Bush releases updated national drug strategy

dent Bush today proposed a na-1991 that includes a budget of $10.6 billion, a 12 percent increase over current spending of $9.5 billion.

The strategy also designates five regions — New York, Los Angeles, Miami, Houston and the Southwest border of California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas - as highintensity drug trafficking areas eligible for millions of dollars in additional help this year and in 1991.

The document, released by the White House in advance of a speech by Bush, is an updated version of the strategy he presented last September.

The updated strategy developed by national drug control policy director William J. Bennett does not represent a switching of gears. It says the fundamental principle "remains unchanged: to make drugs undesirable and hard to get through a mix of suply and demand policies.

The strategy emphasizes "the crucial role that state and local governments play — and must play if a national drug strategy is to work." To that end, it calls for $2.6 billion in 1991 to be sent to the states for law enforcement, treatment and drug prevention efforts, a 108 percent increase over the past two years.

The 1991 budget proposal calls for allocating 42 percent of the money for domestic law enforcement efforts, 29 percent for international interdiction and other offshore law enforcement and 29 percent for domestic demand reduction programs, both prevention and treatment, said John Walters, Bennett's chief of staff.

Overall, said Bennett's budget director, Bruce Carnes, the money is split 71-29 between supply and demand efforts.

Last September, the Bush administration sought $7.9 billion for the war against drugs in 1990, but Congress increased that to $8.8 billion. The current proposal also is subject to congressional approval.

Although $8.8 billion has been the universally recognized figure for the 1990 budget, the new strategy goes up 11 percent from $1.1 billion to $1.2 billion.

Also, international initiatives shoot up 65 percent from $419 million to $690 million; interdiction efforts increase 17 percent from $2 billion to $2.4 billion; research hikes 20 percent from $318 million to $383 million; and intelligence efforts zoom up 142 percent from $71 million to $172 million.

The Pentagon, long reluctant to enter the drug war, will contribute about $1.2 billion in 1991, with about $638 million of that going for detection and monitoring of traffickers trying to enter the country with illicit drugs, according to the new strategy. The Defense Departmernt says its effort totals about $878 million in the current fiscal year, which ends Sept, 30.

Carnes said the military drug war budget for 1991 represents the biggest dollar increase proposed in the strategy.

The center has recently expanded its therapy practice by modifying storage rooms into work spaces, one of which will house the new machine. It has two full-time licensed physical therapists and a third will start in July. It also has contracts with an audiologist, an occupational therapist and a speech therapist.

The petitioners, who must be registered voters living within the city limits, have 30 days to gather the required signatures. Ferguson said if the proper number of valid signatures are collected, Green will be notified and he will have five days to decide whether he wants to resign or fight the recall.

An election must be set at least 10 days after but not more than 20 days after the five-day grace period, Ferguson said. A simple majority of voters would decide to keep Green in office or recall him from the position, Ferguson said.

If Green were voted out of office, the City Council would have to appoint someone to fill the mayor's unexpired term, he said.

AUSTIN (AP) — The crew of the RF-4C Phantom II jet that crashed near a highway intersection notified Bergstrom Air Force Base of an in-flight emergency while the jet was about 65 miles from the base, a newspaper reported today.

Bergstrom officials would not identify the problem in the craft, but said the jet's pilot and experts on the ground thought the jet could safely return to the base, a trip estimated at 10 to 15 minutes, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

The jet crashed during rush hour Tuesday at the intersection of U.S. 183 and Texas 71, less than a quarter-mile short of Bergstrom property Officials at Bergstrom praised the pilot, Capt. Hal S. Goldsmith, who escaped with minor injuries, and defended the decades-old reconnaissance jets that are used at the base.

An Air Force crash investigation team flew to Austin on Wednesday to begin picking through the hundreds of charred pieces of the RF-4C Phantom II The RF-4C that crashed was built in 1965, and was the sixth such jet from Bergstrom to crash in the past four years. About 70 RF-4Cs are based at Bergstrom

No deaths or serious injuries resulted from Tuesday's crash.

Advocates reject rate decrease

AUSTIN (AP) - Consumer advocates walked out on a proposed $1.23 billion four-year rate decrease for Southwestern Bell customers, saying they wanted a better deal for Texas telephone ratepayers.

Public Utility Counsel C. Kingsbery Ottmers, the state-paid consumer advocate, refused to participate in further negotiations with the telephone company and the staff of the Public Utility Commission Wednesday.

'It's not enough, and it doesn't go to enough people," Ms. Ottmers said after she rejected the deal.

The settlement also was rejected by attorneys for a coalition of 80 cities and Consumers Union, The Dallas Morning News reported.

Southwestern Bell officials declined to comment on the progress of negotiations to settle its rate case at the PUC. But spokesman Bob Digneo confirmed that the settlement proposal included a four-year, $1.2 billion rate PUC General Counsel Bob Rima, who negotiated the proposed settlement in private talks with Southwestern Bell, said he was disappointed that consumer advocates had turned it down.

"This would be the largest rate decrease in the history of this commission, and maybe one of the largest in the country," he said.

Ms. Ottmers said she and other consumer attorneys rejected the proposal because "Southwestern Bell's rates are excessively higher than the amounts proposed in the settlement.'

The deal also did not include a rate reduction for basic local telephone service that would have been shared by all Texas residential ratepayers, Ms. Ottmers said. Instead, most of the money would go to such large corporations as AT&T and MCI, she said.

AUSTIN (AP) - Soviet coal miners who won the first industrial strike in 60 years in their country said at the Texas AFL-CIO convention Wednesday that they want to become more organized in order to affect the outcome of elections.

The coal miners have been in the United States since Dec. 28 on a month-long tour sponsored by the national AFL-CIO and the U.S. Information Agency. They are the first trade unionists from the Soviet Union invited to the U.S., union officials said.

Keating affair can be useful

The cloud that is Charles Keating Jr. has rained buckets on the political careers of five U.S. senators but Keating casts a baleful shadow over all of Congress, not just the Keating Five. Even those lawmakers who had no direct dealings with the principal owner of the failed Lincoln Savings and Loan must realize that Keating is a symbol of the discredited way that Congress does business.

Now that Congress is back in session, the first item of attention should be campaign-finance reform.

The intervention on Keating's behalf by five senators cost taxpayers an estimated $1.3 billion, but specialinterest influence costs taxpayers all the time. Ask Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., who last year sponsored a measure in the House Ways and Means Committee that the utility industry didn't like. Matsui wanted to speed the process for delivering $19 billion in rebates that public utilities owed to utility consumers.

The rebates were for money the utilities had collected from consumers to pay for future tax levies — levies that no longer were due because the 1986 tax-reform package lowered the corporate tax rate. The tax law allowed utilities to make the refunds over a period spanning decades: Matsui wanted the refunds paid out within three years. In October, Matsui's bill was killed by Ways and Means.

Did special-interest money play a role? Matsui certainly thought so. According to The Wall Street Journal, Matsui charged "that the utility lobby was attempting to all but buy votes with heavy campaign contributions to himself and his colleagues.

The Journal reported that utility political action committees poured a total of $610,000 into the campaigns of Ways and Means Committee members. Those contributions were part of $10.3 million given by utility PACs to all House and Senate candidates since Jan. 1, 1987.

"It's as simple as he who pays the piper plays the tune," Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., has said. "The intellectual viability of our party requires us to extricate ourselves from the campaign-finance system we have.'

House and Senate leaders have vowed to face the finance-reform music this session. House Speaker Tom Foley, D-Wash., has said he will schedule a vote on a comprehensive reform bill this spring. House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., has said he is willing to consider campaign-spending limits for congressional elections. And Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, is a principal sponsor of comprehensive reform legislation.

Reform won't be easy. The Democratic majority is apprehensive about changing a PAC-driven system that overwhelmingly favors incumbents. Most Republicans are philosophically opposed to public financing.

Yet, serious campaign reform, to be worthy of the name, must include reducing the power of PACs and limiting campaign spending. It must provide alternate campaign resources — public funds, reduced-cost mailings, donated television time. Serious reform also would eliminate the "soft money" system, a system that allows millions of dollars to be injected surreptitiously into congressional and presidential campaigns.

Congress has talked campaign-finance reform for at least a decade. The only difference as we begin a new decade is the galvanizing influence of the Keating affair. If the whole sorry business keeps the heat on long enough for reform to become reality, then the American public would have one reason - and only one-Keating and his congressional vassals.

Turning bad money into good

By ART BUCHWALD

The dope war continues. Just the other day I saw a whole bunch of bankers on television who were accused of laundering millions and millions of dollars in narcotics' payments.

Their hearing was in Tampa, Fla., although the bank was located in Luxembourg, with branches in Miami. Alas, all the bankers plea-bargained. The Justice Department's deal was that there would be no fine and little jail, particularly if the bankers agreed to testify against Noriega.

Dope bankers' friends everywhere rejoiced at the news. Manuel de Columbia, spokesman for the Drug Launderers of America, declared, "These people are good people. They wear nice clothes and own beautiful boats. You cannot hold them responsible for the drug trade. "Why not?" I asked him.

"Because those who launder dope money never see the dope They have nothing to do with it. They only move dollars from one place to another. It's just

"And yet," I added, "there wouldn't be a drug trade without launderers. They make it possible. Surely they should serve a little time when they get caught

I replied, "Suppose the money comes from cocaine. Do you believe that the bankers should still be let off? "It's impossible to run a bank in Florida if you keep asking about the source of the money. Besides, a bank which deals in narcotics' earnings can lend a lot more to its legitimate customers than one that doesn't.

"Do you think that the government has a right to make deals with bankers who launder drug profits?'

Manuel said, "It not only has a right, it has a duty to see that they don't go to jail. If we sent every banker who was involved in dope sales to the slammer, there would be no one to manage the drive-in that his message wasn't getting across. He tried again, "Is it so hard for you to understand that maybe society needs money launderers to turn bad money into good money? Random notes while trying to get excited about this year's Super

A friend of mine once claimed he could concentrate on several things at once. It was no problem for this person, or so he claimed, to carry on two or three different conversations while cleaning the dishes and reading a book in the process. This is definitely one of those times when I wish I had my friend's talent. It is bad enough trying to be witty and charming without having to endure loud scraping noises that sound like something very big and very evil attempting to eat its way through the roof.

The reason I mention this is that I'm trying to put together an award-winning column while workers are repairing the Herald's roof - and making an awful racket

Throw in an occasional ringing phone and a boss' inquiry about a story that is slightly overdue and one might get the idea that it is somewhat more confusing than usual around here today.

The worst thing about the Armeggedon chorus being sung on our roof is that it is not constant. If it were, perhaps I could ignore it the same way one might ignore a blowing fan.

But nooooooo. The crunching noise goes on and on for minutes at a time, then, for some reason, stops. When that happens, everyone raises their heads and breathes a sigh of relief. "Thank God," they mutter - just before he noise begins again.

It reminds me of the phrase from the Bruce Springsteen song: "One step forward, two steps back." Our calm, two steps of the Leviathan that ate the Herald.

By no means do I mean to degrade the workmen going about their chores. After all, they are doing something that is absolutely neccessary.

Besides, they're probably bigger than me

And I also don't intend to badmouth the work being done. Our boss says the new roof will be a lot less susceptible to leaks and will save money in the long run money that might, at some future

To which I say: Fix that roof, fix that roof, fix it, fix it.

But it would be nice to have more than a few seconds of peace and quiet while I'm trying to win the Pulitzer Prize here.

Oh well, if I don't ever win the prize, at least now I'll have someone to blame. I would have been able to win it, I'll tell my friends, but this gosh-awful racket from the roof shattered my concentration just as I was developing the magical phrase that would have ensured my journalistic immortality

Then my friends, being the kind, gentle souls they are, will likely laugh themselves into a hernia.

CDC says flu at 'epidemic' levels

ATLANTA (AP) - The nation's winter flu outbreak has reached epidemic proportions, with deaths last week from flu or pneumonia at their highest level in at least eight years, the Centers for Disease Control said

Last week, 1,143, or 7.6 percent, of the 15,090 deaths reported to the CDC from 121 major cities were blamed on flu or pneumonia; that percentage "significantly exceeds the expected" for the second straight week, said Dr. Walter Gunn, a CDC viral disease specialist.

Once that percentage rises above 6.7 for two consecutive weeks, the CDC considers the outbreak at epidemic levels, Gunn said. He said the percentage of deaths attributable to flu or pneumonia was at its highest level since at least the 1981-82

"But as far as how many people will die" during the flu season, "that depends on how long this peak is sustained," he said. "With any luck, it will come right back down.

Last week, 18 states reported what the CDC terms "widespread" flu activity, involving outbreaks of flu or flulike illness in counties combining for more than half a given state's population. Seventeen states reported less pervasive "regional" activity, and 13 others had sporadic reports of flu cases.

The outbreak, he said, points to the importance of flu vaccinations for high-risk people, including older people and patients with heart and lung

WASHINGTON — President Bush has proposed $1 billion in aid to Panama to help that country recover from the U.S. invasion.

Bush proposes $1 billion aid package for Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush will propose providing more than $1 billion to help Panama recover from the U.S. military invasion and years of corrupt government, U.S. officials

The aid program, being announced today, will include development aid, loan guarantees and programs to encourage investment, said one official, who insisted on anonymity.

About half of the program will be in cash and the remainder in credits, the official said.

Earlier Wednesday, Bush told a news conference he was determined to "try to help - repair the wounds, repair the damage.' "I mourn the loss of innocent civilians in Panama or anywhere else," Bush said, "But you have to look at the broad picture . . . and then you've got to do what's right." The official said the administration hopes other countries, including Japan and western European nations, will follow the U.S. lead and make contributions of their own.

The administration is still talking behind the scenes with leaders of Congress about the Panama aid package. "Not all of it's new money," a senior administration official who asked not to be identified said Wednesday night, confirming the $1 billion figure.

The Panama aid package will include aid to rebuild houses that were demolished in the Dec. 20 invasion by U.S. troops, officials said. However, they said the package is unlikely to include any compensation for the survivors of more than 200 Panamanian civilians who died in the invasion.

Asked what he would say to the Panamanian survivors, Bush said he would tell them, "Look, you lost some Panamanian lives. Innocent life was lost. And yet, 92 percent of the people in Panama strongly supported the action of the United States. Isn't that significant?"

Damage estimates from the invasion vary widely, ranging from a few hundred million dollars to $2 billion or more. The United States already has released $400 million in Panamanian assets frozen in the United States in earlier efforts to topple the regime led by Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, ousted in the invasion.

If the program is approved, Panama would become one of the largest per capita aid recipients in the world after having spent more than two years as a target of U.S. economic sanctions.

At age 16, a lot of high school students start thinking about two things getting a car and getting out of school. Unfortunately, too many of them get out by dropping out

While there is no official "national dropout rate," experts at The National Dropout Prevention Center estimate about 3,000 high school students drop out of school each day.

That's one million students a year - 80 school buses full each day -- vanished from our schools. Gone. Never to return. Some trend watchers predict that by the the year 2000, approximately 40% of our students will drop out.

But dropping out is more than just a loss of human potential. The dropout epidemic fosters the crime and drugs that tear at the fabric of our schools and our society. And it severely undermines the competitiveness of our workers in the global marketplace

BY BRADLEY WORRELL Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A civil trial being held in district court has an yo, unusual twist — a doctor being set sued for medical malpractice has no been dead for more than a year.

But the case can still be heard in district court because of either previously taped video depositions show the planning committee ways es or written court depositions, 118th the area could benefit from dif-MG District Court Judge James Gregg said today

"Depositions — any deposition could be read rather than calling -x. (the witness)," Gregg said. bi Depositions are especially useful when doctor's testimony is given in ed court, because doctors in their hecⅎու tic schedules are often unavailable ov for court proceedings, Gregg said.

'You can't always get the doctor here," he said. Reading court depositions for doctors rather than live testimony is legally acceptable ht and actually fairly common, he

Depositions are allowable in court because attorneys from both sides have the chance to ask questions and cross examine the doctor's testimony in the depositions,

"The only problem is if they're and not reading like he said it. They can't do that," Gregg said. Although allowable, lengthy court depositions also have a habit of wearing down jury members, he

On Monday, jurors were able to hear the testimony of three doctors through court depositions, including Roscoe Cowper, M.D., the deceased physician who is being sued. "We'll have a live doctor today," Gregg joked.

Technically the suit is filed against Cowper, but in actuality the suit filed by C.D. and Vikki Rudloff is against the company that insured Cowper, Gregg said. According to pleadings filed in court records, the couple is seeking a settlement not to exceede

Attorneys in the case have said they expect to be finished by noon. A criminal case against Danny Crosby, who is facing a charge of possession of a controlled substance, is expected to be tried after the civil case is finished, Gregg said.

AUSTIN (AP) - Stun guns are authorized again for members of the Austin police department, but not many officers are using the mild shocking devices yet.

Many Austin police officers apparently aren't fond of the idea of taking electric shocks, and they'd rather not pay $125 for the privilege.

Those are police officials' only explanations for the low turnout of officers who have signed up for a 10-hour training course in the use of stun guns, which Police Chief Jim Everett reinstituted in September.

As part of the training, officers must use the stun guns on each other. And because officers do not have to carry stun guns, they have to pay for it themselves.

Between September and December, 35 officers took the course at the police training academy. The device was used 13 times in that period, mostly by walking beat officers on East Sixth Street in downtown Austin.

Kim Nobles, one of four instructors in the use of the device, said she had to cancel a class scheduled for Jan. 4 when only one officer signed up.

There's a big intimidation factor because the officers have to get zapped with it. Nobody likes to get shocked with electricity," she told the Austin American-Statesman.

Also, she said, "You have to dish out 125 bucks for the gun. And everybody's rationale is they don't have to be shot with a gun to be able to carry a gun.'

Clinic helps people cope with phobias, anxieties

HOUSTON (AP) — Merrell Scott was afraid to leave her house.

'When you have a panic attack, you feel like you're going to die. Your hands and feet get tingly, you feel nauseated, the room spins, you have hot and cold flashes. It's awful," said Mrs. Scott, 35, who suffers from agoraphobia, the fear of open spaces. "For me, outside pressures or just anything can start it and once it starts, it just starts rolling and takes off.

But she and other anxiety-prone worriers are finding help.

'Worrying isn't necessarily bad, but ruminating over and over is useless," said psychologist Rowland Folensbee. "It distracts you and you become too preoccupied with 'what ifs.

'It's usually 'What if?' rather than 'What can I do about it?' Folensbee, operator of The Worry Clinic, specializes in treating anxiety disorders; he is one of only about 10 such specialists in the country.

"For some, worry is a way of being on guard: 'If I'm always think ing of things that happen, I'm always vigilant," he said.

"For others, it's an avoidance technique: Tve spent a lot of time worrying about it, so I don't have to go and tell my boss I need a raise. I've done my part, I've worried about it.' For some people, worry ing about it gives them a sense of control: 'If I worry about it, it won't happen; if I fail to worry about it, it will happen.

Folensbee recommends that people learn to identify when they begin to worry, and then to refocus their attention. One technique is to set aside a time to worry each day, allowing nothing else during that time and allowing no worrying at any other time of the day. "We approach worry as being a process rather than whatever the worry is about," he said.

It's not that worriers don't have legitimate problems, it's that they become obsessed and often depressed and stymied, he said. "It appears to me that people who are worriers have some things to worry about, but no more than the average person. We all have the concern about how our kids are going to do in school, but we don't spend the greater parts of the day worrying about it.

Folensbee met with Mrs. Scott and then had her join a support group of 10 to 30 clients who suffer anxieties and meet weekly at Charter Hospital.

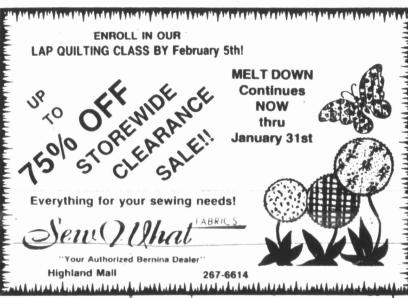

"We've become like a family to ach other." she said. "It's like my husband says: he can sympathize with me but he can't empathize. With the group, you know there are other people around who have this, and you are not alone

'Some of the people in there seemed to be worse off than me," joked Charles Higginbottom, 36, a telephone lineman who joined after he had become so stressed he no longer could function at work

Many of those who suffer crippling anxieties are "people pleasers" who do anything and everything for someone else, overextending themselves and leaving themselves short in personal time, Folensbee said. In the group, clients with different fears of anxieties share common feelings and physical complaints.

They suffer with something similar to me," Higginbottom said. 'Some people have a fear of flying or a fear of driving. I didn't have a particular fear, but the things we talk about are problems for me, Higginbottom, who was so worried about being called on yet another string of emergency repair jobs that he had to leave his job for two months, said that thanks to the group, "I just went from dark to daylight.

I've been doing some checking on former basketball athletes that played in Big Spring, and here's the latest.

At the University of Texas Arlington, Katrina Thompson is receiving limited playing time. The former Lady Steers allstater is averaging seven minutes per game.

The sophomore guard is averaging 1 point per game, shooting 13 percent from the floor and 60 percent

Christian University, freshman Tami Wise is getting about eight minutes of playing time per game. The former Lady Steer all-state post player is averaging 1.5 points, two rebounds per game, and shooting 25 percent from the floor.

TCU is currently 7-9 overall and 4-2 in Southwest Conference

At Angelo State University, senior guard Leslie Gooch is having a fine season. Gooch, who played for Howard College for one season, is averaging 16.9 points per game. She's shooting 46 percent from the floor and 84 percent from the foul line.

The Rambelles are currently 8-5 overall and 3-0 in Lone Star Conference play.

At New Mexico State University, Michael New is doing well in the Land of Enchantment.

New, a junior forward who played for Howard last year, is averaging nine points and six rebounds per game. He's shooting 52 percent from the floor and 59 percent from the line. New and his Aggie teammates are currently 15-2 overall and 6-1 ip Big West Conference play. hey are tied for first with the University of Las Vegas-Nevada in league play. NMSU beat UNLV, and lost to Long Beach State on the road.

Also at NMSU is point guard Randy Brown, who was at Howard, but sat out last year. Brown is averaging five assists and 13 points per game.

The latest Associated Press Junior College Top 20 basketball poll was released, and the Howard College Hawks are still third.

Howard, 21-0, received three first place votes and 140 total points. The leader is Southern Idaho, (20-0) which received 208 points and 18 first place votes. Second is Connors St., Okla. (16-1), which got two first place votes and 178 points. The only other team to receive a first place vote was No. 6 Champlain, Vt. (16-1).

The Howard Lady Hawks moved back into the Top 20 after a week's absence. The Lady Hawks are sporting a nifty 19-3 mark.

Howard is now No. 15. The Lady Hawks received 37 points. The No. 1 team is Kilgore; No. 2 Connors, Okla. and No. 3 Copiah-Lincoln, Miss.

But check this out. Frank Phillips, which was ranked No. 2 last week, dropped completely out of the Top 20, although it didn't lose a game.

It goes to show you, you can't put much stock into polls.

The Howard County Boxing Team recently attended the USA-ABF Box-Off in Odessa.

Donald Vanderbilt, boxing in the 125-pound division, was the only member of the club to bring home a gold medal. Vanderbilt beat Rudy Garcia of Fort Stockton to win the gold.

Winning silver medals were: Lee Farr, Alfred Garcka, Marcello Williams, Tyrone Smith and Robert Vella.

**** The Cincinnati Reds will conduct an open tryout camp for baseball players at the University of Houston baseball field Saturday, Jan. 27.

Registration will get underway at 9 a.m., and the camp will begin as soon as possible, ending when everyone has been evaluated.

The camp will be under the direction of scouting supervisor Ray Corbett. He will be assisted by Reds' scouts Larry Barton Jr. and Toby Robello.

The camp is open to those players who have completed their high school eligibility. Present high school players will not be allowed to tryout.

BIG SPRING — After almost a three week layoff, the Big Spring swimmers are ready to get back in-

It's not that the coach Harlan Smith's tankers haven't been working, they just haven't been competing. Big Spring's last competition was the Andrews Relays 20 days ago. Friday and Saturday Big Spring will compete in the tough Midland Invitational.

Indeed the Steers and Lady Steers haven been training - hard. Smith says they have probably been training harder than they have all season. That's because the District 4-4A meet is right around the corner (Feb. 23), and both teams have high hopes of improving on last year's third place finish.

'Since the Andrews Relays (last meet) we've been working very hard," said Smith. "During that time we've been doing a lot of distance and sprint work. We're trying to get our strokes stronger. We're getting ready for the district

Smith has nothing but praise when it comes to his team's work

"They've all been working out hard. They have good workout habits. It's to the point I don't have to tell them to lift weights, they're doing it on their own.

CHASE FRASER

Smith says the time in between meets has been good for his swimmers. "The kids kind of enjoy a break every now and then. They are looking forward to going to Midland though. The time off gave us time to get ever some colds and heal our aches and pains.

Coach Smith says the quality and quanity of competiton in the Midland meet will be good for his team. "Midland will be as tough as the meet in San Angelo. There will probably be 18 or 20 teams from all around West Texas. Everybody competes in the same division," he said

Smith says this is a time to experiment with his team. One change he will make is his boys 400 freestyle relay team. The usual foursome of Johnny Webb, Abel Diaz, Chris Fuqua and Chase Fraser won't swim. Instead it will be Webb, Ricky Grimsley, Robert Wolverton and Shane Hicks.

Although Big Spring has one of the fastest times in the area in this event, Smith is holding out the team in order to get the relay Saturday.

members in more individual events. "I know we're strong in the 400 freestyle and 200 medley relays. I just want to see how they compete in one relay and two individual events," said Smith.

San Angelo Central has the fastest time in the 200 medley relay at 1:47. Big Spring has swam a 1:48. The medley relay team will be made up of Diaz, Russ Roten, Fraser and Fugua.

As for his girls, Smith will keep a close eye on the progress of the freestyle relay. "The girls are pretty much where they're supposed to be at," Smith said of their progress. "We haven't realized it up until now, but the 400 freestyle relay is fust as fast as the other teams in the region.

Big Spring's foursome of Debra McMillian, Erica Clarkson, Sally Lopez and Christy Webb has swam a 4:27. Midland Lee has swam 4:05 and San Angelo Central 4:08.

"We just want to go and see how good we swim. We'll probably be real tired because we've been working so hard," said Smith. "In the past, this meet is usually our worse as far as times go because we are so tired. But that's all right, because district is our biggest

Brownies might help

DALLAS (AP) - If the Denver Broncos win Sunday's Super Bowl, some Texans will say some of the touchdowns came on brownie po A group of D has sent a big batch at to Broncos coach Dan Reeves.

hoping it will help boost his team to a sweet triumphs After all, the brownies brought a lot of tasty victories when Reeves was an assistant coach in Dallas, explained

Dallas stock analyst Jim Sale. Reeves used to drop by a Texas Stadium box suite that Sale shares with Charlotte St. Martin and her husband, Charlie Rush, before Cowboys games. After a while, Reeves noticed the team would win when he sampled one of Ms. St. Martin's brownies, and lose when he didn't. It became a superstitious ritual.

Reeves hadn't eaten a goodluck brownie in several years, but Sale recently sent some to Denver. After receiving the confections, Reeves called his Dallas friend and assured him this means the odds will be in his team's favor.

Just to be sure, Sale has offered to send enough praline pecan brownies for all the Broncos to eat before the game.

"It's like Popeye eating his spinach," Sale told the Dallas Times Herald. "Or David slaying Goliath.'

49ers let action do the talking

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) Bubba Paris stood in front of his locker at the San Francisco 49ers' training center and shared some cookies with a few visitors, then tried to explain why the 49ers are on the verge of NFL history.

Because, he said, they don't believe in history. "I don't care what happened in the past. Nobody does. We feel like we have everything to prove," said the 348-pound parttime left tackle of a team that will be going for its fourth Super Bowl next Sunday.

Make it "accomplish" instead of "prove."

If the 49ers beat Denver, they become the first team since the Pittsburgh Steelers a decade ago to repeat as NFL champion, and they tie the Steelers' record of four victories in four Super Bowl tries. Moreover they're expected to with the NFL's best regularseason record at 14-2 and two playoff wins by an aggregate of 71-16 in the arguably tougher NFC, they enter the game as prohibitive favorites — the point spread started at 10 and has been moving upward since. But particularly this season, with George Seifert replacing Bill Walsh as coach, they talk like a team that's playing its first big game.

If one incentive is winning for Seifert — and without Walsh, whose ''genius'' image sometimes obscured the accomplishments of his players they also have their internal thermostats. Or as almost every player on the team puts it "JoeRonnieKeena," jamming together the first names of three of the five 49ers who have played on all three championship teams.

"If there's anything I've learned here it's never to believe in yesterday's news," says free safety Ronnie Lott. "I've got three rings. They don't mean anything," says linebacker Keena Tunrer. And Joe Montana, coming off perhaps the best season ever by any quarterback, is invariably self-effacing. It's not his doing, he says, it's the work of Keena and Ronnie; the offensive line, the receivers, the running backs and so on -Seifert, offensive coordinator Mike Holmgren, Walsh, owner Edward DeBartolo Jr. and his wife Jennifer, not necessarily in that order. In fact, the week before the week before was filled with far more machismo from the Broncos, who approach the game from the opposite pole of the football world from the 49ers.

Is Geraldo changing his style

Perish the thought, say producers of the troubled, daytime television talk show who nonetheless are trying to veer away from such topics as battered lesbian lovers and topless doughnut shops.

"This is a return to my roots," Geraldo Rivera said Wednesday at the National Association of Television Program Executives convention, where he and his producers are gamely making the best of the worst thing to hit Geraldo since a skinhead's chair in 1988.

The show, straining for more viewers during the November 1989 ratings period when it went up against "The Oprah Winfrey Show" in 125 markets, "went a little wild," said executive producer Martin M. Berman.

They also irritated a number of big, important sponsors, which irritated a number of big, important TV stations, eliciting what Berman called "station concerns, advertiser concerns."

The producers reacted quickly to the criticism and commissioned toire away from the bottom end of

"They did not want to see a less provocative show. They did not want to see a 'kinder, gentler' Geraldo,'' Berman said. "But at the same they didn't want to see Geraldo doing the kind of subjects that they believed were not subjects that Geraldo was comfortable

"And Geraldo said. Well. they're right, I'm not comfortable with this. It's not what I want to do. It's not the legacy I want to leave.

The fine-tuning began around Thanksgiving, Berman said, and for the past seven weeks there has been no decrease in the ratings.

"The fact is that for the last seven weeks we've done no shows that would fit into that exploitive, sensational category," he said.

Next week, the show will announce the formation of an investigative unit to "do some serious investigative stuff as part of the mix."

"We're not changing, we're just shifting the profile of our reper-

Berman said "Geraldo" would leave the convention with virtually its full lineup of stations, and has struck deals with some stations to use the show through September

Ads for the show promise that in 1990, "you'll experience a better balance of personal and public topics and information, a wider range of important issues in the social, moral and political arenas, more responsiveness to local stations and a more sensitive, more concerned, more humanitarian Geraldo.

The show has its work cut out for it, said John Rohr, a senior marketing executive for Blair Television, which is the sales representative for about 145 TV

Rivera says he's enjoying the fine-tuning of his show.

"For better or worse, I've been singing the same words for 20 years," Rivera said. "This is a years,' return to my roots. I want to go back to busting crooked doctors.

A "dazzling" show, it was a "smash hit" on Broadway and ran longer than "Mame," "Sound of Music," or "South Pacific." This brainstorm of Stephen Schwartz (creator of "Godspell") has been acclaimed by critics as "animated," "a fast, fluid, dazzler of a show, loaded with magic," and, in general, musical comedy and theatricality at its best.
