BIG SPRING — Howard County District Clerk Glenda Brasel was one of two area leaders elected to serve the County and District Clerk's Association in Area III.

She was elected at their Spring meeting in Monahans earlier this month during the business session of the meeting. Also attending the meeting was Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray.

Area III covers 30 counties extending from Taylor to El Paso counties.

The seminar was sponsored by the Texas Court Training Center, headquartered at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. Topics addressed at the seminar include court procedures in regards to inquests, death certificates and determining the cause of death.

Invading moths only a nuisance

CROSSROADS COUNTRY -Those pesky moths which have invaded Crossroads Country in droves may be with us for another month, said Entomologist Victor Lucero.

"They usually have only one generation, but I'd say we are going to see them for another 30 days at least.'

The unwanted guests, known as underwing moths, hatched recently and their numbers grew rapidly because the larval form, the cutworm, feeds on mesquite, Lucero said.

Don't worry, these moths you find in your home, car or garage (everywhere!) will not eat clothes, food or gardens.

The Underwings are nectarfeeders, Lucero said. The reason they may seem to flood your home every evening is that they hide during the day, while at night they are attracted to light,

"You have to be careful because they will go through any crack they can find to get into a

He said he has never seen anything like this year's moth attack, which spans at least the three counties he works in Midland, Martin and Howard. "I've been keeping tabs on them, just as a novelty. They aren't harmful and I'm not worried about them because they aren't going to eat the cotton.'

Though the creatures may be bland brown or grey in appearance now, the second set of wings they will develop soon will be colorful, Lucero said.

Bush braces for fight with Congress over pact

By TOM RAUM

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - President Bush prepared a review of his summit accomplishments for the friendliest audience in town, his Cabinet, today as he braced for a congressional cold shoulder over the provisional trade agreement which so pleased Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Bush's decision to sign the trade pact without winning concessions on Lithuania has drawn reproach from both parties.

Despite sharp differences remaining on the fate of the Baltics and on the military alignment of a reunified Germany, Bush and Gorbachev are heralding their summit gains and predicting another 1990 session to nail down arms treaties that eluded them this time.

They ended their second summit on Sunday, speaking warmly of each other and proclaiming the meeting a big success. "Neither of us tried to cover over the differences," Bush said.

The president was to give a report on his sessions with Gorbachev to his Cabinet this morning. For his part, Gorbachev was spending his day in California before flying home.

Bush can expect accolades from his Cabinet, but a frosty reaction was in store for him from Capitol Hill on the trade agreement.

However, Bush has said he will only send the measure to Congress if the Supreme Soviet passes a liberalized emigration law.

And a gesture by Gorbachev in lightening up on Lithuania — in ex-

ge for the prize of the trade treaty — could quickly turn the situation around in Congress.

Both leaders voiced hope that they can meet again before the end of the year — Gorbachev invited Bush to Moscow - to sign treatiesto cut long-range nuclear missiles and trim conventional forces in

"We are in the strongest position we've ever been in" with respect to the Soviet Union. "We should not be giving them everything they ask for to bail them out." — Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato, R-N.Y.

Bush and Gorbachev also talked about having regular, perhaps annual, meetings without the usual summit fanfare of 21-gun salutes, state dinners and military bands.

Bush said, "We're now at a stage in the U.S.-Soviet relationship and, indeed, in world history where we should miss no opportunity to complete the extraordinary tasks before us.

Gorbachev said of his summit host, "This is the kind of person to do business with.'

The two leaders made significant progress on the nuclear pact, signing a framework agreement to cut arsenals by 30 percent and pledging to sign the completed Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START)

by year's end.

This is the first time that we're not just limiting, but we will be reducing the most devastating means of warfare," Gorbachev

But deep divisions remained between them on levels of troops and tanks in Europe, a dispute directly related to another disagreement over the future political and military face of a unified Germany.

"We could not resolve this issue in Washington," Gorbachev declared simply

Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze were assigned to work together in an effort to narrow the differences.

The two ministers will discuss Germany on Tuesday at a previously scheduled conference on human rights in Copenhagen, then again later this month in

Other disputes also loomed - in particular, the continuing stalemate over Lithuania and the other rebellious Baltic republics. Bush called the Baltic standoff "one of the thorns in the side of an overall relationship.

For his part, Gorbachev — who gave no ground on Lithuania at the Washington talks — brushed off the topic. He repeated a favorite recent line - that Bush would have restored constitutional order "within 24 hours" had a state in the United States declared independence as did Lithuania.

Lack of major progress on the Baltic stalemate is building SUMMIT page 6-A

Vacation time is post poned for some students

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — For almost 200 Big Spring students, school is on the agenda for the summer.

Summer studies begin at Big Spring High School tomorrow. Classes for junior high students begin Wednesday at the high school building.

About 110 high school students are registered to begin classes tomorrow for the first of two threeweek sessions. Registration continues tomorrow for the session, set to end June 26.

Students can register on that date for the second session to begin June 27. High school courses to be offered include English, government and economics. The day begins at 7 a.m., continuing until noon. All classes will end July 19.

Tuition is $70 per course for residents of Big Spring, $80 for those who reside outside the city

Principal Kent Bowermon said about half the students signed up for the summer are trying to make up for failed courses. The other half are honors students who need to add extra classes, he said.

Students following the honors curriculum who were involved in several extra-curricular activities during the year may take courses during the summer to fulfill advanced requirements, Bowermon

Junior high registration began this morning and will continue through Wednesday. Courses offered depend on the number of students who sign up and pay tuition, said Runnels principal Jim Holmes.

'We will usually have enough for a language arts and a math class. Sometimes we have enough for science and social studies. It all depends on the number who want

A quota of 15-17 students must be met in order to justify hiring a teacher for the summer. Holmes said. A $70 tuition fee per course, collected from each child, finances the program.

Most of the students in the program have failed a course during the year, he said. Students who fail two courses during a school year are prohibited from advancing to the next grade, so many students will try during the summer to make up a failing grade, Holmes

Junior high students will study each day from 8 a.m. to noon.

Both principals agreed there will most likely be few discipline problems during the summer sessions. The long hours students must remain in class during the summer and the small student population seem to prohibit behavior problems, Bowermon said.

Holmes said since parents are paying out-of-pocket for the courses, and most students must pass in order to advance, there may be more pressure to perform without misbehavior.

is too healthy. Now, his mother doesn't know how she is going to feed him.

Another mother, Kellie Brillhart, estimates she will lose about $200 a month from her food budget because her oldest daughter has been cut from the same program.

They are among some 27,000 women and toddlers in Texas who will be struck from the Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children by July because of rising food costs and increased demand, said Debra Stabeno, program director for Texas.

'WIC has helped us a lot,'' said Mrs. Brillhart, 23, the mother of three children who are all on WIC. "My 3-year-old daughter, Lisa, was cut off the program last week. She came up to be renewed and they just said, 'Sorry, she can't get back on it.' But she's been cut before. I told them, 'Well, I'll be back in six months.

Fabian Maldonado also was cut from the Houston program.

'They told me there would be no more (food voucher) cards," said his mother, Fortino Maldonado, 37. "I don't know how I will be able to buy food now.

Mrs. Maldonado said in Spanish that her son has been on WIC since he was an infant.

The 12-year-old program was designed to curb the infant mortality rate and ensure that pregnant women at risk for nutritional deficiencies delivered healthy babies.

WIC serves lower income women who are young, anemic, smoke, use drugs, have poor dietary habits or other problems. It also is for poor children up to 5 years old who have nutrition problems.

Participants receive vouchers they use at grocery stores to buy milk, cheese, cereal, juice, infant • WIC PROGRAM page 6-A

Census close to finished locally

By DEBBIE LINCECUM Staff Writer

CROSSROADS - The two-month campaign to count the people of Crossroads Country is almost over, said a United States Census Bureau

Don McInnis, district office manager of the area which includes Howard and Mitchell among its 29 counties, said the counting of our local citizens will continue for about 30 days in abbreviated form.

He said the 30 local census takers drew a near-perfect number of responses from the public. "At this point, it looks like we have about 95.5 percent of our forms collected. The enumerators (census takers) did a great job.

The district is leading the state in number of responses collected, he said. At the present time, only 300-400 of the workers are left on the payroll, while the peak month of April saw 1,000 employed.

Though no serious accidents or problems were reported from enumerators, there were several dog bites. A few had ankles sprained or broken from a step into a pothole, McInnis said. "I think they e CENSUS page 4-A

Computer pioneer Noyce dead at 62

AUSTIN (AP) — Computer pioneer Robert Noyce, whose co-invention of the semiconduc tor revolutionized electronics and helped to usher in the Information Age had died of a heart attack at age 62.

Noyce suffered a heart attack at his home Sunday morning and was rushed to Seton Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead, said hospital spokeswoman Elizabeth McDonald.

Working separately in the late 1950s, Noyce and Jack S. Kilby invented the integrated circuit, which made rapid gains in computer power possible by putting the power of multiple transistors on a single chip.

The Silicon Valley pioneer also was one of the founders of Intel Corp., the nation's thirdlargest semiconductor producer, and fought for the creation of a consortium to promote the American industry.

In 1988, Noyce was appointed chief executive officer and president of Sematech, which was set up to help the United States recover world leadership in semiconductor manufacturing.

Group probes illness report

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Washington, D.C., watchdog group is questioning how some people were able to purchase toxic paints and solvents from the newly-opened Comanche Peak nuclear power plant.

Several purchasers have reported nosebleeds, dizziness, headaches and other maladies they believe are linked to the chemicals

The Government Accountability Project, a group which frequently monitors the nuclear industry, contends the products are highly toxic hazardous wastes, and that TU Electric illegally dumped them on the public.

The Accountability Project said it knows of at least eight people who purchased the products

"They've been essentially auctioning the stuff off at a token price simply to get rid of it," said project spokesman Mick Harrison. "It's pretty clear under the circumstances that TU was getting basically a

Legislature convenes in fourth special session

AUSTIN(AP) - A fourth special session on school finance reform begins today, but with a new twist: Gov. Bill Clements and legislative leaders have agreed on a plan.

The Republican governor and Democrat-controlled Legislature have remained deadlocked through three nonstop special sessions since Feb. 27.

As the state's 1,068 school districts with 3.2 million students waited, legislators and Clements missed two court deadlines for enacting a law to make more money available to poor systems.

But after two days of negotiations at the Governor's Mansion, Clements and Democratic leaders reached a compromise Friday on how to meet the Texas Supreme Court's order for reform.

Their agreement came the same day court master William Kilgarlin proposed his own preliminary reform plan. That proposal would shift about $540 million in state aid from wealthy districts, and those that make a low local property tax effort, to poorer ones with a strong local property tax effort.

"The master has clearly

But Clements and legislative leaders are hoping lawmakers will fend off a court plan by approving their compromise, which would pump $528 million more in state aid next school year into the $13.5 billion-a-year school finance

The system relies on state funds, local property taxes and some federal money.

Besides a state sales tax increase to 61/4 cents on the dollar, the compromise would be funded by higher taxes on mixed drinks and cigarettes, higher state fees, and some budget cuts. The funding package also would raise about $100 million to bail out financially strapped social service programs.

"I can truthfully say that I don't know anybody who is happy with this. Maybe the judge will be. It has been a very painful process, but we did it," Clements said.

Geologist pursues oil boom in central Texas

station in 1948, hosting the show

DALLAS (AP) — An Austin petroleum geologist says he is winning converts to his theory that a major oil field may be hidden somewhere beneath the rocky hills of oil-poor Central Texas.

Dennis McMurdie admits his theory flies in the face of conventional wisdom. No oil field of 100 million barrels or more has been discovered in Texas since 1971.

But, he continues to maintain that a billion-barrel oil field may be found along a band of sedimentary rocks snaking from southeastern Oklahoma through the middle of Texas into northeastern Mexico.

McMurdie's theory, based on seven years of research, has gained momentum in light of the recent discovery of enormous gas reserves in eastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas.

"Five or six years ago, I was the lone voice in the wilderness," McMurdie said. "We're piling up a significant amount of evidence now that we're on the right track.

In these days of declining oil production, confirmation of such a field would spark a drilling frenzy. "It would set off the wildest thing you could ever imagine," said Bill Fisher, director of the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin. Some companies already have

FARMER RICHARD BRAND

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — It was hardly the picturesque picnictable setting the Brands had labored four days to perfect, but their airport tarmac meeting at least gave the farmers a chance to exchange gifts and conversa-tion with Mikhail and Raisa Gorbachev.

Tired and behind schedule, the Gorbachevs canceled a scheduled 25-minute visit to the Brand farm Sunday in Farmington, about 20 miles south of Minneapolis. The Soviets had requested the farm tour as part of Gorbachev's seven-hour swing through the Twin Cities area.

"You could tell they felt very badly they couldn't make it," Richard Brand said of the airport meeting. "You could see why they are loved as they are. They're very personable.

The Brands presented the Gorbachevs with pictures of their farm and family and a basket of Minnesota-made foodstuffs, including cheese, jellies and buffalo jerky. The Soviet first family brought dolls for the Brands' grandchildren.

HARRISON, Ohio — Residents sift through the remains of several homes leveled by a tornado late Saturday night in Harrison, Ohio.

Thirteen die in storms, hundreds left homeless

Tornadoes and thunderstorms throughout the Midwest killed 13 people, injured scores and left hundreds more homeless. Eight of the dead were in Indiana, where about 50 twisters touched down

The most disastrous tornado tore a five-mile swath through the southwestern Indiana town of Petersburg on Saturday. It killed six people, injured at least 57 and destroyed more than 150 homes.

Tornadoes also were reported in Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota, Kentucky and Michigan on Saturday.

More deadly weather struck the Midwest on Sunday. Wind-toppled trees killed a 21-year-old woman camper in a state park in southcentral Wisconsin and an 8-yearold boy in a town park in the central Indiana town of Mulberry.

In Illinois, a tornado Saturday destroyed more than 40 homes and damaged about 100 in Jasper and Shelby counties. Authorities reported one woman died.

Also Saturday, a 10-year-old boy drowned in a storm-swollen river in Milwaukee and an 82-year-old man was killed by a wind-blown tree branch in the northwestern Missouri town of Stewartsville.

A tornado in Harrison, Ohio, outside Cincinnati, destroyed 20 houses and 10 businesses and damaged another 100 houses and 50 businesses, police Sgt. Carl Butler said. No serious injuries were reported.

Winds up to 70 mph in Kansas knocked down power lines, leaving nearly 50,000 homes without electricity and sparking grass fires. In Arkansas, thunderstorms dumped heavy rain, causing flash flooding that closed roads.

Across Indiana, officials reported eight dead and at least 150 people injured Saturday in storms that left 24 cities in 15 counties with significant damage. Officials tracked about 50 tornado touchdowns during a four-hour period.

The outbreak was the worst in Indiana since a tornado barrage in 1974 killed 47 people. A series of twisters on Palm Sunday in 1965 killed 137 people in 18 Indiana

The other Indiana tornado deaths were in Bedford, in the southern part of the state, and in Putnam County in west-central Indiana, said Jerome Hauer, director of the State Emergency Management Agency

Hauer said the tornadoes were particularly devastating because they spent long periods of time on the ground. One twister, he said. was on the ground 38 minutes.

"We are not scared," read banners carried by demonstrators in Hong Kong who marched several miles Sunday from a downtown park to the local headquarters of China's Xinhua News Agency, the Communist government's de facto embassy. ### An unprecedented fiasco

How much is $300 billion? Look at it with all its 11 zeros: $300,000,000,000. Counting once a second, it would take you 9,520 years to count to 300 billion. About 9,500 years ago human beings were just discovering the

Keep the radio on

There's been some talk in Washington lately about closing Radio Free Europe. The notion behind this is that Eastern and Central Europe's democratic revolutions are so well entrenched that the need for an honest and prodemocratic voice to beam news about national and regional events into the area is no longer necessary.

That's ridiculous. Soviet troops still reside in much of the region. Indeed, it was recently disclosed that the modest withdrawal of Soviet troops from East Germany that had been under way has been suspended — without explanation. At the same time, Soviets have made contradictory remarks about arms-control negotiations.

And perhaps most ominous is that communist bureaucrats of totalitarian and conspiratorial bent are still comfortably in place throughout Eastern Europe. Many are doing what they can to sabotage the political and economic reforms being attempted by the democrats who are officially in charge of these bureaucracies.

The Voice of America, chartered to tell the story of the United States abroad, does a fine job, but it isn't specifically organized to promote democracy in Eastern and Central Europe. For that task, the region still needs Radio Free Europe, which has been a messenger of hope to millions of people.

Ageney runs amok

A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision should slap some sense into Congress about the Frankenstein monster of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. . .

Voting 9-0, the court struck down California regulations aimed at assuring survival of trout in the American River and Rock Creek, a small tributary.

The court said the Federal Power Act preempts California's stream-flow regulations.

So, with one fell swoop of the pen, California, its citizens and its elected representatives have no say over their wildlife or streams or the environment they live in if FERC has an interest in the matter.

That cannot possibly be the intent of Congress. That FERC can decide the fate of fish and wildlife in a state without the citizens' input runs counter to the most basic notions of civil government. That's fascism.

Congress must rein in this agency-run-amok.

The Clarion-Ledger, Jackson, Miss.

Safety standards needed

It's time for the federal government to impose standards on automatic garage door openers.

Too many of these openers are killing and maiming youngsters throughout the United States.

Currently, manufacturers of garage door openers are not required to meet Underwriter Laboratory standards for automatic reverses. Such mechanisms automatically reverse the downward motion of garage doors if something impedes their progress. Most of the time, the item struck by the closing garage door is a bike or a ball or some other object. In increasingly alarming numbers, however, children are being caught under the doors.

When functional reverses are in place, the garage door pops right back up and little damage is done. Yet some experts think that up to 50 percent — or half of all automatic garage doors installed in the U.S. today — do not have reverses, or have reverses that for one reason or another are not in working condition.

As more homeowners install automatic garage door openers, the danger to children increases. To deal with this growing problem and prevent future harm, we believe the U.S. Products Safety Commission should mandate standards for reversing mechanisms on all new automatic garage door openers.

Why politicians all talk alike

By BILL STERNBERG Washington Bureau

 ${\bf WASHINGTON-Politicians}$ are busy people. Busy giving speeches, busy raising campaign funds, busy attending subcommittee meetings. So busy, in fact, they rarely have time to think Not to worry. To fill the void, the political parties and special interest groups helpfully provide the lawmakers with what are known as "talking points."

Talking points — brief, snappy summaries of an issue - have become so ubiquitous that most politicians won't leave home without them

When George Bush sits down with Mikhail Gorbachev, the president has a set of talking points in his briefcase. When Democratic candidates hit the campaign trail, they carry talking points to attack partisan Republicans like Rep. Newt Gingrich of Georgia. When lawmakers vote on a controversial issue, they fall back on talking points in case some pesky reporter asks them to explain their reasoning.

Not long ago, the House of Representatives adopted a bill requiring larger employers to grant unpaid leave for workers with new babies or sick parents. Reporters for this news bureau asked several Republicans for their views on the legislation.

The bill takes "a one-size-fits-all approach when not all business and employee groups are alike, said Rep. Lynn Martin of Illinois. "We oppose the prescription of a one-size-fits-all policy for

You get the idea. The rhetorical similarities are not some amazing coincidence, but instead reflect the hidden hand of talking points

The problem with this onequote-fits-all approach is that it encourages intellectual laziness on the part of our elected officials. Why bother to think through a complicated issue yourself when others will do it for you? Lobbying groups have been professor and author who even writes his own constituent newsletter, has never had to rely on someone else's talking points to express his views.

Nor is use of talking points limited to the legislative branch of government. The Bush administration employs them in an effort to keep executive branch officials singing the same tune in their public statements. Occasionally these White House talking points leak out into public view, much to the consternation of the administration. In one recent episode, White House officials attending a conference on global warming were given talking points that warned them not "to discuss whether there is or is not warming" but instead to shift the debate to the scientific uncertainties. Critics promptly attacked the administration for trying to raise a red herring and misrepresent the available science.

An even more embarrassing episode came last summer when the Republican National Committee issued a series of talking points designed to show that new House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., was a liberal posing as a moderate.

The talking points carried the unfortunate headline, "Tom Foley: Out of the Liberal Closet, which some observers regarded as a crude attempt to link Foley to homosexuality.

The resulting furor put the Republicans on the defensive for weeks. "The Democrats didn't need talking points to know what to say," one GOP leader moaned to the Washington Post. "Republicans need talking points

FBI puts racehorse undercover

By RUTH COCHRAN City Editor

Law enforcement is going to great lengths to nab criminals these days, and sometimes they're getting unexpected

The Associated Press reported 'aging old race horse" with forgettable past performance chart found a second career the FBI.

An informant told the FBI that a race-fixing scam was going on at Finger Lakes Race Track so the bureau decided to crack the case from the inside out. The FBI decided to get into the racing business, and agents said they chose a particular thoroughbred, which has remained unidentified, for their undercover operation because of its unimpressive race record.

The horse, however, apparently was tired of being unimpressive. Instead of a plodding nag that officials hoped would draw out would-be race fixers, they got a horse too good to attract the in-terest of the investigation's

"We thought he was just an agturned out that it was pretty good," G. Robert Langford, special agent in charge of the

However, he wouldn't give up either the original name of the horse of the name it was given when it raced as part of the probe. The unidentified horse, by the way, was trained by an unidentified out-of-town FBI agent.

Langford did say the investigation was the first successful use of a horse in an undercover race

He told the AP that the horse surprised government officials by winning at least one race and finishing in the money in about half of the races it ran in. In fact, he added, it made enough money to cover its $1,000 monthly upkeep

"When we started winning, it kind of got us a little nervous, Langford said.

After informants alerted the FBI, the bureau decided to go undercover with the horse, which they purchased for $5,000. Langford said they had the out-oftown agent pose as a trainer because "it's hard to get into the track fraternity. It's a real closed fraternity.

der because it appeared to be a meiocre runner uncapable of dominating the competition — in other words, the perfect horse to use if you want to fix races.

"You need an average horse that doesn't stand out," Langford said. If a horse that has been successful suddenly starts losing, "it rings a lot of bells" with track observers looking for the fix.

"When a horse wins all the time, not many people want to try to fix the race with it," he said. Although the FBI didn't uncover the race-fixing scheme it had expected, it did corral a jockey, two trainers and one of the trainer's ex-wife. The four face charged of conspiracy and wire fraud. The case against the suspects was developed by a combination of observations of a September race and by conversations overheard by the agent-trainer, Langford

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to "Peg," the 45-year-old divorcee who wrote for advice concerning her 48-year-old transvestite boyfriend.

When I was 20, I married the man of my dreams. He was charming, intelligent and masculine. A year later, he confided that he was a transvestite. (I didn't even know what the word meant.) He explained that he had the need to dress in women's clothes occasionally especially underwear — for purposes of sexual or emotional gratification. Q. Why is it necessary for Cosden Pipe Line Company to use so much lighting at the refinery at night?

A. In the interest of conservation, the amount of lighting was evaluated in the 1970s. It was cut back at that time. The current amount of lighting is the minimal amount required for safety and efficiency, says Jeff Morris, plant manager.

Big Spring will be the scene of one of the largest fireworks displays in West Texas and the biggest ever in Big Spring, said Chamber of Commerce Director Whayne Moore.

The fireworks will be donated by J.B. Elmore, said Moore, who added that it would be hard for Big Spring to find the money to pay for fireworks.

"If Elmore were not paying for these fireworks, we would have to find some other source of ble that we would not have any. Certainly it would be difficult to raise the funding.'

The Fourth of July fireworks have long been a tradition in Big Spring, Moore added. "It's encouraging to see an individual business provide for a community event and enhance the opportunity for residents outside the city to come and enjoy the festivities." Last year's fireworks were provided by Elmore also, he said.

Saturday's batting hero was Braxton Hickman, whose grand slam in the seventh gave San Jacinto its 5-0 lead.

Seles has easy time with Gildemeister

PARIS (AP) — Monica Seles played near-perfect tennis over the final 11 games to breeze past Laura Gildemeister and into the quarterfinals of the French Open on Monday.

Down 1-4 in the first set and having trouble controlling her two-fisted shots, the 16-year-old second seed suddenly seemed invincible as she put Gildemiester away 6-4, 6-0.

In winning the final 11 games, Seles lost just four points in the second set, which took 16 minutes to complete. Of the last 38 points, 32 went to the Florida-based Yugoslav.

Also out was men's eighth seed Andrei Chesnokov, beaten in an emotional roller-coaster match on center court by Frenchman Henri Leconte. The 1988 runner-up, who needed a wildcard to get into the tournament, held on for a 6-4, 6-3, 4-6, 2-6, 6-3 victory.

Sabatini is one of the biggest names in tennis but has reached just one Grand Slam final and never has won one. Her frustration continued on the Paris clay.

On the side Pistons take Bulls to slaughterhouse

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) While the Detroit Pistons are dreaming of another NBA title, the Chicago Bulls are back to mainly daydreaming.

The Pistons, getting 21 points from Isiah Thomas and 33 points from their bench, defeated the Bulls 93-74 Sunday in the seventh and deciding game of the Eastern Conference championships.

Bidding to become only the third franchise in league history to repeat as champion, Detroit will open the NBA Finals at home Tuesday night against the Portland Trail Blazers.

"It was just another game in the playoffs for us," Thomas said. "Maybe their youth and inexperience showed. We felt confident coming into the game.'

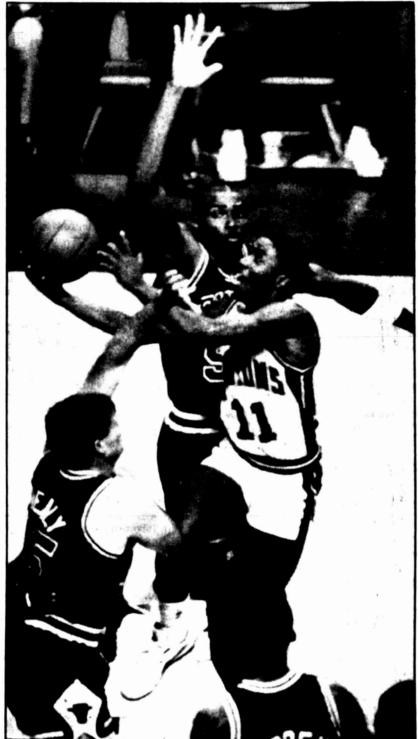

Michael Jordan, proving that a one-man team isn't enough in the NBA, scored 31 points for the Bulls. But the only other Chicago player in double figures was Horace Grant with 10.

"Some players didn't play as well as they're capable of, but you have to take your lumps and move on," said Jordan, whose chair-kicking temper tantrum was credited with helping the Bulls stave off a sweep after they dropped the first two games. "Maybe the pressure got to us," Jordan said. "There was some nervousness. Nobody besides (Bill) Cartwright has been in this situation. You could see their killer instinct. They had us back on our heels. They overwhelmed us," + Michael Jordan, Chicago Bulls.

The Bulls, who shot only 31.1 percent, actually led 19-17 after one quarter. But the Pistons, as they always do, went to their bench.

With Mark Aguirre scoring 10 of his 15 points, the Pistons broke the game open in the second quarter, building a 48-33 halftime lead. The Pistons' bench outscored the Bulls' bench 33-17 inothergame and: 213-181: during mand: Horace Grant.

the series.

"Before the game, we were relaxed, open and real loose," said John Salley, who chipped in with 14 points and five blocked shots for Detroit. "Like (Coach) Chuck (Daly) said, this team has 12 companies and each company sat down at the round table and decided to go for one objective. Everybody was here today.'

The Bulls, who never have been to the NBA Finals, have lost their last eight games in Detroit, dating back to the first game of last year's conference finals. The Bulls won all three games in Chicago Stadium and kept saying they felt confident they could win in Detroit.

But when it came time to do it, they never came close. Chicago never shot 50 percent against Detroit and never scored 100 points in any of the four games at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

"They proved today that they're better on paper and better on the court," Jordan said.
"They're the best defensive team in the league. In the playoffs, not too many people are going to get layups or dunks.

The Bulls staged a mild rally to and Vinnie Johnson each scoring and the Bulls never recovered.

we're for real."

The Pistons now are 11-4 in the playoffs (9-0 at home, 2-4 on the road). Over the last two years, the Pistons are 26-6 in the playoffs with five of those six losses coming against the Bulls;

"This is it," Salley said. "After 82 (regular season) games, it all comes down to this. Only the elite teams are here. We had the idea that we knew how important it is to get to the Finals. That is the only thing."

The Pistons were 1-1 against Portland during the season. Detroit and Portland finished with identical 59-23 records, but the Pistons will have the homecourt advantage in the best-of-7 Finals because they had a better conference record than the Trail Blazers. Detroit was 40-14 against Eastern Conference foes, Portland 41-15 against Western Conference opponents.

"In terms of matchups, the teams are pretty even," Thomas said. "We may have the experience factor, but they may come in naive and not be afraid. They won't come in afraid, I'll guarantee you.'

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - TheCollege World Series is beginning to look a lot like another edition of the Southeastern Conference baseball

Stanford coach Mark Marquess said at the opening news conference of the College World Series that it was nice of the Southeastern Conference to invite his topseeded Cardinal to their second SEC baseball tournament. After Sunday night, he wasn't so sure.

SEC runner-up Georgia clobbered Stanford 16-2 with a CWS record-tying 11-run inning just hours after another SEC team, Mississippi State, scored 11 runs in the first inning to send Georgia Southern home 15-1.

A third SEC team, Louisiana State, is playing in the other bracket against Oklahoma State tonight.

"It was a good whipping," Marquess said of Stanford's meeting with Georgia. "Georgia beat us every which way. They kept us off balance all evening.

Stanford (57-11) now must rebound against fifth-seeded Mississippi State (50-20) in an elimination game at 3:07 p.m. CDT Tuesday. Fourth-seeded Georgia (50-18) awaits Tuesday's winner for a 7:07 p.m. showdown Wednesday.

Mississippi State, which lost 3-0 to Georgia in Friday's CWS first round, wasted no time against Georgia Southern. MSU's 11 runs was the most ever scored in a first inning of a College World Series game.

Previously at the CWS, Texas scored 10 runs in the first against Seton Hall in 1975 and Notre Dame did it against Northern Colorado in 1957. The runs tied the 11-run mark in any one inning at the tournament. Stanford had an 11-run sixth inning against South Carolina in 1982, Seton Hall scored 11 in the eighth against Texas A&M in 1964 and California scored 11 in the ninth against Yale in 1947. Georgia shared in that mark later Sunday.

"We didn't say much before today's game," MSU left fielder John Cohen said. "We had a great air of confidence. We knew we were going to score a lot of runs and score early. Facing Georgia Southern's No. 2 pitcher, with the wind in his face, it figures we were going to score runs."

Cohen doubled in the first two runs of the inning. Tommy Raffo, Cohen and Jon Shave each had two hits and two

"It was a good win and we got off to a great start in that one inning," MSU coach Ron Polk said. "I've been on the other side of those nightmare innings, but after 11 runs I still wasn't comfortable. Georgia Southern didn't get to the College World Series without scoring runs."

"Life goes on," is how Southern coach Jack Stallings summed it up. "I don't know who wrote the rule book who says you have to play nine innings. I would've been happy with eight."

Marquess might have been thinking the same thing about five innings. His Cardinal pitching standout, Mike Mussina, had Georgia guessing until the sixth. Mussina (14-4) struck out 10 Bulldogs before being removed in the 11-hit, 11-run sixth-inning blowout.

"Early, I felt like I had pretty good stuff," Mussina said. 'They just got on me. They're good hitters.'

Only Ray Suplee's double drove in more than one run and was the only extra-base hit against Mussina and two other Stanford pitchers during the sixth.

Bruce Chick and Doug Radziewicz singled twice each in the inning. Georgia ended with "The strategy was for Stanford to get ahead of us with the high fastball," Radziewicz said of Mussina's 90-plus mph fastball. "He was probably the hardest throwing pitcher we've faced all year. But once we went through the lineup once or twice against him, I think he still had it in his mind he could get us on the high fastball. "

Terrell going to Albany

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ Staff Writer

LENORAH - After four years at Grady High, Coach Tommy Terrell will be saying his farewells and moving on to Albany in late June. Terrell will assume the duties of counselor and junior high coach at his new destination in "One of the things that I wanted to get into was a diversified program, and the fact that they have rell. He explained 'this is a career move. We hated to move from the area, but we took advantage of Scott's graduation and the fact that Shane will be starting high school. He will have more loose from as far as sports." Albany is in a District 2-AA;

in the same district with Hackell, Anson, Hawley and Stainford.

"I will be an assistant coach in football, basketball, track and or golf. The system I will be involved in believes that everyone can participate. That's the system that I'm leaving at Gardy. I don't think I could work with any other", said

Terrell was a graduate from Three-Way High School at Maple Texas. He received his degree from West Texas State University. His first coaching job was at Grady after working for over 12 years in the Little League programs.

"I farmed and stayed active in Little League and for several years, but always wanted to get back into teaching youngsters at the junior high level. I wanted to involve them in our program, where all kids got a chance to participate and play. Encourage the kids and steer them in the direction they want to go."

He added, "Mrs. Terrell, Shane and myself would like to thank the friends at First Baptist Church for their support. We would like to thank everyone at Grady schools for their friendship and support. We cannot express in words the thanks for the opportunity the Grady community gave us. The faculty has been very supportive, they have always been there. Our special thanks go out to Mr. Gibson Grady principal Richard Gibson) for his continued support. Again thanks, Grady.

WEST ALLIS, Wis. (AP) Michael Andretti's Chevrolet was running so smoothly and so fortlessly that he appeared to be out for a Sunday spin, not involved in a race around the onemile oval at Wisconsin State Fair Park.

"I was coasting. The car was ubbelievable," he said.

What Andretti truly couldn't believe was that his car really did begin to coast — for lack of fuel — on the 199th lap of the Miller 200.

Wildcat gridders will be experienced

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ Staff Writer

LENORAH - Grady will be one of the top football teams in 6-A six man this year with Sands and Klondike not too far behind.

Last year the Wildcats playoffs were cut short by two-time state champion Fort Hancock. The Wildcats finished in district play behind Sands.

"I believe that our experience is the nucleus of this coming year's team. Our defense is as good or better than last year's, said Grady coach Lenardo Gonzales. "We lost some key players, but we have young kids waiting in the wings that will surprise alot of people.'

"We are concentrating on our weight program along with alot of running, because I believe that in six-man, conditioning, is a vital role for us to compete against other district teams.

'We worked on our passing game; we may not be as fast as last year's team, but we will certainly be a stronger team physically. We may have smaller kids, but they will size up to anybody in the happen to Len, then I believe that J.C. Odom can step in and run a good offense. J.C. is a good smart player and he can do the job, but Len will be there at starting quarterback barring an injury.' The loss of nine seniors will still be something that Gonzales will feel due to the fact that Klondike lost only one upperclassman. Borden County will be aligned with the Abliene area district, while Wellman will added to the 6-A district. Also another loss that Grady will miss is coach Tommy Terrell. Terrell accepted a position at Albany.

"Right now, we are looking for a replacement for Terrell. He will be missed, but I feel confident that we can find another coach in time," said Gonzales.

If Grady can withstand injury, the Wildcats could possibly be scratching for another playoff

One day after the Cleveland Indians got the best of a brushback battle with Boston, Clemens began Sunday's game with a called strike to Stanley Jefferson.

AL

Clemens, one of baseball's better control pitchers, then came back with another fastball just where he wanted it - right at Jefferson.

The ball hit Jefferson in the right elbow and started a bench-clearing brawl. Once order was restored, Clemens made it business as usual: he struck out a season-high 11 and became the first nine-game winner in the majors as the Red Sox beat the Indians 8-2.

"I loved it. We got even, didn't we?" Boston manager Joe Morgan said. "We voted as a team 34-0 that it would be such. I think they figured after last night, this was inevitable.

On Saturday night in Cleveland, Doug Jones threw a pitch over the head of Boston's Tony Pena in the ninth inning. Pena had helped beat Jones and the Indians on Friday.

Clemens knew what he had to do. "Nobody on this team has to come up and tell a pitcher how to pitch." Clemens said. "I'm going hit two-run homers and Ellis Burks Jefferson understood the situation. He didn't charge the mound, but he asked for — and got — an explanation from Clemens.

"I thought the incident with Jonesy and Pena was harmless,' Jefferson said. "I didn't think it would carry over to today. I guess it did. Clemens said he was sorry it was me, and he said if I was on his team, he'd do the same for me."

Jefferson left the game, although X-rays were negative. Clemens was not ejected, although Morgan accused Cleveland of trying to bait him into a brawl. Pena, who was not in the starting lineup, and Cleveland's Chris James were tossed

Railey to appear in divorce court

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Former Texas minister Walker Railey was to appear today in court here to explain why his marriage to his wife, incapacitated by a near-fatal choking attack, should be dissolved.

Railey, who was found liable for the attack in an $18 million civil judgment in 1988, wants a divorce from Margaret "Peggy" Railey, who lies in a vegetative state at a Tyler nursing home.

Lucy Papillon, a former Dallas psychologist who recently testified that she still maintains a relationship with Railey, has been subpoenaed as a witness in the divorce trial. Railey and Ms. Papillon both live in Los Angeles.

Railey, in a motion filed last week, wants permission for Dallas lawyer Michael Pezzuli to argue his divorce case, filed more than a year ago. In an affidavit, Railey said he has been unable to find a California lawyer to take his case.

"I have called no less than 35 to 40 attorneys who have advised that they will not take my case, nor will they represent me," said Railey.

O'Hair denounces bible ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair denounced as a "tragedy" Monday's U.S. Supreme Court ruling that student prayer groups must be permitted to meet at public schools allowing other organized extracurricular activities.

Mrs. O'Hair brought the lawsuit that led to the U.S. Supreme Court's 1963 decision banning compulsory prayer in public schools.

Bush, Gorbachev end their summit

By TOM RAUM Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - President Bush prepared a review of his summit accomplishments for the friendliest audience in town, his Cabinet, today as he braced for a congressional cold shoulder over the provisional trade agreement which so pleased Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Bush's decision to sign the trade pact without winning concessions on Lithuania has drawn reproach from both parties.

Despite sharp differences remaining on the fate of the Baltics and on the military alignment of a reunified Germany, Bush and Gorbachev are heralding their summit gains and predicting another 1990 session to nail down arms treaties that eluded them this time.

They ended their second summit on Sunday, speaking warmly of each other and proclaiming the meeting a big success. "Neither of us tried to cover over the differences," Bush said.

The president was to give a report on his sessions with Gorbachev to his Cabinet this morning. For his part, Gorbachev was spending his day in California before flying home.

Bush can expect accolades from his Cabinet, but a frosty reaction was in store for him from Capitol Hill on the trade agreement.

However, Bush has said he will only send the measure to Congress if the Supreme Soviet passes a liberalized emigration law.

And a gesture by Gorbachev in lightening up on Lithuania - in exchange for the prize of the trade treaty - could quickly turn the situation around in Congress.

Both leaders voiced hope that they can meet again before the end of the year - Gorbachev invited Bush to Moscow — to sign treaties to cut long-range nuclear missiles and trim conventional forces in Europe.

Bush and Gorbachev also talked about having regular, perhaps annual, meetings without the usual summit fanfare of 21-gun salutes, state dinners and military bands.

ST. PAUL, Minn. - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa, are greefed by a crowd along Summit Street here Sunday as they walked part of the way to the governor's mansion, their first stop on their Minnesota visit.

Bush said, "We're now at a stage in the U.S.-Soviet relationship and, indeed, in world history where we should miss no opportunity to complete the extraordinary tasks

Gorbachev said of his summit host, "This is the kind of person to do business with.

The two leaders made significant progress on the nuclear pact, signing a framework agreement to cut

not just limiting, but we will be reducing the most devastating means of warfare," Gorbachev

by year's end.

But deep divisions remained between them on levels of troops and tanks in Europe, a dispute directly related to another disagreement over the future political and military face of a unified Germany

"We could not resolve this issue in Washington," Gorbachev declared simply.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze were assigned to work together in an effort to narrow the differences.

The two ministers will discuss Germany on Tuesday at a previously scheduled conference on human rights in Copenhagen, then again later this month in

overall relationship. For his part, Gorbachev - who gave no ground on Lithuania at the Washington talks — brushed off the topic. He repeated a favorite recent line — that Bush would have restored constitutional order 'within 24 hours' had a state in the United States declared independence as did Lithuania. Lack of major progress on the Baltic stalemate is building substantial congressional opposition to the trade pact, and Bush conceded that Gorbachev had given him no assurances that Moscow was any closer to lifting its economic embargo against Lithuania.

"I'm not sure anything has changed," Bush said.

WIC cuts to affect women, children

By SUSAN FAHLGREN

Associated Press Writer HOUSTON — Three-year-old Fabian Maldonado was dropped from a federal food program because he is too healthy. Now, his mother doesn't know how she is going to feed him.

Another mother, Kellie Brillhart, estimates she will lose about $200 a month from her food budget because her oldest daughter has been cut from the same program.

They are among some 27,000 women and toddlers in Texas who will be struck from the Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children by July because of rising food costs and increased demand, said Debra Stabeno, program director for Texas.

"WIC has helped us a lot," said Mrs. Brillhart, 23, the mother of three children who are all on WIC. "My 3-year-old daughter, Lisa, was cut off the program last week. She came up to be renewed and they just said, 'Sorry, she can't get back on it.' But she's been cut before. I told them, 'Well, I'll be back in six months.

'Go fly a kite' takes on a new meaning

By JACK KEEVER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — "Go fly a kite" takes on new meaning when talking to Pat Hammond, a San Antonio artist-collector with an eclectic lifestyle.

Dubbed the "Kite Lady," she has advanced this theory on aerodynamics: "Name them, they fly better.'

Her credentials among kite fanciers were conferred in Washington, D.C., on April Fool's Day 1972, when a kite she was flying for the first time won the Smithsonian Institution's National Kite Flying Championship.

"The Smithsonian's first rule was don't fly the kite higher than the Washington Monument. I had never flown it, period. I wasn't worried about exceeding the height," she said.

But the wind was perfect, she recalls, for "Red Tails in the Sunset," only the second kite she had ever made. She punched a button on a borrowed fishing reel, releasing the string, and the kite "just went straight, like somebody on the other side was pulling it up. Buoyed by this unexpected victory, Ms. Hammond had her first kite show in 1974 in San Antonio. And ever since she has been fascinated by strings and sticks and paper, transformed by the wind into something she finds marvelous.

Nothing seems to escape her notice. A recent kite was made from tax forms.

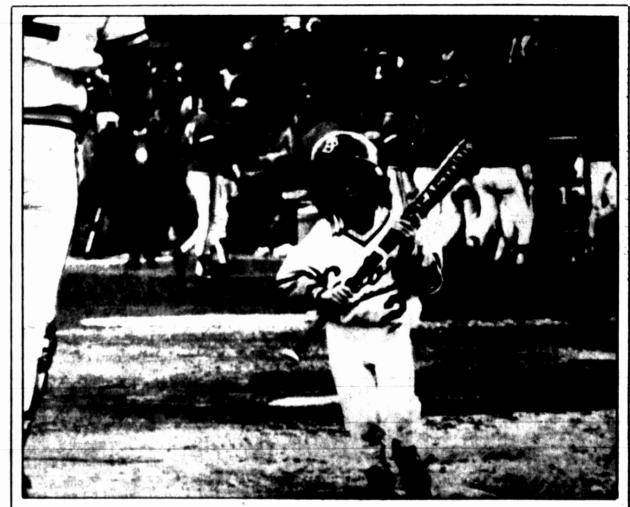

Her kites have been shown in museums from Amarillo to Corpus Christi, Texas; from Richmond, Va., to Buenos Aires, Argentina. Her creations are part of permanent collections at the Smithsonian, Philadelphia Children's Hospital and Texas A&M University.

She has made presentations to thousands of school children, teacher groups, civic clubs and university classes, tying kites to geography, history, mathematics and physics, as well as the arts.

Ms. Hammond herself states the obvious question, and supplies an "But aren't kites toys? Certainly so was the telescope before Galileo made it something more." It would not be true, she said in an interview, to say she was deadly serious. "On the other hand, I am serious. Its just such a balance between seriousness and ridiculousness.' And she was serious in questioning the removal earlier this spring of one of her kites from a show at the Children's Museum in Midland.

Q. Why is it necessary for Cosden Pipe Line Company to use so much lighting at night? A. In the interest of conservation, the amount of lighting was evaluated in the 1970s. It was cut back at that time. The current amount of lighting is the minimal amount required for safety and efficiency, says Jeff Morris, Plant Manager.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Improved trade ties with the Soviet Union are unlikely to usher in an export bonanza for the American farmer, says a new report from the Agriculture Department.

The most favored nation status being sought for the Soviets "may not greatly benefit U.S. farmers" but also "poses little danger to U.S. farmers," according to the report from USDA's Economic Research

"Because of the limited increase in Soviet export earnings (with or without most favored nation from the United States), the continued Soviet commitment to increasing its degree of food self-sufficiency and the USSR's substantial need for nonagricultural imports, little increase in agricultural imports is likely to occur," it said.

Most favored nation status would put the Soviets on the same footing in terms of tariffs and other matters as this country's top trading

President Bush agreed to upgraded trade ties between the two nations on Friday, pressing Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for a new law protecting Jewish emigration as the price. American agribusiness had been pushing for such a move. Five former agriculture secretaries, three Republicans and two Democrats, issued a statement earlier Friday urging the upgraded trade status. They said it would 'help build a relationship that all sides can count on for the long term and be a basis for bringing the Soviet Union more fully into the world trading system.

USDA economists in their report did cite a recent study by the U.S. International Trade Commission that said granting most favored nation status to the Soviets could mean an overall $1 billion gain for the United States. But it said other studies put the amount lower.

USDA is currently forecasting total U.S. agricultural exports for this year at $40 billion and the Soviet Union's purchases of grain from this country already have made it the second largest singlenation customer.

The report said the Soviets are selling the same sorts of goods to Canada, which already has granted them most favored nation status.

The report said the Soviet Union has a limited ability to produce the sort of consumer goods that would be most affected by lower tariffs.

A notable exception: Most favored nation status would slash the tariff on imports of Soviet vodka between 60 percent and 90 percent and could lead to imports substantially above last year's $19

WASHINGTON (AP) - A University of California economist says the real cost to consumers of the nation's sugar program is "somewhere in the neighborhood of below $500 million.'

The American Sugar Alliance, which represents U.S. growers, is applauding the finding from Andrew Schmitz, chairman of the agricultural economics department at Berkeley. They claim that it "refutes the often quoted figure Most favored nation status would of $3 billion as the cost to con-

Gorbachev's statement Sunday that he may review whether to suspend exit permits for Soviet Jews if they continue to be settled in Israel's occupied territories probably won't help the administration build its case on trade. Bush himself has strongly urged Israel to cease that practice, but has himself conditioned the trade deal on a more liberal Soviet emigration policy

Despite the major differences a new rapport.

"We spent many hours together and were able to come to know each other very well ... we have a good human relationship and I think a good human atmosphere between us," Gorbachev said.

Said Bush: "We've moved a long, long way from the depths of the Cold War. I don't know how to quantify it for you, but we could never have had the discussions at Camp David yesterday, or as we sat in the Oval Office a couple of days ago with President Gorbachev. 20 years ago.'

Bush and Gorbachev had spent Saturday at the presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland. When not working, the two leaders drove around the grounds in a golf cart — first Bush driving, then Gorbachev. And Gorbachev took up one of Bush's favorite sports, horseshoes — and pitched a perfect ringer on his first

Bush and Gorbachev heralded the agreements they reached at Washington: the framework START agreement, a breakthrough pact to eliminate chemical weapons, an agreement for increasing U.S.-Soviet air travel, maritime and ocean-studies pacts, and a joint effort to provide food relief for Ethiopia

Gorbachev also nailed down two multimillion-dollar deals with Chevron and IBM.

The Soviet leader called the fourday Washington summit "an event of enormous importance.'

WIC cuts_

WIC serves lower income women who are young, anemic, smoke, use drugs, have poor dietary habits or other problems. It also is for poor children up to 5 years old who have nutrition problems.

Participants receive vouchers they use at grocery stores to buy milk, cheese, cereal, juice, infant formula, peanut butter, eggs and dried beans.

But higher food costs and increased demand resulted in a budget shortfall this year, forcing WIC officials to implement cuts in at least 36 states. Healthy children and mothers are primary targets.

"We serve 330,000 people a month in the state," Ms. Stabeno said. "We're not shutting the doors or anything. We want to encourage mothers to keep their appointments, even those in the lowest priority, because they still may be eligible."

Pregnant women who are accepted to the program remain eligible until six weeks after they deliver, unless they are breast feeding, and are reevaluated every six months. Infants remain on the program until their first birthday and then are re-evaluated for growth and nutritional deficiencies every six months.

Now when they come in for reevaluation, some women are shocked when they are told they or their toddlers are too healthy to continue receiving vouchers.
