Police find body near lake

Authorities are calling the discovery of a body near the shore of Comanche Lake an "unattended death," said Police Lt. Terry Chamness earlier today.

Police found the body of "a local man approximately 50 years old" in a thicket of trees near the southeast part of the lake this morning at about 11:45, Chamness said. The man had been missing throughout the morning.

Pending notification of the man's family, Chamness said he was not at liberty to release any other information and refused to speculate whether the death might have been the result of foul play.

Violence breaks out at flag-burning rally

SEATTLE (AP) — Opponents of a ban on flag desecration set American flags on fire, and scuffles broke out at a street rally celebrating the overturning of a federal flag-protection law. Seventeen people were arrested, police said. Police said about 150 demonstrators and onlookers gathered for Tuesday night's hourlong rally at the U.S. post office. About 20 counterdemonstrators waved Old Glory, sang the national anthem and chanted, "No more burning."

Council approves truck purchase

The public works department isn't going to wait for money from its new rate increase to begin replacing equipment.

During Tuesday night's meeting, the City Council approved an $80,000 loan from the capital revolving fund to the public works department for purchase of a new sanitation service truck. According to the loan application, the department will pay 5 percent interest on the five-year loan.

Although the council recently approved a 15 percent increase in garbage collection rates to help fund, among other things, equipment purchases, Public Works Director Tom Decell said it only makes sense to take advantage of money available in the capital revolving fund, which totals $200,000.

Decell said the 1984 truck he wants to replace is worn out: The vehicle cost the city $27,500 to maintain and operate in 1989. In 1985, it took only $5,200 to maintain and operate the same truck.

"This equipment runs four days a week, 10 to 12 hours a day at low speeds, high RPMs and in the hot summertime," Decell said. "It's just good economics to replace a piece of equipment that's costing you $27,000 to operate."

The money saved in operating and maintaining a new truck — an expected $22,000 — will be used to pay back the loan from the capital revolving fund, Decell said.

Council chooses engineering firm to represent city

An engineering firm has been chosen to represent the city during wastewater permit negotiations, but the Dallas-based company didn't receive the City Council's whole-hearted support.

The council agreed on a 4-1 vote during its Tuesday night meeting to contract with GSW & Associates, a civil/environmental engineering firm with a branch office in Big Spring. Councilman Corky Harris voted against the contract, Mayor Max Green abstained and Councilman Sidney Clark was not present.

Under the terms of the $7,700 contract, GSW will negotiate with the Texas Water Commission for a new wastewater permit to take effect in January. City officials consider the negotiations vital because the stringency of the permit imposed will dictate improvements required for the wastewater treatment plant.

Harris said a more relaxed permit could save the city millions of dollars in improvements, and it is important that the city have the best firm possible representing it.

"We're not approving just a $7,700 contract," Harris said. "The quality of the work we get back affects millions of dollars."

Harris said he wanted the council "to evaluate the company doing the permit negotiations to make sure we got the best company doing that."

"Are we getting the right company for the right job?" he asked.

Harris said he doesn't necessarily object to contracting with GSW & Associates, but he said he doesn't feel the council has answered all the questions or explored all its options.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said it will be important that the city get a second opinion on the work GSW & Associates performs. Decell said a second opinion is a "good investment" on everything the city does involving the Residents invited to city discussion

By RUTH COCHRAN

Residents can learn more about the economical development corporation they approved during city elections when the first in a series of informational meetings is held Thursday.

The first meeting, sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, is set from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The meeting will be duplicated later in the day, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

In May, city voters approved a 1/2 percent sales tax increase to fund economical development in the city. The tax takes effect Oct. 1, and the City Council has begun planning for the corporation by setting up the meetings. Wayne Moore, executive director of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday's meeting focuses on what the development corporation can do, the legal ramifications, and how it is being used in other cities.

Two speakers have been invited to discuss the corporation and the legislation that created it: Joe Newman, economic development specialist for the state comptroller; and Gary Kennedy, a member of TU Electric's industrial development department in Dallas.

Moore said Newman will not be available for the evening session, but his presentation will be video

Snyder drama teacher suspended

AUSTIN (AP) — The University Interscholastic League has suspended from UIL competition for one semester a Snyder High School drama teacher whose one-act play performances have consistently won honors at the state contest.

The UIL state executive committee's vote hinged on whether it believed one-act play director Jerry Worsham had pressured algebra teacher Jamie Hall to retest a cast member who had failed algebra with a grade of 69, one point short of a passing grade.

Superintendent Bob Caster of Palestine, committee chairman, said Tuesday, "There was a feeling among members that there was some pressure thrust upon" Ms. Hall.

Worsham was suspended from competition for the fall semester, and was placed on probation for the spring semester 1991 and the 1991-92 school year.

Also by unanimous vote, the UIL committee publicly reprimanded and placed on probation for one year Snyder's one-act play program.

Bonnie Northcutt of the UIL said the proceeding was the first concerning the no-pass, no-play law to reach the executive committee

GALVESTON — The supertanker Mega Borg, continues to smoke as fire boats spray the oil located 57 miles from the coast of Galveston, carrier with water on Tuesday.

Spilled oil threatens gulf

GALVESTON (AP) — A fiery blaze on a wrecked supertanker carrying 38 million gallons of crude oil was brought under control, but fears heightened over oil spilling into the Gulf of Mexico.

"There's more oil in the water and the slick is continuing to grow but there are skimming vessels there to deal with it," Coast Guard Capt. Thomas Greene said Tuesday.

Coast Guard officials said at least 100,000 gallons of the crude has spilled since an engine-room explosion Saturday rocked the Norwegian tanker Mega Borg and crippled the vessel approximately 57 miles southeast of Galveston.

Much of the spilled oil burned, but with the fire subsiding an undetermined amount now leaked into the water, according to Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Todd Nelson.

A sheen of oil stretching approximately 13 miles long had formed. Eight salvage operation boats and three Coast Guard ships were on hand, skimming for oil and floating barriers to corral the spill.

Mexico, also sent a vessel to help in the clean up effort, the government oil monopoly Pemex said.

About 9,000 gallons of oil dispersant has been dropped on the slick by aircraft.

A thick cloud of gray smoke and because the ship's cargo is light crude, which can be easily dispersed. But environmentalists have said the oil is highly toxic and feared it would reach bays and estuaries, a prime bird breeding and shellfish harvest area.

steam surrounded the Mega Borg, replacing the balls of flame and towering columns of black smoke that had been billowing from the vessel.

Greene said that Ted Hoskins, who heads the salvage operation, boarded the ship with a crew Tuesday. Hoskins "said he would characterize the fire as under control," Greene said.

"Our latest videos we got, I can see no fire visible," Greene said, but added that there was still a fire beneath the deck.

Coast Guard officials said a disastrous spill can be avoided

Currents and winds were expected to push escaping oil toward a 200-mile stretch of coast between Freeport and Corpus Christi. But the Coast Guard said the currents also were expected to keep the spill from coming ashore.

Crews continued dousing the tanker with 10 water streams from five fireboats stationed at the sides of the tanker, and firefighters had placed another water hose on the deck, pointing it toward the burning stern.

Failed S&L assures safety to depositors

By MARC SCHWARZ
Staff Writer

It will be "business as usual" for depositors, who need not fear for the safety of their funds, say officials of an insolvent Midland savings and loan.

First Bankers Trust and Savings Association, which operates a branch office in Stanton, was declared insolvent Friday by officials of the U.S. Office of Thrift Supervision. The thrift was placed under the conservatorship of the Resolution Trust Corporation but will remain open for business, officials said.

"We're not planning on closing our doors," said Helen Thrailkill, an assistant vice-president of First Bankers and manager of the Stanton branch. "I think people are kind of used to this sort of thing happening by now, and we're one of the last to go, so we're not anticipating any great run on the bank. It will just be business as usual."

Thrailkill said the Stanton office will continue to conduct depositors' financial transactions while under RTC supervision.

A managing agent for the RTC will take charge of First Bankers and its five branches while negotiations for the sale or closure of the thrift are underway, an RTC spokeswoman said yesterday.

"The managing agent will be responsible for limiting growth, minimizing operating costs and making sure operations are conducted safely," Teresa McUsic of RTC's Dallas office said.

McUsic said that banking services to deposit and loan customers will continue, and all deposits will still be federally insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

First Bankers had $110.4 million in assets and $97 million in 10,972 deposit accounts at the time of insolvency, McUsic said.

The thrift was the last of its kind that was in existence prior to the oil bust that struck the Permian Basin in 1982. It had been financially troubled for some time, primarily due to high loan loss reserves, said Allen Dermody, a spokesman for the OTS's Dallas office.

"They had a high number of loans go bad," he said. "They also had high operating costs, which may be understandable due to that high level of poor quality loans. They didn't do a good job underwriting their loans."

Dermody also cited a negative interest rate spread and the depressed local economy as reasons for the thrift's insolvency.

First Bankers could remain under RTC supervision for up to a year, Dermody said.

"There's one thrift that's been in conservatorship since February of 1989," he said. "But if they plan to sell (First Bankers), which they probably will, they'll try to do so as soon as they can. The value of a

Texas banks back in black

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas banks are back in the black after more than four years of steady losses, while once-thriving Massachusetts institutions have become the industry's biggest money-losers. Nationally, commercial banks earned $6.2 billion in the first three months of 1990, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said Tuesday. The performance, except for a sharp earnings dip in the last half of 1989, was in line with bank profits over the past two years. But the overall performance masked dramatic turnarounds in some states.

Texas banks, which lost $42 million during the first quarter of 1989, turned a profit of $164 million in the first quarter of this year. It was their first quarter in the black since the last quarter of 1985.

Massachusetts banks went the other direction. They earned $202 million in the first quarter last year but lost $171 million in the January-March 1990 period, the worst loss of any state. The other states to post losses were New Hampshire and Rhode Island — which border Massachusetts — and Arizona.

Chapman chosen to head Baptists

(AP) — Sensitivity and understanding are two qualities the new Southern Baptist Convention president brings to the task of producing harmony in the divided denomination, members of the new president's home church say.

The Rev. Morris Chapman of Wichita Falls, a fundamentalist, on Tuesday defeated a moderate-backed candidate and was elected by a nearly 58 percent majority of the convention.

Some of the 4,000 members of First Baptist Church in Wichita Falls, where Chapman has been pastor since 1979, said they hope Chapman will start mending fences at the Convention the same way he helped mend lives when he came to First Baptist.

Chapman defeated the Rev. Daniel Vestal of the Atlanta suburb of Dunwoody, by a vote of 21,471 to 15,753. His election solidified conservative control of the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Chapman's election capped a long struggle between moderates and fundamentalists, whose prolonged holding of the office has entrenched their administrative sway throughout the 14.9-million-member denomination.

Firm ordered to add precautions

AUSTWELL, Texas (AP) — A threat of a lawsuit has caused the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to demand that a Houston-based company add more safety precautions before drilling an exploratory oil well within a quarter-mile of the winter home of the endangered whooping cranes.

A biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said Tuesday that he wrote corps stating the service's concerns about the proposed project and requested consultation.

The proposed oil well, by RSE Inc., is to be drilled in a marsh contiguous to marshland on the Aransas refuge known as Heron Flats. In recent winters, endangered whooping cranes have used the Heron Flats area for feeding, resting and shelter.

Johnny French, a senior staff biologist with Fish and Wildlife, said that after the corps notified his service and Wildlife that it did not believe informal consultation was necessary, the National Audubon Society threatened to sue the corps alleging violations of the Endangered Species Act.

Shrimpers fear crop may be lost to spill

FREEMONT (AP) — A baby shrimp crop along the Texas coast worth millions of dollars could be lost if oil leaked from a crippled tanker in the Gulf of Mexico reaches the shore, shrimping officials said.

"We are talking about a $40 million industry being completely wiped out," said Ned Baron, owner and operator of a shrimp boat fleet.

"All the shrimp comes through the bays south of Galveston. Those bays are full of baby shrimp right now. If the oil gets into those bays, it will wipe everything out," Baron said.

Coast Guard officials said Tuesday they gained control of the fire on the Mega Borg, but refused to rule out the possibility of a major spill should something go awry in the firefighting or cleanup. The Mega Borg has leaked more than 100,000 gallons of light crude oil, most of which has burned off, officials said.

As a brown oil slick 15 miles long crept toward the shore, shrimpers and fishermen voiced mixed feelings about sharing the Gulf with the oil industry.

"We get fined up to $5,000 if we release a sheen of oil into the Gulf," said a commercial fisherman who asked not to be identified. "There is so much oil released into the Gulf from the industry, including spills we never hear about. I get tired of pulling up my nets and having them dripping with tar and oil."

Jan Harper, president of B&H Seafood, a Freeport-based shrimp processing company, said the oil industry's predominant presence in the gulf forces shrimpers to cope with the disasters.

"We couldn't knock heads with the petroleum industry," he said. "We don't like some of the problems they create for us, but we understand the necessity of their industry. It would be nice, however, to see some more regulations and safeguards."

Harper said the oil spill, coupled with recent federal regulations and increasing competition from imports, may cripple the industry.

"Shrimpers are not in the position to lose any product," Harper said. "With all the adverse effects that have been impacting the shrimpers recently, this spill could be a big blow. All indications were that this was going to be a good season, but we may have to throw that out the window."

The shrimping season traditionally begins in July.

The shrimp are nesting now and about to emerge from shallow water bays. The fears are that the oil could reach the shore and kill the shrimp in their juvenile stages. Wright Gore, president of Western Seafood, a company which operates a fleet of shrimping trawlers, said consumers should not worry about the oil affecting the quality of the shrimp crop.

Rap album banned from stores

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Record store managers yanked a controversial album by the rap group 2 Live Crew from their shelves as police scoured the city warning that the album's lyrics are obscene.

"We're merely making the record store owners and operators aware of the fact that we feel that this is obscene, and we're asking for voluntary compliance," San Antonio Police Chief William O. Gibson said.

Detectives set out Tuesday to notify 84 stores that sell records that the lyrics of the million-selling album "As Nasty As They Wanna Be" are obscene, said police vice squad commander Lt. Jerry Pittman.

Stores have about five days to remove the albums before possibly facing obscenity charges for selling them, he said. The Texas obscenity law requires that a defendant be aware material is obscene in order to be convicted of selling it, Pittman said.

Some record store managers and workers said they were asked by police to sign a statement saying they had been warned the lyrics are obscene.

"We've been ordered to pull them off the shelves and return them and that it's illegal for us to sell them," said Greta Colbin, manager at a Hastings Records and Tapes store. "The vice squad came into my store earlier and ordered me to do so."

Ms. Colbin, who was asked to sign a police statement about the lyrics, said the stores in her chain have a rating policy prohibiting anyone under 18 from buying "R" rated albums. But that didn't seem to matter to the officers, she said.

"It's censorship, and they're starting it," she said. "It's a violation of our rights."

Pittman said Bexar County assistant district attorney Mike Schill reviewed transcripts of the album lyrics and listened to them on tape before determining some of the words violate the state's obscenity law.

Schill, in a telephone interview, would only say that the lyrics could violate the law and that he agrees with a Florida judge's ruling last week that the words are obscene.

In a letter Schill wrote to Pittman May 29, he said that he became convinced the songs were obscene after reviewing the tunes "Put Her In the Buck" and "Me So Horny." But Schill wrote that his office would not issue a letter telling merchants to remove the album.

"We believe that such action might be considered 'prior restraint' and unconstitutional by the appellate courts," the letter stated. "I have my opinion, but my opinion doesn't count — it's what the jury or the judge think," Schill said in the telephone interview.

Schill said he would individually evaluate each case police bring to him for prosecution. Gibson said the district attorney's office has agreed to prosecute cases resulting from citizen complaints.

Complaints from local anti-pornography groups sparked the police action, Pittman and Gibson said. Pittman said the album describes "deviant sexual intercourse" and "is inundated with obscene language."

"We're getting compliance," Pittman said of the request that albums be removed from store shelves.

Pittman said he had hoped to keep the police action out of the limelight at first because publicity might boost sales.

Gibson said police are not removing the albums themselves.

In Florida last week a federal judge ruled that material on the 2 Live Crew album was obscene, and two members of the band were arrested on obscenity charges after performing the material at a concert.

The rap group's attorney said he filed an appeal Monday with the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

Restaurateur made popular West Texas burgers

MIDLAND (AP) — Bob Wallace remembers the first, and the best, hamburger he ever ate.

Hamburgers were a nickel a piece back then — 50 years ago. He was a hungry farm boy who had hitched a ride to town to watch a military parade.

"I had a dime. That's all the money I had," recalled Wallace. "My mama gave me that." His school buddy Harve Turnbow, who hitchhiked with him to Abilene that day, only had a nickel.

After the excitement of the parade was over, they really started getting hungry. Wallace spotted a hamburger joint. Turnbow was too bashful to ask for a nickel hamburger, but Wallace was hungry enough to step forward.

"We ... ol' farm boys like to eat," reflected Wallace. Se, he "took my dime and his nickel over there and got two hamburgers." They ate on a dime. "That's the best hamburger I ever ate," said Wallace, who certainly has made far more hamburgers than he could ever eat.

Robert Edward Wallace, ne's the Bob behind Bob's Better Burger, which is a hamburger legend to many West Texans who savor the taste of beef grilled 1950s style. The place is a drive-in hamburger stand. Inside is strictly for storing food, cooking, wrapping and serving through sliding windows. It's an all-American food factory: burgers, french fries, dogs — chili and corn — onion rings, steak — and other savory belly-filling things associated with grease and calories. And milk shakes, soft drinks and tea. No frills.

Outside, the place looks like it belongs to the 1950s and, in fact, that's when Wallace got into the hamburger business in Midland.

Bob's place draws a crowd six days a week — never on Sunday — even in these days of hamburger chains and sales gimmicks.

Bob's place is embraced by neon straight out of the 1940s and '50s. Otherwise, it's pretty austere — store-front glass and sandy stucco with bright-red trimming — and strictly utilitarian. Nothing fancy.

There are no car hops. Never were. You walk up to the window, make your desires known, take a numbered ticket and exchange cash for food. A large Bob's burger is $1.50.

And as good as they were, there are no nickel burgers left like the ones Wallace and Turnbow ate that day in 1940 or 1941.

They each ate 1 1/2 hamburgers. After Wallace spent that dime for two hamburgers, the duo still had a nickel left over. They were still hungry after watching "all the soldiers march."

So he and Turnbow got another hamburger and cut it half.

Fifty years later, Turnbow, who is an administrator for an oilfield firm in Midland, isn't convinced those nickel hamburgers were the best ever.

"It would be better when you was hungry," he says.

Like Wallace, Turnbow still eats hamburgers, especially Bob's. "As far as I am concerned, they are the best in town."

For Robert Payne, it's "just hard to do without" a Bob's hamburger. He would even recommend a Bob's Better Burger to the President were George Bush to return to Midland.

"I've been eating them all of my life," said Payne, 39. In elementary school, he would "sneak over" for a hamburger.

Wallace and Turnbow grew up in the Bradshaw community, on the rolling plains south of Abilene.

California city tops in heartburn

NEW YORK (AP) — A study of what's eating Americans has crowned Eureka, Calif., today as the nation's heartburn capital. The National Roloids Heartburn Index blames that searing sensation on sociology, not spices. It says Eureka is full of newcomers with a burning desire for economic success. El Paso was named the most heartburn-free city in America, despite its Tex-Mex cuisine. The reason: a stable population and a rebounding economy.

Or "maybe they're stoics," said Jack Levin, sociology professor at Northeast University in Boston. However, his heartfelt study points to other factors. "I think there is a tendency on the part of Americans to blame heartburn on spicy foods — Mexican or Szechuan, for example," said Levin. "From a sociological standpoint, it appears heartburn levels can be easily linked to the amount of population growth that a city is experiencing."

Major military layoffs a possibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says significant cuts in President Bush's 1991 defense budget could force him to discharge more than 100,000 military personnel than already planned. Facing growing congressional opposition to Bush's $303.3 billion defense spending plan, Cheney told a Senate panel Tuesday that proposed reductions of more than $8 billion would cause "great violence to our most important military asset — our men and women."

He estimated that if Congress adopts budget totals passed by the House on May 1, he would be forced to discharge 140,000 of the 2.1 million men and women now in uniform, about 103,000 more than in the current defense plan. "The only place we can get those kinds of savings quickly in fiscal 1991 is our manpower," Cheney said. "There's no other place to go. We'd have to run a lot of people off, throw people on the street, freeze promotions."

Kidnappers want pesos, not dollars

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — South American guerrillas holding an American hostage rejected the $60,000 ransom payment because they want it in Colombian pesos, not dollars, his family says. They also are doubting the family's plea of poverty. Heavy rains also have contributed to delays in obtaining the release of Scott Heimdal, and negotiators must now wait a few days while the ransom is changed into pesos and the weather cooperates, Heimdal's family says. Heimdal's mother, Marge Heimdal, said Tuesday a new date has been set for another jungle meeting along the Colombia-Ecuador border with a go-between and the guerrillas. She would not disclose the date for security reasons. Roy Heimdal, the man's father, said the kidnappers are doubting the family's claims of poverty after seeing TV coverage of their efforts last week to raise the ransom. "They saw pictures of our house," Heimdal said of the modest, wood-frame bungalow. "Our house is no mansion. But by their standards it is. I guess they figure anyone who eats three square meals a day has $60,000 laying around." Scott Heimdal, a 27-year-old employee of an American gold mining company, was abducted while working in Ecuador on April 28. He was believed to have been taken hostage by guerrillas of the Popular Liberation Army. The kidnappers initially demanded $1.2 million but lowered the figure, and the money was raised by donations that poured in to the Heimdals, including waitresses' tips and proceeds from nursing-home bake sales.

WASHINGTON — President Bush, with Carol Vander Jagt, wife of Rep. Guy Vander Jagt., R-Mich., and Howard Baker, former senator from Tennessee, applauded the entertainment at a Republican fundraiser in Washington Tuesday night. The entertainment sang a special happy birthday song to Bush who celebrates his 65th birthday June 19.

Gorbachev discusses secessions, Germany

MOSCOW (AP) — Faced with a splintering empire, Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev is proposing to counter secessionist drives by transforming the Soviet Union into a looser federation of sovereign states, officials say. The Soviet leader has also significantly softened his position on German reunification, saying a united Germany could be an "associate member" of the NATO alliance while at the same time joining a new pan-European security order. He did not define exactly what "associate membership" would entail, but the Kremlin up to now has opposed a new Germany whose sole military allegiance is to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Gorbachev made his proposal about the Soviet republics on Tuesday, the same day the parliament of the huge Russian republic approved a resolution declaring its laws to carry more weight than federal statutes. Also Tuesday, Gorbachev met with the presidents of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia after refusing for weeks to negotiate with the secessionist Baltic republics unless they agreed to abide by the Soviet constitution. President Vytautas Landsbergis of Lithuania hinted that the Kremlin might soon end the economic embargo imposed on his republic. Soviet Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov, who attended the session, said today that it produced definite progress on the impasse over the Baltic states' independence declarations. He said if the Baltic republics went ahead and accepted the Kremlin proposal that they suspend their independence moves and begin negotiations, "great possibilities for future talks will be opened." Ryzhkov was scheduled to meet today with Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene to discuss "practical steps" toward better relations, he said. Ryzhkov said he was confident that "the Lithuanian question is finally getting off the ground." Gorbachev met with the Baltic presidents after a session with the Federation Council.

Police clear square of protesters

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Hundreds of club-wielding police broke up a nearly two-month sit-in before dawn today, arresting more than 260 people as they cleared a central square of anti-Communist protesters. A photojournalist said several dozen protesters were beaten. The police took about 20 hunger strikers, some of whom had gone without food for a month, to the hospital. The hunger strikers had been camped in a small tent city in University Square, protesting what they consider the Communist domination of the National Salvation Front, which has been in power since the December revolution. A government communique hours after the crackdown said 263 people were detained for investigation. It accused protesters of attempting to resist the police with violence and said some arms were confiscated.

Boat people give skeletons to police

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Nine Vietnamese boat people have given police the skeletons of 30 people, stuffed in seven barrels, that they claim were from Americans killed in the Vietnam War, officials said today. Paul Blakeburn, charge d'affaires at the U.S. Embassy, said he doubted the bones were those of Americans missing in action. "It is possible, but it is not likely to be true." Embassy press officer Meg Gilroy said Malaysian authorities would hand the bones over to the embassy soon. She said an official from either the Joint Casualty Resolution Center in Bangkok, Thailand, or the U.S. Defense Department Forensic Laboratory in Hawaii would take them to Hawaii for tests to determine if they belong to U.S. troops. She said the embassy did not know yet how the Vietnamese obtained the bones, which Malaysian officials said had been handed over to police in the Kota Tinggi district, 150 miles south of Kuala Lumpur. The Kota Tinggi police station, contacted by telephone, said some Vietnamese had landed Monday with skeletons at a beach 40 miles to the east but could not provide further details.

Protesters block downtown traffic

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Several hundred demonstrators blocked a main intersection today to protest the apparent victory of the heirs to the long-ruling Communists in Bulgaria's first free elections in 58 years. The protesters formed barricades with benches, blocking traffic at the Eagle's Bridge intersection. Demonstrators had blocked the same intersection for several hours Tuesday night, some threatening drivers who did not honk their horns. Honking has become been a common expression of protest over the past few days against the Socialist Party, known until April as the Communist Party. Results coming into the Central Electoral Commission from Sunday's first round of voting bolstered projections giving the Socialists a commanding lead over the main opposition alliance.

Give us a pair of those slim genes

For those who have dieted and lost 15 pounds and then regained 20, for those who have struggled vainly to keep up with Jane Fonda only to wind up with a sprained ankle instead of a perfect body, researchers have some reassuring news. It's not your fault.

Blame obesity on your genes, not on your Big Mac attacks. The accusing tone of "you are what you eat" is giving way to the more fatalistic belief that "you are what you are."

The latest proof that heredity shapes our bodies, if not our destinies, comes from two recent studies on identical twins.

The more intriguing study took place at Canada's Laval University, where researchers under the direction of Dr. Claude Bouchard cloistered a dozen pairs of male twins for 120 days and overfed them. The brothers put on about the same amount of weight and in the same places. But the weight gain among the pairs varied enormously, from nine pounds to 29 pounds. The bodies of some, it seems, converted more of the calories to muscle than to flab.

Of course, the investigation doesn't necessarily mean that people whose bodies store energy "efficiently" — as the researchers tactfully put it — can resign themselves to lives as plump couch potatoes. Obesity is still a health hazard to be combatted, even if it is harder for some people to shed those extra pounds.

It doesn't seem fair that some can indulge their every culinary whim and stay thin. But at least the new findings should serve as an antidote to the guilt and stress of that latest diet fiasco.

Now that obesity is coming to be seen as a heredity disorder rather than the curse of gluttony, perhaps scientists one day will find a cure.

As you dip into your next hot fudge sundae, imagine that time in the future when doctors can solve the problem with a lean-gene transplant.

A matter of time

At the Greenwich Observatory in England, there are two brass lines set in concrete in the ground. One is the Greenwich Meridian, the prime meridian, the zero point from which all the earth's longitudinal divisions are measured. The other, a few feet away, marks where the observatory mistakenly used to think the prime meridian was.

We were reminded of this by the recent publication in Nature, the British scientific journal, of a study suggesting that carbon-dating, the method scientists have relied on for more than a generation to determine the age of the oldest once-living things on earth, may not be accurate. Indeed, the older the object dated, the more inaccurate the carbon method seems to be. For a piece of coral 20,000 years old or so, which researchers retested using new methods, carbon-dating was apparently off by about 3,500 years.

That's not an insignificant error. Looked at one way, it's the equivalent of mistaking a 56-year-old for 65, something neither the person in question nor the Social Security Administration would probably take lightly. But looked at another way, how seriously would one be misled if a great-great-great-grandparent were misidentified as great-great-great-great-great?

There's no record of ships being lost at sea because of the Greenwich measuring error; nor should this new mistake, if it is a mistake, cause anyone to reconsider which came first, the dinosaur or the lap dog.

It should serve, rather, as a reminder of how imprecise some of our high-tech notions of precision really are — and of the many instances in which that doesn't matter at all. In counterpoint to those pedants and bureaucrats too bemused by test scores to socioeconomic indicators figured out to the nth place, it's good to recognize that sometimes "long ago" and "far away" are all one really needs to know.

Reach out and hit someone

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
I used to understand telephones.

That's when you simply picked up the phone and when an operator answered, you said, "Ethel, get me the sheriff's office. I'm fine. How 'bout you? I'm sorry to hear that. I always thought a lot of Raymond."

But back then there was only one telephone company that I knew of. Then, the government got involved and now there are Lord knows how many companies trying to get your long distance business.

I can handle my telephone at home. I have AT&T. That's because that's what I had when all the new phone services began popping up, and I wouldn't have known how to change over anyway. Besides, I trust Cliff Robertson.

But I was in a hotel recently, and I needed to make a long distance credit card call.

I punched "8" then "0" and the number I was calling. When I heard the customary tone, I punched in my credit card number.

But every time I did that, I would hear a recording that said, "Your call cannot go through. Your credit card is invalid."

In a pig's eye, my credit card was invalid. I called the hotel operator and explained my dilemma.

"Is your credit card AT&T?" she asked.

"Yes," I answered. "We don't have AT&T in the hotel," she said. "We have HT&T."

"What's that?" "Harvey's Telephone and Telegraph." Harvey's the manager's first cousin.

In order to make my call, the operator had to find Harvey, who signalled a satellite somewhere and found me an AT&T operator. I had to give her all my numbers, about 30 of them, and I finally got my call through after 45 minutes of trying.

I was at a friend's business. I asked if I could make a long distance call.

"Sure," he said. "We have ST&T."

"What's that?"

"Shorty's Telephone and Telegraph. Shorty's my wife's youngest brother. You have to punch '1,' '0,' listen for the tone, and then punch in the score of the last Super Bowl and an operator will come on the line and assist you."

I decided to wait until I got home to make my call. Yet another time, I was waiting in my lawyer's office. I asked his secretary if I could make a long distance call.

I said, "What long distance service do you have?" She said, "ET&T. Ethel's Telephone and Telegraph."

It couldn't be. I punched in the number of ex-wives I've had, and the average monthly alimony payment they required. An operator came on the line. I identified myself and asked, "Ethel is that you?" It was Ethel.

"How did you wind up with your own telephone company?"

"After Raymond got hit by the truck," she explained, "I decided to go into business for myself. So I opened my own long distance service."

"Great," I said. "Can you get me the sheriff's office?"

"You can call him yourself," she said. "Punch in Joe Friday's badge number on 'Dragnet,' sing 'dum-da-dum-dum,' and an operator will be on the line to assist you."

"Thanks, Ethel," I said. "And thank you," she said back, "for using ET&T."

The crime bill: striking poses

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

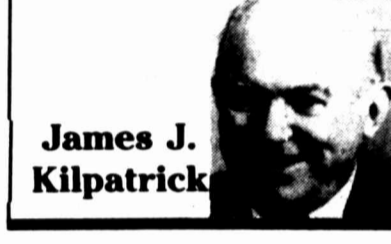

WASHINGTON — In considering the anti-crime bill now pending in the Senate, it is tempting to paraphrase Ecclesiastes. Politics of politics, said the Preacher, all is politics.

In this election year it is politically advantageous to be in favor of (1) the death penalty, (2) reform of habeas corpus proceedings and (3) liberalization of the exclusionary rule. By the same token, it is useful to be against (1) assault weapons, (2) money laundering and (3) organized crime.

The 73-page bill is not a bad bill; it is just an overblown bill. One is reminded of the little old lady in the presidential campaign of 1984. She looked at a shrunken hamburger and demanded to know, "Where's the beef?" In this bill there is remarkably little beef to be seen.

In its first section, the bill would extend the death penalty to several federal crimes, such as murder committed by a lifer in a federal prison. The provision might be a deterrent — no one can say — but given the long list of "mitigating circumstances" that a sentencing jury must consider, capital punishment rarely would be ordered. The primary purpose of this section is to give members a chance to show how exceedingly tough they are.

The second section is intended to shorten the endless delays that now accompany imposition of a death sentence. By filing repeated appeals and petitions for a writ of habeas corpus, an inmate on Death Row can now avoid execution for 10 to 15 years. Under the pending bill, the time frame would be greatly shortened, but prisoners would be guaranteed the assistance of experienced counsel in pursuing their appeals.

Title III of the bill is altogether sound and desirable. It deals with the judge-made rule by which relevant evidence may be excluded at trial if the evidence has been obtained without perfect obedience to the Fourth Amendment. The section would order such evidence admitted "if the search or seizure was carried out in reasonable reliance on a warrant issued by a detached and neutral magistrate ultimately found to be invalid."

This may sound highly technical, but in an astonishing number of criminal cases the exclusionary rule results in a judicial travesty. Patently guilty defendants go free. The hard work of police officers goes for nothing. If the omnibus bill contained only this third section, it would justify overwhelming approval.

The fourth section has excited the most passion. As a tool for fighting crime it is the least important. Here Congress would prohibit the transfer or possession of nine specified "assault weapons," beginning with the Kalashnikovs and the Uzis and extending to a fearsome firearm known as "Street Sweeper and Striker 12."

Ho hum. Just before the Memorial Day recess, the Senate tied itself in parliamentary knots over Title IV. The Senate's rule is to allocate proponents and opponents equal time for debate. On this question the factions had equal time for bombast. Proponents of the ban argued that no law-abiding citizen really needs a Uzi semiautomatic weapon, and this is true. Opponents contended that the ban would not affect criminals or maniacs who can readily obtain the forbidden weapons, and this is equally true.

Well, said proponents, the ban might help a little bit. Yes, said opponents, but that little bit would put Congress on a slippery slope toward banning the kind of semiautomatic guns that sportsmen have been using for a hundred years. On winds of hot air, Title IV narrowly survived parliamentary assault. The ban remains in the bill. This observer could not possibly care less.

The remaining two titles arouse less cosmic emotion. Title V would direct a study of ways to imprint an electronic coding device upon currency. The idea is to make it more difficult for the lords of organized crime to transfer great bundles of $100 bills. Title VI would reorganize the bureaucracy of the Department of Justice to create a new Organized Crime and Dangerous Drugs Division with its very own assistant attorney general.

There you have the package. If the bill becomes law, it will benefit honest cops on the one hand and overburdened federal judges on another. The ban on assault weapons could result in additional makeweight charges in some cases. On the whole, the bill would mainly serve the manly pretensions of politicians who want to be perceived as Tough on Crime! So do we all, so do we all.

Garage sale ads should be limited

To the editor: Thanks for the Garage Sale section. People on limited budgets can buy items unattainable to them at new merchandise prices. Since some ads in that section are established second-hand stores, rather than garage sales, you need to place those ads in "Misc. For Sale" or "Business Directory". I, as well as friends and relatives have wasted time, energy and car gas going to 2207 Scurry, 3417 West Hwy. 80 and LL Trading Post 2 miles Andrews Hwy. They do not offer a price range comparable with actual garage sales. These stores listed under garage sales is very misleading, which needs to be corrected.

Scientists find old reference to supernova

AUSTIN (AP) — A centuries-old painting on a burial bowl by New Mexico Indians is one of only a few historic references to the creation more than 900 years ago of the Crab Nebula, University of Texas astronomers announced Tuesday.

On the morning of July 5, 1054, the Mimbres Indians of southwestern New Mexico saw a bright new object in the eastern sky. Villagers from Galaz later commemorated the stellar object by painting it on an 18-centimeter bowl, said astronomers Ralph Robbins and Russell Westmoreland.

Although the burial bowl was unearthed in an archaeological dig in the 1930s, researchers didn't understand the significance of the painted images the astronomers UT pieced together evidence that the images represent an astronomical record, the university said.

Robbins said the discovery is of both astronomical and archaeological importance.

"The bowl provides us with the best supported historic record from the western hemisphere of the supernova that created the Crab Nebula, and it also goes far in telling us about the sophistication of a group of Southwestern Indians," Robbins said.

"In fact, the bowl is the most certain record of the supernova that has ever been discovered outside China and Japan," he said.

Supernovae are dying stars that explode and eject stellar matter violently in all directions.

The star that created the Crab Nebula was in the constellation Taurus. The nebula is invisible today to the naked eye but appears through a telescope as a milky, globular mass of light in the eastern area of the constellation near the star Zeta Tauri, the astronomers said.

The UT astronomers said the painting included a reference to the 23 days in which the Crab supernova was visible during daylight hours and placed it in the proper general location relative to the moon on the morning of July 5, 1054.

The Indians were consistent observers of the moon, Robbins said, and an examination of several bowl paintings indicates "that they possessed a systematized knowledge of naked-eye astronomy."

Robbins said that not a single European document mentions the 1054 supernova, although the phenomenon would have been clearly visible throughout Europe.

Historians know from Chinese documents that the supernova was visible in the daytime for 23 days because court astrologers made careful observations of stellar phenomena for the emperor's benefit.

Before Robbins and Westmoreland conducted their investigations of the Mimbres, archaeologists had dated the Galaz find in the 11th century.

The village seems to have been abandoned about 1130, Robbins said, most likely because of increased economic competition from the Casas Grandes Indians of Mexico.

The Mimbres people were active in trade but don't appear to have exchanged the burial bowls with other cultures, the scientists said.

The fact that bowls of astronomical significance were found in only two locations in the Galaz village could suggest that official astronomers, or calendar priests, lived there, Robbins said.

Although the researchers have made several astronomical connections, they said the work is difficult and sometimes speculative because the Mimbres left no written language, are extinct and cannot be reliably connected to Southwestern folklore tradition.

Performing arts left out of summit events

HOUSTON (AP) — Look for barbecue and broncos rather than Beethoven and ballet when the leaders of the seven major economic powers meet in Houston in July, and that has leaders of the city's arts community feeling snubbed.

"The astounding fact is that there will be no sign at the summit of our performing arts," David Gockley, general director of the Houston Grand Opera, says. "We find this shocking."

President and Mrs. Bush will host the annual international economic summit July 9-11 in the city they call home and are to kick off the affair the night of July 8 with a rodeo, barbecue and Grand Ol' Opry entertainment at the Astrodome.

Gary Dunning, executive director of the Houston Ballet, calls the situation disheartening.

"We have seen this as an opportunity to send a message to the nation and to the world about what we're doing," he says. "Now, it seems, no one will know that we are here. We can't have the city's image be barbecue and rodeo. I have nothing against rodeos, but ..."

"If the summit were in Russia, the emphasis would be on ballet," added Ben Stevenson, the ballet's artistic director. "If it were in Italy, it would be opera. But in Texas, we conjure up rodeo and barbecue. Sad."

Houston, New York and San Francisco are the only American cities to have a full scale symphony, opera and ballet.

Homer Luther, director of events for the summit, said there was no intent to skip important sides of Houston life. He notes the heads of state of Great Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan and West Germany will be in town only about 2 1/2 days and that some of the dinners will be at museum while the meetings will be at Rice University.

"I'm proud of our arts groups," he said. "It's just unfortunate that it didn't work out that they could be seen."

He added that even though the Johnson Space Center is in the Houston area, it also was excluded from the summit itinerary.

Witnesses still paid in 1846 dollars

DALLAS (AP) — A dollar won't buy what it used to — and it sure doesn't have the power it had in 1846. But that's the amount Texas lawyers still have to pay witnesses who appear in civil trials.

The state's first Legislature enacted the law requiring lawyers to pay subpoenaed witnesses in 1846, when a buck bought $14.29 worth of goods in today's money.

The law — so old that reference librarians in Austin could not find the original bill in their records, according to Monday's Dallas Times Herald — applies only to civil trials in state courts.

If you're summoned to court tomorrow to testify in a lawsuit in state court, you'll still find a $1 bill attached to your subpoena.

state court, you'll still find a $1 bill — much humbled by time and inflation — attached to your subpoena.

Witnesses are "just so glad to get it they just stuff it in their pockets," joked longtime constable Forrest Keene, whose reserve constables serve the subpoenas in Dallas County.

"Course, all it will buy is a cup of coffee. You can't even buy a roll to go with it," Keene said.

But some lawyers complain that the dollars add up.

"We feel very abused that we have to give up a dollar bill to put on subpoenas," lawyer Frank Jackson grouched, with a chuckle.

Don't eat the art

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Please don't eat the art exhibit.

Museum-goers may feel like kids in a candy store when viewing an exhibit on the history of using sugar, chocolate and other sweets to create works of art.

Highlights of the show at the California Museum of Science and Industry are a jelly-bean rendition of the Statue of Liberty, a house of chocolate chip cookies and a chocolate bust of Albert Einstein.

On display are "more than 200 culinary masterpieces," curators said.

"It's not a superscientific exhibit, but it's kind of frothy for summer," museum spokeswoman Sue Glad said.

"The Confectioner's Art" exhibit opened Monday for an eight-week run.

Dear Neighbor/Friend:

Once in a while, we do something special to show those we love how much we care. Special favors, kind words and thoughts that express our feelings. And now, you can do one more thing to let your family know how important they are to you. Preplanning and prefinancing your funeral service is just another way of letting family members know their future means a lot to you.

There are many benefits to preplanning funeral services. More and more people are discovering the advantages of preplanning and why it's so important. Here are just a few of the benefits.

- Eliminates emotional stress of making decisions during a difficult time.
- Provides a written guide of your individual requests, so your funeral service will reflect your personality.
- Prepaying for services today will equalize the effects of inflation.

Preplanning is easy. Our caring, professional staff at Nalley-Pickle & Welch will be glad to sit down with you and discuss different options. We'll show you how preplanning today will assist your family tomorrow. We'll explain all the details to let you decide what's right for you and then help you record your choices.

If you would like more information, call us at Nalley-Pickle & Welch or mail in the enclosed card. We'll send you more information about preplanning and prefinancing your funeral services at no cost or obligation to you.

Sincerely,
Tommy L. Welch

Woman detours memory lane

DEAR ABBY: In response to Leonard Portzline's letter urging people to respond to invitations to class reunions, did it ever occur to him that perhaps those who did not respond do not wish to be included?

Now that I am a successful businesswoman, married to a wealthy professional, I am bombarded with invitations from former classmates. When we were in high school, I would have given anything to be included in the "in" group, but I was snubbed. Believe me, it hurt.

The shoe is on the other foot now, and I cheerfully toss all their correspondence into the trash. Sign me — IT'S MY TURN IN L.A.

DEAR MY TURN: You belong to a very large club — of which I am a member. I, too, was snubbed by the "in" group in high school — and you're right, it did hurt. But I put my hurt aside and went back for my 50th reunion, and a lot of bitter memories were put to rest. Try it, you'll like it.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the letter from "Mrs. W.W. in New York" who wanted to be buried in a beautiful nightgown, but her children had misgivings about carrying out her wishes. (They feared it would be too revealing.)

Dear Abby

Thank you for reassuring her, Abby. Let me tell you about my wonderful mother: She took me into her bedroom several years before she died, and showed me a beautiful soft pink negligee. She told me that she wanted to be buried in it. (One of my brothers had given it to her as a Mother's Day gift.)

Abby, she died at 89, and was buried in her soft pink negligee with her eyeglasses on and an open Bible in her hands, as if she had fallen asleep reading it. She looked so radiant and peaceful. I am proud to say that we carried out her wishes. HER DAUGHTER, MARGARET

DEAR MARGARET: Many others wrote to say that sleeping attire seemed to be the most appropriate kind of dress for burial. (When in doubt, ask the mortician.) Thank you for the Bible idea, Margaret.

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to the woman whose daughter is going to wear her wedding gown and now wonders whose gown it will be after the wedding.

My wedding gown has been worn 15 times. I wore it first when I was married in Seattle.

After that, it's been to California twice, South Africa once, and in Seattle 11 times. Never has there been any question about who it belongs to. It's mine, and will be mine until the day I die — MRS. E. NIKSICH JR., SEATTLE

DEAR MRS. NIKSICH: A wedding gown that has been down the aisle 15 times must have set some kind of record. (Readers?)

Is your social life in a slump? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Food

Add sizzle to summer meals with Spicy Black Bean and Corn Salad. A bright mix of black beans, crunchy, colorful vegetables and Monterey Jack cheese, it takes its lively, garden-fresh flavor and tongue-tickling jalapeno "punch" from PACE picante sauce in the cook's choice of milk, medium or hot.

SPICY BLACK BEAN AND CORN SALAD

- 1 can (16 ounces) black beans, rinsed and drained
- 4 ounces Monterey Jack cheese, cut into 1/4-inch dice
- 1 can (8 ounces) whole kernel corn, drained
- 3/4 cup sliced green onions with tops
- 3/4 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1 small red bell pepper, diced
- 3/4 cup picante sauce
- 2 tablespoons olive oil

- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 clove garlic, minced

Combine beans, cheese, corn, green onions, celery and red pepper in large bowl. Combine picante sauce, oil, lemon juice, cumin and garlic; mix well. Toss with bean mixture. Chill, if desired. Serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 8 servings, about 5 cups salad.

FREEPORT — Wanda and Ray Penney won't be buying tomatoes from the grocery store this summer. The couple has harvested 400 pounds of tomatoes from their garden so far this year.

Gardening

Couple has ideas about tomatoes

By LISA HESKETH
The Brazosport Facts

FREEPORT — When The Farmer's Almanac says it's time to plant, Ray Penney heads for the garden.

This year, he planted his tomato crop Feb. 25, the day the Almanac recommended for above-ground crops.

So far, he and wife, Wanda, have harvested more than 400 pounds of tomatoes, with more to come. They're trying to beat last year's 900-pound harvest.

"He has had the best results by planting by the almanac," says Wanda.

In 1983, Ray retired as a structural steel ironworker and decided to spend his days quite differently he chose to take up gardening as a hobby.

Ray and Wanda, who've been married 36 years, have spent many a summer day canning tomatoes from their backyard garden.

In the first year of his retirement, Ray started his new hobby with a small garden plot which has gotten bigger every year. Now, he says, he can't go any farther.

"I got my lot filled up," he says. Last year, Ray and Wanda canned more than 450 jars of tomatoes from their 900-pound crop.

From the time the tomatoes are picked to the time they are canned, Ray and Wanda handle each one about five times. The tomatoes are picked, weighed, set out to ripen, put in the refrigerator, then finally canned.

Ray picks the tomatoes in the mornings and evenings each day, which sometimes total up to 65 pounds. He stresses that they need to be picked before they're completely ripe.

"If you let the tomatoes ripen on the vine, the birds will eat them," he says. "When they turn pink is when you should get them." Ray distracts birds by planting sunflowers and using the seeds to feed the birds.

Ray and Wanda also plant a fall garden, which consists of broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, carrots, beets and lettuce.

Besides tomatoes, their summer garden yields cucumbers, potatoes and onions.

Ray attributes his gardening success to Miracle Gro brand fertilizer and the compost they also use as fertilizer. All their leftovers and tomato skins are put back in the ground and tilled.

"It goes back in the ground and deteriorates," Wanda says. "I think it has a whole lot to do with gardening. It's sort of like replenishing the ground."

Ray also subscribes to several organic magazines, plants strictly by The Farmer's Almanac and has learned much of what he knows by trial and error.

"It didn't come to me overnight," says Ray. "You learn from one year to the next."

What do Ray and Wanda do with so many tomatoes?

"We use them, and we share them with our family mostly and friends at the church," says Wanda. "A lot of our friends are getting real elderly, and they can't get out and garden like they used to, and so we try to share with them whatever we've got."

Wanda says she can remember watching her mother can vegetables when she was young.

"I never, ever thought I would be somebody that would get in to canning," she says. "I didn't think I had the patience to do it."

Ray and Wanda recommend the following precautions when canning tomatoes:

Use Kerr or Bell jars, which can be bought at any local grocery store.

Sterilize the jars by leaving them in the drying cycle of a dishwasher.

Drop individual tomatoes in boiling water for five minutes, then drop in cold water for a few seconds. This will loosen the skin for easier peeling.

Using a paring knife, cut off the stem of the tomato and peel skin.

Put 1 teaspoon of salt and 2 teaspoons of sugar in the jar with the tomatoes. This takes out the tartness of the tomatoes, and the salt acts as a preservative.

Do not use water with your vegetables. They will make their own juice.

Thoroughly clean the top of the jar so no food will be in contact with the seal.

Put lids on snugly, but do not tighten completely.

Set jars in a pot of boiling water for 45 minutes. The water should be 1 to 2 inches over the lids. This "pulls a vacuum" on the lids of the jars.

After 45 minutes, lift the jars out of the pot and wipe off excess water on lids.

Be careful not to pick up the jars by the lids; doing so will disturb the seal. Use potholders and carefully lift by the sides.

Set jars on a towel on countertop. Directly placing them on the countertop could cause the jars to crack.

Do not bump the jars together. They are very fragile when hot and could crack.

Turn off all fans in the area or anything that might cause the jars to cool too quickly.

After the jars have cooled, tighten the lids and store.

If the juice of the tomatoes is very cloudy, they have gone bad. What to do with all these tomatoes?

Here are two of the Penneys' favorite recipes:

STUFFED BELL PEPPERS

- 4 pounds super lean hamburger meat
- 2 large fresh onions, finely chopped
- 48 ounces stewed tomatoes
- 1 package beef mushroom soup mix
- 4 whole eggs
- 1 cup Heinz sauce and Worcester sauce, blended

Knead mixture like dough. Add cracker crumbs or rice. Stuff peppers with mixture. Microwave 25 minutes on medium or bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour.

STEWED TOMATOES

Skin tomatoes as though you're going to can them. Drop then into a pot and put the flame on low. Do not use water. Peel onions, banana peppers and jalapeno peppers and finely chop them in food processor. Wear gloves when peeling jalapeno peppers and leave a few seeds in them for spicy flavor. Stir mixture into tomatoes and cook for an hour.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer. Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. The cost is only $60.00. A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

A new summer program will teach some local teenagers valuable job skills while it betters the community's appearance, say organizers.

"It's called 'The Main Street Gang,'" said downtown coordinator Beverly Franklin, of Big Spring Main Street, Inc. "They'll be working throughout the downtown area to help beautify the city."

 that didn't involve athletics. Currently, students who do not achieve a 70 in all classes are suspended from UIL competition for six weeks.

After student Coy Berryman, who performed the role of Petruccio in "Taming of the Shrew," made a 69 for the grading period ending April 20, Worsham wrote Ms. Hall, "Of course I am going to plead with you for MERCY."

"I must appeal to the kinder, gentler side of you to ask" that Berryman "be given some 'midnight hour' chance to bring the grade to passing," Worsham wrote.

Worsham said Berryman's role "is so critical, that if he is not eligible, we will have to withdraw and stay at home."

"I appeal to you on the part of the parents of the other kids," Worsham said. "Reservations for hotels are made. Plans are underway for travel, etc. They are going to be terribly distressed that their child does not get his opportunity to 'shine' because of one student's failure."

Franklin said the program currently contains nine boys, between the ages of 17 and 20, who will assist in downtown clean-up efforts. Their first project will "be bringing the Railroad Plaza up to par," Franklin said.

"After that they'll be helping the Rape Crisis Center move to a new building, and then help in the cleaning and landscaping of the parking lot across from the courthouse (on Third Street)," Franklin said.

On the makeup tests, after the grading period had ended, Berryman scored 60 and 75, which raised his total grade to 70, Ms. Hall said.

"I felt like that the burden of the play rested on my shoulders," Ms. Hall told the UIL committee.

Worsham said, "I did not ask her to change a grade but to give him (Berryman) opportunity to bring his grade to passing as she had done for other students. ... I have never asked a teacher to change a grade."

Snyder Superintendent Dalton Moseley said Texas Education Agency officials, after the situation had been explained, informed the school by telephone April 26 that "nothing improper had been done."

Jim Bill Little, the chamber's vice president for economic development, will serve as chairman of both sessions.

When the meeting opens at 7 p.m., Moore said 10 minutes will be taken to accept written questions. Each speaker then will be given 10 minutes for his presentation, and 20 minutes will be used to respond to the questions.

Residents then will be divided into groups to participate in a brainstorming session at wastewater treatment plant.

That means the city would hire a second firm to independently review advice given by the primary contractor and possibly offer alternatives, Decell said.

Green said he abstained from the vote because Harris' arguments made sense.

"I know absolutely nothing about engineering and I'm just trying to keep my options open," he said.

In a related item, the council voted 6-0 to apply for a low-interest, long-term loan from the state to help pay for improvements to the treatment plant. The city must apply for the loan by submitting its request to be included in the Texas Water Development Board 1991 intended use plan.

The application is due by July 1, although the city can refuse to accept the funds as late as March 15, 1991.

In other agenda items, the council:

- Approved the first reading of an ordinance providing for increases in the city sales tax that total 1 percent. The increase will take effect Oct. 1, and one-half will be used to fund a decrease in property taxes. The other half will fund an economic development corporation for the city.
- Approved the final reading of ordinances allowing for the plat and rezoning of the Scenic Mountain Nursing Home. Signature Contracting Group, Inc., which is building the 119-bed facility, is expected to break ground in about two weeks.

Police beat

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following incidents:

- David Earl Stamps, 52, P.O. Box 3035, was arrested and charged with driving while license suspended.
- A business in the 500 block of Lamesa reported forgery by passing. According to the report, a person attempted to cash a check that was signed with a forged name.
- A business in the 300 block of Owens reported the theft of four cartons of cigarettes valued at $56.76. Four packs were recovered.
- A person reported the burglary of a vehicle that occurred at Second and Birdwell. Thieves took a three-gallon plastic water can valued at $20 and disposable water bottles of undetermined value.
- A person in the 700 block of Willia reported the theft of a dirt bicycle valued at $84.

from weeding and picking up litter to painting and building walls, she said.

The program was created in association with the Job Training Partnership Act, a federal program which encourages employers to hire young people by supplementing their salaries during a training period.

"JTPA will pay the boys while we train them," Franklin said.

The boys will earn $3.80 an hour, said Shannon Stuteville, the summer youth counselor with the Permian Basin Private Industry Council.

Franklin said her organization hoped to expand the program before summer's end.

"We hope to include 20 more boys if increased funding comes through," she said. "There'll be lots of projects for all of them to do."

In addition to the money the boys will earn, Franklin said she wants them to learn something about civic spirit.

"We want them to come out of the program with the feeling that they helped improve this community, so they can feel good about themselves," she said. "And we want them to come away having learned some valuable job skills and acquired good work habits."

Franklin said "The Gang" is in need of supplies ranging from paint and yard tools to lumber. Cash donations would also be much appreciated, she said. Anyone who wishes to make donations should contact her office at 267-4801.

nedly were chosen to speak at the first session because of their familiarity with the subject and with economic development. Newman, he said, will discuss "the concept and review of the law, what the stated purpose of Senate Bill 971 is," which is the legislation allowing creation of economic development corporations in certain cities.

Newman also will discuss limitations of the corporations and trends across the state for its utilization.

Kennedy will discuss "how this new tool — that Big Spring has that is the responsibility of the City Council — how it relates to the existing organizations like the Chamber of Commerce, the Industrial Foundation," and even TU Electric's development efforts, Moore said.

Moore said the sessions are important because residents will have a chance to get answers to their questions about the corporation.

"Any questions that are unanswered, we'll find the answers," he said. "If there are answers, we'll find answers for the June 21 session."

Meetings with the same times have been planned for June 21 and June 28; the June 21 meeting will consider needs and priorities, while the June 28 meeting will design a structure to meet those goals.

Moore stressed that each session of all the meetings are open to the public. Because donuts and coffee will be served in the morning and tea and coffee in the evening, Moore encouraged persons planning to attend to call the chamber beforehand.

Tanker

 in great quantities and it's continued to cool the structure," Greene said. "They'll continue to do that. There's progress being made. They're making ground."

Once the fire is extinguished, firefighters will apply a coat of foam to prevent the possibility the blaze could re-ignite, Nelson said.

An 825-foot British-registered tanker, the Vic Bilh, was standing by to begin receiving the remainder of the Mega Borg's cargo of light African crude, a process known as lightering.

Greene said that operation could be dangerous because the ship is listing slightly and crews might have to pump water into the holds to keep the vessel balanced.

"We're feeling fairly confident at this point, but we're not going to really breathe easy until the oil is back in a terminal," Nelson said.

The ship's left rear section, however, was close to the water line Tuesday, a day after the rear dipped below the surface and heightened fears the vessel might sink.

The rear has dropped more than 60 feet since the tanker caught fire early Saturday while transferring cargo to a smaller vessel. Two of the 41 crewmen died, two were missing and presumed dead and 17 were injured, none seriously.

The Norwegian government scheduled a hearing today in Galveston to interview crew members who were aboard at the time of the blast and try to determine how it occurred.

"This will be purely fact finding," Norwegian Consul General Erik Leikvang said. "We would like to interview the crew and find out what they know."

Little oil spilled at first, but five explosions within 20 minutes Sunday sent burning crude pouring into the Gulf. By Tuesday, a burning trail of oil that extended for hundreds of feet behind the stricken tanker had diminished to a small pool.

The Mega Borg carries more than three times as much oil as was spilled by the Exxon Valdez off Alaska in March 1989 in the nation's worst oil spill. But authorities noted the oil spilled in Alaska was heavy crude, which doesn't dissipate nearly as rapidly as the light crude aboard the Mega Borg.

Elf Trading Inc., a Houston subsidiary of a French oil and gas company, owned the cargo.

A new Patch?; so long Frank

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

This has been a season of surprises in professional baseball. First of all the owners lockout ended soon enough that the league didn't get such a late start. Second of all the umpires started to work on time.

Then came the turnabout of the Chicago Cubs and San Francisco Giants. Last year's National League divisional winners are dwelling in or near the cellar.

Next came the New York Yankees trading Dave Winfield to the California Angels. Then there was the shocking news of the New York Mets naming Davey Johnson as manager — and the no-so-shocking news that the Yankees had fired Bucky Dent.

What can be next? Perhaps Darryl Strawberry going across town? It could be true.

With both teams struggling through a sour spring — one saddled with the worst record in baseball, the other stuck in a sub-.500 malaise — New York could be in for a long, boring baseball summer.

Unless, of course, a trade spices things up. A major trade that brings the Strawberry Patch to Yankee Stadium.

The Mets and Yankees admit they have been talking. Strawberry, the Mets' cleanup hitter, is batting just .259 with eight home runs and 22 RBIs in 48 games. He is in the final year of his contract, and after the Mets fired manager Johnson, the right fielder said that all but sealed his decision to leave after this season.

Strawberry has had a stormy stay at Shea Stadium, often producing huge numbers like consecutive 39-home run years in 1987 and 1988 and 225 homers in seven-plus seasons. Recently, though, his production has been somewhat underwhelming, including a .225 batting average last season. He spent a month in alcohol rehabilitation last winter.

That short right fence at Yankee Stadium would be an ideal place to start a new Strawberry Patch.

The Howard College Hawks baseball program received a big blow when assistant coach Frank Anderson accepted a similar position with Texas Tech University last week.

Anderson has played an instrumental part in Howard's success over the past four seasons.

Anderson, who was a college all-American baseball player himself, got along well with his players, did a great job with pitching staff, and last but not least, was an excellent recruiter.

Being from the Midwest, Anderson was good at recruiting players from that region of the country, as well as players from the North. He had the uncanny knack of selling Howard College to some of the best high school players in the country.

His theory was simple — "the kids don't care where it is, they just want to play ball year around."

And that's something they can't do in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Montana, Minnesota and Iowa.

In the four years Anderson was at Howard College, the Hawks fielded a 170-80-1 record. The four years before he got here, the Hawks were 116-74-1.

A fact that can't be overlooked is that Anderson also served as Howard's academic supervisor for the Hawk baseball team. Since his appointment as assistant coach, the Hawks baseballers did not have anyone declared ineligible, and had a graduation rate of 90 percent. That says a lot about his work habits and the players he recruited.

Coach Anderson, wife Sandra and son Brett — a future Major Leaguer no doubt — will definitely be missed.

Astros wallop Yankees, 23-10

By STEVE BELVIN

The score might indicate football, but the game was baseball and the American League Astros and the National League Yankees lit up the scoreboard.

When it was all over, the Astros handed the Yankees a 23-10 whipping in the opening round of the city Little League tournament.

The Astros surged ahead with a six-run first inning, only to have the Yankees tie the game at 10-10 after three-and-a-half innings. But the Astros ended all threat of a comeback by scoring 13 times in the bottom of the fourth. The Yankees went down quietly in the fifth, and the game was over.

The Astros pounded out 14 hits against three Yankee pitchers. Starter Todd McAdams suffered the brunt of the damage, allowing 10 hits and 17 runs in three-and-one-third innings. He was followed by Kason Anderson and Brandon Johnson.

Leading the Astro hitting was shortstop Mark Baker, who went in three runs, and catcher Matt Vicziano and second baseman Colby Wegman had two hits each, which scored five runs.

The Yankees got only three hits, two by Amador Gonzales. Gonzales came off the bench in the third inning and tripled and singled, driving in four runs and scoring two himself. Jerrod Spears' single was the other Yankee hit.

Astros starter Wesley Platte pitched four innings and got the win. Faulkner pitched the fifth inning. Platte helped his own cause by driving in three runs. The Astros came out swinging as they busted five hits in their six-run first. John Smith and Vicziano led off with doubles, and Faulkner, Wegman and Heath Wegner hit singles.

The Yankees scored a run in the second when Luis Lopez walked and scored on an Astros fielding error.

Baker scored another Astros run in the second when he doubled and came on a throwing error.

Pistons take 3-1 advantage

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Beating the Trail Blazers three consecutive games in Portland is tough. So is winning two consecutive NBA titles.

The Detroit Pistons can do both with one more victory.

Isiah Thomas made a championship celebration Thursday night a possibility in a building where the Pistons, until this week, hadn't won in 16 years. His 32 points led Detroit to a 112-109 victory Tuesday night.

The Blazers must make history — no team has survived a 3-1 deficit in the Finals — to stop the Pistons from becoming only the third NBA franchise to win consecutive titles.

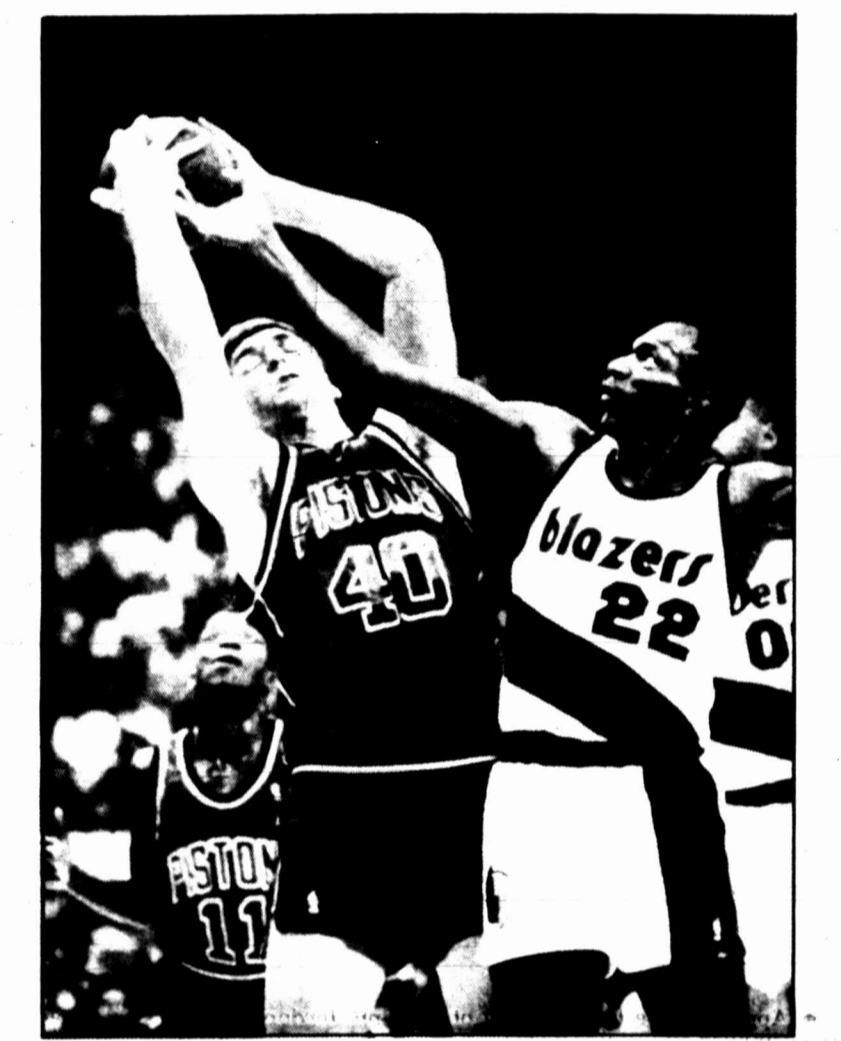

Between the Boston Celtics' title in 1969 and the Los Angeles Lakers title in 1988, 18 years had passed without a repeat champion. Now Detroit is surviving the pressure of opponents' determination to knock off the king.

They are doing it because they shove the ultimate prize into the shadows.

The Pistons rushed into the Portland Memorial Coliseum without worrying about what happened there before.

Not since Oct. 19, 1974, when none of the current Pistons were on the team, had Detroit won there. Twenty consecutive losses followed. That streak was snapped Sunday in a 121-106 rout. Until Tuesday night's game, Portland hadn't lost two consecutive home games this season.

"How about this?" Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "We won two games in this building."

PORTLAND, Ore. — Detroit's Bill Laimbeer (40) pulls down a rebound over Portland's Clyde Drexler (22) during first quarter action in game four of the NBA Finals Tuesday night. Pistons Isiah Thomas (11) is in background.

Three straight for Strange?

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — The odds against Curtis Strange winning a third consecutive U.S. Open title this week may not be as long as they seem.

"I really think I have a shot at it," Strange said Tuesday after a practice round for the tournament that begins Thursday at the Medinah Country Club.

So do some of his principal opponents in the 156-man field.

"If he's won two, he can win three," said British Open titleholder Mark Calcavecchia. "There's no reason he can't win again."

"Sure, he's under a lot of pressure. But Curtis handles pressure as well as anybody in the game."

"Curtis has a real chance to do it," said his close friend Greg Norman. "He has a lot weighing on him, but Curtis is equal to it."

"If I can't stop him, I hope he goes ahead and does it. It would be good for the game."

But history disagrees with Strange, Calcavecchia and Norman. History says his chances are remote.

The tournament will be televised nationally by ESPN 10-2 p.m. and 4-6 p.m. (CDT) Thursday and Friday, and by ABC, 12-30-5 p.m. (CDT) Saturday and Sunday.

Only one man has ever won three consecutive U.S. Opens: Willie Anderson in 1903-05. No one has even had a shot at it since Ben Hogan scored successive victories in 1950-51.

Strange, 35, gave himself the opportunity to stroll into history with his victories in Brookline, Mass., (a playoff over Nick Faldo) in 1988 and in Rochester, N.Y., last year.

The triumph at Oak Hill, however, is the only one he's gained in the last 18 months. And this is from a man who won 10 tournaments and three money-winning titles in the preceding four seasons.

There are a couple of reasons for the sudden decline. Strange said he went into a slump after the successful defense of the Open in 1989 — "call it a let-down if you want," he said — and has "been consumed with the Open" for more than two months.

In other words, the aftermath of last year's victory and the prelude to this season's attempt have been the overwhelming factors in his life.

And, too, there was a pair of early-season trips to Australia that gave him a two-month-late start on the current season.

"That's what we're out here for."

He faces a field of 156 of the world's finest players and a golf course that is, arguably, the toughest of all the Open courses.

Celtics hire Ford

BOSTON (AP) — Chris Ford cut his NBA teeth during 10 years as a player and seven years as an assistant coach. Dave Gavitt earned his wings in just 12 days.

Ford, known for his lack of speed and accurate shooting eye, on Tuesday was named to succeed Jimmy Rodgers as coach of the Boston Celtics. But first he had to sit back while Gavitt, named chief operating officer and executive vice president on May 30, courted at least one other coaching candidate for the job Rodgers lost on May 8, two days after the Celtics were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs by the New York Knicks.

"I was very confident," Ford said of the waiting period while Gavitt and Red Auerbach discussed the job with Mike Krzyzewski, who eventually decided last Thursday that he would remain at Duke University.

"When I spoke to Dave he told me that nothing had been offered to Mike, the job had not been offered to him and that he was still discussing with Red and the owners, (general manager) Jan (Volk) and other NBA people and developing contacts to see who would be the best for the job," Ford said. "He told me to be patient, and good things have happened since then."

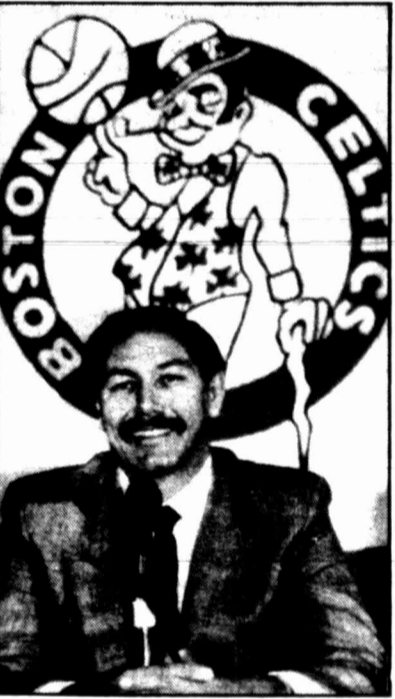

The 41-year-old Ford, who becomes the 11th coach in the Celtics' distinguished history and the sixth player to go from Celtics player to head coach, inherits a team that includes the same front line from the 1981 NBA championship team he played on — Larry Bird, Kevin McHale and Robert Parish.

No problem, according to Ford. "They know that there's a distance between us now. And there was when I went from a player to an assistant coach," Ford said of his switch to assistant coach for K.C. Jones in 1983. "And now I'll have to take one more step back. I'm a tough disciplinarian."

"He's not been adverse to being strong and direct and hard with players as an assistant coach, including those who he played with," Gavitt said of Ford, who played with Detroit and Boston, and is credited with making the NBA's first 3-point shot in 1979.

McHale, part of the over-30 frontline, praised Ford's potential as a head coach.

"What we all like about him is that he has a tough edge to him and he's not going to take a lot of the things that have happened over the past few seasons," McHale said. "He'll put his foot down and run the team the way he wants to run it."

Bird, in a statement released through his agent, said Ford "has a great knowledge for the game of basketball. He's great with the younger players and I'm looking forward to playing on his team."

Gavitt, instrumental in forming the Big East into one of the country's top college basketball conferences, learned through trial and error that Ford was his man. And he said he didn't regret the process he followed, including the courtship of Krzyzewski.

"I didn't mind being criticized for talking with a college coach. If there's real validity in that, then Red should be criticized because I'm here, because I certainly had no NBA experience either," Gavitt said.

"It was a short honeymoon," Gavitt said, also telling reporters that "I'm certainly not as good as the 'walk on water' treatment you gave me out of the box, and I'm not as dumb or stupid as you would lead people to believe now."

Gavitt, in introducing Ford, still waived the banner of his old college conference while also praising Ford for enduring the speculation over the head coaching job.

HC cowgirls moving up

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Things are still going well for the Howard College rodeo team at the College National Finals Rodeo after the second day of competition.

The HC cowgirls have moved from 16th in the nation to fifth place. Leading the charge is Lorena freshman Jody Heath, who's second in the barrel race going into Saturday's short-go. Last night Heath was timed in 13.86, giving her an average time of 27.57.

Jana Pierce of Crane is currently eighth in the goat tying. Pierce, from Crane, was timed in 9.7 in the first-go, and cut the time down to 8.6 in the second-go, giving her an average time of 18.3.

Robin Wardlaw of Del Rio was timed in 14.27 in her first go-round in the barrels. She will compete in the second-go in the goat tying and breakaway roping tonight.

Howard cowboy Randall Thornton is making a run to capture the bull riding competition. The Madisonville cowboy scored a 74 in the first-go and came back with a 70 in the second-go last night. Thornton is currently leading the average with a 144.02. He'll ride in the finals Saturday night.

Thornton didn't fare as well in the bareback bronc competition however. He scored a 51 last night, and will ride in the second-go Thursday night.

"The girls are doing real good," said Howard coach Bobby Scott. "Jody (Heath) and Randall (Thornton) did good and we know they'll be in Saturday's finals. Randall didn't do good in the bareback, but he didn't draw a good horse. We're sitting pretty good, but we still have a lot left to go."

In other action, Patrick Trujillo of Eastern New Mexico and Casey Gates of Fort Scott Community College each turned in a pair of 82 rides in bull riding Tuesday night.

The first go-round in their event ended on Tuesday and the two cowboys split first place.

The first go-round of the rodeo at Montana State University continues in bareback riding and saddle bronc riding on Wednesday.

All other events have begun the second go-round, which runs through Friday. The top 10 cowboys and cowgirls in all nine events advance to Saturday's championship round.

Also on Tuesday, Nicki Wogman of Colorado State vaulted into the lead of barrel racing with a 13.51-seconds time. She also leads the two-run average.

In goat tying, Kristi Lensegraff of Dickinson (N.D.) State posted a 7.8-seconds time to move into third in the second go-round and take over the lead in the average.

Kelli Edwards of Walla Walla (Wash.) C.C. and Jamie Watkins of McNeese State share the breakaway roping lead at 2.8 seconds, while Edwards holds the lead in the average at 5.8.

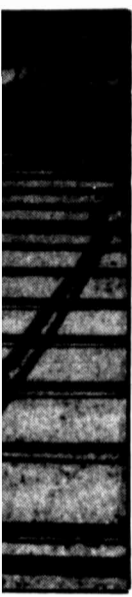

Steer wrestling has Dean Wang of Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo leading at 4.4 seconds while Phil Clifton of Southwestern Oklahoma State leads the average at 10.3 on two steers.

The calf roping leaders — Shawn McMullan of Odessa (Texas) College in the go-round and Jason Evans of Sam Houston State in the average — weren't threatened last night when not a single roper in the performance could notch a time.

The team roping duo of Korby Koonz of Vernon Regional J.C. and Rube Woolsey of Central Arizona hold the go-round lead at 5.1 seconds, while Clayton Ring and Larry Nordby of Central Washington lead the average at 13.9 seconds on two runs.

Rangers burn Eckersley and A's

By The Associated Press
Someday, Dennis Eckersley was bound to walk someone. And some time, he was destined to blow a save.

So maybe it's no coincidence that both things happened at once.

Eckersley's first walk in 52 innings since last August set up Ruben Sierra's two-out, two-run double, capping a four-run rally in the top of the ninth inning that led the Texas Rangers over the Oakland Athletics 6-5 Tuesday.

Eckersley had been perfect in 21 save opportunities when he relieved to start the ninth with a 5-2 lead. But an error helped get Texas going and a walk to Julio Franco set up Sierra's hit on a 3-2 pitch.

Eckersley, who walked only three batters all last season, was upset with blowing the save chance. He was even more bothered by what he perceived as the Rangers' slowdown technique.

Oakland lost for just the second time in 35 games that it led after eight innings. The defeat came the day after Nolan Ryan held the Athletics hitless.

An error by shortstop Walt Weiss on Kevin Reimer's one-out grounder started Texas' rally in the ninth. With two outs, Gary Pettis hit an RBI double and scored on a single by Rafael Palmeiro that pulled the Rangers to 5-4.

Pinch runner Cecil Espy stole second, Franco walked and Sierra, after stepping out of the batter's box several times, as Eckersley prepared to pitch, doubled off the wall in right field.

"Sierra was one thing, but it was Franco in particular," Eckersley said. "He was ridiculous. Pettis took forever and Bobby Valentine had to make his 12th appearance of the game."

Valentine, the Rangers manager, strolled to second base to Eckersley (2-1) took the loss and reliever Brad Arnsberg (1-0) was

Sizzling Giants pound San Diego

By The Associated Press
Whatever became of the June swoon through which the San Francisco Giants fell to infamy?

Only 12 times in 32 previous seasons have the Giants posted a winning record in the season's third month. This year, it would seem, they can't miss.

NL

At 10-1 this month, the defending National League champions are the hottest team in baseball. That's a dramatic turnaround from a dreadful start which relegated them to last place in the NL West, 14½ games behind Cincinnati as late as May 29.

The Giants moved into third place Tuesday night as Will Clark led a 7-2 victory over San Diego. After Atlanta's 8-3 and 3-2 victories over Cincinnati, the Giants find themselves only 7½ games out.

Clark, who had three hits in the victory, figures the bad start was of some benefit to the Giants.

With 13 hits against the Padres, the Giants reached double figures for the eighth time in 11 games this month. They've scored 87 runs in June while batting .334 (143-for-428).

The Giants got a victory and RBI single from Don Robinson (2-0), who allowed five hits over six innings.

Braves 8, Reds 3

Greg Olson hit a grand slam and Ron Gant had two doubles, a triple and a homer as Atlanta swept Cincinnati, handing the Reds their season-high fifth straight loss and seventh in their last eight games.

And they are losing in alarming fashion. This time they wasted three first-inning runs against Tom Glavine (3-4) in the opener.

Astros 5, Dodgers 4
Franklin Stubbs' two-run homer highlighted a five-run first inning against his former teammates as Houston beat Los Angeles, extending its longest winning streak this season to five games.
Bill Doran went 4-for-4, is 7-for 8 in two nights and has reached base in eight of his last nine trips. Mike Maddux (0-1) lasted one-third of an inning as the Dodgers lost for the 11th time in 15 games. Maddux was sent to the minors after the game.

Mets 19, Cubs 8
Kevin McReynolds hit two homers and Dave Magadan doubled his season RBI total by driving in six runs as New York took advantage of windy Wrigley Field to rout Chicago.

Dwight Gooden (4-5) won his first game since May 21. Mike Bielecki (3-5) went 1-1-3 in innings, allowing eight runs and seven hits as Chicago's four-game winning streak ended.
Pirates 6, Cardinals 3

Neal Heaton joined New York's Frank Viola as the league only nine-game winners and Bobby Bonilla had two RBI doubles as Pittsburgh beat slumping St. Louis.

Heaton (9-1) gave up seven hits in seven innings in raising his career record against the Cardinals to 5-0. Bill Landrum, the fourth Pirate pitcher, got the final out for his 10th save, retiring pinch-hitter Denny Walling on a grounder.

Phillies 7, Expos 2
Ken Howell won his sixth straight decision and Dave Hollins hit a three-run homer in the second inning as Philadelphia beat Montreal, snapping a five-game losing streak.

Pistons

driving to the basket drew fouls or resulted in layups.

Terry Porter's short jumper with 5:20 left climaxed a 28-11 run that put Portland ahead 93-92.

The lead changed hands for the sixth time after that when Drexler's two foul shots gave Portland a 107-106 lead with 31 seconds remaining.

Thomas' basket from the far right corner put Detroit on top 108-107 with 25 seconds to go. Then with 8.4 seconds remaining,

Thomas stripped the ball from Porter from behind, was fouled by Young and made both shots.

Porter's two free throws cut the lead to one with 6.5 seconds to play, but Gerald Henderson's breakaway layup with 1.3 seconds left made the score 112-109.

Referee Mike Mathis then ruled Young's 3-pointer beat the buzzer, but the decision was changed after he consulted with partners Earl Strom and Hugh Evans.

"You can't catch the ball, take a dribble, cross over (midcourt) and shoot, all in 1.2 seconds," Detroit's Bill Laimbeer said. "That's impossible."

Dumars had 10 points in the fourth quarter, including 6-of-6 free throws, that helped turn a 93-92 deficit into a 102-99 lead. He is expected to play Thursday night, then return to Louisiana for Saturday's funeral of his father, who died after a long illness.

The Blazers know what they must do to avoid losing the series on their homecourt.

Astros

The Yankees made it a game in the top of the third by scoring four runs on one hit and three errors. Gonzales cleaned the bases when he tripled in Robert Hilliger, Spears and McAdams.

The Astros answered with five in the bottom of the inning, however. Platte drove in two runs when he hit a ball the first baseman couldn't handle. Baker's single was the only hit in the inning.

But the Yankees refused to fold, scoring five times in the top of the fourth to knot the game at 10-apiece. Spears and Gonzales both singled to center field in the inning. The Astros committed three errors in the inning.

In the bottom of the inning however, the Astros put this one out of reach in front of the home fans. They sent 17 men to the plate, had five hits and six walks. When the barrage was over, the home team was two touchdowns ahead, or one should say 13 runs.

Jason Lasater and Smith started it off with walks, which was followed by a triple by Wegman, doubles by Baker and Faulkner, a base hit by Vicziano and a bunt single by Platte.

The win pits the Astros against the International League Rebels tonight at 8 at the International League field. The Yankees play the Coahoma Oilers today at 6 in Coahoma.

Coahoma Lions 8, NL Ponys 7
The Coahoma Lions remained the only unbeaten team in the county as they held off the National League Ponys.

Brian Ruiz got the win for the Ponys, pitching a five-hitter and striking out 12. DeLynn Reed took the loss for the Ponys. He allowed eight hits and fanned six.

Freddy Olivias, Ruiz and Rodney Gressett led the Ponys with two hits each. Chris Arguello and Adam Tindol also got hits.
For the Ponys, Jason Hambrick collected two hits. Steven Gillespie, Steven Croft and Clayton Fryar added hits.

The Lions are 15-0 for the season.

IL Rebels 12, Coahoma Oilers 1
The International League Rebels jumped out to a 7-1 lead after two innings of play and went on to drum the Coahoma Oilers.

Joe Montes got the win for the Rebels, striking out 10 and scattering five hits. Richard Overton took the loss for the Oilers. He was relieved by Ray Rodriguez.

Manuel Cervantes and Rogelio led Rebel hitter with two hits each. Overton got two hits for the Oilers.

Silver Streaks 12, Leprechauns 11
Heddy Wington scored the winning run in the fourth inning as the Silver Streaks won a close one.

Amy Jackson was the winning pitcher and Yanez took the loss for the Leprechauns.

Top hitters for the Silver Streaks were Cecily Paredez, Leslie McLellan, Jackson, and Karen Paredez. Moreano and Yanez led Leprechauns hitters.

The Silver Streaks are now 4-4 for the season.

Hangin Tuff 20, Pink Panthers 5
Hangin Tuff ran its record to 7-2 by blasting the Pink Panthers.

Jessica Canales and Juanita Valdez combined in the winning pitching effort. K. Bearden and M. Mikels pitched for the Pink Panthers.

Valdez was a terror at the plate, hitting a grand slam and two homers. Canales also homered.

Canales, M. Padillo and K. Pineda led the winners with two hits each. E. Harvey also got a hit.

For the Pink Panthers, Mikels tripled and singled, and L. Moore singled.

Division II
Dream Team 14, Silver Bullets 13
The Dream Team managed to keep its record perfect behind the three-hit pitching of Heather James. Hollie Zant and Heather Spencer pitched for the Silver Bullets.

Dream Team top hitters were Jennifer Wilks, James, Sarah Fannin, Nikki Mills, Vanessa Billaiba, Teri Gonzales, Brandi Gutierrez and Tisa Sevey.

Leading hitters for the Silver Bullets were Stephanie Crawford, Zant and Kara Hughes.

Dream Team 17, Wild Hares 3

The Dream Team ran its record to 9-0 as Brandi Gutierrez and Mandy Morrow combined to hurl a no-hitter. Meanwhile the Dream team scored 12 runs in the first two innings and were never headed.

Leading hitters for the winners were Heather James, Vanessa Billaiba and Teri Gonzales, all with two hits each. James and Morrow played good defense in the winning effort.

Playing well defensively for the Wild Hares were Barbara Hammett and Starr Hopper.

Texas Stadium may get roof

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones says he's willing to consider spending up to $25 million to convert Texas Stadium to a domed facility, a report said.

The Dallas Times Herald reported today that Jones believes a domed Texas Stadium would be a prime location for Super Bowls, NCAA Final Fours and political conventions.

"You can enclose and air condition the stadium at a considerably less cost than it would be to build a new domed stadium," Jones said.

A domed stadium also would eliminate the concern about weather problems. The Super Bowl site committee requires an average daily temperature of 55 degrees for cities without domed stadiums.

The average temperature for Dallas in late January is 45 degrees.

NFL owners repeatedly rejected Dallas as a Super Bowl site in the 1970s because of the cold weather and the lack of adequate seating at Texas Stadium.

A domed stadium could also provide another venue for major-league baseball and professional basketball, Jones said. But he said he hasn't talked with either the Mavericks or the Rangers about the possibility of moving to Texas Stadium.

The Mavericks have a lease agreement with Reunion Arena. They have not expressed an interest in leaving.

The Rangers are considering options for a new stadium. The city of Arlington has proposed a $200 million facility adjacent to Arlington Stadium.

KU names female assistant coach

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Bernadette Locke was named an assistant basketball coach at Kentucky today, becoming the first female assistant for a Division I men's basketball program.

Her hiring was announced by Athletics Director C.M. Newton at a news conference.

"We are extremely excited to have someone of Bernadette Locke's qualifications in the Kentucky program," head coach Rick Pitino said.

"She has been one of the top female assistant coaches in the country and comes to us with the highest compliments of every coach we contacted."

Names in the news

TORRINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Susan Saint James, who co-starred with Jane Curtin on CBS' "Kate and Allie," has given birth to a boy.

Saint James, 43, had an 8-pound, 14-ounce baby boy Sunday, said Richard Bisi, a spokesman at Charlotte Hungerford Hospital. He said mother and child were doing fine.

This is Saint James' third child with her husband, former "Saturday Night Live" producer Dick Ebersol. She has two children from a previous marriage.

The couple plans to name the baby Edward Bright Ebersol.

Among other TV roles, Saint James, who lives in Litchfield, starred in "McMillan and Wife" with Rock Hudson from 1971 to 1977 and SUSAN ST. JAMES GUILLERO ENDARA won a best supporting actress Emmy playing an offbeat secretary in "The Name of the Game," which ran from 1968 to 1971.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — President Guillermo Endara says he loves three things in this world: God, the Panamanian people and his new bride.

Endara, 54, married 23-year-old Ana Mae Diaz in a two-hour, Roman Catholic ceremony Sunday at Metropolitan Cathedral. Ambassadors of the United States and Latin American and European countries were among the guests.

Endara was installed during the invasion of Panama by U.S. forces that overthrew Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

About 250 people waited outside the cathedral in a heavy rain to throw rice at the newlyweds.

The couple met at a university rally after Panama's 1989 elections. Endara won that election, but Noriega annulled the results.

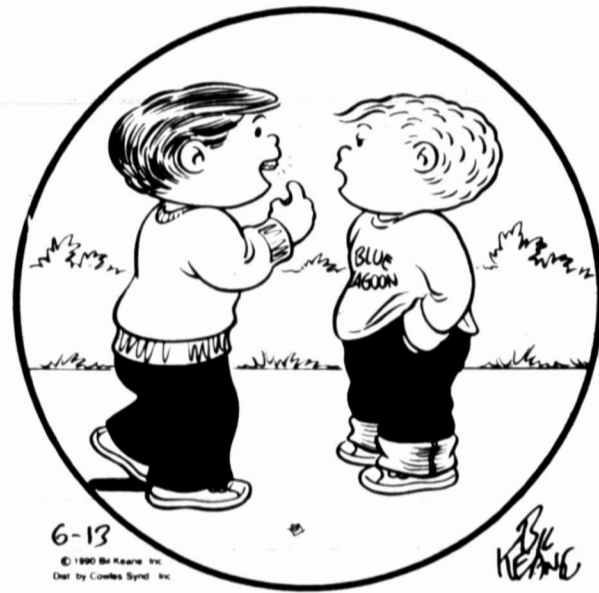

Endara was widowed a year ago.

THURSDAY, JUNE 14, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: tennis champion Steffi Graf, actress Dorothy McGuire, singer Boy George, pitcher Don Newcombe.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Practical measures will bring the best results today. Swallow your pride and accept that special position or assignment. You need to scale down your spending. Be firm. Have the strength to say "no."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Talk to someone you believe is standing in the way of your happiness. Travel is a good business investment now. Unusual circumstances will put you in the right place at the right time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are able to create your own career opportunities now. Work toward a goal that will make you financially secure. A romantic interlude convinces you that your choice was a good one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An addition to the family is possible. Someone who tries to rile you will make a mistake. Stay on top of your job. Your leadership qualities shine brightly. Your charm assures romantic success.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your old job is available again. Sound out your mate if relocating would be necessary. Do not ignore a financial problem; it must not be allowed to escalate. Spend time with children.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Romance blossoms between two college students or business chums. Stop being stubborn. Make your apologies at the office and career progress will be easier. A lost opportunity returns.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You shine at work today. Do not be taken in by promises from someone who wants to unsettle you. Protect your flank. A financial situation shows steady improvement. Keep up the good work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Romance shifts gears. Refuse to accept someone's excuse for breaking a date. Your position at work could be improved by another person's mistakes. A part-time job produces welcome cash. Pay bills promptly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stop being so businesslike about love. Show your feelings! Give children the emotional support they need. Intervening in a family argument will only make matters worse. Mate is on your side.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your income will rise when you take your work more seriously. Attend adult education classes and keep up with the latest developments in your field. Romance holds some questions. Exercise patience.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be sensitive to someone's financial plight, but avoid painting yourself into a corner by giving too much help. A change will be upsetting until you realize it is in your best interest.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Welcome fresh challenges. A change of personnel can work to your advantage. New lines of communication open up. Follow up your hunches. Romance has you walking on air. Avoid rushing things!

Ethics hearing

WASHINGTON — Senator Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., listens to proceedings during a Senate Ethics Committee hearing on Capitol Hill Tuesday. The committee is investigating allegations that Durenberger illegally padded his income.

Around town

Noon Lions met Tuesday at the Community Center to discuss the upcoming June 18 meeting with the Evening Lions and Garden City Lions, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center. The meeting is called to install new officers.

Don Tollison conducted the business meeting. A request for eye glasses was presented and approved.

There will be no meeting for the Noon Lions next Tuesday.

Reunion set for July 14

The Old Settlers Reunion Committee met at Martin County Historical Museum Tuesday night to discuss the planning of the upcoming Old Settlers Reunion parade.

The celebration will take place July 14.

Members of the honored J.P. Stroud family will be in town for the celebration. Along with the honorees, there will be ten class reunions expected to coincide with this year's extravaganza. The reunions will be held across Stanton and the Martin County area.

Definite plans are underway for the Antique Car Club, which sports over 100 antique automobiles, to participate in the reunion. The Martin County Roping Club, along with the Westex Skydivers Association, also will be featured.

Downtown games and food booths will again be a feature of the reunion.

States to settle border question

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Texans and Oklahomans want to draw the line once and for all that determines the exact border of the Lone Star State — and they'd rather do it sooner than later.

The Red River has separated the two since Spain and the United States signed a treaty in 1819 to set the southwest boundary of the Louisiana Purchase.

But exactly where the line is drawn — north or south bank — is a question continually fought out in the courtroom and the halls of the state capitols.

In dispute is a 110-mile stretch of the river which runs from about Byers, Texas, to Oklaunion, Texas. The U.S. Supreme Court tried to settle the question in the early 1920s by issuing four opinions, which set the boundary at the river's south bank.

But each time the course of the river's flow is altered, usually by flooding, new quarrels arise. The confusion has caused disputes over taxes, mineral rights and law enforcement jurisdiction.

First Bankers: Business as usual

By MARC SCHWARZ
Staff Writer

It will be "business as usual" for depositors, who need not fear for the safety of their funds, say officials of an insolvent Midland savings and loan.

First Bankers Trust and Savings Association, which operates a branch office in Stanton, was declared insolvent Friday by officials of the U.S. Office of Thrift Supervision. The thrift was placed under the conservatorship of the Resolution Trust Corporation but will remain open for business, officials said.

"We're not planning on closing our doors," said Helen Thraikill, an assistant vice-president of First Bankers and manager of the Stanton branch. "I think people are kind of used to this sort of thing happening by now, and we're one of the last to go, so we're not anticipating any great run on the bank. It will just be business as usual."

Thraikill said the Stanton office will continue to conduct depositors' financial transactions while under RTC supervision.

A managing agent for the RTC will take charge of First Bankers and its five branches while negotiations for the sale or closure of the thrift are underway, an RTC spokeswoman said yesterday. "The managing agent will be responsible for limiting growth, minimizing operating costs and making sure operations are conducted safely," Teresa McUsic of RTC's Dallas office said.

McUsic said that banking services to deposit and loan customers will continue, and all deposits will still be federally insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

First Bankers had $110.4 million in assets and $97 million in 10,972 deposit accounts at the time of insolvency, McUsic said.

The thrift was the last of its kind that was in existence prior to the oil bust that struck the Permian Basin in 1982. It had been financially troubled for some time, primarily due to high loan loss reserves, said Allen Dermody, a spokesman for the OTS's Dallas office.

"They had a high number of loans go bad," he said. "They also had high operating costs, which may be understandable due to that high level of poor quality loans. They didn't do a good job underwriting their loans."

Dermody also cited a negative interest rate spread and the depressed local economy as reasons for the thrift's insolvency.

First Bankers could remain

The Stanton Branch of First Bankers Trust and Savings Association, along with its parent Midland facility, was declared insolvent by federal officials Friday. Officers at the bank said that all deposits at the thrift are safe.

Supertanker blaze now under control

By RUTH RENDON
Associated Press Writer

GALVESTON — A fiery blaze on a wrecked supertanker carrying 38 million gallons of crude oil was brought under control, but fears heightened over oil spilling into the Gulf of Mexico.

"There is more oil in the water and the slick is continuing to grow but there are skimming vessels there to deal with it," Coast Guard Capt. Thomas Greene said Tuesday.

Coast Guard officials said at least 100,000 gallons of the crude has spilled since an engine-room explosion Saturday rocked the Norwegian tanker Mega Borg and crippled the vessel approximately 57 miles southeast of Galveston.

Much of the spilled oil burned, but with the fire subsiding an undetermined amount now leaked into the water, according to Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer Todd Nelson.

A sheen of oil stretching approximately 13 miles long had formed. Eight salvage operation boats and three Coast Guard ships were on hand, skimming for oil and floating barriers to corral the spill.

Mexico also sent a vessel to help in the clean up effort, the government oil monopoly Pemex said.

About 9,000 gallons of oil dispersant has been dropped on the slick by aircraft.

A thick cloud of gray smoke and steam surrounded the Mega Borg, replacing the balls of flame and towering columns of black smoke that had been billowing from the vessel.

Greene said that Ted Hoskins, who heads the salvage operation, boarded the ship with a crew Tuesday. Hoskins "said he would characterize the fire as under control," Greene said.

GALVESTON — Fire boats pour water on the stern section of the supertanker Mega Borg Tuesday as they bring the fire under control.

"Our latest videos we got, I can see no fire visible," Greene said, but added that there was still a fire beneath the deck.

Coast Guard officials said a disastrous spill can be avoided because the ship's cargo is light crude, which can be easily dispersed. But environmentalists have said the oil is highly toxic and feared it would reach bays and estuaries, a prime bird breeding and shellfish harvest area.

Currents and winds were expected to push escaping oil toward a 200-mile stretch of coast between Freeport and Corpus Christi. But the Coast Guard said the currents also were expected to keep the spill from coming ashore.

Crews continued dousing the tanker with 10 water streams from five fireboats stationed at the sides of the tanker, and firefighters had placed another water hose on the deck, pointing it toward the burning stern.

"They've kept applying water in great quantities and it's continued to cool the structure," Greene said. "They'll continue to do that. There's progress being made. They're making ground."

Once the fire is extinguished, firefighters will apply a coat of foam to prevent the possibility the blaze could re-ignite, Nelson said.

An 825-foot British-registered tanker, the Vic Bilh, was standing by to begin receiving the remainder of the Mega Borg's cargo of light African crude, a process known as lightering.

Greene said that operation could be dangerous because the ship is listing slightly and crews might have to pump water into the holds to keep the vessel balanced.

"We're feeling fairly confident at this point, but we're not going to really breathe easy until the oil is back in a terminal," Nelson said.

The ship's left rear section, however, was close to the water line Tuesday, a day after the rear dipped below the surface and heightened fears the vessel might sink.

Council approves payment

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The Stanton City Council authorized payment of $32,500 for work done to begin closing the city-county landfill and agreed to contribute $1,980 to assist the fire department in purchasing new equipment.

Councilmembers agreed to pay Eagle Construction of Eastland for work to knock a hill down to a 4-1 slope. The next step is to cover the landfill's trash with a layer of dirt.

Those are the first two of three phases to close the landfill within an 18-month grace period of when some new costly federal monitoring regulations go into effect this summer or fall.

Another phase is to build a 10-foot chain link fence going around the corridor of an access road entering the landfill. Total closing costs are expected to be about $220,000.

"It's progressing along very well," reported Gary Harris, of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper Inc., a Midland engineering firm retained by the city.

"My guess is we'll have paid out 90 percent of the bills by the time of our next meeting," he said at Monday's meeting. "The best we know, the new regulations probably won't come out until September."

Concerning new coats and boots for the fire department, councilmen decided not to contribute one-half of the total $5,940 cost as requested but did agree to pay one-third. "I don't think the city can go half and they (fire department) have the funds," City Administrator Paul Lively told councilmembers before a vote was taken.

A stipulation of the agreement to donate money is that firemen should wear the new gear whenever they are on a fire call. "There were some of them at one time that said they didn't want to wear them," explained Councilman Lester Baker.

In other business, the Council: ● Read a final reading and passed a Texas Community Development Program citizen participation plan to curb, gutter and pave eight blocks of streets on the city's northside. The plan will be used to apply for a grant to finance the full $192,270 in construction costs.

It will be submitted, along with plans from other area cities, in July to the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. The commission will decide which plans are needed by communities the most and then forward them to the state.

Teacher suspended

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — The University Interscholastic League has suspended from UIL competition for one semester a Snyder High School drama teacher whose one-act play performances have consistently won honors at the state contest.

The UIL state executive committee's vote hinged on whether it believed one-act play director Jerry Worsham had pressured algebra teacher Jamie Hall to retest a cast member who had failed algebra with a grade of 69, one point short of a passing grade.

Superintendent Bob Caster of Palestine, committee chairman, said Tuesday, "There was a feeling among members that there was some pressure thrust upon" Ms. Hall.

Worsham was suspended from competition for the fall semester, and was placed on probation for the spring semester 1991 and the 1991-92 school year.

Also by unanimous vote, the UIL committee publicly reprimanded and placed on probation for one year Snyder's one-act play program.

Bonnie Northcutt of the UIL said the proceeding was the first concerning the no-pass, no-play law to reach the executive committee that didn't involve athletics.

Currently, students who do not achieve a 70 in all classes are suspended from UIL competition for six weeks.

After student Coy Berryman, who performed the role of Petruccio in "Taming of the Shrew," made a 69 for the grading period ending April 20, Worsham wrote Ms. Hall, "Of course I am going to plead with you for MERCY."

"I must appeal to the kinder, gentler side of you to ask" that Berryman "be given some 'midnight hour' chance to bring the grade to passing," Worsham wrote.

Worsham said Berryman's role "is so critical, that if he is not eligible, we will have to withdraw and stay at home."

"I appeal to you on the part of the parents of the other kids," Worsham said. "Reservations for hotels are made. Plans are underway for travel, etc. They are going to be terribly distressed that their child does not get his opportunity to 'shine' because of one student's failure."

On the makeup tests, after the grading period had ended, Berryman scored 60 and 75, which raised his total grade to 70, Ms. Hall said.

"I felt like that the burden of the play rested on my shoulders," Ms. Hall told the UIL committee.

Worsham said, "I did not ask her to change a grade but to give him (Berryman) opportunity to bring his grade to passing as she had done for other students. . . I have never asked a teacher to change a grade."

Snyder Superintendent Dalton Moseley said Texas Education Agency officials, after the situation had been explained, informed the school by telephone April 26 that "nothing improper had been done."

But on May 23, Julian Shaddix, TEA assistant commissioner for school administration, advised Moseley by letter that Berryman was ineligible, and that his participation in UIL competition violated state law and the State Board of Education rule on extracurricular activities.

Such a violation automatically stripped Snyder of the second-place certificate it won in 1990 Class 4A one-act play competition, as well as its two individual medals.

After the UIL committee had imposed its penalties Tuesday, Worsham said he would not appeal. "I'm relieved that it's over. . . If the penalty had been stiffer, I think there might have been an appeal."

Worsham was described by his attorney as the winningest drama coach ever in Texas, taking one-act plays to state competition in 21 of 23 years. Worsham said his performers had won 11 first places.

Farm scene

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The nation's shrunken wheat inventory is expected to increase sharply as farmers move into a bumper harvest, according to the latest Agriculture Department forecasts.

But the important 1990 corn crop is still being planted and it will be a couple of months before firm yield estimates are ready.

Winter wheat production was estimated Tuesday at a nine-year high of 2.09 billion bushels. That was down fractionally from the May forecast, but still 44 percent more than last year's drought-battered harvest of 1.45 billion bushels.

Figures released by the department's Agricultural Statistics Board showed the decline from the May forecast was only about 0.1 percent, or less than 2.4 million bushels.

The average yield, based on indications as of June 1, was estimated at 41.2 bushels per acre, compared with 41.1 bushels indicated last month and the 1989 yield of 35.1 bushels.

Farmers are expected to harvest fewer than 50.7 million acres, down from 50.8 million indicated in May.

"Wet conditions have caused yield declines in the (Mississippi) Delta area," the report said. "Early harvested fields in Arkansas had low test weights, and diseases are a problem."

The Missouri crop is developing late, with about 23 percent "turning color" in the ripening process as of June 3, approximately 10 days behind the usual pace, the report said.

In Kansas, winter wheat production was estimated at 460.2 million bushels, unchanged from the May forecast and more than double the shriveled 1989 harvest of 213.6 million bushels.

Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the next year. It accounts for about three-fourths of the U.S. total wheat production. The remainder is planted in the spring.

The USDA's first official estimate of 1990 production of all wheat will be issued July 12. The first estimates for corn, soybeans and some other major spring-planted crops are scheduled for Aug. 9, along with revised figures for wheat.

No official estimates of total 1990 wheat output based on field surveys were included.

However, department analysts in a related report did project "highly tentative" 1990 production of all wheat at almost 2.69 billion bushels, up from fewer than 2.04 billion bushels last year and virtually unchanged from the May projection.

Projections for all wheat and some other crops were based on yield trends and an assumption the crop would have normal weather the remainder of the growing season.

The 1990 corn harvest was projected at 8.1 billion bushels, up from 7.53 billion harvested last year and unchanged from May. Soybean production was projected at 1.925 billion bushels, also unchanged from last month and virtually the same as the crop of 1.927 billion bushels in 1989.

According to the supply-and-demand report, the U.S. wheat stockpile was drained to a 15-year low of 452 million bushels on June 1, the beginning of the new wheat marketing year. But with the expected larger 1990 harvest, the wheat stockpile could be rebuilt to about 772 million bushels a year from now.

The projected larger 1990 wheat harvest is putting pressure on market prices, which were indicated in both May and June in the range of $2.90 to $3.30 per bushel in 1990-91, compared with an estimated $3.71 last season.

If corn production turns out at the projected level of 8.1 billion bushels, it still wouldn't be quite enough to match domestic and export demand, the report showed. Thus, the U.S. corn stockpile, which may be around 1.28 billion bushels next fall, could edge lower by Oct. 1, 1991.

Other June crop estimates included:

- Oranges, 184 million boxes, up 3 percent from May prospects but down 12 percent from last season.
- Peach production, including California clingstones, 2.13 billion pounds, down 9 percent from last year. The California clingstone crop, at 1 billion pounds, is up 1 percent from 1989.
- Barlett pear production in the Pacific Coast states, 545,000 tons, up 4 percent from last year.
- Sweet cherry production in the Western states, 131,000 tons, down 22 percent from last year.

Under control

GALVESTON — Smoke continues to bellow from the supertanker Mega Borg Tuesday. The tanker, located 57 miles from Galveston, has been ablaze since Saturday, but firefighters were able to bring the fire under control late Tuesday.

Nestor's notes

By NESTOR HERNANDEZ

To protect crop acreage bases, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service recommends that all farmers file an acreage report, whether or not they are participating in the 1990 commodity programs.

By reporting crop acreages, producers establish documentation for future crop acreage bases as well as eligibility for different benefits if they decide to participate in future farm programs.

It is very important for farmers who are participating in farm programs to file an acreage report, because without it they are not really participating. We must have the report in order to determine the level at which producers are eligible for price support loans, deficiency payments and other program benefits.

As of June 12, 210 farms in the county had reported fall-seeded and spring seeded crops.

Final certification date for spring seeded program crops in Martin County is July 16, 1990.

Acreage reports contain crops and acreages planted, the uses to be made of these crops, and cropland acreages devoted to the acreage conservation reserve.

When producers report to the county ASCS office, they can review aerial photographs of their farm and pinpoint the fields in which the crops are grown. This information is then documented for program compliance and crop acreages.

Astronomers: Indians saw supernova 900 years ago

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — A 23-pointed star painted on a pottery bowl shows that a supernova seen by ancient Asians and Arabs also was witnessed by New Mexico's prehistoric Indians, researchers said.

"The bowl provides us with the best supported historic record from the Western Hemisphere of the supernova that created the Crab Nebula," said R. Robert Robbins, an astronomy professor at the University of Texas at Austin.

"In fact, the bowl is the most certain record of the supernova that has ever been discovered outside China and Japan," he said Tuesday during the 176th meeting of the American Astronomical Society.

The white earthenware bowl, from the Mimbres Indian Classic Period between A.D. 1000 and A.D. 1150, also shows the black-painted figure of a rabbit curled into a crescent shape to symbolize the moon, Robbins said.

The rabbit is a god in the folklore of ancient cultures stretching down toward Central America, Robbins said.

The Crab Nebula is a huge cloud of gas in space that is the remnant of the supernova. Supernovas are dying stars that blow up and eject matter in all directions.

Astronomers believe that all but the lightest elements in the universe were created by supernovas, and therefore planets and all life on them are made of star dust from the ancient explosions.

The Crab Nebula is about 6 light years wide and about 6,500 light years from Earth. One light year equals almost 6 trillion miles, which is the distance light travels in one year.

American astronomers discovered early in this century that the Crab Nebula is expanding at a rate implying an explosion beginning about 900 years ago when first seen from Earth.

A computer analysis shows the position of the sunburst and the rabbit generally coincides with the location of the supernova and the crescent moon on the morning of July 5, 1054, Robbins said.

"It shows us how sophisticated these people were," Robbins said. "I think if people would go outside and look up at the sky and begin to watch, they'd begin to realize how much effort and how much ingenuity and thought . . . it takes to really be able to understand celestial phenomena," he said.

The Mimbres lived in small farming villages in what is now southwestern New Mexico.

Their early bowls contained mostly geometric designs suggestive of lightning and water. But the Classic period depicted rabbits, deer and other animals found in the Mimbres Valley.

The figures showed scenes such as hunting, fishing, making love and giving birth, Robbins said.

The figures also are linked to the heavens, said Robbins and his colleague, Russell Westmoreland, a photo technician in the University of Texas at Austin's astronomy department who helped make the supernova-bowl link.

The bowl was from a village called Galaz, which was excavated by scientists from the University of Minnesota, Robbins said.

The bowl was found in the 1930s under 5 feet of earth in a burial room, he said.

Westmoreland said he was researching links between Mimbres pottery and astronomy at the time he showed a movie two years ago on the Crab Nebula. The rabbit-and-the-star bowl was in the back of his mind.

"Chinese astronomers had seen it for 23 days and the next day I got together with Dr. Robbins and said, 'Look at this, this has got to be a supernova,'" Westmoreland said.

Robbins said that at the time, Westmoreland was a student of his in an archaeo-astronomy class.

"For a term paper, he wanted to write about the pottery of the Mimbres and whether or not he could find any astronomy in it," Robbins said. "He did find some astronomy in it, starting with the rabbit."

 Agreed that some councilmembers will meet with Harris at 6 p.m. on June 21 to tour area parks in preparation for an application to the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife Service for a 50-50 matching grant for park improvements. They will be held in the city park.

Discussed applying for a flood control grant from the state but decided to forgo this year's July 24 application deadline.

"You make mistakes when you try to get in a hurry," Harris advised the Council. "I would suggest if you do this, you work toward next year." He also said that they may want to check with county commissioners to see if they want to participate.

Voted to allow the Martin County Country Club to purchase water from the city at the rate the city pays, to be used in their swimming pool this year.

Declined to donate $4,500 as requested by the Texas Highway Department to help build a $90,000 railroad crossing guard on St. Mary's Street. "It's not in the budget," Mayor Danny Fryar said.

GRILLED CALIFORNIA CHICKEN

- 1 Teaspoon minced fresh garlic
 - 2 Tablespoons olive oil
 - 1 (10 oz.) can RO*TEL diced Tomatoes and Green Chilies
 - 1/4 Can orange juice
 - 2 Teaspoons soy sauce
 - 1/4 Teaspoon chili powder
 - 5 Boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- Shredded cheese
Avocado slices

Prepare barbecue grill (medium heat) or broiler. Saute garlic in olive oil, add RO*TEL, orange juice, soy sauce and chili powder. Cook over medium heat 5 minutes, stirring often. Remove 1/2 cup sauce for basting, keep remaining sauce warm. Barbecue or broil chicken 5-10 minutes per side or until done. Baste chicken with sauce as it cooks. To serve, top each breast with remaining warm sauce, shredded cheese and avocado slices. When barbecuing chicken with bones, baste with sauce the last 15-20 minutes of cooking time.

Go nuts over chocolate Marsha Adams, an expert on Amish cookery and culture

If you've gone nutty over chocolate, you're not alone. Chocolate is America's favorite flavor!

Chocolate Mousse Espresso with Hazelnut Brittle, a prizewinning recipe from the "Just Desserts" contest held at the Culinary Institute of America, owes its unbelievable smoothness to Knox® Unflavored Gelatine.

The crunchiness of chocolate cookie crumbs and chopped hazelnuts between the layers of mousse gives a delightful contrast in textures.

Topped by a ruffle of whipped cream and a garnish of Hazelnut Brittle, Chocolate Mousse Espresso is a delight any time of the year.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE ESPRESSO WITH HAZELNUT BRITTLE

- 2 envelopes Knox Unflavored Gelatine
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 4 teaspoons instant espresso coffee
- 2 1/2 cups milk
- 12 squares (1 oz. ea.) semi-sweet chocolate
- 1 1/2 cups whipping or heavy cream
- 1 1/2 cups chocolate wafer crumbs
- 1/2 cup hazelnuts, toasted, skinned and chopped

Hazelnut Brittle

In medium saucepan, mix unflavored gelatine with 1/2 cup sugar and coffee; blend in milk. Let stand one minute. Stir over low heat until gelatine is completely dissolved, about five minutes. Add chocolate and continue cooking, stirring constantly, until chocolate is melted. With wire whip or rotary beater, beat mixture until chocolate is blended.

Pour into large bowl and chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from spoon.

In medium bowl, whip cream with remaining sugar; reserve 1/2 cup for garnish. Fold remaining whipped cream into gelatine mixture.

Combine hazelnuts with wafers. Tilt stemmed glassware or dessert dishes, then alternately layer gelatine mixture with hazelnut mixture; chill at least 30 minutes. Garnish with Hazelnut Brittle and reserved whipped cream.

Makes about 10 servings.

Hazelnut Brittle

In large skillet, cook one cup sugar over medium heat. As sugar begins to melt, gently tilt skillet until completely melted and golden brown.

Stir in 1/2 cup hazelnuts, toasted, skinned and chopped. Quickly pour onto greased cookie sheet and chill. To serve, break into pieces.

Because Marsha Adams is a talented food writer and an animated conversationalist, it is not surprising—although no less remarkable—that her first cookbook has been published by the first publishing company that she contacted, and that this book is the basis for a 13-part cooking series which will begin airing on PBS this fall.

At first glance, it is obvious that Cooking from Quilt Country: Hearty Recipes from Amish and Mennonite Kitchens (Clarkson N. Potter), is a first-rate cookbook, and that it offers unusual insight into the lives of Indiana's "plain people."

Having grown up in rural Indiana, in the midst of Amish farm country, Adams approaches her subject matter with a sensitivity and appreciation that can come only from being an intimate and interested observer/participant in the life of the community.

Quilting bees, country auctions and barn raisings are but a few of the events of which, in Cooking from Quilt Country, Adams writes with enthusiasm, capturing the flavor of each and offering recipes for foods likely to be served at these occasions.

Adams, the food editor of Heritage Country, a regional magazine, has long been interested in food history. She observes that "the Amish and Mennonite wanderings are traceable through food; the cuisine of the Indiana Amish and Mennonites is tied to three distinct culinary traditions: Those of Europe, the Pennsylvania Dutch and the rural Midwest."

"I collect old recipes the way some people collect old furniture," Adams says. "My collection is less expensive—but when I realized that it had become an absolute compulsion, I knew this book would have to be written."

Drawing on her connections within the Amish community, Adams spent hours sitting in farmhouse kitchens. As she watched, took notes and, sometimes, interrupted the proceedings to measure ingredients—with the standardized utensils which she soon learned to bring along—the women she visited cooked and baked the traditional Amish and Mennonite dishes that have been passed down lovingly from generation to generation.

She came to see that, "for these women, love of their families is expressed through food and quilts; there is a correlation between the two that made it necessary for the beautiful quilts of the Amish to be included in this book, along with their wonderful recipes."

In fact, it was after having spent some time in an Amish home, researching Amish quilts, that Adams first conceived of writing Cooking from Quilt Country. The title was "the first flash of inspiration," she recalls, and, after that, "it was a matter of spending time doing three things I love: Researching, writing and spending time in the countryside."

Eventually, she was teamed with award-winning photographer Alexandra Avakian, whose color photography is stunning both for its skillful simplicity and its intriguing subject matter, and the result is a volume which is simultaneously a celebration of "great indigenous ingredients and recipes" and an extraordinary evocation of a peaceful and productive way of life.

Photographs of Amish quilts from the David Pottinger collection at the Indiana State Museum offer dramatic testimony to the artistry of the Amish and Mennonite women who have been creating these masterpieces for generations.

Adams is pleased that, in addition to recipe demonstrations, each episode of her PBS series will include a brief presentation of a quilt from the David Pottinger collection and film footage from the Amish and Mennonite community. Sponsored by the Ball Corporation and Maple Leaf Farms, the series will begin airing in September.

Reflecting on her life-long interest in food and its preparation, Adams recalls that when she was a young child, "my mother let me cook to keep me quiet while she worked in the kitchen." She remembers assembling a miniature pie, using child-size utensils and scraps of dough, when she was three or four, and now comments that "it's hard to believe that my great-grandmother's recipe for Amish Brown Sugar Pie could have led to all this!" This recipe, along with nearly 200 more, appears in Cooking from Quilt Country.

Chapters are divided by season, and include 18 sections which explore various aspects of Amish and Mennonite farm life, ranging from "The Ripening Garden" and "Preserving the Harvest," to "The Wedding Day" and "The Blizzard Pantry."

From down-home favorites such as Country Fair Barbecue Sandwiches and Homemade Ice Cream, to an Elegant Roast Duckling with Sauerkraut and Apple Dressing, there are dozens of delightful recipes.

Adams points out that many are ideal for entertaining. "The Amish women are busy; many of the foods they make can be prepared in advance and, by and large, they are quite economical, as well." And, she observes, some of the recipes, such as the one for a delicate Rhubarb Sherbet, are likely to surprise those who do not ordinarily associate this type of sophistication with Amish cookery.

The recipes below are reproduced from Cooking from Quilt Country. Adams is particularly fond of the Tomato Dumplings, which she cites as an example of "country cooking at its very best." The Amish Bean Soup is often prepared in Amish and Mennonite kitchens during the winter months. Both are representative of the authentic—and delicious—recipes which are so beautifully presented in Cooking from Quilt Country.

AMISH BEAN SOUP

Serves 6

- 1 pound navy beans
 - 3 quarts water
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - Pinch of baking soda
 - 1/2 cup shredded carrot
 - 1 cup chopped celery
 - 2 medium onions, chopped
 - 2 bay leaves
 - 1 1/2 pounds ham meat
 - Ham bone
 - Leftover ham drippings
 - 1 cup mashed boiled potato
 - 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme (optional)
 - 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
 - 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley
- In a large soup kettle, combine the beans, water, salt, and baking soda.

Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer for 5 minutes. Remove from the heat, skim off foam, re-cover, and let stand for 2 hours. (The beans can also be soaked overnight if you prefer.)

Add the remaining ingredients except the parsley and simmer, covered, for about 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Watch beans, for the cooking time will vary and the beans should not get mushy. Remove the ham bone and dice any overly large pieces of meat and return to the soup. Add the parsley just before serving. This soup freezes well.

TOMATO DUMPLINGS

Serves 4-6

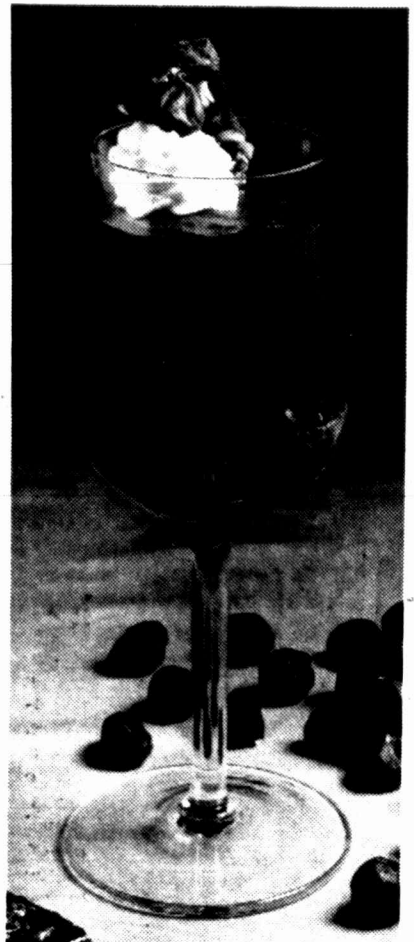

- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup finely chopped green bell pepper
- 1/4 cup finely chopped celery
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 28-ounce can whole tomatoes, coarsely chopped, with juice
- 2 teaspoons brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil or 1 tablespoon fresh (optional)
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Dumplings

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter, cold
- 1 egg, beaten
- 6 tablespoons milk
- 1 heaping tablespoon finely minced fresh parsley

In a medium saucepan, melt the butter and saute the onion, pepper, celery, and bay leaf until the onion becomes transparent, about 5 minutes. Add the tomatoes and seasonings, bring to a boil, and simmer, uncovered, for 3 minutes.

In a medium bowl, combine the first 3 ingredients for the dumplings. Cut in the cold butter with a pastry blender or 2 knives until the mixture resembles coarse oatmeal. Add the egg, milk, and parsley. Blend lightly; don't overmix. Drop by tablespoonfuls (approximately 6) on top of the simmering tomatoes. Cover tightly, and cook over medium-low heat for 20 minutes. Do not lift the cover during the cooking period. Serve in bowls, topped with butter. P8899905

Diversions for summertime dieters

When you are on your way to your diet goal... after you've consumed at least a bushel of lettuce and more celery and carrots than you can possibly count... it's time for a change!

Feeling discouraged?

Most nutritionists claim that boredom is the real culprit in weight control failures. When dieters reach a plateau in lost pounds, many become so discouraged they reach for high-calorie snacks. If this happens to you, why not try these apple desserts or Apple Knox Blox instead?

These delicious desserts are light, fun to eat and quick-to-fix. Made with Knox® Unflavored Gelatine, they use a base of fresh fruit juice for flavor and a touch of approved sweetness.

Knox contains no sugar of its own, while adding a wonderful texture. You'll satisfy your sweet tooth without sacrificing your diet.

A good alternative

So, next time you begin to lose interest in your diet, try these apple desserts for a diversion. They won't break the calorie bank and will spur you on to dieting success.

SPARKLING APPLE DESSERTS

Basic Apple Gel

- 1 envelope Knox Unflavored Gelatine
- 1/2 cup cold apple juice
- 1 1/2 cups apple juice, heated to boiling

In medium bowl, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold juice; let stand 1 minute. Add hot juice and stir until gelatine is completely dissolved. Pour into 2-cup bowl or dessert dishes; chill until firm. Makes about 4 servings.

Note: If desired, 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar or honey may be added after gelatine is dissolved.

APPEALING VARIATIONS:

Apple Cloud: After gelatine is completely dissolved, chill until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg whites. With electric mixer, beat at high speed until mixture triples in volume, about 10 minutes. Turn into 6-cup bowl; chill until set. Makes about 12 servings.

Apple Easy Blox: Increase unflavored gelatine to 3 envelopes and cold juice to

1 1/2 cups. Proceed as in Basic Apple Gel. After gelatine is completely dissolved, pour mixture into 8 or 9-inch baking pan; chill until firm. To serve, cut into 1-inch squares. Makes about 6 dozen Blox. P6897686

Getting your workday off to a great start

By now, it's no surprise that breakfast is an important meal. A good morning meal provides fuel to start the day and can help to curb mid-morning munching. Many nutritionists recommend that as much as one-third of your daily nutrient needs be supplied by breakfast.

Individual tastes and appetites may vary at breakfast time. One way to get a nutritious morning meal is to try to include foods from each of the four food groups. Choose a bread or cereal, a protein-rich food, a serving of fruits or vegetables and something from the dairy group.

An easy weekday breakfast is Sunshine Muffins, English muffins topped with ricotta cheese and fresh fruit, and served with nutritious V8 Regular or No Salt Added vegetable juice. V8 juice provides 50 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of vitamin C, 45 percent of vitamin A and only 35 calories in each six-ounce serving.

For more breakfast recipes and tips, send for a new leaflet, "Good Morning Breakfast with V8 Vegetable Juice." To order, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-sized envelope to: V8 Breakfast Leaflet, P.O. Box 964, Bensalem, PA 19020.

Breakfast Menu

- V8 vegetable juice (6 ounce serving)
- Sunshine Muffin

SUNSHINE MUFFIN

- 1 English muffin, split and toasted
- 1/2 cup part-skim ricotta cheese
- 1/2 cup sliced fresh fruit
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon sugar

Spread each muffin half with cheese; spoon fruit on top. Sprinkle fruit with cinnamon sugar.

Makes one serving.

Summer party planning:

Eighty percent of American women enjoy entertaining guests and preparing party foods, according to a national women's service magazine.

Long, daylight-filled days make summer one of the most popular times for informal, and often unexpected, entertaining. Prepare now for barbecues, picnics and pool parties by stocking up on food and beverages that are easy to store and quick to fix.

Here are several suggestions from Zip-Pak Incorporated, makers of ZIP-PAK™ resealable packaging, to help minimize kitchen time:

- Use the staples of summer—hot dogs, chicken, cheeseburgers, corn-on-the-cob—for impromptu barbecues. Hot dogs and cheese slices in resealable packaging protect leftovers effectively. Freeze individually-wrapped patties and chicken pieces. Defrost as needed.

• Load the refrigerator with fruit juices, sodas and sparkling waters to revive the thirsty. Iced tea or coffee is a stimulating refresher.

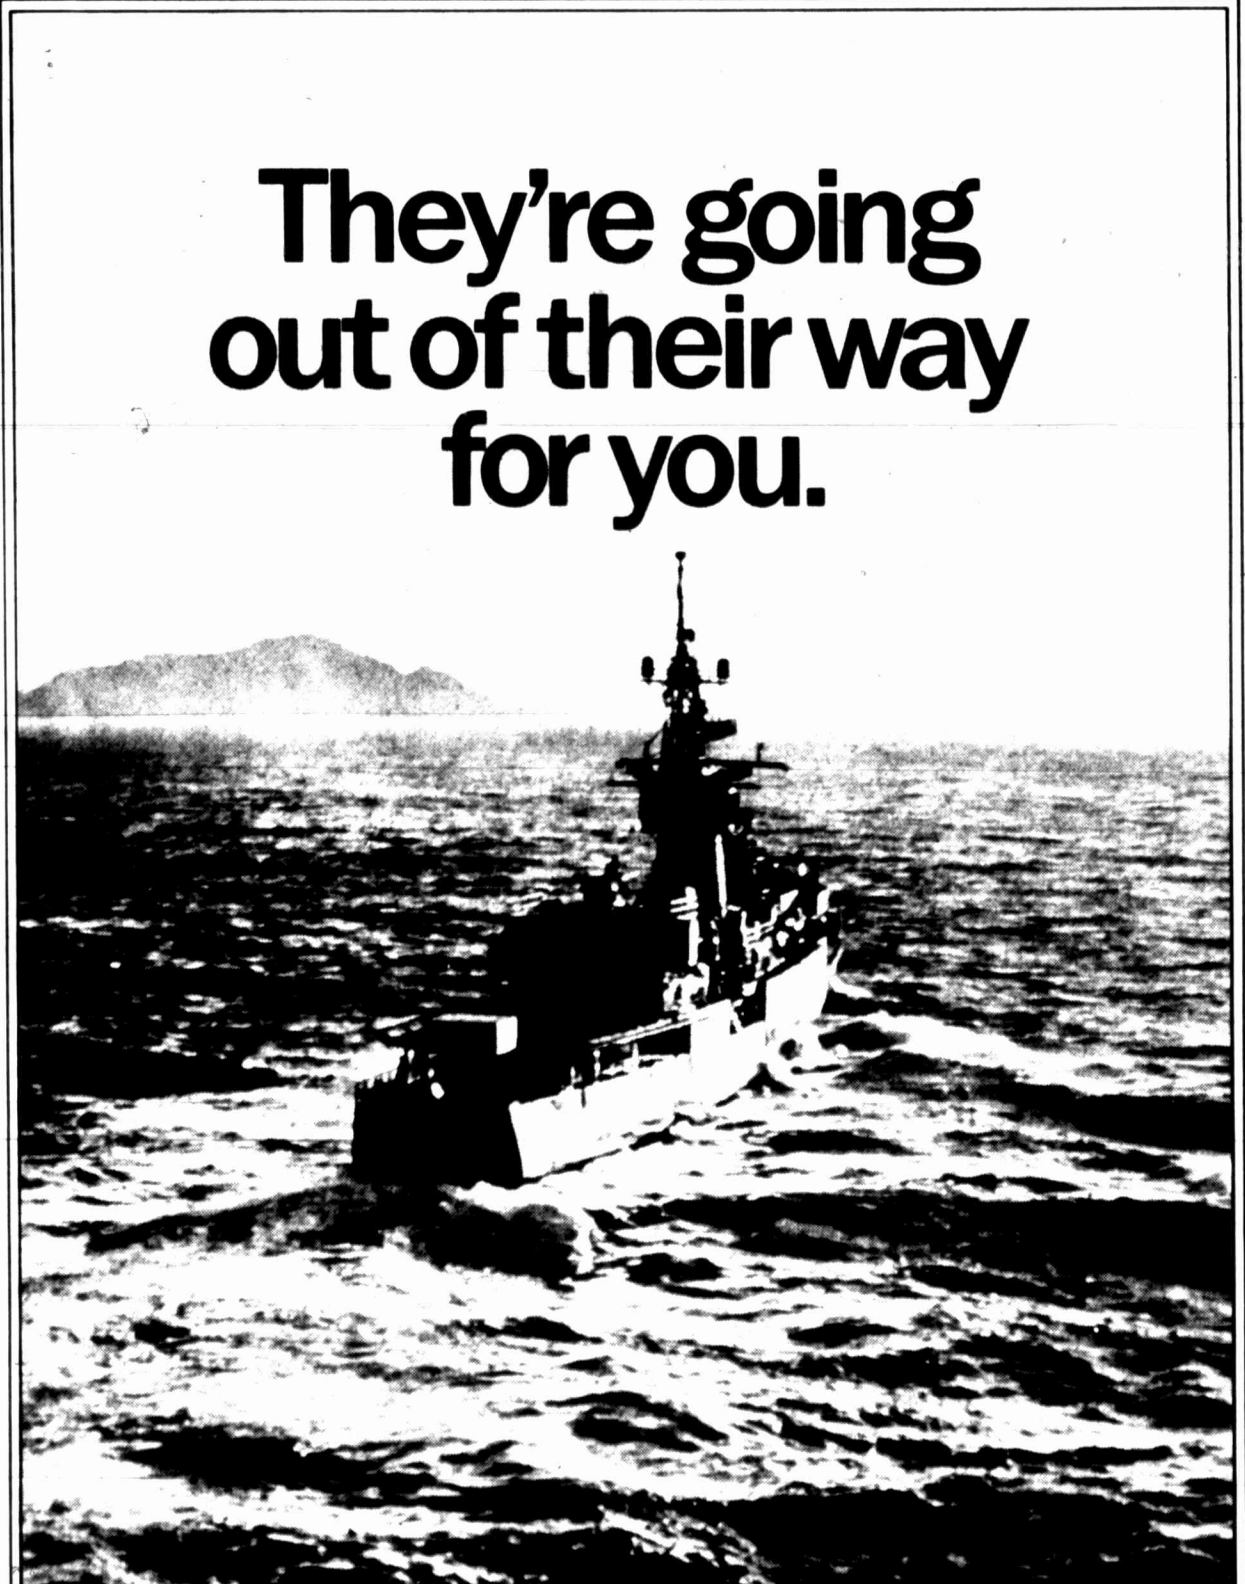

• Prepare appetizing side dishes or main meals using pasta and rice. One suggestion is colorful Confetti Salad. Simply combine 1 1/2 cups cooked white or brown rice with 1/4 cup diced tomato, green and yellow peppers, minced onion and one tsp. of parsley. In a large bowl, mix thoroughly with 4 tbs. of ranch dressing. Chill and serve.

• Crackers, cookies and potato chips in resealable packaging are protected from summer humidity in picnic weather. Store in refrigerator to preserve freshness.

• Forgot to buy dessert? Make your own, using everyday ingredients.

Ice cream pies featuring graham cracker crumbs, topped with chocolate bits and nuts, or frozen yogurt parfaits, layered with chunks of fresh fruit, are two easy-to-make dessert suggestions.

Skincare advances save your face from stress

Stress. It's been the health buzzword since the mid-'80s, blamed for almost every physical and psychological problem you can think of. Most people don't know quite what it is, but they do know it when they feel it. What most people don't realize, however, is that stress, in and of itself, is not bad.

According to psychologist Mildred Feiner, Ph.D., a member of the Almay Stress Information Council, "People have to live with a certain amount of stress. There is good stress and bad stress."

In fact, stress is a basic part of being human and living a full life. A life without stress (no matter how wonderful that idea seems when you're at the burnout point) would be unbearably boring, so boring, in fact, that it would be stressful!

Stress is simply the body's way of coping with a crisis or a perceived crisis. Whether that crisis is an argument with your husband, a co-worker taking credit for your ideas, or your three-year-old's tantrum in the middle of a department store, your body reacts in the same way: Your heart begins to pound, your palms begin to sweat, your adrenaline starts pumping. Instinctively, your body is gearing up to do battle. It's a fight or flight reaction that's left over from prehistoric days, and it's not always appropriate to the situation.

Working mothers are particularly vulnerable to this kind of burnout. When a woman tries to do everything—have a successful, rewarding career while raising children, taking care of household chores, and spending time with her husband—and do it all well, she's likely to find that she has no time at all for herself.

The key to coping with stress, in fact, may be to spend some time every day taking care of yourself. Don't think of this as being selfish, because when you feel good about yourself, you're better able to take on the challenges of day-to-day living.

Stress doesn't only affect your state of mind; it affects your skin as well. According to New York dermatologist, Robert Bernstein, M.D., stress can lead to flare-ups of existing conditions such as eczema and hives.

And skin has its own sources of stress. It doesn't have to worry about the babysitter cancelling at the last minute, but it does have to cope with sun and wind, both of which dry the skin and lead to wrinkling.

The sun, of course, is your skin's worst enemy. Its ultraviolet rays lead to premature aging of the skin and often to skin cancer. According to Dr. Bernstein, sun exposure decreases the protective function of the skin's outer layer. This leads to water loss and drying; alters the skin's ability to protect itself from further damage; and accelerates aging by altering the skin's DNA. The outlook for the '90s and beyond is even more bleak, because as the earth's ozone layer deteriorates, we will be exposed to higher levels of ultraviolet radiation.

SPRITZING a few times a day with a refreshing mist will give you a quick pick-up and reduce the effects of stress on your skin.

So, to protect skin from stress, first and foremost, always wear a sunscreen. And to keep your skin looking its best, even when your life is hectic, here are some additional tips from the Almay Stress Information Council:

- Use a moisturizer. According to plastic surgeon Joan M. Stets, M.D., moisturizers seal in the body's own natural water, and may slow down the aging process of the skin.

- Stressed skin is especially sensitive, so use products that are fragrance-free, formulated from the purest ingredients, and thoroughly tested for use on sensitive skin. Almay makes a special line of stress products, including facial and body moisturizers, an eye gel and a lip treatment, to soothe and relieve stressed skin.

- Don't over do it. According to Stanley Levy, M.D., Director of Medical Affairs for Almay, frequent use of astringents, facial masques, and harsh cleansers strips the skin of protective layers and can leave skin raw, red, and irritated. Stressed skin needs gentle care.

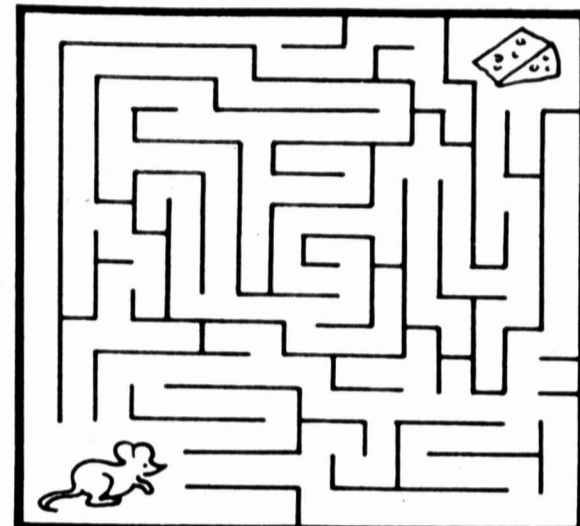

- Break those bad habits that stress your skin. Picking and rubbing the skin and even leaning your chin on your hand can cause acne. Twirling your hair irritates the hair follicles and may lead to hair loss. And smoking and excessive drinking cause the skin to age prematurely.

What do your dreams reveal?

Everybody dreams when they go to sleep, although not everyone can recall what they've been dreaming about.

Just for fun, here's a list of things you might dream about and what they could mean.

Dreams about water mean a variety of things. Clear, calm water is a symbol of good luck, but murky water means difficulties ahead. Throwing or spilling water means you've got to watch your temper! Dreaming about drowning means that you are feeling overwhelmed by something that's going on in your life.

Dreams about playing sports mean there's some money coming your way. A dream of watching sports means you should be careful about the friends you choose.

Dreams about birds are generally thought to mean good fortune. If you dream about the beak of a bird, it means you will be moving to a new house soon.

Dreams about roller coasters mean that you are afraid that your life is out of control.

Dreams about rainbows mean an end to troubles followed by great happiness.

Rain for forty days?

In England, July 15th is St. Swithin's Day. The traditional belief is that if it rains on St. Swithin's Day, it will rain for 40 days.

St. Swithin was an English bishop who lived in the ninth century. He is said to have wished to be buried in the churchyard so that the sweet rain of heaven might fall upon the grave.

When he was made a saint, some eager monks decided to move his body inside the cathedral. But it is said to have rained for 40 days when they did this. Hence, rain is now associated with St. Swithin.

The tallest grass in the world

You've probably heard your mom or dad complaining that the grass needs mowing during the summer. But did you know that grass has been known to grow as high as ten-story buildings?

This type of grass is called bamboo and only grows in tropical areas. Although the plant consists of a tall, woody pole, it's still related to the grass in your yard.

Bamboo can grow at an incredible speed—sometimes two whole feet in just one day! And because of its height it can be used to make a variety of things, from fishing poles to ships' masts, furniture and paper. You may even have tasted bamboo shoots in a Chinese restaurant.

FOR THE DAD WHO'S A CUT ABOVE THE REST

Now, dad can complete important home improvement projects and build his favorite furniture pieces easier and faster with high-tech hand saws that feature more aggressive saw tooth designs, like Stanley Tools' new Short Cut™ Tool Box Saw. The new saw cuts up to 50 percent faster than conventional saws, and also has a handle with built-in 45° and 90° miter and square angles for convenient marking.

Though its finely shaped wood handle and flexible hard steel cutting blades are similar to those of a conventional saw, the new "space-age" hand saw has very different saw blade edge and tooth configurations. The edge of the saw blade is a miniature masterpiece of design, with teeth alternately set pointing outward in opposite directions to make a cut wider than the blade's thickness. As they cut, the teeth make two parallel cuts at once, grinding up the wood in the middle as the saw moves.

The saw cuts 50 percent faster than conventional saws because each tooth is precision-set and bevel-ground with three distinct cutting angles, which enable constant contact with the wood to be maintained.

As an extra plus for dad, Stanley also is offering, now through July 1, a free folding pocket saw ($9.95 value) with each purchase of a Stanley Short Cut Tool Box Saw. To receive a free folding saw, simply send dated cash register receipt with your name and address to Stanley Tools, Marketing Department—Saws, 600 Myrtle Street, New Britain, CT 06050. FD908890

Parents' career stress affects the entire family

Now that about 75 percent of all mothers with children under 18 are out in the workplace, men, forced to help more with household chores and child rearing, are beginning to feel the parenting stress that women have known and suffered through for centuries.

But employers aren't making it any easier for dads who feel the strains that have plagued working mothers for decades. True, there is progress being made toward parental leave for both mothers and fathers, but since such leaves are usually without pay, most men are reluctant to take advantage of this change in attitudes and philosophies. In fact, one survey indicated that only about 11 percent of the fathers queried took advantage of a parental leave policy.

There's little doubt that many young fathers have great concerns about managing the responsibilities of career and family. And there is even some indication that dads are passing up promotions and/or transfers because they feel the need to spend more time with their families. Almost as many fathers as mothers, in another study, said they "feel a lot of stress" in balancing their work and family lives. Still, it's almost always mothers who report "extreme stress" resulting from this juggling act.

Understandably, dads feel the stress more when child-care duties force them to miss work, a situation that often causes headaches, disgruntled attitudes and even dissatisfaction with their jobs and families. Traditionally, jobs came first with men. Sometimes they are too busy to help; but perhaps more often they are Survey shows that many Americans are saying "ouch" to the cost—not pain—of dental care.

When it comes to visiting the dentist, Americans worry more about hurting their pocketbooks than feeling pain, according to a recent national survey commissioned by the Colgate U.S. Oral Care Division.

Only a quarter of the respondents (27 percent) in the survey worry about pain usually associated with dental work, while nearly half (47 percent) worry about paying the dental bills.

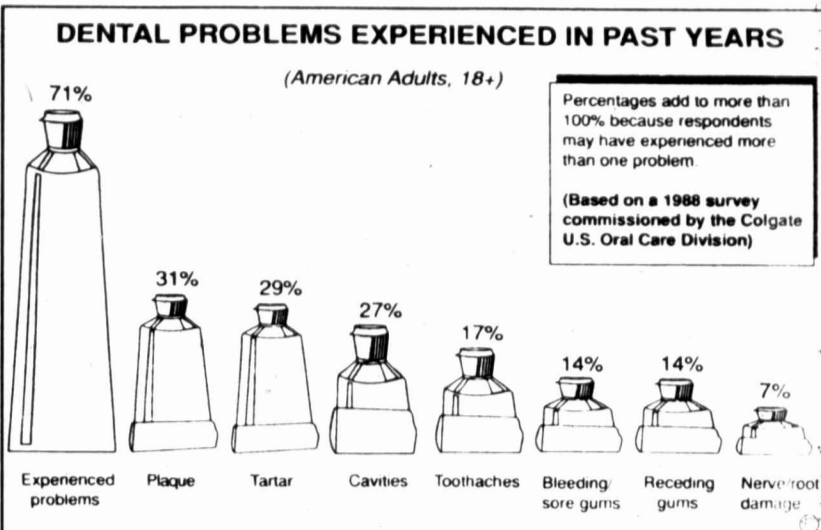

"Taking proper care of your teeth and gums now will save you time, pain and money in the long-run. Neglecting your teeth and gums may lead to root canals, fillings or restorative surgery, which are expensive," says Douglas Meyer, vice president/general manager, Colgate U.S. Oral Care.

America's "toothaches"

The increased use of fluoride toothpastes has contributed to the decline of cavities, but the survey revealed that more than a quarter of the respondents (27 percent) still developed cavities last year.

Other common oral care problems experienced by survey respondents included plaque (31 percent), tartar (29 percent), toothaches (17 percent), bleeding/sores or receding gums (14 percent) and nerve or root damage (7 percent).

"People don't realize that taking care of their teeth and gums is important," says Anthony Volpe, D.D.S., Colgate Research and Development. "After all, we use our teeth every day. Why should maintaining healthy teeth be any less important than toning muscles or pampering skin? If you ignore your teeth, they'll go away."

Guidelines for preventive oral care

Below are recommended guidelines for properly caring for teeth and gums to maintain a healthy smile.

- Brush teeth at least twice a day and after meals to remove food particles and plaque. Brushing also helps keep breath fresh. It's important to brush thoroughly, which should take several minutes. Brush all surfaces of the teeth—front, back and the gums.
- Floss daily between teeth and around the gumline to remove food and plaque where a toothbrush can't reach.
- Rinse your mouth with a mouthwash or mouthrinse after brushing your teeth or eating. Mouthwashes provide specific protection for various oral care problems.

A tartar control mouthwash, which removes tartar buildup and freshens breath. In addition, a fluoride mouthrinse when used daily along with brushing, has been proven to reduce cavities up to 40 percent more than brushing with a fluoride toothpaste alone.

• Follow a balanced diet, including elements from the four basic food groups. Avoid in-between meal snacks and sweet or sticky foods.

• Dental checkups every six months for examinations, cleanings and treatments are essential to identify problems, such as gum disease, early.

The survey was conducted on behalf of the Colgate U.S. Oral Care Division by R.H. Bruskin Associates among a national probability sample of 1,023 men and women. T78958SL

Consult Your Pharmacist A Friend For Life.

By Jim Rotsart R.Ph.

Health tips for the road

For many of us, July is the peak of vacation time. With children out of school, many parents are gearing up for the annual family vacation. Or, for some of us, a long weekend excursion is all the leisure time we can manage. Whether you are going cross-country or out of the country for your summer vacation, the pharmacists at Revco Drug Stores recommend packing something besides your map. Be prepared for health care emergencies, by knowing what to do when you are away from home. Here are some common guidelines.

Traveling with medication

If you are traveling by commercial carrier, do not pack your prescription medicine in your suitcase if you are going to check your luggage. As many of us know, luggage can be lost. Often, planes are delayed and you may be stuck in an airport without access to your suitcase—and medication—which can cause you to miss taking a required dosage at a specific time.

To avoid this, always carry more than enough of your medication with you, and have duplicate copies of your prescription, with your doctor's name and number, tucked away in a carry-on bag. If you lose your medication, or run out of it, replacing your prescription will be much easier. If you are on daily medication, consult your physician about dosages before you leave—especially if you are crossing time zones. Changing your medication schedule can produce harmful side effects if not properly regulated by your physician.

Time zones are not the only factors that can cause your medication to affect you differently. Changes in climate or diet also can alter your medication. Check with your physician or pharmacist when planning your trip, for information on specific precautions you should take.

Preventing illness

Don't start your vacation on the wrong foot. Remember to check with your physician or pharmacist for recommendations on medication to prevent motion sickness.

If you are going out of the country, you will want to be cautious about drinking the water or eating some types of food, which may cause intestinal distress and put a damper on your entire trip if you are not prepared. There are many over-the-counter medications that will relieve the discomfort of nausea and diarrhea. Your Revco pharmacist can recommend one for you.

Additionally, be aware that changes in environment can trigger and worsen allergies. Symptoms of allergic reactions include swollen lips and throat, hives, uncontrolled sneezing, itching, runny nose and watery eyes. Check with your physician or pharmacist for information on medications that can relieve these symptoms.

First-aid away from home

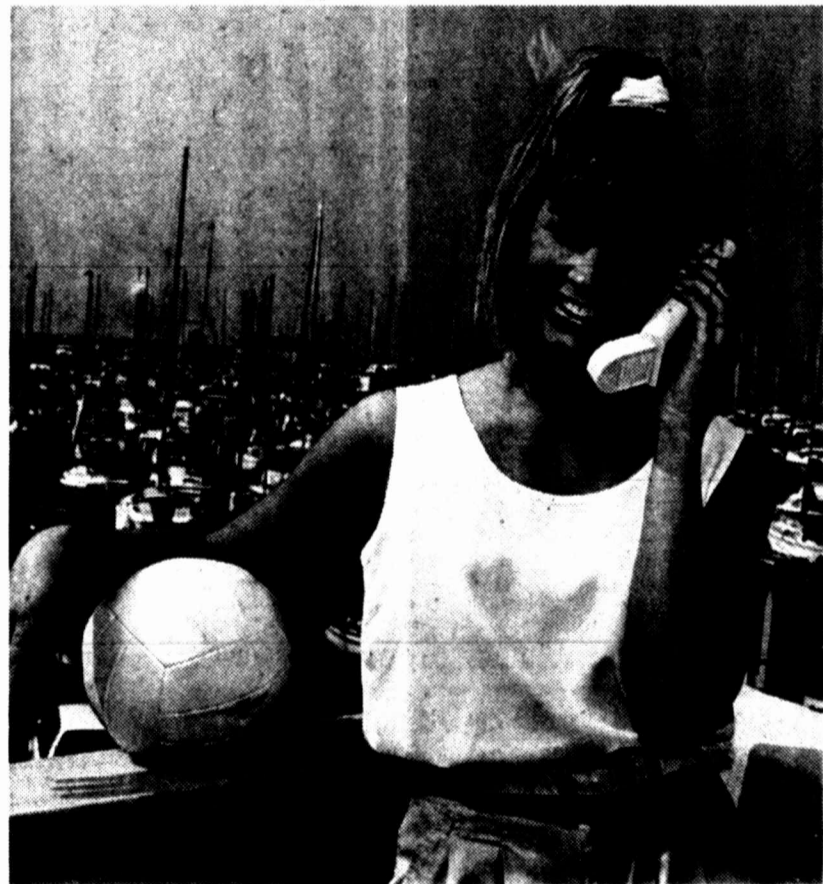

No matter where your travels take you, one of the essentials you need to carry with you, besides a toothbrush, is a first-aid kit. You never know what's around the corner or over the horizon, so it's advisable to be prepared. Pharmacists at Revco suggest the following items for an all-purpose first-aid kit, all of which are available on your local drugstore shelves:

- Adhesive bandages in a variety of sizes.
- Gauze and medical tape.
- An elastic bandage for muscle spasms or minor sprains.
- Antiseptic cream, ointment or spray for cuts, burns, scrapes and insect bites.
- An antihistamine medication for allergic reactions.
- Aspirin, ibuprofen or acetaminophen for minor aches and pains.

Summer vacation can be a fun-filled, enjoyable time. This summer, when you are packing your suitcases, remember to throw in these health tips—for a trip that everyone will choose to remember.

James Rotsart, registered pharmacist, is the vice president of professional operations for Revco Drug Stores, directing the operation of its pharmacies. T7909978

A portable mate
