Officers seek help from public

BIG SPRING — Law enforcement officers investigating the double homicide of Jeane and Lloyd Davidson, discovered stabbed in their mobile home April 19, are still seeking the public's help in the investigation.

They are trying to locate two long-haired men seen at the I-20 Mobile Home Park around the time of the murders. They were driving an orange Dodge pickup with a white camper top and had camping equipment with them.

Sheriff's deputies and police officers also want to know the movements of a 1982 white Cadillac that disappeared from the Davidsons' home between April 17 and 19 and was found at Scenic Mountain Medical Center April 19.

Anyone with information about the crime is asked to call the sheriff's office at 263-7654 or the police department at 263-8311. A $5,000 reward is available for information leading to the arrest and grand jury indictment of the perpetrator. All tips will be treated confidentially.

State Hospital benefits scheduled

BIG SPRING — Two events are planned Friday to benefit the residents of Big Spring State Hospital.

A reception slated for 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at 600 Avondale will feature hors d'oeuvres and the music of Dos Gringos. Admission is $8 per person.

A country and western dance featuring Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys will begin at 8 p.m. at The Stampede. Admission is $25 per couple or $15 for a single person.

The event marks the third year the hospital has held the benefits to aid patients and the community services division. The Volunteer Services Council will sponsor the evening's activities.

Proposed nursing home considered

BIG SPRING — The Planning and Zoning Commission will consider a developer's request for approval of a 119-bed nursing care facility during their meeting at tomorrow.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 5:15 p.m. in the Municipal Court room on the second floor of City Hall.

According to the agenda, Lloyd G. Hobbs, owner of a 5.51 acre tract near Scenic Mountain Medical Center, and T&P RR. Co. Survey are requesting approval of a plat for the planned Scenic Mountain Nursing Subdivision.

A spokesperson for Signature Contracting, Inc., of Austin, which is promoting the project, has said the company hopes to begin construction in June.

Driver 'brakes for animals'

HOWARD COUNTY — Dog-gone it.

The driver of a 1985 gray Nissan blamed a dog for an accident that took one man to the hospital Sunday.

Frank Lujan Galaviz, 22, of Big Spring, was driving south on Howard County Road 26, south of the Snyder Highway, at 8:15 a.m. Sunday when a dog crossed in front of his car. Galaviz took evasive action to avoid hitting the animal and steered off the road.

In trying to return to the pavement, Galaviz lost control of his car and it shot across the roadway, coming to a stop in a plowed cotton field.

One of his passengers, John Calvin Wilson, 26, of Coahoma, was taken to Scenic Mountain, treated and released. Galaviz and his other passenger, Jerry Ramirez Martinez, 23, of Coahoma, refused treatment.

Residents fleeing floods in three states

By DAVID BRIGGS
Associated Press Writer

Louisiana farmers today braced for the most disastrous flooding in 45 years. About 7,000 people were urged to leave low-lying areas in Texas, and workmen dynamited a breached levee to prevent further damage in Arkansas.

Over the past three weeks, 13 deaths have been blamed on flooding: 12 in Texas and one in Oklahoma.

In Louisiana, heavy weekend rain compounded the flood threat as the Red River continued its rise from Shreveport to Alexandria. The river was expected to crest five feet above flood stage in Shreveport on Wednesday and had already overflowed in places.

Up to 600 square miles, including 200 square miles of farmland, will flood in the state this week and next, and up to 500 homes and camps between the levees and the river will be inundated, said U.S. Sen. J. Bennett Johnston.

"It will be a major agricultural disaster. It'll be a flood event such as we have not experienced since 1945," Johnston said after meeting with Army Corps of Engineers officials.

In Texas, about 7,000 residents downstream of Lake Livingston Dam, 60 miles northeast of Houston, were told to evacuate their homes along the rain-swollen Trinity River. Officials said water was pouring over the reservoir's spillway at more than twice the normal rate.

Sightseers carrying lawn chairs and cameras gathered in southeastern Texas as residents decided whether to pack up and leave.

"I'm going to get as far away as I can," said Tina Lapaglia, who spent Mother's Day with her husband and two children at a campground after abandoning their home in Camilla Twin Harbors. "Tomorrow I'll look for a new place for us to live."

"I'm going to stay here as long as I can," said John Burch, 32, a fisherman from Liberty. "My father is a cancer patient and we have to be careful with him."

Highways reopened and flood victims began cleaning up in Oklahoma as National Guardsmen, inmates, farmers and volunteers filled sandbags and shored up levees in Louisiana and Arkansas.

"This is my home. If there was anything I could do, I was going to do it," said Rosie Blair, who worked alongside her husband and GARLAND, Ark. — Hundreds of volunteers turned out in Garland, Ark., to help sandbag areas of the levee where Army Corps engineers spotted seepage. A Texas National Guard helicopter airlifted the sandbags to the levee and volunteers transported them to the areas where needed.

STANTON — Jason Kelmel, right, hold "Midget," a gift from the Big Spring Humane Society, on his lap as he sits next to his grandmother, Doris Sadler. Jason's goal is to return to school when classes start next fall, although he has rhabdomyosarcoma, a rare form of cancer.

Officers to observe memorial day quietly

BIG SPRING — Police officers here will mourn the deaths of fellow officers nationwide tomorrow in recognition of National Peace Officers' Memorial Day.

The memorial day, a part of National Peace Officers' Memorial Week, will be observed quietly by the Big Spring Police Department. Chief Joe Cook said no special service has been planned.

"We encouraged our officers to go to church yesterday in uniform," as part of the week, Cook said. "We'll be flying the flag at half-staff tomorrow. That's really the only observance we'll have of it here."

Sheriff A.N. Standard said his office also would observe the day, but said no special service has been planned.

Although the Big Spring officers' appearance in uniform at their church services has always been well received, Cook said "there's never been any community involvement" in the memorial day.

By contrast, he said, the city of Tyler has planned a seminar with a guest speaker from the FBI, as well as a police motorcade a service for the officers.

According to the U.S. Department of Justice, 67 law enforcement officers were killed in the line of duty during 1989. In addition, 77 officers lost their lives to accidents during the course of performing their duties. Although no officers in Howard County were killed, Cook said the day, which is similar to Veteran's Day, also honors all officers killed in previous years.

"It's like a military memorial day," he said. "It's to commemorate those officers who have died (over the years)."

Early in the decade, he said, three Big Spring officers were killed or died in the line of duty. More recently, a Department of Public Safety trooper was killed by a drunk driver.

In keeping with the idea of a lasting remembrance, a National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial is nearing completion in Washington D.C. Cook said the memorial, like the Viet Nam Memorial, will have the names of all officers killed in the line of duty, including those from Howard County.

Although the effort to build the memorial has netted about $5 million, another $1.5 million is needed to complete and maintain it. Persons can send donations to the fund at: 1360 Beverly Rd.; McLean, Va. 22201.

Petitioners want black TV channel

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A group of cable subscribers wants a black entertainment channel picked up by Big Spring Cable TV, Inc. A cable official said the results of a survey being conducted now will determine which channels are added to the service.

A petition now circulating has the signatures of over 400 people who want to see Black Entertainment Television, said Danny Sherman, a Big Spring business owner. The channel shows movies, sit-coms and specials with an emphasis on black culture and music.

Sherman said his attempts to get BET in Big Spring began last year when Home Box Office, a pay movie channel, was added to area service. At the party celebrating that event, Sherman said he approached general manager Larson Lloyd.

"Lloyd said BET would be selected. But nothing happened and when I asked him about it, he said he took a survey of the top 10 channels and BET wasn't picked."

About three weeks ago when the cable company ran a survey in the Herald, Sherman said, he and a friend gathered 200 of the forms from people who wanted BET. They took the forms to Lloyd's office, Sherman said, but did not get the reaction they wanted.

"He said, 'I have 10,000 customers to satisfy in Big Spring.' I said, 'It sounds like you don't want to get BET here,'" Sherman said.

Lloyd said the survey Sherman referred to will be completed tomorrow. After the deadline, he said, the decision will be made which channels subscribers want. "It's more or less the channel that has the highest ratings. We'll go by the survey."

If he sees the petition, Lloyd said, he is not sure what effect it would have. "We probably would have to go by the survey. We have a lot of people to satisfy."

Would Lloyd choose BET for Big Spring? "If the majority wants it, you bet," he said.

Barbara Davis, a subscriber who signed Sherman's petition, said blacks are not the only ones who want BET. The survey is a good idea, she said. "Of course we don't want it if it is not

Kids beat heat

BIG SPRING — With weekend afternoon temperatures hovering in the mid-90's, Jessica and Jimmy Pope decided to beat the heat by splashing in the water. Jessica attempts to direct a stream of water by holding her thumb over the hose, but gets a mist back in her face in the above photo. With her aim somewhat perfected, she gets her brother Jimmy in the right photo. Temperatures are expected to remain hot through Tuesday.

Seven hit in gunfire attack

FORT WORTH (AP) — Two people were killed and five others were wounded today when gunfire broke out at an establishment, a police official said.

Police spokesman Doug Clarke said the shootings occurred at the Glass Key Cafe, on the city's near east side.

"There were supposed to be two persons dead at the scene," said Clarke.

Initial reports indicated four others were wounded; Police Capt. John Stone later said five persons had been hit by gunfire.

The shootings were reported shortly before 7:30 a.m.

Lost forms hamper census efforts

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Census officials are acknowledging a new problem in their quest to accurately assess the nation's population: lost forms.

Already stung by criticism over counting methods and the accuracy of mailing lists, officials say some forms mailed by residents before the April 1 deadline apparently are lost.

Representatives of the 11-state census processing center in Austin said they have had "a fair amount" of people calling about lost forms, although they wouldn't specify how many.

The callers realize something's wrong when census representatives come to their homes, saying they need to count people who haven't returned forms.

"Some of them say they sent their forms in quite a ways back and they're asking what they should do," said Andrew Jopling, supervisor of the Austin processing center.

His advice: Fill out another form.

Chemical fumes kill Benbrook man

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 28-year-old Benbrook man died after being overcome by noxious chemical fumes while working in a chemical vat, a Tarrant County medical investigator said.

Larry Williams inhaled the fumes while working in an 8-foot by 5-foot vat that previously contained ethylene dichloride, medical investigator Ed Bodiford said.

The accident occurred at 11:35 a.m. Sunday at DeSoto Inc., a Fort Worth chemical processing plant, Bodiford said.

Bodiford said Williams was helping another worker retrieve a pipe that had dropped to the bottom of the mixing vessel. Williams was wearing full protective gear, including a face mask and breathing apparatus, he said.

Williams was pronounced dead at 12:38 p.m.

Bodiford said an autopsy would be conducted today, as well as an investigation of Williams' equipment to determine whether the equipment failed or if Williams' mask did not have a tight fit.

Perfect score 'no big deal'

DALLAS (AP) — Joshua Breslau doesn't think his perfect score on the national Scholastic Aptitude Test is anything special, saying that on most of the verbal skills questions he "just had to make an educated guess, I guess."

The 16-year-old Skyline High School student was rather matter-of-fact about scoring 1600 on the college entrance exam.

"I was very happy with it," he said.

His mother, Sharon Breslau, wasn't surprised by her son's feat — attained by fewer than 10 of the approximately 1 million high school students who took the test.

Unique moms have their day

By The Associated Press

Mothers were in the spotlight on Sunday.

And in Texas, a number of interesting Mother's Day tales unfolded.

One involved Marines to the rescue as stand-in sons, one involved a mother and her mother and their diplomas, and another involved a woman who probably is among the state's busiest mothers.

Betty Mae Mims and her mother, Lela Clancy, were receiving Mother's Day and Graduation Day greetings this weekend.

Mrs. Mims, 58, and Mrs. Clancy, 76, both received undergraduate diplomas from Texas A&M University on Friday in a ceremony at College Station.

Both women said marriage and family commitments cut their education short. They decided to return to school when their husbands were retired and families were grown.

They spent eight years commuting to Texas A&M from their Jersey Village homes.

"My mother had always wanted me to finish my college education, and I had once told her when my kids were little that I would someday, when I could," Mrs. Mims said. "So when they finished (school), I said, 'Let's go,' and we did. I feel like it's sort of a gift to my mother."

Both women received degrees in English, with honors.

"The kids were all real glad to have us in class. A lot of them felt like I was their mama. They would like to sit by us, and they were always real happy we were there. We had a lot of friends and they were real respectful," Mrs. Mims said.

In Corpus Christi, Adela Padron feared the worst when six U.S. Marines walked up to her home because her son Erasmo Z. Padron Jr. is a Marine corporal.

But her fears vanished and her eyes filled with tears as she learned the six men had come to present her with a bouquet of roses for Mother's Day at the request of her 22-year-old son.

Erasmo has been on duty at the U.S. embassy in Bangkok, Thailand, for the past year.

"As a Marine family, we teach that not only do members of the Marine Corps become family, but so do (Marines') families," explained Staff Sgt. Barry Evans, who handed her the flowers.

Evans hugged Mrs. Padron and said, "This is from your son. He loves you."

In Fort Worth, Charles Etta Milling was expected to once again get a flood of gifts, flowers, phone calls and visits from many of the 35 children she has helped raise in 10 years as a foster mother.

The 60-year-old widow said her Mother's Day wish is that more people choose to become foster parents.

"The greatest gift I could receive... is for single people and families to get involved in our foster parent program and to try to help those children out there," she said.

Police probe death of witness

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Police are investigating the torching death of a 14-year-old boy who relatives and authorities suspect was killed because he witnessed an altercation in which his stepfather was stabbed.

Michael Simmons was attacked, doused with gasoline and his body set afire Saturday, police said.

The 8th-grade boy was attacked early Saturday morning while he was washing his track uniform in a laundry shed behind his home. He was preparing to go to a regional meet in Austin that afternoon.

Simmons' family told police they suspected a next-door neighbor charged with stabbing the stepfather was the culprit in the boy's death.

Simmons had agreed to be a witness for the prosecution in the aggravated assault trial of Felipe Jesus Urrutia, 28, the man charged with stabbing Simmons' stepfather in the throat Jan. 13. The stepfather, 22-year-old Richard Holloway, survived the stabbing.

No arrests had been made in the boy's death as of Sunday night.

A second fire was reported Saturday afternoon next door at Urrutia's home, police said. Nobody was at home, but the blaze nearly gutted the house.

"Looks like it's war," said Mark Luitjen, lead prosecutor in the 175th State District Court, where a pretrial hearing in the case against Urrutia had been scheduled for Monday.

Recalling the Jan. 13 incident, Luitjen said, "There was a fight between the kids of the two families, and Simmons' stepfather was stabbed in the throat with a four-inch, lock-blade knife."

Simmons was set to be a key witness in prosecuting his stepfather's alleged assailant, Urrutia.

New crop beginning to bear fruit

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas is known more for its bluebonnets than its blueberries, but that's all changing.

By the time Texas' biggest growers finish their first major harvest of the crop, 700,000 to 1 million pounds of blueberries will have rolled into commercial markets. Harvesting will hit full steam by the end of the month.

Texas blueberries, under the label "Big Blues," are headed out of the Piney Woods of East Texas for the state's major "super" markets. And growers are eager to cash in on the harvest of an estimated 1,300 acres of the berries in East Texas.

The roadside markets and pick-your-own farms will sell an additional 400,000 to 500,000 pounds, growers say.

"You're looking at lots and lots of blueberries," said Marty Baker, horticulturist at the Texas A&M University research center at Overton about 50 miles northwest of Nacogdoches. "Luckily, people have really taken to 'em. We're getting away from just muffins."

Growers are selling blueberries to be eaten fresh, a new trend in Texas.

Integrated prom gets high marks

FORT VALLEY, Ga. (AP) — Blacks and whites mingled at Peach County High School's first integrated prom, and many of the nearly 200 students said the change was long overdue.

"Somebody is going to come along every time and break some tradition that's really stupid, some tradition you don't really think about because you've always done it," said Hope Bickley, a white 17-year-old at the dance Saturday. "I'm glad it was our class that broke it." Ato Crumbly, a black student, agreed. "We go to school together, play football together, run track together, so why can't we socialize together?" Crumbly said Saturday at the formal dance in the school gym.

All school dances and parties were canceled by the school board in the early 1960s when a student apparently was injured during a prom. Board members also said planning the dances took time away from schoolwork.

Judge looks for sufficient evidence

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Prosecutors consider Dorothea Montalvo Puente a rare breed, a female serial killer, but they'll first have to show that the nine boarders the landlady allegedly poisoned were victims of foul play.

A judge is deciding whether there is sufficient evidence to hold the 61-year-old woman for trial on charges of murdering seven tenants found buried in her boardinghouse yard and two others whose bodies turned up elsewhere.

The preliminary hearing began in Municipal Court on April 27, a year and a half after her arrest. In eight of the cases, a cause of death was never determined. Whether the nine people were even homicides has not been established; the boarders, dead for weeks to years, were too decomposed for autopsies to tell what killed them.

Assistant District Attorney George Williamson is trying to show that Puente, who has a record of administering stupefying drugs to people she intended to rob, poisoned the nine people over a six-year period for their Social Security and other benefit checks. She could face the death penalty if convicted.

Female midshipman resigns

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A female midshipman was dragged from her dormitory room, handcuffed to a urinal and taunted by male midshipmen in what Naval Academy officials said was a "good-natured exchange" that got out of hand.

Gwen Marie Dreyer resigned after the December incident, and the midshipmen involved were punished with demerits and a loss of leave time.

"We still don't believe that they understand that it was in fact an assault," said Carolyn A. Dreyer, her stepmother. "An assault. And it would have been treated that way in any other school, in any other situation."

But academy officials ruled that the incident began as a friendly encounter that got out of hand after a snowball fight and therefore couldn't be considered premeditated hazing.

U.S. and Iran sign $105 million accord

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — The United States and Iran have signed a $105 million settlement of some 3,000 financial claims, bringing the two countries one step closer to re-establishing economic relations, a U.S. official said today.

The settlement deals primarily with so-called "Small Claims" for under $250,000 that stem from the 1979 Islamic revolution, said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

It clears the way for the Iran-United States Claims Tribunal to deal with about $16 billion in major claims, whose resolution in turn could open the way to normalizing economic ties between the two nations, the official said.

The settlement accord was signed late Sunday night or early this morning by Timothy Ramish, U.S. agent to the tribunal, and Iranian Agent Ali Nobari, according to the American official at the tribunal.

The most recent settlement talks between U.S. and Iranian officials occurred shortly after the release of American hostages Frank Reed and Robert Polhill by pro-Iranian kidnapers in Lebanon. But U.S. and Iranian representatives to the tribunal have repeatedly stated the talks dealt only with financial arbitration and not with the six remaining Americans still in captivity in Lebanon.

Last week a U.S. State Department official in Washington, who commented on condition of anonymity, said he could not predict whether resolving its financial disputes will result in the release of remaining hostages or was in any way related to the release of Polhill and Reed.

The Small Claims package dealt primarily with Americans who left behind personal possessions or were owed salaries by Iranian companies when they fled Iran during the revolution. They were settled for a total of $50 million.

The settlement also provided $55 million for repayment of a loan from the U.S. Agency for International Development.

The tribunal was set up as part of the Algiers Accord of 1980, which resulted in freedom for the American hostages held by Iranian militants at the U.S. embassy in Tehran for 444 days. The tribunal has three Iranian, three American and three third-nation arbitrators.

Moscovites afflicted with lice

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of young Muscovites suffer from head lice, and a shortage of disinfectants leaves no remedy except combing their hair with vinegar and taking a shower, a newspaper reported.

Last year in the Soviet capital, sanitation clinics reported that only 4,000 children sought treatment for lice, Moskovskaya Pravda, the city Communist Party newspaper, said Sunday.

"And how many more did not seek help?" it asked, saying parents' embarrassment and ignorance about the pests make that number only "the tip of the iceberg."

Statistics on the problem were not published until 1986, leaving health authorities "unarmed in the battle" against lice, the newspaper said.

Moscow does not have enough sanitary stations, medicinal baths, or public health instructors to battle the lice, said A. Frolova, a senior scientific worker of the All-Union Scientific Research Institute of Preventative Toxicology and Disinfection.

Baltic presidents appeal for help

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The three Baltic presidents have appealed to Mikhail S. Gorbachev and George Bush for help in resolving the standoff over their republics' campaigns to break from the Soviet Union.

The Baltic leaders, one day after they signed an agreement reviving a Council of Baltic States, on Sunday widened their efforts to seek support for diplomatic efforts to negotiate a settlement with Moscow.

Lithuania sought to circumvent the economic blockade imposed by the Kremlin in response to the republic's declaration of independence by importing oil purchased with money from Lithuanian emigrants.

A tanker carrying 80,000 tons of petroleum was en route Sunday to the Lithuanian port of Klaipeda to relieve the gasoline shortage stemming from the blockade. Lithuanian Television reported. Lithuania needs 16,600 tons of oil daily.

Attacks may indicate open season

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The killing of three U.S. enlisted men within 10 days indicates Communist rebels may have abandoned the quest for "quality targets" and will strike at any American service member in this country.

Police believe New People's Army guerrillas gunned down two Air Force servicemen late Sunday near Clark Air Base, 50 miles north of Manila.

Although no one has claimed responsibility for the three killings, U.S. and many Filipino officials believe the rebels were responsible.

All three killings were believed timed to today's start of talks on the future of U.S. military bases, which the guerrillas want closed.

The United States maintains about 40,000 troops, Defense Department civilians and military dependents at the six bases, some in rebel strongholds.

Reed had prior warning

The account ex-hostage Frank Reed gave of beatings at the hands of his Islamic captors during his 44-month ordeal may have stirred Americans to urge President Bush to negotiate in earnest the release of the remaining six U.S. and 10 Western captives in Lebanon.

We felt the same way, as the 57-year-old Reed told of his kidnapers breaking his nose, jaw and ribs and using iron rods to beat his feet for trying to escape twice. "I was one of their pet whackers," he told a news conference.

After hearing his chilling report, we even agreed the hostages, including Associated Press newsmen Terry Anderson, should be freed "even if you have to get in bed with the devil."

We agreed until we remembered that Reed, along with Robert Polhill, released just eight days earlier, Alann Steen and Jesse Turner were all warned individually by the U.S. Embassy officials in Beirut to leave Lebanon before they were abducted. Reed was a teacher at the Lebanese International School. Polhill, Steen and Turner were professors at Beirut University College.

While hostage-taking is abhorrent to most nations, Reed was well aware of the risk involved and decided to ignore it. Since 1975, the U.S. State Department has issued official advisories against travel to Lebanon. Every hostage currently held by Islamic fundamentalists was aware of the travel advisories. On Jan. 31, 1987, the Reagan administration made it illegal to use a U.S. passport to travel to, through or from Lebanon, unless on official business, in a news-gathering function, a member of the American Red Cross or for humanitarian considerations.

Indeed, last September the Bush administration withdrew all American personnel from the Beirut embassy. Since the travel ban, only Charles Glass, a journalist, and Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins, have been abducted by fanatics. Glass escaped after two months in captivity; Higgins, in Lebanon on a United Nations peace-keeping mission, was hanged, according to a videotape his captors released.

Americans who are still prisoners are Anderson, the longest-held hostage; Thomas Sutherland, dean of agriculture at American University-Beirut; Joseph Cicipio, deputy comptroller at the university; Edward Tracy, a book salesman; and Steen and Turner.

The Bush administration, as Polhill noted while standing next to Reed at his freedom press conference, is correct in refusing to negotiate for the hostages' release. "I don't like the thought of negotiating for human lives," he said.

We sympathize with the bitterness Reed must feel, the anger over his torture, the nearly two years of his life spent for naught. But all that could have been avoided had he heeded his government's stern advice.

Uncle Sam isn't always right, but in Frank Reed's case he certainly was.

Wellesley girls aren't as smart as they think

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

What gets me about the women at Wellesley who said they were outraged by the choice of Barbara Bush as their commencement speaker is, who do these little tarts think they are?

Barbara Bush is the first lady. Like Dolley Madison, a great American. Like Eleanor Roosevelt. Like Jackie, who was admired by the world.

Like Betty Ford, who proved to be one hellava tough lady. Like Rosalind Carter, the original Steel Magnolia. Even like Nancy Reagan, who ran the country during her husband's naps.

OK, so it was with the help of an astrologer, but let's not get bogged down with details here.

Barbara Bush sleeps with the president of the United States, and it is extremely difficult not to be influenced by one's bed mate.

After the day's discussions, meetings, and briefings, it comes down to George and Barbara: when they're alone under the sheets, we must know the president occasionally asks of his wife, "What in the devil am I going to do about the situation in Lithuania?"

And even if he doesn't ask, don't you think Barbara, just after the lights go off, says to her husband, the president, "I've been thinking, George, and here's what you ought to do about, etc.?"

Barbara Bush, in other words, is probably the most influential woman in the country right now.

So where do a bunch of 20ish college students get the highhandedness to say they are outraged because Mrs. President has been asked to speak to them?

So Barbara Bush has been a housewife and a mother and has gained recognition behind the achievements of her husband.

Didn't these women have mothers? How many of them stayed home to raise their children while the old man was out working his tail off to get the money to send them to a spiffy school?

Would they be outraged to hear their own mothers get up in front of their classmates and tell of the struggles they went through and the sacrifices they made to give their child a good home and an opportunity to educate herself rather than winding up a cocktail waitress?

To slap Barbara Bush in the face, as the Wellesley group most certainly did, was to slap a lot of other good and fine women and say to them, "You sold out by getting married and having kids and supporting your husband. You're not worthy of our respect."

I wonder where these children will be 20 years from now. A lot of them will be successful professionally, I'm sure. Perhaps there are future CEOs in the crowd. Maybe even the first woman president.

But how many of them will also leave their top floor office suites and go home to a cat?

How many of them will be 40 and rich and powerful, but won't have married, won't have had children because they thought it was a cop out?

So they are high and mighty now, considering themselves above hearing the wife of the president of the United States offer them a little advice, even if some of it might have been motherly.

That's a shame. Not everything was bad about the roles women of Mrs. Bush's era played.

There needed to be changes and there have been, but Barbara Bush has seen things and heard things and experienced things that could have benefited the women of Wellesley, and they have acted like juveniles.

I hope they all get big thighs. Copyright 1990 by Cowles Syndicate, Inc.

The art of breaking promises

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Campaign promises are not uttered under oath, and President Bush will not lack for company should he decide to renege on his vehement vow against new taxes.

Ronald Reagan did it, on the same subject, at least a dozen times — and all without sacrificing the impression that he was an unyielding tax cut man.

Bush, of course, has not undone his read-my-lips, no-new-taxes refrain from the 1988 campaign. All he has done is to ask congressional Democrats to bargain on the budget without preconditions, a process that is to begin today.

Going in without preconditions does not mean that there will be an identifiable tax increase as part of the bargain coming out; it's a good bet that in the end, the Republican White House will just say no.

The reasons wouldn't have a lot to do with the sanctity of a 1988 campaign pledge. With Cold War and defense concerns ebbing, the no-tax stance may be the best issue the Republicans have going for them.

Furthermore, for some conservatives it is more than an issue — it is a policy by which they mean to starve the welfare state for funds. There is also the dilemma of a government that has run up massive deficits in boom times facing the prospect of a need for more taxes just when the economy could be slipping.

Campaign pledges are another matter. They are made by the dozens, and they come with no vote-back guarantee. Dissatisfied voters can only wait until the next election, and by then, the issues may have changed and bygone promises may be forgotten.

That is as old as politics. Cicero wrote about electioneering in Rome, and his guidelines still apply:

"All men have a feeling, that they would rather you told them a civil lie than give them a point-blank refusal... If you make a promise, the thing is still uncertain, depends on a future day, and concerns but few people, but if you refuse, you alienate people to a certainty and at once, and many people, too."

The damage depends on the issue.

A promise broken by Lyndon B. Johnson was the undoing of his presidency. Campaigning in 1964, Johnson said he was not "about to send American boys 9,000 or 10,000 miles away from home to do what Asian boys ought to be doing for themselves." But he did, after winning landslide election, and the Vietnam war was the burden that led him to renounce candidacy four years later.

Richard M. Nixon was wily enough to leave some room for maneuver in his campaign promises. In 1968, for example, he said he would end the war and win the peace, although he didn't say how or when. It ended, but not on those terms. The last Americans withdrew from Saigon in 1975, and North Vietnam took over. Nixon, who had resigned the White House over Watergate by that time, said Congress forced the defeat by restricting and then refusing funds for the war.

Jimmy Carter promised in 1976 that he'd balance the federal budget in his first term. He couldn't come close. Reagan upped that ante, saying he would balance it and cut taxes. He got the tax cut, but deficits soared. Reagan blamed it on a recession and on Congress.

He made an art form of raising taxes while presenting himself as the arch-foe of tax increases.

As governor of California, he said he would not tolerate a tax increase and declared his feet were planted in cement on the matter. When he had to have a tax increase anyhow, he said the sound people heard was the cement cracking.

As president, he confounded the Democrats by championing one giant tax cut and then approving a series of increases. Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, now the majority leader, says Reagan proposed or signed 13 tax increases, "and in the process convinced the American people that he was against all of them."

Backing off a campaign pledge is, as Mitchell said, "a rather commonplace occurrence in American history."

Nixon said last week that Bush can change his position with "no problem at all. He can say 'I believed at the time, but the situation has changed and I'm dealing with it.'"

That's one way to scrap a promise.

In "The Earl of Louisiana," A.J. Lieblich recounts another, the story of a lobbyist who sought repeal of a state tax on movie tickets. He campaigned for Earl Long for governor on the strength of a promise of repeal. But when Long won, he recommended extension of the tax.

"The fellow went to see him and he said 'I told my clients that you said you wanted their support and you wouldn't block removal of the tax. What do I tell them now?'"

"You know what old Earl said?"

"He said 'I'll tell you what to tell them. Tell them I lied.'"

"DON'T CALL ME LAZY FOR NOT CUTTING THE GRASS... CALL ME ENVIRONMENTALLY SAFE!"

Around The Rim

Population everyone's concern

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

During his visit to Mexico last week, Pope John Paul II warmed up for Mother's Day by telling crowds — and in Mexico there definitely are crowds — that it is wrong to use contraceptives.

"If, in the conjugal union, the possibility of conceiving a child is artificially eliminated, the couple closed themselves to God and opposed his will," John Paul admonished a crowd of more than 100,000 in Chihuahua on one of the last days of his eight-day Mexican trip.

The Pope, speaking in a very populous but very poor country, reiterated standard Roman Catholic church policy against artificial birth control. John Paul also was sending a statement from the church to the government of Mexico, where the use of contraceptives is encouraged in order to limit an ever-growing population of 85 million.

Having grown up in a Catholic family — with three brothers and two sisters — I know all about the church's objection to birth control. When it dawned on me day as a child that my family was much larger than any of my friend's, I asked my mother if it was because we are Catholic.

My mom, honest as always, told me yes, but tacked on this rejoinder about herself and my father: "We were young and stupid — we didn't know any better."

Mom told me she loved every one of us and didn't regret a one of us (I'm happy they didn't stop since I'm the youngest), but if they had it to do ever they'd never have six kids. The expense and responsibility was nearly overwhelming, she said. I can vouch for the expensive part because as the youngest I recall wearing an awful lot of hand-me-downs.

Years later, when I informed my mother that because I enjoyed growing up in a large family, I intended to have a large family — or at least as many children as I could afford. Mom, in her gentle way, said I would be an irresponsible fool (in so many words) to add an extra burden to an already over-populated and resource-strained world.

Perhaps being raised in the Catholic Church in the United States isn't a good idea. I learned all the rules of the church, but so many seem to conflict with the realities of life. My very Catholic father taught my sisters and I that we, as women, are equal to men and capable of anything we set our minds to. And of course my mother taught us that we have a responsibility to the world around us, not just our church.

That's why it irked me to hear the Pope tell a huge crowd of poor men and women that they are wrong to use birth control. And he tells them this just a day after admonishing a group of wealthy businessmen that the rich have helped create even more poverty through greed.

Mexico, "despite the inherent resources that the Creator gave this country, is still very far from the ideal of justice," the pope said, noting the vast contrast between the rich few and the poor majority.

Business, he said, must create more jobs, pay fair salaries and protect the environment. Perhaps he should have warned those businessmen that he expects them to create more jobs that pay fair salaries, and they must protect the environment from the demands of more people.

While he didn't actually condemn capitalism as a system, the pope was happy enough to criticize it when "the dignity of a person is violated or endangered."

"It is necessary to repeat once again: it is always the weakest who suffer the worst consequences, because they see themselves closed in a spiral of growing poverty," John Paul said.

I guess overpopulation and badly strained resources have nothing to do with a spiral of growing poverty.

Three Howard County 4-H team members placed second at the Senior Livestock Judging Team District Competition April 28 at the Howard County Fair Barns, they are: Kenda McCormick, Luther; Cory Anderson and Carrie Bruton. This victory points them to the State Meet at Texas A&M University at College Station June 4-6, 1990.

"I love A&M — that's my favorite school," said Kenda who graduates from Big Spring High School June 1. "I'm going to Howard College a year first though, then will go to Texas Tech University. My parents don't want me that far away."

The team traveled to Alpine's Sul Ross State University May 5-6 with Ron and Phyllis Bruton. Phyllis was a livestock judge and Ron was a superintendent of one of the

Man stands tall with accomplishment

DEAR ABBY: Please permit me to add my own experiences to those of the woman who signed herself "Itty-Bitty Betty in Boise," who wrote about the problems she encountered because she is only 4 feet 10 inches tall. She said she'd been accused of trying to "sneak" into R-rated movies — and needed two IDs to go to a bar.

Please don't feel disadvantaged by your small stature and youthful appearance. I am 5 feet 1 1/2 inches tall and couldn't get a girl to dance with me in high school. Neither could I play football or basketball, but I did win the 100-yard dash!

My dream was to join the U.S. Marine Corps, so upon graduation from high school in 1946 (and after nine months of unsuccessful attempts to enlist), I received a height waiver from Gen. A.A. Vandergrift, then commandant of the Marine Corps. I became the shortest man in the Marine Corps. In 1947, I was stationed in Hawaii with the tallest man in the Marine Corps. He was 6 foot 9 inches!

During the Korean Conflict, I got two field promotions. I finished nine years in the Marine Corps as first sergeant when I got an appointment as a federal correctional officer at Alcatraz Island in 1955. Yes — all 5 feet 1 1/2 inches of me!

I became a black belt in judo, then a judo instructor. Subsequently I was a deputy sheriff in Jacksonville, Fla. I'm no hero, but I wore 17 ribbons on my Marine uniform, and at 62, nobody takes me for a day over 50. — J.J.V. SR., MOBILE, ALA.

DEAR J.J.V.: At 5 feet 1 1/2 inches, you have a lot of guys looking up to you. Semper Fi, Sarge!

***

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I always thought conversations between social workers and clients were strictly confidential — like doctor-patient relations.

Eight years after my graduation from high school, I was a "suspect" in a paternity case and was interviewed by an old biddy who later blabbed it all over town. She did not mention that a second guy was also a suspect and was also interviewed. Nor did she consider my constitutional right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Abby, how can anyone in this situation clear his name after what this blabbermouth said?

Unfortunately, my innocence was proven later — when the girl gave birth 10 months and three days after my last date with her. — LONGTIME READER

DEAR READER: You could sue for defamation of character, but that would require proving that the gossip damaged you. You would also have to provide witnesses to testify that "the old biddy" blabbed.

If it's any consolation, you're in prestigious company. In 1863, Abraham Lincoln said:

"If I were to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how, the very best I can, and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, then angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

***

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the kindergarten teacher who was teaching the children how to dial "911" in case of emergency, when one sharp little boy commented: "This would work a whole lot better if I was sure what a 'nine' looked like."

Abby, the boy makes an excellent point, but I have another concern. Teachers should teach children that the emergency number is "nine-one-one," and discourage saying, "Nine-eleven," because there is no number 11 on the telephone dial.

There are cases pending in courts across the nation because precious lives have been lost due to the time wasted while children tried to find number "11" on the telephone.

I should know — I work for the Winterville Rescue Squad. — DAWSON PAGE, WINTERVILLE, N.C.

DEAR MR. PAGE: Too bad nobody thought of that when someone came up with "911" for emergency. The number "1-2-3" would have been less confusing and easier to remember.

Museum begins expansion work

BIG SPRING — The Heritage Museum expansion will begin tomorrow with a ground-breaking ceremony, said curator Angie Way. The celebration will begin at 5:45 p.m. north of the museum building at 510 Scurry. The expansion committee will acknowledge those who made the work possible, including the Dora Roberts Foundation, the American Petrofina Foundation and the J.E. and L.E. Mavee Foundation, Way said. Refreshments will be served. It was necessary to raise $450,000 to finance the construction, which will increase the size of the museum by three-fold, she said. A new entrance at street level and better handicapped access are part of the work expected to be completed by February next year.

Agency requests budget increase

BIG SPRING — West Texas Opportunities, Inc. has submitted an application to the Texas Department of Community Affairs for continued funding of programs in Howard, Martin, Borden, Glasscock, Dawson, Midland, Ector, Gaines and Upton counties. The agency coordinates with state and local agencies including the Texas Department of Health, the Department of Human Services, churches, utility companies, schools and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to provide assistance to low-income individuals. It is requesting $239,401 in this grant, a $2,562 increase over this year's budget, because the agency has increased its caseload at its county offices, said Pat Lawlis, director of the Howard County office. West Texas Opportunities will serve an estimated 15,480 in 1990-91 throughout the 10-county region.

Lawmakers differ on funding

Representative Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, said he would be satisfied by the appointment of a master to rule on school funding. State Senator John T. Montford said he hopes that will not happen. The court has appointed a master to formulate a plan which would take effect June 25 if the legislature does not approve a plan by June 1. Fraser said he supports a "Robin Hood" plan which would take money away from rich districts to fund poorer districts. He said he sees it as the legislature's only choice. Fraser said he expects the legislature to approve a plan of its own, making the use a master unnecessary. Fraser said he co-sponsored the Uher-Schoolcraft bill, a bi-partisan plan which attempts to equalize public school wealth. If a master plan were implemented, he said, the plan would most likely mirror that bill. He said he supports the bill because it is a win-win situation for West Texans. "The taxpayers of West Texas have been financing the school systems in Dallas and Houston for years. The only way to correct that problem is to change the funding formula."

The proposed legislation would cost Dallas about $55 million, and Houston would lose about $81 million, according to figures provided by Fraser. The two "rich" urban areas could recover those amounts by increasing the local tax rate to the state average of 95 cents per $100 valuation, Fraser said. Taxpayers in Dallas pay an average of 84 cents per $100 valuation, while in Houston the average is 80 cents. Big Spring citizens pay local taxes of $1.06 on every $100 valuation. Under the Uher-Schoolcraft plan, Big Spring Independent school district would gain about $1.5 million in funding, according to figures provided by Fraser. Coahoma would gain $395,000. For-Scan Schools, Fraser noted, are budget-balanced and would remain unaffected by a change in the formula. Montford said the conference-committee plan is his choice for solving the crisis. The plan involves a one-half cent tax increase to fund schools. The Conference Committee plan lists $833,705 available for Big Spring, and $225,050 for Coahoma

Schools, according to material provided by Fraser. "I don't like taxes any more than he (Fraser) does," Montford said. The senator said he thinks the legislature is in a desperate situation, especially as it looks toward the future. "Clements is going to be gone. I'm worried about next year," Montford said many of the House of Representatives proposed bills would cost more over the next five years. A one-judge rule, Montford said, would be an intolerable situation. "The most important thing right now is to not let this thing fall into the hands of a master. I'm the last one who would want that to happen." Montford said the House of Representatives has not found the needed support for the Uher-Schoolcraft bill at this point, and he does not expect that to change. The state Supreme Court ruled in the Edgewood vs. Kirby case that the current system of state funding for education is unfair to poor districts and ordered reform of the process by May 1. The current third special session of the legislature was called to satisfy the mandate.

Commissioners hear water dispute

By ERIN BLAIR Staff Writer
BIG SPRING — Talk of fast lines on county right-of-ways and training for volunteer fire fighters dominated early discussion at the County Commissioners Court this morning. Junior and Opal Gaskins came before the commissioners to protest the use of county right-of-ways for water lines to service oil fields. The Gaskins own a water supply company that sells water it trucks from wells to drilling companies and highway contractors. The county buys water from them for the Howard County Volunteer Fire Department. The Gaskins claimed that the fast lines cut into their business with the county's tacit approval, since the County Commissioners approved allowing the water lines to be installed along county-owned right-of-ways, with the permission of adjacent landowners, several years ago. The owners of the water lines, whose identity remained uncertain, did not have to pay the county for a permit or user fee to use the land. Junior Gaskins argued that not only did the companies not have to pay for the privilege of running their pipes down county right-of-ways, they also did not have to pay any truck taxes to the county, as he did. Furthermore, when drilling companies used the piped water, the money they paid for the service left the county, he said. Opal Gaskins expressed concern that the water lines were taking water out of the county's lakes. "The water in CRMWD (Colorado River Municipal Water District) lakes is getting low and it should be used for people, not drilling," she said. Commissioner David Barr said CRMWD had purchased rights to the lakes' watersheds and could use the water as it pleased, while Commissioner Bill Crooker said the county couldn't legislate an exclusive water distributorship to Gaskins. "There's no question of what the law is," said County Attorney Hardy Wilkerson. "The County Commissioners said it was fine to run the fast lines down the right-of-way if adjacent owners had no objections and if the companies had the permission of (County Engineer) Bill Mims. "If the commissioners restricted the right-of-way now we'd be on shaky legal ground to enforce it." Mims said no one had inquired about installing fast lines in at least a year. Commissioner Louis Brown said he would talk to State Sen. John Montford in Austin later this week, "to see if Junior's got a leg to stand on." No action was taken on the issue.

C. Roy Wright, the Howard County fire chief, asked the court for permission to use $2,700 in budget funds to send eight volunteer fire fighters to a fire fighting school at Texas A&M July 23-28. "It will be excellent training for them in basic and advanced fire fighting, fire prevention and officer training," Wright said. "A&M has the largest fire training center in the nation and there'll be about 2,500 fire fighters there in July." Brown asked what would happen if a fire truck crashed or suffered mechanical problems after all the budget money was spent on the school. Commissioner Paul Allen said insurance would cover any accidents and mechanics in the county shop could fix most engine trouble with little expense. Wright also presented the court with a reorganization of his department, which includes 80 volunteers and all 10 volunteer fire departments in the county: Lomax, For-Scan, Coahoma, Sand Springs, Silver Heel, Tubbs, Jonesboro, Knott, Luther and Vincent. He said the reorganization would channel all purchase requests through him and his eight officers, rather than have each VFD submit separate requests. The commissioners approved his request for the fire fighters school. "Somebody's got to do it and they do it for nothing, and they do a good job," commented Barr.

Weekend fires

Four units responded to this fire at 400 N.W. 11th St. Saturday that occurred at 12:32 p.m. A spokeswoman at the fire department said the cause of the fire is unknown. Damage to the house, occupied by Roxanne DeAnda, was estimated at $35,000. Two units responded to a fire at 1310 E. 6th St. also on Saturday night. Damaged to a vacant house was estimated at $15,000. There were no injuries and the cause of the fire is unknown. In a third fire Saturday night near the Union Carbide plant, a pickup owned by Ray Adams was destroyed. Volunteer Fire Chief C. Roy Wright said the fire is suspicious. There were no injuries, but the Sand Spring fire fighters worked for 30 minutes to extinguish the blaze.

Flood Damage in Southern States

Flooding

 14-year-old son in Texarkana, Ark. Along the Texas-Oklahoma line, on the headwaters of the Red River, only one highway in the Lake Texoma area remained closed Sunday by record flooding one week earlier. The lake had flooded homes and cabins. Downstream, workers blew up a section of a failed levee in Bowie County, Texas, to relieve pressure on a backup levee protecting several communities in Arkansas. Five blasts widened the gap and eased the pressure of flood water pouring through the breach, removing the threat to the final floodwater barrier. "If the levee goes, we'll be looking at 250 to 300 homes affected," said Gary Talley of the Arkansas Office of Emergency Services. More than 100 Guardsmen in southwestern Arkansas sandbagged and helped with flood problems. A helicopter and four river barges patrolled along the river, helping feed cattle stranded on flood-created islands. James Roberts of Foreman was 23 in 1938, the last time major flooding occurred on the Red River.

 economically feasible." The petition, she said, may not bring BET to town but will act as a catalyst to start things moving in that direction. Herman Evans, who signed the petition as well, said he thinks signers deserve to have their voices heard. "We figured it was our right (to petition). I'm sure it (BET) is worth the cost. There is more than just black music on it. I think a lot of people in town would watch it." Lloyd said he finds the interest the petitioners have shown flattering. "We're proud to find that so many people want this enough to do what it takes to get results." He said among the survey forms already collected he has seen several requests for BET. Tabulation of the results is starting now, and the company has copies of the survey forms for anyone who wants one, he said. The cable company plans to add between eight and 11 channels beginning this summer, Lloyd said. While each channel requires buying a satellite receiver and equipment to pick up transmissions, BET would cost no more than most, he said. Lloyd said his difficult position is that he must try to please as many of the 9,000 Big Spring cable subscribers as he can. "We want to do what the people of Big Spring want. They're our customers." Sherman said the station he and the petitioners want has gospel music, old re-runs of popular shows and educational programs. The appeal, he said, would cross racial boundaries. "It's not just for blacks. Besides, there are three country and western stations, a Spanish and a rock 'n' roll station (on the cable service). All we're asking for is one black entertainment station."

Jason

 Tickets have been made available to football games at the Astrodome for patients and their families. Staying just half a block from the gate, Jason has no trouble attending Oilers' football games and Astros' baseball games between treatments. Jack Gainer of Odessa has also been a big part of Jason's life as he, along with the Make-A-Wish program, have been able to give Jason a computer. Margaret Lloyd and Betty Cox of the Humane Society in Big Spring recently gave Jason another surprise; he is now the proud owner of a playful puppy named "Midget." "After his dog died, he wanted another dog, and they really gave him a beautiful puppy to play with," said his grandmother. Also getting into the act was Jason's "big brother," Marvin Eastman. Midget is now a lot more comfortable, thanks to the dog house Marvin built. "He is a wonderful person and a family friend and has been doing his big brother work for over 24 years," said Mrs. Sadler of Eastman.

American wins first round match

ROME (AP) — No. 5 seed Jay Berger of the United States rallied to beat Amos Mansdorf 3-6, 6-1, 6-0 today in the opening round of the $1.28 million men's Italian Open.

No. 12 seed Guillermo Perez-Roldan of Argentina outlasted Haiti's Ronald Agenor in a three-hour match 6-7 (7-4), 6-2, 6-4. Perez-Roldan broke Agenor's serve at 4-4 in the final set, then held service for the win.

Berger dominated the unseeded Mansdorf, of Israel, in the final two sets.

Americans Brad Gilbert and Aaron Krickstein are the top seeds in the tournament, which is missing the world's top four players.

Seeded players in action today included No. 1 Gilbert, against fellow American Jim Pugh and No. 3 Andres Gomez of Ecuador against Yannick Noah of France.

More than 500 want to be Cowboys

IRVING (AP) — More than 500 hopefuls tried out for the Dallas Cowboys over the weekend, but the team says chances are slim that any will be invited to training camp.

"I won't say it's impossible," Bob Ackles, Cowboys director of player personnel, said during Saturday's open tryouts at Texas Stadium. "But it's tough for a kid to come out of here."

Since the 80-man training-camp roster limit went into effect last year, fewer and fewer participants in open tryouts are getting the chance to move on to an NFL training camp.

The increasing number of scouts combing the country also lessen the possibility that an NFL-quality player will be overlooked during the draft, then suddenly surface at a tryout. But in some cases, kickers or punters — who may have played soccer in college — may be overlooked by scouts.

The hopefuls on Saturday filled out questionnaires, signed waivers, warmed up, and then ran two 40-yard dashes. Minimum times, ranging from 4.5 for wide receivers to 4.9 for nose guards, eliminated about 90 percent of the field.

The fortunate 10 percent moved to agility drills. If the coaches liked what they saw, the waiting began for the players while the Cowboys made a decision.

In the midst of the bulging calves and pectorals, Dave Stevens was perhaps the most recognizable. Stevens, who was born without legs, played nose guard at Augsburg College, a Division III school in Minneapolis, Minn.

Stevens, who wears artificial legs only when he's not competing, said his strength is quickness off the ball and the ability to read plays quickly.

He came to the tryout with the full intention of making the Cowboys, but he felt disappointed.

"I'm disappointed for myself, but mostly because so many people did so much to get me here," he said. "But (the Cowboys) have a goal. They want the best athlete, and I respect that."

LA one game away from elimination

By The Associated Press
Even with 3-1 leads in their respective best-of-7 NBA playoff series, coaches Cotton Fitzsimmons and Chuck Daly aren't taking anything for granted.

"We haven't done anything yet. We just narrowed this down to a three-game series," Fitzsimmons said after his Phoenix Suns took a 3-1 lead in their best-of-7 Western Conference semifinal by defeating the Los Angeles Lakers 114-101. "I do think we have a shot at winning this series, but we are going to have to work very hard. But I'd rather be 3-1 going to LA (for Tuesday night's fifth game) than 1-3."

Daly said essentially the same thing after his defending champion Detroit Pistons' 102-90 victory over the Knicks in New York, with Game 5 scheduled for Auburn Hills, Mich., on Tuesday night.

"Our job isn't done yet," Daly said. "You've got to get four, and it's going to be a hard thing to get. The Knicks are going to come at us again so they can bring it back home."

Elsewhere, Michael Jordan scored 45 points and the Chicago Bulls opened the fourth quarter with a 22-6 spurt to beat the Philadelphia 76ers 111-101 for a 3-1 lead in their Eastern Conference series, which resumes Wednesday night in Chicago.

The Portland-San Antonio Western Conference series is tied 2-2, with Game 5 scheduled for Portland on Tuesday night.

Suns 114, Lakers 101

At Phoenix, Kevin Johnson scored 11 of his 30 points in the final 10:14 — he also had 16 assists — and the Suns survived a late rally by the Lakers. Tom Chambers added 27 points and Jeff Hornacek 23 for the Suns, who have never beaten the Lakers in six previous playoff series, including last year's 4-0 sweep.

Phoenix led by 14 midway through the third period before the Lakers pulled to 94-90 with 4:39 left in the game. But that's as close as they could get despite Magic Johnson's career playoff-high 43 points. The Suns responded with a 7-0 run started by Kevin Johnson's three-point play.

James Worthy scored 16 points for the Lakers, but made only five of 21 shots. A.C. Green added 14 points and 18 rebounds. Mark West had 15 points, 15 rebounds and six blocked shots for Phoenix.

The Suns shot 13-for-17 in bulding a 14-point first-period lead and led 62-48 at halftime on 57 percent accuracy.

"We have to try to win it right away, even though it's on their home court," Hornacek said. "We feel confident. The last two games have shown us what we can do. We came home and did what we had to do — win twice."

Pistons 102, Knicks 90

Detroit took advantage of Patrick Ewing's first-half foul trouble to take the lead for good — it was 51-42 at the intermission — and then put on a second-half defensive clinic.

Ewing, who scored 45 points in Saturday's victory, was scoreless in the first half while playing only six minutes because of foul trouble and taking only one shot. He scored 30 points in the second half.

"We couldn't take anything for granted when Ewing went out of the game because the Knicks had proved they are a scrappy team

Norman wins rain-shortened Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — For years, Jack Nicklaus has tried to have the dates of his Memorial Tournament moved to avoid fickle northern weather.

He now has even more ammunition — to go with his considerable personal stature — to force a move after the final round of the 1990 Memorial was canceled Sunday.

Heavy rains put an end to four days of miserable weather and made Greg Norman — the leader after 54 holes — the winner by one stroke of the shortened tournament.

Norman said he was disappointed that the final round could not be played. But he said he was thrilled to win the Memorial, a tournament so closely associated with Nicklaus, one of his best friends and a Florida neighbor.

Payne Stewart, who finished second one shot back, said, "The weather will probably be beautiful here next week."

The Memorial moves back one week in 1991, but Nicklaus doesn't hide the fact that he feels he has enough backing to get an even better date in the future.

"The players have all said the same thing," Nicklaus said. "They say, 'Jack, we know where you'd like to be. Let us do it.'"

"(The first week in June) is where we'd like to be. I think the players feel that's the best week. We're just getting tired of fighting the weather. Everybody is ... You want the weather to be an element of playing the golf course, but this is ridiculous."

Winds of up to 40 mph hit the course during Thursday's opening round. Fred Couples, with a 3-under-par 69, was the only player able to equal or break par and he had a four-stroke lead after 18 holes.

Couples held on by a stroke through dry, windy weather on Friday, but the rains came Saturday morning and never left.

More than two inches fell Saturday and Sunday morning while the wind continued. Norman made up eight shots on Couples over the last eight holes Saturday, with the Australian taking a one-stroke lead when Couples double-bogeyed the 18th hole of the third round.

Rising star wins by nine strokes

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — Dottie Mochrie's near-record victory at the Crestar Classic obviously did nothing to diminish her reputation as a rising star — or satisfy her appetite to become one.

"I think there's going to be weeks that will be like this one, and everybody has weeks where everything goes well, but hopefully, it will just happen more to me than it will to others," she said Sunday after her nine-shot victory was the second most-lopsided margin ever in a 54-hole LPGA Tour event.

It was the second title for Mochrie, 24, who is in her third professional season and marked the first time in her career she put together three rounds in the 60s. She either beat the field or tied for the low round on all three days.

Mochrie also came within two shots of matching the tour's 54-hole scoring record.

She did all this while nursing a rotator cuff injury to her left shoulder that had kept her out of action for three weeks. This was her second tournament back.

Mochrie closed with a 4-under-par 68 and finished at 200, 16 shots below par on Greenbrier Country Club's 6,275-yard, narrow layout. She won $52,500.

The only players within 10 shots were Chris Johnson and Meg Mallon. Johnson birdied the final hole for a 69 and a 7-under 209, while Mallon was at 210 after a 68.

Patty Sheehan had a chance to join Mallon, but she bogeyed No. 18 for a 70. That left her at 211 with Judy Dickinson, who shot a 69. Johnson, a four-time winner, was playing in the final group Sunday with Mochrie, who won the 1989 Oldsmobile Classic and finished fifth at last year's U.S. Women's Open.

Johnson, who began the day eight shots behind Mochrie, birdied the first two holes.

Mochrie was 15 under after playing the front nine in 3-under 33, and her closest pursuer was Johnson — nine shots back.

The only questions left for Mochrie were whether she could match the tour's scoring and margin-of-victory records for 54 holes.

without him," said Detroit's Dennis Rodman, who had 14 points and 14 rebounds. "In the second half we played Pistons basketball, trying not to give them anything."

Detroit forced the Knicks into missing 16 of their first 21 shots in the second half.

The Pistons were led by James Edwards with 19 points. Bill Laimbeer and Vinnie Johnson each added 15 and Isiah Thomas had 12.

Charles Oakley had 18 points and 14 rebounds for the Knicks, who rallied from 15 points down as Ewing scored 12 points in less than five minutes and closed to 87-82 with 3:39 left. But a jumper by Edwards and two free throws by Joe Dumars ended the threat. Dumars scored 13 of his 17 points in the last three minutes.

Knicks coach Stu Jackson also was upset with the officiating.

Bulls 111, 76ers 101

Jordan scored 18 points in the final period as Chicago rallied from a nine-point deficit to take a 91-90 lead. The Bulls stretched their lead to 99-92 before Philadelphia scored five straight points to make it 99-97 with 3:42 left.

After Jordan made a driving left-handed layup, Johnny Dawkins hit a free throw for Philadelphia and John Paxson added two free throws for Chicago to make it 103-98.

"We played a lot of people in the fourth quarter and we really played well," said Jordan, who was 16-of-31 from the field, 12-of-13 from the foul line and had 11 assists.

The Sixers' Charles Barkley, who had 22 points and 13 rebounds, made one of two free throws, but Jordan completed a three-point play to give the Bulls a 106-99 lead with 1:53 left. Chicago, which trailed by 16 in the third period, won the fourth quarter 34-15.

Rookie Stacey King scored 21 points as a replacement for Scottie Pippen, who was in Arkansas for his father's funeral. Hersey Hawkins had 26 and Mike Gminski 24 for Philadelphia.

While Jordan shined, Barkley struggled, missing nine of 15 free throws.

Yugoslav teenager thrashes Martina

ROME (AP) — She has won her last four tournaments, 20 straight matches and 40 sets in a row. And her name is not Steffi Graf.

If there was any doubt that 16-year-old Monica Seles of Yugoslavia is for real, just ask the latest victim of her two-fisted assault.

"I feel like I've been run over by a truck," Martina Navratilova said after losing 6-1, 6-1 to Seles in the final of the Italian Open on Sunday.

Navratilova is skipping the French Open again this year to prepare for Wimbledon, so she won't have to worry about facing Seles again soon. But Graf may not be so lucky. Last year the West German, the world's top-ranked player, was shocked in the French Open final by 17-year-old Arantxa Sanchez Vicario.

But Seles' triumph in the $500,000 Italian Open has established her as Graf's main challenger at Roland Garros this year.

"It came at a great time," Seles said. "It gives me a lot of confidence going into the French Open."

The French, played on the same red clay as the Italian Open, begins in two weeks.

Seles, currently ranked fourth in the world, will take over the No. 3 spot in the next rankings from Sanchez, who lost in the third round here. With the absence of the second-ranked Navratilova, Seles will be seeded No. 2 in Paris behind Graf.

Graf squeezed past Seles 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 in the French Open semifinals last year.

The West German bypassed the Rome tournament, but the field included all the other top clay court players, including Gabriela Sabatini, Sanchez and 14-year-old American sensation Jennifer Capriati.

Seles was never tested during the week, losing only 14 games in five matches. The match against Navratilova was especially one-sided, lasting just 53 minutes. Seles won 20 of 23 points in one stretch.

Nothing that Navratilova tried worked. When she stayed back and hit offspeed shots, she either committed an error or gave Seles a chance to crack a winner with her two-handed forehand and backhand. When Navratilova rushed the net, Seles replied with net-skimming passing shots.

The match statistics told the story: 37 winners and six unforced errors for Seles, nine winners and 11 errors for Navratilova.

"I could never sustain the rallies or get her to back off," Navratilova said. "She was eating up everything."

Navratilova said she felt flat, tired and emotionally drained following her dramatic 7-6, 7-5 semifinal victory over Sabatini Saturday night. But Seles said that she, too, was not at her best, a frightening thought for her future opponents.

Still, Seles was particularly satisfied that she had finally beaten Navratilova.

Orioles get best of A's

By The Associated Press
Not even the awesome Oakland Athletics can win every game. In fact, every once in awhile they lose two in a row — at home, no less.

The Baltimore Orioles became the first team to win a series at the Oakland Coliseum since last July, beating the Athletics 4-1 Sunday.

Jay Tibbs (2-4) and four relievers held Oakland to five hits. Rickey Henderson's sixth home run of the season put the Athletics ahead 1-0 in the third inning, but Oakland went on to lose for just the second time in 20 games in which it has scored first.

The Orioles got two runs in the fourth against Mike Moore (3-2). Cal Ripken had an infield hit with two outs, advanced on a wild pitch, Joe Orsulak hit an RBI single and Mickey Tettleton broke an 0-for-21 slump with a run-scoring double.

Indians 4, Rangers 1
John Farrell scattered five hits over eight innings in beating Texas for the fourth time in as many career decisions and Jerry Browne opened the game with his first home run of the season. Farrell (3-1) lost his shutout bid when Gary Pettis hit his first home run with two out in the eighth. Doug Jones yielded one hit in the ninth for his 12th save, tops in the majors, in as many opportunities.

Cleveland added a run in the third off Charlie Hough (3-2) on Brook Jacoby's bases-loaded sacrifice fly following walks to Stan Jefferson and Candy Maldonado around Mitch Webster's single. The Indians made it 4-0 in the fourth on Chris James' leadoff double, Joel Skinner's triple and Browne's sacrifice fly.

Mariners 10, Yankees 5
In Seattle, Ken Griffey Jr., Alvin Davis and Brian Giles hit home runs, leading Matt Young to his first victory as a starting pitcher since 1986. Griffey went 3-for-3, raising his league-leading average to .370. He hit his seventh home run, Davis hit his sixth of the season and Giles hit first homer since 1985. New York out-hit the Mariners 14-13.

Angels 8, Red Sox 4
In California, Lance Parrish homered, doubled and drove home three runs as the Angels stopped a four-game losing streak.

Twins 8, Brewers 6
In Minnesota, the Twins won for the ninth time in 11 games as Shane Mack's bases-loaded single in the sixth inning broke open a tie game.

Mack put the Twins ahead 6-4 and another run scored on the play on left fielder Greg Vaughn's wild throw. Mack later came home on Kent Hrbek's sacrifice fly.

Blue Jays 6, Tigers 3
In Detroit, George Bell got three hits and scored Toronto's tiebreaking run in the eighth inning on John Olerud's sacrifice fly. Bell hit his fourth home run, had an RBI double and scored three times.

Wallach destroys Padres

By The Associated Press
Tim Wallach's performance had Oil Can Boyd and the San Diego Padres talking to themselves.

Wallach drove in eight runs, including a pair of three-run homers, and Boyd pitched his first shutout in five years as Montreal routed San Diego 15-0 on Sunday at Jack Murphy Stadium.

"I have to talk to myself," Boyd said. "I had gotten away from that. When I tell myself things like 'keep the ball down,' basically I'm hearing my thoughts and I'm able to respond better."

What did the Padres say? That can't be printed.

Wallach, who entered the game with 14 RBIs, hit three-run homers in the first and third innings to give Montreal a 6-0 lead. He added a run-scoring single in the fourth and an RBI double in the eighth.

He tied a club record for RBIs in a game previously set by Andre Dawson and Chris Speier. Reds 13, Cubs 9. Cincinnati blew a six-run lead but rebounded for four runs in the eighth inning, highlighted by Joe Oliver's three-run homer, to beat Chicago at Riverfront Stadium.

The Cubs rallied from an 8-2 deficit and scored four runs in the seventh with Rob Dibble (2-0) on the mound to tie the score 9-9.

Todd Benzinger started the eighth with a one-out single off Steve Wilson (0-4). Benzinger stole second and went to third on Paul O'Neill's fly out. Mariano Duncan singled off Wilson's glove to score Benzinger with the go-ahead run and Oliver followed with his homer.

Phillies 4, Giants 1
Former Giant Dennis Cook pitched a six-hitter and won his fifth game as Philadelphia beat San Francisco at Veterans Stadium.

Len Dykstra had a single and a homer for Philadelphia off Rick Reuschel (2-4) to raise his average to .398.

Cook (5-0) carried a shutout into the ninth inning when Greg Litton led off with a home run.

Cook was traded to the Phillies by San Francisco last June along with pitcher Terry Mulholland and third baseman Charlie Hayes for reliever Steve Bedrosian.

Pirates 5, Astros 1
Jose Lind twice spoiled Houston's strategy by driving in runs and Pittsburgh benefited from a rare interference call that stripped the Astros of a run as the Pirates swept the three-game series at Three Rivers Stadium.

Bob Walk (3-3) allowed five hits over seven-plus innings and tied a career high with eight strikeouts as the Pirates won for the eighth time in nine games and the 14th time in 17 games.

The Astros, who scored only five runs in the three-game series, lost their fourth in a row and their seventh in eight games.

In the Houston third, pitcher Bill Gullickson (2-2) tried to score from second on Glenn Davis' single to left. Barry Bonds' throw bounced off catcher Mike LaValiere's chest protector and ricocheted into Gullickson, who was called out by home plate umpire Gerry Davis for intentionally interfering with the ball.

Braves 3, Cardinals 1
Fielding errors by Gold Glove winners Ozzie Smith and Terry Pendleton helped visiting Atlanta score three runs in the eighth inning to beat St. Louis. The Braves snapped a four-game losing streak.

In the opening 7-6 win, Andrews scored three runs in the final inning to make the game close. Andrews rallied for three runs with no outs. Then with runners on second and third, Outlaw hurler Michael Paul Martinez got the next three batters out. Martinez went the distance, scattering nine hits, striking out six and walking two. Chris Lopez was the loser for Andrews, he gave up eight hits while going the distance.

Jay Valdez and David Petterson led the Outlaws with two hits each. Lopez and Santos Montoya got two hits apiece for Andrews.

Outlaws 11, Andrews 1

Names in the news

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For 43 high school students, Brenda Lee didn't make much of an impression — until they learned that Madonna is one of her fans.

The veteran singer told students Friday that she recorded two songs for the soundtrack of the upcoming "Dick Tracy" movie.

"Madonna asked specifically that I sing the songs — which are brand-new numbers," Ms. Lee told the students. "I had no idea she was a fan of my singing, but I'm delighted she is."

Ms. Lee is appearing at the Opryland USA theme park for her third straight year. A hit country and pop singer since she was in her teens, she is known for such songs as "I'm Sorry," "Foot No. 1" and "Rockin' in the Free World."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former University of Arkansas basketball star Sidney Moncrief reveals in his new book that he was occasionally offered money by an alumnus or fan during his years as a Razorback in the 1970s. But the former college All-American and NBA all-star with the Milwaukee Bucks said he was not implying that the Arkansas athletic program is tainted.

"Arkansas runs a straight program," he said in an interview.

"I can't say that during my time at Arkansas, I wasn't offered anything extra," Moncrief wrote. The book, "Moncrief: My Journey to the NBA," was written with Myra McLarey. He retired from the NBA last year.

"I can't say that occasionally an alumnus or overzealous fan didn't walk up to me after a game and put a hundred-dollar bill in my hand when he shook it," he wrote.

He does not say whether he took the money.

Students can expect to have several careers during their lives

By DEBBIE LINCÉCUM
Staff Writer

Just when you new graduates thought it was safe to choose a career, counselors say the first time won't be the last time you make that difficult choice. According to a report by Texas Christian University career counselors, most people can expect to change careers every 10 years as we approach the year 2000. The report says that 65 percent of the high school class of 1984 will retire from jobs that were not even in existence when they graduated. Re-training for careers, the report says, is a must for the next century.

Coahoma winners

Those Coahoma kids are at it again. District 7 AAA English competitions show some amazing results. Many students in grades one through six were winners in the Midland competition, but we will list only the first three places here. In fifth grade Oral Reading, Cindy Birdwell took the top spot. Fifth grade Music Memory honors went to third place Ernesto Requejo. Fourth grader Rebecca Choate took first in the Ready Writing division. In the third grade division, Daniel Clark took second place and Kelli Buchanan third.

High technology

Some older Coahoma students showed their stuff May 4 and 5 at the State Technology Student Association in Waco.

Two first place winners were invited to exhibit their work at the group's national convention in June. They are: Wes Rowell, who created a wooden bowl, and Nathan Taylor whose pencil drawing of a water treatment facility was named Best in State.

Other firsts at state were: Rene Morales, Ned Hildebrand and Shawn Coker. Seconds went to: Phillip Anderson, Wes Rowell, Shawn Coker, Randy Sparks, Jeff Watt, Sam Lenderman, Allen Carlile and Ricky Gomez. ## First impressions are important

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Now is the time when many students begin looking for a job. Competition is often fierce and the impressions of the employer at the initial interview can be the deciding factor between whether the job-seeker is kept on the possible list or dropped from consideration altogether. As the saying goes, you never get a second chance to make a first impression. So making a good one can be a vital key in your quest for success. How you look and how you communicate during an interview can affect its outcome. Among contenders with equal qualifications, the candidate with the best communications skills is the one most likely to get the job offer, says Barbara McEntee, a New York City communications consultant whose clients include some of the country's top companies. "In fact, the ability to communicate well is ranked as the number one key to success by leaders in business, politics and the professions," she says. Job-seekers can say a great deal about themselves without uttering a word, says Richard Press, grandson of the founder of J. Press Clothiers. "Without words, a properly-dressed applicant lets the interviewer know he will fit into the 'corporate culture' of a company," says Press, whose male customers include leaders of business and industry. How should a man dress for an interview? "Conservatively," says Press, in a word. "Most corporations value a traditional approach to work and apparel."

Press says clothes should be thought of as a career investment. "If a suit is selected with care," he notes, "it will last five or more years without going out of style." Both men and women should strive for the neat, tailored look, he adds. Posture also is important in the job interview, according to Linda Fields, an expert on body language and public speaking. "Slouching sends a message you're insecure and nervous and perhaps not capable of handling the job," says Ms. Fields, a principal of New York-based Fields & McKamy International Speaker Services. Sitting on the edge of the chair will help you avoid the slouch, she says. Both Ms. Fields and McEntee say the candidate should maintain eye contact and appear confident.

School mentors

CORPUS CHRISTI — Monica Saenz, center, striped shirt, a junior at A&I, talks to sixth-grader Justin Specht and Frances Puente, eighth grade, at a recent group mentoring session. Two Texas

A&I students recently planned, developed and implemented a program aimed at persuading kids to remain in school until they graduate.

Panhandle kindergartners take imaginary journeys around the world

By RON BATES and WENDY HALL
Amarillo Globe-News
NAZARETH (AP) — Attention passengers: Fasten your seat belts, be sure your chairs are in an upright position and your crayons are put away. Air Kindergarten will be arriving in Honolulu shortly. Or as close to Hawaii as a Texas Panhandle classroom can be. Kindergartners at Nazareth Elementary School will be winging it to the islands on the power of their desk chairs and a little imagination. The first stage of their trip came when a Castro County pilot gave impromptu flying lessons in the pasture behind the school building last week. "I was thinking on the way over, this airplane's twice as old as these kids are," Max Ellison said after landing his 1981 Cessna Ag Husky. "I love taking the little kids flying." Actually, Ellison was the only one doing any flying, making several passes over the cheering children before landing. The kids then took turns behind the controls, learning the way the plane is controlled. At the end of the ground school, Ellison handed out certificates authorizing the youngsters to fly to Hawaii. Ellison, a crop duster, had already shared the cockpit with several of the youngsters who trekked to the plane, having taken them up with their fathers, his customers. But this time, he was the teacher. "It has a stick instead of a steering wheel," Jase Merritt said after his turn behind the controls. "You pull it back and those elevators move, and the wings, too," his friend Quinton Jones added.

The cockpit course and the make-believe Hawaiian excursion are part of the transportation unit taught by Brenda Shippy and Kim Makeever. "We do lots of hands-on with kindergartners," Makeever said. "That's the only way they remember things. You have to have an imagination in kindergarten." The teachers take a single mode of transportation and highlight it for a lesson. Airplanes were a natural choice for Shippy, a former airline flight attendant. Last year, students in her class traveled to Amarillo International Airport and toured an American Airlines passenger jet. "We went to the airport and got on the escalator and you should've seen them," Shippy said. "That was almost as much fun as getting on that jet. It was then I realized just where we live." The trip to Hawaii, Shippy said, is designed to incorporate different lessons into the same activity. The children, through good behavior, earn the money to pay for the ticket and have to count it out at the ticket counter. Once inside the classroom-turned-airliner, they take on the roles of pilot, flight attendant or passenger. After assuming their posts, it's off to Hawaii. And they'll look the part, having made grass skirts and leis in class. Shippy said that once in Hawaii, they'll have a luau and watch a homemade volcano erupt. "Usually when you tell a student we're going to study geography their response is — UGH!" Shippy said. "But when you say we're going to Hawaii, you get their attention."

Man arrested after standoff

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man who argued with family members and allegedly fired shots from their home surrendered today after a couple of hours, police said.

No one was hurt in the random shooting incident which began around 7:30 a.m. and ended after 10 a.m., when the man gave up, officials said. Formal charges were pending. San Antonio Police Lt. Andy Lozano said apparently the man arrived home drunk early today and began arguing with his mother and sister.

Sgt. Paul Buske said the man also allegedly threatened to shoot officers if they stormed the northeast San Antonio house.

Three people in the house were released during the episode in which tactical officers stood by.

The neighborhood had been sealed off, and traffic stuck within the boundaries included a Northeast Independent School District Bus. All the students on board were evacuated, authorities said.

Man pleads guilty in old murder case

DALLAS (AP) — A man who fled Dallas after his girlfriend's shooting death and lived a new life for almost 30 years pleaded guilty to a murder charge today.

Robert Lee Mitchell, 64, left Dallas for Chicago after the shooting in 1960 and began a new life as "Billy Jackson." He married and had five children and three grandchildren before a computer check of old warrants turned up a fingerprint connection between Mitchell and "Jackson."

He was returned to Dallas late last year. Mitchell said then he would plead guilty, take the consequences and put the killing behind him, but he insisted he was innocent because the gun went off accidentally during a struggle with Billie Marie Redmon Phillips, his 29-year-old girlfriend.

Sentencing is set for Friday before State District Judge Ron Chapman.

Official: employer sanctions best way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employer sanctions are the best way to prevent illegal immigration despite criticism they result in discriminatory hiring practices, the nation's top immigration officer said today.

Immigration and Naturalization Service Commissioner Gene McNary told the Border Trade Alliance that the agency has suggested creation of a document that would distinguish legal residents.

But McNary said the agency does not want to create another national identification card, like a social security number.

Officials still undecided on incinerator program

By PATRICK DRISCOLL, Staff Writer

STANTON — The City Council will meet at 7 p.m. and hear reports on a trip they helped sponsor to McIntosh, Ala., to inspect a hazardous waste incinerator operation there.

The Commissioners Court was scheduled to discuss the trip sometime after they met at 9 a.m. this morning.

Councilmen and commissioners are considering whether to sign a host agreement to locate an identical incinerator here in Martin County to burn petroleum waste and perhaps hazardous waste.

A private citizen, two councilmen, the county judge and the city administrator toured the operation Friday in McIntosh, where a Vulcan Iron Works incinerator has been used since 1973 to burn waste generated by Ciba-Geigy, a major multinational chemical company.

James Johnson, a Church of Christ minister, will give a report of his impressions at tonight's Council meeting. Also going on the trip were councilmen Ronnie Christian and Lester Baker and City Administrator Paul Lively.

Considering locating an incinerator in Martin County is All American Corp., of Brooklyn N.Y. The operation would employ 30-40 people and require as much as 40 acres of land.

Lively said they had planned to tour the plant with the mayor of McIntosh, then go visit a medical center and then visit with citizens in the small town.

Before embarking on the trip, city and county officials said they still have not decided whether or not to support locating an incinerator in Martin County.

"I'm not ready to jump either way on this," Christian said. He said he still wanted more answers, especially on stack emissions and residue.

County Judge Bob Deavenport, said, "I'm just trying to evaluate the thing."

Lively estimated the cost of the trip at $3,500 for the city and their share of Johnson's expenses. "It's been money well spent," he said.

Considering locating an incinerator in Martin County is All American Corp., of Brooklyn N.Y. The operation would employ 30-40 people and require as much as 40-acres of land.

The incinerator, manufactured by Vulcan Iron Works, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., can burn 180 tons every 24-hours and would discharge carbon dioxide and steam. It would probably be in use constantly, said All American Texas representative J.E. "Jim" Bradley, of Lubbock.

The incinerator would be used to burn oil field waste products, which according to an Environmental Protection Agency spokesperson in Dallas, is not hazardous. Bradley said they could incinerate more hazardous materials in the future but would not do so without permission from the City Council and Commissioners Court.

STANTON — Jason Kelmel's goal doesn't sound unreasonable on the surface.

"I'll be ready to start back to school in September and I can see my friends," he eagerly said. But Jason's goal looks less ordinary when one learns his circumstances.

AUSTIN — Lawmakers and Gov. Bill Clements' staff met until early this morning in the effort to reach a compromise on overhauling the school finance system and prevent a court-written reform plan.

"Both sides are going to sleep on it," Mike Toomey, Clements' chief of staff, said as he left the closed-door negotiations about 1:30 a.m.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said late Sunday night there had been some headway. But he and Toomey said some controversial issues — such as paying for reform — hadn't been addressed.

"We have made a great deal of progress. Whether or not we'll be able to make as much as needed, we don't know at this point," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

If by June 1 lawmakers and Clements don't come up with a funding reform plan as ordered by the state Supreme Court, court master William Kilgarlin will propose one that could be imposed on Texas schools.

The Supreme Court told the state to devise a finance system that makes more money available to property-poor school districts. The current $13.5 billion-a-year system relies on state aid, local property taxes and federal money.

Kilgarlin has warned that because he doesn't have the power to increase state taxes for education, his plan would have to divert current state aid from relatively wealthy to poorer districts.

As they work to answer the court ruling, the Democratic-controlled Legislature and Republican governor have been at a stalemate over his opposition to new state taxes.

Clements called lawmakers into a third special session on the issue after vetoing a half-cent sales tax increase, which was needed to fund a $555 million reform plan that lawmakers adopted last session.

The House and Senate this session have approved similar school finance bills. The measures were sent to a conference committee whose members are negotiating with representatives of Clements, who earlier promised to veto the legislation.

Waters surge in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana

By DAVID BRIGGS, Associated Press Writer

Louisiana farmers today braced for the most disastrous flooding in 45 years. About 7,000 people were urged to leave low-lying areas in Texas, and workmen dynamited a breached levee to prevent further damage in Arkansas.

Over the past three weeks, 13 deaths have been blamed on flooding: 12 in Texas and one in Oklahoma.

In Louisiana, heavy weekend rain compounded the flood threat as the Red River continued its rise from Shreveport to Alexandria. The river was expected to crest five feet above flood stage in Shreveport on Wednesday and had already overflowed in places.

Up to 600 square miles, including 200 square miles of farmland, will flood in the state this week and next, and up to 500 homes and camps between the levees and the river will be inundated, said U.S. Sen. J. Bennett Johnston.

"It will be a major agricultural disaster. It'll be a flood event such as we have not experienced since 1945," Johnston said after meeting with Army Corps of Engineers officials.

In Texas, about 7,000 residents downstream of Lake Livingston Dam, 60 miles northeast of Houston, were told to evacuate their homes along the rain-swollen Trinity River. Officials said water was pouring over the reservoir's spillway at more than twice the

Car impounded in missing boy case

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — Clovis police impounded a car in connection with the disappearance nearly a week ago of a 6-year-old boy.

Police Capt. Leon Morris said officers from the state police crime lab were processing the car for physical evidence Sunday afternoon.

Morris said police found the car at an undisclosed location in Clovis after receiving a tip during a house-to-house canvass seeking information about Matthew Roberts.

Police would not comment further early today on the impounded car or the crime lab tests.

Matthew, the son of Debbie and Geoff Roberts, apparently tried to follow Mrs. Roberts when she left to go to a nearby store Tuesday afternoon.

Matthew slipped out before his grandmother, who had been babysitting, could stop him, police have said. The child had been kept home from school because he was recuperating from chicken pox.

"We still don't have any particular direction as to what has happened to him," Police Chief Caleb Chandler said Saturday. "We're exploring all possibilities — whether he's lost, stuck in something or that he could have been abducted."

More than 100 Guardsmen in southwestern Arkansas sandbagged and helped with flood problems. A helicopter and four river barges patrolled along the river, helping feed cattle stranded on flood-created islands.

James Roberts of Foreman was 23 in 1938, the last time major flooding occurred on the Red River. But he said it was nothing like this.

"All my wheat's gone," he said. "I had 320 acres. I'd just got out of a tight. And now this. I hope we get some quick relief."

Reps hope solution to be found

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

Representative Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, said he would be satisfied by the appointment of a master to rule on school funding. State Senator John T. Montford said he hopes that will not happen.

A state district judge has appointed a master to formulate a plan which would take effect June 25 if the legislature does not approve a plan by June 1.

Fraser said he supports a "Robin Hood" plan which would take money away from rich districts to fund poorer districts. He said he sees it as the legislature's only choice.

Fraser said he expects the legislature to approve a plan of its own, making the use a master unnecessary.

Fraser said he co-sponsored the Uher-Schoolcraft bill, a bi-partisan plan which attempts to equalize public school wealth. If a master plan were implemented, he said, the plan would most likely mirror that bill.

He said he supports the bill because it is a win-win situation for West Texas. "The taxpayers of West Texas have been financing the school systems in Dallas and Houston for years. The only way to correct that problem is to change the funding formula."

The proposed legislation would cost Dallas about $55 million, and Houston would lose about $81 million, according to figures provided by Fraser. The two "rich" urban areas could recover those amounts by increasing the local tax rate to the state average of 95 cents per $100 valuation, Fraser said.

Taxpayers in Dallas pay an average of 84 cents per $100 valuation, while in Houston the average is 80 cents. Big Spring citizens pay local taxes of $1.06 on every $100 valuation.

Under the Uher-Schoolcraft plan, Big Spring Independent school district would gain about $1.5 million in funding, according to figures provided by Fraser. Coahoma would gain $395,000. For-san schools, Fraser noted, are budget-balanced and would remain unaffected by a change in the formula.

Montford said the conference-committee plan is his choice for solving the crisis. The plan involves a one-half cent tax increase to fund schools.

The Conference Committee plan lists $833,705 available for Big Spring, and $225,050 for Coahoma Schools, according to material provided by Fraser.

"I don't like taxes any more than he (Fraser) does," Montford said. The senator said he thinks the legislature is in a desperate situation, especially as it looks toward the future.

"Clements is going to be gone. I'm worried about next year," Montford said many of the House of Representatives proposed bills would cost more over the next five years.

A one-judge rule, Montford said, would be an intolerable situation. "The most important thing right now is to not let this thing fall into the hands of a master. I'm the last one who would want that to happen."

Montford said the House of Representatives has not found the needed support for the Uher-Schoolcraft bill at this point, and he does not expect that to change.

The state Supreme Court ruled in the Edgewood vs. Kirby case that the current system of state funding for education is unfair to poor districts and ordered reform of the process by May 1. The current third special session of the legislature was called to satisfy the mandate.

KINGSVILLE — President Bush gestures toward his head after giving the commencement address Friday at Texas A&I University here. Bush is the first president to give an address at the South Texas school.

Star speakers getting old college try

DALLAS (AP) — Graduation may be a solemn occasion for students, but it's a show for everyone else as colleges scramble in this season of speeches to flaunt their oratorical coups.

From President Bush and actor Bill Cosby to Episcopal Bishop Barbara Harris, men and women of stature are eagerly sought for the springtime commencement rite.

Texas, for the second consecutive year, is host to the president. He delivered an address Friday at Texas A&I University in Kingsville and will return Saturday to speak at the University of Texas at Austin.

"The appeal (of having the president) is that it makes the university the center of the universe, even if it is just for an hour and a half," Texas A&I president Manuel Ibanez told The Dallas Morning News.

Commencement speeches often have been the forum for major policy statements. In 1963, for example, President John F. Kennedy outlined "a strategy of peace," interpreted as this country's hopes for ending the Cold War, in a speech at American University in Washington, D.C.

Getting famous politicians, business giants and television personalities alike to the podium, however, is just the final step in an intricate process of persistence and luck that usually begins a year or more in advance.

Bush, who received 55 invitations and accepted five, is arguably one of the toughest tickets.

When Ibanez took office at Texas A&I last year on Aug. 1, he said the first letter he wrote was to the White House inquiring about commencement.

Alixie Glen, deputy press secretary to the president, said Mr. Bush tries to attend a mix of schools.

Police to honor fallen comrades

By RUTH COCHRAN Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Police officers here will mourn the deaths of fellow officers nationwide tomorrow in recognition of National Peace Officers' Memorial Day.

The memorial day, a part of National Peace Officers' Memorial Week, will be observed quietly by the Big Spring Police Department. Chief Joe Cook said no special service has been planned.

"We encouraged our officers to go to church yesterday in uniform," as part of the week, Cook said. "We'll be flying the flag at half staff tomorrow. That's really the only observance we'll have of it here."

Although the officers' appearance in uniform at their church services has always been well received, Cook said "there's never been any community involvement" in the memorial day.

By contrast, he said, the city of Tyler has planned a seminar with a guest speaker from the FBI, as well as a police motorcade a service for the officers.

According to the U.S. Department of Justice, 67 law enforcement officers were killed in the line of duty during 1989. In addition, 77 officers lost their lives to accidents during the course of performing their duties. Although no officers in Howard County were killed, Cook said the day, which is similar to Veteran's Day, also honors all officers killed in previous years.

"It's like a military memorial day," he said. "It's to commemorate those officers who have died (over the years)."

Early in the decade, he said, three Big Spring officers were killed or died in the line of duty. More recently, a Department of Public Safety trooper was killed by a drunk driver.

In keeping with the idea of a lasting remembrance, a National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial is nearing completion.

Pope ends Mexico trip

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (AP) — Pope John Paul II triumphantly concluded his 47th foreign trip on Sunday, the ninth anniversary of the shooting that nearly ended his papacy.

As the pope's special Aeromexico jet left Mexico City for a stop in Curacao, the Vatican's secretary of state recalled the moment when a lone gunman felled the spiritual leader of the world's 850 million Roman Catholics in St. Peter's Square.

"Nine years ago at this precise moment, there occurred one of the most incredible manifestations of hate against he who only preached love," Cardinal Agostino Casaroli said over the airplane's intercom at 9:17 a.m. (11:17 a.m. EDT).

"But at the same time, there occurred a manifestation of the intervention of providence," the secretary of state said. "Providence not only saved the life of the pope, but, in a certain sense, reinvigorated him."

Indeed, John Paul, who turns 70 Friday, barely showed strain during his eight-day, 10-city trip to Mexico. His hectic schedule for his seven-hour visit to the Dutch island of Curacao included meetings with the prime minister, non-Catholic leaders and priests and nuns, as well as a Mass.

The pope received a warm welcome at the airport in the overwhelmingly Catholic island 35 miles north of Venezuela. A group of schoolgirls in white blouses and blue skirts sang calypso music. They shook pom-poms of yellow and white, the Vatican's colors.

Among those greeting the pope was the prime minister of the Netherland Antilles, Maria Liberia-Peters, a Catholic. The pontiff kissed the earth, his custom on arriving in a new country.

Scattered knots of people, some waving palm fronds, greeted the pope along his motorcade route. Billboards read "Bon Bini," or "Welcome" in the local Papiamentu language.

At a Mass at sports stadium in Willemstad, the pontiff spoke out against divorce, cohabitation and abortion. He called on residents to set a Christian example in their dealings with the thousands of tourists who visit each year.

He also criticized materialism.

"The person, the family and the society will not be fully human if they limit their aspirations just to possessing, consuming and enjoying," he said.

Curacao, a financial and tourism center, has one of the highest living standards in the Caribbean. With a population of 147,000, it the most populous of the five Caribbean islands that make up the autonomous Netherland Antilles chain.

The stadium, which has a capacity of 20,000, was only about half full.

Behind the altar was a yellow backdrop representing the gabled colonial Dutch buildings of downtown Willemstad.

Several Latin American clerics, including Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo of Nicaragua, traveled to Curacao to celebrate the Mass.

John Paul made only a brief reference Sunday to the episode that nearly ended his life in 1981. He noted in a Mexico City airport address that the church was celebrating the Feast of the Virgin of Fatima on May 13.
