Profile in courage

Carl A. Elliott, a former Alabama congressman whose stand against racism cost him his office, has been awarded the first John F. Kennedy Profile in Courage Award. Elliot, 76, spent 16 years in Congress in the 1950s and 1960s.

Pool will open with a splash

BIG SPRING — The city pool will open Saturday, June 2, with the annual "Splash Day" celebration.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said the pool will be open seven days a week throughout the summer. Hours haven't been set but the pool probably will open from noon to about 5 p.m. or 6 p.m., he said. Admission will be $1 a day with no season passes.

Several family nights probably will be planned, Decell said, and the pool will be available for private party rentals.

Memorial services scheduled

CROSSROADS — Officials of the Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center, Trinity Memorial Park, and Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home will join forces in Big Spring to observe Memorial Day, officials announced.

The event will take place on Sunday at 2 p.m. at Trinity Memorial Park Cemetery. The keynote speaker will be Lt. Colonel Sonny Choate, United States Air Force, retired. The master of ceremonies will be Conrad Alexander, Medical Center director. The ceremony is a combined effort and there will not be separate services.

The Goodfellow Air Force Base Honor Guard will be on hand to play taps and do the 21-gun salute. There will be a special seating section for the families of those killed in action.

Following the ceremony, members of the Vietnam Veterans of America will proceed to the Mt. Olive Memorial Park to place flags at the graves of all veterans.

In addition, on Saturday, the Boy Scouts of the Buffalo Trail Council will place 300 miniature flags at veteran burial sites at Trinity Memorial Park.

In other area observances, the Stoeger-Estes Post No. 429 of the American Legion will sponsor a ceremony at the Evergreen Cemetery in Stanton Monday at 10 a.m. The speaker will be Dr. James Johnson, minister of Church of Christ.

Following that, an open house will follow at the Martin County Historical Museum. On Saturday legionnaires will place flags on 194 veterans graves in St. Joseph's and Evergreen cemeteries.

In Mitchell County, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary, will hold a 10 a.m. service Monday in front of the courthouse in Colorado City and lay a wreath to be left all day at the memorial there. Boy Scout Troop 100 plans to clean up Mitchell County Cemetery on Saturday.

Senate votes to override governor

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — House Speaker Gib Lewis says the Legislature may be on the verge of doing something it hasn't done in 11 years — override a gubernatorial veto.

The Texas Senate voted 23-8 Wednesday night to override Gov. Bill Clements' veto of the Legislature's $555 million school finance reform plan.

Lewis predicted that his chamber would follow suit.

"I feel very comfortable at this point that the House can probably override a veto," said Lewis. D-

Fort Worth.

If two-thirds of the 150-member House vote to override Clements' veto, the school finance reform plan becomes law in spite of the governor's objections.

Lewis didn't say how soon the House would attempt an override. But the current special session — lawmakers' third on school finance — ends May 31.

The state also faces a June 1 court deadline for action. If no plan is adopted to provide more money to poor schools by then, a court-appointed special master will write a blueprint to follow the unanimous

Texas Supreme Court ruling which declared the current finance system unconstitutional.

Caravans of Dallas teachers left early today to lobby legislators to enact the school finance plan, although the Dallas Classroom Teachers Association, which organized the lobbying effort, did not know how many teachers actually went. CTD secretary Lisa Alonzo said about 300 teachers had pledged by Wednesday to go at their own expense.

In voting to override Clements, senators followed partisan lines. All 23 Senate Democrats voted to override Clements' veto, while the eight Republican senators sided with the GOP governor.

In urging the override, Sen. Carl Parker said the bill wasn't perfect but was a compromise that would end a nearly three-month stalemate between the Democrat-controlled Legislature and Clements.

"I think it's a reasonable effort to address a consensus of this Legislature," said Parker, D-Port Arthur. "We're looking silly before the nation for not making provisions for future generations."

Clements immediately condemned the Senate vote, saying the bill would drive property taxes higher.

"Property taxes would skyrocket... This is totally unacceptable, especially when alternatives clearly exist. Certainly, no elected official should be willing to inflict that type of burden on their constituents," the governor said.

Parker vehemently disagreed. "That is not being honest. That is absolutely not true," he said.

No Texas governor's veto has been rebuffed since 1979, when the House and Senate overrode Clements' rejection of a minor bill

YMCA to honor McMahan

BIG SPRING — The community and the YMCA will pay homage to long years of service and dedication on May 31 when they honor Clyde McMahan Sr. at an appreciation dinner.

Y M C A director Gary Wollenzien said the dinner has been planned for 7 p.m. CLYDE MCMAHON SR. at the Country Club. Tickets are $20 per couple and dinner reservations must be confirmed at the YMCA before May 31.

Wollenzien said the YMCA board of directors will host the event, and special guest Dr. James M. "Bo" Hardy will present McMahan with a copy of his latest book, Developing Dynamic Boards, which is dedicated to McMahan.

Hardy, a native Texan and former Big Spring resident, is president of JMH Associates, a management consulting and training firm in Tennessee. According to his biography, Hardy serves as a consultant to businesses, educational institutions, hospitals, museums, non-profit organizations and other agencies.

He is the author of six books and editor of four others, and he has written more than 60 articles. A graduate of Southwestern University, he also holds a masters degree from Harvard Graduate School of Business and a doctorate from

Shelters from the storms

Civil defense authorities are warning that tornado season is here.

Margaret Churchwell, assistant civil defense coordinator, said weather conditions are often right during late May and early June for the development of tornadoes and other hazardous weather conditions.

Warning sirens in both Howard and Martin counties would sound in the event of a severe storm or tornado sighting, she said. In Big Spring, Stanton and Coahoma, underground facilities exist for residents to take shelter.

Churchwell said Big Spring's warning system would sound to alert citizens if a tornado is sighted in the area. "When the sirens sound, it means you should take shelter," she said.

C. Roy Wright, Howard County volunteer fire department chief, said sirens in Sand Springs, Coahoma and Forsan warn residents in those areas. Martin County Judge Bob Davenport said nine blasts of the fire sirens will sound in Stanton.

Though underground shelters exist in the Big Spring, there is not enough space for every resident. Only one public shelter exists in the other cities of Howard County, Wright said.

"You should really only go to a shelter if you live in a mobile home

Deputy: New degree will help with the job

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Howard County Sheriff's Deputy Woodie Howell of Big Spring said getting his bachelor's degree will help him in his work with the department.

Howell said things have changed since he joined the force in 1985. He decided to get his degree in Criminal Justice from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, he said, to keep up with new developments in the field.

Howell became one of three on the staff including Sheriff A.N. Standard to obtain such a degree. Working nights left him free to attend the Odessa university, he said. Howell had graduated from Howard College almost 10 years ago, before entering the Army.

The most serious crime situation he has found in Big Spring, Howell said, is the number of thefts and burglaries. "I think we're seeing that because of the economy. People may have resorted to desperate measures."

The courses he took have given him more knowledge of legal procedures, current status of laws, how to obtain evidence and how to investigate crimes, he said. All of those skills, he said, will make him a better deputy.

"I think what I learned will help me keep abreast of changes, new techniques and how to make the right decisions on the job. It (the degree) will help me do my job better."

A course in criminal law introduced Howell to legal aspects of his work he had not been aware of before, he said. A class titled "Drugs and Behavior" pointed out warning signs and taught him how to deal with drug-using criminals.

"I think what I learned will help me keep abreast of changes, new techniques and how to make the right decisions on the job."

Howell, who moved to Big Spring as a small child, decided to join the Sheriff's Department to repay what he said was a debt he owed his home town.

"I guess I felt like I wanted to give something back to Big Spring. I wanted to help out and this was one way I could."

He said he thinks law enforcement in the city is usually right on target. "The police department does their job and we do ours. Both do their jobs well in my opinion. I think Big Spring is a fine place to live."

Graduates charged with vandalism

WACO (AP) — Two recent Baylor University graduates were jailed in the wake of a series of incidents of vandalism that has cost Waco businesses an estimated $100,000 in the past two months.

Officers arrested Wesley Bernard Smith, 22, and Lawrence Carr Gale, 21, late Tuesday after a witness called in a license plate number after seeing a ball bearing shot through a window of the United Bank Building.

Officers stopped and detained Smith and Gale, who were parked in a car behind a nearby Ramada Inn, said Sgt. Ken Porterfield.

Vandals broke windows at several Waco businesses Tuesday night, Porterfield said. A similar string of vandalism in the past two months has cost local merchants more than $100,000.

Smith and Gale were in McLennan County Jail Wednesday.

Criminal past endangers job

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Texas Education Agency official says it doesn't seem plausible that an assistant principal of a Fort Worth high school could have forgotten about being previously convicted for swindling, forgery and official misconduct.

The TEA is investigating how Al Frost, assistant principal at Glencrest Middle School, was able to obtain a Texas teaching certificate even though he was convicted of swindling, forgery and official misconduct in 1980 in Minnesota.

Frost was a financial aid officer for Minneapolis Community College when the offenses occurred. Frost, through an attorney, said he told Fort Worth officials about his criminal record when he sought work in 1984.

The investigation will focus, in part, on whether Frost falsified documents when he applied for a Texas teacher certificate and signed an application stating that he had never been convicted of any crime.

Lawyer fined, given probation

CANTON (AP) — A Dallas lawyer was fined $1,000 and ordered to serve one year of probation after pleading guilty to one of 32 charges involving starvation of cattle from the famed King Ranch in South Texas.

Gwen David Westfall was fined and put on unadjudicated probation Wednesday after he pleaded no contest before Van Zandt County Judge Truett Mayo. The case had moved from Kaufman County to Van Zandt County on a change of venue.

The 31 remaining charges will be dismissed under a plea agreement which Kaufman County Assistant District Attorney Dan Wood deemed "sufficient."

"To my knowledge no other cruelty case in Kaufman County has involved the number of animals this one has," Wood said.

The King Ranch, located outside Kingsville and covering a vast area of South Texas, is famous for its Santa Gertrudis breed of cattle.

Aggie accused of book theft

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A Texas A&M University graduate student has been arrested in connection with the theft of more than $50,000 worth of books from Robert Manning Strozier Library at Florida State University, officials said.

Charlton J. Matovsky, 25, was released on a $50,000 personal recognizance bond following an arraignment before a federal magistrate in Houston Tuesday on charges of interstate transportation of stolen property.

Missing boy's body found in car

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy, the object of a search by thousands of townspeople after his May 8 disappearance, has been found dead in the back of a station wagon parked outside his family's home, police said.

Police Chief Caleb Chandler told a news conference that the body of Matthew Roberts was found by passersby who smelled a strong odor from the car around 6:30 p.m. The body was found in a compartment in the back of the Chevrolet Impala station wagon, which had been loaned to the family by a friend, he said.

The cause of death was not immediately determined.

Around the time the body was found, townspeople had been holding a forum on missing children in the junior high school auditorium.

Matthew's parents, Geoff and Debbie Roberts, were at the meeting along with a psychologist and other experts. A note was brought in notifying the family that the child's body had been found.

Outside, Mrs. Roberts collapsed. "Oh, no! Oh, my God," she cried out, then fainted. Her husband, who was in tears, had to carry her off.

"We're all saddened and depressed to learn the child is dead. That's not what we had been praying for," said Clovis Mayor James B. Moss.

Up to 10,000 townspeople had joined in the search for Matthew after his disappearance, and divers had searched a local lake twice. Clovis has a population of about 35,000. Reported sightings of the boy came in from Roswell, 100 miles southwest of here, and from nearby Texas.

"This search really brought the city together," Moss said. "They pulled together, they were focused. It's just awful that it ended that way."

CLOVIS, N.M. — Parents Geoff and Debbie Roberts hold a picture of their six-year-old son Matthew, who disappeared May 8, in this file photo. Matthew's body was found in a car parked in front of the family home.

"We're all saddened and depressed to learn the child is dead. That's not what we had been praying for." — Clovis Mayor James B. Moss.

The child disappeared May 8 after he was left with his 76-year-old grandmother, Evelyn Guaidabasso, while his mother drove to a local store. The child apparently tried to follow his mother and ran out of the house before his grandmother could stop him.

Mrs. Roberts said she had asked Matthew if he wanted to come with her, and he had replied: "No, I'm just going to stay here and play. Bring me a surprise."

Mrs. Guaidabasso, who lives with the family, said five minutes after Mrs. Roberts left, Matthew ran through the house, calling, "Mommy, Mommy." She changed from her bathrobe into street clothes to catch him, she said, but he was already gone.

There were reports that the child had been seen at least three times within hours after he left his home that day. He was said to have been seen alone at a car wash across the street from the junior high school; at a baseball field; and running down an alley.

The Friends of Matthew Foundation last week conducted a nationwide mailing of information on the boy's disappearance. The information was sent to 28,000 police departments, hospitals and places that deal with young people.

Candidates hitting the airwaves

AUSTIN (AP) — Coming soon to a TV screen near you: campaign commercials.

Well before the traditional Labor Day start of the political season, some Republican candidates for statewide office will be hitting Texas televisions with a multimillion-dollar advertising blitz.

Wes Gilbreath, GOP candidate for land commissioner, already has aired a commercial attacking incumbent Democrat Garry Mauro.

Within the next six weeks, GOP lieutenant governor hopeful Rob Mosbacher will follow suit.

Spokesmen for Mosbacher and Gilbreath said the decisions to purchase early air time were influenced by Clayton Williams' successful bid for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

Williams, a millionaire oilman, hit the airwaves more than six months before the March primary, and saw his campaign go from a mere asterisk to a runaway GOP nomination.

"I think Clayton Williams had the wisdom to see the advantages of early television advertising," said Mark Sanders, press secretary for Mosbacher.

"Clayton Williams, before he went on the air in September, had about 12 percent name identification. After he went on for that six-week period, it was almost saturation-level," Sanders said.

Dick Leggett, media consultant for both Williams and Gilbreath, said the strategy is similar for Gilbreath now.

"What Gilbreath has to do is get people talking about his race, and that's what Claytie had to do," he said.

Mosbacher's initial campaign spots likely won't be attacks on his opponent, Democrat Bob Bullock, state comptroller since the mid-1970s.

Rather, Sanders said, the commercials will focus on "Rob's experience as a businessman and the need for new leadership from outside Austin."

The early advertisements introducing voters to well-funded Republican candidates undoubtedly will be attacked by Democrats.

Trinity River beginning to recede

LIVINGSTON (AP) — Workers today continued shoring up neighborhoods threatened by the rain-swollen Trinity River, whose floodwaters have chased thousands to higher ground and forced engineers to reroute trains.

In Livingston and at Liberty, federal and state officials briefed local agencies Wednesday about programs available to people displaced by the floods, which were triggered by torrential rains some three weeks ago 200 miles to the north.

The river at a depth of nearly 30 feet is more than 6 feet above flood stage and above the 29-foot record set in 1942, said officials at the Trinity River Authority.

Volunteers in Liberty County

"This is a very difficult situation. We sustained hurricanes, earthquakes on the West Coast and tornadoes in the Midwest. It's a battle we're all in against now of how long can we sustain." — Jim Johnson, spokesman for Southern Pacific Railways.

along the lower Trinity River are shoring up levees in three areas to keep floodwaters from swamping expensive homes in the Travis Park subdivision and other parts of the city.

"It certainly is a strain," Liberty City Manager Roy Bennett said. "But let me tell you one thing: They're very enthusiastic." Southern Pacific Railway workers are continuing a vigil they began a week ago to save the company's "Sunset Route" trestle across the Trinity River just outside Liberty, spokesman Jim Johnson said.

In addition to carrying a dozen freight trains a day, Southern Pacific's line also is Amtrak's main route between New Orleans and Los Angeles.

Fine threat slows anti-abortionists

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The Rev. J. Lee Simmons isn't sure his Operation Rescue followers are willing to ante up in their fight to stop abortion since the U.S. Supreme Court raised the stakes. The high court Monday upheld a ban on Operation Rescue demonstrations aimed at preventing women from entering New York City-area abortion clinics. A week earlier, the court left intact a ban on Operation Rescue blockades in Atlanta. "There's a small handful determined to carry on no matter what," said Simmons, head of Operation Rescue in central New York. "But for the average guy in an office, or the homemaker with children, the price is getting too high to pay. I own a house, I have four children and a ministry. I can't afford big fines and long jail sentences. Not many people can."

The rulings may force Operation Rescue to change its tactics but are not expected to have a significant bearing on the abortion debate, some observers say.

Honoring those who die 'Unknown'

CHICAGO (AP) — They die on lonely streets, in shelters and in empty apartments, with no friends or kin to shed tears of grief. But thanks to Earl Lewis, the hundreds of men and women who die penniless, homeless or friendless each year in Cook County are honored in a memorial service designed to add dignity to their deaths. "I'm just a concerned Christian citizen who feels that more recognition should be given to the unknown and forgotten members of our community," Lewis said before Wednesday's service. The names of 170 men and women who died forgotten over the past seven months were read during a service at the Chicago Temple, a United Methodist church. "We come today to remember the names of those who died unknown to anybody but God," the Rev. Eugene Winkler, the temple's pastor, said to open the 45-minute service. Lewis, an administrative assistant for an insurance agency, wouldn't say what led him to create the service, but he hinted he's known hard times. The Cook County medical examiner's office provides Lewis with the names of those whose bodies aren't claimed after about two months. It also pays for a mass burial held every other month.

Colorado thrift scrutiny growing

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the savings and loan crisis deepens, a key congressional committee plans to intensify its investigation of one of the costliest thrift failures by looking into government regulators' role in the debacle. The House Banking Committee finished two days of hearings Wednesday on the $1 billion collapse of Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association of Denver. Several witnesses — including President Bush's son Neil, a former director of Silverado — appeared at the request of the committee. Neil Bush told the banking committee that his business relationships didn't conflict with his role as a director of Silverado. He said allegations of conflict of interest from federal regulators are frivolous. Bush said his business relationships with two of Silverado's major borrowers, developers Kenneth Good and Bill Walters, "don't create a conflict in fact or in law." Regulators have alleged that loans by Silverado to the two were a conflict of interest for Bush, who had oil and gas business deals with the men.

Emigrant waiting

HONG KONG — A queue of Hong Kong residents outside the U.S. Consulate General Wednesday wait for visas for the U.S. Approximately 10 percent of the consulate's 9,200 applications monthly are for emigrant documents, from people whom many believe are concerned over China's 1997 takeover of the British Colony.

Pennies prompting real sentimentality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans hate being nickel-and-dimed, but try to take away their pennies and they get downright sentimental. A Gallup survey released Wednesday showed nearly two out of three penny-pinching Americans give no quarter to an idea floating in Congress to have cash transactions rounded off to the nearest 5 cents. A House Banking subcommittee requested a study on the idea — which the Gallup respondents obviously considered penny-ante — as part of another bill that would replace the one-dollar bill with a coin. The proposal would keep pennies as legal tender "to a maximum of 25 cents, only if used in quantities divisible by 5 without fraction or remainder." That's the legislative way of saying you could use up your pennies only in groups of five and no more than 25 at one time. Rubbish, say 62 percent of the Americans surveyed, who find the idea penny-wise and pound-foolish. Some people might regard the penny as a nuisance. Stores often keep a cup of pennies at the cash register so customers don't have to dig to the bottoms of their purses and pockets for lint covered coins. Pennies no longer have much use. Games at penny arcades cost 50 cents. Penny gumballs are still available out of drugstore machines. Few people even pitch pennies anymore. The most common use of pennies is to help pay for items priced at levels not divisible by five. But introduce a bill in Congress to do away with them, and Americans begin to sound like Benjamin Franklin. "Almost all Americans recognize the penny as a historical example of thrift and resourcefulness," the survey said, with 92 percent agreeing with the statement that the penny is "a longstanding tradition in this country." Sixty-two percent said they opposed its demise. The survey, commissioned by a group called Americans for Common Cents, also showed people have common-sense concerns — for example, how many merchants will round down their prices? The pending House bill, introduced last year by Rep. Jimmy Hayes, D-La., calls for rounding the sales price down to the nearest nickel if the price ends in 1, 2, 6 or 7 cents; the price would be rounded up if the sum ends in 3, 4, 8 or 9 cents.

Canadian protesters block bridges

WINDSOR, Ontario (AP) — Canadian truck drivers blocked commercial border crossings to protest proposed tax increases and the U.S.-Canadian free-trade agreement but said their gripe isn't with American truckers. More than 300 truckers parked their rigs along more than three miles of the highway leading to the Ambassador Bridge on Wednesday. About two dozen rigs also were on the bridge, blocking truck traffic from Detroit. In Sarnia, hundreds of truckers at the Blue Water Bridge idled their rigs, putting truck traffic between Sarnia and Port Huron, Mich., on hold. Authorities at the bridges said cars were crossing without delay. The Ontario protests began Tuesday. Quebec truckers, meanwhile, continued to prevent U.S. trucks from leaving or entering the province. That protest began Monday. The Canadian drivers complain that U.S. drivers can undercut them because they aren't paying nearly as much in taxes.

Broadcasters calling off mission

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Organizers of the Goddess of Democracy radio ship said today they have canceled plans to beam pro-democracy messages to China because of setbacks in obtaining crucial broadcasting equipment. "It was a difficult decision. We are forced to abandon the broadcasting project," said Xu Tianfang, deputy secretary of the A Boat for China Association, one of the main organizers. He said organizers would sell the ship at auction and distribute tapes of the planned broadcasts to radio stations that can help transmit the messages to China. The organizers said they will formally announce the decision at news conferences in Taipei and Tokyo Friday. They had hoped to begin broadcasting to China before June 4, the first anniversary of China's crackdown on the pro-democracy movement. The ship takes its name from a statue built by students in Tiananmen Square during the demonstrations. Organizers have rejected the claim that their broadcasts would violate international law.

Soviet: Move to market economy

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Nikolai I. Ryzhkov told the Soviet people today they must shift from a centrally planned economy to a market economy, and must brace for high unemployment and inflation during an expected two-year recession. "Our decision is made. We have to move to the market," Ryzhkov said in a nationally televised address. Kremlin officials are proposing a radical five-year reform, and they want the plan to be approved in the first national referendum in Soviet history. No date has been set for the referendum. Bread prices will at least double on July 1, he said, and starting next Jan. 1 other food prices will double on the average. Meat prices will increase by 2.3 times and fish prices by 2.5 times, he said.

Ripoff in the national parks

At Yosemite National Park, MCA, the private company that runs the hotels and other concessions, currently pays the government less than 1 percent of its revenues for an exclusive contract. And Yosemite isn't the only place where the park service has virtually given away the store. Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan wants to put an end to those sweetheart deals; but he's running into stiff resistance from — where else? — the companies that have been profiting from them.

An unpublished Interior Department audit found that in 1988, concessionaires in the national parks took in $490 million but only paid $12.5 million in franchise fees — a shamefully low 2.5 percent rate of return for the taxpayers. Overall, the report estimates, the government lost $80 million in revenues between 1984 and 1988 because of these "inadequate" fees, and that it will be shortchanged another $100 million over the next five years unless the contracts are overhauled.

Although the concessionaires dispute some of those estimates, and though they point out that many of the agreements can't be rewritten until they expire, no matter how much money the government is losing, they concede there's a need for higher fees in general. That doesn't mean they are all ready to embrace the 22 percent rate of return that the park service recently negotiated at Yellowstone Park. But it's not the fees so much as some of Lujan's other ideas for reform that worry them most.

Lujan wants to put relations between the parks and the concessions companies on a more equal footing. Currently each park negotiates its own contract. Most park rangers, however, aren't trained to deal with the professional negotiators and high-powered lawyers that these companies send to the bargaining table. To protect the public interest, Lujan wants to give individual park managers more of the backup they need.

At the same time, he wants to open the contracts for truly competitive bidding. Now anyone can bid when a contract comes due for renewal, but the rules give incumbent concessionaires the inside track. He wants shorter terms for new contracts — no more 20-year deals. And he wants to make clear that anything the companies build in the parks in the future will belong to the public. Under many contracts today, even if a concessionaire goes out of business, the government has to buy back its facilities or the company can sell them to someone else.

Lujan is on the right track. With MCA leading the pack, however, the concessionaires so far have displayed much of the same resistance to reform that has become all too familiar in MCA's management of Yosemite. To stop that sort of arrogance, Congress and the administration must make it clear they are going to stand with the secretary, for the sake of the parks, the public and the budget.

Heckling not what it used to be

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — President Bush recently counseled Mikhail S. Gorbachev to shrug off the heckling he got at a May Day parade, suggesting the Soviet leader "ought to come join some of the parades I go to."

But actually Bush has had it easy. Signs waved in his face are just as likely to make whimsical comments about broccoli these days as denounce U.S. policy in Central America.

And some hecklers have gone so far as to buy tickets to gain legal admission to Republican fund-raisers — a form of protest that activists of the 1960s and 70s would never have dreamed of doing.

As he crisscrosses the country giving speeches and raising funds for Republican candidates, Bush is seldom confronted with the angry crowds that dogged and sometimes drowned out other presidents.

It may be a sign of the times, but protesters don't seem very angry these days.

Last Sunday, Bush was on his way to a speech in Portland, Ore., when a passenger train drew abreast of his motorcade on tracks that paralleled the highway. Two passengers, a man and a woman, recognized the president and both began making obscene gestures at him from the train window.

This went on for several minutes as the train and motorcade kept precise pace. Bush looked at the couple and nodded politely. Finally, the two stopped gesturing and both began waving at the president. "Hello Mr. President," the words formed by the woman said.

At an event earlier this week in Los Angeles, where Bush gave a neighborhood speech praising community anti-drug efforts, one heckler within easy earshot of Bush screamed: "Contras. Cocaine. El Salvador. It's all your fault."

Bush looked at him quizzically. "Oliver North. The CIA. The homeless," the man shouted, repeating the same words over and over again.

Bush shrugged. Others in the crowd told the man to keep quiet.

At two fund-raisers this year, hecklers who interrupted Bush's speeches turned out to have purchased tickets to get in — at several hundred dollars apiece.

More often than not, demonstrators at Bush's speeches complain for a few minutes, then sit down and keep quiet.

Protesters who show up at Bush events most frequently complain about U.S. support for El Salvador, Bush's anti-abortion stance and his position on feminist issues. There also usually are several signs calling attention to environmental issues or lamenting levels of spending on AIDS research and for the homeless.

But there also are more and more broccoli signs.

Ever since Bush declared war on broccoli, there have been a myriad of broccoli signs at Bush events, some of them nasty, most of them good-natured. One proclaimed "Bush Beats Broccoli!" and bore a cartoon of Bush in boxing trunks, standing victoriously over a fallen broccoli stalk.

Restaurants sometimes bear signs with variations on this theme: "We don't serve broccoli, come on in Mr. President."

Bush's tendency to meet with various interest groups may help mute some of the criticism — even though it may also spawn it in some unexpected areas.

The president's decision to include several gay rights activists at a White House ceremony to sign legislation to crack down on so-called "hate crimes" won him plaudits from gay organizations.

But partly as a result of those invitations, Baptists withdrew an invitation to Bush to speak at their convention this June in New Orleans.

Give us a name to hate

By ART BUCHWALD
"There's something missing from the S&L scandal," Tom Jolly told me.

"What's that?"

"There are no names. How can people scoop up $500 billion and we don't even know who they are?"

"What about Charles Keating? He's a name."

"He's not a household name like the guys in Watergate. At least with Watergate we knew who did it to us. I think that the rule should be if someone walks away with more than $100 billion, the public ought to be told who he is."

"You can't compare Watergate with the S&L scandals."

"Why not?" Tom asked.

"Because Watergate was a crime of passion. The S&L rip-off was a combination of ignorance and greed."

"That's why there are no S&L names. You don't think that Nixon, Haldeman, Ehrlichman or Colson would steal the savings of widows and orphans, do you?"

"What about the five senators who made life easy for Charlie Keating when the feds were after him?" he asked.

"They're small potatoes and don't belong in the same league with the men and women who sank 500 of the biggest S&Ls in the country. Your problem is that you are looking for someone to hate because you and every other American are being stuck with the tab."

"It's true that a good deal of the $500 billion went to S&L executives for wine, women and lawyers. But you can't demand your pound of flesh just because somebody is driven by avarice and the will to win."

Tom said, "Irrigate didn't involve as much money but at least it had someone you could point a finger at with contempt. Take Ollie North or General Secord or Admiral Poindexter. Americans had a rooting interest in what happened to them. We know less about the S&Ls than Ronald Reagan remembers about Irrigate."

"I'm sure that the administration is working on finding the wrongdoers right now," I assured him.

"Why weren't they working on it before the money was stolen?"

"Because at that time the savings and loans were deregulated. If you watch an industry which is deregulated, it could appear that it is being regulated."

"The government had assurances from the owners of the S&Ls that they would operate strictly within the law."

"Unfortunately, under deregulation what is within the law to one banker is not necessarily within the law to another. What more can the Treasury be expected to do?"

"I want them to round up the usual suspects, march them into the courtroom and, at the end of the trial, sentence them to community service scrubbing the marble floors of the S&Ls they drove into the ground. I'd like to see their faces plastered on the front pages of the newspapers. I also want them to return all the money that they gave to their girlfriends before they went bankrupt. Then I think they should go to jail."

"You're asking a lot for the looting of a paltry half a trillion dollars. I have nothing against going public about those who filched the money, but the purpose of prison is to rehabilitate people. If they are sent to the slammer, they won't be any the wiser about S&Ls than they are now," I said.

"So what! If Leona Helmsley can go to jail, why can't the S&L guys?"

"We all wish we knew the answer to that question."

City ordinance shouldn't apply

To the editor:
The city council voted to enforce a city ordinance, against me.

The ordinance is about picking-up trash inside the city limits of Big Spring. But I have a trash service in the county.

The council wants me to pay them $250.00 for a permit to dump at the landfill and to pass through the city with my trash, going from one side of the county to the other. If I am stopped inside the city limits without a permit, they can fine me $200.

When I paid for license plates on my vehicles, that was my permit to go anywhere I want.

I think you people had better think about getting a new council, because they are not representing you or me.

I thank it's more like the Soviet Union.

Remarks are insulting to all

To the editor:
The only defense Mr. Williams has in regard to his remarks of rape, prostitution and sexism is that he is "just being honest". Am I correct in thinking that if I were a rapist, thief, drug dealer, etc., I would be an acceptable candidate as long as I was honest about these faults?

To quote from a letter in the Dallas Morning News on May 14, 1990 — "when Mr. Williams displays his repulsive and dangerous attitudes toward women he isn't just 'hurtin' some feelin's', he's promoting attitudes that violate the God-and-Constitution-given rights of women."

Every woman should feel as insulted as I do by Mr. Williams' remarks and every man who has any decency or sensitivity at all should also feel insulted.

He has no respect for women, and we do not need a man like him as governor of Texas.

Senate votes to uphold ban on semiautomatic assault weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 52-48 today to restrict the import and manufacture of semiautomatic assault weapons, handing a surprising defeat to the National Rifle Association.

"These are combat weapons," Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said shortly before the vote to bar imports of five foreign-made assault weapons and ban domestic manufacture of four others.

The vote came as lawmakers worked on a larger anti-crime bill that also includes provisions to restore capital punishment for 30 federal crimes, including presidential assassination.

Opponents of the restrictions said they would press for a second vote on the issue later in the day. The first vote on semiautomatic weapons came on a move by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, to strip from the legislation the restrictions on nine different types of weapons. The outcome represented a stunning setback for the National Rifle Association, which had lobbied hard to kill the curbs. Supporters of the ban had said over the weekend they held little hope of winning.

They said they expected to face opposition on the campaign trail this fall because of the legislation.

Senate critics called for tougher criminal penalties in place of curbs on guns.

"Let's try 'em and fry 'em," Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., told the Senate Tuesday night. "That will start a lot of action in the United States and we won't have to worry about this stuff."

"I know the political liability, it is no secret that some of the people on my staff are urging me . . . not to vote for this. We're not going to be around here forever and we ought to be thinking about what we can contribute." — Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill.

DeConcini, the chief sponsor of the restrictions, scoffed at claims that they would place a burden on the hunters. He pointed to a picture of a Street Sweeper, a sinister-looking, round-drummed semiautomatic shotgun of African origin that he called "an apartheid control weapon."

"Its not going to be used on deer because it would absolutely blow the deer to pieces," DeConcini said. But Hatch told the Senate that "there is nothing in the Constitution that limits the 2nd Amendment to ownership of guns for hunting."

There is no legislation in the House at present corresponding to the Senate crime bill.

The bill would ban the import of five types of semiautomatic assault weapons and outlaw the manufacture of four others in this country.

Other provisions would restore capital punishment for 30 federal crimes including presidential assassination. The measure would overhaul the way courts review the constitutionality of criminal trials.

It would allow use of evidence gathered with flawed warrants and fine tune the money-laundering laws. It also would allow death row inmates to use statistics to prove claims that their sentences were the result of racial bias.

A campaign for curbs on assault weapons began in January 1989 after a deranged gunman with an AK-47 semiautomatic assault rifle opened fire on a Stockton, Calif., school yard at recess time, leaving five children dead and 30 others wounded.

The Senate held its first vote on the issue Tuesday, killing 82-17 an attempt by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to enlarge the list of banned weapons from nine to 21.

Metzenbaum sought to assure lawmakers that they could weather criticism from the National Rifle Association.

"Let us show some courage here today," he said. "Let us stand up to the National Rifle Association and stand up with the police officers of this country."

"I know the political liability, it is no secret that some of the people on my staff are urging me . . . not to vote for this," Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said at another point. But he added: "We're not going to be around here forever and we ought to be thinking about what we can contribute."

bachev is expected to announce a series of drastic price increases today.

Consultant: Gubernatorial race has become political gender battle

HOUSTON (AP) — Political consultants say Republican nominee Clayton Williams' gubernatorial campaign against Democratic State Treasurer Ann Richards has ignited a political gender fight, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

In a copyright story, the Chronicle reported that consultants recently told Williams the "gender gap is incredible."

"We have created a battle of the sexes," the New York consulting firm of Dresner, Sykes, Jordan and Townsend told Williams this month in an internal report.

The remarks were part of an analysis of a poll conducted for the Williams campaign in early May, the Chronicle reported. A Republican source showed the Chronicle a Williams campaign handbook that included the report.

A survey of 900 Texas voters showed Williams with 50 percent of the vote and Ms. Richards with 38 percent. The remainder were undecided.

A breakdown of the results showed that men favored Williams 60 percent to 30 percent, while women favored Ms. Richards 46 percent to 41 percent. The margin of error was about 4 percentage points.

Williams, a businessman who wears a cowboy hat and boots and has ridden horses in some television ads, has made some remarks criticized as insensitive to women.

The consultants said Williams could boost his overall vote with the support of women who don't identify with either party.

Voters apparently are making up their minds about the race unusually early, the consultants said. The election is Nov. 6.

And those undecided may wind up not voting at all because of distaste for both candidates, according to the consultants.

"Our voters do not like her. Her voters do not like us," the consultants' report said. "If the election were held today, many of the undecideds would not bother to vote."

The report said the ultimate campaign goal is to achieve 56 percent of the vote.

Other goals are developing and implementing a "sound women's issue agenda" and fighting "the abortionfeminist fight early."

Williams opposes abortion except in cases of rape, incest or endangerment of the mother's life, while Ms. Richards supports personal choice on abortion.

Other Williams campaign goals stated in the handbook were:

"Find two to five people that know her (Ms. Richards) well that are on the outs."

"Activate conservatives and evangelicals."

"Aim to draw 55 percent of the Hispanic vote and 20 percent of the black vote."

Public Notice
Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas to add a new optional service for business customers called Departmentalized Customer Billing Reports. The proposed effective date for this service is June 25, 1990.
Departmentalized Customer Billing Reports will enable the business customer to facilitate rapid verification and approval of complex bills. These detailed Departmentalized Customer Billing Reports will show charges specifically related to each customer-specified name or identifier on a separate, easily identifiable report page. Business customers may choose from seven different formats for the reports. Departmentalized Customer Billing Reports are designed to serve as a categorized supplement to the business customer's regular bill, and are in addition to the customer's regular bill.
There will be a $20.00 monthly charge for this service. In addition, a charge ranging from $10.00 to $50.00 per month will also apply for each of the seven supplemental reports. A $1.00 non-recurring charge, per billing number, will apply to establish the service.
Departmentalized Customer Billing Reports have been forecasted to generate first-year revenues of $848,812.
Persons who wish to comment on this application should notify the Commission by June 15, 1990. Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or you may call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 450-0227, or (512) 450-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

Woman concerned for beer-sipping child

DEAR ABBY: My son-in-law thinks it's perfectly all right to give his 3-year-old son sips of his beer and wine. He has been doing this for some time. I am extremely concerned over this, as the child seems to like beer and wine, and there is a history of alcoholism on both sides of the family. My daughter has expressed her disapproval of this, but he pays no attention to her.

Abby, please comment on this subject, as my son-in-law is extremely stubborn and nothing my daughter and I have said changes his mind. Maybe he will believe you. — CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: I hope he believes me when I say — unequivocally — that giving a child sips of beer and wine is child abuse, whether there is a history of alcoholism in the family or not.

*** Regarding your advice to "Sad," who had strong suspicions that her trusted friend was stealing from her, add this to the thousands of letters you'll receive from lawyers throughout the country. Our judicial system requires jurors to be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt, not a "shadow of a doubt," as you stated. It is unlikely that any of our overworked prosecutors would even attempt to overcome the burden of "shadow of a doubt," coupled with a plea of "not guilty."

Further, since it was painfully obvious that "Sad's" friend was stealing from her, the friendship can never be the same, as she will always have a reasonable doubt as to his honesty. — ROYCE GUINN, ATTORNEY AT LAW, CLEVELAND

DEAR MR. GUINN: I did not receive "thousands" of letters advising me that the correct term was "beyond a reasonable doubt," but I did hear, from half a dozen sharp-eyed readers. Thanks to the others who wrote — two from New York, one from Florida and three from Nevada!

***
DEAR ABBY: As the end of the school year draws near again, please remind high school graduates not to send graduation announcements to their teachers.

My husband has been a teacher for 26 years, and every year we are swamped with graduation invitations. The same is true for weddings, baby showers and bridal showers.

Some even write, "I was in your class when I was in 9th grade" or, "I am So-and-So's daughter."

Abby, even sending a card of congratulations can be too expensive for our budget, and time-consuming as well. We send gifts and cards to those we feel close to — whether they send announcements or not. If graduates, brides-to-be and expectant mothers would realize how many students their teachers have had during their teaching careers, it would be a big favor to the teachers. Please print this. — NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: You make a good point. Well-meaning students, please take notice.

1948 Hyperions host luncheon

Twenty members of the 1948 Hyperion Club met May 17 for a luncheon at the Big Spring Country Club, marking the last meeting of the year.

Shirley Shroyer installed the incoming officers for the club by using the theme "Good News in the Form of Bells." As each officer was installed, she was presented with a bell and her office was compared to the sound of a bell. The new officers are: President, Joanne Forrest; vice president, Elizabeth Stewart; recording secretary, Margie Hill; treasurer, Brenda Moore; corresponding secretary, Betty Thompson; reporter, Norma Crockett; and parliamentarian, Dolores Currie. The next meeting will be in September.

BS Woman's Club meets

The GFWC-TFWC Big Spring Woman's Club, formerly known as Big Spring Junior Woman's Club, held its annual installation banquet Friday at the Big Spring Country Club.

Four donations were made to community groups. Barbara Brumley was recognized as "Clubwoman of the Year" for her dedication and hard work, while Cloetta Shotts was chosen as Rookie of the Year.

New officers for 1990-1991 are: President, Judi Johnston; president-elect, Lisa Brooks; first vice president, Donna Tune; second vice president, Donna Palmer; recording secretary, Casie Fillingim; corresponding secretary, Barbara Brumley; treasurer, Ellen Phillips; press reporter, Debbie Rutherford; parliamentarian, Debbie Wegman.

Incoming President Judi Johnston chose as her theme "Coming together is a beginning, staying together is progress, working together is success."

Military

Army Reserve Pvt. 1st Class Cynthia M. Martinez has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

She is the daughter of Connie G. Torres, 1502 Oriole St.

Her husband, Oswaldo, is the son of Helen S. Martinez, 311 N.W. Seventh St.

The private is a 1975 graduate of Big Spring High School.

Pvt. Brannon S. Henderson has graduated from the power generation equipment repair course at Fort Belvoir, Va.

During the course, students were taught to maintain and repair electric and hydraulic control systems of mobile power generators.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Henderson, Rural Route 1.

The private is a 1987 graduate of Coahoma High School.

The Best family tradition

Coahoma

Clara Justice

When Wendell Best walks across the stage on graduation night he will be carrying on a family tradition that spans four generations and 67 years. In 1923, Mrs. Doris Hale (Doris Wolf), Wendell's paternal great grandmother, graduated from the first high school within Coahoma's city limits.

Mrs. Hale is the oldest Coahoma High School graduate. She has seen many changes in the school and the school system and is very proud of the school district. Her daughter, Rae Nell Best, graduated from Coahoma in 1947, and has been employed by the elementary school as material clerk for the past 19 years.

In 1969, Alvin Best, Rae Nell's son, graduated from Coahoma. Alvin was injured in an industrial accident several years ago, but is active in the community and is always willing to share his knowledge of carpentry with friends and neighbors. Wendell will enter an aeronautical mechanics school in Lubbock soon after his graduation.

Wendell too, has seen many changes in the school, but he seemed most impressed with the difference in class sizes. There were five seniors in his great-grandmother's class, next week, 64 seniors will join him on stage.

Student of the Week

Cade Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Park, is Student of the Week. Cade is in Mrs. Nelson's third grade class. Congratulations, Cade.

45th anniversary

Rufus and Theresa Parks celebrated their 45th anniversary Monday. The couple enjoyed a quiet dinner at a local restaurant. According to Theresa, they are looking forward to 45 more years together. Congratulations.

New York plans for safe senior drivers

SILVER CREEK, N.Y. (AP) — Lonnie "Layne" Hall lives alone in his house on the outskirts of this village, so his driver's license is also his ticket to independence.

The license says he's 110. He insists he's five years younger. Either way, he is New York's oldest driver, according to the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

"How many times a week do I go out driving?" said Hall. "Oh, whenever I have to — maybe once or twice. I take my laundry out. I buy my groceries."

Hall has a clean record, but the DMV is reviewing regulations dealing with the fastest-growing segment of the driving population: senior citizens.

New York has 1.9 million drivers over 60, said John Boffa of the governor's Traffic Safety Committee, which is conducting the review along with the state Office for the Aging.

"The basic directive was to identify ways to make driving safer for elderly people without imposing additional burdens on them," said Boffa.

Studies show the eyes provide 95 percent of the information drivers use to make decisions, said Boffa.

So, the width of stripes on the New York State Thruway — 559 miles from New York City to Niagara Falls — has been increased from four to six inches. The rest of the state's interstates also will get wider stripes, Boffa said.

And over the next few years, the Thruway's 15,000 signs will be replaced with ones that have greater reflectivity and larger letters.

Those changes are relatively easy. "The more complicated issue is how to deal with the drivers," Boffa said.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, drivers in most age groups can expect to be involved in an average of five crashes per million vehicle miles traveled.

The exceptions: the youngest and oldest drivers. For teen-agers, the figure is about 30; for those 80 and over it is close to 40.

Three states — Indiana, Illinois and New Hampshire — and the District of Columbia require drivers to retake road tests after a certain age, generally 75.

But Boffa said New York officials are not convinced of the merits of that because it would overwhelm the Department of Motor Vehicles.

It also would be discriminatory, said Steve Stiles at the American Association for Retired Persons.

"The difficulty we have is when a state selects older drivers and says, at age 65, you go through some special testing different from everybody else," he said.

"Let's do better testing," Stiles said, "but let's do it on a performance basis, not age."

Boffa said New York is moving deliberately as it considers older drivers.

"The automobile provides mobility and individuality for people in many cases," he said. "Self-esteem is pretty deeply interwoven with the ability to drive. When you take that away from people, it can be pretty devastating."

In rural areas, driving is essential.

"Automobiles are the only means of transportation for people to get to the doctor's office and the pharmacy," Boffa said.

"We're trying to balance safety considerations with concern and sensitivity to the elderly population," he added. "It's not an easy dilemma to resolve, to be frank."

home witticisms and country banjo picking, Tom Hafford, right, has sold the business. He still plans to play banjo for the new owners.

Diet becomes more important with age

As people age, their metabolism slows down, and that can mean extra weight for those who don't watch their calorie consumption. According to Lu Ann Latham, a registered dietitian, calorie needs decrease 20 percent from age 20 to 60, or 5 percent each decade.

Maintaining proper weight is possible through calorie monitoring and exercise. Special diets that are for controlled fats, diabetes, low sodium or weight control are sometimes necessary as people age.

To achieve a reduction in calorie amounts, some recipes can be adapted to use less sugar and fat, Latham said. For instance, the four tablespoons of butter usually called for in prepared macaroni and cheese can be reduced to two with little change in the result. The same practice often can be applied to many cookie recipes by reducing the sugar by a third to a half.

The important point to consider in fat consumption is the amount of saturated fat. Just because a food item is void of cholesterol doesn't mean it is without saturated fat, Latham said.

Some tips to consider in reducing cholesterol and saturated fat are to:

- Remember that food preparation methods can affect fat content. Baking, broiling, boiling, steaming and roasting are healthier than frying.

- Read all labels and make a list of packaged items that contain recommended ingredients.

Did anybody lose a horse?

BIG SPRING — The sheriff's department is looking for the owners of a stray horse found on Hwy. 350.

The sorrel male horse, with a star on his forehead and a right buck sock, is penned up on the property of a person who called in a report.

"Eventually, if no one claims it, we'll have to impound it," said Sheriff A.N. Standard.

"It'll be sold under the statutes for a strayed animal."
An impounded animal is held 30 days, he said. However, that procedure has not started yet. "We're not in an impounding period right now. We'll stay with it as long as the party in storage stays with it," he said.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

A person in the 2500 block of Ent reported a burglary. Thieves took three fishing poles valued at $150, a 12-gauge shotgun valued at $100, a tackle box valued at $100, a rod and reels valued at $60, quarters totaling $600 and beer valued at $50.

A person reported criminal mischief to a 1985 Nissan car that occurred in the 800 block of Marcy. Damage to a passenger window was estimated at $200.

A person in the 1800 block of Alabama reported criminal mischief to a storm door, a porch light, nine windows and 11 window screens. Damage was estimated at $227.

A person in the 1200 block of East 16th reported a retaliation incident. The victim reported that a person threatened him with bodily harm because of a case filed against the person.

A person reported criminal mischief to a car that occurred in the 3600 block of Tingle. Damage to a right front fender was estimated at $195.

Three businesses reported that forged checks were passed at that business during May.

A person in the 1200 block of Douglas reported a theft over $20/under $200. Thieves took a Goodyear tire and wheel and lug nuts.

Local nursing homes meet most federal standards

By PETER ROPER
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Three Big Spring nursing homes passed inspection on most of the federal standards for adequate nursing care, according to the latest survey of conditions at 15,000 nursing homes across the nation by the Department of Health and Human Services.

The inspections, done by state officials, checked on both medical services and living conditions at the nursing homes.

Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a private 33-bed skilled nursing center, received the highest score locally — passing inspection on 31 of 32 criteria that were highlighted in the federal survey. It was cited for not having a written health care plan for each patient.

Golden Plains Care Center, a private 150-bed nursing home that provides both skilled and intermediate care, passed inspection on 29 of the 32 criteria. It was cited for not providing daily personal hygiene to patients, dirty toilets and baths, and for administering drugs without written orders of the attending physician.

Mountain View Lodge, a private 92-bed facility that only provides intermediate care, also passed inspection on 29 out of 32 criteria. It was cited for not providing nursing services at all times, not tailoring menus to its patients, and for unsanitary food storage.

Both Golden Plains and Mountain View were also cited by inspectors for "compliance actions," meaning nursing home officials had to certify that improvements would be made.

Compliance actions can range from simple notice of violations and fines to license revocation.

According to HHS officials, nursing homes can provide two levels of care: skilled care, which requires 24-hour medical services; or intermediate care, in which patients are able to do more for themselves. Many nursing homes offer both levels of care, but the federal standards are more stringent for skilled nursing homes.

The 1989-90 survey, released today, is the second HHS has conducted. The nursing home industry has objected to the survey, arguing it will be used as a consumer guide. Federal officials stressed the inspection reports are only a "snapshot" of the quality of care at a particular nursing home.

HHS Secretary Dr. Louis Sullivan, however, said the survey should help consumers select a nursing home. "This report serves communities across the land by informing them about conditions in their local nursing homes," he said.

Dr. Paul Willging, executive vice president of the American Health Care Association, criticized the federal survey, calling it an incomplete picture of the care in nursing homes.

"Consumers must not consider the (HHS) report a substitute for visiting nursing homes during the selection process. Visiting and asking the right questions are essential," he said.

Anyone interested in filing a complaint or in obtaining inspection information about a nursing home in the state can telephone the Texas Health Department toll free at 1-800-252-9106.

Legal opinion leaves some boards in limbo

AUSTIN (AP) — Clarifications — but not major changes — are expected by week's end in an attorney general's opinion which has left the operations of many state governing boards in legal limbo.

But the governor's office says it wants a quick court challenge of the opinion by Attorney General Jim Mattox because of its potentially devastating effects.

"This whole thing is putting state government in a terrible quandary," said Rossanna Salazar, press secretary to Gov. Bill Clements.

At least 164 Clements appointees to state boards and commissions have been questioned by the Mattox opinion because their nominations weren't promptly confirmed by the Texas Senate.

Because of the opinion, several agency governing boards already have run into trouble.

The Texas Water Commission canceled its weekly meeting Wednesday. Other officials said the ruling could affect the business of some 50 more agencies, including the Public Utility Commission, Texas Air Control Board and the Public Finance Authority.

Ms. Salazar said it's unclear whether those appointees now are allowed to vote on state business, whether past actions their boards and commissions took are legal or even whether their expenses can legally be paid.

"The ramifications are tremendous. Just look at the Board of Pardons and Paroles. They are paroling people daily to make sure our prisons remain under the (court-ordered population limit)," Ms. Salazar said.

Mattox's opinion carries the weight of law unless it is overturned by a court.

The May 1 opinion said that if the governor makes an appointment when the Legislature isn't in session, the Senate must confirm that nomination during the next legislative session. If the Senate fails to confirm an appointment, that nomination is considered rejected.

The Senate, relying on earlier legal opinions dating to 1917, had assumed that appointees continue to serve on boards and commissions in the absence of a confirmation vote.

Although the attorney general is reviewing the legal opinion at the request of other state officials, Mattox spokesman Ron Dusek said Wednesday the basic thrust won't be changed.

Mattox said last week that actions taken by board members prior to May 1 are legal. Dusek said lawyers now are reviewing whether actions after the opinion was issued also are legal.

"That's the question that's up in the air and will be addressed," Dusek said. If the nominees' post-opinion actions aren't valid, he added, "That's a big problem, isn't it?"

James Huffines, the governor's appointments secretary, said the legal opinion is "paralyzing portions of state government" and met Tuesday with private attorneys to discuss possible court challenges of the Mattox ruling.

"The governor's office favors this type of immediate legal action," Ms. Salazar said.

However, the governor himself lacks the legal standing to make the challenge, she said. So it will be up to individual nominees to go to court.

"The governor isn't directly affected. The appointees are. Their actions are being affected," Ms. Salazar said.

Area briefs

Assaults are under investigation

BIG SPRING — Authorities are investigating the report of a series of aggravated sexual assaults on a child.

Big Spring Police Lt. Terry Chamness said the department received a report yesterday about assaults that have been occurring on the west end of the city. Chamness said that according to the report, a female child has suffered assaults over several months.

Chamness, who could give no more details in the case, said police and Children's Protective Services are investigating.

In an unrelated incident, police dropped their investigation of a reported aggravated assault with a motor vehicle. Chamness said the victim, who was not seriously injured when she was struck by a car Wednesday, declined to prosecute.

Driver charged in minor accident

BIG SPRING — Police say alcohol contributed to an accident Wednesday afternoon in the 1300 block of South Gregg that caused slight injuries to one person.

According to a police report, Rudy Bledsoe Green, 55, 106 W 16th, was attempting to turn right from Gregg Street into a parking lot. As Green slowed his car, a 1990 Honda Accord struck his vehicle from behind then fled the scene, the report said.

Police arrested Gary Lawrence Walker, 19, 2509 E. 23rd, and charged him with driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident and following too closely.

According to the report, Green was slightly injured but refused treatment.

Justice of Peace orders autopsy

BIG SPRING — An autopsy has been ordered to determine the cause of death for a Big Spring man found Wednesday afternoon in his home.

Justice of the Peace China Long said she has ordered an autopsy on Spencer Arp Jr., 32, 2514 Chanute, who was pronounced dead at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. Long said she wants an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death — Arp was young and had no history of medical problems that might have caused his death, she said.

"There were no overt signs of foul play," Long said. "It's my job to come up with the cause of death."

Long said pathologist Dr. Robert Rember probably will perform the autopsy Friday morning.

Big Spring Police Lt. Terry Chamness said police currently are not investigating the incident, which has been listed as an unattended death.

or get caught outside," Churchwell said. Others, she said, are safer in their own homes.

Cable subscribers will find themselves with a blank TV screen when a tornado is near, she said. The civil defense warning system is programmed to broadcast news and information through the cable system.

Others will hear radio broadcasts or the city civil defense warning sirens, she said. Churchwell said that when a tornado is sighted in the area, the important thing is to stay calm and remember these guidelines:

- Go into an interior closet or get into the bathtub. Stay away from windows and cover yourself to avoid injury from falling debris.
- If you are in a car or outside and far from a shelter, get into a culvert, ditch or low-lying area.
- Do not try to drive any distance to be with children or other family members or friends. Leave pets to fend for themselves and save your own life.
- Leave your safe place only when radio or TV broadcasts announce that the tornado has left the area.

Wollenzien said Hardy, who began his career in Big Spring at YMCA director, suggested holding the dinner to honor McMahon.

"He used to be a Y director here and Clyde was his first board president," Wollenzien said. "Bo has gone on and done a lot of things... and now he wants to honor Clyde by giving him a book he's written."

"This has grown out of his friendship. What is symbolic about it is that Clyde has been a pillar in volunteerism in this community for over 20 years."

Wollenzien said McMahon has been a member of the YMCA board for 20 years, and with his boards' direction the Y's endowment fund has grown to a healthy $700,000.

"He and Dr. Charles Warren, Dr. Floyd Mays, K.H. McGibbon and Jimmy Taylor worked on that for 20 years and it has just grown and grown," Wollenzien said of the cellars, he said.

Lack of public shelter space in the county might be a problem for some mobile home residents, he said, but they should be never stay in the home during high winds.

"If they hear that the mobile home is in the path of a tornado, they should leave immediately," he said.

Davenport said Stanton's emergency headquarters is the Martin County Courthouse. He said he unlocks it during severe storm warnings and when a tornado is sighted near the area so residents can use it as a shelter.

Churchwell said county and city-owned locations in Big Spring are maintained and operated during time of need by local officials. Wright said the VFD would assist county residents in getting to shelter during tornado and storm conditions.

The police department in Stanton is called out to alert residents and assist them in getting to safety, Davenport said.

In Big Spring there are several privately-owned shelters in banks and churches which would be left under the control of the owner, Churchwell said.

Former Steer All-American

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Former Big Spring High School 800-meter runner Ben Gonzales has made All-American status in his first year at South Plains College. Gonzales earned the honors at the National Junior College track in Odessa last week.

After running a 1:53.0 in the semifinals, Gonzales ran a 1:56.50 on a windy afternoon at Ratliff Stadium to finish fifth. The top six finishers in the national finals receive All-American honors. Gonzales had a season-best of 1:51.90.

Gonzales also had a good season in the classroom, posting a 3.0 grade point average. Ex-Steer Dennis Hartfield, also at South Plains, didn't fare so well at the national meet. Hartfield, the leadoff man in the 400 meter relay, and his teammates were disqualified in the finals. South Plains had one of the fastest JUCO times in the nation, running a 40.10.

Big comeback blocks out Suns

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — If NBA fans didn't appreciate Terry Porter before, they should now. The Portland playmaker orchestrated one of the biggest comebacks in playoff history Wednesday night as the Trail Blazers beat Phoenix 108-107 to take a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference finals.

The six-year pro from tiny Wisconsin-Stevens Point sank the two biggest shots of the game — a 3-pointer with 28.4 seconds to go and the game-winning 13-footer with 12.7 seconds to play.

"Terry Porter's been doing that for years," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "The only difference is he's never had national TV exposure to show it. He's been our game-winner all along. I can't tell you how many games he's won like that."

Porter is Portland's leading scorer in the playoffs and he relishes the chance to shoot in clutch situations.

"I've been shooting extremely well in the playoffs," he said. "Whenever I'm open, there's no hesitation."

Porter scored 23 of his 28 points in the second half after Portland fell behind by 18 at intermission. It equalled the second-biggest comeback from a halftime deficit in NBA playoff history. The only one that was bigger occurred 42 years ago, when Baltimore trailed Philadelphia 41-20 at the half but rallied to win 66-63.

"I can't think of another win that's as satisfying as this one," Adelman said.

The Suns must be wondering what it takes to win in Portland, where they've lost 19 in a row. The four Blazer homecourt victories over the Suns this season have been by a total of six points.

"It's a tough loss for us but it's not going to be the end of the world for this team," Phoenix coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "I have a lot of confidence in this team and our team will bounce back."

"Any time you lose a big lead and lose a game like that, you worry about it. All I can say is this team hasn't lost three games in a row all season long."

Games 3 and 4 are set for Friday and Sunday in Phoenix, and Porter isn't sure how much Wednesday night's collapse will affect the

State gold medalist links with Odessa

ODESSA — Big Spring High School senior Chris Minter has signed a scholarship agreement to run track at Odessa College.

Minter, a gold medal winner in the 800 meters at the state meet, signed the agreement Wednesday afternoon to run for coach Danny King's Wranglers. Odessa College is traditionally a track power. Last week they finished fourth in the National Junior College Championships at Ratliff Stadium.

More-than-likely Minter will run the half mile and possibly on the 1600 meter relay at Odessa College. He was a three-year letterman for coach Randy Britton's Steers. His sophomore year he ran a 2:04 800 meters. Last year he ran a 1:59.6.

This season he capped off a superb year by winning the 800 meters at state in a school record 1:55.2. In the 12 meets he ran the 800 meters in, he was undefeated. He broke the two minute barrier every time except once.

Minter was also a strong 400 meter runner, anchoring Big Spring's 1600 meter relay, which finished fifth at regional. Minter had a personal best of 47.8 on his split on the relay, and a 48.7 in the open 400.

At the state meet in Austin, he turned on a blistering kick to win the 800 by more than 10 meters. "I think he could've have run a 1:53 if there hadn't been a 28 miles per hour wind blowing," said coach Britton.

In winning the race, it gave Britton his first state champion since he has been track coach at Big Spring High School. The last Steer state champion was miler Ricky McCormick in 1975. Before that it was R.L. Lasater in the 100 yard dash in 1961.

The last Big Spring athlete to win a gold medal at the state track meet was long jumper Carla Jackson in 1981.

Coach Britton has high hopes for Minter. "He and Ben Gonzales (freshman at South Plains) are the best half-milers I've ever had," said Britton. "If Chris can stay in school and pass, he could be a national champion in the 800 meters."

Bench difference for Pistons

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Vinnie Johnson has come to symbolize the Detroit Pistons' deep bench strength for two reasons: hard work and luck.

Joe Dumars has been the headliner in the first two games of the Eastern Conference finals. But Johnson, the Microwave, has anchored a bench that is primarily responsible for the Pistons' 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series that resumes with afternoon games Saturday and Monday in Chicago.

The Pistons' bench, which outscored the Bulls' bench 148-102 during the regular season, has outscored the Chicago reserves 66-36 through the first two games. Johnson has led that assault with 28 points, nine rebounds, nine assists and a steal.

If the Bulls don't find a way to change that pattern, the Pistons soon will be on their way to the NBA Finals. Detroit is bidding to become the third team in league history to repeat as champion.

"Vinnie and Joe Dumars have played well the whole way," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "Our objective is to steal on in Chicago. I expect a very hard game on Saturday."

Johnson, an 11-year veteran, is averaging 11.5 points in the playoffs. Not bad for a 33-year-old guard who stands only 6-foot-2.

"Hard work and sometimes getting lucky bounces are the keys to my success, I guess," Johnson said. "The thing is, I'm not afraid to mix it up with the big boys. I'll take my chances."

The Pistons are 24-3 in playoff games the last two seasons and the bench has been one of the biggest keys to that success. In dispatching the New York Knicks in five games in the second round, Pistons' reserves outscored the Knicks 165-105, outrebounded them 69-49 and outshot them 50.7 percent to 38.4 percent.

"We've got to open it up," Chicago forward Scottie Pippen said. "We've got to play more solid. We've got an opportunity to beat this team in Chicago."

Ironically, the Bulls bench also played a key role in second-round play, outscoring Philadelphia's reserves 120-79 and outrebounding the 76ers bench 56-29.

"We showed we, too, have good bench strength," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said.

But turning back the 76ers isn't the same as defeating a team that thinks it has a date with destiny.

"We feel good about our position and just want to win one in Chicago," said Detroit's Mark Aguirre. "We have to go in and play the same type of game we have in the past."

The action now shifts to noisy Chicago Stadium, where the Bulls have a little history going for them. The Bulls are 5-0 at home during the playoffs, and their only win against the Pistons this season was in Chicago.

"An away game is an away game," Daly said. "Being home makes all the difference in the world. It basically changes your whole personality."

Last year, the Pistons won 15 of 17 games to wrap up their first championship. Both of their losses were to the Bulls, one of them in Chicago Stadium.

"With three days rest, we'll have an opportunity to collect ourselves," Paxson said. "We've got to come out and play. This team doesn't quit."

Atlanta will host '94 Super Bowl

IRVING (AP) — The NFL had Georgia and a loyal, longtime owner on its mind with the gift of a Super Bowl that will bring millions of dollars to the city of Atlanta in four years.

A presentation by Rankin Smith Sr., owner of the Atlanta Falcons, helped three-fourths of the owners decide on the fourth ballot to give Atlanta the 1994 Super Bowl.

Super Bowl XVIII will be played in the $210 million downtown "Georgia Dome."

The 1991 Super Bowl is in Tampa, the 1992 Super Bowl is in Minneapolis and the 1993 Super Bowl in Phoenix.

"It was Rankin Smith who scored the touchdown," Atlanta mayor Maynard Jackson said. "He's the one that got the ball over the goal. With him we were solid gold."

The two-day spring meeting was expected to conclude today.

The owners discussed labor relations, corporate ownership, lotteries and relationships with colleges on Wednesday after the Atlanta announcement was made by commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

Jack Donlan, the Management Council executive director, said he and a panel of four club executives had come up with a revised financial package for the players that would double their benefits.

"The owners have a lot of money and we would like to share some of it," Donlan said. "It's a shame they can't. It makes no sense. We want to give some important benefits."

The NFLPA, led by Gene Upshaw, said it has decertified the union and will see the NFL owners in court.

"We need someone to dance with," Donlan said.

"The players association is treating its own members as second-class citizens," Tagliabue said. "There is a strong feeling among the owners that with the TV money coming in it's time to do something. But the union is in hiding and doing a disservice to its members."

The Georgia Dome will seat 70,500 fans.

Yankees go out of the yard six times

By The Associated Press

For one night at least, the New York Yankees were the Bronx Bombers again.

The supposedly punchless Yankees, who bear little resemblance to Murderers' Row and had only 22 home runs in their first 36 games, hammered out six Wednesday night, including Steve Balboni's first two of the season and a three-run shot by Deion Sanders, in a 12-0 rout of the Minnesota Twins.

"We needed to break out on offense and it was nice to finally score some runs," said Manager Bucky Dent, who homered the last time the Yankees hit six in a game on June 5, 1977.

For the record, he was joined by Thurman Munson, Carlos May, Graig Nettles, Reggie Jackson and George Zeber. This time, besides Balboni and Sanders, Mel Hall, Roberto Kelly and Jesse Barfield also connected.

Ironically, the Yankees didn't need any of their homers except Hall's 440-foot leadoff shot in the second inning. They got four-hit, 11-strikeout pitching from Tim Lincecum (3-4), who yielded singles in the second, third and fourth innings and retired 15 consecutive batters before the Twins got their final hit in the ninth. Loser Tim Drummond (0-1) and John Candelaria each gave up six runs.

Sanders, recalled from the minors on Monday, capped a four-run fourth inning with his first homer of the season.

The fourth inning was enlivened by a bench-clearing incident after Drummond, apparently annoyed by Hall's minute-long slow-motion home run trot in the second, fired a pitch over his head and drew a warning from umpire Rocky Roe.

Kelly made it 7-0 with a leadoff homer in the fifth and one out later Balboni batted for Hall and broke an 0-for-14 slump with his first homer. Balboni and Barfield hit two-run shots in the seventh.

Athletics 12, Brewers 5
Dave Henderson hit a pair of two-run homers and Rickey Henderson hit a three-run shot. Rickey Henderson doubled in the first inning and scored Oakland's first run on Jose Canseco's sacrifice fly. His seventh home run broke a 2-2 tie in the second inning against loser Bill Wegman (2-1).

Angels 5, Blue Jays 4
Lance Parrish's two-out single capped a four-run ninth-inning rally as California handed Toronto its eighth loss in nine games. Dave Stieb held the Angels to one run and three hits through seven innings before giving way to Duane Ward, who pitched a scoreless eighth.

But Luis Polonia opened the California ninth with a single. One out later, Devon White walked and Wally Joyner, who hit his fifth homer in the seventh inning for the Angels' first run, doubled both runners home. One out later, Johnny Ray doubled to score Joyner with the tying run. Ward (1-2) walked Donnie Hill intentionally and was replaced by Jim Acker. Parrish lined Acker's second pitch into left field to score Ray.

Tigers 5, Rangers 1
Cecil Fielder hit his major-league-leading 17th home run, a two-run shot in the third inning, and Tracy Jones also homered as Detroit won for the eighth time in nine games. Texas has dropped 13 of 17.

Brian DuBois (2-2) yielded the Texas run and seven hits in 6.2-3 innings while striking out a career-high seven. Mike Jeffcoat (0-1), getting his first start of the season because of an injury that put Nolan Ryan on the disabled list, gave up four runs and 10 hits in 6.2-3 innings.

White Sox 6, Orioles 3
Dan Pasqua drove in four runs with a pair of homers as Chicago beat Baltimore for the sixth straight time. Pasqua hit a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the seventh, giving him four for the season.

Royals 4, Red Sox 1
Steve Jeltz, who started the game batting .067, broke a tie with a seventh-inning single and Willie Wilson added a two-run single. Bret Saberhagen (3-3) scattered seven hits for his second consecutive complete-game victory.

The Royals managed just three hits and an unearned run off Boston starter Greg Harris (4-3) over the first six innings. But Mike MacFarlane, Terry Shumpert and Jeltz started the seventh with singles and a single by Kevin Seitzer loaded the bases. Rob Murphy replaced Harris and Wilson's single made it 4-0.

Mariners 4, Indians 1
Ken Griffey Jr. doubled home two runs in a three-run first inning and Alvin Davis homered in the eighth. Erik Hanson (4-3) held Cleveland to five hits in eight innings while walking none and striking out nine. Mike Schooler pitched the ninth for his 12th save.

The Mariners took a 3-0 lead against Bud Black (4-2) in the first on three of their five hits. Black walked leadoff hitter Harold Reynolds and singles by Henry Cot to and Davis loaded the bases. After Jeffrey Leonard's sacrifice fly, Griffey doubled to make it 3-0. Davis homered in the eighth, his fifth. The Indians scored in the sixth on Candy Maldonado's RBI single.

Aggressive base running keys Astros victory

BY The Associated Press

The Houston Astros discovered what Tim Lincecum found out a long time ago — running results in runs.

The Astros set a team record with eight steals Wednesday night as they beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3 for just their fourth victory in 17 games.

"We got things going," said Eric Yelding, who tied a club mark with four steals. "Playing on turf like we do, when we get on base, we've got to steal. That's our game."

In Montreal, Raines stole the 600th base of his career as the Expos defeated San Diego 4-0. He moved within 49 of Bert Campaneris for eighth place on the all-time modern list.

"I never thought I would do this when I broke in 10 years ago. But I think it might mean more if I get to 800," Raines said. "That would mean I've played a long time and stayed aggressive."

In other games, San Francisco beat St. Louis 6-1 and Los Angeles rallied past Chicago 4-3.

Houston, in last place and in danger of getting run out of the National League West race, instead ran the East-leading Pirates out of the Astrodome.

The Astros stole their first four bases with Mike Lavalliere catching. Houston swiped four more during a four-run eighth inning with Don Slaught behind the plate.

"I'm not very happy with that. We'll have to work on it when we get home," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said.

Alex Trevino's two-run, pinch-homer broke a 3-all tie in the eighth. He connected against Scott Ruskin (0-1) for his first home run of the season, and watched the ball sail into the left-field seats.

"I'm not a power hitter, but I felt like one so I thought I might as well enjoy it," Trevino said.

Ken Caminiti added a two-run single later in the eighth. Casey Candaele reached on an error by shortstop Jay Bell and stole two bases and Yelding walked and stole another, setting up Caminiti.

"We had the right guys on base. We decided to take it to them," Houston manager Art Howe said.

Juan Agosto (3-1) pitched 1-1-3 scoreless innings for the victory.

Expos 4, Padres 0
In Montreal, Oil Can Boyd shut out San Diego for the second time in two weeks and Tim Wallach homered for the third straight game.

Boyd (3-2) gave up five hits, walked none and struck out eight. He is tied for the major league lead in shutouts after pitching just six of them in six years with Boston.

Boyd, who has allowed two earned runs in 29 innings, singled with two outs to start a two-run fifth inning against former Red Sox teammate Bruce Hurst (3-5). Wallach hit a solo home run, his 10th of the season and fourth against the Padres, in the sixth.

Giants 6, Cardinals 1

In St. Louis, Bob Knepper pitched 6.2-3 strong innings as San Francisco stopped its four-game losing streak.

Knepper (3-2) allowed one run on seven hits. He began the game with a 6.05 ERA.

Gary Carter's RBI single put the Giants ahead 2-1 in the sixth against Greg Mathews (0-4).

Knepper doubled home a run later in the inning and Brett Butler hit an RBI single.

Will Clark hit his eighth home run, including two in two games, in the Giants' first.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 3

At Wrigley Field, Kal Daniels hit a three-run homer that capped a four-run rally in the eighth inning and lifted Los Angeles over Chicago.

Mike Harkey took a three-hitter and 3-0 lead into the eighth, but one-out singles by Mickey Hatcher, Lenny Harris and Stan Javier scored a run. With two outs, lefty Paul Assenmacher (1-1) relieved and the left-handed Daniels hit his eighth home run.

Tim Belcher (4-3) allowed one earned run in seven innings. Don Aase escaped a first-and-third, no-out jam in the ninth for his third save.

Phoenix had a chance for the game-winning shot. But Eddie Johnson's hurried 18-footer over Kersey was off the mark.

Porter didn't consider himself the game's hero.

"I think everybody in this locker room is a hero. I wasn't the only one involved," he said.

Suns. "I don't think it buries them without a doubt," he said. "They're a very good ball club and they're going to come back strong. They've got two games at home and they play very well at home. But it definitely is going to leave a bad taste in their mouth."

Portland began the game with one of its worst quarters of the season. The Blazers shot just 26 percent from the field and scored 17 points, their lowest first-quarter output of the season.

The first half also featured two of the oddest incidents of the playoffs.

Blazers team photographer Art Gee was ejected from the game by referee Jess Kersey for criticizing the officiating and the Blazers were called for a technical foul for having only four players on the court.

Phoenix led by 12 at the end of the period and boosted the margin to 22 before settling for a 59-41 halftime lead. Reserve Dan Majerle did the most damage for Phoenix, scoring 18 of his 22 points in the first two quarters.

"All we talked about at half was there's a long way to go," Adelman said.

The Suns still led 79-62 with 4½ minutes left in the third quarter when Porter, Jerome Kersey and Clyde Drexler began to lead the rally.

A 7-1 Blazer run narrowed the margin to 79-67 with 3½ minutes left in the period and a 12-2 Portland outburst sliced the lead to 93-90 on Drexler's baseline drive with 8:01 remaining.

Kersey scored 10 points in the fourth quarter, including six straight Portland points as the Blazers narrowed the Phoenix lead to 104-103 with 1:37 to play.

Kersey blocked Tom Chambers' shot with just over a minute to play. But after Kevin Duckworth missed, Kersey was called for a foul on the rebound and Chambers made a pair of free throws with 50.1 seconds to play to put the Suns ahead 106-103.

Porter's 3-pointer, his third of the second half, tied the score at 106-all with 28.4 seconds to go. The crowd, silent for most of the first half, was roaring.

Kevin Johnson made one of two free throws with 27.2 seconds to go.

HOW TO HAVE A SUCCESSFUL GARAGE SALE IN 9 EASY STEPS:

Elizabeth Flores & Debbye Valverde Classified Sales

- 1. Make a date. Set a time of day. Have your Garage Sale run for at least two days. Check weather reports. Make sure no other events are happening on the days you chose. 2. Select the items you want to sell and decide on their prices. Make sure they look their best and are correctly tagged. After you have them assembled, check again in the attic, closets and basement for items you haven't used in over a year. Don't be choosy... what you may consider unworthy of the garbage dump might be someone else's treasure. 3. Write your ad. Describe big ticket items and include important details: address, date, time and even offer directions. 4. Place your ad in the Classified section of the Newspaper at least a few days before the sale is set to take place. 5. Place signs in your area. Use arrows to guide prospective customers to your home. Put signs up by busy streets and intersections for maximum visibility. Note: please remove signs after sale. 6. Price all items clearly...and reasonably. Use bright markers or colored stickers. Remember that Garage Sales are where people look for bargains and where you're looking to clear out your garage. Whatever's not sold will have to go back to you...so price it low and sell it fast. 7. Display items as pleasingly as possible. Create a traffic flow with space for aisles for customers to maneuver through the area without walking into things or knocking them over. 8. Set up a 'cashier's' area and have one person tend it at all times (make sure someone's available to 'spell' them throughout the sale). Place it where you have the best view of the merchandise. 9. Ask friends and neighbors if they'd like to partake in the sale. The more merchandise, the more bargains to be found...and likely the more interest in the event. Mention this in your ad as well as on signs: Block Sale or Four Family Garage Sale.

One-on-one tournament offers big bucks

NEW YORK (AP) — One-on-one basketball games undoubtedly are more common than the televised variety with shooting clocks and bonus free throws.

Rarely, however, do the two-man games get played for big bucks. All six college stars in New York Wednesday to promote the June 25 One-on-One Challenge in Atlantic City said they had played a one-on-one game at least once in the previous two days.

But they probably never dreamed that they would make their professional debuts in a one-on-one tournament, with eight players competing for a $100,000 first prize.

The eight — all virtually certain to be first-round NBA draft picks on June 27 — are All-Americans Derrick Coleman of Syracuse, Chris Jackson of Louisiana State, Gary Payton of Oregon State and Lionel Simmons of La Salle, plus Bo Kimble of Loyola-Marymount, Travis Mays of Texas, Bimbo Coles of Virginia Tech and Sean Higgins of Michigan.

Each is guaranteed a $10,000 appearance fee by Victory Promotions Inc., with $50,000 to the runner-up.

"I think a lot of people wonder if a Chris Jackson can beat a Bo Kimble one-on-one, so this should answer the question," Mays said Wednesday. "It should be a fun event, plus a chance to give us a little spending money."

The event offers a contrast in styles ranging from the 6-foot-10 Coleman to the 6-1 Jackson, a basketball jittersbug.

"There's a variety of talent, so there has to be strategy involved," said Kimble, the nation's leading scorer last season. "You have to play differently with every opponent."

Kimble (6-5) said that Coleman and the 6-7 Simmons "are post-up players who will try to back the little guys into the basket. Us guards can't handle that, so we have to use our quickness and dribbling ability."

"I expect this to be an offensive event. No one of the eight is going to be able to stop anybody else."

Jackson, only a sophomore but a two-time All-America at LSU, agreed that it would be hard to contain the bigger players and for them to stop him.

"Hopefully, I can draw a charge or force a three-second violation," Jackson said. "When I have the ball, they have to respect either my outside shot or my drive. Whichever they don't respect, that's what I'll do."

Mike Trainer, president of Victory Promotions, said he conceived the idea for the one-on-one event as a "something fun for the players before they get down to the business of playing basketball as a job."

But Simmons, the third-leading scorer in major college history, predicted there will be "some diving and cussing because there's a lot of money involved."

But Mays, the Southwest Conference's all-time leading scorer, said the proximity of the event to the draft two days later will put no pressure on the participants.

"I don't think winning would help enhance your chances in the draft and I don't think losing would hurt," Mays said. "We've already done what we have to do."

MIAMI (AP) — Paul Newman has developed five new varieties of salad dressing for Burger King and will be seen in the fast-food chain's TV commercials.

The ads feature clips of Newman undressing in such films as "The Sting," "The Prize" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," and advise viewers: "For years, you've seen Paul Newman undressing. Now you can see Paul Newman dressing."

Burger King will offer the new dressings alongside the actor's original Newman's Own Oil & Vinegar at its 6,000 restaurants.

"This all-natural product will help 'shake up' awareness of our salad line," said Gary Langstaff, executive vice president of marketing for Burger King. Newman donates profits from his food company to charity.

known for his TV rock show, hits the radio airwaves this weekend with the first installment of a 35-hour rock revue.

His first radio project, "DK-35," will air in 15 installments on more than 200 stations nationwide and will include conversations with music stars.

Among them: Roy Orbison, who in an interview just before his death in 1988 spoke about meeting a then-unknown John Lennon.

"Basically, I'm doing firsthand experiences," said Kirshner, 56. His career in music began in 1955 when he met Bobby Darin, who later recorded "Dream Lover" and "Queen of the Hop."

Sweden in frenzy over javelin mark

AUSTIN (AP) — Last March, Sweden's newspapers gave Patrik Boden front page coverage for winning a field and track world record, but the University of Texas sophomore says the victory didn't change his life here because "it wasn't football."

Boden, 22, threw his record-winning toss of 292 feet, 4 inches on March 24 during a track meet at Texas. The toss made him the first Swedish world record holder in the event since 1928.

Although Scandinavian countries are known for their javelin throwers and field and track events are major happenings there, most of the star players come from Finland.

So Boden's world record threw the Swedes into a frenzy. Newspapers published special editions. Bulletins interrupted radio and television programming.

The entire front pages of some Swedish newspapers were devoted to Boden. The pages were liberally sprinkled with pictures of Boden throwing the javelin. Boden as a child, Boden with his parents, Boden with his coach, Boden with his pet dog.

Reporters and camera crews from Europe invaded Texas to tell the story of the slinger Swede to the people of his homeland.

But life in Austin didn't change at all when he set track and field's first outdoor world record of the 1980s.

"I got up Monday morning and just went to class. That's about it," the Torsby, Sweden native said. "It wasn't that big a deal over here."

If Boden's life hasn't changed yet, it will when he returns home after the upcoming NCAA championships. Suddenly he has become a major player on the international scene.

He is Sweden's first world record holder in track and field since Patrik Sjöberg high jumped 7-11 $\frac{1}{4}$  in 1987. Sjöberg held the mark until Cuba's Javier Sotomayor broke it in 1988.

Raimo Pihl, Boden's javelin coach in Sweden, said he is somewhat concerned about the pressure sudden attention may put on Boden.

"It's really too much to say he's a hero because Swedes generally are very realistic people. They aren't running around in the streets like the Italians when they win the soccer championships.

"But, still, we have to be very careful when Patrik comes home. Many people are going to want a piece of him. We may have to buffer him from the crazy phone calls and things that go with being a world record holder. He might have to get an answering machine," Pihl said.

Pihl said those most wanting to get to Boden are European meet promoters. Boden has set a summer itinerary of 16 meets, capped by the prestigious European Championships in late August in Yugoslavia.

His next meet will be the defense of his NCAA national championship May 30-June 2 in Durham, N.C. Then, it's off to Europe.

UT coach Stan Huntsman said no matter what promoters offer, he isn't overly concerned that Boden might accept more than the maximum of $250 per week that the NCAA allows when student athletes aren't enrolled in school.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Beth Rinke, of the University of Texas, blasts out of a trap on the 18th hole during first round play of the NCAA women's golf championship Wednesday.

UT women leading NCAA golf

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The University of Texas, behind medalist rounds by two team members, took a two-stroke lead after the first round of play Wednesday in the NCAA Women's Golf Championships.

Texas, with 299, leads the 17-team field on the par-72, 6,141-yard Arthur Hills Gold Course in Palmetto Dunes. Arizona State was two strokes behind at 301, and Auburn was third with 306.

"One, two, 10 shots don't mean anything in a tournament like this," said Texas coach Pat Weis. "It's nice to be leading. I'd rather be leading than trying to catch up."

It was a season-best round for Texas, ranked No. 11 coming into the competition. The Lady Longhorns got one-under rounds of 71 from both Michiko Hattori and Cindy Haley.

For Haley, a fifth-year senior who plays No. 3 on the team, it was her career-best round. She has had three top 10 finishes in five tournaments but has not won an event this season.

Hattori, a junior from Japan who is ranked No. 13 in the U.S., had nine top 10 finishes in all nine events played by Texas this year. She was recently named the Southwest Conference Player of the Year for the third straight time.

Stanford's Adele Moore also shot

71 to help put the Cardinal in eighth place. Defending champion San Jose State, ranked No. 2 coming into the tournament, finished ninth Wednesday with 311.

Rounding out the field are Arizona, UCLA and Southern California, tied for fourth at 308; Tulsa in seventh with 309; Stanford, San Jose State and Florida tied for eighth with 311; South Florida in 11th with 314; Indiana, 12th with 317; Oklahoma State in 13th with 319; Kansas, 14th with 323; Furman, 15th with 325; Georgia, 16th with 330 and Kentucky, 17th with 334.

Arizona State's Brandie Burton, a favorite for the individual title, is tied for 11th with three-over 75. Defending individual champion Pat Hurst of San Jose State shot 77.

In the individual standings, the trio of Moore, Hattori and Haley is followed by Arizona's Susan Slaughter with 72 and Louisiana State's Kristi Coats and Arizona State's Tricia Konz tied at 73. Tied at 74 are Joal Rieder, Auburn; Jodi Figley, Stanford; Michele Vineratos, Florida and Christy Erb, UCLA.

The tournament continues through Saturday.

A 'dese and 'dose type of guy that meant so much to boxing

EDITOR'S NOTE — Ed Schuyler Jr. has covered more than 200 world championship fights for The Associated Press.

By ED SCHUYLER
AP Sports Writer

There once was an 11-year-old boy who was led astray by Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale.

Since it was a Friday night, the boy was not in bed but was up fiddling around with the standup radio on Sept. 27, 1946.

Suddenly the voice of Don Dunphy blared into the living room from Yankee Stadium, and the boy listened transfixed as Zale retained the middleweight championship with a rousing sixth-round knockout of Graziano at Yankee Stadium.

It was all Zale in a three-round triumph in 1948.

The boy, who was to become a boxing writer, went out the morning after his baptism as boxing fan and bought a copy of The Ring magazine. For years, he lived vicariously as he listened to fights on radio or watched them on television.

Today, he still thrills at a picture of courage and skill that can be painted by two fighters. Now,

There seem to be about 188 champions. When Graziano and Zale fought, mostly in the 1940s, there was one a champion per division, and there were no counterfeit weight classes such as super middleweight, super featherweight and mini flyweight.

"There were so many good fighters in those days," said 90-year-old Ray Arcel, a former trainer who has seen most of all the greats over the last 70 years.

Sports Commentary

"The fight I consider the greatest was the first Zale-Graziano fight," said Dunphy, who called about 2,500 bouts for radio and television.

"What can I say," Zale said at his home in Chicago of the death in a New York hospital Tuesday night of the man with whom he always will be linked in boxing lore. "He was a rough, tough fighter, a good puncher. He had guts."

Graziano won the title by knocking out Zale in the sixth round of an equally stirring rematch July 16, 1947, at Chicago. There were perhaps the greatest two fights between the same opponent in boxing history.

however, he is aware of the greed and exploitation and sometimes feels as if he will choke on the smell, which even when it goes through the windows of public scrutiny does not go away.

And those pictures of courage and skill can still be found. But they're mostly done in water colors instead of oils, because those who commission the paintings are looking to flood the market with quick sketches. They would be the in their desire to stage championship matches throw together kids who never get a chance to learn their mean trade.

When Zale and Graziano ruled the middleweight world, they ruled the likes of Charley Burley, good enough to make the Boxing Hall of Fame and too good to get a title shot; slick boxer Georgie Abrams; the charismatic Marcel Cerdan, who eventually won the title from Zale, and Jake LaMotta, the Bronx Bull who didn't become the Raging Bull until his biography was published.

There's also been a book and a movie about the life of Graziano, a "dese and dose" guy who grew up tough on New York's Lower East Side and who made something out of his life through boxing.

"Under all that rough-tough stuff was a really nice person," Arcel said. "He was the kind of guy you like."

That's something you often can't do with the sport that Graziano meant so much to.

Victims was possible witness

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 28-year-old man found stabbed to death in a suburban Fort Worth park had been listed by prosecutors as a possible witness in the upcoming capital murder trial of Ricky Lee Green, court records show.

But Benbrook police said Wednesday that they hadn't found any link between the Friday slaying of Gardner G. Nolley of Fort Worth and his potential testimony in Green's trial.

"Right now we don't believe there is a connection," Benbrook homicide detective Bill Hawkins told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "I've got nothing to indicate a connection between his death and the trial."

Nolley — stabbed three times, once in the heart — was found Friday night near the spillway of Lake Benbrook by three people cruising through Memorial Oaks park.

His car, a 1980 Chevrolet Camaro, was found in flames about 1:45 a.m. Tuesday near downtown Lubbock. Police said it appeared the fire had been set.

Pro-U.S. rally

MANILA, The Philippines — About 3,000 pro-U.S. supporters gathered in front of the Senate Building here to urge the government to extend the lease of U.S. military installations, which expires in 1991. The rallyists also condemned the recent killing of two U.S. servicemen.

Illinois escapee nabbed in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An escapee from an Illinois prison was arrested in El Paso after spending eight and a half years as a free man.

Manuel Castaneda, a 38-year-old El Paso native, walked away from a work-release center in Chicago in 1981. He served about one year of a 3½-year sentence for two burglary convictions, an Illinois Department of Corrections official said.

STANTON — The Stanton High School Band, under the baton of Director Rick Lee, performs for the audience during the annual spring concert at the high school auditorium Tuesday. The band, designated as the best in Class 2-A, performed along with the SISD beginners, sixth-grade and intermediate bands.

'Best band in state' struts its stuff

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

STANTON — Living up to its billing as the best 2-A band in the state, the Stanton High School Band performed without a hitch as it closed out the spring concert Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium.

The fifth-grade music class opened the performance with a taste of Welsh music in "Lullaby." The class added a trio of selections — "Merrily We Roll Along,"

"Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star" and "Country Dance" — before exiting the stage.

The sixth-grade beginner band added to the festivities with two numbers from their performance at the recent Snyder band festival, "March of the Cyclops" and "The Olympic Spirit." The sixth-graders concluded with their rendition of the popular tune "La Bamba."

The intermediate band began its set with "Chorale" and ended the program with the movie soundtrack from the John Wayne classic

"The Cowboys." In between, the band entertained the crowd with "The Flight of the Planet Zentaur," "Atlantis Overture" and "Theme from Superman."

The high school band then began the final set of the evening with "The Billboard March," a performance from the U.I.L. district and state contests. Other selections played were "Instant Concert," "Shenanigans" and award winning numbers "Chorale and Jubilosio," and "Incantation and Dance."

"These kids are really a great bunch," said band director John Lee. "They have done basically everything I ask of them. The trips we took were super due to the fact that the only thing in their minds was to play the hardest they could."

"The only reason we were so successful was that Kirk McKenzie was there. It could not have been done without him," Lee added.

Here are the SHS all-district band members: Eryka Johnson, Eva Crissman, Dustin Brantley, Melissa Rios, Crystal Payne, Amy Ranne, Jeff Wilson, Chris Carder, Rene Frausto, Blaine Hall, Stacy Tollison, Chris Barnhill, Robby Wilson, Grant Woodfin, Ray Portillo and Sherry Johnson.

Division I Solo and Ensemble Qualifiers were: Stacy Long, Ray Portillo, Tara Brooks, Chris Barnhill, Chris Carroll, Rene Frausto, Kelly Inman, Eryka Johnson, Eva Crissman, Kati Lee, John Wycoff, Raquel Castro, Chris Carder, Jeff Wilson, Sherry Johnson, Edward Armendarez, Isaac Marquez and Amy Ranne.

Capp: No hazardous waste without community approval

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — The vice president of a New York-based company proposing the location of a waste incinerator here, attended a public hearing Wednesday night and assured people that the company will not burn hazardous waste without community approval.

"We believe we can be in business with non-hazardous waste," said Joseph Capp, of All-American Environmental Corp of Brooklyn, N.Y.

"We will assure you that we are not permitting this unit now for hazardous waste," he said answering concerns raised at the joint Commissioners Court-City Council meeting at which about two dozen citizens attended. "We really couldn't and really wouldn't put something in Stanton that people would feel uncomfortable with."

He said an unsigned host agreement between All-American's Lubbock representatives and local officials, which says that All-American reserves the right to burn any hazardous wastes that can be incinerated safely, is mistaken. "That's not accurate," he said.

Asked if the city or county could block future burning, he nodded and said, "No question."

Concerning the production of hazardous heavy metals that are produced during the incineration process, Capp said, "We would either treat that material so that it's non-hazardous or send it to a hazardous waste landfill."

What to do, where to go if tornado strikes

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

CROSSROADS — Tornado season is here, said assistant civil defense coordinator Margaret Churchwell. She said weather conditions are often right during late May and early June for the development of tornadoes and other hazardous weather conditions.

Warning sirens in both Howard and Martin counties would sound in the event of a severe storm or tornado sighting. In Big Spring, Stanton and Coahoma, underground facilities exist for residents to take shelter.

Churchwell said Big Spring's warning system would sound to alert citizens if a tornado is sighted in the area. "When the sirens sound, it means you should take shelter," she said.

Howard County Volunteer Fire

Department Chief C. Roy Wright said sirens in Sand Springs, Coahoma and Forsan warn residents in those areas. Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport said nine blasts of the fire sirens will sound in Stanton.

Though underground shelters exist in the Big Spring, there is not enough space for every resident. Only one public shelter exists in the other cities of Howard County, Wright said.

"You should really only go to a shelter if you live in a mobile home or get caught outside," Churchwell said. Others, she said, are safer in their own homes.

Cable subscribers will find themselves with a blank TV screen when a tornado is near, she said. The civil defense warning system is programmed to broadcast news and information through the cable

AUSTIN — State Sen. Carl Parker talks to his colleagues in the Texas Senate Wednesday as they voted to override the governor's veto of the education finance reform bill. Other senators cluster in the background.

Senate overrides Clements' veto

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — House Speaker Gib Lewis says the Legislature may be on the verge of doing something it hasn't done in 11 years — override a gubernatorial veto.

The Texas Senate voted 23-8 Wednesday night to override Gov. Bill Clements' veto of the Legislature's $555 million school finance reform plan.

Lewis predicted that his chamber would follow suit.

"I feel very comfortable at this point that the House can probably override a veto," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

If two-thirds of the 150-member House vote to override Clements' veto, the school finance reform plan becomes law in spite of the governor's objections.

Lewis didn't say how soon the House would attempt an override. But the current special session — lawmakers' third on school finance — ends May 31.

The state also faces a June 1 court deadline for action. If no plan is adopted to provide more money to poor schools by then, a court-appointed special master will write a blueprint to follow the unanimous Texas Supreme Court ruling which declared the current finance system unconstitutional.

In voting to override Clements, senators followed partisan lines. All 23 Senate Democrats voted to override Clements' veto, while the eight Republican senators sided with the GOP governor.

In urging the override, Sen. Carl Parker said the bill wasn't perfect but was a compromise that would end a nearly three-month stalemate between the Democrat-controlled Legislature and Clements.

"I think it's a reasonable effort to address a consensus of this Legislature," said Parker, D-Port Arthur. "We're looking silly before the nation for not making provisions for future generations." Clements immediately condemned the Senate vote, saying the bill would drive property taxes higher.

"Property taxes would skyrocket. This is totally unacceptable, especially when alternatives clearly exist. Certainly, no elected official should be willing to inflict that type of burden on their constituents," the governor said. Parker vehemently disagreed. "That is not being honest. That is absolutely not true," he said.

No Texas governor's veto has been rebuffed since 1970, when the House and Senate overrode Clements' rejection of a minor bill on hunting and fishing regulations.

Speaker Lewis said Wednesday he was confident that enough votes could be found in his chamber, which includes 90 Democrats and 60 Republicans.

"I feel very comfortable at this point that the House can probably override a veto," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Rep. Alan Schoolcraft, R-San Antonio, predicted the governor's veto would be upheld. "I don't think they have the votes," Schoolcraft said.

system. Others will hear radio broadcasts or the city civil defense warning sirens, she said. When you hear that a tornado has been sighted in the area, stay calm and remember these guidelines:

• Go into an interior closet or get into the bathtub. Stay away from windows and cover yourself to avoid injury from falling debris.

• If you are in a car or outside and far from a shelter, get into a culvert, ditch or low-lying area.

• Do not try to drive any distance to be with children or other family members or friends. Leave pets to fend for themselves and save your own life.

• Leave your safe place only when radio or TV broadcasts announce that the tornado has left the area.

• Be prepared for a tornado by keeping a portable radio and flashlight with extra batteries on hand.

It is a good idea to know the nearest underground shelter location, especially if you live in a mobile home, she said.

According to information provided by City Manager Hal Boyd, shelters are required to have a minimum of 10 square feet per person and adequate, non electrical ventilation. A total of about 820 spaces exist in public buildings in the city.

Public shelter locations are: Howard County Courthouse, Big Spring Central Fire Department, U.S. Post Office, Big Spring State Hospital, the Federal Building, Veterans Administration Medical Center, City Water Filtration Plant, Howard College and the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium.

In Coahoma, an underground tunnel connecting the elementary, junior high and high schools will be available for the public to take shelter, Wright said. It is the only public shelter he knows of in the county area, though many residents have private storm cellars, he said.

Lack of public shelter space in the county might be a problem for some mobile home residents, he said, but they should be never stay in the home during high winds. "If they hear that the mobile home is in the path of a tornado, they should leave immediately."

Deavenport said Stanton's emergency headquarters is the Martin County Courthouse. He said he unlocks it during severe storm warnings and when a tornado is sighted near the area so residents can use it as a shelter.

Churchwell said county and city-owned locations in Big Spring are maintained and operated during time of need by local officials. Wright said the VFD would assist county residents in getting to shelter during tornado and storm conditions.

The police department in Stanton is called out to alert residents and assist them in getting to safety, Deavenport said.

In Big Spring there are several privately-owned shelters in banks and churches which would be left under the control of the owner, Churchwell said.

Man hopes family disease will miss his daughter

By PAMELA WARD
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — In the scrapbook that Jimmy Harris is compiling, there are two 1980 newspaper clippings that tell how he was pinned beneath a car. It's a story with a happy ending, revealing how a couple of heroes saved his life, and how Harris made a speedy recovery.

Harris has penned a message in the scrapbook intended for his 7-year-old daughter, Eva Marie: "A 4,700-pound car on my head couldn't kill me, but a disease of unknown origin finally did."

Harris, 28, was diagnosed almost two years ago as a victim of a rare, incurable disease called amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), or more commonly, Lou Gehrig's disease. The diagnosis was a surprise, but not an unfamiliar topic.

ALS killed his maternal grandfather in 1946, in the days before doctors knew what to call it. Harris' mother and her three sisters eventually were hit by ALS as well. Three of the four women have died, including Harris' mother. His fourth, and youngest, aunt is ill with the disease.

There are some things that Harris can accept about his fate. One is that luck rescued him in 1980, but let him down in 1988.

Pain, a constant in his life the past two years, is part of the destiny that Harris accepts. He also has come to terms with the fact that the pain eventually will end, in death.

He says he is not angry at what has plagued his family, nor is he a Pollyanna. When he hopes, and when he prays, it is not for a miracle for himself, but for Eva Marie.

"I do not think in my lifetime I will find a cure," the young father says. "I have already accepted what is going to happen to me. I just worry for my daughter."

The father's fear is "a genuine concern," said Dr. Teepu Siddique, a leading researcher into the cause of ALS. "There is a 50 percent chance that the child carries the gene," said the neurologist, who leads a team of researchers at Duke University Medical Center that is trying to pinpoint the gene that carries ALS.

The ALS Association in Woodland Hills, Calif., estimates there are 30,000 U.S. victims of the disease. Because it claims fewer than 200,000 patients, it falls into the category of rare diseases, said Sydel Chaiet, patient services coordinator for the association.

Of the 30,000 cases, she said, 5 percent to 10 percent are believed to be familial, meaning the disease runs in a family. The disease attacks the central nervous system, shrinks the body and numbs the limbs. It also attacks the nerves that control respiration and the ability to swallow and speak.

Siddique, who is seven years into the ALS research project, said last week he hopes his team can find the gene's location in the next few months. By determining to which chromosome the gene is attached, researchers hope to learn more about how the disease acts, which would offer hope of eventual prevention and treatment.

Siddique's team last week heard about Harris and his family from a family friend, Clyde Hill, a retired licensed practical nurse. Duke researchers hope to include Harris and his cousins in their study. The cousins, whose mothers were ALS victims, stand a 50 percent chance of being ALS carriers.

Siddique said his team has enrolled 150 families in the research program. In some families, ALS appears to skip a generation, but that may not be reality, Siddique said. "We do think that people die of something else before they might come down with ALS," he said.

The disease can strike people as early as their 20s, as in Harris' case, or later in life, as in the case of his aunt, Sue Corbett, 44. His mother was 44 when she died in 1987. His aunt Dorothy died in 1988 at age 49. His aunt Barbara was 29 when she died in 1969.

Harris' grandmother, Claudia Lohman of Buda has cared for her four daughters during their illnesses. A hospice volunteer visits Mrs. Lohman's home to help care for Ms. Corbett, who declines to visit a doctor.

Mrs. Lohman also cared for Harris after his diagnosis in June 1988. But after he suffered a hard fall, he moved into Four Seasons Nursing Center, where he is by far the youngest patient.

Because he is losing the ability to speak clearly, Harris often communicates via a computer. He wears a headset with an antenna-like device that he uses to punch letters on a keyboard.

He writes letters to organizations and researchers, telling them about his family in hopes that more can be learned about the disease.

Study finds state nursing homes above U.S. average

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Texas nursing homes have problems administering drugs properly, but most perform better than a government survey's national average.

A study released Wednesday by the Health Care Financing Administration found nursing homes have the most trouble meeting minimum standards of food handling and drug administration.

The approximately 1,050 nursing homes in Texas follow the pattern, the study found.

But officials warned the study has many limitations, including ill-defined performance standards.

"Did an insulin patient not get insulin or did a person get Maalox instead of Maalox Plus?" asked Sara Speights, a spokeswoman for the Texas Health Care Association. "Did they find peeling paint in the pantry or roaches in the soup?"

The study was prepared by HCFCA-contracted evaluators who made a surprise, one-day visit to each nursing home receiving either Medicare or Medicaid last year.

"It is only a snapshot view," said John Willis, nursing home ombudsman for the Texas Department on Aging. "It does not take into consideration that the quality of care can change overnight in a facility."

"The primary purpose of this report is to provide a solid basis for further inquiry," said HCFCA administrator Gail Wilensky.

Ms. Wilensky said the results reflect individual judgments of 3,000 evaluators nationwide. And the survey only covers whether minimum standards are being met, failing to identify nursing homes providing excellent care.

"What people really need out there are some good practical guidelines for people to choose nursing homes and this is not it," Ms. Speights said.

Other documents required of nursing homes by state and federal regulators cover the same ground in much more detail, she said.

The 4,600-page report found Texas intermediate care nursing homes — those without round-the-clock nursing services — above, or worse than, the national average in these areas:

—24.9 percent did not administer drugs according to the written orders of the attending physician. The national rate was 22.6 percent.

—15.4 percent failed to give each resident privacy and care of personal needs. The national rate was 13.5 percent.

—21.3 percent did not meet a requirement to give each resident daily personal hygiene and take into account individual preferences. The national rate was 18.2 percent.

—17.5 percent did not give care necessary to prevent skin breakdown. The national rate was 12.8 percent.

For skilled nursing facilities — those most like hospitals — the report found Texas above, or worse than, the national average in these areas:

—29.6 percent did not administer drugs according to the written orders of a physician. The national rate was 24.2 percent.

—10.5 percent did not provide nursing services at all times. The national rate was 6.1 percent.

—20.5 percent did not give care necessary to prevent skin breakdown. The national rate was 18.9 percent.

—15.2 percent failed to give each resident privacy and care of personal needs. The national rate was 14.2 percent.

Texas nursing homes were below, or better than, the national average in the rest of the 32 comparison areas.

Ask the agent

By GREG JONES
County Extension Agent/Ag

AUSTIN — Beginning June 1, representatives from the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service will begin contacting farmers and ranchers across the state to help set the 1990 planted acreage estimates and midyear livestock inventories.

State Statistician Dennis Findley emphasized that information from the surveys will help producers adjust their production and marketing plans for 1990.

"Good marketing requires good information and advanced planning," Findley said.

VIPS clippings

By BRENDA KENDALL

The 1989-90 school year is rapidly coming to a close.

The VIPS program was a great success this year. We had approximately 70 volunteers throughout the school year. These volunteers worked in the school, at home, and for special occasions. Our information from these surveys will provide Texas producers with solid facts and figures they can use when making their marketing plans," he said.

"There are many uncertainties facing agriculture," Findley added. "And accurate, reliable figures will give producers a chance to make sound production and marketing decisions during the coming year."

Results of the confidential interviews conducted by telephone or in person by field enumerators, will be published later this summer. The 1990 planted acreage report will be released June 28 and the U.S. cattle inventory will be released July 27.

To reduce survey costs, Findley is urging farmers and ranchers to return the mailed questionnaires as soon as possible. Individual reports will be combined with other reports to state estimates.

"Remember, these are sample surveys, so if you are contacted it is important to provide the requested information, since one report represents similar operations of the same size and type. Our estimates can be no better than the numbers producers provide," Findley added.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

volunteer work contributed almost 1400 hours to our school system.

We would like to thank each and everyone of our volunteers to their excellent work and the time they donated for our kids. We couldn't have done it without you.

We would also like to thank our school administration for their cooperation and support during the school year. We encourage you who didn't volunteer this year to please seriously consider becoming a volunteer next school year.

Please have a fun and safe summer.

Restless retiree returns to work

By CYNTHIA PUCKETT
Amarillo Globe-News

AMARILLO (AP) — After working more than 50 years at jobs ranging from picking cotton, herding cattle and running a restaurant, James A. Henry found out he couldn't retire on social security benefits.

So, in 1980 at the age of 65, Henry decided to take a job in grounds maintenance at Memorial Park Funeral Home Cemetery & Crematory at 6969 East Interstate 40 in Amarillo.

Gary Nielsen, grounds supervisor for the cemetery, said he likes having the 75-year-old Henry around because he is such a good worker.

"I use him as an example for the younger guys," Nielsen said.

Henry, who puts in a 40-hour work week, maintains the cemetery's irrigation system, an important task in the Panhandle's dry climate, Nielsen said. Henry also helps train new employees and supervises when Nielsen isn't on the grounds.

Work is something that Henry seems to know a lot about.

"I learned to work as a kid, as soon as I was old enough to hold a picking hoe," he said.

Henry was born in Newport, Ark., and was reared in the Texas Panhandle. Each year, the older children in the Henry family took time off from school to work in the fields pulling cotton bolls.

"I didn't especially like that work," said Henry, the third eldest of 12 children. "But we had so many kids in the family, I had to do it. Daddy — he couldn't do it all himself."

"We pulled that cotton for 35 cents a hundred weight. That was pretty rough times back then," he said.

"I lived through the Depression and then through inflation," Henry said laughing and slapping his thigh.

Henry said his first paying job away from home was working on a farm near Memphis at the age of 14.

"What education I got, I got at Lakeview," Henry said, explaining that it was hard to catch up on the schoolwork he missed while working.

"When I got through the eighth grade I finally just shucked it and went to Arkansas."

Henry said he eventually returned to the Panhandle. "I don't like them hills and all them trees. I like trees, but I like to be able to see out to the horizon."

Throughout the years, he worked as a butcher, market manager in a supermarket chain, restaurant manager and rancher.

Henry said he thought he was ready to retire around 1979, and went for a year without working.

"I decided social security wasn't enough to live on. I felt real good, so I told my wife, 'I'm going to get a job,'" Henry said.

Memorial Park ran an advertisement for a grounds keeper, Henry said, so he applied for the job.

"I had stayed inside all those years. I just wanted to get a job working outside," he said.

"I think you stay healthier working outdoors. These young guys die young from sitting in those offices and never getting any exercise."

Although he's 75 years old, Henry said he has no trouble keeping up with the others on the job.

Hearing

"It's of a low enough concentration that it would be allowed," he said. Otherwise it would be chemically treated and shipped out. He said they would not open a landfill in Martin County.

The filter used to screen toxic byproducts will be a combination wet-scrubber and dry filter system produced by Anderson 2000 of Peachtree, Ga., Capp said. He said the $1.5 million filter system costs about twice as much but is better than either a wet-scrubber system or a dry filter. "We believe the combination hybrid is the best way," he said.

The proposed Vulcan Iron Works incinerator would burn 180-360 tons daily of non-hazardous petroleum contaminated dirt and sludges from the oil industry, Capp said. Business will come from companies that need to comply with a 1984 amendment change to the Resource Conservation Recovery Act which initiated new hazardous waste rules going into effect this year and next.

One of them, a toxicity characteristic rule, has placed 25 more materials — including benzene — in the hazardous category; which will force more cleanup after March, 1990. Another, a land disposal restriction rule going into effect now, bans a number of hazardous wastes from being buried, which is forcing more wastes to be treated for detoxification.

Capp said that detoxified dirt would be sent to facilities such as the one proposed in Martin County, for further treatment. The facility here would be All-American's first incinerator operation burning only non-hazardous wastes.

"They'll (the companies) treat it on their own properties before they send it out," he said. "It cannot be hazardous. We cannot take in hazardous waste."

The 24-hour, seven day a week operation would require about 50 acres of land donated or leased, Capp said. A tax abatement would be welcome. "It's up to the Council, how bad do they want the deal," he said.

Answering a point made about the owners of the land being liable for any leaks or pollution, he said All-American will be here to solve problems, not create them. He said they would be required to undertake protection measures and would have too much at stake if an accident occurred.

He also said that if the city or county owned the land, they would be able to check on the operation.

"We want you people to be able to look and see that we are being careful," he said. "I understand your concerns relative to liability. We can satisfy you in that regard."

He said community members would also have access to computer printouts of the operation. "We'll let you have a modem that can tap into the system," he said.

The operation would provide jobs for 50-60 people, including people on duty around the clock to run a chemical testing laboratory, a weighing station and an office as well as the incinerator, Capp said. Asked how much revenue it would generate, he said it would be premature to release that kind of information. The incinerator costs $8 million.
