Teen 'hanging in there' after accident

Copyright, Big Spring Herald

Staff Writer
ABILENE — Stanton High School freshman Brandon McAnally, 15, remains in critical but stable condition at a hospital here following a hunting accident in Stonewall County Feb. 25 in which a 22-caliber bullet was lodged in the back of his skull.
"He's stable but still critical," said his father, Billy McAnally, on Saturday. "It's real touchy but it looks good. He's hanging in there."

Fears earlier during the week that Brandon, a lifelong resident of Martin County, might suffer paralysis on his right side have now subsided somewhat, Billy said.
"He has had some paralysis to the right side but he is now responding to pain stimuli (such as pinching)," he said. "He'll open his eyes now and flinch."

Brandon, who has been under sedation all week in the critical care unit of Hendrick

Memorial Trauma Center, has not yet regained full consciousness, Billy McAnally said.
However, before being sedated Thursday, Brandon appeared to be coming out of it, he said. "The doctor said he thought that he (Brandon) knew something was going on around him."
When the accident happened, a bullet went through Brandon's right shoulder, missing the bone, and then entered the base of his skull and traveled to the upper left side of his skull, his father said.

"It is in the brain but it is of no concern now," Billy said. "They (doctors) said where it is, it's not hurting anything."
As long as there is no hemorrhaging or infection, the bullet will remain there, he said. "If it doesn't cause any complications it might

Jury gives Gray 40-year sentence

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer
COLORADO CITY — Travis Dale Gray was sentenced Friday to 40 years in prison for the strangulation and drowning death of his wife.
Travis Gray was found guilty of first degree murder in the June 23, 1988, death of his first wife, Tammy Gray. Gray, of Big Spring, maintained his innocence as the guilty verdict was read.
"I didn't do it, Momma," Gray told his mother in a hushed voice as he cried in her arms.

thank everyone in Big Spring and Colorado City that helped us."
Jurors for the 32nd District Court in Mitchell County reached their guilty verdict after breaking an 8-4 deadlock in about 5 hours of deliberations. It took them less than 30 minutes to reach the 40-year prison sentence.
The prosecution had sought a life sentence.
"The state's position is that it ought to be a life for a life," said Gary Harger, assistant district attorney. "Just as (Tammy Gray) couldn't be back, he shouldn't be able to come back."
Defense attorney Michael McLeaish told jurors before they returned their sentence that Gray has no previous criminal record and that he has two children to care for from the marriage to the woman he is convicted of murdering. McLeaish also reminded jurors of their previous deadlock concerning Gray's guilt.
Prosecutor Harger concluded his case: "Just remember the death occurred at the hands of this man on the back of her throat."
Gray chose to make a brief statement following the jury's decision. "It's the stupidest thing, to think I killed my wife," he said tearfully after the 40-year sentence was pro-ed sentence.

Patsy Payne, the mother of Tammy Gray, responded without a show of emotion in the courtroom Friday. Declining comment immediately after the sentencing, she said on Saturday she is happy the trial is finished.
"I'm just glad that it's all over after waiting all this time. I want to

"I know you didn't," his mother replied softly. Gray, his wife Melissa Gray and his mother and father huddled together briefly after the jury pronounced sentence.

Mayor vetoes rate increase ordinance

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor
BIG SPRING — Mayor Max Green has vetoed the City Council's approval of a 40 percent garbage collection rate increase.
According to city officials, Green vetoed the action on Friday, giving City Manager Hal Boyd a written notice listing his reasons for rejection. On Tuesday, Feb. 27, the council voted 4-2, with Green abstaining, to pass the rate increase.
The council will have to consider the measure again during their regular meeting on Tuesday, March 6.

The increase will raise private home owners' garbage collection rates from $5 to $7 each month. Businesses also face a 40 percent increase in collection rates, and the ordinance included an increase in landfill rates.
City officials had asked for the increases to fund a variety of needs, including a state garbage tax and costs the city expects from proposed Environmental Protection Agency regulations for landfills.
The 40 percent increase would boost utility fund revenues almost 29 percent, according to Tom Decell, city public works director. Decell said the new revenues will be divided as required in the ordinance into these accounts:

MAX GREEN

In his notice to Boyd and the City Council, Green said he vetoed the rate increase because there are several problems with the resolution, including the hastiness of the council's action and the cost to citizens.

- State garbage tax — about $13,000 each year.
- Payments to the capital revolving fund for a loan made this year to purchase garbage containers — a total of $8,500 must be repaid.
- Regulatory agency surcharge

Trade summit ends with no resolutions

By TERENCE HUNT

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — President Bush and Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu concluded their desert summit Saturday with no breakthrough on divisive trade issues but mutual promises to redouble efforts for resolving disputes.
Kaifu said "I am determined to firmly tackle" the underlying causes of the $49 billion trade deficit with the United States and other economic conflicts.
"Make no mistake about it, I want to see that deficit come down," Bush said, standing alongside Kaifu under a blazing sun near a lush golf course at a country club where they held two days of talks.

Despite the contentious problems, the two leaders went out of their way to show personal warmth and friendship.
Bush called the prime minister "Toshiki, my friend," and the Japanese leader referred to the president three times as "George."
Despite the lack of any major agreements, the upbeat tone of the talks could give a political boost to Kaifu, who lacks a broad base of support in his party. "May you have great success in your efforts in the coming months," Bush said. "You have our full support."

CIA link probed

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence will investigate a possible link between the CIA and 22 failed savings and loans, The Houston Post said today.

In a series of articles, The Post has suggested possible links between the intelligence agency, organized crime and the failed thrifts.

Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the financial institution subcommittee, said a probe by his staff has concluded that at least some of the allegations reported by the newspaper have some validity.

Highwaymen

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Waylon Jennings says this month's concert tour with fellow country music stars Johnny Cash, Kris Kristofferson and Willie Nelson could revitalize all of them.

The four will make a 10-city American concert tour beginning Saturday night in Houston. They are known as "the Highwaymen," the name of two albums they have recorded together.

It will be their first joint tour. "I think we're going to find when we get through doing this, that it's going to breathe new life into us," Jennings told a news conference Thursday.

Kristofferson said he hopes the tour can eventually expand overseas.

"We want to take this all over the world — play Moscow, Berlin, Sydney ... Tokyo," he said.

Democrats trade jabs day after debate

DALLAS (AP) — The top three Democratic candidates for governor on Saturday were putting the best face possible on results of their latest and most ferocious televised debate.

State Treasurer Ann Richards, former Gov. Mark White and Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox each defended statements or positions on conceivably negative issues they were asked to talk about before the March 13 primary.

Ms. Richards, whose lead has faltered since the last debate Feb. 7, took another hit when she was asked again Friday night whether she has ever taken illegal drugs.

As in the first debate, Ms. Richards, a recovering alcoholic, responded by saying the question was unfair and would influence people not to seek recovery from drug or alcohol addiction.

"By continuing to raise the question in the dialogue of this campaign... we are sending a very sad message to people who need help that they will forever bear — regardless of what their addictior — questions about whether or not they are fit to serve and whether they are recovered," Ms. Richards said.

When asked a second time by the debate panel, she stated the position again, but did not say yes or no.

White and Mattox each in turn said, "I have never used illegal drugs."

An obviously upset Richards campaign worker contacted Saturday by The Associated Press said Ms. Richards has "said all she's going to say on the matter."

In a subsequent written statement, Mark McKinnon, communications director for Ms. Richards said: "Ann is not going to say 'yes' or 'no' and make all the people who have a drug problem feel like if they get help it won't make any difference.

"They must not feel like no one will ever forgive them or let them forget it," he said.

But Mattox said the Republicans will press Ms. Richards on the issue if she wins the Democratic primary March 13.

"They may try," McKinnon said. "But I think the general public understands how much courage it's taken for Ann Richards to deal with this as she has."

While Ms. Richards grappled with the illegal drug issue, Mattox faced questioning about not having disclosed copies of his income tax return in light of GOP television commercials examining contribu-

Texans targeted

DALLAS (AP) — Defense attorneys in Memphis, Tenn., say the sheriff has targeted cars with Texas license plates in his interstate drug interdiction program.

Some lawyers and the director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Tennessee contend that Sheriff Jack Owens has targeted cars with Texas license plates for random stops and searches.

"Texans better go around Memphis, don't go through Mississippi," said Charles Baucum, a lawyer with the Shelby County public defender's office. "With a Texas license plate, you'd better be careful."

Owens, known as "Rambo Jack," said Friday that Shelby County deputies are only enforcing traffic laws. When they stop drivers, he said, deputies seek permission to search cars only when they have reason to suspect contraband. And if they find drugs, he said, "that's just a bonus."

Baucum said he has represented virtually all of the suspects charged with felony drug offenses through the interdiction program because he handles all felony court preliminary hearings for the public defenders' office.

"I can say that 95 percent of the cases resulting from that program are Texans," he said. "I guess they average three Texans a day. That's about 15 or 20 Texans a week. And about half are Spanish-speaking persons, Mexican-looking people with Texas cars."

Hunting ban

ATHENS (AP) — A state agency disputes claims by a national animal protection agency that it has succeeded in banning deer hunting on Texas public lands, according to a published report Sunday.

The Athens Daily Review reported in a copyright series that the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department denies it plans to discontinue public hunting under pressure from the Fund for Animals Inc. of New York.

No recommendation has been brought to the commission suggesting that we stop public hunts on state parks," TPW commission chairman Chuck Nash of San Marcos told the newspaper.

Fire kills five children, one adult

TURTLE CREEK, Pa. (AP) — A quick-moving house fire killed six people Saturday, including five young children spending the night together after a birthday party.

One man was hospitalized with injuries suffered in the early-morning blaze that destroyed the three-story home about 10 miles east of Pittsburgh.

Two neighbor children who stayed overnight after attending an eighth birthday party for Joshua Harris were killed, along with Joshua and two siblings, said Allegheny County homicide Lt. John Brennan.

Several neighborhood children who left the party just after nightfall gathered near the burned remains of the home Saturday afternoon while firefighters cleared away debris.

"I finally made a good friend here, and now he's gone," Kevin Cook, 10, said.

"It's lucky we have something to remember him by," Richard Leiche, 5, said. "We have the party invitation and the Batman toys we won for prizes during the games."

The fire burned for about 1 1/2 hours before firefighters brought it under control, authorities said. The blaze spread to houses on each side of the Harris home, but their residents were unhurt, police said.

The cause was under investigation.

Furor erupts over record warning

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Warning: this story may contain explicit descriptions of legislation designed to brand recordings with sexually graphic or violent lyrics.

Pennsylvania's record-labeling bill, pending in the state Senate, has whipped up a coast-to-coast controversy pitting fearful parents and conservatives against panicky record producers, retailers and musicians.

Supporters of the bill, citing tunes such as "Me So Horny" and "Necrophilia," say they are determined to save children from ruining their lives by monitoring their buying and listening habits. They cite cases of teen-agers who they say have committed murder or suicide before, during or after listening to objectionable songs.

Opponents charge the measure would be an invasion of their constitutional rights. They say the labels would be unnecessary and would inhibit creativity.

State Rep. Ron Gamble, the measure's sponsor, has touted it on "Entertainment Tonight," National Public Radio's "Morning Edition" and in newspapers nationwide.

"I didn't dream there would be such interest in the bill, it wasn't like I had a big news conference. I just introduced it and that was it," he said. "But it seems to have caught on... we've had calls from California to Florida to Detroit."

Under the measure, which has passed the state House and is now pending in the Senate, every record, tape or compact disc sold in Pennsylvania containing obscene lyrics would have to bear a fluorescent warning label. About a dozen states are considering similar bills.

KGB defector goes public

WASHINGTON (AP) — A KGB defector, who is looking for a publisher for the book he's written, is going public with tales of alleged Soviet involvement in a plot to kill the pope and spies inside the State Department.

Victor Ivanovich Sheymov, once KGB agent 04035, said Friday that in the late 1970s the Soviet Union had two sources inside the State Department able to deliver secret information on U.S. policy and negotiating positions.

But he said he had no idea who they might be.

He also said he was present in the Warsaw station of the KGB in 1979 when a cable arrived from Moscow ordering what he believed to be the initial stages of a plot to assassinate Pope John Paul II.

Nearly a decade after the CIA arranged his disappearance from Moscow on May 15, 1980,

VICTOR SHEYMOV
Sheymov, 43, held a news conference to tell at least some of his story in public and to announce: "I have written a book and am thinking how to publish it."

NEW YORK — Picketers show their solidarity against Greyhound outside the Port Authority Bus Terminal in New York Saturday morning.

Striking bus driver killed on picket line

By ROGER PETERSON
Associated Press Writer

A striking Greyhound Lines Inc. bus driver was hit by a coach and killed on a picket line Saturday, and a judge in Chicago issued a court order against violence in the walkout at the nation's biggest bus line.

The Interstate Commerce Commission began taking applications from smaller bus companies that wanted to temporarily provide service on Greyhound routes.

There were scattered angry confrontations between strikers and replacement drivers, although union leaders appealed for calm.

When the strike began Friday, many passengers were stranded as trips were canceled and some routes halted midway through when drivers walked off the job.

One striking driver was killed Saturday at Redding, Calif., when he was caught between a building and a bus driven by a temporary driver, police said. The driver left the accident scene, and he and his bus were stopped outside Redding, said Officer Gary Hughes.

The victim was a 30-year veteran driver planning to retire this year, said members of Local 1384 of the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions.

"I cannot accurately say if it was intentional or if it was just an unfortunate incident," said Redding police investigator Ole Olson. He said the driver was held for questioning but police said he hadn't been arrested.

During the bus line's last strike, in 1983, a striking Greyhound driver was killed near Zanesville, Ohio, when he was run over while standing in front of a bus being used to train replacement drivers. A grand jury declined to indict.

The Amalgamated Council, which represents more than 9,000 employees, including all 6,300 drivers and most maintenance and office workers, went on strike Friday after negotiators in Scottsdale, Ariz., failed to reach agreement on pay issues. No talks were scheduled.

Greyhound said it was operating 20 percent of its system with 700 newly hired replacement drivers, plus an unspecified number of union drivers who crossed picket lines.

In Chicago, two people were slightly injured by flying glass Friday when a sniper fired two shots at a Greyhound bus leaving the city, Illinois State Police said. Passengers on a bus arriving in Des Moines, Iowa, also said strikers fired four shots at their bus as it left Chicago.

Late Friday, a Cook County judge in Chicago issued a temporary restraining order restricting picketing at Greyhound's Chicago terminal and garage. The order also prohibits union officials from directly or indirectly causing the use of any violence or force.

Three men threw rocks at a bus late Friday in Philadelphia, breaking windows and bruising a passenger. Police said the bus, carrying 15 passengers from Washington, stopped about two blocks from Philadelphia's downtown bus terminal when several women jumped in front of it. When the bus stopped, three men ran beside it, throwing rocks that broke two windows and a rear-view mirror. Two men were arrested.

Bomb injures 16 servicemen

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A bomb tossed through the window of a downtown discotheque wounded 16 American servicemen, one seriously, military and hospital officials said Saturday. Eleven Panamanians also were hurt.

It was believed to be the first such attack on U.S. servicemen since the United States invaded Panama on Dec. 20 and overthrew the government of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

There was no known motive for Friday night's assault, nor was any claim of responsibility made, said Lt. Cmdr. Peggy Black, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Southern Command.

Panama's Judicial Technical Police, in charge of the investigation, gave no details, but an official said "it was against the grings." He asked not to be identified and did not elaborate. "We don't know what it was," said Lt. Col. Terry Jones, another Southern Command spokesman. "They're investigating that it's possible it could have been a grenade."

In Washington, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told CNN that two grenades may have been thrown into the building from passing cars, but Jones said only one explosive was hurled.

The bomb was thrown about 11:30 p.m. at My Place, a discotheque on Via Espana, a main thoroughfare of stores, hotels, banks and other businesses in Panama City.

The injuries apparently were caused by the explosion and by flying glass from broken windows, Jones said.

President, cardinal join at Mass

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega attended a Mass of reconciliation Saturday and joined the nation's top Roman Catholic leader in appealing for peace as the Sandinista party transfers power to a new opposition government.

"I thought it was very important to send a message in favor of peace because I think the situation is very tense," Ortega said after the Mass.

Ortega and his Sandinista National Liberation Front lost last Sunday's presidential elections to Violeta Barrios de Chamorro of the United National Opposition.

In a speech that has won him admiration and respect from friends and foes alike, Ortega accepted defeat and pledged to help carry out a smooth transition of power.

His attendance at the Mass was another part of his effort to set an example in an effort to cool passions.

Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo praised Ortega for gracefully accepting defeat in the election, calling it "a gesture in favor of democracy and freedom... a gesture of greatness."

"We are here to pray for peace," said Obando y Bravo, who hails from Ortega's hometown of La Libertad.

"We cannot have peace if there is hatred in the heart. Only from a heart at peace can come a desire for peace," he said.

Many in the rank and file of the Sandinista party fear that their revolutionary social measures may be undone by the new government.

A 'Romania in the making'?

SRINAGAR, India (AP) — The appeal came from loudspeakers strung across mosques and by word of mouth: "100,000 people have taken shelter in mosques. They are hungry. We need food."

Within minutes, Moslem housewives collected their pots and pans. Within an hour, huge dinners of rice and vegetable curry were ready.

The food was passed from hand to hand across narrow alleys and from rooftop to rooftop to avoid Indian patrols, until it reached the mosques that dot this city of nearly 1 million people.

"The appeal was for food, and it came. If the appeal goes for giving one's life, that will come too," said Mohammad Ramzan, a 74-year-old retired government employee.

Moslems in the Kashmir Valley seem ready for a full-scale battle for independence.

DEAR CITIZENS OF HOWARD COUNTY

I want to tell you about myself and why I am running for the position as YOUR County Judge.

I have lived and worked in Howard County all my life. I do not consider myself a politician. I am a concerned citizen willing to dedicate myself as a public servant to give back to Howard County a small portion of what I received.

I am convinced that I can be the kind of leader Howard County wants and deserves in the office of County Judge. I've earned a reputation as an ethical, hard working, persistent leader. I believe you want a County Judge who is PROFESSIONAL in the approach to the job; who is an advocate for the people; and certainly, one who brings integrity to every action.

I understand the many facets of the office of County Judge, its purpose, and its responsibilities. I offer my candidacy as an experienced, knowledgeable and efficient public servant. I would put professionalism above politics; competence, effectiveness and efficiency as my mayor aims in carrying out the duties of the office. I pledge to listen to, communicate with, and be open to the TOTAL population.

There are certain basic beliefs that I would carry to the position if I'm elected — as I carried into the role of Mayor. Those basic beliefs are that I would work...

...to see that we get a dollar value for every dollar we spend;

...to purchase in Howard County in every possible case;

...to bring all entities together for a cooperative force to move Howard County forward;

...to make the office accessible to everyone through an open door policy

I believe I have the ability to lead and motivate people. I know I am a positive-thinking, problem-solving type of individual. The attitudes, issues and concerns of Howard County are diverse but there are unifying themes. While everyone's opinions are important, there comes a time when we have to decide on a course of action and pull together.

I am ready. I am committed. I am totally dedicated to this task. I can give solid leadership, integrity, experience, professionalism and advocacy. I offer my candidacy and, if you believe in these principles, I hope you will support me with your votes.

Sincerely,

A new judge in 118th District

Welcome to the bench, Robert Moore III. The man who has assumed responsibility for the 118th District Court gavel of Judge James Gregg dons his robe after an established career as a most credible lawyer. The fact Judge Moore was raised here is no prerequisite for his task. It's heartening, however, to see a local individual of character and accomplishment succeed to such a level.

"The logical man for the job," said one observer. Well said.

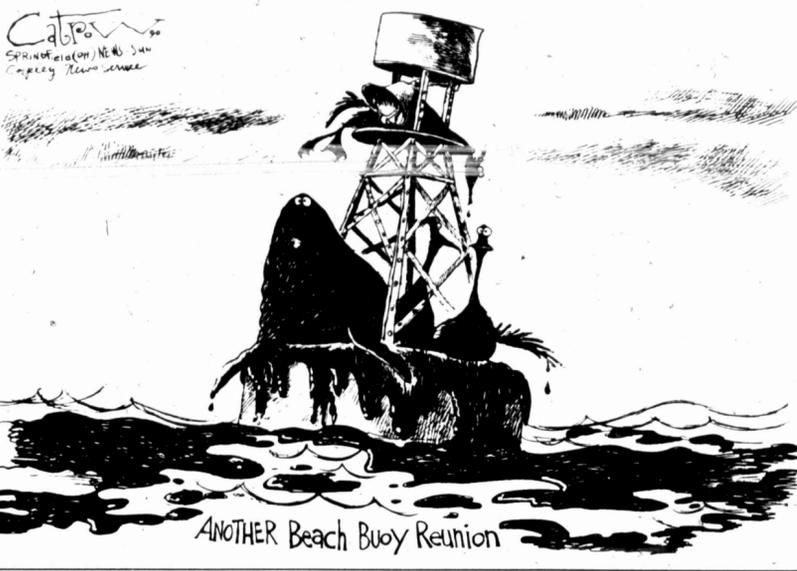

The position of judge, particularly the role played by a District Judge, requires the fairness of a referee to see that the rules are followed by the players and that the record states the facts. The job also requires compassion and a depth of understanding of the law.

Judge Moore has proven himself as a good person, a lawyer with a good practice and a friend of this community with a deft touch. Citizens of Howard, Martin and Glasscock Counties should be able to expect a performance from the bench that reflects two decades of distinguished service, thanks to his appointment.

Probably the most widely-respected attorney among fellow members of the bar in Big Spring and beyond, Moore has illustrated his competency and level-headed approach. A successful relationship as counsel for Colorado River Municipal Water District benefited the District as well as the career of Judge Moore.

We look forward to an open-minded, common sense approach by the man who has been assigned the responsibility of ensuring fairness and equality in this district courtroom.

With those tasks in mind, and acknowledging the crucial need for blind justice in the lawsuit-happy society in which we live, Robert Moore III appears very much to be the most logical for the job.

Mailbag

He's looking for leaders and builders of Big Spring

To the editor:

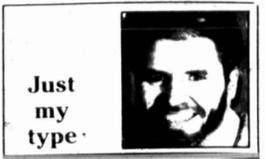

After reading Thursday's paper with the article about Carrie Dunnam, I would offer an observation. First of all, I do not want to cast judgment on the recall petition, as I believe that in a democracy the majority opinion will prevail.

I do wish to comment on the fact that Ms. Dunnam said, quote "My political career is over, my job is done." In a previous article, Pat DeAnda had no wish whatever to run for mayor or even offer suggestions as to who she would support. Gail Earls has voiced the same sentiment.

As an outside viewpoint I would offer this: What we are seeing here is exactly what is wrong with Big Spring, and America as a whole. How easy it is to point out problems without offering solutions. Since when is it a commendable thing to tear down what someone else has built, and then walk away self-righteously with not even a suggestion as to how to rebuild it correctly, much less actually lend a hand.

I think Big Spring has had enough negative criticism and sideline quarterbacks, what we need is active people with leadership ability that aren't afraid to point out solutions and then lead the way and leave the problem-pointers to themselves. Am I wrong?

Consider also the victims

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
Publisher

For the second time in fewer than four months a Big Spring man has been sentenced to serve prison time upon conviction of causing the death of his wife.

No prison sentence can be long enough to return Carlye Dunn or Tammy Gray their lives, their children and their families. Their lives have ended; the brutal finality is the realization that no action on earth can change what has occurred.

Family violence is one of the harshest realities of our time. Beatings, abuse and, too often, deaths resulting from such violence in the home breeds more of the same as children are exposed to such senseless strife. When administered by the hands of the very people who should be planting seeds of conscience and morality in these children, family violence becomes the accepted norm. Instead of seeds of goodness, these children are the unfortunate recipients of the worst kind of lesson to be taught; another generation of misery and violence is on its way.

Big Spring has no corner on this market. Howard County, 118th District Court, even all of West Texas, show the same human failures as all of humanity when it comes to such situations. It is an excuse, mind you, but it is the reality of our lives.

So, is there any good to come out of the tragic and violent deaths of two women who deserved every opportunity to watch their children grow, hug their grandchildren and gaze into a West Texas sunset? A 50-year sentence, a 75-year sentence, a lifetime, a dozen lifetimes — none of them can make any difference to the women whose ended lives prompted the sentencing.

There is solace, however slight, in the realization that jurors in West Texas are giving what appears to be far greater consideration to the victims, whose voices on the subject of their husbands' violence have been silenced.

"Put yourself in his shoes," has long been an accepted argument by defense attorneys who plead their client's case in seeking the most lenient of punishments once the conviction has been reached. "There are children to be tended, paychecks to be earned, a mother and a father who don't want to see their son locked away," jurors are told.

All of this has been the message jurors hear while looking at a defendant — now convicted — who has been trained to behave properly in court, nudged along on the niceties of body language and eye contact, and cleaned up and dressed to best accomplish the purposes of his defense.

I suggest nothing improper with all of that, and would expect any defense attorney worth his salt to do everything within his power.

For some people who watch the activity of courts in West Texas, however, sentencing for these two recent deaths of wives by their husbands — and a few earlier cases — there occurs the impression of a shift of sorts.

The shoes of the victims, figuratively speaking, are being shown for the benefit of the jurors. "Step into these shoes for a moment, ladies and gentlemen," is a logical response. This is an encouraging development.

The fact that they seem to be open and receptive to an argument of stepping into the shoes of the person whose life has been snuffed out is a credit to the integrity of people sitting on the jury. This doesn't argue in favor of biased juries, it begs for openmindedness; this doesn't argue that victims have any more rights than defendants, it begs for a realization that the deceased victim deserves rights, too, in such cases.

The prosecution that makes clear the impact on the victim and her children is serving the state in a superior manner and performing a service for all who might find themselves in such circumstances.

As did the death of Carlye Dunn, Tammy Gray's demise will soon disappear from the news pages and our lives will go forward. If nothing else, spouses have been sent a necessary message and we can only hope that it is heeded.

And now, I'd pray, may Tammy rest in peace.

Memories Jim Mattox would prefer to bury

By JESSE TREVINO

Observers watching the efforts of the Jim Mattox campaign for governor attempting to associate State Treasurer Ann Richards with remarks that could have racial overtones might want to ask Mattox himself about some statements he made in a meeting Dec. 2, 1987 in Austin.

Whether Richards said "white woman" in Houston or whether she used the term "wetback" more than a decade ago has been disputed for the last three weeks, but what Mattox said at that meeting was recorded in notes made by the participants.

The meeting was held in the seventh floor conference room of the Texas Supreme Court Building at 10 o'clock. It ran for 90 minutes. The purpose of the meeting was "the possibility (sic) of settlement of education civil rights cases still pending," according to notes made of the meeting.

Attending the meeting were Mattox, Assistant Attorney General Mary Keller, San Antonio attorney Frank Herrera, Al Kaufman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund and Dr. Jose

Cardenas of the Intercultural Development Research Association. Mattox himself, questioned about it after the meeting happened, denied he ever uttered the statements captured in the memorandum of the meeting.

The participants in the meeting will not talk about it. But their notes and accounts of the meeting were circulated to some Hispanic lawmakers, who can confirm the details of the meeting. Among them is State Rep. Al Luna of Houston, who together with other lawmakers, including State Rep. Juan Hinojosa, who at the time was the vice chairman of the Mexican American Legislative Caucus, confronted Mattox about the remarks. Hinojosa was the principal distributor of the notes. He sent two separate mailings to lawmakers and was the main architect of their meeting with Mattox.

According to accounts from people who talked to the participants, the meeting with the civil rights attorneys started innocently enough, but soon became contentious.

But what happened at that first meeting prompted the second meeting with the lawmakers that one participant said almost brought Mattox and one lawmaker to blows. There was reason for the lawmakers to be passionately angry.

Here are some of the remarks attributed to Mattox by some of the participants in the meeting.

On minority litigation: "It is never ending." "The more you (minorities) get the more you want." "You are never satisfied." "You want it all." "If we settle a court case, you will only sue again." "You don't appreciate the gains which you have made."

"MALDEF (Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund) is the worst (in making litigation demands)."

The notes continue. On minorities' educational abilities: "Minorities score lower (referring to standardized testing) because they have lower educational capabilities than Anglos." Asked if he meant education achievement instead of capabilities, Mattox says: "... the poor performance in the earlier grades lower their educational capabilities." He continued: "Minorities will always perform lower on standardized tests." On minority demands for a better educational system: "You won't settle for anything. You want it all (equity)." "You should be happy with minority gains in education — and not expect full equity." "You are greedy (in wanting educational equity)."

Cardenas after the first meeting sent a letter to Mattox and thanked him.

He wrote: "I also wish to express my regrets and concerns that a copy of the confidential notes on the meeting somehow, and without my knowledge or authorization, were shown and distributed to some legislators from various parts of the state of Texas. My concern is greater in that I do not believe that the notes in question are a valid representation of either the tone or the content of our brief meeting. These notes are taken out of context and represent statements made during the meeting, but they do not depict the context in which the statements were made. The notes do not indicate which statements were made in jest, satire or in some other context and therefore make the contents appear much more negative and derogatory than you or I may have perceived them at the meeting."

Lawmakers, however, who were told of the meeting firsthand maintained that the characterization of the meeting was accurate. The intensity of those feelings was demonstrated in the second meeting with Mattox, when tempers rose and the participants were shouting at Mattox.

But two years later, some of the lawmakers are candidates for public office or are involved in different political campaigns. They would rather the incident not be raised again.

Stenholm urges repeal of 1931 Davis-Bacon Act

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, testified before the budget committee of the U.S. House of Representatives on Friday urging them to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act of 1931 and to adopt a pay-as-you-go budget as a way to start battling the federal deficit.

"According to the Congressional Budget Office baseline projection, the federal government will spend $1.205 trillion on the current fiscal year," Stenholm testified. "That's an average of $5,000 for every man, woman and child in America. The problem is the federal government is collecting less than $4,500 in revenues per person."

Stenholm testified that the CBO estimates the Davis-Bacon Act adds nearly $1.3 billion a year to the government's cost of doing business in the areas of construction, alteration or repair.

The Davis-Bacon Act requires the government to meet prevailing union wage scales when contracting construction projects. This generally favors large, unionized firms who can meet the labor paperwork demands.

President George Bush has included Davis-Bacon Reform in the fiscal year 1991 budget.

"Davis-Bacon is a budget issue because it goes to the question of how efficiently and effectively a part of the federal contracting system works," Stenholm said. "Under the status quo, the government — and therefore the taxpayer — is not getting a dollar's worth of construction for every dollar spent. Repeal of Davis-Bacon would save $6.6 billion in appropriations over the next five years."

Stenholm referred to a broader budget policy, telling the committee that HR 3929, the Pay-As-You-

Go bill, would require that federal spending, except Social Security, not be adjusted for inflation unless each increase was paid for by offsetting savings elsewhere in the budget. The bill, introduced by budget chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., and co-sponsored by Stenholm, would save $28 billion in 1991 and $168 billion over five years.

"The current practice is to assume that every federal program is presumed to deserve immortality," Stenholm testified. "The assumption that everything the government does is automatically entitled to an inflation adjustment, while we still face large, damaging deficits, just defies common sense."

"A $1 billion a year savings may sound small when dealing with a trillion dollar budget."

Portland whites protest naming street after King

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — City leaders had hoped a street named after slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. would foster feelings of hope and pride, but now they worry the backlash will sully Portland's image.

The street name has been met with an organized opposition led by a conservative political veteran. A white supremacist leader joined the opponents, and they collected 52,435 signatures on a ballot initiative to reverse the name change.

A judge nixed their drive on Wednesday, but the opponents appealed Friday with the Oregon Supreme Court in hopes of meeting a March 15 deadline to put the initiative on the May 15 primary ballot.

A civic leader says that the controversy, combined with the 1988 beating death of an Ethiopian immigrant by a group of neo-Nazi "skinheads," may give blacks second thoughts about moving to the city. Three men have received long prison sentences for the beating death.

"Unfortunately, I think the city is going to take a bad rap over this, particularly as we try to attract other people of color to Portland," said Bernie Foster, a member of a citizens' committee that recommended the King street name. "You have to ask what kind of message are we sending."

Teen uses windsurfer to escape from Cuba

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A teenager fleeing Cuba crossed most of the hazardous Florida Straits on a windsurfer that an East German tourist had given him, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Lester Moreno Perez, 17, was in good health after being picked up by a Bahamian freighter about 30 miles south of Key West, Petty Officer James Wentworth said Friday.

The youth had begun the trip from Cuba 16 hours earlier, on Thursday, and had sailed about 60 miles on the windsurfer before it broke, Wentworth said.

"It wasn't a cheap windsurfer," he said. "It was a nice one, it wasn't homemade."

Moreno Perez told Coast Guard officers he was given the Austrian-made, three-meter-long surfboard by an East German tourist who "wanted him to have his freedom," said Petty Officer Richard Rodriguez.

Tax & financial planning

TAX REMINDERS

Several tax deadlines are fast approaching; don't overlook any of these that apply to you:

• March 15 is the due date for filing 1989 calendar year corporation income tax returns. It's also the deadline for filing the necessary papers to elect S corporation status if you choose to do so.

• April 15 is the traditional deadline for filing your individual income tax return. However, this year April 15 falls on a Sunday, so Monday, April 16, is the due date for 1989 individual income tax returns unless you file for an automatic extension. The extension does not give you additional time to pay any 1989 taxes that you still owe, however. Your tax must be estimated and any balance due paid when you file for extension.

• April 16 is the due date for 1989 partnership information returns for calendar year partnerships. 1989 annual gift tax returns are also due. It's the last day to make your 1989 IRA contribution, even if you get an extension to file your tax return. April 16 is the last day to make a 1989 IRA contribution, but this contribution deadline may be extended if you file for a tax return extension. April 16 is also the last day to file an amended return for 1986, unless you had a filing extension on your 1986 tax return. April 16 is an important deadline if you are required to make estimated tax payments; your first installment for 1990 is due that day.

If you have a sizable balance due or a large refund when you file your 1989 tax return, you should review and possibly adjust your W-4. That's the form you filed with your employer, which is used to calculate your income tax withholding. If you are having too little withheld, you may be subject to penalties, and if you are having too much withheld, you are giving the IRS the interest-free use of money which you could be using or investing yourself.

Basketball team recovers stolen 30s-era barber pole

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — With a little help from the Georgia College basketball team, police have returned an old barber pole to its rightful place.

After a weeklong absence, the rotating barber pole that has twirled outside the Ideal Barber Shop since the early 1930s is once again on display.

The pole, about 3 feet tall, was ripped from the wall outside the barber shop last week, apparently by college pranksters in this central Georgia town.

Ken Vance, Georgia College police chief, said he recovered the pole with the help of several members of the college basketball team who have their hair cut at the shop. "They were pretty incensed," he said.

Vance said he had obtained "a good idea who did it," and left word he wanted the pole back. It was returned undamaged.

"It's just like an old buddy of mine come home," shop owner James Wooten said Friday.

How's that?

Q. How can a lesser number of people vote Mayor Green out of office, when a majority voted him in?

A. The city charter allows for the recall of council members and the mayor by petition of residents numbering at least 35% of the votes cast in the last regular city election, explained Lana East, Assistant City Secretary.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

• A Colorado City woman was taken to the Big Spring Veteran's Administration Hospital Friday afternoon following an accident that resulted in incapacitating injuries.

Sallie Rogers, 83, of Colorado City, was taken to the VA hospital with unspecified injuries. Attempts to determine her condition were unsuccessful.

Rogers was a passenger in a vehicle being driven by Lucille Owen, 79, also of Colorado City, when Owen's 1988 Plymouth Reliant failed to yield the right of way in the 2400 block of Gregg Street and was struck by another car, according to a police accident report. She was driving westbound crossing Gregg Street.

Reid Donaldson, 19, of Christoval, was not injured when his 1989 Chevy Baretta traveling southbound on Gregg Street struck Owen's car. Donaldson attempted but was unable to avoid hitting Owen's car, the report said.

Owen was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

nounced. He declined further comment as he was led to the Mitchell County Jail by sheriff's deputies.

He had been free on bond since the day of his arrest.

Gray was found guilty of forcibly drowning his wife in the waters of Lake Colorado City. Dr. Patrick Besant-Matthews, former Dallas County deputy chief medical examiner, testified that scratches and abrasions on Tammy Gray's body were consistent with strangulation and drowning.

That testimony was in contrast to the findings of a forensic pathologist employed by the defense, Dr. Robert Bright with Wilford Hall Air Force Base in San Antonio. Bright said injuries to Tammy Gray's body were the result of attempts by Travis Gray and the medical staff of Mitchell County Hospital to save her.

Bright said medical records indicate Tammy Gray had a history of fainting spells since she was 10 years old and indicated an epileptic seizure in the water might have caused her drowning death.

The prosecution in the case focused heavily on the validity of Gray's account of his wife's death, particularly his testimony that when he returned to the lake in a second attempt to save her he found her face down in the water with one arm over her head. Forensic experts for the prosecution and the defense agreed a drowning victim usually sinks in the water.

Tammy Gray's delivery to the Mitchell County Hospital by her husband was also questioned by Harger. She had been transported on the bed of Travis Gray's covered pickup, rather than the front seat, prompting the prosecutor to raise the issue of Gray's concern for his wife's well-being.

During the case, the prosecution noted that Gray stood to collect $189,000 in insurance from his wife's death, and that he was having an affair with a co-worker at the Big Spring State Hospital in the months prior to his wife's death. Gray married state hospital co-worker Melissa McGlaun in July, about one year after Tammy Gray's death.

Gray acknowledged the affair in testimony last week, but said he had ended the extra-marital relationship and was in the process of reconciling with his wife before her death.

McLeish said he will file an appeal.

not ever be a problem."

He said CAT scans on Monday and Thursday show some swelling of the brain. Another CAT scan is scheduled tomorrow.

"If the swelling has been controlled real well, they will start weaning him off of the respirator," Billy said of Monday's test.

The shooting accident occurred around 7:30 a.m. about 100 yards from Brandon's grandparents house where he and his parents were visiting, Billy said. Brandon, an avid hunter like his father, was with a friend at the time.

"He was going out to call up coyotes, predators," Billy said. "It's a terrible tragedy but it was purely accidental."

was old enough to start. He was raised basically out in the country. We always hunted and shot target.

Meanwhile, Brandon's relatives remain at the hospital constantly, Billy said.

"There's someone out in the waiting room 24 hours a day," he said. "We're checking on him every hour around the clock."

Billy said that includes Brandon's mother Pam, his 12-year-old brother Brent and his grandparents, as well as other relatives.

He said they will stay there "just as long as it takes for Brandon to recover. We're going to stay here with him."

• Payments to the capital revolving fund for loan made in 1984 to purchase the baler — $250,000 a year for five years.

• Sanitation equipment capital fund — $100,000 a year.

Green has said that rates must be increased to meet these needs, but said on Tuesday that the council was acting too quickly by approving the resolution.

Problems with the resolution, according to Green, are:

• The council has not considered savings that may be generated from a restructuring program.

• The action is premature as final EPA regulations on landfill closure and post-closure monitoring have not been approved.

• The city could save the $1.5 million needed for post-closure monitoring costs by setting aside $20,000 per year instead of $50,000.

• Major changes were made in

"My employers, they're really with us on this," Billy added, "I want to thank everyone for their prayers and support. It's really been remarkable the support that we're getting. It's been magnificent."

In Stanton, the volunteer fire department began a trust fund "just to cover some expenses that will be incurred unexpectedly," said Fire Chief Lonnie Long.

Overseeing the trust fund and posting signs of it during the week in store and restaurant windows in Stanton is Jackie Williams, who, with her husband Jerry, owns N & W Electric.

As of noon Friday they had collected $2,475 in an account at First Bankers Trust & Savings Association.

Both he and Bush agreed to make maximum efforts for the early solution of the trade dispute.

But neither he nor Bush mentioned any new proposals that had been advanced.

Bush, speaking at a press conference right after Kaifu's departure, said the two sides did not need "new ideas. We just need new energy on both sides."

Asked if he thought the talks could produce enough Japanese movement to avoid possible trade sanctions, Bush said, "I hope so, but I don't know. I think it depends on results."

Assessing Kaifu's commitment for progress, Bush said, "Nobody ever goes far enough to do everything exactly the way we want but ... we got everything out of this meeting that we had hoped for."

Both leaders promised to press forward with negotiations aimed at the ordinance between the first and second readings, which Green said is not fair to the public.

• Additional study may show ways to accumulate adequate reserves with less money.

• The council failed to address the hardship that senior citizens living on a fixed income may sustain from the rate increase.

Because the resolution has been vetoed, the City Council will consider it again on Tuesday, March 6, during a regular meeting. Boyd said the item was added to the agenda on Friday. It will take four council members' vote to override the veto, he said.

Boyd said the use of the veto is unusual for a Big Spring mayor.

"It's been exercised twice in the history of Big Spring," Boyd said. "Twice by Mr. Green, according to our records."

The other veto was exercised several months ago, he said, on an ordinance relating to the parks board.

Atlantis landing time set

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)

— The secret military mission of the space shuttle Atlantis is set to end Sunday, but NASA said a storm front moving into Southern California would affect conditions at the landing site.

Amateur observers said they had already spotted the shuttle's secret cargo in orbit.

NASA broke a news blackout on the flight Saturday to announce that Atlantis would land at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., at 1:08 p.m. EST.

"Generally, the feeling is somewhat optimistic. It (the weather) is marginal, but we're going to have to look at it real-time," said NASA spokesman Steve Nesbitt.

• Demetrius Depositorio, 19, Arlington, was released on $500 bond after being arrested on a charge of burglary of a coin-operated machine.

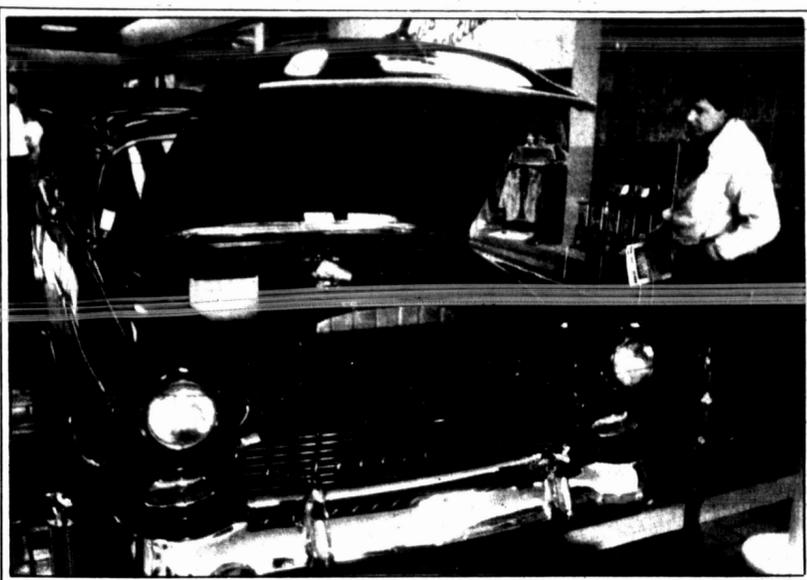

• Kenneth Randy Schroer, 17, Arlington, was released on $500 bond after being arrested on a charge of burglary of a coin-operated machine.

Bush

Kaifu reviewed a wide range of issues from the advance of democracy in Eastern Europe to U.S. forces in the Pacific.

But America's $49 billion trade deficit with Japan occupied centerstage at the hastily arranged meeting.

Kaifu agreed that the trade deficit was "still very large and we should continue to work harder."

Kaifu said that working to open Japanese markets to American goods would be a top priority of his new government.

"I told the president of my determination to maintain such policies as expansion of domestic demand, improvement of market access and deregulation," Kaifu said. He added that both he and Bush agreed to make maximum efforts for the early solution of the trade dispute.

But neither he nor Bush mentioned any new proposals that had been advanced.

Bush, speaking at a press conference right after Kaifu's departure, said the two sides did not need "new ideas. We just need new energy on both sides."

Asked if he thought the talks could produce enough Japanese movement to avoid possible trade sanctions, Bush said, "I hope so, but I don't know. I think it depends on results."

Assessing Kaifu's commitment for progress, Bush said, "Nobody ever goes far enough to do everything exactly the way we want but ... we got everything out of this meeting that we had hoped for."

Both leaders promised to press forward with negotiations aimed at resolving a variety of divisive trade disputes.

And Bush said his top Cabinet officials dealing with trade matters would be "on the next plane to Tokyo" if that would aid the talks. The Japanese, he said, understood the sense of urgency with which the United States views the problem.

Speaking to reporters before leaving for Japan, Kaifu called the next few months of negotiations "extremely important" although he cautioned that some of America's demands for the removal of trade barriers would be difficult to accomplish.

"We have to be clear about what things will take time, what we can accomplish and if it turns out that something is impossible, we need to explain why," Kaifu said.

He also said the United States has to reduce its $152 billion budget deficit.

On other issues, Bush said, "No matter where we look around the world — from Eastern Europe to Panama to Cambodia — the United States and Japan are working together to promote political economic transformations that will strengthen democracies and market economies."

He praised Kaifu for agreeing to provide almost $2 billion in assistance to Poland and Hungary and said the two had discussed ways to "expand even further our global partnership."

Kaifu said he told Bush that Japan would look into economic assistance for Central America, specifically Nicaragua and Panama.

Bush said he reaffirmed to Kaifu that the United States would remain a Pacific power, and Kaifu indicated he agreed with that decision.

Before the leaders met, Secretary of State James A. Baker III conferred separately with Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama.

Baker promised that the administration would resist protectionist sentiment in the United States but warned there are growing pressures for sanctions against Japan unless trade frictions cool, Japanese officials said.

Going into the discussions, Kaifu said action by Japan was "absolutely necessary."

His comment was seen as a positive response to U.S. demands for progress in talks aimed at attacking the underlying causes of America's $49 billion annual trade deficit with Japan.

Relations on trade disputes involving satellites, supercomputers and lumber.

U.S. officials said they did not expect any breakthrough on specific trade differences but hoped for a commitment from Kaifu for action.

The two leaders met at a posh country club surrounded by mountains in this famous desert community, home to celebrities ranging from Bob Hope to former President Gerald Ford. Bush was the weekend guest of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg.

The hastily arranged two days of talks were aimed at defusing growing economic tensions that threaten to erode close political and security ties between the two countries.

Relations between the world's two largest economic powers have been strained deeply by Japan's massive trade surpluses.

Passing down the game

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

There are plenty of crazy professions in this world — working on the bomb squad is an example — but coaching has to be near the top of the list.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not saying that coaches are a bunch of loonies or something like that, but they must be just a little off bubble to entrust their professional future on a bunch of teenagers.

Think about it: You work years honing your craft, perfecting your skills and developing the finest coaching technique you can, then you hope that some kids young enough to be your sons or daughters learn the lessons well enough to win their share of games.

If your team wins more than it loses, this condition is bearable. If, however, the poor group happens to have more L's than W's, there's no telling what the future holds in store for you.

The next time you're at a basketball game, take a few minutes to watch the coaches in action. Some of them are quite calm in their demeanor, but others would put bottle rockets to shame.

There they go, pacing the sideline, yelling at either referees or players, looking for all the world like some poor fool whose blood pressure is about 120 points above normal.

When these coaches go into their histrionics, you have to wonder whether they made the proper career choice.

Certainly, there must be some job they could do that wouldn't physically affect them the same as coaching. For the life of me, I can't imagine some gas station operator blowing his top everytime someone brings in a flat tire.

So, if coaching is going to drive some otherwise sane men and women to scream in public, the obvious question is: Why do they do it?

Some will sarcastically tell you that coaching is the only job they can get. Others, in a more reflective mood, will say that they quite simply love the profession — if not all of it, at least most.

One area coach who has been known to yell an occasional unkind word at a passing referee — and who will remain anonymous — told me that, although the job certainly had its drawbacks, there were other things that kept him coming back every season.

Tops on his list, he said, was when something that had been worked on repeatedly in practice worked in a game. Another was when his players behaved like adults on the floor instead of pouting or cussing every time something went wrong.

Other coaches, though, will say that they love the game — be it basketball, football or whatever. I've had more than one coach tell me that there is something magical about teaching the sport they love to young people.

I guess they need no more justification than that, do they? To get paid to do something you love — and to pass that on to future generations — has to be about the best job one can hope for.

Two tied in Doral

MIAMI (AP) — Paul Azinger's last-hole bogey enabled Fred Couples to regain a share of the lead Saturday in the third round of the Doral Open golf tournament.

Azinger, who once again got away to an eagle-birdie start, held a one-stroke lead but had missed the green on the final hole when the national television cameras ended their coverage for the day.

Azinger failed to get it up and down in the drizzling rain and finished with a 2-under-par 70 and a 54-hole total of 204, 12 under par on Doral's Blue Monster course.

Couples, who started the dreary, blustery day in a tie for the lead, trailed by as many as three strokes on the back nine before Azinger's misfortune on the final hole restored him to a share of the top.

BIG SPRING — The Vulture was unhittable, the batters were unstoppable and the fielding was unbelievable, which in the end made the Big Spring Steers unbeatable.

Artie "Vulture" Valdez threw a no-hitter, and the rest of his teammates were near-perfect as well, as the Steers won the first-ever Big Spring Invitational with a 9-0 drubbing of El Paso Austin at Jack Barber Field Saturday.

Big Spring pounded out 13 hits in running its record to 4-0 in the young season. The state-ranked Panthers suffered their first loss to go with three victories.

"What do you want me to say?" BSHS coach John Velasquez asked after the game. "That's the way we're capable of playing. I'm not saying we always play that way, but that's the way we're capable of playing."

The Steers looked awesome from start to finish Saturday, and leading the way was Valdez. He struck out five, walked none, and if not for a hit batsman in the first inning, would have pitched a perfect game.

Valdez kept the Panthers' batters guessing all afternoon with his off-speed pitching. "He throws that off-speed stuff, then sneaks the fastball in," Velasquez said. "His best pitch is the change-up."

But this was not a one-man show for the Steers. The hitters also had their say against Austin, giving Valdez a comfortable cushion in which to work his misery on the Panthers.

Leading the way for the batters were designated hitter Robert Lara and right fielder Jon Downey, who both went two-for-three from the plate. Mike Hilario went two-for-two with an RBI for the Steers, while shortstop Freddy Rodriguez had two hits, drove in a run and stole a base.

Rodriguez also had a stellar day in the field, contributing six put-outs and being a sort of human vacuum cleaner at his position. The Steers' fielders in general had an excellent day, playing error-free ball.

Big Spring started its scoring in the top of the first. With one out, Hilario was hit by a pitch, stole second, then came home when Austin second baseman Gabby Gandara misplayed a grounder from Robert Perez.

The Steers finished off Austin starting pitcher Jesse Fraire, with three runs in the second. Aron Salazar reached base when he was hit by a pitch, then went to third on a single by Downey.

After Lara flied out, catcher Eric Torres laid down a perfect bunt to load the bases. Abel Hilario then drove in Salazar with a grounder to third, and Rodriguez brought Downey home with a single to center.

The Steers scored their final run of the inning when Torres scored from third on a passed ball by Austin catcher Carlos Lazcano.

Lazcano relieved Fraire in the third and held the Steers scoreless for two innings until Robert Perez tripled in the fifth and came home on Marvin Rubio's grounder to short.

The Steers finished things off in the sixth with four runs. Downey and Lara hit consecutive singles to start the inning off. Lara was caught in a rundown, but that allowed Downey to reach third.

Torres then walked to put runners on first and third, then Hilario got his second RBI of the afternoon when he singled to left, scoring Downey and moving Torres to second.

Rodriguez's second hit of day, a single to right center, put runners on the corner. Lazcano's wild pitch then scored Torres, and Mike Hilario's single to left field scored Abel Hilario.

The Steers finished the scoring when Perez's grounder to short scored Rodriguez.

Big Spring will return to action Monday when they travel to Lamesa to take on the Golden Tornados. Game time is 4:30 p.m.

Duncanville girls win 97th straight

AUSTIN (AP) — Duncanville extended its state-record winning streak in girls' basketball to 97 games, and won a record third straight Class 5A championship Saturday night by defeating Houston Yates 74-51 behind 27 points by Alison Muldrew.

Duncanville wrapped up a 37-0 season, and Yates finished at 30-3, losing its other two games by a total of 6 points.

But Yates, a state champion in 1983, had no one to match up with Muldrew, a 6-foot senior who made the all-tournament team last year.

Muldrew scored 11 points in the first half as Duncanville grabbed a basketball championship, with a 53-34 victory over Moulton.

Leavitt, an all-tournament player in 1988 and 1989, also blocked 10 Moulton shots — by unofficial count — and had six steals before leaving the game with just over 3 minutes to play.

Leavitt, who has received letters from schools all over the country, said she would prefer to play college ball in Texas.

Nazareth led at halftime 18-6 as Moulton made only 3 of 24 field goal attempts for an extremely poor 12.5 percentage, and shot only 20.7 percent for the game.

Moulton was scoreless for a 7:43 stretch — or nearly a full quarter — in the first half.

The championship was the 11th for Nazareth, a Panhandle team, in 13 tournament trips, starting in 1976.

For Moulton, the loss was yet another in a string of disappointments at the girls' state tournament. The Bobkittens have never won a title in 13 tournament appearances, beginning in 1958, and they hold the record for tournament losses at 14.

Moulton, from Central Texas, has finished second five times, including 1987.

Noel Johnson scored 13 for Nazareth, which finished with a 33-3 record.

Stephanie Pilat, Moulton's only starting senior, led her team with 11 points.

Moulton ended its season at 34-5. Calallen 46, Waco Midway 39.

Paige DuBois scored 17 points Saturday as Corpus Christi Calallen ended two decades of frustration in girls' basketball by defeating Waco Midway 46-39 for the Class 4A title.

No. 1-ranked Calallen first came to the state tournament in 1969 and was making its 13th appearance this year, but before Saturday had never won a championship.

Calallen ended its state championship season with a record of 39-1, with its only loss coming to Victoria Stroman, a 5A team.

Jitters saddle Mustangs

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

LEVELLAND — The Sands Mustangs had a bad opening case of the jitters and it was detrimental Friday night.

The Mustangs looked totally out of sync in the first half, and ended up dropping a 67-52 decision to the Lorenzo Hornets in the opening round of the Region I-A tournament.

Whether it was the spacious Texan Dome, or just being in the regional tournament, Sands didn't play the way it normally does, especially in the first 16 minutes. Or maybe it was Lorenzo's tenacious press from start to finish that produced 23 Mustang turnovers. But in the second half, the Mustangs handled the press with relative ease.

A jittery Sands could do little right in the first half. Things started out bad as Lorenzo's Dean Gonzales hit a medium range jumper, and Harold Castillo fired in a three-pointer. Before the Mustangs awoke from the dead, they trailed 13-0.

Sands finally got on the scoreboard when Felix Rodriguez fed Jay Johnston, who made a reverse left-handed layup. By that time it was just over two minutes left in the quarter.

The Mustangs tallied seven more points, and trailed 18-9 after one.

The second quarter was much of the same, as Castillo, the tallest Lorenzo starter at 6-foot, and his quick teammates continued to dominate against a jittery Sands.

Just how nervous was Sands? Early in the second quarter after a Sands timeout, Sands' Eric Herm took a inbound pass under the Lorenzo goal, and laid it in for a basket for the opposition. Then Sands turned it over and Castillo bombed in a three-pointer. Sands trailed 27-9 with five minutes left in the half.

The two teams traded points the rest of the way and Sands trailed 36-18 at the half.

Sands Mustangs guard Jay Johnston, shown here in this recent file photo, was Sands' leading scorer against the Lorenzo Hornets Friday. Johnston closed out his high school career with 19 points.

Sands played much better in the second half; in fact they won the battle, outscoring Lorenzo 34-31. The Mustangs were hardly bothered by Lorenzo's press, and played good defense, forcing the Hornets to shot more from the outside. Gone were the fastbreak layups, and the Hornets' outside shots stopped falling.

But the Mustangs had dug themselves too big of a hole and couldn't overcome the deficit. Herm redeemed himself from his mental blunder by playing a ment nine times, lost for the first time in the finals. It dropped to 34-3.

DuBois, a 6-foot senior, also had seven rebounds, and despite rugged play inside was never whistled for a foul.

Calallen was virtually faultless for three quarters — at least in the officials' eyes — drawing only two fouls. The Lady Wildcats had five fouls for the game.

Calallen scored 14 points on free throws, with DuBois hitting 11 of 12. Midway was 4 for 5 from the free throw line.

Other scorers for Calallen, which survived a 10-0 Midway run in the first half, included Lisa Salinas with 11 and Kelly Cerny with 10.

Judy Holcomb led Midway with 17 points, hitting all four of her team's free throws.

Midway closed to 38-36 but a DuBois' 4-0 field goal with 3:30 to play turned out to be the winning points.

Abilene Wylie 51 Edna 37

Lynn Corn, a 5-foot-10-inch senior, scored 22 points Saturday as Abilene Wylie pulled away in the second half for a 51-37 Class 3A championship victory over Edna at the girls state basketball tournament.

Corn, touted as a college prospect, had 14 points in the first half as Wylie led only 24-22 on Corn's 14-foot field goal with 5 seconds left.

Wylie, in its third trip to the state tournament since 1964, also won a title in 1970. The Lady Bulldogs finished with a 32-2 season record.

"We've had to look at that 1970 state title banner for a long time," said Wylie Coach Pat Penick. "I'm so nervous right now I don't realize what we've done. It'll hit me sometime I guess."

Edna, which won a championship in 1965 in its only other tournament appearance, ended the season 31-4.

Corn was whistled for her fourth foul with 4:45 left in the game but stayed in the game as Wylie played keep away and converted free throws for its final margin.

Corn also hauled in 11 rebounds, and got scoring help from Shanna Briggs, who had 11 points.

Klare Nava, a 5-4 guard reportedly on some college recruiting lists, led Edna with 11 points but forced several off-balance shots had six turnovers and was called for two intentional fouls in the final 1:29.

fine second half. He came up with several steals and scored several points on drives to the basket.

Albert Franco also came alive, as did Jay Johnston. Franco scored 10 points in the second half, and Johnston finally regained his touch from the outside, scoring 12 second half points.

The scrappy Mustangs cut the lead under double digits late in the game. Franco hit a jumper and Johnston followed with a three-pointer, cutting the lead to 53-44 with 4:38 left.

Lorenzo answered with a short spurt, pushing the lead to 61-47. But the Mustangs tried one more time, as Franco hit another jumper and Herm scored with a driving layup, cutting the margin to 61-52 with 1:25 remaining. But that's as close as Sands would get.

"We were just too nervous the first half," said Sands coach Jerry Gooch. "That first half may have been my fault. I told them (Sands) to have patience, because I didn't want to run with them. Maybe we should have run with them; we ran pretty good with them the second half."

"Lorenzo has played here (Texan Dome) three times this year. They played here in bi-district and area, and they played here last year. This was the first time my kids walked in here. It can awe you if you're not used to it. But I'm proud the way they came back and got after it."

Lorenzo, who went to 25-6 with the win, was led by Castillo with 18 points. Sophomore guard Albert Turner scored 17 and freshman guard Mike Reese scored 12. Freshman forward Dean Gonzales scored eight points, got nine rebounds and blocked two shots.

Sands finishes the season with a 23-6 record. The Mustangs were led by Johnston who had game-highs of 19 points and 15 rebounds. Herm followed with 12 and Franco scored 11. Damien Zarate added eight points.

In other first round action it was: Gruver 65, Paducah 61; Sudan 76, Rankin 43; Vega 71, Chillicothe 58.

Masur performs clinic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Wally Masur put on a clinic for Glenn Layendecker Saturday night as the Australian carved out a 6-3, 6-2 victory to earn his way into the championship match of the $250,000 Volvo Indoor tennis tournament.

Masur, the No. 6 seed, never allowed Layendecker to gain a foothold during the one-hour, 15-minute match as he held command at both the net and the Masur dropped one set point in the ninth game on a blistering forehand by the left-hander, but closed out the set when Layendecker netted a backhand service return.

Masur, now 3-0 lifetime against Layendecker, broke his opponent's serve in the third and fifth games to go up 5-1. He put the match away in the ninth game with a backhand crossing shot after pulling Layendecker far to the forehand side of the court.

"It was just a case that I really didn't do anything wrong," Masur said. "I played in focus and I didn't falter at all—When you get down to the business end of the week, you have to play well."

"I was making a lot of my first serves and my plan was to not give him any breathing space."

"I'm going to try to do exactly the same thing tomorrow," Masur said. "I want to make Stich play the ball. I'll be aggressive. He's going to have to pass me (to win). I'll be going to the net all I can."

Layendecker, who eliminated second-seeded Michael Stich in the second round, said he was beaten both physically and mentally.

"He beat me pretty much all the way around. He served and volleyed well, so he beat me physically. And he had me struggling on my serve, so he also beat me mentally," said Layendecker, who is ranked 63rd in the world.

"Even when he missed his first serve, he was getting his second serve in deep. He got me off the net, and I really didn't have many opportunities to chip and charge," Layendecker said.

Stich showed excellent touch at the net, mixing both power and finesse, and he kept Muller off balance all afternoon with a strong service game.

Muller, who eliminated top-seeded Stefan Edberg in the second round, was able to win only three points off Stich's serve as he dropped the first set.

Stich was surprised that he now has a chance to take home the tournament's $32,000 first-place check.

"I never expected to be in the final," said Stich, ranked 80th in the world. "I think that nobody, except for a (Ivan) Lendl or a Chang, expects to win at the start of a tournament."

"This gives me a lot of confidence. I know now that I can beat these guys and — in your head — that's very important to know," the 21-year-old West German said.

Muller saved one match point before Stich pulled out a service winner when Muller's weak return of a first serve found the net.

"I thought the guy who served better would win the match," Stich said.

baseline.

Masur, ranked 38th in the world, will meet unseeded Michael Stich, who eliminated Gary Muller 7-5, 7-6 (7-4) earlier Saturday.

Stich is seeking his first tour title, while Masur won at Newport, R.I., in 1988, Adelaide, Australia, in 1987 and Hong Kong in 1983.

"I have no illusions," Masur said of the championship matchup. "Michael is a fine young player. I'll have my hands full, but, yes, I think I can win the tournament."

Masur broke Layendecker in the second set for a 4-2 lead when the American hit an easy overhead into the net after a scurrying backhand get by Masur.

BAYTOWN (AP) — Top Fuel driver Darrell Gwynn recorded the quickest elapsed time in drag racing history during qualifying Saturday for the third-annual Fram Supnationals at Houston Raceway Park.

Gwynn, of Miami, Fla., covered the quarter-mile distance in 4.909 seconds at 280.46 mph to surpass the previous mark of 4.919 set by Gary Ormsby last October at the Texas Motorplex in Dallas.

Other qualifying leaders for Sunday's final eliminations include John Force in Funny Car and Mark Pawuk in Pro Stock.

The $1,529,900 event is the third stop in the 19-ace, $18 million NHRA Drag Racing Series.

Gwynn, 28, said his focus now is on winning the race.

Dick LaHaie, of Lansing, Mich., is second at 4.931 and 278.46.

Shackleford denies ever shaving points

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Charles Shackleford denied ever shaving points at North Carolina State, but admitted on Saturday that he made a major mistake accepting a loan from an agent while in school.

The statements were the first directly from Shackleford since an ABC News report earlier this week implicated the current New Jersey Nets forward and three other players in the scheme to fix Wolfpack games in the 1987-88 season.

However, Shackleford shed no light on the controversy, other than denying the report, and he had already done that earlier this week through his agent, Sal DiFazio. He answered no questions after reading his brief statement and did not discuss his arrest in Orange, N.J., Thursday for possession of a small amount of marijuana.

DiFazio, of Bridgewater, N.J., also refused to answer questions relating to the investigation, saying Shackleford has hired another attorney to represent him in that matter, Matthew Boylan of Roseland, N.J.

Boylan was not in his office Saturday.

Shackleford, who played three seasons at North Carolina State, said he asked for the news conference so he would have a chance to comment on the reports. He also apologized to N.C. State coach Jim Valvano, who has come under fire during a state investigation of the point-shaving allegations.

Valvano credited Shackleford for being "man enough to admit ... he already said that he did take the

"I never shaved points at North Carolina State, I did take money from an agent. I was young and poor. I was offered money and I took it. I borrowed the money from another person because I thought that was my only way out. What I did was wrong. I know that now." — Charles Shackleford.

money." "I think that is at least an appropriate action and certainly I'm very pleased to hear that he denies any wrongdoing," Valvano said at an impromptu gathering outside Reynolds Coliseum following Saturday's practice. "The most hopeful statement is that he said he didn't do it ... I would like to believe that that's the truth and again hopefully that will come out."

The news conference lasted 15 minutes and Shackleford said very little about the investigation.

Shackleford accepted about $65,000 from two men and paid both of them back in 1988, DiFazio said.

One of the men was Robert Kramer of Denville, N.J., reportedly the mastermind of the point shaving scheme. He loaned Shackleford $5,000 to $6,000 when he was at North Carolina State and an additional $14,000 to $15,000 after the player left school after his junior year in 1988.

DiFazio said he was introduced to Shackleford by Kramer, but added that happened only a week or two after he himself had met Kramer.

Shackleford paid back that loan on Nov. 29, 1988. He also paid $40,000 to Larry Gillman, a Connecticut sports agent and former East Carolina basketball coach, who accepted the money in exchange for releasing Shackleford from a player-agent agreement.

"I don't say that being young and poor is an excuse for what I did," Shackleford said. "It's not, but it is the reason why I took the money."

Valvano said he always advised players to stay away from agents. "We're always telling the kids not to get involved with agents, don't get involved with people who want to take you to dinner, things of that nature," Valvano said.

"I've never met Mr. Kramer, I certainly don't know Mr. Kramer and I'm pretty sure the kids and Shack and people involved have said that. We did not know these people," he said.

Nets general manager Harry Weltman said the organization will support Shackleford during the investigation.

"Not knowing all the facts surrounding the allegations made against him, we stand by his side and will not make any judgment until all the facts are presented and judged accordingly," Weltman said in a statement he read. "We believe he is entitled to due process."

Breland punishes overmatched Briton

LONDON (AP) — Mark Breland knocked Briton Lloyd Honeyghan down six times in less than nine minutes to retain his World Boxing Association welterweight title Saturday night when the referee stopped the fight in the third round.

Breland, who now has needed only 14 rounds to defend his title four times in four different countries over the last year, hit Honeyghan with a series of left jabs and hard rights throughout the contest.

Honeyghan was knocked down midway through the first round with a left, twice in the last minute of the second round and three more times before the fight was stopped at 2:15 of the third round.

Honeyghan, a former undisputed world welterweight champion who was seeking to become the first Briton ever to win a title three times, could not get close to the lanky Breland throughout the contest.

Breland, a 26-year-old New Yorker who won an Olympic gold medal in 1984, now has won 27 of his 29 pro bouts. Honeyghan, 29, who fell to 34-3, has lost three of his last six contests.

The 6-foot-2 1/2 Breland enjoyed a six-inch height advantage over the challenger and used his superior reach to dominate the battle.

Honeyghan had vowed before the fight to come after the American challenger, but he walked into a barrage that had him on the floor within 85 seconds.

The punishment continued in the second round, with another left jab putting Honeyghan down at 2:05 and a right flooring him with 10 seconds left in the round.

Breland needed just nine seconds to put the challenger on the floor again in the third round and recorded knockdown number five 45 seconds later.

The champion then outloaded a series of punches on the helpless Honeyghan, who collapsed in a corner at 2:11 of the round. As he tried to get to his feet, a towel was thrown into the ring from his corner and referee Julio Alvarano of Panama stopped the contest.

Strawberry released from center; ready to start playing baseball

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry, admitting he has a problem with alcohol that required treatment, on Saturday said he is looking forward to playing baseball again.

"Every day is a challenge," Strawberry said. "At this point now, I'm very happy with myself. I'm not so uptight about so many things as before."

"I had so much pressure on me, I just didn't know which way to handle it."

Strawberry, 27, was released Thursday from the Smiths Alcoholism and Treatment Center in New York after a 27-day stay.

Accompanied by General Manager Frank Cashen to Saturday's press briefing at the Mets' spring training home at St. Lucie County Sports Complex, Strawberry said he is getting settled and preparing for the new season.

"I'm getting new feelings about myself," he said. "He was admitted to the treatment center after his Jan. 26 arrest when he allegedly threatened his wife, Lisa, with a gun."

After an hour-long meeting Friday with Strawberry, the Los Angeles city attorneys in the Van Nuys, Calif., office has reserved decision until this week whether to charge the ballplayer. If charged and convicted on spousal battery and abuse, Strawberry could be sentenced up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

A spokesman for the Mets said Strawberry "has moved in" an undisclosed location in Port St. Lucie and "his family will be here this weekend."

After Strawberry's release from the treatment center, he "visited with his family on Long Island (N.Y.)," the spokesman said. Then he flew to California for the hearing and on to Florida.

In introducing him, Cashen said Strawberry wanted to make a statement on his own.

"Everybody experiences it, but I had no control over it," Strawberry said of his problems with alcohol dependence. "I know I have to work hard on it — playing baseball again, getting on with my life."

"It's a disease I have no control over. I'm looking forward to getting back with my wife and kids."

Cashen said Strawberry "needs our help and our understanding. Recovery is not going to be achieved today or tomorrow. It is the nature of the disease that he is always recovering. He needs our encouragement and prayers."

While Cashen provided Strawberry the opportunity Saturday to issue his statement, he also protected the ballplayer by not allowing questions. Instead, reporters shook Strawberry's hand and wished him well.

Lady Steer golfers third in Snyder

SNYDER — For the second consecutive week, the Big Spring Lady Steer golfers finished third in a tournament. Last week Big Spring was third at its own invitational, and Friday the Lady Steers placed third in the Snyder Invitational.

Led by Kim Locke and Amy Berringer, the Lady Steers shot an 18-hole total of 409. Locke, a junior, led the Lady Steers with a 99; Berringer, a sophomore who's back from the disabled list, shot a 100.

Snyder felt quite comfortable on its own course, easily winning the meet with a 360 score. The Lady Tigers had the first three medalists led by Jacy LaRoux, who shot an 82.

Snyder won by 36 strokes over Amarillo High.

"We didn't play as consistent as we need to, but the young ladies all came back and scored better on the back nine, and scrambled for a third place finish," said Big Spring golf coach Dwight Butler.

"They are showing some maturity, and must be more confident when they tee it up. It was good to have Amy Berringer back from the disabled list."

The Lady Steers will compete in the Abilene tournament Friday.

Steer golfers finish third

ANDREWS — The Big Spring Steers shot a 307 on Saturday, and vaulted from a fifth place tie, to finish second in the Andrews Invitational.

With their second day score, Big Spring passed host Andrews and Monahans. But the Steers couldn't overtake Permian, who shot a course-record 292 Saturday. Permian shot a 310 Friday, holding a slim two stroke lead over Midland Lee, and a four stroke advantage over Andrews.

Monahans shot a 319 Friday and El Paso Eastwood shot a 320 to tie with Big Spring.

But Saturday belonged to Permian and the Steers. Permian finished with a 36-hole total of 602, 25 strokes ahead of Big Spring. Andrews shot a 316 Saturday, and finished three strokes behind the Steers. Lee's 321 Saturday was good for 633 and fourth place, and Eastwood shot a 316, giving it a 636.

Monahans struggled a little and fell off to 326; finishing nine strokes behind Eastwood.

Sophomore Jon Sims paced the Steers in the opening round, shooting a 78. He was the only one to shoot in the 70s. The second day sophomore Carlos Garcia and senior Jon Hernandez shot 73's.

Senior Chad Freeman, who shot a 68 last week, shot a 79.

"Carlos Garcia and Jon Hernandez played extremely well, and we moved from fifth place to second," said Steers coach Don Cook. "The first day nobody shot great, but nobody shot terrible. Today (Saturday) Carlos and Jon came through, and everybody else was average. If we can shoot 307's, we'll be all right."

The Steers will be in action Tuesday when the Steers junior varsity plays in Midland. The Steers varsity will compete in Sweetwater Friday and Saturday.

Tennis team wins in Sweetwater

SWEETWATER — The Big Spring High School tennis team got wins in the boys singles and doubles, and captured the Sweetwater Invitational Saturday.

Big Spring won the tournament with 99 points, followed by San Angelo Lake View with 93 points, and Sweetwater with 86 points.

Junior Rocky Tubb wasted little time in disposing of Snyder's Brandon Martin in the singles finals, 6-0, 6-0. In the boys doubles Big Spring's Danny Whitehead and Steve Sims defeated Sweetwater's Stephen Piser and Kris Lewis 7-6, 6-4 to win the doubles finals.

The Lady Steers doubles team of Tammy Mason and E.D. Barnett also scored big points with a second place finish. They were defeated in the finals by a team from San Angelo Lake View, 6-1, 6-0.

"I thought we looked pretty good, I thought we played pretty well," said Big Spring coach Don Lawrence. "We're starting to get past the early part of the year, we're starting down the homestretch. We've got about three more tournaments until district.

"We're still experimenting with some combinations. We're still looking to fill some holes."

Big Spring will compete in the Midland Invitational Friday and Saturday at Midland Lee tennis courts.

JV'S DO WELL IN C-CITY
COLORADO CITY — The Big Spring junior varsity team fared well in Colorado City. No points were kept, but if there had been, Big Spring might have very well won.

In girls singles finals, Big Spring's Brandi Willis lost to Susan Cawthorn of Colorado City, 6-2, 6-2. Mary Loya of Big Spring defeated a Coahoma player 6-3, 7-5 to win third place.

In the boys singles third place game, it was a battle of Big Spring. Chad Nichols defeated Shannon Savarance 6-1, 6-3.

In the boys doubles finals, Big Spring's Chris Ficke and pacer Booth lost to Abilene Wylie's Tom Chrisman and Paul Fole 4-6, 6-3, 4-6.

"The J.V. kids did a super job. We took 20 kids and 15 went back for the second day," said Lawrence.

The junior varsity team will play Snyder Monday at Figure Seven Tennis Center at 4:30 p.m.

STEER THINCLADS FINISH THIRD
ANDREWS — It was all Andrews at the Mustangs Relays here Saturday as the host team dominated, winning the meet with 178 points.

Andrews easily outdistanced Pecos, who scored 92 points. The Big Spring Steers, who won the Comanche Relays last week, finished third with 80 points.

The Steers got two first place finishes from a pair of Chrises. Chris Polyniak won the 3200 meters in a time of 10:29.10, and Chris Minter won the 800 meters in 1:59.99.

The Steers got two second place finishes each from weightman Pete Buske, in the shot put (47-10) and discus (143-8); and from Rye Bavin in the 110 meter hurdles (14.97) and 300 hurdles (39.77).

Sophomore Waylan McGee got second in the long jump (20-5) and Deondre Hall got third in the 200 with a 23.36. The 1600 relay team of Kevin Rodgers (53.9), Nick Roberson (52.9), McGee (52.0) and Minter (49.1) got third running a 3:28.12. Andrews won with a 3:27.14 and Sweetwater was second in 3:27.88.

One of the brightest performances for the Steers was a fifth place finish by Roberson in the 800 meters. His time of 2:02.30 was a new sophomore record in the event. The old record of 2:02.38 was set by Sean Jackson in 1986.

Coach Randy Britton said he wasn't happy with his team's performance. "I'm not happy with the team's effort," said Britton. "We had some individuals that did good jobs, but as a team we didn't compete well. We're going to work hard this week. The West Texas Relays will be tough."

Britton added that he was glad that Bavin ran a 39.1 in the prelims of the 300 hurdles, and that Polyniak knocked 20 seconds off his 3200 meter time from last week.

The Steers will compete in the West Texas Relays Friday and Saturday.

Buffalo golfers trail McCamey

MCCAMEY — The Stanton Buffalos found themselves three strokes out of first place after the first round of District 5-2A golf here Saturday.

Host school McCamey led after the first round, shooting a 347 on its own course. The Buffalos, led by John Paul Barry, Kelly Inman and Chris Carder, shot a 350. Ozona was third, 13 strokes back.

The Stanton B team is fifth, shooting a 461. Forsan brings up the rear in sixth, shooting a 532.

Barry and Inman shot 86s. Carder shot a 88.

"We're trailing by three shots and we feel real good about it, especially since we played on McCamey's course," said Stanton golf coach Don Barry. "We would have like to have shot better, but McCamey didn't shoot that good either, and it's their course. The kids know we could have shot better, but we're in good shape."

Stanton's next round of district play will be in Big Lake Saturday.

Notre Dame routs No. 3 Missouri, 98-67

By The Associated Press
Notre Dame sure knows how to play with the emotions of its fans.

Counted into the NCAA tournament after a victory two weeks ago over Syracuse, then ranked fourth, the Fighting Irish followed with three straight losses to just about count them out.

Color them back in after a 98-67 rout of third-ranked Missouri at South Bend on Saturday.

"I told the team we could beat Missouri if we played like we did against Syracuse, except now we were playing at home," said coach Digger Phelps, whose team is 15-11 with three regular-season games left.

"There were two things that we had talked about before the game, and I wanted to tell it to them

No. 23 Arizona beat No. 16 Oregon State 87-60; Dayton beat No. 19 Xavier, 111-108 and No. 21 Louisville edged Southern Mississippi 73-71.

Notre Dame had little trouble with Missouri, which played hardly any defense.

The Irish led 46-33 at intermission, then started the second half with a 20-4 run against five substitutes put on the floor by an upset Missouri coach Norm Stewart, whose team clinched the Big Eight regular-season championship last week.

"We just weren't very good today, and I'd have a tough time explaining that, so I won't," Stewart said.

Jim Horton, one of the five reserves who started the second half, wasn't so hesitant.

"Old fashioned butt-kicking, that's what it was," he said.

No. 1 Kansas 96, Iowa St. 63

Kevin Pritchard led a 14-2 spree at the end of the first half for Kansas (28-3, 11-3), which tied Oklahoma for second in the Big Eight. Kansas held a 26-22 lead midway through the first half when basketballs by Terry Brown and Jeff Gueidner ignited the decisive run.

Rick Calloway had 16 points for the Jayhawks and Freeman West 12. Brian Pearson had 16 points and Victor Alexander 14 for Iowa State (10-17, 4-10).

No. 5 Oklahoma 107, Oklahoma St. 94

William Davis had 27 points, including 10 in a 27-2 second-half run for the fifth-ranked Sooners (23-4, 12-3 in the Big Eight). It capped a week in which they had back-to-back wins over Missouri and Kansas, the two previous No. 1s. Smokey McCovery had nine straight points in the closing minutes to help the Sooners hold on as State had cut a 27-point lead to four.

Byron Houston had 23 points and 11 rebounds for Oklahoma State (15-12, 6-8). Oklahoma, which had three players foul out, outrebounded the Cowboys 57-40.

No. 14 Michigan St. 75, No. 17 Minnesota 73

Steve Smith's 18-foot jumper with 29 seconds left in overtime capped a career-high 39-point effort and gave the Spartans a one-game lead in the Big Ten. The Spartans (24-5, 13-3) have games remaining at Northwestern and against Purdue, which takes a 12-4 conference mark into Sunday's game against Michigan.

Michigan State's win was its 10th straight and the loss was only the third in 30 home games for Minnesota (20-7, 11-6). MSU's 24 regular-season wins broke the school record of 23 set in 1977-78.

No. 15 LSU 103, Mississippi 94

Chris Jackson scored 37 points and Shaquille O'Neal had 20 points, 14 rebounds and five blocked shots for LSU (21-5, 11-4), which guaranteed itself at least a second-place tie in the Southeastern Conference. Stanley Roberts, making his first start in a month, added 18 points.

Gerald Glass had 30 points for Mississippi (11-16, 8-10).

No. Arizona 87, Oregon State 60

Matt Muehlbach had 29 points and the Arizona defense stifled Oregon State's Gary Payton as the No. 23 Wildcats tied the Beavers for the regular-season Pacific-10 title. Muehlbach's output included five 3-pointers.

It was the 47th straight victory at home for Arizona (21-6, 15-3 in the Pac-10). Payton, who came in averaging 26.9 points and 8.5 assists for Oregon State (22-5, 15-3), was held to only five points and left with 6:33 to go and Arizona ahead 76-47. He had scored in double figures in 50 straight games.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Notre Dame's Tim Singleton (10) drives past Missouri's Travis Ford (51) during Notre Dame's 98-67 victory Saturday afternoon over the No. 3 Tigers.

again. Relax, and confidence."

It worked. Or at least something did.

"All the other games, we were relaxed but we weren't confident, or we were confident, but we weren't relaxed," said Monty Williams, who led the Irish with 14 points.

In other games involving Top 25 teams:

No. 5 Oklahoma laid claim to the revolving-door No. 1 spot with a 111-94 victory over Oklahoma State; No. 1 Kansas, a loser to Oklahoma earlier in the week, beat Iowa State 96-63; No. 11 Georgia Tech beat No. 20 Clemson 85-69, opening the way for Duke to move into a first-place tie in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

No. 25 Georgia clinched its first regular-season Southeastern Conference title with a 94-79 victory over Auburn; No. 14 Michigan State took a one-game lead in the Big Ten with a 75-73 overtime victory over 17th-ranked Minnesota; No. 15 LSU beat Mississippi 103-94; dings if the Blue Devils beat North Carolina on Sunday.

Dayton 111, No. 19 Xavier 108

Negele Knight scored 30 points and Ray Springer a career-high 26 as Dayton won its seventh straight game by upsetting Xavier. The Flyers jumped off to a 65-42 halftime lead, then withstood a 42-19 run by the Musketeers in the last 8:45 that almost pulled the game out.

The two Midwestern Collegiate Conference teams could meet again when Dayton (18-9, 9-4) hosts the conference tournament, Michael Davenport, who had 17 of his 19 points in the second half led regular-season champion Xavier (24-3, 12-2) with 19.

No. 25 Georgia 94, Auburn 79

Litterial Green scored 30 points, 11 during a 16-0 run that broke the game open as the Bulldogs (20-7, 13-5) clinched their first outright SEC title. The Bulldogs dominated Auburn (12-17, 8-10) down the stretch, outscoring the Tigers 27-10 after they closed within six points with about 9½ minutes left.

Prospectors Club caters to a wide variety of interests

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Rock collectors aren't spouting a cliché when they note that beauty is more than just skin-deep.

They're all too familiar with the hidden treasures within rocks.

Myrtle Griffith, 77, president of the Big Spring Prospectors Club, says the joy of rock-collecting comes from making "something beautiful out of something ugly."

"Sometimes you're very surprised when you saw a rock and see what's inside it," she said. "I sawed an agate in two, and the mineralization in the agate made it look like a forest fire."

The Big Spring club is hosting its 21st Annual Gem & Mineral Show this weekend at the Dora Roberts building at the Howard County Fairgrounds. The show will run today from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and free for children under 12.

Ticket-buyers to the show are eligible for a drawing to win a blue topaz, the state gem of Texas, bearing a star in the center of the stone. The stone, "The Star in Big Spring," was designed by club member Cliff Chapman of Midland and is on display at the show.

This year's event is expected to draw more than 300 people, said Nora Nixon, chairman of the show. Some nine rock dealers, including two from Arizona and one from New Mexico, are displaying rocks at the show. There are a total of 56 displays at the event, Griffith said.

A highlight of this year's show are 13 replicas of the world's most famous diamonds, including the Hope Diamond and Cullinan I, the world's largest diamond, which has 530.2 carats.

Hugh Rackets, who owns a rock shop in Pagosa Springs, Colo., said he made the replicas from cubic zirconia, a material very similar to diamond, he said. Each of the bigger diamonds took him 200 hours to cut, he said. The replicas were based on patterns for 31 famous diamonds that were published in The Lapidary Journal from 1959 to 1962.

Rackets, who was formerly a geophysicist in Houston, said rocks are his only pastime these days. He teaches a course on lapidary work, he said. Like Griffith, Rackets said the pleasure of his avocation is "to make something beautiful out of just a piece of rock."

People who collect rocks are generally known as "rock hounds." Rackets said the term doesn't bother him, but Griffith said "I don't like the word 'hound' very well. It sounds like a dog."

Griffith, whose other hobbies include gardening and handcrafts, said rocks are her favorite. "I like the outdoors," she said. "I like to go on field trips, and I enjoy the companionship of the members. I enjoy meeting people at other rock shows." Griffith said she has been to rock shows as far away as Hot Springs, Ark.

The Big Spring rock club goes on field trips two to three times a year to collect rocks, Griffith said. The group holds monthly meetings at its clubhouse at 606 E. Third St.

The Big Spring Prospectors Club has 66 members, most of them senior citizens. Ages of members range from 2 to 81, said Lola Lamb, publicity chairman for the group. Dues for membership in the club are $15 a year for families, and $8 a year for single people.

Donna Nixon, 28, said she joined the Big Spring club in 1982 because "I got married." Her mother-in-law, Nora Nixon, was active in the group and encouraged her to join, she said. Donna Nixon said she and Nora Nixon do a lot of activities together through the group.

Working with rocks has turned into something of a family affair for the Nixons: Donna Nixon's three daughters also belong to the group. "I think they're pretty," said Christen Nixon, 8, when asked what drew her to rocks.

Griffith noted that a wide variety of interests are represented within the Big Spring Prospectors Club. "It's such a diversified hobby," she said. "You can collect rocks, you go on field trips, you collect minerals, and you can study what the minerals are used for."

Among the specialties held by members of her club are gold and silver casting, faceting and jewelry-designing, she said.

Although the Big Spring club has claimed 100 members in previous years, Griffith said, the expense of working with rocks discourages some people from pursuing the hobby. A grinding and polishing machine costs $800 to $900, she said. Griffith noted, however, that the Big Spring club offers its members free access to a grinding and polishing machine and three saws kept in the group's clubhouse. Also working against the group is the dearth of rocks in Howard County, which forces group members to travel to other parts of the state for rock-collecting. Howard County primarily features limestone, Griffith said. "It doesn't have color, it's coarse and porous, and it doesn't polish."

Mobile unit helps in battle against cancer

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — The people who work with it make a lot of jokes about the breast cancer detection mobile unit. They call it the boob bus. They say golden arches should've been painted on its side and it should've been named McBreasts.

But after the jokes to release the nervousness of discussing two touchy subjects: breasts and cancer, the talk gets serious. The bus and its twin, sponsored by the Regional Breast Care Center at Women's and Children's Hospital in Odessa, visit five states and do 30,000 mammograms a year.

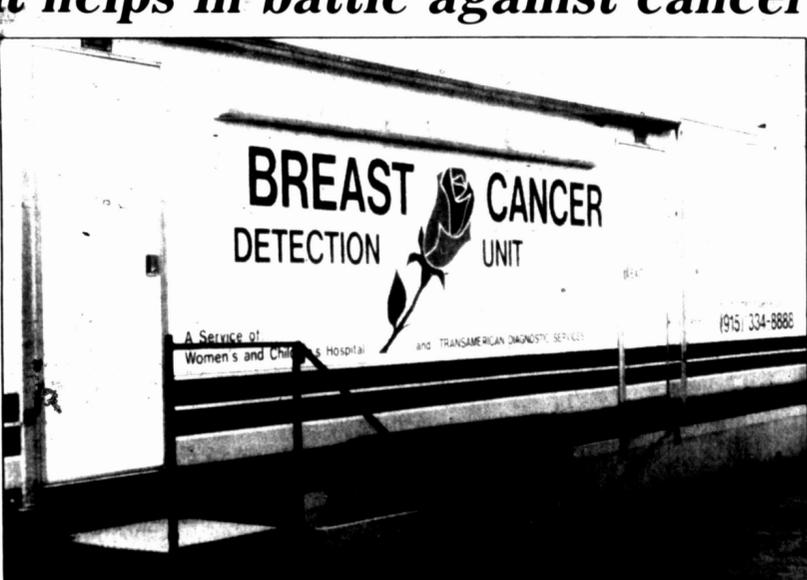

On Thursday the bus was in Big Spring at the Specialty Clinic for its monthly visit. It is a self-contained unit, with a reception area, dressing room, mammography machine and darkroom contained in a four bus-sized space.

Patients make appointments for mammograms on the bus through the Big Spring clinic. Reports and films are mailed to the clients two weeks after the mammogram is taken.

The American Cancer Society says approximately 40,000 women die of breast cancer every year. It recommends that women have a mammogram done between the ages of 35 and 40, and then one done every other year between the ages of 40 and 50 and every year after 50.

Dr. Rick Fleetwood, a radiologist with Women's and Children's, said the mobile unit generally goes into towns where mammography isn't available, or is exorbitantly expensive.

"In Hobbs a mammogram cost $180. $140 is the average. We went in and they dropped their prices. If we can make prices lower, that's good for women," Fleetwood said.

BIG SPRING — The mobile Breast Cancer Hospital, Midland, was in Big Spring recently to perform mammograms for area women

Dr. James Mathews, medical director of Malone and Hogan Clinic said the clinic bought a low-dosage, fine screen mammography machine three months ago that has an advantage over the mobile unit's system. The films are developed in the clinic and maintained there. He said the service is more convenient for Big Spring patients, because they don't have to wait for their reports to come in.

The clinic charges $50 for a mammogram, $10 lower than the mobile unit's fee. Mathews said it did approximately 1,000 mammograms last year.

The systems both breast cancer detection centers use are similar: low-dosage X-ray machines that compress the breasts and expose women to about the same amount of radiation as a dental X-ray does.

The mobile unit's machine is accredited by the American College of Radiology, which certifies that the machine is accurate and technicians are qualified. Malone and Hogan's isn't accredited yet.

"We haven't applied for accreditation yet. It's moderately expensive. We're working with the American Cancer Society. They supply us with palpation devices and films. Whether we're certified or not doesn't really matter. All the doctors in the clinic and others in the community refer their patients here," Mathews said.

Because the mammogram can detect a cancerous growth when it is the size of a grain of rice, three years before it can be felt in the breast, getting the screening done is more important than which facility is used, provided equipment is up to date.

"If we find a tumor before a patient feels it we have a 97 percent chance of saving her life. If she waits until she can feel the lump, she only has a 50-50 survival rate over five years," said Fleetwood.

Wal-Mart looking to expand into Mexico

LAREDO (AP) — Wal-Mart Stores Inc. is looking into the possibility of expanding operations of the nation's No. 3 mass merchandise retailer into Mexico, according to a Mexican congressman.

Congressman Benjamin Clariond Reyes, a federal deputy from Nuevo Leon state and a leading Monterrey businessman, said Wednesday that Wal-Mart officials were in Monterrey last week on a fact-finding mission.

But a spokeswoman at Wal-Mart's Bentonville, Ark., headquarters said earlier this week that she could not confirm that.

"At this time, we are not announcing any new plans for any new stores in Mexico," she said.

The Wal-Mart group was headed by Rob Walton, a son of the founder of the chain that includes Wal-Mart, Sam's Wholesale Clubs and Hypermart stores.

"They are looking toward expanding to Monterrey, Chihuahua and Guadalajara," Clariond told the Laredo Times. "It is not a done deal because they are just going to begin a marketing study. But I feel they will come to Mexico."

Clariond also said Wal-Mart already has ties to a Chihuahua state businessman, Leopoldo Mares, and is associated with a Mares-owned store in Ciudad Juarez.

During the visit to Monterrey, Walton and the Wal-Mart officials visited a number of stores, including Soriana, Gigante and Comercial Mexicana and the Mol del Valle, said Clariond.

The company could open its first store in Mexico, in Monterrey, by 1991, Clariond said.

Wal-Mart is expected to open more stores this year than in any previous year. It will open stores in California for the first time and is expanding in Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

According to published reports, in the 12 months through the end of January, the number of Wal-Mart stores increased by 143 to 1,402. Twenty-eight new Sam's Wholesale Clubs were opened, bringing the total to 123. The company also has three Hypermart stores.

Analysts expect Wal-Mart to lead Sears and K Mart in merchandise sales volume in the U.S. this year.

Judge overturns $43.2 million ruling against Toyota

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge set aside a $43.2 million judgment against Toyota and ordered a new trial in a civil case brought by a woman who watched her husband, two daughters and two other people burn to death in a 1982 car fire.

Arthur C. Leshar Jr., a retired state district judge, overturned the Dec. 14 ruling after a three-hour hearing Friday.

In an interview later, Leshar said, "I found that in the interest of justice and fairness, it should be tried again." He would not elaborate.

Leshar presided over the six-week trial against Torrance, Calif.-based Toyota Motor Sales USA Inc. last fall. A jury found Toyota negligent in the design of its 1973 Corona station wagon.

On Dec. 29, Leshar signed off the jury's award of $18.2 million in actual damages and $25 million in exemplary damages to Nike Adegbite, 36, whose husband and two daughters died in the burning car along with two others.

The $43.2 million judgment was the largest award ever entered against the Japanese car company.

Texas courts on occasion call retired judges back to the bench because of a statewide case backlog.

Houston attorney Stan Pfeiffer, who represents Mrs. Adegbite, was angered by Friday's ruling.

"This trial judge has felt compelled for whatever reason to completely ignore the findings of the jury," Pfeiffer said. "There was no substantive complaint about the trial procedure alleged by Toyota nor that this jury was being unreasonable."

But Douglas M. West, Toyota's vice president-general counsel for product law, said the company believed the verdict and the size of the damage award were unfair.

"We felt, taken as a whole, the evidence presented to the jurors did not support the finding of a defect in the 1973 model and it did not support the damages that were awarded, particularly the $25 million in punitive damages," West said by telephone from California.

During the trial, Pfeiffer said the Sept. 26, 1982, accident happened when the driver of the Toyota station wagon, Boyo Adetoye, tried to steer off a roadway because he had a flat tire, and his car was struck by a van.

OKLAHOMA CITY — The Sonic Drive-In of Big Spring won Sonic's "20 Percent Increase Club Award" at the 1990 national convention for franchisees of Sonic Industries Inc., held in Dallas, recently.

The Big Spring Sonic, 1200 Gregg St., was one of more than 100 Sonics nationwide to receive this award for increasing sales by at least 20 percent over previous year's sales.

Sales at the Big Spring/Sonic in 1989 rose 26 percent over the previous year.

Principal owners and managers of the Sonic are Mike and Sheila Abusaab. Mike Abusaab attributes the Sonic's success to the great support of the local community and says, "Thank you, Big Spring. It's our pleasure to serve you."

Sonic, which began in 1959 with four drive-ins, has more than 1,000 drive-ins in 22 states, with over 900 units owned and operated by franchisees.

Ag inspections

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Agriculture will take special precautions in the coming months to ensure that Texas doesn't become a dumping ground for diseased, pest-infested nursery products, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower announced today.

"It's going to take a minimum of three months for the Texas nursery industry to recuperate from the losses suffered during the Christmas freeze. The freeze caused $21.8 million in damages to foliage, ornamentals, citrus, palms and bedding plants, while an additional $5.3 million blow was dealt to sod farms as a result of the crippling freeze. The total economic impact to the state's agricultural economy was nearly $450 million," Hightower said.

"While supplies of quality Texas stock are temporarily low, we want to make certain that the shortage isn't filled with nursery products that don't meet the high quality demanded by Texas nursery/floral laws. This is the time of year when nursery stock starts making its way to retail outlets in preparation for spring planting. TDA inspectors will be checking out-of-state shipments as they enter the state to make certain they aren't bringing in nematodes, diseases or other pests that would have a negative impact on Texas in the long run," Hightower said.

The first border inspection station will be set up in El Paso to monitor shipments. Others will be set up in different locations throughout the state at various times of the year.

These border inspections mark the beginning of the second phase of TDA's newly-formed Nursery/Floral Program. Since its establishment last September, the program has concentrated on inspections of Texas nursery growers and outlets.

Questions about the border stations or nursery/floral issues should be referred to TDA's Nursery/Floral Program at 512/463-7698.

Brains and beauty

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Those who worry that beauty pageants degrade women might do well to chat with Miss Martin County.

Cherise Williams, as anyone who spends time with her will discover, is a charming and self-confident 18-year-old. She convinced me this week that her beauty pageant experiences and tenure as reigning queen of the county have contributed to her personal strengths.

As Miss Martin County, Williams said, "it's a lot easier for me to approach people instead of waiting for them to come to me. I'm more comfortable around people."

Williams, who is preparing for the Miss West Texas pageant this summer in Odessa, also told me that judges are placing more emphasis now than in the past on contestants' knowledge of the world around them. And women in beauty pageants are getting more respect for their intelligence, she said.

This was good to hear. But it isn't all that surprising. Women have come a long way since the days when Katharine Hepburn's 1950s films pioneered the combination of brilliance and beauty — the B&B factor, one might call it — in a female actress's role.

The successful women of today include prime ministers and presidents of corporations; they're no longer expected to apologize for their intelligence.

We live in a more diverse, less sexist society than America of the 1960s. To hear a man describe a woman in terms of body measurements ("36-24-34" used to be a password of sorts) has become passe.

When men of today talk statistics about prospective mates, they're more likely to be citing the number of years of education a woman has, or the income her career commands.

With greater financial pressures today, men realize that they need to marry a woman who can excel at a career. The husband and wife both bring home the bacon, and even then it's not altogether clear that their joint offering will be enough at the dinner table. In 1987, both partners worked fulltime in 29 percent of all married couples, according to a Census Bureau estimate. That percentage can only increase in the coming decades.

As the changes in beauty pageants suggest, our definition of beauty is adapting to changing times. Beauty reflects intelligence and a strong personality far more now than in earlier decades, because there's greater incentive for men to look at intelligence and assertiveness as romantic.

In an Information Society, men are realizing how smart it is to marry a woman who's adept at finding and handling new information. In an era dedicated to time management, it's become just as important for a couple to devise a joint information strategy as it is for a couple to have a joint checking account. One might say that the housewife of the 1950s has turned into a business associate, research partner and housemate.

At some point, I predict, men will openly talk about furthering their upward mobility by marrying women smarter than they.

It's obvious that Richard Nixon and George Bush valued loyalty and old-fashioned virtues more than intellect when they married. They belonged to the Old Guard in that respect.

But in the 1988 presidential campaign, candidate Bruce Babbitt introduced a wife whose career as an attorney highlighted her role as an intellectual partner. Rosalynn Carter's collaboration with Jimmy Carter on a book about making the most of one's later years also pointed to her status as an intellectual partner.

In the near future, I predict, women's magazines will lose interest in the plight of females whose intelligence is seen as threatening to men.

Instead, the typical plight-piece will focus on how women of mediocre intellect can make the most of their abilities and convince a prospective mate that they'd be compatible partners.

The days of the dumb blonde are over. She's been replaced by a woman holding a brief case in one hand, and a college diploma in another.

Black soldiers Civil War started long fight for equality

By SUSAN FAHLGREN
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The introduction of the Tri-Star Pictures movie "Glory" brought national attention to a topic Joseph Glatthaar has been studying for years — the Civil War contributions of black military regiments.

Glatthaar, a University of Houston military science expert, spent four years researching black fighting units for his newly released book, "Forged in Battle: The Civil War Alliance of Black Soldiers and White Officers."

Glatthaar said it was exciting to see the lives of soldiers he has studied come to the screen, but noted he is one of the few Americans who will recognize the historical inaccuracies of the film, which coincidentally came out about the same time as his book.

"The movie's very good. I strongly recommend it," said Glatthaar, an associate professor. "What the movie is good at is conveying a sense to the observer of what it was like to be in these black units and what were some of the obstacles that they faced."

But from a strictly historical standpoint, there are a number of discrepancies, he said.

One example of an inaccuracy comes in a critical scene in the film — when 54th Massachusetts Regimental Cmdr. Robert Gould Shaw orders a soldier flogged.

"Flogging was illegal in the United States Army," Glatthaar said. "Shaw would have been cashiered (discharged) from the service if he did that."

Glatthaar said the "Hollywood" version also included a fictitious sergeant major as Shaw's right-hand man.

"In reality, the sergeant major of the 54th Massachusetts was (abolitionist and former slave) Frederick Douglass' son, which in itself is very interesting," he said.

Glatthaar has read hundreds of letters exchanged between the soldiers and their families as well as thousands of military documents from library archives in researching his book.

"It's almost like gossip," Glatthaar said with a mischievous grin. "These are private letters from son-and-so to maybe his wife, or maybe his mother or father or sister or brother, and there's a lot of personal information in there."

"That's why I think they're such an effective source," Glatthaar said of the letters. "There's no cenship of mails and people were very prolific with their own family or their own spouse and that's very revealing, as far as racial attitudes go."

It was a letter from a white officer directing black troops that initially distracted Glatthaar from another research project.

"I do not think that I would exchange my position in this regiment for one of equal rank in any white regiment," the officer wrote his brother.

Glatthaar said he was intrigued by the force of the officer's views and dropped other projects to study the strange alliance between the white officers and black soldiers, many of them former slaves who were apprehended as "contraband" from the South.

"Of course, you have the old situation with whites in power," he said. "Most of the blacks are from slavery, so it's a position to which they're accustomed, but not happy with. And, of course, these blacks are experiencing freedom for the first time in the military, and that's a strange situation, too."

Some 178,000 blacks served under 7,000 white officers in the U.S. Colored Troops during the Civil War. Only 110 blacks became officers in their own regiments.

Even before President Abraham Lincoln officially freed slaves in January 1863, black soldiers were recruited to fill the gaps left by casualties in the Union Army. Glatthaar points out the Yankee force "solved its own problems of military support services and providing gainful employment for a large, displaced population of blacks."

Glatthaar notes that in these regiments, blacks suffered the indignities of lower wages, undesirable assignments and dwindling supplies. But for many, it was a unique opportunity to serve as "an equal" to whites and to establish their rights for themselves by fighting their former owners.

The white officers who chose to direct these troops often upset their families and communities to do a job they perceived to be either the fundamental objective of the war or at least a well-paying post that would net them hefty rewards.

"They were heroes in the black community, but they were despised by whites," Glatthaar said of the officers. "A lot of them were attacked and brutalized and their families abused because they had served in the Union Army against these Southern whites."

But Glatthaar said the most shocking indignities were those inflicted upon the black troops after the war.

"What really surprised me most was the way the white population took away the accomplishments of the United States Colored Troops after the war," Glatthaar said. "They denied their achievements."

In the South, where black soldiers often remained as peace-keeping forces during Reconstruction, former Confederate soldiers were known to beat blacks who had served in the military or rape their wives.

In the North, blacks had been awarded equalization pay that gave many a nest egg for education or homes or businesses of their own after the war. And while they had the right to vote and were free men, blacks found that their fellow Union Army soldiers and officers began discounting their abilities.

For the black soldiers, the denials from their white officers were a painful slap, Glatthaar said.

"Blacks, I think, wisely felt that their white officers should have fought to help them gain full, equal rights," he said. "The white officers never overcame that prejudice."

Glatthaar said the white population did not remember history, and the battle for equality continued in the military ranks as well as in society.

"What was so striking was when I started reading some books about black service in World War I," Glatthaar said. "They went through the exact same issues — right to making the exact same accusations that blacks didn't have the character to stand up in combat, that they would all drop their weapons and run, or that they would act like savages and fight uncontrollably and we couldn't trust them."

"They just denied the fact that 178,000 soldiers had performed superbly in the Civil War. They were reinventing the wheel in World War I and, in fact, again in World War II."

Dietary calcium to prevent osteoporosis, or brittle bone disease.

Osteoporosis is a disorder in which bone strength is decreased due to a decline in the calcium content. Results from studies suggest that dietary calcium supplementation may decrease the rate of bone loss. It has been recommended that women over 50 should get 1,000 milligrams of calcium per day before menopause and 1,300 to 1,400 mg of calcium per day after menopause. It is best to obtain calcium from foods you eat.

Focus on family

Here are some tips to help you select the best foods for your diet.

- Include milk in your diet regularly. Drinking 2½ cups of milk will meet 90 percent of your daily calcium needs.
- Use nonfat dry milk to enrich soups, stews, meatloaf, sandwich fillings and beverages.
- Read the label. Select dairy products fortified with "nonfat milk solids" to get additional calcium, protein and other nutrients.
- Use canned salmon in your favorite sandwich, salad, and casserole recipes.
- Eat more kale, turnip greens, mustard greens, broccoli and collard greens because they contain calcium that is readily absorbed.
- Physical activity as well as increased calcium intake is required to develop and maintain optimal bone density. If you are not getting enough calcium in your diet, start increasing your calcium intake and your activity level now.

Moonshine in the shade

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Bill O'Neal teaches history at Danville College in Coalinga, California. He asked his students if they could find any old bootleggers or moonshiners who would allow themselves to be interviewed.

"I knew this had been a center of the moonshine industry when it was in its heyday," says Bill. "The students found 44 people who had either made or sold illegal moonshine. Seven of them insisted on remaining anonymous and several others would give us only their pen names."

Black Jack, Mr. Monk, Mr. Sam and so forth."

Bill has a map showing the 254 counties in Texas and the number of stills seized in each one between 1939 and 1973. Many West Texas counties have none whatever. There's a lot of smoke connected with a still and the smoke is pretty hard to hide in West Texas because it's flat and you can see great distances. The East Texas pine forests, however, are a perfect place to make white lightning because the smoke can be concealed.

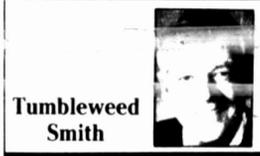

Most of the counties in east Texas had 20 or so stills. But Marion County had more than 200. Harrison County holds the record with 788 stills seized.

Once a couple of young men were arrested for a minor offense and were placed in jail in Longview. They worked as trustys to pay off their fine. One day they discovered large quantities of a clear liquid stored in bottles in a small room. When they inquired about it, they were told it was moonshine. The two trustys began selling the stuff.

They would take liquor from a bottle and replace it with water. The bottles always looked full. The pair got away with it and raised enough money to pay their fines and get out of jail.

Now the deputies had been using that stuff as anti-freeze. So when they began pouring what they thought to be highly charged alcohol but was actually water into their radiators several sheriff's cars ended up with cracked blocks.

One lady was making gin in her bathtub. She saw the sheriff coming up the road so she poured bubble bath into her tub and hopped in. When the sheriff busted in the door, she invited him to search the house for any illegal drinking substance. He didn't find a thing.

Another woman perfected the technique of hiding a flat bottle between her legs. She would sneak the stuff in and out of establishments and no one was the wiser.

Once a man and his wife were delivering some shine over to Marshall and a sheriff's car started chasing them. A rip-roaring chase ensued. The wife was driving while the husband drank the evidence. By the time the sheriff caught up with them, it had all disappeared.

Near Gary, not far from Carthage, a man had a still in the woods and the sheriff and some deputies rushed the house. He had only one bottle of booze on the place. So as he ran by the wood burning cookstove he threw it in. The stove exploded and blew the clothes off his wife. His four kids came running out of the house, hopped in a barrel, the barrel tipped over and rolled down a hill. Everybody came out OK.

The sheriff left shaking his head. The homemade brew sold for $200 to 300 per gallon. One independent operator traded 100 gallons of his stuff for a car. That was about a month's output.

One moonshiner gave the whiskey mash to his hogs when he was through with it. The pigs became intoxicated regularly and grew quite fond of the product. One rambunctious hog climbed into the barrel while the whiskey was making. He drowned there and the moonshiner went ahead and cooked off the batch with the pig in it. His customers said it had a unique taste.

Golfers tee off on custom of buying drinks

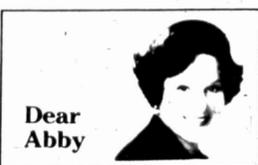

DEAR ABBY: About the custom that a hole-in-one golfer buy drinks for everyone, I've had a lot of experience with that.

My first four holes in one were made when I was underage, so going into a bar was out of the question. My first hole in one (age 21) cost me $43 in drinks, and each time after that cost about $50. Once, when the clubhouse was crowded, my bar bill was more than $100 — that's when I said, "No more!"

But to celebrate my 100th hole in one, I popped for a bottle of champagne for my foursome.

To answer your question, Abby, if a golfer can afford to buy drinks for a clubhouse full of golfers, fine — but it would make more sense if the lucky golfer were rewarded instead — SCOTT PALMER, LOS ANGELES

DEAR SCOTT: Great Scott! A hundred holes in one! I never would have believed it had you not enclosed positive proof: 1. A congratulatory letter from Jack Nicklaus (1983). 2. A reprint from the 1988 Guinness Book of World Records stating: "The greatest number of holes in one reported in one career is 98 — held by Scott

Dear Abby

Palmer of Los Angeles." (Since then, Palmer has added two more.) 3. A photocopy of "Ripley's Believe It or Not" (1984), which stated: "Between Feb. 17, 1983, and March 6, 1984, Scott Palmer of San Diego made 24 holes in one — 17 with the same ball."

By the way, Scott is not related to Arnie Palmer.

Read on for reactions from other golfers:

DEAR ABBY: As an avid golfer who has had two holes in one, I refuse to buy drinks for the golf population in the clubhouse. I will buy one drink each for those I'm playing with. My husband, who has had six holes in one at various clubs, concurs. — NANCY H. DIVOLL, BELLOWS FALLS, VT.

DEAR ABBY: I think the custom of requiring a golfer who gets a hole in one to buy drinks for everyone is absurd. Two years ago, one of our members made a hole in one during a tournament, and it cost him more than $500. I had one last year and it was no big deal. On the way home, I asked my partner if he wanted a drink, and he said yes, so I pulled up in front of a market and bought him a Coke from the machine out in front. — HAROLD F. MOKLER, SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: I got a hole in one last November. The feeling was indescribable! I couldn't buy drinks for anybody because the club I belong to down here doesn't have a liquor license. — J. LESLIE ST. PIERRE, BRADENTON, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I've made five holes in one. The first one was such a thrill, I bought drinks for everyone. After that, a hole in one got to be "ho-hum," so I bought a badly needed sprinkler system for the golf club, telling those who asked, that's where their drink is! — MARGIE E. EMERSON

CATHEDRAL CITY, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: According to you, dropping in on people without calling first is a crime. We don't happen to feel that way. In fact, my husband and I plead guilty to that "crime," but let me explain our reasoning.

We figure if we call first to say we are coming, our friends will go to a lot of extra trouble, and we don't want that. If we get there and they are not all that glad to see us, we can always leave.

I know that you do not approve of dropping in, but I'll bet most of your readers feel as we do.

If you print this, maybe we'll find out — "DROP-INS"

Abby's favorite family recipes are included in her cookbooklet. Send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

The Ruth Bachofner Gallery, an art gallery in Santa Monica, Calif., is currently showing works in oils on wood by a former resident, Avery Falkner. Avery, son of Avery and Edie Falkner, is an art professor at Pepperdine University in Malibu; the family lives in Agoura Hills.

Former resident Patrick Burke, son of Beatrice and the late Douglas Burke, received honors as Mesquite's "Police Officer of the Year."

A graduate of Big Spring High School and Howard College, Pat is married to Blythe Sparling, daughter of Ed and Charleen Sparling. There are two young Burkes — Ryan, 4, and Sarah, 1.

Pat is a graduate of Mesquite Police Academy and has been a police officer three years.

Some Big Spring residents recently tried their hand at running a casino — but it was all for charity.

"It was a student activity of Midland Community College," says Martie Geanopulos. "We helped them raise $900 for a donation to the March of Dimes."

The dealers, pit bosses and croupiers didn't get home until after 1 a.m. "It was tough going to work the next day."

Others working at the benefit were Tony Geanopulos, Gary Don Carey, Jim and Linda Roger, Mike and Linda Coskey, Richard and Debbie Sanders, David and Sharon Justice, Fred and Sue Ward, Dee and Lynda Elrod, Debbie Yanbrick, Floyd and Gail Earls, and Delmas Ward.

Tidbits

California where the family lived in the 1970s. Cliff and Sue Balzer returned to Big Spring in 1976.

The Balzers are planning a spring vacation to California to see their daughter and husband Steve, and grandchildren Jennifer and Natalie.

Former residents Homer and Lu Logan came in from Ft. Worth recently to help his mother, Mabel Logan, celebrate her 92nd birthday.

Mabel, longtime teacher in Big Spring Schools, maintains her own home in Westbrook on land her family homesteaded.

Homer spent one evening of the visit playing fiddle with the Super Six Dance Band at the Senior Citizens Center. The Logans are a musically gifted family — the late patriarch, Frank Logan, was a well-known Big Spring area fiddle player. When not busy with his job as a U.S. government geologist for the southern states and Puerto Rico, Homer fiddles with a Ft. Worth band led by Leon Rausch, a former Bob Willis associate.

Raymond and Viola Lopez took a long weekend trip to Dallas.

They visited Viola's sister, Connie Valdez, and his brothers Manuel and Alma Lopez and Marcos and Dora Lopez. "We all went shopping and dancing," says Viola, "and went to that big flea market."

Bob "Tumbleweed Smith" Lewis and wife Susan were surprised to see Big Spring residents and former residents on recent trips.

When Tumbleweed Smith addressed the Chamber of Commerce banquet in Littlefield, the couple ran into three former Big Spring families — the Eddie Hodges, the Danny McCrearys and the John Kennerlys.

In Pecos for a talk at that city's Chamber Banquet, the Lewises saw State Rep. Troy and Linda Fraser.

They've been doing it every year for 12 years — taking a vacation to Mazatlan, Mexico.

"We call it the 'Girls Trip,'" says Linda Roger, who with her three sisters — Beverly Franklin, Jackie Casey, Junction, Colo., and Jean Quad, Phoenix, Ariz. — have made it a family tradition.

"No children, husbands or boyfriends allowed," Linda emphasizes. However, this year a boyfriend caused a minor disruption in the tradition: Jean missed the trip because of wedding nuptials.

"This certainly brings back old memories," W.T. Morgan said from his office in Kansas City, Mo. this week. W.T. was commenting on his years at Big Spring High School.

The 1945 graduate, now president and chief executive officer of Waddell & Reed, one of the pioneers in the mutual fund industry, has been tapped for a Distinguished Alumni Award from Hardin-Simmons University.

W.T. (now known as Bill) expressed regret that he was unable to return for his class reunion in October, although his brother Harlan and Margaret Morgan, Midland, were on hand. Sister Mary Beth (Morgan) and Bill Tarter now live in Roswell, N.M., he reports.

W.T. predicts he'll be back for his 50th class reunion in 1995.

"It's neat to go down aisle 7 at Furr's and see my daughter's picture on the magazine cover," says Sue Balzer.

Janet Balzer Smith, a professional commercial model, appears on the cover and an inside spread of Better Homes & Garden's Traditional Homes Spring Edition. A resident of Western Hills, Calif., a suburb of Los Angeles, Janet has been featured in many national magazines, including Bride's Magazine, as well as a McDonald's commercial in the eight years she has modeled.

Janet is a local area native, and attended Coahoma schools, but graduated from high school in Livestock shows have dominated the time and lives of many of our local folks in recent weeks as they have traveled across the state allowing their youngsters in the 4-H program to exhibit their livestock projects at the major shows.

These people, in many cases devote a lot of time and effort, not to mention expense, in this program, and still find time for other activities. Too often, a lot of these people go unnoticed and, for sure, do not seek recognition, but they do deserve it.

In the midst of all the stock show activities, one of our 4-H families received a high honor bestowed upon them by the Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting. John Middleton was honored as agricultural producer of the year. Middleton has been a result demonstrator for several years, working with us to help show local producers the importance of diversification in agriculture in Howard County.

Against advice and at great odds with nature, Middleton proved sheep could be produced, and at a profit, in predator-infested areas of our county.

His work with the use of guard donkeys has attracted national attention and he and his family hosted one of the most outstanding sheep and goat and range field days in West Texas last summer attended by almost 100 people.

Middleton was supported by family, Harry and Jeannette Middleton, and their two daughters, Kim and Lauren, who have been actively showing their lambs across the state all season. Our hats off to the Middletons for this honor!

Other 4-H'ers and their families did an outstanding community service project recently as they undertook the adoption of the landscape area on the east side of the county courthouse. Almost 50 youngsters and parents joined Ricky Spencer, our newest addition to our county staff, and renovated the flower beds and planted more than 750 pansies donated by the Chamber of Commerce from decorations used at the annual meeting.

Extension Program Council members have been developing plans for the revision of the county's Long Range Extension Plan. Key community leaders will soon be contacted to meet and help identify critical issues that will assist the county staff as they work with their various Program Area Committees in planning and implementing their educational programs to be conducted in the county during the next four years.

Mrs. Pat Porter, chairman, is busy with community projects. She was instrumental in working with the Leadership Big Spring Alumni in promoting and developing the recent Town Meeting that allowed citizens to express their concerns about some of the problems facing our community.

The Council supported this project as their sponsored educational program for the year. Marsha Stabel, 4-H and youth specialist, San Angelo, is working with the Jr. Leadership Big Spring Program again this year. Program coordinator is Kathy Blagrove.

A 4-H livestock and horse judging project group is being formed. Youngsters who are interested in this program should contact Ricky Spencer at 267-1821. The County Extension Field Crops Program Area Committee is working with the county staff in planning educational programs for county crops and livestock producers coming up in the near future for training in the new "Right-to-Know" laws and regulations and certification programs for use of agricultural chemicals.

Please be watching this news article and the mail for notices with more details on these meetings. Employers and employees that use chemicals are particularly affected by these new changes in the state laws being enforced by the Texas Department of Agriculture.
