TU Electric pays $25,000 fine

DALLAS (AP) — TU Electric officials have decided to pay a $25,000 fine stemming from apparent violations of U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission requirements at the company's Comanche Peak Steam Electric Station near Glen Rose.

"While we don't agree with the fine, we will pay it," TU spokesman Dave Fiorelli said Thursday.

The NRC announced Thursday its intention to levy the fine because it felt the company had violated requirements last fall during an employee dispute over deficiencies in the fire-retardant insulation at Comanche Peak.

An inspector, who was laid off, had raised questions about deficiencies in material being used to insulate electrical conduits and cable trays.

Employees had been directed not to put the deficiency on non-conformance reports, the inspector told the NRC.

Eventually, the deficiencies were documented. But NRC officials said the dispute created a perception among employees that documenting deficiencies would place their jobs at risk. The NRC found, however, that the inspector who complained about deficient insulation was laid off as part of a workforce reduction.

Getting ready

BIG SPRING — At the bottom of the Comanche Trail Park swimming pool, Gus Brown uses a chemical cleaner to remove the dirt from the concrete surface before spraying with high-pressure water Thursday afternoon. The pool is being prepared for the summer season, with workers expecting the pool to be completed within the first two weeks of June.

Bull snake disrupts electric service

A bull snake looking for a comfortable place to hide left approximately 110 TU Electric customers without electricity for several hours last night.

District Manager Hooper Sanders of TU Electric said the snake crawled into a high voltage buss work, causing some insulator damage at the East Howard Substation located 20 miles east of Big Spring. The substation serves primarily oil field customers, although a few residential customers are on the line. Service was off from about 10:30 p.m. to 4 a.m., he said.

Grand Jury indicts another

BIG SPRING — Wednesday's "mini" grand jury indicted Ricky Smith on a charge of burglary of a building, according to a spokeswoman in the District Attorney's office.

As earlier reported, the grand jury also indicted John Michael Martinez, aggravated sexual assault, committed March 30; Andrew Marquez, possession of a controlled substance, committed March 21; Francisco Salazar Rosales, possession of a controlled substance, committed March 21; and Donald F. Atkinson, burglary of a building, committed April 11.

The grand jury next convenes in June.

Tenants: Owners slow to respond

By DEBBIE LINCEUM

The Permian building may join the growing number of abandoned buildings in town if its San Antonio-based owners do not respond to problems soon, the manager said.

After a broken water pipe caused severe flooding earlier this week, two major tenants have plans to move out, leaving an entire floor vacated, according to Manager Johnnie Lou Avery. She said her repeated requests for repairs have brought little response from the out-of-town owners.

Employees of Job Training Partnership Act and Personalized Achievement Center were stacking boxes, moving filing cabinets and desks yesterday afternoon. Avery said the two businesses are set to vacate their offices.

All of the tenants have been told they have the option of breaking their leases and vacating, Avery said.

"I've told them all we can't make any promises because we haven't gotten any promises," she said.

Avery and building superintendent Earl Permenter have attempted to contact Edwin Flato of Flato Realty in San Antonio since Tuesday. PERMIAN page 10-A

Council: Homeless shelter needed here

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Members of the Howard County Human Services Council want a shelter for the homeless but turning the dream into a program and a building is a daunting prospect, they agreed.

The council met Thursday morning to discuss the homeless problem in Big Spring and decided they needed to pool their resources to get projects started.

Approximately 15 representatives of Housing and Urban Development, the Senior Citizens' Council, the Department of Human Services-Child Protective Services, Salvation Army, West Texas Opportunities, the Department of Mental Health/Mental Retardation-Big Spring State Hospital, Westside Community Center, the First Church of the Nazarene, RSVP, Howard County Welfare-Indigent Health Services, Agricultural Extension and Rape Crisis/Victim Services attended the monthly meeting, open to all agencies that provide care for people in need.

State Representative Troy Fraser was scheduled to detail the availability of state funds for homeless programs, but the special school legislative session detained him in Austin. Instead, his assistant, Betty Krager, met with the group.

"Not knowing what the state will do with welfare reforms, we need to focus on federal programs," Krager said. "Every federal agency has funds for the homeless, even the department of defense. The money's there. We just need to know how to get it."

Boyd Carson, the Big Spring HUD director, and several other council members were upset that there were so few state funds available. He and Irene Dominguez of the county's Indigent Health Care office said many of the homeless they work with are former state hospital and Veterans Administration hospital clients and parolees whom they claimed the state had not properly mainstreamed.

"In Big Spring right now we have Band-Aids — if I can't help them, I send them on to you folks," said Carson. "Families end up bouncing all over the city looking for help."

Child development is not just kid-stuff at SHS

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

STANTON — Early morning classes may be dull for some high school students, but not in Caron Rawlings' child development class at Stanton High School.

"We have a lot of fun here. We get to learn about kids and the responsibilities that go along with them," said senior Gloria Rodriguez.

Rawlings and her students entertain around 10 children ranging from two to five years old. "This learning center is not all fun and games, because it teaches the youngsters guidance, and the student gets one-on-one contact with these children to actually learn first-hand experience at parenting," Rawlings said.

"It's a great chance to play with the kids and just to see what it's going to be like when we become parents and have our own," said Mike Moreno.

About 35 students participate in the elective course program, with topics covering individual family planning and child development.

"We are able to bring in guest speakers from different agencies to talk to the students about anything from foster parenting to first aid and ways of adoption to costs of rearing a child," Rawlings said.

"I think it's exciting to work with the kids 'cause I enjoy them. When I get married I would like to have five," said Gracie Cazares humorously.

"I like to have fun with Play-Dough and play house, make a lion, play blocks, dress up dolls," said Mary Allina Hedrick. Mary Allina is a beneficiary of program. She, along with David Gene Barber, Heather Washington and seven other youngsters have the time of their lives playing such things like "making tornados in a bottle," jump rope and play ball.

"It's a great benefit for both the kids and us," said Felix Cazares. "Working with the youngsters is hard work, but you also have fun and enjoy the kids responding to you."

"When they first get here they're scared, but once they get to know to you they began to play and open up," he added.

"This course was designed to enhance the stages of family living and child rearing. It also teaches areas of child care and different child care facilities," said Rawlings.

Summer cold could be allergies

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

This is the season for watery eyes, runny noses and sneezing. These and other cold-like symptoms could be the sign of an allergy.

Allergies affect people during the spring months, Dr. R. Marc Schwarz of Big Spring said, because offending plants and grasses, known as allergens, are in bloom. The mulberry may be making you wheeze now, he said, and soon it will be the pecan blooms.

Allergies happen when a substance triggers an antibody response, Schwarz said. The result is your body becomes sensitive to certain elements. Pollens, molds, weeds and grasses are common allergens.

An allergic reaction means your body has released more than it needs of a substance called histamine. Histamine binds with cells in the body to cause the familiar symptoms, Schwarz said.

Cold-like symptoms, including burning and itching eyes and throat, coughs, tightness of the chest, headaches and fatigue, may indicate an allergy, especially if they last more than three days, he said.

A doctor, in treating a suspected allergy, Schwarz said, will examine the history of a patient's symptoms. Allergies will commonly occur during the same season each year, especially winter, spring and fall. "West Texans usually don't have too much problem in the summer because everything dries," he said.

The tendency toward allergies is inherited, Schwarz said, though a specific allergy is not. "If one parent has allergies, there is a one-in-four chance a child will as well. If both parents have them, a child's chances increase to three in four."

Most people find they have some sort of allergic reaction, though many don't realize it, Schwarz said. If a doctor suspects your problem is allergies, he may decide to treat it one of two ways, he said.

Antihistamine drugs block the release of histamine. Because some people may develop a tolerance to certain types, there are eight groups available for treatment, Schwarz said. He said drug treatment is good for mild allergies which may last a few weeks.

Better for prolonged, seasonal allergies is a complete test to determine which substance is the offender, he said. Then a doctor can build an extract to administer to the patient in increasing dosages. The patient develops an immune response, eliminating the troublesome symptoms, he said, though there is no cure for allergies.

Chronic ear infections, asthma and headaches all respond well to similar treatment, Schwarz said. "Most people don't realize allergy plays a large part in asthma."

Actifed, Allerest and Benadryl, common over-the-counter remedies, are usually effective for mild reactions, he said. He warned that patients with heart disease, hypertension or diabetes need a doctor's approval for using one of those medications.

As summer arrives, relief from allergic reactions should follow, he said. "But you never know. If we have a wet summer, we could have a lot of allergies." Wind may irritate allergy sufferers, as allergens and dust are blown through the air.

Absenteeism triples as floodwaters rise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAYTON LAKE ESTATES — Absenteeism is tripling in low-lying areas of the Trinity River as students are kept from attending the last three weeks of school because of rising floodwaters.

"It's awful. My kids want to go but have no way to get there. They hate being cooped up in our house, but there's no going near that swift river water. It would carry them away," said Debbie Reiser, 35, who quit work at a Dayton doughnut shop after water surrounded her still house in Dayton Lake Estates.

Children marooned with their families in an estimated two dozen subdivisions in the river's flood plain have caused recent fluctuations in absenteeism in classrooms at four area school districts. And officials expect the problem to get worse after a second crest this weekend.

"We've had two or three families check their kids out to live with relatives, also," said Hardin Superintendent Bob Parker. "I estimate 20 percent of our student body lives in the river bottom."

Hardin Independent School District has showed the most absenteeism this week, with 178 students out — triple the usual number. It represented 16 percent of the student body, but attendance had slightly increased by Wednesday with only 13 percent out.

School officials said they will try to help students affected by the flooding make up their work.

"All are excused absences. We're giving assignments to take home. If necessary, we can have make-up sessions for tests and things this summer," said Parker.

He said entry roads leading into all the riverside subdivisions are now impassable. Most families with school-age children have FLOODS page 10-A

Man acquitted of death threat

LUBBOCK (AP) — Otto Lakas, the son of a former Panamanian president, spent a month in jail for "shooting his mouth off."

After being found innocent of threatening to kill President Bush Thursday, Lakas didn't want to do any more talking. "I better not say anything," Otto Lakas said while leaving the U.S. District courthouse. "Talking is how I got into this mess."

Lakas was accused of threatening to kill Bush in a discussion with the managers of a pawnshop where he was looking at a gun.

Lakas, a 21-year-old architecture student at Lubbock Christian University, could have faced a 5-year prison term had he been convicted.

Lakas clenched his fists and looked toward the ceiling, tears rolling down his cheeks as the verdict was read. The jury deliberated only 15 minutes.

"I am very happy," Lakas said. "I don't want to comment any more than that, but I am glad to go back home" to Panama.

Two men arrested, third sought in cafe slayings

FORT WORTH (AP) — Fort Worth police have arrested two local men in connection with the fatal shootings of four men during a gambling game at the Glass Key Cafe.

At least one more "major suspect" is still being sought, said Fort Worth police Capt. Randy Ely. Ely said a juvenile, believed to be the fourth person involved in the shooting, was questioned, but there is not enough evidence to hold him.

The suspects in custody were identified as Timothy Miller, 19, and his brother, Paul Miller, 22.

Paul Miller was arrested at an auto repair shop in Fort Worth. The younger Miller was arrested while walking in the street while a police raid was conducted on two residences near downtown.

Police questioned several people in the two homes on the same block after clearing them with the help of tear gas, but no one was arrested there on charges connected to the shootings, officers said.

One person was arrested on an unspecified, unrelated charge, officers said.

Investigators were searching the two houses to try to turn up evidence that might be related to the fatal shootings, Ely said.

Police began suspecting the Miller brothers about midweek following the early Monday shootings.

"There were a number of things all through the week but we only had bits and pieces of the story," he said. "As things were put together, we were led here."

Investigators said they believe the motive was robbery, but they are also considering the possibility of a "hit" on one of the dice players or a narcotics connection, Ely said.

Ely said there have a number of weapons were found in the two houses, but it was not yet certain whether any of them might have been used in the quadruple slaying.

There may have been as much as $400,000 on the table when the robbery occurred Monday at the Glass Key, Ely said.

One of the men killed in the attack which was conducted with automatic weapons was Robert "Austin" Satterwhite, 30. Armed with a 9mm gun himself, Satterwhite was found to have $60,000 in his pocket.

Albert Huey-You, the lounge's owner, has decided to close the 45-year-old business, according to his daughter Stephany Huey-You.

Killed in the shootings were Fort Worth residents James Lacey, 56; Joe Wafers, 54; and Timothy V. Carter, 45; and Satterwhite, who was from Austin.

Residents settle in for more flooding

CAMILLA COVE, Texas (AP) — The Trinity River Authority today continued to release record amounts from the rain-swollen Lake Livingston as area residents braced for their second week of flooding.

"The waters are still rising," said Dean Chapman, 60, owner of Chapman's Grocery in Walker County. "It's terrible. The only way you can get in and out is by boat. It's 10 feet deep here."

Chapman and about 300 other families in the Deep River Plantation and Bear Creek subdivisions had to evacuate their home when rising waters began flooding their homes May 9. By Thursday, many were without water, electricity and patience.

"Nobody bothered to tell them how bad it would be," Chapman said. "The Trinity River Authority said there was going to be a flood, but it would be a foot or two worse than last July. It's actually 8- to 10-foot worse. If somebody made a bobble like that in business, they'd be fired. I think they ought to be strung up."

The TRA on Thursday opened floodgates on Lake Livingston to the unprecedented level of 100,800 cubic feet per second. And officials said the rate could remain constant for the next week.

"It looks like we're going to be able to stabilize the lake level at this release rate," said John Jadrrosch of the TRA. "We'll be at this release level for the next four days, possibly as long as seven days. We've got a very large amount of water here and it's going to take releases of this magnitude to take care of it."

The flow, which causes flooding in some downstream areas after passing 20,000 cfs, has been increased steadily for nearly a week. By Tuesday, the water rates surpassed the 75,000 cfs record set in 1973 and the rates have continued to increase ever since.

The amount of water released from the dam over the past three weeks would fill the Astrodome 1,200 times, officials calculated. The flooding is expected to affect homes and property stretching some 200 square miles along the Trinity.

"We just hope it runs off as it reaches new areas to relieve some of the pressure," said Eugene Hanson, who owns a small store near the base of the dam and has been watching the rising waters get ever closer. "At this point, we're still hanging in there."

Chapman said he has taken up residence at his store — normally some two and a half miles from the Trinity, but now about a half mile from the burgeoning waterway.

"I've got eight families hooked onto my well right here," Chapman said.

Pickens feeling pinch

DALLAS (AP) — T. Boone Pickens, one of the highest paid executives of the '80s, will start the new decade with no paycheck because of low natural gas prices.

In a meeting Thursday with stockholders of Mesa Limited Partnership, Pickens noted that his salary is tied to cash distributions, which the company had suspended because natural gas prices were so low.

Pickens said the distributions would be resumed when natural prices improved, but the temporary elimination was necessary to protect the company's financial integrity.

"The turnaround won't come today, and it won't come tomorrow, but it will come," Pickens said in remarks prepared for delivery at the meeting.

In response to questions, Pickens estimated the distributions could be resumed by 1992 or 1993, when

Business

Mesa is predicting natural gas prices will reach about $3 per thousand cubic feet (mcf).

Pickens said natural gas prices would have to reach $2.50 per mcf to sustain a preferred distribution of $1.50 a year and hit $3.50 to support a $1.50 annual payout to common unitholders. Mesa expects prices to average $1.65 this year.

"These measures have been tough on Mesa unitholders, as well as Mesa executives," Pickens said, noting 90 percent of his net worth is tied up in Mesa. "My compensation is based on 1 percent of distributions, so with no distributions, I receive no salary in 1990."

Last year, Pickens was paid $1.8 million based on distributions of $180 million, Mesa spokesman Jay Rosser said.

What's in a 'Moo'?

LUBBOCK (AP) — Is "Moo" too close to "Moo"? That's what a state district court is being asked to decide in a suit filed against a Georgia-based restaurant chain by a Lubbock restaurant.

Yet Inc., which operates two "Bob York's Western Sizzlin'" restaurants here, filed suit against Western Sizzlin' Inc., a Georgia-based restaurant chain, alleging that the chain has begun using "Moo" on a number of advertising properties.

Yet Inc. has been using the "Moo" slogan as its trademark since 1984.

Attorneys for Yet Inc. claim in the suit filed Wednesday that the company created the "Moo" slogan in 1984 and has used it on a variety of company materials, including Mooos saddles for children to sit in, Mooos horns to wear and Mooonues from which to order a Mooo meal.

The suit alleges that the parent Western Sizzlin' Inc. dropped an "o" from the Lubbock slogan and illegally appropriated the similar "Moo" designation for its own "Moo U" (for the company's restaurant management training center), "Moo-Lah" (for a payroll program for its restaurant services) and Moo News (a company newsletter).

Raisa joining Barbara at Wellesley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Bush and her Soviet counterpart, Raisa Gorbachev, will share the commencement platform at Wellesley College, where some members of the Class of 1990 had questioned the American first lady's speaking credentials.

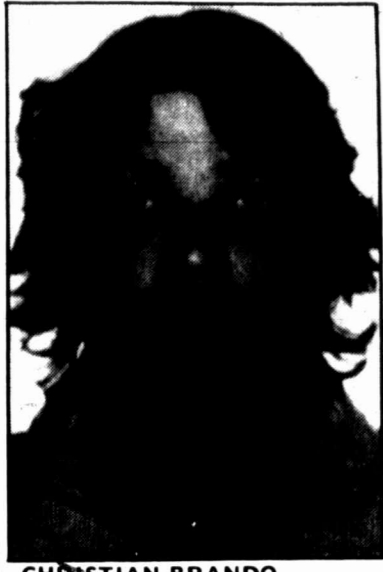

Mrs. Gorbachev has accepted Mrs. Bush's invitation to accompany her to the June 1 commencement, and the wife of Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev will deliver her own address to the graduates, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Bush said Thursday.

Mrs. Bush is "absolutely delighted" that Mrs. Gorbachev, who has a Ph.D. in philosophy, will accompany her on the summit-time excursion to the exclusive Massachusetts college for women, said the first lady's press secretary, Anna Perez.

Mrs. Bush has also invited Mrs. Gorbachev to visit colonial Williamsburg, Va.

The two first ladies will travel together to Wellesley on the second day of their husbands' four-day summit at the White House and Camp David, Md.

Brando's son held

CHRISTIAN BRANDO

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marlon Brando's eldest son, Christian, may have killed his half-sister's boyfriend in self-defense, says lawyer William Kunstler, who will defend the younger Brando.

Christian Brando, 32, was scheduled to be arraigned today in the slaying of Dag Drollet, 26, of Tahiti, who had been staying at the Brando estate. Kunstler was reportedly flying to Los Angeles from New York for the arraignment.

Police said the shooting was sparked by an argument over Drollet's treatment of 20-year-old Tarita Cheyenne Brando, Christian's pregnant half-sister.

"There were allegations that there was physical abuse, a beating," Lt. Ron Hall said.

Assault gun ban bill passes Senate

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey's Legislature has passed the nation's toughest ban on assault weapons despite intense pressure from hundreds of vocal gun supporters.

California is the only other state to ban assault weapons. Supporters of the New Jersey bill said this ban would be tougher because it would not exempt current owners of the weapons.

Gov. Jim Florio praised the bill and promised to sign it as early as next week. The state Senate approved the bill, 21-17. The Assembly passed it, 43-33, after nearly five hours of debate.

"The state can take a great amount of pride that we will have the strongest such law on the books in the nation," said Florio.

"Everyone has the right to be safe and secure on the street and in their homes," Florio said.

"These military weapons are specifically designed to go out and kill as many people as possible as quickly as possible."

The bill's supporters said assault weapon possession had no justification in peacetime, but gun lovers said the measure was an affront to arms provisions in the U.S. Constitution.

Soviet 'men in blue' will walk U.S. beats

BOSTON (AP) — Moscow police are preparing to snoop on American law enforcers from New York to California, from squad rooms to back yard barbecues.

Thirteen of the Moscow men in blue are scheduled to arrive in the United States today for a weeklong visit being billed as the first official bilateral law enforcement exchange with the Soviets.

"They are basically interested in everything we have to show them," said Cynthia Dickstein, president of the Organization for America-Soviet Exchanges, a private, non-profit agency that arranged the visit. "The programs set up for them are pretty inclusive: drugs, canine units, all the equipment, ballistics, courtrooms, jails, crime labs."

The 13 Soviet officers are men between the ages of 27 and 45 who hold executive positions in what amounts to the Moscow bureau of the Soviet national police force. They include the colonel in charge of Moscow's criminal investigation unit, officers who police the black market and a captain in the traffic department.

The Soviet officers, who will stay in the homes of local police, will visit police departments in Albany, Amsterdam and Rochester in upstate New York; New London, Conn.; DeLand, Fla.; and Larkspur, Calif.

This fall, 13 U.S. officers will make a similar visit to the Soviet Union.

Soviet officials last year said their country had the fastest-growing crime rate in the world, but still trailed behind the United States in overall crimes.

In the first eight months of 1989, more than 1.5 million crimes were reported in the Soviet Union, a 33.2 percent jump over the same period the year before, Soviet officials said.

Still, Soviet officials said there are only 5.9 murders per 100,000 Soviets, compared with 8.9 per 100,000 in America.

The visits are expected to combine socializing with a demonstration of local police work.

Volusia County Sheriff's Sgt. Bob Matusick in DeLand, Fla., plans to treat Col. V.T. Bobryashov to a back yard cookout and swings to Disney World and Kennedy Space Center along with visits to the state crime lab in Orlando and the Blue Lightning Strike Force in Miami.

Promise of money helps base talks

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — U.S. and Philippine negotiators agreed today to hold further talks on extending the lease for six American military bases after the United States promised it would try to increase aid.

Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus, the chief Philippine negotiator, made the announcement at the end of five days of exploratory talks with U.S. negotiators on extending the lease for the bases beyond its Sept. 16, 1991 expiration.

A joint communique said the next round of talks on the bases "could include consideration of a new agreement concerning friendship, cooperation and security on the basis of a new relationship between the Philippines and the United States in light of the changing global environment."

No date was set for the next phase of the talks, which will determine the future of the Subic Bay Naval Base, Clark Air Base and four smaller U.S.-run military installations.

Kremlin: Resolve within constitution

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said today the Kremlin is prepared to examine any possibility to resolve the dispute over Lithuania's independence, provided the Soviet constitutional process is observed.

The prime minister of the Baltic republic, Kazimiera Prunskiene, met with Gorbachev on Thursday and later said significant progress was made toward settling the dispute but their main difference remained unresolved.

Mrs. Prunskiene met this afternoon with Secretary of State James A. Baker III, who has said the Baltic impasse was casting a shadow over the summit to be held later this month in Washington between Gorbachev and President Bush.

Baker arrived at Spaso House, the home of U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock, an hour and 45 minutes late, indicating that his earlier meeting with Gorbachev had gone into overtime.

Gorbachev, speaking to reporters before meeting with Baker this morning, said, "through the constitutional process, we are ready to consider any possibility, any question."

Mrs. Prunskiene, after meeting Gorbachev, said progress had been made.

Losing, Bosch charges vote fraud

BOSCH QUESTIONED

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The leftist presidential candidate claimed he was trailing in the vote count because of election fraud and called for street protests today, but Dominicans returned to work instead.

With nearly two-thirds of the polling stations reporting early today, Conservative President Joaquin Balaguer led his leftist opponent, Juan Bosch, by less than 10,000 votes, according to the Central Electoral Board.

Bosch on Thursday charged "colossal fraud" in vote counting and said he would call for street protests today, "no matter what the consequences."

Germany sign historic economic merger pact

By TERENCE PETTY
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany — The two German nations today signed a historic treaty that will make them a single economic entity in less than seven weeks and introduce fragile East Germany to the rigors of capitalism.

The signing means that as of July 2, when the treaty takes effect, the four-decade division of Germany will come to an end in many ways.

However, the thorny issue of the military status of a united Germany remains to be resolved, especially the Soviet Union's rejection of proposed NATO membership for the new Germany.

Flanked by West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere, the finance ministers of the two merging nations, signed the treaty inside the federal government's opulent Palais Schaumburg.

The ceremony was loaded with symbolism.

West German Finance Minister Theodor Waigel and his East German counterpart, Walter Romberg, signed the treaty inside the former office of Konrad Adenauer and at his writing desk.

Adenauer was West Germany's first chancellor and helped guide the nation from postwar ruins to the present affluence and its place in the Western alliance. On one wall of the room is a tapestry of Moses, who led his people across the desert.

Kohl has made no secret that he would not mind having a place in history next to the revered Adenauer — as the architect of a reunited Germany.

The so-called state treaty between East and West Germany is the crowning achievement so far of Kohl's fast-forward unification efforts.

The signing comes just two months after East Germany's first free elections, and a little more than six months after the Berlin Wall was opened by East Germany's pro-democracy revolution.

Under provisions of the document, East Germany will get massive assistance from West Germany in exchange for scrapping its moribund centrally planned economy for capitalist principles.

The East German government has opted for annexation of its economy by West Germany's rather than face possible economic collapse.

Nonetheless, there are widespread concerns in East Germany the changes could trigger enormous problems, such as massive unemployment from the close of factories unable to keep up in a competitive economic system.

West Germans are also worried about the effects of economic merger, fearful they will have to bear awesome costs to rescue their East German cousins.

Under the treaty, West Germany's mighty deutsche mark will become East Germany's legal tender. All monetary affairs will be controlled by West Germany's central bank, the Bundesbank.

East Germany will be required to start selling off state-owned property under the treaty to help cover reconstruction costs.

On Wednesday, West Germany unveiled a $70 billion German Unity Fund to be used in the East German reconstruction effort. Costs of the fund will be covered by borrowing and savings in West Germany's federal budget.

Simply awesome accomplishment

Awesome is an often-abused word in today's society. Its impact has been frittered, twisted and distorted by those who overuse or misuse the word.

Completion of the O.H. Ivie Reservoir and its S.W. Freese Dam — being observed officially Saturday morning during dedication ceremonies — marks a very reasonable opportunity to describe the accomplishment of this task.

Awesome. The challenge of establishing itself as the regional water supplier from Abilene through Odessa, and south to San Angelo has not been for the meek of heart. It's a challenge appropriate only for the far-sighted and the stout of character, willing to recognize and accommodate the demands of the environment, while striving to meet the needs of humans.

This project, with the prospect of supplying at least 90,000 acre feet of water annually, addresses the needs of this region — along with existing sources — well into the next century. At a time when the combination of both need and opportunity for developing the economic base here may never have been stronger, we can count on this most basic of all resources: water.

Awesome is what you'll view when you visit the dam dedication tomorrow.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District came into being in 1949 and within 24 months the founding member cities of Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder embarked upon the first of three surface supplies. Their impact as a renewable resource should not be underestimated. To reinforce this in times of peak demand or drought, the district also has developed groundwater fields.

Since its first deliveries in 1951, CRMWD has delivered well over 400 billion gallons of water to municipal customers and another 125 billion gallons to industrial users, chiefly oil.

In its history, the district has caught, delivered and sold more than 1.2 million acre feet of water.

That is virtually double the capacity of Lakes J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence. An awesome amount, made especially so when considered in the context of our West Texas location.

What has happened in that period? From meeting the needs of two cities at its outset, the district today serves at least a dozen municipalities, plus another six or more oil companies. A favored historical footnote: CRMWD has never had to ration its product.

With the activation of Lake Ivie, CRMWD has entered into a partnership of water-in-place with three key cities — Abilene, Midland and San Angelo. Its presence promises to reduce the drain on Lake Spence, which in turn holds the prospect for improved Big Spring water thanks to more of the better water from Lake Thomas.

The district's management has been taking steps to improve the quality of water, an issue all the more severely tested during a period of drought. To that end, 50,000 tons of chlorides (salt) have been diverted; another reservoir is in the development stage, to hold the maximum diversion of poor-quality water.

The promise of better reserves of better water is a West Texas attribute that's not easy to come by.

Although the job is far from complete and the CRMWD board shows no sign of idling as future water needs are addressed, it is reassuring to recognize these accomplishments in light of the district not spending taxpayer money; entirely, these efforts have been financed by the sale of water.

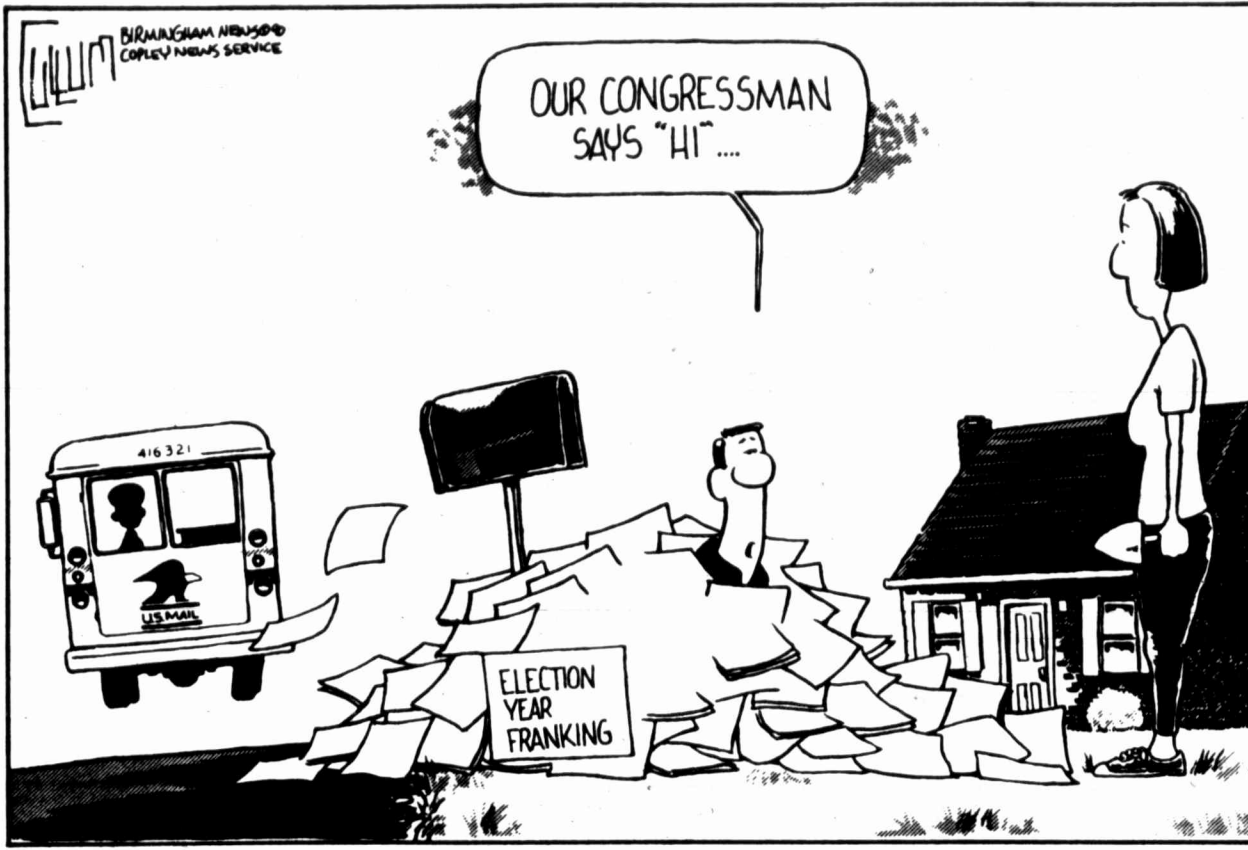

Awesome, dudes.

Critics were right for once

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
I went to see the movie "Nuns on the Run" to see what all the flap was about between critics Gene Siskel and Roger Ebert and 20th Century Fox, who put out NOTR. (Movie critics often refer to movies by their initials. There was GWTW "Gone with the Wind," DMD for "Driving Miss Daisy," and TMNT "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles," which I haven't seen because that's about the dumbest title for a movie I have ever heard.)

Siskel, the bald one, and Ebert, the fat one, have their own syndicated television show and they said, "Nuns on the Run" was rotten.

So Fox said it wasn't going to offer Siskel and Ebert any screenings anymore. The parties eventually made up, but I still want to defend Siskel and Ebert.

What I like most about them is they don't do like a lot of other movie critics and try to tell me a bunch of stuff I don't understand using terms that are completely baffling to me.

Siskel says, "I really liked this movie. I give it a thumbs up." Ebert says, "I wouldn't take my dog to see this movie. I give it a thumbs down."

Siskel and Ebert both gave thumbs down to NOTR and even made fun of the Village Voice that said the movie was, "The funniest anticlerical transvestite comedy of the decade."

Ebert said, "This is 1990. How many other anticlerical transvestite comedies have there been in this decade?"

After seeing the movie myself, I agree with Siskel and Ebert. If I were reviewing the movie, I would say, "This is a stupid movie. If you go to see it you're stupid too. I had to go because it's my job."

I know what Fox wanted. They wanted one of those typical glowing reviews that I — and probably a lot of movie fans — never understand.

They wanted something like this: "This Jonathan Lynn masterpiece is, on one level, a searing and blisteringly funny 'Fellini-esque' British breakthrough throwback farce, while on quite another level, working just as well, a chilling, crackerjack, psychosexual, anticlerical thriller with an undeniable metaphysical resonance."

The movie actually is a tub of lard that's boring, and silly, and I demanded my money back, but the kid working in the ticket booth had zits in his ears and couldn't understand me.

Siskel and Ebert have always seemed like a couple of standup guys to me, and bless their hearts for keeping it simple.

It's like a television weather report. All I really want to know is whether or not it's going to rain.

Anything more, about occluded fronts or high pressure systems over Canada, is lost on me.

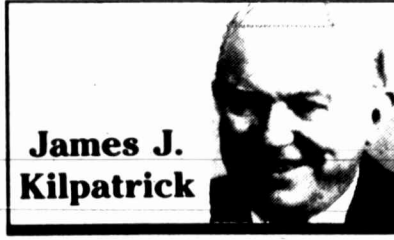

What I want to know about a movie is, Is Kim Basinger in it and, if she is, how long before she takes off her clothes? I want to know if it's funny, if it's scary, if it's exciting, and if I will have any earthly idea what it is about, as I most certainly didn't when I saw the worst movie I've ever seen, "Kiss of the Spider Woman."

I give Siskel and Ebert a thumbs up. I give "Nuns on the Run" one digit over.

Sorry you couldn't be there

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
WASHINGTON — It didn't rank with Daniel Webster's oratory in the Dartmouth College case of 1819, and it was less dramatic than Thurgood Marshall's impassioned plea in the school segregation case of 1954, but Monday's oral argument in the Supreme Court over desecration of the flag was a beauty. Sorry you couldn't be there.

James J. Kilpatrick

The nine justices were there. Opposing counsel were there. A couple of hundred privileged spectators had first-class tickets. Huddled behind the grillwork, riding in coach, were a hundred reporters straining to hear the argument.

But no television cameras were there. The whole business is absurd. Given today's inconspicuous TV technology, the high court's adamant, blockheaded refusal to permit TV coverage of oral argument is inexcusable. Who do these nine eminences think they are? Gods? Immortals?

The trouble is, that is exactly what the justices think they are. Former Chief Justice Warren Earl Burger is authority for the proposition that to permit television coverage would be to destroy the "mystique" of the high court. If the people once discovered that human beings were beneath the black robes of judicial office, the game would be up. During his tenure as chief justice, Burger often swore that TV cameras would enter the courtroom only over his dead body. I have great affection and respect for the gentleman, but on this question his attitude is intolerable.

The two companion cases that were argued Monday morning provided a superb opportunity to educate the American people not only in the function of the high court but also in the meaning of maintain precisely that.

His best was not quite enough for Justice Antonin Scalia, a former law professor who dearly loves to challenge counsel. Hunched forward over the bench, the voluble Scalia peppered Starr with tough questions. Surely, he thought, the defendants in the two cases had meant to say something: They were saying, "I hate the United States."

Besides, Scalia persisted, the very verbs in the act contradicted the notion that the act is content-neutral. Scalia ticked them off: mutilate, deface, defile, burn, trample. "If I get a spot on my tie," Scalia mused, "I don't say, 'Gee, I've defiled my tie.'"

Starr stayed gamely on his feet for 27 minutes, contending stubbornly that the act does nothing to inhibit robust debate on the concerns that provoked the defendants to action. Justice Anthony Kennedy gave him no help. He asked if flag-burning is not universally recognized as a form of protest. Starr had no particular answer.

William M. Kunstler did better in his half-hour. He is a shaggy, craggy man, with the face of an eccentric English peer. His hair fits him like an untrimmed wig. His glasses get shoved to the top of his head. In a raucous voice, roughened by years of rousing the rabble, Kunstler argued effectively that flag-burning is indeed a form of "free speech," just as a divided court had ruled in the Texas case a year ago. Scalia gave him a hard time, too.

So it went for a fascinating hour, as keen minds on the bench and at the bar explored the first of our great freedoms. I wish you could have been there. One day you will be.

Tune in to hear God's word

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — There's a new sound in Big Spring.

It's not the latest rock tunes by Madonna or New Kids on the Block.

It's the word of God, via the radio.

Every Saturday at 9 a.m. area residents can tune in to KBYG and hear Albert Pettus sharing the Lord's word. His Christian broadcast, titled "Heavenly Keys" is based on scripture from the Bible.

Pettus said he got the name for his radio show from Matthew 16:19: "And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." and from Revelation 1:18 I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and death.

"The main reason I do this," he said, "is because I love you. I love everyone out there. I want to show somebody the truth about the Lord Jesus Christ."

An ordained minister since 1965, Pettus began the local broadcast two weeks ago to minister to those who don't know God's word, and to give encouragement to the believers.

"I'm trying to encourage the saved and warn the lost," he said. I want to tell them there's a way to heaven and tell them there's a judgment coming."

In 1966 Pettus, a member of Trinity Baptist Church, pastored the former Lockhart Baptist Church. He also pastored East Side Baptist Church, Abilene, from 1973-74; served as associate pastor at Mt. Carmel Baptist Church near Tyler; held revivals in East and South Texas and supply-preached in Midland and Seagraves.

A veteran radio and TV Christian broadcaster, Pettus said his goal is to serve the Lord and share his word with those who will listen.

"There are 59 churches in town," he explained. "A lot of people are broadcast will reach more people than a Sunday radio sermon. "Most people are just laying around on Saturday morning, and maybe they'll turn on the radio and listen," he said.

He also believes a Christian broadcast is an effective tool to share God's word. "People would rather listen on the radio than have me preach to them one-on-one. Many people immediately will let you know they don't want to hear. But there are some who listen with interest," he said.

An owner and operator of Pettus Electric for 36 years, Pettus said he is certain the Lord will provide an audience for his weekly sermon.

"When I put out the word I don't have to worry about the accomplishments because he (the Lord) said 'I will make it work for you.'" The results are in his hands."

Leaders back excise tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of eight national religious bodies, including some that rarely work together, have backed a proposed increase in the federal excise tax on alcoholic beverages.

In a letter to members of Congress, they said such an increase could discourage alcohol consumption and raise revenues to help reduce the federal deficit.

"Historically, our nation has used excise taxes as a mechanism to support societal goals," the letter says. "We need to do so again to curb the terrible toll alcohol is taking."

Signers included officials of the National Council of Churches and its evangelical counterpart, the National Association of Evangelicals, Mormons, Southern Baptists and several other Protestant denominations.

Taking things for granted

By DAVID ROBERTSON

How often we take things for granted!

I went to bed on Monday evening with the assurance that when I awakened that my utilities all be working. Little did I know that all through the night repair men were working in the street outside my house to repair a major water leak.

When I awoke and tried to wash my face, I found I had no water. I walked to the yard and saw a big hole with a new 8- or 10-inch water line. The leak had been fixed, but I had no water.

I phoned the dispatcher for the water department, and he said, "It's only one house." I responded, "but it's my house."

I was concerned about my house and having water to bathe and shave so I could go to work. I wasn't happy at all about the situation.

Pastor's corner

Then I thought about God, the God and Father of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. God is always there and we just take that fact for granted, never thanking, worshipping, helping, just taking the fact that he will be with us for granted.

After all, doesn't the Risen Christ assure us "and lo, I am with you always, to the close of the age." Matthew 28:20.

The Rev. David Robertson is pastor of First United Methodist Church.

First Baptist Church, Stanton, will present TP&L in concert Sunday at 6:00 p.m. Thee Power & Light is a select group of young musicians sponsored by the college music ministry of the First Baptist Church, Waco.

Formed in 1969, TP&L is concluding its 21st consecutive year of ministry with a program titled "No Price Too High." The program includes a wide variety of musical styles ranging from contemporary to traditional and features songs from current Christian artists, hymn arrangements, and gospel songs hopefully something for everyone.

TP&L is comprised of 17 young people from various parts of the United States who are all college students in Waco and who are all members of First Baptist, Waco. Membership in TP&L is by audition only, with equal emphasis placed on musical talent, leadership ability, and a sincere desire to minister to one's fellow man.

First Baptist Church is located just two blocks from the Baylor University campus, and just minutes from McLennan Community College. Because of its location, First Baptist has a significant college membership from which TP&L draws its members. The group sings regularly in the worship services at its home church as well as in churches around the Central and East Texas area. Each spring, TP&L concludes the school year with a more extensive concert tour which this year will be an all-Texas tour for the first time in many years.

Jim Broaddus is the present director of TP&L, having assumed that position in 1983. Jim is a native of Caldwell, a graduate of the Baylor School of Music, and a member and deacon of First Baptist. After more than 10 years in the music division of Word Inc., Jim returned to Baylor University in 1989 as director of Residence Life. Jim's musical background also includes the Baylor Religious Hour Choir, Baylor Chamber Singers, Continental Singers, a semi-professional recording/touring group called Spirit of Love, and a variety of studio recording experience. Churches evaluate Southern Baptists

(AP) Southern Baptists, wondering what others think of them, invited representatives of several denominations to offer their assessments — and got a blunt and peppery earful.

It was a rare case of Southern Baptists getting an evaluation from beyond themselves.

They've stayed mostly aloof from the ecumenical movement for Christian unity, its interdenominational organizations and dialogues of mutual edification and criticism. But that insular tendency to shun voices of others was thrust aside at a session held at a meeting in Nashville, Tenn., of the denomination's Historical Commission and Historical Society.

"If you do not find a way of altering your image of fighting and feuding, your biblical message will fall on deaf ears," said the Rev. Robert A. Dalton, Roman Catholicism's longtime observer of Southern Baptists. He referred to the decade-long conflict between fundamentalists and moderates in the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Asked to offer views of that church body, Dalton and representatives of the United Methodist Church and the American Baptist Churches had praise for some qualities but barbs for others.

The Rev. J. Richard Peck of the United Methodists deplored the impact on Southern Baptist seminaries of the denomination's long, internecine quarrel over whether the Bible is "inerrant" — without error in all fields.

The result, most mainline denominations would agree, is that Southern Baptists have effectively amputated their academic community's major reason for being — a marketplace for inquiry," Peck said.

Leaders herald new Bible

By JEFFREY BAIR
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Bible that eliminates some masculine references and clarifies verses was greeted with enthusiasm by church leaders and theologians.

It was the first revision since 1952. "The new translation will bring the word of God to many, both inside and outside the churches, in fresh language," Commissioner Thomas Best of the World Council of Churches said in a cable from Geneva, Switzerland.

The National Council of Churches, the nation's largest ecumenical group, celebrated the May 1 publication of the New Revised Standard Version of the Bible on Wednesday with church services and a reception at its convention here.

The council commissioned the revision in 1974 and will receive royalties from its sales. Most Protestant, Orthodox and Anglican denominations belong to the council.

A Roman Catholic leader also endorsed the revised Bible. "It has long been my conviction that our generation needs an accurate, readable version of the Bible if they are to use it effectively," Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of the Archdiocese of Chicago said in a letter to the council. "I welcome its publication."

Brisk sales are reported for the new Bible, which arrived in U.S. bookstores during the last two weeks.

"We're finding it hard to keep up," said Donald Kraus, senior editor of Oxford University Press, adding that the publisher has already sold its first run of 30,000 copies.

Cambridge University Press, Holman Bible Publishers, Thomas Nelson Publishers Inc., World Bible Publishers Inc. and Zondervan Corp. also are printing the New Revised Standard Version.

Bruce Metzger, a retired Princeton University scholar and chairman of the council's revision committee, said 30 Protestant and Roman Catholic scholars drafted the text from the recently discovered Dead Sea Scrolls.

The scrolls predate the Greek and Hebrew texts that were used to write the King James Bible, Metzger said.

The 1952 draft of the Revised Standard Version was derived from 1901's American Standard Version which, in turn, came from the King James.

Bishop Melvin Talbert of the United Methodist Church in San Francisco gave the new text mixed reviews, mainly because it still refers to God as male.

"What we have now is a lifting up of the male image of God," Talbert said.

All's quiet in New Hampshire this year

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary was beginning to rev up at this time four years ago. This time around, it's stuck in the garage.

Presidential hopefuls including Democrats Richard Gephardt and Bruce Babbitt were campaigning actively in the state in May 1986. Republican George Bush and other candidates had campaign people at work there.

This year, no potential candidates have visited in the past six months and no campaign people are soliciting support for would-be presidents.

Democratic political activists in the state aren't lamenting the lack of attention.

"A long campaign focuses attention much too early and it takes away from things we need to be doing at the state and local levels," said state House Minority Leader Mary Chambers, who ran Michael Dukakis' 1988 campaign in New Hampshire.

"I don't believe the first-in-the-nation primary is beneficial for the state," said Dennis Murphy, who ran Illinois Sen. Paul Simon's 1988 presidential campaign in the state. "It takes away from state politics."

In the 1988 race, Gephardt campaigned for more than two years in Iowa and New Hampshire. The Missouri congressman won the Iowa caucus and finished second to Dukakis in New Hampshire, but ended up withdrawing before the national convention.

Jean Wallin, co-chair of Gephardt's 1988 New Hampshire campaign, said "there isn't any reason for them to be here now. You can accomplish as much in one year as in two, and you won't be burned out at election time."

Ned Helms, New Hampshire Democratic Party chairman, said many top Democrats have turned down invitations to speak in New Hampshire because they fear a visit would be misconstrued. Those who have stayed away include Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, he said.

"People are reluctant to come to New Hampshire because the minute they get here people say, 'Aha, you're running,'" Helms said.

State GOP chairwoman Rhona Charbonneau and others said Massachusetts' swift economic decline, which began while Dukakis was campaigning for the presidency, has made candidates wary of starting too early.

Bee catcher

WESLACO — Dr. Anita Collins, head researcher at the USDA Honey Bee Research Lab at Weslaco, sets a bee trap in a mesquite tree. Researchers have set 318 bee traps in South Texas, as far west as Del Rio and as far north as the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

Bosses The good, the bad, the awful

WASHINGTON (AP) — A partner in a Cleveland brokerage firm who held "forgery contests" among secretaries to see who could best trace clients' signatures on stocks and bonds is a "bad boss" winner in a national contest.

Other dubious "winners" in a contest titled "The Good, the Bad and the Downright Unbelievable" included a Philadelphia businessman who asked his secretary to scout for good-looking women at a local pub and then call him on a beeper to tell him of his prospects.

A New York supervisor who followed female employees to the restroom and stood outside to time them was also cited.

So was the manager of an insurance company in Boulder,

Colo., who yelled at a female worker to bring coffee and added, "You squaw, me chief."

The contest, sponsored by a Cleveland support group for clerical workers called 9to5, National Association of Working Women, also honored "good" bosses.

Those included the president of a computer services company in Birmingham, Ala., for progressive family leave policies; a department chairman at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y., for advocating pay raises; and the chairman of Northwest Airlines for making company employees "feel like an asset to the airline."

Identities of the unbelievable and bad bosses were not released.

A Philadelphia secretary who nominated her boss said she was asked "to go to a 'beef & beer' to check out girls before he entered."

Another bad boss was nominated by a state worker in Madison, Wis., whose mother was hospitalized after suffering a heart attack. The next day, the worker asked for the afternoon off to visit her.

"Well... go ahead. But next time you should plan these things better," the boss responded.

"Common themes emerged in both the good and bad boss stories," said Ellen Bravo, associate director of 9to5. "People want to be appreciated and to be treated like human beings — not like machines or peons. And businesses that show regard for their employees inspire loyalty and prosper as a result."

Christian Temple Women have a 'toe-rrific' time

The Christian Temple Women had fun playing "footsies" May 7 as they met for the monthly Womens Night Out meeting. Everyone who attended wore funny socks, some homemade, other ones crazy store-bought socks. These imaginative footwear were adorned with such oddities as silk flowers, clowns, cats and ducks. Others painted socks with faces and feet and sandle look alike. There were a couple of glove socks, where each toe was separated. One creative young lady made barrettes out of baby socks and wore them in her hair. Special snacks were brought to remember the feet, such as Tostitos, Doritos, and there were even foot shaped cookies! Edith Matlock brought a quiz on feet in the Bible, such as who washed Jesus' feet with her hair? Everyone was also asked to think of a song having to do with feet or walking. Everyone had a toe-rrific time.

Sunshiners and Kings Kids

The residents of the Kristie Lee Manor and the Root Valley Fair Lodge enjoyed a special treat on April 29 as the children from First Baptist Church entertained them in song. The Sunshine Singers Choir (ages K-2nd grade), directed by Melody Stubblefield and assisted by Kleta Smith, combined with the Kings Kids Choir (grade 3-6), directed by Connie Waldrip and assisted by Maryann Wright, who also plays the piano. The children sang well-known hymns as well as several children's choruses. These little singers later showed their talent by performing at church. Each choir performed to the delight of the congregation.

People's Choice

A Colorado City man recently won the honor and a trophy of "The People's Choice Award." Dunlaps of Big Spring recently conducted a '50s. Participants dressed in clothes of that era. The store also sponsored an Old Car Contest. Old car fanatics from all over the area entered their cars to be voted on by the customers as to which one they liked the best. Tom Kelly won with his '57 Chevy. Painted red and white, it looks as if it came straight out of the past. If one looked hard enough maybe they could "see" Patsie and Ralph near it.

Wolverine party

The backyard of Dr. and Mrs. Jene Steakley was once again the beautiful site chosen to host the annual Wolverine Garden Party. Every year the cheerleaders and pep squad, dressed in their finest, gather here to induct the new Wolverine Officers and introduce the new cheerleaders for the coming year. It is also a time to say goodbye to all of the seniors who have contributed so much time and energy to the squad during the past year. Every year a Wolverine of the Year award is given to the girl who was most dedicated to the squad. This year's recipient was Rhonda Howell. The 1990-91 Wolverine officers are: President, Elena Franco; vice president, Nicole Smith; secretary/treasurer, Angie Williams; reporter, Jody Dockrey; senior representative, Amy Moore; junior representative, Jody Ellis; sophomore representative, Tammy Ceballos. The freshman representative will not be elected until next school year.

Debbie Blair will be handing over leadership to Brenda Crosley as the new Wolverine sponsor. The 1990-1991 cheerleaders are Tammy Blair, head; Bridgett Bridgford, Bea Rivera, Amber Mayfield, Brenda Espinoza, Wendy Bradbury, Krisha Lamb, Susan Lentz and Mindy Molina-Sluefoot. The cheerleader sponsor is Kitten Arthur.

New faces

The Colorado High School Band also will be seeing a few new faces in the coming school year. Flag Corps tryouts were held May 12 with many girls turning out for the event. Though everyone was good, only eight can actually be in the corps. For 1990-91 they are Jackie Smith, captain; Jennifer Munoz, lieutenant; Cynthia Martinez, Mollie Silva, Lauren Perkins, Shawn Ortiz, Heidi Smith and Carrie Blair. Connie Huddleston is their sponsor.

Christian Temple Women enjoy their recent night out as they wore colorfully-decorated socks.

Band honors

The annual Band Banquet was held recently and several bandmen went home carrying awards. The John Philip Sousa Award went to Tracy McElvaney. The Directors Award, which goes to a band member who is especially dedicated to the band, went to Robert Sadler. Awards are given to an outstanding bandman in each class. They were: Junior, Jackie Smith; Sophomore, Jennifer Hill; and freshman, Cindy Newman. The band sweetheart and beau also were named: They are Tracy

National Salvation Army week

"We Help the World Sleep a Little Better" and "Sharing is Caring" are two special themes that emphasize the celebration of National Salvation Army Week, May 14 through 20. "We Help Big Spring Sleep a Little Better" could easily be a year around theme for The Salvation Army, locally.

The Salvation Army has served Big Spring for more than 63 years, staffing a community center and lodge that provides meals, clothing and shelter for the underprivileged.

"We are pleased to serve the community of Big Spring in any way we can," said Lt. W.D. Owens. "Our doors are open to all, regardless of age, race, religion, sex or national origin."

The work of The Salvation Army continues 365 days a year, reaching out nationwide in the name of Christianity. Through its corps community centers and thrift stores, its hundreds of adult rehabilitation centers and senior citizens' centers, and its 53 summer camps for children, The Salvation Army goes far beyond material assistance, offering counseling, referrals, and religious services that restore the whole person to a productive life in the community.

"We do, indeed, provide most of our ministry to less fortunate residents of Big Spring," says Owens. The Rev. Steve Comstock, local pastor and board member, notes "that there apparently is a misunderstanding by Big Spring residents that much of the work provided by The Army is for transients traveling through the area, but in fact, assistance to local residents averages a ratio of 2 to 1 compared to transients. I feel that we (Big Spring) do help the world sleep a little better." Another Big Spring pastor, the Rev. Carroll Kohl, shared the following information with the Army Board, "During the oil boom days our Salvation Army was helping more transients than local people. Most of our people were working and doing OK financially. Today the situation has reversed. The need for food is twice as great locally and the need for rent and utility assistance has mushroomed."

The Salvation Army continually appreciates the support of local residents, especially the United Way, and through those gifts, wants Big Spring to know that they are doing their part in making this community a better place to live.

Lawyer requests counsel on man's case for marriage

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 36-year-old, self-supporting female lawyer. Married once, now divorced. (Divorced is better.) No children. I like my life the way it is, and I'm no bowwow.

I recently met a man who is drop-dead gorgeous. He's 42, has had two failed marriages — no children — and he's also a lawyer. We met in court. This man is a real challenge, and I'm totally fascinated by him.

On our first date, he took me to dinner. And both our dinners got cold because we did nothing but talk. He took me home and we talked all night.

On our second date, he said, "You are the woman I want to marry, but there are three conditions. No kids, no dogs and no in-laws!" Abby, I can live without kids, and I suppose I could get rid of my two dogs, but what am I supthink he's very persuasive, but I would be in no big hurry to marry this man. He sounds very opinionated. (How dare he prejudice your parents?) Get to know him better — much better. If he stands the test of time and closer scrutiny, you can marry him later.

If possible, have lunch with one of his ex-wives. (Both would be better.)

DEAR ABBY: I work with Paula, a single woman in her early 40s. She lives with Nancy — her "sister" — or so she says. Nancy is also a single woman in her early 40s. Paula brings her "sister" to all business and social affairs instead of a date. Actually, these two women behave more like a couple than sisters. Nancy even dresses in an obviously masculine manner. When anyone has even suggested trying to fix up Paula or Nancy with a date, they emphatically refuse — saying they're too "old." Abby, I like Paula and Nancy, but I feel they are trying to masquerade as sisters when they are obviously lesbian lovers. I suppose it must be difficult for them to live like this, when it would be much easier for them simply to admit that they are lovers, which everyone in the office already knows.

It's gotten to the point where I don't feel comfortable pretending they are sisters. I would like to take Paula aside and ask her to tell me the truth. Since we are friends, I feel that I am part of this charade now, and I refuse to continue living this lie, even though they seem comfortable with it.

What should I do? — HAD ENOUGH

DEAR HAD ENOUGH: Since you asked, I think you should mind your own business.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you on behalf of my friend. Her son, not quite 2 years old, has ears that stick out very noticeably — in fact, that's the first thing you notice about this beautiful child.

Recently, she was at the grocery store when a woman she had never seen before walked up to her and said in a voice loud enough for everyone around to hear, "Boy, look at those ears! He looks like he's gonna take off!"

Needless to say, my friend was shocked and hurt. She wanted to say something back to that rude stranger but didn't know what to say.

What should she have said, or done, Abby? — HURTING FOR HER

DEAR HURTING: Since it's not possible to educate an insensitive, boorish stranger — especially with other strangers looking on — an appropriate response might have been: "Thank you, he is a beautiful child, isn't he?"

Two accidents occur in county

HOWARD COUNTY — The Department of Public Safety had its hands full last night with two accidents in the county.

A minor's 1990 Ford Mustang became airborne on FM 669, five miles north of Big Spring when she took her eyes from the road to talk to her passenger, the DPS report said.

She drove off the road and up a steep embankment at 10 p.m. The car flew up in the air, drove through a fence and hit a highline pole. The minor and Javier Trevino, 19, of Big Spring, were taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where Trevino is in stable condition. The condition of the minor is unknown.

Power steering failure was blamed in a crash on the I-20 eastbound feeder road at 7:45 p.m. Curtis Warren, 24, of Grand Prairie, told a trooper the steering went out in his 1978 Pontiac Grand Prix as he crossed a bridge, causing him to hit a guardrail. Warren was not hurt in the accident.

Deaths

Manuel Olague

BIG SPRING — Manuel H. Olague, 64, Big Spring, died Wednesday, May 16, 1990, in a local hospital.

Rosary will be 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel. Funeral mass will be 10 a.m. Saturday in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church, with the Rev. James P. Delaney, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park under the direction Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

He was a U.S. Navy veteran of World War II. He worked at the Veterans Administration Medical Center as food service supervisor for 25 years, retiring in 1974.

Social Security chief shoots back at agency's critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn King says she's fed up with the constant criticism that Congress is directing at her agency.

"Talk is easy," she said. "It's harder to make a difference."

"You have people who have never set foot in a Social Security office but who can tell you everything that's wrong because somebody told them," Mrs. King said. "I would say to them: Come see, come see for yourself."

Mrs. King said she found it "particularly galling" that congressional critics have been soliciting horror stories from Social Security caseworkers.

"You have to look at the big picture and not focus on all the anecdotes that you can muster," she said. "Social Security is, across the board, serving people, answering telephones, handling problems and it's amazing to me how well they're doing."

Mrs. King's comments came in an interview with The Associated Press on Thursday, one day before she was to testify before the Senate Committee on Aging. Today's hearing was one in a string of congressional hearings on service problems at the Social Security Administration.

The agency, whose staff was slashed by 20 percent during the Reagan administration, has been faulted for declining service, providing inaccurate information and frequent busy signals on its toll-free telephone network.

Mrs. King, who took over the agency in August, said her frustration was not aimed solely at Congress. She alluded to negative media coverage of the agency and cited disgruntled employees who come in "with gripes and criticism that may have been relevant a year ago."

"From every sector you will find people zeroing in on a microcosm of problems, anecdotal in nature and certainly needing fixing," Mrs. King said. "While we care about every single person... I do have to keep the big picture in mind."

Mrs. King said she welcomes constructive criticism. But she expressed concern that unfair reports could undermine public confidence in Social Security.

"You're going to get people frightened and concerned about whether the system is going to be there to serve them," she said. "The impression left of a stumbling, inept agency down on its knees is one that really does translate into a real problem."

She also expressed concern for hard-working employees who "pick up the newspaper every day and find that somebody is leveling them for something that they all know is a very small portion of all the work that's done."

"It bothers me, and it's fair to say it bothers people at Social Security, that we always seem to get dumped on and nobody ever takes the time to say, 'You know, that was a good job,'" Mrs. King said.

She invited her critics "to be a part of the solution and not just a part of the griping problem."

Mrs. King said the agency had improved its operations over the past year, sharply reduced the busy signals on its toll-free 800 number and hired 500 workers to address staffing shortages.

A study by the inspector general of the Department of Health and Human Services found a large majority of Social Security clients surveyed called the service helpful and accurate, she said.

She criticized several legislative proposals, including a bill to separate the Social Security Administration from HHS. She said another proposal to require that local Social Security office phone numbers, not just the 800 number, be listed in telephone books was "specious" and "trite."

"Surely the U.S. Congress has more important business to get about," she said.

evacuated, he said, but some are boating out to high ground where the buses can pick them up.

Debbie Reiser and her sister, Brenda, have been trapped with their children at home since last Friday when thieves stole the motor to the 14-foot flat-bottom boat they share. Their husbands must now row the boat — an hour to high ground — to get to their jobs or obtain supplies.

"It's hard work, and it takes two grown men to do it. They don't have the time or energy to ferry all these kids back and forth. They'd have to make too many trips," Debbie Reiser said. "We're searching everywhere for a new motor, but they're pretty scarce right now."

If the families moved to the shelter in Hardin, they would still be outside the bus runs to Dayton Independent School District, and the one car they share is needed by the husbands to get to work.

So Debbie Reisers' children spend their days watching the muddy river take over their subdivision. As the children fuss with each other out of boredom, she wonders how this wet, soggy mess will affect their grades.

"We'll have to try and get some make-up work as soon as we can get back over there. My first-grader is struggling," she said. "The last flood a few months ago made her miss three days and I could see her grades drop a couple of points because of it."

At Liberty Independent School District, the absentee rate is about double what it usually is.

Business Manager Tommy Davis said school bus drivers warned students in portions of these areas that they would not be able to ford the high water areas Thursday.

And absenteeism was up at Tarkington Independent School District where buses were curtailing routes to high-water sections of subdivisions.

Tarkington officials reported the number of absent students had fluctuated between 84 and 98 this week, up from an average absentee rate of 70 students each day.

Dayton Independent School District reported 214 student absences — 34 more than normal. However, the absentee rate had dropped back to normal by Wednesday.

School officials felt many students might have gotten resituated and were able to make their way back to school.

Hobby, Lewis, present school proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis gave Gov. Bill Clements a "take-it-or-leave-it" $555 million school finance reform proposal today, capping days of compromise talks.

Governor Clements said he would think about it," Hobby said when he and Lewis, D-Fort Worth, emerged from a 20-minute closed-door meeting with the Republican governor.

The proposal is a final offer from Democratic legislative leaders who have been trying to prevent a gubernatorial veto of the school finance reform bill.

It would be financed through a combination of budget cuts, a quarter-cent increase in the state sales tax, 10-cent cigarette tax increase and raising various state fees, he said.

Homeless

tunities, read from a packet of federal homeless grants that had sent her. She highlighted 15 programs, from veterans' reentry programs to single-room occupancy dwelling renovations, for which local agencies could be eligible.

"You should form a council for the homeless project," said Krager. "You don't want to duplicate your efforts."

She encouraged the informal group to work with city or county governments because many of the grants involve municipal fund matching. Her suggestions were greeted enthusiastically. Lawlis agreed that they needed more inter-agency and municipal cooperation.

Sheriff's log

The Howard County Sheriff's Office reported the following incidents:

• Charles Earl Williams, 32, Merkel, was arrested and charged with revocation of probation on driving while intoxicated.

• Stephen Trevino, 29, 1905 Wasson, was released on $1,500 bond after being arrested and charged with DWI, second offense.

• Isabel Gonzales Lomas, 33, 806 N. Goliad, pleaded guilty in 118th District Court to failing to stop and render aid and received 18 months in TDC.

• Javier Zapata, 20, 209 N. Johnson, pleaded guilty in 118th District Court to aggravated assault and received three years in TDC, with 96 days credit.

Extension Agent Naomi Hunt and the Salvation Army finish their current needs assessment reports for their agencies. With that data in hand, and memos on homeless clients submitted by other agencies, a homeless council could have more clout with the city and county and be more effective in writing grants for federal aid, Lawlis said.

Left unanswered was a question phrased by Carson: who will direct the council, write up the grant proposals, and later, run the shelter? Carson, Lawlis and others said they were already overextended with their own programs.

"We can't do this immediately, but if we could organize within a year, that would be a wonderful thing," Lawlis said.

day, Avery said.

"Neither of us has talked to him," she said. "I think he's evading us. He's just not taking care of the building."

An employee of Flato Realty told the Herald this morning that Flato was out of the office due to illness.

Avery said they had received confirmation from one of Flato's associates that some decision would be reached today. There only two real choices, she said — renovate the building or close it.

"I really believe they'll renovate it this time," she said, "since they've been telling us that for 10 years. Of course it may be after everybody moves out."

J.D. Hansen, one of the last tenants, was cleaning out the cabinets of his dental laboratory yesterday afternoon. He and his assistant said they hadn't decided for sure whether they would move. Hansen said he finds it hard to believe the building has been allowed to deteriorate so badly. He said he has seen numerous problems in his 15 years as a tenant.

"Every year the building has gone gradually down hill," he said. "We once went six weeks without air conditioning. Last December we had no heat. Gradually the tenants left."

"Something would go wrong and then she (Avery) and a guy in a $500 suit would come by and make wild promises. Then nothing would change."

Hansen, who has spent 50 years making dentures, said he would have a hard time finding a place to relocate his laboratory equipment. "I was lucky to find this place," he said. "The lab was all here, put in when the building was built. I just bought it from the guy and took over."

The flooding left its mark — a sour odor, stained carpets and a broken elevator, Hansen said.

"If they'd kept the building up, this would be no problem to repair," he said. "But they've just let it go."

Avery said the building is an important part of downtown and should not be allowed to close.

"It's a needed building," she said. "It's got so many things going for it."

Abundant parking and 35,000-square-foot of space are a rare find in the area, she said. Over the past two years, Avery said, she has brought Flato Realty three serious offers from buyers but has received no response.

Although the fate of the building and its tenants is uncertain at this point, Avery said she is still hoping for a positive response.

"We don't want to close it, but I guess we would rather it be closed than like this," she said.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

• Gerald Villa, 22, 302 N. St. Teresa, Stanton, was arrested and charged with abusive calls on 911. He was released on $1,500 bond.

The two were arrested in connection with a burglary at a church in the 800 block of South Scurry. The church reported stolen a VCR valued at $200, a lawn mower valued at $400 and a homemade edger valued at $100. Damage to wooden entrance doors was not estimated.

Genevieve Schafer

BIG SPRING — Genevieve Louise Schafer, 90, Big Spring, died Wednesday, May 16, 1990, in a local hospital.

Services will be 2 p.m. Saturday in the Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel, with the Rev. Flynn Long, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, officiating, and assisted by Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, a retired Presbyterian minister. Burial will be in Garden City Cemetery under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

She was born Dec. 8, 1899, to pioneer Glasscock County ranchers J.G. and Lillian Carter. Her parents sold their cattle and leased the ranch in 1915, to move to Big Spring where their children could attend a higher level school. She graduated from Big Spring High School, then attended normal school at Canyon to qualify as a school teacher. She taught at Buena Vista before pursuing her lifelong love of art at Washburn College in Topeka, Kan., and the Chicago Institute of Art. She returned to Glasscock County where she married Bismarck Schafer Nov. 15, 1930. Many of Mrs. Schafer's paintings depict scenes from the cattle and sheep ranch they owned and operated northeast of Garden City. After her husband's Feb. 7, 1968 death, she moved to Big Spring. She was a member of Las Artistas, Delta Phi Delta, and the Texas Fine Arts Association. She was a lifelong member of the First Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include two sons: Gene Schafer, Grand Junction, Colo.; and Marck Schafer, Garden City; two daughters: Mrs. W.G. (Joyce) Fuller, and Mrs. Ray (Susan) Walker, both of Big Spring; one brother, Temp Carter, Glasscock County; ten grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. She was also preceded in death by her parents, three sisters, and one brother.

Palbearers will be Ryan Walker, Brant Schafer, Gene R. Schafer, Todd Schafer, Bill Fuller Jr., William Gressett, and Robert Bambic.

The family suggests memorials to the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Lady Coyotes coach leaving for Plains

GAIL — After 10 seasons at Borden County, Bill May is leaving.

May has accepted a coaching position at Plains High School, another Class A school, located in the South Plains area.

May coached girls basketball and tennis at Borden County, and he will do the same at Plains.

May, a 13-year coaching veteran, built quite a record at Borden County, especially in girls basketball. At Borden, May's teams compiled a 243-47 record, a remarkable .868 winning percentage.

May coached five district championship teams, his team went to the playoffs eight years, and to the regional basketball tournament six years. In tennis he had players go to state five times, including two state champions in singles play; Gena Faught in 1980 and Kelli Williams in 1986.

May says leaving Borden County will be hard. "It's become a home, it stopped being a job a long time ago," said May. "But in the same sense I have to look out for me and my family; do what is best for us."

Borden County has good kids, and good kids have a way of making a coach's record look good. I stepped into a program with a tradition that carried a long way back before I got here. I think the girls grow up here wanting to be Lady Coyotes.

"I told the kids they'll still be Lady Coyotes when I leave and they'll win without me. But I'm sure going to miss them."

At Plains, May is going to a school that usually has good volleyball and tennis teams, but has struggled badly in girls basketball the last few years.

"Ten years ago I wouldn't have the confidence that I could turn the program (girls basketball) around. I'm stepping into a completely different situation that I did at Borden County."

May and his wife Tanna have two sons, Ky 6, and Trent 4.

Csonka trying to start new union

NEW YORK (AP) — Hall of Fame running back Larry Csonka is trying to organize a new union for NFL players and part of his platform is a promise of a collective bargaining agreement within 90 days.

NFL players have been without a contract since a five-year agreement expired in 1987. The NFL Players Association, involved in a number of lawsuits against management, decertified as a union last November.

"I believe the climate is right for the players to get a contract now," said Csonka, who has mailed authorization cards to the players. "I don't think the players understand that. I'm not looking to overthrow the union. That's not the thrust. I don't see it as a fight for control with the union but an opportunity to get all the facts to the players and let them decide."

Csonka sent a three-page letter to the players, emphasizing mistakes he believes the Players Association has made. "With decertification, the NFLPA is totally powerless to negotiate a new contract," the letter said.

HC Hawks rally past Panola

BRENHAM — The Howard College Hawks got off to a slow start in their opening state tournament baseball game against Panola. But once the Hawks got started they soared, as they beat Panola 11-7.

The Howard bats were very quiet for the first six innings. The Hawks had only three hits and trailed 4-1. But after that their bats came alive, starting with a six-run seventh inning. In the last three innings of the contest, Howard slugged 13 hits and scored 10 runs.

"We were real passive for too long," said Howard College Hawks coach Bill Griffin. "But once we started hitting the ball, we hit it real well. Their pitcher (Mark Brandonburg) was a curveballer; he threw a lot of off-speed stuff, and he ate our lunch for about six innings. The next guy (Bill McLeod) was the same type pitcher, only he threw a little harder. We hit him good too."

In a surprise move, Howard started Mike Cople in the opener. In the past, Cople has been the ace reliever for the Hawks. "We decided to go with the pitchers that had pitched the best over the past two weeks," explained Griffin.

Cople lasted five-and-one third innings; when he left, Panola led 4-1. Cople was replaced by Steve Walter, who pitched two-and-one third innings, and got the win. Curt Schmidt pitched the final one-and-one third innings for the Hawks.

Right fielder Todd Kolbicka got Howard started in the top of the seventh, hitting a double. Jose Gomez singled, scoring Kolbicka and cutting the Panola lead to 4-2. Then came consecutive singles by Sean Teague and pinch-hitter Harry Daugherty, loading the bases.

Second baseman Steve Ramos came through by stroking a double to left center field, scoring Gomez and designated runner Mike Hughes, who was running for Teague. This tied the game at 4-4.

Howard took the lead when David Wallace's single scored Daugherty. Next Richard Ackley hit a grounder, and Ramos, trying to score from third, was thrown out at the plate. Then first baseman Franklyn Johnson singled, driving in Wallace and Ackley. Howard led 7-4.

Panola came back with two runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to cut the Howard lead to 7-6, but the Hawks put the game away with four runs in the top of the ninth.

With Wallace on base and one

Spurs stay alive

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Portland, it's your serve.

The No. 1 homecoming series of the NBA playoffs returns to the Memorial Coliseum court of the Portland Trail Blazers on Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

The survivor of this best-of-seven semifinals series between San Antonio and the Blazers earns a shot at the Phoenix Suns in the Western Conference finals.

Willie Anderson's career playoff high 30 points gave the Spurs their third victory in HemisFair Arena, a 112-97 drubbing of the Blazers who are 3-0 at home.

"San Antonio hasn't won in our place in a couple of years," said Portland's Terry Porter. "The pressure is on them now."

San Antonio begs to differ. "Forget the homecourt," Anderson said. "If we start good against them they will fold in Portland."

David Robinson of the Spurs said "Portland has got to be tired of us by now. We have a lot of young guys. We just need to translate the way we play here to the way we play in Portland."

Robinson scored 24 points and Terry Cummings added 18 for the Spurs. Portland was led by Jerome Kersey with 22 points and Cliff

Surprised Cochran leads Colonial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Arriving in town on a wounded wing and a prayer, and feeling just a "little silly," left-hander Russ Cochran says he was woefully unprepared for this week's PGA adventure.

"The first time I hit a ball in a few weeks was Monday," he grinned. "I didn't expect much."

So it was a slightly astonished Cochran who took a one-shot lead into today's second round of the Colonial National Invitation golf tournament, one of the tour's premier events.

"I was really happy and a bit surprised," Cochran said Thursday after firing a 5-under-par 65 to stake an early claim on his first victory in eight years on the PGA circuit.

Playing with a mysterious "rib injury," Cochran rolled in a treacherous 25-30 foot birdie putt on the 17th hole and dropped a 15-footer at 18 to seize his cushion over former Colonial champion Corey Pavin.

"I kinda had a prayer answered at 17," he laughed. "I hit a bad putt ... I had no idea where it was going to go. It went in."

Five players were two shots back at 67: Scott Hoch, John Mahaffey, Tom Purtzer, Richard Zokol and Billy Mayfair.

Curtis Strange opened with a 68, Ben Crenshaw a 69 and Payne Stewart a 70. But some of the other top players did not fare well despite the absence of a blustery Texas wind that Colonial veterans have come to know and hate.

Tom Kite, with a 3-under-par 32 going out, shot a stunning 41 on the back side. His 73 left him eight strokes off the lead and tied with defending champion Ian Baker-Finch.

Tom Watson carded a 71, Lanny Wadkins a 72, Larry Mize a 73, Ray Floyd a 74 and Mark O'Meara a 75. Mark Calcavecchia and Bob Tway posted 76s.

Although a non-winner, Cochran, 32, a rangy, personable Kentuckian, recorded his best showing ever in his last tournament, the USF&G Classic in New Orleans where he injured his rib swinging a 6-iron on the next-to-last hole.

FORTH WORTH — Cory Pavin of Westin Kuau, Hawaii, blasts out of the trap on the 14th green during the first round of the Colonial Golf Tournament Thursday.

"I felt a little silly," he confessed. "How can you hurt yourself playing golf? And playing well?"

Whatever, he said the injury was so painful he couldn't even practice putting for two weeks. He showed up in Dallas but withdrew from the Nelson Classic, then skipped the Memorial in Ohio.

Cochran said the rib area was still so tender that he was forced to swing "nice and easy," and the injury might well be a blessing of sorts in painful disguise.

A victory here would more than double his current winnings, $85,486, and in one swoop the $180,000 first prize would exceed his earnings in any single year on the tour.

Certainly it would be a popular victory — with lefties. Cochran is the only left-hander on the tour, and he takes more than a little ribbing for "playing from the wrong side."

Sanchez in semis; seeking third crown

ROME (AP) — Spain's Emilio Sanchez became the first semifinalist at the Italian Open with a 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 victory today over Guillermo Perez-Roldan.

Sanchez, who has already won two titles this year, has won 13 of his 17 clay court matches this year.

Sanchez controlled the match against the 12th-seeded Argentine, hitting deep, consistent groundstrokes and hustling on the baseline to keep the ball in play.

The Spaniard also won important points on volleys and overheads.

"Perez-Roldan is always dangerous, especially with his forehand," said Sanchez, the tournament's fourth seed. "I tried to keep him from getting into a groove by attacking his backhand and rushing net as much as I could."

The three other quarter-final matches today pit defending champion and No. 16 seed Alberto Mancini against No. 8 seed Andrei Chesnokov, No. 10 seed Thomas Muster against unseeded Frenchman Guy Forget, and No. 3 seed Andres Gomez against unseeded Italian Omar Camporese.

The absence of the world's top four players, and the slow red clay of the Foro Italico, has added an extra sense of responsibility and motivation to the many good clay players in the tournament.

"There's certainly more pressure on us. But there is also more desire," said Sanchez, the world's eighth-ranked player, "because each of us believes that he can win. On clay, we are all equal."

Sanchez believes the absences of Ivan Lendl, Stefan Edberg, Boris Becker and Andre Agassi have not substantially altered the Rome tournament.

"The top four players didn't desert this tournament because it's not important," he says. "They deserted it because it's hard to play here. And because it's hard to play six matches in seven days, especially so close to the French Open. Besides, if you look back over the past few months, you'll see those same top players have lost consistently on clay."

Mancini, who ousted top-seeded Brad Gilbert of Piedmont, Calif., 6-2, 6-1 Thursday, is as reluctant as the rest of the field to pick a winner.

"There are a lot of guys who can go all the way," he said. "Chesnokov, Sanchez, Perez-Roldan, Muster. All of them are good clay players. And all of them have heart. I think we'll see some very intense matches in the next few days."

Muster, who has swamped his first three opponents at Rome, claims that he is already happy with his showing.

"For the No. 10 seed, reaching the quarterfinals is a good result," he says.

"I never like to look too far ahead. And any of the players who have made it this far could win the tournament. This is one of the nice things about tennis."

Preakness longshot grateful for seclusion

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Being the Preakness longshot means you never have to explain why you finished last.

Meredith "Mert" Bailes, the trainer of J.R.'s Horizon, hopes to somehow emerge from Saturday's race with a win. But he also knows he's got nothing to lose.

"The best I can come out of this thing is with a smile on my face and a feeling of accomplishment," Bailes said Thursday. "The worst I can do is what everyone expects me to do." J.R.'s Horizon, a 50-1 choice in the early line, and 30-1 pick Fighting Notion have been training this week at Bowie Race Course, which is about 40 miles removed from the carnival atmosphere at Pimlico. Instead of being quizzed by reporters, scrutinized by TV cameras and surveyed by fellow-trainers, the horses' handlers have enjoyed much-needed seclusion as they prepare for the race of their lives.

At Pimlico, the colts are lined up next to each other in stalls located in the same barn. At Bowie, J.R.'s Horizon and Fighting Notion are housed in different stables located about 50 yards apart.

Ah, privacy. "Things might not always go right, so we're better off not letting the opposition know what's going on," said Nancy Heil, Fighting Notion's trainer. "This way we get to keep pretty much to ourselves." Because both horses have raced at Pimlico several times, they have the advantage of running the Preakness on their "home turf." That won't mean a thing, however, if they simply aren't as good as the competition.

"We don't want to feed him too much," Bailes said. "We just want him to do what he can do. If we can lay within 12 lengths of the lead by the time my colt starts his run, we'll be happy."

Heil, on the other hand, wants her horse to bolt out in front and then just try to hang on with all he's got. "We want to get on the rail," Heil said. "He's got good speed — it's just a matter if he can go a mile-and-three-sixths on the front."

"The other horses have been tested, but mine hasn't had a chance to run with them," she said. "I'm asking him for a big effort here, but I really believe he can do well. We're not running just to run — we're running because it's a speed track and he's a speed horse." Fighting Notion showed off that acceleration on May 1 when he rolled to a wire-to-wire 20-length victory at Pimlico. The grandson of Avatar has won three of eight races in 1990, his first year of racing.

In his last race, at Pimlico the day after the Kentucky Derby, J.R.'s Horizon weakened in the stretch and finished sixth. But the horse, a son of Caveat, has won three of eight lifetime races and finished second in three others.

Reserve infielder slams Mariners past Blue Jays

By The Associated Press
Given a rare start, Brian Giles rewarded Seattle with an even rarer performance.

Giles, a 30-year-old utility infielder who spent the last three seasons in the minors, hit a grand slam and a three-run homer Thursday as the Mariners beat the Toronto Blue Jays 14-6.

"Everytime I put this uniform on I expect to play at some point in the game," he said. "It's just a matter of trying to stay focused. I was just trying to hit the ball hard."

Giles, who started the season with an 0-for-17 slump, has three homers this week after hitting only six previously in his major-league career that has included four teams since 1981.

"Brian's been taking a lot of extra batting practice and taking extra ground balls at every position," Seattle manager Jim Lefebvre said. "You're happy for a guy like that."

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Milwaukee 6, California 3; Minnesota 4, New York 1; Chicago 7, Baltimore 3; and Detroit 7, Texas 5 in 10 innings.

Giles hit a three-run homer off starter Jimmy Key (4-2) in the third inning and his first career grand slam off reliever Frank Wills in the fifth. The first homer capped a nine-run outburst by the Mariners, who sent 12 batters to the plate in the inning.

Seattle starter Randy Johnson (3-2) went seven innings, giving up seven hits and striking out seven as the Mariners completed a three-game sweep.

Glenallen Hill hit a pair of two-run homers for the Blue Jays.

Brewers 6, Angels 3

At Milwaukee, Robin Yount and Dave Parker spoiled Dave Winfield's California debut with consecutive RBI singles in the seventh inning.

With one out and the score tied 3-3, Paul Molitor and Gary Sheffield singled off reliever Willie Fraser (0-2).

After Yount drove in Molitor with a single, Parker chased Fraser with his third hit of the day to give Milwaukee a 5-3 lead.

Winfield, who joined the Angels hours after reaching an agreement that completed his disputed trade from the New York Yankees, pinch hit in the eighth and grounded out with two men on.

Paul Mirabella (2-0) pitched 1-2-3 scoreless innings for the victory.

Twins 4, Yankees 1
At New York, rookie Kevin

Tapani allowed one run in 7 1-3 innings for his third straight victory.

Heavy showers before the game left the field drenched, and the wet grounds helped both teams score a run.

Tapani, acquired last season from the New York Mets in the Frank Viola deal, allowed seven hits, struck out five and walked none. Rick Aguilera pitched the final 1 1-3 innings for his 10th save.

Brian Harper and Kent Hrbek hit solo homers for the Twins, who have won eight of their last 11 games.

White Sox 7, Orioles 3

At Chicago, Sammy Sosa's RBI double keyed a five-run seventh inning that helped the White Sox win their sixth straight.

Ozzie Guillen singled with one out in the seventh, stole second and scored the tying run on Sosa's double off reliever Brian Holton (1-1).

Kevin Hickey came in and walked Lance Johnson before being replaced by Mark Williamson, who walked Ivan Calderon and Ron Kittle to force in Sosa with the go-ahead run.

Johnson scored on a wild pitch. First baseman Randy Milligan then booted Carlton Fisk's grounder, allowing Calderon and pinch runner Rod McCray to score.

Rookie catcher helps give Bucs pitcher first loss

By The Associated Press
As unlikely as Neal Heaton was to have an 11-game winning streak, it ended thanks to an even unlikelier source.

Heaton began the season with a 61-83 career record. And it was only that "good" because of five last game winning streak at the end of last season.

After coming up with a new pitch called a screw knuckle change, the Pittsburgh left-hander reeled off six consecutive victories this season, the first Pirates pitcher in 61 years to get off to that kind of a start.

NL

But it all ended Thursday night at the hands — and bat — of Greg Olson, a career minor-leaguer who is finally getting a chance to show his wares in the majors.

The 29-year-old rookie catcher, who was released by the New York

Mets organization after the 1988 season and by the Minnesota Twins a year later, drove in five runs with his second and third major-league homers as the Atlanta Braves beat Pittsburgh 6-1 and handed the Pirates their third consecutive loss.

"This is the first time in my life I've ever hit two homers in a game — not in Little League, not in Babe Ruth League, not in the minors," said Olson, who hit only 17 home runs in eight minor-league seasons. "It's something that just happened."

In the only other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Cincinnati Reds 3-0 and the Houston Astros edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 11 innings.

Olson gave the Braves a 2-0 lead in the second inning when he hit a 415-foot homer over the center-field fence following a single by Andres Thomas. He added a three-run shot off Randy Kramer in the eighth. "It's been a dream season so far," said Olson, who is batting .371 in 16 games. "When you're in the minors so long, your concentration level goes down. Since I've been here, I've had a high level of concentration."

Heaton yielded three runs and 10 hits in six innings and said: "The streak coming to an end bothers me not at all, not any. And it won't bother me the next time out. I've had myself programmed like a robot. I just never had it at all. When you don't have it, you can't try to fake it."

Winner Derek Lilliquist (2-4) scattered eight hits, walked one and struck out one in seven innings. Joe Hesketh pitched the last two innings for his first save and the fourth victory in five games for Atlanta.

Cardinals 3, Reds 0

Jose DeLeon held Cincinnati to four hits in 7 1-3 innings and scored the only run off loser Tom Browning after a third-inning triple. DeLeon (3-2) walked two and struck out seven before giving way to Ken Dayley, who finished the eighth. Lee Smith came on for his second save after the first two batters reached base in the ninth. He fanned Herm Wingham with the bases loaded to end the game.

Browning (3-4) gave up one run and four hits in seven innings. The Cardinals took the lead in the third when DeLeon blooped a hit to right field that bounced past Paul O'Neill for a triple. Ozzie Smith singled DeLeon home.

"I wasn't sure I was going to make it to third base. I know I slowed down between second and third," DeLeon said after his first triple in eight major-league seasons. "I looked like a kid out there. I had to make sure I touched every base."

"That may be the only way to beat them (the Reds) is to shut them out," Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog said. "We've played them five times and scored nine runs. When you look at their batting averages — if you hit .280 on that club, you're awful."

The Cardinals scored two insurance runs in the eighth off Tim Lincecum. After consecutive singles by Ozzie Smith and Willie McGee, Terry Pendleton drove in a run with a groundout and Pedro Guerrero doubled home the other.

Astros 5, Cubs 1
Houston's Eric Anthony hit one of the longest home runs in the Astrodome's 25-year history, but the Astros snapped their six game losing streak on a much shorter drive — pinch hitter Ken Oberkfell's bases loaded sacrifice fly in the 11th inning.

With the score tied 4-4, Houston loaded the bases against Jose Nunez (1-4) on a double by Ken Caminiti, an intentional walk to Glenn Wilson and a sacrifice bunt by Rafael Ramirez, with Ramirez reaching first when the Cubs failed to force Caminiti at third. Oberkfell batted for Casey Candaele and hit a 3-2 pitch to right field.

Dave Smith (2-2) was the winner with one inning of hitless relief. All the Cubs' runs came off Houston starter Mark Portugal and were unearned. Houston pitchers retired the last 19 Chicago batters. Chicago starter Mike Bielecki yielded the first four Houston runs.

Anthony's second-inning homer, his first of the season, was the sixth ever into the Astrodome's upper deck. Houston manager Art Howe estimated it traveled 500 feet.

"It was one of the longest home runs I've ever seen. He crushed it," Oberkfell said.

Cubs manager Don Zimmer also called it "one of the longest home runs I've ever seen."

Owls scare Porkers

Arkansas 7, Rice 5
Texas 9, Houston 1
AUSTIN (AP) — There were no surprises in the first round of the Southwest Conference baseball tournament, but Arkansas coach Norm DeBriyn came away with new respect or possibly even fear of the Rice Owls.

SWC Baseball

DeBriyn told of his respect for the Owls after the conference champions had to come from behind to defeat the Owls, 7-5, in the first game. No. 5 Texas defeated Houston, 9-1, in the second game.

Houston and Rice met in a loser's bracket game at 1 p.m. today. The Razorbacks and Longhorns will play tonight.

"Rice has always battled us tooth and nail," said DeBriyn. "I hope we don't have to play them again."

Bubba Carpenter's pinch-hit single in the bottom of the fifth inning snapped a 4-4 tie and carried the Razorbacks (47-11) past the Rice Owls.

Carpenter, along with Greg D'Alexander — both all-SWC performers — had been benched by DeBriyn for missing a team curfew Tuesday night after the team had attended the Detroit Tigers-Texas Rangers game in Arlington. Both were allowed to enter the game in the fifth inning as substitutes.

The Hogs grabbed a 2-0 lead, scoring runs in the first two innings. Rice wasted leadoff doubles in the first two innings, but went up 4-2 in the fourth after scoring a pair of runs in the third and two more in the fourth.

Arkansas tied the game 4-4 in the fifth on D'Alexander's two-run single before Carpenter singled in the go-ahead run.

Doug Bennett, 10-1, was the winner for the Hogs, surrendering nine hits, walking two and striking out five in seven innings of work.

Rob Howard was the loser, lasting only four innings and falling to 8-10.

Jeff Houck led the Hogs' 11-hit attack going 3-for-4 with an RBI and scoring three times. Carpenter and Mark Johnson contributed two hits apiece.

Donald Allen paced Rice with a single, double and triple and two RBIs.

David Tollison, Lance Jones and Clay King provided the offensive punch for the Texas Longhorns in a 9-1 victory over the Houston Cougars. Tollison had a two-run homer and drove in three runs and Jones and King had three hits each for Texas.

The Longhorns, 46-15, had 12 hits in the first five innings in front of 5,091 fans, including Tollison's 375-foot homer in the third, that gave Texas a 5-0 lead.

The offensive outburst by the Longhorns was a mild surprise to coach Cliff Gustafson.

"Our offensive output was a surprise tonight," said Gustafson. "We got to (losing pitcher Keith) Darter early and he got him out of the game. That was the key."

Derrick Dietrick had two of the Cougars' seven hits and drove in their only run.

Sophomore Chris Gaskill, 6-3, making only the fifth start of his career, allowed only one runner past second base and did not allow a walk in seven innings.

Two-time All-American Kirk Dressendorfer, who had not pitched since April 27 because of arm trouble, threw two innings of relief and allowed Houston's only run.

Houston coach Bragg Stockton said the Cougars just couldn't get much going offensively.

"We were so anemic at the plate, I don't know. We didn't get much help from anybody," Stockton said. Darter, the losing pitcher, is 7-6.

Houston sprinter has high hopes

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Leroy Burrell has a mission to accomplish and a long list of opponents to keep him from achieving it.

The University of Houston sprinter wants to win an unprecedented four events in the Southwest Conference Track and Field championships: the 100 and 200 meter dashes, the long jump and 400 meter relay.

SWC Track

Standing in Burrell's path are John Drummond of Texas Christian and Andre Cason of Texas A&M in the 100 meters, Baylor's Michael Johnson in the 200 meters and defending long jump champion Edrick Floreal of Arkansas.

Houston's long-shot possibilities in the 400 meter relay depend on the Cougars' ability to hold onto the baton.

"I don't know if he can win them all but the idea is to try and then see how he feels," Houston coach Tom Tellez said.

"There's a lot of competition out there. But I think he owes it to himself to see what he might do in the future."

While Burrell is involved in his personal goal, Arkansas' men will be seeking their third straight men's title and the Texas Lady Longhorns are going for their sixth straight womens' title.

Burrell will be tested in the 200 by Johnson, whose 20.72 is the fastest time in the SWC this year.

"If he pulls it off, I'll take my hat off to him," Baylor coach Clyde Hart said. "To get that, he'll have to go through some outstanding people."

The men's 400 meter relay is expected to be hotly contested among Texas A&M, Texas Christian and Texas.

Burrell will anchor Houston's 400 relay team that has been plagued by dropped batons this season.

"We've got a good team if we can get the baton to Leroy and let him do something," Telez said.

Texas A&M has the top time of 39.07 coming into the meet followed by TCU's 39.33 and Texas' 39.47. All surpass the NCAA qualifying time of 39.4.

Arkansas' scoring potential is heaviest in the distance races led by Reuben Reina, who has the top times in the SWC in the 1500 meters and 5,000 meters races.

Floreal is the defending champion in the triple jump and long jump.

Texas A&M is hosting the event for the first time since 1971 and will battle Arkansas and Texas for the men's title.

"It would take a super performance for us to win it," A&M coach Charlie Thomas said. "We've got to have Baylor and Rice take some of Arkansas' points away."

The Lady Longhorns will be without defending 100 and 200 meter champion Carlette Guidry, sidelined with a hamstring injury.

"We're bringing a small group, so for us to have an impact on the team race we'll have to have quality performances rather than quantity," Texas women's coach Terry Crawford said.

Houston's Jolanda Harper is the defending champion in the 100 meter hurdles and she's also entered in the 100 and 200 meter dashes and will anchor the 400-meter relay.

The Razorbacks won the 1989 meet by a 163 to 156 1/2 margin over the host Texas Aggies.

Other returning men's champions are: Patrik Boden, Texas, javelin; Steve Perego, Texas A&M, decathlon; Richard Bucknor, Texas A&M, 110 hurdles; William Maru, Texas Christian, 800 meters and Andre Cason, Texas A&M, 200 meters.

Latanya Archie in the long jump and Rosey Edeh of Rice in the 400 meter hurdles, also are returning champions.

Baylor's Bill Payne, the top pole vaulter in the league with a vault of 18-9 1/4, will compete despite a three-month suspension from the TAC after he tested positive for a banned substance, Pseudoephedrin, an over-the-counter cough medicine.

Payne took the medicine last winter while suffering from tonsillitis and a cough.

Baylor has appealed the suspension but Hart is not encouraged.

"All we can do is ask for reinstatement but I don't have any hopes for that," Hart said.

Field event finals begin Friday afternoon followed by running preliminaries. Running finals are scheduled Saturday.

Dallas Baptist in NAIA driver's seat

William Carey 13, Northwood Institute 7, Dallas Baptist 6, Grand Canyon 4

PHOENIX (AP) — Chan Yun, Mike Rodriguez and Ken Power all drove in two runs apiece as Dallas Baptist beat Grand Canyon 6-4 in the second round of the NAIA Area 2 baseball playoffs Thursday night.

In an earlier game, William Carey College of Hattiesburg, Miss., defeated Northwood Institute 13-7. The loss eliminated the Texas school from the tournament with a 37-16 record. Dallas Baptist (43-18) chased Antelope starter Bart Grubbs (7-5) in the first inning on Yun's RBI double, Rodriguez's two-run double and Power's RBI single.

Power's RBI double in the fifth made it 5-1 before Yun closed out the Indians' scoring in the eighth inning on an RBI single.

Jimmy Armstrong (8-1) got the win for Dallas Baptist, giving up only Dan Foss' run-scoring groundout in the second inning and Tim Flores' RBI single in the eighth. Power dropped a fly ball in right field in the sixth inning, allowing the other two Antelope runs.

Richard White went 2-for-6 and had three RBIs to power William Carey (39-11), which will play Grand Canyon (39-25) in a loser's bracket game Friday afternoon at Brazell Stadium here.

The winner of that game will play Dallas Baptist on Friday night. If Dallas Baptist loses, a championship game will be held Saturday afternoon.

HOW TO HAVE A SUCCESSFUL GARAGE SALE

9 IN EASY STEPS:

Elizabeth Flores & Debbye Valverde
Classified Sales

1. Make a date. Set a time of day. Have your Garage Sale run for at least two days. Check weather reports. Make sure no other events are happening on the days you chose.
2. Select the items you want to sell and decide on their prices. Make sure they look their best and are correctly tagged. After you have them assembled, check again in the attic, closets and basement for items you haven't used in over a year. Don't be choosy ... what you may consider unworthy of the garbage dump might be someone else's treasure.
3. Write your ad. Describe big ticket items and include important details: address, date, time and even offer directions.
4. Place your ad in the Classified section of the Newspaper at least a few days before the sale is set to take place.
5. Place signs in your area. Use arrows to guide prospective customers to your home. Put signs up by busy streets and intersections for maximum visibility.
Note: please remove signs after sale.
6. Price all items clearly...and reasonably. Use bright markers or colored stickers. Remember that Garage Sales are where people look for bargains and where you're looking to clear out your garage. Whatever's not sold will have to go back to you...so price it low and sell it fast.
7. Display items as pleasingly as possible. Create a traffic flow with space for aisles for customers to maneuver through the area without walking into things or knocking them over.
8. Set up a 'cashier's' area and have one person tend it at all times (make sure someone's available to 'spell' them throughout the sale). Place it where you have the best view of the merchandise.
9. Ask friends and neighbors if they'd like to partake in the sale. The more merchandise, the more bargains to be found...and likely the more interest in the event. Mention this in your ad as well as on signs: Block Sale or Four Family Garage Sale.

New stadium opening will have to wait

EL PASO (AP) — The on-again, off-again opening of Cohen Stadium, new home of the El Paso Diablos, is off again, officials say because of delays in completing the new facility.
Diablos owner Jim Paul said Thursday Cohen Stadium will not be ready for its scheduled grand opening next Tuesday. "May 22 is out," Paul said. "We're not going to play baseball there under any kind of trying conditions."
This is the second delay in the opening of the stadium, which was scheduled to do business at the beginning of this season. Dudley Field, the 66-year-old facility that is being replaced by the new stadium, will continue to be home for the Diablos until Cohen is completed.
El Paso, a AA farm club of the Milwaukee Brewers, competes in the Texas League.
Paul, members of Croom Construction, city architects, city engineers and a city inspection crew will tour the stadium today.

Names in the news

DRUG (AP) — Drug czar Bennett, who is on a crusade against crack dealers, took a call from a well-known bad boy — Bart Simpson — on Wednesday of the drug center. Bennett spied a cartoon miscreant and covering addicts they follow Bart's lead as an addict.

"They aren't watching 'The Simpsons,' are you? That's not going to happen any," said Bennett, director of the national drug policy office. "It's the spike-haired son on 'The Simpsons,' the Fox network's animated cartoon sitcom featuring the adventures of a bug-eyed boy."

"We have great respect for Mr. Bennett's task and responsibility," said Brad Turell, a spokesman for the show. "But I am not aware of any one TV program that will help teenagers kick the drug habit."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kelsey Grammer, who plays the uptight Dr. Frasier Crane on "Cheers," was given 30 days in jail for violating his probation from a 1988 drunken driving arrest.

Municipal Court Commissioner Patricia Schwartz on Wednesday told the 35-year-old actor to report to jail May 24 and enroll in a 90-day alcohol rehabilitation program.

The actor had violated terms of his probation by missing a court appearance to report on his progress.

Grammer's co-star Kirstie Alley pleaded unsuccessfully with Ms. Schwartz to spare the actor jail and instead enroll him in a strict alcohol and drug abuse program.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Anita Bryant, the former Florida orange juice woman and campaigner against gay rights, calls herself a "walking miracle" for having survived a nervous breakdown, pill addiction and divorce.

Bryant, a pop singer in the 1960s, moved to Nashville from Selma, Ala., in August to get back into the business. She just finished an album called "With Love" and is working on her 11th inspirational book.

Legislators seek reform compromise

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative leaders who have been negotiating a school finance reform compromise with Gov. Bill Clements are taking the proposal to House and Senate members to see if it has enough support to pass.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby was going to talk to senators, said a key aide, Saralee Tiede. House Speaker Gib Lewis said he also planned to talk to lawmakers over the weekend.

"Really what we're going to do is start taking it to the membership and see what they say," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Clements has withheld his threatened veto of lawmakers' school finance bill while his staff negotiates with legislative leaders. If they reach a final agreement, the bill could be called back by the Legislature and changed.

Among concessions offered by legislative leaders were reducing the first-year cost of the bill from $555 million to $450 million and allowing Clements to appoint the education commissioner from nominees submitted by the State Board of Education. The board currently appoints the commissioner.

Second track plans opening

AUSTIN (AP) — The second track to open its doors to pari-mutuel wagering will begin racing May 26, Texas Racing Commission executive secretary Dave Freeman said today.

The track located at the Gillespie County fairgrounds in Fredericksburg is expected to draw 5,000 people at the opener on Memorial Day weekend, Freeman said.

He said the Class III track run by the Gillespie County Fair and Festivals Association is expected to have a handle of $140,000 per day and generate $85,000 in state taxes over its 12-day racing season.

Racing will be held May 26-May 28; July 3-July 5; July 21 and July 22 and Aug. 23-Aug. 26.

Renovation and construction of the facility are complete, Freeman said.

Student program big success

AUSTIN (AP) — Students at three elementary schools have been learning how to count their pennies and take them to the bank.

First City, Texas-Austin concluded a pilot student savings program at the schools Thursday and counted more than $42,000 in savings by 708 students.

The bank's brass in Houston was so pleased by the results they decided to expand the program to nine other Texas cities next fall.

The student savers at the pilot project schools — Casis, Doss and Maplewood — tapped a variety of financial resources and listed a number of goals for their savings.

A few students had deposited more than $1,000, while one first-grader brought 1,573 pennies in a paper bag.

"We found out that the younger the kids are, the more they enjoyed," said Cindy Haegelin, a volunteer coordinator with the program.

Gang violence prompts ordinance

AUSTIN (AP) — The city council has said it wants the Sixth Street entertainment district off limits to juveniles during late night hours because of increasing violence and gang activity.

The council Thursday ordered that the curfew ordinance be drafted for consideration later this month.

"It is one of the tools that police officers need," said Mayor Lee Cooke.

Cap Rock, Lone Wolf plan merger

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

CROSSROADS — Officials announced a plan this week to combine the electrical cooperatives of Cap Rock Electric Co-Op in Stanton and Lone Wolf Electric Co-Op in Colorado City.

The merger, which follows six years of studies, is expected to save $1.6 million over the next 10 years and increase the bargaining power and resources of the cooperatives. No employee layoffs or transfers will occur.

SSA head shoots back

By NANCY BENAC
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Social Security Commissioner Gwendolyn King says she's fed up with the constant criticism that Congress is directing at her agency.

"Talk is easy," she said. "It's harder to make a difference."

"You have people who have never set foot in a Social Security office but who can tell you everything that's wrong because somebody told them," Mrs. King said. "I would say to them: Come see, come see for yourself."

Mrs. King said she found it "particularly galling" that congressional critics have been soliciting horror stories from Social Security caseworkers.

"You have to look at the big picture and not focus on all the anecdotes that you can muster," she said. "Social Security is, across the board, serving people, answering telephones, handling problems and it's amazing to me how well they're doing."

Mrs. King's comments came in an interview with The Associated Press on Thursday, one day before she was to testify before the Senate Committee on Aging. Today's hearing was one in a string of congressional hearings on service problems at the Social Security Administration.

The agency, whose staff was slashed by 20 percent during the Reagan administration, has been faulted for declining service, providing inaccurate information and frequent busy signals on its toll-free telephone network.

Mrs. King, who took over the agency in August, said her frustration was not aimed solely at Congress. She alluded to negative media coverage of the agency and cited disgruntled employees who come in "with gripes and criticism that may have been relevant a year ago."

"From every sector you will find people zeroing in on a microcosm of problems, anecdotal in nature and certainly needing fixing," Mrs. King said. "While we care about every single person... I do have to keep the big picture in mind."

FFA-ers honored at annual banquet

STANTON — The Stanton chapter of the Future Farmers of America honored its best and brightest during its annual banquet Thursday night at Caprock Auditorium.

Future Farmers awarded the Greenhand Award were: Brian Cain; James Miller; George Ramirez; Bobby Arizmendi; Robin Barnes; Sherman Bryand; John Cannon; Deacon Carson; Richard Hernandez; Phillip Hinojosa; Jay Huckaby; Casey Jones; Shane Louder; Casey Reid; Chris Ross; and Kenny Stewart.

Organization advisor Randall Redder also announced the Chapter Farmer Award winners. They were: Kenny Hobbs; Jim Decker; Curtis Huff; Billy Lipps; and Dennis Simpson.

Six members were honored in individual categories. They were: Dairy Production, Craig Fryer;

"This combination is one of those classic combinations where everyone involved wins. It is good for the co-op, good for members, good for employees and good for our local communities." — David Pruitt, general manager of Cap Rock,

If cooperative members approve the plan, Lone Wolf, which has 1,400 miles of lines going to 3,200 meters in six counties, will transfer their assets and become a division of Cap Rock, which has 5,000 miles of lines going to 17,000 meters in 13 counties. The Cap Rock board of directors will be expanded from nine to 11 members, with the other two being elected from the Lone Wolf area.

Lone Wolf members will vote on the plan at a special membership meeting May 29 at 7 p.m. at Colorado City High School.

Cap Rock members, since they would not be transferring any assets, need only to vote to amend their articles of incorporation to add two new board members, said a Cap Rock attorney. Members will vote on the amendment at a Sept. 8 membership meeting at the Chaparral Center at Midland College. That is when they will hold their annual election for directors. Precincts 1, 2 and 7 are up for election this year.

"This combining of the two cooperatives will help stabilize rates for Lone Wolf members, as well as place us in a more advantageous position for negotiating future power supply cost," said

STANTON — Early morning classes may be dull for some high school students, but not in Caron Rawlings' child development class at Stanton High School.

"We have a lot of fun here. We get to learn about kids and the responsibilities that go along with them," said senior Gloria Rodriguez.

Rawlings and her students entertain around 10 children ranging from two to five years old. "This learning center is not all fun and games, because it teaches the youngsters guidance, and the student gets one-on-one contact with these children to actually learn first-hand experience at parenting," Rawlings said.

"It's a great chance to play with the kids and just to see what it's going to be like when we become parents and have our own," said Mike Moreno.

About 35 students participate in the elective course program, with

Merger

 Kenneth Rogers, general manager of Lone Wolf. "At the same time, it will give our employees advanced technology and equipment we do not have available at the present time, as well as added manpower in the time of emergency."

The general manager of Cap Rock, David Pruitt, said the merger will improve the quality and economy of Cap Rock. "This combination is one of those classic combinations where everyone involved wins," he said. "It is good for the co-op, good for members, good for employees and good for our local communities."

"This combining is a partnership that is simply good business," he said. "The savings to us is more long-term. Their's is more immediate."

Besides stabilizing rates and increasing bargaining power in purchases, officials say the combining should help buffer future rate increases, increase ability to attract larger power loads and improve the ability to borrow loans on better terms.

According to the agreement between the two cooperatives boards of directors, which was signed March 13, Cap Rock will retain its name while Lone Wolf will be known as Lone Wolf Electric Division of Cap Rock.

Rogers, Lone Wolf's manager for 21 years, will continue to locally manage the Colorado City office. Employees will continue to live in their service area and the division will remain in the local chamber of commerce.

Lone Wolf members will be members of Cap Rock, with full and equal membership rights, according to the agreement. Though assets and liabilities will be transferred to Cap Rock, Lone Wolf's bank deposits will remain in local banks and local purchasing will continue as present.

In fact, Rogers said, "You will hardly be able to see any difference in Lone Wolf Electric after the combining, except for system improvements made possible by the combining."

Thieves driving away business

EL PASO (AP) — Car thieves are driving away hotel and motel business, forcing proprietors to set up parking lot barriers and hire security guards to keep their guests.

Members of the HotelMotel Association say thieves are stealing cars from hotel and motel parking lots. Guests and major conventions that have lost cars are threatening not to return to El Paso, association members say. "We've even had customers say, 'I'll go right to Deming (N.M.) or Fort Stockton rather than stop here,'" said Rich Cane, vice president of Camelback Hotel Corp., which operates the El Paso Airport Hilton.

Car thefts increased 94 percent during the past two years in El Paso, with more than 5,000 cars stolen last year and more than 100 cars stolen a week. The recovery rate of stolen cars is low because the cars are often driven across the border into Mexico where they are either stripped for parts, sold or used in drug smuggling organizations.

The problem is so bad local media run weekly totals of cars stolen in the city, lists of the most popular models with thieves and statistics on where in the city the cars are most likely to be stolen. Usually, the city's northeast side has the most auto thefts.

The Airport Hilton in April chained off three of its entrance areas in its parking lot to make auto thefts tougher. Drivers now can enter or leave the hotel's lot only by the front entrance, Cane said. Cane said the Hilton averaged three or four thefts a month in the first three months of this year. Since the chains went up, Cane said, the thefts have dropped off.

On Wednesday the El Paso Marriott took similar measures and chained off two of its five entrances. "We know which two get a lot of play," said Mike Shoffit, general manager.

Cane said he had one major convention in February that threatened not to return to El Paso next year because two members had cars stolen from the hotel lot. To persuade the convention to come back, Cane had to promise that no cars would be stolen.

"It costs us a lot of money," said Cane.

 release of histamine. Because some people may develop a tolerance to certain types, there are eight groups available for treatment, Schwarz said. He said drug treatment is good for mild allergies which may last a few weeks.

Better for prolonged, seasonal allergies is a complete test to determine which substance is the offender, he said. Then a doctor can build an extract to administer to the patient in increasing dosages. The patient develops an immune response, eliminating the troublesome symptoms, he said, though there is no cure for allergies.

Chronic ear infections, asthma and headaches all respond well to similar treatment, Schwarz said. "Most people don't realize allergy plays a large part in asthma."

Acted, Allerest and Benadryl, common over-the-counter remedies, are usually effective for mild reactions, he said. He warned that patients with heart disease, hypertension or diabetes need a doctor's approval for using one of those medications.

As summer arrives, relief from allergic reactions should follow, he said. "But you never know. If we have a wet summer, we could have a lot of allergies." Wind may irritate allergy sufferers, as allergens and dust are blown through the air.

 topics covering individual family planning and child development. "We are able to bring in guest speakers from different agencies to talk to the students about anything from foster parenting to first aid and ways of adoption to costs of rearing a child," Rawlings said.

"I think it's exciting to work with the kids 'cause I enjoy them. When I get married I would like to have five," said Gracie Cazares humorously.

"I like to have fun with Play-Dough and play house, make a lion, play blocks, dress up dolls," said Mary Allina Hedrick. Mary Allina is a beneficiary of program. She, along with David Gene Barber, Heather Washington and seven other youngsters have the time of their lives playing such things like "making tornados in a bottle," jump rope and play ball.

"It's a great benefit for both the kids and us," said Felix Cazares. "Working with the youngsters is hard work, but you also have fun and enjoy the kids responding to you."

When they are done, they get to know to you they begin to play and open up," he added.

"This course was designed to enhance the stages of family living and child rearing. It also teaches areas of child care and different child care facilities," said Rawlings.

We're generating more than electricity.

Jobs Power The Future

Big cities and small towns across the area we serve are stretching their horizons. They're searching out new industries and new companies to bring new jobs. When the companies see what we have here — people who will work hard to build a better future — one of the most important ingredients, the nation, and an attitude set on winning — they decide to move here.

Electricity Powers The Jobs

That's why we need to build new generating plants and power lines, and develop alternate fuel sources like nuclear power. To make sure we can keep expanding opportunities for young people who want to raise families here. To make sure you have the electricity you need — today and tomorrow.

Power For Texas

TU Electric is committed to helping make a better future for all of us. And to provide all the power that is needed to fuel the new economy. Electric Power. The Power for Texas.
