Student killed

STANTON — A 26-year-old Odessa College student was killed Monday in a car accident about 2 miles west of here on Interstate 20.

Theresa Gayle Jordon, of 1610 W. 16th in Odessa, was pronounced dead at the scene by Martin County Justice of the Peace F.E. Kennedy, said Corporal Wade Turner of the Texas Highway Patrol in Stanton.

Jordon was driving westbound in a 1987 red GMC pickup when she apparently lost control of it around 10:30 p.m. and was ejected from the vehicle, said Turner who investigated the incident. No other vehicles were involved in the incident.

"For some unknown reasons she ran off the road," he said. "It killed her. She was not wearing a seatbelt and it rolled over. She was trapped underneath."

Witnesses said Jordon first swerved onto the median, then went back on the pavement and regained control, he said. She then lost control a second time and the truck rolled over.

Turner said the truck landed upright but Jordon was trapped underneath the cab. He added, "Somewhere in the process it rolled over her."

Turner said that Jordon has no children and was not married. Her father Preston Jordon was notified of her death.

Mayor recall petition certified

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — Unless he resigns in the next five days, Mayor Max Green will face a recall election.

In a news conference this morning at city hall, city officials announced that a recall election petition turned in Thursday has been declared valid. Assistant City Secretary Lana East, in a prepared statement, said the city secretary's office has certified that the petition has the signatures of at least 894 registered voters living within the city limits.

City Manager Hal Boyd said he already had informed Green that the petition would be declared valid and the mayor had no comment.

"The mayor has asked me to advise you that he has no comments at this time," Boyd told members of the media.

The mayor has until Monday to decide whether he will resign, Boyd said. He had no comment on whether Green planned to follow through with lawsuits to stop the election that have been considered.

If Green does not resign, then the City Council must call a special election not less than 10 days, but no more than 20 days, after the waiting period, Boyd said. The council will have to review election policies to decide whether there will be absentee voting, Boyd said, as well as how the election will be handled and when it will be scheduled.

A simple majority can vote to retain or remove Green from office, according to city officials. If Green is voted out of office, the council must appoint someone to serve the remainder of his term, which expires in May 1992.

Boyd said he could not comment on exactly how many signatures on the petition had been declared valid. The dozen petitioners needed to gather at least 894 signatures, which was the mandated 35 percent of the number of voters going to the polls in the last regular election.

Councilwoman Gail Earls, who carried pages of the petition, said she learned only minutes before

Recall leader relieved petition drive is over

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — The woman who initiated the recall election effort aimed at removing Mayor Max Green from office is relieved that her part is over.

"My political career has just been ended," said Carie Dunning, who began the petition drive in mid-January.

City officials announced this morning that the recall election petition they received on Thursday has been declared valid. Unless Green resigns within the next five days, a recall election will be held no less than 10 days and not more than 20 days after Monday, March 5.

Dunning said she is relieved that her part is over and the issue now rests in the hands of the voters. The former school teacher, who has three small children, said she does not plan to actively campaign against Green. During the petition drive, she said, individuals and businesses said they would take up the banner.

"They have contacted me to let me know that if we could get it on an election they would take it from there," she said.

Dunning said it's now up to the voters to learn all the facts before they decide whether to keep or reject the mayor.

"I think people misunderstand what the mayor's role is in our form of city government," Dunning said. Big Spring's mayor, she said, should perform public relations duties for the city, not manage it.

"I think Mr. Green has lost total credibility at this point where this is concerned," she said. The mayor has been a divisive force in the council, she said, by usurping some of the city manager's responsibilities and

State case: Gray killed for money

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — The state plans to show, in a 32nd District Court trial that began Monday, that Travis Dale Gray, 31, planned and committed the murder of his wife Tammy Lynn to collect up to $180,000 in insurance money.

At the time of the 27-year-old's death, on June 23, 1988, which a pathologist attributed to strangulation and drowning, Travis Dale Gray of Big Spring was also involved in a relationship with a woman to whom he is now married, said Assistant District Attorney Gary Harger.

A third motive for Travis Dale Gray to kill his wife was his fear of losing custody of their two children, said Harger, as he addressed the 12-member jury that was empaneled Monday morning. The trial is expected to last all week.

A divorce suit filed by Tammy was pending at the time of her death, he said. Their children are currently in Travis Dale Gray's custody.

Travis Dale Gray, who pleaded innocent Monday, said his wife's death was an accident. He had reportedly told authorities in the past that he and Tammy were swimming in Lake Colorado City in the early morning hours when she began having difficulty in the water.

He said he pulled her out of the lake and drove her to Mitchell County Hospital, where efforts to revive her failed. She arrived at the hospital at 4:05 a.m. and was pronounced dead at 4:38 a.m., according to hospital records.

Harger told the jury that testimony will reflect that Travis Dale held Tammy's head under the water until she drowned.

"This trial is about an illusion," he said. "An illusion that Tammy Gray's death was an accident."

He said testimony from witnesses will also show that Travis Dale at one time checked to see if an insurance policy could be collected in the event of an accidental drowning. "Tammy's death had to look like an accident," Harger said.

Testimony heard from two witnesses Monday, including a last-minute witness, revolved around whether Tammy Lynn was alive upon arrival at the hospital.

Travis Dale's attorney, Michael McLeish of Odessa, told the Big

Electoral upset prompts meeting

By RICHARD HERZFELDER
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Supporters of his victorious rival cheered President Daniel Ortega at length as he entered the home of Violeta Barrios de Chamorro and embraced her, offering his help in national reconciliation.

"There are neither winners nor losers here, Daniel," Mrs. Chamorro told the man she defeated in a stunning electoral upset the previous day.

The short congratulatory visit was another statesmanlike gesture from the 44-year-old revolutionary leader of this country torn by civil war and partisan bitterness.

Earlier Monday, Ortega conceded defeat in an eloquent, impassioned television speech.

He said his Sandinistas would honor the voters' wishes and, after 10 years of one-party rule, surrender power to the fractious 6-month-old United Nationalist Opposition (UNO) alliance Mrs. Chamorro led to victory.

When Ortega visited Mrs. Chamorro accompanied by key international observers including former President Jimmy Carter, she greeted him warmly.

Citizens up in arms over proposed hike

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Citizens attending the City Council's workshop on Monday were up in arms over the council's proposal to hike garbage rates 40 percent in an ordinance prepared for a second reading tonight at the council meeting.

The council and Public Works Director Tom Decell defended the rate increase, saying the extra funds are necessary to pay a newly mandated state garbage tax, maintain the landfill, pay for the landfill baler bought in 1984, upkeep the garbage trucks and equipment, and set aside the as yet unspecified amount needed to close the landfill in 30 years. The landfill closure funds are required by the Environmental Protection Agency, the Texas Water Commission and other regulatory agencies.

The ordinance requires the additional revenue to be deposited into restricted accounts. It mandates a council review of the allocations of funds into the accounts after five years.

The ordinance, if approved, will raise a household's rate from $5 a month to $7 a month, an increase of $24 a year.

Businesses will be harder hit. A company with 4-cubic yard dumpsters picked up twice a week faces a $22 a month increase on each dumpster with the proposed ordinance. Tipping fees at the landfill will be increased 40 percent as well.

The ordinance will go into effect the first week of March with council approval.

Jack Watkins, a former council member and longtime council watchdog, was the most vocal opponent to the ordinance. He claims it makes no provision for the interest the restricted accounts will accrue and he doubts that any of the in-

Grackles chase

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas finally succeeded in chasing cackling grackles from the campus, but they ruffled some gubernatorial feathers in the process.

University officials had attempted for five years to chase away the black-winged birds that taunted students with their cackling and soiled sidewalks with their plentiful droppings.

Groundskeepers, armed with exploding Roman candle-type devices, began a pyrotechnic assault this month on the giant flock of them.

It took four nights straight of an all-out artillery assault, but man succeeded in shooing the feathered invaders off-campus.

The birds headed south, straight for the Governor's Mansion.

They converged on the lawn in one big, mad squawking flock, as if demanding an audience with Gov. Bill Clements himself.

Fortunately, the governor was not at home.

The staff immediately knew where the birds came from, and called university officials, Mansion Administrator Anne DeBois said.

Happy hour

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission voted Monday to reject a ban on "happy hours" and other strict rules proposed for bars, which were sought by a coalition of parents and citizen action groups.

The commission unanimously agreed with its staff recommendation against the proposals, but said it would conduct further study to see if some of the proposed measures could be implemented.

TABC staff member W. S. MacBeth said, "Our goal is to safeguard the public without causing harm to the honest businessman."

Commission member Morris Atlas said the regulatory body would continue looking into possible restrictions on happy hours.

"It's been a problem for some time," Silas said. "That is one particular area that deserves significant concern."

Commission member Allan Shivers Jr. said he was sympathetic to the concerns raised by the Texans for Responsible Alcoholic Consumption about the effects of alcohol on young people, but he said the powerful liquor industry had nothing to do with the board's decision.

Members of the TRAC said they were disappointed by the commission's decision, but would continue to press for beefed-up restrictions, which they said would decrease the death toll.

Legislators agree schools need money

DALLAS (AP) — A majority of Texas legislators polled by a Dallas newspaper say higher state taxes will be required to balance funding between wealthy and poor school districts.

The Legislature began its special session today to consider public school finance and judicial selection reform. The special session was called by Gov. Bill Clements after the courts overturned both the school finance system and judicial election system in nine urban counties.

The session, expected to run the full 30 days it can last, may also see discussion of a state lottery, reduction in the state's permutual tax, ethics and campaign finance reform and of the state's $900 million budget deficit.

The Dallas Morning News sent surveys to all 150 House members and 30 senators. A total of 117 legislators, or 64 percent, responded to the questionnaire.

The findings of the survey include:

— More than 74 percent of the legislators polled said state education aid should be increased in response to the Texas Supreme Court's ruling that the school finance system is unfair to poor school districts. Legislators face a May 1 deadline set by the Supreme Court for revising the school finance system.

— More than 57 percent said they believe a state tax increase will be needed to better the school finance system.

— Eighty percent said that if education aid is boosted, it should be accompanied by new state requirements and programs aimed at improving student achievement.

— Seventy-two percent said the state should offer new incentives to encourage small school districts to consolidate.

— Opinions were divided about how to revamp the judicial selection process. But, more than 76 percent of legislators surveyed were opposed to a merit selection plan that has been endorsed by Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

— Fifty-four percent believe any changes in judicial selection should include the appellate courts of the state as well as the district courts.

Conservation groups urge Congress to buy land for wildlife around state

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of national conservation groups is urging Congress to buy 35,014 acres of vulnerable wilderness lands around Texas to provide habitat for endangered species like the whooping crane and Attwater's prairie chicken.

The coalition of 20 groups said today it would cost $32.63 million to fund the land acquisitions in Texas next year.

Lands targeted for purchase in Texas are in or near the Angelina and Sam Houston National Forests, the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, the Attwater Prairie Chicken National Wildlife Refuge, the Guadalupe Mountains National Park, and the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge.

"Every day there is less open space left in America, and unless we act quickly many of the natural treasures that our report recommends for purchase will be gobbled up by subdividers and other speculators," said Wilderness Society President George T. Frampton Jr.

The recommended purchases are included in a report marking the 25th anniversary of the Land and Water Conservation Fund. The document identified lands in 46 states, the District of Columbia, and four territories that the 20 national conservation groups said should be purchased in fiscal 1991, generally because they face development threats and there is a willing seller.

The money would come from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, the government's primary source of money for the purchase of natural and recreational areas.

Begun in 1965, the fund relies mostly on revenues from offshore oil drilling. Up to $900 million a year may be appropriated from the fund, yet over the past 10 years appropriations have averaged just $230 million, according to the Wilderness Society.

Under the groups' proposal, six separate sites in Texas would be targeted:

— 1,785 acres at a cost of $1.8 million for the Angelina National Forest. The Wilderness Society said timber harvesting in the region threatens to impair the "backcountry experience" enjoyed by wilderness visitors. Part of the land fronts the Neches River and contains the unprotected half of Bouton Lake, used for swimming, rafting and camping.

— 800 acres at a cost of $2 million for the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge. The land is on the Lamar Peninsula about 30 miles south of Victoria and would be an addition to Aransas, winter home of the endangered whooping crane, whose population is increasing along with the need for more habitat, the Wilderness Society said.

— 5,676 acres at a cost of $6.7 million for the Attwater Prairie

Chicken National Wildlife Refuge. Located near Victoria, the land would provide a second refuge to protect the only population of the endangered Attwater's prairie chicken. The Wilderness Society said recent statistical analysis indicates that Attwater's prairie chicken will be extinct by the year 2003 if current trends are not reversed.

— 10,123 acres at a cost of $2 million for the Guadalupe Mountains National Park, which the Wilderness Society said is being threatened by the use of off-road recreational vehicles.

— 16,500 acres at a cost of $20 million for the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge, home to the endangered ocelot, jaguarundi, bald eagle and peregrine falcon. The Wilderness Society said at least 349 species of birds and 175 other vertebrate species rely on these habitats, yet over 90 percent of original brushlands have been cleared for residential and agricultural uses.

— 130 acres at a cost of $130,000 for the Sam Houston National Forest. The tract includes 100-year-old hardwoods, twayblade and lady's-tress orchids, and dozens of other wildflowers and plant species.

University officials are puzzled by box of twigs

HOUSTON (AP) — A box of moss, twigs and leaves found in a room where the international economic summit's opening ceremony will be held this summer has Rice University officials stumped.

The arrangement is prominently displayed in the Founder's Room. But nobody seems to know where it came from.

"If it's leftovers from some table arrangement and everybody is afraid to throw it out because they don't know exactly what it is, that's kind of funny to me," said university spokesman Bill Noblitt.

"It's kind of weird. Here's this grass sitting up in there and everybody thinks it may be something important, so they aren't going to dump it."

The stuff may be remnants of a relatively insignificant arrangement, according to a report about the room's contents.

But the report, prepared by school officials for Rice President George Rupp, also suggests that the contents may have some symbolic meaning and were transferred into the coffer, which was purchased when the room was renovated in the 1970s.

It indirectly quotes Malcolm Lovett Sr., son of Rice's first president, Edgar Odell Lovett, as saying it could be the remnants from a farm acquired around the opening of Rice Institute in 1912.

Stormie regaining strength

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Doctors say 12-year-old Stormie Jones, the world's first heart-liver transplant recipient, is regaining her strength quickly after undergoing a second liver transplant.

Stormie remained in serious condition early today at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh.

She was moved from the hospital's intensive care unit to a regular room after being upgraded from critical but stable condition to serious condition Monday afternoon.

Stormie, who lives in the Fort Worth, Texas, suburb of White Settlement, received her second liver transplant Feb. 20 in a 10-hour operation. She returned to the operating room the next day, when doctors operated for nine hours to halt internal bleeding.

Stormie's first transplant, in 1984 at Children's, was needed to control effects of a rare disease that left her cholesterol levels 10 times greater than normal. The second operation resulted from permanent liver damage caused by hepatitis.

Despite her liver problems, Stormie's donor heart has remained healthy, doctors said.

Court leaves gay soldier ban intact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday left intact the U.S. military's general ban on homosexuals serving in the Army and Navy.

The court, without comment, rejected appeals by a woman denied re-enlistment in the Army Reserve in Wisconsin because she is a lesbian and a California man released from Navy active duty because he is gay.

The action today was not a ruling on the legality of the military ban but simply a summary rejection of the appeals. The justices did not preclude the possibility that in some future case they will agree to review the policy toward homosexuals.

A new policy says, "Homosexuality is incompatible with military service," and bars "persons who engage in homosexual conduct or who by their statements demonstrate a propensity to engage in homosexual conduct."

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last August upheld the revised policy.

The cases are Woodward vs. U.S., 89-344, and Ben-Shalom vs. Marsh, 89-876.

NASA plans sixth launch attempt

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA set its sights on a sixth attempt early Wednesday to launch space shuttle Atlantis on a secret military mission, but the weather forecast still looked dim.

Air Force forecasters said there was only a 40 percent chance the weather would allow liftoff at 12:45 a.m. High winds and clouds are expected to move into the launch area, and the outlook for Thursday is about the same.

The five delays in as many days have so far cost NASA $2.75 million in fuel, labor and materials.

Atlantis' mission is classified, but sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said the shuttle is on a 4½-day mission to put in orbit a $500 million satellite capable of taking detailed photos and listening in on electronic communications over much of the world.

The latest postponement came early Monday. NASA kept the spacecraft and crew poised for favorable conditions, but good weather never developed, and the space agency decided to hold off for 48 hours before trying again.

Revelers celebrate Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Revelers thronged the French Quarter today for Mardi Gras, the bawdy, boozy blowout of parades, street parties and carousing before the start of Lent.

Non-stop partying began over the weekend with the arrival of thousands of visitors for the first of dozens of parades throughout metropolitan New Orleans.

A parade club called Zulu and its painted coconut giveaways were to lead 15 organizations planning to parade all day uptown and downtown. Comus, New Orleans' oldest krewe, or parade club, was to bring up the rear.

Deputy Police Chief Arnesta Taylor said the crowd appeared bigger this year than the 24 other Carnival seasons he has seen. He said more than 1 million locals and tourists were expected for the daylong partying.

Rex, the masked king of Carnival who leads one of Mardi Gras' biggest and richest parades, kicked off celebrations Monday night, sailing into the city on the Mississippi aboard the Eagle, a Coast Guard tall ship.

Mild temperatures and sunny skies helped loosen numerous "tourist participation" flesh shows along the narrow streets of the French Quarter, where police officers' tolerance level rises markedly during Carnival.

One-fourth young black males guilty of crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "get tough" approach is failing to deter criminal activity by young black males, 23 percent of whom are behind bars or on probation or parole, a non-profit group says.

"We now risk the possibility of writing off an entire generation of black men from leading productive lives," said Marc Mauer, assistant director of The Sentencing Project, which promotes alternative punishments and sentencing reform.

In a report issued Monday, the group said 609,690 black men age 20 through 29 — nearly one in every four — were in prison or jail or on probation or parole in mid-1989.

In contrast, only 436,000 black men in the same age group were enrolled in college in 1986, the latest year for which figures were available.

"These are shocking, disturbing numbers," said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee.

Conyers said he would hold hearings but first wanted the General Accounting Office, a congressional investigative agency, to conduct a separate investigation.

The past decade was "an experiment in the get-tough approach to crime," as the federal and state governments built more prisons, imposed mandatory sentences and embraced capital punishment, the report said.

"We will never build enough cells to house everyone that can be brought into the prisons," Conyers said. "Also, there's no showing that increased incarceration has any deterrent effect whatsoever."

For white men in the 20 to 29 age group, 1,054,506, or 6.2 percent, were incarcerated or on probation or parole. A total of 238,255 Hispanic males, or 10.4 percent, were in the criminal justice system.

Although fewer young women than men were in the system, there were racial disparities: 164,249 whites, or 1 percent; 78,417 blacks, or 2.7 percent; and 37,093 Hispanics, or 1.8 percent.

Stu Smith, a spokesman for the Justice Department, said the report's numbers were accurate but declined further comment.

The report blames social ills, including high unemployment rates, for the disproportionate number of black men in the prison system.

Poland, Israel resume relations

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland and Israel resumed full diplomatic ties today after a 23-year break, making this country once a vibrant center of Jewish life the third Warsaw Pact nation to resume relations with Israel in the past year.

Relations were sealed with the signing of a protocol by Foreign Ministers Moshe Arens of Israel and Krzysztof Skubiszewski of Poland.

Poland, like the entire Soviet bloc except Romania, followed Moscow's lead and broke with Israel in 1967 to support the Arab side in the Middle East War. It joins Hungary and Czechoslovakia in renewing ties with the Jewish state.

Poland has had low-level ties with Israel since 1987 and the Solidarity-led government that came to power in August is hoping the restoration of a formal embassy will lead to closer economic and cultural cooperation.

Poland's Jewish community was 3.5 million strong before World War II, the Holocaust and massive emigration including a wave prompted by a 1968 purge. Today, it numbers just 10,000.

From 350,000 to 500,000 Israelis were born in Poland, including the first Israeli prime minister, David Ben-Gurion, and the present one, Yitzhak Shamir.

Mexico City expands pollution fight

MEXICO CITY (AP) — After getting residents to cut back on driving, officials of this smog-choked metropolis are expanding anti-pollution measures to move steel works out of town and encourage buses and trucks to use propane.

In addition, all vehicles will now be required to submit to emissions inspections.

The new measures Mayor Manuel Camacho Solis announced Monday step up the battle to cut some of the 4.8 million tons of pollutants spewed every year into the air breathed by the capital's 18 million residents.

"We are determined, and we have the overwhelming support of an equally determined citizenry, to go ahead and make next winter even less contaminated than this winter was," the mayor told a news conference.

An experimental program that started Nov. 20 — its main feature being to force people not to drive one day a week — had been scheduled to end Wednesday but was extended for at least two months.

The period corresponded to the winter season's thermal inversions, when cold air traps huge quantities of toxic gases during the early hours of the morning in the Valley of Mexico.

Second big storm hits Europe

LONDON (AP) — Europe's second big storm of the year raged on with high winds today after leaving roads and railways blocked, power out and homes flooded in seven countries. Police said 38 people were killed.

For a second day, shipping in the English Channel and the Irish Sea was badly disrupted by the strong winds.

The Meteorological Office reported winds of more than 120 mph over Belfast on Monday, the highest ever recorded in Northern Ireland. Wind speeds neared or topped 100 mph in northern England and southern Scotland, the office said.

Fourteen deaths were reported in Britain, eight in France, seven in West Germany, five in Belgium, two in East Germany and one each in Ireland and the Netherlands.

Even tax accountants can't get correct answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ask 50 tax experts to calculate the federal taxes of a make-believe family and you'll get 50 different answers — most of them wrong.

"Money" magazine tried it and discovered:

—The 50 pros figured the $130,000-a-year family owed somewhere between $9,806 and $21,315. The correct answer, "Money" said, was $12,038.

—Although the family had some tax problems that most Americans will never face, some of the experts fumbled such basic items as the credit for child care expenses, the deduction for moving expenses and the Social Security tax owed by a self-employed person.

—The 35 certified public accountants, eight independent enrolled agents, two non-CPAs and five preparers from such chains as H&R Block charged fees ranging from $271 to $4,000.

—There was no logical connection between fees charged and performance. "Of the two preparers who fared best, one charged about $275 above average; the other around $260 below," the magazine said. Over the past three years, the average preparation fee for an upper-income return has risen by 30 percent, to $1,012 this year.

While the pros are still having their problems with the 1986 tax overhaul, "Money" found the people who answer questions by phone at the Internal Revenue Service are doing a little better this year. IRS personnel correctly answered the magazine's questions 72 percent of the time, compared with 59 percent a year ago.

Should the news about the tax experts scare you into preparing your own return, as only about one-half of taxpayers still do?

The magazine offers this advice: "If our insanely complicated tax code can trip up even highly trained CPAs, what hope would a mere layman have unless his return was relatively simple or he was an avid amateur accountant willing to put in long hours of study?"

This is the third straight year that "Money" has handed tax professionals the records of a hypothetical family and asked them to calculate what the family owes under the new tax law.

The first year, no two preparers computed the same tax due, and their answers ranged from $7,202 to $11,881. The second year, the range was from $12,539 to $35,812; only 10 experts managed to avoid significant errors.

"This year's results were even more depressing: our test stumped all but two of the 50 tax pros who were willing to grapple with it," the magazine reports in its March issue.

This year's test involved John and Jane, who had two preschool children and income of $132,000. Their finances put them in the top 2 percent of earners, and although some of their tax problems will never be encountered by most Americans, they should not pose a major problem for professional tax preparers.

In addition to several errors on the child care credit and self-employment tax, "Money" said, other major mistakes involved calculation of taxes on mutual fund shares; tax consequences of Jane's $8,000 loss on worthless stock; the handling of the couple's retirement accounts and treatment of moving expenses.

In testing the IRS personnel who take tax questions by phone, "Money" found the answers were correct 90 percent of the time if they were to be found in the Form 1040 instruction booklet or in basic IRS information publications. But if the question-takers had to dig, the magazine said, they tended toward misleading advice.

Malcolm X may have been right

Twenty-five years ago on Feb. 21, the somber prophet of the civil-rights movement was gunned down in Manhattan's Audubon Ballroom where he was giving a speech. Malcolm Little, who became Malcolm X, preached the philosophy of the cocked fist. He believed that non-violence, as promulgated by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, gave oppressors a blank check. People who were victimized, he argued, had a right to defend themselves.

Malcolm X was only 39 when he died, the victim of internecine warfare among adherents of the black separatist movement, Nation of Islam. Product of a black ghetto in Omaha, Neb., orphaned by a Ku Klux Klan murder, a dope peddler and pimp during his teen-age years, Malcolm Little converted to Islam during a long term in prison.

After his conversion, he gave up what he called his slave name and became Malcolm X. He soon became the powerful voice of young urban blacks who couldn't identify with the Southern rural Christian heritage of the SCLC.

Historian Paul Lee has said that Malcolm X was feared by whites and misunderstood by blacks. Whites heard dangerous and threatening sounds of overt hostility, sounds of black separatism and what would come to be called Black Power. Many blacks were uncomfortable with his Muslim beliefs.

Had he lived, Malcolm X might have become the dominant figure in the civil-rights movement. King, in the mid-1960s, was faltering as he tried to take the movement out of the South and into the urban North.

Spike Lee's powerful film, "Do the Right Thing," has helped revive interest in Malcolm X. February, Black History Month, is an appropriate time to make the words and ideas of Malcolm X even more familiar to Americans, black and white.

Will feds clean up junk bond junkyard?

By ART BUCHWALD

I arrived home and waited for an opportune moment to break the news to my wife. It came between the lentil soup and the meat loaf.

"Drexel Burnham went down the toilet."

She dropped the mashed potatoes.

"How could they? They're not a savings and loan."

"It's worse," I told her, "they deal in junk bonds, and if they dump them all on the market, Wall Street will lose its sense of humor."

We have to find a way of keeping Drexel afloat so that the pension funds and brokerage houses won't go under."

I could see her getting angry. "If they were called junk bonds, why did people buy them in the first place?"

"Because they paid more interest than the dowdy run-of-the-mill bonds which have no sex appeal. Investors need adventure as much as anybody else."

"I don't understand why we needed junk bonds at all."

"The sharks needed them to raise money so one raider could buy another raider's company. Take R.J.R. Nabisco. No one could have bought it the last time around if Drexel Burnham hadn't raised the money to make the deal. Without junk bonds, takeover artists would never make a living. Unfortunately, Drexel got stuck with so many bonds of its own that now it's had to file for bankruptcy. This means that if Drexel owes you anything, you get 10 cents on the dollar."

"Why can't the government bail out Drexel?" my wife asked.

"It won't, although it has good reason to. The government is among the biggest holders of junk bonds," I told her. "It picked them up from all the savings and loans it took over. The S&Ls' safes were stuffed with bonds. But so far there is no bailout."

"Where was the government at the beginning when Drexel floated all the junk bonds?"

"It couldn't interfere," I said, "because you have to allow the system to work until there's proof that it doesn't."

"I read where people like Mike Milken made millions selling the Drexel bonds."

"Possibly he did, but we can't hold him responsible for the nose-dive. He took his money up front."

"I absolutely refuse to worry about one more financial institution whose main product is greed," she declared.

"You mustn't talk that way. Junk bonds made America what it is today. We can't turn our backs on Drexel Burnham because its paper is worthless. As Americans we must say, 'We didn't like what you did, and we didn't understand why you did it. Yet, we're ready to forgive and forget your mistakes because bailing out companies is what Americans do best.'"

"You really want me to say that?"

"That or something like it. You have to think of junk bonds as meat loaf. As long as someone wants meat loaf it has great value. But the minute no one wants it you can't even give it to the dog."

"Is that my lesson in banking for this evening?"

"All I'm trying to do is prepare you for the day when George Bush announces, 'I am asking every man, woman and child to contribute to the Drexel Burnham Meat Loaf Relief Fund.'"

She had the mashed potatoes poised to throw.

"All right, already. Don't help Drexel Burnham dig out from its junk bond mess! But remember this — if Mike Milken winds up sleeping in the park with the bonds as blankets, you will have to live with it for the rest of your life."

Controversial Armenian genocide resolution snarled in political web

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Those resolutions Congress routinely passes to mark one occasion or another usually get about as much attention as confetti, and have the same impact.

But there are exceptions. Even ceremonial measures sometimes echo far from the Capitol.

That's why the Senate has been snarled in a polite filibuster, spending long hours in debate on a joint resolution that would designate April 24 as a National Day of Remembrance of the 75th Anniversary of the Armenian Genocide of 1915-1923.

On one side of the issue stands Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., the minority leader, urging adoption of a resolution the Republican administration opposes even though President Bush endorsed a commemorative measure when he was a candidate in 1988.

On the other is Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the senior Democrat in the Senate, former majority and minority leader, who insists that the measure is a pointless and potentially damaging condemnation of Turkey, and that approval could do serious harm to relations with a vital NATO ally.

The resolution would have Congress ask Bush to issue a proclamation calling on Americans to observe April 24 as a day of remembrance for more than 1.5 million Armenian victims of massacres, starvation and deportation in the waning days of the Ottoman Empire.

It doesn't blame modern Turkey for what happened 70 years ago, saying it was genocide "perpetrated by the governments of the Ottoman empire from 1915 to 1923, prior to the establishment of the Republic of Turkey."

But Turkey has called the resolution offensive, insulting and unwarranted.

Capitol report

The administration opposes it because of the potential diplomatic and NATO problem. Dole has offered to revise his resolution and make it a purely congressional matter, one that wouldn't require the president's signature and wouldn't be a real law. He said Bush would support that version.

At the same time, Dole said Turkey isn't going to risk undercutting its own interests, and about $500 million in U.S. aid, because of the resolution.

Commemorative resolutions usually pass with little debate and no dissent, noticed only by the groups and interests that wanted them adopted in the first place. But some do echo in foreign capitals.

A 1989 Senate resolution criticizing Yugoslavia for mistreatment of ethnic Albanians was adopted with little notice, and temporarily soured relations. Yugoslavia's ambassador to Washington was called home for consultations in a gesture of protest.

Earlier measures on such matters as Chinese actions in Tibet and drug problems in Mexico also have stirred protests in foreign ministries. Beijing bitterly opposed congressional sanctions stirred by its suppression of democratic dissenters, even though Bush promised to keep similar measures in force by executive order.

For years, Congress routinely adopted resolutions designating captive nation observances, declaring that it would not recognize the Soviet Union's annexation of once-independent states or its control in eastern Europe. That irked Moscow but accomplished little else.

When former President Gerald R. Ford tripped over the topic in 1976 presidential campaign debate, insisting that there was no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe, he was simply echoing the old captive nations resolutions he backed in his House days.

Dole pointed to the China sanctions in accusing some opponents of his Armenia resolution of adopting a double standard, pushing for action to rebuke Beijing while resisting the observance he seeks.

But there is a difference between a commemoration and an signal of opposition to current conduct.

"What useful purpose can this resolution serve at this late date?" Byrd asked.

"Historians and scholars should deal with the matter, not politicians."

Dole's special concern about Armenia traces in part to the Armenian doctor who treated him for the serious wounds he suffered in World War II combat. He and his wife, Secretary of Labor Elizabeth Dole, traveled to what is now Soviet Armenia last August. Dole said he then "had to scrounge around" to arrange $5 million in U.S. aid for an area devastated by an earthquake that killed as many as 50,000 people, and, more recently, menaced by ethnic violence.

Byrd contended that the resolution could further inflame the ancient enmities behind that violence.

Dole's first attempt to crack the filibuster failed last Thursday, on a 49-49 vote. It takes 60 to halt debate, and he's trying again this week.

No matter what happens on that vote, the argument won't be over.

Salvation Army says thanks

To the editor:

The Salvation Army and its Advisory Board members of Big Spring would like to say thank you to all those that attended the Annual Appreciation Dinner on Feb. 22. It was a huge success, not only in attendance, but also, in community relations. It was a pleasure to meet many of the civic and community leaders of this great community face to face.

We would also like to say thank you to all of you that bought the dolls at the auction. The $1047.00 that was raised will go a long way in buying new dolls and toys for the needy children at Christmas time this year.

We pray that God will give each of you a wonderful year and a prosperous one as we continue to work together to meet the needs of our community.

Firemen, police deserve praise

To the editor:

I would like to take this time to say something in regard to the tragic truck wreck of Monday, Feb. 19, that took the life of one of our fellow Big Springers.

First, my deepest sympathy goes out to the family. Second, I think it is time that our fire department and police department get the recognition that they so much deserve and rarely get. With all the negative things that are going on in our town at this time we have forgotten about the positive things and forget to give praise when it is due.

In regard to the accident, (along with all the other times they are called upon) I would like to say how proud I am of our firefighters and the police department for the quick response to the call and their actions thereafter.

These men risk their lives every time a call comes in and we should give thanks every day for their lives and dedication to the hazardous jobs they perform to protect us. They are a group that put their lives on the line in many ways that we, the common public, don't even realize.

Next time someone starts to "bad mouth" our firemen, or police, stop and think about it. It could be your home or life they are saving.

Thank you for being there! I am proud of you!! And may you always be safe from harm while doing the jobs you do to keep us safe!!

Historical perspectives vary with age

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Last weekend I was having dinner at the home of a middle-aged couple when the subject of World War II arose.

No matter how horrifying the war must have been, it will always require a leap of historical empathy for me to understand how it felt at the time. I was born 12 years after the end of the war.

I do recall a fine essay by George Orwell, which began by noting that some normally law-abiding young men were trying to kill him with bombs from above. They had been duped by German nationalism, and were merely doing what their country ordered them to do, he observed in what must have been one of the most magnanimous essays on the war. I can also remember Virginia Woolf's journal entry on the headaches that the bombers inflicted on her; such distractions made it difficult to write, she noted.

But my accounts of the war are all second-hand. Books, photographs and films make it possible to feel like a direct witness to the Holocaust; they are no substitute for living through that period, however.

Last weekend, the woman of the house suggested that if I was curious about World War II, I should ask some veterans of that war about the experience. This, she said, was a good reason for developing intergenerational friendships: a person gains a wide variety of perspectives from having friends of all ages.

I couldn't agree with the woman more about the benefit of intergenerational friendship. It also seems apparent, I might add, that a person can rid himself of ageism and a myopic view of history in the process.

I may not have lived during the Depression, but hearing about it from my parents — who are, after all, friends as well as parents — left an indelible impression. Father said the poor used to knock on the door of his home in Murray, Utah, begging for food. As a commemoration of that period, Father used to make us "Depression candy" for a family treat, something his mother had made in 1930s. The candy is made from Wheaties and melted chocolate bars.

It's only natural, though, that many of us stick to our own age group in developing friendships. People who grew up in the same generation often talk the same language, so it's easier to communicate with their own age group. Teenagers of today know the same rock groups and trendy clothes, subjects which are often of little interest to older people. Older people, meanwhile, might talk about why they liked (or didn't like) Ike, and how their golf game is progressing. Many young people find those topics unspeakably dull.

The challenge lies in finding common ground for dialogue with people of a different age group. Gray Panthers, a group that represents senior citizens, has set a good example by sponsoring intergenerational housing. There needs to be more such encouragement given to intergenerational friendships.

As a reporter, I am lucky enough to interview people from a wide variety of ages, and I learn a lot from the meetings. Recently interviewed a 9-year-old, for example, whose congenial disposition and intelligence delighted me. Interviewing people from a diversity of ages makes me aware of the many stages of life, and the connections between those stages.

I consider myself lucky to have friends from a wide variety of ages. Last weekend, an 80-year-old friend of mine in Minnesota offered a keen insight about getting older. When you're young, she said, you think death is something that happens to someone else. When you get older, she continued, you attend a lot more funerals and visit hospitals more often, and you realize that all your friends are dying on you. When all your friends are dying, she said, that means you could be next.

I hope not, in her case. But I also know that hearing about a more funeral- and hospital-centered life at age 80 gives me a better understanding of what awaits me when I become an octogenarian. Hearing my friend's sense of humor and keen observations on her town also remind me, though, that life can still be vital at that age.

It takes a bit of gumption to develop a friendship with an older person. Older people have much more life experience to draw upon, and their wealth of knowledge can be intimidating at first. It's also inevitable that the older person will regard the younger person as inexperienced, perhaps a bit naive or immature.

But the differences should enhance, rather than discourage, a friendship. That's because the common ground between human beings is still substantial, and the different age groups complement each other well.

As one elderly friend admitted to me, she found it much more invigorating to spend time with younger people, rather than sit around with senior citizens and talk about hardening of the arteries. Likewise, a young person can talk to an older friend and discover, to his surprise, that what baffled or upset him was common; to confront such a problem was merely a symptom of being human.

Until we recognize the need for intergenerational friendships in our lives, we will never be able to overcome ageism and historical myopia within ourselves.

One widow's painful memory is another's comfort in grief

DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to the daughter who felt that her stepfather showed disrespect by removing his wedding band 10 days after his wife's funeral. You suggested that the ring might have been a painful reminder. I can understand that.

When I lost my young husband, I put away every picture of him; I couldn't bear to look at them. But my mother-in-law kept all hers on display. She said they brought her comfort. One widow I know removed her wedding ring immediately. She said it was too painful to look at it. I never took mine off because I couldn't bear to see my hand without that ring.

A book for widows advised that we should get rid of our husbands' clothes quickly, but I slept with items that held my husband's scent because I found them soothing.

We are all different in the way we react to the physical reminders of our loss. — FELLOW TRAVELER

DEAR FELLOW TRAVELER: As I have said repeatedly, there is no "right way" or "wrong way" to deal with the loss of a loved one. Each of us must handle it in a way that affords us the most comfort — and the least pain. It's part of the healing process.

DEAR ABBY: Several times when I have been driving at dusk or in bad weather, I have come very close to having an accident. Why? Because I didn't see the other car until it was a few feet from me. Why? Because its headlights weren't turned on.

You might argue that at these times you don't need your headlights on to see where you're going, but the other function of headlights is so that other people — drivers and pedestrians alike — can see you!

Abby, please tell drivers to turn on their headlights in bad weather and at dusk. And thanks for letting me say this. — JOE KLUENDER, ST. LOUIS

Dear Abby

DEAR JOE: Good advice, and well worth passing along.

DEAR ABBY: I doubt if this will get printed, but I thought you might be interested in reading one doctor's no-nonsense solution to the abortion controversy. I clipped it from the Letters to the Editor section of the Los Angeles Times in December 1989. If, by some miracle, this makes your column, sign me... GAIL IN L.A.

DEAR GAIL: A "miracle" happened today; here's the piece, with minor editing to conserve space. UNWANTED FETUSES

At the present time, the controversy between the pro-abortionists and the anti-abortionists seems insoluble. I believe I have a solution.

Embryo transplant using in-vitro fertilization has become a reality in animal husbandry, especially in cows. If a similar technique could be found to enable a fetus to be transferred from the uterus of a woman who intends to abort it to the uterus of a woman who would save it from its impending murder — why lo — the problem is solved!

Every female pro-lifer would have the opportunity to volunteer her uterus in which to grow the unwanted fetus, thus preventing the murder while enabling the natural mother to be rid of the unwanted pregnancy. — ENCINO

PHYSICIAN
DEAR ABBY: I have a co-worker who drinks on the job. She thinks no one knows, yet the smell is overwhelming at times. Other co-workers have made comments to me. My response has been a rather non-committal shrug of the shoulders.

Now, upper-management has confronted me, asking if I have witnessed her drinking or seen any actual bottles, which I have not. They are watching her. Meanwhile, she thinks she's getting away with something.

I would like to see her get help — not fired. — KEEPING MUM
DEAR KEEPING MUM: If ever a person needed a friend, your drinking co-worker does. Be that friend and tip her off. Also suggest that she attend just one meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous. You may be saving not only her job, but her life. Tell her today. Alcoholics Anonymous is listed in every phone directory.

Advisory meeting

Elbow's Academic Advisory Committee met at Elbow Elementary last Wednesday. The 14 member group ate lunch in the cafeteria and has a brief meeting afterward.

The Academic Advisory Committee was formed in 1988 as an aid to communications between teachers and parents concerning school work. The teachers suggested parents of children in different grade levels to serve with teachers. At the end of each school year, the committee suggests names of others to serve, retaining a few parents and teachers to ensure continuity.

The committee sent out a survey to all parents of Elbow students in 1988 asking about concerns and received a good response. A "Just Say No To Drugs Fair" was sponsored by the committee last year. A school activity calendar is sent to parents each month by this committee, as well as notes about the committee's activities and concerns in each child's 6-week report card.

Serving on this year's committee are parents Tammy Schreengost, Sandy Allen, Janice Hopper, Dale Humphreys, Jimmy Wallace, Kitty Baird, and Sally Hise, and teachers Ester Hernandez, Richard Light, Carole Madry, Brenda White, and Principal Bill Cregar.

Teacher Richard Light has introduced geometry to his unsuspecting 3rd grade class! The class was divided into teams and given a packet of cardboard strips cut into different lengths, called segments. The teams had 25 minutes to see

Fire big worry

Fire is the rural family's greatest worry. A few phone calls usually bring neighbors with shovels and rakes, but often more equipment and training are needed to fight the menace. Enter the Volunteer Firefighters!

Forsan's Volunteer Fire Department consists of Russell Matt

Kalak and Clarence and Judy Williams, with their two teen-aged sons, Robert and Chad. Hands are always welcome fighting a blaze, but these firefighters have invested time in training and money for personal equipment and safety courses to help meet the community's emergencies. In order to be registered with the Howard County Volunteer Firefighters Association, these volunteers train twice a month and also attend intensive training sessions once a year.

Clarence Williams served as chief of Forsan's Volunteer Fire Dept. His wife, Judy, often drives the fire truck for the men. "A volunteer firefighters never goes on a call alone," she states. "There are always at least 2 people on the truck; one to drive, and one to fight the fire." According to Judy, grassfires are the firefighters' worst enemy. "Out here, the wind changes so quickly, and there are acres of land with oil field equipment and tanks." The tank battery fire is the most dangerous because of the threat of explosion.

Tubbs Addition Volunteer Fire Dept. includes Kevin Calley, serving as Chief, Perry Dean Hall, assistant chief, Terry D. Fryar, Captain, and Craig Bailey, Public Information Officer. Other registered members are Bill Smith, John Gaston, Robbi, Mike and Debby Calley, Mary Ann and Perry M. Hall.

Tubbs Volunteer Dept. meetings are the second Tuesday of every month at the Kevin Calley home. At the meetings, the volunteers train for firefighting procedures, use of self-contained breathing apparatus and radio operation. They also meet twice a month with the Howard County Volunteer Firefighters Association for training.

These volunteers are quite serious about the service they provide the community. "I got new protective fire boots for Mother's Day," Debby Calley proudly reports.

Proper procedure for reporting a fire: Call the sheriff's office at 263-7654. He has access to the phone numbers of all volunteer Fire Depts. and can keep trying until he finds someone to respond. Forsan residents can call 457-2236, which rings at three locations; Forsan cafe, the Williams' home and the Kalak home. "But we have to stop and call the sheriff's office first before we can respond," notes Judy Williams.

The Volunteer Fire Departments urge residents to call and set up a "controlled burn" when needing to burn off weeds of fields. A convenient time will be set up and the Volunteer Fire Department will stand by while they burn. A big thank you from the community to these volunteers.

Burns and scalds are preventable hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Burns and scalds injure as many as 1 million children every year and claim 1,300 young lives, yet many of these tragedies could be prevented by some extra adult care.

Bathtub burns and spills of hot liquids are a major, yet unnecessary, hazard, reports the National Coalition to Prevent Childhood Injury.

"Burns happen quickly and they can happen to everyone," warns Thomas Duffy of the Burn Victim Foundation.

"I've spoken with parents of children who had been seriously burned who said they only left their child alone in the bathtub for a moment, or they only turned away long enough to get a towel and the child turned on the hot water tap. It doesn't take long for a child to receive a serious burn," he said.

Duffy explained that because children's skin is thinner than that of adults they can be burned more easily. It takes just three seconds of exposure to water at 140 degrees Fahrenheit to cause a third-degree burn involving the full thickness of skin, he said.

If a child is burned, the first thing to do is to soak a clean, white cloth in cool water and apply it to the burn, being careful not to break any blisters, says Dr. Martin Eichelberger of Children's National Medical Center in Washington. Then call a doctor.

But prevention is better than treatment.

Here are some burn-prevention reminders from the Coalition to Prevent Childhood Injury:

—Never leave your child alone in the bathtub.

—Do not establish the kitchen as a recreational area.

—Letting the child play on the kitchen floor while you are cooking may make it easier to watch him, but it also creates the chance of tripping and spilling hot food.

Legislators aim to right wrongs

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
Associated Press Writer

You probably didn't know that the national welfare was threatened by an epidemic of toad-licking. You might not be aware that people are scaring the very life out of the chickens of America.

Don't panic. While you've been blithely ignoring the world's problems, state legislators around the nation have been earning their pay by discovering these and other predicaments — some more serious than others — and boldly trying to solve them.

Bills have been introduced this year to exempt ostrich steaks from California's state sales tax, to improve campaign manners in New Mexico and to encourage people to beat up flag burners in Tennessee.

"Potty parity" for women is the goal of bills in Pennsylvania and Maryland. The bills would require more toilets for women to eliminate the long lines that form outside women's restrooms in stadiums, convention halls and other public places.

There have been proposals to designate the "senior hoary marmot" at the Anchorage Zoo as the official State Marmot of Alaska, the yucca moth as the official State Insect of Colorado, and — we're not making this up — the Crider soil series as the official State Soil of Kentucky, the Houdek soil as the official State Soil of South Dakota and the Kalkaska soil series as the official State Soil of Michigan.

West Virginia legislators are considering a proposal to give lottery tickets to motorists who use their seat belts. A generous legislator in Indiana wanted to pay citizens $25, in the form of an income tax credit, for voting.

And a state senator in New Mexico proposed creating a new county — named after him.

You might be tempted to believe that all is not serious in America's legislatures. But that would be ignoring some of the issues facing elected officials.

It turns out, for instance, that there are people who get their kicks licking toads. According to the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency, South American cane toads secrete a hallucinogenic toxin that can get the lick as high as a tree frog.

Legislators in Georgia and South Carolina have introduced bills to outlaw the practice.

"They say these frogs grow to the size of a dinner plate," said horrified Rep. Pat Harris of South Carolina. "I don't want to see somebody walk across the statehouse grounds with a frog on a leash and pick him up and lick him."

You may laugh, but only until you consider the plight of the common chicken.

One of Harris' colleagues, Rep. Larry Koon, has introduced a bill making it illegal in South Carolina to fire a gun within 300 yards of a chicken coop.

The sound of gunshot, it seems, can cause chickens to lose their vaunted self-composure, jump into a pile and suffocate each other.

"Last year, one of Mr. Koon's constituents had chickens in a house," explained Rep. Tom Rhoad. "Someone had a dove shoot in the field right next to the chicken house. And the guns fired and caused the chickens to huddle up in a corner, and the farmer lost over 1,000 chickens."

Then there is the plight of whales and turtles. Environmentalists say helium-filled balloons like the ones released by the thousands at football halftime shows can drift out to sea, pop, and shower their remnants into the water for whales and turtles to eat. The balloons can kill them.

With that in mind, a bill was introduced in the Tennessee Senate to prohibit the launching of clusters of more than 24 balloons at sporting events or political conventions unless the balloons disintegrate in water — but the author of the bill made one little mistake.

The bill, as written, would allow one cluster of 24 balloons for every person at an event.

No place to swim

DETROIT — A gaggle of Canadian geese look across their pond as it freezes over on Belle Isle in Detroit recently, after a winter storm hit the area, dropping temperatures and snow.

Smithsonian, somewhere or other, has it all

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last year the Smithsonian Institution acquired an old Pullman railroad car spittoon, Ray Bolger's scarecrow costume from "The Wizard of Oz," a giant Pacific octopus, 14 condom vending machines (with 108 condoms), 50 parking meters and 1,272 dry-mounted specimens of lice.

These and more than 700,000 other objects joined the vast collections of the Smithsonian, a sort of large national cigar box where Americans stuff their odds and ends, mostly odd.

Also carted into the Smithsonian's complex of museums and art galleries in 1989 were a sculpture made of grapevine roots, an Air Force C-130A Hercules cargo plane, a satin Chinese hanging scroll from the Ming dynasty and several thousand world's fair souvenirs dating to 1850.

The list includes 75 original paving bricks from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, the original propeller nose cone removed from Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" airplane because of a crack, and 2,500 fossils containing imprints of ferns, crabs and trilobites which lived in a northern Illinois swamp more than 300 million years ago.

Officials said the Smithsonian's holdings grew to nearly 136 million objects with last year's acquisitions, many of which came from private collectors like Clifford Krainik of Alexandria, Va., whose passion was ballooning.

The National Air and Space Museum bought Krainik's 400-item collection of balloon memorabilia, including Matthew Brady photographs of Civil War balloons, a balloon-shaped perfume bottle and valentines, greeting cards, handbills and sheet music about balloons.

The biggest recipient was the National Museum of Natural History. Its 674,817 new items included a pair of stuffed passenger pigeons from Colorado, a flying lizard from the Philippines, a football-sized Brazilian quartz crystal containing golden needles, 8,152 mounted specimens of wasps, 30 garments and household objects used by Tibetan nomads and a piece of petrified timber from Cyprus that has turned into copper.

Only a tiny fraction of the Smithsonian's vast collections are on display at its 14 museums and galleries in Washington and New York, plus the National Zoo. The bulk of its nearly 136 million objects are specimens housed in the National History Museum and used for scientific research.

The giant octopus, by the way, was captured off the coast of Washington state near Seattle and shipped to the National Zoo, which also acquired a Sumatran tiger from Indonesia and a three-ton Asian elephant named "Toni" from Scranton, Pa.

Help for Congress, and the public, with who said what when

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Otto von Bismarck once said, "Politics is the art of the possible" — as possible as wrongly attributing the quote to a legendary Irish barkeeper.

For pundits and politicians wanting to punch up their pronouncements with such pithy remarks, help is at hand. For $29, the Library of Congress will provide 2,100 similarly sage sayings, and with the right attribution.

Over the years the library's Congressional Research Service has found itself continually bombarded by requests for appropriate quotes for use in papers and speeches.

Its researchers have discovered that many a quote popularly attributed to a famous person was actually uttered or scribbled by someone else: for example, the German chancellor's comment on politics often attributed to Finley Peter Dunne's Mr. Dooley.

The 520-page volume entitled "Respectfully Quoted: A Dictionary of Quotations Requested from the Congressional Research Service" and for sale by the Government Printing Office has several similar examples.

Lincoln's "You can fool all of the people some of the time and some of the people all of the time..." has never been verified, the volume points out. Nor has "Let them eat cake," alleged to have been said by Marie Antoinette when informed the French people had no bread.

"Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing," generally attributed to former Green Bay Packer coach Vince Lombardi, was actually said by Red Sanders at Vanderbilt in 1948, the volume reports. In fact, it adds, Lombardi always denied having said it.

Other corrections in attribution include "It is better that one hundred guilty persons escape than one innocent person should suffer," often attributed to Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes or Louis Brandeis, actually was first stated by Benjamin Franklin.

Currently the most requested quotation, the Research Service says, is from a 1977 speech of former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey:

"It was once said that the moral test of government is how that government treats those who are in the dawn of life, the children; those who are in the twilight of life, the elderly; and those who are in the shadows of life — the sick, the needy and the handicapped."

A member of Congress contemplating action — or inaction — might consider British author G.K. Chesterton or French statesman Georges Clemenceau.

"I do not believe in a fate that falls on men however they act; but I do believe in a fate that falls on them unless they act," Chesterton wrote.

"In order to act, you must be somewhat insane. A reasonably sensible man is satisfied with thinking," Clemenceau once said.

The collection is replete with patriotic quotations, always popular with politicians, including large sections under such headings as America, Democracy, Citizenship, Patriotism and Union.

But quotations are also included under such headings as Vietnam and Watergate, Tyranny and Violence, Hate and Ignorance.

Even a few last words are included, such as Sir James M. Barrie's "To die will be an awfully big adventure," and "Don't give up the ship," attributed to Admiral Oliver Hazard Perry.

It is intriguing to speculate, the compilers comment in their introduction, what circumstances could have led members of Congress to request such quotes as:

— "If you give me six lines written in the hand of the most honest of men, I will find something in them which will hang him." Cardinal Richelieu of France.

— "Politicians are the same all over. They promise to build a bridge even where there is no river." Nikita Khrushchev.

Lincoln

NEW YORK — An unrecorded painting of a beardless Abraham Lincoln, the "very first portrait of Lincoln ever painted" according to Lincoln collectors James L. Swanson and Lloyd Ostendorf, was recently discovered in Illinois. The painting is published for the first time in the March issue of American Heritage.

Coalition fights for animal use

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Responding to pressure from animal-rights activists, a fledgling group of ranchers, medical researchers, hunters and furriers gathered in San Antonio to organize "the fight for the moral high ground" on animal rights issues.

About 150 people met at the Radisson Hotel Airport on Friday to kick off the Responsible Use of Animals Coalition. The group seeks to win over "the vast majority of Americans who do not yet have strong beliefs one way or the other concerning the animal rights issues," said Richard Butler, president of the Texas Wildlife Association.

"It is extremely difficult to convince people that causing the death of an animal is not cruelty," he said. "There rarely, if ever, is a truly peaceful or painless death in the wild."

"So when they say its cruel to hunt, you're asking the animals to make a choice: Would you rather die of a coyote eating you or being shot by a bullet?"

Although animal rights activists were not visible during the meeting, an unidentified member of the San Antonio-based Voice for Animals was present to observe, said Kay Lair, a spokeswoman for Voice for Animals.

U.S. Rep. Greg Laughlin, D-Victoria, offered to act as congressional liaison for the coalition through the newly created Congressional Sportsman's Caucus, a group of about 60 legislators "formed for the purpose of educating our fellow lawmakers and general public about the sportsman's historical commitment to wildlife and wetland preservation."

He noted that about 120 representatives have co-sponsored the Farm Animal and Research Facilities Protection Act, a bill by U.S. Rep. Charles W. Stenholm, D-Abilene, making it a federal crime to break into or damage agricultural or scientific animal facilities.

One vote made Texas the 28th state of the Union. Remember that the next time you think your one vote can't make a difference.

Plans underway for Howard College child care center

By ERIN BLAIR
 Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Plans for the child care center at Howard College are moving right along, according to the report college president Bob Riley gave to the board of trustees at the monthly meeting Monday.

"We believe we have students who can't go to school because there's no day care available for their children. Our first priority is to serve the students, but if there's space left over, faculty kids may attend." — Bob Riley, college president

Riley said the college would submit two grant proposals this week for the child care center and if the grants are approved, the center may be open for children of Howard students and faculty as soon as the fall semester.

"We believe we have students who can't go to school because there's no day care available for their children," Riley said. "Our first priority is to serve the students, but if there's space left over, faculty kids may attend."

A possible location for the center is the current art building in the old barracks in the middle of campus. Art classes would then be moved to the practical arts building.

The college hasn't yet decided whether to get a local child care provider or an outside contractor to handle the facility. Issues of liability and the college's control of the program will affect the decision.

"We want it to be available for parents to drop their kids by the center for an hour or two, we want it to provide exemplary education for the kids and we want to place child development students in the center as a clinic," Riley said.

As far as insurance goes, an outside contractor would provide its own liability coverage. If the college ran the center, Riley believes the TASP program would allow it to add day care coverage to its policy.

In other business, the college's board of trustees:

- Approved articulation agreements with Lamesa Independent School District that will allow Lamesa students to concurrently enroll in programs offered by the Lamesa campus of Howard College.

Ken McCraw, principal of Lamesa High School said students were already concurrently enrolled in Latin and soon would be able to take courses in cosmetology, office education and other programs at the college.

- Approved naming the women's dorm Ann Garrett Turner Hall, after Dorothy Garrett's daughter, and the fitness center the Harold Davis Physical Fitness Center, after the trustee who helped plan the old gym, where the fitness center will be located.

- Approved a resolution thanking the Dora Roberts Foundation for its continued support throughout the years and its most recent donation of $360,000 for the salaries of two nursing instructors, residence hall scholarships and improvements to heating and cooling facilities.

- Approved accepting the guidelines of Howard County's tax abatement plan, which calls for participants to assess each new industry or industrial expansion on a case-by-case basis.

- Approved a bid of $6,078.26 by H & H General Supply of Big Spring for carpeting the upper deck, dressing area, offices and entry corridor of the fitness facility.

- Approved a bid of $12,893 by Davenport Incorporated of San Angelo for cosmetology equipment for the San Angelo campus' cosmetology program, scheduled to begin April 1.

- Approved a bid of $7,046 by Xerox of Dallas for copy machine paper.

- Approved a catalog change for 1990-91 stating that students must pass the TASP test before getting a degree from the college or enrolling in junior-level classes.

- Approved extending the contracts of Vice-President for Student Services Cheri Sparks, Vice-President for Vocational/Technical Instruction Andy Hicks, Vice-President for Fiscal Affairs Terry Hansen and Executive Director/Dean of Instruction at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf Ron Brasel.

- Approved hiring three new instructors: Linda Coats, cosmetology instructor at the San Angelo campus; Doug Ponds, cable fabrication instructor at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp; and Mark Burgess, brick masonry instructor at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

- Approved Riley's report on the status of dormitories at the Big Spring campus and at SWCID.

The additions to the Big Spring men's and women's dorms are proceeding as scheduled. The two big holes on the campus are ready for the installation of the cooling tanks that will be part of the loop system to improve air conditioning at the campus.

SWCID dorm 2 has had its ceilings raised, bathrooms gutted, new floors laid and new lighting installed. When finished it will house 56 students.

- Approved bookstore director Karen Reeves' report on the store's profit of $56,729 for the past fiscal year from a $429,564 gross. The bookstore has made $272,000 for the year-to-date.

Reeves credited the success of the bookstore to better merchandising and more insignia items. She said the store had handled 20,000 books already this school year.

BIG SPRING — The City Council will consider partial sponsorship of The Corral, a state hospital community service program.

Ed Moughon, director of community programs at the Big Spring State Hospital, will ask the city to reexamine the city's support of The Corral during the council's regular meeting at 5 p.m. today. The council will meet in terminal building 1106 at the Big Spring McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.

According to a letter from Moughon to the city manager, the state hospital wants the city to help with a space crisis at The Corral. In the letter, Moughon said that because of the program's steady growth, the state hospital would like to lease the second half of the building The Corral currently occupies at 611 E. Third.

"As you remember, during the last budget cycle we asked the city to match the county's contribution for supporting this day program for the mentally ill residents of Big Spring and Howard County," Moughon said in the letter. "The project has continued to grow and we are currently faced with a space crisis."

"In an effort to address only our current crisis, we are asking to once again be placed on the City Council agenda to request the city sponsorship for this project. With the city's assistance we can avoid the unnecessary cost of relocating to a larger facility."

According to the state hospital proposal, the city would pay the extra $200 per month rent for The Corral. Big Spring State Hospital would in turn reimburse the city the $200 each month about three or four weeks later.

City Manager Hal Boyd said the city gives The Corral no assistance, although the state hospital did make a request during budget considerations.

"They asked for us to share in some of costs of operations," Boyd said, but the council denied the request.

The latest request would be at no cost to the city, Boyd said, the city would assume no responsibility for The Corral.

In other agenda items, the council will:

- Consider the emergency reading of an ordinance reducing the speed limit from 65 mph to 40 mph on Interstate 20-Birdwell Lane overpass. Boyd said the highway department has asked the city to reduce the speed limit because a recent accident closed the east-bound bridge and only the west-bound bridge will be used until repairs are made.

- Consider the second and final reading of an ordinance calling for city-wide elections on two sales tax increases of 1/2 percent each. One increase would be used to fund a reduction in property taxes, and the other would be used to fund an industrial development foundation.

Rates

creased funds will go into escrow. Watkins said the city has a bad record of borrowing money, writing ordinances to raise rates and set up restricted accounts to pay back the loan, and then not following through.

"In 1984 the garbage rate was $4 a month per household. The city bought the baler with $900,000 it borrowed and raised the rate a dollar a house. We've paid the cost of that baler but it's still outstanding," said Watkins.

Decell has previously explained that the city borrowed the baler and landfill site funds from the capital revolving fund and raised the rates $1 to pay back $250,000 a year to the revolving fund. In 1990 the baler would have been paid off and the $250,000 a year surplus could have been used to maintain the sanitation department.

Instead, the funds have been moved each year by the city council to the general fund, Decell said.

"If we fail to escrow funds and don't have escrow accounts now, what mechanisms do we have to maintain escrow in the future?" Watkins asked. "This ordinance needs to have it spelled out what every penny goes for. If you don't say it plain it won't get done."

Watkins and others question the city's calculations on projected expenses.

The city previously estimated that compliance with regulatory agencies' requirements to prove it can afford to monitor the landfill for 30 years after closure will cost $1.5 million. The landfill is estimated to be closed in about 30 years.

"If we put in $50,000 a year for 30 years and compound the interest, we could have $4.7 million by the time the landfill closes," Watkins said. "We'll have the $1.5 million for post-closure monitoring but where's the $3.2 million in interest going? I guarantee it'll be spent."

The state garbage tax will cost the city less than $13,000 this year, Watkins said, basing his figure on Decell's number of 24,000 bales weighing 2,250 pounds each. The 50 cent per ton tax went into effect halfway through the fiscal year.

Watkins said the landfill showed a $295,000 net profit last year and with the $418,000 in additional funds the rate hike would bring over $700,000 in profit for the landfill this year.

After hearing audience input, the council suggested changing the ordinance to include in the escrow accounts interest accrued by the restricted funds.

Mayor Max Green suggested

tabling the ordinance at the council meeting scheduled for tonight and rethinking the problem.

In other workshop business, the council:

- Heard details of the proposed boundaries for the city's reinvestment zone. The zone would include the entire airport, the north side from 5th Street to north of Interstate 20, parts of the area south of FM 700 to the city boundary and the area east of Columbia to Midway Road.

- Discussed the tax abatement plan to lure new industries and industrial expansion to Big Spring.

Lady Hawks shake off rust, Dusters

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor
SNYDER — After almost a two-week layoff, the Howard College Lady Hawks were a bit rusty at first against the Western Texas Dusters Monday night. But after 20 minutes of play, the Lady Hawks looked like their old selves, as they pounded the Dusters 70-43.

The victory completed a four-game sweep HC coach Royce Chadwick maneuvered over dad Kelly this season in the Howard-WTC series. Howard pushes its record to 9-2 in conference play and 25-4 overall. WTC falls to 2-8 and 15-11.

Although the Lady Hawks' fine overall play was lacking in the first half, Howard still managed to lead 27-12 at intermission. The Lady Hawks did it with good defense,

Hawks race past WTC, 128-114

SNYDER — The good news for the Western Texas Westerners was that they were able to run against the Howard College Hawks Monday night. The bad news, however, was that the Hawks eventually ran WTC into the ground, taking a 128-114 win at Scurry County Coliseum.

The tempo was fast Monday, and that was just to the Hawks' liking. Johnny McDowell scored 28 points to lead a quartet of Hawks that scored at least 20. Cecil Pittman added 26 points and Gregg Jeffrey and Terrence Lewis tallied 20 apiece to pace Howard, now 12-2 in conference action.

"It was a very, very fast, up-and-down game," HC coach Steve Green said. "It was just what we wanted to play. It was wide open with lots of fast-break opportunities."

in the first half, but Western rallied each time to close to within six points, 64-58, at intermission. Foul trouble to Howard's inside trio of McDowell, Pittman and Carlos Thunn forced the Hawks into a zone defense, but that didn't slow them much.

"The zone kept (the three players) in the game," Green said. "It allowed us to buy some time. (Then) we busted it back really what Royce Chadwick wanted. "We kind of got out of our game plan in the first half. We started taking too many shots from the outside," said Chadwick. "We really showed them tonight... we don't have to take the play in the paint," he sarcastically replied.

mixing their halfcourt trap, man-to-man and zone defenses well to go along with some timely outside shooting.

In fact, Howard lived from the outside in the first half; 24 of its 27 points came from the perimeter. Causing the most damage was forward Linda Waters and reserve guards Stephanie Fetcher and Cindy Williams. Waters and Fetcher hit three three-pointers each, and Williams banged in two more outside shots against the WTC zone.

Players split on issues

By RONALD BLUM AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Some players say the fight over salary arbitration eligibility isn't worth endangering baseball's opening.

Talks broke off Monday as the union leadership headed to Phoenix for an executive board meeting today, the 13th day of the spring training lockout. Players say they won't return to the bargaining table until owners make a better offer.

George Brett and Pete Incauiglia joined the ranks of players who don't think rolling back arbitration eligibility from three years to two is an issue so important that camps should remain closed.

"I know there are 649 other players and some of them feel the same way I do and some feel three years is too long," Brett, the Kansas City first baseman, said. "Personally, I feel three years is enough."

"Is two years arbitration really that big a deal that we have to really punish the fans and everybody else and the owners to get that?" Incauiglia, the Texas Rangers' player representative, said. "I don't think it's worth it. For one year, I mean, if the guy's any good, he's going to make his money in the third year as well as the second year, in my opinion."

Union chief Donald Fehr said he hadn't heard any complaints from the players.

"I have yet to have a player call me up and tell me we should be doing anything differently from the way we are," he said.

Fehr canceled Monday's negotiating session when owners didn't come up with anything new. "My expectation is that after the Phoenix meeting the great likelihood is that I will see players in two or three other places before

LIBERTY HILL — Liberty Hill High School basketball fans show their team spirit at a recent ball game.

Pulling for the Purple

Fans pack the stands when Liberty Hill plays

By GEORGE BREAZEALE Austin American-Statesman

LIBERTY HILL, Texas — As the cars and pickup trucks gather in the deepening darkness, many, if in home environment, will bear spirit slogans. Fewer will be adorned if resting in foreign parking lots.

But home or away, the Liberty Hill High School basketball fans disembarking from the vehicles are easily distinguishable — for two reasons.

First, a good number will be wearing items of purple or gold — or a combination of those hues. And second, their numbers are astronomical, especially when Liberty Hill's population (300) and its high school enrollment (280) are taken into account.

"At home or on the road, you know they're going to be there. They work you over pretty well when you play at their place, but it's nothing out of line. And, with their basketball backgrounds, they're knowledgeable fans." — an opposing coach.

Travis brought about 500 boosters; the 900-seat Liberty Hill section was near capacity.

Officials at Smithville High School, mindful of the turnout for last Tuesday's Liberty Hill-Edna girls state playoff game, already were laying in extra stocks of soft drinks, popcorn and hot dog ingredients for Tuesday's Liberty Hill-Rice Consolidated boys game.

Such loyalties — for Odessa Permian football, Brenham baseball, Dallas Roosevelt track and field — usually blossom over many years. The phenomenon of Pulling for the Panthers, in contrast, barely out of diapers.

Gauchos hope history repeats after upsetting UNLV

By The Associated Press

The last time UC Santa Barbara beat UNLV, the Gauchos earned quite a prize — the school's first-ever invitation to the NCAA tournament. They're hoping it works again this season.

Colleges

UCSB took a giant step forward in its bid to join the NCAA field by beating No. 2 UNLV 78-70 Monday night. It was victory No. 19 for the Gauchos, who extended UNLV before losing 69-67 at Las Vegas earlier in the season.

"I think it will help get us in the tournament," Coach Jerry Pimm said after UCSB handed UNLV its fifth loss in 29 games. "We're just hoping the committee will see four teams from the Big West."

With UNLV a tournament shoo-in and New Mexico State (23-3) also a strong candidate, UCSB figures to rate only third in the fast-improving Big West. Long Beach State (18-7) would appear to rate fourth in the league because of double defeats against UNLV and UCSB and a split with New Mexico State.

In another game featuring a late-charging tournament hopeful, Ohio State beat No. 18 Illinois 86-80.

UCSB helped its cause by making the Runnin' Rebels play their second strength-sapping game in three days. The Rebels were extended on Saturday in beating then-No. 16 Louisville 91-81.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State's Jim Jackson reaches over Illinois guard Stephen Bardo during the first half of their Big Ten game at St. John Arena Monday night.

tired with the schedule they're playing (11 games in 26 days). I hoped they would be tired."

UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian preferred to credit UC Santa Barbara with a game well played.

"You can blame it on a lot of things," Tarkanian said, "but Santa Barbara just played better."

"They were well-prepared defensively and they extended us well. They did a good job of taking the ball inside and getting Larry (Johnson) and David (Butler) in foul trouble."

Johnson, who picked up his fourth foul early in the second half, was limited to 10 points before fouling out with the issue still in doubt with 2½ minutes to play. Butler, the team's No. 2 scorer behind Johnson, fouled out with 2:12 left.

"It feels super, feels super," the elated Pimm said. "We played great defense and did a great job off the boards."

"And we played patient offensively. Vegas is hard to play patiently on offense because they do so many things defensively."

Patience was a virtue for the Gauchos, who shot 51 percent (28 of 55), with Carriek DeHart hitting eight of 13 attempts in scoring 24 points. Eric McArthur, the No. 2 rebounder in the country, collected 20 in pacing the Gauchos to a 47-31 advantage. McArthur also scored 15 points.

Greg Anthony led UNLV with 18 points, Stacey Augmon had 13 and David Butler 12.

Although UCSB set the tone throughout, the dangerous Runnin' Rebels were always within reach. UNLV trailed only 39-36 at halftime and 61-57 midway through the second half when UCSB made its decisive push. Paul Johnson scored on a layup and a rebound, and DeHart contributed a baseline drive that made it 71-60 with 3:31 remaining. That proved to be too victory. It was Atlanta's third victory in a row.

"We changed our defense and that takes a lot of effort," Fratello said. "We stopped double-teaming and said, 'Go get your man.' We got up and got after them."

Atlanta hit bottom with 6:28 left in the third quarter, going down 78-61 after Sherman Douglas hit two free throws. The Hawks took wing with a 27-19 burst, hitting the game on a pair of free throws by Cliff Levingston with 1:06 left in the quarter.

Kenny Smith sparked the run with 10 points and Dominique Wilkins had six of his 36.

The Hawks took the lead for good early in the fourth quarter on a basket by Alexander Volkov and stretched the advantage to 102-94 as Spud Webb and John Battle sandwiched baskets around two Levingston free throws.

The Heat chopped the lead to two points on three occasions, the last when Kevin Edwards scored from the right side with 5:10 to play.

Wilkins then scored four points in a 6-0 run and the Hawks steadily pulled away to hand the Heat its eighth consecutive loss on the road.

Elsewhere, it was Philadelphia 129, Orlando 110 and San Antonio 105, Sacramento 96.

"They were very aggressive in the second half," Miami's Grant Long said of Atlanta. "They just

Forfeit win

BIG SPRING — It may go down as one of the easiest — and strangest — wins the Big Spring Steers have ever had.

The Steers won their season opener when the Abilene Wylie Bulldogs forfeited the contest in the middle of the first inning. For the books, the score will read 7-0.

Big Spring barely had time to break a sweat before the game was called.

In the top of the first, Russell Stalaland hit a one-out single to center field for the Bulldogs. He then stole second and attempted to come home on Mark Horn's ground-out to Big Spring catcher Eric Torres.

Stalaland, however, attempted to bowl Torres over instead of sliding. The umpire called the Wylie player out, then ejected him.

After arguing the call with the umpires for several minutes, the Wylie coach then forfeited the game.

The Steers will return to action Thursday-Saturday when the host Big Spring Invitational Baseball tournament at Steer Park. Game times will be announced later.

KU no. 1 again

The Kansas Jayhawks, who have beaten everybody on their schedule but Missouri, grabbed the top spot in the Associated Press poll back from their Big Eight Conference rivals after the Tigers' loss at Oklahoma. The Sooners moved up from 11th to a tie for fifth, giving the Big Eight three teams in the top five, with Missouri at No. 3 behind UNLV.

Connecticut moved up from sixth to fourth, ahead of Duke and Oklahoma, which tied for fifth. Georgetown, Michigan, Purdue and Syracuse rounded out the Top 10.

Georgia Tech led the second 10, followed by Arkansas, La Salle, Michigan State, Louisiana State, Oregon State, Minnesota, Illinois, Xavier of Ohio and Clemson.

The final five ranked teams are Louisville, Loyola Marymount, Arizona, New Mexico State and Georgia.

Offer for Stars

TORONTO (AP) — Compuware Corp., a Michigan-based computer software company with a long involvement in hockey but never at the pro level, made a conditional offer for the NHL Minnesota North Stars.

Jim Rutherford, Compuware's director of hockey operations, wouldn't say how much the company offered North Stars owners George and Gordon Gund, but he did say the company plans to keep the team in Minnesota.

The Gundts have said they are seeking a minimum of $50 million — identical to the league's asking price for future expansion franchises.

Rutherford, a former NHL goalie, said he would meet Wednesday with North Stars president Lou Nanne.

The Gundts, who say the team has not made money in three years, have asked the NHL for permission to move the North Stars to California.

Still, Green saw room for improvement in his team's effort.

"We gave up too many second shots," he said. "If we had rebounded at all, it would have been a 25-to-30-point game."

With the win, the Hawks can now set their sights squarely on the upcoming match with conference co-leader South Plains. The Texans and the Hawks will meet Thursday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Green said the Texans will try to slow the tempo down against the Hawks. "They'll do everything they can to slow it down," he said. "It's the biggest game of the year."

three, maybe four, years ago," said Clad Davis, whose son Corby earned a dozen athletic letters before graduating in 1988. "When Corby, Phillip Lenox, Clay Cole and Steve Smets were sophomores, people knew then that they were going to be something special in basketball. A couple of years before that, when Laura Lenox (the daughter of former Texas A&M star Bennie Lenox) was playing, the girls had a playoff team. But it really began with those young kids on that 1985-86 boys team, the first year Rusty Segler coached here."

From a 15-15 team, Segler, with the addition of transfer guard Darren Masur, assembled Class 2A state runner-up squads in both 1987 and 1988. After Segler went to Concordia Lutheran College in spring 1988, he was succeeded by Danny Henderson, an assistant at Killen. Henderson's first team, in 1989, was a surprise Region 4 Class 3A runner-up to state champion San Antonio Cole and is 22-9 this season.

"The support is unbelievable," Segler said. "Our game against Archer City in 1988 drew about 12,000, a record for a Class 2A state finals game."

"They love their basketball," Segler said. "We had people get on the refs during the years I coached there, but I never saw anything really out of line. They're enthusiastic; they love their team."

While Lenox — a 3,000-point career scorer — and his teammates twice fell just short of the state championship, the girls program also came back to life. The catalyst was Coach Tanya Lott, whose points, Lawson pulled down 14 boards.

In the second half Howard really took over. Western Texas came out of its zone, and Howard guards Kim Robinson and Monique proceeded to dissect the WTC defense with their pinpoint passing.

Cashing in on their passing were the likes of Ana Carroll, Lisa Moore, Mulu Tosi, and a host of others. All but one of the Howard players scored in the game. Carroll had a strong second half. After being held scoreless in the first half, she scored 10 points in the second period.

WTC tried to stay close to Howard early in the second half, but the outside shooting of forward Bobbi Brown wasn't enough. Brown got hot and nailed four three-pointers in the second half, and finished the game with 25 points, 20 coming in the last 20 minutes of play.

Brown hit a three-pointer and WTC pulled to within 31-19 with 18:20 left to play. But that's as close as the Dusters would get as Howard outscored the home team 7-2 over the next four minutes. When Cook fed Tosi, who pulled off a three-point play, Howard had the game well in hand, leading 62-42 with 4:20 left to play.

"We played them four times this year, and we knew the things they wanted to do," said Royce Chadwick. "They've had a lot of injuries this season, and they're not as deep as we are. The last half we played about as good as I anticipated."

"We've been off 11 days and I was afraid we would be rusty, and we were. We showed the effect of that layoff. I told them at halftime that we were probably going to win the game. I told them we could roll over on our back like a possum, or we could look like a playoff team; and we looked like a playoff team."

Waters led a balanced Howard scoring attack with 19 points. Carroll was the other Lady Hawks in double figures with 10. Fetcher and Williams scored 9 points each.

The Lady Hawks will conclude regular season play Thursday when they host South Plains at 6 p.m.

turned it up."

"We were not able to match their intensity," said Miami coach Ron Rothstein, ejected in the final minute when he got his second technical foul. "We began to get tentative on defense and then we became tentative on offense."

Malone had 27 points and 11 rebounds and Kevin Willis had 14 points and 14 rebounds for Atlanta.

Rony Seikaly led the Heat with 26 points, 16 in the first half. Glen Rice had 23 points, Edwards 20 and Douglas 13 points along with a career-high 17 assists.

"I feel very comfortable right now," said Smith, a recent acquisition in a trade with Sacramento.

coming back to New York," he said.

A delay in negotiations puts April 2 season openers at risk. Owners and players each say a minimum of three weeks of spring training is needed plus several days for players to travel to camps.

Commissioner Fay Vincent, commenting late in the day to reporters gathered around his desk, talked quietly about the failure to reach agreement.

"The season is in very heavy jeopardy," he said.

Vincent sympathized with fans, recalling his own feelings during the 50-day strike in 1981.

"I think that the ordinary fans doesn't give a damn about the issues," he said. "All the fan cares about is the appearance, and the appearance is that of two giant organizations overwhelmed with riches, fighting in circumstances where there's a national obligation or trust at stake. I find it tragic to the point of absurdity."

So do some of the nation's governors. Fourteen of them sent a letter to Vincent on Monday, calling the labor dispute "a national disgrace."

"Baseball is too important to our country — both economically and culturally — to allow this to drag on," the letter said.

Although minimum salary, the benefit plan and roster size are still in dispute, both sides agree that arbitration eligibility is the key. The union claims it conceded the issue in 1985 only because management pleaded financial distress. Management says it got the year back as part of the overall bargain.

"I'm just trying to work in and get as many minutes as I can to help the team. In the second half we picked up the defensive intensity and challenged their shots."

"It was a sluggish night," Battle said. "In the third, we just said to ourselves: 'We can't be doing this.'"

76ers 129, Magic 110

Charles Barkley had 25 points as Philadelphia handed Orlando its seventh straight defeat, dropping the Magic to 4-25 on the road.

Rick Mahorn had 14 points and 15 rebounds for the 76ers, who had seven players score in double figures to offset a career-high 36 points and 15 rebounds by Orlando's Sidney Green.

A layup by Barkley gave the 76ers a 17-16 lead midway through the first quarter. Philadelphia led thereafter in improving its home record to 22-4.

Hersey Hawkins scored 22 points and Mike Gminski 20 for Philadelphia. Reggie Theus had 26 points and Michael Ansley 14 for Orlando.

Spurs 105, Kings 96

Terry Cummings scored 10 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter, leading San Antonio over Sacramento.

Willie Anderson and David Robinson had 19 points apiece and Rod Strickland 18 as San Antonio won its third straight game.

posals out of the union that would say, 'OK, short of giving us the whole year back, this would bridge the gap.'"

Dave Gallagher of the Chicago White Sox said the union's view of the arbitration issue was correct.

"I'd rather wait this out and see something done because it's had a negative effect on me the last two seasons," said Gallagher, nine days short of two years service. "I feel strongly about the strength of the union. They don't want the younger players to be sacrificed."

San Diego player representative Dennis Rasmussen agreed. "I feel strongly that we should get that year back," he said, "and I think that's the overall feeling of the majority of players."

The owners did offer one new proposal Monday: to allow the parties to reopen the contract after three years instead of two. And management said it has offered to guarantee triple damages for collusion if the union proves it against seven or more teams.

"I know very well that we were not lunatics or unreasonable people," Milwaukee owner Bud Selig said. "We are not asking for any givebacks."

Selig, chairman of the Player Relations Committee, delivered an emotional defense of the PRC strategy and of revenue sharing. He talked of his love for baseball and of the scars he felt from the 1981 strike.

"I really believe we are partners," he said of management's relationship with the players. "I'm still naive. I really believe that."

for 12 years athletic director and head football coach before moving to Gonzales last month, changed boosters' outlook on the total sports program at Liberty Hill.

"There's no question that he changed attitudes, both in the kids and the community," Segler said of Braun, whose 1984, 1987 and 1989 teams were the school's only playoff squads in seven decades of football.

"He was committed to all sports," Segler said. "If he hadn't been, he could have made it very tough for me. Kids who wanted to play more than one sport had his total support and all the sports were, and are, competitive."

Davis, a former school board member who assisted in a drive for a new high school opened in 1986, said Liberty Hill is a lure for coaches because it blends rural environment and proximity to Austin.

"We moved here from Austin 15 years ago," said Davis. "We still think it was the best thing we ever did. My daughter, Paige, is a varsity player now and Corby played just about everything."

Sports, Davis declared, didn't figure in the move. Other move-in families with rich basketball pedigrees — Lenox, Cole, Hastings — all say the same thing, despite enormous contributions made by their offspring.

After Laura Lenox keyed a drive to the 1983 girls playoffs, her cousin Phillip, the son of former Southwest Texas State star Curley Lenox, finished with 3,103 career points and Class 2A all-state laurels as a senior. Clay Cole, the son of former McCallum guard Vernon Cole, was a teammate of Lenox for four years and his two younger brothers, Ryan and Christian.

Names in the news

BRASELTON, Ga. (AP) — Actress Kim Basinger hooked up with a Chicago company to help pay the $20 million price tag for this Georgia town.

Her partner is American Information Technologies, one of seven so-called baby Bells formed in the breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

"We have invested in the property in and around Braselton," company spokesman Steve Ford told the Gwinnett Daily News in an interview published Tuesday.

"We're investing where we think there's an opportunity for good long-term growth," he said.

Neither the company, known as

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Mariel Hemingway and other celebrities bugged about aerial pesticide spraying against the Medfly were among hundreds of protesters demanding a halt to the overhead dustings.

Actor John Ratzenberger, who portrays letter carrier Cliff Clavin on "Cheers," and actress Allyce Beasley, who played secretary Agnes Dipesto on "Moonlighting," also turned out for a demonstration Monday at the federal building on the city's west side.

"It seems those politicians with a head-in-the-sand attitude are building a gallows with this issue, and I'm more than happy to be standing up there with the rope," Ratzenberger said.

Critics say too little is known about malathion's long-term effects on humans.
