Hotel fire

BOMBAY, India — Flames erupt Thursday through windows of the 36-story Oberoi Towers, Bombay's 700-room five-star hotel. The fire began in the basement, and smoke travelled through ducts to the upper floors. Officials said there were no casualties.

Deaf rodeo in need of donations

The American Rodeo Association of the Deaf will have their annual rodeo in Big Spring this year, in conjunction with SWCIDfest, on April 21. Donations of gift certificates, buckles, shirts, hats, boots, and money to be used as prizes are urgently needed. Anyone wishing to contribute can call Wilma Evans, SWCID, 264-3700.

Town meeting eyes sales tax

BIG SPRING — Residents will have a chance to ask questions about the proposed sales tax increases at a Town Hall meeting on Monday.

Leadership Big Spring Alumni have scheduled the third in a series of meetings for 7 p.m. in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Panelist at the meeting will answer questions about two proposed 1/2 percent sales tax increases. One increase will fund a reduction in property taxes, and the other will fund an industrial development corporation if they are approved by voters in the May 5 city elections.

Panelists expected at the meeting include Jim Bill Little, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce vice president for economic development, and Don Reynolds, chamber president.

PUC recommends electric rate cut

AUSTIN (AP) — The state utility consumer office Thursday recommended the Public Utility Commission cut Texas Utilities Electric Co. revenue by at least 1.14 percent, or nearly $50 million.

Texas Utilities, which sells electricity to about one third of Texas, has asked the PUC for a 10.2 percent revenue increase, or $442 million.

But C. Kingsberry Ottmers, of the Office of Public Utility Counsel, said a reduction is necessary to ensure Texas Utilities customers aren't charged for costs linked to mismanagement of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant.

The plant, located near Glen Rose, 45 miles southwest of Fort Worth, is about 10 years behind schedule and will cost $11.6 billion to complete. Ms. Ottmers said Comanche Peak's original price tag was $800 million.

She also said customers should not have to pay for Texas Utilities costs for $1.9 million in "image" advertising and $470,000 for personal use of company automobiles.

A reduction is further justified due to the declining cost of raising capital, reduced federal income tax rates and lower fuel costs, she said.

Ms. Ottmers said the final recommended reduction could be greater depending on the outcome of an investigation into how much of Comanche Peak's costs should be disallowed because of mismanagement by the utility.

Burned buildings may be removed

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — A local group's efforts to improve parts of downtown may prove unnecessary in a few months.

Volunteers with Big Spring Main Street, Inc. have been boarding up burned-out buildings on Main Street in preparation for painting. Meanwhile, the city is intensifying its efforts to have the ruined buildings torn down.

Tom Decell, city public works director, said he met on Wednesday with structural engineers and they examined the three buildings, which were destroyed by fires.

"I'm formulating a plan for demolition," Decell said. "Our target date is to have all the paper work done, all the bids done, by June 1."

Decell said the engineers felt the buildings could be demolished safely and without damaging adjacent structures. Decell explained the city would have to request bids for the project because the public works department does not have the equipment needed to tear down the buildings.

"The concerns I had were the possible liability. I don't have the expertise, I don't have the equipment to do it," he said. "We certainly still don't have the money to do that but we're looking at some alternatives."

"Again, this is a combined effort

Creamy construction

BIG SPRING — Construction at the Blue Bell Creameries distribution plant on north Interstate 20 continues as workers have been erecting the walls of the warehouse this week. With the use of a winch, premade sections of the insulated wall were lifted into place and bolted onto the frame of the building.

Census Bureau trouble forms

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans haven't sent back their census forms. Millions of others didn't get forms in the first place. Local governments are suing the Census Bureau.

All in all, the 1990 national head count is off to a rough start.

Years went into the planning before roughly 100 million census forms were sent to households at the end of March.

Promptly, things started to go wrong.

Forms began pouring into the bureau's Jeffersonville, Ind., clearinghouse. But they weren't completed responses from citizens. They were undeliverable forms being returned by the post office.

Census Director Barbara Bryant estimated Thursday that between 4 million and 4.5 million forms were undeliverable for various reasons, largely incorrect addresses.

That is being fixed by sending out workers to hand-deliver forms, she said.

But even many of those who received their forms haven't cooperated, Bryant said, pleading with those who haven't filled them out and mailed them back to "do it now."

If the response doesn't pick up, she said, the price of taking the count could escalate by $80 million.

Bryant said that so far only 57 percent of the forms delivered to American homes have been returned.

At that rate, she said, the total will be only 62 percent by the time the bureau starts sending workers out to count those who haven't

Wisconsin leads nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Census Director Barbara Bryant reports that only 62 percent of American households have returned their census forms. The rate varied widely, however, with residents of Wisconsin doing the best, she said.

Here is a state-by-state run-down on census response:

State	Rate
Wisconsin	72.4
Iowa	70.6
South Dakota	68.3
Minnesota	66.9
Ohio	66.7
North Dakota	66.4
Indiana	65.3
Kentucky	64.1
Michigan	63.8
Idaho	63.0
Illinois	61.9
Virginia	60.9
Colorado	60.4
Pennsylvania	60.1
Arkansas	60.0

answered, starting before the end of April.

Officials had hoped to get back 70 percent of the forms, and Bryant said counting people "on the doorstep" will cost an extra $10 million for each percentage point below that level. The census already is expected to cost $2.5 billion.

Vandalism cuts library services

By KAREN MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Vandalism is cutting into the services the Howard County Library is able to provide, and the library staff is at a loss as to how to cope with it.

Acquisition librarian Rose von Hassell was furious Tuesday because of the discovery of a missing section in the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

"Someone couldn't be bothered to read the book here, or to copy it," she said. "They cut out the entire section on Mark Twain. This decreases the value of the whole set."

And it means that future scholars who want to read about Mark Twain will not find it in the Britannica.

"We can only buy a set of Encyclopaedia Britannica every four or five years," explained acting librarian Donna Jackson. "They cost more than $1,000 and these are only two years old. They aren't scheduled to be replaced for at least another two or three years."

Mark Twain is not the only subject of interest to vandals. A two-month-old copy of "Learning About Sex: The Contemporary Guide for Young Adults" is no longer on the shelf.

"Someone removed the back cover, which has the device to stop theft, off the book. They left the cover lying on the shelf and took the rest of the book with them," said von Hassell.

Other frequent objects of destruction include books about pregnancy. The pictures showing the development of the baby before birth seem to be a popular target for vandals, said Jackson. The book is left, but the pictures are cut out.

Pages are missing also from the library's single copy of the City Directory. The book costs $60 and no replacement is likely this year.

The library has had to install an anti-theft device to reduce the number of books that leave without

March in Jerusalem increases tensions

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — Christian pilgrims carried crosses along the traditional route of Jesus Christ's martyrdom today to mark Good Friday amid tensions over a Jewish settlement established in the Christian quarter of the old city.

Thousands of pilgrims began processions along the Via Dolorosa at 9 a.m., stopping to sing hymns and pray at the Stations of the Cross leading to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, venerated by many Christians as the site of Christ's tomb.

Dozens of paramilitary border police armed with assault rifles and tear gas grenades walked in the narrow streets of Jerusalem's old walled city along with Christians from around the world.

The heavy police presence followed rioting Thursday near the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, but most of the pilgrims seemed more intent on tracing the path of Christ than in getting caught up in the friction between Jerusalem's Christians and Jews.

"Jerusalem is beautiful. I could not imagine it until I saw it," said Mervat Azer, a travel agent from Jersey City, New Jersey. "We are praying near the place where Christ was buried. Tomorrow his light will be very bright."

Paul Christiansen of Copenhagen, Denmark, said he was saddened by the pain Jesus suffered on the cross and by the current religious trouble in Jerusalem.

"We noticed yesterday there was tear gas and fighting," said Christiansen, 29. "It is sad. Why it is necessary for people to fight?"

The rioting came as Christian clerics and their supporters protested the settling of 150 Jews in the old city's Christian quarter.

Police fired tear gas to disperse the protesters after a priest tore down a poster showing the Israeli

More children eligible for aid

AUSTIN (AP) — Families of children denied Medicaid benefits because their brothers or sisters had such income as child support should reaply with the Texas Department of Human Services, the agency said.

The announcement came Thursday after a judgment was entered last month by U.S. District Judge Melinda Harmon in Houston expanding Medicaid benefits for needy children.

The case involved a lawsuit challenging the denial of benefits to children whose brothers or sisters had their own income, such as Social Security benefits or child support.

The income had been considered available to meet the medical needs of the children under a statutory interpretation by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, according to the state welfare agency.

"Based on our experiences, we believe that the denial of benefits for this reason has been frequent," said Jeff Skarda, attorney manager of the Gulf Coast Legal Foundation's governmental entitlements unit.

The federal government changed the rule last year to allow children with brothers or sisters who have their own income to get benefits, Duke said. He said the state agency has been implementing that policy.

AIDS baby fights discrimination

DALLAS (AP) — A Grand Prairie justice of the peace and his wife have learned firsthand how people can react when they hear there might be AIDS in the house, but they are doing their best to combat it.

Cameron and Mary Gray discovered what it was to be shunned after word spread that a baby they had taken in was being tested for the AIDS virus.

The Grays' ordeal began shortly after they took in a baby boy, Billy, whose mother is in prison for selling drugs.

His mother, an intravenous drug user, tested positive for AIDS antibodies, which indicate she has been exposed to the AIDS virus. But two tests on Billy, who is otherwise healthy, have been inconclusive — one indicated antibodies, in the other, doctors couldn't tell.

In any event, doctors said there's no way to positively test for AIDS antibodies until an infant is older than 15 months, because until then, an infant may still be carrying some of his mother's antibodies from the womb.

Nonetheless, word spread that Billy had tested positive for AIDS. Soon, some people wouldn't shake Gray's hand. People wouldn't talk to Mrs. Gray at the market. Gray, an active volunteer and founder of the Grand Prairie Teen Court, got the silent treatment from friends and neighbors.

Gray started getting calls accusing him of being a bad father because he continued to have an "AIDS-infected" baby in his house. And one day, the family found a message tacked to their door that said: "Those who live with AIDS, die with AIDS."

The Grays said they have no intention of giving up Billy as long as he needs their help.

"What were we supposed to do? Throw him out with the trash?" Mrs. Gray said. "He's a baby. Our concern was how to take care of him and how to take care of a child with this disease."

Gray has begun giving speeches about AIDS to church groups.

Their campaign to fight false information about AIDS appears to be working. Dozens of cards and letters, including some apologies, have been received.

GRAND PRAIRIE — Billy, cared for by Cameron and Mary Gray of Grand Prairie, has tested positive for the AIDS virus once. Billy has taken two blood tests — one showing AIDS antibodies and a more sophisticated test that was ruled "indeterminant."

"The bottom line, cutting through the medical complexity, is that the chances of this baby testing negative after the 15th month are very good and we're very optimistic about that," Gray said Thursday. "But we're going to wait and have our celebration after the 15th month."

The Grays have taken in "numerous children" over the years through Cameron's work with the Teen Court, a group for teenagers. Most, he said, were returned to parents or grandparents when they were able again to care for the children. The Grays have adopted four of them, all boys under the age of six.

The National Centers for Disease Control says 2,116 children now have AIDS but that by 1991 as many as 30,000 may be infected with the HIV virus that causes the disease. More than 1,143 children have died of AIDS since 1981.

Gramm accused of waffling on abortion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texan Phil Gramm, one of the Senate's most ardent foes of abortion, is backing a proposal by home-state Republicans that would ban most abortions only after pregnancies pass the halfway mark.

Yet Republican Gramm, who has co-sponsored five constitutional amendments to ban abortions even in cases of rape or incest, insists he isn't waffling.

State Sen. Hugh Parmer, a pro-choice Democrat who is running against Gramm, sees a "smokescreen" and is accusing Gramm of trying to project a more moderate image on abortion to voters back home without really changing his stance.

The "legislative action plan" was issued last week by leaders of the Texas Republican Party and endorsed by Gramm and GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams.

Abortions would be prohibited "when medical tests performed by a licensed physician determine that the child is viable, except when medically necessary to save the life of the mother." The plan also calls for a ban on sex-selection abortions and advocates parental consent before minors can obtain abortions.

The party's focus on abortion comes as a number of Democratic and Republican candidates around the country have moved away from anti-abortion positions. Since anti-abortion candidates were defeated in the Virginia and New Jersey governor's races last year, there has been a growing perception that electoral majorities favor legal abortions.

Bill Price, president of the largest anti-abortion organization in Texas, said he saw no compromise in the limited reach of the Republican plan, but added: "This is a recognition of political reality."

Price, who heads Texans United for Life, acknowledged the release of the plan was meant to coincide with the election season. "Why should Republicans have the Democrats bang them over the head" on the abortion issue, he said.

Phyllis Dunham, executive director of the Texas Abortion Rights Action League, said the GOP proposal could backfire.

"The anti-choice Republicans won't think it goes far enough and pro-choice Republicans will see right through it," Ms. Dunham said. "The pro-choice will see it for being a piece of political maneuvering that it is."

Fred Meyer, chairman of the Texas Republican Party, said the plan is a "reasonable, responsible program" that supports the rights of the unborn as well as the rights of women.

Meyer said Gramm's position on the constitutional amendments stems from his national perspective, while the legislative action plan addresses state-level issues.

Three anti-abortion leaders in Texas endorsed the GOP plan this week, saying it points the party in the right direction.

Canners agree on saving dolphins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists and lawmakers are hailing a decision by three U.S. tuna canners — including the world's largest — not to buy or sell tuna captured along with dolphins.

Environmental groups predicted the move by companies selling the StarKist, Bumble Bee and Chicken of the Sea brands will save some of the estimated 100,000 dolphins that die annually in huge nets used to catch schools of tuna.

StarKist Seafood Co. said Thursday it "will not purchase any tuna caught in association with dolphins" and "will sell only dolphin-free tuna."

The action was taken in "recognition of increased consumer concern for the environment" and because "the greatest concern in the tuna industry is dolphin mortality," said Anthony A.F. O'Reilly, president of the H.J. Heinz Co., which owns StarKist.

Iacocca gets nearly $4 million

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca was awarded nearly $4 million in 1989 salary and stock and in bonuses earned the year before, according to the company's proxy statement released today.

The amount Iacocca received topped the $2.5 million received by General Motors Corp. Chairman Roger B. Smith, but fell behind the $6.6 million awarded to Ford Motor Co. Chairman Donald E. Petersen, who retired March 1.

Chrysler executives received no cash bonuses for 1989 because of an agreement with the United Auto Workers union that when the automaker doesn't make enough money in a year to grant profit-sharing checks to union members, executives get no cash bonuses.

President diagnosed with glaucoma

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will have to use prescription eye drops the rest of his life to control glaucoma in his left eye, the White House says, but he is not expected to suffer vision problems.

Bush's eye problem, characterized by the White House as "an early glaucoma," was diagnosed during his routine annual physical examination on Thursday.

If not detected early and properly treated, the condition, stemming from pressure in the eye, can lead to blindness.

But in Bush's case, there has been no visual impairment. Doctors said none should be anticipated.

The 65-year-old president was pronounced otherwise "in excellent health" by his personal physician, Dr. Burton Lee. "He continues to keep extremely fit through vigorous physical activities," Lee said in a statement.

Glaucoma stems from abnormally high pressure of the fluid within the eye and is not uncommon for a person of Bush's age.

Golgotha reenactment

CUTUD, Philippines — Filipinos participate in the re-enactment of the nailing of Jesus to the cross on Good Friday today. One of the participants, Mario Castro, has portrayed Jesus for the past 10 years.

Penitents are nailed to crosses to mark day

KAPITANGAN, Philippines (AP) — Filipino penitents were nailed to crosses today, and others whipped themselves bloody as Asia's only predominately Christian nation marked the crucifixion of Jesus.

About a dozen people were nailed to crosses in several communities of central Luzon island, including a woman faith healer in Kapitangan in her 14th Good Friday crucifixion.

Police said another 10 penitents were nailed to crosses in Cutud, about 15 miles west in Pampanga province.

About 500 people filled the yard outside a church in this farming village to watch the crucifixion on a concrete stage at the edge of a rice field. They shouted at photographers and onlookers to make room for them to see the event.

About the same number of people jostled each other to watch the crucifixion from an adjacent lot, where vendors sold food and drinks and others set up gambling tables.

A man wearing dark glasses chanted Latin prayers under a blazing noontime sun as two men dressed as Roman centurions hammered four-inch nails into the palms and feet of faith healer Lucila "Lucy" Reyes, 32. Her followers, mostly women, burned incense and sang religious songs. Others wept as Miss Reyes went into a trance, her body shaking on the wooden cross.

A follower placed a bottle of coconut oil at the foot of the cross for "benediction" in treating ailments.

Hours earlier, male penitents with cloth-covered faces, whipped their backs with wooden sticks tied to a lash in an annual ritual to "wash" their sins or repay God for some miracles.

They would lie face down on the concrete pavement on churchyard in front of pictures of the 14 Stations of the Cross while being whipped on the buttocks by their companions.

In Cutud, about 3,000 people, including foreign tourists, turned out to watch the crucifixions, which took place after flagellants wandered through the dusty streets flogging themselves with sticks of bamboo pitted with bits of glass.

Those crucified in Cutud included Mario Castro, a 40-year-old jeepney driver, who was nailed to a cross for his 10th straight Good Friday.

Origins of the annual crucifixion are difficult to trace. Local residents say the practice was introduced by Spanish friars in the 16th century, but others claim it is a more recent phenomenon.

More tubing already in Iraq

LONDON (AP) — Iraq has already received 44 pieces of tubing identical to eight sections seized as suspected parts of a gigantic gun, the British manufacturer said today.

"I am sure that most people will recognize the absurdity of suggestions being made that these pipes are in fact guns," said Tony Peck, spokesman for Sheffield Forgemasters.

He said the eight sections are random parts of a 26-section assembly that would be 511 feet long. Press reports have described the tubing as possibly making up a 131-foot-long gun barrel.

Iraqi officials have said the tubing, formally seized by Customs officers on Thursday, was intended for use in a petrochemical plant.

Customs officers seized the eight sections of forged steel tubing on the docks at Middlesbrough after a Ministry of Defense expert determined that it could be a weapon.

Millions in cash found by residents

VEGA BAJA, Puerto Rico (AP) — The FBI is investigating suspicious activity after residents of this coastal community after several unearthened millions of dollars believed hidden by drug traffickers and went on a buying binge, the U.S. attorney says.

U.S. attorney Daniel Lopez Romo said late Thursday that the money was believed inside drums dug up two weeks ago in a farmer's field in Vega Baja, 35 miles northwest of San Juan.

Lopez said officials became suspicious after residents began buying luxury items with "great sums" of cash.

Authorities found one drum with $1.5 million still inside but others had been emptied, he said. Newspapers said between 10 and 11 empty drums were found.

El Vocero quoted unidentified sources as saying the Puerto Rico Justice Department had estimated up to $20 million may have been buried.

Soviets admit massacre of officers

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today admitted for the first time that its secret police murdered 15,000 Polish officers in the Katyn Forest during World War II in what it called "one of the most horrifying Stalinist crimes."

The Tass news agency issued an official statement as Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev met with Polish President Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Western historians concluded years ago that the Soviets were responsible for killing the captive officers, most of whom were shot in the back of the head, but Moscow's refusal to admit it was a barrier to better Soviet-Polish relations. Jaruzelski is scheduled to visit Katyn on Saturday.

Until today, the Soviet Union had blamed Nazi Germany for the massacre. The Katyn Forest, located near Smolensk southwest of Moscow, was captured by Germany during World War II, and later recaptured by Soviet soldiers.

Swans made historic visit

AUSTIN (AP) — Trumpeter swans made a historic visit to Texas, wintering on a chain of golf course lakes, say experts of the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife.

The big birds' migration from Wisconsin to lakes at the Plantation Resort in Plano is believed to be the first appearance in Texas by the species in more than 50 years, the department said Thursday.

Their 900-mile flight from the Crex Meadows Wildlife Area in Wisconsin was the longest made by any of the birds produced in a captive breeding program in that state, officials said.

The all-white trumpeters are the nation's largest waterfowl, with seven-foot wingspans.

Huge penalties not always just "Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted." — Amendment VIII, U.S. Constitution

One of the scandalous changes in the U.S. judicial system is the increasingly common practice of juries ordering businesses and governmental units to pay multimillion-dollar "punitive damages" that are so excessively disproportionate to the damage suffered by the victim as to be ludicrous.

Jurors who would reel at the thought of inflicting a cruel or unusual punishment on even the most heinous of criminals do not even blink at the thought of socking a company or government with an outrageous financial penalty.

It does not seem to bother these jurors that such unfair "punitive damages" could put a company out of business or force a cutback of government services to the detriment of the general public.

The U.S. Supreme Court has, however, agreed to hear a case that could help the justices determine whether extremely high punitive-damage awards that are made in personal-damage and other cases are unconstitutional.

The case the court has agreed to hear involves Pacific Mutual, an insurance company, and a $1,040,000 punitive damage award the company was ordered in 1987 to pay to Cleopatra Haslip, an employee of Roosevelt City, Ala.

There is no question that Ms. Haslip had been injured by an agent of the company, one Lemmie Ruffin, who had sold health insurance policies to the woman and several others, and then pocketed the money.

The woman did not learn that she was not covered by an insurance policy until 1982 when she ran up $2,500 worth of hospital and medical bills. She had problems paying the bills and her credit suffered because of it.

While Pacific Mutual said it did not sanction the actions of its agent, we would assume that the company should and is probably willing to make good on the damage done to Ms. Haslip as the result of Ruffin's actions.

But to force the company to pay more than $1 million just to punish it for an action that resulted in a few thousand dollars worth of damage to a person is like demanding that someone's head be cut off for stealing a loaf of bread.

There are some parts of the world where such cruel and unusual punishments are handed out, but thankfully the United States is not one of them — unless jurors are bashing a company.

In Browning-Ferris vs. Kelco, a case decided by the Supreme Court last June, the justices rejected the cruel and unusual punishment argument involving the 8th Amendment, deciding that the amendment applies only to criminal cases and not civil disputes — the source of the high punitive awards.

But the justices left the door open for relief. Several justices said such awards may violate the "due process of law" provisions of the Constitution.

Hopefully, the Pacific Mutual case will provide the vehicle for some limitation to be placed on runaway punitive awards.

While many naive jurors see businesses and governmental units as cash cows that can be tapped for unlimited amounts of funds, the truth is that such unfair awards have a crippling effect on the economy and cost us all in the form of higher prices, higher taxes, lost jobs and lost services.

The job of the justice system is to dispense justice and right wrongs, not to pile wrongs on top of wrongs and injure additional innocent people.

We hope the Supreme Court will act expeditiously to end the "deep pockets" abuse that has become a part of the judicial system.

Getting a foot out of the mouth

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
This time it's comedian Billy Crystal. He offended Italians with a joke he used while hosting the Academy Awards show.

Crystal said a possible purchase of MGM by an Italian businessman would mean MGM lion would no longer growl, but would say, "I take the Fifth." William Fugazy, chairman of the Italo-American Organization Coalition, called Crystal's remark insensitive and inane.

This on the heels of a Washington radio person, who riled Asian-Americans by referring to Connie Chung as Connie Chink.

And then there was the Texas gubernatorial candidate who made the ol' "might as well enjoy it" remark in reference to rape.

The Every Woman on Earth Coalition wants to string him up for that.

And then there was Andy Rooney riling homosexual Americans, Jimmy the Greek upsetting African-Americans, and hardly a day passes without a public figure saying something and catching hell from bald-headed Americans or tapeworm-infected Americans or We-don't-understand-the-Far-Side Americans.

I've got a solution. With all the advances that have been made in technology, it seems somebody should be able to come up with something to keep people from saying things that will get them into big trouble.

I certainly have no skills in that area, but I do have a vivid imagination. Why couldn't somebody like IBM or Wang or Texas Instruments or Eli Lilly pharmaceuticals come up with the following:

Automatic Lockjaw Device: It is implanted in your jaw surgically.

A millisecond before you're about to offend several million people your brain sends a message to the lockjaw device, which locks your jaw and instead of saying, "What's wrong with this country is there are too many (fill in the blank)," all that comes out is a lot of grunting noises.

Voice Delays: Works like the two second delays that are used on radio call-in shows. Your voice is fed electronically to public relations experts who are monitoring you.

If you commit a gaffe, they have time to bleep it. So if you say, "Look, it's just like rape. If you can't do anything about it, you might as well..." they can insert various noises like beeps, sirens, and sounds like a goat makes so the media can't hear the insensitive and inane remark you actually made.

Truth Detectors: Works on the same principle as a lie detector. Sensors are worn underneath your clothing, and they deliver a painful electric shock if you are about to express your true feelings when you should lie like a dog.

Pills: They strongly inhibit the expression of opinions which might get you suspended or fired from your job.

(There might be side effects, however, including vacant stares, and urges to run for political office.)

The best idea, however, might be to hold seminars to teach people to deal with the media the same way they deal with their spouses, as in, "If you want to avoid trouble, keep your big mouth shut."

Where whispers mean millions

By PETER ROPER
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The oil lobbyist in the expensive gray suit was sitting crosslegged on the floor, hoping the reporter with the muddy cowboy boots wouldn't step on him as the reporter picked his way gingerly through the bodies that filled the jam-packed hearing room.

The lobbyist, like many of his high-priced colleagues, was on the floor because there were no more seats to be had in the House Energy and Commerce Committee room as the biggest deal of the 101st Congress was about to be cut.

It was an innocuous-sounding bill — the Clean Air Act — but billions of dollars were at stake for industry and consumers. The legislation will mean higher gasoline prices and potential layoffs at coal mines and steel mills, offset by the hope for cleaner air and water and healthier lives.

Actually, when the House committee met at 8:10 p.m. one Thursday this month, the real deals had been made during the previous week of grueling late-night negotiations in small conference rooms with no reporters allowed inside. Utility lobbyists wanted lower clean air standards. Auto industry lobbyists wanted less stringent tailpipe standards. Environmentalists pulled aside friendly congressmen and argued hard against any concessions, believing the momentum for tougher anti-pollution laws could be lost if the committee caved in to any one industry's pleas for mercy.

The hallway outside the committee room was like a busy train station — except no train ever arrived to take away the crowd of reporters and lobbyists that milled around, trying to eavesdrop on each other's hushed meetings with congressional staffers. The staffers, looking weary, would emerge from the negotiations with some hastily scribbled amendment in hand. He or she would quickly be surrounded by lobbysts and after a few minutes of whispered instructions, would go back behind the heavy mahogany doors.

Thomas Altmeyer, a senior vice president with the National Coal Association, looked anxious during the last hours before the vote. He said he was "optimistic" the House committee, unlike the Senate the previous week, would be more generous with the coal industry by giving utilities and steel companies more leeway in cutting back their pollution.

Asked if he was unhappy about any aspect of the negotiations, Altmeyer grimaced. "Yeah, I'm unhappy about this entire bill. It's going to cost a fortune," he said, and then excused himself to run after a colleague who had suddenly emerged from the back-room meetings.

Up the hallway, an oil industry lobbyist was fuming to a sympathetic colleague about the Senate's action the previous week in ordering refineries to produce new grades of low-emission gasoline.

"They don't know what the (expletive) they're doing," he said. "They say they only want this much benzene (a cancer-causing chemical) in gasoline and they only want that much aromatics. I'm not sure you can even make gasoline at those standards and certainly not with our current refineries, but do they care?"

So it went, hour after hour, day after day. Periodically, the committee would go into public session, open its doors to the crowd of lobbyists and reporters and formally approve a section of the bill that had been agreed upon in the unseen meetings.

Finally, on April 5, the rumour flashed around Capitol Hill that the committee would finish work on the bill at 6 p.m. and the crowd doubled in size. Like expectant fathers, the lobbyists lined up next to the doorway, crushing each other's expensive clothes, and wearily joking about the delays.

At 7 p.m., staffers came out to assure everyone the meeting would begin shortly. The disbelieving laughter echoed down the hallway. At 7:30 p.m., the pizza arrived and delivery boys hustled it into the committee room. The doors were shut again. "It's a mistake to feed them," one grumpy reporter called out. "Now they'll be in there all night talking."

But the doors did open at 8:10 p.m. and the 42 members of the committee were in their seats, ready to dispatch in an hour the weeks of work that now lay before them in the form of a bill. For the crowd of lobbyists it was time to see which deals had stuck and which had come apart.

It happened quickly, with little debate. Coal lobbyists sighed with relief that looser federal deadlines were in the bill. Midwestern lawmakers were happy with the provisions requiring other states to help pay the cost of cleaning up the heavy emissions from Midwestern industries.

But the four Texans on the panel quickly voted against the acid-rain provisions of the bill. They'd wanted special consideration for nine new power plants in their state but the deal had fallen through.

Then Michigan Rep. John Dingell, the chairman of the panel, banged down the gavel and the committee had approved a new federal clean air bill, ending its years of struggle. Dingell, looking tired, said he was pleased and wanted to get the legislation to the full House by May.

With a groan of exhaustion, the staffers headed home and reporters to their offices. But the army of lobbyists simply went back to work. May was only a few weeks away.

NRA back again in the role of loose cannon

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The National Rifle Association is the master of the cheap shot. It attacks its enemies with a vengeance, but not necessarily with all the facts.

The latest victim is Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del. As chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, his name appears on the top of the mammoth Senate anti-crime bill — a bill that parrots George Bush's crime-fighting plan and responds to increasing public fear of violence in the streets.

The bill includes provisions to ban nine types of assault weapons, which supporters think have no sporting or recreational use. Assault weapons are the arms of choice for snipers, drug peddlers and assorted thugs. And the NRA believes Congress has no business restricting the sale of those guns.

Biden has not been a traditional enemy of the NRA. He has toed the NRA line in many cases, supporting the rights of law-abiding gun owners. He even voted against a bill to impose a seven-day waiting period on gun purchases.

But that's old news for the NRA. The gun lobby has now targeted him as Public Enemy No. 1 on the assault weapon ban. A letter from the NRA to its members accuses Biden of trying to slip an "underhanded gun ban" through Congress. It says the senator is taking advantage of the wave of public support for Bush's anti-crime package. In perhaps the lowest blow of all, the NRA compares Biden to Michael Dukakis, an archenemy of the NRA.

"Sen. Biden is camouflaging Dukakis' gun ban ideas under the rhetoric of President Bush's popular crime-fighting ideas, so he can push through a federal gun ban before you and I can stop him," the NRA letter says.

Phrases like "before you and I can stop him" are vintage NRA hysteria. The group likes to whip its members into a frenzy with the fear that Congress will take away their guns overnight without benefit of the democratic process.

Another recent victim of the NRA publicity mill is Rep. Fortney "Pete" Stark, D-Calif. He had the temerity to challenge a $4.6 million-a-year Army program that provides free bullets to civilian marksmen in Army-sponsored gun clubs.

The program is the Army's Division of Civilian Marksmanship. It sponsors 2,000 rifle and pistol clubs, supplying them with free ammunition. The purpose is to create a pool of marksmen who are suitable for the military if they choose to join. Many of the clubs are also affiliated with the NRA, and Stark questioned whether the Army should be so cozy with the gun lobby. The General Accounting Office looked into the program and pronounced it to be of "limited value" to the military.

The NRA benefits from the Army-sponsored gun clubs because they create an up-and-coming pool of gun enthusiasts. So, when Stark questioned the expense, the NRA came to its defense in a full-page newspaper ad accusing Stark of being inflammatory. The gun clubs, according to the NRA, are patriotic and honorable.

But are they a cost-effective way for the taxpayers to spend their money? Stark said the Army recruited only 200 people out of the program to join the Army last year. That's $23,000 per recruit. But the NRA claimed the number of recruits from the gun clubs was 3,000.

Who is right? The House Armed Services Committee went straight to the Army and asked for the number. It was 200.

AMERICA BASHING — One of the hottest books circulating in the backrooms of Washington is called "The Japan That Can Say No." It is the unauthorized translation of a book written by a Japanese corporate magnate and a right-wing Japanese politician. It lays out in stark detail how Japan can economically manhandle the United States. One chapter accuses American business people of thinking only 10 minutes ahead while the Japanese think 10 years ahead. The book also says the United States is unable to make anything that can be exported. The book warns of increased anti-Japanese sentiment in the United States because of the economic situation, but dismisses such feelings as racism.

MINI-EDITORIAL — An epidemiologist for the World Health Organization says 10 percent of the current world population will die of tobacco-related diseases. That's 500 million people. If 500 million people were hijacked by terrorists or radiated by nuclear power plant meltdowns, the public outrage would force governments to put an end to such carnage. But because these 500 million buy their poison off the shelf and because that poison is made by reputable business people who know their way around the political system, the carnage is sanctioned.

Hispanics abandoning Catholic Church for evangelicals

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

CROSSROADS COUNTRY — A dramatic swing by Hispanics who are leaving the Catholic Church for evangelical Protestant churches is changing the face of religion in the United States and the Crossroads Country.

Hispanic no longer means Catholic.

For centuries, Hispanics were assumed to be a "safe" congregation for the Catholic Church, but in the past decade new demographics have shown a shift toward Protestantism.

Now second- and third-generation Hispanic converts to Protestant churches are asserting their influence on those groups, a phenomenon that has not gone unnoticed by the Catholic Church in the Crossroads Country.

Now Hispanics who have remained Catholics see a new role for them to play in the church of their heritage.

The role of Hispanics in the Catholic Church is changing, according to Bishop Michael Pfeiffer for the Diocese of San Angelo, which covers much of the Crossroads Country. He said they are being offered more leadership roles and Catholics are developing a new sensitivity to Hispanic needs.

What some are calling a "Hispanic exodus" out of the Catholic Church can be felt at local churches, Pfeiffer said. But Pfeiffer contended the great majority of Hispanics are remaining Catholics and said the church is taking advantage of opportunities to respond to the needs of this powerful group.

"They've asked us to change the church to fit their culture," Pfeiffer said. He said some of those changes include an emphasis on the traditional values that are the backbone of Mexican, Mexican-American and Latin American culture.

In the San Angelo Diocese, which includes all five counties in the Crossroads Country area, 75 percent of Catholics are Hispanics. About one-half of services are in Spanish.

"Language is culture," Pfeiffer said. "We should offer them the church in their language to make it more accessible to them."

The Catholic response follows a movement away from the church which, some church leaders say, began several generations ago. Because of the growing number of Hispanics joining the congregations of Protestant groups, changes are being made in those churches, too.

Services in Spanish are now becoming more a part of other religious groups as well. Eleven Big Spring churches hold Spanish-language services. Of those, only four are Catholic.

• Related story, Page 6-A

This week, six Protestant churches will hold joint Holy Week services in Spanish. Of those, two are Assembly of God, two are Baptist, one is Independent and one is Methodist.

Rev. Samuel Picazo, of North Side United Methodist Church, one of the participating Spanish-language churches, said most of his congregation has a Catholic Catholic Church's failure to deal with the issues Hispanics thought were important. "Many Hispanics did not understand the traditional Latin of the services. Some disagreed with the priests not being married. Protestant churches were, for some, a freedom of religion."

The Rev. Robert Vreteau of St. Thomas Catholic Church, said lack of commitment to religion itself is the issue. "The change we notice is many not going to church. Maybe they have not totally committed themselves to another religion, but the change is a sign of lack of commitment."

Vreteau said many families may

BIG SPRING — The Rev. Samuel Picazo, pastor of North Side Methodist Church, ministers to an all-Hispanic congregation. His church is one of a growing number of Protestant groups offering Spanish-language services for Hispanics, a group once predominately Catholic. The growing numbers in Picazo's church and its affiliates are evidence of second and third-generation Hispanic families for whom Catholicism is no longer traditional.

have switched to Protestant worship several generations ago. Even that, Vreteau said, is less an issue here than in other parts of the world.

More of an issue locally, Vreteau said, is the lack of acceptance many Hispanic churchgoers feel no matter what their choice of faith. "We have the most extreme bias I've ever seen. If you aren't accepted at your church, you learn not to go."

The Rev. Tim Thornton, associate pastor of First Baptist Church of Big Spring, said the Baptist faith welcomes its Hispanic converts. Though the church sponsors a mission, Central Baptist Church, where services are in Spanish, Thornton said there are several Hispanic families attending the English services as well.

As the Catholic Church continues to be challenged by its Hispanic membership, leaders are needed. Bishop Pfeiffer said new local leadership programs have drawn heavily from Hispanics. "We have to affirm the gifts they have. The church has to open doors and allow them to lead."

Once the Catholic Church develops awareness of the Hispanic culture within it, the effect will be an enrichment of the total church population, Pfeiffer said.

He said the melting pot analogy, though it is the right idea, implies a culture breaking down in order to join the group. He said his goals for the San Angelo Diocese are better expressed by a different image. "We're looking to be a rich salad, all cultures blending together to make a delicious dish."

At Snyder's Our Lady of the Guadalupe Catholic Church, Rev. Joseph Augustine said the church choice issue is not the important one. "We all believe in one God. The purpose is the same, with different channels — Muslim, Hindu, Catholic, non-Catholic. It is all about one God."

Baptists lead Protestants with Hispanic members

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD
Between 3 million and 4 million Hispanics are Protestant evangelicals, according to figures kept by the various churches.

The largest number is believed to be in the Southern Baptist Convention, which has "in excess of 400,000 Hispanic members," according to Oscar Romo of the denomination's Home Missions Board.

The Hispanic population in the Southern Baptist Convention grew 40 percent in the 1980s, Romo said.

The denomination studies polls and data to tailor Hispanic churches to fit the needs of an area. The congregation members, Romo said, range from longtime settlers such as those in the Rio Grande area of Texas, to American ethnics, whose children are born here, and American Hispanics, those who are born, reared and educated in the United States.

In some Baptist churches, only Spanish is spoken. Others offer a

"The (Catholic) parishes are too large, the liturgies too staid, the preaching too cerebral, the spirituality too moralistic, the experience of the church too bureaucratic. Evangelical churches on the other hand, offer a simple message with an appealing emotional power." — Father Richard O'Brien of Notre Dame mix of English and Spanish. To appeal to the middle and upper class, Romo said, some congregations have Hispanic ministers but the services are entirely in English and are more formal.

The Southern Baptists have an advantage over the Catholics in the ratio of Hispanic clergy to serve their constituencies. For 400,000 Hispanic Baptist members, there are 2,300 Hispanic ministers — about one minister for every 173 Hispanic members, Romo said.

The Catholic Church has 19.5 million Hispanic Catholics and 1,954 Hispanic priests — or about one priest for every 9,979 Hispanic members.

The Rev. Richard McBrien, head of the theology department at the University of Notre Dame, contends the lack of Hispanic clergy is "one of the major factors in the current hemorrhaging of Hispanic Catholics from the church of their baptism."

And the major obstacle to increase the number of clergy is the same as it is outside the Hispanic community — "obligatory celibacy" — said Father McBrien in a recent column carried by the Texas Catholic newspaper.

As the national Hispanic presence continues to grow, most religious denominations — from Methodists to Mormons — are reaching out to invite them in.

Many Hispanics have been attracted to Pentecostal churches. The Assemblies of God alone has a known U.S. Hispanic membership of 119,509 and 2,685 ministers. Both Assemblies of God and the Mormons claim a large constituency in Latin American countries, where they have extensive missionary programs.

Hispanic membership in the Catholic Church continues to grow as the population increases. But the percentage is down and the church is concerned.

Father O'Brien contends: "The parishes are too large, the liturgies too staid, the preaching too cerebral, the spirituality too moralistic, the experience of the church too bureaucratic."

"Evangelical churches on the other hand, offer a simple message with an appealing emotional power."

So you want proof? It's in your heart

By BUD SHOCKEY
Big Spring Pastor

"So, you want proof, huh?" Aren't we all the same! You can tell us all you want, be as convincing as you can, pull the "power of persuasion" tactic as powerfully as possible and yet we still will not believe until we see it "with our own eyes."

Thomas, the disciple, was no different. Oh yes, he had believed in Jesus, and even committed himself to devoutly following the Lord. And yet when it came to the resurrection question he wanted to see the evidence first hand.

Well the Lord obliged him and said in John 20:27, "Reach hither thy finger and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side; and be not faithless but believing."

For Thomas, it was one thing to have accepted what Jesus taught and recalled about Himself, and yet a greater revelation when Jesus said that personal contact would increase his faith even more.

Pastor's corner

That is still true today. Many have responded to Jesus' teachings and instructions, while not having really had "contact" with the Son of God.

Jesus Christ is still seeking people to believe in Him — believe that He came to earth, born of a virgin, lived a sinless life, died on a Roman cross, was buried and rose from the grave for them!

Do you believe? If so, do you believe to the point that He is your Lord and your God? Thomas did!

So you want proof, huh? Well, it's right in front of your heart.

Bud Shockey is pastor of the Birdwell Lane Baptist Church, 1512 Birdwell Lane.

Catholic Archbishop halts men's training
SEATTLE (AP) — Roman Catholic Archbishop Raymond Hunthausen says he is halting training of men as permanent deacons to dramatize his concern that women's role be given more consideration in the church.
Lutherans eye death penalty
CHICAGO (AP) — The Evangelical Lutheran Church in America's task force on the death penalty has concluded that carrying out a death sentence does more harm than good for the community. A preliminary report is to be distributed to the denomination's 11,120 congregations this summer, with responses considered in a final version to be acted on by the denomination's 1991 assembly. James Banks of Tallahassee, Fla., who chaired a task force meeting here, said preliminary conclusions are "basically opposed to the use of the death penalty," but also "expresses a pastoral concern for those who have a different point of view."

Hey Jesus! Come on down, it's time to celebrate Easter

By STEVE RAY
Herald Editor

It was sunset. From beneath the clouds the sun peeked through, throwing rays of sunshine descending through the skies like a billowing ocean of bright lights.

For a four-year-old girl, it looked like a miracle.

"Look daddy," Renea screamed with glee. "Jesus is coming down." I looked at my son, who at 8-years of age, was a bit more cynical than his sister.

"I'll see what she's talking about," he said, as he grinned and crawled out of the front seat to look out the window in the back of our van.

"It's beautiful," he gasped. "But it's just the sun."

I glanced back and there spread across the West Texas plains, the sun looked as if it were literally rolling from the skies.

The orange and yellow beams struck white clouds and left an image of brightness that was enough to strike a child's imagination, combine it with what she had been taught about Christ's return and put two and two together.

I'm not one of those Christians who looks for the Second Coming of Christ every day.

In fact, I get a little irritated at those people who constantly look for signs that the end is near.

And while I'm fully aware from my Christian teachings that we expect Jesus to come back to Earth one day, I'm not about to hock the TV set, sell the car and wait on some hill for Him to come down in clouds of glory.

The Second Coming of Christ has been on my mind a little more than usual lately.

It always is at Easter.

I guess because I think that when Jesus comes back, Easter would be a great time to do it.

After all, it's the time we celebrate the most important part of our Christian heritage — the resurrected Lord.

Easter is the one thing that really makes Christianity so much different from other religions. It would be easy for other religions to say they had a leader who was born and celebrate the date of his birth. It would be easy for other religions to say that they had a leader who died for a great cause.

But the thing they don't have is a Saviour who died and rose again, and then went up in the clouds to Heaven.

It was then that, if you believe churches anymore.

But I grew up around a group of preachers that could make your feet burn with anticipation. They could make you sweat it out in that church pew, and by the time they had "preached the glory down" you were either at the altar or outside the church trying to cool off.

I don't think they ever realized what kind of effect their sermons had on an 8-year-old kid, but I can remember that scripture about Christ returning at a time when no one thought he was going to come back.

Therefore be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh; Matthew 25:44 I knew that was D-Day — time to pay the fiddler so to speak, and get punished for all those things I had done wrong.

And I can remember laying in bed after I heard those sermons and telling the Lord I knew he was coming back that night. Somehow in my childish imagination I thought that would keep Christ from returning until I had time to apologize to my sister for hiding her doll.

Since I was 8, I have learned to appreciate the idea of Christ's return instead of fearing it.

After Jesus arose from the tomb he told his disciples to spread the gospel — they did it.

And after he, ascended into heaven, two angels asked his disciples why they kept looking at the spot where Jesus had disappeared.

Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven: Acts 1:11.

In other words, stop looking for Jesus to return. Instead expect it, and live everyday like that was the day.

If we do that it takes away the fear of his return. It takes away the need to look for signs behind every war, every earthquake, every disaster.

Instead it gives us the knowledge that we can serve a Saviour who was born, died, rose from the grave and is coming again.

West Germans increasingly eager to see U.S. troops leave

BITBURG, West Germany (AP) — President Bush's call to remove tens of thousands of American troops from West Germany has been matched — or surpassed — by the increasing eagerness of West Germans to see them go.

Once scorned as "anti-Americanism," the wish to see the massive U.S. military presence sharply reduced has picked up the support of two state governments. "Before, people were reprimanded for saying such a thing out loud," says Hans Jacobs, deputy mayor of Bitburg. He says "now the time has come" to plan a future with a far smaller number of U.S. troops.

Bitburg, home to a U.S. Air Force base, is also the town where former President Ronald Reagan made a bitterly criticized visit to a German war cemetery in 1985.

Jacobs says he looks forward to a possible civilian use for the air base and less noise from fighter jets screaming overhead.

"Tourism would also pick up if there weren't so many troops around," he said. Jacobs says the 13,500 Americans there outnumber West Germans.

President Bush's proposal to withdraw 57,000 of the quarter-million American soldiers stationed in West Germany has sparked political wrangling over which areas should be the first to see substantial withdrawals.

The activities of U.S. and other

NATO troops have led to numerous protests in recent years, especially as resistance grew to "low-level" training flights.

The roaring flights wake children, shake houses, scare cows and generally make life miserable for those in the training areas.

Frequent military maneuvers also chew up farmers' fields and lead to massive traffic jams on already crowded highways.

Many West Germans have long chafed at such a massive U.S. troop presence as an obstacle to full national sovereignty, and the collapse of Communist regimes to the east now has them feeling less threatened than ever.

West German officials are even eyeing a U.S. pullout as a way to open housing for hundreds of thousands of immigrants from Eastern Europe. The Social Democratic mayor of Frankfurt says he hopes to turn a huge military shopping area into a city housing development.

On Tuesday, Munich's Sueddeutsche Zeitung daily newspaper reported that environmentalists have demanded the closing of a huge Army practice range near the Bavarian city of Regensburg. They want it turned into a nature preserve.

Hesse state Gov. Walter Wallmann has made an outright appeal for the removal of U.S. troops from Frankfurt and nearby Erbenheim.

In a letter last week to Chancellor Helmut Kohl, a fellow Christian Democrat, Wallmann said the American facilities are needed to keep up with "European competition" in economic areas.

The Hesse governor told Kohl, a fellow Christian Democrat, that he would even like to have the sprawling Rhein-Main U.S. Air Base outside Frankfurt turned over to the West Germans.

Wallmann's bluntly worded letter would have been unthinkable just months ago from a member of the West German party with the closest ties to Washington.

Frankfurt is jockeying to become the home of the central bank of an economically integrated Europe, thus attracting even more business to the glittering financial center.

The city's mayor, Volker Hauff, would like the Americans to give up a huge shopping area, which includes a bustling Burger King restaurant, to turn the site into a city housing development.

Carl-Ludwig Wagner, the Christian Democratic governor of the western state of Rhineland-Palatinate where Bitburg is located, is also seeking U.S. troop cutbacks.

Most West Germans accept that U.S. troops will be stationed in their country for some time, and many West Germans warn that the financial impact of pullouts from smaller areas could be especially severe.

Friday the 13th is not unlucky for everyone

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Superstitions generally cast Friday the 13th into a bad luck day for the so-called "triskaidekaphobics" who fear it, but the number 13 also has some good signs.

In this Liberty Bell city the 13 colonies declared independence, and the 13-letter slogan "E Pluribus Unum" is placed on U.S. coins.

Also Philadelphia is the headquarters for the Friday the 13th club, founded 54 years ago by 13 men, limits membership to 13 and only meets on Friday the 13th.

"We replace members only when someone dies or leaves town," member Arthur Klein said of the club, whose theme is to defy all the superstitions.

This Friday the 13th, the club will gather at 8:13 a.m. in a paint warehouse where chairman Max Buten has assembled some ladders. Not only will members walk under the ladders. They also will open black umbrellas, break mirrors and spill salt. They may even have a few black cats.

Scared? "Not us," said Klein, who wouldn't say if he would be carrying a rabbit's foot or would be knocking on wood when walking under the ladders.

Nordic myth has it that number 13 first became unlucky a few thousand years ago when, at a banquet of a dozen benevolent gods, an uninvited bad god intruded and started a fight that killed the most popular god.

Another explanation for calling it a bad day was that Jesus was crucified on a Friday and there were 13 at his Last Supper.

Many buildings omit 13 when numbering floors. Some hospitals don't have a room 13. Some people won't start a trip on the 13th.

Klein isn't worried about defying the superstitions.

"Hey, we've been meeting every Friday the 13th, and nothing's stopped us yet," he said.

Census

Wisconsin is leading the states with a 73.4 percent return rate, while Alaska is last at 44.2 percent, she said.

Among major cities, Indianapolis has a relatively high 66.7 percent return rate and Boston only 41.7 percent.

Others include New York, Atlanta, 57.2 percent; Chicago, 49.3; Dallas, 53.5; Denver, 55.9; Detroit, 53.7; Kansas City, 51.1; Los Angeles, 51.5; Memphis, 58.2; Minneapolis-St. Paul, 62.8; New Orleans, 44.3; New York, 46.9; Philadelphia, 52.6; Phoenix, 46.0; and Seattle, 57.4.

The lagging response is only the most recent problem facing the nation's 21st national head count.

Addressing trouble meant that 4 million to 4.5 million people failed to get forms at all — a difficulty Bryant said is being handled by hand-delivery of forms. That is still less than the 5 percent to 6 percent rate of nondeliverable mail sent out by commercial firms, she said.

Several local governments announced Wednesday that they were filing suit, charging that the results — whatever they are — will be unfair.

Census figures are used to distribute seats in the House of Representatives and to allocate billions of dollars in federal funds.

The cities and other local governments that sued contended their residents will not be fully counted, resulting in a loss of representation and money.

Bush issues copy of 1989 tax return

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and his wife Barbara paid $101,382 in taxes last year and reported charitable contributions of $37,272 that included gifts to hurricane and earthquake relief efforts.

A copy of the first couple's joint 1989 return, released Thursday by the White House, showed that the Bushes reported total income of $456,780.

Both taxes and income were up sharply from the couple's 1988 return on which they reported total income of $287,171 and taxes of $62,106.

The higher income came from Bush's better pay as president — $200,000 a year against his $115,000 vice presidential salary — and from a growth in business investments.

The Bushes' tax return showed that the Bushes earned $208,274 last year from business holdings held in a blind trust, up from the $155,662 the trust earned the previous year.

By contrast, Vice President Dan Quayle and his wife, Marilyn, made less in 1989 than in 1988, but paid more in taxes.

The Quayles, whose return was released by his office, paid taxes of $25,479 on a total income of $133,696. The year before, they paid $24,314 on a total income of $156,546.

Quayle's 1988 income was boosted by nearly $53,000 in speaking honoraria earned while he was a senator — much of which was given to charities. Because he claimed fewer tax-deductible contributions in 1989, his overall tax liability rose.

Bush, who has energetically lobbied Congress to lower the capital gains tax, paid taxes on $36,068 in capital gains posted by the blind trust. The trust, which masks the first family's investment portfolio, was established in 1981 when Bush became vice president.

The joint tax return filed by the president and his wife listed $94,702 in itemized deductions.

Among the contributions was $3,000 in cash for relief organizations to help victims of Hurricane Hugo in the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and South Carolina. An additional $1,500 was donated to similar efforts in the aftermath of the San Francisco-area earthquake.

In all, the Bushes gave $8,141 to the black educational fund — their largest contribution. They also gave $5,000 to a private fund that is building a new chapel at Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains.

Through a quirk of job and geography, Bush paid no state or city income tax.

Vandals

being checked out, said Howard County Commissioner Bill Crooker. The cost of purchasing the machine, adapting the books to use with the machine, and maintaining the machine all add to the cost of library service for Howard County residents.

"Even the anti-theft device isn't immune from vandalism," Crooker said. "We just got it fixed after a child broke it by climbing on it and bouncing on it."

"Most people are very careful with books," said Jackson. "They'll come in with a book that has a page ripped and ask what they can do to make up for it. I would say that most of our patrons are conscientious. But the few who steal books or cut something out of them are really hurting out ability to provide service to other users."

Most of the stolen or vandalized books cannot be replaced, she explained.

"Our book budget for the year was cut from $32,000 to $22,000 this year," Jackson said. "Book prices are going up all the time and we're able to buy fewer and fewer volumes for our money."

The library has a copying machine available to patrons at a nominal cost, added von Hassell. "There's no reason for anyone to cut things out of the library's books when they can copy what they need for 10 or 15 cents a page," she said.

The librarians distinguish between deliberate destruction and accidents.

"Accidents will happen, especially with children who don't know any better. We ask that patrons bring the book to us, rather than try to repair the damage themselves," Jackson said. "We have a special tape we use, for instance, that does a much better job than what most people have at home. If the damage can be repaired here at the library, we won't charge for it."

— the private sector, the chamber, the downtown steering committee and the city."

Decell said part of the cost of demolition could be defrayed by the value of salvaged materials. An ordinance recently approved by the City Council allows the city to order the demolition of a building after a hearing with the property owner. The ordinance also allows any salvage to be applied to the cost of demolition.

Although the buildings probably will be removed, in the meantime Big Spring Main Street plans to make them as presentable as possible. Carpenters covered the burned-out buildings with plywood sheets two weeks ago, and volunteers began applying base coats one week ago.

Velia Ross of the Main Street group said another base coat will be applied on Saturday, the final preparation before 1920s scenes will be painted.

"Tuesday they're going to have a group come in and trace the pictures there," Ross said, "and the 21st, the pictures should go up."

Jerusalem

Star of David that had been placed over a cross on the door of a disputed building.

Greek Orthodox Church officials maintain the sale of the building to the Israelis was illegal and have taken their case to court. Lower court rulings have said the Jewish settlers must return the property to the church, decisions which are being appealed.

Jerusalem's old city is divided into jealously guarded ethnic quarters that are home to 50,000 Moslems, about 7,000 Christians and 4,000 Jews.

The entire area is caught up in the Israeli-Palestinian struggle since the old city is part of the land captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

Israel has annexed the walled city, which includes the last remnant of the ancient Jewish Temple, and surrounding Arab east Jerusalem into its capital. But the city's 140,000 Arab residents want to be part of a Palestinian state. The annexation of the territory also is not recognized by most foreign governments.

Palestinian Christians, whose numbers are shrinking compared to both Moslems and Jews, saw the settlement of the Jews under police guard as particularly offensive since it occurred during Easter week.

Today's colorful processions appeared to come off without any trouble beyond the usual pushing and shoving along the narrow stone streets.

As the Greek Orthodox began their procession at about 10:30 a.m., women ran from the crowd to kiss the 2-yard-long cross partly supported by Diodorus I, the Greek Orthodox patriarch of Jerusalem, who collapsed during the police tear gassing Thursday.

Waves of pilgrims were pushed along the Via Dolorosa, sometimes with Israeli police holding hands to clear a path.

Steers regain district track crown

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Steers shot themselves in the foot, recovered from the wound and battled back to win the District 4-4A track title Thursday night at Bobcat Stadium.

Coach Randy Britton's surprising Steers scored a second place in the 1600 meter relay, the last event of the meet, securing their third district crown in four years. The Steers won the title in 1987 and 1988.

Big Spring finished the meet with 113 points, and the San Angelo Lake View Chiefs were second with 110½ points. Favorite Andrews was third with 108 points.

Big Spring rebounded from a disqualification in the 400 meter relay. The Steers got fourth in the event, which would have given them eight points. But on the last handoff anchorman Deondre Hall ran out of the exchange zone before Waylon McGee could give him the baton, thus disqualifying the Steers.

Going into that last exchange, the Steers were battling for first, but the bad handoff enabled Sweetwater, Andrews and Pecos to gain too big of a lead.

Of the previous district championships, Britton said this one was the sweetest. "We dug ourselves in a hole, and had to dig ourselves out," said Britton. "The kids responded to the challenge, this is the best district championship of all the three, because on this squad we had less depth than the other squads. After the sprint relay, I just told them we had to pick it up and go, an thy did."

The three race battle between the Steers, Lake View and Andrews was close all the way. After the field events, Lake View led Big Spring 44-40, and Andrews had 16 points.

SAN ANGELO — Brenda Johnson (right) gets a helping hand from teammate Bernadette Valles just after Johnson had run the District 4-4A 3200 meter run Thursday night at Bobcat Stadium.

Lake View's lead grew after the Chiefs went one-and three in the 3200 meters.

But Big Spring and Andrews diligently whittled away at the lead in the other running events. With seven events left, Lake led Big Spring 80-54, and Andrews had 39. With four events left Lake View had 81½ points, Big Spring had 71 and Andrews 68.

Going into the 1600 meters, the next-to-last event of the meet, Lake View scored heavily, winning the top three places. Big Spring's Chris Polyniak unleashed a strong kick in the last 200 meters, moving him from eighth to fourth, giving Big Spring four points in the race. Andrews was shutout in the event.

Going into the 1600 meter relay, Lake View led with 106½ points, Big Spring had 97 and Andrews had 96.

That's when the Steers relay foursome of Nick Roberson, Waylon McGee, Rye Bavin and Chris Minter went to work. The team responded with a season-best 3:23.20, finishing second behind Sweetwater and giving the Steers 12 points. Meanwhile Andrews finished third for 12 points, and Lake View was fifth, good for four points.

When it was all said and done, Big Spring was the champs.

Roberson, a sophomore, who also finished fourth in the 800 meters, led off in a 52.3, putting the Steers in fifth. McGee, the talented freshman who was second in the triple jump and 200 meters, brought the baton around to second, running a 51.3.

Bavin, Big Spring's only double winner, winning the hurdles, stayed in second with a split of 50.5. Then Minter, the 800 meter winner, anchored in a blazing 48.2.

Bavin was in complete control in winning the 110 (14.40) and 300 hurdles (38.90). In both races he took the early lead, and never let up. "I got a good start in the highs (110). I was just trying to stay ahead and hold the lead," said Bavin. "I was concerned about Collins (Andrews' Shawn Collins) because he ran a 14.6 in the prelims. In the intermediates I wanted to get the lead, and just run hard down the backstretch. I kind of glanced back at the last hurdle and saw I had a pretty good lead. It was my best time of the year."

A near double winner for the Steers was weightman Pete Buske, who was second in the shot put (49-8) and won the discus with a throw of 169-0. His discus throw tied a three-decade old school record set by Frosty Robinson in 1954.

"I threw it on my fifth throw, and it felt real good. It hit on the 170 mark, I thought I had the record," said Buske of his discus toss. "We really didn't have a good wind today. I was a little shaky in the finals because in the prelims I threw my first one out of bounds, my second one 150 and scratched on my third one."

Celtics cool Heat

By The Associated Press

Anything the Miami Heat can do, the Boston Celtics can do better.

Miami shot a blistering 88 percent (22 of 25) in outscoring Boston 47-31 in the third period, rallying from a 61-47 halftime deficit to a 94-92 lead.

So Boston promptly outscored Miami 47-24 in the final period as Larry Bird scored 21 of his 40 points and beat the Heat 139-118 Thursday night.

And while the Celtics shot "only" 71 percent in the final period, they were 100 percent at the foul line for the game — 35 for 35, the second-best free throw performance in NBA history.

The 47 points are the most Boston has allowed and scored in one period this season.

"A great player took it from us," said Miami rookie Sherman Douglas, who scored a career-high 37 points. "What can you say? He's taken it from a lot of other people."

Mavericks 140, Warriors 133

Sam Perkins scored 45 points, surpassing his previous career high by 13, as Dallas snapped a three-game losing streak and all but ended the Warriors' playoff chances. Golden State took a 109-107 lead into the fourth quarter but Perkins keyed a 9-0 Dallas run to open the period.

Just two minutes into the second half Perkins had tied his previous high of 32 points. He also had 13 rebounds and seven assists. Roy Tarpley had a season-high 27 points and also grabbed 15 rebounds for Dallas while Rolando Blackman had 20 points and 10 assists. Tim Hardaway's career-high 28 points and 15 assists topped the Warriors while Mitch Richmond had 27 points and Chris Mullin 21.

76ers 110, Timberwolves 77

Ron Anderson's 20-point performance in relief of a hobbled Charles Barkley paced Philadelphia to its 10th win in 12 games. Hersey Hawkins scored 19 points and Rick Mahorn grabbed 11 rebounds for Philadelphia. Tyrone Corbin scored 12 and Tony Campbell 11 for Minnesota, which managed only 34 points in the second half.

Knicks 108, Pacers 100

Patrick Ewing scored 40 points on 18-for-26 shooting and grabbed 15 rebounds as New York slowed Indiana's playoff drive. Ewing hit four key baskets in the final 4:23 after the Pacers, who led for less than two minutes in the game, tied the score 95-95 while the Knicks' All-Star center was on the bench with five fouls.

Indiana, seventh in the Eastern Conference, leads Atlanta and Cleveland, tied for eighth, by two games in the race for the last two playoff spots. Reggie Miller led the Pacers with 29 points and Rik Smits scored 18, all in the second half.

Jazz 107, Lakers 104

Karl Malone scored 45 points and grabbed the game's key rebound as Utah, after blowing a 23-point lead, came back to beat Los Angeles in the final eight seconds. John Stockton had 15 points and 23 assists as the Jazz evened the season series with the Lakers at 2-2.

Down 67-44 3:14 into the third period, the Lakers roared back behind James Worthy, who scored 25 of his 33 points in the second half, and took a 104-103 lead with 1:05 remaining. After the Lakers missed a shot, the Jazz took a timeout with 12.2 seconds remaining. With 7.3 seconds left, Darrell Griffith scored to put Utah ahead and was fouled.

NEW YORK — New York Knicks Brian Quinnett (23) scores against Rick Smits of the Indiana Pacers Thursday night.

Griffith missed the free throw but Malone rebounded, was fouled and made both shots. Magic Johnson had 20 points and nine assists for the Lakers.

Suns 116, Kings 114

Tom Chambers hit a five-foot shot with 1.5 seconds left as Phoenix handed Sacramento its fifth straight home loss. Kevin Johnson scored 32 points as Phoenix won its third straight and remained one game ahead of San Antonio in the battle for fourth place in the Western Conference.

Eddie Johnson scored 12 of his 29 points in the final quarter for the Suns. Wayman Tisdale led Sacramento with 29 points while Danny Ainge and Rodney McCray each had 21.

Spurs 105, Clippers 98

Willie Anderson matched his season high with 26 points, including 12 in the final nine minutes, as San Antonio came from behind. David Robinson's 32 points led the Spurs, who have won 51 games, 30 more than last season. The Clippers were paced by Danny Manning's 23 points. Benoit Benjamin had 21 and Charles Smith 20.

Baseballers keep winning; hold off Monahans Loboes

MONAHANS — The Big Spring Steers scored all of their runs in two innings, and held on to beat the Monahans Loboes 8-6 here Thursday night.

With the win, Big Spring improves its record to 5-2 in league play, 15-5 overall. Monahans drops to 2-5 and 8-10.

Starter Shane Myrick notched his fourth win of the season in six decisions in this weather-shortened game. The contest was called after six innings of play because of rain, lightning and hail. Neal Mayfield pitched the final two innings in relief for the Steers.

The Steers scored five runs in the second inning and three more in the third to secure the win.

In the second, Abel Hilario led off the inning with a single to right field and Eric Torres followed with a base hit to center. Michael Hilario walked, loading the bases for Freddy Rodriguez.

Rodriguez flied out to left for the first out of the inning. Next, Pat Chavarria reached base on a fielder's choice, scoring Abel Hilario with the game's first run. With two outs Marvin Rubio singled, scoring Hilario. Next Shannon Coats reached base on a throwing error by the third baseman, allowing Chavarria and Rubio to score. Jon Downey followed it up with a single and Coats scored on Robert Perez's double.

In the third Torres led off the inning with a single. The Steers loaded the bases when Michael Hilario walked and Rodriguez singled. Chavarria singled, scoring Torres and Michael Hilario. Chavarria eventually scored from third on a passed ball.

Steers coach John Velasquez praised the pitching of Myrick and relief work of Mayfield. He also noted good defensive jobs by catcher Torres and right fielder Chavarria.

The Steers will host the league-leading Andrews Mustangs Tuesday at 4 p.m. at Steer Field.

Steer golfers headed to regional tourney

PECOS — The Big Spring Steers earned a trip to the regional golf tournament finishing second as the last district round was concluded Thursday.

The Steers, who led for the first two rounds, couldn't overtake the Monahans Lobos, who shot a 292. Big Spring, led by Charlie Garcia's 74, shot a 300. Monahans finished with a four-tournament total of 1205, 15 strokes ahead of Big Spring.

Sweetwater was third with a 1235 and Andrews was fourth at 1244. Garcia, a sophomore, finished sixth in the medalist race, with a 302. Monahans' Steve Ward won medalist honors with a 285.

"I was especially proud of the whole team, we played very consistently throughout district," said Big Spring coach Don Cook. "We had two players make all-district, Charlie Garcia was number six medalist, and Chad Freeman was number 10 medalist."

"We also had three other varsity members make honorable mention, Eric Lusk was number 12 medalist, Jon Sims was number 13 medalist, and Jon Hernandez was number 15 medalist.

"Freshman Kyle Plumlee was 21st medalist and theother JV players James Welch, Bo Hodnett and Daniel Escanuela had a good year. They have a lot to look forward to next year."

The Region I-4A Tournament will be April 23-24 at San Angelo's Bentwood Country Club.

Lady Steer linksters finish season in fourth

MONAHANS — The Big Spring Lady Steers closed out their golf season by shooting a 378 here Thursday, thus finishing district in fourth place. The Lady Steers had a four-tournament total of 1564.

The Andrews Lady Mustangs, the defending state champions, shot a 331 to close out their district championship. Andrews finished with a 1358 total. Also heading to regional is Snyder, which finished 97 strokes behind Andrews. Snyder shot a 357.

Fort Stockton shot a 372 Thursday to finish third overall. The Lady Prowlers finished 62 strokes ahead of Big Spring.

Junior Kim Locke, an all-district golfer for the third straight year, led Big Spring with an 87. She finished seventh in the medalist race with a 365 total.

"I was very excited for all the young ladies because they really competed with the elite teams head-to-head," said Steers coach Dwight Butler. "Again they broke another school record, by shooting a sub-par 400. That makes three of our four rounds sub-par 400, a record."

"We really hate to lose senior Leigh Corsan, but we have some freshmen who seem to have the desire to want to work hard to push for a varsity spot next year."

Women want to enter sumo circles

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese women's rights group is asking the question: Why are women excluded from the sumo ring? The answer they're getting: Because it's always been that way.

Saying sexism no longer has a place in Japan's national sport, the Women's Action Group has challenged the Japan Sumo Association.

"I don't know why, it's just been that way since long, long ago," said an association official.

Starling ready to challenge

Michael Nunn

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Marlon Starling doesn't consider it a big deal to move up two weight divisions and challenge Michael Nunn for the middleweight title. The welterweight champion has even weightier goals in mind. "I wouldn't be surprised if I fight for the light heavyweight title next year," said Starling, who fights Nunn Saturday night for the International Boxing Federation version of the 160-pound title. "When I get down to welterweight, I look poor, like I'm suffering from malnutrition."

Starling tries to become the first reigning welterweight champion to capture the middleweight title since Emile Griffith took a unanimous decision over Dick Tiger on April 25, 1966. After 11 years of fighting at 147 pounds, Starling has declared himself something of a weight division free agent, ready and willing to fight at anywhere from 140 pounds to 175 pounds. "I'm like Sugar Ray Leonard; I'm a money weight fighter," said Starling, who will earn $675,000 to fight the undefeated Nunn. "Wherever the money is, I'll fight at that weight."

Starling's World Boxing Council welterweight title won't be at stake against Nunn, who will be making the fourth defense of the IBF title he won in July 1988 from Frank Tate.

The financial future of the veteran fighter, however, is in a bout that could catapult him into some big-money fights should he manage to upset Nunn.

"He can make a lot of money by beating a Michael Nunn," Nunn said. "But if I was Marlon Starling, I would have fought first in the junior middleweight division. He'll find that out in the ring Saturday night."

Starling and Nunn sparred verbally during their final pre-fight press conference Thursday at The Mirage, with Starling at one point suggesting the fight be a winner-take-all affair. "That's no problem," said Nunn, who will make $1.1 million. "Put your welterweight championship, too. I've always wanted to be the welterweight champion."

Odds-makers make Nunn a prohibitive 6-1 favorite, despite the middleweight champion's recent split with the Goossen brothers, who have trained and managed him since he turned pro six years ago.

Nunn has trained under former fighter Cassius Green since walking out of training camp three weeks ago in a dispute with the Goossens, who attended the press conference but did not speak to their fighter.

"I didn't realize what a big hotel this was," Dan Goossen said. "I've been here four days and this is the first time I've seen Michael."

Starling, the 31-year-old Hartford, Conn., fighter who has built a career of winning fights he wasn't supposed to win, is 45-5-1 with 27 knockouts. His last fight was in September when he retained his WBC title with a 12-round decision over Yungkil Chung in Hartford.

"One of these days people will realize I'm the best fighter out there," Starling said. "I can't win with the media, but I can win in the ring."

Starling will face a three-inch reach disadvantage and a five-inch height disadvantage against Nunn, a stylish southpaw who is 34-0 with three successful title defenses.

But he expects to enter the ring weighing the same 160-pound class limit as Nunn.

SAN ANGELO — Big Spring's Deondre Hall (second from left) takes off from the blocks in the finals of the 100 meters Thursday night. Right of Hall are Michael Horton of Pecos, Kelly Hubert of Andrews and Matt Carroll of Andrews. Hubert won the race in 10.7, Horton was second in 10.8 and Hall finished third in 10.9.

Minter kept his record unblemished in the 800, outspringing Lake View's Bryan Gayoso the last 70 meters. Minter's time was 1:59.60. "In this wind, as long as I'm under two minutes I'm all right," said Minter, whose best of 1:56.47 ranks fourth in the state. "I just moved up, I really didn't kick it in. I could have run faster."

McGee surprised the field with silver medals in the triple jump (40-4) and the 200 meters (22.50). In his specialty — the long jump — he finished fourth with a 20-7. "I figured I would be up there in the triple jump, but I didn't know I would finish second. I think I surprised a whole lot of folks. I think the triple jump might have wore me out for the long jump, I didn't jump like I should've," said McGee.

The Steers also got much needed points from Hall in the 100 (third) and 200 meters, (fourth); Kenny Everett in the high jump (third) and Stewart Sinclair in the high jump (fourth).

LADY STEERS SEVENTH

Coach Jay Kennedy's young Lady Steers team put up a game effort and scored 58 points to finish seventh. In the process, the Lady Steers qualified the 400 meter relay team, sophomore 3200 meter runner Brenda Johnson and quarter-miler freshman Annie Rodriguez to regional.

Fort Stockton claimed the girls championship with 107 points, followed by Sweetwater with 107 points and Snyder with 100.

The 400 meter relay foursome of Marta Mathews, Amber Grisham, Vernice Ross and Annie Rodriguez ran a season-best 51.70 to finish second behind Fort Stockton.

Juniors Mathews and Ross are the elder stateswomen on the relay. "We knew we had a good chance to make it to regional, plus we ran our fastest time of the year," said Mathews.

"Next time we run, we're going to beat Fort Stockton at regional," added Ross.

The Lady Steers got their first win of the day when Johnson pulled away on the last lap to win the metric two mile, running a season-best 13:12.00. "Going into the meet I knew I would be first or second because of my time. I really thought me and Ericka (teammate Ericka Franks who finished fourth) would get first and second," said Johnson.

"I sprinted it in the last curve. I was so tired I thought about quitting, but I knew I couldn't quit, because I wanted to go to regional."

Rodriguez took control of the 400 meters at the 150 meter mark, and simply ran away from the field. Her season-best time of 61.0 left her nearest competitor 15 meters behind.

seven points, four by Anderson, to seal the victory. Still trailing Midwest Division leader Utah by 2-2, the Spurs can break the all-time NBA record for improvement from one season to the next with three victories in their last five games.

Cavaliers 102, Bullets 100

Brad Daugherty scored eight of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as Cleveland moved into a tie with Atlanta for the final Eastern Conference playoff berth with five games remaining.

Washington's Jeff Malone led all scorers with 39 points, scoring 22 in the third quarter, making his first 11 shots before missing in the closing seconds of the period.

Rockets 117, Hornets 110

Akeem Oluajunon had 34 points and 19 rebounds as Houston reached the .500 mark (38-38) for the first time since Dec. 13. Buck Johnson, a fourth-year forward, added a career-high 30 points while Armon Gilliam led the Hornets with 30, 26 in the second half.

SuperSonics 113, Nuggets 103

Dale Ellis scored 15 third-quarter points as Seattle outscored Denver 37-20. Ellis, who made only one of six shots in the first half, hit six of eight in the third period.

WILLIAMS motor co

THANK YOU HOWARD COUNTY!
 This week marks a one year anniversary for me. One year I came to Big Spring as the result of purchasing Shroyer Oldsmobile/Pontiac/GMC here in town. In that year it was proven to me what I have heard many times in other parts of the country: Texans, especially West Texans are exceedingly warm and friendly people and will bend over backwards to live up to this ideal to make a newcomer and his family feel at home. I came to Big Spring (as did my sons) to what we feel is a growing town, and a town with promise. If my first year is any indication Big Spring and Williams Motor Co. will succeed and prosper. We at Williams Motor Co. look forward to serving Howard County for many years to come.
 Sincerely,
 Frank Williams

Words To Live By

Seeing the crowds, he went up on the mountain, and when he sat down his disciples came to him. And he opened his mouth and taught them, saying:

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

"Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be comforted.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth.

"Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be satisfied.

"Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God.

"Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

"Blessed are you when men revile you and persecute you and utter all kinds of evil against you falsely on my account. Rejoice and be glad, for your reward is great in heaven, for so men persecuted the prophets who were before you.

"You are the salt of the earth; but if salt has lost its taste, how can its saltiness be restored? It is no longer good for anything except to be thrown out and trodden under foot by men.

"You are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hid. Nor do men light a lamp and put it under a bushel, but on a stand, and it gives light to all in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father who is in heaven.

"Think not that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets; I have come not to abolish them but to fulfill them. For truly, I say to you, till heaven and earth pass away, not an iota, not a dot, will pass from the law until all is accomplished. Whoever then relaxes one of the least of these commandments and teaches men so, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but he who does them and teaches them shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. For I tell you, unless your righteousness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.

"You have heard that it is said to the men of old, 'You shall not kill; and whoever kills shall be liable to judgment.' But I say to you that every one who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment; whoever insults his brother shall be liable to the council, and whoever says, 'You fool!' shall be liable to the hell of fire. So if you are offering your gift at the altar, and there remember that your brother has something against you, leave your gift there before the altar and go; first be reconciled to your brother, and then come and offer your gift. Make friends quickly with your accuser, while you are going with him to court, lest your accuser hand you over to the judge, and you be put in prison; truly, I say to you, you will never get out till you have paid the last penny.

"You have heard that it was said, 'You shall not commit adultery.' But I say to you that every one who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart. If your right eye cause you to sin, pluck it out and throw it away; it is better that you lose one of your members than that your whole body be thrown into hell. And if your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away; it is better that you lose one of your members than that your whole body go to hell.

"It was also said, 'Whoever divorces his wife, let him give her a certificate of divorce.' But I say to you that every one who divorces his wife, except on the ground of unchastity, makes her an adulteress; and whoever marries a divorced woman commits adultery.

"Again you have heard that it was said to the men of old, 'You shall not swear falsely, but shall perform to the Lord what you have sworn.' But I say to you, Do not swear at all, either by heaven, for it is the throne of God, or by the earth, for it is his footstool, or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. And do not swear by your head, for you cannot make one hair white or black. Let what you say be simply 'Yes' or 'No'; anything more than this comes from evil.

"You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.' But I say to you, Do not resist one who is evil. But if any one strikes you on the right cheek, turn to him the other also; and if any one would sue you and take your coat, let him have your cloak as well; and if any one forces you to go one mile, go with him two miles. Give to him who begs from you, and do not refuse him who would borrow from you.

"You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, so that you may be sons of your Father who is in heaven; for he makes his sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the just and on the unjust. For if you love those who love you; what reward have you? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? And if you salute only your brethren, what more are you doing than others? Do not even the Gentiles do the same? You, therefore, must be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect.

"Beware of practicing your piety before men in order to be seen by them; for then you will have no reward from your Father who is in heaven. Thus, when you give alms, sound no trumpet before you, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may be praised by men. Truly, I say to you they have their reward. But when you give alms, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, so that your alms may be in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.

"And when you pray, you must not be like the hypocrites; for they love to stand and pray in the synagogues and at the street corners, that they may be seen by men. Truly, I say to you, they have their reward. But when you pray, go into your room and shut the door and pray to your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you. And in praying do not heap up empty phrases as the Gentiles do; they think that they will be heard for their many words. Do not be like them, for your Father knows what you need before you ask him. Pray then like this:

"Our father who art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come,
They will be done,
On earth as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread;
And forgive us our debts,
As we also have forgiven our debtors;
And lead us not into temptation,
But deliver us from evil."

For if you forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father also will forgive you; but if you do not forgive men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses. And when you fast, do not look dismal, like the hypocrites, for they disfigure their faces that their fasting may be seen by men. Truly, I say to you, they have their reward. But when you fast, anoint your head and wash your face, that your fasting may not be seen by men but by your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.

"Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust consume and where thieves break in and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

"The eye is the lamp of the body. So if your eye is sound, your whole body will be full of light; but if your eye is not sound, your whole body will be full of darkness. If then the light in you is darkness, how great is the darkness!

"No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon.

"Therefore I tell you, do not be anxious about your life, what you shall eat or what you shall drink, nor about your body, what you shall put on. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing? Look at the birds of the air; they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they? And which of you by being anxious can add one cubit to his span of life? And why be anxious about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin; yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which today is alive and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will he not much more clothe you, O men of little faith? Therefore do not be anxious, saying, 'What shall we eat?' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?' For the Gentiles seek all these things; and your heavenly Father knows that you need them all. But seek first his kingdom and his righteousness, and all these things shall be yours as well.

"Not every one who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven. On that day many will say to me, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and cast out demons in your name, and do many mighty works in your name? And then will I declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from me, you evil doers.'

"Every one then who bears these words of mine and does them will be like a wise man who built his house upon the rock; and the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house, but it did not fall, because it had been founded on the rock. And every one who hears these words of mine and does not do them will be like a foolish man who built his house upon the sand; and the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell; and great was the fall of it."

And when Jesus finished these sayings, the crowds were astonished at his teaching, for he taught them as one who had authority, and not as their scribes.

"Do not give dogs what is holy; and do not throw your pearls before swine, lest they trample them underfoot and turn to attack you.

"Ask, and it will be given you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For every one who asks receives, and he who seeks finds; and to him who knocks it will be opened. Or what man of you, if his son asks him for a loaf, will give him a stone? Or if he asks for a fish, will give him a serpent?

If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father who is in heaven give good things to those who ask him? So whatever you wish that men would do to you, do so to them; for this is the law and the prophets.

"Enter by the narrow gate; for the gate is wide and the way is easy, that leads to destruction, and those who enter by it are many. For the gate is narrow and the way is hard that leads to life, and those who find it are few.

"Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing but inwardly are ravening wolves, you will know them by their fruits. Are grapes gathered from thorns, or figs from thistle? So, every sound tree bears good fruit, but the bad tree bears evil fruit. A sound tree cannot bear evil fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. Thus you will know them by their fruits.

"Not every one who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven. On that day many will say to me, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and cast out demons in your name, and do many mighty works in your name? And then will I declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from me, you evil doers.'

"Every one then who bears these words of mine and does them will be like a wise man who built his house upon the rock; and the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house, but it did not fall, because it had been founded on the rock. And every one who hears these words of mine and does not do them will be like a foolish man who built his house upon the sand; and the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell; and great was the fall of it."

And when Jesus finished these sayings, the crowds were astonished at his teaching, for he taught them as one who had authority, and not as their scribes.

Office recommends

TU rate reduction

AUSTIN (AP) — The state utility consumer office Thursday recommended the Public Utility Commission cut Texas Utilities Electric Co. revenue by at least 1.14 percent, or nearly $50 million.

Texas Utilities, which sells electricity to about one third of Texas, has asked the PUC for a 10.2 percent revenue increase, or $442 million.

But C. Kingsberry Ottmers, of the Office of Public Utility Counsel, said a reduction is necessary to ensure Texas Utilities customers aren't charged for costs linked to mismanagement of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant.

The plant, located near Glen Rose, 45 miles southwest of Fort Worth, is about 10 years behind schedule and will cost $11.6 billion to complete, Ms. Ottmers said. Comanche Peak's original price tag was $800 million.

She also said customers should not have to pay for Texas Utilities costs for $1.9 million in "image" advertising and $470,000 for personal use of company automobiles.

A reduction is further justified due to the declining cost of raising capital, reduced federal income tax rates and lower fuel costs, she said.

Ms. Ottmers said the final recommended reduction could be greater depending on the outcome of an investigation into how much of Comanche Peak's costs should be disallowed because of mismanagement by the utility.

USPS seeks to cool box flap

STANTON — Letters without post office box numbers will not automatically be returned, as indicated in a notice sent to area postal customers this week, said a U.S. Postal Service district official.

Instead, all attempts will be made to locate the boxes of rural and city box customers, said

"Mail is not going to be returned without the fullest possible means to get it to its correct box. If it does not have the proper address it's going to be handled manually and it's going to take a little time. It would help if they would include the post office box." — Adolpho Garcia.

Associate Office Coordinator Adolfo Garcia, who's supervisory area includes 62 post offices from Big Spring to El Paso.

If a box cannot be found for a letter, it will be sent to general delivery, as is the normal procedure, he said. Letters that cannot be delivered after 15 days will then be returned to the sender. Post office box numbers are not used in many small towns because clerks know what names go with which boxes, Garcia said. Also, he said, some agencies are apprehensive. BOX FLAP page 10-A

Problems plague '90 census

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Millions of Americans haven't sent back their census forms. Millions of others didn't get forms in the first place. Local governments are suing the Census Bureau.

All in all, the 1990 national head count is off to a rough start.

Years went into the planning before roughly 100 million census forms were sent to households at the end of March.

Promptly, things started to go wrong.

Forms began pouring into the bureau's Jeffersonville, Ind., clearinghouse. But they weren't completed responses from citizens. They were undeliverable forms being returned by the post office.

Census Director Barbara Bryant estimated Thursday that between 4 million and 4.5 million forms were undeliverable for various reasons, largely incorrect addresses.

That is being fixed by sending out workers to hand-deliver forms, she said.

But even many of those who received their forms haven't cooperated, Bryant said, pleading with those who haven't filled them out and mailed them back to "do it now."

If the response doesn't pick up, she said, the price of taking the count could escalate by $80 million.

Bryant said that so far only 57 percent of the forms delivered to American homes have been returned.

At that rate, she said, the total will be only 62 percent by the time the bureau starts sending workers out to count those who haven't answered, starting before the end of April.

Officials had hoped to get back 70 percent of the forms, and Bryant said counting people "on the

Pilgrims trace Christ's path in tense Jerusalem

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM — Christian pilgrims carried crosses along the traditional route of Jesus Christ's martyrdom today to mark Good Friday amid tensions over a Jewish settlement established in the Christian quarter of the old city.

Thousands of pilgrims began processions along the Via Dolorosa at 9 a.m., stopping to sing hymns and pray at the Stations of the Cross leading to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, venerated by many Christians as the site of Christ's tomb.

Dozens of paramilitary border police armed with assault rifles and tear gas grenades walked in the narrow streets of Jerusalem's old walled city along with Christians from around the world.

The heavy police presence followed rioting Thursday near the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, but most of the pilgrims seemed more intent on tracing the path of Christ than in getting caught up in the friction between Jerusalem's Christians and Jews.

"Jerusalem is beautiful. I could not imagine it until I saw it," said Mervat Azer, a travel agent from Jersey City, New Jersey. "We are praying near the place where Christ was buried. Tomorrow his light will be very bright."

Paul Christiansen of Copenhagen, Denmark, said he was saddened by the pain Jesus suffered on the cross and by the current religious trouble in Jerusalem.

"We noticed yesterday there was tear gas and fighting," said Christiansen, 29. "It is sad. Why it is necessary for people to fight?"

The rioting came as Christian clerics and their supporters protested the settling of 150 Jews in the old city's Christian quarter.

Police fired tear gas to disperse the protesters after a priest tore down a poster showing the Israeli Star of David that had been placed over a cross on the door of a disputed building.

Greek Orthodox Church officials maintain the sale of the building to the Israelis was illegal and have taken their case to court. Lower court rulings have said the Jewish settlers must return the property to the church, decisions which are being appealed.

Jerusalem's old city is divided into jealously guarded ethnic quarters that are home to 50,000 Moslems, about 7,000 Christians and 4,000 Jews.

The entire area is caught up in the Israeli-Palestinian struggle since the old city is part of the land captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

Israel has annexed the walled city. PILGRIMS page 10-A

Nine named to crop council

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

LENORAH — Seven farmers and two agricultural businessmen in the county were elected Tuesday to three-year terms on the 14-member Martin County Field Crops and Pest Management Committee.

About 60 farmers present at a meeting at the Grady High School gym also voted to add a $2 per bale collection on cotton brought to Martin County gins to help fund a bollweevil diapause program. The meeting was open to all farmers in the county.

Voted onto the committee from the south zone of the county were farmers W.D. Chandler, Mark Hirsch, Teddy Stuart and businessman Douglas Church.

Voted on from the north zone were James Davis, Ricky Hightower, Doyle Oaks, David Zant and businessman Ray Peacock.

Committee members not up for election this year were, from the south zone, Kyle Cook, Johnny Louder and John Smith, and from the north zone, Bruce Hill and Terry Nichols.

Nichols was elected as chairman of the committee, Hill as vice-chairman and Church as secretary-treasurer. They replace outgoing Chairman Bruce Key and Secretary-Treasurer Dave Decker.

The $2 collection of each bale of cotton replaces a $5 collection on each bale for the 1990 season that area producers voted on at a December countywide meeting. County Extension Agent Greg Jones said. The funds, which are used for a diapause program, are overseen by the FCPM Committee.

"A lot of farmers thought that $5 a bale was too high," Jones said. "Farmers at the meeting felt that with $2 a bale we'd have better participation."

Jones estimated that about 70,000-80,000 bales of cotton are produced annually in the county.

"Last year there were probably about 30,000 bales (in the county)," he said. "The year before that there was probably about 120,000."

In 1989, a volunteer collection of $1 per acre of cotton yielded a little less than $18,000, Jones said. In 1989 there was 99,417 acres of cotton in the county, he said.

 The diapause program FCPM Committee, could cost anywhere from $6,000 a year for field scouts and trap lines, and on up to $60,000-$80,000 for spraying if it is needed, Jones said. "In case we do have a problem with bollweevils, we need to be prepared," he said. Spraying was not needed last year. Farmers at the Tuesday meeting also heard a talk given by Roger Haldenby, the Plains Cotton Growers Coordinator for the High Plains Bollweevil Program. He told them that they will be running their bollweevil trap lines into Martin County to about the middle this year. Jones said the county extension office will still run their trap lines all over the county as usual.

 Garcia said another notice will be sent to postal customers to inform them of the proper procedures for handling mail.

"We want to reassure the customers by sending them another letter (saying) that we'll give it our best shot to get the box," he said. "We will put out something to that effect, I don't know when, probably sometime next week."

He said the original notice was put in boxes because of a manpower shortage at the four-person office. Stanton Postmaster Wanda Hankins retired at the end of March and a clerk, who is on leave now, is retiring at the end of this month.

"When you have an office that has four employees and you have two of them that retired, then it's kind of hard," he said. "We're trying to use personnel from Big Spring and Midland or any post office in the surrounding area that can help."

"(Hartfield) hasn't been able to get much help from Big Spring and Midland," he said.

Recruitment for a new postmaster began April 11 and will continue until April 25, said Q. Jarone Batson, USPS district office director of human resources in El Paso.

"We try to get a postmaster in there prior to three months but it should be much earlier than three months," he said.

Among other announcements was one that girls' softball will be beginning soon. Also, it was noted that there will be a meeting of the park association April 23.

Census

 Bryant said is being handled by hand-delivery of forms. That is still less than the 5 percent to 6 percent rate of nondeliverable mail sent out by commercial firms, she said. Several local governments announced Wednesday that they were filing suit, charging that the results — whatever they are — will be unfair.

Census figures are used to distribute seats in the House of Representatives and to allocate billions of dollars in federal funds. The cities and other local governments that sued contended their residents will not be fully counted, resulting in a loss of representation and money.

New York City was joined in the suit by Chicago, Los Angeles, Houston and Dade County, Fla., as well as the state of California, the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the NAACP and the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Among the reported problems:

- More than 100,000 forms in San Antonio and south Texas couldn't be delivered because of incorrect addresses, said Sen Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who also complained of a shortage of Spanish-language forms.
- In many communities like Ross, Calif., that still get their mail in post office boxes, the census forms had only street addresses — so the post office returned them.
- In New York City, forms sent to some giant apartment buildings failed to include apartment numbers. Without the numbers, mailmen couldn't deliver them to the residents. Some forms were reportedly left in lobbies.
- In Los Angeles, city attorney James Hahn estimated that the bureau had missed entire city blocks and apartment complexes, with up to 70,000 forms being sent back because of wrong addresses.
- Toll-free phone lines for people to call in were jammed and had to be expanded last week.

Today's colorful processions appeared to come off without any trouble beyond the usual pushing and shoving along the narrow stone streets.

As the Greek Orthodox began their procession at about 10:30 a.m., women ran from the crowd to kiss the 2-yard-long cross partly supported by Diodorus I, the Greek Orthodox patriarch of Jerusalem, who collapsed during the police tear gassing Thursday.

Waves of pilgrims were pushed along the Via Dolorosa, sometimes with Israeli police holding hands to clear a path.

The city was especially crowded because both the Eastern Orthodox churches and the Western Latin-rite churches were celebrating Easter on the same day.

The Easter celebrations by the two churches, which can sometimes be five weeks apart, also came amid the Jewish Passover festival and the Moslem's Ramadan month of fasting.

Israeli officials estimated 45,000 foreigners would visit Jerusalem during during Easter week.

In the past, scuffles have broken out on days in which the Latin and Orthodox Easter processions intersect, but Rene Koutroulis of New York City said members of the two churches seemed to have put aside their conflicts for the holiday.

"Everybody, I think, is united, and I see on their faces that they came in good faith," said Ms. Koutroulis, who is active in Greek-American welfare work. "Today we are united. Tomorrow we may fight again."

Garcia said another notice will be sent to postal customers to inform them of the proper procedures for handling mail.

"We want to reassure the customers by sending them another letter (saying) that we'll give it our best shot to get the box," he said. "We will put out something to that effect, I don't know when, probably sometime next week."

He said the original notice was put in boxes because of a manpower shortage at the four-person office. Stanton Postmaster Wanda Hankins retired at the end of March and a clerk, who is on leave now, is retiring at the end of this month.

"When you have an office that has four employees and you have two of them that retired, then it's kind of hard," he said. "We're trying to use personnel from Big Spring and Midland or any post office in the surrounding area that can help."
