Heat wave breaks several records

The normal temperature for this time of year is 94 degrees, according to reports at the Agricultural Research Center. Temperatures have been way above that lately. Reports show record highs on June 13 with 104, June 24 with 107, and June 25 with 107.

The record high has also been tied four times in recent weeks: May 25 with 106, June 3 with 103, June 5 with 104, and June 6 with 104.

Since May 15, the area has experienced 17 days with 100-plus temperatures, said a USDA representative, and residents can expect many more hot days ahead. Bill Fryrear said he did not see any significant changes in the next couple of weeks.

"Due to the hot weather, electricity use is up for TU Electric," said Bob Goodwin, district customer service operation manager. "The high for 1990 occurred on Monday, June 18, when customers used a peak of 17 million 224 thousand KW in a one hour period."

"The peak usage last year was 17 million 146 thousand KW on September 1," Goodwin stated.

"We do have the generating capability to meet all our customer needs, barring any unforeseen problem."

Gramm amendment triggers S&L backlash

By PETER ROPER
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Senators lined up to lambaste Sen. Phil Gramm — and the state of Texas — Wednesday after the Texas Republican attempted to amend a housing bill to direct more money to Texas.

Gramm complained that too many eastern states were getting too big a cut of the $2.7 billion Community Block Development Grant program, but his proposal to base the program on population alone was rejected 63 to 35.

Before the vote, however, senators from those states angrily broke out their calculators to tally up Texas' share of the $200 billion bailout of the savings and loan industry. Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., was among the most vocal critics, saying Illinois residents resented having to help pay the $30 billion cost of shoring up ailing thrifts in Texas.

Reading from a Chicago Tribune editorial, Dixon declared loudly that most taxpayers agreed with its message "to let Texans rot in their empty skyscrapers."

He said the CBDG program was only a "pittance" by comparison and was specifically created 15 years ago to help deal with poor housing in the core areas of the nation's largest cities.

Gramm, who enjoys being a Senate lightning rod, was undeterred and said it was only fair for the eastern states to help pay for the bailout because they also invested in Texas thrifts during their wildfire expansion before the crash.

He also said Texans resented that New York would get $302 million in CBDG grants while Texas would only receive $172 million. Gramm argued that by rewriting the formula to base it on population, Texas would get an additional $22 million.

"The current formula has nothing to do with need, it has to do with the political power of the people who wrote it," he insisted.

That brought New York Sen. Al D'Amato, Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry and Pennsylvania Sen. John

Heinz to their feet to complain about the cost of the thrift bailout.

"Should we discuss something other than population? Or need? Should we discuss blame?" D'Amato asked. "The savings and loan cleanup funds have gone where the need exists. And will be drawn from areas of the country where no problem exists."

Kerry said that Texas thrifts account for more than 60 percent of the cost of shoring up the thrift industry and that nearly all that failed were state-chartered.

"Yet the entire nation is being asked to pay for the cost of one state's irresponsible banking policy," he said.

The unrestrained Texas bashing prompted Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to take the floor to remind senators that he had supported federal bailouts of the Chrysler Corp., New York City and the Continental Illinois Bank when there was no profit in it for Texas.

"I supported those bailouts because I believed they were necessary for the nation," he said.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., reminded Bentsen that New York City repaid its federal loan with interest and Bentsen acknowledged as much.

"Yes, but when the city first needed the money, things looked very shaky for New York. But I still supported the loan," he replied.

Session participants favor loose structure

By RUTH COCHRAN
City Editor

A consensus of residents and city leaders believe the city's planned economic development corporation should be structured to allow it as much latitude as possible to make deals.

During the final of three informational meetings this morning, about 50 participants advised the council to give the tax-funded corporation as much authority as possible while setting realistic spending limits.

The meeting, sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, will be repeated today from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Speaker Josh Asusu, an initial member of Abilene's economic development corporation board, will relate that city's experiences during the second session tonight.

The series of meetings was organized to gather information about organizing the voter-approved economic development corporation. City residents approved a 1/2 percent city sales tax increase May 5 to fund the corporation.

As one person said, "I think they ought to be given the scope of authority to act as boss."

The participants cautioned that the corporation's spending should be given a cap, with requests over that amount to be presented to the City Council, which is ultimately responsible for the corporation. The corporation's budget should be flexible and broad enough not to hamper contracts that must be completed quickly to win a business or industry, the group advised.

The group also felt the corporation's structure should allow it to negotiate contracts without the council approving each step. One speaker pointed out that if the corporation is not given enough authority, businesses and industries requesting help will simply go straight to the City Council.

The group noted that bonds, however, should be approved by

Fireworks show 'bigger than ever'

By DEBBIE LINCECUM

At a Tuesday afternoon planning session, Big Spring car dealership owner J.B. Elmore revealed his plans for this year's fireworks display. This will be his second year to cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce in presenting the display.

On Wednesday July 4, about an hour of fireworks just after dusk will be accompanied by play-by-play narration and patriotic music broadcast over KBST radio.

"This is going to be bigger than last year," said Chris Christopher, who will narrate the event. "It will be bigger than you can imagine."

Christopher said the show will begin with some "kabooms" shortly after 9 p.m. The fireworks start about 9:35, starting slowly and building to a grand finale 54 minutes later, he said.

"There will be a finale of over 24 rounds (individual fireworks). We're going to see about 90 color changes and some real surprises this year," he said.

Christopher said there will be about 25 percent more fireworks in the show this year.

Western Enterprises, a professional company, will handle the fireworks. They will fire the rounds from Christopher's land on South

Judge: Septic tank tickets not possible

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

No provision can be found to allow the sheriff's department to issue citations for septic tanks that do not conform to state rules adopted by Howard County commissioners last October, said County Judge John Coffee.

Instead, health department officials will have to file complaints with the county attorney, who would then file charges in county court, Coffee said.

Coffee researched the state law Tuesday after receiving about 15 phone calls from citizens concerned about enforcement of the rules following a story Monday in the Big Spring Herald. At least one other commissioner received a few more calls, Coffee said.

The story cited a health department official's estimation that as many as 30 percent of some 10,000 county septic systems are unsafe.

However, the new inspection and permitting rules only applies to new systems installed since October or to any alterations, repairs or extensions done to existing systems since then, Coffee said. Systems located on 10 acres or more and not within 100 feet of a property line are exempt.

Coffee said he will seek assurances from the health department that violators will be notified in writing before a complaint is filed.

"I think they need to have a letter written to them to be given an opportunity to correct it," he said. "It's not going to be the policy of the county to go out and harass people."

The penalty for the first offense is a fine from $50 to $100, Coffee said. Each day is a separate offense. The penalty for the second offense is a fine from $125 to $500 and/or one month in jail.

Three or four people are known to be in violation of the law right now, said James Luck, chief sanitarian of the Big Spring-Howard County Health Department.

Coffee said the state statute, called the On-Site Sewage Disposal Systems of the Health and Safety

Witnesses corner alleged gunman

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston police officer making a routine traffic stop was shot and killed Wednesday evening and outraged witnesses chased down and cornered the alleged gunman.

Motorcycle Officer Jim Irby, an 18-year veteran, was killed by a gunshot to the head, police said. An unidentified woman in a passing car was wounded in the right arm and a companion was cut in the face by flying glass.

The shooting occurred about 8 p.m. on a busy six-lane intersection near Interstate 45.

Irby had stopped a car and was talking to the driver when the passenger got out, pulled a revolver and shot the officer once in the head, police spokesman Dan Turner said.

The gunman then opened fire randomly as he ran from the scene.

While one civilian used Irby's radio to call for help, several others chased the suspect to a warehouse about a block from the shooting scene.

The citizens, ignoring fire from the gunman, kept him in sight until police arrived.

An off-duty police officer working an extra job at a Fiesta grocery store across the street from the shooting apprehended the driver of the car.

Insurance fraud indictments issued

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle announced more indictments by a special grand jury empaneled in April to investigate insurance fraud statewide.

Earle said Wednesday three officials of American Teachers Life Insurance Co. of Houston were indicted on charges relating to the sale of annuities to more than 120 Houston-area residents and also on charges of diverting company assets.

The company was declared insolvent by the State Board of Insurance and placed in receivership in April 1989.

Heat, drought burning up crops in South Texas

HARLINGEN (AP) — It's too late to hope for rain in the unirrigated South Texas fields withering from drought and a relentless heat wave.

"The plants are just dying," said Ted Proske, area director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's cotton classing office in Harlingen.

Yields are way down in unirrigated "dry-land" cotton. Withered, brown corn stalks barely stand up. Grain sorghum, used for cattle feed, is falling down in some fields from the drought-induced charcoal stalk rot disease.

"The dry land, it's just almost burned up," said Dennis Traweck, co-owner of 3T Custom Farms, a grain harvesting contractor working Wednesday near Rio Hondo in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Drought and heat, aggravated by strong winds, have reduced some sorghum crops to one-fourth of the yields they should bring, Traweck said. In many unirrigated corn fields, there is nothing at all to harvest, he added.

"Any rain we get now would do more harm than good," said Larry Bates, assistant manager of Harlingen Valley Compress Co., which warehouses cotton and prepares it for shipment.

Rain would not help sorghum and corn now, either.

"They're singing a sad song right now, the growers," Bates said.

Dollar estimates were not yet available, but losses are expected to run into tens of millions of dollars, officials said.

Irrigated crops, however, appear to be doing well.

About half the estimated 350,000 acres each of cotton and sorghum are planted in fields without irrigation in the Valley. Another approximately 100,000 acres of corn were planted in the Valley, primarily in unirrigated fields.

Even less is irrigated away from the Rio Grande.

"In Duval County, about 90 percent of the crops are gone," said George Gonzalez, USDA soil conservation specialist for the county. "It's all burned up."

Neighboring Jim Wells, Jim Hogg and Webb counties weren't much better, Gonzalez said Wednesday.

Most of South Texas is suffering from a drought in which about half HARLINGEN — The ground is dry and cracked, matching the withered leaves on the cotton plants in the fields. Lack of rainfall has damaged unirrigated crops such as corn, cotton and sorghum in the Rio Grande Valley. The hundred-plus temperatures in South Texas has only added to the problem.

SAN ANTONIO — KMOL-TV reporter Brian Karem walks up the steps of the Bexar County Jail Wednesday flanked by cameramen as he surrendered to authorities to begin serving a six-month jail sentence for refusing to reveal a source in the capital murder case of slain San Antonio Police Officer Gary Lee Williams.

Reporter chooses jail rather than reveal confidential source

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A television news reporter sentenced to a six-month jail term says he will not change his mind and reveal the name of a confidential source.

"I sure don't want to do six months in jail," KMOL-TV reporter Brian Karem said on the Bexar County Jail steps as he surrendered to begin serving the jail term Wednesday. "But I'm going to keep my promise."

The reporter has defied three court orders to turn over confidential notes of a telephone interview last year with one of the two suspects jailed in the murder case.

Prosecution and defense lawyers contend they need to know who arranged the interview to prepare their cases. Karem has said the source fears for his life if his identity is revealed.

"We can't live up to our principles every day in life," Karem told reporters as he entered the jail. "But I think this is an important enough issue and I feel strongly enough about it that I want to live up to how I believe."

Karem's hopes for staying out of jail while he appeals the contempt citations ended Tuesday when the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused to issue a stay.

Sheriff Harlon Copeland met Karem on the steps of the jail. The reporter was accompanied by KMOL news director Ron Harig, station manager Bob Donohue and Karem's father, James.

"I'm not looking forward to it," the reporter said. "I'd rather be at home with my wife and my son."

Karem has an 18-month-old son.

Karem said his only hope for release would be for the source to come forward or for the U.S. Supreme Court to grant a stay of his sentence pending appeal.

Lawyer Laurence Macon, who represents Karem and the station, said Wednesday he has filed for a stay with the high court but did not expect a ruling this week.

"It does not look very good for the First Amendment today," Macon said.

The station would hold Karem's job open and he would continue to be paid while he is jailed, Harig said.

"The information contained in those notes could have been easily obtained by those attorneys and the agencies they represent," Harig said. "We shouldn't be an investigating arm of law enforcement."

"We can only guess at their motives. Perhaps they are trying to discourage people from talking to reporters," Harig said.

The jailing stems from an interview Karem conducted last year with capital murder defendant

Abortion fight brews at state GOP convention

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Republicans were prepared for a political fight today over abortion with party leaders hoping to loosen the state GOP's anti-abortion stand.

The two-day state Republican Convention begins Friday, but a committee drawing up the GOP platform meets today.

The 1988 national GOP platform calls for a constitutional amendment banning abortion except when the mother's life is endangered.

In addition, the U.S. Supreme Court over the past year has cleared the way for states to restrict abortions.

Despite this, state GOP leaders, in light of recent election wins across the country by candidates opposed to restricting abortions, want to change the platform.

One proposal calls for a constitutional amendment banning abortion except to save the life of a mother with a seven-point legislative program that urges restrictions on abortions but would also allow abortions until the fetus is viable, or about 20 weeks.

This proposal — dubbed the legislative action plan — has been endorsed by U.S. Sen. Phil

Klan plans Hico rally

HICO (AP) — As many as 3,000 Ku Klux Klan members are expected to attend a daylong rally Saturday in this Hamilton County town, a Klan organizer says.

Klansman Michael Lowe of Waco said Wednesday that the event started when about 100 members planned a picnic in the area. But it has ballooned into a rally that will draw Klan members from throughout the Southwest, he said.

If the turnout is as high as is predicted, the Klan members will outnumber the 1,600 residents of the Hamilton County town about 120 miles southeast of Abilene.

Mark Briskman, regional director of the Anti-Defamation League in Dallas, said the Klan membership is at its lowest point ever and the rally is designed to attract new members.

Nationwide, the Klan has between 6,000 to 8,000 members and less than 200 in Texas, Briskman said.

His group does not plan a counter-protest at Hico because the league doesn't want to focus any more media attention on the rally.

"We think anything that gives them additional media exposure is counter-productive," he said.

Disciplined doctors identified

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer advocacy group today released a nationwide compendium that identifies nearly 7,000 medical professionals who have been disciplined by state and federal agencies.

The roster, two inches thick and titled "6892 Questionable Doctors," lists actions taken against physicians, dentists, chiropractors and podiatrists in 40 states and the District of Columbia.

"If your doctor is among the 6,892 on this list, you ought at least to question the quality of his or her care. At the very minimum, you should find out why," Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Public Citizen Health Research Group, said in a statement released with the compilation.

The state-by-state consumer guide contains the names of doctors who have been disciplined by state medical boards, Medicare or the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

'Elvis Lady' promotes stamp

NORTH SPRINGFIELD, Vt. (AP) — Pat Geiger, known around town as "the Elvis Lady," has spent the past seven years keeping Elvis Presley alive.

Elvis the postage stamp, that is. From the kitchen table of her tidy, comfortable home on Route 10, Geiger runs the "Elvis Postage Stamp Campaign." Her goal is to convince the U.S. Postal Service to give "The King" its stamp of approval.

"Without question, Elvis Presley is the perfect subject for a U.S. commemorative postage stamp," Geiger said. "He was and, even though he left us 13 years ago, continues to be one of this country's greatest goodwill ambassadors." Her devotion may pay off. A Postal Service official says Elvis is, indeed, still alive — in a postal sense.

"There's a very good chance that sometime in the future there will be an Elvis stamp," said Frank Thomas, a Postal Service marketing specialist in Washington, D.C. "Personally, I think there will be."

The major obstacle for a Presley postage stamp is "concern over the lifestyle issue," Thomas said. The Postal Service has received mail complaining that honoring a known drug abuser "sends a bad message" to America's youth, he said.

Debt forgiveness hailed as overdue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's proposal to forgive billions of dollars in debt owed by Latin American countries is being hailed as a long-overdue initiative that will help struggling democracies and boost U.S. standing in the world.

The president laid out a package of proposals Wednesday to forgive part of the $12 billion owed to the U.S. government by Latin American and Caribbean countries. Bush said some of the debt could be swapped to buy environmentally endangered land.

In addition, he called for work to begin on a "hemisphere-wide free trade zone" and said the United States would work with other developed countries to channel up to $300 million annually to Latin America to spur foreign investment.

The proposals represent an about-face for the administration. It had been resisting congressional calls for debt forgiveness on the ground it could open the floodgates for domestic demands from groups ranging from farmers to people with old student loans.

The administration predicted that the Latin American debt concessions would have little trouble winning congressional approval. The initial reaction both at home and abroad was favorable.

Brazilian President Fernando Collor de Mello told Bush in a phone call that his proposal was "comprehensive, bold and innovative," a Brazilian spokesman said.

Honduran President Rafael Callejas termed Bush's proposals "encouraging news," while a spokesman said Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari viewed Bush's speech as a "very important redefinition of the U.S. position regarding economic development in Latin America." The proposals also address debt owed to the United States and other governments

Quake victim rescue winds down

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Exhausted rescue workers wound down their search today for survivors buried by Iran's deadliest earthquake this century, and a legislator who died during the relief effort was given a hero's burial.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said 15 aftershocks Wednesday and today jolted the stricken northwestern provinces of Gilan and Zanjan, which bore the brunt of the June 21 earthquake.

Officials of the Red Crescent, the Iranian equivalent of the Red Cross, said Wednesday that they have counted 40,000 dead and 60,000 injured. Government officials said earlier that 50,000 Iranians were killed, 200,000 injured and 500,000 left homeless.

Nearly 200 transports from 26 countries, including the United States, have airlifted urgently needed supplies in since the weekend, despite criticism of Western humanitarian aid by Iran's isolationist radicals.

IRNA said Mohammad Hassan Eftekhari, a member of the 270-seat Parliament who died in a helicopter crash Wednesday in the northwest, was given a hero's burial in his hometown of Fouman in northern Iran.

Philippines going Communist

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The withdrawal of Peace Corps volunteers highlights the vulnerability of the estimated 140,000 Americans in this country as they become steadily drawn into its 21-year-old Communist insurgency.

U.S. officials announced Wednesday that they were suspending Peace Corps operations in the Philippines and sending the 261 volunteers home because of intelligence reports that Communist rebels planned to kill or kidnap them.

Volunteers were to begin leaving by commercial flights after a farewell reception today hosted by President Corazon Aquino.

American officials refuse to elaborate on the reported rebel threat. But the decision to evacuate volunteers shows that U.S. diplomats take it seriously.

That represents a dramatic shift in U.S. perceptions of American vulnerability in the Marxist insurgency. For years, it had been widely assumed that Americans were somehow invulnerable to systematic rebel attack.

But since April 1989, eight Americans, including six affiliated with the U.S. military, are believed to have been slain by the New People's Army, the armed wing of the outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines.

Last month, the rebels claimed responsibility for killing two American airmen outside the U.S.-run Clark Air Base and vowed more assassinations until all U.S. troops leave the country.

Killings blamed on assassins

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Assassins hired by drug bosses are being blamed in the killings of another seven policemen, and authorities say a judge who handled drug trafficking cases has also been shot to death.

Three of the policemen shot to death Wednesday were killed on the streets of the northwestern city of Medellin, headquarters of the world's largest cocaine gang, a spokesman with the city police department said by telephone.

The other four policemen were killed in the town of Dorada, about 75 miles north of the capital of Bogota. They were in a patrol car when gunmen in a passing car opened fire with submachine guns and pistols, police said in a news release carried by the radio network Caracol.

Arson's firestorm destruction

Wall of smoke

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A firestorm started by an arsonist destroyed 280 homes in this coastal community, officials said today. Dozens more buildings were burned by windblown fires elsewhere in Southern California.

Thousands of acres were burning out of control today. More than 600 firefighters battled the blazes overnight, and twice as many were expected later in the day, said U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Susan Mockenhaupt.

"The fire is incredible. It came down from the mountains. It spread everywhere. It burned everything in its path," said Tim Grasey, spokesman for the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department.

Throughout Southern California, fires forced thousands of people from their homes, injured scores of firefighters and closed highways.

Police 'kill' beer keg

EDWARDSVILLE, Kan. (AP) — Police wanted to pull the plug on a party of underage drinkers, so they pulled the trigger at their keg.

"Better to do that than leave it full and have 35 to 40 juveniles running around drunk," Police Chief Dennis Robertson said Tuesday.

Police were called Sunday about a keg party involving minors in this town of 3,300 near Kansas City, Kan. Just two officers were on duty and they had two other calls which they had to respond to, Robertson said.

"There was nobody around and nobody to get hurt," Robertson said, and because of the other calls, an officer decided to fire his gun into the keg of beer, draining it.

No arrests were made. If the officers had had time, they would have taken the keg to a chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, so the group could get the keg deposit, Robertson said.

Getting voters out to the polls

The John and Mary Markle Foundation is justly concerned about the dismal lack of public participation in the American political process. Consequently, the private organization is prepared to invest millions of dollars to heighten interest in presidential campaigns.

Foundation officials have offered to finance at least one-third of the $15 million it would cost public television to provide air time to presidential candidates during the 1992 election. The plan is to feature a weekly political forum in September and most of October, with daily broadcasts presented during the week prior to election day. Although the details are yet to be finalized, the intriguing project will probably be overseen by Alvin Perlmutter, an independent television producer who has worked for PBS and NBC News.

To improve the political discourse, a Markle Foundation report recommends that "the major presidential candidates and/or parties be offered increments of free time, varying between 2.5 minutes and 15 minutes on the weekly and daily programs." It also calls for a closer examination of media coverage of the campaign and urges that voters be encouraged to express their concerns.

We have some additional recommendations. For starters, the candidates should be required to speak directly to the audience. This means no visual images of fruited plains and amber waves of grain accompanied by a smarmy musical score and voice-over.

The candidates, moreover, should present themselves to the public for at least five minutes at a time, so they can state their positions in some detail on specific issues. This would be enough time to say something substantive without taxing the viewers' notoriously short attention spans.

And there should be freewheeling debates between the candidates instead of parallel press conferences masquerading as debates. Since John Kennedy and Richard Nixon squared off on national television 30 years ago, the value of presidential debates has been steadily diminished by handlers, spin doctors and media gurus who are more concerned about imagery than issues.

The major television networks also have trivialized presidential campaigns by concentrating on "sound bites." In 1988 the average length of these short, punchy items was less than 10 seconds of air time; in 1968 it was 42 seconds.

During the 1950s, Edward R. Murrow warned that broadcast news was "an incompatible combination of show business, advertising and news." Even so, the networks did a fairly creditable job with their political coverage until the 1980s, when TV news operations were viewed as profit-makers by executives whose experience was in business, not journalism.

PBS could play an important role in elevating the level of political discourse during the 1992 contest. The alternative is the continued debasement of the quadrennial presidential campaign, which would only further alienate an apathetic electorate.

Nasty, nasty, nasty

BY ART BUCHWALD
 I happen to be one of the 2,000,135 persons who bought the recording "As Nasty as They Wanna Be" by a rap group called 2 Live Crew. I didn't want to buy the tape after it was banned in Florida, and became a cause celebre throughout the country, but what choice did I have?

I stood in a long line in front of the music shop holding my $9.95. The lady in front of me was as excited as I was. "I never heard a rap tape before," she confessed. "Neither have I," I admitted. "I understand that this one is really disgusting." The lady said, "My grandson tells me that there are a lot worse tapes on sale. Why do you think they picked on 'As Nasty as They Wanna Be'?"

"The sheriff of Broward County probably has a son who plays it all day long and he couldn't take it any more." The man standing behind me joined in the conversation. "Why would they censor music?" "It's not the music — it's the lyrics," I explained. "These are supposed to be the filthiest words ever put to music. They are just awful."

The lady said, "I wonder if they'll let you buy two." The man sounded puzzled. "What can lyrics in a song do to provoke your prurient interests?" I said, "This is a free country, but that doesn't mean you can cry 'fire' in a crowded record shop." "I'm glad they never censored 'The Sound of Music.' That was my favorite," the lady told us.

"Are you really going to play 'As Nasty as They Wanna Be' at home?" I asked her. "I doubt it. I'll probably just stick it in my purse to use as a weapon in case someone attacks me." "Why are you buying it?" the man wanted to know. "Someday I hope to be block warden in my neighborhood, and I need to know what is good for the public and what isn't. It's my understanding that this tape might drive some people to commit unforgivable acts of violence."

"You mean the words could do that?" "No, the music. The beat will drive them mad." "Do you think they'll pull other records off the shelves?" the man asked. "I should hope so," I said. "Censoring rap music could be the biggest gut issue of the next election campaign. Candidates are going to be falling all over themselves demanding the death penalty for those who play a record."

Four hours later we reached the counter and the clerk behind it handed me the tape in a brown paper bag. I took it home, locked all the doors, pulled down the shades and placed the cassette in my recorder. When it began it was a jumble of sounds. I couldn't understand a word. I put it into another tape machine to check it, and once again it was unintelligible.

In a fury, I returned to the music store and told them, "I can't understand one dirty lyric on this tape." The salesman said, "We never promised you 'My Wild Irish Rose.'"

Peace bypasses the Mideast

By GEORGE GEDDA
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In this day and age, when countries argue less and cooperate more, when armies are trimmed and East-West divisions erased, the Arab-Israeli conflict stands out as an anomaly. The prospects for a settlement are at another low point. Some people are talking openly about the possibility of yet another war in the region. It is the only major conflict in the world in which there is no serious peace process under way.

Palestinians have an understandable desire to have a nation of their own. Israelis have an equally understandable yearning to be free from external threat. Palestinians feel oppressed. Israelis feel insecure.

Mistrust is everywhere. The fledgling U.S. dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization has lapsed while still in its infancy, victim of an abortive terrorist raid near Tel Aviv that the PLO leadership refused to repudiate.

President Bush's decision to scuttle the dialogue won plaudits in Jerusalem. Still, the U.S.-Israeli dialogue is about as corrosive now as it has been at any time since the early Carter years.

The contrast with the situation elsewhere on the globe could not be greater. Perhaps for the first time, the Soviet Union has a leader almost universally regarded as a man of peace. There is now even talk of Western economic aid for the Kremlin. In Europe, it's doubtful that the people of that continent have ever gotten along better than they do now. The main agenda item this week is German reunification. Secretary of State James A. Baker III is in Berlin for those discussions.

In the post World War II era, Baker, more than any of his predecessors, has had the luxury of being able to reconcile old conflicts as opposed to confronting new ones. Consider the remark a generation ago of Secretary of State Dean Rusk: "When I'm asleep, two-thirds of the rest of the world is awake stirring up trouble." Baker sleeps easier than Rusk did.

Just this past Monday, Baker concluded a visit to Guatemala, where five Central American presidents talked about integrating their economies. It was the first time these presidents got together to talk about managing peace instead of war.

Much of the wariness of U.S.-Mexican relations has dissipated of late. With luck and hard work, the once unthinkable notion of a free trade agreement will be a reality in a couple of years. The idea of a free trade zone in the Caribbean also is gaining momentum. A decade ago, that region seemed ripe for ideological conflict.

The tensions in southern Africa seem tamer than before. Cubans are leaving Angola and the South African government has taken long strides toward ending its status as a pariah state. The tumultuous reception being given to former prisoner Nelson Mandela on his U.S. visit demonstrates how deeply rooted the concept of equal rights under law has become.

South African President F.W. de Klerk has yet to dismantle some of the most objectionable aspects of apartheid, such as the restrictions on where blacks can live.

But South Africans can take some encouragement from the peaceful evolution to democracy in Namibia, a former South African colony where the white minority lorded it over the black majority for decades. Amid the hubbub over Mandela, Namibia's president, Sam Nujoma, passed through Washington on Monday almost unnoticed.

Mandela seems to be on everybody's most admired list these days with the exception of some worried whites back home. Not the least of his feats has been the ability in his travels to charm both Palestinians and Jews, one of the few things both groups have been able to agree on.

Review board lowers five appraisal values

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Mineral values were dropped $1.3 million for E.P. Operating's estimated county oil reserves during review hearings this week by the Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District.

Their taxable value was reduced from $10.2 million to $8.9 million, a drop of 13 percent, Appraiser Weldon Peoples reported.

In other decisions by the board, real estate values were reduced a total of $30,763 for four property owners. Fifteen vacant lots in the Sunset addition, owned by Charles and Frances Marvin Wyatt, were devalued from $11,415 to $3,380, a 70 percent drop.

"The vacant lots were lowered because they weren't hooked up to utilities and water lines," Peoples said. Other reductions were based on comparable property sales figures.

Figures on mineral royalty sales led to the drop in E.P. Operating's estimated oil reserve value by Capital Appraisal Group Inc. of Austin, the firm which estimates the appraisal district's mineral values.

"That was due to Capital changing their estimates of reserves held by E.P. Operating," Peoples said.

He did not have a number on how much estimated oil they have underground.

Three home values were dropped based on sales of homes in nearby areas, Peoples said. "These were adjusted to be close to sale prices within the area, to comparable houses in the area," he said.

A home owned by A.J. Arnold at 1504 Kentucky Way went from $23,439 to $15,600. Mrs. Edward Morris' home in section 32, township 32-1 south, went from $37,102 to $25,000. A home owned by Sammy Dennard on Glenwick Cove went from $87,787 to $85,000.

Those five cases were the only ones actually presented to the board of review out of about 45 that were scheduled to appear.

Agreements were reached in most of the others without a hearing, Peoples said. Some did not show up and two were granted extensions until July 20, when county property values will be certified.

"Most of them came by and just discussed their values," Peoples said. "If someone came in and we made a clerical error, we'd correct it."

Granted extensions until July were CNG Producing and the Big Spring Evening Lions Club. "After that the roll will be certified for 1990," Peoples said.

Hall of Fame

Longtime Big Spring resident Clyde Alsup, right, is congratulated by Al Corlan, president of the Texas Association of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Counselors, after Alsup was inducted into the organization's "Hall of Fame." Alsup was the first person to receive the newly-created honor, which recognizes the work of "outstanding professionals and dedicated individuals in the field of alcoholism and drug abuse counseling," according to a press release from TAADAC. Alsup, who worked at the Big Spring State Hospital since 1974, recently retired as Unit Administrator of the Alcohol and Drug Unit.

Report: Feds investigate price-fixing by airlines

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal government has begun investigating possible price-fixing in the airline industry, the Wall Street Journal reported today.

The investigation focuses on the possibility that airlines are using a computer database to communicate pricing intentions to each other, the newspaper said.

The network of more than 100,000 published prices, operated by Airline Tariff Publishing of Washington, D.C., makes it easier for airlines to enter the data in their computer reservations systems for travel agents.

But former and current airline pricing officials told the Journal that fare changes and computer coding sometimes contain signals to other carriers.

The newspaper said it has found evidence of such computer "conversations" by arranging to tap into ATP's database.

"I am totally committed to helping young writers," Michener said. The donation will go toward the university's Texas Center for Writers, which was established with an earlier gift by the Micheners and began in September 1989.

Michener is author of more than 36 books including the Pulitzer Prize-winning "Tales of the South Pacific." He is the Jack G. Taylor Centennial Professor Emeritus at UT Austin.

Mauch named grand fidelity

Eleven members and four sponsors of Big Spring Assembly No. 60 attended the 67th session of the Grand Assembly of Texas, of the International Order of Rainbow for Girls in San Antonio June 17-20.

Girls Stephanie Mauch from Big Spring earned 20 "A" and "B" certificates and took part in many different phases of the assembly. Marcie Weaver and Stephanie Mauch were members of the Grand Choir composed from the 92 assemblies attending. Grand guards from Big Spring were Melissa Birrell and Jammie Hass (girls) and Ina Stewart and Alfred Tidwell (adults).

Shawna Tidwell served as grand representative from Hawaii to Texas until the last night, when she relinquished her banner to a new representative. Of great excitement and pleasure to Big Spring Assembly was the appointment of Stephanie Mauch as grand fidelity. During her one-year term she will visit many other assemblies and act as representative for programs and entertainments.

Presentation of the flags of the 50 states by the grand representatives was well received. The flags were presented to the Grand Assembly of Texas by the Sheridan family.

The girls and adults attended several banquets and luncheons, and on the last night all the assemblies gathered for a banquet in the El Tropicana Hotel. Before the formal opening on Sunday afternoon, Rainbow Girls of San Antonio entertained with a "Tamalada."

Drills and presentations marked the sessions. Big Spring, Midland, Friendship and Norman Read Assemblies presented a drill dedicated to Mrs. Edie Fryar, past mother advisor and past grand visitor. A poem written by Amy Osmulski of Big Spring Assembly was read during a pause in the drill. Sponsors attending were Eunice Thixton, mother advisor, Alfred Tidwell, Tom Stewart and Adele Tibbs. Jacque Mauch joined later.

Make your wishes known

DEAR ABBY: Our father died in a nursing home last winter. He was 87 and had practiced medicine for more than 40 years.

Because of Dad's failing health and multiple complications, specific instructions had been given to the nursing home medical staff by our family and Dad's longtime physician that no extraordinary measures be taken to prolong Dad's life. Dad wanted to die with dignity. Our problem arose because the attending physician failed to put Dad's wishes in writing on his chart.

When Dad went into congestive heart failure in the nursing home, the head nurse was heard to say, "We don't want him to die here and be a 'statistic'!" So, the rescue squad was called, and upon their arrival at the nursing home, they found Dad unresponsive, with no pulse. In spite of this, they started CPR and transported him to a local hospital where extraordinary means were employed to revive him!

One week later, we received an exorbitant hospital emergency room bill, plus bills from the emergency room's physician and the rescue squad! We contacted the nursing home medical staff, the emergency room physician and the hospital's president to establish that a mistake had been made and Dad's last wishes were not respected. The confrontation involved much grief for us, but afterward, our portion of the hospital bill was rescinded, along with the attending physician's bill for emergency treatment. The other portion of the bills were sent to Medicare by the hospital.

I am writing this to let others know that families do have rights in this painful situation. It is difficult to lose a loved one, but there's peace in knowing that the wishes of the patient and family have been respected.

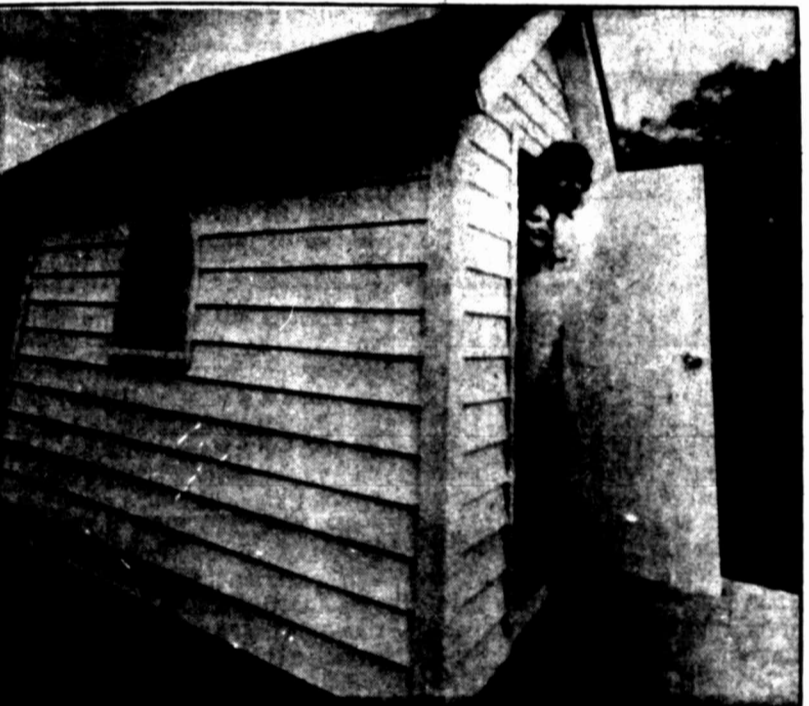

Abby, please stress that the attending physician must indicate in writing on the patient's chart: No Extraordinary Measures.

If such instructions are in writing, then all costs incurred by inappropriate procedures are no longer the responsibility of the patient's family or Medicare.

Cowboys hang tough

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

The best was saved for last during the first night of the 57th Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl.

The bull riders in the second section stole the show after the bull riders in the first section lost the war to Mack Altizer's crew of Bad Company bulls.

Defending world champion Tuff Hedeman didn't get a score in the first section. Of the eight bull riders in the first section, only three got scores.

Clint Branger, who is currently leading the world standings right now, rode "Bad to the Bone" for a 79. Jim Sharp, who's ranked seventh currently, rode his bull for a 73. The other first section score was Donald Owens' 67.

In the second section, the cowboys had a little bit better luck however. The first three riders scored on their rides. Shaun Pletcher led off with a 75; and Stephenville cowboy Mike Collier rode "Taking Care of Business" for the night's best score of 81. John Elders followed with a 72.

David Fournier got the second best ride of the night when he scored an 80 on "Wild Cherry".

It was another dry run for the "Dynamic Duo" of team ropers George Strait and Roy Cooper. Tuesday during slack, the team no-timed. With Strait being the header, and Cooper the heeler, they no timed again.

The duo of Bret Tonozzi and Mark Simon had the best time of the night with 5.4; a tenth of a second behind leaders Dennis Watkins and David Moates. The California duo (Watkins-Moates), who currently are number one in the world, performed in slack Tuesday night.

In calf roping, Tommy Smith of Hobbs, N.M. recorded the best time of 9.9. He was followed by Marty Yates of Corsicana, who was timed in 10.2. The leader in Tuesday's slack caught his prey in 8.5 in Tuesday's slack.

The bareback bronc honors were split Wednesday between a pair of Hutchinson, Kan. cowboys. Jack Sims rode "Kinky Girl" for a 74 score; and D.J. Johnson rode "Drive Me Crazy" for the same score. Ty Murray, who's currently ranked seventh in the world in bareback, was bucked off his horse just before the eight-second buzzer sounded.

Two cowboys shared the lead in the saddle bronc competition also. Robert Etbauer, who's ranked ninth in the world, scored a 78 on "Top Gun". Also scoring a 78 was Monty "Hawkeye" Henson on a ride, because his first horse didn't buck.

In the steer wrestling competition, Joel Edmondson of Eureka, Kan. had the best time of 4.7. Chuck Jankowski was next at 5.4. The leader in Big Spring's Steve Fryar, who was timed in 4.1 in Tuesday's slack.

It was a rough night for barrel racers as only two cowgirls made it around the three barrels without getting a penalty. The leader emerged as Pecosa's Sharlene Martinez with an 18.71. She was followed by San Saba cowgirl Jan Boltinghouse's 19.13.

Action resumes tonight at 8:30 at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl.

Canseco five million dollar man

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jose Canseco and the Oakland Athletics raised the roof of baseball salaries, pushing the penthouse player onto the $5 million floor.

Baseball's payroll elevator continued upward when Canseco signed a five-year, $23.5 million contract, which included a $5.1 million salary for the 1995 season.

"Obviously this is a contract of major proportions and one that will get a great deal of notoriety and comment," Oakland general manager Sandy Alderson said Wednesday at the news conference announcing the signing.

The A's have now signed four players to contracts worth more than $3 million per season. Pitchers Dave Stewart and Dennis Eckersley and outfielder Rickey Henderson preceded Canseco onto the $3 million plateau.

"There are contracts that are of equal consequence to the rest of the major league baseball population that are signed by mediocre players in substantial excess to what they are probably worth as a member of a championship club," Alderson said. "What you have to recognize is that in the case of a Jose Canseco ... the trickle-down effect exists. But, in my opinion, it is not as great as the trickle-down effect that comes from contracts of players of far less ability."

There are few of equal ability to Canseco, the only player ever to combine 40 home runs and 40 stolen bases into a single season. Already in his 4 1/2-year career, Canseco has been voted the American League's Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player, and hit 148 home runs and driven in 474 runs.

"The new contract reflects his ability as a player and, in many respects, also reflects the dramatic change in the marketplace that has occurred since December of last year," Alderson said.

"The contract is unprecedented in its proportions, as were the contracts of other players who were signed during this last few-months period."

The deal erased Don Mattingly as baseball's highest-paid player. In April, Mattingly signed a five-year, $19.6 million with the New York Yankees.

Canseco, 25, will earn more than $800,000 per year more than Mattingly. His contract will pay him $2.8 million in 1991, $3.6 million in 1992, $4.1 million in 1993, and $4.4 million in 1994 before breaking through the $5 million barrier.

The A's slugger also will receive a $3.5 million signing bonus.

Guards dominate NBA draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Derrick Coleman went to the New Jersey Nets with the first pick before the NBA draft took on a shooter's look Wednesday night.

Coleman, a 6-foot-10, 235-pound All-American forward, was the all-time leading rebounder in collegiate history and Syracuse's all-time leading scorer with 2,143 points. He was a starter for four years for the Orangemen and was almost universally considered the best NBA prospect.

With Coleman taken, big men became a scarce commodity. Of the remaining 26 picks in the first round, 13 were guards or perimeter players.

Seattle took 6-3 Oregon State point guard Gary Payton and Denver followed with LSU's 6-1 Chris Jackson, a 29-point scorer in his two years in college. Not since Detroit took Isiah Thomas with the No. 2 pick in 1981 has a guard been taken as high as Payton.

Then came 6-7 Dennis Scott of Georgia Tech, an outstanding perimeter shooter who was taken by Orlando, and 6-5 guard Kendall Gill of Illinois, selected by Charlotte.

The string of shooters was broken when Minnesota selected 7-0 Felton Spencer of Louisville and the Sacramento Kings grabbed 6-7 Player of the Year Lionel Simmons of La Salle with the first of their record four first-round picks.

The Kings later selected guard Travis Mays of Texas at No. 14, 7-0 center Duane Causwell of Temple with the 18th pick; and forward Anthony Bonner of St. Louis at No. 20.

Chuck Kinney of Sulphur Springs, La., takes a break before opening night at the Big Spring rodeo. Kinney is coming off an injury that nearly ended his career.

You can't keep a good clown down

By RUTH COCHRAN City Editor

When Chuck Kinney entered the rodeo bowl Wednesday night he faced vivid memories of his own personal nightmare.

During bull fighting competition at last year's Big Spring Cowboy Reunion Rodeo, Kinney took a shot to the right side of his face that shook him to his soul.

"It's inevitable in the business; it's going to happen," said Kinney, who has clowning for 10 years. "If you play with the bull, you're going to get the horn."

It was the third and final night of Wrangler bull fighting competition last year, and Kinney, looking for some last few money-winning points, decided to bait the bull one more time. With 10 seconds left to show his stuff, the Sulphur, La., clown wanted to demonstrate his trademark: bull fighting Cajun style.

"This was the last pass — I'd already fought the bull 50 or 60 seconds," he said. "It caught me and gathered me."

"The best thing to do is just tuck your head and roll," Kinney, unfortunately, rolled right under the enraged bull's feet. One of the animal's dew claws caught at the inside corner of Kinney's right eye and ripped through the fragile skin of his face.

The 32-year-old said he didn't feel the pain and didn't realize there was anything seriously wrong until he saw the look on the face of close friend and fellow bull fighter Mike "Smurf" Horton.

"I just got up and looked at Smurf and I could tell by his facial expression I was hurt," said Kinney, who can view the incident now with a sense of humor. "I never really did think he got me. I got up wanting to fight."

The seventh pick was the Kings' own after they finished with a 23-59 record this season. The other picks were acquired in trades with Dallas and Utah. The Mavericks round matching the most ever from one college team in the same year. Forward Loy Vaughnt was selected by the Clippers with the 13th pick and forward Terry Mills was Milwaukee's selection at No. 16.

Indiana had three players taken in the first round after its undefeated national championship season in 1976 — Scott May, Bobby Wilkerson and Quinn Buckner. UCLA matched that in 1979 when David Greenwood, Roy Hamilton and Brad Holland were chosen in the first round.

The Nets, whose 17-65 record was the worst in the NBA last season, haven't had a first-rate first-round selection since Sleepy Floyd in 1982.

Since then, they have taken Jeff Draft page 2-B

Rogers wins shoot

Local trapshooter Kelly Rogers participated in the New Mexico State Trapshooting in Almodoro last week and won the open doubles championship title.
 Rogers shot hit his target 99 of 100 times, tying with four New Mexico shooters. He then won the competition by hitting all of his targets in the shoot-off round.
 Adding to his win, was the singles open championship where he shot a perfect 200 of 200, tying with three others. He also won the shoot-off.

 though he doesn't recall being especially worried. Even when Horton escorted him to the Justin Heeler trailer, a sort of mobile medical unit for the cowboys, Kinney was feeling confident.
 Until he saw therapist John Hestor.
 "I looked at him and I could tell by his facial expression I was hurt," Kinney said.
 Reality didn't sink in even when Hestor said that Kinney's injuries were beyond him and Horton bundled him into a pickup truck for the drive to the hospital.
 "I went in there and laid down on the table. Smurf and the nurse cleaned it up," Kinney said. "Smurf was still telling me 'You just need a couple of stitches.'"
 In an effort to protect his buddy from the shock, Horton wouldn't allow the nurses to give Kinney a mirror. So he lay on the table waiting for the on-call doctor to arrive.
 "He came in and looked at it and I could tell by his facial expression I was hurt," Kinney said of his first meeting with Dr. Carlos Garza.

 Garza told Kinney that the injuries were beyond him too and a specialist was needed. Kinney insisted on taking a look at the problem himself. That's when he learned what all the fuss was about.
 "They got me a mirror and I looked at it," Kinney said. "I could tell by my facial expression I was hurt."
 The exposed cheekbone and torn eyelids were his second clues.
 "It looked like a horror movie," Kinney recalled. "It scared me. I had a 1-year-old girl and I was just wondering if she would recognize her daddy when he got home."
 Kinney decided he'd had enough and that Garza would patch him up right then and there. He recalls the ensuing three-hour surgery as mostly feeling like his eyeball was being tugged from his head. Layer by layer — with about 50 stitches — Garza repaired Kinney's tear duct, eye lids and cheek.

 When it was over, Garza warned his patient that he probably would suffer a list of permanent problems, including blurred vision and a lazy eye. Garza told Kinney that at best, he would never look the same.
 Kinney said he remained scarred for about a week, fearing the damage that might have been done. He went home to Louisiana for two weeks to nurse his wounds then watched astonished as his body began to heal.
 The doctor who removed his stitches couldn't get over Kinney's luck.
 "He couldn't believe I could read the (eye) chart," Kinney said. "He couldn't believe the job Dr. Garza had done. He kept telling me how lucky I was."
 "Dr. Garza needs to be commended. If he saw it today, he would really be proud of himself I think."
 Amazingly, within three weeks he was on the road to Salt Lake City, Utah, for a rodeo. Although his face was rapidly returning to normal, the three-day drive left Kinney hours of time to think about what happened.

 "I was thinking 'Do you really want to do this? I thought about it a lot,'" Kinney said.
 The moment of truth was when Kinney had to enter the arena for the first time since his accident. The fact that no one detected his injuries under his clown makeup made the moment easier, Kinney said.
 "I was very nervous walking out there. Since I was in Salt Lake City ... the only person's mind this was on was mine. They never even asked me about the deal. So I said it must not be so bad. It kind of helped loosen me up."
 "I guess I said to myself I wasn't scared of the last one. I won't be scared of this one. It wasn't my first injury and it won't be my last."
 The pep talk worked and Kinney was able to face his fears. After the first night back to work, it was better than business as usual: Kinney won the first round of bull fighting.

 "I thought everything's good, everything's back in order," he said. "It was behind me, it was history."
 Kinney did have some bits of unfinished business in Big Spring. The last time he'd left the rodeo bowl he'd decided it was for good.
 "When I left here I wouldn't (have returned), but here I am," he said. "I'm delighted, I'm excited."
 Kinney said he couldn't stand to miss out on Bad Company Rodeo's 10th anniversary tour, and after clowning in Big Spring for five rodeos, he figured one more couldn't hurt.
 And there was something special he wanted to do, Kinney said he wanted to visit Dr. Garza and thank him the way any good cowboy would.
 "I have two (rodeo) tickets in the truck for him right now," Kinney said.

Favorites roll on

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Ivan Lendl's mission to finally win Wimbledon took another powerful step forward today and received a further boost from a hard-hitting Austrian.
 The top-ranked player in the world used pounding serves, sharply angled volleys and a lot of skill to beat Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland 6-1, 6-3, 6-0 to advance to the third round.

Wimbledon

Also advancing, although with a bit more difficulty, was Gabriela Sabatini. The women's fourth seed from Argentina beat Anke Huber of West Germany 6-2, 7-6.
 Out of the tournament, though, went Henri Leconte. The 15th seed from France was eliminated by Alex Antonitsch of Austria 2-6, 6-4, 7-6, 2-6, 6-3.
 As the fourth day of the Grand Slam tournament played out in cool, breezy weather, a bomb scare paralyzed part of the ground outside Centre Court for about a half hour.
 Play was suspended on three outside courts after a suspicious item — it turned out to be a camera in a leather case — was found near the main gate. Police bomb-squad officers gave the all-clear after checking the item with a portable X-ray machine.

 Leconte was the eighth seed out of the men's draw with the third round not even finished. He had been seeded to meet Lendl in the fourth round.
 Other seeds advanced easily as well. No. 7 Katerina Maleeva beat Kimiko Date of Japan 6-1, 6-4, and No. 14 Judith Wiesner of Austria beat Karine Quentrec of France 6-3, 6-3.
 On Wednesday, the tournament called on the Upset-Busters for a return to normalcy, after John McEnroe and 10 other seeds had failed to survive the first round.
 In they charged, armed with powerful serves and sweeping groundstrokes. And when defending champions Boris Becker and Steffi Graf were finished, order had been restored to the hallowed laws.
 Ending the carnage of the opening round, Becker and Graf led 10 seeds comfortably through second-round matches Wednesday. Most barely broke a sweat.
 Becker, the men's second seed, stumbled at first but then swept past Wally Masur of Australia 6-7, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 for his ninth consecutive Wimbledon victory and declared his playing vastly improved since the first round.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bidding for the slip actress Kathleen Turner wears in Broadway's "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" escalated quickly after an auctioneer informed potential buyers she was wearing it just a few blocks away. "She's sweating in it right now," Didi Lynn Worsole said at the auction for Easter Seals on Tuesday. "Maybe there will be a little perfume on it."

Bidding had started at $500 and went up in increments of $100. Real estate broker Henry Setaro came in with the top bid of $1,200.

"It's the closest I will ever get to Kathleen Turner," said Setaro. "I hope they don't wash it before I get it."

Setaro's wife sat next to him during the bidding. Sandy Setaro said she approved of the purchase because the money was for a good cause.

Turner plays Maggie in a low-cut, lavender, thigh-length, silk slip with lace trim.

The slip actually is one of two that were custom-made for Turner to wear in the Tennessee Williams play, in accordance with a union regulation that requires two sets of each costume.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A radio station will no longer play the music of Grammy winner k.d. lang because the Canadian country star appears in a new ad campaign called "Meat Stinks."

KRVN in Lexington will boycott lang until she renounces the group People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals and her "fanatic anti-meat philosophy," program director Charlie Brogan said.

KRVN, which broadcasts country music, farm and market reports to Nebraska, Kansas and Iowa, was formed by farm groups in the late 1940s, Brogan said Wednesday.

"This is more than supporting the local economy. It's part of our mission of ag service," Brogan said. "Her music has given her a platform. We decided by not playing her music, we're not enhancing that platform."

The singer appears in the ad with a cow and says, "If you knew how meat was made, you'd probably lose your lunch. I know — I'm from cattle country. That's why I became a vegetarian. Meat stinks, and not just for animals but for human health and environment."

Dan Mathews, PETA director of special projects, said the TV ads and a print ad campaign will begin this summer.

Independence Day promising variety of thrills for residents

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

Fourth of July activities will include more than just fireworks this year. Events planned around Crossroads Country and beyond include picnics, music, art and sports.

The Stanton Care Center will host the Razzle-Dazzle Clown Show at 10 p.m. July 4. The show features music, magic and general "clowning around." Everyone is invited.

Big Spring's annual fireworks display is expected to be the biggest in West Texas again this year. It will be sponsored for the second year by J.V. Elmore of Elmore Chrysler-Dodge-Jeep Inc. and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Fireworks will be set up and fired from South Mountain.

Linda Roger of the Chamber said people who want to watch are encouraged to get to Comanche Trail Park early. The show starts about 9:30 p.m. A "play-by-play" narration and patriotic music will be broadcast over radio station KBST.

The Dixie Land Band will play in the amphitheater from 8 p.m. until the fireworks start. Concessions will be available at the park, though seating space will be limited.

Other good spots for watching include the Highland Mall parking lot and the VA Medical Center lawn.

Colorado City Chamber of Commerce plans a "beach" volleyball tournament, fishing tournament, games, food and arts and crafts booths, all at Ruddick park. A fireworks display will be sponsored by the volunteer firefighters. Sign up to have a booth by calling 728-8416.

Lamesa plans a variety of celebratory events, including: food booths, entertainment, basketball games, a volleyball tournament and fireworks. Swimming at the city pool is free from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Food and game booth space can be reserved until Monday by calling the Chamber of Commerce at (806) 872-2181.

Scurry County artists will exhibit their work July 3 and 4 at the Scurry County Barn in Towle Park. Snyder. Photography and paintings will be exhibited and judged.

Showings begin at 5 p.m. Tuesday, until 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Wednesday, ending at 7 p.m. Interested artists should contact Nena Mitchell at 573-6120 or LaVern Lee at 573-2754 for information.

If you don't mind the drive, you might want to head for San Antonio. Willie Nelson's annual picnic happens there on July 3 this year.

Gramm effort draws spite

By PETER ROPER
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Senators lined up to lambaste Sen. Phil Gramm — and the state of Texas — Wednesday after the Texas Republican attempted to amend a housing bill to direct more money to Texas.

Gramm complained that too many eastern states were getting too big a cut of the $2.7

billions Community Block Development Grant program, but his proposal to base the program on population alone was rejected 63 to 35.

Before the vote, however, senators from those states angrily broke out their calculators to tally up Texas' share of the $200 billion bailout of the savings and loan industry.

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., was among the most vocal critics, saying Illinois residents resented having to help pay the $30 billion cost of shoring up ailing thrifts in Texas.

Reading from a Chicago Tribune editorial, Dixon declared loudly that most taxpayers agreed with its message "to let Texans rot in their empty skyscrapers."

He said the CBDG program was only a "pittance" by comparison and was specifically created 15 years ago to help deal with poor housing in the core areas of the nation's largest cities.

Gramm, who enjoys being a Senate lightning rod, was undeterred and said it was only fair for the eastern states to help pay for the bailout because they also invested in Texas thrifts during their wildfire expansion before the crash.

He also said Texans resented that New York would get $302 million in CBDG grants while Texas would only receive $172 million. Gramm argued that by rewriting the formula to base it on population, Texas would get an additional $22 million.

"The current formula has nothing to do with need, it has to do with the political power of the people who wrote it," he insisted.

That brought New York Sen. Al D'Amato, Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry and Pennsylvania Sen. John Heinz to their feet to complain about the cost of the thrift bailout.

"Should we discuss something other than population? Or need? Should we discuss blame?" D'Amato asked. "The savings and loan cleanup funds have gone where the need exists. And will be drawn from areas of the country where no problem exists."

Kerry said that Texas thrives account for more than 60 percent of the cost of shoring up the thrift industry and that nearly all that failed were state-chartered.

The unrestrained Texas bashing prompted Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to take the floor to remind senators that he had supported federal bailouts of the Chrysler Corp., New York City and the Continental Illinois Bank when there was no profit in it for Texas.

"I supported those bailouts because I believed they were necessary for the nation," he said.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., reminded Bentsen that New York City repaid its federal loan with interest and Bentsen acknowledged as much.

"Yes, but when the city first needed the money, things looked very shaky for New York. But I still supported the loan," he replied.

Fleahoppers

invade cotton fields

Many of Crossroads Country's young cotton plants are being destroyed by swarms of small green insects, said entomologist Victor Lucero. Lucero, entomology expert for Howard, Martin and Midland Counties, said sub-irrigated fields around Knott are in great danger from the wrath of the small bugs, known as "fleahoppers."
 "It's so dry, they're migrating into cotton fields, coming in from the pastures, especially where there are silver-leaf nightshades to feed on," Lucero said.
 "We've really got to watch sub-irrigated fields because there's still the potential there for yield. Farmers should be treating for fleahoppers. We're in bad shape out here."
 Some farmers have already experienced a 20 percent or more square loss, he said. Fleahoppers are about half an inch in length and colored pale green.
 The drought has only worsened the problem of fleahoppers, he said.
 "What we really need out here is rain," Lucero said.

Heat wave breaks several records

The normal temperature for this time of year is 94 degrees, according to reports at the Agricultural Research Center. Temperatures have been above that lately. Reports show record highs on June 13 with 104, June 24 with 107, and June 25 with 107.
 The record high has also been tied four times in recent weeks: May 25 with 106, June 3 with 103, June 5 with 104, and June 6 with 104.
 Since May 15, the area has experienced 17 days with 100-plus temperatures, said a USDA representative, and residents can expect many more hot days ahead. Bill Fryrear said he did not see any significant changes in the next weeks.
 "In hot weather, electricity use is up for TU Electric," said Bob Goodwin, district customer service operation manager. "The high for 1990 occurred on Monday, June 18, when customers used a peak of 17 million 224 thousand KW in a one hour period."

Panel OKs new cable TV controls

By JAY ARNOLD

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee approved a bill to place new cost and competition standards on the cable television industry amid warnings that irritated viewers are watching to see what Congress will do about poor service and soaring prices.
 Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn., noted Wednesday that cable TV is a consumer issue affecting 52 million viewers who are also voters.
 The message was not lost on the House Energy and Commerce telecommunications subcommittee as it approved, by voice vote, a bill designed to control prices for basic cable TV services and ensure competition.

 A Senate committee earlier this month gave near-unanimous approval to a similar measure.
 Rep. Matthew Rinaldo, R-N.J., who helped subcommittee Chairman Edward Markey, D-Mass., draft the compromise bill, predicted the measure would pass the House this year.
 He said he would urge President Bush to sign the bill, although Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher and Justice Department officials told the House they opposed the measure.
 Several subcommittee members promised to try to amend the bill later to allow telephone companies to compete with cable. Major floor fights are expected over that proposal in the House and Senate.

 Congress in 1984 deregulated the cable TV industry. But consumer complaints about poor service and high charges prompted introduction of bills to rein in an industry that Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, calls an unregulated monopoly.
 "This is a very significant consumer victory," Gene Kimmelman, legislative director of the Consumer Federation of America, said of the House bill. If enacted, "It will finally bring cable rates down to reasonable levels and promote competition... most usefully in rural America."

 Kimmelman has maintained that cable subscribers are paying twice what they should in the absence of effective competition.
 The House bill, he said, "could actually lead to rate rollbacks for the communities that have experienced extreme (rate) increases."
 The cable TV industry condemned the bill.

Weight

 A federal trial jury found that the college had broken its contract with Ms. Russell. The jury awarded her $43,903.45 in damages and interest.

The 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the award last Nov. 20, saying, "The college does not dispute that the student-college relationship is essentially a contractual one."
 "The college, the jury found, forced Russell into voluntary withdrawal because she was obese, and for no other reason," the appeals court said. "Even worse, it did so after admitting her to the college and later the nursing department with full knowledge of her weight condition."

 In its appeal, the college said the 1st Circuit court applied the wrong standard of review in Ms. Russell's case.
 The case is Salve Regina College vs. Russell, 89-1629.

Man sought in killing in hands of authorities

EL PASO (AP) — Mexican police have surrendered to U.S. authorities a Cuban refugee suspected of killing an FBI agent during an attempted bank robbery in Las Vegas this week.
 Officials said Jose Antonio Echavarria Lorrente, 29, was placed in FBI custody after Mexican officials drove him across the international Paso del Norte bridge about 4:30 p.m.

Echavarria was arrested at 8 p.m. Tuesday as he was entering the Ciudad Juarez airport carrying a ticket to Mexico City, said Felipe Pando, a Mexican state police officer in Ciudad Juarez.

Police found two .38-caliber pistols in the car Echavarria left at the airport, Pando said.
 FBI special agent John Bailey was gunned down Monday as he tried to halt a robbery at a Security Pacific Bank branch several blocks east of the Las Vegas Strip.
 A motorcycle belonging to Echavarria was found in front of the bank.

Mexican officials said Echavarria confessed to killing Bailey, but Kincaid would only say the FBI has information that Echavarria incriminated himself.
 Terry Kincaid, an FBI spokesman, said the Mexican police "had almost their entire force on this thing."

Mexican authorities were able to track down Echavarria after intercepting a call he made to a travel agency to buy the ticket to Mexico City, Kincaid said.
 Echavarria planned to fly from Mexico City to Merida, on Mexico's Yucatan peninsula, Kincaid said.
 Echavarria made his initial appearance before U.S. Magistrate Janet Ruesch Wednesday night where he was charged with bank robbery and killing of a person while attempting to free himself. He is being held in the El Paso County Detention Center.
