Snake roundup

BIG SPRING — The 28th Annual Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup, sponsored by the American Business Club and Coors of Big Spring, snakesdances into the Howard County Fairgrounds this weekend. The festivities start at 10 a.m. Saturday with rattlesnake demonstrations, arts and crafts and concessions.

The Mi-Mo-Jo snake handlers will do continuous shows every 30 minutes featuring snake safety and various snake stunts, including snuggling in sleeping bags with them and letting them slither over their supine bodies.

Other booths will demonstrate venom milking and snake skinning.

Rattlesnake gee-gaws you can't live without (rattler earrings, for example) and snakey snack-snacks will be available as well.

The Roundup runs from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $3 for adults, $2 for children and senior citizens.

The Rattlesnake Roundup Dance, with music by Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys, is Saturday at 9 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Community Center. Tickets are $15 per couple or $8 each. They're available at the door.

The milked venom from the Roundup goes to cancer research centers and the snakes themselves are sold to commercial buyers, who use everything but the guts. Proceeds go to the AMBUCS scholarship fund for therapists and the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Census help

BIG SPRING — Census forms will be mailed starting today to all known mailing addresses, and on March 26, census workers will start collecting the forms.

Don McInnis, district manager for the Census Bureau, said workers also will begin checking household locations to update census maps. This will continue through April, he said.

The bureau still is hiring temporary help for field work. Testing will be conducted each Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Texas Employment Commission, 310 Owens, for three weeks. Up to 20 can be tested per session.

Most of the jobs will be filed work in areas close to workers' homes, McInnis said. Work includes checking mailing addresses, picking up questionnaires or visiting addresses to assist persons in completion of forms.

Training rates for workers are $3.80 per hour, and after training, workers will earn $5 per hour, McInnis said.

For more information call the employment commission at 267-7437.

Gun club rendezvous

The Black Powder Gun Club will rendezvous at Lockhart Canyon Saturday from 8 a.m. to dusk. The club will fire its collection of antique firearms and four American Indian dancers will demonstrate their tomahawk and knife throwing skills.

To get to the canyon, turn east at the grey house on the first oilfield road after the big hill on FM 669 heading toward Gail from the Luther gin. Continue on the oilfield road, which will become a dirt road, until you reach a windmill. Turn left on the road to the north side of the windmill and head northeast toward the canyon. Signs will mark the way.

One-act play

Big Spring High School will present its UIL one-act play, "The Rimers of Eldritch" by Lanford Wilson, at 7:30 tonight at the high school auditorium. Tickets, available at the door, are $2 for adults, $1 for students and senior citizens.

Say No party

Kim Savage and Hershey the drug dog will host a Just Say No skate party on Saturday from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Skateland. Winners of the anti-drug contest Hershey sponsored in the schools skate for free.

Schulze seeking damages

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A woman, who charged she was the victim of police brutality, has filed a lawsuit against the city in 118th District Court.

Leslye Schulze, 26, filed suit Thursday in district court, charging that she was the victim of police brutality on May 8 after being injured while being arrested by police. The suit charges that officers "negligently and maliciously" broke her left arm.

Schulze charges that she incurred medical expenses from the incident, as well as "physical and mental anguish." The suit filed in behalf of Schulze is seeking undisclosed damages, attorneys fees, interests and costs of the suit.

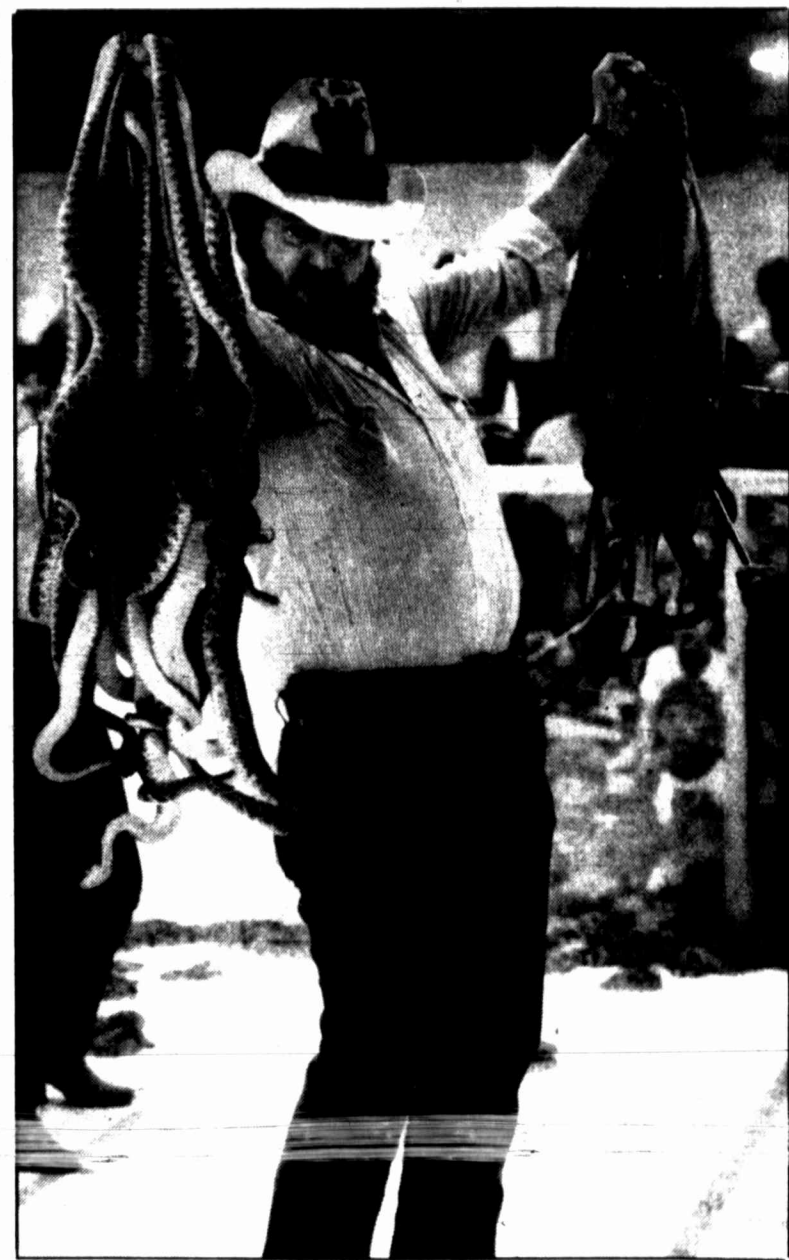

City Attorney Jean Shotts said today the lawsuit will be forwarded to the city's insurance company, the Texas League of Municipalities. If the suit goes to court the TLM will be responsible for defending the city, he said.

Her attorney, Robert Miller, said that the suit seeks payment for bodily injuries stemming from the incident. "She was in their custody (when her arm was broken) and they have a duty to protect her from injuries," he said today.

Shotts downplayed any significance to the case, saying it will be settled like any other claim against the city. "It's an insurance case just like any other one," he said.

In a Herald interview after the incident, Schulze alleged that while she was lying on the ground after Snakes alive!

Valdez skipper acquitted

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Flushed with a feeling of victory after three acquittals and a conviction on a minor misdemeanor, Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood says he longs to return to the sea as a ship captain.

His lawyer, Michael Chalos, said he will start negotiating with Exxon to regain the skipper's job with the shipping company that hired him out of college and fired him after his tanker grounded a year ago, causing the nation's worst oil spill.

"I'd like to go back to the sea. That's what I do," Hazelwood said Thursday after jurors absolved him of accusations he was reckless and drunk during the disaster that blackened the rocky shoreline of Prince William Sound.

Howard County 911 ready for operation

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — The county's 911 emergency call system becomes fully operational on Saturday when a computer readout will automatically give dispatchers the caller's address.

Carl Dorton, executive director of the Howard County 911 Communications District, said the enhanced 911 system will go on line at 9 a.m.

"Enhanced as opposed to being just regular 911," Dorton said of the special system. "We'll be able to identify your telephone location, who you are and what agencies respond to whatever you need."

The system's computer readout is especially important since it allows operators to dispatch emergency crews to the address even if the person calling is unable to speak, Dorton said. It also includes provisions for the hearing impaired with TTY/TDD equipment (telecommunications device for the deaf).

"It doesn't make any difference if we hear you or not," he said. "We will respond."

"If you call 911 on Saturday we know where you're calling from and who you are. We have all the information available on the screen before you even say who you are."

There are a few exceptions, he said. Addressing is mostly completed, but about 20 percent of the county — rural areas — still must be checked, he said.

"We have approximately 80 per-

Dunnam: Green can't unite city

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — The leader of the recall effort today said embattled Mayor Max Green had embarrassed and humiliated the city.

During a 10 a.m. press conference attended by three former mayors, Carrie Dunnam said citizens must ask themselves before they vote for or against the recall whether the city can afford to keep Green. Dunnam initiated the election when she and 11 others filed a petition in February for a recall.

"At this point, it is not really a question of who is wrong or right, but rather who can responsibly and effectively lead this community into the future," Dunnam said in the conference. "Can we replace Mr. Green with someone who is fair-minded and willing to listen to the majority of citizens in this community? We think so."

"We are not asking for a 'yes-man,' only an open-minded one. Many citizens in the community are wondering at this point — who is the mayor? Mr. Green or Mr. Green's personal advisors?"

Green declined comment on Dunnam's remarks.

Several respected business and community leaders are available and willing to serve as mayor, Dunnam said. She said it will be an "unreasonably and utterly impossible request to fulfill" to ask Green to unify a community that has been divided by the recall issue.

Dunnam had the apparent support of three former Big Spring mayors, including Arnold Marshall, who was mayor when the city went through a recall election in

Recall election polling places

BIG SPRING — Voters will go to the polls Saturday to decide whether embattled Mayor Max Green stays or goes.

Voters may cast ballots in the mayoral recall election at six polling places, which will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.:

• Persons living in District 1, county voting precinct 102-W1, may vote at the Kindergarten Center.

• Persons living in District 1, county voting precincts 101-W1, 201-W1, 301-W1 and 402-W1, may vote at the Northside Fire Station.

• Persons living in District 2, county voting precincts 203-W2 and 204-W2, may vote at Kentwood Elementary School.

• Persons living in District 2, county voting precincts 402-W2, 403-W3, may vote at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

• Persons living in District 3, county voting precincts 202-W3 and 302-W3, may vote at the 18th and Main Fire Station.

• Persons living in District 3, county voting precincts 303-W3, may vote at the Wasson Road Fire Station.

Mitchell County to build landfill

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Commissioners voted unanimously today to agree to serve as a host to a regional landfill.

"I think the overwhelming majority of the community support has indicated what they want done," said Mitchell County Judge S.L. "Mac" Morris. Morris had said earlier this month that the commissioners would base their decision on the sentiment of residents.

Of 157 residents voting Thursday night at a public hearing in Colorado City on the proposed landfill, 134 supported it, 20 opposed it and three were undecided. About 90 percent of the residents attending each of the other hearings this week, at Loraine and Westbrook, also supported the landfill, Morris said.

National Waste and Energy Development Inc., the Pittsburgh company that proposes to build a landfill in Mitchell County, is expected to open offices in Colorado City within the next few weeks, Morris said. The company plans to begin engineering work to determine if the site is satisfactory. If so, the company would seek equipment for the project, and then seek permits from state and federal regulatory agencies.

A spokesman for the company, vice president Jim Kronin, answered questions Thursday and emphasized that residents of Mitchell County will be informed throughout the process toward construction of the landfill.

At the public hearing Thursday night in Colorado High School auditorium, local resident Danny Galey received thunderous applause when he declared, "If we don't get behind something like this, and push it 100 percent, this town's going to dry up and die."

Inside Texas

Bribery loophole

AUSTIN (AP) — Key legislators, warned that bribery is impossible to prosecute when a lawmaker reports a bribe as a campaign contribution, say they will keep that loophole because they fear politically ambitious prosecutors.

Rep. Pete Laney and Sen. Bob McFarland, who head legislative committees studying the state's government ethics law would make legislators vulnerable to politically inspired attacks.

When a lawmaker accepts a contribution and later supports the donor's legislation, McFarland said, "an overzealous or politically ambitious prosecuting attorney could indict in every instance. Then it's my burden to prove the money didn't influence my vote."

Current law allows legislators to defend themselves against bribery charges by asserting that they reported the money as a campaign contribution.

Dangerous chemicals

AUSTIN (AP) — A potentially explosive chemical that had been in the Mineral Wells High School chemistry lab for 20 years recently was discovered by school officials, the Texas Water Commission said.

The chemical, known as picric acid, had become very unstable with age, according to the commission. It urged all Texas schools to conduct a thorough inventory of chemicals in their labs to ensure that stock is within its recommended shelf-life.

Mineral Wells High School officials contracted with Emtech Environmental Services, Inc., a hazardous waste management company, to remove the chemical. The Water Commission earlier this month approved an emergency order authorizing the handling and disposal of the picric acid.

As picric acid ages, the acid crystallizes and becomes capable of detonating on impact. The aged acid is comparable to nitroglycerine in its explosive qualities.

Only black sheriff

SULPHUR SPRINGS (AP) — Bill Dirks has become the only black sheriff in the state following the departure of his old boss, the Texas Sheriffs Association said.

Dirks, a 55-year-old retired veteran of the U.S. Air Force and Army, was sworn in Wednesday as the sheriff of Hopkins County.

Dirks, appointed by county commissioners, succeeds Mark Bassham, who appointed him as the county's chief deputy in 1986. Bassham has accepted an appointment to become an inspector for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Dirks, who lives in Sulphur Springs, will hold the post until a permanent replacement can be elected in November to complete the final two years of Bassham's four-year term.

"I hope I get the (Democratic) nomination, but the party hasn't named anybody yet. We'll just have to wait and see," Dirks told The Dallas Morning News.

Can't prove drug use

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox said he's "not in doubt" his opponent for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, state Treasurer Ann Richards, has used illegal drug, but conceded he has no proof.

In calls to several news organizations Thursday, Mattox again raised the drug use question that Ms. Richards refused to answer in the weeks before the March 13 primary.

"I do not believe that a person who takes the Fifth Amendment can then go on and lead a war on drugs," Mattox said.

The Richards campaign responded by producing the results of a blood test Ms. Richards took last weekend in Austin. The results were negative.

Lawmakers pessimistic about school finance bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers went home for the weekend today, pessimistic about the possibility of reforming the school finance system before the special session ends but anticipating a second session will give them another chance.

"The possibility of us being able to conclude our work... would be almost impossible to do by Wednesday," when the special session expires, said House Speaker Gib Lewis. "But I'm sure we will be back here the following week."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby also said chances of passing an education reform bill before the special session ends are "very slim." Both leaders said they would recommend an April 2 starting date for a second 30-day special session.

A spokeswoman for Gov. Bill Clements did not immediately return a telephone call. Clements, the only one who can call lawmakers into special session, has said he will keep the Legislature in Austin until he gets a school finance reform bill that doesn't require new taxes, a level he estimates at $200 million to $300 million.

The House virtually guaranteed another special session late Thursday, when representatives voted 45-101 against a bill by Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, that would have pumped $511 million more into public schools in 1990-91.

The vote ended nine hours of debate in which more than 50 amendments were offered and the bill's cost was raised $61 million.

"Maybe I was the only one that was optimistic enough in the very beginning to think we could do it in 30 days," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Republicans and conservative

Democrats, who wanted a lower price tag than Ms. Glossbrenner's, led the charge against the bill. Some members of the House Mexican American Legislative Caucus also opposed it, saying more funding is needed in 1990-91.

Those differences demonstrate the complexity of trying to address the Texas Supreme Court ruling that the current school finance system is unconstitutional, Lewis said.

The court, which last year found glaring disparities between property-rich and poor school districts, gave lawmakers until May 1 to change the $13.5 billion-a-year system, which relies on a combination of local property taxes, state aid and some federal funds.

"You have one group that was opposed to the bill because it did not spend enough money. You have one group that was opposed to the bill because, just the opposite, it spent too much. Then you have one group opposed to the bill because of mandates to the districts that were unfunded," Lewis said.

Some supporters acknowledged the bill was imperfect, but urged its passage so that the legislation could go to a conference committee to work out differences with a $1.2 billion measure approved Monday by the Texas Senate.

"I think we're on a collision course with the Supreme Court. I don't feel like playing a game of chicken with them, because I think they're going to win," said Rep. Libby Lineberger, D-Manchaca.

But Rep. Eddie Cavazos, chairman of the House Mexican American Legislative Caucus, said, "We're not going to go up in smoke because the session ends next week."

"We cannot afford not to put more money into education," said Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi.

On the other side, Reps. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield; Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont; and Kent Grusendorf, R-Arlington, said the cost of the bill in future years was not entirely known, but could be too high.

"We don't need to fall prey to a billion-dollar tax bill," Stiles said.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said the bill would state monies to schools without a finance plan that meets the court's order, an action that could force the closing of Texas schools.

"I don't think people are going to build monuments to a Legislature and a governor that are so irresponsible that they'll allow our schools to shut down," Ms. Glossbrenner said.

Accusations fly over DHS deficit

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Human Services chairman Rob Mosbacher was blasted by state lawmakers for not attending a legislative hearing on his agency's projected $850 million budget shortfall.

Mosbacher, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, was on a trip with his children during spring break, DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey said Thursday.

"All of us must meet our public commitments as well as our personal responsibilities. Certainly spring is a time for all of us to meet family commitments but this is our primary responsibility," said Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo.

Lindsey told the Senate Health and Human Services Committee that if the Legislature doesn't help bridge the shortfall, the agency would have to implement cuts that would leave many needy people unprotected and jeopardize $1 billion in federal funds.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who attended the meeting, said more revenues — not cuts — were needed to prop up DHS, which has projected a budget deficit because of increased demand on services and increased responsibilities mandated by the federal government. Hobby favors a 14-cent increase in the cigarette tax to help bridge the budget gap.

The agency faces a $152 million projected deficit for the current fiscal year that ends Aug. 31 and the remaining $850 million shortfall at the end of the next fiscal year.

Stephanie Thomas, one of many disabled advocates at the hearing, said she was "tired of the Texas Department of Human Services and the state Legislature treating people like throwaways."

Leslie Lanham of the Children's Defense Fund said, "Texas should be investing more, not less on its children." She said Texas ranks 48th in the nation in funding for early prenatal care.

The DHS board on Wednesday approved freezing rate increases proposed earlier this year for a number of contract providers of services, such as pharmacists, nursing homes, day-care centers and hospices.

The rate increases would have helped cover the cost of the federally required increases in the minimum wage as well as other expenses, such as increased minimum staffing requirements at nursing homes.

Lindsey said Gov. Bill Clements' staff has said they would support moving money from the next fiscal year to cover the deficit in the current one.

If that happened, Lindsey said, "I may be in the posture of having to ask the Legislature for a tax increase" next year.

Investigation dropped

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech University officials say a faculty member's use of animals in scientific research has been vindicated by an investigative agency.

An investigative branch of the National Institutes of Health announced Wednesday it has cleared John M. Orem, a sleep researcher at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

The People for Ethical Treatment of Animals had complained there were more than 15 violations of federal law at the university's research center.

Fishing vessel sinks in Bering Sea

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Ten crew members remained missing and were presumed drowned today after a fishing vessel capsized and quickly sank in the frigid Bering Sea, the Coast Guard said. Twenty-two crew members were rescued Thursday after the 162-foot Seattle-based Aleutian Enterprise sank about 60 miles south of the remote Pribilof Islands town of St. Paul. Coast Guard spokesman Christopher Haley said today in Juneau.

No fatalities had been confirmed and the cause of the sinking was not immediately known. The site is north of the Aleutian Islands chain and southwest of the Alaska mainland. The search for the missing sailors was suspended late Thursday and was to resume at the start of Friday.

Arctic Alaska's 22 other vessels that operate in the Bering Sea comprise the largest trawler fleet in the region.

Northwest crew facing charges

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Northwest Airlines pilot fell out of his barroom chair and couldn't find his motel the night before he and two others in his cockpit crew were arrested on suspicion of flying while intoxicated, authorities say.

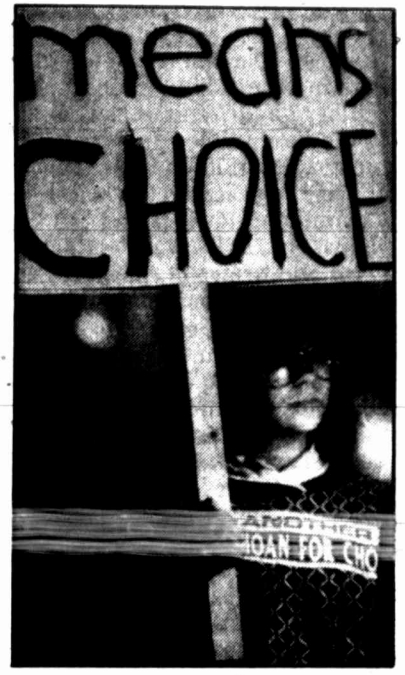

The three, who have been fired by Northwest, were charged Thursday by federal and state officials with operating an aircraft while under the influence of alcohol.

Charges were filed by the U.S. attorney's office in Minneapolis and by North Dakota officials against Capt. Norman Prouse, 51, of Conyers, Ga.; First Officer Robert Kirchner, 35, of Highland Ranch, Colo., and Second Officer Joseph Balzer, 34, of Antioch, Tenn.

Prouse, Balzer and Kirchner piloted Flight 650 from Fargo, N.D., to Minneapolis with 91 passengers on March 8 and landed safely. However, federal authorities had received a tip that the crew had been drinking the night before the flight and the three were arrested when they got off the plane.

Idaho lawmakers pass abortion bill

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The Idaho Legislature's approval of the most restrictive state abortion law sets the stage for a possible test of the U.S. Supreme Court's commitment to legalized abortion.

The law would make abortion illegal except in cases of non-statutory rape reported within seven days, incest if the victim is younger than 18, severe fetal deformity or a threat to the mother's life or physical health.

An abortion would be illegal in the case of statutory rape, or sex with a minor, on grounds that such behavior implies consent on the part of the female, said Democratic Sen. Claire Weatherell, a supporter of the bill.

If it is signed by Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, the measure would take effect July 1.

Lithuanians appeal for worldwide support

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis today accused Moscow of waging "psychological warfare" to force his Baltic republic back into the Soviet fold.

Soviet armor rumbled through the Lithuanian capital's streets on Thursday, prompting the republic's leaders to issue a worldwide appeal for support and express concern that increasing Kremlin pressure would lead to violence.

The appeal followed orders from Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev that Lithuania stop signing up its own volunteer forces and that citizens surrender all their firearms within a week.

Landsbergis said the Kremlin "was going from economic warfare to psychological warfare" in its attempts to make Lithuania renounce its March 11 declaration of independence, said Rita Dapkus of the Parliament's information center.

Landsbergis opened today's parliament session with an account of the U.S. Senate's resolution Thursday night urging Moscow to stop intimidating Lithuania and asking President Bush to consider granting the republic diplomatic recognition.

"The reaction was applause," Dapkus said.

The Kremlin has said it would not use force to bring Lithuania back into the Soviet Union. But Lithuanian officials feared that desertions from the Red army might give the Kremlin an excuse to use force, said Algirdas Saudargas, head of the Lithuanian Parliament's Foreign Affairs Committee.

Many young Lithuanians have deserted the armed forces to return to their Baltic republic, and Soviet authorities have ordered them to return by Saturday.

"It is clear that another republic is going to use force against Lithuania and its citizens," said a Lithuanian government appeal to the world issued late Thursday.

Panama expels Cuban ambassador

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The government ordered Cuba's ambassador to leave the country within five days because he refuses to recognize the new administration of President Guillermo Endara.

The Cuban government's position has been one of "harassment, intimidation and harassment," Foreign Minister Julio Linarez said Thursday after telling Cuban Ambassador Lazaro Mora Secades he had to leave by Tuesday. "We're not going to let a government that is saying it doesn't recognize President Endara maintain accredited diplomatic missions in Panama." Endara was installed at the beginning of the Dec. 20 U.S. invasion that ousted Panama's military leader, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who maintained friendly relations with Communist Cuba and shared President Fidel Castro's hostility toward the United States.

Endara has "a legitimacy that no other Latin American government enjoys, since no Latin American leader has been elected with an overwhelming 3-1 majority," Linarez said, referring to the May 1989 election Noriega annulled.

Troops patrol Colombian capital

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Armored cars and jeeps mounted with machine guns patrolled the quiet capital today after the assassination of a left-wing presidential candidate caused fierce clashes between police and protesters.

The government blamed a drug baron for Thursday's killing of Patriotic Union candidate Bernardo Jaramillo — the second presidential contender slain in seven months. It said the killing marked a new anti-government offensive by drug traffickers. The head of the Medellin drug cartel, Pablo Escobar, sent a letter to a leftist leader denying any involvement in Jaramillo's death and suggesting that other drug traffickers were to blame.

Jaramillo was shot Thursday morning at Bogota's international airport by a young man who reached out as if to greet the candidate, then shot him with a submachine gun hidden in a newspaper.

Calm returns as ethnic strikes end

TIRGU MURES, Romania (AP) — A wave of strikes that virtually paralyzed this ethnically split Transylvanian town ended today as mediators discussed replacing local authorities accused of failing to stop this week's unrest.

The city, where seven people died in bloody clashes between Romanians and ethnic Hungarians that peaked Tuesday night, was reported to be calm after a commission of inquiry agreed that the Hungarian minority has a right to education in its native tongue, an issue that contributed to the clashes.

Tanks, paramilitary policemen and soldiers, including the national Parachute Regiment deployed in Tirgu Mures earlier this week, surrounded the building where the central government's commission of inquiry met with representatives of

More Points To Ponder Concerning The Recall Of MAYOR MAXWELL D. GREEN

— Maxwell D. Green promised us "changes"? Where are the positive changes? How can we have positive "anything" if Mr. Green remains in office?

— It was never Mr. Green's intent, we are sure, to place division, frustration, hostility, suspicion, and mistrust in the minds of every citizen concerning their city departments and their own governing body. Yet, that is exactly what has occurred in his ten months in office.

— Because of Maxwell D. Green's words and actions he did; divide the council and community violate our own city charter brought negative media attention to our city — The past cannot be changed however, we can only shape and change our future!

— If Mr. Green is re-elected he may very well spend the next two years trying to undo some of the damage he has caused. We may be wasting valuable time just trying to pull this community back together.

— There are well-respected community and business people willing, able, and capable as our new mayor of bringing the community back together quickly. Time is most important in dealing with several issues at hand.

— The questions we must all ask ourselves are; Can we afford to be in controversy two more years? Mr. Green has vowed he will continue to be controversial!

Do we have anything to gain by keeping Mr. Green in office? What positive changes or accomplishments can he take credit for?

Do we have anything to lose by recalling Mr. Green from office? Could it get any worse? What other mayor in Big Spring's history has put us at the center of so much controversy?

— With several qualified, respected, open-minded and fair people in our community who could represent Big Spring responsibly and effectively — why not opt for a real "change!"

The benefits of buckling babies

The nation's airlines have asked the Federal Aviation Administration to require that infants and toddlers be strapped in a safety seat when they fly. "If you buckle your children up at 50 miles per hour, why not at 550 miles per hour?" asks Robert Aaronson, president of the airline industry trade group.

Currently, children under the age of 2 may fly without a ticket if they are carried in a parent's arms. But unsecured infants and toddlers are at greater risk of being tossed about the airline cabin in a crash, a danger underlined by the deaths of children under 2 in the crashes of Avianca Airlines Flight 52 in New York and United Airlines Flight 232 in Iowa. The airlines, the flight attendants' union and some members of Congress argue that the safety of babies traveling by airliner would be improved by requiring the use of infant seats, a point that seems beyond dispute.

But how much safer and at what cost? Over the past decade, U.S. air carriers have experienced one fatal accident for every billion aircraft miles flown. According to a Harvard University study of safety on aircraft, there were only three infant airline fatalities in a recent six-year period. Infant deaths in aircraft accidents are rare, and ones that might be prevented by safety seats are rarer still. Yet to attempt to guard against those rare occurrences, the airline industry is proposing to require the 5,000 to 10,000 customers who travel each day with babies to buy extra tickets at a cost the industry says it cannot estimate but which will surely be hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

The FAA needs to ask some questions. Imposing higher air fares for families with infants and toddlers will likely cause some to travel instead by automobile, which has a passenger death rate about 20 times higher than airliners. Could requiring infant seats on airliners actually result in more injury and death to the young? Even if it doesn't, would requiring airline passengers to invest an extra $100 million a year in buying tickets and child seats for infants and toddlers save more lives than the same investment in other airline safety improvements, such as more frequent aircraft inspections or devices to protect passengers from smoke and fire in a crash? Child safety seats on airplanes have an undeniable emotional appeal, but this proposal requires some unsentimental analysis before the FAA approves it.

If Gathers had only listened to his heart

BY LEWIS GRIZZARD

A lot of people who watched that awful tape that showed Hank Gathers convulsing and dying on the basketball floor probably asked, "Why did he keep playing? He knew he had a heart problem."

I know why he did it. He did it because he was 23 years old, basketball was his life and his planet, and he was certain he would live forever — heart problem or no heart problem.

I've been there. When I was 15, I had to have a physical in order to play in a baseball tournament. The doctor listened to my heart and told my mother and me that I had a "heart murmur."

The first thing I asked the doctor was "Can I still play ball?" He said I could but to keep my heart checked regularly. If he had said I couldn't play, I probably would have found a way to play anyway.

I basically forgot about my heart murmur. I played baseball and basketball in high school. It never occurred to me I could drop dead in the middle of the game.

I lived for sports, and I was certain I would live forever, too.

I took up tennis when I was 23. I played tennis every day.

When I was 35, my doctor called me into his office after a physical and told me my heart murmur was actually a faulty aortic valve. Then, he said the most frightening words I've ever heard in my life.

"You need heart surgery."

My first question, even at 35? Simple:

"Can I still play tennis after this is over?"

The doctor said, "We'll see."

The operation was a success. My doctor said I could play tennis again as long as I stuck to doubles and didn't get overtired.

Lewis Grizzard

I played singles and continued to play every day. Often I played all day long.

Three years later, I had a second valve surgery. The first implant became infected and had to be replaced. I came close to dying.

But even after that, the doctors still said I could play tennis under the previous restrictions, which I had ignored.

But I wasn't 15, nor even 35 anymore. I was over 40.

I tried playing tennis again, but a new thought had crept inside my head. That thought was: "Is it safe for me to be running around out here on the tennis court with heart disease?"

I decided I could drop dead on the court. I gave up tennis.

If Hank Gathers had lived long enough, that question eventually would have gotten to him.

He might even have quit pro basketball in the midst of his prime.

Aging does things like that. It puts you eyeball to eyeball with reality.

I must have seen that tape 10 times on television and each time I saw it I thought, "That could have happened to me."

This heart thing will kill me one day, if something else doesn't get me first.

But I'm thankful I at least got 20 more years than Hank Gathers got.

And every new day is a bonus.

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Law firms cashing in on thrift debacle

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Not everyone is mourning the catastrophic failure of the savings and loan industry. Lawyers, the vulture capitalists of this disaster, are making a bundle off the carcasses of dead financial institutions.

The man hiring law firms to represent the taxpayers is William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Our sources say that Seidman expects to pay a whopping $500 million this year to lawyers for legal work relating primarily to thrift matters.

Seidman privately lamented to a group of bankers last week that the FDIC and the Resolution Trust Corp. may "single-handedly be responsible for the first lawyer shortage in U.S. history."

The RTC is the stepchild that came into being last August to sell off ailing thrifts which the government has been forced to take over.

By one estimate, the government has seized 393 thrifts with $193 billion in assets. Another 157 thrifts with $113 billion in assets are insolvent and 400 more with $360 billion in assets are sick and probably on their way to the grave.

That explains why the RTC, which didn't exist a year ago, now has 2,400 employees and will probably have 5,000 by the end of this year.

The assets that the RTC will handle make it the largest financial institution in the world, the largest single owner of real estate and junk bonds and the largest auction firm in the country.

The combination draws lawyers like birds to carrion. One source at the RTC told us the government will be involved with an estimated 80,000 lawyers this year over savings and loan matters. That covers lawsuits filed by the government and against the government surrounding the disposal of thrift assets.

The FDIC and the RTC have a pool of 400 qualified law firms from which to choose, and the agencies divvy out the work to those on the approved list based on expertise and location.

The law firms making the most money are those with offices in the depressed areas of the country, such as Texas.

We have obtained a confidential internal FDIC memo listing the top 20 law firms and the legal fees paid to them by the FDIC in 1989 for commercial banks and savings and loan work.

The geographic area supplying the most law firms in the top 20 list is Texas with five. There are four from Chicago and two each from New York, Florida and Tennessee.

At the top of the list is Hopkins, Sutter, Hamel and Park, a Chicago firm in the ideal position of having strong offices in Dallas and Washington. Hopkins, Sutter earned $3.58 million from the government in legal fees last year, according to the internal memo.

Here are the rest of the top 20 firms in descending order:

Milberg and Weiss of New York, $2.74 million; Sidley and Austin of Chicago, $2.5 million; Morrison and Hecker of Kansas City, Mo., $2.37 million; Jenkins and Gilchrist of Dallas, $2.29 million; Mayer and Brown of Chicago, $2.18 million; Leonard and Marsh of Fort Worth, Texas, $2.16 million; Morrison and Foerster of San Francisco, $2 million; Carlton and Fields of Tampa, Fla., $1.96 million; Brown and Maroney of Austin, Texas, $1.53 million; Jones and Day of Dallas, $1.52 million; Morton and Lewis of Knoxville, Tenn., $1.51 million; Reid and Priest of New York City, $1.5 million; Stuzin and Camner of Miami, $1.46 million; Gable and Gotwals of Tulsa, Okla., $1.36 million; Sachnoff and Weaver of Chicago, $1.3 million; Miller and Martin of Chattanooga, Tenn., $1.14 million; Dorsey and Whitney of Minneapolis, $1 million; Kemp and Smith of El Paso, Texas, $996,000; and Adams and Howe of Des Moines, Iowa, $787,000.

IRS commissioner acknowledges errors in billing Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — IRS Commissioner Fred T. Goldberg Jr. acknowledged today that the agency makes mistakes when it bills Americans for additional taxes and penalties but denied the problem is as big as a magazine story indicates.

Money magazine suggested there is a 50-50 chance the Internal Revenue Service will make a mistake the next time it sends out a bill for additional taxes and penalties. The magazine said there is evidence that $7 billion of the $15.3 billion collected as a result of such letters last year was not really owed.

"That $15 billion, I think, is pretained errors.

The form letters generated $15.3 billion last year, an average of $425 per notice, Money noted.

"Yet, behind that apparent triumph of tax law micro-enforcement lurks a sloppy little secret: a convincing case can be made that at least $7 billion of that money should never have been collected at all because around half of those imposing official notices said.

"Clearly, individuals are caving in to questionable demands for more money that would propel them to the phone in a second if the bill came from some bank or credit-card company."

Although IRS officials quarreled with Money's figures, the agency acknowledges wholesale employee errors in answering taxpayers' telephoned questions and in processing returns.

In fact, IRS Commissioner Fred T. Goldberg Jr. cited the processing errors in testimony before a House subcommittee earlier this month while pleading for money to modernize the agency's 13,000-vintage computer system.

"The net result will be fewer erroneous notices and levies (property seizures) which cost both IRS and taxpayers time and money to resolve, and will allow us to devote our resources to truly delinquent accounts," Goldberg said.

More than 35 percent of the IRS notices of additional taxes and penalties allege mathematical errors, late returns, failure to pay tax on some wages, interest or dividend reported by an employer or bank, or underpayment of quarterly estimated taxes.

Last month, Money polled 300 of its subscribers with a median income over $2,000 a year and found that at sometime in their lives, half had received IRS bills for more taxes and penalties. Seven of 10 fought back.

"A stunning 45 percent of those who contested their notices report that the IRS claims were totally incorrect and an additional 24 percent said that they were at least partially wrong," the magazine wrote. "What's more, of those who challenged the IRS on their own, 53 percent wound up paying nothing and another 17 percent succeeded in getting the bill reduced."

Money blamed the IRS error rate on poorly trained, low-paid workers: the clerks who type data from tax returns into computers at the agency's 10 regional service centers, and the examiners who manage the notices and followup letters.

Wildlife experts learn from oil spill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wildlife experts say they learned a lot from the puffins and the sea otters after the nation's worst oil spill in Alaska, but they still don't have the facilities they will need when more such spills occur.

"If there is an oil spill tomorrow, we really aren't that much further ahead in advanced planning than we were a year ago," said Randall Davis, co-director of International Wildlife Research in San Diego.

"Certainly it will happen again in some form," said Jay Holcomb, director of the International Bird Rescue Research Center in Berkeley, Calif. "Oil spills never seem to stop."

Davis was in charge of efforts to rescue sea otters and other marine mammals after the Exxon Valdez spill a year ago Saturday and Holcomb led the effort to rescue birds.

They appeared together at a luncheon Wednesday at which the Izaak Walton League of America, one of the nation's oldest conservation groups, presented an award to Procter & Gamble for the company's support of the wildlife rescue efforts.

"I never want to experience what I saw when we first took our boats out in Alaska, to find birds in a foot deep of oil with their heads sticking out, yelling, and otters crying on the rocks because they were covered in oil and were already suffering from the ingestion problems," Holcomb said.

Davis said, "Even today we really don't have any permanent facility nor any permanent organization to respond to another oil spill if it should occur, with regards to treating marine mammals."

Both said they learned valuable lessons from the Alaska experience, however.

"We had never been able to work with some of the species, such as the horned and tufted puffins, beautiful yet nasty birds," Holcomb said. "We handled 200 or 300 and released quite a few. We learned some new techniques."

Davis said the Alaska accident was "the first spill to ever involve large numbers of marine mammals and sea otters in particular. We learned a tremendous amount working on that spill."

The tanker Exxon Valdez spilled almost 11 million gallons of crude oil into the sea when it ran aground in Prince William Sound, soaking 1,100 miles of scenic coastland. Searchers found 34,400 dead birds and believe at least 1,000 sea otters and countless other animals died.

Holcomb said his staff and volunteers were on the scene from March to around Oct. 1, retrieved 1,500 birds and released almost 800 of them. He said this is in the normal range of success, in which 50 percent to 80 percent of the birds caught in an oil spill are rehabilitated.

Davis said his organization built three rescue centers, hired more than 300 employees and worked six months, treating 357 oiled sea otters and rehabilitating 223, or 62 percent.

Davis said 45 of the sea otters that were released had radio transmitters implanted in them by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and are being monitored. He said the monitoring showed that six died during the winter, but this is probably not more than the normal death rate.

Davis estimated the cost of the operation, for both birds and mammals, at $40 million.

College sex habits have changed little

BOSTON (AP) — College students are more likely to use condoms these days, but otherwise their sexual practices have changed little in the last 14 years despite the advent of AIDS, a survey published today shows.

The study, conducted at Brown University, found that college women reported just as much potentially risky sexual behavior last year as they did in 1975, before AIDS and some other sexually transmitted diseases became concerns.

The results "indicate that public health campaigns have not had a substantial influence on the habits and behavior of these well-educated young adults," said the study in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

The survey, led by Dr. Barbara A. DeBuono, found that 12 percent of women in 1975 said their partners always used condoms. This increased to 21 percent in 1986 and 41 percent in 1989.

But the number of sex partners or the frequency of high-risk sex since 1975 remained virtually the same. In 1989, 9 percent of the women engaged in anal intercourse, and 21 percent had more than three sex partners.

Most rotten

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — It takes a lot of hard work for teenagers to get their entries just right for the annual Rotten Sneaker Contest.

"I've run them through barbed wire, dragged them on the pavement while I was riding my bike, wore them without socks, and wore them when I was with my uncle who's a plumber," said 14-year-old Russell McDonald, of Toronto.

His sneakers were among more than 30 varieties of athletic shoes entered in the 15th annual contest Tuesday.

Attention to detail is important because the judges set high standards.

"We look for the most miserable looking, broken down, horrible smelling, beat up things imaginable," said Dr. Herbert Lapidus, a contest judge.

The judges rate the sneakers in eight categories. Lapidus said smell is the most important, then they gauge how decrepit the parts of the sneaker are — the sole, laces, grommets, toes, heels — and overall nastiness.

It started 15 years ago in Montpelier as a small contest to promote a local athletic store. It has grown in the last three years into an international competition.

Mayor Ann Cummings, a judge, said the contest was a fun break from cabin fever on a snowy first day of spring.

"A good thing about it is it doesn't require any talent," Cummings said. "Everybody's got a fair chance."

Dolphin's choice

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A high school biology teacher received a love bite from an amorous 175-pound male dolphin.

Chuckles, the only Amazon River dolphin in captivity in North America, was in his reproductive stage when he bit the finger of zoo volunteer Nancy Sakach while apparently trying to pull her into his tank, Pittsburgh Zoo officials said.

Ms. Sakach, 32, received several stitches on her finger, but did not harbor ill feelings toward the dolphin. His natural instincts had just taken over, she said.

"It was play time and I was brushing Chuckles with a sponge brush," she said. "I wasn't really shocked when he bit me because you know that getting bitten is a possibility when you're dealing with dolphins in the (reproductive) stage."

Chuckles, who's been at the zoo 22 years, has gotten into trouble with women before. He has brushed up against women in the tank as a show of affection, but the biting incident Friday marked the first time he tried to pull someone in, said Paul Leger, acting zoo director.

Love divine

HOOVER, Ala. (AP) — Love R. Divine hated her name when she was in elementary school. But by high school, she had learned that "Love" is indeed divine.

Ms. Divine, 26, a manager at a grocery store, is named for her great-grandmother, a Cherokee Indian whose tribal name was Love. The "R" stands for Renee.

"When I was in grade school, I hated it because the other kids made fun of it," she said. "I cried every day. I was mad at my mom."

By the time she was in eighth grade, she felt better about it. "My friends would say, 'Oooh, your name is 'Love.' And in high school it gave me a lot of attention," she said. But she still gets plenty of funny looks and comments.

"Once I got asked if I was a porn star. I have to do a lot of explaining."

Temporary houseguest is a little too much at home

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine — I'll call her Sara — asked if she could stay with me temporarily until she found employment and an apartment. (She's relocating.) She had no trouble getting a job because she's well-qualified in her field, but she hasn't found an apartment yet. She says she's looking, but I doubt if she's looking very hard.

Sara is not the ideal houseguest. She's on the telephone constantly, comes and goes at crazy hours, and has friends calling her all through the night. I just discovered that she had checks printed with my address! I think she's abused the free room-and-board privileges long enough, which is where I need your help. Please tell me how to get her out of here. — ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

DEAR ENOUGH: Tell Sara that you both need your space, and she appears to need more space than you can give her, so you would like her to be out of your apartment in "two weeks," or "three," or "30 days." (Give her a deadline.) Anyone who would have checks printed using the address of a friend without that friend's consent has nerve she hasn't used yet.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "Fed Up," I had to write. My situation was almost identical. From the day "Don" and I were married, we had one of his friends staying with us — and it continued for eight years!

I was the medical miracle who was walking around with no brain and no guts. I should have spoken out sooner. I finally filed for divorce when my husband refused to ask his buddy to leave, and the buddy refused to leave. It became apparent that my husband preferred his friend's company to mine.

You're right, Abby, assertiveness training can give a person courage she never knew she had. I feel like a new person since I learned to speak my mind without being defensive.

Keep up the good work. People need to be told that they don't have to live in abusive situations — that help is out there if they have the guts to leave, and go for it. — IN CONTROL IN FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

DEAR IN CONTROL: Congratulations for taking control of your life. And to those of you who don't know where to find a course in "assertiveness training," inquire at your local college or university, or your local mental health association.

DEAR ABBY: Very briefly, my question is this: If both the donor and the recipient of a gift are in the same room when the gift is opened, and if the recipient expresses sincere gratitude for the gift — and even gives the donor an appreciative hug — is it still necessary for the recipient to send a written thank-you note? — ME IN TORRANCE, CALIF.

DEAR ME: Very briefly: Yes.

Hyperion Club hears color awareness program

The 1955 Hyperion Club met March 6 at the home of Mrs. James Cowan, 518 Edwards Circle, with 14 members present. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Charles Beil and Mrs. Walter Wheat.

Mrs. W.A. Moore, president, presided over the business meeting and Mrs. H.C. Ernsting read the collect.

As a member of the committee for the Beautification of Big Spring, Mrs. Jimmy Morehead discussed the possibility of the club adopting a scenic spot around Big Spring as a community project. A sign will be displayed depicting the organization responsible for the designated spot.

She appointed the following nominating committee: Evelyn Elrod, Darnell Small, and Millie Cunningham. The nominating committee will present a slate of officers at the April meeting.

Kelly Killion presented the program "Color Awareness" using the ColorLogic Glamour System. After asking each member to display her lipstick, Killion stated that personality traits are defined according to the shape of the top of our lipstick. Glamour products are designed to be colorful, condition the skin, and be flexible for our lifestyles, adapting the philosophy that the better we look on the outside, the better we feel on the inside. The key principles of ColorLogic Glamour System are color harmony and contrast, coordinating the personal coloring with the wardrobe choices and lifestyle.

Almost every color can be categorized into the warm family with yellow undertones or the cool family with blue undertones. Neutral colors like navy, black, and white have no obvious undertones, so that either warm or cool makeup shades can be selected depending on personal preference.

Individuals were divided into groups according to their dress color and tips were given to achieve color harmony by keeping lip, cheek, and nail colors in the same color family as the clothing. When clothing is a combination of colors, harmonize makeup with the most predominant color in the pattern, and most noticeable accessory, or the shade closest to the face.

Flattering makeup shades should be chosen in the same color family as the wardrobe in terms of intensity as well as undertone, adapting a level of contrast between hair color and skin tone having color balance as the goal.

The April meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Tommy Dodson, 505 Highland Drive.

THE RECALL ELECTION — FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW

1. Max Green was interested in city expenditures before he ran for and was elected Mayor. He is an accountant and highly qualified to read audits, budgets, reports, etc. Through his efforts a tax increase was avoided during the 1988-89 budget hearings.
2. Max was elected by a majority of the voting citizens of Big Spring less than a year ago. Almost immediately he began to ask pertinent questions of the city manager and other city administrators concerning expenditures. Some of the council members disapproved.
3. During the 1989-90 budget workshops the Mayor questioned the need for many of the budgeted items, and many department expenditures were cut back or trimmed down. Before it was trimmed down the proposed budget had a $1.6 million deficit. Because the budget was kept to a minimum during the budget hearings a tax increase was kept at 3 cents per $100 valuation. This prompted the first recall petition by a member of the council, which ran out of steam.
4. Mayor Green made an honest mistake by not following unwritten city policy relating to complaints against police officers. Although he made a public apology, this issue ballooned into another recall, instigated and actively worked by two members of the council.
5. The latest controversy involves Mayor Green's opposition to a 40% increase for residences and businesses of their trash pickup fees. Four members of the council supported the increase, then a change was made, after Green's veto, the vote was to table the matter until after the recall election.

6. Some members of the present council apparently believe that the city manager form of government is so all-encompassing that they not only cannot question the city administration, but to do so is against the city charter. If not to control spending, why would we need a city council at all?

7. The people for the recall would have you believe the Mayor's only duty is "representing our community in a positive light." Then they compare the city manager to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, and Mayor Green to the Queen of England. Other than the fact that this is the United States and we do not have royalty, the big difference between Hal Boyd and Margaret Thatcher is the Prime Minister is an elected official. City government is a multi-million dollar business, not a beauty contest.

8. This recall is really about money, your money, and after the smoke screen blows away it's really about whether you want to keep Max Green and keep city spending within its budget, or whether you're willing to open up your pocket-books, without questions, and give the city administration anything they ask for, whether a need exists or not.

9. This recall has been a long hard fought battle, and it's time to put it to rest. Vote against the recall and send a message to the present members of the council that you expect them to stand between you (and your money) and the city administration.

Gidions host banquet

Colorado City

by Barbie Lelek
Call 728-8051

The annual Pastor Appreciation Banquet was hosted March 12 by the Snyder Camp of the Gidion Organization. There was a good turnout as 60-70 people were present to enjoy the special music and message brought mostly by people who came to know the Lord through a Gidion Bible.

Pat Reynolds, Snyder, sang, and Steve Marshall, a lawyer from Midland, also sang two beautiful melodies. Afterwards everyone enjoyed an exciting testimony from Don Cole, an engineer also from Midland. The main message of the evening came from Jim Walters, an ex-"tough guy" from Dallas.

A jet pilot jet trainer for the Air Force, Reynolds received Christ through a Gidion Bible while overseas. "He was very inspirational" said Stephanie Spear, the wife of Dr. Ted Spear, pastor of First Baptist Church, Colorado City. Others attending the banquet from First Baptist Church were Ira and Jean Edwards and Truman and Margaret Bodine, both couples serve the church as Gidions.

Bake sale

Anyone stopping by E-Z-Way Superette March 10 would have seen the First Baptist Church GA's outside selling a lot of delicious baked goods. These girls along with their sponsors braved the down pour to hold a bake sale, which helped them raise money to go to camp this summer. Despite the dreary weather the organization collected $238.

St. Patrick's celebration

The First Baptist Singles celebrated an early St. Patrick's Day March 16 by having a "wearing of the green" party. Everyone enjoyed Irish stew and corn bread topped off with chocolate mint cake. Afterwards everyone watched the film, "Honey I Shrank The Kids."

National search for writers

NEW YORK — The International Women's Writing Guild announces its second national search for spirited women age 60 plus who have turned life's stumbling blocks into stepping stones.

By honoring such women with its "Artist of Life" Award, which was initiated in 1986, the IWGW seeks to increase public awareness of the vitality and energy of extraordinary "ordinary" women and to encourage a positive way of looking at ages 60-90+, a group which will account for 17 percent of the U.S. population by 1990. Not designated solely as a singular achievement award, the "Artist of Life" Award is presented in order to identify positive role models for younger women as well as to celebrate creative approaches to living.

To qualify, nominees must be at least 60 years of age (by December 31, 1989). They need not, however, be engaged in either writing or any of the other creative arts.

Original honorary sponsors of the "Artist of Life" Award have included celebrated individuals from the worlds of arts & letters, science and politics, such as: Marilyn Ferguson, Publisher of Brain/Mind Bulletin; artist Fran-coise Gilot; Congressman Bill Green (New York); Leo Lerman, publishing consultant to Conde Nast; noted author Grace Paley; Dr. Jonas Salk, discoverer of the polio vaccine; Gail Sheehy, author of Passages; and Alice Walker, author of The Color Purple.

First-prize winners will be invited to attend the May 1991 awards ceremonies in New York, all expenses paid. They will also receive scholarships (or cash equivalent) to IWGW's week-long conference, an annual event held at Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs, New York. Additional honorees will receive scholarships (or cash equivalent) to one of several IWGW regional weekend or day conferences which are scheduled by the IWGW throughout the U.S. All winners will become honorary members of the IWGW and will join its diverse network of women of all ages and from all backgrounds. Nominees may either nominate themselves or be nominated by others.

For an application, send a 45 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to: The International Women's Writing Guild, Artist of Life, Box 810, Gracie Station, New York, NY 10028-0013.

Conservation program

The 1948 Hyperion Club met March 15 at the home of Mrs. Clayton Bettle with Mrs. Don Crockett as co-hostess.

Vice President Mrs. Dean Forrest presided in the absence of the president. It was reported that the bingo prizes presented to the Corral were greatly appreciated. The group voted to make this an annual project.

Forrest introduced Carroll Choate of Choate Well Service who presented a program on soil conservation and water contamination. He listed different ways that each of us can help the environment by properly using and disposing of fertilizers and insecticides.

Mrs. Carroll Choate attended as a special guest.

The next meeting will be April 19.

Spring board

How's that?

Q. What is the history of the U.S. census?
 A. The U.S. census actually goes back to the Constitution, which provided for a population census every ten years in order to determine the number of U.S. Representatives from each state. The first census began in August 1790, under the direction of then Secretary of State, Thomas Jefferson, according to Reader's Digest. (1/90) cent of the county addressed at this time," Dorton said. "It's an ongoing process."

Dorton said Saturday's start-up marks the end of two months of testing to work out bugs in the system.

"We've had almost 2,000 test calls," he said. "With those 2,000 test calls we've had about 300 different problems we've fixed... with the 911 center itself. We know there're other problems coming but we at least know how to deal with those problems now."

Dorton said the 911 system will give emergency agencies in the county a chance to save more lives because it's so much easier for people to make the call.

"A simplified three digit number (makes) it easier for a person to call for emergency services without going to a phone book and looking up the traditional seven-digit numbers," Dorton said.

The system is designed for emergencies only, he said. Certain calls still should be made to traditional seven-digit numbers.

"...any emergency calls. Any ordinary police calls like an assault, an accident where you need an officer now," he said. "That type situation. Any kind of fire, medical attention."

"We don't want to send somebody just for a transfer from a hospital. It's not for the barking dog, the cat in the tree. It's not to call to request another number."

Howard County voters approved a referendum for a 911 system in August 1987. The system is funded through a 50-cent surcharge on residential telephone bills and similar charges on business phones.

icates he (Green) hasn't been good for the city," Marshall said.

Marshall said that as mayor it is important to represent the entire city and not to rely on outside advisors.

"Your advisors are your city council," he said. "You never think of segments of the city. You think of the community as a whole."

Dunnam also criticized the mayor's supporters, saying they have mounted a campaign of harassment and personal attacks.

"The people who have supported the recall effort have never at any time taken personal shots at the mayor," she said. "Our objections begin and end with his behavior in office. We regret the hostility and division this community has suffered."

"We, however, will not accept the responsibility for that — we did not harass anyone. We stated our point, we took our stand, and we refused to fan the flames of controversy."

Dunnam said petition carriers have been harassed with telephone calls and letters. "We have had people from Mr. Green's side checking into a personal taxes," on the county tax rolls, she said.

If Green wins the recall election, Dunnam said recall supporters will "remain silent and do our best to pull the community back together."

being forcibly removed from her pickup truck when an officer "stomped" on her arm, causing it to break. She also alleged police "were beating me on the back and on the back of the head."

Police Chief Joe Cook strongly disputed Schulze's account. Cook said at the time that her arm was broken because she was resisting, but declined to give a more detailed police account because of possible litigation.

The suit does not mention the 27-minute car chase Schulze led officers on before her arrest. The chase covered nearly 40 miles and several sections of the city before three police cars were able to stop Schulze's pickup truck by positioning themselves to form a rolling road block, Cook said previously.

Police said they began pursuit after an officer witnessed Schulze speeding.

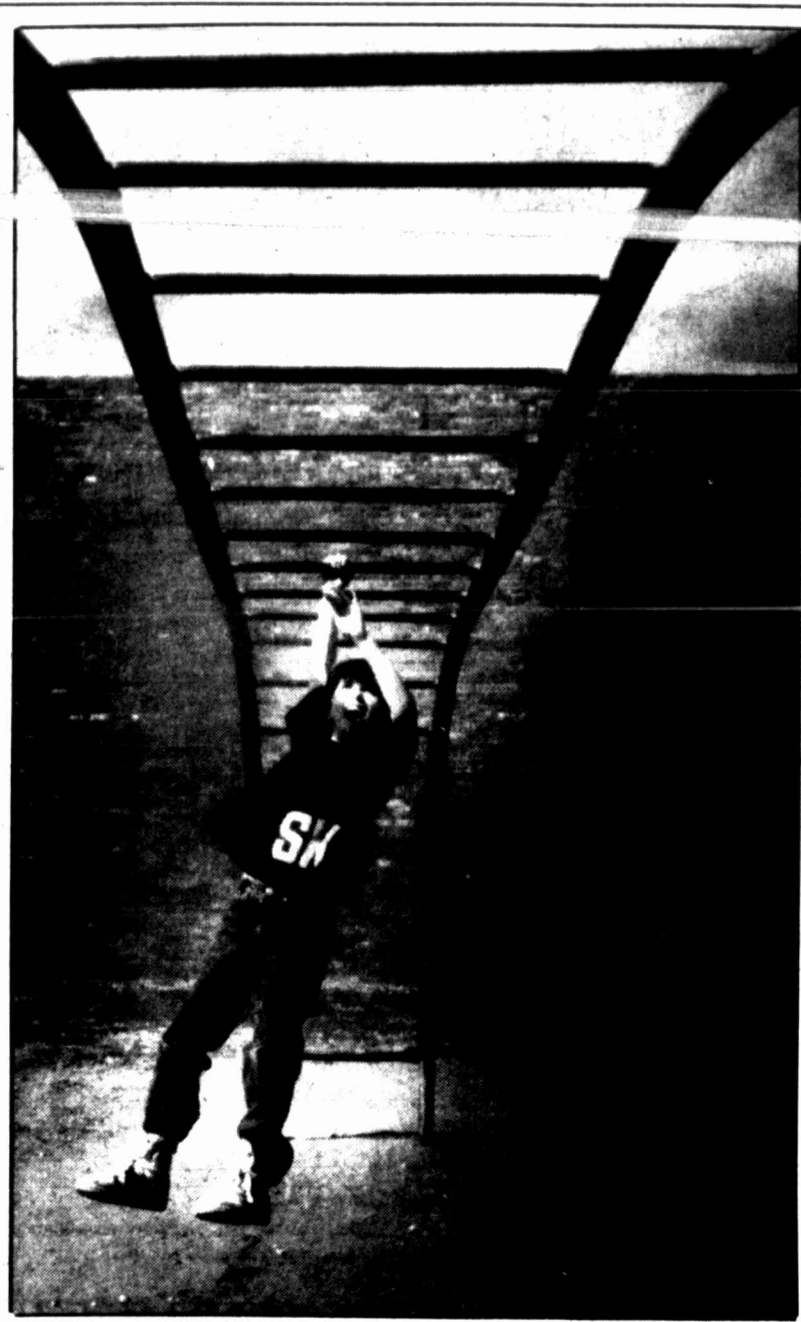

Schulze acknowledged in a June 16 trial in county court that she was speeding, but said she did so because she was afraid of the officers.

Farmers plant rye, wheat as cover crops

STANTON — More than 800 acres of wheat, perhaps the only patch of the crop in Martin County, is almost ready — not for harvesting, but for killing.

County extension agent Greg Jones said a herbicide will be applied to the wheat, planted a few miles from here in October, sometime during the next week or two as part of a Texas Agricultural Extension Service project to use cover crops to help alleviate soil erosion.

After the wheat wilts in 2-3 weeks, cotton seed will be planted, Jones said. The wheat will hold soil in place and will help protect the cotton seedlings from wind and sand damage. It will also act as a fertilizer when it decomposes.

"This is a result demonstration," he said. "It is taking a project and implementing it on a farmer or rancher's place and then evaluating that given practice within a given year."

"We're comparing these practices to normal practices," he said. "But these are needed to be done over a 3-5 year period to be effective."

This is the first year for the wheat project, which is on a farm owned by Eddie Cook, Jones said. But a project using rye as a cover crop on about 200 acres owned by Bruce Hill in the Knott area is now in its third year after planting last fall. It will be killed after the cotton sprouts instead of just before the cotton is planted.

Rye, because it is a sturdier crop than wheat, is more promising for dryland farming, Jones said. However, the drought has hampered getting any positive results so far. "We never received a good, plentiful rain," he said.

Wheat was used on Cook's farm because he has an irrigation system, he said. Although Jones is still waiting to calculate the results of using cover crops, the idea will be moving out of the experimental stage in this county beginning this year.

According to Joe Bill Averitt, a range conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service here, all county farmers that want to qualify for federal assistance must plant a cover crop as part of a soil erosion management plan.

Landfill

Development Inc. is proposing to locate a landfill on a 2,100-acre site in southwest Mitchell County. The site would be about 1 1/4 miles south

The proposed landfill would bury up to 3,000 tons a day of municipal solid waste and burn hazardous waste by an incinerator.

The company estimates that it will take 18 months for it to receive an initial permit from the state for solid waste disposal. Additional permits for incineration and hazardous waste disposal could take a total of three years.

Some residents expressed concern about the proposal, saying they also want to hear experts opposed to it. But expected economic gains for the area dominated comments at the hearing. Several residents noted that the landfill would boost the tax base of Mitchell County — an increase of $35 million when the project is completed, according to Morris.

Under the host agreement with the company, the county would receive a 50-cent fee per ton of waste, Morris said. That fee could raise at least $500,000 in revenues annually for the county, he said.

The landfill "is going to lower every person's taxes in this room," said Don Browne.

Jim Ramsey, superintendent of Colorado Independent School District, voiced support for the proposed landfill. "The public schools need economic development in Mitchell County," he said, noting that enrollment in the public schools has dropped by 300 to 400 in the last six years. The enrollment decline represents an economic loss to the county of $1 million to $1.5 million, Ramsey said.

A few residents, however, questioned the proposal. "I don't believe there's any way you can put that much garbage in a landfill without there being some leakage somewhere, sooner or later," said Thomas Aycock, a retired federal civil service worker who lives in Colorado City.

The company, however, says no usable water can be found under the clay in the area is 300 to 800 feet thick.

Don Rea of Russell, Ray and Zappalla, a Pittsburgh investment banking firm involved with the project, said Thursday that landfills are among the most heavily regulated industries in the country. "You're very careful about what you do," he said. Rea also said the Environmental Protection Agency regards incineration as the best method for disposal of hazardous waste. Incineration destroys 99.99 percent of harmful chemicals in such waste, according to Morris.

PCB-contaminated soil would be the most hazardous item handled by the landfill, Rea said. The current city landfill, about 40 acres in size, is not likely to meet federal environmental protection standards in the near future, said Rex Thackerson, a member of Colorado City's city council.

A team from Mitchell County reported Thursday that its trip to Pennsylvania earlier this month found the company to have a good record with its landfill operations in that state. The visiting team consisted of Woody Anderson, Ben Lancaster and Earl Pagens.

Morris said Friday that the company plans to send metal, cans and glass elsewhere for recycling. The extent of recycling depends on whether it is economical, he said.

Shortly before the meeting, retired schoolteacher Frank Brownfield said he favors the proposed landfill. Noting oil field contamination in the area, he said, "it'll be a place to burn that stuff, and dispose of all the waste without worrying about it getting back into the environment."

Oil spill

Johnstone set sentencing for today.

A grand jury indicted him last year on a felony, criminal mischief, and two other misdemeanors, reckless endangerment and operating a vessel while intoxicated. Jurors took only 10 1/2 hours in deliberations to reject those counts.

"The state just didn't have the evidence," said juror Terrill Smith, a hardware store manager.

Alaska Gov. Steve Cowper told a news conference that Hazelwood's acquittal on the most serious charges shows that someone other than the veteran mariner was responsible for the grounding.

"The result bears out the fact that there are other people responsible for this, other than Capt. Hazelwood," said Cowper, who learned of the verdict Thursday while touring Prince William Sound by helicopter.

Alaska Attorney General Douglas Baily disputed suggestions that the state had tried to make Hazelwood a scapegoat.

"It was always my view that the captain of that vessel is ultimately responsible," he said.

The normally taciturn Hazelwood smiled broadly for the first time in the two-month trial when the verdicts were announced two days short of the oil spill's first anniversary.

"I'm not used to being in the limelight," Hazelwood told reporters. "I was a pretty anonymous character until a year ago."

Chalos said he would fight expected efforts by the Coast Guard to revoke Hazelwood's master's license.

The skipper's future also is clouded by more than 100 civil lawsuits filed by assorted victims of the nation's worst environmental disaster.

Jim Morakis, an Exxon spokesman in New York, said the company, which has fired Hazelwood, was "pleased that the ordeal of the trial is over for Capt. Hazelwood and his family."

"The verdict would seem to confirm the view that the grounding of the Exxon Valdez was an accident," Morakis said. "In light of pending litigation any other comment would be inappropriate."

Survivors include her husband, Adam Faenz Sr., Stanton; two sons: Abundio Cazares, and Adam Faenz Jr., both of Stanton; six daughters: Janie Villa, Maria Eva Faenz, Rosario Juarez, Carmen Faenz, Sarah Faenz, and Eva Faenz, all of Stanton; one sister, Juanita Alaniz, Stanton; three brothers: Jose Cazares, Juan Cazares, and Luis Cazares, all of Stanton; her mother, Victoriana Cazares, Stanton; nine grandchildren, and two step-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Robert Faenz, Andres Cazares, Jose Luis Cazares, Carmen Cazares, Juan Cazares Jr., Roger Tello, Robert Tello, and Roy Faenz Jr.

SWC teams rock and roll

By The Associate Press
Texas and Arkansas will play for the third time this season, while Duke and Connecticut will meet for the third time ever in Saturday's NCAA regional finals.

After Arkansas routed North Carolina 96-73 on Thursday night, Texas rallied from a 16-point deficit to beat Xavier 102-89 and set up an all-Southwest Conference battle for the Midwest Regional championship at Dallas.

Although Arkansas beat Texas twice this season, Longhorns coach Tom Penders is happy to play the Razorbacks again.

"It will be a great matchup," he said. "It's good for the conference."

Midwest
Texas 102, No. 25 Xavier, Ohio 89

Lance Blanks fired blanks in the first half, then found the mark in helping Texas shoot down Xavier.

Blanks, who missed his first eight shots, scored 26 of his 28 points in the second half as the Longhorns rallied.

"I challenged myself mentally at halftime," Blanks said. "I didn't want it to be the last half of my career. I started driving and the shots began to fall."

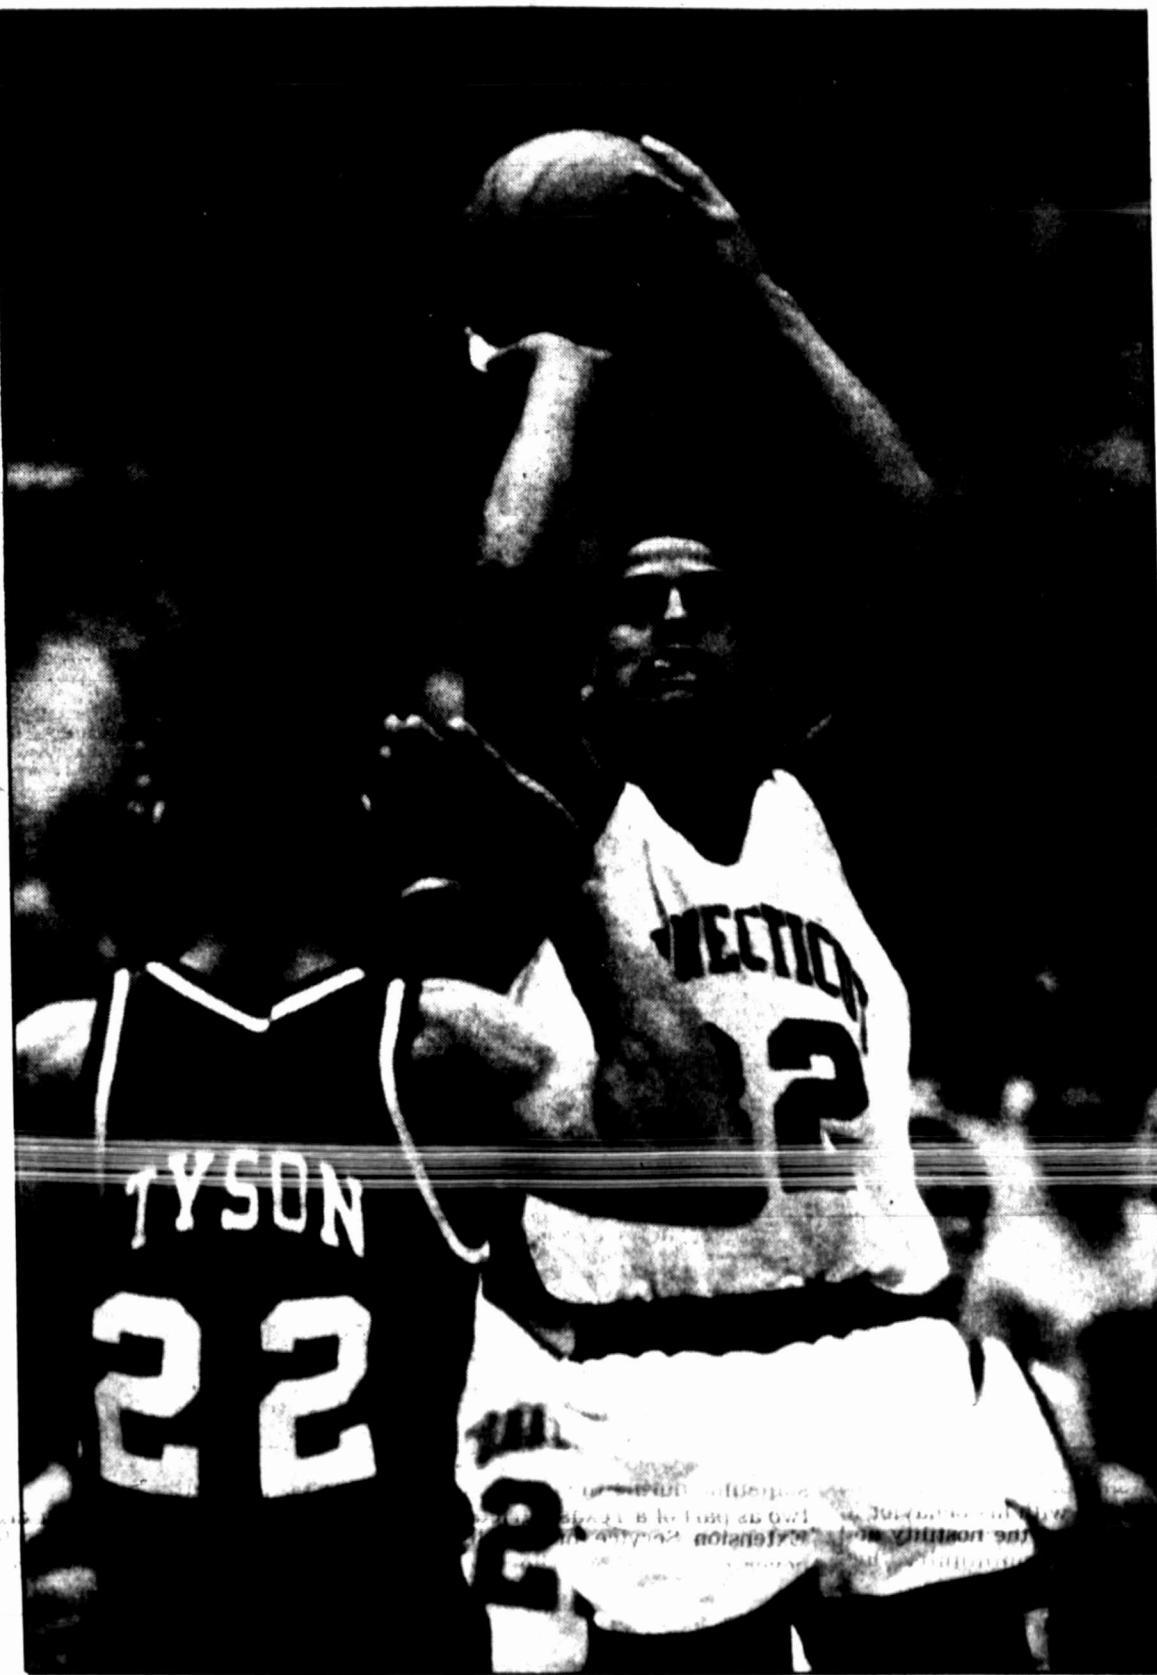

The Longhorns (24-8) are going to the final eight because their "BMW" guard trio — Blanks, Travis Mays and Joey Wright — operated on all cylinders. Mays scored 32 points and Wright 26.

"I drive a Pinto myself, but I think I see why they drive a BMW at Texas," Xavier coach Pete Gillen said. "We couldn't stop those guys."

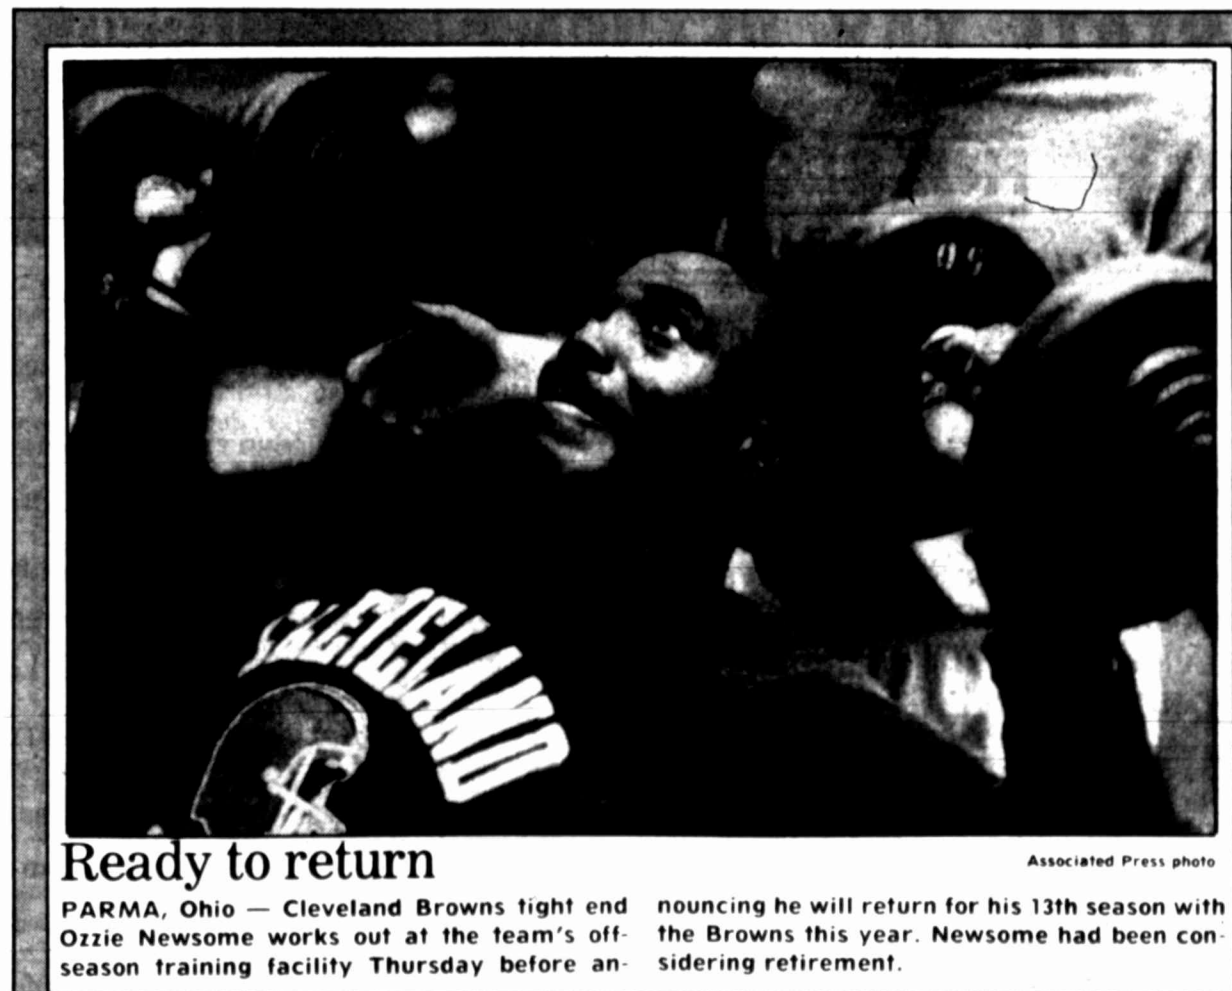

Xavier, which upset top-seeded Georgetown in the second round, finished 28-5, the most wins in school history. Early in the second half, it appeared the victory total would be even higher.

Led by their 6-foot-10 duo of Derek Strong and Tyrone Hill, the Musketeers increased a 53-41 halftime lead to 16 points by scoring the first two baskets of the second half. Texas rallied and went ahead 75-74 on Blanks' steal and dunk with 9:10 remaining. Blanks then led Texas on a 15-2 run that broke the game open.

"Texas got on a roll and it was like trying to stop an avalanche coming down the side of a mountain," Gillen said. "Poof! Our lead was gone. It was like we hit a brick wall or something. We had no answers."

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Connecticut's Tate George shoots the winning shot over Clemson's Sean Tyson in the final seconds of their NCAA East Regional semi-final Thursday night.

PARMA, Ohio — Cleveland Browns tight end Ozzie Newsome works out at the team's off-season training facility Thursday before announcing he will return for his 13th season with the Browns this year. Newsome had been considering retirement.

St. Louis makes NIT Final Four

ST. LOUIS (AP) — DePaul coach Joey Meyer may have been right on the mark in evaluating the Blue Demons' game with St. Louis in the quarterfinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

"There are probably two good things about this game," Meyer said. "It wasn't on television and it's over with."

But then Meyer is not going to New York. The Billikens beat DePaul 54-47 to move into the NIT semifinals for a second straight year.

The Bills beat Michigan State in the semifinals, then lost to St. John's in the championship in Madison Square Garden.

St. Louis (20-11) will play the winner of tonight's Hawaii-New Mexico game in one of the semifinal contests Monday night.

The other semifinal has Penn State against Vanderbilt. In Wednesday night games, Penn State beat Rutgers 58-55 and Vanderbilt battered New Orleans 88-65.

St. Louis and DePaul each shot poorly, but the Demons lost the game by being terrible down the stretch, hitting just three shots and scoring but seven points in the last 9½ minutes.

St. Louis coach Rich Grawer's assessment wasn't quite as gloomy as Meyer's.

"Both teams struggled to get good shots, but both teams played outstanding defense," Grawer said. "It's a great feeling to beat a team with DePaul's reputation."

The Bills managed the victory despite a bad outing by their star, Anthony Bonner, who made just three of 18 shots and scored only 10 points. Bonner, the nation's leading rebounder with 13.6 a game, made up for his shooting trouble by grabbing 15 rebounds.

"Bonner didn't have his best game, but to our credit we had the players to pick him up," Grawer said. "In many ways, that makes it even a more gratifying victory."

New Mexico vs. Hawaii
Tonight, New Mexico (19-12) meets fellow Western Athletic Conference member Hawaii (25-9) in a quarterfinal round game at Albuquerque.

It will be the third time this season the Rainbows and Lobos have played. Hawaii won 74-71 at Honolulu, the Lobos taking the rematch 82-71 at Albuquerque.

Underclassmen spice NFL draft

NEW YORK (AP) — When do 22 plus 11 add up to 1983? When the NFL lets 22 underclassmen into the draft with as many as 11 likely to go in the first round.

That makes it the best harvest since 1983, when six quarterbacks were drafted in the opening round, when such future All-Pro's as Mark Clayton, Richard Dent and Karl Mecklenburg went in the eighth round or lower, and when the Chicago Bears and New York Giants each added seven starters to future Super Bowl winners.

"It makes the draft a lot deeper," Giants general manager George Young said Thursday, the final day for underclassmen to apply for the draft. "A lot of these guys are first- and second-round picks, so it means that when you get to the fourth round, you're liable to get a pretty good player because of the seniors who will be pushed back."

All that is likely to help the rich get richer, particularly with a first round limited to 25 picks because Dallas, Phoenix and Denver forfeited their top choices by taking Steve Walsh, Timm Rosenbach and Bobby Humphrey in supplemental drafts last year.

So if 11 juniors go in the first round, it means the two-time Super Bowl champion 49ers will get a player who would otherwise have been in the top 14.

The list of underclassmen includes such stars as linebacker Keith McCants of Alabama, who may be the first player taken overall, and three quarterbacks who could be first rounders — Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware of Houston, Jeff George of Illinois and Scott Mitchell of Utah.

And it includes such other high picks as linebackers Junior Seau of Southern California and Ron Cox of Fresno State, safety Mark Carrier of Southern Cal, defensive tackle Marc Spindler of Pitt, and running backs Emmitt Smith of Florida, Leroy Hoard of Michigan and Rodney Hampton of Georgia.

The influx results from the Feb. 16 decision by Commissioner Paul Tagliabue to allow into the draft any player who entered college in the fall of 1987. Thursday was the day by which they had to notify the league and renounce their college eligibility.

The precedent was set last year when Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders became the first actual junior to enter the draft and promptly rushed for 1,470 yards, second in the NFL. He was named offensive rookie of the year.

Not all underclassmen are likely to be such instant successes.

"Some of these guys aren't mature yet," Bobby Beathard, general manager of the San Diego Chargers, said. "It's easier for skill players, which is why you see so many running backs."

Others pointed out that while Sanders was a success, Green Bay's Tony Mandarich, the second player taken, signed late and never broke into the starting lineup, despite being touted as the best of offensive tackle.

'Is the book of Revelation now a reality?'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two local men who have studied the book of Revelation for the past five years believe they have correctly interpreted its meaning. The following is a condensed version of their study.

By MARK SILEN AND JIMMY CARSON

BIG SPRING — Have you ever asked yourself: "Is there any reality in these end times talk?" Is the Bible actually real? After all, there are about 2 million different interpretations of the Revelation and most of those are so far-fetched they're unbelievable.

However, from watching and listening to everyday events, a realistic and grim scenario has come into view.

We see things on the news like wars, rumors of wars, famines, increase of disasters and violence, false prophets, teachers of false Christianity, epidemics, insect plagues (pestilence), and an overall moral decline. All these things were prophesied 2,000 years ago by Jesus himself (Matt: 24).

We also see on the news things relating to our environment such as 1/3 of our forests are being burned by fire, 1/3 of our water is being polluted, 1/3 of our sea life is being destroyed by increasing oil spills and scientists say there is a hole in the ozone layer that will heat the earth, which will cause mild winters and hot summers, which in turn will cause an increase in the insect population (pestilence). All these things are described in Revelation.

Now let's talk about moral decline around the world. There is one scripture to describe society today, 2 Timothy 3:1-4 which says, "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come for men shall be lovers of self, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce breakers false accusers, incontinent, fierce and despisers of those that are good. Does this sound familiar? Sad isn't it.

Now we come to the final stage, the political scenario. This is one you do not hear about, the "European Common Market." It will become a reality in 1992, and is to be made up of nations, but run by one man. This man's name is known but won't be disclosed until we are sure ourselves he is the right man. This man is a high-ranking Jewish official and politician that may be elected to run the ECM. He is also in charge of rebuilding the Holy Temple, which will be under construction very soon. His platform is to write all religions with Abraham as its prime ancestor, to reinstate sacrifices back in the Holy Temple (abomination of desolation) and to return to all the laws of Leviticus. If through this man an alliance is reached between the ECM and the Middle East we will see the rebirth of Rome in the time of Jesus and its only competitor being the United States.

We have just described some events that are foretold in the Revelations. Such as the rebuilding of the Holy Temple, abominations of desolations. The 10-horned beast and possibly even the anti-Christ himself. Now comes the big question in everyone's mind: Is the United States mentioned or not?

On March 12, four Australians passed through town with a message. It said because of greed, false Christianity and moral decline, Russia would surprise attack the United States and destroy her. Like most prophecies, they're half right. We will explain why. The United States fits the biblical description of Babylon in Revelation to the tee, which is destroyed by the 10-horned beast (The E.C.M. — not Russia). If Russia ever did attack, it would be no surprise. This is just the tip of the iceberg on what's going on. Could we really be in the end times?

Recover wholeness through power of prayer

By ROBERT L. BONNINGTON
Special to the Herald

It is often said we live in a time of fragmentation. In our modern industrial state, each one of us has to become competent in some highly specialized task.

In order to become good at what we do, we are forced to become narrowly focused in our education and training. In a sense, we have to learn more and more about less and less. Today, it's all but impossible to become a generalist, a "renaissance person." More and more we are forced to become "functional persons."

But there is a strange contradiction in the human condition today. On the one hand, there is a constantly increasing specialization and fragmentation in order to get things done. On the other hand, we are forced into an ever increasing closeness and interdependence with our neighbors, whether we know them or not.

Pastor's corner

For example, buying our groceries in supermarkets requires an enormous amount of human activity and coordination just to get all the things we want to buy on the shelves when we want them. Few of us are capable of being self-sufficient in food, clothing, or shelter. And even if we were, would we want to be?

Because of fragmentation and individualism, we tend to lose sight of the wholeness in creation — the "big picture." And it's hard to experience a unity and wholeness in our lives.

The ecological crisis is just one example of the imbalance between our preoccupation with limited, short-term problems and our need to think in larger, longer terms — to "think big," so to speak.

Prayer is one important way in their wholeness and their ability to "think big." Prayer crosses the barriers between different interests and helps us make connections among things that are separate and among persons who are isolated. We pray not just for our own concerns and needs, but for the concerns and needs of all people. This helps us to see how all things are related and interdependent.

There are two ways in which prayer can bring us wholeness. First, it brings wholeness to us as we pray. We are enabled to establish priorities, set goals, eliminate contradictions, and see where our life is going. And we do this in the presence of God and in the light of Jesus. Thus, prayer gives our lives meaning and unity. And, because it is an activity of the whole person, it promotes our growth in wholeness.

Prayer helps us to see the inter-relatedness of the world as a whole. As we pray for the world, we can discern in it the reality of the love of God, in spite of all its pain, ambiguities, and downright evil.

In prayer, then, we can integrate our vision of the world, just as we can integrate our own lives. And if it changes our vision of the world, it is bound to influence the way we act in the world. In this way, the inner and outer, the vision and the action, are brought together to form a whole human being.

The Rev. Robert L. Bonnington, Ph.D., is rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Names in the news

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A University of Texas library is getting some "wild and crazy" new assets: comedian-actor Steve Martin, who writes much of his material, is donating original scripts.

The first batch of Martin scripts arrived at the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center early this month, including drafts, revisions and final shooting scripts for the screenplays "Roxanne" and "Three Amigos."

More Martin scripts are expected, said Ray Daum, public affairs officer and curator of the Gloria Swanson archives at the Ransom center. He said he pursued the material for two years from Martin, who's a Waco native.

STEVE MARTIN HANK WILLIAMS
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — As a boy, Hank Williams Jr. enjoyed hunting and fishing in southeast Alabama. Now he wants to help flood victims in that region.

The rain-swollen Pea River swept away parts of a levee surrounding Elba last weekend and inundated the town, forcing 1,500 people to evacuate.

Kilgore said that Gov. Guy Hunt's office will administer the money and that Williams wants every family in Elba to receive part of it.

Williams as a boy spent his summers with his maternal grandfather, Shelton Sheppard, who lived in nearby Troy.

"They would go hunting and fishing and that is the reason that part of Alabama is dear to his heart," Kilgore said.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: magician Harry Houdini, actor Norman Fell, designer Bob Mackie, actor Steve McQueen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Brace yourself for possible repercussions if an associate behaves erratically. Avoid overindulging in food or drink. A loved one needs more nurturing. Take a chance on a blind date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A stroke of good luck restores your faith in the human race. Do not take a professional rejection personally. Someone could surprise you with a declaration of love. Be gentle with a child.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be candid with close friends and family members but stop second-guessing their decisions. Romance becomes more exciting. You could receive a special reward. Share the limelight with those you love.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A breakdown in communication could lead to confusion or embarrassment. Do everything possible to straighten things out. Short trips and small social gatherings are favored this evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Avoid scattering your energies. Joint projects and artistic endeavors enjoy favorable influences. Tackle one task at a time. An older person will help you if asked. Your social circle is changing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Well-connected friends could help you finalize an important deal. Tie up any loose ends quickly so you can get away for a long weekend. You would be wise to double-check travel arrangements.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Curb any outside activities that could interfere with an important work project. A new occupational field looks promising. Send flowers to someone you have hurt. Romance could take an interesting turn.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are in a more positive frame of mind now. Consult a lawyer if unsure about the fine print in a contract. You would be wise to dissolve an unrewarding relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A relationship could become strained. Something that seemed just fine in the past is no longer acceptable. A new hobby takes your mind off your worries.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A difference of opinion arises over the best way to solve a problem. Be willing to try new methods. A change of direction is advised for romance, too. Show your tender, loving side.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accept a loved one's apology graciously. You need to relax some of the rules where a teen-ager is concerned. Do your best to rise above an unexpected family expense. A Leo helps out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are in a conciliatory mood today. Do everything possible to calm someone who seems overwrought. Financial pressures ease when family members work together to reduce spending. Show your appreciation for their help.

TAES conducting erosion test

Editor's note: This is the last of a series of articles related to National Agriculture week.

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — More than 800 acres of wheat, perhaps the only patch of the crop in Martin County, is almost ready — not for harvesting, but for killing.

County extension agent Greg Jones said a herbicide will be applied to the wheat, planted a few miles from here in October, sometime during the next week or two as part of a Texas Agricultural Extension Service project to use cover crops to help alleviate soil erosion.

After the wheat wilts in 2-3 weeks, cotton seed will be planted, Jones said. The wheat will hold soil

"This is a result demonstration. (It is) taking a project and implementing it on a farmer or rancher's place and then evaluating that given practice within a given year." — Greg Jones, county extension agent.

in place and will help protect the cotton seedlings from wind and sand damage. It will also act as a fertilizer when it decomposes.

"This is a result demonstration," he said. "(It is) taking a project and implementing it on a farmer or rancher's place and then evaluating that given practice within a given year."

"We're comparing these practices to normal practices," he said. "But these are needed to be done over a 3.5 year period to be effective."

This is the first year for the wheat project, which is on a farm owned by Eddie Cook, Jones said. But a project using rye as a cover crop on about 200 acres owned by Bruce Hill in the Knott area is now in its third year after planting last fall. It will be killed after the cotton sprouts instead of just before the cotton is planted.

Rye, because it is a sturdier crop than wheat, is more promising for dryland farming, Jones said. However, the drought has hampered getting any positive results so far. "We never received a good, plentiful rain," he said.

Wheat was used on Cook's farm because he has an irrigation system, he said.

Although Jones is still waiting to calculate the results of using cover crops, the idea will be moving out of the experimental stage in this county beginning this year.

According to Joe Bill Averitt, a range conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service here, all county farmers that want to qualify for federal assistance must plant a cover crop as part of a soil erosion management plan. The plan was written by his office in ac-

City seeks grants

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — City Councilman Lester Baker is spearheading efforts to apply for up to $500,000 in 50-50 matching government grants for a park revitalization project.

He is seeking suggestions from local citizens and said that the City Council may give the go-ahead at their April 9 meeting for an architect to begin drawing up plans.

He said he would like to apply for a grant with the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife by a July 31 deadline. They only have two application deadlines a year. The other one is January 31.

"It's probably going to take a month of engineering to get our ideas in place," he said of architectural plans.

"I can envision a nice walking path with exercise stations... with lights so you can walk at night," he said of some of his own ideas.

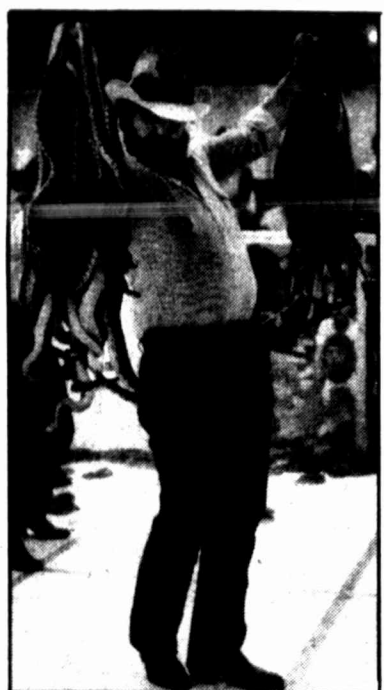

However, he said, he would like to know what everybody else's ideas are. "I'd like to get community input to see what they're interested in," he said.

Those interested should write City of Stanton, Park Grant, PO Box 370, Stanton, Tx., 79782, he said.

Ideas discussed at a March 12 City Council meeting include playground equipment, overnight recreational vehicle parking spaces and landscaping. A swimming pool was also discussed but Baker said because insurance and maintenance costs may require a tax increase, this may not be a good time to consider it.

Besides trails, playgrounds and pools, which must be outdoor pools to qualify, grant possibilities also include tennis and basketball courts as well as

Rattlesnake Roundup

BIG SPRING — The 28th Annual Big Spring Rattlesnake Roundup, sponsored by the American Business Club and Coors of Big Spring, snakedances into the Howard County Fairbarns this weekend. The festivities start at 10 a.m. Saturday with rattlesnake demonstrations, arts and crafts and concessions.

The Mi-Mo-Jo snake handlers will do continuous shows every 30 minutes featuring snake safety (look before you step on one or grab one up) and various snake stunts, including smuggling in sleeping bags with them and letting them slither over their supine bodies.

Other booths will demonstrate venom milking and snake skinning.

Rattlesnake gee-gaws you can't live without (rattler earrings, for example) and snakey snack-snacks will be available as well.

The Roundup runs from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $3 for adults, $2 for children and senior citizens.

The Rattlesnake Roundup Dance, with music by Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys, is Saturday at 9 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Community Center. Tickets are $15 per couple or $8 each. They're available at the door.

Incumbents unopposed

STANTON — No challengers have filed for any City Council races following the March 14 deadline to file for office, reported the city clerk.

Running unopposed for reelection are Mayor Danny Fryar and councilmen Ronnie Christian, Albert H. Baker and James Jenkins.

The election will be held May 5.

Support group

MIDLAND — The Samaritan Counseling Center is offering a five-week support group for those in the process of or who have recently gone through a divorce.

Emphasis will be placed on finding healing as the participants move into the future. The workshop will be held on Mondays, April 2-30, from 7-8:30 p.m. The fee is $25 per session.

For registration information, contact the center at 563-4144.

Bozos needed

DELAVAN, Wis. (AP) — Know any bozos looking for work?

Larry Harmon, developer of the "Bozo the Clown" character and TV show, plans to hold auditions for newcomers to play the part during the Clown Hall of Fame's weekend induction festivities April 20-23.

Steve Smith, director of Ringling Bros. Clown College in Venice, Fla., also is scheduled to be on hand to audition would-be professional clowns for admission to the school.

The weekend extravaganza, or Clown Town Colossal, is to include clown shows, carnival rides, a parade and face painting, as well as the induction April 21 of three new members into the Clown Hall of Fame.

Valdez skipper clear on 3 counts

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Flush with a feeling of victory after three acquittals and a conviction on a minor misdemeanor, Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood says he longs to return to the sea as a ship captain.

His lawyer, Michael Chalos, said he will start negotiating with Exxon to regain the skipper's job with the shipping company that hired him out of college and fired him after his tanker grounded a year ago, causing the nation's worst oil spill.

"I'd like to go back to the sea. That's what I do," Hazelwood said Thursday after jurors absolved him of accusations he was reckless and drunk during the disaster that blackened the rocky shoreline of Prince William Sound.

Williams tapping White backers for campaign cash

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams, trying to win the endorsement of defeated Democratic gubernatorial candidate Mark White, already is tapping White's financial backers for help in his own campaign.

"I'm hoping to raise $200,000 to $300,000 this afternoon," Williams said Thursday after speaking to the Southwest Chemical Association, a petrochemical trade group.

His money pitch to White supporters, made in afternoon telephone calls, came a day after he courted White's support.

"I was interested in his thoughts and judgments," Williams said. "It was interesting to me his frustrations with the bureaucracy over the years."

He would not identify the White supporters donating cash to him. "If they want to talk about it, they can," he said.

He also warned that if Treasurer Ann Richards won the April 10 Democratic gubernatorial runoff against Attorney General Jim Mattox and launched a negative ad campaign against him, he would not take the attacks sitting down. "I will say this, if Ann Richards comes at me like she came at Mark White with those very untrue ads, I will defend myself," Williams said. "The ads that were accusing him of unethical conduct in office were clearly false."

"I conducted a very above board and very positive campaign as all people know. But if she attacked me in the format she attacked Mark White, I will defend myself."

Williams said he raised more than $1.3 million since winning the GOP nomination last week.

"I'm courting all the establishment," he said.

He sees his courting of White, however, as a way of reaching out to what he said are conservative Democrats who often consider crossing over and voting for Republican candidates.

"I like him," Williams said of

Blind teacher shares vision with students

By GINA AUGUSTINI
The Pasadena Daily Citizen

PASADENA, Texas — Dahram BaBa Behzadpour, a blind Pasadena teacher, does not let sightlessness distort his vision of education.

Behzadpour, 38, a teacher at Garfield Elementary who instructs the visually impaired, stresses one point to each of his multi-handicapped children — every student can learn.

"It does not matter if (they are solving) trigonometry or lifting one finger or turning the head slightly — it doesn't matter — they are learning," he said, smiling, his eyes covered by dark mirrored glasses.

"I understand what their needs are," added the native Iranian, who was blinded at 2 years of age in an earthquake near Tehran. "I'm not only trained in it, but I lived it."

Behzadpour, known as BaBa by students and coworkers, said the blind should get maximum use of the senses they possess, compensating for their sightlessness.

Most of his students have low vision and are able to see differing degrees of light, he said. Taking advantage of their residual vision, he uses a pen light in lessons that teach the students to track movement of light.

"If they (the students) can track the light, they are learning," adds Behzadpour, who has no light perception.

He also encourages them to use other senses such as hearing and touching. Through sound exercises, he strengthens their senses. For instance, Behzadpour has been known to toss coins on the floor while students learn to locate them as well as identify the type of coin.

Behzadpour said his desire for "always wanting something better" helped him overcome his blindness.

"Education in my country is valued. I always wanted a good, high education," he said. "Of course, there were a lot of obstacles, but there is always some way to get around them. You have to try."

"Sometimes it worked for me, sometimes it didn't. You've got to keep at it," he added.

Obstacles have been a way of life for Behzadpour, who lost his parents and brother in the earthquake that took his eyesight. In the disaster, he was trapped in a corner of the house in an air passage

Continued from page 1-A mischief, and two other misdemeanors, reckless endangerment and operating a vessel while intoxicated. Jurors took only 10 1/2 hours in deliberations to reject those counts.

"The state just didn't have the evidence," said juror Terrill Smith, a hardware store manager.

Alaska Gov. Steve Cowper told a news conference that Hazelwood's acquittal on the most serious charges shows that someone other than the veteran mariner was responsible for the grounding.

"The result bears out the fact that there are other people responsible for this, other than Capt. Hazelwood," said Cowper, who learned of the verdict Thursday while touring Prince William Sound by helicopter.

Alaska Attorney General Douglas Baily disputed suggestions that the state had tried to make Hazelwood a scapegoat.

"It was always my view that the captain of that vessel is ultimately responsible," he said.

The normally taciturn Hazelwood smiled broadly for the first time in the two-month trial when the verdicts were announced two days short of the oil spill's first anniversary.

"I'm not used to being in the limelight," Hazelwood told reporters. "I was a pretty anonymous character until a year ago."

Chalos said he would fight expected efforts by the Coast Guard to revoke Hazelwood's master's license.

The skipper's future also is clouded by more than 100 civil lawsuits filed by assorted victims of the nation's worst environmental disaster.

Jim Morakis, an Exxon spokesman in New York, said the company, which has fired Hazelwood, was "pleased that the ordeal of the trial is over for Capt. Hazelwood and his family."

"The verdict would seem to confirm the view that the grounding of the Exxon Valdez was an accident," Morakis said. "In light of pending litigation any other comment would be inappropriate."

Another lawyer for Hazelwood, Dick Madson, said even the misdemeanor was wrongly filed and would be appealed.

The heart of the case against Hazelwood was alcohol, and jurors said the state failed to prove he was drunk.

Juror Jeff Sage, a grocery store manager, said the panel didn't buy a prosecution expert's backward calculations which tried proving intoxication without physical evidence. A blood test of the skipper was taken too late to be conclusive.

"The jury felt there were just too many variables to pinpoint whether he was drunk at all," said Sage.

Assistant District Attorney Brent Cole conceded his prosecution would have been easier if a timely blood test was taken. He said he hoped the case had discouraged tanker captains from drinking before they sail.

The Exxon Valdez, a 987-foot tanker, ran aground and spilled almost 11 million gallons of oil into Prince William Sound on March 24, 1989. It killed countless birds, fish and wildlife in the scenic area, and Exxon came under bitter criticism for failing to respond quickly with a clean up effort.

Sage said jurors concluded that Hazelwood was negligent to leave the bridge of his ship during an icy transit. But he also said they felt that "all his orders were prudent. He was in command."

"To this day, we're never going to know exactly what caused the accident," Sage said.

But he found no fault with the state's decision to put the skipper on trial.

"I think that someone had to be tried," he said, "and he's the captain. He was in charge."

STANTON — Mark Kundrat, a resource room instructor, is in his first year with the Stanton ISD. The graduate of Temple University says his favorite thing about teaching is "helping young people prepare for their futures."

He was cared for by several relatives and eventually was sent to an orphanage operated by British missionaries.

The orphanage subsequently came under the care of Dutch, and then German missionaries.

"I was open to any culture," Behzadpour said of the experience. "I knew I didn't have parents or anyone to take care of me. I had to adapt."

Being blind didn't help matters. In Iran he did not have the many tools that now are available to help in educating the blind. He said many times he and his blind friends would have to braille-write their own books for the next year.

Music was one of the brighter sides of Behzadpour's youth. In high school, he learned to play the accordion. He later learned to play the violin, the keyboard and the Persian drums.

He played parties to make extra money, paying his way through violin classes and German classes. Languages are the other love of his life.

After high school, Behzadpour scored high on the languages section of his college entrance exam. He attended Pahlavi University and received a bachelor's degree in Persian Literature.

He wanted to teach, but Iran required teachers to have at least 50 percent of their vision. So Behzadpour worked as a nightclub musician and tutored foreign students in Persian on the side. He also worked as a switchboard operator for a Canadian company.

Part of that management plan will include standards for windstripping, which is planting a crop to break the wind. Jones said they will begin a windstripping project this year on a farm owned by Mark Hursh. They will plant four rows of grain sorghum used for hay bet-

Asked if he thought White was bitter over the primary defeat, Williams replied, "I think you'd have to ask him, but I don't feel he's very happy with those commercials. He was maligned. He was falsely accused of being unethical."

Williams said he hoped to take a break from the campaign this weekend to do some annual spring

State officials hire attorney to fight Turf Club allegations

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, State Comptroller Bob Bullock and Secretary of State George Bayoud have hired the nation's highest paid trial lawyer to fight the Houston Turf Club's $1 billion lawsuit alleging they conspired to control horse racing in Texas.

"You can step in stuff like that around any chicken coop," said Houston attorney Joe Jamail. "It's scurrilous, its accusations are unwarranted, unmerited by people who lost their bid legitimately for a racetrack. The state can't be in the business of giving out a racetrack for everybody that applied for one."

The suit, filed last month, alleges Clements, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, Bullock, Bayoud, members of the horse panel of the Texas Racing Commission, state Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, state Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, and others were involved in a conspiracy with Edward G. DeBartolo Sr. to control the awarding of major track licenses in the state.

"We deny all categorically. It's easy to make accusations. It's hard to prove them," Jamail said.

Last year the racing commission rejected Houston Turf Club's application to build a major, $56 million thoroughbred track in the northwest part of the county. DeBartolo, a Youngstown, Ohio, developer, operates Remington Park in Oklahoma City and Louisiana Downs in Bossier City, La.

Jamail asked U.S. District Judge David Hittner to dismiss the suit and sanction the Turf Club's attorney and plaintiffs for their alleged "misuse" and "abuse" of the court system.

Jamail, known as "The King of Torts" and for his successful representation of Pennzoil in a record judgment against Texaco, said he was defending Clements and the other officials because he believes they have been wrongly accused.
