Boy wins award in dad's death

GALVESTON (AP) — Three corporations will pay $12 million in damages to a 10-year-old boy whose father died in a fiery 1986 Texas City industrial accident.

StanTrans Inc., Mitsubishi International Corp. and the General American Transportation Corp. agreed Tuesday to pay $12 million to Darrell Rivers of Dallas and $1.45 million in damages and attorney fees to the wife, three adult children and parents of Tommy Rivers Jr., 46.

Rivers died while loading a tank car with volatile butadiene on Dec. 2, 1986, at the StanTrans facility in Texas City.

The blast caused several fires and sent fire and shrapnel flying around the Texas City waterfront. Rivers, who worked for StanTrans from 1979 until his death, was the only person reported injured in the blast.

House, Senate rush through reform package

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — A $528 million school finance reform package is speeding through the Texas Legislature, as lawmakers work to end their record-breaking sixth special legislative session by the end of the week.

"We've been here for a long time, and we'd like to go home," House Speaker Gib Lewis said Tuesday, the second day of this special session. It is the fourth session on court-ordered school finance reform; lawmakers have been meeting on the issue since late February.

The House and Senate on Tuesday easily approved fee and tax increases needed to pay for the reform plan agreed to by state leaders, including a quarter-cent state sales tax increase and higher taxes on mixed drinks and tobacco. The measures were sent to Gov. Bill Clements.

The Senate also passed a separate bill outlining school finance reforms with a 29-1 vote, and a measure making budget cuts and state budget transfers with a 30-0 vote. Those bills were sent to the House for consideration, and the Public Education Committee approved the reform bill with a 6-1

Wastewater compliance could cost city $7 million

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

BIG SPRING — City officials expect strict new state regulations to force modifications at the wastewater treatment plant that could cost more than $7 million.

Council members learned Tuesday night during a workshop that the city's wastewater permit will be considered for renewal in January. Representatives of GSW & Associates, a civil/environmental engineering firm, said the Texas Water Commission will impose new regulations with the new permit. The representatives had been asked to brief the council on the new regulations and ways to meet them.

Those changes, which regulate what the city can release from the treatment plant, could be drastically different or only slightly more strict, according to Charles Wilmut, GSW senior vice president.

Either way, the city will have to modify the wastewater treatment plant, Wilmut said, because current equipment cannot meet those standards.

According to GSW calculations, those modifications could range in cost from $7,054 million to $7,695 million. The city could be eligible for a low-interest state loan, Wilmut said; otherwise it will have to arrange other financing.

City Manager Hal Boyd emphasized that the city must meet whatever new regulations the Texas Water Commission sets. Failure to meet those requirements, he said, could result in fines of $10,000 per day.

Wilmut told the council the city's current permit allows the treatment plant to release water into Beals Creek with 20 milligrams per liter of biochemical oxygen demand, or BOD, and 20 mg per liter of total suspended solids, or TSS. The permit commonly is called a 20-20.

The Texas Water Commission may impose a 10-15 permit, he said. That would force the city to reduce its BOD release to 10 mg per liter and its TSS release to 15 mg per liter.

If the commission renews the 20-20 permit or imposes a 10-15 permit, it still will require certain other changes, Wilmut said. Either way, he said, the city will be expected to dechlorinate the treated water and perform biochemical monitoring, or testing.

It also will be expected to limit the amount of ammonia nitrogen, or NH3-N, released, he said, and it will be expected to maintain a specified level of dissolved oxygen, or DO, in the treated water.

The city currently is not required to limit the release of NH3-N, Wilmut said, or to add DO to the water. The requirements, including dechlorination and biomonitoring, are designed to protect aquatic life downstream from the treatment plant, Wilmut said.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Sen. Edward Kennedy stands before the grave of his brother, Robert, in Arlington National Cemetery today, the 22nd anniversary of Robert Kennedy's assassination.

Officers suspended for ignoring plea

HOUSTON (AP) — Two police officers, suspended for allegedly ignoring a citizen's plea to help stop a bank robbery, have been accused of similar acts, internal records show.

But, of the three complaints filed against the officers, only one was sustained by department investigators.

Ernest Gonzales, 47, and Kelly Hallford, 27, were relieved of duty with pay Friday, a day after officials learned the officers allegedly failed to react to a robbery at Texas Commerce Bank-Southeast.

The bandit was captured later by other officers, but not before wounding a taxi driver. The officers were eating lunch at a nearby restaurant when a bank employee saw their parked patrol car and asked them to help stop a robber.

The officers continued eating and told the employee the bank was not on their beat and was out of their district. Mike Howard, president of the Houston Police Patrolmen's Union, said the officers may have been afraid of being disciplined for reacting to a crime while out of their beat.

But police spokesman Dan Turner said no department policy prevents officers from responding to a crime outside of their district or beat.

The Houston Police Department released records Tuesday showing Gonzales, an 18-year veteran, had two failure-to-take-action complaints filed on him last year, one of which was confirmed.

Details were not disclosed.

Sawyer found guilty on marijuana charge

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — Dennis Earl Sawyer, 23, who was arrested during Martin County's largest drug bust, was found guilty in 118th District Court of delivering marijuana.

A jury deliberated for more than an hour Tuesday before reaching a decision. At press time the jury had not reached an agreement about the sentence, which will range from two to 10 years.

The trial is the only one held so far for the 12 people arrested in October in what is Martin County's largest drug operation to date. Five other people pleaded guilty, with four receiving jail time and one receiving probation.

The verdict on Sawyer was handed down following conflicting testimony on Monday and Tuesday from state and defense witnesses on what actually happened.

Witnesses agreed that Sawyer sold two baggies of marijuana to an undercover agent of the Permian Basin Drug Task Force on June 24, but disagreed on whether he sold two more baggies on June 26. The charge against him is in connection with the June 26 incident.

Former undercover agent Joana Reagan said she bought marijuana on both occasions, paying $50 each time. However, Sawyer's wife, Christine, and another witness who was there, Joe Cantu, said that Reagan asked about buying marijuana the second time but none was sold to her. Sawyer did not take the stand in his defense.

Buying that much marijuana in such a short period of time appeared suspicious, said Cantu, who is one of the people arrested in the October roundup. He was sentenced to 10 years.

Common sense key to beating the heat

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Staff Writer

One of the best preventions against summer injuries and heat stroke is common sense, say two Big Spring physicians.

"Basically stay cool, don't booze it up, use a sunscreen. We all know these things, but we don't always think," said Dr. James Farquhar.

"Stay indoors, keep under cover and try not to exert yourself during the hottest part of the day, especially if you are a member of our elderly community," said Dr. Jack Woodall, director of Howard County/Big Spring Health Department.

Farquhar said injuries from drunk driving and boating will most likely wreak havoc on many a vacation this summer. "Drunk boating accidents are getting a lot of publicity now. This seems to be a relatively new thing."

Drownings as a result of drinking alcohol seem to have become more common, Farquhar said. "I hate to sound like I'm preaching but this is really a serious problem come summertime. People need to be aware of the danger."

Another danger people seem to forget is sunburn, Farquhar said. "Skin cancer can result over time — that's serious — but a bad burn may even require hospitalization. These are first and second degree burns."

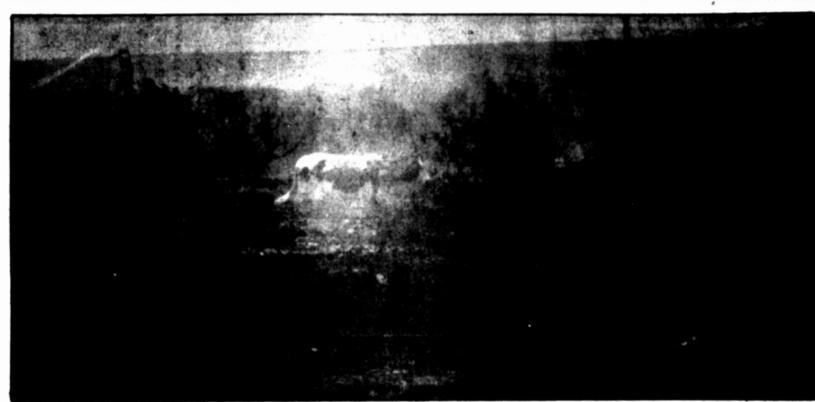

Serious sunburns require skin treatments, fluids and sometimes pain medications. He said those with light complexions who tend to burn easily should apply and re-apply sunscreen liberally and often.

The oppressive heat will most likely cause more than a few injuries this summer, Woodall said. Two types of heat injuries are heat stroke and heat exhaustion.

"Heat stroke occurs when the body is unable to regulate its temperature. More common is what is called 'heat exhaustion' or loss of water and salt, electrolytes, from the body," Farquhar said.

Farquhar said in recent years the public in general, and especial-

CROSSROADS COUNTRY

Five volunteer fire departments and seven private companies helped extinguish a grass fire south of Big Spring Tuesday, but not until 700 acres had burned. One of the residents of the pasture surveys the newly-burned vegetation in the top photo. A volunteer sprays water on the side of the road to keep the fire from jumping in the photo at right.

An accidental fire which began late Tuesday morning South of Big Spring burned about 700 acres of pasture land, but was brought under control before it could reach houses across Wildfire Road, said C. Roy Wright, Howard County Volunteer Fire Department Chief.

The Evans Ranch, about 10 miles South of the city, was the scene of a massive fire fighting effort which involved five stations and seven private companies. There were no injuries and little damage considering the size of the area burned, Wright said. "Apparently it began when a power line fell and caught the grass on fire. It was carried by the wind and almost jumped the (Wildfire) road. There were houses on the other side," he said.

Volunteer fighters from Forsan, Sand Springs, Tubbs, Silver Heels and Lomax stations responded to the call, which came at about noon Tuesday, according to reports. "We had help from a lot of individuals and companies. If it hadn't been for them we might have lost it," Wright said.

Conoco employees, Christian Construction, Reeves Company, Mid-America Pipeline, Sherman Meter Service, Bergstein Oil Field Services, the City of Big Spring and Hise Backhoe Service all helped control the blaze.

"We're real proud of their efforts," Wright said.

The acreage burned was part of the Robert Wash Oil Company Curry A. Lease on the ranch, he said. "It didn't look like there was too much damage to equipment, but Wash lost some of its flow lines. It was a very hot fire."

Wright said livestock on the ranch were unharmed by the blaze.

With all available help, Wright said, the fire was brought under control about 2:15 p.m. Shortly after 4 p.m. the fire was judged to be out and the last two fire fighting stations were able to leave the area, he said.

Fighting the fire took about 12,000 gallons of water.

Senate won't curb crime bill debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors of an anti-crime bill that would curb the import and manufacture of assault weapons say they expect to gain enough support in two days to save the bill from being talked to death on the Senate floor.

"Americans want something done about these god-awful assault weapons," Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., said Tuesday, appealing in vain for a time limit on debate.

The Senate voted 54-37 in favor of a time limit, six votes short of the 60 needed.

Biden, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said when the bill returns to the floor Thursday morning lawmakers will vote to impose the limit by a "surplus of two, three, maybe even four votes."

He said the votes would come from absentees and lawmakers who planned to throw a bone to the National Rifle Association on the first roll call but switch if it came to a second one.

Feinstein nominated for governor

Former San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, who stressed her support for the death penalty and abortion rights, won the Democratic nomination Tuesday for governor of California. North Carolina Democrats broke racial precedent and chose Harvey Gantt to challenge Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

Feinstein jumped into the lead over attorney general John Van de Kamp in the earliest returns. Sen. Pete Wilson rolled over three unknowns to capture the Republican nomination for governor of the nation's most populous state.

"Well, we did it!" proclaimed a triumphant Feinstein.

Wilson congratulated Feinstein on her victory and then said: "My friends in the Democratic Party, open up tonight because this is your last victory party of the 1990s."

On the busiest primary night so far this election year, three senators overwhelmed taken opposition while four others were unopposed for renomination. The race for the Democratic nomination for governor of Alabama won't be decided until a June 26 runoff.

Returns from 18 percent of California's 24,401 precincts gave Feinstein 255,644 votes.

Long-awaited rain hits North Dakota

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — After more than two years of praying for rain — in homes, churches and on the steps of the state Capitol — North Dakotans can see puddles in their wheat fields.

Now they're giving thanks, even though it's too early to say the drought is over.

"It was so bleak and dry for so long that when we got the rain last week everyone came in with sunshine on their faces," said Gertrude Buscher, executive vice president of the Bank of Beulah.

Most of the rain has fallen in the eastern part of the state. Fargo has reported 5 inches since March 25, nearly half an inch above normal. The area got more than 2 inches during a soaking last weekend.

The prospect of a third year of drought prompted more than 100 people to gather on the steps of the Capitol last month to pray for rain. A rain dance also was held.

Suicide machine kills Alzheimer's patient

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Prosecutors today weighed criminal charges against a doctor who hooked an Alzheimer's patient to a poison-injecting suicide machine that let her take her life with the press of a button.

Case law in Michigan is unclear on whether assisting a suicide is a crime, Thompson said. In Oregon, providing the means to commit suicide is a felony.

Mrs. Adkins' husband called the device humane and said his wife had the right to take her life.

"She loved life. She just lived life to the fullest," Ron Adkins said Tuesday in Portland. "She was a powerful woman and she was an intelligent woman. I was the weak one. She was strong. She had made up her mind."

Adkins released a note his wife had written: "I have Alzheimer's disease and do not want to let it progress any farther. I don't choose to put my family or myself through the agony of this terrible disease."

One of the couple's three sons, Neil, told KGW-TV in Portland, "She was in a very good state of mind, that's the amazing thing. It was not a desperate thing or a depressed situation. She was the one that helped us all through it."

Diana Smith of the Hemlock Society, which advocates suicide rights, said: "It's unfortunate that Mrs. Adkins had to go so far to get the assistance she desired." Smith said Kevorkian used Michigan as a testing ground because it is the only state that doesn't have specific laws against assisting a suicide.

Some ethicists said the doctor acted in violation of the Hippocratic Oath.

Striking truckers reject offer

SURREY, British Columbia (AP) — More than 1,500 independent British Columbia truckers shouted down a settlement offer, putting back into gear a strike that has slowed deliveries of food and fuel across the U.S. border.

The truckers warned of new forms of protest, after a court injunction forced them to stop using their rigs to block border crossings.

The settlement offer was presented to more than 1,500 truckers Tuesday night at a fairground in this Vancouver suburb. The truckers didn't even bother using ballots they were handed and overwhelmingly shouted the offer down.

More talks were set for today. There are about 3,000 independent truckers in British Columbia, about one-quarter of all truckers in the province.

The proposal, crafted with help from a mediator, would have set a minimum hauling rate of $35 an hour, going up to $40 by January. The truckers want $40 now.

Man missing after going over falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario (AP) — A U.S. stuntman is missing after going over the Niagara Falls in a kayak, Canadian police said.

A red kayak belonging to the 28-year-old man from Tennessee was recovered below Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side, "all in one piece," said Maureen Quinn, a constable with the Niagara Parks Police. But she said authorities "found nothing else, just the kayak. No body's been found."

The man, whose identity was not disclosed pending notification of next of kin, was last seen at about 1:45 p.m. EDT, Quinn said.

The Canadian falls, the world's largest by volume, are 181 feet high, or about as tall as a 13-story building.

Another constable, Kim Davis, said the stuntman was trying to complete a stunt that had been planned for about 10 years. Police said nobody has ever tried to kayak over the Canadian side of the falls.

Rebels seize plantation headquarters

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Rebel forces have seized the headquarters of the world's largest rubber plantation, Liberia's biggest employer, and are now believed to control every major industrial concern in the country.

On Tuesday, the insurgents gathered outside the gates of the headquarters of the adjoining rubber plantation. Their presence effectively closed the airport.

President Samuel Doe met with religious leaders in an attempt at peaceful negotiations to end the insurgency, which began in December in northeastern Nimba County and became a serious challenge after reported reprisals against civilians by government troops.

Amnesty International says soldiers killed hundreds of civilians from the Gio and Mano ethnic groups. The civil war has pitted members of the Krahn and Mandingo groups, from which Doe draws support, against the Gio and Mano peoples, who have largely backed rebel leader Charles Taylor. Doe is a Krahn.

The rebels took the headquarters of the 120,000-acre Bridgestone-Firestone Inc. plantation Tuesday after attacking government troops with mortars and automatic weapons.

Plantation residents said dozens of rebels crossed the Farmington River — the last natural barrier before Monrovia — and moved onto the plantation.

Diplomatic sources said about 15 or 20 soldiers briefly returned fire, then fled toward the capital. It has become a familiar story in the war, with some soldiers abandoning key posts before the rebel advance.

Diplomats say about 50 percent of a soldier corps they describe as ill-trained and poorly paid have deserted. Government forces now are believed to number about the same as the rebels — 3,000 to 4,000.

Wit and charm

"Who knows," Barbara Bush told graduating seniors at Wellesley College, "somewhere out in this audience may even be someone who will one day follow in my footsteps and preside over the White House as the president's spouse." Then, after a well-timed pause, she added, "And I wish him well."

With Raisa Gorbachev at her side, Mrs. Bush used wit and charm to win over the commencement crowd at the Massachusetts women's college, where 150 seniors gained national attention by protesting the first lady's speaking invitation. They said it was inappropriate because Mrs. Bush had been a homemaker — not a career woman — who gained recognition through her husband's achievements. She dropped out of college in 1944 to marry George Bush, then a Navy pilot.

Fortunately for the sake of diversity, there are no hard and fast rules for selecting commencement speakers. Speakers at American colleges have ranged traditionally from captains of industry and Nobel Prize-winning scientists to political dissenters and unconventional artists. Whether the views of a speaker meet with universal approval should matter less than whether he or she has something important to say to graduates.

Does Barbara Bush qualify? Let's look at her background first. The first lady is also America's First Volunteer, championing literacy and the care of babies with AIDS as part of a lifetime of charitable work, some prompted by the pain of losing a child to leukemia in 1953. She has long been her husband's backup in sensitive matters, whether helping to ensure that summits go smoothly on the social side or serving as a goodwill ambassador. And as President Bush's wife for more than 40 years, she succeeded in one of life's most demanding roles by raising four sons and a daughter.

Does Mrs. Bush have anything important to say? The listeners at Wellesley thought so. To the frequent cheers and applause of the audience of 5,000, she urged the 535 graduating seniors to tolerate individuality and personal choices, to care about children and to get involved in causes larger than themselves. Traditionally, she said, the winner of Wellesley's annual hoop race was expected to be the first married; now the winner is said to be the first millionaire or chief executive officer. She called both stereotypes.

"At the end of your life," declared the 64-year-old first lady, "you will never regret not having passed one more test, not winning one more verdict or not closing one more deal. You will regret time not spent with a husband, a child, a friend or a parent." That's a sensible, caring message of relevance to people of all generations and ambitions.

Runaway cart damages car

To the editor:
Why are businesses not held liable for damage done by their property? We have homeowner's liability insurance in case someone is injured on our property and liability car insurance in case we are at fault in a car accident. Our new car was parked at Winn-Dixie when it was hit by a "runaway" Wal-Mart basket. (It wasn't pushed by a prankster — we had a witness who saw what happened.) However, when we reported the incident to the manager and assistant manager at Wal-Mart we were told... "sorry, Wal-Mart is not liable." Now we will be out $250 deductible to have the car repaired plus the cost and inconvenience of estimates.

Maybe we can car pool to Midland to shop at K-Mart, Skaggs, or Albertson's. Our family will be going there more in the future. With the kind of treatment Wal-Mart offers their customers, they don't deserve our business and we can't afford to shop there.

Response was overwhelming

We were truly overwhelmed by the fantastic responses of the dear people in and around Big Spring. Recently I underwent my sixth open heart surgery. After I was taken in the second time, I had used 21 units of blood.

Upon request for donors, forty-seven wonderful friends came to my rescue. Others tried but were unable, due to various reasons.

As my wife, Jo, and I, our sons Dwayne, Troy and Steve and families, have known for years, and are even more certain now, some of the greatest folks on earth are in and near your city.

We wish to express a hearty "Thank You" to each one who had a part.

God bless you all for your care and concern in giving the Gift of Life.

Court silences group before they speak

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
WASHINGTON — Free speech is one thing. Trespass is something else entirely. The Supreme Court gave fresh emphasis to that ancient doctrine the other day when it refused to hear a case involving the anti-abortion organization known as Operation Rescue.

The court's action came in a case from New York. At almost the same time, the court acted in another Operation Rescue case from Atlanta. The New York case was decided rightly; the Atlanta case was decided wrongly. The distinctions are important.

These were the circumstances in New York. In May of 1988, Operation Rescue mounted a series of demonstrations against abortion clinics in Queens, Dobbs Ferry, Long Island, and most notably at an abortion center on East 85th Street in Manhattan.

The demonstrations were not peaceful. They were chaotically violent. Dr. Thomas J. Mullin, director of the Eastern Women's Center, vividly described the harassment of patients as they were prevented from entering the clinic. Thrusting face to face, a demonstrator would shriek, "Abortion is murder!" "Why are you going to kill your baby?"

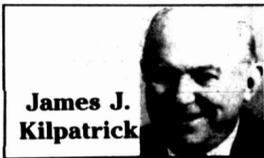

Scores of demonstrators physically blocked the doors.

Nurse Diane Straus was savagely abused as the anti-abortionists shouted at her: "Look at her, see how ugly she is! She has the face of the Devil. See Satan in her eyes! Look at her wickedness and see how evil she is." These taunts "were screamed at me over and over for several hours throughout the day."

After the first of these demonstrations, District Judge Robert J. Ward entered an injunction against Randall Terry, director of Operation Rescue, and his co-leaders.

Ward's order did not throttle legitimate speech. He allowed "sidewalk counseling, consisting of a reasonably quiet conversation of a non-threatening nature by no more than two people." He sought neutrally to balance "the rights of Operation Rescue to express its views, of women to enter the clinics unhindered by an invasion of their rights, and of the clinics to provide necessary medical services."

Terry and others ignored the injunction, willfully continued their harassment, and treated the court's order with disdain. Judge Ward imposed a fine of $50,000 for civil contempt, plus $19,000 in damages to the city of New York. Terry appealed to the 2nd U.S. Circuit. There Senior Judge Richard Cardamone laid down the law: "By blocking access the demonstrators became trespassers without right, constitutional or otherwise, to be there. Their rights of free speech ended where those women's rights began. There is no constitutional privilege to assault or harass an individual or to invade another's personal space... Blocking access to public and private buildings has never been upheld as a proper method of communication in an orderly society."

By declining to review Judge Cardamone's decision, the Supreme Court tacitly affirmed the sound doctrine the circuit court had expounded. Splendid! But the circumstances were significantly different in Atlanta. There the city sought and obtained an injunction against certain demonstrators before they had even begun to demonstrate. Four of them, Gina Robertson, Bill Haynes, Steve Britt and Pamela Sakulow, sought to engage in silent prayer — non-obstructive, non-intrusive — on a sidewalk outside an abortion clinic.

A roughcut local judge, Isaac Jenrette of the Superior Court of Fulton County, cut them off at the knees. He enjoined Operation Rescue and anyone associated with it from picketing, protesting or demonstrating within 50 feet of an abortion facility. He established "bubble zones" to prohibit any person from oral counseling within 5 feet of any second person without express oral consent. He limited demonstrators to 20 persons per site. "No sign shall induce a passerby to honk or blow their horn."

This was a prior restraint upon speech, which the Constitution forbids. The anti-abortionists went to the Supreme Court seeking a stay of Jenrette's injunction, but on May 14 the court voted 5-4 to keep the injunction in effect. Justice John Paul Stevens explained for the majority that Operation Rescue's "persistent and repeated" pattern of unlawful conduct justified the injunction. Well, this observer dissents. The punishment that was imposed in New York was richly deserved, but something is grossly wrong when the courts tell freeborn Americans that they may not speak before they have spoken.

There's a few other secondhand problems

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
Everybody is worrying about secondhand smoke, which — studies now show — can kill you.

What I want to know is, how far away? If someone smokes a cigarette in Michigan, could the smoke get blown to, say, Florida, and Clarence P. Woodley, a retired hog farmer from Arkansas, get a whiff of it and leave Mrs. Woodley, the former Hattie Jane Haines of Red Rooster, Texas, a premature widow?

OK, so previously owned smoke is no danger at 900 miles. What about down the street then?

What if Arnold Smortz of 117 Mesopotamia goes out in his backyard and cracks open a cold one and lights a Marlboro? Is Freda Gilmore at 110 in any sort of danger?

If so, will smokers be drummed out of neighborhoods?

And allow me to ask this question as well: If secondhand smoke is dangerous to our health, what about secondhand other stuff?

I've got some examples:

Secondhand Booze Breath: What if you're sitting next to a hardware salesman from Keokuk on a flight from Denver to Chicago.

It's been a bad month for screwdrivers and this guy is belting down the scotches, one after another.

You've got to be at your kid's dance recital a half-hour after the plane lands.

Are you going to breathe in Mr. Lug Wrench's scotch-laden exhalas and show up at the recital reeking of drink?

Try explaining that to your wife.

"I can't believe you got drunk on the plane before your own daughter's dance recital," your wife will say.

You reply, "I haven't been drinking. I was sitting next to this guy who drank 15 scotches during the flight, and I was the innocent victim of Secondhand Booze Breath."

If that flies, Greyhound buses will soon have wings.

Secondhand Stupidity: The guy who sits next to you at work hasn't had a decent brain wave in years.

He thinks pro wrestling is real, gives half his salary to Oral Roberts, thinks the Atlanta Falcons will have a great team next year and loaded up on junk bonds.

You sit right there next to him for eight hours a day. What if some of that stupidity rubs off on you?

What if one day you start believing the Rev. Al Sharpton is legit?

Previously Owned Bimboisity: It's sort of like secondhand stupidity, except only women get it. You hang out a couple of weeks with Marla Maples and you think Donald Trump is going to give you a hotel, too.

Secondhand Bad Taste: Your neighbor wears belts that match his shoes and socks, belches a lot, forgets to put the toilet seat down, and makes a sucking, slurping sound when he eats soup.

Next thing you know you could be ordering your music collection from TV, wearing black socks with your shorts, calling everybody you meet, "dude," and picking up your steak and gnawing on the bone at Waffle House.

Secondhand Liberalism: You are driving through Massachusetts and suddenly you break into a chant, "Run, Teddy, run!"

Previously Owned Disregard for the Environment: You go visit your brother-in-law, who doesn't know the first thing about recycling or global warming. Two days later, you take a job with Exxon.

The message here is clear: You can run, but you can't hide from the habits and flaws of others. You use Dial. If everybody else did, there would be no such thing as Secondhand B.O.

Librarians, others help to restore Eastern Europe's libraries

NEW YORK (AP) — At the height of Romania's revolution, gunfire set Bucharest's Central University Library aflame. The fire ravaged the building and 500,000 volumes — a quarter of the country's most significant collection.

Opritsa Popa was watching television on Christmas Eve when she saw the blackened hulk of the library where she had once studied for exams. As she imagined the rows of charred books inside, the librarian at the University of California, Davis, made a decision.

"I felt it was my moral obligation as a Romanian and my professional obligation as a librarian to do what I could to restore that library," said Popa, who defected from Romania in 1969.

Some of its holdings — archival documents, illuminated manuscripts, a 1508 Bible that was the first published in Romania — are irreplaceable.

But at the urging of Popa and her colleague Doina G. Farkas, another Romanian exile, the American Library Association began a campaign to help replace the contemporary collection.

The U.S. Information Agency put up $30,000 to handle the costs of shipping as many as 400,000 volumes to Romania.

The destruction of a library is only one factor that has fed a hunger for information in Romania and other Eastern European countries. Over the years, two forces have worked to restrict the flow of knowledge: repressive ideologies and a shortage of foreign currency.

Under martial law in 1986, for example, the Polish Academy of Sciences was allowed to import just 300 titles, according to a recent opinion piece in The New York Times. Restrictions on imports of social sciences literature were tight throughout the Eastern bloc, but in Romania even science was affected.

The country's library shelves sagged with the late President Nicolae Ceausescu's works, and with those of his wife, Elena, a self-styled scientist who lacked a grade-school education.

But on those same shelves, Romanian readers could not find any foreign books or journals printed in the last 10 years: Because of the Romanian debt, Ceausescu had canceled funds for acquiring foreign publications.

Without access to journals from abroad (the latest edition of Chemical Abstracts, an important chemical journal, dates to 1972, Popa said), Romanian scientists and doctors were especially handicapped. Their ignorance about AIDS may have prolonged discredited medical practices such as transfusing anemic newborns — a procedure that promoted the spread of pediatric AIDS in Romania.

The Cambridge, Mass.-based Sabre Foundation has been sending technical books to selected needy institutions in Hungary and Poland since 1986.

Recently it added Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Ukraine, Latvia and Bulgaria to its list. A total of 130,000 books were shipped to these countries last year, said Jesse Norman, a foundation official.

"The main interest in all these countries is on 'how to' books," he said.

The U.S. information agency is finding a similar interest among readers at the libraries it operates in Eastern Europe.

"The most eagerly sought book is 'Robert's Rules of Order,'" said Donald Hausrath, chief of the agency's Library Services program, referring to the guidebook for parliamentary law.

Since the Romanian library drive opened in January, 43,000 books have been shipped, Hausrath said, including donations from publishers McGraw Hill and D. Van Nostrand Co. Inc. and private groups like the Fund For Free Expression.

Books also are coming from Britain and France.

University Microfilms, at the University of Michigan, has donated $50,000 worth of microforms, Popa said.

"Now all we need are some microfilm readers," she said.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Those interested in donating to the Romanian Relief Fund can contact Linda F. Crismond, Executive Director, American Library Association, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, Ill. 60611. Checks should be made payable to A.L.A.-Romanian Relief Fund.

Sephardic Jews win award

OVIEDO, Spain (AP) — The world's Sephardic Jewish communities, scattered by their expulsion from Spain almost 500 years ago, have received the 1990 Prince of Asturias Cooperation Prize.

The prize is awarded annually to a person, group or institution that makes an outstanding contribution to peace, solidarity or progress among men or to the struggle against poverty, illness or ignorance or to the protection of world heritage.

Asturias regional government head Pedro de Silva, who led the prize jury, praised the Sephardi for their conservation of their links to Spain over the centuries.

"Far from their homeland, Sephardic Jews converted themselves into an itinerant Spain, and with incomparable fervor conserved the cultural and linguistic legacy of their ancestors," de Silva said in announcing the award Friday.

"This prize seeks to contribute to an already initiated process of restoring harmony after five centuries of separation. We call on them to reinforce their links to their land of origin and we throw open the doors of their ancient country to them," de Silva said, reading the jury citation.

"The Sephardic Jews form a deeply beloved part of the great Hispanic family," de Silva added.

The prize consists of $48,000 and a sculpture by Spanish artist Joan Miro. The foundation giving the award is named for the heir to the Spanish throne.

An estimated 2.5 million of the world's 16 million Jews are Sephardic — descendants of the estimated 250,000 Jews who fled Spain in 1492 after Queen Isabella offered them an alternative of converting to Christianity, leaving the country or being killed at the hands of the Inquisition.

Most moved to North Africa, Italy, and the Middle East. Today many live in Europe, South America and the United States.

Some 60 percent of Jews in Israel are Sephardic.

Sepharad is the Hebrew name for Spain.

The Sephardic communities have maintained many of the customs, traditions and the old Castilian language, known as Ladino, of their ancestors.

Professor claims solution to mystery

NEW YORK (AP) — A City University professor says he has solved the mystery of who was behind the 1912 "Pitdown Man" fraud, which rocked the scientific community and provided fodder for a decades-long whodunit.

Dr. Frank Spencer, anthropology professor at Queens College, a branch of City University, said in a telephone interview recently that the names of many prominent scientists, and even mystery maven Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, had been mentioned as "suspects" through the years.

But his research, bolstered by that of Australian historian Ian Langham, points the finger at Sir Arthur Keith, a well-respected anatomist and conservator of the Hunterian Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons.

Spencer lays out the premise for the fraud in two new books to be published this fall by Oxford University Press.

Pitdown, a small village in England, made international news in 1912 when a skull and jaw of what became known as the "Pitdown Man" were discovered in a gravel pit.

"It was sensational because it offered a completely different view of evolution at the time," Spencer said.

But in 1953 the discovery was completely debunked when it was learned the remains were actually a human skull — only a couple of hundred years old — with an orangutan's jaw fused to it.

Still, the larger question remained — who did it?

Fingers immediately pointed to Charles Dawson, the country lawyer who made the discovery, but the scientific community believed someone else had to be involved.

The names of scientist William J. Sollas, philosopher Pierre Teilhard de Chardin and even Doyle, the Sherlock Holmes inventor who lived nearby, kept coming up. But there was never any proof and often no motive.

"The general feeling was that Pitdown was contrived to bring somebody down, make someone in the scientific community look silly," Spencer said, but that theory didn't work because "if that was the case, why didn't anyone ever do that?"

Spencer said once he began looking at the evidence with the viewpoint that Dawson's co-conspirator was someone who had something to gain intellectually, not monetarily, he began to look at Keith.

West Berliners ready to scrap food reserves

WEST BERLIN (AP) — For more than four decades, West Berliners have been stockpiling huge quantities of provisions to keep the city alive in case of another Soviet blockade.

City officials now say that changing times have made the warehouses — filled with sugar, grain, bandages, toothpaste and hundreds of other items — unnecessary.

"This is a relic of the Cold War," said Gerhard Erbe, the city official in charge of supervising a large portion of the emergency reserves.

The Germans began stockpiling on the orders of the victorious

Western Allies — the United States, France and Britain — after the Berlin Airlift broke the traumatic Soviet blockade in May 1949.

West Berlin's leftist leaders say the federal government in Bonn should ask the allies for permission to scrap the whole program for the city of 2 million people.

City government economics chief Peter Mitscherling has even suggested giving the food and other supplies to Eastern European nations, where democracy has replaced Cold War Stalinism.

West Berlin officials decline to give a breakdown of how much is stored.

Summer pests abundant in county

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

The increasingly high summertime temperatures bring mixed emotions across the county. Cotton farmers are perhaps the happiest of the county's residents because the higher soil temperatures have helped germinate the recently planted cotton crops, and cotton, being the tropical plant that it is, thrives in hot weather.

A good two-inch rain would still improve most cotton fields in the area, however, as last weeks hot, gusty winds dried out soil conditions very fast. A concern, however, by farmers, is the report by our Extension entomologists that we need to be aware of the potential threat of a possible boll weevil outbreak.

Several weevils are showing up in traps set across the county by Entomologist Victor Lucero. Boll weevils aren't the only pests causing concern, though. Thrips and aphids are building up in large numbers on landscape plants, particularly such plants as roses, where they feed on the tender young developing buds and leaves. Their damage does comparative little actual damage to the plant itself, but large buildups of these pests on young buds can severely damage and deform them, keeping them from becoming the large full blooms they are capable of becoming.

Washing the plants with an organic soap or spraying them with either malathion or Sevin should help control this pest. A unique pest is bothering a native plant this year, the Mesquite. Ranchers have been trying for years to find a pest that could eradicate the mesquite but homeowners who value the mesquite for shade and landscape purposes are concerned about a tiny looper caterpillar that have attacked their trees this spring, practically defoliating them in some instances.

They have cycled out by now but have left many prized shade trees almost bare of foliage. These trees should recover, however. If a second generation of these pests occur, Diazinon or Malathion or Sevin should, in most cases control the pest. This weekend is the targeted date to spray pecan trees for the number one pest of pecans in Howard County, the pecan nut casebearer.

Treat trees with Malathion or Diazinon and do not forget to include NZN in the spray to help control Rosette, a zinc deficiency occurring on almost all West Texas pecan trees. Weather conditions have been so erratic this year that our entomologists are recommending to spray trees again next week and then 42 days later to hit the second generation of this pest. We have had some calls come in this past week about termites on lawn grasses. This pest is the desert termite and attacks native grasses on rangeland in its natural habitat but occasionally will be found on lawns in areas adjacent to or nearby native rangeland conditions.

Take a broom and break up the soil-encrusted grass blades to expose the pest and then spray the area with malathion or Diazinon and this should control this problem. The codling moth is already actively attacking apple and pear crops. This is a most difficult pest to control and demands spraying tree on a 7- to 10-day basis through the growing period with Malathion to try to control it, but under best of conditions only limited success will result.

This tiny moth lays its egg on the bloom tip (in most instances) of the young pear or apple and the resulting larvae (worm) tunnels into the fruit and moves up through it along the core and emerges on the other end or near the top. Bacteria and other germs enter the damaged area causing the fruit to develop a large black rotten area and making the fruit inedible or, in the case of very young fruit, causing it to drop from the tree.

These are but a few of the calls we have been getting lately in to the County Offices of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. If you are having problems relating to your agricultural crops or livestock, fruit trees or ornamental plants we invite you to please call our office and we will try to assist you with them.

Fredericksburg craftsman forges life as ironsmith

By BRAD WHITTEN
Kerrville Daily Times

FREDERICKSBURG — Standing in front of Roy Bellows' forge and watching him at work is to hark back to another era; an era in which artisans were one with their crafts and their artistry was their lifeblood.

Years and years of study and practice have made Bellows an extraordinary ironsmith.

"I use the term ironsmith because I am like a silversmith or a goldsmith. It all comes from the root 'to smite' or 'to strike' or 'to hammer,'" he said.

Bellows' shop at 507 E. Schubert seems to take one back to a distant time. It is open for tours.

The "fachwerk" structure he built himself, as he did the pyramid-shaped tower that funnels the smoke from the forge.

"I patterned the shop after houses I'd seen in Roundtop, near Houston. It's an old German settlement," Bellows said.

He has amassed numerous tools of his trade over the years, including two trip hammers — devices used to pound metal. "These are real antiques and hard to find. I got one of them at Fredericksburg Machine and Appliance. They still use them in Europe but they are pneumatic now."

Bellows built his forge himself. Using coke, or refined coal, and a generator-driven air blower, he attains a forge temperature of more than 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit.

One of Bellows' projects is a gate for St. Stephens Episcopal School in Austin. The large, swing, wrought-iron gate will be made in the shape of a tree, with the trunk of the tree in the middle of the gate, so that as the gate opens, the tree is split down the middle. Branches also fold inward from each cornerpost.

Bellows produces a lot of his work in the shape of trees. "Anyone can appreciate the symbolism of a tree."

He recently did ironwork on the gates and window bars for an English Tudor-style house in Houston. "The people wanted to safeguard the home but didn't want it to look gaudy and obtrusive," he explained.

His design includes interwoven tree branches with wisteria and roses in difference stages of bloom.

Bellows also designs trelliswork and latticework for houses, and makes old latches and doorknockers, among other things. One of his specialties is reproducing the distinctive European lever latches that are still in use on the Veriens Kirche and the Alpine Lodge in Fredericksburg.

The iron entrance gates at Grape Creek Vineyards on U.S. 290 east of Fredericksburg are another example of his work; Bellows' initials can be seen in the iron.

And he also made the iron gates for Lady Bird Johnson's home in Austin.

Bellows was born in Argentina, came to America when he was 6, and graduated from Highlands High School in San Antonio.

He studied art and became a commercial artist until taking a course in the basics of blacksmithing in Santa Fe in 1974.

That's when he decided to make this trade his life. He moved to Fredericksburg in 1975 and spent a number of years working for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department restoring artifacts such as knives, swords, and spurs owned by the department.

He traveled to Venice to study the art of ironworking with Antonio Benetton, spending four months there. "I would have stayed longer but I took my family along, and it got expensive," he said.

He said there is only so much to learn from studying the art form. "You can be taught the basics and then it's up to you."

"In Europe there is still a conscious tradition in ironwork. They still use it in modern architecture," Bellows said.

He says the movement from ornamentation for the sake of ornamentation started with architect Frank Lloyd Wright at the turn of this century. "He rejected ornamentation. He wanted to get back to simple form. But now we have a movement back to it. Architects are starting to incorporate ornamentation back into their structures."

He says a real blow to ironwork came in the 1880s when cast iron became commercially available. Bellows looks with disdain on cast iron because "it loses that vitality. Maybe that is what Frank Lloyd Wright saw... it becomes very phony and superficial."

Store discovers the customer isn't always right

DEAR ABBY: A rather unusual happening occurred in our department store recently. Our store is quite a tourist attraction, founded by our parents 79 years ago.

One day a clerk spotted a set of dentures (false teeth) grinning at her from the table on which lingerie was displayed. After checking thoroughly with various customers who were in the store that day, we traced the dentures to a lady from San Francisco who was visiting friends in Hoquiam. We were able to obtain her address, so we wrote to her asking if she had left her dentures in our store. She answered immediately, asking us to please send the dentures at once as she was having difficulty eating and talking. We carefully wrapped the dentures, marked the package "fragile," insured it and mailed it promptly to the lady in San Francisco.

Abby, she never acknowledged that she had received her dentures, let alone thanked us for having sent them. Reimbursement for the postage and insurance was incidental, but we did expect a note of thanks.

My question: Was it our duty to take our time and effort to locate the owner of the dentures? I can still see those teeth grinning. — LA VOGUE DEPT. STORE MANAGER, HOQUIAM, WASH.

DEAR MANAGER: You were more than generous to have tracked down the owner of the dentures in order to return them. The San Francisco lady could use a refresher course in manners. She's "couthless" as well as toothless.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents live less than a mile from us, and they want our children (their only grandchildren) to visit them often. Our children are 2½ and 4 years old.

The grandparents are loving and well-meaning people, but they have an unprotected swimming pool in their backyard that worries me. They have assured me and my husband that they will watch our children every minute if we leave them in their care, but, Abby, as you know, accidents do happen.

I hate to come off looking like a "nervous Nellie," but I simply cannot bring myself to leave my children with these grandparents. I doubt if they realize that they are slowing down with age, and they've forgotten how fast little ones can be.

Please tell me I'm not paranoid. My friends (almost all of them) think nothing of dumping their kids with their parents for overnight visits and even weekends. Of course, I can't sign my name to this, but I'd appreciate an answer in your column. — ME IN ARIZONA

DEAR ME: You are not paranoid; all parents should have your sense of responsibility. Since you have doubts about your children's safety while they are in the care of your in-laws at their home, do not send them, take them to visit their grandparents, or invite the grandparents to your home.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine is being married soon, and she had several showers given for her. She said she received a lot of shower gifts she doesn't like (wrong color or just plain not her taste) and she plans to take them back to the store where they were purchased and ask for the cash.

Can this be done? — A FRIEND OF HERS

DEAR FRIEND: Probably not. She might be able to exchange the unwanted gifts for other items of the same value, but cash is almost never given in exchange for a returned item.

McCormicks return home

Luther

Weldon and Marge McCormick recently returned from Lake Amistad near Del Rio to attend graduation exercises of a grandson and granddaughter.

"We had real good luck fishing for catfish. Brought home about 40 to 45 pounds in 25 ziplock bags of fillet fish — about one and a half pounds in each bag," said Marge.

"We always bring fish to an elderly couple in Vealmoor, old-time friends of ours," she added. "They often share with us." They also shared with their son and daughter-in-law and family, the Jesse McCormicks.

"We have our mobile home there on our own land and enjoy a number of close friends in the area," she concluded.

Friends visit

George and Oma Coots of Big Spring visited Buddie Hechler in her home on a recent Sunday afternoon.

Roof repairs

A very strong south wind with rain and hail Tuesday afternoon blew shingles off of Guss Heckler's house, causing him to have to climb up and replace them. The precipitation measured .45 of an inch.

Chill out!

Beat the heat with cool, easy-to-prepare summer desserts

Chill out! We're not talking slang here, we're talking cool summer desserts.

While no one could accuse Harry Truman of being a gourmet chef, every home cook knows what he meant when he said "if you can't take the heat, stay out of the kitchen."

This week's Recipe Exchange features several summer desserts that allow you to spend a minimum amount of time in preparation, and little or no time in front of heat-generating devices. And, remember, this is the time to use your microwave oven, to soften cream cheese, melt chocolate and butter — anything to make your

In a small saucepan, dissolve gelatin in water and let stand 1-2 minutes. Warm gelatin mixture over low heat until melted. Set aside. Beat cream cheese, sugar and vanilla until smooth. Gradually add warm gelatin mixture and chilled cream. Beat until well mixed. Pour immediately into pie crust. Melt chocolate and butter in a small bowl in the microwave on HIGH for 45-60 seconds or over very low heat in a small, heavy saucepan.

Chocolate mixture should be a liquid. Quickly pour melted chocolate in a thin stream over cheesecake in a spiral pattern. Run a table knife from the center of the pie to the crust edge. Pattern will resemble a web when finished. Chill until firm, at least two hours or overnight. Serves eight.

DOUBLE CHOCOLATE NO-BAKE CHEESECAKE
 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened at room temperature
 1/4 cup butter, softened
 1/2 cup granulated sugar
 1/3 cup sour cream
 1/4 teaspoon almond extract
 1 cup whipping or heavy cream
 1 chocolate-flavored pie crust

Melt chocolate over simmering water or place in a microwave bowl and melt 1 to 1 1/2 minutes on HIGH. Set aside to cool. In a large mixing bowl, beat cream cheese, butter and sugar until smooth and fluffy. Add sour cream, extract and cooled, melted chocolate. Beat until well mixed. In a small, chilled mixing bowl, whip cream until stiff. Fold by hand into chocolate mixture. Spoon into prepared chocolate crust and smooth filling top with a spatula. Chill until firm. Serve with dollops of additional whipped cream sprinkled with cocoa, shaved chocolate or toasted almonds. Serves eight.

fruit, sugar, corn syrup and lemon juice. Cover and blend on high until mixed. Pour into shallow metal pan and freeze for one hour or until firm but not solid. Spoon into chilled bowl and beat until light and fluffy. Return to pan and freeze for about two hours, or until firm enough to scoop. Place scoops in pie shell, return to freezer until ready to serve. Slice and garnish with fresh fruit, if desired. Add a few drops of green or red food col-

 1 11.75-ounce jar hot fudge topping
 1 quart vanilla ice cream or frozen yogurt
 1 cup extra chunky peanut butter
 Whipped cream of whipped topping garnish

Spread 1/2 cup room temperature hot fudge topping over the bottom of pie crust. Place in freezer to chill. Meanwhile, soften ice cream and mix with peanut butter. Spoon into pie crust and freeze several hours or overnight. Cover with plastic wrap when firm. To serve, remove pie from freezer 5-10 minutes before cutting. Heat remaining fudge sauce according to manufacturer's directions. Serve each pie wedge with a dollop of whipped cream and pass the warm fudge sauce. Serves eight.

Summer Cooler Pie

APRICOT-ALMOND ICE CREAM PIE

You'll love the intense apricot flavor of this cool and refreshing summer pie. Keep all the ingredients on hand for quick preparation at a moment's notice.
 1 6-ounce package dried apricots
 2 tablespoons almond liqueur
 1 quart vanilla ice cream or vanilla frozen yogurt, softened
 1 graham cracker pie crust
 2 cups sweetened whipped cream or whipped topping
 1 tablespoon almond liqueur
 Toasted slivered almonds (optional)

In a saucepan, cover apricots with water and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer until apricots are tender, about 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and allow to cool. Drain liquid and place cooked apricots and liqueur in a blender or food processor. Cover and process until smooth. Fold apricot puree into the softened ice cream. Spoon into the pie crust and freeze at least three hours or overnight. To serve, remove pie from the freezer 10-15 minutes before cutting. Combine whipped cream or topping with one tablespoon almond liqueur. Garnish each serving with a dollop of flavored topping, sprinkled with toasted slivered almonds. Serves eight.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $60.00.

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Organizers expect first profit from city festival

By MARC SCHWARZ
 Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Organizers are optimistic that last Saturday's Heart of the City Festival may make a profit for the first time in the event's six-year history.

Downtown Coordinator Beverly Franklin of Big Spring Main Street Inc. said early figures indicate the festival earned a net profit of about $2,500. Franklin attributes the event's success to an increased variety of attractions and the sale of Coors' beer, the first time the festival has offered the beverage.

"We did really well with our beer (sales) and I think it put us in a profit position for the first time," Franklin said. "We're in better shape now than at this same time in previous years. It took a while, but things are finally coming into fruition."

The day-long event featured booths set up by various local businesses, organizations, and charities, each of which leased the space. Attractions included a petting zoo sponsored by the local humane society, a pie throw, and various food vendors, "from barbecue to burritos," Franklin said.

"We had a much larger crowd on the average this year than ever before," she said. "On the whole, this year has run smoother, gone off easier, and was better organized than ever before."

An evening dance and concert by the Jodie Nix Band also drew large numbers of people, Franklin said.

She estimated about 6,000 people attended the concert.

Proceeds from the Heart of the City Festival will help renovate the downtown area.

"The money will be used for various downtown needs," Franklin said. "We'll use it to paint curbs, get rid of weeds, and generally try to make downtown look better."

Organizers are already planning next year's festival, and Franklin said anyone who wishes to volunteer their time or services should contact her at 267-4801.

Preliminary figures also show the Christmas in June auction on Saturday raised nearly as much money as last year's event, and organizers say more money may be on the way.

"The preliminary figures look pretty good," said Cliff Attaway of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, the organization that sponsored the event. "We have almost as much money as last year, and we're still expecting some more cash donations to come in. I'm hopeful of reaching the same level as last year's auction."

Attaway said the auction has earned about $1,340 so far this year, compared with last year's $1,600. The proceeds will go to a Christmas light fund to help finance the city's yuletide decorations.

"The money will refurbish the city's Christmas lights, put in new bulbs, and get them up," Attaway said. "It takes a pretty good chunk of money to do it, but it really lends to the general festivity of the holiday season."

Among the items auctioned off were a basketball, a bowling ball, a comforter, a set of silver utensils, watches, a briefcase, and a free night's stay at Day's Inn. Attaway said there were no surplus objects left.

"We auctioned it all off," he said. "It all went."

More complete figures on the funds generated by the auction should be available within a week's time, Attaway said.

Businesses or persons interested in making a donation to the Christmas light fund should contact the Chamber of Commerce, he said.

options to meet the expanded 20-20 permit and two options to meet the more limiting 10-15 permit. Each of the four options for making improvements to the treatment plant is estimated to cost more than $7 million, but Wilmut said the city could apply for a 20-year loan from the State Revolving Fund at 4.5 percent interest.

The loan application is due by July 1, and the City Council is expected to approve the application during meetings on June 12 and June 26.

Wilmut pointed out that even if Big Spring is accepted for a loan, there will be a lag time before the city is reimbursed for start-up costs. Those could range from $500,000 to $750,000, he said.

If the city's loan application is denied, it will have to finance the improvements in some other fashion, Wilmut said, because the treatment plant will have to meet state regulations. However, he said, the improvements could cost considerably less: the state requires a number of studies be performed under the guidelines of the loan, Wilmut said, that would not have to be performed if the city paid for the project without use of a state loan.

Because the city will face new requirements even with renewal of a 20-20 permit, Wilmut said it would be allowed a certain amount of time to make the necessary improvements to the treatment plant.

"If they change your permit, they can't start expecting you to do something different the next day," he said. The state probably would allow the city from one to two years to make modifications, he said.

The city is to begin negotiations with the state to determine whether a 20-20 permit or a 10-15 permit will be imposed in January. Council members are expected to approve at the June 12 meeting a contract with GSW & Associates to negotiate on the city's behalf. Wilmut said it is difficult to predict what the state will decide.

"We would start working on it immediately," he said, "and I

Glossary

BOD: Biochemical Oxygen Demand. Organisms in the waste require oxygen to sustain their lives. They remove that oxygen from the water, leaving less for aquatic life. Typically, wastewater entering a treatment plant has a BOD of 200 mg per liter. Enough organisms are removed from the water during treatment to reduce the DOB to 20 mg per liter.

Biomonitoring: Involves subjecting aquatic life to dilutions of wastewater to determine how long they will live. The tests also determine if the wastewater affects future generations of the aquatic life.

Dechlorination: Removal of chlorine from wastewater. Chlorine is disinfectant added to purify drinking water. It can be toxic to aquatic life.

DO: Dissolved Oxygen. Necessary in water to sustain aquatic life. The state did not have DO requirements has begun imposing DO limits in new permits. The requirements can range from 3 mg per liter to 5 mg per liter.

NH3-N: Ammonia Nitrogen. Included in the wastes, its biggest problem is that it removes oxygen from the water leaving less for aquatic life. It also can be toxic at certain levels to some aquatic life. NH3-N levels in wastewater currently are limited only in "pristine" areas of the state, but the Texas Water Commission has begun imposing statewide restrictions of 5 mg per liter.

TSS: Total Suspended Solids. Treatment plants remove most of the solid wastes in the water, but a certain amount remains suspended in the water released by the plant.

Trial

ed to five years probation after pleading guilty in November to being an accessory to the delivery of marijuana.

"It would strike anybody odd," he testified Tuesday of the incident with Reagan. "She'd have to be a pretty heavy smoker," he said. "He (Sawyer) thought that she was a narc."

But District Attorney Rick Hamby doubted her story.

"Joanna Reagan did not lie," Hamby told the jury in his closing argument. "She doesn't have any motive to lie. She's just doing a job for you people."

"I'd like to point out to you that that's the only place where her version and their version differ. I believe your common sense will tell you that if it happened once, then yes, it happened twice."

However, Sawyer's lawyer, David Greenhaw of Midland, questioned the honesty and accuracy of Reagan's testimony given Monday during the trial and on Thursday in a pre-trial hearing.

There was a conflict in her testimony concerning when she first met Ray Villa, an informant who introduced her to drug contacts. Reagan said Thursday that she met Villa at a ballpark and that Stanton Police Chief Mike Adams was there. But on Monday Reagan said she could not remember if Adams was there or not.

Villa's testimony also was conflicting. He said Thursday that he met Reagan for the first time at the drug store. But on Tuesday he said he could not remember where they met. He did say that Adams was not with them at that meeting.

"Last week they say one thing. This week they come over here and say something else," Greenhaw said in his closing argument.

On Tuesday Greenhaw also attempted to get the felony charge reduced to a misdemeanor on grounds that the marijuana seeds should not be considered as part of the useable marijuana.

Without the seeds, the marijuana in question weighs .17 of an ounce, not enough for the .25 of an ounce required for a felony charge.

Only seeds that can germinate are considered in charges, according to the law. But Greenhaw said calculating the weight from a percentage of seeds that germinated casts a reasonable doubt on the accuracy.

A motion Tuesday morning to have the felony charge reduced to a misdemeanor charge was denied by District Judge Robert Moore.

Greenhaw disagreed with the ruling.

"The state has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt whether they (the seeds) should be included or not included," he told the jury. "If there is any element of this offense that is not proven, then he is innocent. You don't have any alternative but to find my client not guilty."

Hamby denounced that reasoning.

"I hope you don't get caught up in all of this abracadabra number business," Hamby told the jury as he pointed to a blackboard where the weights of the different parts of the marijuana were written.

"Did he sell her the dope or didn't he?" he said in a raised voice. "If you believe this smoke mirage then do it and lets move on. This is your community and this community demands what's right. Whatever your decision is, you're the conscience of the community."

Of others arrested in the October roundup, Glee Ann Holcombe, Kerry Dennis Holcombe and Cruz Marquez Aguirre were given continuances. Cases on Michael Rosa Villa and Pedro Vasquez are also pending. All are accused of selling marijuana except for Glee Ann Holcombe, who is charged with being an accessory.

In addition, a juvenile arrested for the sale of cocaine has not yet been handled.

Of three others who pleaded guilty in November and another who pleaded guilty in February, sentences of 10 and seven years were handed out for the sale of heroin and sentences of five years and of 100 days for the sale of marijuana.

Heat

ly sports team coaches, have become more knowledgeable about the dangers of heat exhaustion and can guard against it. The popularity of drinks like Gatorade, specially formulated to replace electrolytes, has helped as well, he said.

Woodall said most important is to cover bare skin in the sun. Wear a hat to protect your face, and choose cotton and other porous fabrics in your outdoor clothing, he said.

"Avoid exercising when the ultraviolet rays are strongest, the middle of the day. So jogging on your lunch break is not advisable." He said infants and the elderly should be protected from those dangerous rays.

"The elderly are especially susceptible to skin cancers which can develop over time. This is not to say they don't affect young people just as well, and all age groups should be aware." A scaly reddened patch of skin which persists should be checked by a doctor, he said.

Pet tips

Never leave your pet in a parked car during hot weather, said Dr. Scott Burt, Big Spring veterinarian.

"A pet can develop a serious heat stroke in less than 30 minutes," Burt said. "An animal can die more quickly than you'd think. People should never leave their pets in the car. Even with the windows down it can get much too hot."

The elderly may find existing health problems aggravated by the heat, and that could lead to a life-threatening situation, Farquhar said.

"If you are an elderly person, find a support system, somebody to come and check on you every now and then." Since many of the older generation stay indoors most of the time, they may not be missed by neighbors if a serious health problem were to occur, preventing them from seeking help, Farquhar said.

Burt said pets aren't equipped to deal with heat in the same way we are. "Dogs and cats don't sweat. They 'pant' to relieve perspiration."

"Dogs, cats and especially rabbits are very susceptible to heat stroke. One thing people don't realize is that even a camper on the back of a pickup can get hot enough to endanger the animal."

Drinking lots of water is more important than ever at this time of year, Woodall said. Alcohol may seem to refresh you when you feel hot, but it cannot quench thirst like water, he said.

Sunglasses, often taken for granted, are necessary to protect your eyes in bright sunlight, especially when it is reflected off of water, he said. Doctors recommend the type of glasses which block ultraviolet rays, Woodall said.

Too Tall officially calls it quits

DALLAS (AP) — Ed "Too Tall" Jones left professional football for boxing once before. This time, he says, he's gone for good. Jones, who set Dallas Cowboys records for games and seasons played, retired Tuesday to get into the boxing business as a manager. "Boxing is my first love," Jones said. "I love the game. I won't be fighting anyone again, though, unless he's my age (39) and over." Jones left the Cowboys for a year to box in 1979. He won six fights in the heavyweight division but decided he wasn't of championship caliber. A first-round draft pick from Tennessee State in 1974, Jones played 245 games during his 15 years as a defensive end in the league, never missing a game except the ones in 1979. "I plan to stay in Dallas and get my boxing team off the ground," he said. "Boxing is the number one sport for me. I'll be a boxing manager and I may promote some. Boxing is very exciting to me." Jones played on three Super Bowl teams and was the "thunder" in the Cowboys one-two defensive end punch of "lightning" Harvey Martin and the 6-9 Jones. He was a three-time Pro Bowl and a two-time All-Pro selection. He started in 20 playoff games. "I guess I was a player who beat the odds," Jones said. "I was a basketball and baseball player in high school (Jackson, Tenn.) until my senior year. Somebody had to tell me the rules." Jones learned quickly at Tennessee State. He also played two seasons of basketball in college, where he earned his nickname, "Too Tall." Jones used the height to good advantage, blocking 86 passes in his NFL career. He also intercepted three passes and recovered 19 fumbles.

Fourth quarter onslaught helps Pistons win game one

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — With the exception of Isiah Thomas, Portland solved the Detroit starters. It was the Pistons' bench that did in the Trail Blazers. Thomas scored 33 points, but only two other Detroit starters were in double figures. Mark Aguirre, however, came off the bench to score 18 and John Salley blocked four shots.

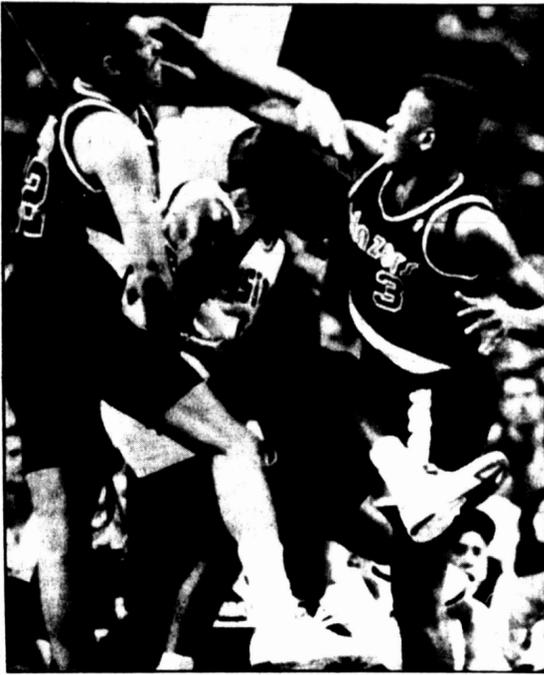

The Pistons' bench outscored Portland's bench 26-7 and Thomas scored 16 of his 33 points in a 23-4 fourth-quarter run as Detroit came back from a 10-point deficit to win Game 1 of the NBA Finals 105-99 Tuesday night. The Detroit bench also outscored the Blazers' reserves 19-9.

"Salley got some big blocks and Aguirre played well defensively," Portland's Kevin Duckworth said. "I believe their bench was more of a factor than their starters. That was maybe the ballgame right there. Those guys were just as important as Isiah."

It was a familiar formula for the Pistons. During the Eastern Conference finals against Chicago, their bench outscored the Bulls bench 213-131, including 33-17 in the seventh and deciding game.

"Our team has a lot of guys who can step up, not one or two like other teams," said Detroit's Joe Dumars, who finished with 20 points. "That can really make it tough for the other teams to defend. They don't know where it is"

Injured Muster wins

PARIS (AP) — Thomas Muster overcame a self-inflicted crack on the shin and a rugged all-court attack from Goran Ivanisevic to reach the semifinals at the French Open today.

French Open

Muster, the seventh seed from Austria, won 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 and will meet the winner of the last quarterfinal between fourth-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador and French qualifier Thierry Champion.

The other semifinal pits American Andre Agassi, the third seed, against unseeded Jonas Svensson of Sweden.

Muster, the Italian Open champion, slammed his shin with the racket so hard on one second-set shot that he started bleeding, and was afraid more extensive damage might have been done.

In reaching his second Grand Slam semifinal, Muster stayed on the baseline and blasted shots at Ivanisevic, who attacked with volleys and dropshots.

It was an effective strategy in the second set, when the Yugoslav came back in the late games and closed with an ace. Muster won the last four games to close the first set, blasted a forehand so hard that Ivanisevic couldn't handle it at the net to finish the second, and flipped a forehand topspin lob over his charging opponent for match point.

Agassi has a few days off to work on his designer stubble. Jennifer Capriati will be trying to roll up credits in a self-designed school course called Tourism 101.

When the beard stops growing and the buses stop rolling, then the two young Americans will find themselves one step away from the finals of the French Open.

Agassi out-powered Michael Chang, stripping the 18-year-old of his men's title with a 6-2, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2 display of muscle Tuesday.

Capriati, who should be finishing the eighth grade back in Florida, kept her marks in Paris perfect with a 6-2, 6-4 victory over seventh-seeded Mary Joe Fernandez.

The match lasted about as long as a math class and added up to 30 — the combined ages of the 14-year-old Capriati and the 16-year-old Seles, who meet in one of the women's semis Thursday.

Seles, the second seed, stretched her winning streak to 30 matches but needed all her ability to do it. Two points away from defeat, she rallied to beat Manuela Maleeva 3-6, 6-1, 7-5.

Top-ranked Steffi Graf and Jana Novotna meet in the other women's semi. Graf, who like Capriati has not dropped a set in the tournament.

Stanton hoop school

STANTON — Camp-goers at the Stanton girls basketball camp go through a drill of ball in the ring during a Tuesday afternoon session at the Stanton junior high. Stanton High School girls coach Rob Young is heading the camp and 38 girls participated in it Tuesday. The camp will conclude Friday.

Top two seeds remain alive in CWS

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Stanford and LSU, the top-seeded teams in the College World Series, proved they aren't ready to go home by winning in remarkably similar to stave off elimination.

No. 1 Stanford (58-11) and No. 2 Louisiana State (54-17) avoided trips home Tuesday with 6-1 victories over Mississippi State and The Citadel, respectively.

Stanford stopped Mississippi State on the nine-hit pitching of John Reid (7-1) and LSU got past The Citadel on the eight-hit effort of John O'Donoghue (12-3).

Stanford advances to tonight's contest against Georgia (50-18). A Georgia victory puts the Bulldogs in Saturday's championship game. A Stanford victory forces a second semifinal for the upper bracket of the modified double-elimination tournament Friday.

LSU advances to Thursday night's contest against Oklahoma State (55-16). An OSU victory puts the Cowboys in Saturday's final, while an LSU victory also would force another lower bracket semifinal Friday.

Both winning teams also were helped by the poor defense of their opposition.

Stanford took an extra base on an errant catcher's throw on a stolen base in the third inning to score Jeff Hammonds with one of his three runs of the game. Troy Paulsen's grounder scored Hammonds from third.

The Cardinal came up with three runs in the seventh when a potential double-play ball was thrown by MSU third baseman Burke

Masters into right field. "I know it was a routine double-play ball," Masters said. He said his throw to second was "too high, too early. That kind of opened up the game."

Stanford went on to score on Hammonds' fielder's choice, a sacrifice fly by Paulsen and David McCarty's double.

"It was very close until we got a couple runs in the seventh," Stanford coach Mark Marques said. "We got a break on the double-play ball that was thrown into right and that was a big lift for us."

John Reid pitched exceptional. He threw strikes when he had to and we played exceptional defense."

The only run Reid allowed was a leadoff homer by Scott Mitchell, his first of the year, in the third inning.

Bobby Reed (15-4) took the loss for Mississippi State, which ended its season with a 5-21.

In the nightcap, O'Donoghue slipped and hit his head in the dugout prior to pitching against The Citadel. LSU coach Skip Bertman said the smack left the 6-foot-6 junior left-hander dizzy.

O'Donoghue later laughed it off. "Most of the game I was pretty dizzy," he said with a chuckle. "I was doing pretty good just to stay out of the mound. No, I don't think it was a critical factor."

O'Donoghue might have cleared his head, but he kept The Citadel hitters in a fog. The Bulldogs, coming off a 12-inning 8-7 victory over Fullerton State on Monday night,

Out at second base

had only one runner advance to third prior to Chris Coker scoring on Jason Rychlick's RBI single in the seventh.

LSU put together two three-run innings as the Tigers bunched their 10 hits. Four singles came in the three-run fifth with Tookie Johnson and John Tellechea getting hits to drive in runs. The third came in on Scott Bethea's fielder's choice.

Tim Clark hit his 12th homer and second two-run shot of the CWS off a Bulldog pitcher when he sparked a three-run eighth for LSU. Clark also homered in an 8-2 LSU victory over the Bulldogs on Saturday. "I thought their pitcher did a magnificent job," The Citadel coach Chal Port said. "He didn't have any walks and he kept the ball in the ballpark. We got our hits, but we couldn't get them across."

"I felt very fortunate to have past The Citadel," Bertman said. "They're America's team, touched by Abner Doubleday. Chal Port is a great guy. He's graduated all but two of his players in 26 years (coaching at the school). Even if there's nothing else written about him, that should be written."

House says students have a right to know

By BOB MITCHELL
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Colleges will be required to report how many basketball and football players graduate and disclose campus crime statistics under legislation passed by the House Tuesday.

By voice vote, lawmakers approved a sweeping student "right to know" bill that would require colleges and universities that receive federal aid and provide athletic scholarships to disclose graduation rates in football and basketball.

In addition, it would require schools to reveal to students, faculty members and prospective students statistical information about campus crime.

It would also amend federal privacy laws to allow schools to disclose to violent crime victims disciplinary actions taken against perpetrators.

The sweeping bill combines several pieces of legislation. A student-athlete "right to know" bill has already passed the Senate.

Lawmakers who support disclosure of athletic graduation rates include a pair of former National Basketball Association stars — Rep. Tom McMillen, D-Md. and Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J. McMillen says the legislation is a "consumer" bill for student athletes.

The legislation would also require schools receiving federal aid to disclose campus crime statistics on crimes such as murder, rape, burglary, robbery, assault, auto theft, arson, liquor law and drug abuse violations.

Rep. William Goodling of Pennsylvania, the top Republican on the House Education and Labor Committee, pushed the crime disclosure legislation after meeting with the parents of a Lehigh University student who was raped and murdered on campus.

The bill approved by the House would also require schools to report the total amount of revenue generated by their athletic departments and how that money is spent. In addition, the measure requires schools to report graduation rates for all students, broken down by race and sex.

Bucs don't have fans; but they've got wins

By The Associated Press
It seems to take a lot to convince the Pittsburgh fans that the Pirates are for real this season.

NL

The first two contests of a three-game series between the defending National League East champion

Chicago Cubs and Pirates at Three Rivers Stadium drew a combined total of 29,899. The Pirates are doing their very best to bring the fans out, though.

Pittsburgh turned two high-hop ground balls and a walk into the winning run in the ninth inning to beat the Cubs 6-5 Tuesday night. At 32-19, the Pirates lead Philadelphia and Montreal by four games in the East. Bobby Bonilla hit a three-run homer in the first inning as the Pirates won for the eighth time in 11 games. The Cubs lost for the 10th time in 13 games and trail the Pirates by 10 1/2.

Padres 11, Astros 2
Dennis Rasmussen pitched a four-hitter and Shawn Abner and Garry Templeton hit consecutive homers in a six-run fifth inning, leading San Diego past Houston at Jack Murphy Stadium. The last-place Astros have lost five straight games.

Mets 6, Expos 5
Tom O'Malley, who had two hits in 22 at-bats; led off the 11th inning with a home run over the center field fence to lift New York over Montreal at Shea Stadium. The victory snapped New York's three-game losing streak and left them 2-4 since Bud Harrelson took over as manager for Davey Johnson last week.

Phillies 9, Cardinals 6
Len Dykstra, who extended his hitting streak to 18 games, tied the score with a two-run single and Von Hayes put Philadelphia ahead with another two-run single to cap a four-run eighth inning as the visiting Phillies defeated St. Louis.

Giants 6, Reds 1
Scott Garrelts ended a season-long slump by outpitching NL ERA leader Jack Armstrong as San Francisco defeated Cincinnati at Candlestick Park. It was only the third time the Reds have lost two games in a row this season.

McGwire goes deep twice; A's down Rangers

By The Associated Press
Put any player in the right slot or spot and watch him get hot. Put someone like Mark McGwire, Tony Fernandez or Jody Reed there and watch out.

AL

McGwire, playing at one of his favorite parks, hit two homers and drove in five runs Tuesday night as the Oakland Athletics won in Texas 7-4.

McGwire has hit 10 home runs at Arlington Stadium. He has connected at least once in every series he has played at the Rangers' ballpark. Fernandez, moved Saturday from leadoff to No. 2 in Toronto's lineup, tripled twice and drove in three runs as the Blue Jays beat Minnesota 7-3. He is 9-for-14 with three triples since the shift.

Reed did his job, squeezing home the tiebreaking run in the eighth inning as Boston beat New York 9-8. The Red Sox are 4-for-4 in suicide-squeeze tries this season, with Reed successful three times.

Tonight in Texas, Nolan Ryan is scheduled to make his first start since May 16. He's been on the disabled list with back problems.

Blue Jays 7, Twins 3
At the SkyDome, Tony Fernandez and Mookie Wilson each got three hits and Fred McGriff homered as Toronto won before a regular-season record crowd of 49,471.

Fernandez leads the majors with three triples. He also scored twice against Minnesota.

Red Sox 9, Yankees 8
In Boston, Wade Boggs led off the eighth inning with a triple and scored on Jody Reed's squeeze as the Red Sox won for the sixth time in eight games. New York has lost nine of 10.

Tonight, Red Sox manager Joe Morgan will begin a three-game suspension. He was penalized for remarks that condoned last weekend's brushback battle in Cleveland.

Mariners 10, White Sox 6
In Chicago, Jay Buhner hit a three-run double and Henry Cotto tripled and singled during a seven-run fifth inning that led Seattle.

Cotto's RBI triple made it 4-1 and finished Greg Hibbard (4-4). Buhner's double came off Ken Patterson and Cotto capped the uprising with a two-run single for a 10-1 lead.

Brian Holman (7-3) won his fourth straight start. He yielded six runs, four of them earned, on nine hits in five-plus innings. Keith Comstock followed with three scoreless innings.

Tigers 6, Indians 2

In Cleveland, Detroit made the most of 10 singles and Alan Trammell drove in two runs. The Indians lost for the sixth time in nine games.

Cecil Fielder and Lloyd Moseby, who each got two hits, had RBI singles in the third inning. Trammell's two-run single made it 6-0 in the fourth off Tom Candiotti (5-3).

Dan Petry (5-2) went five innings, giving up two unearned runs, and lowered his ERA to 2.51. Edwin Nunez pitched four scoreless innings for his first save.

Brewers 6, Orioles 4
In Milwaukee, Jaime Navarro gave up just two singles in six innings as the Brewers beat Baltimore. Navarro (2-1) was sent to the minors earlier this season and was recalled only because of injuries.

Chuck Crim went 1-2-3 innings for his fourth save. Jay Tibbs (2-6) was the loser.

B.J. Surhoff homered during a three-run sixth inning that put Milwaukee ahead 5-1. Mickey Tettleton hit a three-run homer in the Orioles' eighth.

Angels 6, Royals 4
In Kansas City, Mark Langston struggled but won with relief help from Bryan Harvey.

Langston (4-5) allowed four runs on 11 hits and two walks.

Pistons

going to come from, so they have to guard all of us because any one can step up."

All five Portland starters finished in double figures, each with 16 or more points. But there was that Detroit bench.

"We have to have somebody step up," Blazers coach Rick Adelman said. "Our bench must be more productive. They're young, but they'll learn and they'll respond."

Terry Porter, however, disagreed with his coach.

"I thought our bench held its own," Porter said. "A lot of people say that because they have the veterans, they have the edge. But I thought our bench played OK."

The boxscore, however, told a different story as the Pistons, bidding to become only the third franchise to repeat as NBA, are appearing in their third consecutive finals.

"It's a game we should have won," Portland's Jerome Kersey said. "Experience didn't matter.

You can throw experience out the window. It doesn't come any tougher."

Portland's Buck Williams, who had 20 points and a team-high 12 rebounds, said the Blazers needed to regain the killer instinct that got them into the finals for the first time they won the championship in 1977.

"Detroit played extremely well in the late stages of the game," Williams said. "Hopefully, we can come back and play more effectively on offense late in the next game."

"If we increase the tempo in the next game, they will have to be more concerned about getting back on defense."

His coach agreed. "We'll come back and play another good game," Adelman said. "We have to come back and play a better game on Thursday, and I think our players realize that. We're disappointed because I thought we were in control of the game. But the thing you can't do is dwell on it."

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — A sore throat forced pop singer Phil Collins to cancel concerts Sunday night and tonight at Brendan Byrne Arena.

The shows will be rescheduled for Aug. 10 and 11, said Michael Rowe, executive vice president of the New Jersey Sports & Exposition Authority, which operates the arena.

Tickets can be held for the rescheduled shows or refunded where they were bought, Rowe said Sunday.

"It was canceled due to illness, a throat problem," he said.

The Sunday show was sold out and Monday's was expected to

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Five-time national speedboat champion Al Copeland says he hasn't raced in more than a year because of fried chicken.

Copeland owns Popeyes Fried Chicken and borrowed nearly $500 million last year to gobble up competitor Church's Fried Chicken. But Copeland's new creditors didn't want him to race his boat as long as his debt was outstanding.

"The lenders didn't want to risk something happening to me and asked that I not race for a while," Copeland said. "It was a handshake deal ... worse than signing a contract because there aren't any loopholes."

Actors Don Johnson and Kurt Russell also are expected to race.

Boy wins award in dad's death

GALVESTON (AP) — Three corporations will pay $12 million in damages to a 10-year-old boy whose father died in a fiery 1986 Texas City industrial accident.

StanTrans Inc., Mitsubishi International Corp. and the General American Transportation Corp. agreed Tuesday to pay $12 million to Darrell Rivers of Dallas and $1.45 million in damages and attorney fees to the wife, three adult children and parents of Tommy Rivers Jr., 46.

Rivers died while loading a tank car with volatile butadiene on Dec. 2, 1986, at the StanTrans facility in Texas City.

The blast caused several fires and sent fire and shrapnel flying around the Texas City waterfront. Rivers, who worked for StanTrans from 1979 until his death, was the only person reported injured in the blast.

Jury finds Sawyer guilty in drug trial

By PATRICK DRISCOLL

STANTON — Dennis Earl Sawyer, 23, was found guilty of delivering marijuana by an 118th District Court jury after they deliberated for more than an hour Tuesday.

As of press time today, the jury was deliberating in the punishment phase. Possible sentences range from 2-10 years.

The trial is the only one held so far for 12 people arrested here in October in what is Martin County's largest drug operation to date. Five other people pleaded guilty with four receiving jail time and another probation.

The verdict on Sawyer was handed down following conflicting testimony on Monday and Tuesday from state and defense witnesses on what actually happened.

Witnesses agreed that Sawyer sold two baggies of marijuana to an undercover agent of the Permian Basin Drug Task Force on June 24 but disagreed on whether he sold two more baggies on June 26. The charge against him is in connection with the June 26 incident.

Former undercover agent Joanna Reagan said she bought marijuana on both occasions, paying $50 each time. However, Sawyer's wife, Christine, and another witness who was there, Joe Cantu, said that Reagan asked about buying marijuana the second time but none was sold to her. Sawyer did not take the stand in his defense.

Buying that much marijuana in such a short period of time appeared suspicious, said Cantu, who is one of the people arrested in the October roundup. He was sentenced to five years probation after pleading guilty in November to being an accessory to the delivery of

'Bloody Omaha' Texas veteran recalls D-Day 46 years later

By PATRICK K. GRAVES
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT (AP) — Alfred I. Aden remembers the flat stretch of beach on Normandy by its landing code name Fox Green. The world remembers it as Bloody Omaha.

Before June 6, 1944, World War II had been relatively uneventful for the 20-year-old radioman second class from Jasper.

His sub chaser, a 110-foot-long steel boat designed to hunt submarines, had dropped a few depth charges off Rhode Island and had been in an air raid in England.

On D-Day, 46 years ago today, Aden saw his first real combat as he helped guide troop-landing craft in the vanguard of the long-awaited invasion of Hitler's Fortress Europe.

"I can remember it like it just happened," the retired Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. supervisor said Tuesday. "The sixth of June is a day I think about. Maybe I think about it too much."

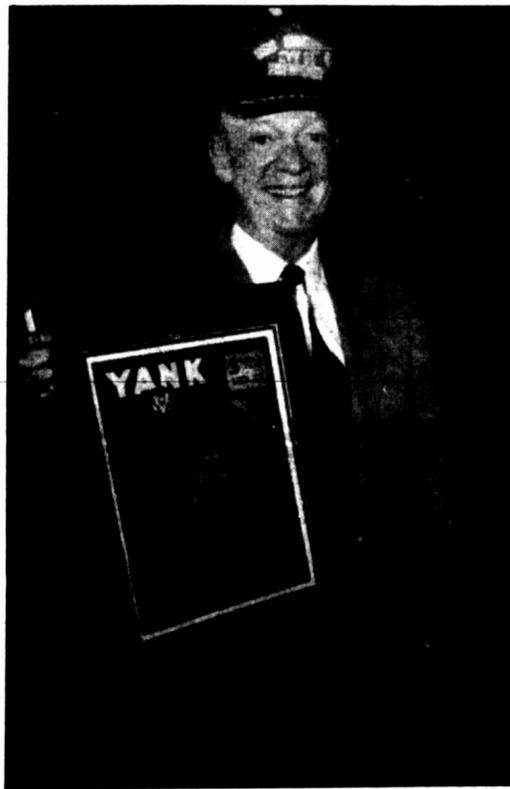

Aden said he knew he was going to be in the center of things when he heard the orders: Assault Force O, for Omaha Beach, the heart of the attack, and Task Force 1, for first wave, the first Allied soldiers going ashore at dawn of that dismal day.

The task force was comprised of four sub chasers, a British gunboat and seven modified landing craft.

After being told "This is it," and heading across the English Channel June 4, they were ordered back to England because of foul weather.

He said rumors as to why include an accidental teletype transmission of a practice invasion announcement and hurt feelings of French Gen. Charles de Gaulle for not being consulted about the invasion.

"We were relieved. It was another day to think this thing over," Aden said.

They started back across at 3 a.m. on June 5. Someone asked permission for a church service. It never was conducted.

"Everybody held their own, going on."

It was the largest single military operation of the war involving the largest amphibious landing force ever assembled about 5,000 ships that crossed the channel's widest part undetected.

"I never saw or heard anything like it, before or since," said Aden. "I'd never seen that many ships, all across the horizon."

Cotton protected the sailors' eardrums from the noise of the naval bombardment. Aden said wind from the guns of the battleships Arkansas and Texas fanned some of his 28 shipmates' pant legs.

As they reached the troop transports, Lt. A.J. Barron shouted "Fox Green" over the bullhorn. Like a mother duck, the sub chaser met several "duck" landing craft carrying men of the 1st Infantry Division and led them toward France.

"I wish they'd hurry so we could get out of here," Aden remembered thinking.

Omaha was the bloodiest of the five beachheads. German fire pinned down the Americans most of the day.

Aden said the Army beachmaster strung up a huge green cloth between two poles after hitting the beach. As the sub chaser returned to meet more troops, Aden said, he looked back to see the green cloth shot to shreds.

"I'd hate to go in on a landing craft and get out of it," Aden said.

After daylight, Aden's ship intercepted a British radio bulletin quoting the German High Command as saying the Allies had landed but the Allies would not confirm it.

"I kind of wanted to tell him he was right," Aden said.

Later, Aden's sub chaser protected the Arkansas against reported German suicide torpedoes that never came.

Common sense key to beating the heat

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

One of the best preventions against summer injuries and heat stroke is common sense, say two Big Spring physicians.

"Basically stay cool, don't booze it up, use a sunscreen. We all know these things, but we don't always think," said Dr. James Farquhar.

"Stay indoors, keep under cover and try not to exert yourself during the hottest part of the day, especially if you are a member of our elderly community," said Dr. Jack Woodall, director of Howard County/Big Spring Health Department.

Farquhar said injuries from drunk driving and boating will most likely wreak havoc on many a vacation this summer. "Drunk boating accidents are getting a lot of publicity now. This seems to be a relatively new thing."

Drownings as a result of drinking alcohol seem to have become more common, Farquhar said. "I hate to sound like I'm preaching but this is really a serious problem come summertime. People need to be aware of the danger."

Another danger people seem to forget is sunburn, Farquhar said. "Skin cancer can result over time — that's serious — but a bad burn may even require hospitalization. These are first and second degree burns."

Serious sunburns require skin treatments, fluids and sometimes pain medications. He said those with light complexions who tend to burn easily should apply and re-apply sunscreen liberally and often.

The oppressive heat will most likely cause more than a few injuries this summer, Woodall said. Two types of heat injuries are heat stroke and heat exhaustion.

"Heat stroke occurs when the body is unable to regulate its temperature. More common is what is called 'heat exhaustion' or loss of water and salt, electrolytes, from the body," Farquhar said.

Farquhar said in recent years the public in general, and especially sports team coaches, have become more knowledgeable about

Reps act on finance reform bill

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — A $528 million school finance reform package is speeding through the Texas Legislature, as lawmakers work to end their record-breaking sixth special legislative session by the end of the week.

"We've been here for a long time, and we'd like to go home," House Speaker Gib Lewis said Tuesday, the second day of this special session. It is the fourth session on court-ordered school finance reform; lawmakers have been meeting on the issue since late February.

The House and Senate on Tuesday easily approved fee and tax increases needed to pay for the reform plan agreed to by state leaders, including a quarter-cent state sales tax increase and higher taxes on mixed drinks and tobacco. The measures were sent to Gov. Bill Clements.

The Senate also passed a separate bill outlining school finance reforms with a 29-1 vote, and a measure making budget cuts and state budget transfers with a 30-0 vote. Those bills were sent to the House for consideration, and the Public Education Committee approved the reform bill with a 6-1 vote.

Democratic legislative leaders and the Republican governor agreed on the school finance reform package Friday after a three-month deadlock on how to address a Texas Supreme Court order to make more money available to poor school districts.

Besides pumping extra money into the $13.5 billion-a-year school finance system, the funding package of cuts and tax increases would raise an extra $100 million to bail out financially strapped social service programs.

Clements killed two previous school finance reform plans because they each required a half-cent increase in the sales tax. But he compromised at the quarter-cent level Friday, saying he wanted to fend off court intervention in the school system.

Besides addressing funding, the reform bill would make a number of changes designed to improve education performance and accountability.

It would allow expansion of the pre-kindergarten program to 3-year-olds in the 1991-92 school year, at local option and given sufficient state funding; increase testing of students; and give the governor the authority to appoint the state education commissioner. The commissioner now is appointed by the State Board of Education.

The tax and fee measures would:

- Raise the sales tax to 6 1/4 cents on the dollar.
- Raise the tax per pack of cigarettes by 15 cents, to 41 cents.
- Increase the tax rate on chewing tobacco, snuff and smoking tobacco from 28.125 percent to 35.213 percent of the factory list price.

- Increase the gross receipts tax on the sale of mixed drinks from 12 percent to 14 percent. This was the last item in the tax bill, which was approved 117-23 by the House and 30-0 by the Senate.

- Double the fee for obtaining a duplicate driver's license from $5 to $10. This was a separate bill, approved 117-20 by the House and 30-0 by the Senate.

- Raise by 50 percent the state fees for highway permits to move items that exceed statutory size and weight limits. This was a separate bill, approved on a 126-15 House vote and 30-0 Senate vote.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said he does not think the reform bill will meet the Supreme Court order to design a constitutional school finance system.

But he voted for it, he said, because it sends more money to school districts. Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, voted against the reform bill.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Lewis said they think the legislation will pass court muster. And Clements dismissed criticism from some black and Hispanic legislators who said the school finance reforms did not go far enough.

"I don't know anybody that's happy with the bill. The fact that everybody's unhappy about it makes it probably a pretty good bill," Clements said.

Farm scene

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Senate Agriculture Committee is getting strong opposition from its ranking Republican to any increases in target prices or loan rates in the 1990 farm bill.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Tuesday he was standing firm on freezing target prices and loan rates. And he said he was unwilling to take more acreage out of production or accept shifts in finances to create the illusion of deficit reduction.

"I've been infinitely flexible in other things (in the bill)," Lugar said. But he said these four areas were not negotiable and would lead to a floor fight if the Democratic majority on the committee insists in keeping them in the bill.

"The Democrats have to decide 'do we want an issue, or do we want a bill?'" said Lugar. "If an issue is what they want, then my guess is we will have a one-year extension" in the 1985 farm bill expiring this year.

Lugar commented at a breakfast meeting with reporters immediately before he went into a session with a bipartisan task force created by Agriculture Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., to work out a compromise on commodities supports.

The task force also includes Sens. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr.; David Pryor, D-Ark.; Bob Dole, R-Kan.; and Thad Cochran, R-Miss. Not all members were present and little was accomplished at Tuesday's meeting, sources close to the committee said.

The Democrats want to increase target prices 1 percent, with other increases possible in the last four years of the program depending on inflation.

Congress passes a farm bill every five years to set agriculture policy, including the degree to which government will subsidize farmers through target prices and loan rates.

Current law expires in December, but the Bush administration has said repeatedly that it would accept a one-year extension of existing policies.

That is viewed by many in Congress as a strategy which would help U.S. negotiators at the international trade talks known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. The United States is trying to get other countries to remove subsidies from agricultural products that distort world market prices.

Agriculture Secretary Clayton

Yeutter, who is actively involved in those talks, has said that U.S. subsidies may have to be adjusted to comply with whatever agreement develops. They are expected to be completed by the end of this year.

Lugar mentioned the trade talks in his talk with reporters, but he said his main objection to the Democrats' proposal for increasing target prices is budgetary.

"At a time when it is fairly likely people may be asked to pay more taxes, for the farm program to be asking for more money is not prudent," he said.

The House Agriculture Committee, meanwhile, has voted to freeze target prices.

WASHINGTON — The guesswork will be taken out of agricultural finance when guidelines developed through the American Bankers Association are in effect, say members of task force that developed the program.

Standardized methods for figuring farm expenses will help make farmers more competitive by giving them better information as to how their operations stack up financially with all others, the task force said Tuesday.

"The producers have been looking for help," said Steve Hofing, a consultant from Champaign, Ill., who served on the panel.

He said farm business has been hindered because each creditor and farmer has his own set of forms and method of record-keeping.

"We need guidelines so net farm income means the same thing in Maryland as in Washington state," said Hofing.

he met Reagan for the first time at the drug store. But on Tuesday he said he could not remember where they met. He did say that Adams was not with them at that meeting.

"Last week they say one thing. This week they come over here and say something else," Greenhaw said in his closing argument.

On Tuesday Greenhaw also attempted to get the felony charge reduced to a misdemeanor on grounds that the marijuana seeds should not be considered as part of the useable marijuana.

Without the seeds, the marijuana in question weighs 17 of an ounce, not enough for the 25 of an ounce required for a felony charge.

Only seeds that can germinate are considered in charges, according to the law. But Greenhaw said that calculating that weight from a percentage of seeds that were germinated casts a reasonable doubt on the accuracy.

A motion Tuesday morning to have the felony charge reduced to a misdemeanor charge was denied by District Judge Robert Moore.

Greenhaw disagreed with the ruling. "The state has not proven beyond a reasonable doubt whether they (the seeds) should be included or not included," he told the jury.

"If there is any element of this offense that is not proven, then he is innocent," he said. "You don't have any alternative but to find my client not guilty."

Hamby denounced that reasoning. "I hope you don't get caught up in all of this abracadabra number business," he told the jury as he pointed to a blackboard where the weights of the different parts of the marijuana were written.

"Did he sell her the dope or didn't he?" he said in a raised voice.

"If you believe this smoke mirage then do it and let's move on," he said. "This is your community and this community demands what's right. Whatever your decision is, you're the consciousness of the community."

Of others arrested in the October roundup, Glee Ann Holcombe, Kerry Dennis Holcombe and Cruz Marquez Aguirre were given continuances. Cases on Michael Rosa Villa and Pedro Vasquez are also pending. All are accused of selling marijuana except Glee Ann Holcombe, who is charged with being an accessory.

In addition, a case involving a juvenile arrested for the sale of cocaine has not yet been handled.

Of three others who pleaded guilty in November and another who pleaded guilty in February, sentences of 10 and seven years were handed out for the sale of heroin and sentences of five years and for 100 days for the sale of marijuana.

Twins find sister after 16-year search

By SONIA WASHINGTON

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
LUBBOCK (AP) — Rhoda and Lorna Blakney consider themselves super sleuths.

The 31-year-old twins recently completed a mission they set out on more than 16 years ago — finding a sister they had never known.

Their search wasn't easy. It was filled with twists, turns and often disappointments. But the twins were diligent in their search, and when they were finished, they found that they not only had a missing sister, they also had six other brothers and sisters whom they had never met.

"We were 6 years old when our parents (Mr. and Mrs. Roger Blakney) told us that we were adopted," Rhoda said. "But it wasn't until we were 15 when we decided to try to find our family."

The twins had lived in New Home for most of their lives, but their crusade began in Denver City, the place where they were adopted.

"When we were there, we found out our parents names (Robert and Virginia Hubbard) and were told that there was a letter from our father, but we couldn't see it until we were 18," Rhoda said.

Three months before their 18th birthday, they ran into their first stumbling block.

"When we were about to turn 18, we wrote the lawyer and told him that we would be coming to read the letter," she said. "But we were told that the letter and records were burned in a fire seven years before."

"We thought that was pretty strange, since we had only been there three years before and had seen the letter," Lorna interjected.

The twins said that they believed that if they had seen the letter their father had written, a lot of their questions would have been answered. Despite the handicap of not knowing what the letter contained, the sisters forged on with their mission to find their lost relatives.

The next obstacle was in Lovington, N.M.

"We found that they had records on us in Lovington," Lorna said, "but when we went to the courthouse, they would not open up the records."

The twins once again were left empty-handed and discouraged, but still determined.

Their luck changed when they met a woman who helped change their lives forever. Her name was Claudia Workman, a former law enforcement officer from Hobbs, N.M., who heard of their plight and decided to help them.

"She knew people who could help us," Lorna said.

Through their newfound friend's help, the hospital records which they had previously been denied access to were finally opened.

When the twins read the records, they found that they had a sister who had died when she was four months old. Her name was Judy Hubbard. The records also had the date on which the infant died.

With this new information, the sisters began their detective work. Their first stop was at the Hobbs Daily News-Sun.

"We found that newspaper with her obituary in it," Lorna said, "and it showed that we had other family, including a grandfather in Arkansas."

Their next step was contacting their grandfather, who, fortunately, still lived in Arkansas.

"We called him in Arkansas, but he didn't know anything about us," Rhoda said. "He acted like it wasn't real, so I sat down and sent him a letter and pictures of us. He then called our aunt in California and told her that we had to be Hubbards because we looked just like them. She called us immediately."

Rhoda said that the aunt knew about Betty, their sister in New Mexico.

"She told us that she would get in contact with another one of our aunts and that she would try to contact Betty. But she never could, so we decided to try ourselves," Rhoda continued.

Unknown to the twins, their sister had moved and had an unlisted phone number. Once again they ran into an obstacle.

"We were calling this lady named Sara Laney," Lorna said. "We would leave messages on her answering machine saying that we were twins given up at birth and that we were her sisters. We also left our number for her to call us."

Sara Laney knew that she did not have twin sisters who were adopted and she soon realized that the sisters must have had the wrong number. She called the twins and informed them of their mistake.

"She told us that she knew of another Laney and that maybe she was our sister," Lorna said. "But she assured us that she was not the person we were looking for."

Finally, the sisters' aunt was able to locate Mrs. Laney's husband at work and informed him about the adopted twins.

"Then she (Betty) called us, and we decided to meet in Hobbs," Lorna said.

After 31 years of being separated, the sisters were finally united last month.

"I was so happy to see them that words just can't express how I felt," Mrs. Laney said.

the dangers of heat exhaustion and can guard against it. The popularity of drinks like Gatorade, specially formulated to replace electrolytes, has helped as well, he said.

Woodall said most important is to cover bare skin in the sun. Wear a hat to protect your face, and choose cotton and other porous fabrics in your outdoor clothing, he said.

"Skin cancer can result over time — that's serious — but a bad burn may even require hospitalization. These are first and second degree burns." — Dr. James Farquhar.

"Avoid exercising when the ultraviolet rays are strongest, the middle of the day. So jogging on your lunch break is not advisable."

He said infants and the elderly should be protected from those dangerous rays.

"The elderly are especially susceptible to skin cancers which can develop over time. This is not to say they don't affect young people just as well, and all age groups should be aware." A scaly reddened patch of skin which persists should be checked by a doctor, he said.

The elderly may find existing health problems aggravated by the heat, and that could lead to a life-threatening situation, Farquhar said.

"If you are an elderly person, find a support system, somebody to come and check on you every now and then." Since many of the older generation stay indoors most of the time, they may not be missed by neighbors if a serious health problem were to occur, preventing them from seeking help, Farquhar said.

Drinking lots of water is more important than ever at this time of year, Woodall said. Alcohol may seem to refresh you when you feel hot, but it cannot quench thirst like water, he said.

Sunglasses, often taken for granted, are necessary to protect your eyes in bright sunlight, especially when it is reflected off of water, he said. Doctors recommend the type of glasses which block ultraviolet rays, Woodall said.

If a friend or family member develops a severe headache, gets drowsy or dizzy in the heat, take him to a cool place, give water to drink and place ice or cool packs on his head and body, Woodall said.

Dazzling Desserts

STRAWBERRIES & CHOCOLATE

Weddings, anniversaries, baby showers, graduations—summer is the peak season for celebrations! Festive occasions call for new, no-fail dessert recipes that impress.

With luscious, red-ripe strawberries and creamy-rich chocolate it's easy to create dazzling desserts. Showcase chocolate and strawberries in stylish Italian Tiramisú or "Lift Me Up," recently prized as a chic dessert item in the trendiest restaurants.

Tiramisú is layered with espresso-soaked ladyfingers, sliced strawberries and a creamy, rich filling made with Nestlé® premier white baking bars (known by Europeans as white chocolate). Halved strawberries create a brilliant, ruby-red crown.

Try strawberries and chocolate in other favorites such as tarts, shortcakes or in the recipes that follow.

STRAWBERRY TIPS

SELECTION: Choose plump strawberries with a rich red color and bright green caps as they do not ripen after being picked.

STORAGE: To maintain good flavor, appearance and the highest nutritional value, store strawberries in the refrigerator until ready to eat. Just before using, rinse strawberries with caps still attached, pat dry with a paper towel, then remove stems.

NUTRITION: Eight medium strawberries contain only 60 calories, yet provide a generous 150 percent of the U.S. RDA for Vitamin C; 230 mg of potassium and good supplies of fiber, folacin, and other minerals.

AVAILABILITY: Fresh California strawberries, available almost year-round, are of highest quality and in greatest abundance now through early July.

CHOCOLATE MELTING TIPS

WHITE BAKING BARS: Empty 6-ounce package into 4-cup glass measure or microwave-safe bowl; microwave on DEFROST (30% power) 5 minutes; stir. Microwave on DEFROST 1 minute; stir. Microwave 1 minute longer; stir until smooth.

CHOCOLATE MORSELS OR BAKING BARS: Empty 6- or 12-ounce package into 4-cup glass measure or microwave-safe bowl. Microwave on HIGH power 1 minute; stir. Microwave 1 minute longer; stir until smooth.

STOVE-TOP DIRECTIONS: Place chocolate or white baking bars into top of dry double boiler over very hot (not boiling) water; stir until smooth.

FOR BEST RESULTS: Be sure that all utensils are completely dry. A few drops of water or steam can make the chocolate harden and crumble. If it does harden or become too thick, add 1 tablespoon shortening (not butter or margarine) for each 3 ounces of chocolate; stir over very low heat until smooth.

Celebrate with Strawberry-White Chocolate Tiramisú and Chocolate Strawberry Shortcake.

Strawberry-White Chocolate Tiramisú

- 2 packages (6 ounces each) Nestlé premier white baking bars
- 1½ cups heavy or whipping cream, divided
- 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- 36 ladyfingers, split (three 3-ounce packages)
- 1¼ cups cooled espresso or strong coffee
- 2 tablespoons brandy (optional)
- 2 pint baskets fresh California strawberries, stemmed, divided

To make filling, melt white baking bars with ¼ cup of the heavy cream in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling water. Stir until smooth; cool to room temperature. In large mixer bowl, beat cream cheese until fluffy. Stir in melted baking bars. Whip remaining 1¼ cups cream to form soft peaks; gradually whisk into cream cheese mixture; set aside. Line side of 9- x 3-inch springform pan with ladyfinger halves, cut sides in. In small bowl combine coffee and brandy. Arrange half the remaining ladyfingers on bottom of springform pan. Brush with half the coffee mixture. Cover with half the filling. Slice 1 basket of the strawberries; layer over filling. Repeat ladyfinger, coffee and filling layers. Cover and refrigerate at least 4 hours or overnight. Remove side of pan. Halve remaining strawberries; arrange decoratively on top. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Strawberries in the Snow

- 1 package (6 ounces) Nestlé premier white baking bars
- 1 tablespoon vegetable shortening
- 2 pint baskets fresh California strawberries, rinsed and patted dry

Melt white baking bars with vegetable shortening in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling water; stir until smooth. Dip strawberries into melted mixture, shaking off excess. Place on foil-lined baking sheet; refrigerate until set, about 10 minutes. Gently loosen strawberries from foil with metal spatula. Makes about ½ cup dip. Coats about 2 pints strawberries.

MICROWAVE METHOD: See Chocolate Melting Tips above.

Chocolate Strawberry Shortcake

- 1 package (12 ounces) Nestlé Toll House® semi-sweet chocolate morsels (2 cups), divided
- ¾ cup milk
- 2¼ cups all-purpose flour
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
- 1 egg white, lightly beaten (optional)
- 4 pint baskets fresh California strawberries, stemmed and sliced
- Whipped cream, sweetened if desired

Preheat oven to 400° F. In small saucepan over very low heat, melt ¼ cup of the chocolate morsels in milk, stirring constantly; remove from heat and cool to room temperature. In large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. With pastry blender or 2 knives, cut in butter until crumbly. Stir in remaining chocolate morsels. Add melted chocolate mixture and stir until a soft dough forms. On lightly floured surface, knead dough 5 to 10 strokes until smooth. Roll about ¼ inch thick. Cut into 2½-inch circles. Place on large ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops of shortcakes with beaten egg white; sprinkle lightly with additional sugar. Bake 12 to 15 minutes. In bowl, toss strawberries with additional sugar, to taste. To serve, split warm shortcakes in half crosswise. Place bottom halves on individual plates. Top with some of the whipped cream and strawberries; cover with top halves, remaining strawberries and whipped cream. Makes 12 servings.

NOTE: To reheat shortcakes, wrap loosely in aluminium foil; place in preheated 375° F oven about 10 minutes until warm.

Chocolate Strawberry Tart

(not pictured)

- Pastry dough for one-crust, 9-inch tart or pie
- ¼ cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 4 egg yolks, lightly beaten
- 1 package (6 ounces) Nestlé Toll House semi-sweet chocolate morsels (1 cup) or 3 foil-wrapped bars (6 ounces) Nestlé semi-sweet chocolate baking bars
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 pint baskets fresh California strawberries, stemmed
- 2 tablespoons strawberry or currant jelly

For tart shell: Preheat oven to 425° F. Roll out and fit pastry dough into 9-inch tart pan with removable bottom. Press dough firmly onto bottom and sides of pan; trim edge. Line pastry with foil; weight with pastry weights or dried beans. Bake 10 minutes. Remove foil and weights; bake 5 to 10 minutes longer until lightly browned. Cool completely. Place tart shell on serving plate.

For pastry cream: In medium saucepan, combine sugar, flour and salt. Gradually whisk in milk. Bring to boil, whisking, over low heat; boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; stir in yolks. Cook and stir 1 minute longer. Remove from heat. Add chocolate, butter and vanilla. Stir until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth. Press plastic wrap directly onto surface of pastry cream. Refrigerate 30 minutes; stir, and spread in cooled tart shell. Arrange strawberries on top. ## Non-alcoholic brews fit healthy '90s lifestyle

It's no secret—lighter eating and drinking have become part of the American lifestyle.

As the 1980s ended, publications such as The New York Times and Newsweek reported that the fitness craze was fading into a more relaxed outlook on health and nutrition. Yet most people will agree that the changes made in how we eat and drink will remain part of the country's menu. Products low in calories and cholesterol have become part of our diet for good!

Evidence of healthy trend

One indication of our acceptance of healthier products is the ongoing success of non-alcoholic brews. Imported brands established the category in the mid 1980s as consumer tastes and attitudes began shifting towards more temperate consumption. Today, beverages like Kaliber, the number one imported non-alcoholic brew, have become part of the way we live and entertain.

Although beer sales as a whole declined in 1989, Impact, a beverage trade publication, reported that sales of imported non-alcoholic brews have more than doubled since 1985, proving the success of the category. Recently, American brewers have started to brew their own non-alcoholic brands to add to the imports already on the market.

Non-alcoholic brews have been sold since the 19th century, yet critics contended that these early "near beers" lacked the taste and body of a brew with alcohol. According to Paul Block, Kaliber group marketing director at Guinness Import Company, advanced technology allows today's brewer to create a better non-alcoholic brew, with a richer, fuller taste and body.

"Although some brewers still boil their beer to eliminate the alcohol, we prefer to use a vacuum evaporation method that treats the beer more gently. Because we produce a fully brewed lager before eliminating the alcohol, the result is a non-alcoholic brew that tastes like a regular beer."

Non-alcoholic by law

By law, a non-alcoholic brew must contain less than one-half of one percent of alcohol to satisfy the legal definition of non-alcoholic. Many of the brews—which cannot legally be called beer—contain less alcohol than fruit juice or lemon-lime soda.

An added bonus for calorie counters: Some of these brews contain less than half the calories of an average "lite" beer. Kaliber, for instance, is one of the lowest, at only 49 calories per 12-ounce bottle.

Poised for success in the '90s

Will non-alcoholic brews continue to be one of the hottest trends in the beverage industry? Many experts answer with an emphatic "yes." With ongoing consumer interest in healthier eating and drinking, the modern-day non-alcoholic brews just may be one of the major success stories of the decade.

Balanced fitness: Now available in the home

During the 1980s, aerobic exercise was established as the foundation of fitness and good health. Research proved that running, biking, aerobic dancing, cross-country skiing and other aerobic activities improve cardiovascular fitness, lower the risk of heart disease, and are an important factor in controlling body fat.

"Aerobic exercise has also been shown to increase energy and stamina, and boost self-esteem," says Diane DeMarco, executive director of the National Exercise for Life Institute.

However, medical professionals, scientists and fitness enthusiasts are predicting a change in the way Americans exercise. "We'll see a shift in emphasis from a purely aerobic workout to a fitness program that achieves balanced fitness, a combination of an aerobic workout and strength training," says Jeff Zwiemel, M.S., exercise physiologist for the Institute.

Although aerobic exercise is still essential to total fitness, studies have shown that strength training is a necessary component to health and quality of life. The most visible benefits of strength training are shaping the body and giving it a firm, well-toned look, improving posture and providing greater flexibility.

It also provides important upper body strength. "For all of its benefits, most types of aerobic exercise don't build muscle strength, especially in the upper body," explains Dennis Colonello, D.C., a Los Angeles based exercise specialist. "This muscle strength can greatly improve one's quality of life, making day-to-day tasks such as lifting children or carrying groceries much easier," Dr. Colonello notes.

Strength training is also important in losing and maintaining body weight. Increased muscle mass raises the metabolism, because muscle burns more calories than fat does. The higher the metabolism, the more calories are burned—both during exercise and throughout the day.

Finding the time

Fortunately, keeping up with a balanced fitness program doesn't have to take as much time as was once thought. "Alternating strength training and aerobics can provide an efficient workout, and both can be easily done within the home," says Zwiemel. More and more Americans are realizing that in-home exercise equipment is the best way to fit regular exercise into an already busy schedule.

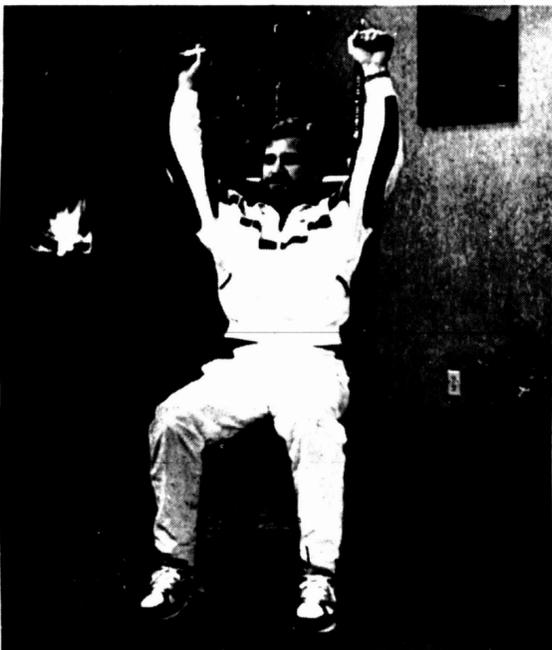

"Although there have long been a number of in-home aerobic exercisers, there are no compact, easy-to-use strengthening exercise machines," says DeMarco. Now, however, an innovative new piece of equipment fills that gap.

Already the leading manufacturer of cross-country ski simulators, NordicTrack recently introduced the Nordic Fitness Chair, a unique in-home exerciser that maintains upper body strength and flexibility. The key to the Nordic Fitness Chair's effectiveness is its isokinetic speed sensitive resistance device. The faster you pull, the more resistance you get. As upper body strength develops, people will pull harder, thereby getting more resistance and further building muscle strength.

"As people tire, they'll push less hard, so the resistance level will be correspondingly lower. That means they can complete their number of repetitions and get a thorough workout without risking injury," explains Zwiemel.

In-home exercise equipment doesn't have to require a room of its own either. The Nordic Fitness Chair is attractive and compact, designed to fit into the family room or den. The polysuede fabric is attractive and easy to clean, and the isokinetic resistance device is largely concealed under the seat.

To learn more about the benefits of regular exercise, or for a free copy of the Institute's health and fitness magazine, Personal Fitness and Weight Loss, call 612-448-3094. TT90106

Newlyweds—Think big to make a studio livable

When it's all you've got, it's got to be a lot. As housing costs and apartment rent continue to skyrocket, many young couples are searching for economical housing. As a result, the studio apartment is becoming a popular choice for many newlyweds, as an affordable means of comfortable living.

It's a living room, dining room and bedroom; a place for quiet time together after a hard day's work and the backdrop for a spirited evening with friends. Tremendous demands placed on what is often scant square footage call for creative decorating.

Can one room really be all these things? "Yes, indeed," assures Ann Britten, design consultant for La-Z-Boy Chair Co. "The trick is for today's newlyweds to think big when it comes to decorating these tight-squeeze, multifunctional spaces. Too often the one-room apartment fails its inhabitants because of old-fashioned decorating notions. Bland and boring color schemes, small-scale furniture, a clutter of knick-knacks and an absence of comfortable seating rob small living spaces of their true potential."

Instead of emphasizing smallness by decorating with uncomfortable, pint-sized furniture, Britten stresses the importance of selecting a few larger multifunctional pieces. Avoiding a cluttered look is essential and nothing creates clutter more quickly than a mixture of non-matching furnishings. A few simply styled larger pieces open up a room and provide a look of comfort and welcome.

Modular furniture, often overlooked when decorating small spaces, is Britten's favorite choice for decorating a studio apartment. "Modular pieces can put together a visually expanding, yet unifying arrangement, while still making the most of every inch of space."

Modulars, such as those available from La-Z-Boy, offer another essential when planning studio apartment decor: they are multifunctional. A three- or four-piece modular group can be the only furniture needed in a 500-square-foot studio; by day it provides seating for four or five with an easy-to-relax-in recliner and at night opens up into a sleep sofa. Add to the room a unique coffee table, pull-up ottoman for extra seating, and a wall system to house today's often extensive collection of high-tech electronic gadgetry, and a couple has everything they need for a comfortable, functional and exciting apartment.

For extra pizzazz, try strong colors, large paintings and bold prints. They will give a studio apartment the necessary design "punch" without taking up an inch of precious floor space.

THERE'S NO ROOM for small-minded decorating notions in a newlyweds' tight-squeeze studio apartment. Multifunctional furnishings and bold colors are what is needed to visually expand space, ensure comfort and maximize practicality. In this 500-square-foot space, La-Z-Boy's modulars provide seating for four with a comfortable recliner and a sleep sofa, all the while taking up a minimum of space.

Make sure the family vacation car you choose guarantees unconditional, unlimited mileage

As Americans plan their summer vacations, they will be pleased to find that many car rental companies are advertising "free unlimited mileage"—highly desirable for today's cost-conscious families who want to get out on the open road and go.

"But renter beware," warns travel expert Ken Wilson, who co-authored Kids On Board: A 10-City Guide to Great Family Vacations with his wife Marilyn. "The big car rental companies may advertise unlimited free mileage, but the offer may carry as many as 10 restrictions that limit the availability or actually drive up the price of the car. That means savings can go right out the window."

By shopping wisely for unlimited free mileage rates, careful consumers can still rent cars economically for upcoming family vacations.

Read the fine print

"To make sure the car rental bargain you choose stays a bargain once you're behind the wheel, pick a car rental company that guarantees unrestricted free mileage," says Wilson. "In other words, find a company with no 'strings' attached to its unlimited mileage policy."

Some of these strings include requirements that renters stay over a Saturday night and return the car to the location where they picked it up, and the inability to use discount coupons or discounts on car rentals provided by membership in a travel club, retirement association or other organization. Also, maximum rental periods may apply and offers may be limited to "participating locations only."

According to Wilson, travelers who want hassle-free savings should look for car rental companies with no strings unlimited mileage policies nationwide. One such company is Alamo Rent A Car. "Alamo is the only major car rental company that offers unconditional, unrestricted, free unlimited mileage at every one of its locations across the country, on every car, at any time," he says.

Rental car shopping made easy

When comparison shopping for rental cars, there are a number of other things to consider. "Ask for a special weekly rate if renting for five, six or seven days or more, and find out if there are extra charges if you don't stick to your itinerary once on your trip," Wilson suggests.

Keeping costs low is important, but you should also make sure the rental company caters to leisure travelers, Wilson says. Look for a company that offers family-oriented auxiliary equipment, such as child car seats, luggage racks and ski racks, and has facilities that make traveling with children and lots of luggage easier.

Finally, if all of this comparison shopping seems confusing, don't be afraid to consult a travel agent. "It's a myth," Wilson says, "that using a travel agent drives up costs. In fact, consumers never pay extra for the valuable, money-saving advice that travel agents provide." SL909325

Summer beauty tips that save time and money

Summertime and the living is breezy, and with summer's emphasis on healthy, natural good looks, nobody wants to spend a lot of time, effort or money on a beauty regimen.

What's important to remember? According to the beauty experts at Cover Girl, leading maker of cosmetics products, the following steps for quick, easy and sun-conscious beauty will help you make the most of your summer:

- Your skin's most important friend and a daily essential for any beauty routine is a good moisturizer. Save time and money by buying one that also contains a sunscreen, or—even better—try one of the new tinted moisturizers with sunscreen. These products simulate a healthy, sun-kissed glow while protecting your skin from the sun's damaging rays.

- Whether your summer glow comes from a tube or the sun, accent it with subtle touches of color on eyes, lips and cheeks. Keeping your makeup simple leaves you time to enjoy your favorite summer activities. And your face won't need a lot of overpowering color to perk it up during this season.

- For a little touch of color on cheeks, stick with the sheerer color of a gel blush. Applied with light, upward strokes over the cheekbone, gel blushes blend in easily and are available in a variety of colors.

- Lips can benefit from a light sweep of color as well. Try to use a lip product that contains moisturizing elements as well as sun protection ingredients. Some new products are also "melt-resistant"—ideal for throwing into your beach bag.

- What's the newest color craze for eyes? Any shade of green—a trend stemming from increased awareness of the environment. To brighten summer eyes, line with the lightest hint of color.

- Tired of having to redo your faded or yellowed nail polish after a day of fun in the sun? Cover Girl NailSlicks contains "colorguard," a sunscreen ingredient to protect nail color from the damaging effects of the sun.

So remember, with products that meet more than one need and a beauty routine that calls for just a touch of accenting color, you can beat the heat in style—without having to miss out on any hot, summer fun. SL909327

REAL STYLE FOR BRIDESMAIDS IN THE '90s

This spring, there's good news in the air for every woman who's ever complained that she's "always a bridesmaid and never a bride."

According to Bride's magazine, 1990s fashions for bridesmaids are tasteful, stylish and prettier than ever. From showstopping evening gowns to updated classics, these dresses were made for celebrating.

Here are Bride's magazine's favorite styles for 1990:

Elegant: Long, body-skimming silhouettes will be making waves at weddings this year. Dresses may be strapless—tied in a soft bow at the bust with delicate lace sleeves, or covered with a jacket for the ceremony.

Maids will be dressed in head-turning colors like indigo, aubergine, deep emerald, and saffron. And don't forget black; this sophisticated color looks stunning alone, spectacular when contrasted with white or rich jewel tones.

Romantic: Ballerina-inspired styles have full tulle skirts and fitted corset bodices in eyelet or velvet. Or dresses may evoke the '20s, with sheer layers and drop waists, to be worn with long strands of pearls.

Colors range from palest pastels—seashell pink, morning-sky blue, celery green—to classic navy and white.

Country: Folkloric touches will enhance wedding parties in 1990. Watch for colorful embroidery, lace-up bodices, pinafores with full skirts and flouncy white petticoats.

Cotton prints, such as gingham checks and garden florals, grace pretty sundresses for summer weddings. Silhouettes may be short and simple, or float on layers of ruffles.

Husbands take wide role as infant-care providers

Bringing up baby, once the wife's exclusive province, has become a decidedly mom and pop operation, according to a survey of mothers with new babies recently released by Beech-Nut Nutrition Corporation.

Yet, despite husbands' active participation, 40 percent of wives surveyed said that their husbands are concerned about not spending enough time with their baby.

The survey, the most recent in a series conducted by Beech-Nut, found that about three-quarters of new mothers indicate that their husbands help with the baby "regularly," "mostly," or "all the time."

Specifically:

- 47 percent of husbands help change the baby's diapers regularly, or more often;
- 46 percent help at least regularly, if not more often, in putting the baby to bed at night;
- 41 percent regularly, or more often, give the baby his or her evening feeding.

Two activities, however, are still the province of mothers: Fifty-three percent of husbands never give the baby a late night feeding and 47 percent never give him or her a bath, according to the wives.

The study also found that full-time employed mothers are very concerned about not spending enough time with their babies. Fifty-three percent of the mothers who work full-time outside the home worry that they are not spending enough time with their babies; half feel that their husbands are not either.

Nearly every working mother interviewed (90 percent) said she would stop working full-time and would reduce it to part-time or no outside work if she had the choice (i.e., if it weren't necessary to do so because of financial reasons).

Sixty-seven percent of these would quit work outright and 23 percent would work part-time (7 percent were underemployed). Husbands also figure into childcare arrangements to a surprising degree, according to the survey response. Overall, more than 20 percent of the wives surveyed said that their husbands take care of the baby while the wife works.

"The study results clearly support today's emphasis in the government and in private companies to consider both mothers and fathers as caregivers to their infants and children," says Dr. Richard C. Theuer, Beech-Nut's president. A total of 201 mothers participated in the Beech-Nut survey when they called the company's hotline to ask questions on infant feeding and care.

Mothers had babies with an average of 5.9 months; 59 percent had a household income of $30,000 or greater and 46 percent had a college degree.

Beech-Nut Nutrition Corporation was the first company to eliminate salt and chemically modified starches from baby foods. CU897352

Feeding baby right

By Dr. Richard C. Theuer

Expert asks: Is your baby getting enough water?

Have you ever wondered how much simpler life would be if your baby could talk? For example, a thirsty four-year-old can ask for a glass of water in the middle of the night. A four-day-old or a four-month-old cannot. That poses a potential problem, because water is critically important for the healthy development of young babies.

A four-month-old needs only about eighteen grams of protein a day (about one-half an ounce). However, he or she needs 500 to 1000 grams of water a day (17 to 34 ounces), depending on what kind of milk or formula is being fed—a lot more for his or her size than an adult would need.

It is often hard to tell how much water your baby is consuming, because most of a young baby's "food" is a liquid—milk or formula. Here are some tips to make certain that your baby is getting enough water, whether you are feeding him or her breast milk, formula or cow's milk.

Breast milk, of course, is perfectly designed for feeding babies, so it provides enough water.

Many babies are fed infant formula. Infant formulas generally provide as much water as breast milk but a little more protein and mineral salts. Protein and mineral salts help determine how much water baby needs.

There is a real problem if formula is prepared incorrectly. For example, if you give your baby concentrated formula without any added water, it contains twice as much protein and salts as it should. This is dangerous because a baby's immature kidneys cannot easily handle the extra load. Powdered formula creates a similar risk if it is not diluted properly. Making up formula a little extra strong does your baby no good. Follow dilution instructions carefully.

Young infants are not mature enough for cow's milk. One of the reasons that doctors tell new mothers not to use regular pasteurized milk for babies less than six months old is the high level of protein and salts it contains.

The young infant's kidneys find it difficult to handle this load if another stress, such as summer heat or fever or diarrhea, reduces the amount of water available to the kidneys to do their job.

Also, many mothers boil milk or formula before feeding it to their babies. Remember, the steam that you see rising from the pot is the water your baby needs.

What water should you use to give your baby or to prepare formula? Most of the homes in the United States have good water right from the tap. However, there are certain situations where tap water may pose a risk to your baby's health.

In some rural areas, especially in farm states, fertilizer or farm waste "run-off" get into the ground water. High levels of nitrates can get into the family's well water. The risk is to the newest and youngest member of the family: Babies less than four to six months of age, who turn blue around the mouth, the feet and the hands.

Most mothers know that water is one way their babies get fluoride, which can protect baby's teeth from cavities. Water should contain one part per million (1 ppm) of fluoride. More than this creates a risk to the teeth, called mottling, or fluorosis. This is something you should talk to your dentist or your baby's doctor about.

But, first call your water department or take a sample of your well water to your local health department to find out exactly how much fluoride you have in the water in your home.

Babies perspire and need more water in the summertime, just like we do. In the winter time a hot, dry house can increase water needs.

A baby loses water from the lungs by humidifying the air he or she breathes in and out. Dressing your baby too warmly in winter also increases water needs because it can cause a lot of sweating.

The easiest way to know if your baby is getting enough water is to check how many times a day he or she wets the diaper. Anywhere from four to eight times a day is normal. Of course, if you are using a super-absorbent disposable diaper, it may be hard to tell!

Giving your baby extra water is easy. A four-ounce serving of water or juice provides over 10 percent of your baby's daily water requirement.

Feeding baby right

By Dr. Richard C. Theuer

Expert's advice on what to feed your baby first

One day, you and your baby will reach the magic milestone of solid food. When that happens, you will be faced with many questions about what are the right foods to feed your baby first—and what is the best for your baby's growth and development.

It is important to remember that baby food exists for only one reason: To help you help your baby make the transition from a totally liquid diet of a single food like breast milk or infant formula, to the wide variety of foods that your family eats.

The objective is to gradually introduce your baby to the foods that make up a balanced diet.

Start slowly

A balanced diet contains cereals, dairy products, meat, fruits and vegetables. No one single food is absolutely essential. Keep this in mind if someone tells you that a particular food that you do not like or you never heard of "just has to be" in your baby's feeding dish.

The most critical rule on starting solid food is to start with single foods, not combinations or mixtures. The reason is that you need to check for reactions to foods when you start a baby on solids.

A baby's systems are immature and delicate, so we have to be careful not to go too fast. Starting with a single food lets you check your baby's reaction and find out exactly which foods agree with your baby.

Why rice cereal

In America today, most babies get rice cereal as their first solid food. Doctors traditionally recommend rice cereal because it is less allergenic than other cereals and very easy to digest.

Rice cereal contains less fiber than other cereals, so it is easier to digest. The dietary fiber so good for adults is not so wonderful for little babies, because their stomachs are small and can hold only so much.

The food babies eat should be very di-gestible. Also, dietary fiber ends up in your baby's diaper, and carries with it nutritionally essential minerals that your baby's body needs.

You can feed other foods first—check with your doctor. Fruits, vegetables, and even meats are fine, depending on what your baby is getting as his or her liquid feeding.

Ensure a balanced diet

Some doctors recommend meats as the first food for breast-fed babies in order to make sure that they continue to get enough protein when they start solids.

Breast milk has just enough protein for your baby, but if very low protein fruits like applesauce, pears or peaches become a big part of the diet, he or she may not get enough protein.

Meats are rich in protein and help to balance the overall diet. Half a jar of a baby meat or poultry product provides five to six grams of protein.

Bananas are a favorite first. If you mash a banana yourself, make sure that the banana is ripe. As a banana ripens, the starch of a green banana is converted naturally to simpler and more digestible sugars. That's why a ripe banana tastes sweet.

Check ingredients

If you want to start with commercial baby food banana, be sure you read the ingredient list very carefully. What you want is banana baby food without ingredients like sugar or starch filler.

Ingredients that are okay are: Water for preparation, vitamin C and citric acid, which enables the manufacturer to prepare bananas without over-cooking them.

Commercial baby food is made with ripe bananas to make sure your baby gets a highly-digestible food.

Are you a vegetable lover? There is no problem starting your baby on vegetables if you follow a few rules.

Certain vegetables, such as spinach, beets, turnips and collard greens, can be a problem for very young babies because they may contain substances that babies should not get. The immature body systems of very young infants cannot break down these substances very efficiently.

Appropriate vegetables

Most vegetables that are popular for adults, like the yellow vegetables—carrots, squash and sweet potatoes—are fine for babies. In fact, these are the most popular vegetables for babies today.

Some vegetables popular with adults are usually not recommended for baby. For example, high-fiber vegetables, such as broccoli and brussel sprouts may give your baby a lot of gas.

Finally, there are the traditional green vegetables, peas and green beans. Peas are rich in protein because they are legumes. Green beans are high in fiber, which may be why they are not as popular for baby feeding as they were several years ago.

Sometimes it is easy to forget that the first new food fed to some babies is not solid at all. Juice is sometimes the first non-milk food introduced.

It is just as important to watch for reactions when juice is fed. Babies new to solid foods should get single juices at first, not combinations or mixtures.

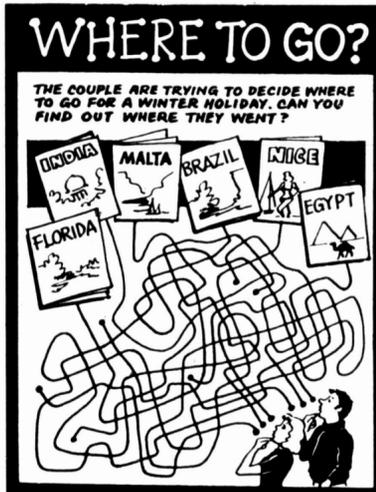

Many doctors recommend that you delay giving your baby orange juice. Orange juice is more likely to cause food reaction than other juices.

Whatever food you start with, be comfortable and confident, and watch how your baby reacts. You and your baby are beginning a journey into the world of food variety. You are your baby's tour guide to a balanced diet, on the road to good nutrition and good health. Good luck!

A few fascinating facts about animals

The animal kingdom is full of surprises. Here are a few fascinating facts with which to amaze your friends:

- The animal with the biggest appetite is the blue whale. Every time it takes a mouthful of krill, a shrimp-like creature, it swallows literally thousands of them. When full, the blue whale's stomach can hold as much as 2.5 tons of krill.

- Which do you think has more muscles: a man or a caterpillar? Most people would probably say a man. But a caterpillar does, in fact, have almost four times as many muscles as humans.

- Have you ever wondered why zebras have stripes? You might think that their bold black and white markings would make them easy for predators such as lions to spot in the African bush. But because they roam in herds, the stripes give zebras a form of camouflage known as disruptive coloration.

- Their patterning makes it very difficult for a predator to spot individual animals clearly. All he sees is a mass of black and white patterns.

- The domestic turkey is believed to be the world's most stupid bird. Some have been known to drown in a heavy shower because they didn't realize that they would be safe and dry inside their huts. Others are so dumb that they can't even remember how to eat and have to be fed by the farmer.

- Believe it or not, some frogs in central South America are capable of killing humans with their poisonous venom. The most poisonous is the kokoi frog from Colombia. Natives living in the rain-forests catch these frogs and extract the poison to coat the tips of their darts. The one-inch-long kokoi has enough poison in its skin to kill 50 men.

- The elephant's closest relative is the tiny rock hyrax, a hamster-like creature which inhabits wooded regions of Asia and Africa. Like the elephant, it has hoof-like nails on the toes of its front feet.

- The shark has a sense of smell unsurpassed in the animal kingdom. It can detect a single drop of blood in water from a distance of 650 feet.

- We all know that the giraffe has got a lot of neck. But did you realize that it has just seven bones in its long neck—exactly the same number as humans have?

- If you have gerbils as pets, you may think that all gerbils look alike. But, in fact, there are more than 70 different kinds of gerbils. Wild gerbils live in the deserts of Asia and Africa. Gerbils' bodies are adapted for desert living—they have long legs to keep their bodies away from the hot sand and thick fur on their feet to keep them from being burned.

To prevent crime in Tucson, police use sensitive, highly sophisticated surveillance equipment:

Tim, Rose, Gert, Anthony, Yvonne, and Ramon.

Citizen participation is critical to police effectiveness. Do you care about your neighborhood enough to help protect it?

The Case of The Tucson Tip-off.

In a particular neighborhood in Tucson, Arizona, folks were having a real problem with burglaries and break-ins. They started talking to each other about what they could do. They got fed up. About 400 people went to the police for advice. They learned about surveillance. They got to know their beat officers. Citizens and police became partners in crime prevention. In just three weeks, 17 arrests were made and burglaries went down 30%. And Tucson is only one case where people successfully worked to beat crime. LOW-CALORIE SUMMER SPARKLER is a nutritious, zesty thirst quencher that's a tasty alternative to alcoholic beverages. P7898971

A tasty summer drink alternative

Today's active population wants to keep up with summer fun all summer long. To keep their energy flowing, health-conscious Americans are eating fresh fruits, vegetables, poultry and seafood more often, and discovering alternatives to alcoholic beverages.

Indeed, the National Restaurant Association reports non-alcoholic cocktails are gaining popularity.

Nutritionist Caron Fein from Nutrition Learning Centers explains why they are a refreshing alternative to alcohol: "Because alcohol dehydrates the body, it can actually make you thirstier. In turn, the more alcohol you drink, the more calories you consume."

Instead, she recommends blending juices and mixers to satisfy your thirst without the empty calories of alcohol.

When the summer sun has you craving a zesty thirst quencher, delight in this tasty, colorful fruit beverage instead of a beer.

Summer Sparkler is filled with fresh fruit juices for nutrients, but is low in fat and sugar, so the 54 calories per serving will please those shaping up for summer. And it can be made in seconds. Summer Sparkler makes it easy to enjoy the alcoholic-drink alternative.

Planning a holiday picnic

For most people, Memorial Day marks the unofficial beginning of summer. This year, why not celebrate with a picnic? It's easy to plan a picnic that's just right for your tastes and budget.

For a romantic picnic, you may need only a secluded spot, a bottle of wine, a loaf of crusty French bread and some cheese and, of course, someone special to share it with. A more elaborate picnic might include such delicacies as poached salmon, cold melon soup and chocolate mousse.

Or, your idea of the perfect picnic may be an all-American feast, complete with fried chicken, potato salad, hungry kids and ants. You'll want to serve foods that keep well and are easy to eat. Bring lots of napkins and remember to store perishable foods in a cooler so they don't spoil.

For some a great picnic recipe, take a look at Southern Cooking From Mary Mac's Tea Room (Dell Books), by Margaret Lupo. The recipes in the book are all representative of "southern cuisine, family style." The hearty dishes are sure to satisfy even the hungriest members of your family, and quite a few of them would make fine picnic fare.

Reproduced here are recipes for three traditional picnic favorites: Southern Fried Chicken, Potato Salad and Easy Brownies. All are guaranteed to please everyone from kids to grandparents.

SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN

Makes 3 to 4 servings

Cut up:
1 3-pound fryer

You will have 2 breasts, 2 thighs, 2 drumsticks, and 2 wings. Reserve the backbone and any fat to make chicken stock. You will also have the giblets.

Rinse off the chicken pieces and giblets and pat dry. Sprinkle lightly with salt and freshly ground pepper. Set aside for 15 minutes or seal in plastic bag overnight in the refrigerator.

Place in bowl:
1/2 cup buttermilk

In another bowl, prepare seasoned flour:
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground white pepper

Heat to 375° in heavy 12-inch frying pan:
1 cup lard

The temperature of the lard is very important; it should be hot enough to make a drop of water sizzle when dropped in. Dip the chicken pieces and giblets quickly into the buttermilk, then into the flour. Be sure each piece is well covered with flour. Lay out all the floured chicken pieces and floured giblets on a tray in preparation for frying.

A 12-inch frying pan should hold one fryer (8 pieces). Place the large pieces of chicken in the frying pan first and then fit the smaller pieces around them, putting aside the giblets.

Cover frying pan, reduce heat to medium, and brown all pieces well on one side, 8 to 10 minutes. Turn pieces over, add giblets, cover, and brown all pieces well again, 8 to 10 minutes.

The final step is the secret to this wonderful southern fried chicken. Add slowly and carefully to the chicken:

1/2 cup water

Return cover and steam for 5 minutes. Remove cover and turn pieces over once again to make the crust crisp. Remove chicken to warm platter.

POTATO SALAD

Makes 10 servings

Peel, dice, and boil:
6 medium Idaho potatoes

Drain and add:
1 tablespoon salt
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground white pepper
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Cool, then add:
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon plain yellow mustard
3 hard-boiled eggs, sliced
1 cup mayonnaise

Mix, taste, and reseason.
If salad does not seem moist enough, add either 2 tablespoons of cream or more mayonnaise. You may wish to add 1 tablespoon of vinegar, or 1 teaspoon of sugar, or up to 1/2 cup of pickle relish, according to your taste.

If you fix this a day ahead and leave in refrigerator, it tastes even better.

EASY BROWNIES

Makes 20 brownies

Preheat oven to 350°.
Cream together:
1 stick butter, softened
2 cups sugar

Add:
6 eggs
1 16-ounce can chocolate syrup
3 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Pour into greased and floured 9- by 13-inch baking pan and sprinkle with pecans. They will sink into the batter, and you can use as few or as many as you like.

Bake for 20 to 25 minutes, until slightly browned. Cool in pan, then cut into squares. P5896584

JUST DESSERTS

There are some people who seem to have a natural aptitude for dessert-making. This is surely a useful talent. Even if one doesn't wish to seek a job as a pastry chef in an expensive restaurant, being skillful at making desserts frequently comes in handy: A wonderful dessert can add the perfect finishing touch to a dinner party (or help to erase memories of a main course that didn't work as well as planned!) or be the star of a tea party or a dessert-and-coffee buffet.

Desserts also make great gifts, even for those people who seem to have everything, and can be wonderfully soothing presents for cranky children or adults who are feeling a bit under-the-weather for whatever reason.

Most people, however, find that dessert-making can sometimes be difficult and frustrating. Chocolate chip cookies are easily mastered, but more complicated treats never quite turn out as expected. After a few dry cakes, fallen souffles, cracked cheesecakes, lumpy mousses, chocolate that won't melt, and other disasters, it seems easier just to pick up something from the bakery than to try again.

But help is available, even for the most hopeless dessert-makers. The Dessert Lover's Cookbook, by Marlene Sorousky (Harper & Row), which was first published in 1985, is now available in paperback. Any dessert lover who doesn't already own this volume should quickly buy or borrow it, for it includes step-by-step instructions (often illustrated with color photographs) and advice on everything from basic techniques to complicated and creative embellishments.

The author carefully explains the basics that beginners have trouble with, like getting gelatin to gel and whipping cream to whip, separating egg whites from yolks, rolling pastry and melting chocolate. She describes the necessary equipment and ingredients. And, she offers specific tips for making each type of dessert featured in the book.

Sorousky, who has been a culinary instructor for more than 15 years, knows all the tricks of successful dessert-making. The Dessert Lover's Cookbook is the result of these years of experience, plus constant experimenting. In fact, the author states that some of the recipes in this volume were tested as many as 30 times!

The recipes were designed for home cooks, which means they feature ingredients which can be found in most supermarkets and can be made with readily available baking equipment.

The recipe reproduced here, for Apricot Upside-Down Ginger Cake, is sure to delight any dessert lover. The cake, says Sorousky, is "homey, old-fashioned, and amazingly easy." Because the recipe calls for canned fruit, it can be made at any time of the year, even when fresh fruit is not in season.

APRICOT UPSIDE-DOWN GINGER CAKE

- 3 tablespoons plus 4 tablespoons unsalted butter, at room temperature
- 1/3 cup golden brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 can (1 pound, 14 ounces) apricot halves, drained and patted dry on paper towels
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1 large egg, at room temperature
- 1/2 cup light molasses
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Maraschino or candied cherries cut in half for garnishing (optional)
- 1 cup lightly whipped cream OR vanilla ice cream for serving (optional)

BAKING PAN

9 x 1 1/2- or 9 x 2-inch round layer-cake pan

Preheat oven to 325°. Place 3 tablespoons butter in cake pan. Place in oven until melted. Remove pan from oven, swirl butter to coat pan, and immediately sprinkle brown sugar evenly over bottom of pan. Arrange apricot halves outside down in single layer over the brown sugar.

Beat together 4 tablespoons butter and granulated sugar in medium-size bowl with an electric mixer on high speed until creamy. Beat in egg, molasses and milk until well blended. Stir together flour, baking soda, cinnamon, ginger and salt in medium-size bowl. Beat into batter on low speed, mixing until incorporated. Spoon evenly over the apricots. The cake may be held at room temperature up to 1 hour before baking, if desired.

Bake in the 325° oven for 60 minutes or until cake tester inserted near center comes out clean. Remove from oven and immediately turn out onto serving platter. Garnish the center of each apricot with a cherry half, if desired. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired.

BUSINESS REVIEW

City Finance makes small loans

"For those sudden, unexpected cash shortages, we fill a real community need," says Debbie Walling, manager of City Finance, 206 1/2 Main Street.

Money to pay bills, take a vacation, pay for car repairs, buy new school clothes — even to pay for college books and tuition — are among the reasons people turn to City Finance, she says.

"We've had record months recently," Debbie says. "We've been sending out mailings and doing a lot of phoning to let people know we want their business."

The loan limit has recently been raised by the State of Texas to $340, Debbie says. All that is required is for the customer to fill out an application, have a permanent income and pass credit approval.

The business is state regulated, with the state setting the interest rate and payment schedule, and the state specifies that the borrower must have the means to pay back the loan. State auditors check the firm's books annually.

Another important use of a small loan is to establish credit. For example, a customer will bring in a son or daughter or friend. The borrower then makes regular payments and thus establishes a credit rating.

A LOAN FOR ALL SEASONS — In business in Big Spring for more than 30 years, City Finance specializes in small loans up to $330. The friendly staff consists of Debbie Walling, (right) manager, and Pat Cypert.

Debbie and her associate, Pat Cypert, try to provide a friendly, comfortable atmosphere that puts customers at their ease. To improve services to customers, City Finance is continuously refurbishing, and has recently added new customer service counter and newly furnished waiting area.

City Finance has been in business in Big Spring more than 30 years. Debbie has been with the firm 11 years, with Pat on the staff 6 years. Doing business in the downtown area, both Pat and Debbie are supporters of the downtown renovation now underway. "We feel that more people will be coming down and getting acquainted with us," Debbie says.

Business hours are 9:00 to 5:30 Monday through Friday (including the lunch hour) and 9:00 to noon Saturday.
