Phone building soon to be clinic

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — Community leaders have taken the recycling effort so seriously that even old buildings find a new use.

On Friday, Southwestern Bell Telephone transferred ownership of a long-unused building to Big Spring Main Street, Inc. The Main Street group in turn deeded the building at 301 Runnels to the Big

"I'm impressed with the vision I see unfolding here," he said. "The bricks and mortar that make up this building serve only as a foundation," and the community can breathe life into it.

Spring State Hospital, which will convert it to an out-patient center. About 50 people were on hand for the deed-transfer ceremony in the Tubb Pocket Park, as dignitaries with the city, county, state and Southwestern Bell lauded the event. Darlene Gifford of Southwestern Bell, who helped engineer the event, called the deed transfers "another chapter in the redevelopment of the downtown area."

Ed Moughon, director of out-patient services at the state hospital, said the gift of the building not only helps revitalize the downtown, but it also will allow the hospital to offer better services for out-patients. Moughon said the hospital estimates it will cost at most $200,000 to renovate the building, and work could begin in August or September.

The building will house offices for the 21 new employees recently added at the hospital, he said, as well as offices for 20 employees who will be moved from the hospital.

Relocation of the out-patient clinic will give the hospital more room at the facility's main campus, Moughon said. The additional space created probably will be used for "improved family visitation areas," he said.

Moughon said the state hospital is pleased to find a building in the downtown area because it will make hospital services more accessible.

"The major impact is that we hope to reduce any deterrent to seeking out-patient care," he said. Meanwhile, volunteers with Big Spring Main Street, Inc., are particularly pleased that an empty building will be filled. Johnnie Lou Avery, who helped work out details for the deed transfer, noted that the Tubb Pocket Park used to be a burned-out building and the adjacent buildings that are now thriving had been empty. She said the same improvements can be made on other blocks, "and it's going to start with the Southwestern Bell Building."

Beverly Franklin, downtown coordinator, said the deed transfers required a "devoted group working very, very diligently to make things happen in downtown Big Spring."

Paul Roth, president of Bell's Texas division, gave everyone who worked on the year-long deed transfer process a "whole-hearted salute."

"I'm impressed with the vision I see unfolding here," he said. "The bricks and mortar that make up this building serve only as a foundation," and the community can breathe life into it.

Roth said Southwestern Bell previously has donated buildings to non-profit organizations. The process is long and difficult, he said, because of red tape and legal restrictions on such gifts.

"We've done this occasionally in communities," Roth said. "Typically our property is in the downtown area. This seemed to be an opportune time to donate a

Retired disabled vets feel cheated

Editor's note: This is the first of two stories about a controversial law affecting the payment of military disability and retirement pensions. Part two will be printed in Monday's Herald.

Some Big Spring veterans think the government should not deduct disability payments from their retirement pensions.

"I forfeit almost $1200 a month," said veteran Donald Sabaitis of Big Spring. "That's money that could be going into this community. I think it's money I deserve."

Disabled military retirees — men who served more than 20 years and left the service with some degree of disability — must waive the dollar amount of their retirement pay equal to the amount of disability pension they receive each month. For members of Uniformed Services Disabled Retirees, an Albuquerque-based group, that is not sufficient reward for years of work in the military.

Rep. Charles Stenholm has said there are no funds to remedy what he agrees is an unfair situation.

The situation is unjust, said Sabaitis, because retired civil service employees who once served in the military and receive disability can collect both forms of compensation.

Sabaitis said the separation from his family, the dangerous conditions of combat and the extent of skills and experience he achieved should entitle him to full retirement pay.

Title 38 of the U.S. Code, Annotated, sections 3104 and 3105, cover the issue of duplication of benefits. Section 3104 states, "Not more than one award of pension, compensation, ... regular, or reserve retirement pay ... shall be made concurrently to any person." The regulation became effective July 13, 1983.

Section 3105 says, "Any person who is receiving pay pursuant to any provision of law providing retired or retirement pay to persons in the Armed Forces ... and

Disabled
veterans

who would be eligible to receive pension or compensation under the laws administered by the Veterans Administration ... shall be entitled to receive such pension ... by filing ... a waiver of so much of his retired or retirement pay as is equal in amount to such pension or compensation."

Benefit reform bills are pending in both legislative houses.

In the House of Representatives, HR-303, which would allow for both forms of benefits to be collected, is under negotiations in the Veterans Affairs Committee. A Senate subcommittee is considering S-563, which offers a compromise solution.

S-563 would allow for a percentage trade-off of benefits. Disabled retirees would waive a percentage of retirement benefits according to the degree of disability. A retiree who is declared 40 percent disabled, for example, would waive an amount from his retirement pay equal to 60 percent of his disability payment. The dollar-for-dollar trade would be eliminated.

O.H. IVIE RESERVOIR — Colorado River Municipal Water District board director John L. Taylor talks with area resident Berva Taylor about the naming S.W. Freese Dam, formerly Stacy Dam, and O.H. Ivie Reservoir, following the official dedication ceremony Saturday. Berva is an organizer of a local effort to have the dam renamed Stacy, after a nearby community, and the reservoir named after Leaday, a small community buried under the lake. To Berva's right is her husband Dan. Sitting is Shirley Rankin, who grew up near Leaday.

Dam and reservoir formally dedicated

By PATRICK DRISCOLL

STACY — The O.H. Ivie Reservoir and S.W. Freese Dam were dedicated as planned Saturday afternoon, but not without a small emotional outburst by a group protesting the naming of the dam and reservoir.

But controversies are common to projects like this, speakers noted in their dedication speeches.

Issues involve the preservation of family heritage, history and memories, including names, as well as protecting endangered animal species such as the Concho River Valley Water Snake.

Almost everyone agrees, however, even people who have lost their land, that more water is needed in West Texas.

Ivie, manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, said that the 170 billion gallons of water to be backed up by the $63 million dam will enable West Texas' population of 500,000 to triple. Otherwise, growth in the area would be restricted.

Baking under heat that topped 90 degrees, the afternoon's principal speaker, U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, even felt confident enough to joke about the survival of the Concho River Valley Water Snake, an earlier im-

President inspects flood area

LIVINGSTON (AP) — President Bush flew over flooded areas north of Houston Saturday and met briefly with residents near Lake Livingston Dam before heading for a round of golf in a PGA Seniors Tour pro-am tournament.

"This is remarkable," Bush told Polk County Judge Wayne Baker after flying over low-lying areas near the Lake Livingston Dam. "I remember it was fairly dry here not too many years ago."

An estimated 300 people spent much of the morning waiting near the dam for Bush's arrival. The president shook hands with a number of onlookers and had his picture taken with several of them.

A cook at the Southland Park store near the dam said she was excited by her encounter with the president.

"I couldn't even sleep last night. I was so excited," Charlotte Crawford, 38, of nearby Shiloh Ridge, said. "They told us not to be telling people about him coming, but you just can't help it."

Bush hugged Ms. Crawford and offered to have his picture taken with her. Putting his arm around her, Bush said, "These Texas girls always take good pictures."

Southland Park owner Eugene Hanson said Bush's visit would bring hope to flood victims.

"This thing has affected so many thousands of people on both sides of the dam ... It's sort of the American way, having someone concerned about our future and the wellbeing of our families. I'm sure him coming here will give a little hope."

From the flood scene, Bush flew to the Deerwood Club in Kingwood, north of Houston to play in the Doug Sanders Kingwood Celebrity Classic. His partners included son George W. Bush, Sanders, and PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman.

"All you Houstonians here I would have but one request, keep on being the points of light, keep on

Showdown time on assault rifle ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate conservatives are pushing hard to erase a ban on assault rifles from an election-year crime package set for floor action this week.

But the bill's supporters have no intention of giving up without a fight.

"The Senate really faces a choice of do we side with the gun lobby or do we side with law enforcement," said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill. "Faced with that choice, I'm going to support law enforcement." Police groups have backed the bill's ban on sale and manufacture of nine types of semiautomatic assault weapons, while the National Rifle Association has lobbied to have the provision dropped.

The wide-ranging package also would authorize the death penalty for 30 federal crimes, including presidential assassination, and reshape the sometimes drawn-out post-appeals process under which convicts seek new trials.

Leader encourages self-help efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich Saturday was host of an hour-long television show designed to kick off a "citizen's involvement movement" across the country.

Sitting at the counter of a barbecue restaurant in Noonan, Ga., in his home state, Gingrich took views of the nationwide television hookup to several sites around the country, including Portland, Maine, Detroit and San Diego. "We hope today to establish a citizen's opportunity initiative," he said, "because all of us know that the bureaucratic welfare state and permissive attitudes have failed."

Gingrich had said in promoting Saturday's telethon that it was a "nonpartisan" undertaking. But the estimated $250,000 cost of the satellite hookup was picked up by GOPAC, a Republican political action committee.

First lady praised as role model

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Barbara Bush, who left college before graduating to marry George Bush, was given an honorary doctor of humanities degree Saturday and praised as "a role model for wives and mothers around the land."

Mrs. Bush urged graduates of St. Louis University to "set sail and take risks" as they leave school, reminding them that no decisions they make early in life are irrevocable.

"You need not have a game plan for life," she told them. "George Bush certainly didn't. I know. I was there."

Mrs. Bush also made an indirect peace offering to feminists at Wellesley College.

"Somewhere in this audience today may be a future president of the United States," Mrs. Bush told the 1,488 graduates.

LOS ANGELES — Friends and fans gather at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in the Hollywood Hills to pay tribute to entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. who died Wednesday of throat cancer. Hundreds of people overflowed outside the Hall of Liberty for the memorial service.

Talks conclude with chemical weapons deal

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III on Saturday concluded a "trailblazing agreement" with the Soviet Union to destroy chemical weapons and settle long-smoldering disputes over limits on nuclear-tipped cruise missiles.

"We have engaged in some heavy lifting," Baker said after four days of marathon talks that set the stage for this month's meeting between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. "The progress we have made here makes me optimistic that we will have a productive summit in Washington."

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze said the Moscow meetings gave him "confidence now that the treaty on strategic arms can be prepared for signature before the end of this year."

At the same time, a tired-looking Baker said before flying home that the two sides had made less progress than he hoped toward a treaty to reduce troops, tanks and other non-nuclear arms in Europe.

Bush, speaking with reporters in Texas, gave the talks a "mixed review." He said it would "take some give" by the Soviets for the summit to be a success.

The agreement on chemical weapons, to be signed during the May 30-June 3 summit, is designed to show the way for some 40 nations negotiating a global ban on chemical weapons production in Geneva.

"Very simply put, this U.S.-Soviet accord is a trailblazing agreement," Baker said.

Radicals call for Russian laws

MOSCOW (AP) — Radical reformers Saturday proposed amending the Russian republic's constitution to give its laws priority over the laws of the Soviet Union, in a direct assault on President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's authority.

The draft "sovereignty" declaration is similar to the ones that began the Baltic republics' drive for independence 18 months ago. If adopted, it could dramatically reduce the power of Gorbachev's government.

It would allow the Russian parliament to push through more radical reforms than Gorbachev wants in the republic, which contains 52 percent of the Soviet population and three-quarters of its land mass.

The author of the proposal, Social Democratic leader Oleg Rummyantsev, said in an interview he believed it could be approved, possibly as early as Monday.

Rummyantsev estimated there are 350 to 500 progressives among the 1,059 members of the newly elected Russian parliament who would vote for the proposal. The positions of several hundred more remained unclear.

Thousands gather for Passion Play

OBERRAMMERGAU, West Germany (AP) — Christians from around the world gathered Saturday for a new version of the centuries-old Passion Play about the suffering of Jesus, rewritten to cut out anti-Semitic passages and images.

Until now, the play depicted Jewish high priests with horns and obscured Jesus' identity as a Jew. In the new version, Jesus and the apostles wear traditional prayer shawls, and Jesus is frequently addressed as "Rabbi." "When we Christians put on an affair involving Jews — after all Jesus was a Jew and nearly all of the characters were Jewish — we have to do it with a great deal of caution and respect," said the play's 28-year-old head director, Christian Stueckl.

But a main question at Saturday's performance — a final dress rehearsal before the premiere on Sunday — was whether the changes went far enough.

Ceausescu's burial place disclosed

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Former Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, had lavish burial plans, but a government official said Saturday they were buried under false names in a public cemetery.

The ranking official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, confirmed rumors that the Ceausescus, who were toppled in the December revolution, were buried at the Ghencea cemetery in south Bucharest.

"He is on the left and she is on the right side of the path" leading to the cemetery's chapel, the official said.

Gravediggers took a group of Western reporters to the burial site and pointed out two plots overgrown with weeds.

Underground water monitoring questioned

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — In a move that could usher in a new era in underground water pollution monitoring, representatives of four area water districts and the Texas Railroad Commission met in Stanton Thursday to discuss some possible rule changes.

Bringing all underground water situations under a central authority such as the Texas Water Commission, providing additional manpower for the TRC to help detect and correct oil field pollution, and eliminating some rules that allow abandoned oil wells to remain unplugged were among the considerations discussed by about 20 people who attended.

"We requested that they (TRC officials) consider putting together a group of water district managers to discuss rule changes that perhaps need to be presented to the Legislature," said Mark Hoelscher, manager of the Martin County Underground Water Conservation District, who is leading the effort.

"I'd like to think that they're going to get us together and say we heard you and now we would like to have a planning session," said Hoelscher, who is also president of the Texas Association of UWCWD.

"That's strictly up to the railroad commission. They said they were committed to it and now it's time to prove it."

"Hopefully it could lead to a revamp to how the railroad commission looks at groundwater pollution," he said.

TRC Midland District Director Ron Strong, who was at the meeting, said TRC will work with area water districts as much as possible and that they have permission from officials in Austin to attend their meetings.

"Hopefully we came to some understandings," he said of the meeting. "I think it was a beneficial meeting. We agreed to meet more often and talk a lot more."

"We're all here for the same reason. We all live here and drink the same water. We don't want to see it get contaminated."

A legislative assistant of Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, who was also at the meeting, said that Sims' office is willing to work with water districts and the TRC to assist in any needed changes.

"We were just there to say, if you need some legislative changes and laws then we'd be glad to sit down and talk about it and sponsor any legislation that will help the water districts," assistant Shayne

Woodard said.

Hoelscher said they would like to see some changes which include eliminating a rule that exempts water wells from being regulated under Chapter 52 of the Texas Water Code if they are drilled for oil and gas drilling operations. "We would like to see all water wells under Chapter 52 rules," he said.

Other changes would be to disallow leaving abandoned oil wells, a potential source of saltwater pollution, unplugged indefinitely by filing a WX-1 form with the TRC and paying $100 annually. "Austin's taking a look at redoing that," Strong said. He said they may set a maximum time limit on that.

Hoelscher said they would also like to see manpower and hydrological expertise increased at the TRC.

Strong, however, defended the hydrological expertise of his district office. Though the state cannot keep up with wages of about $35,000 a year for hydrological engineering graduates, he said the TRC is "entirely capable" of handling hydrological problems.

"The people that we've got, they've been working at it a long time," he said. "We're petroleum geologists. That's not to say that we don't have the expertise or any schooling in it."

Hoelscher based his assessment, at least partly, on a November TRC report which said some underground water pollution in Knott was caused by fertilizers and or sewage waste and ended saying, "No further action appears necessary at this time."

Hoelscher says his own studies indicate that a nearby plugged oil well may be leaking saltwater and it should be reentered. A TWC study in February also determined that the oil well could be leaking and discounted the likelihood of fertilizer and sewage waste.

Strong agreed in January to reenter the well as an insurance measure but a lack of state plugging funds, due to a blowout in Lavaca County earlier this year, had delayed entering the well, which was not considered a top priority, and checking it for leaks.

However, some funds have recently become available and a decision will soon be made by TRC state commissioners to reenter the well, probably at a May 28 meeting, he said. The reentering job would begin within 14 days after a bid is accepted.

"I talked to Austin today, my bosses, they said there wouldn't be any problem," Strong said Thursday.

Profitable walk

BIG SPRING — Robert Hayes, left, and Harold Aberegg hold their $1,000 donation to the March of Dimes Walk America. Hays and Aberegg, as well as Monette Rowden, each earned $500 for March of Dimes during the May 12 walk-a-thon. About 200 participants earned more than $7,500 during Walk America. Shari Colvin won a gold watch for organizing her team, First National Bank employees, to raise the most money per person.

Researchers: Asteroid may have struck Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — An asteroid many scientists believe ended the dinosaurs' reign on Earth 66 million years ago may have struck just off the western tip of Cuba, say two U.S. researchers.

If they can overcome diplomatic hurdles caused by the U.S. economic embargo, Bruce Bohor of the U.S. Geological Survey in Denver and geophysicist Russell Seitz, a former Harvard visiting scholar, want to go to the island to confirm their theory.

"The very presence of Cuba itself may be due to the asteroid," Bohor said in a telephone interview last week. "The curved tip of western Cuban may be the crater rim, and the Isle of Pines could be the central uplift," or peak.

Clues pointing to a Caribbean landfall were assembled slowly in the decade since scientists first advanced the idea of a catastrophic end to the dinosaurs. Although the asteroid theory is not universally accepted — some paleontologists blame climate changes or disease for the dinosaurs' extinction — it now has widespread support.

The theory requires an asteroid about 6 miles in diameter gouging out a crater up to 150 miles wide. The resulting dust cloud, or perhaps impact-spawned fires, volcanic activity, climatic shifts and other factors, could have killed the giant reptiles directly or choked off their food supply.

"But there was a tough time accepting this because there was no crater to relate it to — so we had to find a crater," Bohor said. "The possibility was that it hit in the ocean, but that was hard to determine."

Researchers, however, began to notice what is in effect a geological directional arrow pointing to somewhere near North America.

A study by Arizona researchers Alan Holdebrand and William Boynton, published in Friday's Science magazine, agrees about the general area of the strike, somewhere in the Caribbean. They believe the asteroid fell more to the south of what is now Cuba, however — closer to Colombia.

Bohor and Seitz, who explained their theory in the April 12 edition of Nature, say without a close inspection of the Cuban site, no one can be sure. And, they say, all geologists are basing their findings on the same data.

All around the world, a layer of iridium, an element found in asteroids, has been found at about the 66-million-year level in geological formations. Also found at the same level are "shocked" mineral grains — microscopic quartz crystals apparently blown out of the Earth's crust by a massive impact and carried around the world by winds.

But something interesting happens to those crystals in North America, says Seitz.

From Colorado south, the crystals get bigger — so big they could not have been blown there, but would had to have been ejected directly by the force of impact.

Then a team examining what was thought to be a volcanic site in Haiti, just east of Cuba, made an intriguing find — similar crystals that appeared to come from an asteroid impact. But the crystals were 10 times bigger than any previously found and were in a layer 25 times thicker.

"It set off a bell that we were getting closer to the crater," Bohor says.

Bohor and Seitz then began poring over geological data from the Caribbean, and came upon old references to beds of large, exotic boulders in Cuba.

Scientific studies in Cuba since Fidel Castro took power in 1959 have been conducted primarily by Eastern bloc experts. In 1986, Polish geologist Andrej Psczolkowski published a study of half-mile sized boulders found on the sea floor off the Cuban coast. From the patterns of the rocks, he determined they must have been hurled there, rather than simply pushed by slow geological movement, as earlier researchers theorized.

If the asteroid did strike near Cuba, even larger rocks must lie either on the island or just offshore, rocks as large as 3 miles wide, they believe.

As geologists, Bohor and Seitz take no position on whether an asteroid killed off the dinosaurs, or even if this impact might be a candidate. Their goal, they say, is simply to determine if there is an impact just south of Cuba's western tip 66 million years ago.

Knowing where the asteroid hit could help solve questions about "nuclear winter," acid rain, previously unexplained evolutionary patterns and other scientific controversies.

Of most immediate concern, it could give insight into confusing geological plate movements in the Caribbean, they note. Examining the crater could perhaps help determine when and where to expect earthquakes.

pediment which had threatened the dam's construction. It now appears that the snake will survive the lake's rising waters, according to reports.

Stenholm referred to a comment he had heard from a state representative who said that the only reason the snake still exists was because he was a poor shot with a B.B. gun as a youngster growing up in the area. Then towards the end of his speech, Stenholm pointed behind him towards the lake and said, "I hope he's enjoying his swimming pool. I suspect he is."

"Controversy has followed this reservoir and this dam and every other water development in this state and country," he said. "I predict controversy will follow us for the rest of our dams and lives."

As Stenholm was ending his speech, some of a group of about a dozen protesters holding signs and standing off to the side burst out shouting. One yelled, "How many of ya' lost land sitting up there? How many of ya'?"

People in the group, like organizer Berva Taylor and her husband Dan, are not protesting the dam's construction. They believe the naming of it ignores the history of the area, such as the tiny town of Leaday that is buried beneath the lake and another small community called Stacy. The Stacy community was named after an area family and was the name by which the dam was known since construction began in April 1987, until December.

Freese, the dam's engineer, and Ivie are not from the area and, except for the dam, have nothing to do with the area, protesters say. A typical sign read, "Stacy Dam and Leaday Lake forever." The group has so far collected 3,196 signatures since January to be presented to the state Legislature.

Berva plans to attend the next board meeting of the CRMWD. "The naming of this dam is like rubbing salt in an open wound," she said.

"I just want Leaday to be remembered. That's Leaday land," said 27-year-old Shirley Rankin, who grew up near the one-store and post office community. Her grandmother's house was burned and bulldozed. "They act like Leaday never existed," she said.

"What we really need for development in the area out there is water," said David Currie, who lost 73 acres of land to the lake and who signed the petition. "I just wish there was a little sensitivity as far as naming and understanding people's emotions."

After his talk, Stenholm said he understands the way people feel but stands by the decisions to name the dam and reservoir. "It's particularly a sentimentally bad day for some," he said. "I can understand that."

However, he said, "My position is the board of directors has acted in a legal and appropriate manner."

Other speakers at the dedication included John E. Birdwell of the Texas Water Commission, the agency which had to approve the dam and lake. Also speaking was Ray Stoker Jr. of the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission, which constructed a nearby $32 million bridge and three miles of highway.

Cosmonauts awaiting ladder for repair job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two cosmonauts aboard the Soviet space station Mir are awaiting delivery of a ladder so they can repair the space ship that would speed them back to Earth in case of an emergency.

The ladder is to be carried aloft aboard an unmanned resupply craft that is scheduled for launch on June 1, the magazine Aviation Week and Space Technology says in its May 21 issue.

The Soviets had disclosed previously that the Soyuz TM-9 spacecraft was damaged, apparently when it was launched Feb. 11 en route to the Mir with cosmonauts Anatoli Solovyev and Aleksandr Balandin. Three of the ship's eight thermal blankets came loose.

"This is a situation which generally requires attention, of course, but it probably is not all that serious," one of the cosmonauts said in a three-minute excerpt carried on Soviet radio on March 9. He said he and his companion were prepared for a space walk.

The Soviets use small Soyuz capsules to transport cosmonauts to and from the space station. Sometimes the crews will ride their own Soyuz back to Earth, at other times a crew that has been aboard the Mir will travel in a Soyuz brought by other cosmonauts. The space station has several docking ports.

Aviation Week interviewed cosmonaut Alexander A. Serebrov, who recently returned from the Mir, where he photographed the damaged Soyuz TM-9 vehicle from his own TM-8 spacecraft.

The pictures show large thermal blankets on the outside of the TM-9 have been ripped out of place. The magazine said they are blocking key sensors needed to align the spacecraft properly for re-entry to Earth's atmosphere.

In addition, the vehicle's metal skin has been exposed to space, degrading its ability to control temperature inside.

"The Soyuz has become cold, causing a buildup of water condensation in the vehicle," Aviation Week said. It quoted Serebrov as saying engineers are concerned that the condensation could cause an electrical malfunction during re-entry.

Some repair materials were aboard an unmanned resupply vehicle, Progress 42, which docked with Mir on May 8. The ladder is expected to arrive aboard an unmanned Kristall module.

O.H. IVIE RESERVOIR — About 21,000 acre-feet of water (32 vertical feet) have filled O.H. Ivie Reservoir, top photo, since the gates on S.W. Freese Dam closed more than a month ago. A Colorado River Municipal Water District official said 28,000 more acre-feet of water is needed before it can be used for recreational purposes. It will take about eight years for the reservoir to completely fill. U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, center photo, arms outstretched, stands between O.H. Ivie, on his right, and S.W. Freese during the unveiling of a plaque naming the reservoir and dam during Saturday's official dedication ceremony. Ivie is manager of the CRMWD. Freese is the engineer who oversaw construction of the dam. On the right is Texas Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo. A group of people protesting the renaming of the reservoir and dam held signs and expressed their displeasure during the ceremony. The group wants the reservoir named after Leaday, a small community buried under the water, and the dam named after Stacy, another nearby community.

The cheers and jeers of the year

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random thoughts while reflecting on cap-and-gown time:

When area sports nuts look back on the 1989-90 school year, they might want to preserve it under glass, because it really was one for the books.

I don't know if it was coincidence, positive karma, good luck, the planets being in the proper alignment or whatever, but it seemed like good things came in bunches this sports year.

Granted, there were some down sides to the sports year, also, so here are a few of the good, bad and ugly things I remember as we settle down for the summer:

Starting off with the obvious, I doubt anyone will soon forget the '89 Steer football team. I only attended two games in a professional capacity, but those two were prime examples of the best and worst of times.

The best, without a doubt, was the 20-19 quarterfinal playoff win over Monahans.

The thing I'll most remember about the game is afterward, when the players — and most of the fans — lingered on the field and in the stands.

It was if everybody was scared to leave for fear the magic of the moment would disappear. I know, because I was feeling the same thing.

There were a lot of goofy smiles on people's faces that day.

Unfortunately, those goofy smiles disappeared in a hurry the next week, in a day that will forever be known as the Black Day at Bedford.

The Steers got pummeled by an obviously superior Chapel Hill team that day and, if nothing else, I learned that there's nothing colder than standing on the losing sideline in freezing weather.

But, as far as memories go, I think I'll put this one on the back shelf, and concentrate instead on that wonderful afternoon in Midland a week before.

I'd rather not think of the frostbite.

Basketball season had more than its share of nice memories, including when the Howard College Hawks reached the top spot in the nation back in January. It didn't last all that long, but it sure was sweet.

The nicest recollection I have of basketball season, however, is when the Forsan Buffalo-Queens proved yours truly absolutely wrong and won the district championship.

With no starter above 5-foot-6, and a history of losing for the past few years, few, including myself, didn't give these young ladies much of a chance.

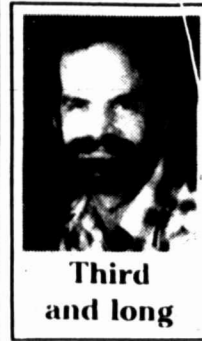

So, of course, they won district, then their first-round playoff game before finally packing it in for the season. They were the perfect example of the "little guys" — in this case "little girls" — who defied a lot of odds and came out on top.

As for bad memories, the absolute worst for me was when I covered the Coahoma-Colorado City girls' game in February. Nothing against either team or the officials, mind you, but it seemed at times the three were conspiring to see just how long a basketball game could last.

There was something like 54 fouls in that game, and to top everything off, a C-City player was ejected in the third quarter. I think everybody was relieved when the marathon finally ended.

There's several more memories, of course, but they'll have to wait for another day. But to the Hawks, Steers, Lady Hawks, Lady Steers, etc., thanks for making the year so interesting.

Let's do it again next year, OK?

No Triple Crown for Unbridled

BALTIMORE (AP) — Summer Squall bid a rousing farewell to the Triple Crown series with a victory in the Preakness on Saturday.

The Kentucky Derby runner-up took the lead just past the eighth pole from Derby winner Unbridled and covered the mile-and-one-sixteenths distance in 1:53 3/5 on a fast track at Pimlico.

Summer Squall's owner and trainer have said the colt would now rest until the fall and skip the June 9 Belmont Stakes, the Triple Crown finale.

Unbridled made a big move on the final turn, as he did in the Derby, and he got the lead in the upper stretch. This time, however, Summer Squall, ridden by Pat Day, would not be denied and he drew away for a clear victory over the favorite.

Mister Frisky, the beaten Derby favorite who was eighth in that race, finished third on this pleasant sunny afternoon, while longshot Music Prospector was fourth in the field of nine 3-year-olds.

Summer Squall's official winning margin was 2 1/2 lengths. Unbridled was nine lengths ahead of Mister Frisky, whose edge-over Music Prospector was a half-length.

Since Summer Squall is not going to the Belmont, Unbridled will earn a $1 million bonus for points earned in the Triple Crown series if he simply starts that race. The colt earned five points for his victory in the Derby and three for being second on Saturday, and that total cannot be overcome.

Summer Squall, owned by a 28-person partnership managed by Dogwood Stable, returned $6.80, $3 and $2.60. Unbridled, owned by 92-year-old Francis A. Genter and ridden by Craig Perret, paid $3 and $2.80. Jose and Marta Hernandez's Mister Frisky, ridden by Gary Stevens, was $3.40 to show.

Summer Squall's time was 1-57 of a second off the stakes record set by Tank's Prospect in 1985. Gate Dancer also won in 1:53 3/5 in 1984.

Completing the order of finish were Fighting Notion, Land Rush, Kentucky Jazz, Baron de Vaux and Summer Squall had caused a stir Friday when a trickle of blood was noticed coming out of one nostril after a gallop. The horse bled during a workout in Florida this spring and has raced on the diuretic Lasix for all five of his races. He did not work under Lasix on Friday.

Before the race, Cot Campbell, president of Dogwood Stable, said, "Based on our history of the horse, it would not affect his performance Saturday." He knew what he was talking about.

Campbell and trainer Neal Howard have said that they would

San Antonio blows late seven point lead

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The team that wouldn't fold finally won the series that wouldn't end. And the Portland Trail Blazers did it with a play that most players wouldn't make.

The Blazers, aided by a crucial breakaway foul call, beat the San Antonio Spurs 108-105 in overtime of Game 7 Saturday to reach the Western Conference finals for the first time since their championship season 13 years ago.

"The guys got together and really pulled it out," Portland's Clyde Drexler said. "It was a gutsy win. It was a true test of character. You've got to keep the faith, keep persevering and keep doing the things that got you here."

The Blazers, who open their conference final against Phoenix Monday night in Portland, trailed by seven points with 2 1/2 minutes left in regulation Saturday before fighting back to force overtime.

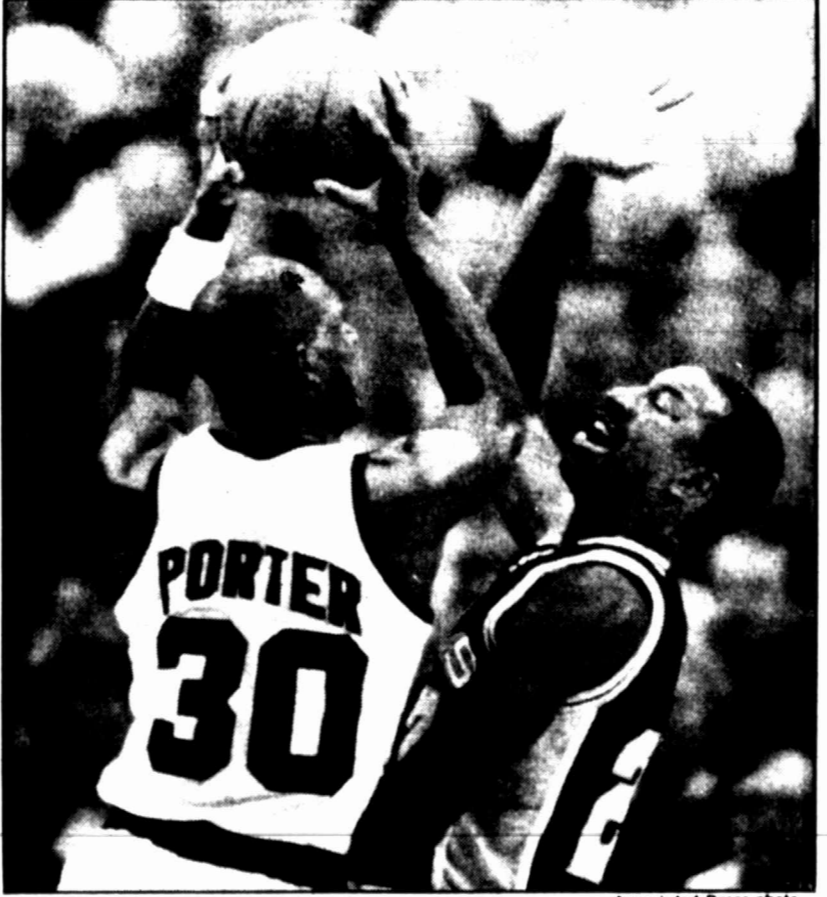

With the score tied 103-103 and less than 30 seconds remaining in overtime, Portland's Jerome Kersey came up with the big play.

San Antonio was working for the go-ahead basket when Rod Strickland's no-look pass headed out of bounds on the Spurs' baseline.

Most players would have let the ball go out of bounds, but Kersey saved it and threw an off-balance length-of-the-court pass to Clyde Drexler, who was fouled from behind by Strickland with 26.2 seconds to go.

"That's Jerome Kersey," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "Jerome Kersey makes more hustle plays than anybody in this league. He never surprises me when he makes a play like that."

Drexler made the two free throws and Portland got the ball out of bounds because it was ruled a breakaway foul. Drexler was fouled again, sank both free throws to make it 107-103 with 16.4 seconds remaining and the Spurs couldn't catch up.

Kersey said he decided to go for Strickland's errant pass because he saw San Antonio's Willie Anderson make a move toward it.

"When I first saw the ball I thought about letting it go," Kersey said. "Then I saw Willie make a step toward the ball and I thought, 'I better do something here because you never know.'"

"I just threw it out and Clyde with his great speed tracked it down."

Terry Cummings of the Spurs made two free throws with 9.1

Strange makes up three stroke deficit

FORT WORTH (AP) — Pars became golden in gusty, tricky winds and Curtis Strange was in his element.

"Nine pars is not too bad at Colonial," Strange mused Saturday, after tying Ben Crenshaw for the 54-hole lead in the Colonial golf tournament.

Strange, who seems to play his best under golf's most demanding scoring conditions, scored regulation figures on all the homecoming holes in a 1-under-par 69 that made up a three-shot deficit.

Strange has won the last two U.S. Opens — traditionally the most severe test in the game — with 2-under-par totals. He shared the lead at 206, 4-under-par.

But, he said, he didn't even want to consider what a victory would mean to him at this point, a month away from his attempt to become the first player in 75 years to win a third consecutive U.S. Open.

Crenshaw, a non-winner since the fall of 1988, needed only a 2-over-par 72 to retain a piece of the lead he shared Friday with Russ Cochran, winless in six seasons on the PGA Tour.

Now, Crenshaw is tied with a much more formidable figure. While the attention will be focused on the "name" players tied for the lead, at least nine others are within striking distance.

Cochran, one of the few left-handers on the Tour, former Colonial winner Corey Pavin and Nick Price were one stroke back at 207.

Price closed up with a 67, Pavin matched par 70 and Cochran dropped out of the lead with a 73.

FORT WORTH — Ben Crenshaw of Austin drops his putter on the 18th green after his putt stopped short on the edge of the cup.

Scott Hoch and John Huston were two back of the leaders at 208. Hoch had a 68 and Huston a 72.

John Mahaffey and Stan Utley were at 209, the only others to break par after three rounds. Utley had a 69 in winds that gusted to 30 mph, and Mahaffey a 70.

At par 210, PGA champion Payne Stewart was only four back. Stewart, who has finished first and second in his last two starts, had a 68.

Arkansas, Houston claim SWC crowns

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Houston's Leroy Burrell ran the fastest time ever under all conditions with a wind-aided 19.61 in the 200 meters and he also won the 100 meters in a wind-aided 9.94 at the Southwest Conference track meet Saturday.

Arkansas scored heavily in the distance events and won its third straight men's team title and the Houston Cougars won the women's division.

straight titles.

Burrell surpassed the world record of 19.72 by Italy's Pietro Mennea in 1979 but the 4-meters-per-second wind was well over the 2.0 mps allowable for world records.

Burrell caught Texas A&M's Andre Cason with about 40 meters left in the 100 meters and hit the tape at 9.94 with a 2.8-meters-per-second wind.

Cason was second at 10.08 and Texas Christian's Jon Drummond was third at 10.17.

"I just felt so much power blowing me down the straightaway," Burrell said. "I put so much into the sprints that I ran out of energy in the long jump."

Burrell had wanted to win four events at the meet but finished fourth in the long jump and the Cougar 400-meter relay team did not finish the race.

"It's tough when you actually get out there and try to do it," Burrell said. "I didn't anticipate running out of energy. But I made history in one sense. The long jump will come later."

Burrell's performance overshadowed the women's team race that came down to the final event, the long jump, with Houston and Rice tied for the lead.

Houston captured the women's title when jumper

Cynthia Jackson, on her final jump, moved up from seventh to sixth place to give the Cougars the victory.

Houston won with 138 points and Rice had 135, followed by Arkansas with 121, Texas 114, Baylor 85, Texas A&M 65, Southern Methodist, 38, Texas Christian, 29 and Texas Tech 15.

Arkansas' men moved into the team lead when they earned 24 points in the 1500

Hawks lose first game in tourney

BRENHAM — After rain caused Friday's games to be postponed, the Howard College Hawks dropped their first game of the state tournament, losing to Laredo Junior College 11-7 Saturday afternoon.

Thursday, Howard beat Panola by the same score.

Howard had a hard time containing the Laredo bats. Starter Curt Schmidt started and was lifted in the third inning for Tom Leahy. Leahy didn't make it through the inning, and Steve Walter relieved him. The horrible third inning was over, Howard trailed 11-5. Laredo's Luis Gonzales hit a three-run homer in the first inning; and Miguel Flores hit a two-run shot in the third.

First baseman Franklyn Johnson swung the big bat for Howard, hitting a two-run homer in the third inning, and a solo shot in the sixth inning.

Howard plays Hill College today at 12 noon. The loser of the game will be eliminated. If Howard wins, it will play the winner of the Panola-McLennan Community College game later in the day.

Howard falls to 47-13-1, and Laredo goes to 44-20.

Western Sportsman shoot today

BIG SPRING — The Western Sportsman Club will have a combination 22 pistol 22 rifle match Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

This is a fun shoot for all ages. The club is located on Highway 176 (Andrews Highway).

CGA hosting golf tournament Sunday

BIG SPRING — The Chicano Golf Association is hosting a benefit golf tournament for Lucy Dominguez this Sunday at Cornanche Trail Golf Course.

This is a four man scramble format and registration is from 10 a.m. until 12 noon. After that the golf course is open. The tournament is open to the public, and hamburgers and hot dogs will be served after the tournament.

For more information call 263-7271.

HC hoop camps getting closer

BIG SPRING — The Howard College Boys and Girls Basketball Camps 1990 are accepting applications for three summer camps.

A boys overnight/day camp is set for June 4-8, a girls overnight/day camp is set for June 25-29, and a boys day camp is set for July 23-27. The camps will be held in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, and cost for each session is $85 for day campers and $175 for overnight campers. A $25 deposit is required, with the remaining amount due upon registration.

Applications should include camper's name, address, city, school, phone number, age, roommate preference and a parent's signature. They can be sent to: Howard College, Basketball Camps, 1001 Birdwell Lane, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Anyone needing more information can call 264-5040.

Registration will be at 9 a.m. on the first Monday of the camp. Departure will be Friday afternoon after the camp demonstration and all-star games, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Whitaker retains lightweight crown

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Pernell Whitaker moved and jabbed his way to a unanimous 12-round decision over a relentless Azumah Nelson Saturday night to retain his lightweight titles against the super featherweight champion.

Whitaker frustrated the onrushing Nelson with a deadly effective jab, using it to pile up points and win on the scorecards of each of the three ringside judges.

There were no knockdowns and neither fighter ever appeared hurt in the fight, which saw Whitaker spend most of his time circling backwards and throwing jabs to fend off the onrushing tactics of the challenger.

Gross hits and pitches Expos past SF Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kevin Gross retired the first 18 batters and contributed a run-scoring double Saturday as the Montreal Expos beat the San Francisco Giants 7-4, ending a four-game losing streak.

Gross (5-2) lost his perfect game when he walked Brett Butler to start the seventh inning. One out later, Will Clark broke up the no-hitter with a controversial single.

On Gross' first pitch, Clark hit a roller that appeared fair and was fielded by first baseman Andres Galarraga, but umpire Greg Bonin called it foul. Clark singled cleanly to right field on the next pitch.

NL

Gross then walked Kevin Mitchell and Kevin Bass hit a two-run double. Gross, who struck out six, was relieved by Tim Burke.

Burke gave up an RBI grounder to Matt Williams and finished for his ninth save, stopping the Giants' four-game winning streak. San Francisco got a run in the ninth on Bass' RBI grounder.

The Expos scored three runs in the second against Bob Knepper (2-2). Galarraga led off with single, Marquis Grissom walked with one out and Knepper committed consecutive balks. Mike Fitzgerald and Gross followed with RBI doubles.

Tim Lincecum, who had three hits, singled in the third, took two bases on Knepper's wild pitch and scored on Galarraga's groundout for a 4-0 lead. Fitzgerald's single, Spike Owen's double and Otis Nixon's sacrifice fly scored a run in the fourth.

The Expos scored again in the seventh on a triple by Raines and a single by Galarraga and added a run in the ninth on Raines' RBI single.

Reds 4, Cardinals 0
CINCINNATI (AP) — Jack Armstrong pitched a four-hitter to become the major leagues' second seven-game winner and Rolando Roomes hit a three-run homer as the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 Saturday night.

Armstrong (7-1) has won seven of his eight starts to match Frank Viola of the New York Mets for most wins. It was Armstrong's first major league complete game but the third start this year in which he hasn't allowed a run.

The Cardinals' only hits were Willie McGee's infield single in the first, Vince Coleman's single in the sixth and two-out singles by Terry Pendleton and Milt Thompson in the ninth. Armstrong struck out three and walked two.

The Reds (25-8) are off to their best start this century and have the best record in the majors. They've won 12 of their last 15 games.

Cincinnati has won six of seven from St. Louis, and haven't allowed the Cardinals a run in their last 19 innings. St. Louis has scored just nine runs in seven games with the Reds this season.

John Tudor (4-2) has lost two of his last three starts after opening the season with four straight wins. In his previous start against San Diego, the left-hander gave up five runs in 1-3 innings, prompting him to ruminate about retirement.

Tudor's early innings Saturday were a turnaround — he allowed just two hits over four shutout innings. But things came apart for him in the fifth.

Joe Oliver opened the inning by reaching on shortstop Ozzie Smith's throwing error. Paul O'Neill then singled to right — his second hit off Tudor — and Roomes hit his second homer of the season into the second deck in left field.

They were the first runs Tudor has allowed in four road starts this season.

Tudor allowed six hits in six innings, striking out three and walking one.

The Reds added a run in the eighth off Tom Niedenfuer on Todd Benzing's sacrifice fly.

Rangers stop losing skid

BALTIMORE (AP) — Charlie Hough retired 18 of the first 19 Baltimore batters, Pete Incaviglia homered and Rafael Palmeiro drove in two runs as the Texas Rangers beat the Orioles 5-3 Saturday night to snap a five-game losing streak.

The only baserunner against Hough (4-2) in the first six innings was Mickey Tettleton, who singled with two out in the second. Hough retired the next 13 batters before Steve Finley opened the seventh with a double.

Hough held Baltimore to four hits in eight innings. He lost his shutout bid when Tettleton hit a three-run homer in the seventh. After Finley's double, Cal Ripken was hit by a pitch. Hough retired the next two batters before Tettleton hit a 3-0 pitch for his second home run of the season.

Jeff Russell pitched a hitless ninth for his sixth save.

Red Sox 13, Twins 1
BOSTON (AP) — Tom Brunansky went 5-for-5, hit two homers and drove in a career-high seven runs and the Boston Red Sox got a season-high 20 hits in routing the Minnesota Twins.

Brunansky, acquired from St. Louis for Lee Smith on May 4, also doubled in his first five-hit game. The Red Sox roughed up Allan Anderson (2-5) and three relievers, including outfielder John Moses, who gave up a run on two hits in the eighth.

Roger Clemens (6-2) improved to 11-1 lifetime against the Twins. He allowed one run on five hits in seven innings and sent Minnesota to its second loss in seven games.

Angels 11, Blue Jays 9
TORONTO (AP) — Dave Winfield, Devon White, Dante Bichette and Wally Joyner each homered, powering the California Angels past Toronto and sending the Blue Jays to their fifth straight loss.

seconds to play to make it 107-105. Then Drexler hit one of two foul shots with 7.3 seconds remaining, giving San Antonio a chance at a game-tying 3-point shot.

But Terry Porter, who finished with 36 points and nine assists, stole Reggie Williams' inbound pass to preserve the victory.

It was the second overtime game in the series. The Blazers won Game 5, 138-132, in double overtime in Portland.

"I think we were the better team," San Antonio coach Larry Brown said. "But it was a great, competitive series between two teams most people don't know much about and I was thrilled to be part of it."

"Our shot selection wasn't the best in the last part of regulation and overtime and we paid for it," Brown said. "We bailed Portland out with a lot of fadeaway jumpers. But our young kids learned a lot."

The home team won every game in the series. San Antonio center David Robinson said the loud Portland crowd was a big advantage for the Blazers Saturday.

"It helped them a lot," Robinson said. "The biggest thing they had going for them was their emotion."

Drexler 22 points, 13 rebounds and eight assists for Portland, while Kersey had 21 points and 15 rebounds. Buck Williams added 12 points and 15 rebounds for the Blazers.

Drexler, who made only three of his first 13 shots, scored 16 points in the fourth quarter and overtime.

"Even on nights when I'm struggling, Coach Adelman keeps calling my play and my teammates keep giving me the ball," Drexler said. "Sooner or later you've got to do something good."

Day, who had ridden Unbridled to victory in the Florida Derby, but then decided that he would ride Summer Squall in the Triple Crown races.

"I was confident in my choice and I'm still confident," Day said before the race. "I still wouldn't trade places with Craig."

Carl Nafzger, the trainer of Unbridled, has said his colt would go to the Belmont despite racing on Lasix. He also said Day might have been happy to change places with Perret if he hadn't gotten through on the rail Saturday.

"Everything was going right," Nafzger said. "It looked like everything was unfolding for us."

It looked for a moment like a replay of the Derby stretch run. Then, flash — Summer Squall flew by on the inside.

"Pat went inside," Nafzger said. "If he doesn't get through, he looks like a dummy."

This time, Day, who has failed to win in eight tries at the Derby, looked like a winner for the second time in four starts in the Preakness.

Perret paid tribute to the smallish Summer Squall, who stands only 15.3 hands and weighs about 950 pounds.

"Summer Squall, the little guy that he is, is a powerhouse," Perret said. "But I was delighted with the way my horse ran. Summer Squall ran his big race."

"This is a very courageous horse," Day said. "When the hole opened up, he went for it, and the race was virtually over at that point."

Summer Squall's third victory in five starts this year, and eighth triumph in 10 career races, was worth $445,900 from a purse of $686,000, and boosted his earnings to $1,330,978.

INDIANAPOLIS — The car of Indianapolis 500 driver Rich Vogler hits the outside of the third turn wall during a disqualification attempt at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday. Vogler, of Indianapolis was unhurt in the mishap.

More Indy controversy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Two things you can count on at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway: Some cars will go faster and some car owners will cry foul.

Speeds are up again this year, and sure enough, there's a controversy that has simmered since practice began for the May 27 Indianapolis 500. This time, it involves aerodynamic changes, made ostensibly for safety but seeming instead to have made the cars less stable than they were.

The older cars have been affected more by the change, but even Michael Andretti, who drives a 1990 Lola, feels the cars "are definitely less stable in the way they feel to the driver. We're using a lot more road and they don't have the grip they had last year."

"Last year, we were getting everything out of the car and there wasn't anything left," Andretti said. "This year, you can trim 'em out more. They have actually increased the cornering speed and we're still going flat through the corners. I don't think they came up with a good (rules) package."

The new rules reduced downforce by cutting the under-car aerodynamics. The rules-makers did that by narrowing by two inches the exit area of the tunnels beneath the car.

That design was built into the 1990 cars, but the 1989 and older cars were made to conform to the new rule either through a $30,000 tunnel reconstruction or a special diffuser sleeve available from the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club.

Each of the nine crashes since practice opened May 5 at the speedway have involved 1987, 1988 or 1989 Lolas, and all have been cars using the diffuser.

Some of the owners of those cars and other pre-1990 Lolas petitioned USAC to allow them to remove the diffuser, but were refused on the basis that some of the teams in the same position have not had the same problem.

Bruce Ashmore, the designer for Lola in England and a member of the Newman-Haas team that entered cars for Andretti and his father, Mario, said, "The problem is that the whole (rules) package was recommended by the rules committee didn't get implemented into this year's cars. There was supposed to be a small (rear) wing. That didn't get done."

Instead, both USAC and Championship Auto Racing Teams, which sanctions the rest of the Indy-car series, opted to use last year's bigger rear wing, which produces more downforce.

Tony Cicale, the engineer for Newman-Haas, said, "People tend to dwell on slowing the cars down, but the rules committee was most interested in making the cars safer."

He said the key changes have been to move the driver farther back in the car to protect his feet upon impact and move his head out of the pivot area of the right-front tire, as well as making the overall car safer in a crash.

"The cars are definitely safer, but all of those things had to be put into a package which didn't totally obsolete older cars," Cicale said. "There has to be a tradeoff. You don't get something for nothing."

Masters of lacrosse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — If Paul and Gary Gait played basketball, they'd be mentioned in the same breath as Michael Jordan and Magic Johnson.

If hockey was their sport, Wayne Gretzky and Mario Lemieux would come to mind.

But the Canadian-born twins play lacrosse — better than anyone who has come before them, say opponents and observers — and their glorious careers are fast approaching a dead end.

"I'm not interested in basketball, but I can tell you about Michael Jordan," said Jamie Hunt, editor of Lacrosse magazine. "People vaguely familiar with lacrosse can tell you about the Gait twins."

Especially after the wave of publicity the seniors have received as they close their record-setting career while Syracuse University goes for its third consecutive national championship.

The Gaits' extraordinary story, as far as lacrosse is concerned, will end at the latest on Memorial Day, when the 1990 NCAA championship game is played. There is no professional league in a sport that's traditionally been the province of Eastern high schools and colleges.

"There's no tomorrow for them," agreed Syracuse Coach Roy Simmons Jr.

Hunt added, "It's kind of depressing. They're at the top of their game and about to fade into obscurity."

But the 6-foot-2, 200-pound identical twins show no resentment that million-dollar contracts, lucrative endorsements and continued fame aren't in their futures.

"It's a dead end, but the game wouldn't be the same if there was a professional league and lots of money involved," said Paul, who is Syracuse's leading scorer with 24 goals and 27 assists and needs just two points to reach the 200-point mark for his career.

"It would be too much like a job," Paul added. "And there are other ways to make money."

"You play lacrosse just for fun," echoed Gary, who has 49 points this season and is likely to finish as the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association's second-leading goal scorer.

"You play for yourself and the team. If there was a pro league with lots of money, there'd be competition among the players on the same team. It would be a selfish game. No, it wouldn't even be a game anymore."

"Besides, if we'd been interested in money and professional leagues, we would have played another sport. Right?," said Gary.

"What's really great is that through what they've done on and off the field, lacrosse has caught the attention of more people, especially kids. More people are playing lacrosse as a result of the things they've done," — Jamie Hunt, Editor of Lacrosse Magazine.

goals and 19 assists.

Their scoring output has tailed off the last two seasons, but only because the Orangemen are loaded with talent and opposing coaches have become obsessed with not letting the scorer.

"You play for yourself and the team. If there was a pro league with lots of money, there'd be competition among the players on the same team. It would be a selfish game. No, it wouldn't even be a game anymore."

"Besides, if we'd been interested in money and professional leagues, we would have played another sport. Right?," said Gary.

The Gaits' began drawing attention soon after their arrival at Syracuse four years ago. Raised playing indoor box lacrosse in Brentwood Bay, British Columbia, they quickly made the transition to field lacrosse, which is played on a larger field with more players.

Field lacrosse is similar to ice hockey played on a football-sized field. Players catch, carry and shoot a baseball-sized ball with netted sticks.

As a freshman, Gary made honorable mention All-America and was selected for the NCAA All-Tournament team after scoring 11 goals in two games.

By their sophomore year, the Gaits' had mastered the more wide-open style of field lacrosse and the impact was sudden and significant.

Gary was named National Player of the Year after scoring an NCAA season record 70 goals. Paul earned first-team All-America honors with 47

Earnhardt seeking repeat

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Brushing aside thoughts of the $200,000 winner's prize, Dale Earnhardt talked about his desire to become the first two-time winner of The Winston.

"Being the first two-time winner would be special," said Earnhardt, who won the pole Saturday with a top qualifying speed of 134.250 mph for three laps, including a pit stop for right-side tires.

Another former winner, Darrell Waltrip, who qualified third at 132.763 mph, also has a lot of incentive in Sunday's 105-mile race at Charlotte Motor Speedway. He also wants a victory after winning the race the first time it was held in 1985.

"This thing may not last 30 years," said Waltrip, who appeared to be on the verge of winning last year when he was spun out by eventual winner Rusty Wallace on the next-to-last lap.

"We don't know how long it will last, so winning it twice does mean something."

Like the race itself, the qualifying had an unusual format designed to delight the fans.

For the second straight year, the pole winner was decided by a three-lap qualifying run that included a pit stop for right-side tires.

Earnhardt's crew posted the fourth-best time of the day, 11.83 seconds.

"We had a good steady stop," Earnhardt's crew chief, Kirk Sheldermine, said. "It wasn't a world record... but we didn't have any penalties."

Starting second will be Davey Allison, who used a pit stop of 11.16 seconds — tying Brett Bodine for the fastest of the day — to average 132.797 mph for the three laps.

meters.
Razorbacks Johan Boakes and Gilbert Contreras finished 1-2 in the event and Brian Baker was fourth and Harrison Smith placed eighth.
Arkansas finished 1-2-3 in the 5,000 meters and earned 32 points in the event. Reuben Reina won in 14:35.38. Hogs Ian Alsen and Boakes were second and third.

Arkansas scored 162 points and Texas was second with 133 followed by Texas A&M, 128, Baylor 90, Houston 68, Rice 60, Texas Christian 53, Texas Tech 52 and Southern Methodist 32.

Baylor's Michael Johnson was second in the 100 meters at 19.91 in the 200 and Cason finished third in 20.11.
Burrell is the defending TAC champion with a 9.94 clocking, third fastest ever in the world and .02 off former Cougar sprinter Carl Lewis' world record.
"He's a great sprinter and the times don't surprise me any more," said Lewis, a volunteer Houston coach. "He runs a great 100 and there's no reason he can't run the 200 if he runs his race."
Texas A&M won the error-filled men's 400 meter race with a 39.26

Hinojosa, who is hitting 600 in the tournament, had three hits to lead Houston.
The fact is that the drivers have become a little spoiled by the way the cars have been last year.
"If they had gone to the smaller wing, the cars would have been harder to drive in the corners. There would have been a lot more accidents because the driver would have to totally rethink the way you drive the corners. We would have had to lift (off the accelerator), and we're used to going flat (footed) through the corners."

"If you don't do something radical to slow the cars all the way around the track, most people say you have to slow them in the corners. The only thing left to slow the cornering speeds would be to reduce downforce."
Narrowing the tunnel exits definitely made the cars harder to drive through the corners, but it didn't slow the 1990 models. In May 11 practice — admittedly under perfect track and weather conditions — Al Unser Jr., Emerson Fittipaldi and Rick Mears all turned unofficial laps faster than any ever run at Indy.
Unser was the fastest at 228.502 mph.
But Michael Andretti, who will be starting his seventh Indy 500, said, "Speeds are going to be dramatically slower in the race because there's not as much downforce. I'll be surprised to see speeds over 220."

Even 220 is not much slower, though, since the record lap by Fittipaldi, the 1989 race winner, was 222.469. The top drivers were routinely over 220 in last year's race despite the fact that the previous fastest Indy 500 lap was just over 209 the previous year.
"The entire package last year was great," Andretti said. "We got up to top speed almost immediately and the car felt the safest it ever has here. It was easy and I was actually having fun out there. This year, it's going to be work."
"I don't think (the handling) is as bad as it was a few years ago. We're going backwards, but it's not going to be terrible (in the race)."

Coke cracks A&I program

By SUZANNE HALLIBURTON
Austin American-Statesman

KINGSVILLE (AP) — A year ago, the newly elected sheriff in this South Texas town began hearing the unthinkable about the tradition-proud Texas A&I University football program.

Informants began telling him stories about A&I football players selling crack cocaine on the streets near this small campus southwest of Corpus Christi and 120 miles from the Mexican border.

So, Kleberg County Sheriff Adan Munoz sent an undercover agent to the campus to find out what was happening. The agent's identity quickly was discovered, and Munoz dropped his investigation.

But not for long. A few months later, as Javelinas star running back Johnny Bailey was breaking Tony Dorsett's NCAA rushing record and the team was putting together a 10-game winning streak to rank No. 1 in the Division II poll, the stories again trickling back to Munoz.

Munoz selected another undercover agent and began a four-month investigation, called Operation Play Ball. Earlier this month, that investigation resulted in eight indictments against one current and two former football players and a Texas A&I student.

The scandal has rocked the school, which began in the NAIA and moved up to NCAA Division II, and has won seven national championships, sent dozens of players to professional football and produced one member of the NFL Hall of Fame.

President Manuel Ibanez immediately set up a special investigative committee of professors and athletic council members to look into the problems of drug use on the campus as well as on the team. The committee is supposed to report to Ibanez by May 31, but the group already has informed him that it needs more time. An outside investigator may be hired.

Not only did Ibanez quickly have to get to the bottom of the drug issue, he had to prepare the campus for a visit by President Bush, who spoke at graduation ceremonies May 11.

"These young men have betrayed the football team," Ibanez said in a recent interview. "And if it's true what they say about them, I hope the full weight of the law is put on them. ... The selling of drugs is a heinous crime."

Athletic director and head coach Ron Harms informed the NCAA and began meeting with all his players. (The NCAA says it has no rules that would make A&I subject to punishment. "We'd simply stay out of the way in those kinds of situations," said David Berst, the assistant director of enforcement for the NCAA.)

"All that's happened has been a total surprise to me," said Harms, who has directed A&I's football program since 1979. "But a lot of times, (the coaches) are the last ones to find out. I've got to be realistic to that as well."

Both Ibanez and Harms also learned that Bailey, the team's undisputed star for the past four years, had a prior cocaine conviction. While Bailey was not involved in the current drug investigation, he has been serving five years probation in Harris County for a cocaine possession conviction that occurred a few months before he stepped onto the campus as a freshman in 1986. Bailey, the ninth-round draft pick of the Chicago Bears, could not be reached for comment.

Those involved in the current investigation are:
— Dyas Evans, defensive end, indicted on one count of cocaine delivery. Evans was dismissed from the team last year for breaking team rules.
— Ray Fields, defensive back, indicted on two counts of cocaine delivery.

— Johnny Eaton, defensive end, indicted on two counts of cocaine delivery. Eaton flunked out of school after the fall semester and was attending a local junior college to regain his eligibility. He is Bailey's former roommate.
— Sean Banks, linebacker, was charged in Wharton County with possession of cocaine and carrying an unlawful weapon.

— Keithen DeGrate, offensive guard, charged with misdemeanor possession of drug paraphernalia.
— Rocky Runnels, a Texas A&I student, was indicted on three charges of cocaine delivery. He was a former star athlete at West Oso High School in Corpus Christi.

All except DeGrate have been suspended from the team and their scholarships will not be renewed for the fall unless they are found innocent of the charges.

All of the current or former athletes on the team charged in the current drug investigation came from poor backgrounds and were brought up in or around Houston.

According to the undercover agent, at least one player would return home to Houston or nearby Galveston each weekend to spend about $900 on an ounce of crack cocaine.

The ounce would be split into individual rocks, which then made the street price of the drugs worth about $2,000. The price of an individual rock, which is smoked by a user for about five minutes to get a 20-minute high, was between $25 and $75.

"They were using the money for spending money, party money," Munoz said.

Said Harms, "None of these kids we're talking about had a lot of money. I didn't notice that they were particularly well-dressed. I didn't notice that they had something any different than they had before."

Harms said that in the past three years, no football player has tested positive for any drug during the two mandatory annual urinalysis.

"Remember, we're not dealing with drug usage," Harms said. "We're dealing with drug trafficking. Just because someone gets involved in this kind of activity doesn't mean he's a user. You need to be aware of that."

While most of those involved could not be reached for comment, DeGrate did say that no one on the team used drugs.

"I know a lot of people out there who know someone who does drugs. People ask why do I hang around people who do drugs. And I ask, 'Don't you know somebody who does drugs?'" said DeGrate.

Reaction from team members has been surprise. "I couldn't have predicted it," said Ralph DeLeon, a former walk-on football player. "This is all so unbelievable."

Harms, too, was surprised. In a recent interview at the plush A&I athletic lounge, he talked about two of the players.

"Banks, at the end of this semester, is 12 hours short of graduating," Harms said. "He's a young man who has taken care of his academic responsibilities all the way through. He's been involved in a mentor program in helping the youth get a handle on how important it is to set education as a high priority."

Fields, a reserve defensive back, is recently married and expecting a child later this year. "There's no way I thought he could be involved with any of this," Harms said.

For the grand jury session on May 3, Munoz subpoenaed 18 current or former players and two assistant coaches. The two assistants — Don Pittman and Steve Mayberry — were at the apartment shared by DeGrate and Eaton the afternoon of the sheriff department's raid. Pittman and Mayberry said they were there because they brought leftover food from an NFL draft party to the apartment.

Munoz said the investigation is continuing and he believes that the drug problem on the football team might involve more players. The sheriff said that, in a video used in the undercover operation, between 10 and 15 current or former players were shown to have been present during an attempted drug purchase.

"The sheriff, however, said he did not know whether any players used cocaine during the football season."

As the investigation has proceeded, Munoz has found that it is not popular in all parts of Javelina country, and he is constantly defending his investigation.

Harms hopes "positive" things will result from the investigation. For one, he wants the school to fund the department's drug-testing program.

Austin good to college baseball

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas was named as one of eight regional sites for the NCAA baseball tournament and was assured of at least an at-large berth in the 48-team field.

"There was some talk about how many more years do we continue to go to Texas," NCAA spokesman Jim Wright said. "But how do you stop going to successful sites?"

"This is not the Final Four, where if you go anywhere, you'll get successful crowds. But if we didn't keep going to Texas, we might not be able to generate the revenue that allows us to expand to 48 teams. There's no way to keep everybody happy," Wright said.

Of the 30 top-grossing regionals since 1975, Texas has turned in the highest net receipts seven times. That includes the second-, third- and seventh-largest paydays in NCAA history. A year ago, the school returned $118,332, the third-biggest of all time. Texas bid about $144,000, sources say.

Only 12 schools bid for regionals this year, a slight drop from the 16 a year ago. The five whose bids were not accepted — Waterbury is a neutral site — are Florida State, Fresno State, Oklahoma State, New Orleans and North Carolina.

Six of the eight sites awarded tournaments did not hold one last season, although Mississippi State landed one for the seventh time and fourth in a row, Arizona State for the 11th time and Miami for the 10th time.

The Central Regional will be held beginning May 25 at Disch-Falk Field, the 12th year in a row. The Longhorns have played host to an NCAA regional. The field for the eight regional sites will be announced May 21.

AMR Corp. may issue securities

FORT WORTH (AP) — AMR Corp., parent company of American Airlines, said Friday it has reserved the right to issue $1 billion worth of securities to help finance its expansion program.

In a "shelf offering" with the federal Securities and Exchange Commission, AMR said it would use the money raised through unspecified securities for general corporate purposes, including buying aircraft and other equipment or other capital expenditures.

BPIC holds annual meeting

MIDLAND — The annual meeting of the Permian Basin Private Industry Council drew 250 business representatives to hear Glen Parkey speak about Workforce 2000, said Shirley Shroyer, chairwoman of the PIC 1990 meeting.

"He talked about how we need to involve private business in the education process. He got a lot of good response," Shroyer said. Parkey, the former mayor of Amarillo and the current chairman of the state Job Training Coordinating Council, spoke about the future of Texas business in the tough and competitive 1990s environment.

Shroyer said Parkey also encouraged the council members as employers to require high school transcripts of high school graduates applying for jobs. "He said we need to make grads accountable for their grades and reward ones with better grades," she said.

Pearson celebrates 30th year at cafe

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer BIG SPRING — For 30 years, through fires and floods, they've kept bellying up to the bar at Betty Lou's.

Betty Lou Pearson recently celebrated her 30th anniversary of Lou's Cafe, a lounge on West Third Street. And while 30 years in the same place under the same management is notable with almost any business, it's ironic that Betty got into the bar business almost by accident.

"I had never worked in a bar at all," Pearson said. "The man who owned this place wanted me to handle things for the night while he went to Mexico. Well, it was three weeks before he came back."

With the negative image that running a bar can have, what has kept Betty Lou going for all this time? "I contribute lasting 30 years to the fact that I don't drink," she said. "When people drink, it changes their personality. They're either giving everything away or they're mad at the world. There's no happy medium."

Still, she enjoys her work. "It's the most entertaining place in the world; it sure beats TV," Pearson said. "But you have to like running one to run one, else it'll get on your nerves. It's very time-consuming. It's a business." Another reason for Pearson staying with the business, she said, is her customers. "This has always been an oilfield bar," she said of her clientele. "We've had some of the same customers for 30 years. We're the only bar that's raised its customers. Pearson has also overcome what some might consider a less-than-desirable location: West Third Street in Jones Valley.

"When I came here, they said, 'You won't last six months; not in that valley with that bunch of folks,'" she said. "Well, it used to be a lot rougher than it is now. Most of the fighters are now too old to fight. Mostly they just argue a little."

And if her customers do get out of hand, Pearson knows how to handle them:

"By staying sober," she said. "Even if they don't like you, you'll respect you if you're sober. You never let an argument get ahead of you. If it gets out of hand, you just go over there and tell them how it's going to be."

"The biggest problem is making sure they leave when they're too drunk," she added. "Some of them just don't want to go. Some of them you have to demand, some you have to threaten, some you just love 'em into it. When you get to know your customers, you know what works."

That respect for Betty Lou was in evidence when the heavy rains forced flooding in the Jones Valley area in 1986 and '87. "We had water up to the front door, and people were coming here in rowboats," she said.

Group honors Knight

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer BIG SPRING — Stanley Knight of Strickland & Knight, Inc. of Big Spring was recently honored for his role in the 1989 widening of Gregg Street.

Knight received a plaque from the Association of General Contractors for his cooperative efforts with the public, news media, Texas Highway Department and sub-contractors during the widening of U.S. 87 through Big Spring.

"It feels good," Knight said of the award, "because I knew the type of job when I bid for it, and I knew someone would have to coordinate everything. We did what we intended to do. It's nice someone recognizes what you did when you're through with it."

He was presented the award because of the complicated nature of the project. Construction crews were given only 90 days to complete the project.

"I wasn't anything that couldn't be worked out, but I had to be there all the time and keep it going," Knight said. "To do it in that length of time was the biggest problem."

"We did have some good (sub)contractors working on the project," he said, mentioning local businesses Price Construction and Nite Lite, "and the highway department cooperated well with us."

SMMC debuts new gastro-enterology lab

By DEBBIE LINCCEM Staff Writer

Digestive problems need no longer send patients out of town for treatment, thanks to a new gastroenterology laboratory at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a doctor at the center said.

Dr. E.W. Stokes said the hospital's equipment is state-of-the-art. "It's just like anything in Houston or Dallas," he said.

The lab allows doctors to study the upper and lower digestive tracts directly, said Stokes. He said procedures once unavailable or difficult can now be performed completely, safely and quickly without surgery.

Endoscopy, a technique for studying the tract from the mouth to the stomach, involves insertion of an endoscope through which medicines can be injected directly into the internal organs. A col-onoscope is inserted into the lower tract to remove growths, some cancerous, without surgery.

"It's just like anything in Houston or Dallas."

Exploration and treatment of the pancreas is performed with insertion of a scope the size of a pencil lead, Stokes said. Dye injected into the organ shows the existence of cancers and stones. The treatment, endoscopic retrograde cholangiopancreatography, is like taking a picture of the pancreas, he said.

These three treatments are relatively comfortable and are usually performed with a small amount of Valium as sedation, Stokes said. "We can do many things now without taking you to the operating room. Probably ninety percent of the patients don't even remember having the treatment."

Ulcer disease, a common ailment involving a crater-like formation on the lining of the stomach, is detected and treated at the lab. Stokes said he uses an electric current or an injection to stop bleeding. Ulcers that received treatment, he said, are less likely to recur.

Abdominal pains, bloating, burning sensations and pain or relief of pain after eating are common signs of ulcer disease, a chronic illness, Stokes said.

Colon cancer, the second leading cause of death in men and third in women, can be detected early and chances of survival improved, Stokes said. Education is the key to reducing the risks, and patients should be aware of the benefits of early detection, he said.

Presently five to 10 of the procedures are performed per week at the lab. Average time for most of the work is about 30 minutes and can be performed by many of the medical center internists, Stokes said.

Reduced cost, less time and less danger are the benefits of the lab, in his opinion. "We can diagnose and treat a myriad of diseases with the capability we have now. Patients don't have to go out of town."

Stokes said his arrival at Scenic Mountain during August marked the first time a gastro-enterology specialist was employed at the hospital. The lab will be upgraded in the future, Stokes said, and more procedures will be available.

Business highlights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The March trade deficit jumped 38.5 percent over a month earlier because of America's high appetite for imports, but exports surged to a record and encouraged the view that U.S. companies are more competitive.

The Commerce Department figures released Thursday showed an $8.45 billion deficit in March, when imports grew 10 percent to $41.72 billion and exports grew 4.6 percent to $33.28 billion.

NEW YORK (AP) — The government said former stock speculator John A. Mulheren Jr. schemed with admitted felon Ivan Boesky to break the law in a "two-way street of mutual advantage" on Wall Street.

In opening arguments Thursday in the trial of Mulheren and an associate, Assistant U.S. Attorney E. Scott Gilbert said Mulheren manipulated the price of one stock and concealed ownership of others to help Boesky cheat on his taxes and evade federal securities laws.

Mulheren lawyer Thomas Puccio told the jury his client was innocent, calling Boesky the "king of greed... who cheated and lied to both friend and foe alike."

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A top economic adviser to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev said all economic reforms in his country have failed, and he appealed to Western economists, businesses and governments for help.

The remarks by Stanislav Shatalin at a news conference Thursday marked some of the strongest statements yet by senior Kremlin officials on the enormous problems confronting the Soviet economy. Shatalin is the only economist on the Soviet Presidential Council, which has been working on Gorbachev's reforms.

EAST BERLIN (AP) — The West German subsidiary of Philip Morris Cos. has agreed to acquire the East German cigarette manufacturer VEB Kombinat Tabak for an undisclosed price.

The proposed acquisition announced Thursday between VEB Kombinat Tabak and Philip Morris GmbH will allow the New York-based food and tobacco company to expand further in Eastern Europe, where trade barriers have been broken down recently following the move away from communism.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of experts began examining the Food and Drug Administration with an eye toward revitalizing an agency often embroiled in controversy.

Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan told the 15-member panel in its first session Thursday to "consider whether FDA's energies and resources are focused on the right objectives." Sullivan said the FDA, which regulates about 25 percent of products sold to consumers, has been under pressure in recent years to do more policing with fewer resources.

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said it will lower interstate and international rates by about $160 million annually, effective July 1.

In a filing with the Federal Communications Commission Thursday, AT&T said it would reduce by $100 million its prices for direct-dialed interstate calls during evening hours. That represents a reduction of about 2.5 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pentagon task force reportedly is recommending that the government spend $100 million a year to develop advanced video systems such as high-definition TV, a 10-fold increase over current spending.

The High-Resolution Systems Task Force has forwarded the recommendation to the Defense Science Board, which will discuss the proposal next week, the Washington-based trade publication Communications Daily reported Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal appeals court issued an injunction preventing Reuters from backing out of a photo-exchange agreement with United Press International.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in reversing a lower court's decision, said Thursday that UPI had shown it would suffer irreparable harm if the arrangement were discontinued.

Herald announces personnel changes

Several personnel changes at the Big Spring Herald have been announced which affect both the Big Spring and Stanton offices.

Karen McCarthy has been assigned the position of interim managing editor of the Big Spring Herald while the search for a managing editor is underway. Publisher Robert Wernsman said.

McCarthy has been copy editor of the Herald since July 1988, when her grammar, editing and writing skills were first applied to the newspaper business. Her broad background includes world travel, having lived overseas at various times between 1960 and 1980.

She holds a bachelor's degree from the University of New Mexico, having majored in biology during her studies. "Karen has proven herself as a capable manager as copy editor the past two years, as well as during the short time she has assumed these responsibilities," Wernsman said. "The staff is responding well during this period and her efforts, coupled with their cooperation, is allowing the managing editor search to proceed while we continue to produce a quality daily newspaper for the Crossroads Country."

Lynn Hayes has been promoted to the position of lifestyle editor. Hayes has been fulfilling the duties of the position for some time, McCarthy explained, and the title is official recognition of that fact. Hayes' duties include responsibility for a daily lifestyle page, a Sunday lifestyle section, a Wednesday food page and two religion pages on Friday. She is the person to contact with club news, wedding and engagement announcements, births, church news, and anniversary announcements.

Lynn is the first contact with the Herald for many, said McCarthy. Her friendly, courteous manner go a long way toward making people feel welcome.

Eddie Andrews has been named District Sales Manager in charge of approximately 30 newspaper carriers, said Circulation Manager Dale Ferguson.

He has the responsibility of overseeing sales, service and collections in his district, Ferguson explained. He hires, trains and supervises new carriers, and is available to help the carriers in any area they need it.

"I think Eddie's management background will help him excel in this position," said Ferguson. "He's willing and able to work with all his carriers, both youth and adults, and we're very pleased to have Eddie on our staff."

Marcellino Chavez, who has been employed at the Big Spring Herald since 1986, has assumed the responsibility of overseeing the Stanton Herald office, said Wernsman.

He has a wide variety of experience in the newspaper business, including circulation and reporting. Chavez will be using his skills to report Stanton news and sports, as well as building Stanton circulation.

Chavez, his wife Norma, and two children, have recently moved to Stanton to allow them to be a part of the community he serves. Having Marcy in Stanton will allow us to better serve our Stanton readers, said Wernsman. Because he is living in Stanton, he will get a better idea of what local residents want to see in their paper.

Purcell elected to TBA board

AUSTIN — Jim R. Purcell, president of the State National Bank in Big Spring, was elected to the Board of Directors of the Texas Bankers Association.

JIM PURCELL

Purcell will represent District 6, which is comprised of approximately 106 district banks. He took office at TBA's Annual Convention, held this year in Galveston May 2-4.

Purcell is active in his area 4-H club, the United Way, the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, and the Big Spring Rotary Club. He graduated from Eastern New Mexico University with a BBA in Ag Business and Finance with a minor in Accounting.

TBA, the oldest and largest state bankers association in the nation, represents approximately 1,800 member banks and branches.

Powell joins refinery staff

BIG SPRING — Michael Powell joined the Fina refinery as a systems analyst on April 23.

Powell is a Midland/Odessa native and has previous work experience in computer consulting in addition to being the owner of a software company.

Michael and his children, Laurie, 10, and twins TJ and Lindie, 5, enjoy traveling, snow skiing, hunting and reading.

April highlights at refinery

BIG SPRING — Community involvement was the major highlight of the Fina Refinery in April.

About 60 Fina employees volunteered their time on April 21-22 for the "Christmas in April" project. The home of an elderly woman was remodeled and upgraded by the workers.

John Wright, a craftsman at the refinery, was Fina's coordinator of the project, which was recognized by a visit from U.S. Senator Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

On April 19, the refinery hosted 350 eighth-grade students and teachers from Big Spring ISD on a tour of the facility, highlighting units which have a significant impact on the environment.

Additionally, in recognition of Earth Day, the refinery contributed funds to the "Clean Big Spring" project.

Operations also were good at the refinery in April. Refinery throughput was 58.1 thousand barrels per day with a year-to-date average of 55.3 thousand barrels per day.

This is the highest average throughput for the first four years of any year on record at the refinery. These runs were again aided by good gasoline and diesel movements, in addition to the continued movements of asphalt via tank car.

NARO to hold state meeting

MIDLAND — Area mineral and royalty owners will tackle hot topics on June 1-2 in Midland at a state meeting of the Texas chapter of the National Association of Royalty Owners, Inc.

Seminars, open to the public, will cover leasing, division order abuses, cost-netting by producers and legal problems. These will be presented both days at the Midland Convention Center, with public registration open at $25 a day, beginning at 8 a.m.

A.G. (Grier) Brunson, chairman of NARO-Texas, sponsors of the annual meeting, said major issues riling the state's more than 800,000 royalty owners include "worny division orders" that attempt to modify oil and gas leases, plus a "lot of question marks" over proposed changes in the Texas unitization and pooling laws, now being backed by many major oil companies.

The afternoon session on June 1 features energy related political addresses by Ann Richards, Democratic candidate for governor, and Texas Railroad Commission hopefuls Beau Boulter and Bob Krueger.

The meeting will be open to the public. Anyone wanting to register may call (915) 684-0551.

Indicators show some increase

BIG SPRING — Total construction values and sales tax and postal receipts showed an increase over a one-year period, according to figures released by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Construction value in March of this year totalled $103,958, an increase of 57.9 percent from March of 1989. This increase is despite the fact that fewer building permits were issued in March than during the same time last year.

Postal and sales tax receipts also showed an increase in the March figures. Postal receipts increased by 5.85 percent and sales tax receipts increased 4.17 percent from March 1989.

The news was not all rosy, however. Sales tax receipts from new and used cars dropped 18.5 percent in March from last year. Drops were also shown in the civil labor force and number of employed persons in the city, which both dropped 5 percent from March 1989.

Cool it with Hester & Robertson

If your home or business needs cooling off this summer, now is the time to call Hester & Robertson Mechanical Contractors, Inc. Trained servicemen are available to inspect your air conditioning system, said Carol Hollingsworth. They will check freon, change filters, and oil the motor and can repair the equipment as needed. All trucks are stocked with parts so many problems can be fixed immediately.

"We have had a tremendous amount of work lately," said Carol. "Get your service calls in early so you will be prepared for the really, really hot weather. It's going to get even hotter than this before long!"

Hester & Robertson's mobile-dispatched service trucks can come to the aid of your home or business quickly in an emergency. The company also provides emergency after-hours service.

Hester & Robertson crews are currently busy remodeling the heating and air conditioning system at the YMCA, said Carol. Other projects that are keeping the firm's workmen busy are the second phase of the municipal auditorium renovation and major utility contracts at Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

Hester & Robertson specializes in residential and commercial plumbing contracting. They in-

Outdoor briefs

Deer study will aid in management

TUBBOCK (AP) — The desert mule deer, one of the Trans-Pecos region's most valued wildlife resources, is the subject of a new study by Texas Tech University, the Parks and Wildlife Department and private landowners.

According to Ted Clark, parks and wildlife mule deer program leader, the study was initiated to focus on the natural mortality rate of mule deer in the area.

"The TPWD needs to know how many mule deer are dying annually and how and when they are dying. Then we can make scientifically-based harvest recommendations that will keep the population at an optimum level," Clark said.

The harvest recommendations could affect future hunting regulations for mule deer, officials said. There has been concern among landowners about a recent expansion of the mule deer hunting season. In 1988, the season was extended to 16 days, up from nine days in previous seasons.

Stamp funds paid for new wetland tracts

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department recently acquired two new wetland tracts with Texas Waterfowl Stamp funds.

A 406-acre tract known as the "goose roost" was added to the Guadalupe Delta Wildlife Management Area (WMA) near Port Lavaca in Calhoun County, according to Dr. Dan Moulton, program leader for waterfowl habitat acquisition and development.

Guadalupe Delta WMA now totals 4,668 acres of coastal wetlands, Moulton said. "This acquisition contributes to the goals of the Gulf Coast Joint Venture of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan (NAWMP) in which TPWD is a partner," Moulton said.

An acquisition of 1,860 acres of bottomland hardwoods on the Frimby River was recently completed, Moulton said. The tract, purchased from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, is called Big Lake Bottom WMA and is located west of Palestine in Anderson County. Both of these tracts were bargain sales, Moulton said, purchased at less than the appraised value. The TPWD was reimbursed for 100 percent of total costs by federal aid, and the reimbursements were returned to the Texas Waterfowl Stamp Fund.

Actor to promote national sporting day

Actor Robert Urich has agreed to serve as this year's Honorary Chairman of National Hunting and Fishing Day. Urich has appeared in several miniseries including "America," "Lonesome Dove," and recently, "Blind Faith." He was also the star of the "Vegas" and "Spenser: For Hire" television series. Urich, who particularly enjoys fishing, wingshooting and clay target sports, has developed a keen interest in helping others discover the fun and camaraderie of hunting and fishing.

"I grew up fishing with my father and uncle, but I didn't discover the shooting sports until my adult years. I've really come to appreciate the value of spending time afield with my friends and dogs," said Urich. "We hear so much today from celebrities speaking out on issues, and I think it's important for the public to know that many of us enjoy hunting, fishing and the shooting sports. It's even more important that they realize the essential role that sportsmen have played in the conservation and preservation of wildlife in America," continued Urich. "I'm glad to have this opportunity to serve as Honorary Chairman for National Hunting & Fishing Day."

Texas allows free fishing day

AUSTIN (AP) — A free sport-fishing day will kick off National Fishing Week in Texas by allowing anglers to fish any public waters without a license on Saturday, June 2, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department says.

The special day was authorized by the Legislature last year and is intended to promote fishing and the state's fishery resources.

Chester Burdett, director of the department's law enforcement division, said both resident and nonresident fishermen will be allowed to fish without licenses and won't need special stamps such as the $5 saltwater sport-fishing stamp or the $5 freshwater trout stamp on that day.

Great fishing

COLORADO CITY — Winners of the Mayfest Black Bass Fishing Tournament at Lake Colorado City and Lake Champion May 5 were, left to right, Kay Morris, third place, Steve Rasco, second place, and Maxey Ware, first place. Ware, a Westbrook teacher and former member of the Big Spring Bass Club, won a $1,700 prize with three fish weighing 12.51 pounds.

Officials happy with baby bass production

AUSTIN — State fishery officials, somewhat giddy over this year's hatchery production of largemouth bass, pronounced that if this spring's fingerlings were laid nose-to-tail they would reach from downtown Dallas almost to Waco.

"I still think we can get past Waco with a little luck this year," laughed Bill Rutledge, hatchery chief for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, explaining that the first spawning and grow-out period produced 4.46 million one-inch bass and the next batch could easily push the total past 6 million and bring the Waco skyline into view.

By comparison, total production of Florida bass fingerlings last year was 2.7 million, or only enough to stretch from Reunion Arena to just past Waxahachie.

The mileage was calculated by dividing the number of one-inch-long bass fingerlings by 12 to get the number of feet, then dividing that sum by 5,280, the number of feet in a mile.

Rutledge is especially pleased with the increased production because it was a direct result of new technology at the A.E. Wood Fishery Center at San Marcos State Fish Hatchery. "The indoor raceways at the Wood facility are producing record numbers of fry during a year when spawning in outdoor ponds would have been severely curtailed because of the weather," Rutledge said. Bass also are produced at the department's Jasper and Tyler hatcheries.

Some foods you love to hate

By CHRISTINA FERCHALK

Remember the Bush/broccoli affair? I seldom understand politicians, especially the higher-ranking ones. They're so removed from my reality. But in this one particular instance, I could relate. Personally, I like broccoli, but all the same, I knew just where George was coming from. I'll bet when he was a little boy, he swore that someday he'd be so rich, so powerful, so influential that no one would ever make him eat broccoli again.

I feel the same way about mushrooms!

When I was a kid, every Friday was meatless. Mom had four basic Friday menus. Friday number one was fish with macaroni and cheese, which was great. Friday number two was fish and french fries, which was even better. The third Friday was tuna noodle casserole, which was tolerable. But oh, that fourth Friday, grilled cheese sandwiches and cream of mushroom soup, was Hell on Earth!

I came up with ways to avoid the mushrooms. I'd skim off the 'cream of' and leave the mushrooms in a brown heap at the bottom of the bowl. I was told that wasting food was a sin and I'd have to tell it in confession. That was fine by me. Not eating those mushrooms was worth saying five 'Our Fathers' and five 'Hail Marys.' Heck, it was worth saying a whole rosary and crawling to the altar on my knees if necessary.

I was told to eat them or wear them. I chose to wear them. I'd have been happy to glue them to my body and parade naked in the streets. Anything was better than having a piece of mushroom stuck between my teeth.

I was told I couldn't leave the table until I finished my soup. The dishes would be washed. The other kids would be outside playing. My folks would be in the living room watching TV. There I would sit, alone, facing a cold coagulated bowl of cream of mushroom soup. Eventually I'd give into the demand of Mommy Dearest and eat the soup. I devised a method of throwing spoonfuls of it to the back of my throat and swallowing before my tastebuds realized what was happening. On the evening of every fourth Friday, I'd sneak out to the garden in the back yard, fall to my knees, throw my fist to the heavens and vow, "God as my witness, when I'm an adult I'll never eat mushrooms again. No, not me or any of my kin!"

As luck would have it, I married a mushroom lover. I wasn't concerned. I felt our mixed marriage would work. But after 20 years, my husband is still trying to convert me. He'll fry up a mess of those large, disgusting breaded mushrooms and stick them in my face. "Try one," he says. "Come on, try just one bite." Of course, I won't sleep with him when he does that. A woman has to assert herself.

I read that some of the broccoli growers were upset with Mr. Bush and sent him truckloads of their product. Now there's a piece of logic for you. The man doesn't want to see the stuff decorating his plate so dump a couple of tons on his front lawn to change his mind.

I also read that the first lady likes broccoli and her husband doesn't interfere with her food preferences. Good attitude George, but remember, you're a big boy now and an American. No matter what the press says you're entitled to your rights just like any other citizen. If you don't need no stinkin' broccoli, you don't have to eat no stinkin' broccoli. And if Barbara sticks it in your face and insists that you try it, just don't sleep with her. It works for me!

Mobil Meals volunteer Hazel Duggan, left, delivers lunch to Rosa Hare Thursday morning. Rosa said because she has arthritis she's unable to prepare her own meals. "I'm not kiddin' ya'll I don't know what I'd do with them," she said.

By LYNN HAYES

BIG SPRING — "I don't know what I'd do without them," Rosa Hare said, as a volunteer from Mobile Meals delivered her lunch Thursday.

Rosa is one of more than 90 elderly residents who receive a daily meal from the Howard County Council on Aging's Mobile Meals Program.

The program, which began 15 years ago, offers the elderly a hot, nutritious meal five days per week.

Bill Dawes, Bessie Love, Jewell Hyer and other concerned citizens initiated the program when they saw a need in the community to provide food for the elderly who were not able to provide a meal for themselves.

The program also offers a free blood pressure check on the second Tuesday of each month at the Senior Citizens Center.

Strictly a volunteer program, it's funded solely by private local donations. "There's no government connection," said Don R. Brooks, chairman.

When the program began, approximately 10 area residents received free meals.

Today, more than 90 residents receive meals daily. Currently, there are 25 to 30 volunteers who deliver meals weekly. "We have four or five volunteers who work daily. We do need more volunteers to work one day per week," said Brooks.

To be eligible for free meals, a person must be physically and/or mentally unable to prepare their meals.

"The Mobile Meals Program is for the elderly who are isolated or have no transportation to the grocery store. An elderly person who is partially or totally incapacitated, or others recently released from the hospital are eligible. If they're in need of part-time assistance any elderly person in need qualifies," Brooks said.

A person's financial status has no bearing on who receives the program's services, Brooks said. "Financial status is not important."

The meals, which are prepared Monday through Friday by the Runnels Junior High School cafeteria staff, include meat, two vegetables, salad, two rolls, dessert and a half pint of milk. "For some people this is the only meal they eat all day. Sometimes our volunteers are the only people they see during the day," Brooks said.

Martin Anderson, 79, who has delivered meals since 1975, said he finds satisfaction helping those in need. "It gives me something to do. And, it does a lot of good for a lot of people," he said.

Mobile Meals receives referrals from neighbors, relatives, home health nurses and the Department of Human Services. "People will call us to let us know there's someone who needs a meal. We deliver to people from all walks of life, not just the poor," Brooks said.

Volunteers deliver meals to residents who live within the Big Spring city limits, averaging 12-20 homes per route. Because the program doesn't prepare foods for special diets, those who need special foods are referred to the Senior Citizens Center, Brooks said.

Seventy-three-year-old Hazel Duggan and her husband began delivering meals in 1978. After the death of her husband in 1979, she continued helping the elderly.

"I just like to do it," she said. Because she's delivered meals to the same people over the years, Hazel says, she has developed friendships with most of the recipients. "You get attached to them. . . . I usually go in and say 'hello' and if there's no answer I kinda look around for them to see if they're OK."

Hazel usually runs her route in the company of her friend, Clare DeRyke. "I get the food together and put it in the box, then she runs it to the door," Clare said. "It speeds up the operation," Hazel explained.

If you would like to volunteer to deliver meals, please call Don R. Brooks at 263-2043, or Imogene Smith, executive director, at 263-4016

Citizens Center. Martin Anderson, an 15-year volunteer, loads his truck with food before beginning his delivery route.

Cow patties, golf and country music will all be part of the American Cancer Society benefit May 26.

The Mark Morgan Ranch will be the site of the annual Cow Patty Golf Tournament & Gala. The ranch is located across from the Big Spring Country Club.

Guests can play golf in the cow pasture (this is where the cow patties come in), eat barbecue and dance to the songs of Big Spring native Ronna Reeves in the barn.

Anyone who does not want to drive into the ranch, Elrod said, can take advantage of a shuttle bus, which runs every 30 minutes from the parking lot across the street. Shuttle bus riders can park in the country club lot.

It all gets underway at 4 p.m. with golf. President Linda Elrod said the game will be a silly spoof of the real thing, with judges on horseback and payment of bribes to get your golfball out of the cactus.

"We have all sorts of crazy rules for this golf game," Elrod said.

Food will be plentiful, Elrod said, including, barbecue, German sausage, corn-on-the-cob, nachos, beer and soft drinks will be among the offerings, as well as special smoked turkey legs from Opa's Haus in Fredericksburg. Feeding begins at 6 p.m.

Local entertainment will feature Bronda Goates and Julie and Jennifer Shirey. At 9 p.m. the Morgan barn will be the scene of a special concert from country singer Reeves, a local who has been recently touring with such big names as the Judds and George Strait, Elrod said.

"We want people to know we are really excited to have such great performers for our benefit."

American Airlines has donated two tickets anywhere they fly for prizes in a raffle, chances are $5 will go to benefit the American Cancer Society local chapter, which, Elrod said, uses its funds to help area cancer victims. She said all the money will stay in Crossroads Country, and noted that the services are provided free to patients.

Some of the group's services are: A camp for children with cancer, home service care, rides to hospitals and clinics, support groups and educational programs. Elrod said total patient each. Justin Boots and local businesses have donated other prizes and drawings will be held throughout the night.

"There is plenty of room out here," Elrod said, "and we are going to set up tables and chairs and set up tents for shade." She emphasized that everyone is welcome. Tickets, $25 each person, can be bought at the door. The one price allows you to participate in everything going on at the gala, she said.

services and education in the area cost about $45,000 last year. In Big Spring, Elrod said, one of the group's most-used services is free rides to Midland clinics for patients and rides home after hospital stays out of town.

She added that the Society helps people deal with all types of cancer and that only 3 percent of money raised is used for administrative work.

For information about the Society's work or help dealing with cancer, call 1-800-227-2345.

Windy: A miser and proud of it

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Windy Beckham of Lamesa on tithing in a country church: "The preacher told his congregation, 'Now we've got to start doing better on our tithing. We've got to give a 10th of all we take in to the Lord so we can support his church.' One old boy back in the audience said, 'I think you're right. I think we oughta do more than a 10th. I think we oughta give a 20th.'"

Windy prides himself on being a miser. "I'm a conservative. If I ever get any money, I try to keep it. I'm known around town as an old tightwad. When I go in the coffee shop they say, 'here comes old Titus.' Every morning seven or eight of us old timers go for coffee. About every two months, I tell 'em I'll pay for the coffee. I get out my billfold. It has a combination lock on it. I say, twice to the right, once to the left. Oh, that's not it. Twice to the left and once to the right. Naw, that's not it. After about 10 minutes of that foolishness somebody else pays for the coffee. I saved $3.27 last year just by foolin' with the combination lock on my billfold."

When Windy and his wife Jo celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, their children gave them a 1947 Dodge. The license plate is THRIFT. "I guess it fits."

Tumbleweed Smith

His mother named him Winslow. But his daddy didn't like that name. "By the time I was dry, I'd been nicknamed Windy. About 98 percent of the people I know call me Windy. And of course I try to live up to that name," he says.

For the past 25 years, Windy has written a joke or story every week for the Lamesa newspaper. "The publisher asked me to do it one week to fill up some space. And I've just continued with it. I don't get paid for it."

Every Valentine's Day Windy sends out newsletters to his friends, informing them of the latest exploits and accomplishments of his family members. Windy keeps pictures of his newest grandchildren in his hat band.

"We've got four kids. They spent 17 1/2 years in Baylor. Somebody asked me one time what I did after the kids got out of college. I told them I took bankruptcy."

A few years ago, Windy had four granddaughters, but no grandsons. He offered his three daughters-in-law $1,000 to have a grandson. "So nine months and three hours later they called me from the hospital and said they had a guard at the door, a photographer, all the family was there, and they told me they wouldn't let me see that baby unless I brought Mary a check for $1,000. I had to see that grandson, so I paid her."

His other two daughters-in-law were about to have babies, too. They asked what he would give for a girl. He told them that girls were plentiful in the Beckham family and he would give only half price. "My wife told me that would be a big mistake, that when those girls would get up around 10 years old, their mothers would tell them that their old granddaddy is stingy and doesn't like girls. That'd be a mistake of course. So I told them I'd give them $1,000, too. Now I'm out all that money and the story in the family is that I'm offering them $500 to quit."

Windy went to school at Trent. "School was so hard I tried to resign from the first grade. But I kept on going. Second grade was worse. Finally when they promoted me to third grade it made me so nervous I couldn't shave."

Man of daughter's dreams is her parents' nightmare

DEAR ABBY: What do parents do when their beautiful, college-educated, 23-year-old daughter becomes engaged to a high school dropout, and it's fairly evident that she is going to end up supporting him? Her father and I are heartsick about this relationship, and it's killing both of us.

Dear Abby

We realize that parents must let their adult children lead their own lives, but how do other parents handle a situation like this without losing their children altogether?

You must have heard from hundreds of other parents who have advised them? — MISERABLE IN MARYLAND

DEAR MISERABLE: I have said: "Don't bad-mouth the fellow. If you do, your daughter will try to defend him, and then it will be them against you. Don't make any predictions concerning the young man's future. You could be wrong. "If the marriage fails, it's not the end of the world. Don't say, 'I told you so.' Just be around to pick up the pieces.

"Some people have to learn life's lessons the hard way, and your daughter could be one of them."

DEAR ABBY: Another night of sleeping with my back to my husband because of his bad breath and body odor, so I had to write to you. Some days are worse than others, but nothing that bathing and deodorant would not eliminate.

His excuse is that he is just too tired to bathe. In the past, I have tried to let him know in a loving way that the odor was offensive to me, but he says I am too picky and a nag. Abby, I am not picky, but he knocks me (not physically) with words, belittles me with put-downs and beats me up with his mouth, then he says he was "only joking" and tells others that I have no sense of humor.

We have two bathrooms with showers, and plenty of towels, soap, shampoo, toothbrushes, toothpaste and mouthwash. By the way, this man is no slob. If he is going somewhere else, no matter how tired he is, he gets cleaned up.

After years of holding my breath to have sex, I am convinced that my husband couldn't care less about me. I have never had sex with a man other than my husband. I enjoy sex, and am beginning to wonder how great it would be to cuddle and have sex with a clean-smelling man without holding my breath. It would also be nice to hear kind words instead of ridicule and criticism. Each year I'm getting older, and I would like to be young enough to enjoy it. What would you suggest? — AGING FAST

DEAR AGING: Surely, it must be obvious to you that this poor excuse for a man has no respect for himself — and even less for you.

You complain about having been brutalized and belittled by his cutting remarks and repulsed by his bad breath and body odor — which you have tolerated for years.

What would I suggest? I would suggest that you tell this selfish slob to either clean up his act, or you are leaving! Then I would make good my threat. I have no idea where you would go, or how you would live without him, but nothing could be worse than your present situation.

Readers can write to Abby at P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

How to raise independent children

By NAOMI HUNT
 County Extension Agent

Focus on family

Parents often wonder if they are successful or good at parenting. One measure of successful parenthood is young adult children who successfully leave home.

Young adults who can think for themselves and make good decisions, who are self-reliant and independent, who are able to be financially, emotionally, and physically on their own are strong evidence of good parenting skills. Often parents act as benevolent dictators all through childhood and then expect their children to be able to make wise decisions in adulthood.

Children learn decision-making skills as a result of being given choices and having to live with the consequences of their choices. Parents cheat their children when they do not teach them to think for themselves. Independence and self-reliance begin early in life. Many parents unwittingly bolster dependency by confusing coddling with parental concern.

There is a fine line between too little, enough, and too much concern and attention. Children who lack sufficient attention do not thrive; they seek attention and fumble offer encouragement and advice: "That's right, now move the button a little higher." This kind of interaction takes time, but it allows for the teaching of self-reliance and independence.

Children who are urged to be clean and quiet — passive and dependent — are the ones who sit quietly and learn to take cues from others. They don't gain a sense of self-reliance or independence or self-confidence; instead they learn that being dependent wins them attention from their parents. Trap of dependency.

Boys are praised for jumping out of the crib, crawling, building blocks and knocking them down. Girls are praised for being pretty, docile and for not making a mess. These patterns do not lead to self-reliance of either boys or girls. Both girls and boys should be praised for being adventuresome. Being overly clean and obedient is not good for either boys or girls. If parents want children who are self-reliant and independent, they must provide their children with opportunities to practice the skills they will need to be independent adults. Acquiring the skills needed to take care of themselves takes time and practice, but it's well worth the effort involved.

Spray for pecan nut casebearer June 2

By DON RICHARDSON
 County Extension Agent

Ask the agent

The number one pest of pecans in Howard County is the pecan nut casebearer. The larvae of this small moth can destroy entire clusters of small pecan nutlets if not properly treated.

Timeliness is the key to success in effectively controlling this pest. It's activity, in terms of peak egg laying, depends upon the weather and monitoring of the daily high and low temperatures throughout April and early May enables Extension entomologist to develop a computer model to help producers predict the most effective spray date to control this pest.

According to Dr. Charles Allen, district Extension entomologist, Fort Stockton, who has been assisting with this project, the date of June 2, has been predicted as the peak egg laying period of the pecan nut casebearer. This date is a little later than usual due to our erratic and cooler than normal spring time weather.

These same weather conditions, according to Allen, has made this spring's prediction not as an absolute date as in years past, but is still the best date we can come up with as a target date possible. Entomologists recommend spraying one week later, just to be sure, especially in a year such as this, with its unusual weather conditions. Pecan producers are advised to monitor their trees and check nutlets for egg laying activity by the casebearer moth.

The tiny, white eggs are usually deposited on the tips of the pecan nutlets and turn light orange just prior to hatching. The tiny larvae then tunnels into the nutlet, destroying it as it feeds upon it and then moves to the next nutlet, and even to others, as it matures and drops to the ground or hides in the bark of the tree to pupate and prepare to lay its own eggs as the second generation of damaging pests. This process takes approximately 42 days and the second spray program for this pest should coincide with this date estimated at July 14.

A third spray date is often necessary and this would be Aug. 25. Damaged nutlets can be identified easily by noting small webbing near the base of the cluster and dark frass-like droppings from the larvae attached to the exit point of the larvae on the damaged nutlets. Insecticides recommended for control of this pest include Malathion, Diazinon or Zolone. If it can be found, applied at the rate listed on the labels.

Do not forget to include NZN, a zinc compound in the spray program, to combat the number 1 nutritional deficiency of pecans in West Texas, Rosette, a zinc deficiency, that results in stunting and die-back of pecan trees, particularly young trees.

For additional information on pecan production in Howard County, please contact the Howard County Office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 267-6671 or come by the office located on the first floor of the County Courthouse in Big Spring.

Some counties benefit from aging population

By JAMES E. GARCIA
Austin American-Statesman

LLANO — Llano County Sheriff Gale Ligon is proud his county has the oldest population in the state — nearly 45 percent of the residents are 60 or older. It not only makes his job a lot easier, but since he's 62 and about to retire himself after 26 years as sheriff, it suits him just fine. Llano's 1.7 percent crime rate is due in large part to the county having a large senior population, Ligon said. That rate is much lower than state's average of 7.9 percent, and about half the rate for other rural counties Llano's size with younger populations, according to Department of Public Safety records. Along with the obvious benefits of having less crime come a few problems, Ligon said. For example, it's difficult to put a jury together because state law allows Texans 65 and older to decline jury duty. In Llano County they often do. "I've had to send out 150 summonses to get a jury," Ligon said.

Llano County is just one of about 20 counties in the region with a burgeoning senior citizen population. Counties such as Llano, Gillespie, Kerr, Burnet, Mason, Menard and San Saba all record senior populations of nearly one-third or more of the total population. This trend has pluses and minuses for local government, social service agencies, businesses, politicians, and the thousands of golden agers who move to the area each year in search of the good life. While many of the area's seniors were born and raised there, an increasing number of mostly professional retirees are relocating from major Texas cities and other parts of the country. They are lured by a mild climate, rivers and lakes, abundant recreational facilities, and relatively easy access to state of the art medical facilities, said Lucille Rochs, 75, a retired college professor. Rochs is a member of the Silver Haired Legislature, a statewide group that lobbies public officials on senior citizen issues. She moved to Fredricksburg in Gillespie County from San Antonio 15 years ago. "I think (seniors) are having an influence on life in the Hill Country. We are stable, dependable people who believe in exercising our rights," Rochs said. These characteristics may explain the growing attention being paid to the wants and needs of seniors in Gillespie and surrounding counties, she said.

In Fredricksburg, for instance, the local chamber of commerce blames senior citizens for a failed attempt to adopt home rule status for the city. Fredricksburg is currently governed under state statute. Largely conservative and fearful that home rule could mean higher taxes, seniors probably played a large part in the defeat, of the measure, said Chamber of Commerce Manager Joe Kammlah.

Though he also blames himself for not working hard enough to educate the public — including seniors — on what he considers the advantages of home rule government, Kammlah speculates that because seniors tend to be more conservative and resistant to change, "sometimes it just goes back to the (idea) that if it ain't broke, don't fix it."

In Kerr County, voters will learn the results of a recount from the runoff election for county judge in which retiree W.G. "Bill" Stacy managed to edge out incumbent Danny Edwards.

During his campaign, Stacy proposed freezing county spending levels and promised to keep taxes low and improve emergency medical services in a special appeal to the county's seniors. Politicians throughout the region say they share the respect held by state Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, for the power of the senior electorate. Sims said senior voters are not afraid to say what is on their minds and, perhaps more importantly, they turn out to vote.

HOW TO HAVE A SUCCESSFUL GARAGE SALE

IN 9 EASY STEPS:

Elizabeth Flores & Debbye Valverde
Classified Sales

1. Make a date. Set a time of day. Have your Garage Sale run for at least two days. Check weather reports. Make sure no other events are happening on the days you chose.
2. Select the items you want to sell and decide on their prices. Make sure they look their best and are correctly tagged. After you have them assembled, check again in the attic, closets and basement for items you haven't used in over a year. Don't be choosy... what you may consider unworthy of the garbage dump might be someone else's treasure.
3. Write your ad. Describe big ticket items and include important details: address, date, time and even offer directions.
4. Place your ad in the Classified section of the Newspaper at least a few days before the sale is set to take place.
5. Place signs in your area. Use arrows to guide prospective customers to your home. Put signs up by busy streets and intersections for maximum visibility. Note: please remove signs after sale.
6. Price all items clearly...and reasonably. Use bright markers or colored stickers. Remember that Garage Sales are where people look for bargains and where you're looking to clear out your garage. Whatever's not sold will have to go back to you...so price it low and sell it fast.
7. Display items as pleasingly as possible. Create a traffic flow with space for aisles for customers to maneuver through the area without walking into things or knocking them over.
8. Set up a 'cashier's' area and have one person tend it at all times (make sure someone's available to 'spell' them throughout the sale). Place it where you have the best view of the merchandise.
9. Ask friends and neighbors if they'd like to partake in the sale. The more merchandise, the more bargains to be found...and likely the more interest in the event. Mention this in your ad as well as on signs: Block Sale or Four Family Garage Sale.
