Police wrapping up Ryan death probe

BIG SPRING — The police department is wrapping up its investigation into the Dec. 2 death of Virginia Ryan. Police Capt. Lonnie Smith said the department finally received some necessary reports from the state's crime laboratory, and investigators are reviewing the information. "We have received the lab reports and an investigative report is being compiled for the district attorney's consideration," Smith said.

Ryan, who was 43, was killed in the early morning hours of Dec. 2 after she was run over by a pickup truck in the 3600 block of Parkway Dr. Police listed her death as questionable and Justice of the Peace Willie Grant ordered an autopsy.

The truck which struck Ryan, a local insurance agent, was owned by Johnny Mack Brown, 46, of Big Spring. He was arrested at the scene and charged with resisting arrest and public intoxication. Police have not said who was driving the truck when Ryan was hit.

Arts and Crafts show scheduled

BIG SPRING — The first annual Spring City Arts and Crafts Show will be held April 7-8 on the main floor of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Hours for the show are Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Mason-Dixon to perform tonight

COLORADO CITY — The Mason-Dixon band will be performing in Colorado City tonight from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Fort Wood.

The event is being sponsored by Wood's Boots and Justin Cowboy Crisis Fund. Admission is free. For more information call Wood's Boots at 728-3722.

Heritage Museum hosts Chuck Wagon

BIG SPRING — The Heritage Museum will host its annual meeting and Chuck Wagon Party at 6:30 p.m. today in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Alvin G. Davis of the Ranching Heritage Association will recite cowboy poetry at the event.

Finishing touches

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Columbus sculptor Alfred Tiber puts the finishing touches on a work called "Eachor," commemorating the victims of Nazi Germany's concentration camps. The work is to be dedicated April 22 in Clearwater, Fla., at the Temple B'Nai Israel. Tiber, 70, lost his family in the Auschwitz death camp and spent years in forced work platoons and a Soviet Gulag before escaping Germany.

BIG SPRING — Shirley's bite is now as good as her bark, thanks to the skilled dentistry of Dr. J. Mark Cox of Midland. Shirley, a large red female dog who got her name when someone said, "Surely she's part Doberman," was suffering from severe toothaches.

"She couldn't eat and she was in obvious pain," said Big Spring Humane Society volunteer Connie Provenza, who had been giving Shirley extra tender loving care since she came to the society's shelter last week.

Provenza persuaded her brother, Dr. Cox, to donate his services to correct the problem.

"We think the dog was abused," said Provenza. "It looks

Woman blamed aliens in shooting death of husband

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — The murder trial of Janice Brown began this morning with the state attempting to dispute the defense's assertion that Brown was insane when she allegedly shot her husband Lonnie Brown in the back of his head in their doublewide trailer in the Tubbs addition on May 31, 1989.

Brown has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to the charge.

Judge Robert H. Moore III presided over the 118th District Court proceedings as District Attorney Rick Hamby and defense attorney Robert Miller made opening statements and Hamby introduced the first three state witnesses.

Her claim at the time of the incident that she shot her husband because aliens were going to torture him was an indication of the delusions from which she suffered, according to defense attorney Robert Miller.

"There's not any question she killed her husband. Your job is to look for those demonstrations, those crucial parts that speak whether or not she knew her conduct was wrong," Hamby told the eight-man, four-woman jury in his opening statement.

"The presumption under the law that she knew what she did was wrong must be rebutted," he said.

"It's not going to be a long case though I'll grant you there are some strange twists. Use your common sense for Lonnie Brown," said Hamby.

He told the jury he planned to call witnesses to testify that her statements after the alleged shooting "seem to indicate that we're dealing with a person that is different from you or me, with the exception that she has taken a life, that with one exception, one fixation, she's fairly normal. Of course, the fixation I'm referring to is the aliens," he said.

Miller's opening statements focused on Brown's history of mental instability. In detail he cited her outpatient visits to the Big Spring State Hospital and to a private psychiatrist in Midland that began in 1987.

Brown, 32, apparently was diagnosed as mentally ill and prescribed anti-psychotic medication at the state hospital. Miller described what he called a "roller-coaster" situation that developed

Silent dialogue

Words aren't spoken, but play's action unique

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Shanny Mow coached his students on the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf stage the other day. Again and again they rehearsed the lines from Neil Simon's "Fools." The scene wasn't quite right. The actress was signing her words too fast. Mow demonstrated the delivery he wanted.

"I wish I could fly like a bird, over houses, over trees . . ." Mow's signing was dramatic and deliberate, his bird an eagle soaring over nicely-pitched roofs and tall pines. Haley Smith watched, tried again. Her signing took on the lyricism Mow wanted.

Mow said he and his fellow actors who are deaf don't think of themselves as doing "deaf theater." "We like to think of ourselves as artists and our goal is to explore the artistic possibilities of sign language," he said.

He has worked with the National Theater of the Deaf for 11 years as an actor, playwright and artistic director. He also gives theater workshops for hearing and deaf students and when he has a chance, he likes to produce plays at schools for the deaf — hence his month-long residency at SWCID.

In May he'll work with the New Mexico School for the Deaf, preparing a southwestern folk story-turned-play for the Very Special Arts Festival for the Deaf competition in Austin.

His cast of nine SWCID students will perform "Fools" April 12 at the college. Mow hopes they'll present more shows after he leaves.

"A director is about as welcome as a week-old fish after opening night. The actors can go on without me," he said.

The play is about a school teacher who comes to a small village and discovers all the inhabitants are fools, the result of a curse only the teacher can break.

"I selected it for its good symbol of education — if you believe you are an ignorant ass, you will be," Mow said. All the dialogue will be in sign language, which Mow said required little adaptation from the original play. "Some of the lines don't translate, like you can't say I heard that person was coming, it has to be I see. And we reblocked it so everyone can be seen when they sign."

"Fools" will have voice interpretation for hearing

Kissing bandit has knock-out lips

DALLAS (AP) — Police say a woman put knock-out drugs on her lips, kissed a man at a nightclub and then robbed him of $60,000 worth of property after he passed out.

The 24-year-old man told police he met the woman at a northeast Dallas nightclub called Borrowed Money and went with her to a hotel late Saturday night.

The man said he believed the woman applied some chemical to her lips because he experienced a bitter taste in his mouth when they began kissing, the report stated. Moments later, the man said, he blacked out.

Dallas police detective Bill Hamby said the victim's account is plausible.

"I've been told 'Mickey Finn artists' can hold chemicals in their mouths and pass it to their victims through saliva," Hamby said.

When the man awoke several hours later, his money, jewelry and car had been stolen, according to the police report. Among the items listed were a Rolex watch, two gold rings, $1,800 cash, a Chevrolet Suburban and a cellular phone.

Precinct 666 not popular

HOUSTON (AP) — The Harris County commissioners' court will consider a resolution tonight to renumber voting Precinct 666 because of opposition from people in suburban Deer Park who view the number as symbolic of the Antichrist referred to in the Bible.

"Deer Park is a fairly conservative, religious community, and it's just a stigma they don't want," said Harvey Petree, a Deer Park city councilman who lives in the precinct.

Petree said Monday he has fielded a dozen or so complaints from residents who find Precinct 666 — or more precisely, its number — offensive. Some residents said they would not vote if the number is not changed, he said.

The resolution up for consideration by county commissioners explains that 666 is the sign of the beast in the New Testament book of The Revelation. The beast in those passages of Scripture symbolizes the Antichrist, the final opponent of Christ.

Precinct 666 was established Jan. 1 with about 1,500 residents who once lived in Precinct 470.

County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver said she doubts that Precinct 666 can be renumbered immediately, if ever, since all new precincts are part of a continuous series.

"A public hearing on the new precincts was held last year, and the law says you can only change numbers during certain times of the year, and this isn't one of them," she said.

The county clerk said she never heard of a precinct being renumbered simply because people didn't like the number.

Funds OK'd for transit systems

AUSTIN (AP) — State highway officials have approved $700,000 for 13 rural areas to enhance local transportation systems.

Gov. Bill Clements said Monday the money from Texas' oil overcharge funds will be used to seek federal matching grants that could add another $2 million to the amount.

The transit systems will use the money to replace or refurbish buses, build facilities or expand fleets in rural areas surrounding the following cities: Alice, Amarillo, Austin, Bryan, Crosbyton, Del Rio, Denton, Levelland, Sinton, Terrell, Uvalde, Victoria and Waco.

Mohair producers say support needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The whims of fashion can be cruel, say mohair producers who raise goats in the cactus-studded Southwest, as they seek continued government aid for the times when designers shun their luxury yarn.

Prices received by U.S. mohair producers "depend on how the fashion designers in Europe want to treat us," says Brian J. May, executive director of the Mohair Council of America in San Angelo, Texas.

The mohair producers are asking Congress to continue payments to some of the 3,500 Texans who raise Angora goats — animals suited to a unique expanse of arid and brushy land in West and Central Texas. Small numbers of Angora goats also are raised in New Mexico and Arizona.

Nationwide, about 10,000 ranch families — including 5,000 Navajo Indians — tend the Angora goat, whose fleece finds its way into $2,000 suits in Japan or hand-knitted sweaters in Europe. The United States, Turkey and South Africa produce most of the world's 50 million pounds of mohair.

Prices have dipped low enough during 17 of the last 35 years to trigger payments from the Agriculture Department to mohair producers, May said.

The government paid an average of $42 million a year during 1986-1988 when mohair prices were the lowest in more than a decade, the department said. That total represents almost 56 percent of all government payments made since 1962.

Some years, May said, prices dip so far below the cost of production "it would be disastrous" without the federal aid.

May contends Congress should renew the program while it drafts the 1990 farm bill. He says the program, financed through a tariff on imported wool and mohair, would help keep mohair producers in business as their trade association seeks new ways to beat market volatility through new overseas outlets and new fabrics.

All but 2 percent of domestic mohair is exported, with Europe leading the list of customers, followed by Asia and India. The industry completed its first sale to China less than a year ago, selling nearly $1 million of the brushy yarn, and closed its first sale, worth $1.5 million, with the Soviet Union in December and January, May said.

Overseas sales of mohair have totaled more than $200 million in the past 35 years, he said. May hopes the thaw in relations with Eastern Europe will expand markets for mohair and help improve the U.S. balance of trade.

The government's support also keeps otherwise inhospitable land in production, May said. In some parts of Southwest Texas, wool and mohair account for 80 percent of all agricultural income.

"No one is going to cut up rocks and cactus land for real estate," May said. "You can't run cattle out there. These people aren't getting rich off the government. We're maintaining this area's resources. We're using what would normally be considered a very minimal-type rangeland and making it a productive way of life for these counties to survive."

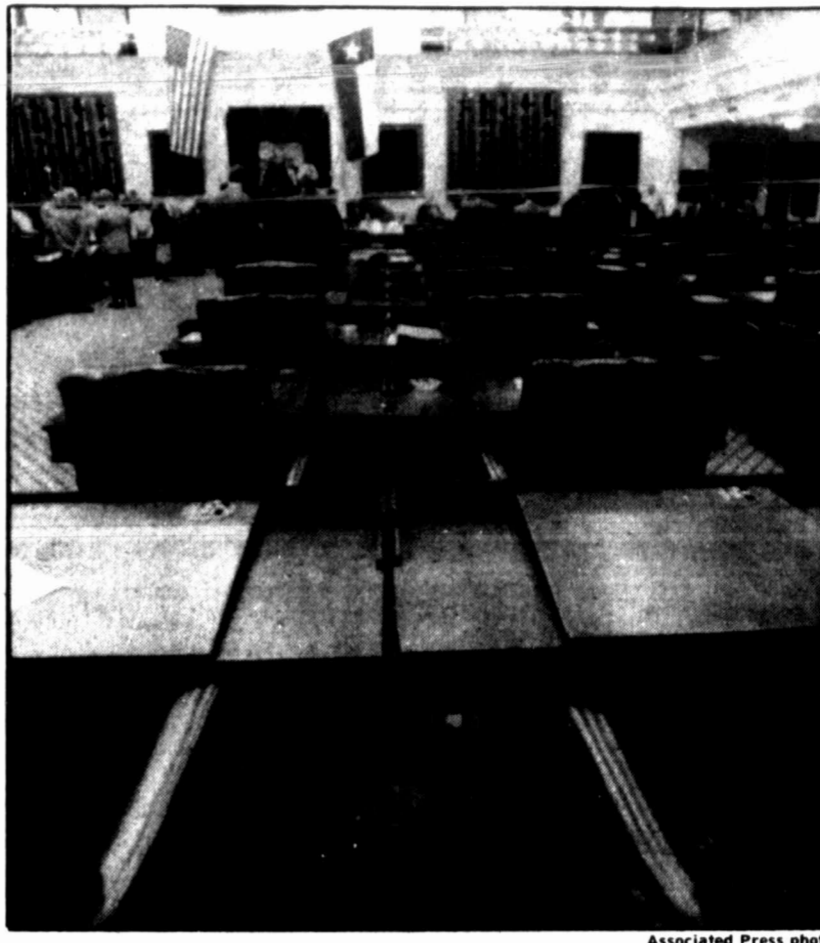

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, added: "It may be a luxury fabric, but if you're tending Angora goats in the Hill Country of Texas, it's a tough, hard way to make a living."

May said Angora goats contribute to water conservation by eating water-wasting woody brush plants, and are often used — instead of toxic chemicals — to open up brush-infested pasture land.

But the Agriculture Department, in a report on wool and mohair, questioned whether there should be a program for wool and mohair, a declining industry since World War II.

"Today, the wool program is under scrutiny because of its objectives and its rising costs," the report said, asking whether the program's costs have exceeded acceptable limits.

It said total wool and mohair spending was estimated at $130.6 million in 1988, about 1 percent of the $12.5 billion in spending on agricultural price supports and related programs.

Not a full house

AUSTIN — Empty desks abound in the House chamber as Texas lawmakers return to Austin for their fourth special session. Lawmakers were not able to produce a school finance plan in their last 30-day session so they're trying again.

'Great Society' figures to mark LBJ presidency

HOUSTON (AP) — Friends, former associates and staffers of Lyndon Baines Johnson will gather in Washington later this week and in Austin in May to mark the 25th anniversary of his inauguration.

Lady Bird Johnson, the president's widow, has sent out 1,000 invitations for festivities in both cities.

"There will be ample opportunity for both reflection and reunion," Mrs. Johnson said. "The LBJ Library's oral history department will take the opportunity to retrace the footsteps of many who knew and worked with Lyndon, who wanted the story told 'warts and all.'"

At the Washington reunion, the Charles Guggenheim film "LBJ — A Remembrance" will be presented at Friday's opening ceremony. A book of photographs of Johnson's White House years also will be unveiled, while actor Laurence Luckinbill, who played Johnson on Broadway, will present "The Words of LBJ."

President and Mrs. Bush will host a White House reception Friday in connection with the reunion activities. The guest list is expected to include former Johnson Cabinet members, former aides and Johnson family members.

Fifteen journalists who covered Johnson will share their thoughts Saturday, for the tape recorder and the oral history, in a program called "In Search of LBJ."

DHS board reverses pay freeze

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Human Services' move to raise reimbursements to nursing homes by $65 million — despite the agency's own $550 million deficit — won't stop a lawsuit, say nursing home representatives.

The Texas Health Care Association and the Texas Association of Homes for the Aging filed suit in U.S. District Court last Thursday. The nursing home groups allege that the DHS has failed to adequately pay them for caring for Medicaid patients.

Sarah Speights, public information officer of the Texas Health Care Association, said Monday that the $65 million increase in reimbursements for Medicaid patients will pay for some federal mandates, including a minimum wage increase that took effect April 1.

But, she said, it will not provide quality care for the 61,000 patients — 70 percent of all nursing home residents — who depend on Medicaid.

The approved increase of $3 a day leaves the homes $4 to $5 short each day for each patient, she said.

"This $3 will keep some nursing homes from having to close their doors or move their Medicaid patients out. But it's still not enough to provide adequate care," she said. "All we're trying to do is provide the level of care the public demands."

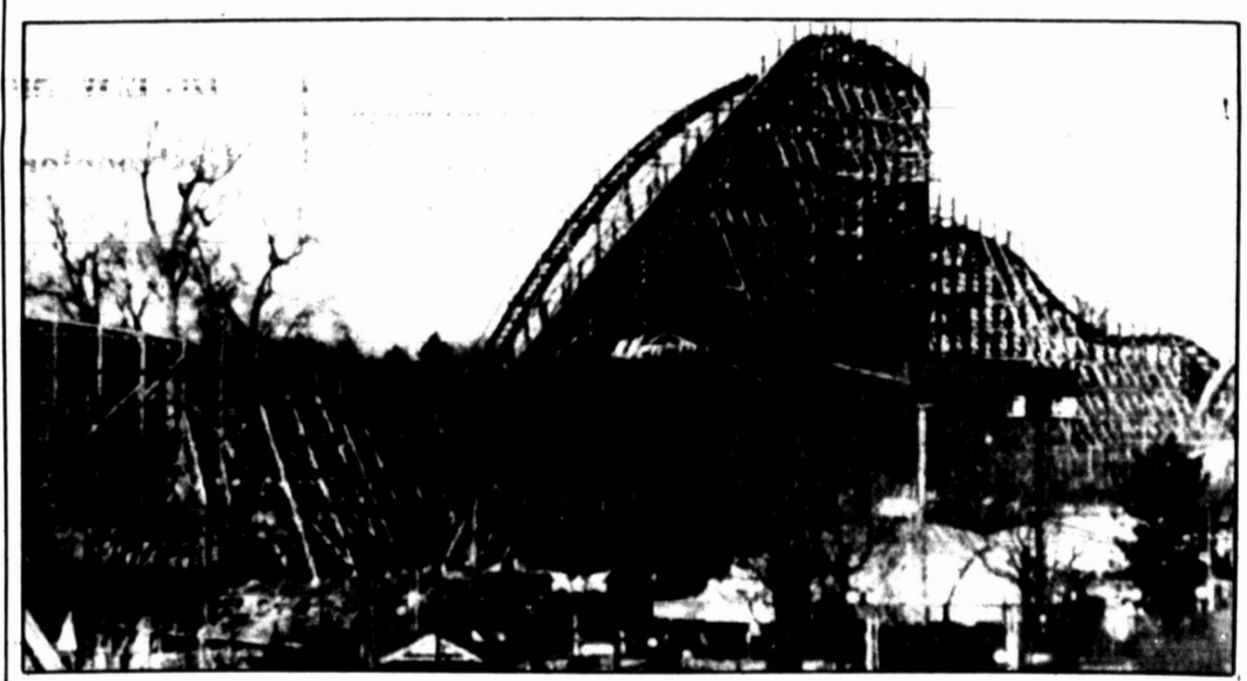

The reimbursement increase reversed a freeze enacted by the DHS board two weeks ago as an emergency budget-cutting measure. Welfare officials originally estimated the agency's two-year shortfall at $851 million.

DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey said the revision is based on more recent figures showing that fewer pregnant women and children have been applying for aid than was projected earlier.

Lindsey said he has asked lawmakers to resolve the deficit by giving the welfare agency the $211 million in state funds it needs for 1990 and 1991.

The rest of the $550 million projected shortfall is made up of federal matching funds that would be lost without state appropriations.

But Lindsey said Gov. Bill Clements only will allow lawmakers to consider shifting the $32 million the agency needs in state funds this fiscal year from its 1991 budget.

Who's biggest?

ARLINGTON — Six Flags Over Texas in Arlington recently opened its "Texas Giant," a roller coaster 143 feet tall. Six Flags is claiming it is the world's tallest wooden roller coaster because it is 43 feet taller than "Hercules," a similar roller coaster at Dorney Park and Wildwater Kingdom in Allentown, Pa. Dorney Park says the correct method of measuring is by the length of the vertical drop and their roller coaster, with a drop of 157 feet, is bigger.

Mud keeps flying in Democratic race

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Democratic gubernatorial runoff began with talk of a peace treaty. But it didn't take long for any truce plans to go up in smoke.

Not only won't state Treasurer Ann Richards and Attorney General Jim Mattox agree to end their bitter personal attacks, they disagree on who broke the truce and can't agree on whether they will debate before the April 10 runoff.

Mattox flatly accused Ms. Richards of using illegal drugs 10 years ago, but offered no evidence. Ms. Richards passed a drug test and challenged Mattox to do the same.

Ms. Richards said there are tough questions that Mattox is ducking — such as how he could borrow $1.4 million if he really earned only his $75,000 government salary. He claimed the treasurer was hiding out, afraid to debate him.

Their attacks have grown more bruising as election day nears.

"If Ann Richards is not tough enough to stand up and debate Jim Mattox, and to answer the questions that are on the voters' minds, how is she going to be tough enough to stand up to the problems facing our state?" Mattox demanded.

The attorney general claimed he had "sufficient information" to believe that Ms. Richards, 56 and a recovering alcoholic, used illegal drugs as "a 46-year-old elected official" and said she must address the issue.

Ms. Richards responded — as she has for two months — by saying she has made public more information about her personal life than any other candidate. She chided Mattox for failing to follow her example and make public his income tax returns.

"This campaign has taken on the predictable form that Jim Mattox campaigns always take. Whatever trash he can throw to try to detract from his poor performance, he will do that, and I expect it to continue until election day," she said.

The ugly tone followed a rough-and-tumble primary in which Ms. Richards narrowly edged Mattox. Ms. Richards won 39 percent of the primary vote, besting Mattox's 37 percent.

Atwater undergoes new treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Party chairman Lee Atwater is undergoing a new course of treatment for a brain tumor that a party official concedes is more serious than originally thought.

Doctors treating Atwater, 39, said the tumor "has the potential to behave aggressively," a phrase repeated Monday in a statement issued by Mary Matalin, the Republican Party chief of staff.

Atwater was at Montefiore Medical Center in New York City, where doctors planned to implant radioactive isotopes in the tumor in an effort to kill it.

Since the tumor was diagnosed March 6, Atwater has undergone daily radiation treatments.

B.J. Cooper, communications director at the Republican National Committee, said Atwater has conferred with several doctors since the original diagnosis and the consensus was that the growth was an astrocytoma located in the right frontal lobe.

Cooper said the chairman had been coming into party headquarters daily before he went to New York, with day-to-day matters being handled by Jeanie Austin, the party co-chairman.

Lava threatens Hawaiian homes

KALAPANA, Hawaii (AP) — Dozens of residents packed their belongings and left as lava from Kilauea Volcano crept to within 400 yards of their homes.

Officials were watching two major flows from the volcano, which has erupted almost continuously the past seven years.

"I ran into a couple of people who didn't seem too concerned about it, but most people are concerned and moving whatever they can," said Civil Defense spokesman Allen Parker.

Since its latest and longest eruption began in 1983, the volcano has destroyed 26 homes and a national park visitor center, causing $20 million in damage.

Teen AIDS victim near death

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ryan White, the teen-age AIDS patient whose battle for acceptance won hearts and better understanding of the disease across the nation, was reported near death today on a life-support system.

His mother and sister remained at the bedside of the 18-year-old, who during his 5 1/2-year battle with AIDS grew from an object of scorn in his hometown to an international spokesman for children with the disease.

White, a hemophiliac who contracted AIDS from contaminated blood products, put a youthful face on the AIDS plight. He increased awareness of the disease and helped reinforce the message that AIDS cannot be spread through casual contact. His struggle was the subject of a People magazine cover story and a TV movie.

Four years ago, White, who was diagnosed as having AIDS at 13,

RYAN WHITE was barred from school near Kokomo by officials who feared AIDS could be transmitted to other students.

Fuel spill cleanup

FREEPORT, Pa. — Cleanup workers from the Buckeye Pipeline Co. work in Knapp Run to recover some of the fuel spilled near Freedom, Pa. on Saturday. Knapp Run flows into the Allegheny River, where there is a 30-mile slick effecting water supplies.

Additional child labor violations uncovered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators who uncovered 7,000 child labor violations during a three-day sweep last month found an additional 4,000 infractions in a review of case files, the Labor Department said today.

Civil fines on the businesses involved are expected to total $2.9 million, up from the $1.8 million originally predicted following the March 12-15 sweep, said William Brooks, an assistant secretary of labor.

Most of the violations involved teenagers working more hours or later hours during the school week than is allowed under federal law, the department said.

But there were also 1,450 youngsters age 14-17 who were illegally employed in dangerous jobs, such as using power-driven meat-slicing machinery, dough mixers and paper-balers, the department said.

The 11,000 violations found in three days number almost half the total of child labor violations uncovered during all of 1989, said Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole.

Mrs. Dole said the new findings reinforce "our belief that the trend toward violations is growing."

Nearly half of the fast-food restaurants and other businesses targeted in the sweep were found to be employing children illegally, Brooks said. Of the 3,776 firms investigated, violations were found at 1,750, he said.

About 225 youngsters under 14 were found to be illegally employed, Brooks said. Children under 14 are barred from most jobs, with a few exceptions such as certain farm work and newspaper routes.

Federal law forbids 14-year-olds and 15-year-olds from working more than three hours on a school day or 18 hours a week.

Prison inmates continue to hold out

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Ninety-nine inmates at Strangeways prison held out for a third day today, returning to the roof in a downpour bearing signs that read: "RIP Strangeways," "No dead" and "media contact now."

Prisoners offered to allow authorities into the medium-security prison to prove no one was killed in rioting Sunday that left at least 47 people injured, said Ivor Serle, chairman of the local branch of the Prison Officers' Association.

There had been reports up to 12 sex offenders were killed by fellow inmates.

Serle said the inmates had put up barricades and set booby traps inside the prison: "It's too dangerous for the staff to go in."

The rioters still held five of the 19th century prison's 10 wings and apparently were making no demands.

At a second prison, 100 miles to the south, 33 inmates kept guards at bay today behind barricades after police foiled an attempted mass breakout.

Troops deployed to halt fighting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government began deploying heavily-armed soldiers and police today after President F.W. de Klerk ordered a major crackdown on black factional fighting that has claimed hundreds of lives.

Police said army and police reinforcements were moving into the ravaged Edendale Valley in the southeastern province of Natal to halt virtual civil war between rival Zulu tribal factions.

Police Maj. Piet Kitching said at least 55 people had been killed and hundreds injured in the area over the past week.

More than 12,000 refugees, mainly women and children, had fled their homes in the Edendale area and were being sheltered at camps, police said. Rival mobs had burned hundreds of houses in the area, they said.

Cuban military fights TV war

BARACOA, Cuba (AP) — For the past several months, a squad of Cuban military pilots has been on 24-hour alert for the attack of an invisible enemy. Last week, the first assault came.

The United States started sending TV Marti signals toward Cuba. The signal has carried mostly replays of old sports events and comedy shows, but the Cuban government regards it as a deadly serious offensive.

"This is a war; they have begun it," said Lt. Col. Thais Martinez, gesturing toward the United States as he spoke Monday to foreign journalists at Baracoa air base, a half-hour drive from Havana.

The helicopters take off as soon as TV Marti begins to penetrate Cuban air space. Apparently with the help of on-board transmitters, the choppers are able to interfere with the signal.

Court to decide ownership of treasure

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Cmdr. William Lewis Herndon left the deck of his foundering SS Central America and went below to don his dress uniform. With that last act of decorum 133 years ago, Herndon went down with his ship.

Today, U.S. District Judge Richard B. Kellam hears opening arguments in the dispute between treasure hunters and insurance companies over the millions in gold that sank with the sidewheel steamer on Sept. 12, 1857.

On one side are more than 100 investors in the Columbus America Discovery Group that used space age technology to locate and recover the treasure. They claim the gold was abandoned and belongs to them by the rights of salvage.

On the other side are 45 insurance firms that have filed lawsuits contending they have ties to the 19th-century companies which paid more than $1.2 million in claims after the ship sank.

Lost in the legal wranglings over the fortune is the story of the SS Central America and the valor of its sailors and passengers.

The ship left from what is now Colon, Panama, after picking up passengers and mail from California. Among its cargo were gold bars and freshly minted "double eagle" gold coins from the San Francisco mint.

Four days later, the ship ran into a hurricane and sank in 8,000 feet of water 200 miles off South Carolina. Reports at the time put the number of dead at between 362 and 423 of the 578 people aboard and the value of the gold at $1.6 million.

Not all the ship's gold was recovered in salvage expeditions last year, and its exact value has yet to be determined. The ship was carrying about three tons of gold, which would be worth about $450 million at today's prices.

In addition, many passengers were carrying fortunes they had made in California, so the total treasure could be worth up to $1 billion, experts have said.

Herndon had rallied his crew to keep the vessel afloat through the two days the ship tried to ride out the storm. He kept order on the deck as the women and children were loaded into the four lifeboats.

A nearby ship took on survivors. When a lifeboat returned to the sinking ship, a witness said that Herndon ordered the boat to keep off, fearing it would be swamped by the Central America. It was his final order.

Among the passengers were Capt. Thomas Badger and his bride, Jennie Badger and his brother John had left Virginia years earlier to find their fortunes in California, said Curtis Badger, a great great grandnephew.

"Apparently, he was returning with about $20,000 in gold. The story goes that when the women were put in lifeboats, Jennie wrapped the gold in towels and packed it in a carpetbag. She threw the carpetbag into the captain's cabin and left the ship," Badger's descendant said.

Jennie Badger survived and was taken to New York City. Her husband later was pulled from the sea, having clung to a piece of wood for many hours.

History may hold a lesson for the current gold seekers, Curtis Badger said.

Thomas and John Badger found their fortunes in the gold fields and both lost them in their lifetimes, Curtis Badger said.

"After the war, (John) returned to the family farm and lived out his life as a farmer and fisherman along the barrier islands. Thomas lost it all and died without much," he said. "Perhaps it was John who found the only true fortune."

Put children before politics

Congress is prepared to hand millions of the smallest constituents a valuable gift for their future: a cent child care.

It's about time. Last year, House Democrats who nominally supported child care embarked on a destructive turf war over how its funds should be administered among other issues. The result? No bill emerged.

Now, after some fence mending and compromise, the House leadership has mustered approval for a package designed to assist poor families and expand on inadequate child care systems. The version that passed is perfect, but it is essentially sound.

It would put child-care vouchers in the hands of poor working parents, provide states with block grant funds designated for child care and convert the part-time Head Start program to an all day, year-round program. It also would funnel millions of dollars to schools to expand and create preschool and latchkey programs on their campuses.

As part of the compromise, parents would be permitted to use their federal child-care vouchers for children in day-care centers, provided the money doesn't go for sectarian instruction. To some constitutional purists, the provision comes perilously close to breaching separation of church and state.

Perhaps they are right. But at this point, in the face of an urgent national need for child care, the government can hardly exclude nearly a third of all day care centers simply because they are operated by religious organizations. The churches quickly stepped in and helped when mothers returned to the work force en masse. At least for now, they are providing an essential social service.

The House bill, which would provide about $14 billion in tax relief and $9 billion in child care funds during the next five years, must still be reconciled with the Senate measure. With few discrepancies between the two versions, measures that should be a relatively easy sell.

Unfortunately, President Bush is threatening to veto this measure for much the same reason that many House Democrats almost killed it last year: The Republicans want their version, a measure sponsored by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, or no other. But Stenholm's flawed measure, which does less to expand and improve the quality of child care, was defeated.

"We are in this for the long haul," said White House official Alixe Glen, contending the president would reject the House version and hold out for Stenholm's.

But what of the nearly 60 percent of the women in today's work force with children under 13? What about the welfare moms who want to work, but can't find affordable child care? What about the thousands of kids left unattended on school grounds because there aren't enough latchkey programs?

They are in it for the long haul, too. They can't afford to while Republicans and Democrats jockey for the political bill of their own political choice.

During his presidential campaign, George Bush promised to push for child care assistance. This year he should have the opportunity. He should rise above partisanship and sign landmark legislation that may soon emerge from Congress — even if it isn't exactly the approach he favors.

Our children need and deserve assistance, the measure offers a whole benefits.

Dinner deflates self-importance

BY VANESSA LONG
Capitol Correspondent

It was a capital dinner, very, very special. In a capital city, it was a yearly ritual. The Gridiron Club, a group of politicians, reporters and editors for newspapers and wire services. It has no noticeable purpose other than its fancy spring dinner and satirical show. While irreverence is its mission, the club itself is not immune from the pomposity it seeks each year to puncture, warning some self-satire.

The Gridiron Club is an organization with 60 active members. Washington-based reporters and editors for newspapers and wire services. It has no noticeable purpose other than its fancy spring dinner and satirical show. While irreverence is its mission, the club itself is not immune from the pomposity it seeks each year to puncture, warning some self-satire.

Then he turned to Bush and praised the way the administration ousted Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega. "You lure him into this place he thinks is safe... cut him off from the outside world... you move in your people and block all the exits." "And then, glory be, you bombard him for hours on end with loud, bad music," Broder recounted. "Hell, Mr. President, that's a perfect description of the Gridiron dinner."

Bush knows the circuit, of course. At the black-tie dinner of the Alfalfa Club in January, the president lamented, "The evening lasted so long I was about ready to call the papal nuncio to spring me." The Alfalfa Club is an organization of 200 political and business leaders who invite 300 guests to an annual stag dinner,

Why not build a good reputation for Big Spring instead of trying to defeat its growth by undermining our schools?

Life is not only for pleasure

For the editor:

I am respectively writing in response to the letter written by Sherri Gabriel. "People need a little pleasure," (Big Spring Herald, March 25).

Life is not given to us for a little pleasure. God gave us life to please him. Revelation 4-11 says "Thou art worthy, Oh Lord, to receive glory and honor and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."

Sherri Gabriel speaks of spreading your wings and flying away for a while. There is nothing wrong with pulling aside to rest and enjoy God's beautiful world, fellowship with friends and loved ones, but if Satan makes us think we must indulge in a sin to have pleasure let's see what God says about this. II Timothy Chapter 3:1 "This know also that in the last days perilous times shall come, for men shall be lovers of their own selves covetous, boasters, proud blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholly, without natural affection, trustbreakers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that

Keeping the hatchet men busy

By ART BUCHWALD

We keep reading about people getting fired in the United States — 6,000 auto workers, 4,000 computer analysts, 5,500 Drexel Burnham employees. What's wrong is that the newspapers never tell us how it's done. One of the top hatchet men in the country is Walter Widegrin, who has laid off more than half a million workers in his time.

Widegrin, known as "The Hangman," provides 24-hour service to companies that want to push their employees in front of the firing squad. He enjoys his work but pretends he doesn't.

"People blame me if they're laid off, but I can't help it when business is lousy. Look at the Perfect Wave Suntan Oil Company that just hired me to get rid of 10,000 workers."

"Did they have a problem selling suntan oil?"

"On the contrary," Widegrin said. "Business was good — so good that they decided to purchase a meatpacking plant, 1,000 VCR stores, a soccer team, a chain of combined carryout banks and pizza parlors, and a factory to make air bags for government bureaucrats. To finance their investments, they borrowed money from insurance companies, credit unions and the Japanese Sushi Employees' Pension Plan."

"That takes guts."

"Not if you issue a lot of junk bonds. The problem was that the executives who knew everything about suntan oil didn't know a damn thing about meat, soccer, banks, pizza or air bags. They were very determined, however, and they bought a large airplane to fly from one company to the other so that they could find out why they were losing so much money."

"So far it doesn't sound as if they did anything wrong."

"What they did wrong was that they ran out of cash to pay off their debts. When this happened, the word went out on the street that Perfect Wave was overextended. Everybody was told not to advance the company any more credit. Without supplies it wasn't easy to make suntan oil so, like all good executives, they made a tough business decision to lop off 10,000 heads."

"How can that help?"

"Because when you're in debt, the best way to show your creditors that you intend to save the situation is to fire all the people that work for you. Once we pink-slip the workers, the banks and insurance companies will be on their knees begging to give us money."

"When you lop off heads, do the executives feel the blade as well?"

"Hopefully not, and we always make sure that when we fire a top manager, he has a golden parachute. That way he doesn't get hurt when he bails out."

"I remember that they took care of all the executives at Drexel Burnham before the roof caved in."

"Exactly. I was the hangman on that case — and the big guys really came out smelling like a rose."

"When you start putting the noose around the necks of the rest of the help, do you do it alphabetically, or by age, or by length of service?"

"We don't have time for that. We throw a bottle of ink over the computer printout, and whoever gets blotted is told not to show up the next day."

"What happens to the plane?"

"The top boys keep it for the new company they're putting together with their manufacturing expertise."

Festival ideal for the bold and adventurous

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random notes while searching for the Loch Ness Monster.

Now that spring is here, it is inevitable that everybody starts thinking about summertime, and where they'll go on vacation.

Some folks will pack up the kids and head to Six Flags, while others will go to traditional vacation spots like Ruidoso, San Antonio or wherever there's a lake where the water's warm enough for swimming and the fish are dumb enough for catching.

However, if you're adventurous — and I do mean adventurous — you might want to give the 32nd Annual Ramp Festival a try.

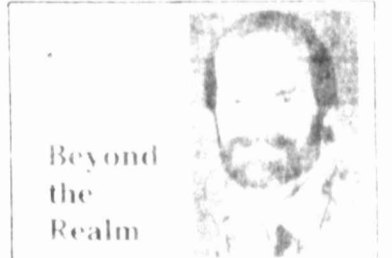

No, the festival isn't in honor of inclines; it celebrates other kinds of ramps; more specifically, the wild leek that some people are brave enough to eat.

It's not as if ramps are poisonous or anything like that. As far as I know, they probably taste like the sweetest thing this side of the pearly gates.

The problem is they smell like something just this side of the great abyss.

Anyway, a bunch of folks will be gathering near Richmond, Va. this weekend to celebrate — and pig out on — the ramp. Organizers are hoping that the smell doesn't deter less hearty types from attending.

"As long as everybody is eating them at one time, it's OK," Bruce Donaldson, owner of an area supermarket told the Associated Press. "If you have to smell so much someone else who's been eating

Beyond the Realm

There's a pretty big difference between the two. The first is that the first is a realm, the second is a world. The first is a realm, the second is a world.

Richmond chamber of commerce officials will be giving away memberships to the NRA for each ticket sold.

Eus NRA is the National Ramp Association. Maxine, the secretary, told me "Which is the best?" I'm not sure. A big one is in the National Rifle Association might like to shoot people on the other NRA.

Aluminum, some of the things to do it for the first time, off beat and bizarre. Just eating the wife and the kiddies, spend a few hundred dollars getting to Richmond and eat your fill of ramps.

Just remember to keep the car windows down on your way back.

Faithful readers will remember that I predicted a few weeks ago that the University of Nevada would win the Vegas world cup basketball tournament.

Well, folks, the reason I bet, did it, which means that I was actually right on one of my predictions.

Shakes your faith in human nature, doesn't it?

Homemakers meet

Center Point Homemakers Extension Club met March 27 at Kentwood Older Adult Center with Ella Williams as host.

Roll call: "A bargain that was not a bargain", was answered by six members.

Bob Goodwin, district customer service/operator manager from T.U. Electric Co., presented a question and answer program on the following subjects:

1. Appliance operating cost.
2. How to read your electric meter.
3. Services for seniors.
4. 45 ways to help you control the size of your electric bill.
5. Comanche Peak Steam Electric Station near Glen Rose.

Members donated 12 dozen cookies to the Big Spring State Hospital.

The next meeting will be April 10 at Kentwood Older Adult Center with Mary Leek as hostess.

Sew and Chatter meets

Nine members of the Sew and Chatter Club met March 28 at the home of Libbie Dirks.

A moment of silent prayer was held in memory of Ina Richardson. A donation was sent the cancer fund in her memory.

A large variety of materials will be taken to the Westside Center for the summer program.

The club will buy a brick for the wall in the new Heritage Museum building.

Cookies will be taken to the Big Spring State Hospital this month.

The next meeting will be April 11, with Ruby Haynes as hostess. Members are to bring materials to decorate Easter hats.

Military

Navy Seaman Apprentice James M. Churchwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Churchwell, 1607 Vines, recently made a port visit to Penang, Malaysia, during a recent deployment with the U.S. 7th Fleet while serving aboard the frigate USS Bagley, homeported in San Diego.

During the port visit, Churchwell participated in a ship's open house, the Hindu Religious festival of Thaipusam, a celebration of the Chinese New Year, and hosted children from the Handicapped Children Center.

A 1986 graduate of Big Spring High School, he joined the Navy in July 1988.

Airman James R. Williamson has graduated from the aircraft armament systems specialist course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

The course provides instruction for students to load nuclear and non-nuclear munitions, explosives and propellant devices on aircraft.

During the 13-week course, students were also instructed to maintain, install, modify and repair aircraft bombs and rockets.

Williamson is the son of Melvin L. and Ella K. Williamson, 1801 Hamilton.

His wife, Sherry, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Kessler, Coahoma.

Teachers help students prepare for UIL meet

Students from Elbow Elementary traveled to Stanton Saturday to participate in the District UIL meet. The students have been preparing for weeks on their own time with the help of their teacher coaches.

Music teacher Sharon Cregar has been working with fifth graders Brenda Franklin, Ryan Toomire, Travis Hiltbrunner, Cassie Henkel, and Nicole Johnson, who competed in the Music Memory Event.

Fourth graders Stormee Nix, Candy Passmore, Marlena Light, alternates Terra Proctor and Carrie Robinson, with fifth graders Heather Cooper, Ryan Toomire and Shannon Lepard represented Elbow in the Oral Reading division. Teacher Carole Madry worked with this group.

Teacher Vesta Shoultz coached fourth graders Brooke Reed, Nidia Rosas, Gary Simer, Erica Partlow and Sarah Kennemur in Picture Memory, while Lorna Simmons helped third graders Shana Self, Cory Walker, Jarrett Ferguson, alt. Jerrod Fishback, and fourth

Teachers Arita Calley and Richard Light helped second graders Derek Wash, Amanda Breyman and Daniel Whetsel; third graders Jerrod Fishback, Christi Wallace, Weylin Wolf and alternate Caleb Hollingshead learn to compete in the story telling event.

Track meets

Junior high district track meet will be held at McCamey Thursday. The high school district track meet will be at Stanton on Friday.

Student of the Week

Junior high student of the week is Laurie Light. Congratulations, Laurie.

Honor students

Junior high principal Doug Parker released the Honors Grade Point Average list for the fourth six weeks, which included: Sixth graders Clay Thomas with a 98, Jason Lentz also with a 98, Ryndi Hamby, 95.2, Jeffrey Martinez, 95, Jaime Tilley 94.4, Tina Arnold 94, Stephanie Lewis 93.8, Deborah Light 93.6, Stephanie Barraza 93.4, Rusty Rutledge 92.4, Tim Marino 92.4, Andy Epley 91.4, Josh Hedges 91 and Clint Bingham 90.6.

Seventh graders Jacoby Hopper with a 99.4, Laurie Light 97.6, Chris Lewis 96.2, Bryan Alexander 96, Aaron Bellinghausen 94.6, Summer Rawls 94, Gwen Cooper 93.4, Misty Carter 93.2, Lark Ray 93, Shane Sims 92.6, Tabitha Alexander 90.6, Lisa Ott 90.2 and Gregg Roman 90.

No icing on the cake for holiday birthday babies

DEAR ABBY: In response to "A Capricorn," who felt sorry for herself because she had a birthday so close to Christmas:

How would you like to have a Jan. 1 birthday? Almost everyone stays out late on New Year's Eve, and they're either too tired or hung over to remember your birthday. Besides, they're all broke from Christmas shopping.

I'm 70 years old and didn't even have a birthday cake until I was 50, when my daughter surprised me. I came from a large farm family. My mother did a lot of holiday baking, and she couldn't afford to make a special birthday cake for me. Gifts? Forget it.

When my children were old enough to get an allowance, they saved up and bought me a birthday present. I could tell you more, but I think I've made my point. — DOROTHY IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR DOROTHY: You think you were slighted on your birthday? Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I was born in December. So was my husband, same day, so every year we receive one birthday card for the two of us from one of his relatives. The all-time classic was received this year in our Christmas card. It contained the usual printed jargon, was signed by "Harry and Mabel" — and included a P.S. wishing us both a happy birthday! Talk about economizing! Two Christmas greetings plus two birthday greetings — all in one.

I am tempted to send one joint card to Harry and Mabel on Harry's birthday, and include Mabel in the P.S. (Their birthdays are three months apart.) Think they'll get the hint? — SLIGHTED

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write about my late husband's Dec. 12 birthday. One year my sister forgot his birthday completely, but at Christmastime she arrived with a rather large suit box. Half of it was wrapped in birthday wrapping paper and the other half was wrapped in Christmas paper. Inside the box was a pair of pajamas — the tops were for his birthday and the bottoms were for Christmas! — R.E.W. IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY: My father was born on Dec. 25. When he and I went to Europe for a vacation last summer, as we were going through customs, a cheerful young woman looked at his passport and exclaimed, "Oh — a Christmas baby!" Dad was 88 years old. — GERALDINE IN HARTFORD

DEAR ABBY: I am utterly disgusted with people who whine because they were born in the month of December when people sometimes combine their birthday gift with their Christmas gift.

I have my own theory about birthday gifts: I think everyone should send his mother a gift on his OWN birthday. After all, who but his mother gave him the most precious gift of all — life?

And as far as Christmas gifts are concerned, that has turned into a gigantic commercial circus. If Christians want to celebrate the birth of Christ, let them make a donation to their church.

No name, please. I have to live in this town. — HATES GIFT-GIVING

65 vote absentee in HC on first day

HOWARD COUNTY — Monday was the first day of absentee voting in the runoff elections for county commissioners and several state positions. County Clerk Margaret Ray reported 59 Democrats and 6 Republicans voted yesterday at the Howard County Courthouse. Her office mailed out 89 Democratic ballots and 33 Republican ones.

Today was the cutoff day for mail-out ballots; however, voters may cast their ballots in person at the County Clerk's office on the main floor of the courthouse from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Friday.

The runoff election will be held April 10.

Parole revocation

hearing set for man

BIG SPRING — A parole revocation hearing date has been set for a man charged with aggravated sexual assault and parole violation.

The hearing for Randy Ray Young of Brownfield will take place April 30 at 10 a.m. in the Grand Jury Room of the Howard County Court House.

Young, charged with the Jan. 26 aggravated sexual assault of a Big Spring woman and parole violation, is being held without bond in the Howard County Jail until the hearing.

C-City council

meets tonight

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City Council will meet at 5 p.m. today in the city hall.

The council will award a bid on the TDCP waterline project, consider a resolution allocating the motel tax, examine user fees and hear reports.

Citizens told: Help name park streets

BIG SPRING — Citizens of Big Spring can play a role in the naming of five city streets.

Naming the Comanche Trail Park streets is not just practical, said Mack Underwood of the Parks and Recreation Commission. He said he hopes it will make the park a safer place for recreation and sports.

Underwood said giving names to the roads would make it easier for emergency vehicles to respond to situations in the park. "In an emergency, precious time could be lost looking for the right street."

Streets to be named include the main park entry from Wasson Road past the golf course and the south park entry from Highway 87 to the swimming pool. Also to be named are the road from the historic spring to the amphitheater and two connectors within the park.

The contest is open to anyone who has a possible name in mind. Underwood said the criteria is "up to the public. They can suggest any name they like."

Contestants should write their name and address on each entry. The decision will be made within a week, Underwood said. "If you want to be honored by being the one to name a street in the city, get your ideas in soon."

Submit street names to: Mr. David McHughy, City Hall, Box 3190, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Doggie

Cox, when he examined the dog Saturday, concurred. The dog's front teeth, top and bottom, were worn to the point where all the nerves were exposed, he said.

"With normal wearing, it's gradual enough that the nerves don't get exposed. These teeth are too smooth and too uniform to have been broken off or worn down naturally.

"I think from the look of her teeth and her overall appearance, she's been in agony. There's nowhere in her mouth she could eat."

With the help of a friend, Richard David, Cox placed the dog in a dental chair and gave her a general anesthetic to put her to sleep. A plastic block was placed in her mouth to hold her jaws apart so that Cox could work on them.

Although all of the teeth showed signs of having been filed, Cox felt that only the 14 teeth in the front upper and lower jaws needed dental repair. Cox said he had originally planned to do root canals when he agreed to help, but that the damage was much too extensive. Instead he performed pulpotomies, killing the nerves in the teeth and filling the holes.

Shirley, who had been unable to eat for several days prior to her trip to the dentist, was unsocial and unresponsive because of the pain from her teeth.

Cox said he had never before performed dentistry on a dog.

"She's not as cooperative as my human patients when I tell her to move her head," he said, "but she certainly is still."

Cox did not think his regular patients would object to sharing their dentist with a dog. "Maybe some of my patients might be upset, but I think most of them will think it's really neat. We're using this room because it's not one I generally use for patients."

Besides using disposable equipment, Cox had covered the dental chair in plastic and towels.

Veterinary dentistry is becoming increasingly popular, said Cox, but he knew of no practitioners in West Texas.

"The closest I know of is in Dallas," he said. "I'm sure there are vet dentists at Texas A&M. It's a growing field because people are taking better care of their pets."

Cox used a natural tooth-colored composite filling in Shirley's teeth. "It's the same thing we use in the front teeth of patients' mouths," he explained.

Cox estimated the value of his services to be close to $1,000.

if the work had been done on humans.

"Of course, I've never seen a situation where we had to do this many in a human," he said. "If a person's teeth were in this condition, we would be pulling them."

Shirley recovered from the anesthetic quickly and with no side effects. She is back at the Humane Society and is beginning to eat, although it will be some time before she fills out again.

"She's eating on her own now," said shelter volunteer Vicky Weaver. "It will take some time for her to start looking fat and healthy again but you can tell by her eyes she is no longer in such terrible pain. We hope we can find a good home for her. She deserves a good family after all the pain she's been through."

Veterinarian Joe Neff said there was no medical reason for filing a dog's teeth down.

"The only reason I can think of for something like this is that the man may have been trying to keep the dog from hurting anyone if she bit. It's not a normal procedure and it's certainly inhumane to file the teeth off to where the nerves are exposed."

Shirley can't smile her thanks to Dr. Cox and the Humane Society volunteers for fixing her teeth, but she is once again wagging her tail.

Members of the CRMWD, including Big Spring, will be serviced by the reservoir. Abilene, Midland and San Angelo own part interest, and could take water from it. Pickle said it will be several years before any city takes water from the facility. "It will serve as a long-range water supply for West Texas."

Taylor said history is the issue. "I know of 100-year old homes that were knocked down, long-time residents pushed out and forced to sell. I may be wrong, but I believe

Mr. Ivie and Mr. Freese were paid for their work. That should be enough."

Pickle said he believes the communities will reap economic benefits from the reservoir, which is expected to become a recreational facility. Taylor said she does not welcome increased use of the area. "People don't take care of a place like that. I don't want to see their beer cans lying around here."

The possibility of economic gain, Taylor said, is not enough. "If you love the land, no amount of money can repay you for that loss."

members of the audience.

Mow said some interpretation is necessary for all theater pieces done in sign language, whether school productions or professional ones.

"The National Theater for the Deaf and the Fairmount Theater for the Deaf (where Mow will be artistic director this fall) are not solely for deaf audiences. Most of our audience is not deaf. Basic-ly, we're entertainment, not social workers, though I think we do contribute to a better understanding of the deaf," Mow said.

Although the SWCID cast has not had much experience acting, Mow believes that being deaf gives them an advantage over amateur hearing actors.

"The average deaf person really is a better actor than a hearing person because all their life the deaf have tried to communicate with their bodies through mime, charade, gesture and sign. So they're not so inhibited about their bodies," he said.

College theater departments have asked Mow to help hearing actors with their movements. "They have so much voice training that they forget to use their bodies," he said.

He has a theory that hearing people have problems learning sign language because they're not conditioned to think visually.

"A deaf person doesn't just use his hands but his eyes. He's more trained to grasp the visible possibilities of any situation," Mow said. "What we provide is visual language theater."

Aliens

over the next two years as Brown took the medication and visited psychiatric professionals, felt better, got off the medication and cancelled appointments and had what Miller termed psychotic episodes, including a suicide attempt.

Miller characterized Lonnie Brown as a domineering, egocentric man who was frustrated by his inability to control his wife's mental illness. Miller characterized Janice Brown as submissive, dependent and childlike.

Her claim at the time of the incident that she had shot her husband because aliens were going to torture him, Miller said, was an indication of the delusions from which she suffered.

Brown was transported to the state hospital the day of the incident and has been treated with medication and therapy Miller said has kept her illness under control since that time.

"Yes, she knows she shot Lonnie, she knows the grief she feels. She is as much a mourner as anyone here. She is also a victim," Miller told the jury.

"It was not an act of revenge or malice, but an act of love at that time," he said.

Mary Butler, a dispatcher with the Big Spring Police Department, was the first state's witness. She testified that she received Janice Brown's call about Lonnie Brown's death at 5:44 a.m. at the police department and kept her on the phone until sheriff's deputy Jimmy Wallace, police sergeant George Yeilding and ambulance attendants arrived at her home.

Butler said she kept talking to Brown because Brown said she had shot her husband to keep the aliens from torturing him and was going to shoot her children and herself to keep the aliens from torturing them.

"I heard a voice ask, 'Mommy, what's wrong?' and I told her to tell the children to go back to bed and close the door. She said, 'Mommy loves you,' and said the children had gone back to bed," Butler said.

Butler said Brown's voice had a degree of hysteria in it but also calmness, a statement Miller and Hamby examined carefully as a possible indication of her mental state.

Miller and Hamby butted heads over a question Hamby asked Butler about whether Brown sounded as if she knew what she had done was wrong. The judge instructed the jury to disregard her answer.

Yeilding, the Big Spring police sergeant, was the next to testify. He said he had called the sheriff's office to dispatch a deputy to the Tubbs addition and drove to the scene himself when the deputy requested a police backup after hearing about Brown's threat to harm her children.

He, too, was questioned on the tone of Brown's voice. He said she was sobbing and crying but spoke clearly and distinctly.

"She said, 'I love my husband, I didn't want to kill him and now everyone will hate me,'" Yeilding said.

"Everything she said made perfect sense except for the aliens," Yeilding said, in reference to Brown's statements explaining the reason she allegedly shot her husband.

Miller jumped on the logic or illogic of Brown's alien statement in questioning Yeilding. "The aliens didn't make sense to you — most normal sane people don't go around talking about aliens, do they?" he asked.

"She was using the aliens as a reason and it wasn't a logical reason," Yeilding replied.

"I understand that," Miller said. Howard County Sheriff's Deputy Jimmy Wallace was the third state's witness.

Testimony was expected to continue in the case this afternoon.

Padres purchase

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An investment group headed by Hollywood producer Tom Werner signed a letter of intent to purchase the San Diego Padres, club owner Joan Kroc said. Terms of the transaction were not released, but the club's price tag was reported to be $75 million.

The deal is contingent on approval of major league baseball owners before it can be finalized. The purchase is expected to be completed within the next 45 to 60 days.

Plan B signings

NEW YORK (AP) — A total of 184 players changed teams under Plan B, making the second season of the NFL's limited free agency plan much like the first — with 37 percent of the players eligible to switch teams doing so.

Plan B took effect last year as a way for the league to demonstrate that it was allowing freedom of movement. It allows each team to protect 37 players, with the rest becoming free agents for two months — from Feb. 1 to April 1.

When the counting concluded Monday, 184 of the 490 eligible players had changed teams. Last year, it was 229 of 619, when more players were available because this year's roster rules were more restrictive.

Runnin' Rebels win championship

UNLV whips Duke

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

DENVER — The Tark finally made his mark, and how!

With the most dominating performance in the history of the NCAA championship game, Nevada-Las Vegas beat Duke 103-73 Monday night, giving Runnin' Rebels coach Jerry Tarkanian his first national title.

"You can call us bad guys. You can call us thugs. You can call us hoodlums. But please, at the end of that, just put: national champions," UNLV's Larry Johnson said.

For Duke, the team that's been to the Final Four three straight years and four of the last five without a title, things got worse with experience rather than better.

The 30-point winning margin was the largest in the history of the NCAA's title game, and UNLV was the first team ever to score 100 or more points for the championship. UNLV also had a record 16 steals as the Runnin' Rebels defense contested nearly every Duke pass.

"I'm sorry that we couldn't give them a better challenge," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said, "but that doesn't take away from what my team did all season. We just couldn't function out there. That's the best any team has ever played against me."

"There really wasn't much we could do tonight," Krzyzewski said. "They wouldn't let us do anything."

Before Monday night, the most lopsided championship victory was UCLA's 23-point win over North Carolina in 1968. And the most points scored in a title game were 98 in UCLA's 1964 victory over Duke.

Much had been written about this being a battle of good and evil: Duke, with its pristine halls of academic excellence, vs. UNLV, a surreal snakepit of gamblers, gangsters and non-graduates.

But a clarion call for re-evaluation came layed their hearts out. They were so gracious to us in victory. If I wore a hat, I would

Vegas goes wild

LAS VEGAS (AP) — For once, Las Vegas forgot the bottom line.

Bookmakers turned partisan, hooting for the home team. Bartenders poured blind, keeping eyes glued to the television screen.

College kids cruised the glitzy strip like it was a small midwestern Main Street. They honked their horns and yelled at pedestrian tourists: "Go back home and tell 'em we're No. 1."

Gaming has long been king in Las Vegas, but when the University of Nevada-Las Vegas crushed Duke in the NCAA basketball final Monday, it gave this town of 750,000 a champion it could call its own.

"It's the only thing besides the gambling we've ever had here," said Leila Doren.

She and hundreds of others, mostly locals, lined up under a desert sun for more than an hour Monday afternoon waiting for a free seat at the university's Thomas & Mack Center, where the game was telecast on giant screens.

About 7,000 showed up. When it was over, they spilled into the parking lot to whoop it up.

There was whooping in the casinos, too. Fans crowded into the sports book at the Mirage Hotel to watch on television. Some sat on the floor and others craned their necks from seats in the adjacent race book area.

They cheered and hooted as Las Vegas took an early lead. Ornate Caesar's Palace next door sounded like a crowded gym with a live game going as the Rebels blew Duke away in the second half.

"It's special. I love 'em, win or lose," said Debbie Miller, a waitress at Caesar's. "I'd be screaming and yelling, but I'm at work. There'll be a party tonight."

Police said there had been fights at one local bar, but the celebrations were generally peaceful. No arrests were reported.

After semifinal losses in 1977 and 1987, it was the first appearance in a final for UNLV, and the first time that a state law forbidding bets on

Howard Hawks victimize FPC Plainsmen

HERALD STAFF REPORT

BORGER — One will have to excuse the Frank Phillips Plainsmen if they feel like they were the victims of the Mongol hordes.

The Howard College Hawks, using a style that would make Attila the Hun blush with envy, ransacked three FPC pitchers en route to a 14-8 shellacking here Monday.

The win completed a sweep of the three-game series for the Hawks, now 31-8-1 for the season and 9-4 in Region V play. Howard batters feasted on FPC pitching during the set, banging out 47 hits during the three games.

"I'm tickled to death," HC coach Bill Griffin said. "I would have been happy if we had won two out of three. In three games we got 47 hits — and we got them in bunches, too, when it counted."

After Howard starter Tom Leahy was victimized for six runs — four of them unearned — Mike Copple pitched four and two-thirds innings in relief to pick up his sixth win of the season against two losses.

The Hawks spotted FPC a four-run lead after one inning before they began taking control of matters with five runs in the second.

After Richard Ackley and Jeff Schulz hit back-to-back singles, Franklyn Johnson brought both runners home with a triple, and scored himself on a single by Sean Teague. A wild pitch moved designated runner Lee Demarais to third. Jose Gomez then walked, and an errant pickoff attempt at first allowed Demarais to score the fourth run of the inning. Gomez, who advanced to second on the miscue, scored on Michael Hughes' single. HC added two runs in the fifth on Tim Demerson's solo home run to lead off the inning and a single by David Wallace that scored Hughes.

Frank Phillips took advantage of a hit batsman and a two-run homer later in the inning to chase Leahy, but Copple responded by shutting the Plainsmen down the rest of the way, striking out four and walking none on the way to his victory.

Howard effectively settled matters in the sixth with four more runs. With two outs and the bases loaded, Hughes delivered a single that scored Willie Olivias and Johnson. After Wallace walked, Ackley then singled to score Demarais and Hughes.

The Hawks ended the day's scoring when Teague cranked a three-run homer in the seventh.

The sweep keeps the Hawks tied for second place with Hill Junior College in the Region V standings.

Howard returns to action when it travels to Hobbs, N.M., to take on the New Mexico Junior College Thunderbirds in a three-game set Friday and Saturday.

Gretzky sidelined; Kings' chances slim

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the injured Wayne Gretzky a doubtful participant, the battered Los Angeles Kings open the NHL Smythe Division playoffs Wednesday night against the defending Stanley Cup champion Calgary Flames.

Gretzky, sidelined after absorbing a hard check from Alan Kerr of the New York Islanders on March 22, is one of six injured Kings. That's hardly encouraging considering an 8-4 loss to the Flames in the season finale Sunday night and a healthy Los Angeles team's playoff loss to Calgary last season in four straight games.

"At this point, we do not expect to have Gretzky back in the lineup on Wednesday," Coach Tom Webster said Monday before the Kings — without Gretzky — left for Banff, Alberta, to prepare for the first-round series.

"I've no idea when Wayne will return," Webster said. "We just have to take it day by day."

Team officials say Gretzky, who won his eighth NHL scoring title this season, has spasms and a hyperextension of the back. But they haven't ruled out the possibility, however remote, that he may play Wednesday night.

"Wayne continues to be treated in Los Angeles, and remains on a day-to-day basis," team physician Dr. Steve Lombardo said. "A decision on his availability to play on Wednesday will be made tomorrow (Tuesday)."

The other injured Kings are forwards John Tonelli, Dave Taylor and Steve Kasper and defenseman Larry Robinson and Tom Laidlaw. All missed Sunday's game.

"We do expect to have Robinson back, hopefully Tonelli and Kasper, too," Webster, himself recovering from an inner ear operation, said. "But both Tom Laidlaw and Wayne Gretzky are big question marks."

Gretzky, who likened the Kerr check to being rear-ended in an auto accident, had 40 goals and 142

On the side

Expand rosters

NEW YORK (AP) — Teams and players reversed course again and decided to expand rosters to 27 players for the first three weeks of the season.

The sides reached a verbal agreement to expand rosters on March 19, the day they agreed to a new four-year labor contract. But the roster deal collapsed last week when they couldn't agree on how it would affect outright assignments.

Teams will have to reduce to the normal minimum of 24 players and maximum of 25 on May 1. A proposed change that would have lowered the five-inning requirement for starters to get a victory was dropped.

Tennis roundup

ESTORIL, Portugal (AP) — Andrei Cherkasov of the Soviet Union upset seventh-seeded Guillermo Perez-Roldan of Argentina 7-5, 6-3 in the opening round of the Estoril Open.

Bruguera, seeded eighth, beat Czechoslovakia's Martin Strelba 6-3, 6-3, and Prpic outlasted Jerome Potier of France, 6-1, 1-6, 7-6 (7-4).

In Orlando, Fla., fifth-seeded Glenn Layendecker of Boston and No. 8 Ramesh Krishnan of India won first-round matches in the $250,000 Prudential-Bache Securities Classic.

Layendecker beat Jared Palmer of Wesley Chapel, Fla., 6-3, 6-1 and Krishnan defeated Derrick Rostagno of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., 6-7 (2-7), 6-2, 7-5.

Hurley's blues

DENVER — Duke guard Bob Hurley questions his teammates after a Blue Devil turnover to UNLV during the first half of their NCAA championship game.

Johnson barred

LONDON (AP) — Ben Johnson will be barred from Grand Prix and other invitational track meets in England even after his two-year suspension for steroid use ends in September.

The Amateur Athletic Association, which governs the sport in England, said the ban would apply to any athlete found guilty of drug use by national or international federations.

They could participate in England only if chosen for a national team in an event such as the Olympics or Commonwealth Games or European or world track championships.

Tops in hockey

NEW YORK (AP) — Defenseman Viacheslav Fetisov of the New Jersey Devils, who had seven points in three games, was named NHL player of the week.

Fetisov set a Devils' rookie record with five points on a goal and four assists in a 6-4 victory over New York. He then added two assists in a 5-1 win over Detroit.

Horse racing

CICERO, Ill. (AP) — Fun and Games, $14, defeated Tulsa Hurricane and French 'n Irish in a three-way photo finish in the $20,000 Bull Lea Purse at Sportsman's Park.

In New York, Johnny Use To, $24.20, topped Skeet Shoot by 1 3/4 lengths in the $32,000 Java Gold purse at Aqueduct.

Lamar job saga

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Murray State coach Steve Newton says there's been no offer on Lamar University's part and no acceptance on his part of the school's head coaching and athletics director's positions.

Newton planned a visit today to Lamar's campus in Beaumont, Texas. Murray State sports information director Craig Bohert said Newton and his wife Kathy would make the trip.

N.C. State may file suit to end Valvano contract

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State has been empowered by the governing body of the state's university system to sue if necessary to terminate the contract of basketball coach Jim Valvano.

But a Valvano lawyer questions whether the university has the evidence to win a breach of contract suit. The lawyer, Woody Webb, said it is clear the university wants to sever ties with the coach and, to that end, said he would "focus on the monetary aspects of the situation."

"He's hopeful that we can negotiate the situation out," Webb, a Raleigh lawyer, said. "As I understand it, there's no desire by the university to go running into court right now."

The News and Observer of Raleigh, attributing its report to unnamed sources, said legal proceedings probably would be initiated by the end of the week unless Valvano agrees to step down.

The University of North Carolina Board of Governors, which oversees the state's 16-university system, voted unanimously on Monday to allow N.C. State to pursue legal action against Valvano. Such authorization is required before a university can undertake a legal action.

Panel chairman Robert "Roddy" Jones said he hoped the matter wouldn't end up in court.

"The system is not proud of anything that goes on this long within our 16-campus system,"

"The system is not proud of anything that goes on this long within our 16-campus system. And, of course, N.C. State University, the board of trustees and all the friends of N.C. State wish for this to come to a speedy conclusion. The next step will be up to N.C. State University's private counsel, along with his coordination with the attorney general's office."

Robert Jones, chairman North Carolina Board of Governors

Jones said. "And, of course, N.C. State University, the board of trustees and all the friends of N.C. State wish for this to come to a speedy conclusion."

"The next step will be up to N.C. State University's private counsel, along with his coordination with the attorney general's office," Jones said.

Jones said there was no discussion of the potential cost of a suit versus the $500,000 buyout clause included in Valvano's contract.

But Jones said N.C. State is "continuing the process of weighing cost versus principle in this matter."

Neither N.C. State interim chancellor Larry Monteith nor Howard Manning, a lawyer hired by the school for this case, would comment on the school's plans.

Valvano and the basketball program have been under fire since January amid allegations of NCAA violations, academic rules abuses and, most recently, point-shaving by players on past teams.

Valvano would comment only through Webb.

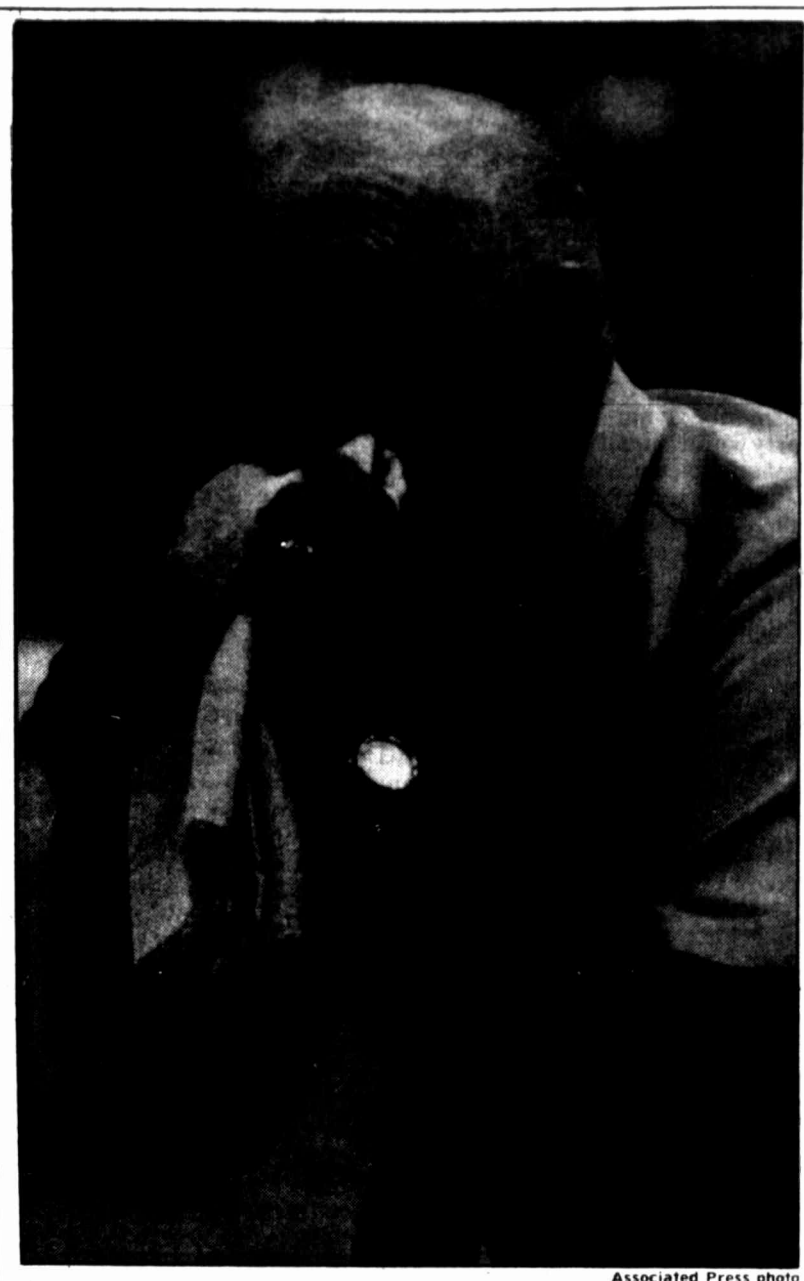

"It's a sad day for North Carolina when one of its institutions of higher learning resorts to the threat of litigation against one of its coaches," Webb said. "While it wasn't totally unexpected, it's a new twist to the situation that's negative in nature."

N.C. State trustees voted 9-3 earlier this month to instruct its lawyers to seek the termination of Valvano's contract. Manning told the board that he believed the school could argue that Valvano had failed to fulfill his contract by ensuring the academic progress of his students.

Webb doubts such a strategy would work.

"I think it's a vague and broad standard. Moreover, I think it will become clear that Mr. Valvano has done at least as much, if not more than most coaches do, to assist their players academically," he said.

"Moreover, the contract does provide that this duty is in conjunction with other university personnel. We'd be mighty interested in how well they discharged their duties."

points this season. Those were the worst numbers he has posted since getting 137 points as a rookie in 1979-80.

His absence would be a severe blow to the fourth-place Kings, whose 75 points this season surpassed only the Islanders' 73 among the NHL's 16 playoff teams.

"Gretzky is the best player in the world," Los Angeles goaltender Mario Gosselin said. "With him in the lineup, it changes the way the other team plays against you."

Despite the injury, some of the Flames wonder if the questions concerning Gretzky might be a ploy to throw them off their game. "It could be," forward Theoren Fleury said. "The only guys that know are the Kings."

"We can't be worried if he's going to be playing or not. We have to focus on us and how well we're going to play."

The first-place Flames, whose 99 points are second-best in the league, will host the first two games of the best-of-7 series. After Friday night's second game at the Olympic Saddledome, the series shifts to Inglewood, Calif., where Games 3 and 4 will be played Sunday and next Tuesday. The teams would alternate sites for games 5 through 7, as needed.

That rotation also would hold for the other Campbell Conference series.

In the other Smythe Division series, Winnipeg opens at Edmonton, where Gretzky led the Oilers to four Stanley Cups in 1980s.

Nevada teams stopped wagering on the NCAA final.

You would have expected some long faces at that in a town where money, literally, turns the wheels.

The Las Vegas Review-Journal reported that bookmakers missed out on "a good chunk of money." There was no way to determine how much, but nobody seemed to mind anyway.

Even before the game, the casinos' enormous billboards were flashing congratulations to the team.

"There are times when you set money aside," said Jimmy Vaccaro, director of the race and sports book at the Mirage. "You cannot put a price tag on what this means in terms of a positive image," said Vaccaro.

Baseball's opening day turns into injury day

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

What was supposed to be opening day turned out to be a full day of spring training.

Paul Molitor went on the disabled list Monday for the 11th time in his career. Dave Winfield went hitless again.

Brad Komminsk, Damaso Garcia and Terry Leach were released and there were two minor trades. And there was a final decision — finally — on rosters. Teams will start the season next Monday with 27 players and go back to 24 on May 1.

Molitor won't be among Milwaukee's 27. A broken right thumb, injured while sliding during an exhibition game Sunday, will keep him out for up to four weeks.

This is the second straight season that Molitor, 33, will begin on the disabled list. He is a .300 career hitter for 12 seasons.

"Now we know he can't play," Brewers manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "Now you can make some concrete decisions. It's a lousy way to have to do it. But at least now it's definite."

The loss of Molitor is the latest in a series of setbacks for the physically frail Brewers. Earlier, second baseman Jim Gantner went on the 15-day disabled list as he recovers from knee surgery.

Gary Sheffield was also examined Monday and will miss four or six days of drills with a sprained ligament in his right wrist, another injury that occurred in a slide at second base, and shortstop Billy Spiers is bothered by a tender shoulder after having off-season shoulder surgery.

San Francisco, another team with health problems, ran into some more trouble. Pitcher Kelly Downs left Monday's game against Cleveland in the second inning when his right shoulder acted up.

Downs, who missed several starts last year because of shoulder trouble, was taken out after he told Manager Roger Craig his upper arm felt hot.

"Kelly told me he felt discomfort but not anything serious," Craig said. "He wanted to pitch to the next batter, but he said his upper arm felt hot. It could be the same thing he had last year. That could be a big blow."

Downs will undergo tests Tuesday and likely will go on the disabled list. Craig temporarily named rookie Russ Swan to take Downs' place in the rotation.

Before the month-long lockout, opening day was scheduled for Monday. Instead, all of the games were played in the Grapefruit and Cactus leagues.

Winfield, who missed all of last season with back problems, was hitless in four at-bats as the New York Yankees lost to Baltimore 5-2. Winfield is 0-for-15 this spring.

Juan Samuel, acquired by Los Angeles in the off-season, extended his hitting streak to six games as the Dodgers beat Atlanta 2-1.

Samuel sparked a two-run rally in the eighth inning when he singled, stole second and scored the tying run on a single by Mike Huff.

"That's exactly what we want out of Juan this season," Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda said. "He adds a lot of speed to the top of our lineup. Juan's a guy who can make things happen. He has a lot of ability. I think he's going to be the catalyst of our offense as our leadoff hitter."

Kansas City and Detroit swapped pitchers, the Royals sending veteran Jerry Don Gleaton to the Tigers for minor leaguer Greg Everson, and Montreal sent infielder Jeff Huson to Texas for pitcher Drew Hall.

In other moves, Cleveland cut Komminsk, the Yankees released Garcia and Kansas City cut Leach.

Reds 7-6, Red Sox 6-5
At Winter Haven, Fla., Kevin Lockhart's two-out pop fly single in the ninth inning scored Hal Morris and gave Cincinnati a split-squad victory over Boston. The run was the first allowed in four appearances by reliever Jeff Reardon.

At Plant City, Fla., Cincinnati won the other split-squad game as Chris Sabo and Eric Davis had three hits apiece. Tim Naehring hit his second and third home runs of the spring for Boston.

Phillies 11, Pirates 9
Philadelphia built a 10-1 lead after seven innings and then held off a Pittsburgh rally. Darren Daulton, Ricky Jordan and David Hollins homered for the Phillies.

Expos 7, Mets 0
At Port St. Lucie, Fla., Howard Farmer, Bill Sampen and Steve Frey combined for a five-hitter and Montreal shut out New York. Marquis Grissom and Larry Walker had three hits apiece for the Expos.

Dodgers 2, Braves 1
At West Palm Beach, Fla., the Dodgers scored twice in the eighth to beat Atlanta. John Smoltz pitched five shutout innings and Ernie Whitt homered for the Braves.

Tigers 10, Twins 2
At Orlando, Fla., Detroit used a 14-hit attack to wallop Minnesota. Jim Lindeman had three hits, including two triples, and Travis Fryman drove in three runs. Brian Harper had a two-run homer for the Twins.

Royals 4, Astros 2
At Haines City, Fla., Kansas City scored four runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to beat Houston. Danny Tartabull, Willie Wilson and Rey Palacios singled home runs to rally the Royals.

Blue Jays 7, Cardinals 6
At St. Petersburg, Fla., Kelly Gruber's RBI single in the seventh inning broke a 5-5 tie as Jimmy Key won his second game. Milt Thompson had four hits for the Cardinals.

Orioles 5, Yankees 2
Joe Orsulak's two-run double capped a five-run fourth inning and Baltimore beat New York. Tim Leary, scheduled to be New York's starter on opening day, gave up five runs on nine hits in five innings.

Rangers 8, White Sox 1
Ruben Sierra and Pete Incaviglia emerged from early spring slumps and three Texas pitchers combined for a five-hitter in an 8-1 romp over Chicago.

Incaviglia was 2-for-2 with three RBIs and Sierra went 3-for-4 with a solo homer.

Mariners 3, Athletics 2
Pete O'Brien got his first RBI of the spring, giving Seattle a 3-2 victory over Oakland A's in 11 innings. O'Brien singled home Ken Griffey Jr. from third base.

Nicklaus optimistic about Masters title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Fresh from victory in his first PGA Seniors Tour event, could Jack Nicklaus have another Masters miracle in his bag?

That will be determined this weekend when the 50-year-old Nicklaus tries to become the oldest player ever to win one of golf's Big Four tournaments. Though he stunned many by winning in 1986 at age 46, a victory this year wouldn't be such a shock to Nicklaus.

"If I keep hitting the ball the way I am, I feel very good about my chances at Augusta," Nicklaus said after a 4-stroke victory Sunday in The Tradition tournament at Scottsdale, Ariz.

He isn't alone in that belief. Longtime friend Gary Player, a former Masters champion and runner-up to Nicklaus on Sunday, wouldn't be at all surprised to see Nicklaus put on a seventh green jacket.

"Extremely likely," Player said. "He's playing very, very well. I thought his putting was excellent. He's doing the things you have to do to win. I don't care what they say about all those younger players. There's not one of them can play anything like the way this man plays.

Nicklaus will be trying to break the record of Julius Boros, who at 48 won the 1968 PGA. But Nicklaus will have to wait three years to be the oldest PGA tournament winner ever.

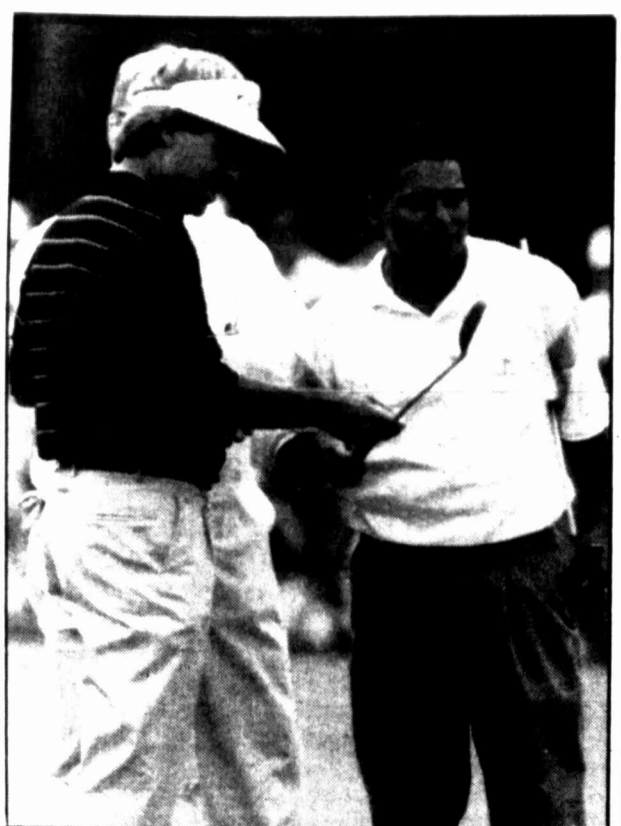

Sam Snead was 52 when he won his eighth Greensboro Open in 1965. Nicklaus says that, for a change, he isn't feeling his age.

"I'm having no back pain," he said, adding that it has been five years since he could say that. "I can swing the way I used to."

That, and his phenomenal record at the Augusta National course, makes him a man to be watched this weekend.

"I feel like I've got a good chance to be in contention," Nicklaus said.

"If I'm going to win on the regular tour, the Masters is the tournament for me to win," Nicklaus said. "I've won there six times. I know the course and the tournament and what it takes to win there. I'm comfortable there."

AUGUSTA, Fla. — Nick Faldo, right, signs an autograph during practice Monday for the Masters at Augusta National Golf Club. Faldo, who is from England, will be defending his title beginning Thursday against the likes of Ben Crenshaw, far left, and Robert Gamez. Crenshaw eyes his returned putter "Little Ben," which was stolen by an airline employee at Atlanta's airport during a trip earlier this month. He got the putter back late Friday. Gamez is the first golfer since Crenshaw to win his premier as a professional.

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Former boxing champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler and his wife, Bertha, have agreed to a divorce settlement. Neither Hagler, 36, nor his wife would reveal details of the agreement, which was reached Tuesday. Their seven-year marriage will end officially in three months. Bertha Hagler had been seeking a $4 million settlement.

"I'm glad it's all over," Hagler said as he left the courtroom.

Bertha Hagler, 36, had testified the former champion hit her in the face and punched her in the ribs hard enough to make her knees buckle in 1987, the year he lost the middleweight title to Sugar Ray Leonard. Hagler denied striking his wife.

• Florence Siebert, a medical researcher who in the 1930s isolated and purified protein, paving the way for an accurate test for tuberculosis.
• Jordan, a Texas Democrat who served in Congress from 1972 through 1978. She was the first woman and the first black to give the keynote address at a national political convention.

The four will be inducted into the hall in Seneca Falls, N.Y., on Aug. 26.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 1990
HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE:
The emphasis will be on home, family and travel. Although romance can be unsettling at times, a strong commitment to your relationship will help you overcome some difficult hurdles. Changes related to business this summer will work to your benefit. Be patient. Your personal finances should show improvement by late fall. A winter trip will change your outlook about someone who has played a minor role in your life. An alliance you forge next January has a good chance of becoming permanent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look to the future with confidence. Your associates will cooperate with your plans if they know exactly what is expected of them. Be certain your instructions are clearly understood. Success beckons!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take advantage of an opportunity to acquire specialized knowledge. Romantic partner may express a desire for more freedom. Someone from your past resurfaces. Welcome a second chance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Spend more time thinking about your future and the course you might take to make your dreams come true. A phone call will bring good financial news from overseas. Plan a trip.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Squelch a spur-of-the-moment impulse to buy something costly for your home. Wait until it goes on sale. The ability to speak a foreign language helps you unravel a business problem.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your keen intuition should be a terrific help when making important decisions. Discussing business with a friend over lunch should prove rewarding. Watch a tendency to dictate to your grown offspring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could become privy to some valuable information today. Be careful who you share it with. A frustrating alliance mercifully comes to an end. A mutual parting of the ways can be amicable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fighting fire with fire could leave a relationship in ashes; find a less volatile way! You may never discover if something you suspect is true. Pool business ideas to improve the bottom line.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Being too introspective could make you a bore. Listening to music will put you in a better mood. Tonight is not the right time to broach a delicate subject. Keep the conversation casual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An outsider may ask how you are being treated at work. Even if you do not feel you are getting a fair shake, be non-committal. Confidential dealings are earmarked for success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick to traditional values and you will do just fine. An agreement can be reached this afternoon; help make it happen. Be candid with someone who loves you. Act on your financial hunches.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Complete pending projects and bring accounts up to date. Family members are supportive; there is a new tranquility on the domestic scene. Make a point of getting more fresh air and exercise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Devote more time and energy to creative endeavors. Accepting an associate's challenge will give your self-confidence a boost.

Favorite movie: Rambo III.

Smelly festival

RICHWOOD, W. Va. (AP) — The 52nd Ramp Festival will not be hard to find this weekend. Just get within hailing distance of the city and follow your nose.

"As long as everybody is eating them at one time, it's OK," said Bruce Donaldson, owner of a supermarket that has sold the potent greens for years. "If you have to smell someone else who's been eating them, that's pretty bad."

Ramp, a wild leek, is grown on the mountains surrounding Richwood. Ramp season opens in late winter, but this year started in January because of warm weather. Some brave souls pickle the garlicky treat for eating year-round.

The Richwood Chamber of Commerce plans to give out free memberships in the "NRA" for each ticket sold to the annual ramp feed Saturday, which includes ham, buttermilk, other vegetables, sassafras tea and, of course, ramps.

"This NRA is the National Ramp Association," said Maxine Corbett, executive secretary of the chamber. "Which is worse? I'm not sure. A lot of people in the National Rifle Association might like to shoot people in the other NRA."

The reason is obvious, Donaldson said. "Most people I know like them, but they just don't like the aftermath," he said.

Diamond plus two

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — It will never work, friends told Mary Boyson after she accepted an offer of marriage from Don Wall. "Some of her friends said because I was short I wouldn't ever amount to much," he said. "They tried to discourage it."

Don, at about 5 feet, may be short, but the marriage wasn't. The couple celebrated 77 years together on Monday.

"We've never had a quarrel — yet," Mrs. Wall said. "We try to be kind and patient with each other."

The Walls, who are 98 years old, remain self-sufficient, live in the same home they have occupied since 1952 and have six children. The oldest are Dean Wall and Jean Lee, twins born on New Year's Day 75 years ago. Their youngest is 60.

Wall finds it hard keeping track of all the great-great-grandchildren.

"We don't always hear about them when they're born," he said. "But there are 253, as near as I can guess, in the family."

'Hexorcist' dolls

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — Seniors assigned to create a business as an economics class project at a Roman Catholic school came up with hex dolls resembling teachers — and quickly sold 16.

Posters promoting the dolls said they were "handcrafted by hexorcists" and suggested: "Hang your hatred. Torture your teachers with hex dolls." They became so popular that some teachers ordered dolls made to look like students.

STANTON — Wayne Mitchell, the superintendent of Stanton Independent School District, has more reason than usual to gear up for annual general membership meeting of the National Bit, Spur and Saddle Collectors Association this year.

He became president of the association in January.

So far, a recent quarterly directors meeting this March in Amarillo has been the only official business attended to, said Mitchell, who's term lasts two years. The general membership meeting being held June 16 and 17 in Loveland, Colo., will be the big event of the year.

"We were simply organizing because there was a major election this year," he said of the March meeting. "The business primarily will probably be taken care of the week of the general membership meeting."

Mitchell, an avid collector of spurs since his childhood in Gatesville where he was born and graduated from high school, said the association, though it is a national one, boasts members from around the world.

"We've got members in Canada, England, Germany, Australia... So I guess it's an international organization by membership," he said. "The name of the thing and the organizational

'Miracle boy' continuing his comeback

By PATRICK DRISCOLL

LUBBOCK — Gunshot victim Brandon McAnally, who was admitted to Lubbock Methodist last week for rehabilitation, said he is doing "just fine" and extended a "hello" to Stanton residents.

McAnally talked for only a couple minutes in a phone interview to the Herald Monday afternoon. He began using his voice on Thursday for the first time since a Feb. 25 hunting accident near his grandparents' house in Stonewall County in which he was wounded in the back of the left side of his head and the right shoulder.

He and his family are waiting to find out from doctors and therapists how long rehabilitation will take and what it will involve, said his father Billy McAnally.

"We'll be having a conference this Wednesday, all his therapists, doctors and specialists," he said. "I'm not sure what all they'll tell us. I guess they'll give us a prognosis then."

"Friday a doctor came in and said everything looked good on a CAT scan and that everything was healing. He didn't see any problems on the CAT scan," he said. "From what all the therapists say, he's improving real well," he said. "They've got him standing. He can stand on his own for a short while."

"He's got a real good sense of humor. He's taking everything real well," he said. "Just as he sees things and does things it all comes back to him."

"While we were (at Hendrick Memorial Trauma Center in Abilene) we were letting him listen to George Strait tapes and he knows all the words to most of George Strait's songs."

During his stay in Abilene, Brandon was in a drug-induced coma until March 22. He was taken off sedation that day following an operation before to implant a tube underneath his skin from his head to his stomach to reduce pressure from his brain.

He mouthed his first words the same day he came out of the coma. One nurse at the hospital referred to him as the "Miracle Boy."

Meanwhile, a trust fund which was set up in behalf of McAnally by the Stanton Volunteer Fire Department just days after the accident, has drawn $6,484.75 as of this morning.

A trust fund set up in Aspermont in Stonewall County about a week after the accident has so far collected $2,537 as of this morning, said McAnally's aunt, Carla Jones. In addition, a benefit raffle sponsored by Ned Ward and the Dollar Roping Club will be held this Sunday.

Senate putting the brakes on Panama aid package

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush won't get $800 million to aid new democracies in Panama and Nicaragua until he produces a broad spending plan showing how the money serves U.S. goals, says Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell.

Mitchell's warning poses new difficulties for the aid package, which Bush wants enacted by Thursday before Congress adjourns for a 12-day Easter recess. The money bill was scheduled for House action today, but its chances for completion this week appeared dim.

Bush had hoped to provide the money — $500 million for Panama and $300 million for Nicaragua — quickly as a tangible demonstration of the benefits of democracy and to aid Panamanian President Guillermo Endara and Nicaraguan President-elect Violeta Chamorro.

The House Appropriations Committee approved the money bill last week, but only after swelling it to $2.4 billion by adding money for domestic disaster relief, food stamps, veterans' benefits and

SWCID play: Dialogue silent, but action unique

BIG SPRING — Shanny Mow coached his students on the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf stage the other day. Again and again they rehearsed the lines from Neil Simon's "Fools." The scene wasn't quite right. The actress was signing her words too fast. Mow demonstrated the delivery he wanted.

"I wish I could fly like a bird, over houses, over trees..." Mow's signing was dramatic and deliberate, his bird an eagle soaring over nicely-pitched roofs and tall pines. Haley Smith watched, tried again. Her signing took on the lyricism Mow wanted.

Mow said he and his fellow actors who are deaf don't think of themselves as doing "deaf theater." "We like to think of ourselves as artists and our goal is to explore the artistic possibilities of sign language," he said.

He has worked with the National Theater of the Deaf for 11 years as

Union blames company

DALLAS (AP) — The head of Greyhound's drivers union suggested the company's refusal to negotiate is partly to blame for violence in the month-old strike. "Reaching an agreement through bargaining would leave the 'crazies' without any incentive to violence," union president Edward Strait said Monday in a letter to Greyhound Executive Vice President P. Anthony Lannie. Talks were to have resumed Monday, but the company said it wouldn't bargain until a week passes without violence. Negotiations would then resume April 9. Lannie dismissed as "total nonsense" any suggestion that America's only nationwide bus system is responsible for violence by refusing to negotiate. Since the walkout by 6,300 drivers and some 3,000 office and maintenance workers began over wages and job security March 2, Greyhound says there have been 29 shootings, including 24 in which buses were the target. The union says there have been more than 60 incidents of violence against pickets. The latest attack came Saturday in Tennessee, where David E. Bryant, driving an independently owned Southeastern Trailways bus on a Greyhound route, was wounded in the arm by a shot fired from a pickup that pulled alongside. Bryant, 58, of Cincinnati, was reported in fair condition Monday at a Nashville hospital.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

- Robert Dutchover, 58, 1205 Lamar, was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated and no drivers license.
- James William Weaver, 38, Wilbanks Road, was arrested and charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon and public intoxication.
- Larry Don Hass, 24, 538 Westover No. 121, was arrested and charged with no insurance, second offense, and driving while license suspended.
- A person reported criminal mischief to a 1986 Nissan.

structure is national. "It's a monstrous organization," he said. "It's growing. I can't give you a number. I can't even guess." "We are a growing organization dedicated to the preservation of our heritage and educating the public," he said. "My major concern is to preserve the heritage of the westward movement." He calls it the "products of the crafts of the westward movement." Members love to show off those products at shows such as the upcoming one in Abilene on the weekend of May 11-13 during Western Heritage Week, Mitchell said.

"You see some of the work and you know they have to be artists," he said. Sometimes I think it's hard to distinguish between artists and craftsmen."

Mitchell's own spurs range from plain iron to fancy decoration and from six-inch rawls to 3/4-inch rawls.

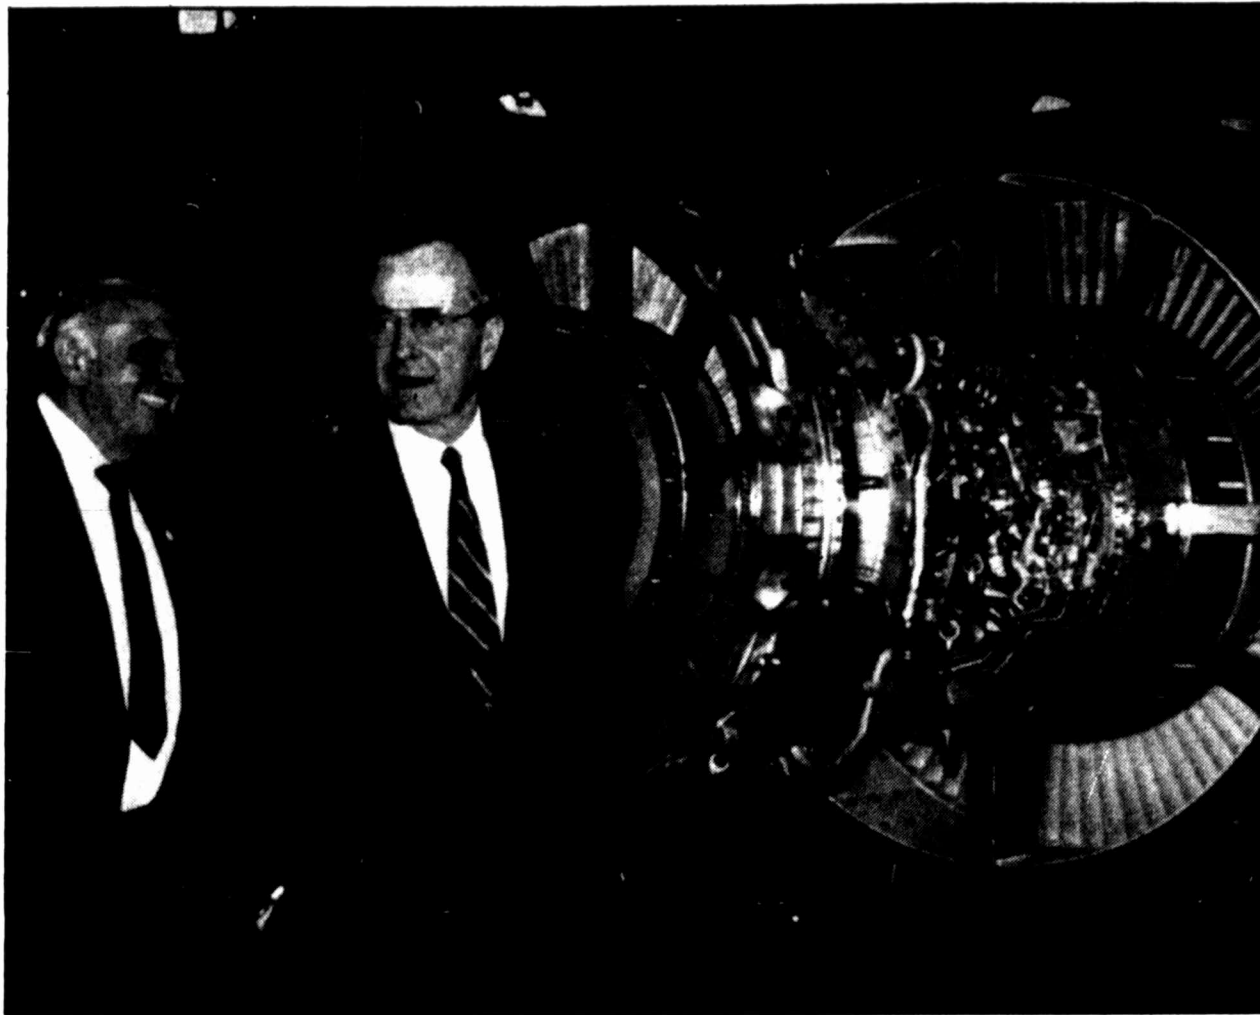

"I've got spurs from the Spanish Colonial period in that transition time right up to spurs that were made last year," he said. Adding an interesting note, he said, "History books tell you that spurs of wood were even used during the time of Christ."

Asked how long he has been collecting spurs, he said, "I guess all my life. My dad was a collector. I've been exposed in it from birth." His father, Lloyd Mitchell, 83, of Gatesville, is a retired teacher. He said his father's collection "made history come alive."

"At one time he was reputed to have the largest spur collection in the country," he said. "I wouldn't even venture to guess," he said of the numbers. However, he did say that it was in the thousands.

"I don't have near the numbers as far as my dad goes and I don't intend to have that many," he said. The problem is, he said, is that he would not have anywhere to put them.

Mitchell, a 1957 graduate of Baylor University, has been a resident of Stanton since 1973.

are an ignorant ass, you will be," Mow said.

All the dialogue will be in sign language, which Mow said required little adaptation from the original play. "Some of the lines don't translate, like you can't say I heard that person was coming, it has to be I see. And we reblocked it so everyone can be seen when they sign."

"Fools" will have voice interpretation for hearing members of the audience.

Mow said some interpretation is necessary for all theater pieces done in sign language, whether school productions or professional ones.

"The National Theater for the Deaf and the Fairmount Theater for the Deaf (where Mow will be artistic director this fall) are not solely for deaf audiences. Most of our audience is not deaf. Basically, we're entertainment, not social workers, though I think we do contribute to a better understanding of the deaf," Mow said.

Although the SWCID has not had much experience acting, Mow believes that being deaf gives them an advantage over amateur hearing actors.

"The average deaf person really is a better actor than a hearing person because all their life the deaf have tried to communicate with their bodies through mime, charade, gesture and sign. So they're not so inhibited about their bodies," he said.

College theater departments have asked Mow to help hearing actors with their movements. "They have so much voice training that they forget to use their bodies," he said.

He has a theory that hearing people have problems learning sign language because they're not conditioned to think visually.

"A deaf person doesn't just use his hands but his eyes. He's more trained to grasp the visible possibilities of any situation," Mow said. "What we provide is visual language theater."

The National Commission on Excellence in Education in A Nation at Risk addressed parents in a post script: "As surely as you are your child's most important teachers, your children's ideas about education and its significance begin with you. Moreover, you bear a responsibility to participate actively in your children's education."

As your child's first teacher, you are important. In fact, you play an essential role not only in establishing the foundation for effective learning (about 50 percent of a child's intellectual growth occurs before the age of four), but also for keeping up your child's interest in developing the remaining 50 percent of his/her intellectual abilities.

Just as you assume responsibility for your child's physical needs, so should you assume responsibility for your child's intellectual and educational needs.

As a parent, you should not think that your job is finished when you enroll your child in school. If you look at the effort of preparing your child for school as an investment in your child's future, the only way to protect that investment is to remain vigilant and directly involved in the schools.

Only in this way can you be sure that your child is getting the best education possible and expect to see a positive return for your efforts.

The purpose of Volunteers in Public Schools shall be to support and enrich the lives of school children and to stimulate an interested community to a more active support of public education.

If you are interested in becoming a volunteer, please contact Ann Prough, 6-3853, Brenda Kendall, 6-2797, or Janice Kelly, 6-3606.

the spending plan should cover plans for the next three to five years for foreign aid, defense spending, domestic spending and the deficit.

The administration has not explained "the relationship between this request and our overall national security objectives," Mitchell told Baker.

"I believe it is essential that the Senate have such a plan before it appropriates the emergency aid requested by the administration for Panama and Nicaragua."

Administration officials testifying before Congress have said the money is needed as a speedy response to conditions that could not have been foreseen when the White House wrote its budget for this year. The administration wants to pay for the aid through cuts in the Pentagon budget.

Officials have said they regard the aid to Panama as a one-time infusion to "jump-start" the country's stalled economy. For Nicaragua, the administration has asked an additional $200 million for fiscal 1991, which begins Oct. 1.

Mitchell said he would not delay in meeting "the genuine emergency needs for Panama and Nicaragua." But he added: "I do not believe we should appropriate the full amount requested until the administration submits a meaningful, long-term foreign aid plan."

In the first spurt of U.S. aid to emerging democracies, Mitchell and Senate Democrats led the way last year in providing millions for Poland and Hungary. Mitchell called Bush "timid" for not doing more for emerging democracies. In a brief interview, Mitchell said Monday's statement was not inconsistent with last year's action, but was a response to "the sheer number of these one-shot requests. When they accumulate in number, the need for an overall plan becomes apparent."
