Man shot, killed

BIG SPRING — One man is dead and another is in the hospital today after being the victims of an early morning shooting.

Police officers responding to a call in reference to shots fired in the 600 block of State Avenue arrived in the area to hear the cries of an unnamed woman asking for help, according to a police department news release.

When police entered a home at 606 State Ave. they found Tonnie Lynn Johnson, 32, address unknown, lying on the living room floor fatally wounded, according to a police department news release. His relatives have not yet been notified, the release stated.

Police also found an as yet unidentified 38-year-old man in the living room with a gunshot wound, the news release said. The man, who listed the residence as his address, was taken to Scenic Mountain. Additional information on his condition was not available.

Justice of the Peace Willie Grant was ordered to the scene and pronounced Johnson dead at 4:24 a.m. today. Grant has ordered an autopsy. The body was taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

A suspect has been identified but is not currently in custody, according to the news release. No information was provided to indicate whether the attacker and the victims knew each other.

Moore named judge

AUSTIN — Governor Bill Clements today announced the appointment of Robert H. Moore III of Big Spring as Judge of the 118th Judicial District Court.

MOORE

Moore will fill the unexpired term of James W. Gregg of Big Spring, who will resign effective Feb. 28. The judgeship will be on the ballot this year.

The judicial district includes Howard, Martin and Glasscock Counties.

"I'm excited about the appointment, I'm really looking forward to it," Moore said today. Moore said he hopes his previous legal experience will aid him in his new position.

He said he does not have any plans for the office at this point except to familiarize himself with the job.

Moore, 45, is a practicing attorney. He earned a bachelor's degree from Texas Tech University and a law degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

A former district attorney for the 118th judicial district, Moore has served as a director and vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and as president of the board of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

He is chairman of the City of Big Spring Firemen's Civil Service Commission and is a member of the City of Big Spring Zoning Board of Adjustment. Moore serves on the State Bar of Texas Grievance Committee.

Bridge closed until March

BIG SPRING — A heavily traveled section of Interstate 20 will be closed until the middle of March because of a fire-ravaged overpass, forcing about 10,000 vehicles a day to take a five-mile detour, officials say.

I-20's eastbound Birdwell Street overpass in Big Spring must be torn down and rebuilt — a process that could take up to a year — because of damage caused when a gasoline tanker truck fell off the westbound overpass and exploded Monday, Texas Highway Department engineer Mike Chetty said.

The full load of 8,551 gallons of gasoline burned when the truck ran off the overpass and plunged 30 feet below. Firefighters let the inferno burn itself out.

The truck fell between the separate overpasses and settled under the eastbound bridge. The westbound overpass was damaged but repairable, but the eastbound overpass was destroyed, Chetty said.

"The burning gasoline deformed the steel beams and damaged the concrete beyond repair," he said. "When concrete is subjected to in-

Mayor recall petitions filed

By STEVE RAY
Herald Editor

BIG SPRING — A parade of petitioners descended on the Big Spring City Hall late Thursday afternoon to submit pages of a recall petition they hope will bring the issue of Mayor Max Green's office to a vote.

The recall effort ended with more than 900 signatures being collected, said Carrie Dunnam, a former school teacher who spearheaded the campaign.

Green declined comment this morning, but indicated he might make a statement later.

Some of those signatures could be declared invalid during certification, which should be completed by Monday. City officials said last week that as many as one in five signatures may be stricken from the petitions based on technicalities and inaccuracies.

Dunnam expressed confidence that most of the signatures will stand up under close scrutiny.

"We made sure everyone turned in their petitions and had them notarized correctly," she said. "We're not sure on the exact count. Our last official one showed 940 or so signatures but I'm not sure of that amount." She said workers were collecting additional signatures Thursday.

Dunnam said petition carriers had voter registration rolls to help verify voter card numbers when they took signatures on the petition.

"We wanted to have a bigger cushion of voters," Dunnam said. "We feel we have a cushion of at least 50 signatures."

To recall the mayor, Dunnam and the other people who carried petitions seeking to oust the mayor, must have collected 894 signatures of registered voters who voted in the mayor election.

The recall effort is the second time in ten months that someone has sought to oust Mayor Max Green from office.

The first recall effort organized by Councilwoman Pat DeAnda failed in its attempt to attain the amount of signatures needed to call for a vote and was not filed with the city.

DeAnda said she is worried this petition effort may not have enough signatures.

"I hope it makes," DeAnda said. "I know I worked hard and the people."

Murder defendant files lawsuit against pathologist

By BRADLEY WORRELL
and PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writers

COLORADO CITY — A $2.5 million lawsuit filed Wednesday by murder defendant Travis Dale Gray charges that a forensic pathologist's erred in his medical findings when he concluded Gray's wife Tammy death was a homicide.

Travis Gray alleges in a suit filed in 32nd District Court that forensic pathologist Dr. Patrick Beasant-Matthews was guilty of "malpractice and negligence" when he ruled that Mrs. Gray died of the combined effects of strangulation and drowning. The civil suit filed by Odessa defense attorney Michael McLeaish, who is also representing Gray against murder charges in the death of his wife, lists the cause of death as an accident.

Gray has told authorities he and his wife were swimming in Lake Colorado City in the early hours of June 23, 1988 when he noticed his wife having difficulty in the water and rushed her to the Mitchell County Hospital. Attempts there by the medical staff to revive her were unsuccessful.

Travis Gray was treated briefly

Travis Gray alleges in a suit filed in 32nd District Court that forensic pathologist Dr. Patrick Beasant-Matthews was guilty of "malpractice and negligence" when he ruled that Mrs. Gray died of the combined effects of strangulation and drowning. The civil suit filed by Odessa defense attorney Michael McLeaish, who is also representing Gray against murder charges in the death of his wife, lists the cause of death as an accident.

at the hospital for shock before being released.

He was indicted on a charge of capital murder in March by a Mitchell County grand jury. The charge was later reduced by the prosecution to a lesser charge of first degree murder, punishable upon conviction by imprisonment of no less than five years and no more than 99 years or a life sentence. He is free on a $50,000 bond.

A 1988 medical report by Beasant-Matthews, who was then head of the Dallas County Medical Examiner's Office, indicated there were large areas of hemorrhaging to the rear portion of her vocal cords and 28 wounds on her body — some measuring 1-to-1½ inches by five-eighths of an inch in diameter.

"The findings are sufficient to warrant classification as a homicide," Beasant-Matthews concluded in his medical report.

McLeaish seeks $2.5 million in damages for his client because, he alleges, the report by Beasant-Matthews has resulted in Gray being accused of murder, suffering a loss of reputation in the community, and suffering mental anguish and emotional distress. Gray is also seeking $33,000 for bond and attorneys' fees he says he's incurred because of the charges.

McLeaish, in a telephone interview Thursday, said that testimony from Dr. Robert Bright, an Air Force pathologist at Wilford Hall Medical Center in San Antonio, will show that the wounds were caused by attempts to save Tammy Lynn's life.

"These alleged bruises were all caused by attempts to resuscitate this woman when she was taken to the hospital," he said.

He also said that it was unlikely that Travis Dale was trying to kill her because he was bringing her to the hospital and she was still alive when she arrived there. "The medical records show that when she first went to the hospital she still had a pulse," he said.

The suit says that the performance of the autopsy is "wholly inaccurate and incorrect." It calls the conclusions "completely erroneous, false and misleading."

32nd District Attorney Frank Conard said Thursday that he was not aware of the suit being filed, but expressed confidence in the forensic abilities of Beasant-Matthews.

"Dr. Beasant-Matthews is one of the better recognized pathologists in Texas," he said.

Beasant-Matthews is to testify Wednesday as a witness for the state during the criminal trial that opens Monday, Conard said. The district attorney said he expects McLeaish to provide his own forensic expert with a different opinion, but Conard said he believes the evidence will show Beasant-Matthews' conclusions are correct. "His opinions are supported completely by the medical evidence," Conard said.

Bright will probably testify in next week's criminal trial on Thursday, McLeaish said.

As far as Bright testifying, Conard said that the hiring of a pathologist by defendants in a criminal case happens every once in a while but it is more common for parties on both sides in civil

Textbook hearing has no controversy

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — No one picketed the textbook hearings at Big Spring High School yesterday. There were no book bonfires and no raised voices.

BSISD Superintendent Bill McQueary noted a lack of community participation in the hearing; beside the teachers and administrators on the 15-member textbook committee, only the media were present.

"The purpose of this meeting is to give an opportunity for anyone who wants to come to give input," McQueary said.

"We have very little interest because we have no controversial books on the list to be approved this time," he said. "We had no history, biology or life science books up this year."

The 63 textbook recommendations the committee approved for the 1990-91 school year include

Alaskan oil spill settlement pending

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The government is nearing an agreement with Exxon Corp. to settle possible criminal charges from the massive Alaskan oil spill, but state officials and environmentalists say the plea bargaining would let the oil company off too easily.

The Justice Department had been expected to announce an agreement with Exxon within days, sources said Thursday.

However, Alaska Attorney General Douglas Baily, speaking Thursday in Juneau, strongly criticized the proposed agreement. He accused the Justice Department of trying to get the state to issue "a hasty endorsement" of an inadequate draft proposal.

"Under the proposed agreement, the federal government would

Q. What activities does the Steer Band participate in after football season?
 A. Except for the Christmas concert, the emphasis between the end of football/marching season and March is on optional individual activities such as the Solo and Ensemble Contest, All-Region/Area/State Band, and Orchestra Auditions. In the spring the entire band participates in the Concert and Sight Reading Contest, says Ricky Mitchell, director.

Reagan answers, but doesn't always remember

WASHINGTON (AP) — The familiar figure of Ronald Reagan flickered across television screens in a pair of federal courtrooms Thursday before one of his smallest audiences ever.

Several dozen reporters — enough to pack one courtroom at one point — watched and listened, took notes, drifted in and out.

The occasion was the first showing of the former president's videotaped testimony, taken last weekend and intended for use in the Iran-Contra trial of his one-time national security adviser, John Poindexter.

Reagan testified about Iran and about the Nicaraguan Contras, about former aides Poindexter and Oliver North, about weapons and about hostages. But, perhaps most strikingly, he testified over and over during eight hours of questioning about how much he didn't remember.

"I don't recall that," Reagan responded when asked about the Tower investigative commission's report that North and the National Security Council were involved in aiding the Nicaraguan rebels.

When lawyers read him that part of the commission report, Reagan continued to deny recollection, saying his interest had been in other findings.

He was asked about American contacts with Iranian dissidents who he had hoped were in a position to form a government to succeed the Ayatollah Khomeini.

"I can't recall the dates," he said.

When he was hospitalized for cancer, did government officials better to have Israel handle the delivery of missiles to Iran?

 "No, I don't recall that."
 Did he recall being told that private individuals were involved?
 "No, I don't."
 Did he know the details of providing spare parts for Hawk missiles for Iran?
 "I just don't recall."
 Had he ever discussed with Poindexter what to say if the story came out?
 "I don't recall, I don't recall that."
 Did he meet with Poindexter between two news conferences in November 1986?
 "I don't recall."
 When he met with congressional leaders, was Poindexter present?
 "I don't recall."
 Did he remember when he was informed of the Hawk missile shipment.

 "I actually don't. I don't recall when I was told or who told me."
 Was that information given to him in Geneva, when he was preparing for a meeting with Soviet President Gorbachev?
 "I don't have a clear recollection of what was discussed. There were so many meetings in so many different places."
 In the courtroom of Judge Harold Greene, hours of taped testimony ground on, starting before a packed house that eventually dwindled to a handful.

Across the hall a couple dozen reporters drifted in and out of Judge Louis Oberdorfer's courtroom, where they were allowed to see excerpts they had requested.

cases. He said he does not know Bright.

"That has been done before where one side in a criminal case hires a pathologist," he said. "It's very ordinary in a civil case for lawyers to hire expert witnesses."

Other testimony that is expected at next week's trial will include the relationship that Travis Dale had with his wife and some insurance that he had on her, Conard and his assistant said at a pre-trial hearing

Feb. 16.

Asked why Gray would file the suit, he replied, "I'm sure it has something to do with the fact that Mr. Gray is going to trial for murder Monday."

McLeish said he filed the civil suit five days before the criminal trial because of the possible impact it could have. "Yes, it was filed for exactly that reason," he said of the timing.

"The state has had pre-trial publicity for months on this case," he said. "It has had pretty damaging effects."

Besant-Matthews were unavailable for comment on the civil suit.

Conard said the suit may be an attempt to influence Besant-Matthews, but said he believes the former Dallas County medical examiner is not easily intimidated. The new civil court filing will not disrupt the criminal case, he said.

abandon its commitment to Alaska to assist with its civil claims against Exxon," Baily told reporters. He said he hoped the agreement would be revised to make it more acceptable to the state.

"We are being asked to accept a pig in a poke. ... And that pig smells awfully bad," he said.

"From all accounts the Bush administration is giving Exxon a wink and a nod ... a mere slap on the wrist," added Jay Hair, president of the National Wildlife Federation.

The Justice Department has acknowledged that plea bargaining talks were underway with Exxon for some time, but officials declined Thursday to provide details of the draft settlement or characterize the progress in the discussions. Exxon officials could not be reached for comment Thursday night.

Other sources said, however, that the draft agreement calls for Exxon to pay up to $500 million into a natural resources restoration fund over the next seven years and possibly a significantly smaller amount in direct criminal penalties to the U.S. Treasury.

The agreement, if made final, would allow Exxon, whose tanker spilled more than 11 million gallons of oil into Alaska's pristine Prince William Sound in March 1989, to avoid an embarrassing criminal trial and possible criminal prosecution of individual corporate officials.

The criminal laws used by federal prosecutors in oil spill cases allow fines of up to double the cost of the cleanup. Exxon has said it has spent more than $2 billion to clean up the oil spill.

Exxon attorneys, in the negotiations with the Justice Department, have tried to limit the amount of money to be paid to the U.S. Treasury as criminal penalties, preferring to pay most of the money into the restoration fund, sources said.

But one government source suggested that Exxon might have to pay only about $150 million initially, and subsequent annual payments over seven years would be open to Exxon challenges.

Environmental lawyers said that money paid for restoration under the criminal settlement could be tax-deductible as an ordinary cost of doing business and could be used to reduce future assessments against Exxon under various civil proceedings. Criminal penalties could not be deducted from future assessments, nor would they be tax-deductible.

composition/language, English as a second language, Spanish as a second language, health and life management skills texts for grades one through eight.

Senior high school texts in the areas of algebra, anatomy and physiology, apparel, business management, home economics, family/individual health, food science and nutrition, French, geometry, house design and furnishing, individual and family life, Latin, management, parenting and child development, personal finance, trigonometry and world history were approved.

The approved recommendations will go to the March meeting of the board of trustees. If the board approves the textbooks, which it is likely to do, they will be ordered for the coming school year. If it disapproves the selections, the committee will reconvene to reexamine the contested texts.

The committee is composed of the teachers who will use the books in the classroom: Cheryl Robertson; Kathleen McFarland; Mary Lou Salazar; Kim Baker; Jackie Swinney; Deanna Adams; Karla Canada; Terry Robertson; Joe Reed; Virginia Martin, who recommended 23 books, the most on the committee; Ralph Matteson; Virginia Miller; Nancy Koger and Ricky Mitchell, whose books were yanked from the approval list by the state board and will be resubmitted next year. Helen Gladden, the district's director of curriculum, also served on the committee.

The textbooks are approved by the state before Big Spring sees any of them. "All the controversy is at the state level at the hearings in Austin," McQueary said. "The state textbook committee has scrutinized these and all pros and cons are up front."

For some courses, teachers must pick a book out of up to five offered and approved by Texas. In other cases, only one book is offered for recommendation.

Some texts are recommended even though the district does not offer courses in their areas, such as a personal finance text Ralph Matteson recommended. "We don't know, maybe three years from now the school board will approve a course in that subject," Matteson said.

McQueary thanked the teachers and their schools for their work on the recommendations. "You agonized and studied over these texts. I guess we could do the decisions for you, but then you wouldn't like it," he joked. State law requires that at least five teachers serve on the textbook committee.

tense heat, it becomes brittle."

Chetty said he expects the westbound overpass to be repaired and certified safe in two to three weeks. Interstate traffic in both directions then will be routed over the bridge while the eastbound overpass is rebuilt.

In the meantime, motorists will continue taking a five-mile detour over Texas 350 and FM 700 until the westbound overpass is opened. There is no access road along the affected section of highway.

The detour "has the fewest control lights and was seen as the best route for the traffic flow, heavy as it is," Big Spring police Capt. Melvin Fowler said.

The truck's driver, Michael Roy Stovall, 37, of Big Spring, had just filled the tanker to capacity at a Fina refinery in Big Spring and was westbound when he apparently swerved to avoid a slow-moving car, according to the Department of Public Safety. The truck rode up onto the guardrail and then plunged over. Stovall was pronounced dead at the scene.

DPS Sgt. Frank Woodall said the car apparently was going about 50 mph. The speed limit on that section of the interstate is 65 mph, with no minimum speed.

ple that are on my petition were very concerned about the atmosphere in the city and they wanted to see it come to an end. The people on my petition didn't take an attitude of sitting back to see who was going to sign it. They wanted to see this come to an end. Only two people turned me down, and they were very polite. The people who signed my petition understood fully they have a choice at the polls if (the petition) makes."

"I failed in my push for a recall and I don't feel too comfortable with this," DeAnda said.

Dunnam said if the signatures are verified she will work to see that Green is removed from office.

"I will contribute whatever I can," Dunnam said.

She said she is not sorry she began the recall effort, regardless of the petition drive's outcome.

"I took a stand on something I believed deeply in. This needs to be resolved by an election ... then the city needs to get on with its business."

Dunnam said that she was not harassed as a result of her initiative. "I had a few negative phone calls and two negative letters," she said. "But most people in Big Spring dealt with this as adults."

"I'm not sure the city will benefit from this recall effort at all. A recall is a sad option to a bad situation."

"When it has been ended by the voters we need to put it behind us and deal with the issues at hand. I think that our mayor should be positive and Green has failed to act in that role."

Dunnam said she didn't think the recall effort made the city a subject of jokes across West Texas.

"I think the mayor made the city a laughingstock when he brought all those charges against Joe Cook," Dunnam said. "His disregard for procedure in that instance is what brought the negative impact on this town."

Costly loss

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — In a classic case of misplaced keys, construction company officials are facing much more than the prospect of being late for work. The lost keys may cost them $15,000.

County officials say keys to the new Bexar County Justice Center were misplaced about three weeks ago when they were loaned to Gilbane Building Co. so that after-hours work could be done.

County Judge Tom Vickers said Wednesday if the justice center locks must be replaced, the construction company will pay for it. The cost could range from $10,000 to $15,000.

Gilbane Building Co. built the justice center, which contains courtrooms and county offices and is located across from the Bexar County Courthouse.

Vickers said there is no reason to believe the keys were stolen.

"The keys were misplaced," he said. "It just makes more sense to replace them."

The misplaced keys are the latest in a series of problems plaguing the new downtown building.

Earlier it was discovered that panels around court reporters' and clerks' areas were too high and would obstruct their courtroom view.

Clements says no

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements will probably turn down an offer of 30 seconds free air time to talk about Texas before millions of viewers tuned in to NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman."

Rossanna Salazar, the governor's press secretary, said Thursday that Clements' tight schedule and the potential for biting remarks from late night comedian Letterman, will probably preclude him from taking up the offer.

"We appreciate the request... but it's a good bet we won't be able to do it," Ms. Salazar said.

The television show has asked every governor to send in a half-minute videotape to be aired during a series of "Gubernatorial Minutes." Each governor will be free to talk about his or her state and what's good about it.

A Letterman staffer told the Houston Post that there is no intention to hold governors or states up to ridicule.

On Wednesday, Clements said "Why not?" when asked if he would be interested in sending a tape to the Letterman show. The governor, however, said he has never seen the show nor Letterman.

Ethnic coalition endorses Hance, critical of others

AUSTIN (AP) — The American Ethnic Coalition, which supports designating English as Texas' official language, on Thursday endorsed Kent Hance in the 1990 gubernatorial race and denounced all other candidates for failing to support the English-only movement.

Coalition members, who contend that bilingualism in government and education wastes money, aimed their harshest criticism at Republican front-runner Clayton Williams for campaigning in Spanish and "playing into the hands of those who would divide our state and country into squabbling ethnic groups."

Roy Ontiveros, executive vice chairman of the organization, said using Spanish on the campaign trail promotes a "foreign mentality" among Hispanics and is insulting because it implies that some Texans cannot understand English.

"Many of us grassroots Texans with Spanish surnames resent being patronized and pandered to just because we can speak Spanish or have a Spanish surname," Ontiveros said. "We support Kent Hance and admire him for having the courage to support official English."

Mark Sanders, spokesman for Republican Hance, said the candidate is pleased to have the endorsement and backs the concept of English as the official language.

"Kent Hance supports official English primarily because he feels the state has an obligation to make sure that all youngsters grow up speaking English," Sanders said. "If you don't speak English in this country, you're going to have trouble."

Williams was defended by campaign spokesman Scott Bohnenkamp, who said the candidate will continue to answer questions asked him in Spanish in the same language but that he had never campaigned in Spanish. "Clayton Williams grew up in West Texas where many of his friends spoke Spanish, and to communicate both sides had to learn to be bilingual," Bohnenkamp said.

Wage garnishment ruling seen as consumer setback

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer advocates say they were stunned by a Texas Supreme Court ruling allowing courts to order debtors to surrender their paychecks.

In a 9-0 ruling this week, the high court said a court could constitutionally order debtors to turn over their paychecks to satisfy unpaid judgments, despite the Constitution's ban on garnishing wages.

Some legal experts cautioned that the Supreme Court ruling might not go as far as it seems because it left unanswered the question of whether those who ignore a court order to turn over their checks could be jailed.

Consumer advocates long have counted on the constitutional ban on seizing homesteads and garnishing wages to provide fundamental protections for debtors.

"This appears to be a major blow to the protections that were written into the Texas Constitution," said Rebecca Lightsey, legislative liaison for the Texas Consumer Association.

"That's an amazing ruling to me, especially in the state of Texas," said Becky McElroy, an Austin bankruptcy attorney. Texas traditionally has been "a very protection-oriented state for the debtor," she said.

Patricia Wicoff, the Houston lawyer who won the case, said the Supreme Court ruling would help creditors get their money back.

"I think it is a landmark decision," she said. "Prior to this decision, I think there was virtually no way to collect on that judgment. If you had a debtor astute at hiding their property or did not have non-exempt assets, you basically had a piece of paper that was of no substance."

The ruling was written by Chief Justice Tom Phillips, who said, "We hold that an order (by a court) directing a judgment debtor to turn over his future paychecks does not violate our state constitution's prohibition against garnishment."

Phillips said garnishment involves a third party between a creditor and a debtor — an employer or the bank where a debtor deposits checks. In this case, "because no third party was involved, there was no garnishment," Phillips ruled.

The case arose when Philip E. Davis of Houston was divorcing his wife. As part of the settlement, Davis was ordered to pay his wife's lawyer fees of about $20,000.

In 1986, the lawyers won a judgment from a Houston court ordering Davis to pay. They still didn't receive the money. Ms. Wicoff asked the judge to order Davis to turn over his paychecks to a court-appointed receiver, who would use part of it to pay the legal fees and return the rest for his living expenses. The judge agreed. Davis appealed.

The 1st Court of Appeals in Houston said the trial court's order violated the constitutional ban on garnishing wages, which says: "No current wages for personal service shall ever be subject to garnishment, except for the enforcement of court-ordered child support payments."

Jack Sampson, a law professor at the University of Texas, said the impact of the ruling will turn on how the court eventually interprets the jail issue.

"It's all up in the air. If it (ordering wages to be turned over) is enforceable by jailing, then creditors of all sorts — attorneys, Dillard's, whoever — can track them down in court, get them on payday and make them pay," Sampson said.

Stenholm's ratings reflect record

WASHINGTON — Rep. Charlie Stenholm, D-Texas, is the informal leader of conservative Democrats in the House and that position is reflected in the ratings he received from eight special-interest groups on his 1989 voting record.

The Stamford lawmaker has given high marks by business, anti-abortion and conservative groups while getting low scores from labor organizations, environmentalists and pro-abortion rights activists.

Special-interest organizations routinely issue "report cards" on lawmakers' voting records and a cross section of those ratings is an indication of a lawmaker's overall performance.

Stenholm leads the Conservative Democratic Forum, a loose coalition of about 45 House members who tend to support defense programs and oppose government regulation. The six-term rancher has been unopposed in his last two re-election campaigns in the rural, agricultural 17th District.

Stenholm's pro-business attitude was reflected in the 80 percent rating given him the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and in the low 11 percent rating awarded by the AFL-CIO labor organization.

The business group liked his opposition to raising the minimum wage and his effort to shrink the proposed federal legislation to provide federal child care assistance to families.

Stenholm received a 100 percent rating from the National Right to Life Committee for his opposition to abortion, voting against legislation to permit the District of Columbia to spend its own tax revenues to provide abortion to rape and incest victims.

In contrast, the National Abortion Rights Action League gave Stenholm a zero rating.

Police ask for TV help

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Police say they have asked the NBC-TV "Unsolved Mysteries" show for assistance in bringing to the public's attention a massacre at a bowling alley that left four people dead and three wounded.

Three of the dead and one of the wounded were children.

Police Capt. Fred Rubio said he sent a packet of material on the Feb. 10 shootings at Las Cruces Bowl to the producers of "Unsolved Mysteries" but has received no reply.

"Someone out there knows something and can make the call that will give us the piece of information we need. We're doing a lot of hard work but need one piece of luck," Rubio said.

Investigators have said two Hispanic men — one in his 30s with short, kinky hair and the other middle-aged and heavyset — took $5,000 and forced seven people to lie face-down on the floor of the bowling alley office, shot each in the back of the head, then set fire to the office.

A vital issue in Nicaragua

A decade of Marxist-Leninist rule in Nicaragua will be put to the test of the ballot box Sunday (Feb. 25) if the vote-counting is honest, the Sandinista National Liberation Front may discover it is no more popular with the electorate than were the communist oligarchs of Eastern Europe.

Given a fair choice, the suffering people of Nicaragua are not likely to opt for more Sandinista economic mismanagement and political repression. But the electoral campaign has been anything but even-handed.

President Daniel Ortega, the former comandante seeking to legitimize his grip on power, has exploited enormous advantages over his opponent, Violeta Barrios de Chamorro. With the full power of the regime at his disposal, Mr. Ortega has greatly outspent Mrs. Chamorro's National Opposition Union (UNO), while severely limiting the opposition leader's exposure on the state-controlled radio and television.

Much of the $3.3 million provided by Washington to encourage a democratic campaign has been siphoned off by the Sandinistas, and the rest was long delayed in reaching the opposition coalition. In addition to dominating the airwaves, the Sandinistas have mounted a lavish electoral drive, passing out tens of thousands of toys, T-shirts, hats, knapsacks and other gifts to impoverished voters.

The government's relatively sophisticated direct-mail operations include campaign appeals sent to every household from Mr. Ortega and presidential greetings to all 162,000 registered voters celebrating birthdays during the month before the scheduled balloting. Meantime, President Ortega has traded his thick spectacles and military fatigues for contact lenses and casual civilian clothes to stomp every corner of the country.

By contrast, Mrs. Chamorro, the gray-haired publisher of the independent newspaper La Prensa, has been strapped for funds and hobbled by a broken kneecap suffered in a fall at her home. When UNO earlier this week staged the largest anti-Sandinista rally since the 1979 revolution, the regime's Supreme Electoral Council forced two Managua radio stations to halt their live coverage. For the same event, the Sandinistas confiscated UNO's imported sound equipment and prevented thousands of UNO's rural supporters from traveling to Managua for the opposition rally.

Despite the lopsided campaign in a country with no democratic tradition, it is far from certain that President Ortega can defeat Mrs. Chamorro.

Enthusiasm for the opposition candidate has developed a momentum of its own in recent days, even though admittedly unreliable polls cast her as the underdog. What is undeniable, however, is that Nicaraguans are disillusioned by 10 years of deprivation and economic chaos under Sandinismo and want to mend the civil war that wracked the country throughout most of the 1980s.

As Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union strive to replace Marxism-Leninism with market-driven economies and elected governments, Mr. Ortega and his Sandinista followers are becoming increasingly isolated. The issue that needs to be decided on Sunday is whether Nicaraguans want to continue to stake their future on communism's discredited policies or begin the process of economic and political reform. That is a question that can be determined only by a fair election which, given the Sandinistas' manipulation, is far from assured.

Run, Jesse, run — but for what job?

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jesse Jackson's new hometown may have a job opening made to order for a once and future Democratic presidential candidate — but the fine print says he can't run for it. Another slot almost as inviting is tied up in the city council.

Neither job is mayor, the office Jackson could seek in November, an option on which he so far won't say yes or no.

The other posts involve Congress, one officially as a non-voting delegate, one unofficially, as an city-elected lobbyist for District of Columbia statehood. Either would carry some of the advantages of office without the confining duties an elected post, like mayor, usually entails.

There has been speculation about Jackson for mayor ever since he moved to Washington last summer, and he has done nothing to dampen it. That's true to the form he has shown in national Democratic politics. Jackson strengthened his influence by stirring political guesswork about his post-convention roles in the 1984 and 1988 Democratic presidential campaigns.

Transplanted from Chicago to the District of Columbia, he's got them guessing again, this time in local politics. There are other players, among them Walter E. Fauntroy, the district non-voting delegate to Congress since 1971.

With Mayor Marion Barry in a rehabilitation center and facing drug possession and perjury charges, some of his leading supporters have formed a committee to draft Fauntroy for mayor. Four Democrats already are running to oust Barry, but none has the name recognition that either Fauntroy or Jackson would command.

Fauntroy says he is agonizing about the decision and will announce by March 3 whether he'll run for mayor or stay in Congress, where he can't vote but has the other rights of a member.

Should he run for mayor, it would create what seems the perfect vacancy for Jackson: a seat in Congress with a staff, committee assignments and the right to speak and debate on the floor like any other member. Even the lack of a vote would be an asset — missing House action while campaigning nationally or tending to other interests wouldn't be the recorded disadvantage it sometimes has been for members of Congress seeking presidential nomination.

And Jackson has said that if he did become mayor, it would limit his activities in national and international affairs.

The hitch is in the law that grants the District a delegate, and requires that on the date of his election "he has resided in the District of Columbia continuously since the beginning of the three-year period ending on such date."

Jackson moved to Washington in summer 1989, in time to meet the one-year residency requirement to run for mayor, but far short of the three-year rule for delegate. That law could be changed by the city and Congress. That means some potential Jackson rivals, local in 1990, national in 1992, would have to go along. The law also could be challenged as invalid, since it doesn't apply to congressmen elsewhere and the House itself has not acted on its members.

There seemed to be another option in the planned election of a shadow congressional delegation by district voters, but that has been shelved indefinitely by a city council committee. The plan was to have the voters elect two shadow senators and a representative this year as part of the effort to make the District of Columbia the 51st state. They wouldn't be seated in Congress, of course. They would be cast as leading lobbyists for statehood, a cause for which Jackson has been campaigning.

Creation of those positions, which would cost an estimated $1.35 million a year, was approved in a city referendum on statehood a decade ago. The elections already have been postponed three times.

Statehood always has been a long shot, and the Barry-induced political turmoil makes it even more so. Congress approved a constitutional amendment to give the district voting representation in 1978, but it died for lack of state ratification.

Seventy-nine percent of district voters are registered Democrats. Only 9 percent are registered as Republicans. So statehood, if it came, would give the Democrats a lock on two new seats in the Senate and one in the House, a prospect Republicans are not about to accept.

And that's not the only problem that goes with Jackson's new voting address. Fauntroy has announced a campaign of tax-withholding civil disobedience, saying district residents should refuse to pay their federal income taxes until they get statehood.

That would risk penalties including imprisonment. "Those of us who have decided to take this action are prepared to accept those consequences," Fauntroy said last week.

Perhaps. But if there really is such a statehood campaign, it would create a special dilemma for Jackson, who would have to choose between local and national objectives. Tax disobedience might play well in the District of Columbia, but it could be disastrous in any future presidential campaign.

Habash sides with Arafat — temporarily

By JACK ANDERSON
and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — One of the most rabid Palestinian terrorists of the last 20 years, George Habash, is currently restraining himself in deference to a political solution to the question of a Palestinian state. But when we tracked him down to an office in Damascus for an exclusive interview, Habash warned us that his self-imposed truce won't last forever.

His followers, members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, are secretly arming themselves on the West Bank. They are waiting for Habash's order to escalate the Palestinian uprising, the intifada, from rock throwing to grenade tossing.

Our own estimate, and that of U.S. intelligence sources and sources inside the PFLP, is that Habash will give his fellow Palestinian, Yasir Arafat, six months to win concessions from Israel. Then Habash will renew the violence.

The historical record shows Habash is not prissy about bloodshed. He formed the PFLP in 1967 after the loss of the West Bank to Israel. Then he mounted a series of spectacular terrorist operations: hijacking three airliners and blowing them up in front of TV cameras (1969); a machine gun attack by hired Japanese Red Army suicide terrorists in the Lod Airport in Tel Aviv killing 27 civilians (1972); hijacking a Japanese airliner to Libya and blowing it up (1973); throwing hand grenades into a crowded Tel Aviv theater, killing three (1974); hijacking an Air France airliner to Entebbe, Uganda, where four civilians were killed during a successful rescue by Israeli soldiers (1976); and hijacking a Lufthansa airliner to Somalia only to have West German commandos storm the plane, rescue the passengers and kill three terrorists (1977).

Since 1984, his group has hijacked or bombed three Israeli buses and stabbed an Israeli student to death on a Jerusalem street.

Age has taken a toll on Habash. His speech, in English, was halting when we met him. One side of his body is paralyzed, and he needs help to walk. He blames a surgeon who botched his brain surgery in Beirut in 1980.

Highly classified Central Intelligence Agency reports reveal that Habash has been near death several times from a heart attack and unidentified illnesses.

The CIA keeps close tabs on Habash's health. He is easily the most important Palestinian leader after Arafat, and he could change the course of the low-key intifada by a simple order to escalate the violence.

MINI-EDITORIAL — With the diminished threat from the "Evil Empire," the Pentagon brass now can concentrate its strategic skills on budget battles. Given the course of events, they expect to lose a few missiles, but we guarantee they will squeeze out enough for their own comforts. The generals and admirals will maintain the privileges of rank no matter how much military hardware they lose. And they will also retain the right to pay the highest price for whatever they buy. Everyone agrees that military cuts must come. Why not do something revolutionary and cut fat instead of muscle?

Jack Anderson

Habash has not held back lately because of discretion alone. He was stung by the two defeats — the Israeli paratroopers at Entebbe and the West German commandos in Somalia. He now concentrates on operations inside Israel or from neighboring countries, instead of global terrorism.

It suits Habash's purposes now to pose as a supporter of Arafat. "We are part of the PLO," he told us. "That is why our goal is the goal of the PLO — self-determination for Palestinians, independence, having the right to establish our own state like any other people."

Habash told us he is still a committed Marxist. "I hope it will be a socialist country," he says of the Palestinian state. "I hope to see a Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital. And I hope to see a democratic parliament, a Palestinian parliament, holding its session in Jerusalem before I die."

BUDGET GRIDLOCK — The next time you find yourself sitting in a traffic jam, here's something to occupy your mind. Transportation Department analysts say that within the next 15 years, delays on the freeway will increase by 436 percent nationwide. One solution is to expand existing roadways, but that's too expensive. The states and the federal government are running up deficits. The nation's infrastructure needs more than $300 billion in repairs — approximately the cost of the savings and loan bailout. You can bet that the savings and loans will be rescued, but the motorists will not.

A career that shouldn't go down the drain

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Andre Hastings of Georgia is one of the most talented high school football players in the country.

Get the ball near Andre, he can catch it. Everybody wants Andre. Notre Dame wants him.

Michigan wants him. Georgia and Georgia Tech, of course, want to keep him in the state.

Here's what I like most about Andre:

We've all heard those recruiting stories. Young recruits demand cars, clothes, sex and money to sign, and, quite often, they get what they ask for.

I even knew of a respected Southern school that was recruiting a young man who wanted to become a doctor.

So, the kid was taken to the hospital on campus, given a robe and allowed to sit in on a hysterectomy.

But none of that for Andre Hastings. What he wants in a school that signs him is simple.

He wants his own bathroom. "I want to have my own separate bathroom," Andre was quoted as saying in the Sunday sports section.

"That's a personal thing with me," he went on. "I just don't want to share a bathroom, and I've told coaches that."

Michigan seems to be in big trouble with Andre. He visited Ann Arbor and said, "I've been led to believe I'd have to share a bathroom with an entire dorm hall there."

I'm thinking of the reaction coaches are having to this unique situation.

"Dammit," says Coach Norman Hardrock of Cheat U., "I've got six BMW convertibles and three cheerleaders to give away and this kid wants a private bathroom. We got any alumni who are plumbers?"

I don't blame Andre for wanting his own, as the author of the Sunday piece put it so well, "private potty."

When I was in college I had to share a bathroom with an entire dorm hall. I didn't go to Michigan, but that was the toilet situation at the University of Georgia.

You get 19 guys in the bathroom at the same time and you've got to wait in line for the shower, and inevitably some bullying starts going around attempting to pop a wet towel on your bare backside.

It was worse after I got married and had to share a bathroom with my wife. Women will hang wet panty hose on the shower rod and cover the sink area with an assortment of exotic shampoos and oils not to mention spare parts for their Volvo station wagons.

At least in college nobody ever took my razor to shave his legs, which often happened to me when I was married.

Of course if somebody had taken my razor to shave his legs, I would have sought an immediate transfer to another housing unit.

We know not the reason why young Mr. Hastings is suffering from flusophobia, the fear of having to share a bathroom, but it could be from some traumatic experience he underwent as a child, such as being frightened by a can of Drano when he was 3.

I'm also not certain if providing a private bathroom for high school recruits is against the rules of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which governs such things.

But if it's not, after the season my beloved Georgia Dawgs had last year, I'd suggest it start now on the Andre Hastings Private Bathroom Complex.

I'll donate four towels, a couple of bars of soap and a rubber ducky myself.

Top that, Notre Dame.

Nation's traffic fatality rate down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1980s ended with the lowest annual traffic death rate ever, capping a decade in which many Americans declared war on drunken driving and began using long-neglected safety belts, federal officials say.

The 1989 fatality rate was 2.2 deaths per 100 million miles traveled, down from 2.3 the previous year and one-third lower than the 1980 rate of 3.3, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reported.

Fatalities in 1989 are estimated at 45,500, compared with 47,093 in 1988. Final numbers for last year are still being tallied but are unlikely to change significantly, officials said.

"The reduction in traffic deaths during the 1980s reflects our national resolve against drunk driving, increased safety belt use and a generally heightened awareness of highway safety," Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner said Thursday.

Greyhound drivers threaten strike

DALLAS (AP) — Greyhound bus drivers say they'll walk off the job when their contract expires next week, but the company already has begun hiring replacements and says it will operate a full schedule by the end of next month.

The Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions, which represents 6,300 drivers and 3,075 office and maintenance workers, notified the company Thursday of its decision to go on strike at 12:01 a.m. March 2, Greyhound Lines Inc. spokesman George Gravley said.

No talks in the dispute are scheduled, Gravley said. Union officials did not return telephone calls seeking comment.

Greyhound says its nearly 4,000 buses serve 9,500 locations, and are the only public transportation available in about 9,000 of those areas.

The two sides met together in Phoenix last Friday and Monday and then held separate meetings with a federal mediator Tuesday, but no agreement could be reached, Gravley said.

The company and union remain far apart, with Greyhound offering a three-year deal worth about $63 million. Gravley said the union initially had sought a pact valued at $561 million.

Infant seat rule could be costly

Method of securing infants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air travel for families with young children could become more costly under the airline industry's proposed infant safety seat requirement.

In an unusual step, the Air Transport Association asked the Federal Aviation Administration to set a tougher requirement than the agency itself is considering.

The FAA on Thursday proposed regulations to require airlines to allow passengers to use safety seats if they want to — airlines now have the option of barring them — and said it would consider making the seats mandatory after receiving public comment on the issue.

The ATA, which represents major air carriers, wants the seats required for all passengers under 2 years old. The ATA proposes that the rule change go into effect a year after it is adopted.

The proposal, if adopted by the FAA, could require thousands of parents each day to buy tickets for children who now fly free.

Reagan testimony gives little aid to defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Reagan's videotaped testimony gives little support to the defense in John M. Poindexter's upcoming Iran-Contra trial and could undermine it in several important ways, observers say.

Reagan steadfastly maintained that Poindexter and other White House aides were not breaking the law when they advised the Nicaraguan Contras during a congressional ban on U.S. aid to the rebels.

The former president said he was in "total agreement" with a letter Poindexter sent to Congress in July 1986 denying that the National Security Council staff was giving the rebels covert military assistance.

"If I had written it myself, I might have used a little profanity," Reagan said of the letter, which prosecutors charge was a false statement to lawmakers by Poindexter.

Former Iran-Contra prosecutor Michael Bromwich said the "one line that dramatically helps the defense" during eight hours of testimony.

"The president sees this letter and says it looks fine to him," Bromwich said. "I think it has a psychological effect on the jury."

But Reagan's confusion and lack of knowledge about the participation of Poindexter and White House aide Oliver L. North in the Iran-Contra affair is damaging, said Bromwich, a member of the team of lawyers that successfully prosecuted North last year.

"Reagan seems to have very little idea of what was going on so he certainly didn't authorize or approve of what North or Poindexter was doing based on full knowledge of the facts," said Bromwich, now in private law practice in Washington.

Also damaging are Reagan's statements that he didn't authorize any of the actions Poindexter took that prosecutors allege violated the law, Bromwich said.

"On the ultimate question 'Did you authorize? Did you approve?' the answer is 'No, No, No,'" Bromwich said.

The transcript of Reagan's eight-hour pre-trial deposition, given last week behind closed doors in Los Angeles, was released Thursday.

The public was allowed to view the videotapes of Reagan's testimony in the courtroom where Poindexter is scheduled to go to trial March 5 on charges of obstructing congressional inquiries into the Iran-Contra affair.

Reagan testified he "never had any inkling" that North was providing strategic advice to the Contras.

Ships warned back from tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — The U.S. Navy today told vessels to steer at least four miles clear of a burning Kuwaiti tanker while an army of salvage boats worked around the clock to keep its volatile cargo from exploding again.

The U.S.-flagged Surf City was loaded with naphtha and diesel fuel for Italy on Thursday when a blast ripped through it in the Persian Gulf, 20 miles off the United Arab Emirates coast. The ship was still billowing smoke today.

Its American captain and first mate were killed, but the 23 other sailors, all Americans but one, were rescued by U.S. warships. Four were hospitalized, but their conditions were not known.

Officials ruled out sabotage or a floating mine as the cause and said a short circuit may have sparked the blast aboard the ship, which was owned by the Kuwaiti Oil Tanker Co. It had been reflagged for U.S. protection during the Iran-Iraq war.

Capt. Ron Wildermuth, chief spokesman for the Central Command in Florida which oversees the U.S. naval forces, said initial reports indicated the explosion was caused by an internal accident.

Tokyo calls for urgent trade talks

TOKYO (AP) — Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama today called for urgent Cabinet-level trade talks, saying U.S. demands at lower-level discussions on the U.S.-Japanese trade imbalance were stronger than expected.

American officials criticized Japanese negotiators in the talks, saying they would not go far enough in efforts to reduce Japan's $49 billion trade surplus with the United States.

"We must say we find ourselves frustrated and concerned at this point," Deputy U.S. Trade Representative Linn Williams told reporters after the two-day negotiating session ended today.

Nakayama told reporters the U.S. demands were "much severer" than Japanese officials had expected.

He called for an urgent meeting of top government officials, after Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu names a new Cabinet next week, to clear up disagreements aired in talks at the bilateral sub-Cabinet level.

Since the structural trade talks were launched in May, U.S. officials have pressed Japan for evidence of willingness to carry out wide-ranging reform to help reduce Japan's trade surplus with the United States.

French rocket explodes at takeoff

KOUROU, French Guiana (AP) — An Ariane rocket carrying two Japanese communications satellites exploded just after liftoff, prompting the competitor to the U.S. space shuttle to suspend future flights.

The unmanned Ariane 44-L rocket, powered by four strap-on boosters, blew apart Thursday, apparently from a fire in the propulsion system, Arianespace President Frederic D'Allest said at the launch site.

The failure came after 17 straight successful launches of the Ariane. The two satellites alone were insured for more than $200 million.

"A mishap in the function of the first stage led to the loss of mission flight 36, one minute, 40 seconds into launch," Arianespace said in a statement released in Paris.

The rocket exploded about 6 miles from the launch pad at an altitude of 5.6 miles.

Religion roundup

Permission granted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vatican has granted permission for Roman Catholic Archbishop Francis T. Hurley of Anchorage, Alaska, to designate religious sisters and lay persons to officiate at marriages when priests or deacons aren't available.

Hurley, who pilots his own aircraft in order to travel the long distances between parishes, says that the Vatican permission currently applies to five religious sisters and one lay woman now serving as parish administrators.

At Hurley's initiative, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops had asked the Vatican for the special permission in view of the shortage of priests.

New executive officer

NEW YORK (AP) — Nelson Price, for 15 years head of the public media division of United Methodist communications, has been named president and chief executive officer of the Vision Interfaith Satellite Network.

He succeeds Wilford Bane, who has been VISION's chief executive officer since the start in 1988 of the network by 22 religious groups — Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish.

Price, who had helped get religious leaders behind the new network, calls it "one of the bright hopes for ecumenical and cooperative efforts in this country."

Bane is returning to his former post as head of United Methodist video-film production.

Pursuing justice

CURITIBA, Brazil (AP) — Pursuing justice is "a complicated business in today's world," Dean Ronald Thiemann of Harvard Divinity School told the assembly of the Lutheran World Federation.

He said the "magnitude of the plight of God's suffering people" was reflected in these statistics: 500 million hungry, 1 billion living in extreme poverty, 40 million deaths a year from hunger and malnutrition, 1.5 billion people without access to medical care, 2 billion without a stable water supply.

World Day of Prayer

NEW YORK (AP) — "A Better Tomorrow: Justice for All" is the theme for the observance March 2 of World Day of Prayer, sponsored by United Church Women, made up of Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox women.

A special service for the occasion, written by Christian women of Czechoslovakia, stresses Christ's message of equality.

Witness for Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Witness for Peace, an interfaith organization, says it will have 130 U.S. citizens on hand to monitor the February 25 national elections in Nicaragua.

The National Council of Churches, the World Council of Churches, the Lutheran World Federation and the Latin American Council of Churches also have ecumenical teams on the scene to observe the elections.

Overcoming ills

NEW YORK (AP) — President Bush says that "ugly forms of discrimination and prejudice continue to mar the shining promise of America" and that the country must overcome those ills.

"Our nation's future depends on it," he said in a message to the National Conference of Christians and Jews in connection with the observance this week of Brotherhood/Sisterhood Week.

He said its theme, "America's Future Comes in All Colors" is a "wonderful reminder of the fact that every American — of every race, creed and walk of life — has unique talents and abilities to share with others."

The non-sectarian organization, founded in 1927 to promote religious, racial and ethnic inclusiveness in American society, has distributed 150,000 color posters to schools.

Does prayer really work?

By FATHER J.P. DELANEY
Special to the Herald

Can one pray for someone else? What possible good does it do for them? For me, yes, perhaps, it does strengthen and calm me, prepare me to work better or accept God's will, etc. But for the other person? Is the prayer of petition only a psychological remedy for those who feel they must do something, especially when a friend is in need?

The question was asked by some on the night of Sen. Bob Kennedy's death agony. Why the signs, "Pray for Bobby?" Were the prayers supposed to turn back the bullet, mend the shattered nerves?

The answer here — can we pray for and really help someone else is part of a mystery. That sounds like a dodge. But it is the mystery of love. The prayer of petition is the language of love; how often the strongest person, in distress, says earnestly, "Pray for me!" This reaching out is an admission of human finiteness, but, also, it is a sign of the solidarity of the human family.

Love compels us to reach out, and to hold out the sign of our compassion.

So, for the question, does this praying for others do them any

corner

good, I would answer with signs that point further into the mystery. Briefly put: We pray for others because (1) Christ is our example, (2) He is faithful, and (3) love is fruitful.

As to the first: Christ did these things. He prayed for Lazarus when he was dead, and he prayed for Peter ("I have prayed for you; when you shall return again, strengthen your brethren"). And he tells us to pray, "Ask, and you shall receive." He didn't say, "Don't ask for another."

Finally, we are impelled by love, and love is fruitful. We may not see how, but we have seen the principle-love is on-going, never ending, creative. More things are wrought by love, as well as faith, than this world dreams of.

Father Delaney is the pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

World Day of Prayer observance

World Day of Prayer, which will be conducted March 2, is a global event that once a year unites women of faith in 170 countries and regions of the world to share in common worship experience and pray the same prayers for peace with justice for all people on this planet.

The 1990 service was written by Christian women of Czechoslovakia, brings Christ's message of equality as it was brought to that country more than 1,000 years ago. The theme, "A Better Tomorrow: Justice For All," reflects the positive changes toward justice being felt in Czechoslovakia today.

The Big Spring unit of Church Women United will hold its local observance at 10 a.m. at Wesley United Methodist Church, 1206 Owens.

Since its founding in 1941, Church Women United has been the official sponsor of World Day of Prayer in the United States and has assumed the responsibility for preparation and distribution of World Day of Prayer resources to more than 6,000 U.S. communities and churches where this event is observed. Church Women United is the ecumenical movement that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox, and other Christian women together in one community of prayer, advocacy, and service. C.W.U. works through a national unit, 52 state units (including greater Washington, D.C. and Puerto Rico), and 1,750 local units. C.W.U. works for the elimination of poverty of women and children and issues of justice and peace. World Day of Prayer offerings make possible, in part, the mission of Church Women United including the Intercontinental Grants for Mission program that funds national and international self-development and teaching projects for women as well as community services and disaster relief at home and abroad.

The Big Spring Unit of Church Women United cordially invites all interested people to attend the local observance of World Day of Prayer.

Isn't it about time we gave Big Spring the business?

Church briefs

Pre-Lenten services

Pre-Lenten services will be conducted at First Presbyterian Church Sunday through Wednesday. Dr. T.M. McMillan, Stockton, Ala., will be the guest preacher. His sermons will center around the meaning of Christian love. Evening services will be at 7.

National Women's Day

Sunday is National Women's Day at the Assemblies of God Church. To celebrate, First Assembly of God Church will observe the birthday of Etta Calhoun, who began the women's ministries 65 years ago. Areas of service have been expanded to include foreign and home missions, benevolence and the local church. More than 193,000 women are active in 8,000 groups to touch lives, share burdens and meet needs. The women will lead a special service Sunday at 6 p.m. using the theme "Go Gather." The public is invited to attend.

Gospel singing

A gospel singing program will be presented Saturday at the Municipal Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Howard County Chapter of NAACP as one of its Black History Month activities. The program will feature selections by local churches, as well as groups from Midland and Odessa. Awards will be presented to winners of the contest on "Education and Freedom." The public is invited to attend. Admission is free.

Guest preacher

The Rev. Lester Williams, former pastor in the West Texas area, will conduct services Sunday at Calvary Baptist Church, 1200 West Fourth St., at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. The public is invited.

Service of Ashes

First Christian Church will conduct a "Come and Go Service of Ashes" Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m. Common Cup Communion will be provided.

Pastor's Class, a class on church membership and how to have a relationship with Christ Jesus, will begin March 4. It will meet each Sunday through Palm Sunday at 5 p.m. in the library. The class is primarily for fourth through sixth graders, and will deal with the following themes: About the Christian Church; Let's Learn About the Bible; About Alexander Campbell; Let's Learn About Stewardship; Why Worship?; and A Personal Relationship with Christ. The class will conclude with a special service of Baptism for those who want to make their profession of faith Easter Sunday night.

A family fellowship will be hosted Sunday at 6:30 p.m. The menu will be chili, Frito pie, salad, dessert and drinks. Cost is $2.50 per adult; and $1 per child under 12. The program will be provided by Juliette Fowler Home.

Garage sale

Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, 1009 Hearn St., will have a garage sale March 3, from a.m. to 2 p.m., in the school cafeteria.

Youth revival

College Park Church of God, 603 Tulane Ave., will conduct the "City-Wide Youth Revival" Sunday through Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Weeknight services begin at 7:30. Evangelist will be Jeff Anderson, Georgia. Due to the revival, prayer meeting will not be conducted Monday.

The ladies ministries will conduct a prayer meeting Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the worship center.

The youth group will have a car wash Saturday at Spring City Do-It Center from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Proceeds will go toward a trip to Six Flags.

Many activities are begin planned for the youth, including teen talent (regional and state), and an "All Night Party" for the Churches of God of Texas in Weatherford.

Volunteer goes behind bars to worship with inmates

By JOHN WALLS

Lubbock — It's 9 a.m. on a chilly Sunday and a smiling, petite visitor walks into the Lubbock County Jail.

She carries a portable black Yamaha keyboard on aluminum legs balanced against her right hip as she walks into the jail's waiting area. A Bible with a homemade lace cover rests atop the keyboard.

Cindy Hughlett is on her way to lead a one-hour worship service with female inmates.

Minutes pass while jail personnel work to get Mrs. Hughlett, 27, through the doors and to a crowd that ranges from two to 20 women inmates depending on the day.

"It doesn't matter how many there are," she said.

The jail personnel smile and say hello. She is escorted gently from the waiting area through the holding area — still holding inmates after a busy Saturday night — into a maze of steel bars and doors that lead into the bowels of the jail.

Mrs. Hughlett walks into an area used as a sewing room and a general meeting room. It is covered with leaflets and fliers from Alcoholics Anonymous meetings.

The room has yellow cinder block walls with gray concrete floors. In the corner is a short rack of generic inmate shirts. The visitor prepares for her service, arranging gray folding chairs around the room.

Mrs. Hughlett began singing in the jail three years ago and included scripture reading and discussion during the past year, operating through the chaplain at LUBBOCK — Cindy Hughlett carries her keyboard and Bible into the Lubbock County Jail on her way to lead a one-hour worship service with female inmates.

Trinity Church.

She usually holds services three to four Sundays a month in the jail with her assistant, Blanche Swisher.

The women inmates begin to file into the room with their Bibles, pausing to stop and smile.

"Hi, Sister Cindy," says one.

The women inmates are clad in red, blue and white shirts — each with the word "JAIL" emblazoned on the back — along with standard-issue blue jail pants.

Sixteen inmates attend the service.

After a short prayer, Mrs. Hughlett says, "So how have y'all been doing?" The inmates nod and say, "Fine."

Mrs. Hughlett then begins to play her songs for the next half-hour.

The inmates, crouched in their folding chairs, follow along by reading the handouts she has prepared. Their heads move slowly from side to side as their voices rise in the small quarters.

One inmate raises her hand during the singing, while Mrs. Hughlett nimbly plays the keyboard.

After the song, a soft "Amen" echoes through the little room as the inmates shuffle from one sheet of music to another. Mrs. Hughlett sips from her pink plastic cup of water on the top of the keyboard. During the service, women guards look on through a mirror in the control room, dividing their attention from the service in the little room to the screens monitoring activity in the inmates' wing.

Outside the room, muffled voices and the sounds of television echo down the corridor, while the harsh sounds of doors being mechanically shut occasionally provides background percussion to the service.

Mrs. Hughlett leads the women inmates in a half-hour of verse reading and discussion, focusing this week on John 14. She said she chose the chapter for its emphasis on encouragement and peace, the coming of Christ and the Holy Spirit, and the answer of prayer.

She leads the inmates as they take turns reading verses from the chapter. The women participate attentively, pausing occasionally to outline and underline passages. Their heads nod as Mrs. Hughlett talks about the scriptures.

An inmate fans herself with her makeshift songbook.

A woman guard motions from behind the window.

Mrs. Hughlett nods.

The discussion ends and the inmates get up from their chairs, cleaning the room around them.

Mrs. Hughlett leaves the hot room, keyboard in tow, and heads back through the dull corridor.

The procession with Mrs. Hughlett swings back past the holding area, where one man sits with his head in his hands. But the flow of traffic, including a guard and several visitors, sweeps past the cell.

Minutes after leaving the room of inmates, with fluorescent light as her guide, she moves through the jail's last door into a wave of sunlight.

She smiles. "I love it," she said. "They know. They know if you love them."

Afterward, Mrs. Hughlett said she hopes to expand her ministry and also go into other jails, including state prisons, in a full-time ministry.

The people behind the bars are her motivation, she said.

"It's where God called me," Mrs. Hughlett said. "I know that's where God wants me."

"I'm happier in there than anywhere else," she said.

'Souls at stake in abortion debate'

By DAVID BRIGGS

Associated Press Writer

Hell hath lost much of its fury in the modern age, some sociologists say. The most commercially successful television preachers talk more about the joys of salvation than the perils of hellfire, and many Western Moslem leaders cringed when Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini promised a spot in heaven for whoever would send British author Salman Rushdie to hell.

But fueled by the nation's most explosive social issue, some would-be modern-day prophets who believe that abortion involves the murder of innocent children have revived the idea of hell, and say there are actions that endanger mortal souls.

Like their predecessors in American social movements from abolition to prohibition, "Evangelicalism has become engaged in a public battle for the soul of the nation," said the Rev. Paul Schenck, director of the National Clergy Council, a suburban Buffalo, N.Y.-based coalition of clergy opposed to abortion.

Most people still contemplate going to heaven when they die, but few dwell on the other possibility, say some religious leaders and sociologists.

When a New York bishop recently told Gov. Mario Cuomo he was in danger of going to hell because of his public support of legalized abortion, no one, including Cuomo, "trembled as a result of it," said Martin Marty, a professor of religious history at the University of Chicago.

The Rev. Richard McBrien, a theologian at Notre Dame, said the Roman Catholic Church since the Second Vatican Council in the early 1960s has moved from a negative view derived from St. Augustine — that the race is damned and only a few will be saved — to a perspective that mankind is "essentially a saved community from whom a few may be lost."

"I think it's a serious sin if a person contributed to an abortion taking place with full knowledge. There's no way as a Catholic you could believe that anyone has the right to kill a baby." — Bishop Austin Vaughan.

Brother Ihsan Babgy, acting secretary general of the Islamic Society of North America in Plainfield, Ind., said in Islam, despite what Khomeini reportedly said, "Nobody knows for sure who is going to heaven or hell."

Before 1952, Marty said, as many as half of Americans believed in hell. Since then, he said surveys revealed only from 8 percent to 13 percent of Americans "thought of hell as in any way a possibility for them."

While most religious groups keep hell on the books, Marty said, "The whole system of scare or fear of hell is gone."

Reduced confessional lines in Catholic churches and the absence of a single work of art in Lutheran or United Methodist churches since the Second World War depicting God placing someone in hell are examples of its loss of importance in American society, he said.

"You can't suddenly in that culture scare Cuomo or anybody," Marty said.

But some religious leaders are concerned that personal responsibility has been thrown into the fire as well.

"In Western culture, we don't like to believe we are personally accountable to anything greater than ourselves," Schenck said. "While many preachers of a popular Gospel worry about the reaction to referencing hell, I think they also worry we are on a path of self-destruction..."

In an interview, Auxiliary Bishop Austin Vaughan of New York reiterated his position that if Gov. Cuomo dies without repenting of having supported publicly funded abortions, "he'd run a serious risk of going to hell."

"I think it's a serious sin if a person contributed to an abortion taking place with full knowledge," Vaughan said. "There's no way as a Catholic you could believe that anyone has the right to kill a baby."

Museum tour

Eleven members of the Mary Jane Club and one guest, Mrs. Weldon Appleton, from San Antonio, met recently at the Heritage Museum. Curator Angie Way conducted a tour through the facility, explaining the exhibits. She told the group about plans for expansion, and that the project was scheduled to begin in the very near future.

Way explained that groups or individuals could purchase bricks that would have a permanent place in the new building, and that the purchase price would be used to finish the interior of the building.

The group met several members of the museum's board of directors who requested that anyone having early day pictures of the outlying communities to contact Polly Mays or Way.

The group also visited the Howard County Library to view the Peter Hurd mural, which depicts early day settlers to this area. Librarian Donna Jackson told how the work was done, and how colors were mixed with an egg base and various soil types to achieve the colors the artist desired. She said that a representative of Hurd checks on the condition of the mural periodically.

The club group had lunch at the Green House. Diane Wood conducted a brief business meeting.

Boy Scouts approved for Adopt-A-Highway program

The clean look

If you have been driving along Highway 208 lately, maybe you noticed something looks a little different, but what? It's cleaner! Boy Scout Troop 100 has been busy. They have just recently been approved by the Texas Department of Highways for the Adopt-A-Highway Program. In the past these young men have assisted other organizations in their clean-up duties (such as the Methodist Men and the Kiwanis Club) but now the Scouts have a stretch of highway to call their own. Starting at Mac-Michael's Restaurant going south for two miles past Gas & Grub and even as far as the Wallace Center is what Troop 100 is in charge of cleaning up. Any group being approved for this program must agree to pick up the trash on their particular stretch of highway at least for times a year. Those scouts working to make Mitchell County a prettier place to live were Anthony Alvarez, Brandon Atkins, Corey Beavers, Jody Beavers, Randy Casares, Kyle Chambers, Ryan Costable, Drew Finch, Seneca Lee, and Cody Loving. They were joined by their leaders, Scoutmaster Frank Costable, Assistant Scoutmaster Allen Ray Loving and Chaplain Jon Farris.

Mrs. Grant's first grade class entertained students at a recent Valentine dinner at Wallace Center. Those who performed are posing in front a Colorado City school bus.

A new look

A Colorado City Wolves Football game wouldn't be complete without the halftime activities of the Wolf Marching Band. Our band has always looked sharp in their black jackets and pants trimmed with red, but next year our band members will proudly march onto the field in new uniforms. Our new versatile look consists of black pants with a white stripe. A red jacket, (with seven gold colored buttons coming down from each shoulder), that can be worn fully buttoned allowing the concert look. It can also be buttoned half-way, folding the white inside out and buttoning to the left buttons; also two white stripes can be used on the jacket, leading from the right shoulder across to under the left side near the waist. The two latter descriptions would be used for marching. What better to "top" it off with but a new hat, sporting a beautiful white plume. These are the first new uniforms that the Wolf Band has worn in ten years, when the then new Colorado Wolf Band Instructor Mr. Ship ordered them. I'm looking forward to seeing these new uniforms at our first game in September.

Special treat

was in the for a special treat as Mrs. Grant's first grade class from Kelley Elementary entertained everyone with songs they had learned in their music class. They were led by their music teacher June Kimmel. These children sang loud and proud also performing many hand motions in front of parents and listening senior citizens. Those singing were: Raymond Gonzales, Cheryl Sparks, Toni Joiner, Jamie Dockery, Victoria Williams, Andrew Spear, Alva Garcia, Meredith Stinson, Aaron Waldrip, Caase Ratliff, Ashton Anderson, Eric Hammonds; and back left to right, Mrs. Grant, Patty Rivera, Lorene Scott, Kari Lentz, Amanda Ornelas, Gloria Luevanos, Kristin Vines, Andy Crockett, Wayne Valles, Danny Parham, Nuno Selvera, and Mrs. Kimmel.

More Valentine parties

The ever busy First Baptist Singles enjoyed a special Valentine's party Feb. 10. The tables were colorfully decorated with pink and white crepe paper and red heart doilies. A nice dinner of ham with all the trimmings was followed by a fun game of Scattergories, then a short business meeting to elect the new Singles Council. The new council is made up of Kay Fite, Christine Cooley, Jeneal Chambers, and Kathy Wilson.

Concert

Calvary Baptist Church wishes to invite you to a special concert Sunday at 7 p.m. The public is invited to hear the award-winning gospel group The Pacesetters, which was named Group of the Year by the Southern Gospel Music Association of Texas. Group member Jeff Hensley was also nominated for Male Vocalist of the Year. The quartet, which is from Burleson, has five albums and seven tapes, some of which will be on sale at the concert.

Successful banquet

First Baptist Church had a great turn out as over 130 "sweethearts" attended the annual Valentine's Banquet Feb. 14. Everyone enjoyed a dinner of turkey and dressing with all the trimmings, catered by David Stubblefield. Following dinner, all in attendance played a game about "Mystery Couples." The winners received a free coupon to the Dairy Queen. The "Mystery Couples" were: Luke and Lucy Thomas, Randy and Connie Chambers and the Rev. Ted and Stephanie Spear. Game winners were Mark and Connie Waldrip and John and Debbie Vines. Lane King and Anna Staats serenaded the couple who had been married the shortest time: A.K. and Sue McCarley. The main program of the evening was brought by a trio from the First Baptist Church of Big Spring called "Reason." These women, Amy Story, Chris Ashley and Beverly Warren, sang up-beat songs including several tunes by the contemporary Christian group 2nd Chapter of Acts. Their message of the evening was to "Minister to people you come in contact with everyday."

Valentine's party

When it came to Valentine's parties, the Calvary Baptist Women were not to be left out. Upon arriving, each woman had one half of a heart with one half of a famous couple written on it. The object was to find your "mate" who was then to become your dinner partner. Beef stew and corn bread was the menu for the evening. Three rounds of "Valentine" Wheel of Fortune were followed by a game of Consequences. Sonja Girvin brought the special music, singing such songs as "Tell Me What Love Is," "His Name is Wonderful" and "I Am Loved." Winnie Roach followed with a devotional on love and marriage. As the evening came to a close, a bowl was passed around containing Hershey Kiss magnets and four real Kisses.

Woman begins again with Navy man

DEAR ABBY: Back in December of 1988, I participated in Operation Dear Abby when I sent a Christmas card along with a request for a pen pal to the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz. On Dec. 29, I received a wonderful letter from Machinist Mate First Class John McLeese of Decatur, Mich.

We corresponded for six months, then arranged to meet in June while he was on leave. It was love at first sight! We spent two wonderful days together and continued to keep in touch.

We were married on Jan. 3, 1990, in his hometown of Decatur, in the First Presbyterian Church where his own parents had been married.

I never expected to get a reply to my first letter, because I stated up front that I was in my 30s, divorced and had two young sons — so if it can happen to me, it can happen to anyone.

I had to write to share the wonderful news because without "Operation Dear Abby," we never would have met. God bless you, Abby. — CHARLENE McLEESE, FRESNO, CALIF.

DEAR CHARLENE: Your letter made my day. May you and John have a lifetime of happiness together.

DEAR ABBY: As I look at the faces of my crew members as I walk about the ship these days, I

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a freedom fighter assigned to the Marine Detachment aboard the USS Enterprise (CVN-65). Being away from home during the holidays is particularly difficult, especially for those servicemen who are married and have small children.

The thousands of letters received as a result of America Remembers/Operation Dear Abby V have been instrumental in reinforcing our pride in being Americans.

The generosity of your readers in extending their holiday wishes to thousands of servicemen abroad has filled all of us with an overflowing sense of love for our great country and the people back home.

I have never been prouder. Thank you from the bottom of my heart. — STEVEN McCOYNE, LCPL USMC see lots of smiles. One reason is unquestionably the 30,000 Christmas cards, letters and packages these young men received through America Remembers/Operation Dear Abby. This year's campaign was a smashing success.

I cannot thank you enough for the column that inspired this outpouring of support from Americans at home.

Please accept the enclosed ship's plaque as a small token of our appreciation for your continuing support of our Navy men and women worldwide — but especially those of us on the USS Forrestal. If you're ever in our area, the red carpet will be rolled out for you! Many thanks on behalf of my entire crew. — TIM THOMASSY, CAPTAIN, U.S. NAVY

DEAR CAPTAIN: The USS Forrestal plaque is on the wall of my office. It's beautiful, and I thank you.

Military

Marine Pfc. Albert Billalobos, son of Mary and stepson of Emilio Fernandez, Lamesa, has completed recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 13-week training cycle, Billalobos was taught the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

A 1989 graduate of Lamesa High School, he joined the Marine Corps in September.

Grady boys lose

MIDLAND — The Rankin Red Devils jumped on the Grady Wildcats early, and went on to take a 83-60 win in Class A bi-district action Thursday night at Chapparral Center.

Rankin bolted to an 21-12 lead after the first quarter, and stretched it to 43-20 at the half. Grady made a strong run in the third quarter, cutting the deficit to 58-45 going into the final period.

Grady coach Johnny Tubb said playoff jitters got his team.

"It was our first time in the playoff ever and our heads were in the air until halftime," said Tubb. "I figured we would be real tight, and we were. They pressed us, they were real quick.

"We made a real good run at them in the third quarter, but we expended so much energy doing it, that we didn't have anything left. Last year Rankin made the playoffs and got beat, they have everyone back. What it boiled down to was their playoff experience against our playoff inexperience."

Scott Glaze led Grady with 26 points. Lynn Garza was the other Wildcats in double figures with 12. Grady finishes the season with a 20-9 record.

Rankin, 20-2, will play the winner of the Fort Hancock-Fort Davis game tonight.

Bruce has problems

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Falcons linebacker Aundray Bruce, the first player taken in the 1988 NFL draft, has been named in two paternity suits claiming he is the father of children born five weeks apart last year.

The suits were filed Thursday in Fulton County Superior Court.

According to the suits, Bruce is the father of Tamirah Davis, born last June 1 in Atlanta to Varian Denise Davis, and Aclona Aundray Johnson, whose mother, Machille Johnson, gave birth July 5 in Jacksonville, Fla.

"The defendant has failed and refused to assist in the support of the child in any manner whatsoever," said both suits, filed separately by attorney William K. Travis. The suits described Bruce as the "natural father" of the baby girls.

Donald J. Ellis, Bruce's attorney, said he had not seen the lawsuits, "and I don't feel I'm at liberty to comment on the matter."

Baseball talks take positive turn

NEW YORK (AP) — Finally, a bright day for baseball.

"I'm comfortable with where we are," Commissioner Fay Vincent said after Thursday's labor talks took a positive turn. "I'd be more comfortable if we had an agreement."

There's still no settlement on Day 9 of the spring-training lockout and exhibition games are scheduled to start Thursday.

But, less than 24 hours after owners and players were ready to break off talks, they were back at the bargaining table and making progress.

The sides were set to meet again today after the union postponed a planned cross-country trip to brief players. And, for the first time, there was speculation the sides could soon reach an agreement.

"I think the (owners) made a very significant decision to solve this in the near term," Vincent said.

The sudden shift caught most everyone by surprise.

"I'm as confused about the way things have been changing as I'm sure you are," union chief Donald Fehr said. "They've come a substantial way; there's a long way to go."

"I didn't think that yesterday was the end of the world," management negotiator Chuck O'Connor said, "but I'm glad the atmosphere is perceived to be better."

It got that way because the owners dramatically altered their proposals after Wednesday's plan — a product of management hardliners trying to assert themselves — drew an angry response from the players.

The new proposal calls for the status quo with four changes:

— Minimum salary, currently

NEW YORK — St. Louis Cardinals pitcher Ricky Horton (left), Oakland Athletics pitcher Scott Sanderson (center) and Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Tim Lincecum discuss baseball's labor situation.

$68,000, would increase to $85,000 in 1990, $90,000 in 1991, $95,000 in 1992 and $100,000 in 1993.

— Contributions to the benefit plan, currently $39 million, would rise to $42.6 million the first year, $43.9 million the second year, $45.4 million the third year and $47.3 million the fourth year.

— Players could become free agents twice within five years if their teams do not offer salary arbitration by November.

— Draft-pick compensation for free agents would be eliminated if they aren't offered arbitration by their former clubs.

The new proposal, however, did not directly address the players' primary demand: lowering from three years to two the eligibility period for salary arbitration.

"I, for one, am not doing cartwheels over this proposal," said

Baltimore pitcher Jeff Ballard, a two-year veteran. "It doesn't address the problems of zero-to-three players."

Fehr, though, was cautiously optimistic.

"It's a step in the right direction," Fehr said. "What we have to do tonight is weigh the circumstances and see if we can come back with a response tomorrow."

The sides have met 27 times, but never on a Saturday or Sunday. Vincent, however, said he is prepared for sessions throughout the weekend.

Fehr said the talks will break by Monday night, when he is scheduled to leave for a union executive board meeting in Phoenix the following day.

Even if there is a quick fix, there is little chance the exhibition season could start on time. Four games are scheduled Thursday, including the Oakland-San Francisco World Series rematch to benefit earthquake victims.

"I don't know the answer to that. You need players and pitchers," Vincent said. "Will there be players? I suppose. It depends on what they've been doing."

No official announcements have been made that the opening games have been canceled. But plans already are in place in Florida and Arizona to refund tickets and make other provision in case the games are not played.

Tom Reich, an agent who represents several dozen players, said he thought a settlement was near.

"I'm far more optimistic than what's appeared in the public eye over the last 48 hours," Reich said. "I have been advising my players to be prepared to fly to camps."

Big names withdraw from Mobil Indoor Championship

NEW YORK (AP) — What would happen if they held a track meet and no one came?

That won't quite be the case tonight at Madison Square Garden, site of the Mobil Indoor Championships. But there were a large number of late scratches, reducing some of the potentially outstanding fields to mediocrity. Among the absentees are athletes from two of the strongest club teams, the Santa Monica Track Club, coached by Joe Douglas, and World Class Athletes, coached by Bob Kersee.

Even Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Kersee's wife, who does not compete for World Class, withdrew from the 55-meter high hurdles.

Neither of the coaches was immediately available for comment.

In addition to Joyner-Kersey, the 1988 Olympic gold medalist in the long jump and heptathlon, other notable withdrawals included Evelyn Ashford, six-time national champion in the 55-meter dash; Greg Foster, two-time outdoor world champion in the men's 110-meter hurdles; Mike Conley, world indoor record-holder in the triple jump and a four-time national champion, and Leroy Burrell, national outdoor champion in the men's 100-meter dash.

Also, Johnny Gray, American outdoor record-holder at 800 meters; Joe Dial, American outdoor record-holder in the pole vault; women's sprinters Carlette Guidry and Gail Devers-Roberts; high jumper Jimmy Howard; pole vaulter Mike Tully; 800-meter runners Ocky Clark and John Marshall; triple jumper Charlie Simpkins; sprinter Floyd Heard, and women's middle-distance runner Leann Warren.

Despite the defections, Ollan Cassell, executive director of The Athletics Congress, national governing body for track and field, termed the sport in good shape.

"I think this has been a positive indoor season," Cassell said earlier this week. "There's been good competition and some world records have been set."

"I don't think any meets on the (Grand Prix) schedule are in trouble of not continuing next year."

Those not competing in this meet aren't eligible for triangular meets next month among the United States, Japan and the Soviet Union at Yokohama, Japan, and the U.S., Soviet Union and Britain at Cosford, England.

Such a rash of withdrawals would be more significant if they occur during the National Outdoor Championships at Cerritos, Calif., in June. In that case, the athletes would be ineligible for the Goodwill Games at Seattle in July, a meet expected to be the best in the United States this year.

In spite of the numerous defections, there still are some intriguing matchups.

The field in the men's 55-meter high hurdles includes Roger Kingdom, Renaldo Nehemiah, Tomie Campbell, Arthur Blake, Jack Pierce and Tony Dees.

The women's 3,000 meters pits

Americans Vicki Huber, PattiSue Plumer and Lynn Jennings against Romanians Vioreca Ghican and Margareta Keszeg.

The men's mile features Irishmen Eamonn Coghlan and Marcus O'Sullivan, along with American Steve Scott. The men's high jump matches Romanian Soren Matei against Hollis Con-

Michael Who leader in LA Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the moment, he's "Michael Who?"

If he wins the Los Angeles Open, he may be known as "Bordeaux" Michael Allen.

Not as smooth a nickname as that of the late "Champagne" Tony Lema, perhaps, but, like Lema before him, Allen would like nothing more than to provide some fine wine in the press tent to celebrate a PGA victory.

Following an 8-under-par 63 on Thursday that gave him the first-round lead in the LA Open, tour rookie Allen recalled how Bordeaux 1986 — the tournament, not the wine — helped keep him in golf.

After a few years of trying in vain to qualify for the PGA Tour, he was considering giving up on a golf career.

But, as he recalled, "I won at

New course gives several headaches

HONOLULU (AP) — The new home of the Hawaiian Ladies Open will be a fine golf course when it grows up, say first-round leaders Cathy Gerring, Elaine Crosby and Patty Sheehan.

At a month old, however, the

LPGA

6,206-yard Ko Olina Golf Club course was the scene of more than a few headaches in Thursday's opening round of the 54-hole tournament.

Gerring, Crosby and Sheehan were the steadiest performers on a day that saw leaders rise and fall like tides on Oahu Island's west coast. Each shot 3-under-par 69s.

Some blamed the firm, somewhat bare greens — which Gerring likened to concrete — for the roller-coaster performances. Others said they were unfamiliar with the layout. The tournament moved this year from the Turtle Bay Resort on Oahu's north shore.

"It's a great layout," said Crosby, who had a bogey-free round that included an eagle and birdie. "You just have to be patient on the greens."

"It's still got a lot of maturing to do," said Sheehan, who had five birdies against two bogeys. "There are still muddy spots where they drive machinery. There's not a lot of grass on the greens. They're not holding at all."

"I don't know the golf course very well," said Gerring, who had one practice round before the tournament. "I don't know the safe areas. The sand in the bunkers is the most difficult I've ever seen."

"We're going to get all the newness — the hard greens and too much sand in the bunkers," Gerring said.

Gerring, Taiwan's Mei-Chi Cheng and Chihro Nakajima of Japan all reached 4-under, only to drop back. Cheng finished at 1-under 71 and Nakajima fell to even-par 72.

Defending tournament champion Sherri Turner had five bogeys, five birdies and an eagle to finish at 70.

Payton goes wild; OSU nips USC

By The Associated Press
The top of Oregon State's career and single-game scoring lists are now Payton's Place.

Senior guard Gary Payton scored 58 points Thursday night, breaking game and career records, as the No. 17 Beavers defeated Southern Cal 98-94 in overtime.

"Everybody was struggling and coach (Jim Anderson) decided to give me the ball more," said Payton, who made 22 of 38 shots. "I was fortunate I was on tonight. I didn't mean to do all that. It just happened. Right now we're just trying to win the Pac-10 title."

Elsewhere, Lionel Simmons scored 27 points to pass the 3,000 mark and move into fourth place on the NCAA career list as No. 14 La Salle won its 16th straight game, 100-60 over Manhattan.

In other games, it was No. 4 Nevada-Las Vegas 99, Cal-Irvine 77, Virginia 73, No. 8 Georgia Tech 71, No. 18 Minnesota 68, Wisconsin 67, No. 19 Xavier of Ohio 74, Detroit 62 and No. 24 New Mexico State 103, Utah State 84.

Oregon State (20-4, 13-2 Pac-10) trailed by 22 points in the first half but Payton provided the offensive punch as the Beavers stormed back in the second half. He scored Oregon State's first eight points in overtime and also had six rebounds and four steals.

"Be it Walton, Jabbar or whoever you want to name, and particularly when you look at Gary's size (6-foot-4), it was just phenomenal," said USC coach George Raveling.

Payton has 2,080 career points, surpassing the 2,035 that Steve Johnson scored from 1977 to 1981. Payton's 58 was the second-highest total in Pac-10 history, surpassed only by the 61 scored by UCLA's Lew Alcindor against Washington State in 1967.

Payton broke the school single-game mark of 48 points by Mel Counts on Dec. 26, 1963, against Portland.

No. 4 UNLV 99, Cal-Irvine 77. Anderson Hunt scored 25 points, Larry Johnson 23 and David Butler 20 to lead the Runnin' Rebels to their ninth straight victory. UNLV (23-4, 14-1 Big West) saw a 49-34 halftime lead shrink to 60-52 with 13:33 remaining. But Cal-Irvine got no closer and the Rebels pulled away to lead by 23.

"It was so hard getting the guys up for this game," UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "We tried. I thought we got them serious about the game this afternoon, but we CORVALLIS, Ore. — University of Southern California basketball coach Raveling runs to hug Oregon State University star Gary Payton at mid-court after Payton scored 58 points, including 40 in the second half, to beat the Trojans 98-94 in overtime.

"In all the years I have been in the game as a spectator and a coach, tonight was probably the most agonizing time for me that I can ever remember because it was a time when I would have much rather been a spectator than a coach, and then I really could have enjoyed what I think was one of the greatest one-man performances in the history of college basketball," — USC coach George Raveling.

PGA Tour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scores and relation to par Thursday after the first round of the $900,000 Nissan Los Angeles Open played on the 6,964-yard, par-35-36-71 Riviera Country Club course (a-amateur):

Mike Allen	30-33-65-4
Rocco Mediate	34-31-65-4

should not have let them score with one second left. That was too easy."

Stith led Virginia with 19 points, Kenny Turner had 17 and Crotty 14. Oliver had 23 and freshman Kenny Anderson 21 for the Yellow Jackets, whose leading scorer, Dennis Scott, made only three of 16 shots and finished with 11 points.

No. 14 La Salle 100, Manhattan 60. Simmons ended the game's only suspense with 12:44 remaining in the first half, hitting the front end of a two-shot foul to become the fifth Division I player to score 3,000 points.

Simmons, who has a career total of 3,024 points, passed Hersey Hawkins' 3,008 with his last basket of the first half, a 3-pointer with 1:51 remaining to cap a 9-1 burst and give La Salle (24-1, 14-0 Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference) a 44-28 lead.

"I've never been so nervous in my life. My legs were shaking at the start of the game," Simmons said.

"I told the kids, years from now we'll be able to say we played with one of the greatest players in the history of the game," Coach Speedy Morris said.

Next on the list for Simmons is Texas Southern's Harry Kelly, who scored 3,066 points from 1979-83.

However, it wasn't Simmons but Doug Overton who led the Explorers with a career-high 30 points.

No. 18 Minnesota 68, Wisconsin 67

Jim Shikenjanski scored Minnesota's last five points, including three on free throws in the final 27 seconds. Wisconsin trailed 68-63 but freshman Larry Hisle Jr. made a 3-point basket with 12 seconds left and then hit a free throw with no time remaining to pull the Badgers within one point. But Hisle, who scored 12 points, missed a second free throw that would have sent the game into overtime.

Richard Coffey had 14 points and a season-high 15 rebounds for Minnesota (18-6, 9-5 Big Ten). Willie Burton led Minnesota with 17 points and Willie Simms had 21 for Wisconsin. The Badgers' leading scorer, Danny Jones, was held to four.

No. 19 Xavier, Ohio 74, Detroit 62

Tyrone Hill scored 23 points and Xavier held Detroit scoreless for nearly 10 minutes down the stretch while reeling off 18 consecutive points. Derek Strong added 18 points for Xavier (22-2, 11-1), which won its 10th straight.

Bordeaux, then played well in a tournament in Italy, made about $50,000 in a month.

"And," he added with a smile, "I also got 25 cases of wine for winning at Bordeaux."

Reminded that Lema used to bring champagne into the press tent to celebrate his victories, Allen said, "If I win here, I promise to bring in some of the wine."

Allen's opening round at Riviera Country Club was good for a two-shot lead over Peter Jacobsen and Rocco Mediate. Pat Fitzsimons, who won the 1975 LA Open for his only Tour victory, was three shots

HONEST, MORE FOLKS FEEL THAT NEWSPAPER IS THE MOST BELIEVEABLE MEDIUM

We can't lie.
A recent study showed that more people feel newspaper is the most believable medium.
Not television.
Not radio.
Not magazines.

But why?

It's probably because we know that a newspaper lays it all out in black & white.

Right in front of you.
The places, the people, and the prices.

The offers, the promises and the claims.

It's all there to read, think about, and keep. And that goes for the advertisements, too.

When people turn to their paper, they turn there with interest. Which means that's where your advertising message needs to be.

With all the choices available, it's difficult deciding how best to advertise your business.

But everything becomes a little simpler when you remember one rule.

YOU GOTTA BE IN THE PAPER.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Olympic gymnast Nadia Comaneci says she did not live "the good life" in Romania, and denies she was the mistress of Nicu Ceausescu, son of the executed dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

Comaneci, who won glory for her country when she scored perfect 10s in the Montreal Olympics in 1976, also said in the March issue of Life magazine that her defection from Romania may have helped start the revolution there.

She said her escape to the West in November hit her homeland "like a bomb. A bomb for the government. Because what will the people think? That even Nadia leaves Romania."

"They thought I had the good life, but I didn't. I lived just like the others."

NADIA COMANECI

About a month after Comaneci left, Romania's communist government was overthrown and the elder Ceausescu was executed.

DENVER (AP) — Eugene Fodor Jr., the gifted, flamboyant violinist arrested last July for possessing cocaine and heroin, says his image as the "cowboy violinist" kept him from receiving critical international acclaim.

"I think what went wrong was the advice I got from my first manager and the insistence of the PR firm he hired that they promote this image of me as an outdoorsman." Fodor said during a recent interview. "I mean, sure I was from the West, but they even said I looked like Mick Jagger."

Fodor, 39, said he experimented with drugs over the years and had started using cocaine heavily before he was arrested last July at a motel on Martha's Vineyard, a resort island south of Cape Cod in Massachusetts. He was charged with breaking and entering and possession of cocaine, heroin and a hypodermic needle.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor James Farentino, all-star Eddie Murray, actor Edward James Olmos, singer Renata Scott.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spiritual inspiration comes as you rest or meditate today. Resist the urge to gamble or buy something you cannot afford. Your social life accelerates as your popularity grows. Repay a lovely invitation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Family relationships are more rewarding than ever. A sense of humor makes you popular with a member of the opposite sex. You may want to try out a new recipe on company tonight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Changes work in your favor, especially those that will affect your family. Put on your thinking cap and find new ways to raise funds. Travel gives you an opportunity to solve several problems.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your personal magnetism helps you stay out in front of the crowd. An unexpected reunion with an old school chum brightens your weekend. Be alert to the tactics of a romantic rival.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Bring new ideas to the attention of higher-ups, but do not expect immediate action. A spontaneous invitation promises to be great fun. Do not pass your responsibilities off onto other busy people.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An "impossible" dream may be close to becoming reality. Certainly, you should keep on trying. A conversation with an old friend proves enlightening. A bit of mystery fuels romance to new heights.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid discussing touchy subjects with parents who are under pressure today. Regret keeps you from renewing a friendship. Summon up your courage and make that telephone call!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some gossip concerning a loved one is not worth thinking about. Tension lessens when a parent-child conflict is resolved. Each needs the other's support. Accept your boss's view as gospel now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It is up to you to find ways to motivate a child. Financial backing is available from more than one source. It may be hard to concentrate if your neighbors want to party.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take your time when making an important decision. Good luck comes through a loved one. An odd situation arises. Investigate. It could provide new financial solutions. Romance keeps you guessing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Map out a daily routine and stick to it. Give top priority to family projects and financial security. Romantic partner proves more reliable than in the immediate past. You review a recent decision.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A friend could make a confession that embarrasses you. Keep your nose to the grindstone at work. One of the most imaginative people in the world is interested in you. Be receptive.
