Jail escapee sought in murder

BIG SPRING — Sheriff's deputies and Big Spring police officers had conducted six polygraph tests on suspects as of this morning in search of leads in the murders of Jeane and Lloyd Davidson.

The Big Spring couple was found stabbed to death in their mobile home on April 19.

Investigating deputy Jack Howard confirmed that Lynn County Jail escapee Gabriel Barraza is a suspect. "And he'll remain one 'til we can have a chat with him," he said. Barraza, who escaped on April 15, is still at large.

Howard and Detective Brent Nichols are conducting the investigation and have interviewed 15 people so far, he said.

"And we've probably got that many more left to go," said Howard. "We'll spend the rest of this week doing interviews."

Texas Ranger John Billings is examining the investigation's paperwork for the county and city. "He's a good source of information and he gets it much easier than we do through the Rangers," Howard said.

Absentee voting ends Tuesday

BIG SPRING — Tomorrow is the last day to vote absentee in the County Clerk's office for Big Spring Independent School District and Howard College board members, as well as at the Central Fire Station for city elections.

County Clerk Margaret Ray said voting has been very slow. In the BSISD election, 25 people have voted in District 3 and four have voted in District 1. Fifty-nine people have voted in the Howard College election.

Assistant City Secretary Lana East said that by this morning, 215 people had voted absentee over the two-week period. City residents wanting to vote absentee may cast ballots at the Central Fire Station next to city hall until 5 p.m. Tuesday.

One-car accident wipes out TU pole

BIG SPRING — An early morning one-car accident on Sunday wiped out a TU Electric pole in the 100 block of Northwest Sixth Street.

According to the police report, a 1980 Chevrolet Blazer driven by Carlos Burrolas Marquez, 29, 408 N. Gregg, left the eastbound lane of Northwest Sixth and struck a light pole. Damage to the pole was estimated at $1,500.

Marquez, who was not injured, was cited for no drivers license and no insurance. The report said that factors contributing to the accident included alcohol and driver inattention.

BSISD driver wins bus rodeo

COLORADO CITY — Roping and riding may not be a part of this rodeo, but driving, turning, loading and unloading were.

School bus drivers from all over crossroads country competed in those events and more over the weekend, testing skills and knowledge of rules and regulations.

Linda Willadsen, a 12-year driver for Big Spring Independent School District, won third place in the meet and a place in the state competition. Willadsen won a trophy, jacket, $125 and a $50 gift certificate.

"We're real proud of her," Transportation Director Howard Stewart said. Willadsen won the regional contest in 1985 as well. The state meet is set for June 20 in Arlington.

Events included a written test which required studying a 50-page pamphlet of regulations. Drivers had to perform a bus inspection, given only five minutes to find six problem spots set up by judges.

Arsonist sought in fire

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — Arsonists struck twice over the weekend, setting fire to an apartment/garage and an empty duplex.

Fire Marshal Burr Lea Settles said a garage at 500 Douglas St. caught fire at about 11:53 p.m. Saturday. The garage, owned by Leslie Lloyd, was being converted into an residence, he said, and was occupied by Irene Ruiz.

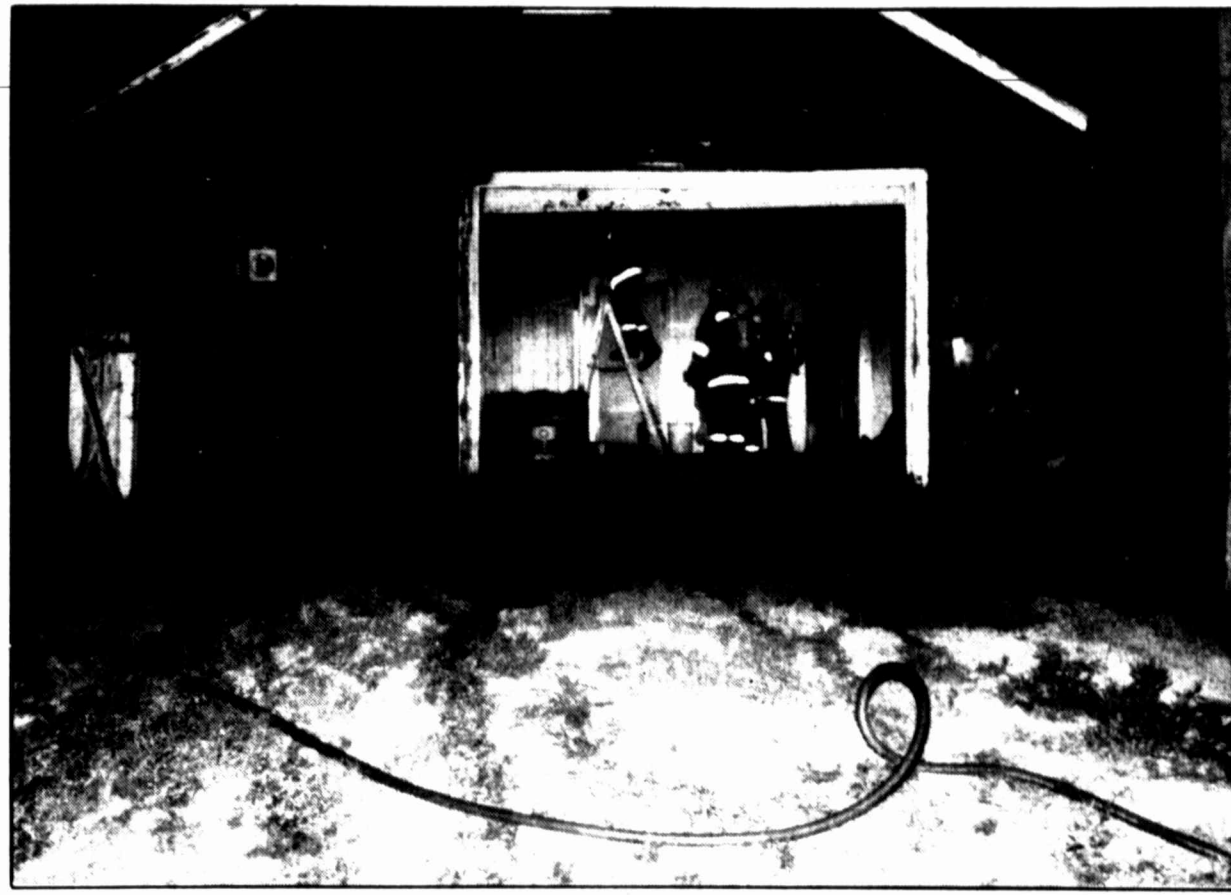

"We found evidence that showed that the house was intentionally set," Settles said. "We have some suspects. I've got some people that supposedly had reason to do it."

"I'll be working that case. I took some samples that I'll be sending in," for analysis, he said.

Settles said no one was injured in the blaze, which caused losses totaling $500.

A second fire was set at 8:30 p.m. Sunday in an empty duplex at 2510 Gunter St.

"That was also intentionally set by some juveniles," Settles said. The fire was started in a bedroom, he said, and it caused damage totaling $150.

"As it turned out, a neighbor saw the fire and was able to extinguish it before any extensive damage occurred," he said.

Settles said the other half of the duplex, which is owned by Hodges and Hodges of Hillside Properties, was not damaged in the fire although it apparently was vandalized during the incident.

Authorities are investigating the blaze, he said, and the juveniles and their parents are being questioned. The case eventually will be turned over to juvenile authorities for any further action, he said.

Schools: system near collapse

FORT WORTH (AP) — Several teachers at the Texas State Teachers Association convention say Gov. Bill Clements has pushed the school system to the brink of insolvency.

Many teachers attending the weekend convention here gave Republican Clements an "F" for his refusal to sign a $555 million school reform plan, based on a half-cent sales tax increase, which the Legislature approved last week.

Clements has vowed to veto the bill today — one day before a court-ordered deadline to produce a more equitable school-finance system.

TSTA President Ollie Besteiro said the governor's expected veto may force local school districts into a corner.

If the $555 million reform plan — which includes $114 million in budget cuts — is axed, Ms. Besteiro said school systems will have to raise property taxes.

Pioneer Days proves popular

By DEBBIE LINCECUM

BIG SPRING — Learning about the past was the theme of "Pioneer Days" Saturday at the Heritage Museum. A local women's club sponsored the event for children to spark interest in the museum.

Big Spring Junior Woman's Club set up four categories of activities with a pioneer flavor in the vacant lot across from the museum. Chores, games, entertainment and barnyard animals, as well as museum tours offered a look at history for kids and their parents.

Visitors learned how to make felt out of wool freshly sheared from a sheep. Spinning and weaving, scrub-board clothes washing and butter-making rounded out the chores.

Games like jump-rope and cat's cradle with string introduced kids to life without TV, club president Nancy Welch said.

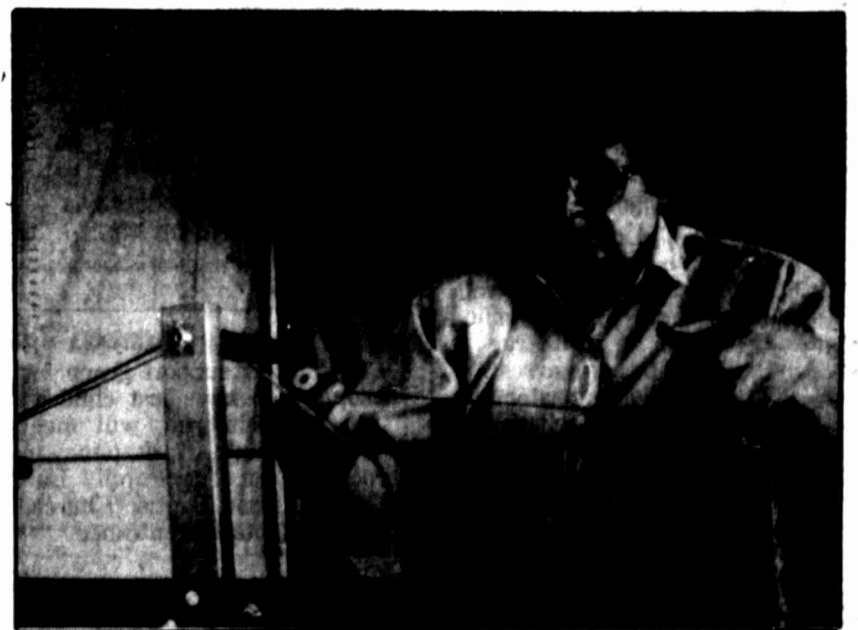

"I think we are exposing them to an alternative to TV and we all know that is a good thing," she said.

A fenced area became the temporary home for sheep, goats, a pig and a miniature horse for the day.

Corvette crash

BIG SPRING — Police were called to this collision between a 1975 Corvette and a 1984 Ford pickup at 7 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of FM 700 and Goliad. Three people were taken by ambulance to Scenic Mountain Medical Center: Roy Lynne Thornton, 35, 814 W. 8th; Daphne Crane, 25, 2102 S. Main; and Marvin Altom, 58, Big Spring. Thornton and Crane were treated and released, a hospital spokeswoman said, and Altom was listed Monday morning in very stable condition. According to the police report, the driver of the pickup, Altom, was turning south onto Goliad when his truck was struck by Thornton's Corvette, which was eastbound on FM 700. Altom was cited for failure to yield right of way turning left and no drivers license.

'Yuppie' bats want more than a belfry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is it a laundry hamper? A mailbox? No — it's a bat house.

Thousands of oblong-shaped, bottomless bat roosts are popping up on tree branches, house walls and garden poles throughout the country.

Forget your belfry. These wooden structures provide partitions and perches so that bats can hang out with some measure of privacy during the daylight hours.

But when the sun sets and the mosquito swarms shatter the calm of the night, the bat patrols swoop into action. One brown bat, the most common species in the United States, can gobble 500 mosquitos an hour, according to Bat Conservation International. Your ultraviolet mosquito zapper can't improve on that batting average.

BCI, a non-profit group based in Austin, Texas, battles the extinction of bats around the world and debunks commonly held fears about the warm-blooded mammals. "Most people still believe bats are blind flying mice that spread disease, suck blood from your neck and get caught in women's hair," said Gary Graham, associate director of science at BCI.

"Wrong, on all counts." Bats are more closely related to men than to mice, only about one-third of 1 percent are vampires, and those all live in Latin America and other parts of the world, Graham said.

Bats can see just fine. But to help them fly in the dark, they have a sonar system that emits high-pitched sounds. The echo helps direct them to insects. "The system is so sophisticated they don't bump into women's heads," Graham said.

As for disease, only 15 people in the United States and Canada are known to have died in the past 40 years of rabies transmitted by bats, far fewer than die annually from sick dogs or other pets, BCI

Treaty Oak trial to start today

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 10 months after he was arrested, Paul Stedman Cullen was scheduled to stand trial starting today in the herbicide poisoning of the historic Treaty Oak.

Cullen, 46, is charged with criminal mischief and could be sentenced to life in prison if found guilty because of prior convictions.

The attack on the tree, an Austin landmark estimated to be several centuries old, shocked city residents and touched people around the world. Many sent get-well cards to the tree or stopped to write messages and leave tokens of good will.

Cullen, who was living in the back of a truck when he was arrested, was accused of poisoning the tree with the herbicide Velpar during a ritual.

Much of the tree is now dead, although one section of Treaty Oak may survive, officials said. Legend has it that Stephen F. Austin signed a treaty with the Indians under the tree.

Choirs perform for Dallas homeless

DALLAS (AP) — About 20 gospel groups, choirs and soloists performed at a benefit concert for the homeless of Dallas on Sunday but some of the homeless wouldn't go in because they didn't feel worthy.

The Hope for the Homeless, Gospelfest '90, drew about 1,500 who were asked to make donations but were charged no admission.

"If they aren't giving now, they will later," said Patrice Hampton, a volunteer usher from the Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Concert organizers said the money collected will be used to find housing for single-parent families and to help single parents find job training.

Several street people were outside the luxurious Morton H. Meyerson Symphony Center where the concert was held, but few ventured in to listen to the music.

Joseph Arega said he was afraid to go inside. "I'm not that clean," he said.

Minister arrested for feeding homeless

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Fort Worth minister and former candidate for governor remained jailed this morning after being arrested on his way to feed and minister to the homeless.

The Rev. W.N. Otwell, who preaches regularly to street people in downtown Fort Worth, was being held at the Tarrant County Jail after his arrest Sunday on 13 counts of violating a city health ordinance, said City Marshal Norman Donoho.

"As I understand it, he didn't purchase a (food-service) permit from the health department and has not allowed his food to be inspected," Donoho said.

Otwell's bond was set at $2,957. His son, Rocky Otwell, also was being held today in lieu of $500 bond on a charge of hindering his father's arrest.

The Fort Worth pastor has previously said he believes he shouldn't be forced to get a permit to help the homeless. The permit costs $25.

'Flying Dutchman' dies at age 82

WHITEHOUSE (AP) — O.L. "Dutch" Tenant, who wrestled professionally across the southern United States as the "Flying Dutchman," died of cancer Saturday at a nursing home in this East Texas town. He was 82.

Tenant was a pro wrestler from 1925 to 1935, then he became a machinist after retiring from the ring.

During World War II, he worked as a contract machinist rebuilding the shipyard damaged in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and he performed in benefit wrestling shows for servicemen.

Services for Tennant are scheduled for Monday in Dallas.

MOUNTAIN HOME — Would-be cowboys and cowgirls drive a herd of about 70 longhorn steers from the U.S. and Canada paid as much as $767 for the wild west weekend at the 50,000 acre ranch.

Neiman Marcus dudes live fantasy

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — With 400 cowboys herding only 75 cows, it may not have been a completely authentic "Old West" Longhorn cattle drive.

But for 150 mail-order greenhorns — one of whom said the only horse he had ever ridden had been "on the carousel in Central Park" — Saturday's roundup at the Y.O. Ranch was a fantasy come to life.

The tenderfeet paid $627 to $767 for the chance to "saddle up and ride into history," offered through the 1989 Neiman Marcus Christmas catalogue, known for its expensive and unusual offerings.

"I feel like a little kid living 'Cheyenne,' like any minute James Arness or Clint Walker is going to come riding up the hill. I'm having a ball," said Peggy Weitzman, an Englewood, New Jersey fashion saleswoman.

"We've traveled a lot together, to Tibet, Mongolia, so whatever each area has to offer, we like to take part in," said Jeanette Dickens, of Washington, D.C., who hit the trail with her mother, Jean Gardner.

"We've ridden camels and elephants, so why not this?" added Ms. Gardner of Tampa, Fla.

Doctors, psychologists, college professors and business people from 25 states and Canada spent the day on the range for the 110th anniversary of the 40,000-acre Y.O. Ranch, deep in the Texas Hill Country, where more than 1,000 Longhorn roam.

The 150 slots for the roundup sold out in two hours, said Pat Zajac of Neiman Marcus.

The dudes started the day by swaggering to the corral in spanking-new Western gear, many wearing leather chaps, cowboy hats and dusters.

But some hesitated as they were paired with horses.

"Is it anything like riding a dirt bike?" asked Wade Moody of Fort Worth.

"Four hundred riders, two covered wagons and a stage coach finally hit the trail under a sparkling Texas sky driving about 75 Longhorn cattle — steers that ranch hands said they had been "gentling down" all week.

The drive was led by Kenny House, the 74-year-old, gun-toting Deputy U.S. Marshal of Dodge City, Kansas, where the Western Trail, which started at the Y.O., ended in the old days.

Most of the "cowboys" looked fairly genuine, except for a few with designer purses looped over their saddle horns. Some said they were used to riding polo ponies or hunters at home.

But for others, it was all they could do to stay on their horses.

About a dozen didn't. "The first horse I got on bucked, and the second horse ran me out to the pasture. This one is fine," said Geraldine Graves, a Salt Lake City nursing student.

A few had doubts about the authenticity of the experience.

"This ranch is gorgeous. It's like riding in New York City, though, with all these people," said Beverly Rodriguez of El Paso, Texas.

Carolyn Simon, of Augusta, Georgia, said, "I think the old west might have been a little different from this — I don't think there would have been so many wranglers for this many cows. But it's fun."

Most said they were satisfied they had lived out a childhood dream, born of TV westerns and cowboy books. Stephen Henson, an ear, nose and throat doctor from Lafayette, Ind., said the drive made him yearn to punch cattle full-time.

"I'm going to turn in my resignation when I get home. I might even fax it, if they've got one back at the ranch," he said.

Walter Schreiner, part owner of the Y.O. ranch and trail boss for Saturday's drive, said the romantic image of the cowboy doesn't hold true nowadays. "Too many long hours, not enough pay, you've got to deal with the weather all the time," he said.

Still, he said he was glad the catalogue cowboys got to relive the past.

"We're just trying to show everybody a little bit of the old west and let them play cowboy for a day," he said. "It's as close as you can get."

Judicial reform left up to appeals court

AUSTIN (AP) — It's now up to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to decide whether at-large election systems Texas' nine most populous counties are unconstitutional.

The federal appeals court in New Orleans took up the case today.

Federal Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland last year declared that the countywide election systems illegally diluted the strength of minority voters.

Almost half the state's district judges are elected that way.

No immediate ruling is expected after the court hears oral arguments from each side, said Kelly Fero, spokesman for Attorney General Jim Mattox.

Bunton's ruling involved 172 of the state's 390 district judges, those in Dallas, Harris, Bexar, Tarrant, Travis, Lubbock, Midland, Ector and Jefferson counties.

His decision last year came on a lawsuit brought by the League of United Latin American Citizens and other minority rights groups who contended that the countywide elections violated the federal Voting Rights Act by discriminating against black and Hispanic voters.

Under Texas law, district judges are elected in partisan balloting every four years. They run at-large, meaning all voters in a county may vote in all judicial races.

Bunton said that system denies Hispanic and black voters "an equal opportunity to participate in the political processes and to elect candidates of their choice."

"This is a chance to find out what the laws are for the first time," State District Judge Sharolyn Wood told the Houston Chronicle. The Houston judge has intervened on the side of defendants in the case.

Although Harris County was not originally among those included in the lawsuit, Ms. Wood said alarm over the Midland trial and the effect of its outcome on judicial elections prompted her to intervene.

Bunton originally gave the Legislature until Jan. 3 to revise the judicial selection system, but Gov. Bill Clements failed to add the issue to the agenda of a November-December special session which approved workers' compensation legislation.

Bunton then issued an order on Jan. 2 calling for special, non-partisan elections in the 115 judgeships up this year. Bunton ordered elections based on sub-districts within the nine counties.

However, the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals blocked those elections to give the Legislature time to consider new election plans. Although lawmakers have been in back-to-back special sessions since Feb. 27, no judicial election plan has been approved.

And late last month, the appeals court said the Legislature didn't have to act until the state's appeal in the case had been decided.

Clements hailed that decision, saying it "provides the Legislature with sorely needed time to address the critical issue of judicial reform."

"Before any disruption of our judicial system is attempted, it is imperative that the U.S. Supreme Court be given the opportunity to review this case and determine what the law in this area actually is," the governor said.

But J. Eugene Clements, a Houston attorney representing Ms. Wood in the case, said the number of black and Hispanic judges in Harris County may in fact reflect the percentage of minority lawyers qualified to run for office. For this reason, the LULAC argument is flawed, he said.

In the appeal, each side has requested 45 minutes to present arguments before a three-judge panel.

Assistant State Attorney General Renea Hicks is expected to open with 15 minutes, followed by attorney Clements, arguing for Harris County, followed by an attorney representing judges in Dallas County. The plaintiffs' lineup was not clear.

Parents search McMartin School

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Convinced that their children were molested, angry parents are digging up the soon-to-be demolished McMartin Pre-School in a search for hidden rooms and tunnels.

A Superior Court jury acquitted Peggy McMartin Buckey of 12 charges and her son, Raymond, 31, of 40 counts in connection with the case last January.

Buckey is being retried on eight counts on which jurors deadlocked, a dramatically diminished number compared to the hundreds once described as alleged victims at the Manhattan Beach school.

More than a dozen former McMartin students had talked to prosecutors about a trap door, tunnel or secret underground room at the school, said Deputy District Attorney Roger Gunson, but none was ever found.

Only one student actually testified at the trial about a secret molestation room and he didn't indicate it was underground.

A search of the school years ago turned up no passageways or trap doors and no signs that floor tiles had been replaced or concrete had been patched, Gunson said.

Forbes downgrades Trump's worth

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Trump may not be nearly as rich as he claims, Forbes magazine says in an article that if true would bump the tycoon out of the world billionaires' club.

Forbes has slashed its estimate of Trump's net worth by more than $1 billion, to around $500 million. The magazine said it did so after examining non-public documents Trump submitted last year to a government body, which Forbes declined to specify.

Its May 14 cover story, which Forbes made available Friday, challenges Trump's claim in the documents to have a net worth of $1.5 billion. It also questions whether Trump's cash flow can cover the debt and interest payments on his vast holdings.

In its list of the richest Americans last October, the magazine itself put Trump's net worth at $1.7 billion, ranking him in a nine-way tie for 26th place. A $500 million net worth would have put him in a tie for 148th place.

Neighbors object to act of charity

DONNA RUSSELL

TRUMBULL, Conn. (AP) — Donna Russell says she was "called by the Lord" to open her expensive lakefront house to the homeless, but neighbors say even God's servants must obey man's laws.

Town zoning officials, acting on a complaint from a neighbor, have ordered Russell to stop taking in young homeless mothers and have threatened her with arrest.

The zoning law in this southern Connecticut community of 33,000 requires that three-quarters of the people living in a single-family dwelling be related by blood, marriage or adoption.

"This woman told me she only follows God's law — she doesn't have to follow man's law," said Vincent Smith, a neighbor who contacted zoning officials in December after Russell took in her first family.

MALDEN, Mass. — Fifi Reed, right, wife of American hostage Frank Reed, embraces her mother-in-law Leota Sprague, 91, the mother of Frank Reed. Reed's captors have announced he will be freed in the next few days.

Hopes high for release of second U.S. hostage

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A week after Robert Polhill's release kidnappers are promising to free another American.

FRANK REED

educator Frank Herbert Reed, and an Iranian newspaper has indicated Tehran is again intimately involved in the process.

The previously unknown Organization of Islamic Dawn issued two statements on Sunday saying the 57-year-old Reed, who was abducted in Beirut more than 3½ years ago, would be freed within 48 hours.

Three accompanying photographs of Reed proved the statements' authenticity. The pictures were the first of Reed to be released since his kidnapping.

In Iran, The Tehran Times today quoted an unidentified Iranian official as saying the promise of Reed's release followed "extensive talks" between the kidnappers and Iran.

It said the official noted that Iran had asked kidnappers to free another captive after the April 22 release of Polhill, the first American hostage held hostage in Lebanon to be freed since November 1986.

The English-language Tehran Times is considered close to Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani, who reportedly has been seeking the release of the seven Americans and 10 other Westerners believed held hostage in Lebanon.

Most of the hostages are believed held by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem groups. The pro-Iranian group Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine freed Polhill, 55, after nearly 39 months in captivity in what it called a goodwill gesture. President Bush thanked Iran and Syria for their help in securing the release — Polhill was delivered to Syrian troops in west Beirut.

Both countries are seeking improved ties with the United States in a climate of warming superpower relations and shrinking Soviet aid.

The first communique promising Reed's release was delivered around 6:30 p.m., meaning Reed would presumably be released by that time on Tuesday.

Execution video faked, experts say

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — A Romanian government videotape purporting to show the execution of Romanian dictator Nicolae Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, is faked in part, forensic experts here believe.

After examining a 90-minute tape shown last week on French television, the scientists doubt the official claim that the couple was killed by firing squad. Instead, they say the couple was apparently killed hours earlier with gunshots to the head.

The Communist dictator and his wife were tried and executed Dec. 25.

day that the only signs of fatal wounds on the bodies were in the right temples, indicating the Ceausescus had been shot in the head.

In the tape, the Ceausescus, hands tied behind their backs, appear in the video to have been gunned down with automatic weapons. But the camera angle is too low and the lens is obscured by gunsmoke, preventing a clear look at the couple being shot, experts say.

Le Ribault and others say the state of the bodies show the Ceausescus died hours before the medic checked them. The corpses were stiff with rigor mortis, and there was virtually no sign of blood on Nicolae Ceausescu.

Moscow tells details of U-2 incident

MOSCOW (AP) — When the Russians downed a U.S. spy plane in the famous U-2 incident 30 years ago, they also accidentally blew one of their own aircraft out of the sky, killing the pilot, the Soviet army newspaper has disclosed.

The U-2 plane, piloted by Francis Gary Powers, was shot down on May 1, 1960, disrupting a summit meeting 19 days later in Paris between President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Soviet leader Nikita S. Khrushchev and forcing the cancellation of another summit planned for later that year.

The newspaper Red Star said in the article Sunday that the Soviets mistakenly shot down a MiG-19 and its pilot in the operation. The paper also disclosed that the Soviets sent up a new fighter plane and ordered its pilot to ram the U-2 in a suicide mission. The new fighter reached the U-2's altitude but failed to ram it.

Powers' mission began in Pakistan and was to have carried him over Sverdlovsk for a landing in Norway.

He used neither the automatic destruction device nor poison he had been given in case the mission failed, and he was captured at a collective farm near Sverdlovsk. He was held for three years, then exchanged for the Soviet spy Rudolph Abel. Powers published his memoirs in 1970.

French ship to broadcast to China

SINGAPORE (AP) — A ship planning to beam pro-democracy broadcasts to China is due to arrive in Singapore on Wednesday, a spokesman said today.

The 1,200-ton Goddess of Democracy had been scheduled to arrive in Singapore on April 23. It sailed from France on March 17.

The ship is named after the Goddess of Democracy statue erected by pro-democracy demonstrators in Beijing's Tiananmen Square last spring. It was destroyed when troops suppressed the protests last June. Hundreds and perhaps thousands of people were killed during the crackdown.

The Chinese government has voiced strong objections about the ship, which plans to broadcast music, news and pro-democracy reports from international waters off the coast of China.

The Goddess of Democracy is sponsored by a coalition of groups headed by the French news magazine Actuel. It has the backing of the Federation for a Democratic China, a Paris-based Chinese dissident organization.

Opinion

"I may not agree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." — Voltaire

Opinions from across the U.S.

Breaking the poverty cycle

Somewhere, somehow we have to begin breaking the cycle of poverty and welfare that traps the children who have children.

Toward that goal, we support new federal rules aimed at encouraging teen-age parents on welfare to finish up their high school diploma or its equivalent.

The rules that go into effect in October are part of the welfare reform act. They will cut the child support grants for teen parents by almost half if they can't prove that they are working toward a basic education. That's not harsh; that's encouraging change.

In welfare jargon, the action is called a "sanction" — losing part of welfare benefits for not complying with the rules of the system. Sanctions are meant to be constructive, though when they are not applied with some common sense and understanding of personal situations, they can be detrimental.

But we can't imagine very many situations when a high school diploma or GED program would not be appropriate for a teen parent.

For the most part, the jobs in our society that mean financial security require a basic education. In the case of a teen parent, a decent job means financial security for two young people — the teen-ager and the young child. More importantly, education and a job would stop the cycle of welfare dependency at a time when the teen parents still have the flexibility to change their future.

(We have to be ready to offer more than just the requirement of an education. We'll have to provide both the education and the other support (like child care) that teen parents will need to make those changes.

The perils of childhood

No wonder there are problems in the schools. If youngsters 2 to 5 years old are watching television for 25 hours a week, as American pediatricians report, there is a good reason for problems.

The warning is based on a study by the American Academy of Pediatricians. The group cited data from A.C. Nielson Co. which shows that by the time one of today's children reaches 70, he or she will have spent seven years — one tenth of the life span — in front of the TV tube.

Watching TV is a passive, sedentary activity. As the doctors report, it can lead to obesity in children whose health would be much better served by sports and active play.

Much of television's programming is trivial tasteless fare, the equivalent of yesterday's pulp magazines. Spending that much time in such an undemanding pursuit leads also to obesity of the mind.

What's to be done?

The pediatricians recommend limiting children's viewing to one or two hours daily and encouraging them to spend other time in athletics, reading and hobbies. They also support legislation mandating broadcasting of high-quality programming for license renewal and requiring at least one hour a day of educational programs for children.

The real solution lies with parents. They need to recognize the perils of excessive TV viewing and to do something about it.

Gas from cows exempted

Talk about a moo-nt point!

Analysts are just getting down to reading all the fine print in the massive Clean Air bill. As one might expect, lawmakers have tucked in all kinds of perks or exemptions for special interest groups. Some amendments are utterly a-moo-sing. Take, for example, the section on cow exemptions.

Cows, like other creatures, generate stomach gas. They burp and make other noises because of that gas. When the gas is released, it is called methane.

But farmers don't have to worry, because the U.S. Senate has wisely exempted cows and other farm animals from the requirements of the Clean Air Act.

(No, we are not making this up.)

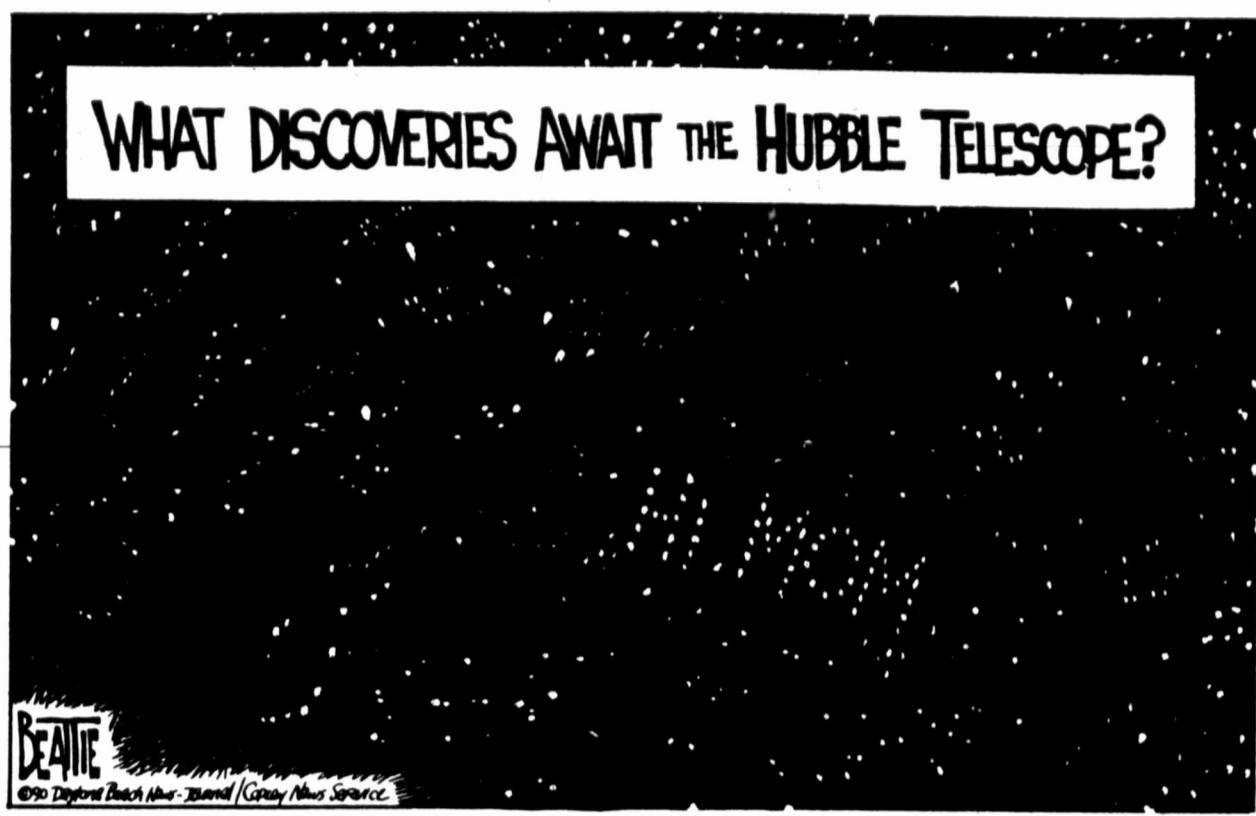

Congressional Quarterly reports that the bill, as originally reported out of committee, required a study of various sources of methane, including farm animals, which supposedly are among the nation's largest producers of the gas.

As the Senate debated the measure, cows were granted an exemption. The move drew sarcastic comments from Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, who said without the exemption, cows would need catalytic converters to reduce emissions.

It is funny, but it is also an example of how silly federal regulators can get sometimes. What if the study had found that cows do produce huge amounts of methane? What could we possibly do about it? Put them on a low-gas diet? Issue cow-sized antacids? Or, as Grassley suggested, maybe we could install gas collectors or pollution control units on the cows. Is there a market for cow methane?

This sort of silliness goes on too often in Washington, and it probably would be funnier if we weren't paying so much for it.

Get another driver, Miss Daisy

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

"Hoke, drive me to the Piggly Wiggly. I need to pick up some groceries."

"Nome, Miss Daisy. I don't think we should leave the house."

"What kind of foolishness is that, Hoke?"

"Didn't you know, Miss Daisy, that Atlanta has the highest crime rate of any large city in the country?"

"Where did you get such notions as that, Hoke?"

"It was in the paper, Miss Daisy. According to FBI statistics, Atlanta ranks number one in crime."

"That's silly, Hoke. Everybody knows that New York City has the highest crime rate. My son, Booli, went there once and somebody broke into his hotel room and stole his socks and underwear and he was wearing them at the time."

"Nome, Miss Daisy. New York was way yonder behind Atlanta in crime."

"Well, where was Detroit? I had a cousin who went to Detroit and somebody snatched a purse in front of the Ponchatrain Hotel."

"Detroit was fourth, Miss Daisy."

"That's nonsense, Hoke. Atlanta is a kind, genteel Southern city. I've never heard of anyone getting their purse snatched here."

"Yessum, Miss Daisy. My cousin was walking down Peachtree Street and somebody snatched her purse and hit her in the head to boot. In broad daylight, Miss Daisy, and she knows Kung Fu."

"That nice Chinese man who works for the Alexanders?"

"Nome, Miss Daisy. Kung Fu is a martial art. Didn't do my cousin no good to know it, though. The thief knew Tire Tool."

"Hoke, I have lived in Atlanta my entire life and we do not have a serious crime problem here. I don't know a single person who has been murdered."

"That's because you live in this rich, white neighborhood, Miss Daisy. Everybody up here dies from old age and colon cancer. In my neighborhood we don't need no alarm clocks. The ambulance wakes us up in the morning going to pick up another dead body."

"Well, why don't you move out from down there, Hoke?"

"And move up here next to you, Miss Daisy? I'd have to rob a bank to get that kind of money and you got to stand in line to rob a bank in Atlanta."

"It doesn't matter, Hoke. I still must go to the Piggly Wiggly. If you won't drive me I'll take a street car. I always took a street car when I was a girl."

"That was 65 years ago, Miss Daisy. They done put extra drivers on the street cars now to ride shotgun."

"I don't care, Hoke. Now I insist you go get the Hudson and take me to the Piggly Wiggly."

"Don't have the Hudson no more, Miss Daisy."

"What happened to it?"

"Your son traded it in for a Wells Fargo truck, Miss Daisy. You can't take no chances in Atlanta anymore."

"Well, why don't city officials do something about the crime problem in Atlanta?"

"They say they're working on it, Miss Daisy. But that them statistics is a lie."

"What do you think, Hoke?"

"I think I'm moving to Detroit, Miss Daisy. Here's the keys to the Wells Fargo truck. The shotgun's under the seat."

Around the rim

Where did your garden go

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

The city of Chicago has a serious problem. Police there say tree thieves are coming out of the woodwork.

So far this year, thefts from private lawns and nurseries have tallied 230 rosebushes, four Japanese yews, four bonsai trees and dozens of evergreens, especially small, ornamental ones.

I'm not sure what Japanese yews are, but its theft must be a hideous crime. Imagine waking up one morning, looking forward to a brand-new, dew-kissed morning. You take a sip of your freshly brewed coffee and glance out the window.

And you see nothing but a gaping, empty piece of ground where your beloved Japanese yew used to be.

It happened to Dorothy Hicks and her husband William. Mrs. Hicks told the Associated Press that she woke up one morning to find a hole where their prized 2-year-old juniper tree once stood.

"I went outside, and sure enough it was gone," she said last week. The thieves "must have kept shaking and shaking it and pulling and pulling. I could see track marks where it had been (dragged) across my sidewalk."

The little tree, trimmed to appear as if it had four pompons, was worth almost $80, she told the AP. She doesn't think she'll ever see it again.

Another juniper almost met a similar fate.

"One more pull, and they would have gotten it. They just left it... slumping over," she said.

Aside from putting lead on the trees to hold them down, Mrs. Hicks doesn't know what to do to protect her garden. "I paid enough putting a burglar alarm in the house," she said.

Mrs. Hicks could have suffered a worse fate. The thieves might have done more than steal one juniper and wound another. They could have rolled up the whole darn lawn, packed it in a truck and driven away with any dew-kissed mornings Mrs. Hicks might have thought about enjoying.

And what do thieves do with the goods. Well they don't take it down to the shady pawn shop — uglier things can happen. According to the AP, the stolen property can crop up anywhere — in the thief's garden, or fly-by-night nurseries.

Sadly, some of the greenery suffers a fate worse than an unfamiliar backyard. Some of it might be going to chop shops that graft and sell stolen trees, shrubs and plants.

The underside of Chicago isn't pretty.

Jim Hurst, a Chicago property crimes detective, doesn't think so either. It's a growing problem, and the crime can sprout anywhere in the city: about 80 trees, plants and lawns vanished overnight last year.

Hurst said it is almost impossible to catch the thieves. Chicago's finest got a break earlier in the month though, when a witness spotted a van parked in an alley shortly after a tree theft occurred at a garden center. A search revealed $2,100 in evergreens.

Yep, you guessed it. The van driver was charged with "grand theft tree."

Hurst said that most of the time it's not that easy.

"You put up a fence, they steal the fence," he said. "After the fence thief comes and steals your fence, then your tree thief steals the tree."

Why not plant a new idea in the minds of those thieves. Tell them there's money to be had in West Texas by the garden full. Convince them that the hottest, hippest, newest, most expensive new ornamental this side of Tokyo is just waiting to be ripped from the mother-earth right in good ol' Big Spring, Texas.

Then circulate a lovely full-color photo of our finest tumbledew so they'll know what to steal and everyone's problem is solved.

Community reunion

The 28th Annual Moore School and Community Reunion was hosted April 22 at First United Methodist Church.

Lawrence Adkins, reunion president, presided and welcomed the 51 former students, residents, teachers and guests. For the past 28 years the attendees have opened their reunion with the hymn "Amazing Grace" and this year was no exception.

The Moore School was constructed in 1906 on land donated by rancher Sid Moore. From that time until the building was destroyed by fire on Feb. 2, 1945 the school served both as a learning center and a community meeting place.

"In spite of the usual schoolground fights and quarrels, we loved each other," said the Rev. Wayne Cook, a former student and unofficial historian of the group.

Those in attendance for the first time were Neva Phillips, Elsie Lindley, and Willie Ivey. The oldest persons present were Twila Lomax, former teacher, and Fannie Kent. The Family with most members present was the Adkins with seven. Students present who actually attended Moore school numbered 28. Three former school teachers in attendance were Twila Lomax, Anna Smith and Ted Phillips.

The memorial list of 36 persons was read by President Adkins and the memorial prayer was voiced by Cook.

Refreshments and visitation was continued following adjournment.

The 1991 reunion will be April 21 at Garrett Hall.

Civitan's to meet

The Big Spring Civitan Club will have a membership meeting Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at 611 E. 3rd St. The meeting will be an opportunity for prospective members to learn about how Civitan clubs serve their communities.

Civitan's purpose is to provide programs for personal and professional development while encouraging service to the local community. Civitan has traditionally helped the mentally and physically handicapped, including premier sponsorship of the International Special Olympics. However, each club decides which service projects it will participate in and which groups and individuals it will assist, both internationally and locally.

Civitan was established in 1917 by a small group of businessmen meeting weekly and discussing how they could improve their community. In 1974, Civitan became the first major all-male service organization to decide by majority vote to admit women as equal members.

Today, Civitan has grown to nearly 60,000 members in 1,800 clubs throughout North America, Europe and Asia. For more information on the Big Spring Civitan Club, call Jim Potter at 263-8138. Potter serves as president of the local club.

The "Spring City Sparklers" is the Junior Civitan Club of Big Spring. It was chartered in December of 1988. It will also be meeting with the senior Civitans on Tuesday.

For additional information on the youth group, please call Carol Green at 263-6214.

Sew & Chatter meets

Nine members and one guest attended the Thursday meeting of the Sew & Chatter Club, with Allie Moore.

Dr. and Mrs. (Jane) Clyde E. Thomas Jr. presented the program on his early medical training, his life in the service, and his work in Big Spring until his retirement in 1989. Libbie Dirks presided at the business meeting.

Cookies were donated to the Big Spring taken to the State Hospital.

A brick in the name of the club for the Heritage Museum wall was ordered.

The next meeting will be May 9 with Norma Murdock.

Waiter gets valuable tip

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter from "Tony's Wife," the waiter's spouse who complained about a party who came in near closing time and sat around for a very long time — giving no consideration whatsoever to the waiter. (This was a five-star restaurant.)

I am a business executive now, but I worked as a waiter for a long time, so I feel qualified to comment. No one walks into a five-star restaurant for a "quick bite"; at those prices, the customers usually linger for a long time.

Tony's wife said the check was presented long before the party was ready to leave — hoping they would take the hint. Abby, this is unacceptable in a fine restaurant.

Tony's wife also complained about the 12 percent tip, saying it should have been 20 percent. How can she make that judgment? That's the customer's decision. Besides, 12 percent is not a bad tip; I always considered 10 to 15 percent from a new customer to be normal.

When I dine in a fine restaurant, I don't concern myself with how long the waiter has been there, or the fact that he may have an early-morning class. I just want good service, and I tip accordingly.

As a waiter, I welcomed the late stragglers, even though I had to get up early for my day job. I would then pamper those diners as much as they would let me, which was easy to do after the crowd was gone. I wanted those customers to come back and ask for me to serve their table. That's how a good waiter earns big tips.

If Tony's attitude is the same as his wife's, he's probably in the wrong job. — BEEN ON BOTH SIDES OF THE TABLE

DEAR BEEN: I'm sure you were a fine waiter — and are undoubtedly and equally a fine businessman. Serving the public in any capacity is no piece of cake, but it's a valuable learning experience. Where else can one learn more about the value of patience, self-control and humility?

DEAR ABBY: High school class-

Dear Abby

reunion committees are constantly searching for members of their graduation class with whom they have lost contact over the years. I have personally spent many hours making phone calls and writing letters in an effort to locate classmates and alert them to their class reunion.

Abby, if readers who have lost contact with their classmates would simply send a postcard or letter with their name, address and year of graduation to the high school from which they graduated, contact could be re-established.

Anybody who has experienced the joy of a high school reunion will understand why we continue the search. I assure you that many reunion committees will welcome your help in locating these former classmates. — LEONARD A. PORTZLINE, WEST FAIRVIEW, PA.

DEAR LEONARD: Great idea. Readers, address your cards or letters to: "The Principal" of good old "Hackensack High" — or whatever the name is.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 25-year-old female who enjoys jogging. Since I usually jog after dark, my dad follows me either on a bike or in his car.

On three separate occasions, one with a police officer, another with a businessman, and this final time with two young women, I was asked if I knew the man who was following me. I told them I did and thanked them. I was very grateful for their concern, as was my dad. Abby, please print this to let your readers know how important it is for them to get involved. One of these times, that one simple question may save someone's life. — GRATEFUL IN FRESNO

Golden Agers celebrate Easter

Easter was celebrated April 21 by the Golden Agers of the First Church of God of Big Spring.

Thirty members and guests were present for the Easter egg hunt. Each found his place at the table by his name on an Easter egg. Guests were Robert and Ilene Pickell with daughter, Susan Ottosen from Jackson and Grose Point Park, Michigan. The Pickells were here when Robert was attending the Bombardier Base in Big Spring; Dr. Joe Edwards Davis Jr., who graduated in 1934 with the highest grade point of any boy in Big Spring High School and was tennis champion at BSHS and Abilene Christian College (University); Lonnie and Evelyn Coker, Big Spring; and Roy and Irene Moad, Odessa.

Truett Thomas and Charles Harrington led the hymn, "He Lives," followed by Truett's reminiscing "Old Times" in the area. He told of the origin of the name, "Dead Man's Canyon" for the canyon on the old Harrington stock farm seven miles north and one mile east of Coahoma.

The body of a dead man was found on the edge of the canyon when Truett was a boy, with a newspaper under his heel addressed to Dick Madison Sr.

"I managed to get to the Madisons as often as my mother would turn her head to play with their numerous children," Truett said. "While I was there one day, two men, a tall one and a short one, came up the road. Mrs. Madison, a cautious mother, put us kids under the bed and asked them what they wanted, learning that they were hungry, she made sandwiches and wrapped them in a newspaper, being careful not to invite them in."

"When the investigators, including then Sheriff Jim Baggett, were through, they buried the body in the canyon, which was for everafter known as Dead Man's Canyon," Truett concluded.

Thomas and Harrington then sang, "Because He Lives," accompanied by Betty Reagan. Truett explained, "Juanita scheduled Betty and I to sing, but Betty doesn't like to sing and play the piano because she likes to see the people's faces as she sings, so Charles is singing."

The Rev. George Harrington, co-chairman then talked on "The Wonder of the Empty Tomb," naming the seven ancient wonders of the world and stating that only the pyramids remain of the seven wonders, the others having all crumbled along with the ancient world-powers.

"But another wonder of the ancient world is still very much alive today. This is the wonder of the empty tomb of Jesus at Jerusalem, which is more significant than all the other ancient landmarks put together," he stated. "When the body of Jesus was placed in the tomb, the forces of evil seemed to be victorious at last, but Jesus was raised on the third day. His resurrection proved that he was more powerful than sin, death and all other negative forces that Satan uses against us. Wonder of wonders, Jesus lives! And his dynamic power is available to all who place their faith and trust in him," Harrington concluded.

After explaining that the last words of Jesus, "It is finished" were the same words used in the victory cry Roman generals shouted from the mountain top to alert their soldiers that the 'battled is won', Charles Harrington sang, "It Is Finished".

Juanita Harrington, chairman, reminded that June would mark the one-year anniversary of Golden Agers and related that her life had been richly blessed by the organization. Louise Harrington, Odessa, presented her with an Indian doll made of black and green yarn.

Brother Darrell Hendrickson, pastor, sang "Calvary Covers it All" to conclude the luncheon meeting.

Family visit

Michael Moorehead, son of Gary

Faye Daughtrey, paid a visit March 30 through April 3 at Tommie's home in Colorado City, with his wife, Mary Margaret, Michael Jr., 4, and Morgan, 2. A daughter, Sharon Mook, her husband John, and Clayton, 10 and Heather, 14, also visited from Crane over the weekend.

The families visited Harroll and Maggie Harrington, Gary Faye's parents and the children's great-grandparents on April 1. While the grown-ups tried to keep warm in the house, the children played in Holler Canyon and declared it was warm.

Everyone enjoyed visiting and sharing a meal.

On Easter Sunday, the Harrington's daughters, Gary Faye and Tommie, Lillie Beth and Ronnie Sutphen of Clyde and granddaughters, Kyrena and David Webb and Matthew, 8, from Austin, came with dinner and enjoyed an Easter egg hunt.

The festivities included coloring and hiding Easter eggs, and dinner of ham, turkey, fried chicken and roast beef, chocolate pies, pineapple cream pie, cherry pineapple two-crust pie and salads.

Greg Harrington, the grandson that lives with the Harringtons, went to San Angelo to visit his mother, Belva.

Raymond and Rebecca Delator, Evelyn Delator's son and daughter-in-law are attending the Apollo Trade School in Tucson, Ariz., following his early discharge in September from the United States Navy. He is studying to be a legal assistant; she is taking the medical assistant course.

For eight years, Rebecca was in the U.S. Air Force in weather meteorology.

Parolee accused of two rapes in hearing

By ERIN BLAIR

BIG SPRING — A rape victim testified in a parole violation hearing this morning that Randall Ray Young threatened her with a knife, forced her to have sex with him and then stabbed her in her Big Spring home.

The alleged Jan. 26 aggravated sexual assault is one of two rapes Young is accused of committing while on parole. He has denied both assaults. Hearing officer Eddie Martinez is supervising the proceedings.

The rape victim said she was baby sitting a 2-year-old and a 3-year-old and had just put them down for a nap when she heard someone in the living room. She said a man she identified as Young was in the hall with a knife. He got behind her and held the blade to her throat, forcing her to drop her clothes, she testified, and then raped her and stabbed her in the buttocks.

"He told me if I ever told anyone, he'd kill me," the victim said, adding that when she fell to the ground, he kicked her in her side.

In questioning by Parole Officer David Harman, she said she had never seen her assailant before, that he did not have her permission to be in her home and that she did not willingly submit to sexual intercourse with him.

Mike Holmes, Young's counselor in the hearing, asked the woman if she was certain Young was the same man who had raped her, citing inconsistencies between her description and Young's physical appearance.

"I wasn't concerned about his height, I just described him to the police," the victim said. She said she had no difficulty identifying him in the live and photo lineups.

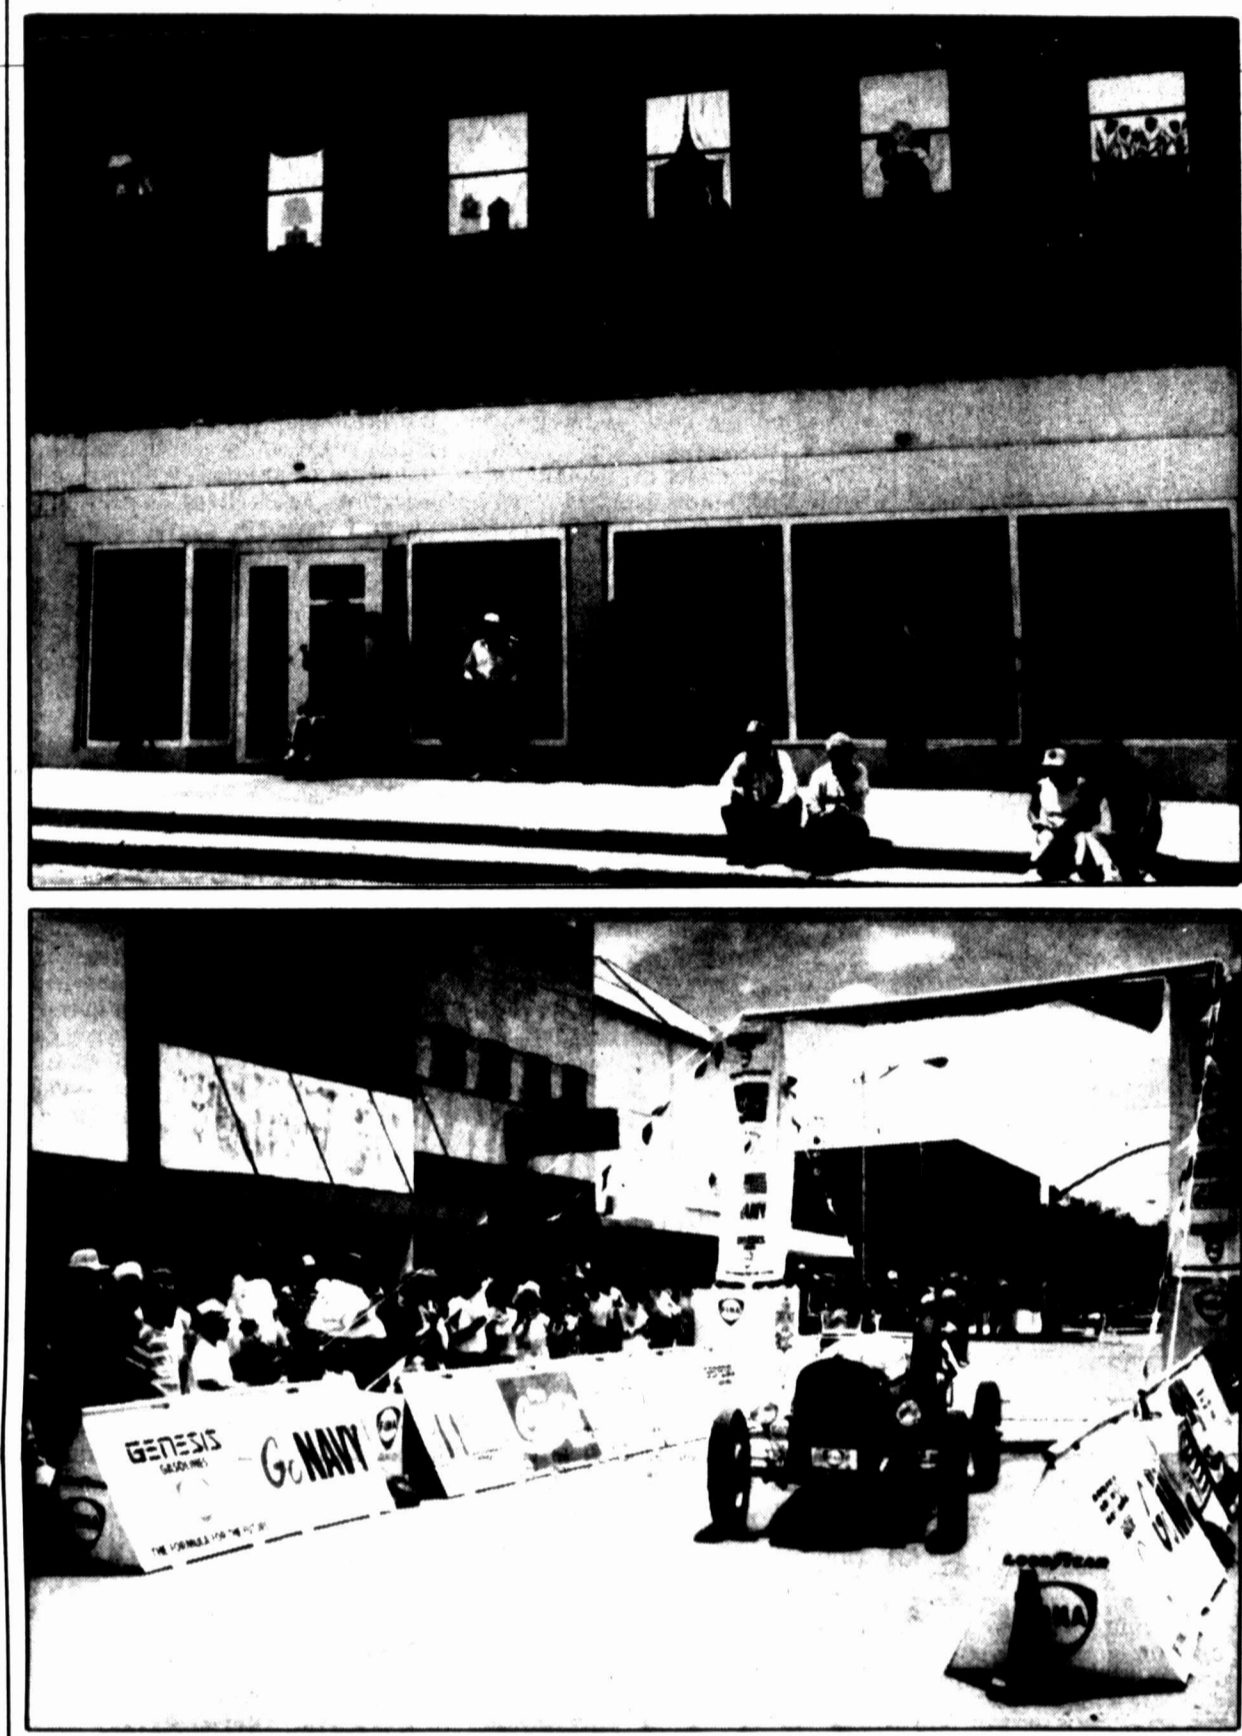

Sgt. Charles Barker, a Department of Public Safety polygraph examiner, testified that Young had failed a polygraph test taken voluntarily after the alleged assault.

Barker said he asked the questions of Young at least twice and Young did not pass ones concerning his pulling a knife and forcing the victim to have sex with him.

He explained that he went over the questions he planned to ask Young before the test began and gave him opportunities to quit the test. Barker also said that the polygraph was adjusted to account for nervousness and he discounted a faulty reading by the machine.

Testimony on an alleged Nov. 18, 1989, rape continued after presstime.

BSISD fears for fiscal future

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Amid a game of "musical bills" for school funding in Austin, Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Bill McQueary said his fear is for the immediate future.

"I want to know if they'll give us the money now to keep school going without having to borrow. That's our biggest concern," he said.

Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, has said Clements will sign legislation allowing the money due schools May 25 be paid May 1. If that happens, McQueary said, concern over funding will turn to the future.

Clements has warned of his plan to veto a proposed funding bill which raises the state sales tax.

Fraser has recently co-sponsored a bill which he said proposes a change in the school funding formula to make $300 million available without a tax increase.

Though Fraser has said Big Spring would receive a $1.5 million increase in state monies under that bill, McQueary said he doubts there will be enough support for it to become law.

McQueary said he agrees with Fraser's assessment that equity in the funding formula is a problem, with more money going to urban districts such as Dallas and Houston. Fraser's bill, McQueary said, may not be a sound solution.

The bill would take money away from larger school districts in order to fund "poor" districts, as Big Spring is classified, McQueary said. "I just don't think the political support is there to wrestle away money from those big places," he said. "I respect Troy's position on this, but it's a moot point to think that there will be large support."

McQueary said he fears a need to raise taxes again this year, following an 8 percent increase last year, unless funding is in Big Spring's favor.

"I've got to support the interest of Big Spring Independent School District," he said. "We're all hoping whatever proposed bill is passed, that we come out with a plus."

All proposed bills have offered an increase in money for Big Spring, McQueary said. A proposed special legislative session which would begin Wednesday is an attempt to end to the school funding crisis.

Bats

says. For the past four or five years, BCI has been selling about 10,000 bat houses a year. And this year, BCI is trying to get more contact with the public — and raise public awareness — by getting commercial suppliers into the game.

Gardener's Supply, a Vermont-based catalogue house, advertised pine-made bat houses in its January catalogue for the first time. "They're selling very well," about 300 in three months, said Steve Kovarie, a buyer with the firm.

The average bat house, which retails for about $25, can hold as many as 30 female bats at a time.

Usually, when the females bat their lashes, a male or two will fly into the house to visit. But "the males like their space" so only about 6 would congregate in a bachelor bat house at one time, Kovarie said.

For best results, experts suggest placing your bat house about 15 to 25 feet above the ground facing the morning sun — bats like temperatures of 80 to 100 degrees — and near a source of water.

Don't get impatient or insulted. It could take a year or more for your bat house to attract its first occupants. Bats find their houses just like birds do, especially if your neighborhood lacks natural roosts which bats prefer, such as caves or hollowed-out tree trunks.

Also, bats may only stay for a short while and then take off to roost elsewhere. Bats migrate seasonally and radar has tracked them as high as 10,000 feet at a cruising speed of about 30 miles per hour.

Bats have one of the lowest birthrates among mammals — usually one pup per year. Fortunately, conservationists say, they live to be 20. Nonetheless, the world's bat population has declined drastically in recent years because of vandalism and hunting of the animals in some countries.

The destruction endangers fragile ecosystems that rely on bats for pollination and pest control. A recent BCI study identified 300 plant species in the tropics that rely on bats.

Bat houses, BCI says, aid conservation and conversation. Squatters are no problem: because the bat houses are closed at the top and have no bottom, birds, squirrels and other animals can't stay.

And how can you tell if bats live in your neighborhood? Either watch street lamps at night to see if bats are chasing moths and mosquitoes attracted by the light. Or, buy yourself a bat detector that picks up the critters' echolocation signals. The device is battery-operated.

Pioneer

Petting them in the "barnyard" was one of the day's highlights, Welch said.

"There may be kids who aren't around barnyard animals at all," she explained. "For them, this is really something."

One form of pioneer-style entertainment was offered by a local group of retired musicians known as the "Hot Potato Band." They added traditional instruments such as kazoes and spoons to the sing-along repertoire.

At the museum, curator Angie Way said the day's turnout was excellent. Special articles were on display, she said, along with a few "hands-on" exhibits.

Chris Matthews of Big Spring said she brought her son Patrick to Pioneer Days for educational reasons.

"This teaches our kids about history," Matthews said. "Also, it's a big event in Big Spring and we should support it."

Event chairperson for the club Lisa Brooks said the purpose was to get not only area children interested in visiting the museum, but their parents as well. "It's a largely untapped resource in the community," she said.

The group, which recently participated in "Christmas in April," hopes to sponsor a traveling exhibit in connection with the museum to go to area schools.

Teachers

nor," she said. "We think he is holding school districts and school children hostage to satisfy his personal whims."

Clements has few supporters among TSTA members, which endorsed Democratic gubernatorial nominee Ann Richards Friday.

But, said Austin teacher Andy Drewlinger, "Even though a tax increase is not going to be popular with most people... I think it's very important we adopt this."

New Braunfels teacher Pat Gajewski said Clements is right, however, in saying more fat can be trimmed from existing budgets.

"I believe the money is there. They are playing games," said Marilyn Kolacek, also of New Braunfels. "There's fat in every local budget, there's ways to cut."

"I think a lot of people are forgetting it wasn't Clements that got us in this position. It was (former Gov.) Mark White," she added.

Asked to describe the best possible outcome of the funding fracas, Dickinson teacher Susan Wilcox said: "Clements could get kidnapped."

Last year, the Texas Supreme Court ruled the current $13.5 billion school finance system unconstitutional after it was protested by a group of property-poor schools districts.

Justices threatened to cut off state education aid if action wasn't taken by Tuesday, and a number of lawmakers say failure to meet that deadline could close some schools.

However, few teachers said they believe the current stalemate will result in a school shutdown.

"School will remain open," said North Forest district teacher Jim Stevens. He said the teachers have initiated a letter-writing campaign urging legislators to override Clements' likely veto.

While the educators are urging the approval of the $555 million package, few believed the money would be sufficient.

"I don't ever think we'll have enough, but it's a step in the right direction," said La Marque teacher Paul Henry Bland.

Clear Creek district teacher Nancy Harvey said high school seniors are afraid they won't graduate on schedule if the schools close.

The teachers apparently are not concerned they will not be paid.

"Our superintendent has said we will be paid if he has to borrow the money," said North Forest teacher Judy Hoya.

And, said Austin teacher Doris Fresh, "I haven't been concerned about it, because we are under contract."

Wharton teacher Ethel Davis said the state already has dispatched paychecks to school districts for May, giving teachers a one-month cushion.

"I think the governor is definitely not thinking about teachers or students," said Wharton teacher Iris Mayshack.

"It should never have come to this," said educator Mary F. Triplett of La Marque.

ABILENE — The Howard College cowgirls took over the Southwest Region rodeo standings lead by winning the Hardin-Simmons University Rodeo.

Howard scored 230 points, outdistancing Odessa College by 20 points. HC now has 1,160 points; compared to 1,152.5 points for Vernon Regional Junior College. The final rodeo is Thursday through Sunday as Tarleton State University hosts the rodeo in Stephenville.

"We are definitely going to Bozeman, (Mt. site of the national finals), said a happy Howard coach Bobby Scott. "Whether we go as number one or number two will be decided at the rodeo. (Tarleton)."

Howard was led by the All-Around Cowgirl performance of Jody Heath, who's also the region leader. Heath won the barrels, and tied for third in breakaway roping.

Jana Pierce won the breakaway roping; and Heath was third in the long-go goat tying, while Wardlaw was fourth in the long-go goat tying.

HC cowboy Trey Wardlaw was second in the steer wrestling and Kelly Adair was first in the long-go of the calf roping. Also in calf roping, Juan Flores was third in the long-go.

Trey Wardlaw is second in the region in steer wrestling, and has a good chance of advancing the national finals. Another HC poke headed to the nationals is all-around cowboy Randall Thornton, who's currently leading the region in the all-around. Thornton has 375 points, followed by Troy Cattoor of Western Texas with 340 points.

Bulldogs win again; beat Merkel 5-2

MERKEL — Mark Arguello scattered five hits and fanned 11 as the Coahoma Bulldogs raised their record 5-6 with a win over Merkel Friday afternoon.

Steven New led Coahoma hitters with two hits. Allan Grant hit a two-run double, and Rusty Ginetti, Brent Elmore, Arguello, Ken Lowery, Greg Atkinson and Jeremy Johnson all got hits.

Coahoma will conclude its season Tuesday against Big Spring JV at 4 p.m. at Steer Field.

Yankees edge Rangers, 4-3

BIG SPRING — Todd McAdams and Robert Hillger combined for a five-hitter with McAdams getting the win in National Little League action. Relief pitcher Jason Lentz took the loss for the Rangers.

Jarrod Spears scored the winning run for the Yankees in the sixth inning. Luis Lopez led off with a single. He was forced out at second on a grounder by Spears. Spears stole second, and then with two outs, scored on a wild throw by the Rangers.

Shy Ditto, Rusty Baker, Jeff Johnson, Mike Murphy and Tyler Murphy all had hits for the Rangers. McAdams, Spears, Randy Ortega, Lopez and Frankie Green all collected hits for the Yankees.

Rockets blow 19-point lead

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Don Chaney almost sounds as if the Rockets have the Lakers right where they want them.

"I think it boils down to one game back here, we will win both games at home," the Houston coach said Sunday at the Forum after the Rockets lost 104-100 to fall behind 2-0 in their best-of-5 playoff with Los Angeles.

The third game of the first-round series is Tuesday and, if necessary, Game 4 would be Thursday night, at the Summit.

The Rockets have cause for confidence at home — they beat the Lakers in both meetings there during the regular season.

"There is no question in our minds we can beat them," Houston center Akeem Olujuwon said. "I am sure if we play them the same way at home as we did here, we will win."

Said guard Sleepy Floyd: "Let's see what happens at home. We have had a lot of success at home. It's definitely not over."

Although the Rockets barely made the playoffs with a 41-41 record, and the Lakers had the NBA's best mark, 63-19, Houston played Los Angeles close in the first two playoff games.

The Lakers could have found themselves in deep trouble — tied 1-1 and facing two games at Houston — had they not dug themselves out of a more immediate hole Sunday afternoon.

Outshot, outrebounded and outthrusted in the first half, they found themselves starting at a 65-48 deficit to begin the third quarter.

But, with Byron Scott suddenly getting hot, the Lakers outscored the Rockets 27-17 and drew within five points heading into the final period. Scott, with two points on 1-for-6 shooting in the first half, was 5-for-5, including 3-for-3 from 3-point range, for 13 points in the third quarter.

The Lakers stayed close into the waning moments, when they scored the last seven points. James Worthy scored five of his 32 points in the final 1:19 to help put Houston away.

"Nobody said it would be easy," Worthy said. "We've had to work for everything we've gotten against them."

"They're a big, physical team and they feel like they've got a lot to prove."

Worthy's biggest play came when he stole a pass by Olujuwon and drove for a layup that put the Lakers ahead 101-100 with less than a minute to play.

"We had a couple of shots and turnovers down the stretch that hurt us at the end," Chaney said.

"We learned a great deal from this experience. We have to look ahead now and concentrate on the two games at home."

Worthy had 34 points in the Lakers' 101-89 victory in the opener, when they also trailed at halftime, but just 49-43.

Floyd led the Rockets Sunday with 27 points and backcourt mate Vernon Maxwell had 24.

Olujuwon was 4-for-15 for 11 points, with 11 rebounds. But he did have a playoff record-tying 10 blocks.

"The pressure is on us now," Olujuwon said. "It was a very tough loss."

The victory Sunday made Riley the winningest coach in playoff history. With 100 victories in postseason play, he moved one ahead of Red Auerbach.

Trail Blazers 109, Mavericks 102
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — After four years of playoff failure, Portland's Jerome Kersey knows how the Dallas Mavericks must feel.

"They're down 2-0. That's a lot of pressure on them," he said. "I know how that pressure feels."

Portland, seeking its first playoff series victory since 1985, has struggled offensively, but strong rebounding and superior bench strength were enough to give the Blazers two wins.

The Mavericks are weary and wounded as they head back to Dallas for Tuesday night's Game 3 of the best-of-five, first-round series.

After beating Dallas 109-102 Thursday and 114-107 Saturday, Portland is 6-0 against the Mavericks this season. Two of the regular-season victories were in Dallas.

The Mavericks are without Brad Davis and Adrian Dantley because of injuries. And starting center James Donaldson played only 13 minutes Saturday night because of knee, ankle and toe injuries.

That left coach Richie Adubato with little choice but to play his starters long minutes.

Roy Tarpley, who has been the most consistent Dallas player so far in the series with 44 points and 31 rebounds in two games, played a Mavericks playoff record 48 minutes Saturday night.

Rolando Blackman played 44 and the other two starters, Derek Harper and Sam Perkins, played 41 apiece.

"There's no relief," Adubato said. "It's a tough situation because when you get tired, you don't shoot the ball well."

The Mavericks have played at the slow-down tempo they've wanted in the first two games.

And they've controlled Portland's leading scorer, Clyde Drexler. But the Blazers have won both games on their home court.

"We can play better and we know it," Kersey said. "But we're still winning." "As long as we keep attacking, we'll be okay," Blazers' coach Rick Adelman said. "We just keep taking it at them and taking it at them again and I think they eventually wear down."

Still, Adelman would like his team to do a better job of adjusting to Dallas' slow-down style.

He also has a new distraction. Rookie reserve forward Cliff Robinson was arrested early Sunday morning and charged with three counts of fourth-degree assault and one count of disorderly conduct. He allegedly struck a policewoman outside a northwest Portland bar.

Maddux stifles Dodgers

By The Associate Press
Greg Maddux insists he isn't very adept at making the difficult 3-6-1 double play. But that's what it took to get him in the record book.

As the third pitcher ever to record six putouts in one game, the Chicago right-hander was looking for one more chance in the ninth inning Sunday against Los Angeles.

NL

"I can't even remember ever being successful on that play," he said after pitching a six-hitter in the Cubs' 4-0 victory over the Dodgers. "It seems they always beat the throw to first base."

After taking a 1-0 lead in the fourth on Dunston's two-out, run-scoring double — the first of his three hits — the Cubs broke it open two innings later. Dawson hit his fourth homer, off Mike Morgan (3-1), after Ryne Sandberg reached on third baseman Mickey Hatcher's fielding error and Grace singled.

Both Dawson and Sandberg had three of Chicago's 12 hits.

Dawson extended his hitting streak to nine games with a fourth-inning leadoff single, stole his first base and scored as Dunston doubled for his seventh RBI and fourth in the last two games.

Pirates 10, Padres 1

Barry Bonds and Jay Bell hit three-run homers as Pittsburgh won its sixth straight game. Bobby Bonilla added a two-run homer in the ninth, his league-leading seventh of the season.

Astros 2, Mets 1
Ken Caminiti singled off Julio Machado with two outs in the 10th inning to give Houston the victory in a matchup of Cy Young Award winners Mike Scott and Dwight Gooden.

With one out in the 10th, Eric Yelding reached on an infield hit off Machado (2-1). One out later, Yelding stole second and went to third when catcher Mackey Sasser threw the ball into center field. Glenn Davis was walked intentionally and Machado hit pinch-hitter David Rohde before Caminiti lined his third hit of the day just out of the reach of Darryl Strawberry in right.

Danny Darwin (1-0) was the winner, going two innings and allowing one hit after Scott and Gooden had put on their expected pitching show.

Scott went seven innings, giving up four hits and striking out one, while Gooden went eight, allowing six hits, and striking out eight.

Expos 6, Reds 3
Tim Wallach and Mike Fitzgerald homered as Montreal ended Cincinnati's three-game winning streak.

The defeat was a double setback for the Reds, who lost starter Danny Jackson in the first inning with a bruised arm.

Giants 9, Cardinals 7
Rick Reuschel pitched seven strong innings, triggered a five-run third with an infield hit and added a two-run single for San Francisco.

The Giants scored six runs off starter Joe Magrane (0-4), winless in 11 starts since Aug. 29, 1989.

Reuschel (2-1) went 7 2-3 innings, giving up 10 hits and five earned runs. He was lifted after giving up three runs in the eighth, but Steve Bedrosian got out of the jam and finished the game for his third save.

San Francisco took a 1-0 lead in the second when Kevin Bass singled, stole second and scored on Matt Williams' single. After the Cardinals tied it in the third on Vince Coleman's RBI single, the Giants chased Magrane when six straight batters reached base with no outs.

Braves 3, Phillies 1
Pete Smith pitched Atlanta's 97th first complete game and Jim Presley hit a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the sixth as the Braves snapped a five-game losing streak.

After Lonnie Smith walked in the sixth, Presley homered off starter Pat Combs (1-2) to give the Braves a 3-1 lead.

Stewart wins pitcher's duel

By The Associated Press
Maybe if Dave Stewart always pitched against Roger Clemens, he'd be the one who wins Cy Young Awards, rather than the other way around.

Stewart outdueled Clemens for the fourth straight time and won his 19th consecutive decision in April as the Oakland Athletics edged the Boston Red Sox 1-0.

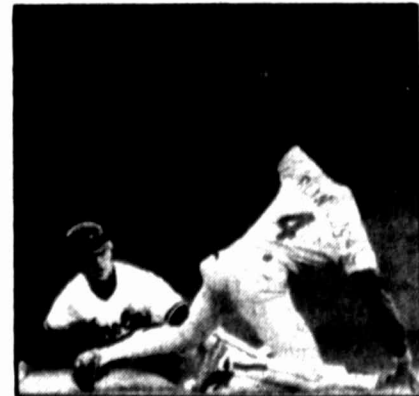

AL

Jose Canseco's single in the first inning produced the only run as Oakland ended its six-game losing streak at Fenway Park.

Royals 5, Rangers 2
Bo Jackson, back in the lineup after missing four games because of a family illness, drove in one run and scored two as Kansas City prevented Texas from its first-ever sweep at Royals Stadium.

Jackson singled home Kansas City's first run in the third inning. Mike Macfarlane later drove in two runs for the Royals.

Jeff Montgomery (1-1) got the victory and Mark Davis earned his fourth save. Kenny Rogers (1-1) lost in his first major-league start after 79 relief appearances.

Rookie Carlos Baerga, subbing again for the ailing Brook Jacoby, hit an RBI triple, helping offset his error at third base. Cleveland won its fourth consecutive game overall and sent Minnesota to its fourth straight loss.

Angels 4, Yankees 3
Mark Langston pitched six strong innings before rain fell as California ended a seven-game losing streak at Yankee Stadium. Langston (2-1) allowed one run on four hits before an 18-minute rain delay in the seventh. New York chased him with a run in the seventh.

White Sox 10, Blue Jays 3
Chicago completed its first three-game sweep against Toronto since 1979 as Sammy Sosa homered and drove in four runs. The White Sox were just 1-11 against the Blue Jays last year, but routed them this time at Comiskey Park.

Orioles 5, Mariners 4

Rene Gonzales hit a solo home run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning and Baltimore broke a five-game losing streak. Gonzales' first home run since June 1, 1989 stopped Seattle's four-game winning string.

Ken Griffey Jr. and Edgar Martinez each homered for the Mariners. Both drives landed in the front row at Memorial Stadium.

Big Spring — Charles Teakell and Troy McAllister take off in the 50-yard dash at Big Spring State Hospital's Sandstorm Relays Friday afternoon. In this annual event's third year, residents competed in a variety of contests to win medals and a trophy for the unit with most participation.

Sandstorm Relays live up to name

BIG SPRING — An afternoon of sunshine and games offered a break from Big Spring State Hospital residents' usual schedule Friday afternoon during the third annual Sandstorm Relay.

Strong winds almost caused the event to live up to its name while participants ran, jumped, threw and caught in competitions for gold and silver medals or a trophy. Marilyn Clark, Director of Activity Therapy, said this year marks the first time the voluntary games offer a trophy for the unit with the most participation.

Events such as the softball distance throw, 50-yard dash, three-legged race and frisbee toss offer something for everyone, Clark said. She said handicapped residents and those over 60 have no problem with any of the events. "We can adjust to meet their needs. We want everybody to have a good time."

Also at stake are the titles "Best Male" or "Best Female Over All" while everyone who joined in the contests will get a certificate and ribbon, Clark said.

Residents are accustomed to 30 hours per week of therapeutic activities, Clark said. She said the purpose of the relay day is to offer everyone a break from routine. "We just want them to have an afternoon to relax and have fun. I think they love this."

Former Cowboys DB becomes a Giant

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas veteran defensive back Everson Walls says he's leaving the Cowboys to go the land of opportunity — New York.

Walls, a 10-year veteran, announced on Sunday that he has signed a two-year deal worth more than $1 million with the Eastern Conference rival New York Giants.

The Cowboys left Walls, who has led the NFL in interceptions three times, unprotected under the league's Plan B program.

Walls said he would have liked to remain with the Cowboys but coach Jimmy Johnson and owner Jerry Jones wouldn't talk money to him.

"All they had to do was let me know there was a problem with my salary," Walls said. "As it worked out, it was much better I went to the Giants."

BSHS players to take one-act play on to state competition

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

A hearty congratulations goes to the cast of "Rimers of Eldrich" at Big Spring High School. The play advanced at UIL One-Act Play 4-A regional contest last week after breezing through zone, district and area competitions. Next stop, state! The group, led by drama teacher Timothy Haynes, has chosen "carpe diem" or "seize the day" as their motto. Seize the day they will when they become the first troupe from Big Spring to compete at the Austin contest. Break legs, guys!

Report Card by Debbie Lincecum

Another round of applause for Cam Tovia of Coahoma and Tera Sims of Forsan, both headed for state contests as well. Tovia will try his informative speaking skills against other 3-A level students. Sims will match her editorial writing ability with other 2-A competitors.

A public performance of "Rimers of Eldrich" is planned for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets will be available at the door and are $2 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens.

State competition is scheduled for Friday, 7:30 p.m., in the concert hall of the Performing Arts Center on the University of Texas campus.

Places available for summer sessions

Start planning now to take advantage of summer opportunities while early registrations are going on at many area schools. Hillcrest Child Development Center in Big Spring is accepting children for the summer session. Limited places are available, so call 267-8449 or go by 2000 W. FM 700 to let them know if your child will be attending.

Odessa College will hold pre-registration for the first summer session this week in the registrar's office in Student Union. Students must be advised before they can register. Undeclared majors are advised in the Counseling Center, also in the Student Union. Classes begin May 30, and the last day to pay early registration fees is May 16. For more information, call (915)335-6433.

Students honored for achievements

Gerald Kelly Rogers of Big Spring was inducted into the Phi Kappa Phi honor society at Texas Tech University. Rogers, a graduate in Business Administration, ranked in the top 10 percent of his class. Hardin-Simmons student Julie Springer of Lenorah was inducted into Alpha Mu Gamma, National Language Honor Society. She was honored for her achievement in French.

Three Big Spring High School students attended the Future Homemakers of America 1990 State Leadership Conference over the weekend. Bo Steenbjerg, exchange student from Sweden, Trini Gaitan and John Vega joined sponsor Alma Wrightsil on the trip to Dallas.

The weekend found Bryan Black of Coahoma High School and Wesley Glass of Garden City High School at the Texas Panhandle Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Seminar. These two outstanding sophomores were chosen to attend workshops in Lefors, Texas.

Coahoma High School students Brandy Taylor and Wendell K. Best were Division I medal winners at the Western Texas College Social Science Contest held April 19. About 250 students from 14 high schools competed.

Cicely Garcia of Garden City will explore health care careers during a seminar June 3-9 sponsored by West Texas Rural Health Education Center.

New courses offered at Odessa College

Two new courses offered at Odessa College this summer deal with the lucrative career path in law enforcement. Jail management and law enforcement telecommunications will become part of the first summer session, offering credit towards a bachelor's degree.

TSTI schedules job fair

If a technical career is your aim, a job fair on Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Texas State Technical Institute will be a place to meet prospective employers. Companies are invited to set up booths to encourage applicants as well. Contact David Yeager at 1-800-592-TSTI.

Runnels honor band chosen

Seventy-one area junior high band students were recently selected in taped auditions for the 1989-90 Junior Region Band. Membership in the band is determined as a result of competitive tryouts held over basic scales and selected etude studies.
